LONGEST OCEAN FLIGHT UNDER WAY

Wind and Rain Storm Spreads Havoc Over Wichita Area

Wichita Falls Man Badly Burned in Gas Explosion; Heavy Damage Done Here

Sweeping across the state at from 60 to 75 miles per hour, a terrific wind and rain storm Sunday night was estimated to have caused thousands of dollars damage, principally in minor accidents and to growing crops.

The storm moved from the west across Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma in a strip 250 miles wide and 400 or more miles long, according to reports compiled by The Record News.

The storm struck Wichita Falls at about 8:15 o'clock, the city being thrown into darkness immediately afterward. Telephones were out of order for a short time, and a large part of the city was without light and power for almost three hours.

Charlie Tracy, employe of the Wichita Falls Laundry company, suffered severe burns about the face and back when a gas pipe in the plant at Union and Ninth streets exploded about 9:45 o'clock Sunday night.

Mr. Tracy was rushed to the Hargrave-Walker hospital, where it was believed that his injuries would not prove fatal.

Wind Causes Blast

H. C. Waggoner, chief engineer at the plant, said that cause of the accident was not known but believed that the explosion occurred when a wire shorted by the wind ignited gas in the boiler room. There were no witnesses of the accident, Mr. Waggoner said.

Two smokestacks of the laundry were blown down early in the storm, Mr. Waggoner said, and it was thought that these may have caused a shortage in the wiring system.

The storm struck Anson at 7:30 and Stamford at 7:45 o'clock and damage was reported general but not of a major nature.

From the north a storm blew in at the same time along the Katy lines from Elk City, 136 miles away. It was estimated at a half inch in that territory.

Heavy Local Damage

Hitting Amarillo at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the storm lasted four and a half hours and swept down the Fort Worth and Denver to Wichita Falls.

Earlier storms were reported through the night late Saturday and early Sunday from Forgan, Okla., to Altus.

Wichita county apparently received the heaviest damage from the wind and rain. Iowa Park, Electra, Burkburnett and Wichita Falls received torrential rains, and damage in broken windows, uprooted trees and injured buildings.

At Iowa Park the Star Shoe shop was reported blown away, the front of the Busy Bee restaurant was blown in, and the garage of Lige Crestman wrecked. A large glass in the Morrison grocery crashed, and many trees were uprooted. The storm lasted about an hour.

Autos Crash

Only meager reports were received from Burkburnett, comunication with that town being unrestored shortly before 2 o'clock Monday morning.

In Wichita Falls the reported damage was of minor nature, but widespread over the city. Six automobile crashes were reported as a result of the blinding rain and heavy wind.

Large plate glass windows in the Cassell Drug store No. 2 at Eighth and Lamar streets, and in the Martin Printing company were blown out with the first big flash of lightning and clap of thunder, seemingly from concussion. A string of small ornamental windows on the Ninth street side of the Perkins-Timberlake store were also blown out. A small glass over the door of the Scott avenue garage was poked in by a flying sign.

Automobiles were blown into the middle of the streets down town.

Small trees blocked Ninth street and other streets were littered with broken trees and limbs.

Ten fire alarms were turned in immediately after the storm hit, but most of them were from persons who had seen the flashes of transformer boxes.

A board fence behind Arthur's lunch room at 8th and Lamar streets was blown down, and a large

In the elaborate program of entertainment the Woman's Forum has announced, there is a uniform high quality which should cause anticipation for the coming season by the general public, as well as by the members of the organization. The forum is careful of the enterprises to which it lends its name. It would have the word "forum" on any attraction the badge of quality and value. Years ago a man named Stetson followed the same plan in hat-making, and his brand became the standard of the world in matters of head-gear.

The women's organization has a double purpose in its programs: The entertainment, enlightment and education of its own members and the public at large, and the application of any excess funds derived to other civic work which bears no monetary revenue. Such a program should and does receive support here. Even Uncle Samuel says "tax free" on such occasions.

With 1200 women and many organizations grouped in a common program, it is easy to understand how they obtain results. Men of the city should read a current article in the Nation's Business—which points out that the trouble with most towns is not in number and quality of organizations, but TOO MANY average-sized organizations trying to do too many different things.

J. E. Parks, principal of Alamo school, and his son, Lemuel Parks, will matriculate in Texas Tech college this week. It is a rare privelege accorded Mr. Parks. Few fathers could attend college with their sons, but more of them could strive to approach the same outlook, with consequent gain to both sides of the family tree.

A Wichita Falls business man, who seems to have retained an admiriation, respect and affection for his father usually attributed to a youth of 12, told this writer the following story: "In my sophomore year at college I made some rather injudicious 'investments' to the extent that I was $213 in debt at the end of the month. I wrote my dad my room had been burglarized or clothing, books and all possessions. Back came a friendly letter with check. At the end was this postcript: 'Dear Son: When you haven't got 'em, don't bet 'em.'"

William McKemie, Sr., vice president of the Perfection Ice Scoring Machine company, has purchased a plane for the use of his company's salesmen in covering the state. Within a few years the business man will be using the airplane with almost the regularity he now uses the automobile.

Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, Waco and San Antonio have now been linked by passenger air travel, as well as by air mail service. Neither service has been extended into northwest or West Texas. Residents of this area should get in step with the remainder of the state and nation.

CORN FARMERS DENOUNCE CAL AND HOOVER

Illinois Meeting Issues Condemnation of G. O. P. Administration

"REVOLT" DEFINITE

Chicago Gathering Cheers Lowden's Mention As Candidate

CHICAGO, June 3. (UP)—The midwest farm "revolt," now in definite form, began to move on Kansas City today where the corn belt farmer will demand that the Republican party insert a relief plank in its convention platform and work for the nomination of a presidential candidate who will uphold it.

CONTESTS TODAY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 3. (UP)—This city was the hub of Republican politics tonight as the remaining members of the national committee arrived for the all-important members of the national committee arrived for the all-important opening of the hearings on contested delegations Monday morning.

The Lowden boom, insofar as the middle west is concerned, gained in strength in various meetings held by farm organizations recently and was climaxed by the gathering in Chicago Saturday which was representative of 14 corn belt states.

Fair Denounced

At another meeting Saturday at Dekalb, Ill., 2500 northern Illinois farmers expressed their demands in plainer and stronger terms. A resolution, denouncing President Coolidge and Herbert Hoover by name for their "agricultural records of broken pledges," was adopted unanimously.

The president's veto of the McNary Haugen bill was "condemned" by the resolution and the bill was referred to as "representing the best though of the students of agriculture."

Lowden's name brought cheers from the attending farmers who voiced the sentiment that "a man like him must be nominated or we will refuse either to vote or will support the Democratic candidate."

Lowden's campaign manager, Clarence Buck, left Chicago today for Kansas City where headquarters will be opened Monday for the former Illinois governor. He left with the confidence that the middle west farmers would support Frank O. Lowden as their first choice for the Republican presidential nomination.

Westerner Wanted

Many of the delegates attending the meeting here Saturday expressed this sentiment although Senator James E. Watson, Indiana, Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Senator Curtis, Kansas, and Senator Norris, Nebraska, were others mentioned as favored by the farmers.

Senator Watson, Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska and George Peek, Moline, Ill., were selected as the committee to draft the farm plank to be presented to the resolutions committee at the Kansas City convention.

The delegates voted to ask for an agricultural plank that will make the tariff "as effective for the farmer as for industry." Nomination of some man from the middle west who favors farm equality also was demanded.

Young German Inventor to Test Rocket for Proposed Trip to Moon

CASSEL, Germany, June 3. (US)—The first leg of a Jules Verne trip to the moon will be scientifically tried out, probably at the end of next week when Herr Raab, German pilot and constructing aviation expert, will "shoot" himself into the air in a rocket plane of his own construction now nearing completion here.

"I am not going to the moon this time," said Raab, "but I may land in heaven or the other place—neither of which I believe, is on the moon."

His first attempt will not take him very high but is largely an experiment in which he will act chiefly as a "human registering instrument" to record the mental, nerve and heart sensations on a human being shot into the air at

THRONGS VIEW WORLD BEAUTY

"Miss Universe" Seen In Galveston Parade

GALVESTON, Texas, June 3. (AP) "Miss Universe," who will be given that title and will be proclaimed the most beautiful bathing girl in the world, today paraded before a crowd estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000 persons packed together in grand stands and automobiles along a two-mile beach front in Galveston's third annual international pageant of pulchritude.

"Miss Universe," one of the 42 girls in the parade, will be chosen Tuesday night after "Miss United States" has been selected tomorrow night from the American entries. Ten of the beauties are from foreign countries.

Decorated Floats

In highly decorated floats the girls today were interspersed in a parade in which arrangements had been made for 2000 automobiles. This parade was the first official event of the pageant, a sports costume parade yesterday having been rained out.

As the beauties in their "pushcarts" rolled down the beach front, virtually the entire population of this island city, augmented by visitors who came by train, automobile, boat and airplane, paid homage to the girls.

They cheered their favorite entries, and the roll of the waves against the breakwater added to the din. The spectators, in their bright summer costumes, were as brilliant a picture of color as were the bathing girls. Then, too, their clothing gave them protection against the strong sun that the beauties were denied.

Amelia Earhart Co-Pilot of Fokker As It Leaves Boston on Mysterious Journey

HALIFAX, N. S., June 3. (US)—Wilmer Stultz, piloting a tri-motored Fokker recently purchased from Commander Richard E. Byrd, arrived here late today from Boston on the first lap of a projected flight to England via St. John's, New Foundland. As a passenger in the ship was Miss Amelia Elkberg, whose identity was shrouded in mystery. A mechanic was also aboard.

The ship landed at Dartmouth on the east side of the harbor. Reports received this afternoon from St. John's, New Foundland, said that preparations had been made there to re-fuel the Stultz plane which was expected to arrive tonight. Reports of foggy weather at St. John's, however, made Stultz land here.

FLIGHT TO LONDON

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, announced tonight that the tri-motored Fokker plane which Wilmer Stultz today flew from Boston a Halifax, N. S., was bound for London, via Trespassy, N. F.

Stultz entered the long-distance flying lists several months ago when he piloted Charles Levine and Miss Mabel Boll from New York to Havana, and, according to recent announcements, had been expected to fly Miss Boll to Europe.

The former Byrd plane had been in Boston several days where it was fitted with pontoons and tested. In anouncing the sale last week Byrd refused to reveal the name of the purchaser, but said the ship had been bought for a trans-Atlantic flight.

SCIENCE CONCERN BUYS AIRPLANE

NEW YORK, June 3. (US)—Commander Richard E. Byrd in a statement here tonight said, "I have sold the plane now on its way to Europe to the Mechanical Science corporation. I have no connection with its present or future flights. I have not announced the sale sooner because the sale was made with the condition that, re-

Lindy Smiles Relief When He Hears Editor Calls Him "Swell Head"

EL PASO, Texas, June 3. (AP)—After taking off from the Fort Bliss flying field here this afternoon at 5:20 o'clock, Colonel Charles A. Lindberg ran into a thunderstorm and returned to the field at 7:20 p. m.

SAN DIEGO, June 3. (US)—After a man who doesn't like that sort of thing anyway, has gone through a year of being called an "intrepid birdman," a "darling of the skies" and a "fearless eagle" . . .

It's a positive relief to be called a swellhead.

At least that was what Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's grin indicated here today when he read newspaper dispatches in which an Amarillo, Texas, editor came right out in accusing black type and said that Lindbergh was a "swellhead." He acted "bored and annoyed," the editor said when the good folk of Amarillo flocked enthusiastically out on the flying field, close to the whirling propeller when the flying colonel landed there on his way west.

"That's what I get for bringing Major Lanphier on this trip," Lindy said, smilingly, as he finished reading the news dispatch at breakfast at the home of B. F. Mahoney, his friend and builder of his planes.

Some Damage in Fields By Wind and Hail

tree was uprooted at Ninth and Lamar. The door of the Simmons cafe at 511 Eighth street was blown in, and three windows upstairs in the St. Paul apartments, over the Gymn in the 600 block on Scott were shattered.

Two automobiles had a minor collision by the Kemp hotel.

Canvas sun drops attached to many of the old wooden awnings along the streets were blown down and a number of these awnings themselves were damaged.

Laundry Roof Goes

The roof of the City Laundry warehouse at Third and Austin streets was blown off and the damage was estimated at $1,500. The warehouse contained paper and other laundry supplies, most of which was perishable.

The marble window facing at the Kruger Jewelry store blew off but the windows did not give way.

Three barrels of coca cola, standing on end, were scooted down the sidewalk from the Renfro drug store past the Strand theater when the storm was at its height.

Rain at the baseball games was vividly recalled to mind by the patrons of the Strand and Olympic theatres who were given "rain" checks. The power and electric light lines had gone out and as they were unable to give service, the shows were let out.

