Mondale's night of triumph in sight

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Democrats deliver their presidential nomination tonight to battle-scarred Walter F. Mondale, ending the long season of setbacks and comebacks that kept him in combat against two dogged rivals almost to his hour of victory.

In their hearts they must have known they were whipped, but the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Gary Hart — one the candidate of the dispossessed and the other a new voice from the West — would not say die.

But Jackson removed the prospect that he might walk away from the party this year, telling delegates in a stirring prime-time television speech, "I will be proud to support the nominee of this convention for the presidency of the United States."

With 1,967 delegates' votes needed, Mondale had more than 2,100. Triumph, at last, was in sight.

Only massive defections by Hispanic and black delegates to the Democratic National Convention could derail Mondale's first-ballot victory. Jackson sought exactly that, and some Hispanics plotted a symbolic abstention to flex their muscles, but it was mostly talk. Mondale's strength held firm.

Jesse Jackson

But playing it safe to the last, Mondale was courting the constituencies today with visits to caucuses of Hispanic and black delegates to put down those threat of rebellion.

At most, the attempt to deny Mondale a first-ballot victory seemed to cost him a handful of delegates, and he had scores to spare.

So tonight, with the first call of the roll, the delegates are expected to award their nomination to a familiar figure on the American scene, the protege first of Hubert Humphrey and then of Jimmy Carter.

On Thursday, the vice presidential nomination will be awarded to his choice, Geraldine Ferraro, new to the national scene but a hit at this convention wherever she goes.

Son of the Minnesota plains, Mondale is a spokesman for rockbed American liberalism — "just plain old, ordinary Fritz Mondale," as he said across the country, appealing to the old New Deal coalitions to come to the aid of a man they knew and understood.

Hart and Jackson refused to make it easy for Mondale, however. They were carrying the fight into the presidential balloting, refusing to concede or withdraw.

Cisneros fights immigration-linked boycott

SAN FRANCISCO — With Mayor Henry Cisneros serving as pointman, backers of Walter Mondale have apparently defused efforts by angry Hispanics to use the controversial Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill as an excuse to boycott tonight's first ballot vote which Mondale hopes will make him the Democratic presidential nominee.

The move was being pushed by Hispanics supporting the fast fading presidential hopes of Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, and could be successful only if they enlisted support of enough Mondale backers to rob him of the estimated 120-delegate victory margin he is believed to have going into tonight's nominating session.

Cisneros, embroiled in the issue all week, was jeered yesterday when he pleaded with raucous Hispanic caucus members to lobby congressional leaders to kill the bill, not use the bill as an excuse to harm Mondale's campaign.

A poll of Hispanic delegates at the tumultuous caucus resulted in a 38 to 38 tie on whether to advise all delegates to withhold votes on the first ballot. The deep split at least temporarily sidetracked the first-ballot abstention movement, but the issue was to be considered again today at a Hispanic caucus meeting scheduled before the nominating session convenes.

Cisneros and a team of other nationally prominent Hispanic leaders held a series of hastily called meetings with Mondale and national AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland before the Hispanic caucus to collect ammunition they needed to blunt the ballot boycott drive.

They emerged from the Mondale session with a three-paragraph written statement in which the likely nominee reiterated his opposition to Simpson-Mazzoli and promised to "personally communicate with the congressional leadership" to fight it.

Kirkland delivered verbal assurances that he would join the move to kill the bill and promised to follow that with a formal written statement.

The threatened Hispanic boycott, combined with Jackson's attempt to steal black Mondale delegates, worried Mondale loyalists who quickly dispatched floor leaders to telephones and the convention floor to head off desertions.

Cisneros has been so preoccupied with the issue all week that he didn't begin writing the speech he delivered to the convention and a national television audience last night until five hours before he took the podium.

It's Gary Hart Day, said Dallas Willis from his hotel room in San Francisco this morning as he prepared for the third day of the Democratic National Convention.

Tuesday was Jesse Jackson's day in the spotlight and Monday was New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's as each sparked the Democratic delegation into a rallying unity with their speeches.

Willis, a Walter Mondale delegate from Midland, said he is ready to go with his candidate in the convention's first roll call vote tonight.

Jackson's speech was "tremendous," he said. "It was as close to Martin Luther King as he's ever come. It was a lot like the Martin Luther King style."

The speech topped off Jackson's campaign as the first black presidential candidate. "It was his day," said Willis. "Everything led up to it.

"It was a unifying speech. It means he intends to get involved with the campaign."

Willis didn't agree with all the points, but he did applaud Jackson's main theme that the Reagan administration ha failed to look after the needs of the average American.

Hart, the Colorado senator who bested Mondale in some states during the primary season, will speak to the convention this afternoon. The roll call will come tonight, but Willis believes neither Jackson nor Hart will convince enough delegates to switch their votes on the first ballot to keep the nomination from Mondale.

Shaner resigns county Republican chairmanship

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Bill Shaner, an independent geological engineer, has resigned his post as Midland County Republican chairman, effective last Monday.

He turned in his resignation Monday during a called meeting of the county executive committee. Shaner, who held the post six years, said he resigned because "of increasing demands of my professional career on my time."

Last spring he was criticized by some Midland Republicans for being out of town on the last day for candidates to file for election and for not designating someone to accept applications. Gary Painter, who decided late in the day to file for sheriff on the Republican ballot, gave Shaner his application at a well site long after the 6 p.m. deadline had passed. The case was taken before the state Supreme Court which ruled Painter's name had to be included on the ballot.

"I've been giving it a lot of thought," he said. "I wanted to get the county and first state conventions out of the way. This is a quiet time before the national convention and the general election. Whoever replaces me will have time to get the ball rolling. This is a very important campaign and political year."

Shaner, who was re-elected to the county chairmanship in May, denied the Painter incident contributed to his decision to resign.

The executive committee, headed by Bob Paxton, will meet again next Monday to select a successor. Shaner said he knew of several names being considered but would not release them.

Under the election code, a new county chairman must be chosen within 20 days after Shaner's resignation.

The demands of being a county chairman "are pretty heavy," he said, "and I'm out more and more on my job. Being county chairman has intruded on my professional obligations from time to time. I can't devote the time that the leadership requires."

Shaner said he was satisfied with the job he has done as county chairman.

"The party has continued to grow under my efforts. I'm leaving the county organization in about as good a shape as it's ever been. In this last primary (May) the Republican turnout in Midland County was the largest primary turnout. It speaks of continued growth and Republican effort. We probably have more office holders per capita than any city in the state."

Shaner said he would continue to work with the party and participate when he is available.

Communist leader prepares for French shake up

Associated Press

PARIS — The Communist Party chief cut short his Romanian vacation and rushed home today as reports circulated that President Francois Mitterrand's premier-designate, fiscal conservative Laurent Fabius, would name a new Cabinet on Thursday.

Georges Marchais' Communist Party had four seats in the outgoing 41-member Cabinet, but Fabius was expected to demand that the Communists quit sniping at the Socialist government's economic austerity policy if they want to continue to share power.

The French left, in power since May 1981, has suffered a series of electoral setbacks in the past two years, and Mitterrand's approval rating has slumped to 30-35 percent, according to polls.

Mitterrand on Tuesday named Fabius to replace Premier Pierre Mauroy. At 37, Fabius is France's youngest premier in more than a century.

Fabius' main task will be to try to revive the Socialists' flagging popular support before the 1986 legislative elections.

French television and press reports said the Cabinet would be named Thursday. The Communist Party Central Committee was to meet tonight.

As recently as last week, the Communists reaffirmed their intention to remain part of the ruling coalition.

Among the four Communist ministers in Mauroy's Cabinet was Transportation Minister Charles Fiterman, the party's No. 2 man. Mitterrand was the first president to bring the Communists into a government since since the Fifth Republic was founded in 1958.

Fabius, an economist, was a principal architect of a plan to overhaul French industry that called for elimination of tens of thousands of jobs with an eye to streamlining production and making the nation more competitive. French Communists were among the most vocal critics of the plan, which sparked strikes and other labor protests nationwide.

Shutting off toilets blamed for Texas prison disturbance

Associated Press

JONES CREEK, Texas — Attempts to conserve water by shutting off toilets during the day apparently led to a disturbance in which 250 to 300 prison inmates broke windows, set fires and jammed cell doors, an assistant warden says.

Assistant Warden Roland Reynolds said Tuesday the Monday night violence at the maximum-security Clemens Unit was subdued by guards dressed in riot gear who used tear gas to subdue the inmates.

Reynolds said the major complaint from the inmates was a problem with water in the prison unit.

"We've had to shut off water to the toilets during the day," said Reynolds. "We turn it on at certain times so they could flush, but we've had trouble with our water storage tanks."

He said the water system has not been able to keep up with the demand, causing the level of water in storage tanks to drop to a low level. To conserve the water, prison officials have been turning off water to the cellblock toilets during the day, when the inmates were supposed to be working in the fields.

But lately, some inmates refused to work and stayed in the cells during the day, while water to the toilets was shut off, he said.

Reynolds said engineers are attempting to fix the problem.

The National Weather Service forecasts showers Thursday for parts of the Gulf states, Wisconsin and Michigan and in a band extending from California and Arizona to the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa.

Cooler evening temperatures only change in Basin area forecast

From Staff Reports

A cooler evening is in store for Midland residents, but the rest of the forecast remains unchanged, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight's low is expected to fall to the middle 60s, accompanied by light and variable winds.

Partly cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms are forecast for tonight and Thursday. A high in the low 90s is predicted for Thursday, along with south to southeast winds of 5 to 15 mph.

Tuesday's high was 91 — a rather cool day when compared to the record high of 103 for that date set in 1981.

The overnight low was 73, compared to 62 degrees recorded on that date in 1955.

Frustrated truckers block ferries

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Truck drivers stranded by the nine-day-old British dock strike vented their anger today by blockading passenger ferry services across the English Channel.

The truckers blocked Britain's main ferry terminal at Dover for several hours during the night, and shortly after dawn drivers from Britain and other European countries took similar action across the channel at the French port of Calais, French police said.

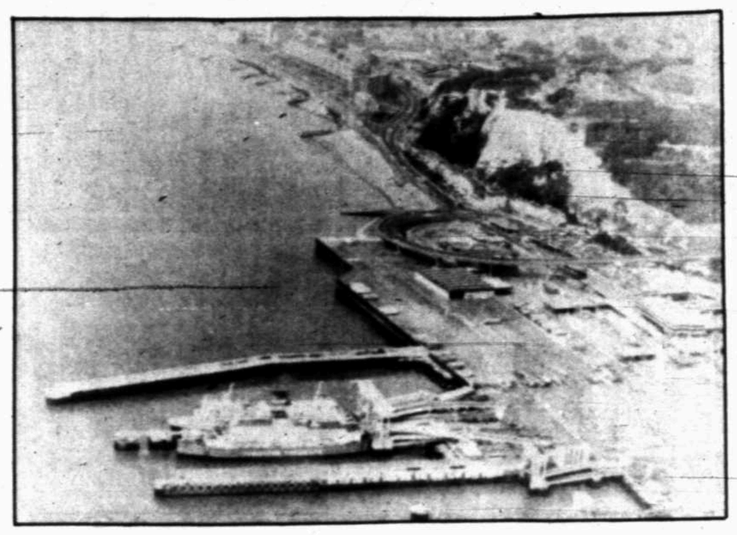

One ferry voyage from Dover was canceled and another diverted to Ostend, Belgium, British port authorities said.

The disruption of passenger services, coming at a peak holiday trvael period, was likely to increase pressure on the British government to take action to end the dockworkers' strike, which has shut down freight operations at all of Britain's major ports.

The drivers said they were frustrated at seeing their produce rotting in the ports while the dockworkers, reluctant to turn public opinion against them, tried not to inconvenience passengers.

The truckers acted after more than 1,000 trucks backed up at Calais and about 165 near Dover, where police closed a five-mile stretch of highway to provide emergency parking space.

Government mediators met Tuesday with union officials representing British dockworkers, and with the National Association of Port Employers in an effort to settle the strike, but no progress was reported.

Ferries rest at the docks of Dover, adjacent to a virtually empty truck lot as strikes continue to blockade British trade and travel.

"We are as far away (from agreement) as we were on Tuesday of last week" when the strike began, union official John Connolly told reporters following a session with mediators.

Food warehouses reported some shortages of imported produce, but generally there was still enough on hand to stock grocers' shelves.

Kenneth Barr, a British trucker stuck in Calais stood beside his 24-ton load of rotting watermelons from Greece and said: "This load is worth up to 18,000 pounds ($23,760). All this nonsense is helping ruin businesses like mine."

A spokesman for Britain's Automobile Association said Dover, normally humming with ferry activity at this time of year, looked quieter than it does in winter. "With all the trailers around, it is more like an elephant's graveyard," he said.

There was no end in sight to either the dock strike, or to the 18-week-old coal miners' strike that spawned it. The government mediation service got involved in the dock strike when face-to-face negotiations broke down last Friday, and its lack of success was greeted pessimistically today by the Times of London.

"Britain took a step further towards economic crisis last night as talks...ended without a deal in sight," the Times said.

The dock strike began when a non-union contractor at the east coast port of Immingham unloaded iron ore that dockworkers had refused to handle in support of the striking miners. The miners want to halt ore and coal shipments to steel plants to increase the impact of their walkout.

Management acknowledged it violated the closed shop law that governs most British ports. The union wants a guarantee that there will no repeat violations, but the employers' association says it cannot give such a guarantee because it would go beyond the present rules governing contract labor.

Dover handles 30,000 passengers, 7,000 cars and 400 buses each working weekday, and before Monday's strike vote, it also handled 2,500 freight trucks a day.

Police said they plan to close, as needed, another eight miles of highway outside Dover to accommodate stranded trucks.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Tuesday the strike "will do immense damage to the ordinary working people of this country." But she did not say whether her government will intervene. The dock and miners' strikes are widely seen as the toughest labor challenge she has faced since taking power five years ago.

The miners' strike, which has shut 80 percent of the nation's 175 state-owned mines, began March 12. Miners are protesting government plans to close 20 unprofitable mines and trim 20,000 jobs within a year.

MONDALE

Jackson asked the delegates for their support on the first ballot "as a vote for a new direction for this party and this nation." Yet his conciliatory tone and pledge to support the eventual nominee united the hall in hand-clasped warmth and drew praise from some Jewish leaders for his apologies for old wounds.

Hart was still saying he is in the race for the good of the party as the candidate most likely to beat President Reagan in November.

Skirmishes over the platform Tuesday demonstrated decisively that Mondale has the delegates to win. His forces proved their loyalty.

Mondale compromised where he could, prevailed where he had to. No planks that Mondale opposed made it into the platform.

The Hispanic threat was a way of protesting the immigration control bill that has passed the House and Senate, with bipartisan support, and may be sent to Reagan for his signature later this summer. Hispanics fear it will lead to workplace prejudice against them by employers fearful of penalties for hiring undocumented workers.

Jackson personally appealed to the convention's 700 black delegates for their first ballot votes. If they don't do that, he asked, "How are you going to explain it to your grandchildren?"

But most black delegates are committed to Mondale, and they were standing by him.

"I'll tell my grandchildren that I voted my conscience," said Lacy Steele, a Mondale delegate from Seattle, Wash.

"I came here as a Mondale supporter," said another black, Clarence Burns of Maryland. "Being black doesn't change that for me."

Just before tonight's voting, Hart will stand before the convention for his last hurrah — of 1984.

"You will recognize it as pure Hart," said one person familiar with the final draft of Hart's speech, his own handiwork, written over the last several weeks.

Those who have seen the draft say he will not seize the moment for an emotional appeal for votes; but he won't free his delegates to vote their consciences, either. They say Hart's speech offers praise for Mondale and a fresh call for new thinking to advance America and the Democratic cause.