Great wiggling wires of the tramway were on the streets in a few minutes, but the power was quickly shut off and no damage was reported from this cause.

Wires Down

The roof of a small pump house at the American Refinery pumping plant was blown off on the Iowa Park road.

The "political" fence, built recently for advertising purposes for candidates for office around the excavation at Seventh and Lamar streets was damaged.

The landmark electric sign atop the Holt hotel which is seen for miles around, was blown from its moorings and was left swinging far out over the street.

Crop Damage

Heavy damage to the recently planted cotton and also to the stand of wheat was feared by G. C. McGown, county agricultural agent, and M. B. Oates, agricultural and industrial agent of the Fort Worth and Denver. No estimate of the damage was made.

Mr. Oates who travels the entire line, said he did not believe the crops to the north of Wichita Falls would suffer as much as those nearer here.

Fear was expressed by Mr. McGown that the stand of wheat might have been beaten down. He also said that the wheat already shocked probably would have to be opened up and dried out.

When a window at the stairway landing between the first and second floors at the courthouse was broken the corridor of the first floor was flooded. Limbs were torn from the trees about the courthouse yard by the wind.

Electric Workers Busy

Operations at the Daily Times and Record News office were suspended for three hours while electrical workers made frantic efforts to restore power. The principal break, according to workers for the Texas Electric Service company, was caused by a small shed being blown down and into the power lines in the alley back of the electric company building. A number of other lines over the city were blown down, it was said, although the damage was considered small. The chief difficulty of the company was found in the necessity of restoring service which was rushed through with every available man working on repairs.

An electric power pole at Seventh and Scott was snapped off at its base by the wind, but was held upright by the wires which it carried.

Telephone wires suffered to some extent in the storm, communication with many towns being suspended. Operators in many towns reported to The Record News the breaking of communications between local points, but on the whole long distance service was fully restored by midnight. Western Union and Postal telegraph workers reported little damage, however, wires along the Katy north were still broken shortly before 1 o'clock this morning.

Lightning Strikes

So far as could be ascertained by The Record News by telephone communication with all towns that could be reached in this section, there was no serious damage or loss of life. Minor damage was reported over most of the section, with one home, that of Hamp Carter at Crowell, being struck by lightning.

Federal prohibition men made quite a haul in the capture of this vessel, a former Canadian light ship, at Detroit, Mich., with a cargo of rum valued at $250,000 and bound for Chicago. Above is a view of the deck of the vessel with casks of rum showing; below, the ship tied up at a pier after its capture at Detroit.

NO BANANAS, REALLY

Hurricane in Vera Cruz District Destroys Many Plants

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 3. (US)—That old line about the shortage of bananas may yet come sadly true to some people.

More than 5,000,000 plants, valued roughly at a dollar each, were destroyed by the devastating tropical hurricane, accompanied by hail, which just swept this region of the Gulf coast, according to reports received here today from the plantation region.

Forty homes also were destroyed.

Woman Aboard Ocean Plane

gardless of circumstances, it was to be kept secret."

George Plamer Putnam, New York representative of the Mechanical Science corporation, in a statement said the "flying ship 'Friendship' put off from Boston at 6:30 this morning on a flight to London by way of Trespassey, Newfoundland.

"The plane was purchased from Commander Byrd," Mr. Putnam continued, "with a view to scientifically testing, by experience, some of Commander Byrd's ideas on ocean-flying aircraft."

Commander Byrd had told newspaper men that he believed that the tri-motored plane, capable of flying with one of its motors dead, and equipped with floats for landing on water would be the next step in ocean transportation.

MABEL BOLL SPEEDS UP FLIGHT PLANS

CURTISS FIELD, L. I., June 3. (UP)—Mabel Boll, who had more or less experience with airplanes and aviators, was in a dour humor tonight following receipt of information that Elmer Stultz and a Boston aviatrix had reached Halifax on the first leg of a flight to Europe.

There were two causes for Miss Boll's unpleasant humor. In the first place she said she had engaged Stultz to pilot her to Europe and in the second instance she has long cherished the idea of being the first woman to fly the Atlantic.

"I'll take off Monday if I can get a pilot," she said tonight. "I have the Columbia (the plane in which Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. evine flew to Germany) at my disposal and I'll be at the flying field tomorrow looking for a pilot."

Miss Boll, sometimes referred to as "the queen of diamonds," went into conference with Levine here tonight. She attempted to buy a passage from Europe to New York in the Columbia when Levine was in London and later flew from New York to Cuba with Stultz and Levine.

After the conference Miss Boll had a few things to say.

"I understand the weather is foggy at Newfoundland," she commented. "I intend to follow the southern route." She paused for a minute and then said, "and it took this Boston aviatrix a very long time to get to Halifax."

LONGEST SEA FLIGHT MADE

Southern Cross On Way To Australia

generator quit delivering current, will investigate that later. Keeping on radio beacon. Near center of zone now, six fifty a. m."

At 8 a. m., two hours and 40 minutes after the take-off at Barking Sands, a radio message broadcast from the plane stated that an average speed of 80 knots an hour was being maintained, while the big ship was flying at an altitude of 400 feet. The message further stated that the sky was slightly overcast and that there was a virtual absence of wind.

Forty minutes later another broadcast message from the plane contained the cheering words: "All well."

It was an auspicious beginning for the longest and most dangerous ocean flight in the history of aviation, for the span of 3100 miles over water not only tests the endurance of the plane but puts a severe strain on the navigation skill of the crew. The Southern Cross literally is flying between tiny specks in the ocean, and the slightest divergance from a straight line course will carry them far wide of their course.

Take-off at 5:20

At 5:20 this morning (12 noon eastern daylight time) the plane loaded to capacity with 1300 gallons of fuel, got away safely from the famous "Barking Sands" of the Kauai beach with its crew of four. News of the departure was picked up here by the Radio corporation.

The Southern Cross was flown from Wheeler field, Honolulu, where it landed Friday at the end of the 2400-mile flight from San Francisco, to Kauai, 100 miles distant, yesterday afternoon. The take-off was made from Kauai instead of Wheeler field because the heavily loaded plane needed a long runway and that was provided on the famous beach known as the "Barking Sands."

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions, Charles T. P. Ulm, Harry Lyons and James Warner, spent the night at the home of Lindsay Payne. Shortly after 5 o'clock this morning they arrived at the beach. As soon as the motor was tuned up they climbed aboard and were off down the 4500-foot runway.

The fuel supply aboard the trimotored Fokker ship was 1300 gallons, 140 gallons more than was in the tanks when the ship left San Francisco. The trip to Honolulu averaged 34½ gallons an hour, and the ship landed with nearly 200 gallons in its tanks. The fliers calculated their fuel sufficient for 38 hours flying.

Army mechanics spent the night putting the ship in condition for the flight, and filled its gas tanks. Everything was in readiness when the crew arrived at the beach this morning.

Captain Kingsford-Smith expressed confidence that the 1300 gallons of fuel would be ample to cover the 3100 miles to the Fiji Islands, and allow a margin of 300 miles. However, he said the flight plane had been shaped to conserve fuel in every way possible. At the start of the flight and for the first 1000 miles, he said, he would keep the Southern Cross at an elevation of 500 feet or less, thus saving fuel that would be used in climbing to higher altitudes where the more rarefied atmosphere causes greater gasoline consumption.

He was also counting on favorable winds to aid in fuel saving for the first 500 miles of the flight.

Landing Possible

Weather forecasts indicated the fliers would have the benefit of a full moon tonight. By dawn they expect to sight the Phoenix Islands, approximately 1900 miles southwest of the Hawaiian group. This is a small group just south of the equator and an emergency landing can be made if necessary on Canton Island, the largest of the group.

The most difficult phase of the flight is that of navigation. The radio beacon was not of much aid to the Southern Cross on the flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, and the plane was kept on its course by communications with ships en route. They will encounter fewer ships between Kauai and Suva, and the navigator's skill cannot waver. If the ship gets a few degrees off its course it will miss the Fiji Islands entirely.

The Australian-bound fliers had the assistance of the United States Army Air service in their take-off. An army Fokker plane accompanied the Southern Cross from Wheeler field to Kauai yesterday and army mechanics went over the Southern Cross carefully during the night and filled its tanks.

"LAW" ROBBED

Hijackers Add Insult To Injury in Raid At Chicago

CHICAGO, June 3. (US)—A deputy sheriff was one of the 14 victims robbed by two young Chicago bandits at a soft drink parlor, here today. The youthful hold-up men added insult to injury when they came upon the deputy sheriff's badge and gun of Otto F. Gast, while searching for valuables.

Clair Surrendered To Oklahoma Officers

Henry Clair, alias Billie Andrews, convicted in robberies of three Texas and Oklahoma banks, was returned to Oklahoma City Sunday morning by state officers. The Oklahoma men did not reveal whether Clair will be taken to Idabel to face charges of robbery of a fourth bank there or be taken directly to the state penitentiary at McAlester, from which he escaped several years ago after serving about three years of a seven and 25 year sentence.

Clair was captured on the Henrietta road last Thursday by Sheriff W. G. Bralley. He gave his name as Billy Andrews. Fingerprints sent to Oklahoma officers identified him as Clair, however.

"Bridge of San Luis Rey" Secured by M.-G.-M.

LOS ANGELES, June 3. (US)—The film companies in Hollywood seem to be motivated by one idea, to acquire possession of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." Not that the novel is particularly adaptable to film material but that its name has such wide selling power. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer captured the plum. And now there are discussions on when and how it will be filmed.

Texas Woman Dies From Auto Injuries

TEMPLE, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Mrs. E. E. Miller, 48, of Orange Grove, Texas, died at a hospital here Sunday by injuries received in an automobile accident near Eddy Saturday. Mrs. Miller was injured when the automobile in which she and her son, D. E. Miller, were riding plunged into a ditch and struck a telephone pole. The son said he dozed and lost control of the car. He was not injured.

RUM GUARDS ARE SUSPENDED

14 Men Fired and Score More Are Slated

NEW YORK, June 3. (UP)—Fourteen United States guards are under suspension today and 22 more face suspension Monday in what promises to be the greatest prohibition shake-up in history along the piers where the great trans-Atlantic liners dock from Europe.

A federal "under cover" investigation is said to have substantiated many of Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia's assertions some months ago that rum had moved inside the 12-mile limit and "millions of dollars worth" of liquor was being run ashore weekly.

Special investigators have been stationed on the Chelsea piers, where the deluxe liners dock, for several weeks. They were still gathering evidence, it was learned, when the word was passed around that they were there and the treasury department's hand was forced late Saturday night.

The investigators said the marine police as well as the customs guards have been assisting in keeping New York wet. The chief difference, the investigators said, was that while the customs guards got up to $10 a case for winking, the marine police charged a flat rate of $20 a case for allowing rum boats to land their cargoes.

The suspended customs guards are accused of looking at the Paramount building while cases of liquors went ashore from liners.

Plans for the newest drive to mop up New York at the edges include the placing of eight additional customs harbor patrol boats in commission and taking on 82 additional customs searchers.

Demo Convention Seats Cost $100 Each

HOUSTON, June 3. (AP)—Seats to the Democratic national convention at Houston beginning June 26 will be allotted on the basis of contribution to the expense fund—"a season ticket for each donation of $100," Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe, general chairman of the committee on local arrangements, announced Sunday.

Power Probe Shifts South

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—The federal trade commission's investigation of publicity methods of power utilities has rounded the turn but stands in recess until June 12, when attention will be directed toward methods pursued in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas as the next of the 21 states which remain to be embraced.

The total of exhibits introduced stood today at 2,017, representing data from the files of national and regional utilities organizations reaching into 27 states. In addition volumes have been transcribed from the testimony of officials in the various utilities agencies. Adjournment of congress has made it possible for the government printing office to speed up the work of publishing the testimony, in the form of the commission's monthly report to the senate. The April 16 report is the latest off the presses.

Baptist Notables Gather at Waco

WACO, June 3. (AP)—Prominent Baptists from every section of the state were gathering here tonight for the session tomorrow of the education commission and the meeting of the general convention Tuesday in connection with Baylor university issue raised by the recent proposition to remove that institution to Dallas. That proposition was later withdrawn on agreement that Waco raise a certain amount of money. This condition has been met by Waco, the first installment of $350,000 being on hand. Monday night, the education commission will be special guests at a Waco-Baylor jubilee banquet, tables for a thousand people having been provided.

WEST VIRGINIA VOTING PROBED

Campaign Fund Group To Investigate Primary

WASHINGTON, June 3. (US)—Expenditures of the recent red-hot West Virginia presidential primaries will be sifted tomorrow by the senate campaign investigating committee, Senator Steiwer, Republican of Oregon, chairman, announced tonight.

Switching its plans in order to speed up the inquiry, the committee decided to hold its sessions in Washington, rather than make a trip into that state.

Witnesses summoned include the campaign managers and leading supporters in West Virginia of Hoover and Goff on the Republican and Smith and Reed on the Democratic side.

It is hoped to conclude the West Virginia phase of the investigation by Tuesday night Chairman Steiwer said upon returning from New York where the committee wound up an interesting two-day session.

As results of that visit the committee is seeking former Governor William Sulzer of New York. The Rev. O. R. Miller, of Albany, superintendent of the New York Civic league, told the committee that Sulzer told him a Smith campaign manager from a western state had obtained $25,000 in New York from Smith supporters.

There were reports that Sulzer was in Washington, "If that is the case we will subpoena him and question him regarding the Miller statement during the next two day's sessions," said Steiwer.

The modern facilities and machinery at the DeLuxe, supported by years of experience in cleaning and dyeing, makes it possible to offer a service that guarantees pleasing results.

MERGER RUMOR PROVE FALSE

But Chrysler Deal Keep Buying Up High

By BROADAN WALL
Fanancial Expert.

NEW YORK, June 2, (US)—Walter Chrysler and Clarence Dillon influenced increasing public participation in the stock market last week to an extent that again delayed the correction which the reserve board apparently is striving for. Their consolidation agreement caused immediate outbreak of merger rumors which involved practically every motor company with stock listed on the big board and then spread to other industries.

Less Nervousness

Public nervousness was lessened and pools resumed aggressive work with the result that the market closed higher on the average. Bullish points were stressed in most market advices and bearish influences ignored as the week closed. Another bullish influence was the increasing talk of "drafting Coolidge." In the meantime the reserve banks continued selling government securities and there was a steady but quiet flow of high priced stocks from strong boxes to brokerage accounts from where they went into loans to carry the increasing commitments of the "public."

Rumors Unfounded

Investigation revealed there was not the slightest foundation in fact or probability in nine or ten merger rumors given wide circulation.

There is growing belief in the street that unless President Coolidge is resigned to being "drafted" he will make definite statement prior to the convention, June 12. Such statement would be the most important market influence of the year. A new "indication" of Republican chieftains' plans is pointed to daily. Holding of the budget or "Coolidge economy" report until the night before the convention is one—choice of Wisconsin as the sit for the summer White House is another—then there is the date of his trip which puts the president on the train, out of touch with the convention, when delegates start voting as another straw that is stressed. Politico-brokers begin to fear it is "too obvious" and would not be surprised if the market were tested with a definite statement from the White House at any time.

Member of the pool working Madison Square garden stock after reading voluminous political-market advice of brokers, wonders whether Tex Richard has been enrolled by the Republican campaign committee.

Saloonkeeper Relieves Grudge By Erecting Satiric Statue of Mayor

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Record News

THREE RIVERS, Mich., June 4. No stranger statue is to be found anywhere than the one which stands under the trees in the front yard of a farmhouse on a lonely road just west of Three Rivers.

It is the fixure of a man, done in concrete, and evidently by the hand of a master. For the effigy itself was undoubtedly a caricature, still, in faithfulness to detail and study of pose and expression, it shows skillful technique.

A "Grudge" Statue

It is a "grudge" statue and it represents an old Bewhiskered and barefooted man—a typical tramp—wearing a tattered frock coat and a battered plug hat, and the face is an excellent portrait of Charles Gaze, a former mayor of Battle Creek, Mich., more than fifty years ago.

William "Pump" Arnold, at that time a saloonkeeper in the Food City paid $5000 to have the statue made, and the story of its origin is as strange as its grotesqueness indicates.

During the Gage administration, and long before "Pump," whose sobriquet was earned through an early connection with the manufacture of wooden pumps, had violated the law in the operation of his saloon. It was alleged he kept open after hours, permitted gambling, and held in open defiance every legal restriction upon the conduct of his business. The police force seemed powerless to subdue him. Frequently arrested, he was always released for want of evidence.

Mayor "Got" Him

Finally Mayor Gage planned a coup of his own. He disguised himself as a tramp and gained entrance to "Pump's" saloon by a back door on a Sunday afternoon. "Pump" failed to recognize the mayor and served him with liquor. As soon as he had done so, the mayor revealed his identity and caused the saloonkeeper's arrest. The mayor's testimony carried the necessary weight at "Pump's" trial and he was convicted.

Arnold never forgot or forgave. He immediately obtained the services of a Chicago artist and detailed minutely the appearance of Mayor Gage as he appeared when he caused the trouble. After several months the statue was completed and "Pump" mounted it on a pedestal in front of his saloon. It was his keen delight, thereafter, when a party of raw spirits collected, to point out the statue and loudly announce:

"There, fellows, stands our mayor."

Couldn't Be Banished

Mayor Gage tried every known means to banish the statue. He took the matter into the courts, but the piece remained. And "Pump" continued to glory in it and —n his saloon until he was accused of the murder of his son, whose body was found floating in the waters of an old mill race. He was convicted, but while waiting for his appeal trial in the Michigan supreme court, he died.

A lawyer who defended "Pump" in his murder trial secured the statue, and when the attorney died the strange piece passed into the hands of relatives. A few years ago the statue drifted to its present location near Three Rivers, where it has been an object of curiosity ever since.

CANNIBALS YET GIVE TROUBLE

Missionaries Tell Wild Tales Of Savagery

Once there was a missionary
Who crossed the plains of Timbuctoo
He was swallowed by the cannibals
Bones and body, hymn book too.

CHICAGO, June 3. (UP)—The "Brotherhood of Blood," those savage, cannibalistic men who are sworn to eat a certain number of humans each year, still exist in some of the remote, uncivilized sections of the world.

Their piece de resistance or rather their idea of the most savory dish at a ritual banquet is a white woman. Next in line of favor is a white man.

Called "Long Pig"

On their cannibalistic menu either is listed as "long pig."

This word was brought to Chicago today where 35 missionary representatives of various interdenominational missionary organizations are meeting under the auspices of the world-wide Christian couriers at Paul Rader's Gospel tabernacle.

Rev. George Cowell, a missionary who came here from Timbuctoo at the edge of the Sara desert, said that in parts of Africa and Hindustan where some of the tribes still follow Buddism and other forms of idol worship it is dangerous for a missionary to attempt to preach divine worship.

Human Sacrifice

"The Lobe tribe on the west coast of Africa probably is the worst," Rev. Cowell said. "They still are given to periodical debauchery, such as offering human for sacrifice. It is highly precarious for a missionary to preach to these savages.

"The members of the 'Brotherhood of Blood' are sworn to eat a certain number of humans each year. If a white man or woman is not available, some member of the tribe is chosen. They devour a roasted human, bones and all."

Ten women missionaries who told of their experiences along the frontiers of civilization where they have been assigned to spread the gospel and match, as best they can, their wits against the treachery of savage hordes ever on the lookout to pick up a lone missionary for ransom.

The delegates attending were agreed that although the white man's civilization has brought to these uncivilized people the, telephone, bath tubs and other modern conveniences, they have yet to eliminate the cannibalism tendencies of some of the natives.

ARCTIC DIET GIVEN THOUGHT

Scientists Seek Substitutes For Byrd Venture

NEW YORK, June 3. (US)—Extensive experiments are being carried on in the laboratories of various universities, it was learned today, to devise for commander Richard E. Byrd's south artic expedition satisfactory substitutes for tinned foods.

The scientists have promised to complete their investigations long before Byrd and his 55 men from Hampton roads the last of August of the first of September on the first leg of their long journey to Bay of Whales and the Antarctic.

The scientists have promised to find substitutes for the tinned foods. They are now experimenting with certain new dehydrating and drying processes. Commander Byrd in his long artic explorations has found that food in tins tends to deteriorate and form chemical changes at the low below zero temperatures which obtain in the polar regions.

There are however certain tinned stuffs such as preserves which are regarded as exceedingly healthful articles of an arctic diet. But these cannot be carried in tins without dangers of changes due to climate. So the scientists are also devising containers to hold the preserves other than tin.

Rr. Francis D. Coleman of Johns Hopkins university, one of the scientists engaged in research for the Byrd expedition, is also working out a balanced ration and series of anti-arctic menues to prevent the possibility of scurvy and other digestive disorders.

While his labors are conditioned by the substitutes for tinned foods which he finds, in general he has qualities, potatoes, onions, cabbage, navy beans and peas, and of course such staples as coffee, tea, flour, cocoa, sugar.

The description of the land is the southeast quarter section 27, township 3 south, range 18.

Railroads Want To Run Trucks

AUSTIN, June 3. (AP)—Determined to meet motor truck competition, three Texas railroads have applied to the state railroad commission for authority to use motor truck rates on cotton shipped to Corpus Christi from points within 100 miles.

The railroads propose to extend such rates beyond 100 miles after a maximum 12 months' trial of the shorter distance hauls, "if conditions demand."

Applicants are the Texas and New Orleans railroad, the Missouri Pacific lines and the Texas and Mexican railway. Hearing on petition was set Saturday by the railroad commission for its June term beginning June 12. The railroads will introduce testimony as to the current truck rates. Cotton moved by railroad under such rates would be exempt from all compression, concentration or other transit privileges presently accorded shipments on regular rail rates.

Texas Ranks Seventh In Gasoline Consumption

DALLAS, Texas, June 3. (UP)—Texas ranked seventh among the states in the consumption of gasoline during 1927, according to a report issued by the American Road-builders association.

Total number of gallons used during the year were 891,447,000. The total consumption for 1927 showed an increase of 12.4 per cent over 1926.

Hot "Speeder" of 1901 Pays Fine For Exceeding 10 Mile Limit

By MADELIN LEOF
Staff Writer for Central Press and Record News

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Twenty-seven years ago the first arrest in this town was made for exceeding the speed limit in an automobile. The guilty man was Edward A. Jeffries, who, back in 1901, owned a car in which he was able to tear through the roads of the park at the terrific rate of 13 miles per hour. He had to plead guilty to the charge and slow down to 10.

In 1900 Edward Jeffries bought his car. "An automobile was then such a novelty," he says, "that the owner of one was classed immediately with the Astors, the Goulds and the Vanderbilts. I paid $790 for my machine, and this price was considered a large sum of money in those days. We usually made short trips in our machine, because the roads were poor and there were no service stations. Gasoline was only eight cents a gallon.

"One time, though, Mrs. Jeffries and I hopped into our car and went down to Atlantic City. We left Philadelphia at eight in the morning and arrived at the shore at six in the evening, but considered that we had accomplished a feat and made very good time.

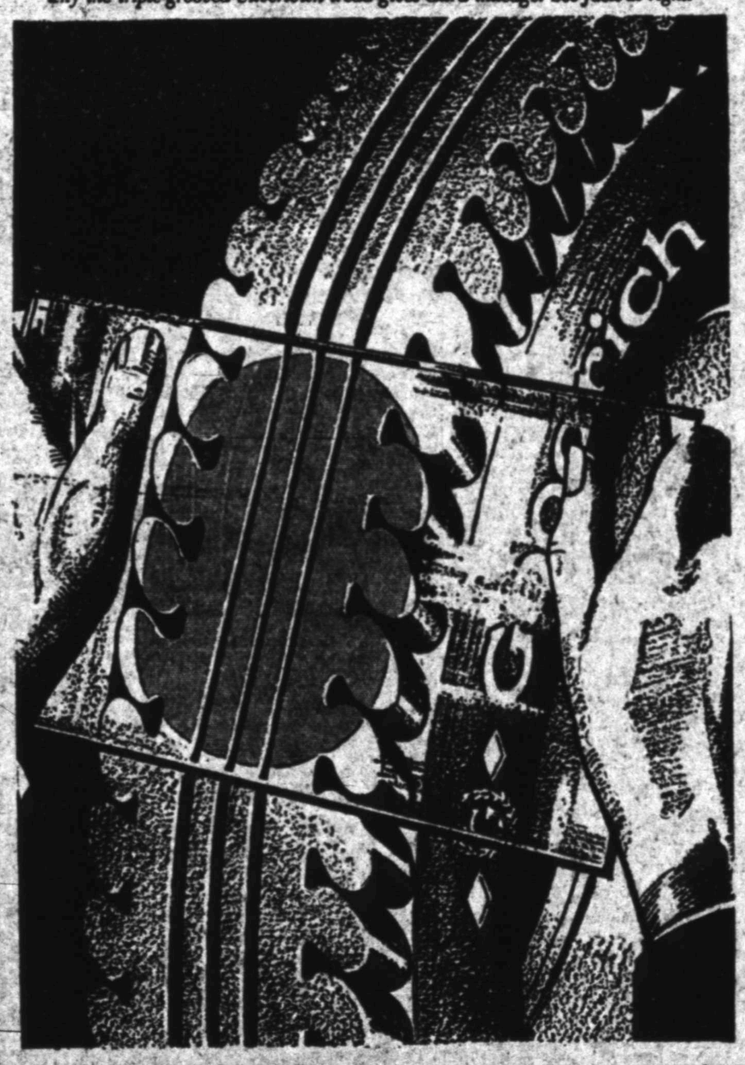

"When I see the modern cars which everyone owns today, I can not help thinking of the changes which have been accomplished in so few years. On my old machine, the front was a regular carriage dash, with whip sockets, as in the old days when whips were carried for horses. We took it off the regular phaeton carriage and utilized it for the automobile. Candles were burned in the side lamps, as there were no electrical connections."