Jackson used his turn at the podium Tuesday to make his case for "the damned, disinherited, disrespected, despised" of America, to say "please forgive me" to those offended by his rhetoric, and to pledge support for "the nominee of this convention for the presidency of the United States."

"What this campaign has shown, above all else, is that the key to our liberation is in our own hands, and in our dream and vision of a better world," Jackson said.

Jackson appeared to be accepting reality as he said: "There is a time to sow and a time to reap. There is a time to compete and a time to cooperate."

When he finished, everyone in the hall and on the podium grasped hands with his neighbors while a band played, "In His Hands." Back and forth, whole rows of people swayed.

Of his apology, Mayor Dianne Feinstein, said, "I accept." She is Jewish, and many Jews were offended by Jackson's use of the slur "Hymie" during the campaign.

Mondale gave in to the Hart forces to avoid a floor fight on a platform plank calling for sharp limits on the use of military force abroad. He compromised with Jackson on an affirmative action plank.

But he had his forces defeat Jackson's proposal to abolish runoff primaries that are used in several Southern states and a plank that would have committed a Democratic president to a "no first use" doctrine on nuclear weapons. Mondale felt a president's negotiating position could not be so restricted.

Mondale forces chose a black, a Hispanic and a woman to make the nominating and seconding speeches for their candidate. Tom Bradley, the black mayor of Los Angeles, will place his name in nomination and seconding speeches will come from Rep. Robert Garcia of New York, chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, and from Ann Richards, state treasurer of Texas.

SPARK

"The delegates by and large will keep their commitments made when they were elected," said Willis. "I know I intend to. There may be a few changes but not enough to affect the outcome. Mondale will get the nomination on the first roll call."

Mondale ranked well in the platform vote, according to Willis. "He made some compromises to Jackson and Hart."

Jackson's request to set up quotas on racial and sexual lines caused the biggest problem of the day, but Willis said it seemed resolved with the compromise to set up goals and objectives rather than quotas.

"I believe the plank on that is more in line as far as civil rights in the United States is concerned. The goals — with a good faith effort to achieve these goals — is what we've been going after in the United States."

FIGHT

The mayor, who Mondale considered picking as his running mate, shouted to be heard at yesterday's caucus as he declared that the way to "put the death nail into Simpson-Mazzoli" is to turn votes around in the House of Representatives," not to harm the man who has the best chance to be the nominee who has already said he is against Simpson-Mazzoli."

Cisneros, visibly tired, at one point asked the crowd that included about 300 non-delegates what tactic was the wisest to fight Simpson-Mazzoli and was answered with shouts of "abstain, abstain."

U.S. Reps. Robert Garcia of New York and Ed Roybal of California, who had joined Cisneros in the meetings with Mondale and Kirkland, delivered impassioned pleas to the caucus to ignore the ballot boycott.

But they were greeted wih shouts of "that's not enough!"

Caucus Chairman Polly Baca, a Colorado state senator and Hart loyalist, banged her shoe on the podium several times to restore order and quiet the crowd that included almost 100 protesters who had been picketing outside the caucus meeting location at the downtown Sheraton Plaza Hotel but came inside once the session got under way.

Hispanics at the convention appear unified in their opposition to the employer sanction provisions in the immigration bill that they fear would discriminate against all Hispanics seeking jobs.

The bill has been passed by both houses of Congress and is now scheduled to go to a conference committee to iron out differences in the House and Senate versions before it returns for final floor votes. President Reagan is prepared to sign the bill once it is finalized.

In pushing for the national convention nominating ballot boycott, Jackson and Hart backers have said the move would serve as the most dramatic possible statement of their displeasure with the bill.

LULAC National President Mario Obledo, a San Antonio native and former California secretary of state, was at the caucus yesterday pushing for the boycott which he first urged at LULAC's convention in El Paso last month.

Obledo claimed "close to 100" Hispanic delegates have pledged to abstain on tonight's first vote on the presidential nomination, but he would not disclose how many of those are Mondale delegates.

Democratic National Committee officials have said about 70 percent of the more than 250 Hispanic delegates are pledged to Mondale, while about 30 percent are backing Hart and the remainder are Jackson delegates.

San Antonio lawyer Ruben Montemayor, a Hart delegate and Bexar County chairman of Hart's campaign for the May 5 Texas precinct conventions, urged caucus members to boycott, saying there is a possibility Simpson-Mazzoli may never be the subject of another vote in Congress if the Senate accepts the House version. "Let's not kid ourselves," Montemayor said in urging the ballot boycott.

Statistical directory indexes obscure figures

By WILLIAM E. FARRELL

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Tucked away in computers, in offices and in the files of bureaucratic warrens of every description here are hundreds of thousands of federal statistics, resources for those who believe that "the future belongs to the information efficient," a phrase that appears in the newly published "Federal Statistical Directory."

The authors, Richard J. D'Aleo and William R. Evinger, say the government spends $1.4 billion a year gathering data in such fields as health, manufacturing, trade and demography, yet the collection system is so decentralized — spread out over 100 federal departments and agencies — that finding the numerical nugget that will clinch your argument is time-consuming and frustrating.

So D'Aleo and Evinger have compiled the names, titles and telephone numbers of more than 3,000 government statistical personnel responsible for gathering data under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980. Maybe you can't find out how many angels can dance on the head of a pin, but you can unearth arcane data on the affairs of everything from the Office of Management and Budget to the Panama Canal Commission.

The 241-page directory, at $14.95 plus $2 for postage and handling, can be obtained from ICUC Press, P.O. Box 1447, Springfield, Va. 22151, or by telephoning 703-323-8065.

Political Monday-morning quarterbacking is a popular pursuit in this city, and it appears that this year's election year prognosticating and lint-picking will by no means be confined to watering holes or to the outcome of domestic contests.

A seminar to be held July 27 by the scholarly American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research will feature a scrutiny of the Israeli national elections focusing on how "various constituencies voted and what shifts, if any, may have resulted when Israelis went to the polls." Aided by Israeli analysts including Shlomo Avineri, a former director general of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, and Zeev Schiff, military analyst for the newspaper Ha'aretz, the participants will concentrate on the effect of the July 23 elections on Israel's economic dilemma as well as on questions of security and foreign policy.

FRANCE

Mauroy had led the Cabinet since Mitterrand's Socialists came to power three years ago, but in France the real power lies with the president and not with the premier.

Mitterrand's term lasts into 1988, and elections for the National Assembly are scheduled for 1986. Under the French system, there is no need to call elections with the creation of a new Cabinet.

One foreign policy expert, Dominique Moisi, assistant director of the French Institute for Foreign Relations, said today "there is a 50 percent chance" that Claude Cheysson will be replaced as foreign minister by Roland Dumas, a high-ranking government spokesman and — like Fabius — a close associate of Mitterrand.

Mitterrand accepted the resignation of Mauroy, the presidential Elysee Palace announced, and promptly appointed Fabius. The new premier was minister of industry and research under Mauroy and is considered one of the most economically hard-headed members of Mitterrand's administration.

"What is needed is great calm, much determination and the wish that I have to modernize the country and bring together the French people," Fabius said after his appointment.

The announcement followed news reports about the resignation of Education Minister Alain Savary, author of a controversial bill to increase government influence over private schools. Hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen took to the streets to protest the measure.

Mitterrand, reversing his stand supporting the school bill, announced last week the withdrawal of the Savary measure. He proposed a constitutional amendment allowing a national referendum on the issue.

The resignations are seen as part of Mitterrand's effort to rejuvenate his image. In recent European Parliament elections the Socialists received only 22 percent of the vote, while the Communists received about 11 percent.

The premier's resignation was anticipated following the Socialists' setback in those elections in June, but his abrupt departure still came as a surprise.

In his letter of resignation, Mauroy said the change was part of a "new phase" for the government. There had been three previous shakeups in the Socialist administration, but Mauroy was always reappointed.

Fabius, in a radio address shortly after his appointment, praised Mauroy's "considerable work," and referred to the "exalting task" ahead of him. "And now, I must go back to work," he said.

A rallying cry of the government's conservative opposition has been the "freedom issue." Beside the school bill, which opponents saw as an attempt to infringe on parents' freedom to choose children's eduction, a bill restricting the number of newspapers a publisher can own was condemned as encroachment on freedom of the press.

Discontent over the economy has beset the Mitterrand government. Unemployment, which the Socialists promised to keep below 2 million, has passed that mark. Inflation ranges between 6 percent and 7 percent.

Police negotiator talks woman down from San Antonio tower

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Police negotiator Reuben Rendon never thought Lupe Guajardo would jump off the 250-foot KENS-TV tower in downtown San Antonio.

He was right. After five hours on the steel tower, at times as high as 175 feet, Ms. Guajardo climbed down.

Her face tear-stained, she hugged Rendon and then stepped into a car and rode off to see a doctor. Police said no charges would be filed against her.

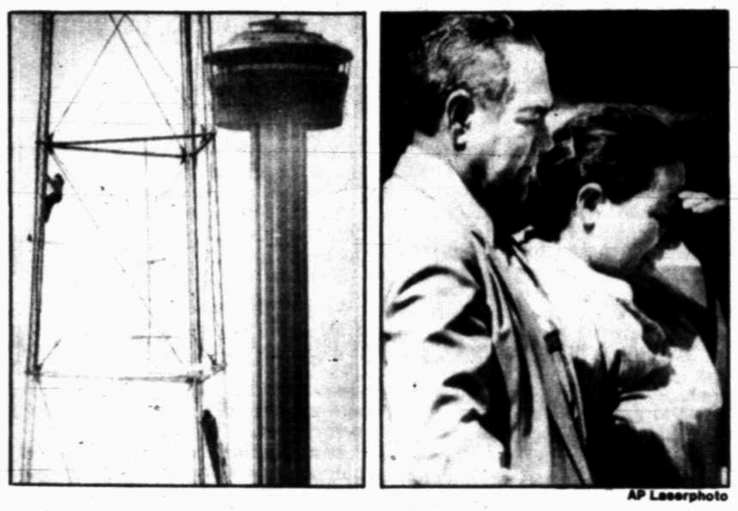

The 30-year-old woman climbed the tower adjacent to the San Antonio Express-News at 6 a.m. Tuesday, apparently after arguing with her common-law husband.

The husband, Mario Mendez, 39, sat in a police squad car at the scene as more than 150 people gathered to watch.

The turning point in the situation, Rendon said, was after the woman asked to have her 5-year-old son brought to the scene.

"When I mentioned it wasn't worth the kid watching her up there, that was the turning point," said Rendon, who perched on a fire truck ladder during the talks.

Rendon said he never thought Ms. Guajardo would jump. "She told me she wouldn't early in the negotiations."

A 50-year-old woman kept officials on edge for more than five hours as she threatened to jump off the KENS-TV tower in downtown San Antonio, left. Lupe Guajardo, right, climbed the tower after an argument with her common-law husband.

But her decision to climb down, he said, was delayed by heckling from onlookers.

"The only time she got hostile was when the public was screaming obscenities and making gestures," Rendon said.

The woman sat on a steel crossbeam for about an hour, swinging her feet and yelling at the crowd below.

'Good news' paper gets the bad news

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Huntsville Morning News threw a scare into its established rival, The Huntsville Item, but could not afford to keep losing enough money to stay in business, the Morning News' publisher says.

Officials of the 11-month-old Morning News announced Tuesday the paper would cease publication and sell most of its assets to Harte-Hanks Communications, which owns The Item.

Morning News publisher Gary Randazzo said the decision to shut down was reached at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

"We had a terrific impact on the market," Randazzo said. "Both papers were losing money. Our pockets just weren't as deep as Harte-Hanks' pockets."

Randazzo said the Morning News, which published its final editions Sunday, "won most of the major battles, but lost the war."

"We had most of the local advertisers," he said. "We had broken into the major chains. We had made a significant impact."

Randazzo said he believed 35 employees were working for the paper at the time of its closing.

Bob Hardy, the newspaper's chairman and chairman of Huntsville's First National Bank, said the original purpose of his paper was "to present a positive approach in the media to our community. The result of our publication not only affected our newspaper, but caused our competition to react most favorably to our philosophy."

Morning News spokesman James Chase said his paper's unaudited circulation was about 3,000 last week.

Item publisher Fritz Wirt said his paper's circulation was 7,000 on Sunday and had shown a slight increase from last year.

Wirt said he believed the last year was good for the Item, which has been published for 134 years.

"The competitive situation sharpened all of our individual and collective skills, resulting in a significantly improved Item," he said.

Mexican customs officials halt U.S. medical team's mercy mission

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — An annual mission of mercy into a remote area of Mexico by an American surgical team was halted by Mexican customs officials who would not allow the group's medical supplies into the country, expedition members said.

The team of 32 nurses, doctors and family members from Texas and Louisiana, who had made the annual expedition into southern Mexico for 15 years, was turned back at the U.S.-Mexico border in Matamoros across from Brownsville.

The caravan had driven 600 miles from Shreveport, La., and were scheduled to arrive Tuesday.

"It really stunned me," Dr. Charles Black told The Dallas Morning News. "I just couldn't imagine it happening."

Black, who has led the medical expedition every summer since 1969, said about 65 Mexican patients had been prepared for surgery and were awaiting the doctors' scheduled arrival in the remote town of Niltepec Tuesday.

"Can you imagine the disappointment of these patients who have suffered all their lives with cleft palates and club feet and other disfigurements?" said Black's wife, Mercedes. "The thing that hurts me most is that many of them spent money — money they don't have — traveling to the village for help.

The group, as in previous years, planned to spend four days driving the 2,000 miles to Niltepec, four days performing surgery and four days on the return trip. The Blacks, as usual, were driving their 1968-model Ford camper/mobile hospital with "La Esperanza" — Hope — painted across the back.

As in previous years, the group was paying its own way and using vacation time for the mission of mercy.

But after they were kept waiting for more than six hours at the border, the director of customs refused to allow the group's extensive medical supplies into the country.

"I explained to them that we had been doing this for 15 years, but the customs official replied, 'Laws change and people change,'" said Mrs. Black, who speaks Spanish and did most of the talking with border agents.

She said officials wouldn't budge even after she showed them the list of patients, pointing out that they were the ones who would suffer.

Texas pilot still able to make it over 'the hump'

ADDISON (AP) — Vernon Thorp has had experience flying over "the Hump" of the Himalayas, so he didn't figure he'd get hurt belly-flopping an airplane with crippled landing gear onto a runway at the Addison Airport.

"I didn't feel like I was in a dangerous situation today," Thorp said Tuesday as he and his crew got ready to move the slightly damaged Venture Mustang to a nearby hangar.

"I didn't figure I would hurt myself. I didn't get a scratch. When the plane stopped sliding, I just unbuckled my belt and climbed out, just like you'd get out of a car."

Thorp has 23,000 hours in the air over the last 38 years, including a stint as an Army Air Corp pilot flying cargo planes over "the Hump" of the Himalayas in World War II. Thus, the prospect of landing an airplane on its belly did not scare the pilot from La Feria, Texas.

"This really wasn't that bad," Thorp told the Dallas Morning News. "If someone paid for the airplane and paid me, I'd do it every day."

Airport officials said the airport's main runway was closed for landings about two hours while crews moved the damaged plane, a 2/3 scale replica of the single-engine Mustang P-51D fighter plane used in World War II.

The plane was production prototype of a kit that Venture Aviation of Addison will market later this year, said company president Phil Bachman.

Oil spill threatens student's graduation

KINGSVILLE (AP) — An oil spill which closed the Houston Ship Channel has posed a special problem for a senior at Texas A&I University.

Esteban Matute must take English 204 to graduate this summer, but he has been unable to register for the class because he is stranded aboard the Venezuelan cargo ship Carabobo.

The vessel is anchored off the Texas coast while workers clear oil spilled Saturday night by a Venezuelan tanker, Turpial. The tanker ran aground in the channel after apparently losing power as it came into dock at Shell Oil Co.'s facility, Coast Guard officers said.

The 24-year-old Matute was attempting to return to school by July 12 for registration in the class, which began Monday.

Disabled Polish athlete defects

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Polish athlete who captured gold and silver medals at the International Games for the Disabled walked up to a policeman in his dormitory and asked for asylum in the United States, authorities said.

Twenty-year-old Edward Siiwinski "feels good," said a friend. The athlete, who has only one leg, is living on Long Island in protective custody, Ronald Mahaffey, head of the FBI's Nassau County office said Tuesday.

Siiwinski sought asylum on June 30, the day after the games ended, but the request was kept confidential.

Reports of his defection were verified to The Associated Press on Tuesday by Mahaffey and Sgt. Dennis Holland of the Nassau County police.

"The wheels are in motion" to handle Siiwinski's request through the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Mahaffey said.

Mahaffey would not give any further information, adding he had advised the athlete not to speak to the press because "it may jeopardize his chances."

Nearly 2,000 athletes from more than 50 countries took part in the games on Long Island last month. Although they were boycotted by the Soviet Union, disabled athletes from the Soviet Bloc countries of Yugoslavia, East Germany, Hungary and Poland competed.

The games are held every four years in the same country that is playing host for the Olympic Games.

Siiwinski won a gold medal the 100-meter track event and a silver in the 400-meter event during the two weeks of competition, said Holland.

The dark-haired, mustachioed Siiwinski walked up to a Nassau police officer in a hallway of a Hofstra University dormitory, where the athletes were living, at around 11 a.m. on June 30, the day after the closing ceremonies.

Siiwinski said to the officer, "I am a Polish competitor requesting to defect to the United States," according to the officer.

Siiwinski was escorted to the Nassau command post set up on the campus during the competition and turned over to the FBI. Shortly after Siiwinski was placed in custody, his room was sealed off to protect his belongings.

The athlete's friend, who asked not to be identified, said none of Siiwinski's coaches or teammates "saw him do it."

Siiwinski is staying with American athletes he met at the games, the New York Daily News reported today.

Charles Sava, New York district director for the INS, would not comment on the case and refused to confirm or deny the defection bid.

"All asylum claims are by law confidential in order to protect the individual," he said.

Poles are in a special category of State Department policy, said Verne Jervis, a spokesman for the INS in Washington.

The policy states that no Poles are required to be returned to Poland against their will until Dec. 31, when the policy can be extended or reversed, Jervis said.

Tuna industry complains about import

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The domestic tuna industry has complained to the International Trade Commission that it is being driven out of business by the new eating habits of weight-conscious Americans, who now prefer their tuna packed in water instead of oil.

And most of the water-packed tuna comes from overseas suppliers because the duty is far less than for tuna packed in oil.

After studying four volumes of legal arguments and economic analysis, the ITC will decide July 25 on the complaint by the U.S. Tuna Foundation, the American Tuna Boat Association, three trade unions and C.H.B. Food Inc. The unions and fishing boat association are located on America's Pacific Coast, where the tuna catch is now starting to improve after having been devastated by the warm currents that followed "El Nino" in 1979.

In its petition for trade relief, the domestic industry asked that the tariff on imports of water-packed tuna be raised to the same level as tuna packed in oil-35 percent. Tariffs on water-packed tuna start at 6 percent and go up to 12.5 percent when imports hit a certain level, reached for 1984 last week.

"When the duties were first fixed," the domestic industry argued, "no tuna was packed in water. ... With the development and growth of the water-packed market, this tariff structure has had serious, albeit unintended, implications for the domestic market."

What makes matters worse, the domestic industry said, is that its promotions created the new market for the low-priced, water-packed tuna. As a result two-thirds of all the tuna sold in the country is packed in water compared to about 40 percent five years ago.

"Today, essentially all imports of canned tuna are water-packed," the domesttic industry said.

Most of it comes from four countries along Asia's Pacific rim — Thailand, the Philippines, Taiwan and Japan — which now hold 18 percent of the domestic market. Imports accounted for only 8 percent of the market in 1979. Imports have increased 129 percent since 1979.

Wastes shift to substandard dumps

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — "Probably quite a bit" of the toxic chemical wastes removed from illegal dumps under the federal "superfund" cleanup program has been shifted to other substandard dumps, where they are again leaching into the groundwater supply, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency cleanup program said Tuesday.

But the official, EPA Assistant Administrator Lee M. Thomas, said that the new commercial dump sites are the only ones available to store the tons of hazardous chemicals hauled from the superfund dumps, regarded as the nation's most dangerous toxic waste sites. And despite deficiencies, he said, the new storage sites are far superior to the unsupervised dumps where the chemicals once were kept.

The 30 commercially operated dumps for superfund wastes are among more than 1,500 major chemical storage sites that EPA has marked for stepped-up review to determine their compliance with federal safety standards. The reviews could take two years or more to complete, Thomas said, but the upgrading of substandard storage sites could be required long before then.

Because EPA has begun work at only about 350 superfund sites and completed only six cleanups, the amount of chemicals moved to substandard dumps is relatively small. But a safety review is needed to prevent storage problems later, when work begins at the 17,900 to 22,000 illegal chemical dumps that the EPA says eventually could require cleanups.

Under the major federal hazardous-waste law, the 1976 Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), the 30 commercial storage sites are the only ones in the nation certified to accept the highly toxic wastes moved out of superfund dumps.

"We have RCRA dumps that have groundwater contamination problems," Thomas said, but the dumps "present a totally different magnitude of risk" to groundwater supplies than the superfund sites.

Because the 30 dumps are among the country's largest repositories of chemical wastes, "the bigger issue is all the waste at these sites, not the piece we brought in under superfund."

The 1,500 waste disposal sites under stepped-up review include ordinary earth dumps as well as incinerators, injection wells, tanks and other storage devices. About 90 percent are owned by industries that use them for on-site storage of manufacturing wastes.

All 1,500 sites, including the commercial dumps receiving superfund wastes, were "grandfathered" for operation under the 1976 act until EPA safety regulations could be written and operating permits issued. Until the dumps could be certified as safe, operators have been required to monitor their own operations for leaks and contamination of nearby groundwater supplies.

Jackson helps heal wounds

Washington Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO — The Rev. Jesse Jackson went far toward a goal desperately sought by Democratic leaders: helping to heal the emotional breach between blacks and Jews.

"It was a hell of a speech," said Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs. "It was a combination of the evangelical and of the heart of this party. On Jewish-black issues, I thought it was very wholesome and excellent, and, as a Jew, I appreciated it."

He said that some of Jackson's previous statements "has caused me pain." But, he said, "I liked the emphasis tonight on the things that bind us, instead of the things that divide us, to stress those enormous areas of commonality."

Texas Rep. Mickey Leland, head of the Democratic party Black Caucus who has tried unsuccessfully to get Jackon to sit down to work out differences with Jewish leaders, called it ,"An incredibly great speech. We are unified."

Many of the Jewish delegates agreed.

New Yorker Bella Abzug, a former congresswoman, said, "He showed a lot of humility that was deeply felt. It was a first step toward a dialogue between the Jewish and black community.

"Beyond that, I think it was a very emotional and necessary step toward defeating Reagan in the fall. It was a unifying and very effective speech."

Connecticut Speaker of the House Irving Stolberg, called it, "a healing speech that remained true to his own beliefs." He called it a "start" easing the problem caused by his own statements, beginning with his "Hymie" remark earlier this year, and his slowness in renouncing anti-Jewish statement by Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan.

Some delegates said that Jackson still has a long way to go before the resentment of Jews disappears completely.

California Rep. Henry Waxman, one of Jackson's sharpest critics, called the speech a "conciliatory statement."

"He tried to heal some of the wounds," Waxman said. "But it was just one speech, and Jesse Jackson has given many, many, speeches that were troubling."

He said he wasn't convinced that Jackson had had a change of heart but welcomed his statement, saying, "Tonight it may indicate that he is coming around to listening to what we have been saying."

Florida Gov. Bob Graham was emotional in his praise of Jackson's speech and said its impact would help calm the fears of Jews and make it easier for Flordia to be considered a potential Mondale state in November.

"But it was not just a speech," Graham said. "It was an importnat time in the political life of America. Jesse Jackson's call tonight will help unify our party."

Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste, who has planned to explore a high-level task force to resolve Jewish-black tensions, called Jackson's speech "phenomnenal . . . extraordinary."

"His speech gives an opening for the healing and the reaching out to each other that we must begin," he said. "He was far more direct and helpful than I ever expected."

Jackson's speech prompted tears many times for both blacks and whites.

Ann Perkins, a white Baltimore delegate, said she cried repeatedly "because it was so wonderful about what he said that we should be together. That's not what our country is now. Reagan has led us to fighting and exploiting each other."

One of the most emotional scenes occurred in the Florida delegation, when State Chairman Charles Whitehead, who is white, and Mary Woods, who is black, sobbed and hugged each other in the emotion after Jackson's speech.

Woods began crying again as she recalled the emotion that led her to embrace Whitehead.

"Back in the days of the sit-ins I was shoved in the corner," she said."I was spat at. I had water hoses turned on me. I never thought I'd see a day like today. My heart is full. Thank God I was able to see it. I was able to be here at this moment of history, when a black man was running for president and speaking to all of America."

"And to top it all off, a woman is going to be nominated for vice president," Woods said. "We've got the desire and the unity. We're going forward now."

Labor pleased with campaign role

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Despite the criticism of its early endorsement of Walter F. Mondale last October, organized labor feels vindicated by the apparent success of its new role in choosing a presidential nominee, and labor leaders see it as a pattern for the future.

Labor is represented in record numbers at the Democratic National Convention and promises a bigger effort than ever before in its history this fall. Labor leaders said they will pour manpower and resources into massive voter registration and get-out-the-vote drives in the major industrial states of the East and Midwest.

Those states will be crucial to the Democratic nominee if he is to wrest the White House from President Reagan. But the union activity could be a mixed blessing for Mondale, who will have to strike a balance of appealing to rank-and-file union members without appearing beholden to their leaders.

Labor support was a major plus for Mondale during the series of primaries and caucuses last winter and spring. He lost only two important industrial states, Indiana and Ohio.

"Labor rescued him from a situation they helped create," said a Washington-based political consultant. "The perception that he was a candidate of the labor bosses was a principal reason voters gave for casting ballots against him."

AND ORGANIZED labor as an institution, according to various public opinion surveys, remains below even big business and government in popularity.

Essentially, however, what people do not like are labor leaders, not unions themselves. So Mondale faces the difficult task of identifying with the causes of labor but at the same time keeping his distance from labor leaders.

"What Mondale must do," the political consultant said, "is avoid having labor leaders say he is their guy. That even offends rank-and-file members."

Despite Mondale's ties to labor, it is questionable how much Reagan can or will attempt to exploit those ties this fall, assuming the former vice president is his opponent.

IN 1980, more than 40 percent of the labor vote went to Reagan, and the president will not want to alienate that constituency this year.

Lyn Nofziger, a Reagan campaign adviser who is in San Francisco to monitor the Democrats' gathering, said the president unquestionably would attack Mondale for ties to labor leaders but would not try to make labor per se a major issue.

But even though Nofziger said polls show Reagan continuing to do "very well" among blue collar voters, union leaders are convinced that the Reagan appeal of four years ago has been deeply eroded by issues ranging from appointments of conservatives to the National Labor Relations Board to cuts in job-training and job-producing government programs.

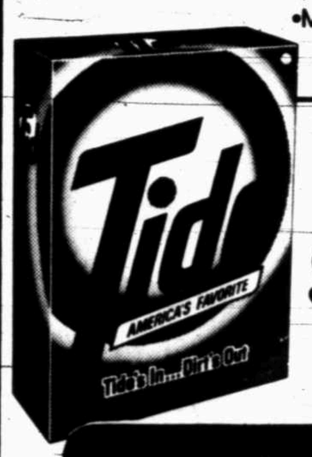

The early endorsement of Mondale by the AFL-CIO and the National Education Association was a major issue early in the primary season that cost him some support. However, there is no question that labor played the major role in Mondale's ultimate success.

Lebanese artists labor under 'psychological curfew'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Nearly a decade of relentless warfare has clamped a "psychological curfew" — as one expert puts it — on Lebanon's art, often referred to as the soul of the nation's society.

"Art today reflects a mood of rejection and refusal," said George Zeenny, an art critic. "The style is evasive...of a reality you can't accept."

Zeenny is the owner of the only art gallery still open in west Beirut, the predominantly Moslem sector.

"The artists are suffering from a psychological curfew, if you will, a regression to the past using themes like nature," he added in an interview.

Zeenny said a few artists have tried to depict the war in their work.

"But the impact is feeble. They use the facile way of vivid colors, shattered people, faces with no identity."

He pointed to a large painting on the gallery wall by Krikor Norikian done in bold black, blue and red strokes and showing children, their faces obscured except for frowning mouths.

Other critics and artists interviewed had similar pessimistic views of Lebanon's once-thriving art world.

Joseph Tarrab, art critic for the French-language newspaper L'Orient-Le-Jour of Beirut, said most serious artists have left Lebanon. Those remaining, he added, have shown little growth or advancement.

"Most young artists, instead of developing their own style or vision, have fled from the problem to dreamlike, soothing landscapes."

In some ways they are giving the public what it wants, Tarrab added.

"The public doesn't want challenging works," he said. "They want nostalgia."

Artists are handicapped too, he said, "because now their studios are destroyed or burned out."

There used to be 10 art galleries doing a booming business in Beirut, which was known as one of the best art centers in the Middle East. Now almost no artist will stage a show for fear that it might offend one political or religious faction or another, and art sales have virtually dried up.

One critic, who asked not to be named because of the factional hostilities, said even landscapes have not escaped the politics of war.

"Even the land has become confessional," he said. "There has been a rise in provincialism and sectarian art."

According to Zeenny, the war has produced "no substantial work in the sense of something the masses identify with, a work that will be the common denominator like (Pablo Piccasso's) 'Guernica.'"

Foreigners' graves hidden from view of Moslem faithful

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Hidden from public view behind an eight-foot, white-washed wall and locked gate here is a cemetery for non-Moslem foreigners, with grave markers that tell little about those whose remains rest in the sun-baked desert.

"Unknown Englishman," or "American from Aramco," or "Chinese" or simply "Unknown," some of the markers read.

But then there's the inscription on the grave of a Greek merchant: "Here in a foreign country far from his native land (he) slumbers quietly now."

The cemetery remains Saudi Arabia's only burial ground for non-Moslems — save for a private burial plot for Aramco employees in Dhahran.

No sign identifies the cemetery in this nation which is the guardian of Mecca, Islam's most holy place. Inside the wall is a sun-baked plot of perhaps an acre. Most of the markers are laid flat.

The history of the cemetery is told somewhat in the history of its name. The first written record of the graveyard refers to it as the Christian Cemetery, and when this designation became inappropriate with the burial of several European Jews, it became known as the European Cemetery. This, too, became inaccurate with the interment of Asians, then Americans, Africans, South Americans and others.

The first burial plot set aside for non-Moslems in the kingdom was established around 1820, when Mohamed Ali Pasha, during the Egyptian occupation of Arabia, is believed to have granted a small plot of desert to the small Christian community of Jidda to bury its dead.

Prior to that the Christians "had been obliged to bury their dead at sea, or in sandbanks that intersect the harbour," the British consul in Jidda wrote in the mid-1800s.

By 1860 the original wall of the tiny graveyard was in ruins and the first signs of the desecration that have plagued the cemetery through the years was beginning to show. The 20-by-50-foot plot was also becoming quite full, as was discovered when the grave of an English sea captain could not be dug without disturbing other remains. Most of the graves in those early years were for sailors whose ships docked at the port.