Edward Jeffries used this car until 1904, when he went to the first second-hand automobile sale in the city. It was combined with a horse bazaar. Here he sold his machine for $215 to a New Jersey Methodist circuit preacher, but he will not part with the photograph of himself and his wife in the car, nor of the memories of his first experiences in the speedster.

WHAT you see under the plate glass, happens about 300 times a minute at every point on your tire, when you drive your car.

Like a flash, the tread must flatten as it meets the road, for balloon tires are soft.

So Goodrich Silvertowns are built to flatten without distortion—free from bulky blocks in the center—protected from "piling up" or uneven choppy wear of the tough tread rubber.

As dealers, we know what this means. It means thousands of extra miles of service, if you buy Goodrich Silvertowns.

Come in. Let us tell you all the other features of these famous tires. Our expert service and cheerful courtesy make it an added pleasure for you to trade here.

GRACIOUS, aren't these club women having a time at the biennial in San Antonio? With about 10,000 women trying to agree on something, the result should have been foreseen. Oh, they were supposed to row like this?

FOR the bridge player with an unmathematical mind, there is the automatic bridge scorer. You merely turn the disc on the inside to the number of tricks and honors. Then the folder is closed and the indicator automatically turns to the trick and honor score. A processed score card inside may be used time and again.

The time seems to be at hand when we will have machinery to form our opinions for us, for they are certainly doing a man-sized amount of the mathematical thinking we used to believe was necessary to keep our minds in good working order. Do you remember when you were a youngster that you were made to study algebra and geometry and other forms of math just for the sake of developing some few brains that might otherwise lie dormant if you didn't learn to work algebra? That theory was exploded sometime ago, and pedagogy teaches that there is no virtue in taking up certain prescribed forms of study except in a transfer of identical elements and in a transfer of identical procedure. With the teachers scattered every place and only a few of 'em left in town, most of the heavy thought in the last sentence may be wasted. The point I am trying to make is, that you may use an automatic bridge scorer if you wish and still do no permanent injury to your mind.

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

The scenery looks familiar to Dina and Cherie—so many people have sent them picture postcards from Paris—but the costumes are new. As new as this season! So taking the scenery for granted they concentrate on the fashions. The young woman in a hurry at the left of the picture is wearing a black crepe suit with a gray fox fur and a gray crepe blouse. The suit is bloused and its skirt is made with unpressed pleats. Cherie comes next, and Cherie is wearing a beige crepe suit made with a scarf whose ends are tipped with ostrich. Dina wears a double-breasted tailored suit. The costume in the background is black and white satin with the skirt finely pleated.

Another severely tailored suit in the background, and next to it a wrap that has a full bloused top, a skimpy skirt and a large fox collar. Still another tailored suit with a double-breasted jacket. A long coat with a short cape has the new double standing collar and a leather belt. The ensemble at the right of the picture has fur only on its cuffs and has no collar at all, which is a new fashion this season. The skirt is cut in scallops, the bodice is studded with nailheads . . . who cares about scenery? It isn't scenery that Dina and Cherie are going to stare at all the rest of this day, although before they go to bed they will send out a few postcards!

Deauville Modistes Alarmed At Spread of American Hatless Craze

DEAUVILLE, June 3. (US)—Modistes are growing apprehensive over the increasing popularity of the "hatless" craze which has recently made it appearance among the younger set. Led by Jacqueline Hennessy, extremely pretty daughter of the French brandy king, French debutantes have copied the fashion imported into France last year by American collegians.

Occasionally a concession is made in favor of the jaunty basque beret which is seen in many tones, particularly deep yellow and red. Nevertheless several broad brimmed, exotic straws, short in the back and wide at the sides, are worn with fluffy frilly frocks.

Sport Clothes

Increasing importance is attached by Reboux to harmonizing smart shoes and chic hats with his ensemble or sport clothes. Shoes are still white buck and tan perforated in one strap shapes. The new sports oxford uses beige linen with a saddle strap of brown lizard and a toe cap of the same material.

Low heeled sandals, white with colored trimmings to match the gown or accessories, are still holding on as the smartest type of sport footwear. Madame Henri Letellier, whose tiny feet are famous in ballets and opera, was shod with brown suede shallow oxfords. She wore a brown suede jacket over a white kasha frock.

Eleanor Sears, Boston sportswoman playing tennis here wore short woolen knitted socks rolled down over the ankles.

Discriminating women of fashion favor the pale pink slipper and stockings for evening wear with the uneven hemline evening dress.

Green Chosen

Green and its variations—pastel, leaf and light green—are chosen because of their flattering reaction on lights in the continental casinos and restaurants.

Summery influence is reflected in the profusion of flowered chiffon and taffeta materials. Beaded and stiffened lace made up in the familiar chanel. Trailing back medal, is evidently the first choice for formal evening wear.

The blonde beauty of Mrs. Forrester Agar, of Buenos Aires and Dublin, was set off remarkably by a Cheruit creation of black mousseline in an extremely full skirt, pannelled. Mrs. Agar carried an enormous geranium handkerchief of silk.

The beaded gown is timidly making a reappearance, the trimmings employed are usually tiny tubes which completely cover the gown, giving it a sparkling and brilliant sheen. Senora Alfredo Palen, the former Eugenia Kelly, wore a beautiful chanel gown of midnight blue beaded with diamond shaped lozenges.

Par at Last

"Dear doctor—That diet you put me onto is working wonders. Yesterday for the first time in months I holed out the penultimate button of my dress waistcoat."—London Daily Chronicle.

Texas With Fourth of Total Vote Controls Women's Club Convention

SAN ANTONIO, June 3. (AP)—Texas, with almost a fourth of the total vote of the convention and four times as many votes as any other single state, will probably be the turning point in the fight which Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis and Mrs. John Sippel of Maryland are staging here for the presidency of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

On the basis of registrations so far Texas has a voting strength on the floor of the convention of 384 delegates. Illinois, her nearest rival is voting strength, has 88 delegates. Michigan, 57 and Iowa and Massachusetts 48. Registration does not close until Monday and it is expected that Texas strength will be increased materially by late arrivals.

The polls will open Wednesday morning and the voting will continue all day. Texas leaders are doing everything within their power to prevent any of the Texas delegation from entering actively into the campaign of either candidate. This is because Texas is in the position of hostess to the convention. Should all of the delegates to which Texas is entitled attend the convention, the state's voting strength would be more than 600.

If You Have Happy Home, Don't Leave It for Long Periods, Says Dorothy

"If I Had a Happy Home I'd Never Leave It for More Than Two Weeks at a Time," Counsels Dorothy Dix. "But if My Husband Was Bored With Me I'd Take Six Months Off to Let Him Rediscover My Virtues."

What is the effect of absence on love? Does absence make the heart grow fonder, as the sentimental old song says, or is there a deeper truth embodied in the modern, hard-boiled assertion: "Yeah, absence makes the heart grow fonder—but of somebody else."

Recently two wives discussed with me the advisability of leaving their husbands for a six months' absence. The first woman is most happily married to a man she loved and who is devoted to her. She and her husband are unusually chummy and companionable, fond of pleasure and going about, and three or four evenings a week you may meet them out at some place of amusement having the best sort of a time together. The woman is a good housekeeper and the husband is very fond of his pretty, bright, attractive, comfortable home.

Everything is well with this couple, but an aunt had invited the wife to go on a six months' trip abroad with her and she was hesitating whether to accept or not. She had never been to Europe and, of course, she was wild to go, and if she did not embrace this opportunity she might never again have a chance to see the wonders of the Old World. So, what to do?

"Don't go," I counseled her, "because the chances are that it will cost you too much. Many a wife pays for a trip to Europe, or a long stay in the mountains in the summer, with the loss of her husband and the wreck of her home. Your marriage is running along smoothly and successfully on velvet. Let well enough alone. Don't deliberately throw a moneky-wrench into the machinery.

"Possibly there are husbands that it is safe to leave to their own devices for six months. Possibly there are mice that don't play around when the cat is away, but your husband does not belong to that species. He is an affectionate, jolly, sociable chap who likes fun and people and a good dinner and a jolly crowd. And when he comes home he likes to find the lights all lit and for you to be there to welcome him with a smile.

"What do you think he is going to be doing for six months while you are away? Do you think that he is going to go straight home of an evening to an empty, shut-up house and eat the kind of food that an unsuperintended servant prepares for him, with nothing but a vacant chair across the table from him, and then spend the evening writing you a long letter telling you how he misses you?

"If you get this sort of mental close-up of a husband whose wife is away, forget it. After the first week a real flash would show him some blond flapper who had kindly undertaken to cheer him up, or sitting in a poker game losing more money than he can afford.

"Believe me, my dear, comforting husbands is one of the best and most profitable stunts that the gold-digging sisterhood pull off, and many a man who starts in merely to amuse himself with a pretty little sweetie while his wife is away winds up in an entanglement out of which it takes a lawyer and his bankbook to extricate him.

"And it breaks his wife's heart, and no matter if they patch up their marriage, it is never the same again, but the woman has brought her misfortunes down on her own head because if she had stayed on her job her husband would never have even thought about playing hookey.

"So, if I had a husband that I wanted to keep, I would never leave him for more than two weeks at a time. I'd take care of him, and keep up my fence. I would never let him find out that he could do without me, or break through the habits of domesticity. He would never get a chance to revert to the wild again."

The second woman's marriage is a failure. She has been a good wife and makes her husband a comfortable home and she loves him dearly, but for some reason that he, perhaps, cannot explain himself he has tired of her.

"He says," she sobbed out, "that I bore him, that I have got on his nerves, that he loathes the very thought of having to come home, and that he wants to be free, and he wants me to go away somewhere for six months—to Europe, to my mother's, anywhere away from him, and I am afraid to do it. I am afraid if I let him go for that long he will never come back at all."

"Go," I urged her, "Hurry. Get away as quickly as you possibly can. It is your one and only chance to get him back. As it is, you have already lost him. Sitting in the same room, with only the table between you, you are farther separated than if oceans and continents intervened.

"He thinks he is tired of you now because he is fed up on you. He is surfeited with too much of your society. You bore him because he has heard everything you know, and he can tell before you open your mouth just what you are going to say on every subject. He hates his home because he is weary of punching the domestic time clock and of having to show up at 6:30, or furnish an alibi. He has looked at you at such range that he has lost his perspective on your charms, and sees only your defects.

"You can't argue with this state of mind. When a man loses his relish for corn beef and cabbage, the only thing to do is to take it away from him. Quit having it for six months and he will be crying for it, and wanting to know why you set these a-las before him and never give him any good, honest food to eat.

"Take this tip to yourself. Remove yourself quickly from his vicinity. Don't write to him. Shut up the house. Let him miss your love and tenderness. Let him get his fill of women who are after his pocketbook instead of trying to save his money, and who don't want to be bothered with him except when he is at his best. Let him be sick with nobody to wait on him but hired hands.

"Let him eat around at restaurants until he gets to the place where he can read a menu backward without finding one single thing on it he wants to eat. And the chances are that before the six months are up, home will look better to him than any other place in the world, and he will consider you more fascinating than any vamp.

"Did you ever notice how quickly widowers remarry? Yet every one of them thought he was going to enjoy his freedom until he tried it. That is why absence is the best cure for husbands with a wandering foot.

"But, like all other remedies, absence has to be judiciously applied with due reference to the special case, and, generally speaking, it is most efficacious when taken in small and broken doses—say a couple of weeks at a time, and as often as indicated by the patient's condition of nerves."

Sash Makes Bustle

By MME. LISBETH

Bustle effects and back fullness are mentioned as outstanding style notes. The huge sash of taffeta, posed so often at the hip, is sometimes moved to the back and achives this effect.

This has been done in the evening dress pictured. The dipping hemline is an important feature of this garment, which is made of black point d' esprit. The sash is taffeta in two tones of green.

LODGE PLANS NEW BUILDING

Frederick Mason to Erect Modern Home

FREDERICK, Okla., June 3.—At a meeting of the Frederick Masonic lodge Friday night it was decided to adopt the plans for a new building prepared by G. E. Kadane and to have the trustees call for bids. According to A. H. Krause, local architect, a two-story brick structure as proposed, would cost about $17,000. It was decided to have 17-inch walls so that in case a tenant is found for the second floor, a third story could be added to be used for Masonic purposes.