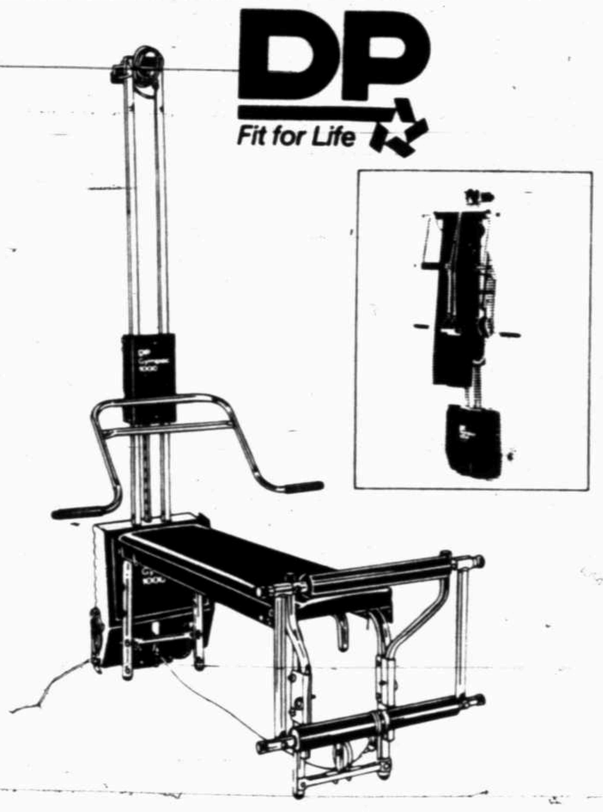

The oldest remaining tombstone now in the cemetery is dated 1884, although the present cemetery is believed to have been used as early as 1860 and has survived.

Vandals caused considerable damage in 1874-75 and again in 1879. The burial in 1881 of the wife of the Austrian consul caused the deplorable condition of the cemetery to come to light. The funeral was widely attended by Christians and Moslems. And it was a Moslem interpreter for the British Consulate, appalled at the state of the burial ground, who launched a one-man campaign of restoration, collecting donations from Christians, Jews and Moslems.

Progress threatens sites along Athens' Sacred Way

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Following objections from scholars, Athens' city planners have modified a plan to build a modern highway along the Sacred Way, the road once traveled by ancient pilgrims to a fertility festival known as the Eleusinian Mysteries.

But the outraged scholars who fought a three-month battle with the Socialist government contend the modifications are not enough.

They claim that unique monuments from the 5th century B.C. "Golden Age" of Athens may disappear during five years of construction work along the Sacred Way, known since antiquity to Greeks as the Iera Odos.

The government had planned to turn the existing two-lane road that follows the Sacred Way into a highway linking two ring roads that would route traffic away from Athens' congested center.

"Under the revised scheme, the Sacred Way will carry heavy traffic for only two years until new flyovers are built, and no deep digging will be done without the archaeologists' approval," Public Works Minister Akis Tsochatzopoulos said in announcing the compromise.

The Sacred Way, once lined with the tombs of rich Athenian families and shrines to gods and heroes, has never been fully excavated.

"I'm afraid that a site as important as Rome's Appian Way is being vandalized in the name of progress," Solon Kydoniatis, a professor of architecture at Athens Polytechnic University, said in an interview.

The 14-mile Sacred Way, now marked by boundary stones, ran west from the Acropolis to Eleusis, where annual fertility rites, in which participants were sworn to secrecy, took place in spring.

When Pausanias, a traveler who wrote an early guidebook to Greece, was touring around Athens in the 2nd century A.D., he noted more than 20 imposing altars, memorials and sanctuaries along the Sacred Way.

They ranged from statues of Athena, the patron goddess of the ancient city to a memorial erected by a deserter from Alexander the Great's army to his wife.

Government officials say widening the central four-mile section of the road into a four-lane avenue with broad sidewalks will not affect the antiquities buried underneath.

But the archaeologists disagree.

"I'm afraid the government's statements leave lots of potential loopholes. The whole length of the road should be carefully excavated," Kydoniatis said.

Orwellian volume to be published in facsimile edition

LONDON (AP) — Midway through George Orwell's year, the surviving manuscript pages of "Nineteen Eighty-Four" have been published in facsimile, giving an inside glimpse into the creation of a masterpiece.

Even at $34, a dozen times the price of the paperback in London's bookstores, the handsome volume will delight Orwell buffs and teach today's novelists a lot about precise, economical and concentrated writing.

"What you see is the physical act of creation, the rewriting, improving, tightening. It enables you to watch a great creative mind at work," said Tom Rosenthal, chairman of Secker and Warburg, the original publisher of "Nineteen Eighty-Four" and producer of the manuscript edition.

Orwell threw away most of his drafts, and only 44 percent of the pages of the original manuscript survived. But they are sufficient to demonstrate that even as tuberculosis was slowly killing him, Orwell remained a master craftsman.

The book was written in the late 1940s, the formative years of the Cold War and a period of ideological disarray. But as the manuscript shows, passing political fancies did not deflect Orwell from his nightmare vision. Once he had mapped it out he stuck to his imagined future of dehumanizing superpower rivalry, of thought control, of history rewritten to suit political dogma, of language debased and love outlawed.

Big Brother, Newspeak and the Thought Police, images which would become a part of the English language, are in the earliest drafts of "Nineteen Eighty-Four."

The facsimiles are mostly from a typewritten third draft, edited with a sure, precise hand that belies Orwell's worsening health. Orwell dreaded typing because it meant having to sit up. Much of the editing was done lying in bed in his cottage on the Scottish island of Jura. Despite his agony, he typed the entire final draft in less than a month.

Sometimes entire passages are crossed out and rewritten by hand. The opening sequence with its famous mention of clocks striking 13 is pared. A dialogue with a cockney hall porter is deleted, apparently too incongruously human for the bleak tone Orwell was trying to set.

"It is impossible to remain unmoved by the sense of urgency with which Orwell wrote and revised to make what he said taut and effective," commented Peter Davison, a University of Kent literature professor who edited the facsimile edition.

Orwell cut out a love scene between his hero, Winston Smith, and his illicit lover Julia, to tighten the narrative. A sickening description of a lynching also came out. Orwell, surmises Davison, may have feared he was overwriting.

In choosing a title, the manuscripts show, Orwell first picked 1980, then crossed the 0 out and wrote 2, and finally settled for 1984.

"In all probability," Davison wrote in the Daily Telegraph, "1980 became 1982, and then 1984, simply to keep pace with the time it was taking the slowly-dying Orwell to complete his work."

Value of child's print in question

By DOUG ESSER

SEATTLE (AP) — Parents and their youngsters are lining up at more than 60 offices to take advantage of the nation's first statewide children's identification program.

However, spokesmen for the FBI and a missing-child agency say fingerprints are of questionable value in finding missing children.

Parents nationwide are using fingerprinting programs offered by some police departments, school systems and private agencies because of fears that their children might be abducted.

David Schoch, spokesman for Childfind Inc., a national information clearing house based in New York City, said he knows of no missing child who has been located or identified through fingerprints in the past four years.

FBI spokesman Lane Bonner at FBI headquarters in Washington said the only case he knew of in which fingerprints helped establish identity was that of a child abducted as an infant and found several years later.

MORE IMPORTANT than fingerprinting is keeping recent photographs and other information about physical characteristics such as scars, birthmarks, height and weight, hair and eye color, Schoch said.

But, both Schoch and Bonner agreed, if fingerprinting helps one family, it's worth all the smudged fingers.

Earlier this month, Washington began its child identification program, using the 57 state driver's license offices and five mobile offices. For $3 parents can have a child photographed and fingerprinted at the same place they get their driver's license.

Parents are mailed an identification card, similar to their plastic driver's license, and a copy remains with the state. Parents, however, may keep the fingerprints themselves or skip the fingerprint portion of the identification, said Chuck Stansbury, assistant director of driver services.

If the child is ever listed as missing, parents can release the information only for the purpose of searching for the child. The information also can be fed to the Childfind network or law enforcement computers if the parents agree.

As of Tuesday, parents of 956 children were issued identification cards, according to Louis Snyder, an official in the state licensing department.

Child fingerprinting has been "hot" for only a couple of years, said Schoch of Childfind, a 4-year-old organization with 200 Friends of Childfind groups nationally.

FORTY PERCENT of the children registered with Childfind (for a $60 fee) have been located, Schoch said. In four years the organization has found 1,144 children, he said.

"Because they are fairly new, we have never used fingerprints to locate a child," he said.

Parents use fingerprinting programs because they are afraid not to.

"You could always kick yourself later," Schoch said. "What fingerprints are most effective at is identifying dead bodies. It's better to have an end to a story than be wondering for the rest of your life...

"The goal is to prevent your child from ever being taken."

Hundreds of unidentified children are buried each year in the United States, Schoch said. Childfind estimates that parents illegally abduct 100,000 children a year and that strangers abduct an additional 8,000 a year.

THE ESTIMATES are not supported by statistics, because there are no statistics, no studies or surveys, Schoch said. Bonner said the only way to find the true number of unknown dead would be to question every coroner in the country.

In 1983, Bonner said, 189,000 missing person reports were filed with the computerized National Crime Information Center. And 182,000 of those were removed because people were found.

"Most missing persons are located," the FBI spokesman said. "Many are runaways. Many are not missing... A 15-year-old is reported missing in Chicago. She's picked up in Seattle. It turns out she ran away because she was being sexually molested by her stepfather..."

Nonetheless, the FBI, which was empowered by the 1982 Missing Child Act to help search for missing children through its computers, endorses and supports voluntary fingerprinting.

Parents who send the FBI a set of 10 inked and rolled fingerprints on an acceptable card (available through the Government Printing Office) can have them added to the FBI's civil file which, Bonner said, is not searched in criminal cases. The FBI has 165 million fingerprints on file.

"WE RECOMMEND parents keep the fingerprints and updated photos along with other household papers," he said.

Gov. John Spellman said the purpose of the state fingerprinting program was to combat "the heartbreak and tragedy of missing children."

Bill signed to cut aid for states with legal drinking age under 21

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, who had opposed federal pressure to raise the legal drinking age as an infringement on states' rights, signed a law Tuesday that will withhold federal highway funds from states that fail to set a minimum drinking age of 21.

"This problem is bigger than the individual states," Reagan told members of Congress and more than 100 supporters in a White House Rose Garden ceremony. "It's a grave national problem, and it touches all our lives. With the problem so clear-cut and the proven solution at hand, we have no misgiving about this judicious use of the federal power."

The new law will withhold 5 percent of federal highway funds in fiscal 1987, and an additional 10 percent in fiscal 1988, from states that fail to raise their legal drinking age to 21.

In an acknowledgement of the election-year momentum that swiftly propelled the legislation through Congress, Reagan said the bill "reflects the will of the American people."

He added: "We know that drinking plus driving spell death and disaster. We know that people in the 18-to-20 age group are more likely to be in alcohol-related accidents than those in any other age group....We all know that there is one simple measure that will save thousands of young lives."

Each of the 23 states that already have raised the minimum age to 21 have shown a "significant drop" in teenage driving deaths, Reagan said.

The Presidential Commission on Drunk Driving, appointed by Reagan in 1982, recommended last December that highway funds be withheld to force states to adopt a uniform national drinking age. But the president preferred that the states determine the standard for themselves, according to White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The commission found that drunk driving costs the nation $21 billion a year and that alcohol-related automobile accidents are the leading cause of death for Americans aged 16 to 24.

Candy Lightner, president of Mothers Against Drunk Driving and a major force in the passage of the legislation, stood next to Reagan for the signing ceremony.

Lightner later cited her home state of Texas as an example of how the power of the federal purse strings could evaporate opposition in holdout states. Gov. Mark White and the state Legislature originally had staunchly opposed a legal drinking age higher than the current 19, she recalled.

Military court postpones trial of four Solidarity Union advisers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A military court today postponed the trial of four prominent Solidarity advisers pending action by Poland's Parliament on a proposed amnesty for political prisoners.

A spokesman for the Communist government confirmed that the three-member military judicial panel had postponed the highly publicized trial, which began Friday. But authorities did not say whether the defendants would be included under the proposed amnesty, which the Sejm, Poland's Parliament, is expected to approve at a special session Saturday.

"The judge said that in connection with PRON's appeal to the Sejm, the court had decided to postpone the trial and wait for its decision," spokesman Zbigniew Augustynowicz said.

PRON, the Polish initials for a public opinion group with strong ties to the government, urged Parliament on Monday to adopt a "broad amnesty" for political prisoners.

TWO PARLIAMENT commissions worked today on a draft amnesty bill, according to Jerzy Raczkowski, director of the parliament press office.

Bronislaw Geremek, a top adviser to the now-outlawed Solidarity union who was in the courtroom, told reporters outside that the postponement was announced only five minutes after the day's session began. Western correspondents were not allowed into the trial.

The four defendants, including prominent opposition intellectuals Jacek Kuron and Adam Michnik, are accused of plotting to overthrow Poland's socialist system by force.

The four were leaders of the workers' rights group, the Committee for Social Self-Defense, known as KOR, and were Solidarity advisers in 1980-81.

Kuron's son, Maciej, told reporters that the defendants met with family members after the postponement and said they were uncertain about whether they would be included in an amnesty.

Maciej Kuron said Michnik, who stated before the trial began he would not accept an amnesty because it would mean he was guilty, was adamant that he still wanted an aquittal.

THE COURT HAD been scheduled to hear testimony today from Jacek Kuron, a 50-year-old former Communist Party member who helped bridge the gap between Poland's intellectuals and its workers leading to the birth of Solidarity in August 1980.

One Solidarity source, who asked not to be identified, said he was certain that if Kuron had testified today "there would have been no amnesty for KOR."

The other two defendants are Henryk Wujec and Zbigniew Romaszewski. All except Romaszewski have been jailed since the Dec. 13, 1981, imposition of martial law that suppressed Solidarity.

The government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski made intensive efforts to avoid staging the trial, offering the four freedom in return for pledges to abstain from political activity or accept temporary exile. All rejected the offer.

The trial finally was scheduled after Kuron went on a hunger strike to demand that either a trial be held or the defendants set free without conditions. A defense lawyer who briefed reporters after Friday's court session said: "The authorities still don't know how to treat this trial... They don't know whether it should be a big political event or just pass unnoticed."

ALSO DETAINED by the government are seven former leaders of Solidarity, the first independent trade union in the Soviet bloc.

Western nations have set release of the four KOR defendants and the seven Solidarity leaders as a condition for lifting U.S.-led sanctions imposed in response to martial law.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Tuesday that the final shape of the bill had not been determined and that he did not know whether it would include all of Poland's political prisoners, which he said numbered 660.

Urban said authorities were prepared to grant an amnesty to their opponents because of a "decline in the influence of enemies of the system" in Poland.

The amnesty would coincide with national celebrations on Sunday marking the 40th anniversary of the proclamation of Communist rule in Poland.

Soviets, U.S. to upgrade 'hotline'

Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan announced Tuesday that the United States and Soviet Union have agreed to enhance the technical capabilities of the 21-year-old Washington-Moscow "hotline," an accord that he hailed as "modest but positive step" toward reducing the risk that an accident or misunderstanding could lead to nuclear war.

"I see this agreement as both an appropriate technical improvement to the hotline, which has served both our governments well for over 20 years, and as a good example of how we can, working together, find approaches which can move us towards a reduction in the risks of war," Reagan said in a written statement.

Administration officials, eager to capitalize on any indication of a thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations during an election year, chose to issue the announcement under Reagan's name rather than from the Department of State, where the accord was initialed with champagne toasts earlier in the day by Acting Secretary of State Kenneth W. Dam and Soviet Charge d'Affaires Victor F. Isakov.

The agreement was reached after four negotiating sessions that stretched over a year and were carried out amid unusual secrecy. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration had withheld details of the negotiations because "the Soviets preferred it that way."

The pact, the second major technical improvement to the hotline since its establishment in 1963, will add a facsimile transmission capability to the current teleprinter, making it possible to exchange messages far more rapidly and to send graphic material such as maps and charts.

For example, the new system will send a two-page document between the two capitals in less than two minutes, compared to the six minutes now required. The new equipment is expected to take 18 to 24 months to install.

A senior administration official, who briefed reporters on the condition that he not be identified, called the agreement "a good beginning" to the process of "confidence building" between the two countries. He described it as "a step in arms control."

Nonetheless, he added that administration officials "don't want to exaggerate its significance. Our position is: We want to make progress on these issues. We are open to further confidence-building measures."

The hotline pact was the first formal U.S.-Soviet agreement of any kind since the Soviets broke off talks on nuclear arms reductions last year. In recent weeks, however, there have been signs of a slight thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations. U.S. officials say the Kremlin appears to have concluded that Reagan is likely to win re-election and that it is in Moscow's interest to reopen negotiations in several areas, including space weapons and cultural, education and scientific exchanges.

Some arms control specialists fear that by focusing domestic political attention on the diplomatic openings, the administration could endanger the prospects of real negotiating progress.

The agreement initialed Tuesday stems from Reagan's proposal in May 1983, to make four improvements in direct communications links with the Soviet Union: the addition of a high-speed facsimile capability to the hotline; establishment of a joint military communications link; establishment of high-speed data links between each government and its embassy in the other's capital; and coordination in handling instances of international nuclealladministration official said that while there have been no moves toward improving military and embassy communications, the Soviets have expressed a desire to discuss methods of coping with nuclear terrorists.

The hotline was established in June 1963, and updated eight years later with the addition of two satellite circuits. The system will now consist of three circuits (two satellite and one wire telegraph), one earth station in each country for each satellite circuit, and terminals in each country linked to the three circuits and equipped with teleprinter and facsimile equipment.

Ban on Salvadoran aid lifted

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

BONN, West Germany — The West German government lifted a five-year ban on aid to El Salvador Tuesday and said it would provide $18 million in financial and technical assistance to the strife-torn country.

The announcement came after talks between Chancellor Helmut Kohl and El Salvador's President Jose Napoleon Duarte, who is visiting West Germany on the first leg of a tour through Europe to solicit support for his government.

West German officials said the Bonn government decided to resume development aid to El Salvador because murders of civilians carried out by right-wing death squads have lessened since Duarte's election in May. The freeze on assistance was imposed in 1979 by the previous Social Democratic-led government to protest human rights violations in El Salvador.

During their meeting Tuesday, Kohl and Duarte discussed plans for a conference of foreign ministers from Central American and European Community states to be held this September in Costa Rica. The conference, proposed by the West Germans, is intended to bolster support for the Contadora peace initiative being promoted by Panama, Venezuela, Mexico and Colombia. The group is named for the Panamanian island Contadora where the four nations first met to draft a Central American peace plan.

El Salvador's foreign minister, Jorge Eduardo Tenorio, who is accompanying Duarte, said he would participate in the conference and that his country "places great hopes on the initiative now taking shape for closer cooperation between Central America and the European Community."

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who initiated the idea of a ministerial meeting between European and Central American governments, underscored the benefits of partnerships between regional blocs in the West and said that such groupings "are an especially effective means of preserving the independence of small and medium-sized states."

European countries, led by West Germany, have showed growing interest in finding a peaceful solution to the Central America conflict. The European countries have distanced themselves from the Reagan administration by stressing that the roots of regional warfare lie more with economic and social inequalities than Soviet or Cuban expansionism.

The Europeans have also expresed alarm about the dangers of Latin Amerian debt burdens and the political repercussions for democracies in the area.

Crash reveals safety of nuclear transport

LONDON (AP) — Officials intent on easing public fears over the transport of nuclear waste spent $2 million to smash an unmanned train into a steel container at 100 mph.

The result was a spectacular crash, a shattered train, and an inch-wide, nine-inch-long gash in the container.

"This ought to satisfy our critics. The pressure in the container has been maintained and in fact there is less damage than we expected," Sir Walter Marshall, Britain's electric power chief, said Tuesday.

"My wife burst into tears and said how sorry she was to see such a fine locomotive go that way," he said.

But Pete Wilkinson, a spokesman for Greenpeace, an environmental group, called the exercise a "desperate attempt by the nuclear authorities to rekindle flagging public confidence in the industry."

The crash was delayed seven minutes when six anti-nuclear protesters burst through police cordons on a hillside above the site and set up a protest banner in a wheat field.

There has been a series of news stories in recent months about nuclear plant leaks, a high incidence of cancer near plants and waste outlets, and fears about accidents involving the trains that carry nuclear waste around the country.

To demonstrate the trains' safety, the Central Electricity Generating Board filled a 48-ton steel container with harmless "simulated radioactive material," attached it to a rail flatcar, and rammed it with a speeding 2,500-horsepower locomotive.

The 140-ton locomotive, coupled to three 35-ton cars, thundered along an eight-mile test track outside Melton Mowbray in the Quorn fox-hunting country.

Try to be nice

From time to time we get this uneasy feeling about being so harsh on the poor Soviets. It just seems they're so easy to criticize and the criticisms typically turn out to be justified.

So every now and then we decide to lay off for awhile to give them a chance to prove we were wrong. Typically what happens during those times is we're astoundingly disappointed. For example, along has come Natural History magazine which in a recent edition blamed the Soviets for haze in the Arctic.

Said the magazine: "Arctic haze is the result of industrial pollution and ... extends from Alaska eastward at least to Norway, or roughly half the circumference of the Arctic, and probably farther. The haze ranges from ground level to at least 18,000 feet and sometimes up to the top of the troposphere (25,000 feet), and ... can be quite dense. We believe it may have numerous environmental effects, including meteorological changes and the pollution of pack ice with heavy metals and organic chemicals."

The magazine goes on to note that the arctic haze probably went unobserved for a number of years, but that in the 1940s when the United States began a series of Alaskan Arctic weather-reconnaissance flights that lasted into the early 1960s, the haze was obvious.

For those who undoubtedly are saying to themselves, "Well, the United States pollutes, too," here's what the magazine says: "The major source of the pollutants in arctic haze is the Soviet Union. After the Soviet Union, Europe and the United Kingdom are the next largest sources. North America, by contrast, contributes very little pollution to the Arctic, primarily because of airflow patterns and location."

What can we say? We really tried to be nice. The Soviets just need to clean up their act in more ways than one!

Something to repeat

Among the quotable quotations of recent days were comments about politics and international affairs.

A member of the Democratic party took a somehat dim view of Democratic presidential hopeful Walter Mondale's circus-like approach to picking a vice presidential candidate. None other than Rep. Tony Coelho of California, chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, referred to the Mondale selective method as follows: "The cattle show of the last month was disastrous."

President Reagan gave an address in Decatur, Ala., in which he extolled the United States of America as the land of the free. Said our president:

"No one immigrates to Cuba or jumps over the wall into East Berlin or seeks refuge in the Soviet Union."

Let us hope this thought gets across to the Jesse Jacksons and others who view dictator Fidel Castro and his ilk as humanitarians.

Base it on security

The emphasis at the U.S. State Department briefing last week was on the importance of Greece as an ally rather than on the provocative rudeness of its prime minister, Andreas Papandreou.

That was appropriate.

The common values shared by Washington and Athens and the crucial role within the Atlantic alliance that Greece plays overshadow the outrageous rhetoric that has characterized Papandreou's public life.

This recognition of Greece's real importance to America and the West had something of a hollow ring to it, spoken as it was against a background of U.S. actions that appear as counterproductive as Papandreou's own cheap-shot anti-Americanism.

The State Department seemed to be confirming that the United States has decided to veto the transfer of surplus F-5 fighters to Greece.

The United States seems determined once again to try to use arms as if they were favors — showered on the compliant, denied the abrasive — rather than instruments of international security.

It does not work, as Congress learned when it embargoed arms for Turkey to try to tame the Turkish occupation of northern Cyprus.

Turkish policy remains unchanged, but Turkey's military vitality, essential to the Western alliance, has not yet recovered from that ill-considered action.

U.S. officials are irritated by more than Papandreou's words, his flirtations with Moscow, his obstructionism within the alliance.

"Serious concerns" about the release of a suspected terrorist by Greek authorities were expressed recently, and some U.S. officials have said that there is an "apparent lack of concern" about terrorism on the part of the Greek government.

Independent judgment of this controversy is hard to come by because of the secrecy surrounding the case, further confused by suggestions that perhaps the Central Intelligence Agency itself overstepped the bounds of propriety.

None of this justifies converting the surplus F-5 planes into an instrument of discipline or coercion.

Indeed, if President Reagan really thinks of the planes as a prize for good behavior, it is bewildering to hear hints that the planes being denied Greece will go to Turkey — the nation that remains defiant of all efforts, including American efforts, to negotiate a settlement of the Cyprus crisis.

To make matters worse, the crude handling of the F-5 affair has brought accusations from Athens of U.S. interference in domestic Greek affairs, all of which could embarrass the implementation of the new agreement to maintain the important U.S. bases in Greece.

The destination of the surplus F-5 planes should be decided on the basis of bolstering world security, and that alone.

Paraguay shielding Nazi killer

WASHINGTON — There is nothing that produces as much exhilaration and all-around gratification for me as tracking down a notorious war criminal and bringing him to justice.

Jack Anderson

Several years ago, I found Adolf Cukers, a brutal Nazi overlord who had butchered thousands of Jews in Latvia. He was living quietly on a lakeshore in the Brazilian countryside.

Not long after I confronted him there and revealed his whereabouts to the world, his body was found in the truck of a car, with a note pinned to his jacket. The note said simply, "The Committee that Never Forgets."

But I failed to find the most notorious of the surviving Nazi war criminals. The real object of my search was Dr. Josef Mengele, the "Angel of Death," who consigned an estimated 2 million Jews to the gas chambers or the lingering horror of quack medical experiments at Auschwitz during World War II.

Over the years, I have continued the search. I have spoken to witnesses who have seen him. One witness met him at the home of a Nazi sympathizer in Venezuela. Another encountered Mengele at a ski resort in Switzerland. Still another saw him in the south of France.

Apparently, he has traveled under various identities, using forged passports. His favorite alias, I'm told, is "Gregory" or "Gregorovich." His luxurious lifestyle is financed by members of his family who live in the Bavarian town of Gunzburg.

Recently, I sent my associate Lucette Lagnado to Israel to seek out the surviving victims. They remember Mengele from Auschwitz as an exquisitely handsome, soft-spoken man who loved to play German ballads on an old-fashioned, hand-cranked phonograph.

According to reliable sources, he has not lost his good looks, and his manners are still polished. He is now in his 70s.

Meanwhile, he remains the world's most wanted fugitive, sought by at least three governments and various private groups. My sources believe he's under the protection of Paraguay's dictator, Alfredo Stroessner. At one point, a CIA document pinpointed his hideout as the southern Paraguayan city of Encarnacion, just across the Parana River from Argentina.

But I'm told he never stays long in one spot. He reportedly has holed up for brief periods with devout Mennonites in a Paraguayan village called Philadelphia and with fellow expatriates in a Nazi colony called Colonia Dignidad in Chile.

He may now be in a military zone, protected by a small army of mercenaries. The former head of the Israeli secret service, Issar Harel, told Ms. Lagnado that in his opinion, Mengele's security system is so strong it would take a combat brigade to penetrate it.

For years, Mengele lived openly in Buenos Aires — his name in the telephone book — under the wing of Argentine President Juan Peron. In 1959, West Germany asked for Mengele's extradition. The Argentines stalled, claiming their investigation "disclosed no record" of Mengele's presence. The Germans provided more specifics, and renewed their extradition request in January 1960.

But because there was no extradition treaty between Argentina and Germany, the case had to be submitted to the Argentine solicitor general. The foreign ministry didn't do this until June 1960. By then, it was too late.

A month earlier, Israeli agents had kidnapped Adolf Eichmann, another Nazi war criminal, on the streets of Buenos Aires. Not wishing to risk similar "extradition" to Israel, Mengele skipped to Paraguay.

The Paraguayans' official line, then and now, is that they don't know where Mengele is. Only a few weeks ago, they told me they'd be happy to arrest Mengele if I'd tell them exactly where to find him. Some day I may oblige.

Footnote: In a future column, I'll tell you about Mengele's U.S. connection.

POLITICAL PIPELINE: The Republicans quietly sounded out Utah's Gov. Scott Matheson about heading a "Democrats for Reagan" movement. The conservative Democratic governor said he couldn't abandon the party that had supported him all his career. He'll back Walter Mondale for president.

— The perils of San Francisco don't scare some members of Congress. Among the House members who voted against an additional $2 million for security arrangements at the two political conventions were 13 delegates to the Democratic extravaganza. These fearless members were Reps. Berkley Bedell, Iowa; William Boner, Tenn.; Ralph Hall, Texas; Andy Jacobs, Ind.; Marcy Kaptur, Ind.; Jim Weaver, Ore.; Fenand St. Germain, R.I.; Robin Tallon, S.C.; Jack Hightower, Texas; Nick Joe Rahall, W.Va.; Butler Derrick, S.C.; Pat Williams, Mont.; and Glenn Anderson, Calif.

— One convention souvenir the Democratic National Committee declined to put its official seal of approval on was a hand-carved donkey pulling a little cart. A Tennessee congressman several months ago asked the committee to approve mass production of such a trinket by one of his constituents, but in vain.

— Walter Mondale's finance director, Tim Finchem, is wasting no time. He has invited 200 Democratic fat cats to a private video presentation tomorrow (July 19) to launch a money-raising effort called "Fund for a Democratic Victory."

German strike contains message

A strike by German metalworkers has idled more than 400,000 in that country's auto industry. It also has revealed the profound change in the German work ethic in recent years.

Anthony Harrigan

The union objective in the strike is to cut the work week from 40 hours to 35, while raising wages. Union leaders say that the 35-hour work week will compel employers to hire people now out of work in Germany.

There are lessons in this strike for the people of the United States. First of all, the German union leaders reveal their poor understanding of economics. If the work week is cut, the automakers, for exzmple, will be more eager than ever to introduce labor-saving equipment, including robots. They will have to do so for otherwise, their vehicles won't be competitive on the world market that is so important to them.

The German automobile industry won't be the only industry to suffer. Germany's traditional strength has been in heavy machinery of all types. Much of this equipment is designed for sale overseas. Every item in the German inventory would be adversely affected by the makework scheme advanced by the metalworkers union.

The strike is symptomatic of underlying change in the Federal Republic of Germany. In the 1950s and 1960s, West Germany underwent what was described as an "Economic Miracle." The country rose from the ashes of war to regain its place as Europe's leading industrial power. This miracle was the result of reliance on free market economics and the willingness of Germans to work hard.

The traditional German work ethic has undergone serious erosion since those days. Many Germans imagine that their postwar successes guarantee them permanent prosperity. Welfarism increased under the regime of the Social Democrats. A new generation of West Germans acquired many of the attitudes of the sixties generation in the United States. Industrial discipline has deteriorated. The metalworkers strike is indicative of changed times and a changed outlook. The strike bodes ill for the well-being of the German people.

The American people should take note of what is happening in West Germany and learn from it. In our own country, we also pay ourselves too much for work done — and that applies to the heads of giant corporations as well as the workers on the assembly lines. The United States lacks a consensus as to where it wants to go industrially. Like the West Germans, Americans continue to act as though the country enjoyed the prosperity that surged in the post-World War II years. Americans fail to ask themselves whether they work as hard as the people of Japan, Taiwan, Korea, Hong Kong, and Singapore. Failure to address this question means that the American people aren't paying attention to the question of competitiveness which is central to national prosperity in the decades ahead.