There are to be two lodge rooms, one 32x40 feet and the other 21x31 to be used for some of the work in the York rite. There is to be a dining room 14x27, a kitchen, reception rooms, ante room, store room for equipment and lockers for individual uniforms.

Work will not be started until word is obtained from the government regarding a lease contract submitted for the local postoffice. The contract for the present postoffice building expires in August and the owner, J. E. McConnell, did not submit a proposition to have the lease renewed. It is believed the bid submitted by the local Mason order is the only one that was sent to the postoffice department when bids were solicited.

The report of the building committee, Jerome Zumwalt, George Burkhardt and Ralph Spangler, was adopted, and the committee discharged.

The site of the Masonic lots is just across the alley on East Grand avenue, east of the Glish Furniture and Undertaking establishment.

Oklahoma Baptists Sue for Orphanage

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., June 3—The Rev. T. M. Huffines, well-known in this section, Walter Jordon and M. N. Wade of Bethel; W. F. Skinner and Tom Skinner have filed suit at Altus through Senator Austin for the orphanage and farm for the new convention Baptist church, which is located at Chickasha and was under control of the Rev. A. Nunnery, who withdrew from the organized branch of the church and organized another body. He had been superintendent of the home when a difference arose, according to the officers of the Corinth church, and refused to surrender the property without an order from court.

RUPTURE
SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. J. Meinhardt, of Chicago, the well-known expert, will personally be at the Kemp hotel, Wichita Falls, Texas, on Thursday, June 7, from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m., and on Friday, June 8, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. only.

Mr. Meinhardt says:

"The Meinhardt Vacuum Shield" will not only retain the Rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size or location of the Rupture.

CAUTION—Do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old-style trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the bump and not on the rupture opening. This often causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death.

"The Meinhardt Vacuum Shield" has no understraps. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible and can be worn while bathing.

NOTICE—Only gentlemen are invited to call at this time as special arrangements will be announced later for women and children.

Please do not write asking for literature or to be fitted by mail, as this is impossible. Every case must be seen personally. There is no charge for demonstration.

SPECIAL NOTICE—All cases that I have fitted on my previous visits here during the past years will please call for inspection. Please note the above dates and office hours especially. Business demands prevent stopping at any other city in this section. (This visit is for white people only.)

Here comes the paper boy now!

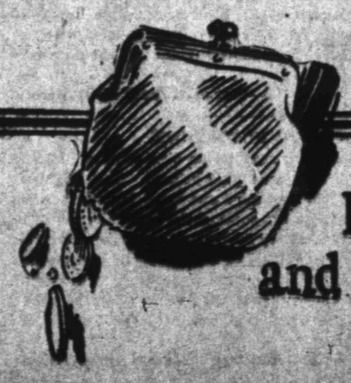

Of the many deliveries made to your home, none is more regular and none more important than the delivery of your daily newspaper.

REGULAR because: On every day in the week, rain or shine, in the heat of summer and the cold of winter, your paper boy MUST deliver YOUR newspaper.

IMPORTANT because: Every issue of this newspaper contains, in addition to the news of the day, the news of practically all the stores and shops--THE ADS--which enable YOU to operate your household far more efficiently and to save money, as well.

Next to your paper boy, the most regular arrival is, no doubt, the grocery boy--and yet he is, if you are a clever buyer, merely delivering the things you ordered through having "read the ads" in the previous day's newspaper.

HE HAD BACKBONE.

General Charles G. Dawes is the man of the hour. In political lingo "he is a man with guts." This he has demonstrated many times in his very active career. Now that great body known as the American senate, voted forty to forty for adjournment. It was up to Dawes. He cast the deciding vote. He defeated the adjournment resolution. He left the senators know that there were important measures pending, that they are the servants of the American people, and that important measures should be either put over or else rejected before the adjournment hour came. Dawes has a backbone, and what the American statesmen or lawmaker needs, is a backbone of the Dawes brand and not that of a jelly fish.

POLITICAL GUESSES

Manager James W. Goode of the Hoover forces will go from Chicago to Kansas City early in the month of June. He is to be the floor marshal for the forces of the Californian and has let it be known that it is all over but the shouting. Manager Goode is claiming all in sight, but has cold chills down the back every time he turns over in bed. It all depends on Andrew W. Mellon. If Mellon says the word, it will be Hoover. If he surveys the field and thinks there is a possibility of drafting Coolidge, then it may be different. A convention battle is never won until some one of the contenders has a majority of the votes at a Republican convention and two-thirds of the votes at a Democratic convention. Regardless of the guessers, it never pays to count the chickens until the political eggs have been hatched. Arthur Brisbane picks Hoover and Smith. Well, two big conventions make the nominations after all the guessing has been done. In politics that unexpected often happens.

REED'S POWER.

Senator F. M. Simmons of North Carolina, ever against the nomination of Smith, in an interview lets it be known that he will attend the Houston convention and make a bitter end fight. Senator Simmons is a bitter ender as well as an ugly fighter. He is of the opinion that there will be more than one-third of the delegates ready to fight against the nomination of Smith. As the count stands today the governor of New York and the Missouri senator, James A. Reed, have more than two-thirds of the entire list of delegates to the national convention. If they combine they will control the organization. If they combine they will write and adopt the platform. If they combine, they will name the candidates for president and vice-president. Reed is a bitter-end fighter and he has a bitter memory. He was thrown out of the national convention in the city of San Francisco and the followers of Senator Simmons assisted in the outcasting of the Missouri leader. They denounced him as a menace to the party of Jefferson and declared him an outlaw from the inner or the gallery circle for all time to come. Now Reed is back in the fold and claims 128 delegates pledged to his nomination. His managers claim that he will be the balance of power at Houston. If he cannot get the nomination, where will he go? He has been branded as an unfit or rather a wet by all the leaders opposed to the nomination of the New Yorker, and when it come to playing the game, he will be found to be something of a player when the big parade is given orders to march round and round the ring or arena of the Houston convention.

ABE MARTIN

Young squirts that speed around town till 2 or 3 o'clock in th' mornin' had better save ther roadsters fer th' long, dull terrible evenin's an' Sundays after they're married. Th' fine thing about spell bindin' on th' air is that ther's no committees at th' depot t' meet you, don't have t' git your neck shaved.

One-Minute Sermon

Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.

And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that repeath may rejoice together.

And herein is that saying true, One soweth and another reapeth.—St. John, vi, 35-37.

Foster in the Picture

Moody Files for Governor

GOVERNOR DAN MOODY has filed his application as a candidate for re-election, subject to the action of the July primary. His application was accompanied by the $100 necessary for candidates to get their names on the ticket. According to a well known correspondent "It is known that more than one prominent Texas democrat expected Moody to be nominated at Houston, and may submit applications to State Chairman Wilcox to have their names go on the ticket as candidate for governor, conditioned that Moody does not continue in the race." If these prominent democrats who have the gubernatorial bee stinging in their bonnets expect to file applications they should get busy.

Filene's Idea

WHEN you find a rich man who has the inclination and ability to think for himself, watch out for him. He is apt to influence the nation rather deeply.

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, is such a man. He now is putting forward a new idea. He wants every employe in his big store who cares to, to take a trip to Europe. Employes of 10 years standing will be given six weeks' vacation with full pay; employes of five years will get five weeks with full pay.

"We have found that European travel increases the value of an executive to the business. Now we propose to make such trips possible to all grades of employes," says M. Filene.

"But it is not solely to benefit our employes and the business that we encourage European trips. It is my belief that if the United States is to hold its own in international trade, if we are to develop markets to which we can export our surpluses, if world-wide economic conditions are to be stabilized and if international relations are to be established on the basis of good will, the voters and workers of the United States must know at first hand something of what other nations actually are like and as much as possible of what they are doing and thinking."

Mr. Filene has ideas and likes to put them into practice. Watch out for him.

Doubling Life's Span

DR. SERGE VORONOFF, the Vienna rejuvenation expert, believes that the natural span of human life is around 150 years and says he can fix things so that all of us, if we wish, can live that long.

Disregarding the fact that there are plenty of medical men who will disagree with the Viennese gland specialist, we may admit that his statement is rather fascinating. However religious, courageous or stoical we may be, most of us have a lurking fear of death. Life may be perfectly satisfactory to us, but we dred giving it up. Dr. Voronoff does not promise immortality, but he offers to double the normal span; and if death is pushed three-quarters of a century into the background, we can forget it for the present.

After all, however, it is only fair to remark that there are several other things the human race needs much more than it needs an extra 75 years of life. In fact, it almost seems as if Dr. Voronoff's gift would not be an unmixed blessing. Imagine the emotions of a bent, toil-worn coal miner, for instance; a man who has drudged and slaved for 50 years in the damp underground galleries, ridden always by financial worry and poverty; imagine his emotions on being told that he has another 75 years to devote to digging coal!

Before begging Dr. Voronoff to double our life span we ought to bestir ourselves and find some way of making use of the years we already have. For it is not the fact that life is short that causes the world's misery; it is the fact that life is pitably tragically misused.

There is a wide gulf between what we are capable of and what we do. We are born the open-handed children of everlasting light; yet behold! we grope and stagger and fall in the mire, and bind ourselves about with ignorance and jealousy and selfishness and intolerance and blindness until we have lost our heritage. Most of our troubles—war, poverty, oppression—arise from our own limitations. They come because we do not yet know how to handle our lives properly.

It would be splendid to have longer lives. But there are other things we need more. We are not ready, yet, for a century and a half of living. We must first learn how to make the most of the years we have. When we have cleared the world of bigotry, rivalries, wars, industrial conflicts and penury we shall be in shape to talk about a 150-year life span. But at present such a thing would prove far from a boon.

ANDY PAYNE HAS HIS BACKERS

Cash and Carry Pyle's bunion derby was a washout, financially, and that doesn't grieve us any either for Pyle's worries are not ours but it surely would make us see red if Oklahoma's Andy Payne shouldn't get his $25,000 in full.

THE HOUR FOR THE OPTIMISTS

If there is anything in a name, the present should be the opportune time to organize an Optimist club. Last week's pipe line runs from Wilbarger set a new record for the county. This, coupled with the good agricultural prospects and the building going on should make optimists of us all.

HONOR IN YOUR HOME TOWN

The saying, "not without honor save in his own country" largely holds true, many centuries after it was first uttered. The neighbors of Walt Whitman considered him a tramp and were impatient when strangers declared him one of the great poets of the age. The pastor of the church in Austin of which O. Henry's wife was a member once told this columnist that he thought very little of O. Henry. In Hawthorne's immortal story "The Great Stone Face," the little town was waiting for someone to come back from far lands with fame when the greatest of them all was the quiet, humble philosopher who lived in the village all his life.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

AUTHOR OF THE BENSON MURDER CASE

CHARACTERS

PHILO VANCE.
JOHN F.-X. MARKHAM, district attorney of New York county.
MARGARET ODELL (the "Canary").
CHARLES CLEAVER, a man-about-town.
KENNETH SPOTSWOODE, a manufacturer.
LOUIS MANNIX, an importer.
DR. AMBROISE LINDQUIST, a fashionable neurologist.
TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar.
WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator.
HARRY SPIVELY, telephone operator.
EARNEST HEATH, sergeant of the homicide bureau.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Margaret Odell is found strangled. Skeel's finger prints are found in the apartment, but Vance believes that Skeel had been hiding in a closet while the strangler did his work. The thing that baffles police is the side door to the alley, which had been bolted on the inside the night before and was found the same way in the morning. Mannix, Dr. Lindquist and Cleaver all lie about their whereabouts the night of the murder. Spotswoode, who had called on the girl, had rushed back to her door at the sound of a scream, but had been reassured that everything was all right. Then Skeel is found strangled, after he had promised to tell who murdered the girl. Heath arrests Jessup, but Vance promises to demonstrate how Skeel could have entered and left through the side door and left it bolted on the inside.

CHAPTER XLIV

Vance shepherded us ceremoniously to chairs, and cocked his eye at the sergeant.

"You will be so good as to rest here until you hear me knock at the side door. Then come and open it for me." He went toward the archway. "Once more I personate the departed Mr. Skeel; so picture me again en grande tenue—sartorially radiant. . . . The curtain ascends."

He bowed and, stepping from the reception room into the main hall, disappeared round the corner into the rear passageway.

Heath shifted his position restlessly and gave Markham a questioning, troubled look.

"Will he pull it off, sir, do you think?" All jocularity had gone out of his tone.

"I can't see how," Markham was scowling. "If he does, though, it will knock the chief underpinning from your theory of Jessup's guilt."

"I'm not worrying," declared Heath. "Mr. Vance knows a lot; he's got ideas. But how in hell—?"

He was interrupted by a loud knocking on the inside door. The three of us sprang up simultaneously and hurried round the corner of the main hall. The rear passageway was empty. There was no door or aperture of any kind on either side of it. It consisted of two blank walls; and at the end, occupying almost its entire width, was the oak door which led to the court.