The German unions demand for less work for more pay should serve to remind Americans of deficiencies in the American work ethic.

Choice puts Bunker in stone age

Archie Bunker was sitting in his home in Astoria, Long Island, when he saw the news on television that Mondale had chosen Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate. He let out a scream and Edith came rushing in from the kitchen.

"What is it, Archie?" Edith asked.

"That meathead Mondale has put our Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro on his ticket as V.P."

"Isn't that nice," Edith said.

Art Buchwald

"You would say that. She's one of your people."

"I'm not Italian, Archie,"

"I don't mean Eyetalian. I got nothing against Eyetalians. I mean one of your people — a woman."

"It's about time," Edith said.

"What does a dame know about running the United States of America?"

"What does a man know about it?"

"The vice presidency of the United States has always been reserved for a male. The founding fathers of the Constitution wanted it that way."

"There is nothing in the Constitution that says a woman can't be vice president."

"That's because at the time it was written no one in his right mind could imagine a meathead presidential candidate choosing one. But I'll bet you if you took a poll of the great men who signed the Declaration of Independence, they would have said 'No women vice presidents or we give the country back to England.'"

Edith replied, "Mrs. Ferraro is a very smart lady. I rang doorbells for her when she was campaigning for congresswoman."

"You pushed one doorbell too many, and now look what we've got. A mother of three who could be a heartbeat away from the presidency."

Edith was losing her temper. "We represent more than half the vote and we belong in the seat of power."

"That's the way your people always think. I knew we was in serious trouble when them women liberators was allowed to march in the street without the cops shooting tear gas at them."

"I wish you'd stop referring to women as my people," Edith said.

"All right. I'll call them by their right name — dingbats."

"Archie, you have no right to call a woman vice presidential candidate a dingbat."

"Why not? It's a free country, isn't it? Well, I'll say one thing. Since Mrs. Ferraro represents Astoria and Jackson Heights, she at least knows something about the Third World."

"That's not very funny, Archie. You should be proud that someone from our own district is running for vice president of the United States. Whether she wins or loses she's broken the mold once and for all."

Gloria, Archie's daughter, came rushing in breathlessly. "Mommy, did you hear the news? Mondale chose a woman right here from Queens."

Archie said, "Another dingbat. They're all coming out of the woodwork."

"What's the matter with Daddy?" Gloria said to Edith.

"He's upset because Mondale chose one of our people as his running mate."

"One of our people?" Gloria said. "Are we related to Mrs. Ferraro?"

"No, your father is referring to our sex."

"I can't believe it, Daddy. You're living in the stone age."

"Edith is taking my remarks out of context. I got nothing against a woman running a country as long as she stays in India."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, July 18, the 200th day of 1984. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 18, 64 A.D., the Great Fire of Rome began. It would last several days. (Contrary to popular belief, Emperor Nero did not play his fiddle while Rome burned.)

On this date:

In 1536, the authority of the pope was declared void in England.

In 1918, American and French forces launched a counter-offensive against the Germans between the Aisne and Marne rivers in France during World War I.

In 1938, pilot Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan arrived in Ireland after leaving New York with the announced intention of flying to California.

In 1944, Japan's General Tojo resigned as prime minister and chief of staff during World War II.

In 1969, a car driven by U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., plunged off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island. The body of passenger Mary Jo Kopechne was found in the car.

Ten years ago: The deposed president of Cyprus, Archbishop Makarios, arrived in New York, while the new president — Nikos Giorgiades Sampson — charged the Makarios regime with torturing its opponents.

Five years ago: The White House announced that Hamilton Jordan would become President Jimmy Carter's chief of staff.

One year ago: President Reagan announced the appointment of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to head a bipartisan commission on Central America.

Today's birthdays: Actor Hume Cronyn is 73. Comedian Red Skelton is 71. Ohio Sen. John Glenn is 63. Skating champion and commentator Dick Button is 55. Atlanta Braves manager Joe Torre is 44.

Thought for today: "We Americans are the best informed people on earth as to the events of the last 24 hours; we are not the best informed as to events of the last 60 centuries." — Will Durant, historian (1885-1981).

Study warns of economic struggle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new international study is warning about the struggles ahead for poor countries if the economies of the United States and other industrialized nations don't pick up the lively growth pace experienced two decades ago.

To achieve that growth, the World Bank study is urging industrialized nations to focus on reducing government budget deficits which would ease pressures on inflation and interest rates.

"If the industrial countries fail to regain the growth rates they managed in the 1950s and 1960s, many countries in the developing world will have great difficulty making progress in the years ahead," said World Bank President A.W. Clausen in a foreword to the annual study released recently.

In particular, he said, the "prospects for much of sub-Saharan Africa will be particularly grave." Countries in the southern part of Africa have been hard hit by a series of droughts that have devastated their economies.

The report took note of the lengthy recession the world economy is recovering from and said that, despite its hardships, the downturn "provided many valuable lessons for economic policy because it highlighted longstanding weaknesses in every economy and in international arrangements."

"Unless policymakers learn from its lessons, the recovery now under way will not mature into sustained and rapid growth of the kind the world enjoyed for 25 years after World War II," it said.

Clausen said the future picture for the world economy "is full of uncertainties." It would brighten, he said, "if every nation took steps to improve its own domestic economic performance."

The World Development Report also took a look at the effect of an expanding population on poorer countries.

"The main cost of such growth, borne principally by the poor in developing countries, has been and will be faltering progress against what is still high mortality, and lost opportunities for improving people's lives."

In the section on economic growth, the report set out two scenarios for the world economy in the decade of 1985-95: One projected slow growth for the industrialized nations and the other healthy expansion like that of the 1950s and 1960s.

Faster economic growth in the developed countries, it said, would translate into rosier prospects for the world's poor.

If the industrialized economies returned to their growth pace of the 1960s, expansion in the developing world could average 5.5 percent for each year over the next decade.

Otherwise, the developing world's growth would slip to a 4.7 percent rate.

"That would make the difference between almost every country in the world raising per capita incomes and people in many of the world's poorest countries growing steadily poorer," it said.

To maintain fast growth, the World Bank urged industrialized countries to tackle the problems that dogged them in the 1970s. It recommended reducing budget deficits to help avoid a fresh bout of high inflation and to bring down interest rates.

It also called for phasing out subsidies to declining industries and maintaining an open trading system.

At the same time, it called on developing countries to avoid overvaluing their currencies, provide incentives for exporting goods, using imported products more efficiently and discourage policies that distort prices.

Under the report's slow-growth scenario, the industrialized countries do nothing to change their policies of the past decade. That would leave their economies expanding at 2.5 percent a year, on the average, over the decade of 1985-95. That would be about the same rate as in much of the 1970s.

At such a pace, it said, industrialized nations would be hard-pressed to control inflation. Unemployment rates, still high in European countries, would remain a problem as would budget deficits and interest rates.

Pressures would remain strong to impose measures shielding weak industries from foreign competition, it said.

That would hurt developing nations trying to export their goods to help bring in more money so they can pay off their enormous debts to foreign countries.

Under the fast-growth scenario the economies of industrial nations would move ahead at 4.3 percent, on average, for each year over the next decade.

Unemployment would fall steadily and inflation rates would remain modest.

With healthier economies, pressure for protectionist measures to help weak industries would subside, enabling developing countries to sell more of their products and pay back their foreign debts, the report concluded.

German-language paper got scoop

When America's Founding Fathers signed the Declaration of Independence, the first newspaper to break the story was Philadelphia's German-language Philadelphisch Zeitung.

At the start of the Revolutionary War there were already 200,000 Germans in America.

POSTAL EXAM WORKSHOP

STARTING PAY $10.62/HR

The MIDLAND Post Office has indicated that they will be accepting applications for the LETTER SORTING MACHINE/MACHINE CLERK Exam during July 16-20th. NOW is the time to prepare. The pressure is on to score as high as possible to get the job. Career Postal Clerks and Carriers make $25,000 a year to start, including benefits; men and women, regardless of age, education or experience, are eligible. The first step toward a postal service career is getting your name onto the "Register of Eligibles," which is accomplished by passing this Exam (which will probably not be given again for at least three years). To be one of the first hired, you need to get one of the higher scores! And to be hired at all during the next three years, you will need to score at least 95%!

NOW is the time to prepare! It is possible to get a very high score with adequate preparation. From years of experience and discussions with our Advisory Board (consisting of former postmasters, training managers and examiners), we know that it takes exactly four hours to teach you everything you need to know to score 95% or better—which is what you'll need to get a job.

Benefits derived from this course extend far beyond the postal exam. The skills and attitudes will help in every area of future learning and test-taking. We have helped thousands of people successfully prepare for the Clerk-Carrier Exam. But don't take our word for it, take our guarantee! Come to the workshop. If you don't feel, at the end of the course, that it will help you achieve a score of 95% or better, don't pay for the workshop! Furthermore, if your score is less than 95% on the official exam after using our techniques, we will immediately refund your tuition in full!

4-HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95%-100% or your Tuition is Refunded!

★ You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal exam review.
★ You may attend as many extra sessions of the workshop as you like (on a space available basis) without additional tuition charge.

WORKSHOP TUITION (payable by cash, credit card or check)—$35 (Includes 4 hour Workshop, the Corey Guide to Postal Exams, Sample Exam with Answers, Workshop Workbook, and Take-Home Practice Kit containing: 12 Exams with Answers, Flash Cards, and "Simulated Exam" on cassette tape.) # Weed, brush control vital for owners of small acreage

AGRICULTURE

This is the second article on small acreage land and livestock management.

Weed and brush control is a major concern of ranchers, as well as many small acreage landowners. Small acreage owners may wish to control unwanted brush and weeds to improve property values and general aesthetics. Since most small acreage receives heavy grazing pressure, it is often beneficial to remove unwanted weeds and brush to increase production of more desirable forage.

The most limiting factor affecting forage production in West Texas is water. A moderate stand of brush can easily use 50 percent of the available water that would otherwise be used to produce grazeable forage. For example, it takes approximately 1,700 pounds of water to produce one pound of mesquite, while 500 pounds of water will produce approximately one pound of grass. Not only does unwanted brush divert water that could be used for forage production, it is also much less efficient in the use of that water.

When considering initiating brush control procedures, the cardinal rule to remember is that almost all West Texas brush species are crown or root sprouters. This means that simply cutting a plant down with an axe or chainsaw does not kill the plant. A brush plant handled in this manner will simply resprout from the roots or crown resulting in a plant that is much more difficult to kill at a later date.

THERE ARE essentially two options available to control brush on small acreages. These options are to use either mechanical or chemical methods of control.

Mechanical methods of control would include hand grubbing or the use of heavy equipment, such as a mechanical grubbing unit mounted on rubber-wheeled tractors, or crawler tractors. Although mechanical brush control is expensive, the method is quite effective for many years. Because of expense, the small acreage landowner will generally be restricted to using hand grubbing of unwanted brush plants, and then only if the plants are of low density and stature.

Hand grubbing is a very effective method to use for maintenance control of brush following use of chemicals. When hand grubbing, it is necessary to remove the plant to a depth below the root crown to reduce the possibility of resprouting. This fairly rigorous activity is much easier to accomplish when the soil is moist.

SINCE MOST individuals do not have the time or energy to hand dig individual brush plants, they will generally resort to the use of herbicides. While most ranchers use foliar-applied liquid herbicides to control plants such as mesquite, this method is not advisable for use by small acreage landowners because of spray drift. Most individuals owning five to ten acres are surrounded by other such individuals or are close to more densely populated areas. The misuse of foliar-applied herbicides can result in damage to neighboring gardens and ornamentals due to displacement of the herbicide through drift.

One of the best materials to use for control of brush on small acreages is diesel oil. Herbicides can be added to the diesel oil to increase its effectiveness, although excellent results can be obtained by using only diesel, saving both money and problems associated with the addition of herbicides. There are two basic application techniques that can be used when using diesel.

THE FIRST is to apply diesel using the cut-stump method. The cut-stump method involves treating exposed, freshly cut stump surfaces with the diesel. Effective control results from applying the diesel to cut surfaces and basal plant parts until run-off occurs. The diesel may be applied by simply pouring from a can, or probably more easily, by the use of a small garden pump-up sprayer. The advantage of this method is that excellent control is obtained while at the same time the brush plants are removed from view. Although the cut-stump method can be effective at any season of the year, the best results are generally obtained from the treatments in the winter and summer months. The stump is always treated immediately after cutting.

Another method of applying diesel is the use of the basal-type method. Since considerable labor is involved in cutting the brush using the cut-stump method, it may be more preferable to use the basal-spray method. Single-stemmed plants or plants with few stems having trunk diameters of five inches or less in diameter on sandy, rocky or porous soil are most easily controlled with basal sprays. Using this method, the plant trunk should be wetted to run-off with diesel from a height of six inches to the ground line. The most effective time to treat is when the soil is dry and cracked away from the trunk of the plant. This allows access of the diesel to the root crown. The diesel can be applied as a pour or by the use of small pump-up garden sprayers.

WHEN BRUSH plants have a growth form consisting of a number of basal stems, it may be difficult to obtain satisfactory results with diesel oil. The problem occurs due to the difficulty of wetting the entire root crown area with the diesel. Under these circumstances, it would be more advisable to use herbicides.

As stated earlier, liquid foliar-applied herbicides should generally not be used for small acreage brush control due to the drift problem associated with these herbicides. At the present time there are two soil-type applied herbicides that are labeled for use on rangeland that will effectively control most brush species in West Texas. One of the herbicides is called "Graskab Brush Bullets." The second herbicide that can be used by small acreage landowners is "Velpar L" manufactured by DuPont. For more complete information on these herbicides and their proper use, please give your County Extension Agent a call.

The methods discussed here are the most practical steps to contolling brush on small acreages. Weed control has not been discussed due to the complexity resulting from the large number of species involved and the number of chemicals available for control. For detailed information on weed control please call your County Agent.

The information given herein is for educational purposes only. Reference to commercial products or trade names is made with the understanding that no discrimination is intended and no endorsement by the Cooperative Extension Service is implied.

China assures U.S. it will honor grain sales pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has given further assurance that it intends to honor the terms of an agreement calling for the purchase of at least 6 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn annually.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Monday following a meeting with Chinese Ambassador Zhang Wenjin that China "will make every effort" to buy more than 8 million tons of grain this year, which would include nearly 2.2 million tons left on last year's commitment.

Less than half of that goal has been bought.

The Agriculture Department announced later Monday that China has bought an additional 120,000 metric tons of wheat — about 4.4 million bushels — under the terms of the agreement, the first purchase since June 5.

Under the four-year pact, which expires at the end of 1984, China is supposed to buy a minimum of 6 million tons of wheat and corn annually. However, according to USDA's latest accounting, sales totaled only 3.83 million tons in 1983, including about 2.45 million tons of wheat and 1.38 million tons of corn.

In the first two years of the agreement — 1981 and 1982 — China exceeded the minimum level specified, with annual purchases of about 8.7 million tons.

So far in 1984, including the latest sales, a total of 3.64 million tons, all wheat, have been purchased. Thus, counting last year's deficit, the Chinese still would have to buy more than 4.5 million between now and the end of 1984.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Sales are made by private trading companies and then reported to USDA. No prices or terms are announced. However, at the current estimated farm price of about $3.27 per bushel, the latest wheat sale would have a farm value of about $14.4 million.

China suspended purchases of American grain last year during a dispute over U.S. textile quotas.

"The Chinese ambassador said his country is still 'not 100 percent happy' with the status of our textile trade," Dole said in a prepared statement. "It indicated we would do what we can to smooth things out, and we both will be looking for ways to expand trade in other sectors, such as food processing and transportation."

Dole was optimistic that "the Chinese are making a good-faith effort to satisfy their obligations" and will be good customers in the future.

According to aides, Dole and the Chinese ambassador talked about future trade and the possibility of a new long-term agreement was brought up. However, no commitments were made or suggested, one aide said.

China pledged last fall to fulfill its obligations under the grain agreement, and U.S. officials have accepted that word. During his trip in March to China, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan expressed confidence that the grain would be bought but added, "We feel they should be proceeding much more quickly."

AGRI Industries announces selection of new president

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — AGRI Industries, still smarting from federal theft conspiracy convictions against the company and several of its officers last year, announced Tuesday it has selected Harold Richard as its new president.

"I'm not going to spend any time on that particular occurrence," the 49-year-old executive said, adding that his chief concern is marketing the current crop and putting the 80-year-old firm back on its financial feet.

Richard replaces interim president Lowell Rasmussen, who has served since last November when B.J. "Jerry" O'Dowd resigned in the wake of the federal convictions.

The company and former top officers, Executive Vice President Pat Kevlin and wheat marketer Jack Wyard, were fined $10,000 each for their part in converting $580,000 worth of wheat to the company's own use. Transportation chief Tom Williamson was fined $5,000. The company maintains that there was no criminal intent and appeals are pending.

Richard said he didn't anticipate his style or outlook would be much different than his predecessors. "I don't know that I'm going to do too much differently" than the others, he said, explaining that the main job ahead is to market grain successfully.

He said the job will be difficult due to matters beyond AGRI's control, such as the strong dollar, which makes it difficult for other countries to purchase American grain.

AGRI owns 343 country elevators, most of them in Iowa, and is likely to end this fiscal year in the red, Richard said. "It appears that we'll not be in the black, operationally speaking."

Bailey clout leads Astros by Mets

Associated Press

Mark Bailey knew he could do better at the plate than he did in the top half of the inning. He proved it in the bottom of the ninth.

"Mark came through like a champ," Houston Manager Bob Lillis said after Bailey's two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night rallied the Astros to a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the ninth when Mookie Wilson led off with a pinch-triple and scored on a fielder's choice grounder by Keith Hernandez. On that play, first baseman Enos Cabell fielded the ball and threw home, but Wilson slid safely past Bailey.

"I didn't block the plate real well, but I knew I tagged him and I thought he was out," Bailey said.

The rookie catcher didn't have to wait long to make amends.

With one out, Met reliever Doug Sisk walked Terry Puhl. Bailey then blasted a 3-2 delivery into the right-field seats at the Astrodome.

"I don't think I've ever done that in the bottom of the ninth," Bailey said. "Not in high school, college or anywhere."

Bailey's blast marked the third straight game in which he had homered. It was his seventh of the season and also the first allowed by Sisk in 59 2-3 innings this year.

"I was looking to drive the ball for a double or a triple," said Bailey, now 10-for-21 in his last six games.

Sisk, 1-2, took over in the ninth in relief of starter Ron Darling, who allowed an unearned run in the first. Astro starter Joe Niekro went seven innings, yielding an unearned run un the fourth.

Frank DiPino, 4-5, relieved Dave Smith after Wilson's triple and struck out three to get the victory.

Giants 7, Cardinals 2

A bench-clearing incident seemed to spark visiting San Francisco to victory.

In the second inning, St. Louis hurler Joaquin Andujar hit Manny Trillo with a pitch. In the third, Giants pitcher Mike Krukow knocked down Andujar.

Both dugouts emptied — no punches were thrown — and home plate umpire Billy Williams warned Krukow, which draws an automatic $50 fine.

Following the 11-minute delay, the Giants let their bats do the damage. They scored four runs in the fourth, keyed by Brad Wellman's two-run double. In the fifth, San Francisco scored three times, sparked by Joel Youngblood's two-run double.

San Francisco finished with 15 hits in pinning the loss on Andujar, 13-8. Krukow, 6-8, got the victory.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 0

Pittsburgh's Jose DeLeon did not allow a hit until Ken Landreaux smacked a solo home run with one out in the seventh inning.

The homer made the score 2-0. Visiting Los Angeles had scored in the fourth, without the benefit of a hit, on a sacrifice fly by Landreaux.

DeLeon, 6-5, went eight innings, allowing just that one hit. Three Pirate relievers surrendered three runs on three hits in the ninth.

Alejandro Pena, 11-4, pitched a sterling five-hitter in snapping Pittsburgh's seven-game winning streak. Pena struck out seven, walked none and retired the final 15 batters.

Phillies 4, Reds 3

Sixto Lezcano drilled two home runs to account for all of Philadelphia's scoring while pitcher Steve Carlton continued his climb on baseball's all-time lists.

Lezcano, 1-for-21 entering the game, belted a three-run homer in the third inning off Joe Price, 3-7. Lezcano then hit a solo shot, his 13th of the season, off Brad Lesley in the eighth.

Carlton, 8-4, allowed eight hits in eight innings in Cincinnati. He fanned eight to record 100 strikeouts for the 18th consecutive season, tying Walter Johnson's major league record. Carlton is baseball's all-time strikeout leader with 3,813.

Al Holland pitched the ninth for his 20th save as the Reds lost for the 10th time in 11 games.

Expos 2, Braves 0

Bryn Smith pitched a five-hit shutout while Tim Raines drove in one run and scored the other.

Smith, 8-7, has gotten three runs or less in 12 of his last 14 starts. He got enough runs to work with against visiting Atlanta as he did not allow a runner past second base.

Padres 6, Cubs 5

Steve Garvey had an RBI grounder in the first inning, hit a solo homer in the fifth and cracked a run-scoring double in the sixth as the Padres took a 6-1 lead in Chicago.

The Cubs battled back with a run in the seventh and then added three runs in the eighth when they chased starter Eric Show, 10-6. Keith Moreland, who had homered in the second inning, belted a two-run shot to greet reliever Rich Gossage in the eighth.

Gossage went on to get his 16th save. Steve Trout, 9-4, took the loss.

Jackson equals Gehrig in HRs

Associated Press

It takes a lot to get Reggie Jackson excited these days. Equaling a record by the great Lou Gehrig will do it, though.

"I don't get thrilled easily anymore but this was exciting," said Jackson after his 493rd career home run, a two-run shot, helped the California Angels beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 Tuesday night. "I'm no Lou Gehrig by any stretch of the imagination but it took me sixteen and a half years to get here and I'm happy."

Jackson's 15th homer of the season tied him for 13th place on the all-time list with Gehrig and proved to be the margin of California's victory.

"Something like this makes you proud, although my ego doesn't need any help," said Jackson, who also lifted his average to .250 with a three-hit game. "It was good to chip in with a homer. I've been swinging good, but was fighting the psychological battle of not having many hits to show for it."

Jackson hit his homer with two outs in the seventh inning off left-hander James Key, who had just come on in relief after Fred Lynn's single.

Earlier in the inning, Bobby Grich's solo homer off Jim Acker, 2-5, had given California a 3-2 lead.

Right-hander Mike Witt, 10-7, surrendered two runs and six hits over the first three innings. He left in the ninth after giving up a run-scoring double to Rance Mulliniks.

Rangers 10, Yankees 4

Tommy Dunbar smashed his first major league home run, a three-run blast in the fifth inning, and Larry Parrish homered and drove in two runs as Texas pounded out 17 hits in routing New York.

Charlie Hough, 10-7, allowed 10 hits, striking out five and walking none in winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions. The 36-year-old knuckleballer registered his 11th complete game in ending Texas' four-game losing streak and halting a six-game New York winning streak.

Phil Niekro, 12-5, suffered the loss.

With Texas trailing 3-2 in the fifth, Pete O'Brien drilled a one-out single and one out later Buddy Bell walked. Dunbar then connected on Niekro's 1-2 pitch to give the Rangers a 5-2 lead and their eventual winning run.

Indians 9-6, Royals 7-2

Carmen Castillo's two-run homer capped a four-run uprising in the third inning that carried Cleveland over Kansas City in the opener of their double-header.

The Indians pounded out 15 hits to help Neal Heaton, who had given up seven hits and took an 8-4 lead into the eighth. But George Brett led off with a double and Hal McRae followed with his second home run of the season, finishing Heaton, 6-9. Reliever Ernie Camacho gave up Jorge Orta's pinch-RBI single in the eighth before getting his 11th save.

Orioles 3, Twins 1

Cal Ripken drove in the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning and Scott McGregor scattered 10 hits as Baltimore defeated Minnesota.

Ripken's single off losing pitcher Frank Viola, 10-8, knocked in Rick Dempsey, who had doubled with one out and moved to third on Floyd Rayford's single.

McGregor, 12-7, who is 8-1 in his last 12 starts, struck out two and walked none and was aided by two Oriole double plays.

McGregor attributed his success to the Twins' "hitting the ball at our guys, I got out of some jams. My changeup was really working well. I had excellent control and was able to move the ball around in the strike zone."

Tigers 3, White Sox 2

Dan Petry and Willie Hernandez combined on a five-hitter and Darrell Evans slammed a two-run homer in the first inning as Detroit beat Chicago for the Tigers' fifth straight victory.

Petry struck out five and walked one in 7 2-3 innings to post his fourth victory in his last five starts and improve his record to 12-4. Hernandez worked the final 1 1-3 innings to record his 17th save.

Mariners 3, Brewers 1

Rookie left-hander Mark Langston pitched a two-hitter and struck out 12 batters before leaving in the ninth inning and Al Cowens blasted a home run to lead Seattle over Milwaukee.

Langston, 8-7, won his sixth game in his past eight decisions. His strikeout total was the highest by an American League pitcher this season. He was relieved in the last inning by Mike Stanton after issuing a walk to the leadoff batter, his fifth of the game.

Red Sox 6, A's 1

Bob Ojeda pitched a six-hitter and Marty Barrett's two-run double keyed a four-run seventh inning as Boston beat Oakland.

The Red Sox won for the ninth time in their last 12 games and sent the A's down to a fifth straight defeat.

1936 film captures essence of Olympics

With the Soviet-led boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics, enthusiasm has been less than expected about the Games.

But after viewing Olympia Monday night, I cannot wait for the Olympics. I'm also looking forward to the second showing of the film this Saturday at noon.

Olympia was filmed at the 1936 Berlin Olympics, and those Games turned out to be the last until 1948 due to the outbreak of World War II. The film was aired Monday over the USA Network on cable. If you don't have the USA service, either get it quickly or find a friend with a good television set. This is something nobody should miss.

THE FILM was the subject of much controversy after its initial release. Leni Riefenstahl directed the film. Riefenstahl was an established filmmaker in her own right, but achieved much of her notoriety for being known as Adolf Hitler's photographer. Her 1934 propaganda film Triumph of the Will glorified the Nazi party in its ceremonial splendor years before the Nazi atrocities became common knowledge.

The filmmaker, now 82, made Olympia in a fashion previously unheard of and used techniques that were far ahead of her time. Olympia was the first filmed Games, and Riefenstahl used slow motion and stop action before anyone at Wide World of Sports had even heard of the techniques.

The movie is lengthy. Four hours is quite a while for any film, but in the context of the Olympic Games it is perfect. Two weeks of games are masterfully covered without being dull. Nothing looks contrived, nothing seems overdone.

From a coverage standpoint, the language used in the film is interesting. At one point, the narrator states, "This year the competition is excessively severe." Only Howard Cosell uses phrases like that in today's sports announcing. The shot put competition is referred to as "putting the weight."

SOME OF the sequences are nothing short of spectacular. Riefenstahl's ability to convey the essence of competition and the feel of each event is amazing. The marathon scenes make the viewer tired.

India routed Germany 8-1 in the field hockey final before a boisterous crowd. In one scene, slow motion is used in a close up of the Indian goaltender making a save. What Riefenstahl did to superior effect is now rarely as heavy in impact. Slow motion is nowadays so overdone as to be taken for granted.

The bike race is also well done, showing the racers from the front and sides by driving alongside the course. The race ends with a tremendous crash, all captured in black and white that adds an air of history on tape.

The film also has its chilling moments. The cheering crowds and the faces of an inspired German people do not hint at the horrors that were on the horizon. How could the gathered spectators possibly know their soon-to-be-revealed destinies?

The pistol shooting competition is truly eerie. Nazis finish first and third. They are shown firing at targets in the shape of men and are dressed in full miltary regalia. The second place finisher was an American, clad in a preppy white sweater and looking very Ivy League.

Naturally, Jesse Owens stole the headlines at the '36 Games. Hitler's hope for a show of 'Aryan Supremacy' was dashed by the realities that athleticism transcends race or politics. The important point is that in 1936, political beliefs played a role in the Games. The graphic above this article details some of the conflicts that have marred the Games since their return to existence. It is worth noting that at other times, the Olympics have been used for purposes having nothing to do with sports.

TWO EVENTS towards the end of the film are filmed in a fashion that elevates filmmaking to a pure art form. In the rowing competition the cameras force the viewer to take part in the action. And in the final minutes of the film, the platform diving footage is supernatural.

After seeing it, it is possible to argue that man can fly.

And Olympia flies above all. The Olympic spirit lives. When war tore apart and forever changed the world, innocence was lost. The innocence and human drama the Olympics were intended to be are clearly real, but the Olympic flame has bee flickering. Riefenstahl was able to put aside the wishes of her government in the sake of artistic license. Upon seeing Olympia, people may realize the importance and intent the Games. They should bring nations together instead of divide them.

Nicklaus back at site of triumphs

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — It was one of the most poignant moments in the history of the ancient game, that summer day in 1978 when Jack Nicklaus strode up the 18th fairway at the Old Course.

Tears glistened in his eyes as he quick-stepped toward the stone pile of the Royal and Ancient Clubhouse rising in bleak majesty behind the green. Thousands of Scots rose from their seats in the temporary stands, applauded and cheered in warm and cheerful homage to the great man who had accomplished so much — and at the moment was adding yet another major title to his matchless record — in their national game.

It was Nicklaus, the unquestioned master of golf's major championships, winning the British Open, and winning it at the cradle of the game, the most revered of all the world's course, the Old Course at St. Andrews.

"I've had a lot of great moments in my career, but that was one of the most memorable," Nicklaus said.

Now, at age 44, he will attempt to duplicate that moment with a fourth British Open triumph, and a third at St. Andrews.

"I cannot think of a better place to win a championship," said Nicklaus, who admits to a career-long love affair with the Old Course and has won the last two British Open titles (1970 and 1978) that have been played here.

There is speculation among some of his closer associates that, should Nicklaus be successful, it could be the last hurrah; that he would announce his retirement; that he would choose to leave the game he has dominated so long with a resounding bang rather than a whimper.

That speculation was fueled, two months ago, when Nicklaus broke a 2-year victory drought with a playoff triumph in his own Memorial Tournament and then said:

"If I had a brain in my head, I'd say, 'That's it. I've enjoyed playing for you. Goodbye'."

Most authorities agree that golf can offer no greater prize, no greater satisfaction than a victory in the British Open at St. Andrews.

Should he win, would he then take that moment to, indeed, say goodbye?

"I doubt it," Nicklaus said.

It would become an issue only if he won in the 113th British Open that begins Thursday.

And, despite his age, his record shows that is a decided possibility. Although he has won more frequently in the other three of golf Big Four tournaments (four U.S. Opens, five Masters, five PGA), it is in the British Open in general and at St. Andrews in particular that his record is most impressive.

In three appearances in this tournament on this course, he has finished second, first and first.

In the British Open overall, he has won three, been second a record seven times, third twice (including once when he missed a playoff by one shot) and fourth twice. He has been worse than sixth only five times in 22 tries.

And he comes into this one playing some of his best golf since winning the U.S. Open and the PGA in 1980. He's finished in the top 10 in half his starts this season, was third in the Los Angeles Open, second at Doral and in his last start, the Canadian Open, and, importantly, won the Memorial.