Vance could have disappeared only through that oak door. And the thing we all noticed at once—for our eyes had immediately sought it—was the horizontal position of the bolt-handle. This meant that the door was bolted.

Heath was not merely astonished—he was dumfounded. Markham had halted abruptly, and stood staring down the empty passageway as if he saw a ghost. After a momentary hesitation Heath walked rapidly to the door. But he did not open it at once. He went down on his knees before the lock and scrutinized the bolt carefully. Then he took out his pocket knife and inserted the blade into the crack between the door and the casing. The point halted against the inner molding, and the edge of the blade scraped upon the circular bolt.

There was no question that the heavy oak casings and moldings of the door were solid and well fitted, and that the bolt had been securely thrown from the inside. Heath, however, was still suspicious, and, grasping the door-knob, he tugged at it violently. But the door held firmly.

At length he threw the bolt-handle to a vertical position and opened the door. Vance was standing in the court, placidly smoking and inspecting the brickwork of the alley wall.

"I say, Markham," he remarked, "here's a curious thing. This wall, d' ye know, must be very old. It wasn't built in these latter days of breathless efficiency. The beauty-loving mason who erected it laid the bricks in Flemish bond instead of the Running—or Stretcher—bond of our own restless age.

"And up there a bit"—he pointed toward the rear yard—"is a Rowlock and Checkerboard pattern. Very neat and very pretty—more pleasing even than the popular English Cross bond. And the mortar joints are all V-tooled. . . . Fancy!"

Markham was fuming.

"Damn it, Vance! I'm not building brick walls. What I want to know is how you got out here and left the door bolted on the inside."

"Oh, that!" Vance crushed out his cigaret and re-entered the building. "I merely made use of a bit of clever criminal mechanism. It's very simple, like all truly effective appliances—oh, simple beyond words. I blush at its simplicity. . . . Observe!"

He took from his pocket a tiny pair of tweezers to the end of which was tied a piece of purple twine about four feet long. Placing the tweezers over the vertical bolt-handle, he turned them at a very slight angle to the left and then ran the twine under the door so that about a foot of it projected over the sill. Stepping into the court, he closed the door.

The tweezers still held the bolt-handle as in a vise, and the string extended straight to the floor and disappeared under the door into the court. The three of us stood watching the bolt with fascinated attention. Slowly the string became taut, as Vance gently pulled upon the loose end outside, and then the downward tug began slowly but surely to turn the bolt-handle. When the bolt had been thrown and the handle was in a horizontal position, there came a slight jerk on the string. The tweezers were disengaged from the bolt-handle, and fell noiselessly to the carpeted floor. Then as the string was pulled from without, the tweezers disappeared under the crack between the bottom of the door and the sill.

"Childish, what?" commented Vance, when Heath had let him in. "Silly, too, isn't it? And yet, sergeant dear, that's how the deceased Tony left these premises last Monday night. . . . But let's go into the lady's apartment, and I'll tell you a story. I see that Mr. Spively has returned from his promenade; so he can resume his telephonic duties and leave us free for a causerie."

"When did you think up that hocus-pocus with the tweezers and string?" demanded Markham irritably, when we were seated in the Odell living room.

"I didn't think it up at all, don't y' know," Vance told him carelessly, selecting a cigaret with annoying deliberation. "It was Mr. Skeel's idea. Ingenious lad—eh, what?"

"Come, come!" Markham's equanimity was at last shaken. "How can you possibly know that Skeel used this means of locking himself out?"

"I found the little apparatus in his evening clothes yesterday morning."

"What!" cried Heath belligerently. "You took that outa Skeel's room yesterday during the search, without saying anything about it?"

"Oh, only after your ferrets had passed it by. In fact, I didn't even look at the gentleman's clothes until your experienced searchers had inspected them and relocked the wardrobe door. Y' see, sergeant, this little thingumbob was stuffed away in one of the pockets of Skeel's dress waistcoat, under the silver cigaret case.

"I'll admit I went over his evening suit rather lovin'ly. He wore it, y' know, on the night the lady departed this life, and I hoped to find some slight indication of his collaboration in the event. When I found this little eyebrow-plucker, I hadn't the slightest inkling of its significance. And the purple twine attached to it bothered me frightfully, don't y' know.

"I could see that Mr. Skeel didn't pluck his eyebrows; and even if he had been addicted to the practice, why the twine? The tweezers are a delicate little gold affair—just what the ravishin' Margaret might have used; and last Tuesday morning I noticed a small lacquer tray containing similar toilet accessories on her dressing table near the jewel case.—But that wasn't all."

He pointed to the little vellum waste-basket beside the escritoire, in which lay a large crumpled mass of heavy paper.

"I also noticed that piece of discarded wrapping paper stamped with the name of a well known Fifth avenue novelty shop; and this morning, on my way downtown, I dropped in at the shop and learned that they make a practice of tying up their bundles with purple twine.

"Therefore, I concluded that Skeel had taken the tweezers and the twine from this apartment during his visit here that eventful night. . . . Now, the question was: Why should he have spent his time tying strings to eyebrow-pluckers? I confess, with maidenly modesty, that I couldn't find an answer.

"But this morning when you told of arresting Jessup, and emphasized the rebolting of the side door after Skeel's departure, the fog lifted, the sun shone, the birds began to sing. I became suddenly mediumistic: I had a psychic seizure. The whole modus operandi came to me—as they say—in a flash. . . . I told you, Markham, old thing, it would take spiritualism to solve this case."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Fog is no worse than it ever was in the port of New York, but liners are bigger and less manageable, and traffic is greater, so ship operators are trying to figure out a way to prevent the costly delays of craft in the harbor by fog. The other day 14 steamships were held up for hours, 10 got into collisions, and $3,000,000 loss was suffered by the companies in damages and charges due to delays.

One suggested solution is the construction of piers for transatlantic liners at the end of Long Island, with railroad trains and airplanes taking care of the transfer of passengers, mail and cargo to Manhattan Isle. Fog would affect conditions there, too, but the liners would be saved from navigating the difficult New York harbor.

New York is the greatest port in the world, but it is one of the least popular with skippers.

If you think that saleswomen are necessary in the successful sale of women's clothes to women, you're wrong. In New York, youngish salesmen, handsome and snappy, with a good personal line as well as the one they're selling, get the biggest results in dealing with women buyers from out-of-town stores; and the same holds true in many of the Fifth avenue retail shops which cater to puffy women from Park avenue.

Some of these sheikish salesman are able to build up a large "following," and to take them from one concern to another.

And wholesale houses that make a practice of providing pretty companions for male buyers from Kewanee and Winchester, also endeavor to provide lady buyers with personable gigolos. Business is business!

Speaking of buyers, department stores in London and New York have a system of exchanging members of their staffs, which enables buyers or executives to go to Europe or America, as the case may be, for rest, travel and new merchandising ideas. The exchanges are made just as universities here and abroad trade professors.

Nothing ever takes the place of a pay envelope in a trouper's life. Eddie Cantor is one of the richest men on the stage, and well able to retire, but he admits that whenever he is out of a show, he walks instead of hiring taxies, and buys cheaper cigars and smokes them longer.

George Britt says, "It's curious how strange sights are overlooked in New York," and tells me the story of a friend who drank more than he should and awoke in the morning lying in a vacant lot in the Bronx, with his pocket empty and his shoes gone. He begged subway fare downtown, rode to his office and got enough money to buy new shoes. Instead of being humiliated by the experience, he said: 'Few persons notice whether a man is wearing shoes or not.'"

Alvin Owsley Speaks To 250 Persons at Floydada

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, June 3.—Alvin Owsley, candidate for the United States senate, spoke to approximately 250 Floyd county citizens from the court house steps here Friday afternoon. Although billed to speak here in the morning and failing to make the hour on account of other engagements, Mr. Owsley was not able to arrive until the afternoon. Owsley was greeted with as large an audience as his opponents, who have preceded him here.

Farm relief, the principals of the Democratic party, good roads and the federal farm loan bank were all a part of the speakers discussion and from the applause he received from his audience it was indicated that they were heartily in accord with his platform.

Building at Lamesa Reaches $200,000 Total

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, June 3.—Building permits for Lamesa since January 1 have now reached the $200,000 mark. Half of this figure has been issued since the first of May. Local capital is being used to build Lamesa. Although building conditions are very good here there are plenty of day laborers here to supply all demands.

Huge Parade Opens "Cleanes Town" Contest

HEREFORD, June 3.—More than 300 Hereford residents, including school children, chamber of commerce, study clubs and other civic organizations took part Friday afternoon in a mammoth parade which had as its purpose officially to inaugurate the Cleanest Town contest now under way between the neighboring cities of Hereford and Canyon.

Women's Squabbles Hinder Lawyers In Settling Radium Poison Case

NEWARK, N. J.—June 3. (US)—While attorneys are attempting a settlement out of court for the five women victims of alleged radium poisoning at the United States Radium corporation's factory in Orange, N. J., three of the women have disagreed on the terms of settlement and halted all conciliatory effects.

Squabbles over attorney's expense allowance furnished another hitch in the expected settlements. The five women employes who used to wet paint brushes with their lips are now fighting not only the statute of limitations which excludes their case from the court calendar until fall but also proposals of the corporation to settle cash on each of the women.

Terms Proposed

Judge William Clark, as referee, proposed these terms of settlement last Thursday: Each woman to be paid $10,000 in cash, the payment of all medical bills to date, payment of attorneys fees and a pension of approximately $50 a month for life with provision for all medical bills.

According to Mrs. Quinta McDondal, one of the alleged victims of radioactive poisoning, under these terms half the settlement would be eaten up by attorney's bills.

"I have received many bills already from my attorney for legal services," Mrs. McDonald wept today. "It runs into thousands now. I have two small children to provide for and what good will it do me to accept a settlement which will be nearly consumed by these extra charges. We all understood the settlement included all the attorney's costs. But if we are to be charged thousands of dollars in addition it would be foolish for us to accept such terms."

Settlement Refused

Miss Grace Fryer, another of the alleged radium victims, declared: "I will certainly refuse to agree to a settlement in which the sum alotted to us is to be used for payment of attorney's fees. My first understanding of the terms proposed by Judge Clark was that all such costs were to be paid aside from the $10,000 which it was suggested we be awarded. I will not agree to a settlement which will leave us with practically nothing."

A general conference on Monday morning has been called at which time all parties in the legal tangle will attempt to reach a general agreement. If the case is postponed, the women victims aver they may not live until fall. Physicians, however are divided in opinion on the results of radium poisoning and ensuing longevity.

Joins 'Children'

In opening a roller skating rink for children at Boston, Mass., school officials forgot to define the word "children." For Mrs. Theresa I. Spear, 77 years old, shown above on her rollers, has become one of the rink's most enthusiastic patrons.

A two-course luncheon was served to Mesdames S. B. Marchant, George Ezzell, Clyde Cole, Dennie Dale, T. L. LeBus, H. D. Miller, Roy Dickey, J. E. Warden, Claude Suggs and Robert McCann, all of Electra; Mesdames W. T. Wells and A. B. Johnson, of Wichita Falls.

MAE MURRAY

By MAE MURRAY

Mae Murray, in private life, is Princess Mdivani—which sounds real nice if you know how to say it.

Hollywoodites are tittering over an incident which they say happened in Santa Monica recently.

It seems that Mae's prince was in too big a hurry to get from their Santa Monica home to Hollywood, and was arrested for speeding. Upon being taken to the police station the prince was asked the usual questions.

He gave his name, address, etc., but when pressed as to his occupation, he replied: "Husband."

Mae likes the following—it may really be her favorite!

"The lodge brother had just been visited by that old bird with the big bill, the stork, and the lodge felt it its duty to do something. Whereupon the following speech:

"'Brother Jones, you have been a faithful member of this lodge for many years and now that the Lord has smiled upon you to the extent of a set of lovely twins, we wish you to take this beautiful loving cup—'

"'Take it way, I don't want it!' broke in Brother Jones.

"'But we want you to take it and keep it as a reminder of our esteem for you,' continued the spokesman.

"'Oh,' replied Brother Jones, 'If you want me to keep it always I will. I thought it was one of those cups you have to compete for each year.'

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

A Lesson on the Digestive Tract

Very few human beings actually experience hunger. When you feel hungry from missing a meal, it is probably due to breaking the habit of eating which you have formed. Those who have actually experienced real hunger know it is a terrific craving coming from the very cells of the body. This only occurs after a person has missed several meals. This deep-seated craving actually comes because of the need that our body cells have for food to grow, multiply and function.

The food we take into our mouths is in much too crude a form for these delicate cells to use as nourishment, and it must be prepared and broken up into certain chemical forms before they can make use of it. This work is performed by the digestive system. Of all parts of the body, it is most important that we understand the digestive organs, for if these fail in their work we are sure to have a loss of health.

Our digestive system includes the entire digestive tract, which begins with the mouth and ends with the rectum. The food passes through the tract in this order: Mouth, esophagus, stomach and valve of the stomach known as the pylorus, and the small intestine which is divided into three parts. The first, in which the liver, gall bladder and pancreas empty, is known as the duodenum, the second part of the small intestine is known as the jejunum, and the last part of the small intestine is known as the ileum. The end of the ileum joins onto the lower part of the ascending colon which is a portion of the large intestine. Where the ileum joins onto the colon there is a valve located, known as the ileo-caecal valve. This part into which the food empties forms a kind of a pouch called the caecum. At the bottom of this pouch is located the famous vermiform appendix.

The large intestine or colon is about four feet in length and it begins at the appendix in the lower right side of the abdominal cavity and ascends upward to a point just below the liver, where it makes a bend known as the hepatic or liver flexure. It then runs transversely from the right to left side of the abdomen, where it makes another bend downward near the spleen, known as the splenic flexure. This portion of the colon is now known as the descending colon. As it reaches the bottom of the abdominal cavity it makes a peculiar "S" shaped bend known as the sigmoid flexure, after which it enters the rectum and then out of the body.

I would like you to keep this picture of the digestive system in your mind because it will help you very much in understanding many of the rules of diet. This muscular tube which we have just studied only acts as a receptacle for the carrying of food. The digestion is performed by the means of glands which empty their digestive secretion into the digestive tract.

The first important digestive glands to throw their alkaline secretions into the food are the salivary glands which are located within the mouth and assist in the digestion of starch by converting it into a form of grape sugar so that it can be absorbed by the blood. If you have had mumps you know where the salivary glands are located, because they are the ones which become inflamed and swollen in this disease.

Tomorrow's article will be a continuation of this lesson on the digestive organs and their functions. You should save these next two articles for reference and study.

Questions and Answers

Question—W. K. L. asks: "Will you please tell me what is the cause of a cataract over the left eye? Haven't had it long. Would like to know if there is an absolute cure without an operation. Am 55 years old."

Answer—A cataract can sometimes be stopped by the fasting cure and the wearing of properly fitted glasses. Most cataracts would never start if the afflicted one did not wait too long to put on glasses. Continued eye strain brings about an inflammation of the eye which is the first cause of the cataract. After that, injudicious living feeds the trouble and if proper treatment is not taken in time, an operation is the only thing that will restore the sight.

Question—Mrs. D. W. asks: "Could I get a copy of one of your articles that I have lost? I am making a scrapbook of them and would like the one on the use of cooked and raw foods."

Answer—Any article which has appeared in this column will be sent to you if you will name the article and send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Question—Alice B. asks: "Do you know of any good home treatment for goitre?"

Answer—A goitre is an enlargement of the thyroid gland, and is generally caused by congestion in this gland of morbid waste products. A fruit fast will eliminate such deposits and return the gland to practically its normal size. The diet after the cure should be free from all grain foods and an acid fruit meal should be used once a day.

Record News Sports Editor

Charlie Barnabe, recently returned to the Texas league from the Chicago White Sox, southpawed Del Pratt's hustling Waco Cubs to a 4 to 1 victory over the Spudders yesterday in the opener of the three-game series out at the orchard. Charlie my boy held the champions to eight hits, and except in the first inning when two blows were bunched for a run and in the eighth, when three knocks, one a scratch, filled the bases, had the homelings swinging impotent maces.

The Cubs hammered Tom Estill, who is empowered to toss the spitball, for 11 hits, seven of which they clouted to aid their run-getting.

George Blackerby, who is setting a terrific pace at bat, showed he is no respector of person, by whaling three blows, one a double, to aid in the discomfiture of his home town. George drove home one comrade, helped two around the base lines and tallied one run.

Jimmy Battle, another athlete sent to Waco by Harry Grabiner, or whoever does such things for the White Sox, also maced a trio of tallies, one a double. Randy Moore, a third member of the Sox this spring, banged two knocks, one for two bases, in his first appearance here this campaign.

Rabbit, Pete Hit Two

Benton and Turgeon led the Spudder attack with two hits each.

While Barnabe was chunking such very good ball his mates were fielding errorlessly. The Spudders made two misplays.

Battle and Brick Eldred flashed some fast fielding and all the Cub outfielders were busy pulling down flies, some after long runs.

Both clubs scored a tally in the first inning. Karow led off for the Cubs by singling through short. Moore skied to Lamb. Blackerby singled to right. Karow going to third. Battle hit to center, Karow scoring.

Benton started the Spudder half by also hitting through short. Turgeon hit safely to short, Benton stopping at second. Lamb sacrificed, Shires making a fast snatch and toss to Karow on a perfect bunt down the third base line. Eldred lifted a sacrifice fly to Moore, Benton tallying.

Cubs Score in Third.

The Cubs counted two in the third. Blackerby started it with a single to left and went to second when Jenkins fumbled and recovered slowly. Battle doubled to right, Blackerby scoring. Shires flied to Lamb, Battle going to third. Johnson lifted to Eldred, who made an excellent catch, Battle scoring.

The hostiles scored their fourth run in the seventh after two were out. Moore doubled to left and scored on Blackerby's two-base knock to the same territory.

Estill and Benton singled in the eighth but Turgeon and Lamb flied out. Eldred beat out a tap to Battle, filling the bases. The usual reliable Jenkins fouled to Etie.

Notes of the Game

Joe Keifer will oppose Bo Molenda or Oscar Tuero today.

This is ladies' day.

Molenda is the former University of Michigan football star.

Del Pratt has a liking for collegians. Marty Karow, playing in the skipper's place at second base, is a former noted Ohio State athlete.

Pratt himself first gained fame at Michigan. He starred on Wolverine football and baseball teams and went from college to the major leagues.

The Panhandle Refinery band played at yesterday's game.

Eldred made a pair of splendid drive to the line in the third and in the ninth took Barnabe's foul.

Battle made a sparkling stop and throw of Cobb's grounder in the ninth.

The Cubs, greatly strengthened since their last series here, are going to be mighty hard for any team to beat from now on.

Turgeon, who recently has shown signs of shaking his batting slump, banged two hits yesterday, much to the joy of the faithful, who holds Pete as one of their favorites.

Wally Swenson's injured ankle still bothers him but there is nothing wrong with the Swede's batting eye. He started fielding yesterday in old-time form, too.

Stanton continues to play superb ball at first base and is hitting hard.

Reigh Count Out of the Belmont And Damon Figures He Saves $4.98

Derby Winner Outstanding 3-Year-Old But Runyon Says Some Scorpion Probably Would Defeat Him

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, June 3.—It seems that we are to be denied the opportunity of seeing Reigh Count, the Kentucky Derby winner, in a test of speed with Victorian, the equine pride of the East.

Mrs. John D. Hertz, owner of Reigh Count, intended shipping the horse to New York for the Belmont stake on June 9, in which Victorian is expected to start, and there was much discussion among horsemen as to the probable result.

But it appears that Reigh Count got scuffed around at Churchill Downs and has developed ailments that will keep him in the hands of a horse doctor for a spell. There is nothing more delicate than these high-class race horses. A mosquito bite can lay 'em up for a month.

Personally I am just as well satisfied that Reigh Count isn't coming, because the chances are I would have been impelled to wager about $4.98 that he would beat Victorian, and it would have transpired that Reigh Count couldn't beat a fat man uphill. I somehow seem to be pizen to those horses.

I have as yet heard of no calamity befalling Ned McLean's Toro, the gallant crowbait that carried my financial hopes in the derby. I suppose Toro will live on to a ripe and healthy old age, just out of sheer cussedness. I note that nothing has happened to Scapa Flow, another derby choice of mine in a bygone year—last year, to be exact. He survives as a reproachful memory to me, I suppose.

Damon Hates and Hates

I shall never forget with what enthusiasm I drove into Louisville in the year 1927, confident that I was on the verge of wealth beyond avarice, what with all I had been told about Scapa Flow.

As I recall it, the only purpose of my visit to the race course derby day was to go through the formality of cashing in my tickets, and you can imagine my mortification and chagrin when I shoved a deck of them through the cashier's window and heard the man say:

"Why these don't get you nothin'. Scapa Flow didn't win the race."

"Didn't he start?" I demanded.

"Sure," said the man curtly.

"Then he must have won," I said. "My operatives told me that all he had to do was to start."

But I couldn't convince the fellow. And there grew up in my heart a tremendous hatred for that beetle, Scapa Flow, which endured until a greater hate o'ershadowed it—the hate of Toro.

I await the day that these two start in the same race, so I can be there to boo them both simultaneously.

Difference of Opinion

It is my opinion that Reigh Count can beat Victorian doing anything, from a sack race to climbing a tree but I am told that others think differently, and my old man used to tell me that a difference of opinion makes horse races and divorces.

Anyway, the Belmont with the two in it would have been productive of plenty of argument, and then more than likely a 20 to 1 chance would have dropped down there ahead of the pair. But horse for horse, Reigh Count is probably best, although some hossmen argue that he didn't beat anything in the derby.

He beat as good as Victorian beat in the Preakness, anyway. The current 3-year-olds aren't much. The two will probably get together at Saratoga in August if Reigh Count gets over his scuffing and Victorian doesn't meantime sustain an attack of indigestion, or something of the kind.

That Kentucky Derby doesn't seem to carry a lot of luck to the winner. Bubbling Over, one of the greatest horses that ever won it, never raced again, and Black Gold came to an untimely end on the New Orleans track last winter.

Doubts Truly Won Race

I heard the last derby spoken of as a truly run race. Perhaps I so spoke of it myself, that being the custom. The fact that Reigh Count figured to win it and did win, probably made it a truly run race.

But I am not so sure that a race with 22 starters can always be a truly run race when you figure the chance of a very slight accident militating against the best horse. There is necessarily a lot of crowding, and a real good break from the barrier is well nigh a miracle.

Why the owners of some of those crabs that wabbled around the track in the mud at Louisville ever paid the $500 starting fee was a matter of some discussion, but there is no mystery about it. They were gambling on the chance of accident letting their rabbit get down in front.

Then, too, some owners, mainly amateurs, were willing to pay for the small pleasure of seeing their colors in the big race. They didn't think they had a chance to win. Even their horses were not dumb enough to think they might win.

It is to be regretted that there isn't some system whereby they can chuck a field of starters in a big race into a sieve at the barrier, and sift out the bedbugs, and the boll weevils, reducing the heap to just the scorpions and the lizards that remain in the sieve.

What's the sense of getting a poor critter all heated up just to see him lugging a set of colors around the track, especially when the said colors may be some such combination as old rose, with a touch of lavender?

Bare Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Mr. Coolidge will squander the presidential summer in Wisconsin, which is a small state near Chicago.

The summer White House is located at Cedar Island lodge on the Brule river, a stream noted for its gentle fish.

The state is 1,000 feet above sea level but can do even better at low tide. The horizon is always cool, but the hills and trees interfere with the scenery.

The island is reached by a footbridge, which may be soaped by the battered farmers who have been victims of Cal's companionate marriage with the senate.

The house is the bungalow type with a mail order roof and self-bailing attic.

It is within veto distance of the Canadian border, which information can be taken or left. A beautiful laughing conservatory constructed of birch bark and cigarette coupons and a two sap-bucket garage constitute the rest of the setate.

Before leaving Washington Mr. Cal will deliver his famous budgets speech on June 11. He writes this financial oration without the aid of the Hollywood gag men. All of Cal's scenarios pop with facts but lack the happy fade-out.

It looks as if the national executive will not attend the Republican microphone convention in Kansas City. He hopes to stay out of the corn belt until the subject is dropped.

Brule is north of the corn belt and Cal can ramble through the Wisconsin weeds and wild flowers in the contented knowledge that weeds require no appropriations.

While Cal is brooding in the silent valleys and wooded hills of Wisconsin, Hoover and Smith will be kidnaping young delegates in Kansas City and Houston.

The saddest thing in the world is a pelican with a punctured craw. The next most melancholy institution is a convention.

Mr. Hoover or Mr. Smith could avoid all the congestion by hitting himself on the head with a hammer, painting his house white and accepting the nomination.

Colorful Pudding

For a change, use nuts and some of these old-fashioned cinnamon drops in rice pudding. It will come out streaked with pink, which will delight the children.

Gelatine Salad

Never put meat, nuts or condiments into a gelatin salad when it is hot. Let it cool first. But be sure to put them in before it starts to jell.

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Fort Worth opened its San Antonio series with a double victory Sunday, winning the first 8 to 4, and the second 3 to 0. Marty Griffin did the twirling for the Cats in the first, while Lefty Johns set the Bears down with only one bingle in the aftermath.

Tink Riviere, ace of the Bear staff, was the victim of the Cats in the opener. Slim Love, recently obtained from Dallas, started the second game for the Bears and after giving up the three runs went out for a pinch hitter, Lefty Stein, another new addition finishing. Score:

BUFFS WIN IN THIRTEENTH

DALLAS, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Inability to hit in the pinches Sunday cost the Steers the opener of a three-game series with Houston, 6 to 5, in a spirited battle that went 13 innings before the visitors finally broke the spell Dickie Schuman's fine relief pitching held over them.

Tex Carleton pitched some nice ball for the Buffaloes, but he was extremely wild. He gave the Steers 11 bases on balls. Score:

SHREVEPORT, La., June 3. (AP)—The Sports and the Exporters split a double-header, the visitors winning the first game 11 to 3, and the home club the second, 3 to 2. Ragged pitching was responsible for the home club's one-sided defeat in the first game, while Thompson was in great form in the second. Thompson won his own game when he singled in the eighth after Hayworth had hit for three bases. Score:

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

GEORGE BLACKERBY has proved he is no morning glory. If there was any belief on that score, which I doubt. Any player who can bat among the first five leaders in the Texas league as George did last season certainly showed he was a fixture as a star. But that was George's first season and there may have been some doubt as to whether he would maintain that pace. George has removed that doubt, if any.

The Wichita Falls youth who outfields for the Waco Cubs is leading or among the leaders in about every department of attack. He is third in league hitting, but has played more games than Eldred and Worthington, who are ahead of him. He was tied with Bonowitz of Fort Worth in home runs with nine, according to averages including Thursday's game. Since then he added one more circuit drive. He is second in hits, with 78, two behind Selph of Houston. And he leads in run scoring.

BLACKERBY is one of the best prospects in the Texas league. His sale to a major loop club for a fancy price is a foregone conclusion if he maintains the peace he now is setting. And there is no doubt on that score. George is a natural hitter, one of those batters who will hit any pitching, any time.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN is going to have more difficulty in carrying out his ambitious program of fighting four battles within four or five weeks than first anticipated. Joe Sekyra gave the light heavy king a stiff fight derby day at Louisville. Friday night Pete Latzo provided one of the greatest fistic surprises of the year by fighting Tommy off his feet for 10 rounds, only to lose a close 15-round decision. Loughran was a 5 to 1 favorite over the Scranton coal miner, but only a desperate rally in late rounds enabled the Philadelphian to retain his crown.

TOMMY is to face two other mighty tough fellows within three weeks. Leo Lomski, who had Tommy on the floor twice in a previous mill, only to lose the 15-round decision, is a distinct threat to Loughran. He may have Tommy on the floor—and keep him there—this fight. Leo is that sort of puncher. If he gets by that hurdle Loughran still has to face Jimmy Slattery, a boxer of consummate skill, though not in the class of Lomski as a socker. Verily, if Loughran emerges from his two remaining fights still king of all the light heavies he will have proved he is one of the greatest fighters of the age.

Psychological Holdup

NEW YORK.—Psychology has been proved a failure in the holdup racket. George Hoff has been studying the "A B C of Psychology." Armed with the book and a crowbar he attempet to rob a Bronx butcher. However things failed to work out according to Hoyle. The crowbar didn't put the butcher to sleep and when he started howling for help (contrary to psychological premeditation) George headed for the elevated stirway only to be caught in the arms of Patrolman Corcoran.

It's a Crool Woild

OAKLAND, Calif.—It's tough when you make up your mind you want to die, and then can't. Eva Frances, tired of the mortal afflictions that beset her constantly, sat herself upon the track of the Southern Pacific and waited patiently for the electric to come along and assist her to another world. But the motorman stopped the car and Eva fainted. She gave no reason for her desire to die.

Word and Deed

"Prisoner, have you anything to say?"

"Assuredly, your honor. I desire to state without reserve or circumlocution, that the penalty imposed should be in keeping, or as it were, commensurate with my station in life, which has hitherto been one of no inconsiderable importance."

"Well, you seem to have a liking for long sentences. Ten years."—Dublin Herald.

Well Spoken

"Which would you rather have—a million dollars or twelve daughters?"

"Twelve daughters."

"Why is that?"

"If I had a million dollars I should always be wanting more, if I had twelve daughters it would be enough."—Faun, Vienna.

Symmetrical Necklines

If you baste around necklines and armholes the minute they are cut, they will hold their symmetry and not stretch out of shape.

Raw Salads

Fresh vegetables, diced, grated or sliced finely make healthful and appealing salads. Water cress, parsley or mint should garnish them.

LAY SERMONS AT CONVENTION

"Christian Citizenship" Will Be West Texans' Subject

FORT WORTH, June 3.—"Christian Citizenship" will be the subject of lay sermons to be delivered in all evangelical churches of Fort Worth, Sunday, June 17, the day before the official opening of the tenth annual West Texas chamber of commerce convention.

Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas chamber will announce the list of speakers one week before the convention. The list includes some of the foremost orators in the state and they will speak on the same subject at the same hour. The plan for laymen to preach the day before the convention was started last year by Mr. Wade in the city of Wichita Falls where the ninth annual convention took place.

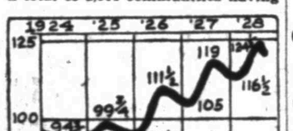

"Fort Worth churches are cooperating in every way possible," Mr. Wade says, "and I have never seen such interest in a program of this kind. The one great trouble I am having is to get fellows who are real speakers to fill pupits in these city churches. They are men who can deliver great messages in the smaller places but they seem to be afraid of the city."

In addition to these special services in the churches on Sunday morning, a special sing-song in which it is expected 1000 voices will take part, will be staged at Trinity park in the afternoon. There will also be night features.

MOODY PLANS FEW SPEECHES

Governor Will Not Wage Hard Campaign

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, June 3.—Governor Dan Moody will make a brief campaign in his race for re-election, but likely will not start it until July, or after the Democratic national convention, it became known today. He will likely make only three or four speeches, in widely-scattered parts of the state.

He has filed on the Democratic primary ballot for renomination, and will let the governorship campaign wait until he has attended the national convention in Houston, June 26, as chairman of the Texas delegation, and assisted in the nomination of the candidates for president and vice president.

Governor Moody has steadily declined to comment or indicated any opinion on the likelihood that Cullen F. Thomas of Dallas will get into the race against him, as the candidate of the ultra-dry faction whose "negative-instruction" program was frustrated by Governor Moody at the Beaumont state Democratic convention. Many of his friends here believe the rumor of Thomas' candidacy was started as a sort of test to determine the extent of disaffection from Moody, and that the results have been so disappointing to the ultra-drys that the drys may have to stay out of the race. The candidates have only until Monday night in which to file for state office.

Council to Consider Tax Rate And Three Ordinances at Meet Tonight

A busy evening is expected at the council chambers of the city council Monday night when it is expected that the adoption of a tax rate of $1.50 for the year will be proposed, and when three new ordinances will come up for first reading.

Grocerymen and other dealers in fresh fruit and vegetables have been invited by the mayor and councilmen to attend the meeting as one of the new ordinances provides a heavy penalty for the fruit and vegetable sellers and buyers both if the buying public handles the fruit or vegetables.

Proposed as a sanitary measure, the ordiance would make it illegal for a customer in a store to handle fruit and vegetables.

The other two ordinances also were drawn up at the request of the council, and provide for the repeal of two separate paving ordiances in order to remove the cloud from property title, affected where it has since been decided paving is not wanted.

PEKING QUIET AFTER CHANGE

No Disorders Expected In Fallen City

PEKING, June 3. (US)—The dynasty of Chang Tso-Lin, late dictator of northern China, followed the chief today in a Manchurian exile, while victorious troops of the nationalist leaders advanced to take peaceful possession of Peking.

Railway service out of the city was temporarily disorganized as the lieutenants of Chang Tso-Lin commandeered every available coach and locomotive to transport the remnants of Chang's army and officialdom in Manchuria, which, through the dictum of the Japanese has become a refuge for the defeated war lord and his followers.

Orderly Seizure

Before leaving the capital at 1:20 this morning Chang turned the government of Peking to a council of elders and these announced they had assurances that the nationalist generals would take possession of the city in an orderly manner.

Nevertheless foreign troops in the legation quarter, where the homes of foreign residents are centered, were on the alert and out in force. Japanese residents were particularly nervous.

The collapse of Chang Tso-Lin's dynasty was made somewhat ludicrous by the haste of his followers to get out of the city with such of their goods as they could carry. Cars were loaded with furniture, automobiles, bags of grain and even potted plants hurriedly gathered together when Chang Tso-Lin gave the word for the retreat to Mukden.

Disorder Unlikely

Foreign diplomats are hopeful that the change in administration will be effected without disturbances. General Chiang Kai-Shek, commander-in-chief of the nationalist forces, is reported to have announced that none of his troops would be brought into the city immediately, thus lessening the chance of disorder. However, the vigilance of the foreign representatives, who have joined in plans to defend their nationals, is not being relaxed.

With a small town editor in Dutch Mantell's home town, (Amarillo) taking lusty wallops at Lindbergh and gaining headlines by doing it, Wichita Falls is preparing to honor him by traveling 40,000 miles with him in the pictures. The Lindy motion picture is to be shown at the Majestic, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a three reel film.

Corinne Griffith's first picture for First National is "The Garden of Eden." The movie is based on the famed stage play of the same name. It also brings togsther a notable group of stars, including Charles Ray, Louise Dresser, Lowell Sherman and Miss Griffith.

And next comes Will Rogers. Can you beat that? It seems as though he should come on the vitaphone so that he could talk as well as act. However, it is well for the dear public to read about what Will has to say every day on the front page of The Times, and then see the wild hombre in person in "A Texas Steer" at the Strand theater starting Tuesday.

Will Rogers, the mayor of Beverly Hills and staff writer for our local news distribution, has been variously mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency and also for the office of city clerk of Steubenville, but in this new picture he is seen as a congressman. He is the real thing in the movies.

Cal, better known as President Coolidge, turned the house of representatives in Washington over to Will Rogers personally for the picture. It was said to have been the first time a movie machine ever ground its celluloid strips out in that home of national comedy.

Louise Fazenda, eccentric comedy artist, Lilyan Tashman and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., also are seen in this picture.

Monday is the last time the fans will have the chance to see "Rain," or as it is called by the movies, "Sadie Thompson" at the Strand. One thing they can't do in the movies is to say the "words" out loud that they said in the stage version of the show.

Will Rogers and Lilyan Tashman in "The Texas Steer" at the Strand theater starting Tuesday.

Dusky Dicers Call "Boss Man" When Funds Play Out in Court Session

The largest single raid this year was consumated late Saturday night when members of the sheriff's department visited a Lamar street residence and arrested 17 negroes shooting dice. About ten got away over the roofs of adjacent buildings, officers said.

Judge R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, was called and the negroes entered pleas of guilty of gambling in a midnight court.

About $35 was in the game, according to those arrested. Only one of the 17 had enough money to pay his fine. When the remaining 15 pooled their assets, two others secured their release. Later telephone calls to "the boss man" proved effective, so that less than ten of the culprits spent the night in the county jail.

Officers participating in the raid were S. O. Hamm, W. W. Belcher, Dick Morris, Charles Gant and Homer Bentley of the police department.

SUMMER TERM WORK URGED

Students Have Opportunity To Advance

The second week of summer school is starting Monday with the opportunity offered to every boy and girl in Wichita Falls to make up subjects in which they have not been successful, according to J. T. Rundell, principal of the Carrigan school who is in charge of all the city elementary work being given at the Alamo school.

"Parents who know the value of time and who know the value of schooling, should see to it at once that their children take advantage of the summer school in the public schools if their children need it. We welcome them and will do our best with their classmates, Mr. Rindell said.

"In a few instances we are accepting pupils who need certain work that they may advance a half a term ahead of their classes."

The summer school classes at the Junior college for junior high, senior high and junior college students, under the direction of A. K. Presson registrar of the Junior college, also are going into their second week on the same basis and with a god enrollment.

Sun Spots Interfering With Radio Transmission

WASHINGTON, June 3. (UP)—Sun spots are seriously interferring with radio transmission, the U. S. bureau of standards announced today. There is a definite connection, the bureau said, between solar activity and radio transmission and studies have shown daylight static to be less in years when sun spots are numerous and greater when sun spots are few.

Moths can be kept away by sprinkling liquid camphor under the carpets and turpentine in the corners of the wardrobe.

Investing in the Future of TEXAS

TEXAS, still relatively sparsely settled, has seen a remarkable growth in electric facilities in recent years.

This company has constructed generating plants, built nearly one thousand miles of transmission lines—an investment for the present and future agricultural and industrial Texas.

It has done this because it has faith in Texas.

And it has done this because it has sought to encourage new capital to flow into the State for the development of natural resources and to stimulate the founding of new industries here, there and everywhere throughout the broad expanse of this mighty empire.

Someone must b[illegible]! And what can be more practical building than to bring power to places where industries depending on power are earnestly desired?