"From a confidence standpoint, it was important for me to win something. Winning at Memorial was that much more pleasant. It gives me the confidence that I can make things happen when I need to make things happen," Nicklaus said.

'Golden Bear' now a doctor

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus received an honorary law degree from the University of St. Andrew's Tuesday as "one of the greatest golfers the world has ever known."

Nicklaus, 44, also was recognized for his services to a special trust set up in memory of former golf star Bobby Jones. Nicklaus has been a director of the New York branch of the Robert T. Jones Memorial Trust since its foundation in 1978.

The trust was established four years earlier in Scotland to set up exchange scholarships between Jones' own Emory University in Atlanta and St. Andrews.

Nicklaus is one of only three players to have won consecutive British Open victories at St. Andrews, where the 113th Open championship begins Thursday.

In his welcoming address, Stuart McDowall, senior lecturer in economics at St. Andrews, said it was the first time the university had bestowed an honorary degree on a sportsman or sportswoman.

He said it was appropriate that the university should honor "the man whose skill and achievements have dominated golf in our time."

Nicklaus, who was accompanied by his wife Barbara, replied that St. Andrews was "my favorite place in all the golfing world."

"It is unimaginable to me how any true golfer, anyone who really cares about the game, can fail to enjoy and appreciate St. Andrews," he said.

M-Cubs mangle Jackson, 11-4

From Staff Reports

JACKSON, Miss.—The Midland Cubs erupted for 17 hits to defeat the Jackson Mets, 11-4, Tuesday night in the opener of a five-game Texas League series. The win was the third straight for the Bruins and evened their road trip record at 3-3. If the Cubs can win a couple more here, they can return to Cubs Stadium in good shape for the stretch run.

Midland has been faced with a back-breaking second half schedule with 22 of the first 28 games on the road.

Lefthander Tandy Charley, with relief help from Ron Kaufman, pitched five-hit ball for seven innings to notch the win while Paul Noce and Tony Woods paced the Midland attack with three hits each.

Joe Henderson hit his sixth homer and Dan Norman, who also had a double, belted his 10th as Midland not only scored 11 runs, but could have made it a lot worse. Thirteen Cubs were left on base.

Catcher Don Hyman also continued his blistering stolen base pace, swiping his third of the season. Last year, Hyman didn't steal his second base until the final day of the season.

Henderson's homer came in the third inning, a solo shot while Norman's belt came in the seventh. Both Woods and Norman had three rbi each. Woods has had 12 hits in the five games and is hitting at a .500 clip during that st stretch.

IN OTHER league play Tuesday, San Antonio edged Arkansas 4-1, Beaumont squeezed by Tulsa 2-1 in 12 innings and Shreveport beat El Paso 8-5.

Stu Pederson hit a two-run homer for San Antonio, while Ralph Bryant hit a solo shot, his 20th of the season.

Arkansas' only home run came from Bob Geren.

Tim Meeks, 10-6, was the winner. The loser was Todd Worrell, 3-9.

Beaumont catcher Jimmy Thomas hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the 12th inning to give the Golden Gators the winning run.

Tulsa's Jorge Gomez had three hits, all singles, in five trips to the plate.

Mike Barba, 2-0, was credited with the win. The loser was Tim Meckes, 1-1.

Shreveport's Matt Nokes batted a two-run homer, his seventh, in the fourth inning.

The Captains scored five runs with two outs in the second. They pieced together two walks and five singles.

El Paso's Mike Felder had a two-run homer in the second, his fourth. In the eighth, shortstop Dan Purpura hit his first homer of the year, a two-run effort.

113th Open goes home

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — There's an almost-lunar aspect to it; bleak, forbidding, shaped by centuries of storms and squalls, rain and wind and sleet; moors rippling and heaving like ocean swells, the contours broken by pits and craters.

"Acreage so raggedy and beat up, I was surprised to see what looked like a fairway out there among the weeds," Sam Snead recalled of his first view, from a train in 1946.

"That looks like an old, abandoned golf course," he remarked to a fellow passenger.

"That, sir," replied the indignant passenger, "is the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews. It is not now, nor will it ever be, abandoned."

The passenger's prophecy has, thus far, proved accurate. The Old Course, the most famous of all the world's links, again this year is the site of The Open (only in America is it called "the British Open"), the 113th renewal of the oldest championship, beginning Thursday at the home of the game.

It is something of a shrine, this Old Course that leads away from the bleak splendor of the stone pile of the R and A clubhouse, winding down the dunes to a hook on the Firth of Tay. Its history is counted in centuries. It is recognized as the cradle of golf, if not its birthplace.

The origins of the game are lost to recorded history. There is some evidence that something called kolf, vaguely akin to golf, was played in 12th century Holland.

But St. Andrews can accommodate that legend. At that time, more than a century before the birth of Columbus, the Dutch were among the great traders, the great mariners of Europe. St. Andrews, with an imposing cathedral and university, was a center of religion and learning in Scotland. Small trading ships criss-crossed the North Sea from Holland to Scotland.

British Open

To reach St. Andrews, the boats anchored in the River Eden, more than a mile away. Dutch sailors, to while away the time on the long walk, would hit a ball or stone with a stick, keeping count of the strokes. To break the count, they would occasionally "hole out," in a depression, or burrowing animal hole, usually located on a plateau or flat area often flanked by deep, sandy pits formed by sheep burrowing into the dunes to escape the elements.

The "game" caught on with the townspeople. In time, six holes — all going in the same direction — came into being. Eventually, instead of walking back, townspeople began playing their way back, playing to the same flat surfaces, which, of course, is the origin of St. Andrews' famous double greens, still in use. Still later, the links was expanded to the 18 holes that will be played this week.

It has been little changed. Those sheep-formed pits have sodded faces to form the 74 bunkers now on the course. Many of them are named: "Cheape's, Wig, Hell, the Principal's Nose, Coffin, Scholar's." Many are hidden from the view of the player, lying in wait for the unknowlegeable or unlucky, waiting to gobble the ball that bounds from the swales and swells.

There are no trees, but gorse and bracken, thistles and thickets.

And the capricious winds that provide the course with its defenses.

"I love St. Andrews for what it is," said Jack Nicklaus, who has won two of his three British Open titles here. "It is 300 years old, but it withstands modern golf."

It can offer the ultimate frustration. The first time he played it, Bobby Jones quit in disgust after 11 holes and tore up his card. And that was before he reached the 17th, the Road Hole, par-4, 466 yards and considered by many as the most difficult hole in the world. Nicklaus said it must be played as a par 4½, with 4 a victory over the hole and 5 very acceptable.

On his first visit, Tom Watson was talking to himself.

"At first, I hated it. In time, I came to learn it, to understand it. But it requires a long courtship," Watson said.

The great English journalist, Bernard Darwin, saw it differently. He once wrote:

"About golf at St. Andrews there is something of the srruggle for life, and it seems to me to have a hardness symbolic of that struggle. The very ground is hard; so are the caddies in their criticisms. The bunkers are hard on us. We don't know exactly where they are, and so our best shots go into them. It is good schooling, but we are apt to be rather cowed; to feel we are not made of quite stern enough stuff, and yearn for something a little more southern and less severely bracing."

Swedes dominate home tourney

BASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Four favored Swedes swept their opponents in straight sets Tuesday to clinch a berth in the second round of the $75,000 Swedish Open Tennis Championships.

Top seed Anders Jarryd made short work of West German Christopher Zipf, winning 6-0, 6-1, while second seed Henrik Sundstrom, who helped Sweden clinch a semifinal berth in the World group of the Davis Cup tennis tournament last week, whipped countryman Hans Simonsson 6-3, 6-2.

Fourth seed Joakim Nystrom, who beat American Brian Teacher to win the Grand Prix tournament.

Knight assembling superior team

By HANK WESCH
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — Unceremoniously, U.S. Olympic basketball coach Bobby Knight strode to a small table in the shade of a tree a few yards outside the University of San Diego Athletic Center here.

Unemotionally, he went through a chronological review of how an initial assemblage of 72 hopefuls on April 17 in Bloomington, Ind., has become a team of 12 and two alternates that is undefeated in seven exhibition games, six of those against National Basketball Association-calibre competition.

Unsurprisingly, it took only two questions before he gave the assembled media a glimpse, albeit a small one, of his combative side.

Asked how he measured the squad's success against teams of collected stars from various NBA teams, Knight responded: "How do you measure it? Aren't most NBA teams collected groups of Stars? ...

"I don't know if we've been successful or not. You used the term success, I don't know how you measure that. Your term of success is probably tied exclusively to the fact that we won. I don't think that has any bearing on what we're doing."

Bobby Knight, Olympic Ogre stuff?

No, merely the Indiana University coach who is unquestionably, unequivocally in charge and uncompromisingly bent on directing his team to a gold medal at Los Angeles taking HIS indirect route to making a point.

So Knight's crew of college-experienced talent has been an average of 13.5 points per game better than NBA Players Association provided squads with names like Bill Walton, Magic Johnson and Larry Bird on the rosters. It's relative.

"There have been times when we've been very inadequate in various phases of our play," Knight said. "And there are times we've been very good. I don't think we're nearly as consistent at either end of the court at this point in time as we have to be. The idea of winning and losing those games has really not been much of a factor in what we've tried to do.

"The winning factor has just not been anything of concern to us beyond the particular group we've had in at that time. We've not played international rules, we've had unlimited timeouts and free substitution like the colleges have and hopefully this has worked to the advantage of the pros. We had one guy commit 13 personal fouls in one game.

Bobby Knight

"The pro players over the six or seven games have been very, very helpful. They've worked hard, they've played hard, they have been very cooperative in the effort they have given us.

"What it has meant for us is an opportunity to play against very, very good players, with individual talent to make them tough to defend against. I think it is, without any reservations, the best kind of competition we can get here in the summer to prepare us for what we have to do in Los Angeles."

San Diego represents the final phase in Knight's master plan. A buffer zone on Pacific Coast time before the immersion into the hurly-burly of Los Angeles.

Two more games against NBA opposition remain, Saturday night at Phoenix and a week from Wednesday at the Sports Arena here.

With Knight setting things up for them, a squad that includes six players who were first team All-America selections — guards Michael Jordan (North Carolina), Chris Mullin (St. Johns) and Leon Wood (Cal State-Fullerton); forwards Sam Perkins (North Carolina) and Wayman Tisdale (Oklahoma); center Patrick Ewing (Georgetown) — has showed signs of unification.

"This team has progressed to an extensive degree since we first started, but where does that put us, I don't know," said Knight. "I think we may be, at this point in time, better defensively than we are offensively. But I hope that doesn't mean that we're poor at both ends of the court, just less so defensively.

"Where we are I think will be determined through the first week of our play in Los Angeles. Once we've played against these teams, then we'll know where we stand."

Knight's stamp will be visible.

"A lot of people have asked me if coach Knight is any different with this team," said guard Steve Alford, a New Castle, Ind. flash who started for Knight as a freshman last year at IU. "I don't see any change, but if there is he might even be a little more fiery.

"And why should he change? He's a proven winner. He gives everything he's got and demands that each individual give the most of himself."

Mullin feels it's working.

"At times you think we're there (as a team), but we slip some times in certain areas," Mullin said. "We have to work on our consistency but we have time to do it."

Just don't ask about which players are the starters.

"I've got to start five people, eight different times," Knight said. "Last year I started 19 different starting lineups at Indiana. I've never been able to understand the significance of who starts the game.

"I'll adjust it to meet our play. You play well, you may start tomorrow. You don't play worth a damn you may not start tomorrow."

To this point, Perkins, Ewing and guard Alvin Robertson from Arkansas have most consistently found themselves on the floor for the opening tip. Jordan (15.6 points per game), Mullin (14.7), Perkins (12.0) and Robertson (11.7) have been the top scorers.

"I agree it doesn't matter who starts," said Perkins. "I'm not worrying about it and I don't think anyone else on this team is either. What's important is that we go out and give a good effort whenever we do play, execute properly and work together as a team."

Could the repeated and solid successes against the NBA be creating a false sense of security in the minds of the public or his players?

"I'm not concerned with what's in the public's mind. I'm not coaching the public," Knight said. "As for my players, I'll take care of that."

TODD WOODARD

Fowler guns for fourth NBRSA title

Outdoors

The wind flags twitched to and fro while the 43-year-old shooter patiently waited.

Suddenly, the flags, attached to a 6-foot-tall target holder 100 yards away, twitched toward the shooter and his grey fiberglass, stainless steel-barreled target rifle. The gun boomed five times, the last shot screaming down range just before the flags twitched sharply to the left. Like a quintet of hungry ants on honey, the five shots gathered in a knot the size of a nickel.

The Midland resident who crammed those 3,400-feet-per-second bullets together is Jef Fowler, the only person to have won three consecutive National Bench Rest Shooters Association championships. From 1980 to 1982, he was the most accurate shooter in the world.

Monday, in Ohio, he'll be going for his fourth title.

"I wasn't really sure I wanted to get into competition when I bought a precision rife from Shilen (an Ennis, Texas, gun manufacturer) in 1967," Fowler said. "I wanted the most accurate ground hog rifle I could find – a .220 Swift hunting rifle that shot like a bench rifle."

What he and other bench rest shooters do is shoot tight five- or 10-shot groups, the tightest being a single hole. Measured in thousands of an inch, the group size is determined by the distance between the centers of the two widest shots. An .0000 would be the tightest possible group. A .2500, or a quarter of an inch, is a competitive West Texas score on a windy day. All the shooting is done off sandbags and a concrete bench, ensuring the maximum possible accuracy.

Fowler's ground hog gun was his first year's tuition in the college of bench rest shooting, he said. While in Knoxville, Tenn., Fowler graduated from shooting real varmints to the three "varmint" guns used by the NBRSA: sporter, light varmit and heavy varmint.

Sporter guns must not exceed 10½ pounds and must be larger than .22 caliber; light varmint guns must not exceed 10½ pounds but can be any caliber; heavy varmint guns must not exceed 13½ pounds and can be any caliber. He also began shooting unlimited guns, which have no weight or caliber restrictions.

"I acquired more rifles as I became more interested in competition," Fowler said. "I shot what was thought to be the best caliber, the .222 Remington, in the late 60s and early 70s.

"I started winning small matches in the early 70s, then I won a few medium-sized ones, 25 to 50 people, after that."

Fowler said he earned his bachelor's degree in shooting at those small- and medium-sized matches, but he earned his doctorate in the West Texas classroom.

"After I moved to Odessa in September 1979, I learned to shoot in the worst conditions anywhere," he said. "There's always wind, there's alway mirage (target distortion caused by heat rising off the ground). Shooters from the East hate to shoot here. They all shoot large groups."

However, Fowler didn't move to West Texas just for training purposes. He also wanted to establish Fowler Shooter's Supply, a specialty mail order house for bench rest shooters and a retail gun safe business. "My partner Ed Phillips (also a shooter) and I ship stainless steel actions to every part of the world," he said.

The materials they ship around the world aren't cheap. The components and assembly for a precision firearm can run into the thousands of dollars, Fowler said.

What he spends on equipment he saves on clothes. He always wears the same red shirt he wore while winning his first championship match in 1980.

"I won the sporter class at Kelbly's Range in Ohio and set a new world record in the 100-yard sporter class with a .1774 in that red shirt. My wife tried to wash it that day, and I damn near killed her. It had to be the red shirt."

Of course, the red shirt can only help mentally in the difficult bench rest game. Using the three smaller guns, competitors fire five strings of five shots at both 100 and 200 yards. They shoot 10-shot strings in the unlimited class.

"I try to fire every shot under the same wind conditions," Fowler said. "Whatever wind I fire my sighter (practice) shots under are the conditions I shoot my match shots under – unless I'm about to run out of time – you're only given seven minutes to shoot five shots.

I'm a quick shooter. I sometimes fire five shots in 15 or 20 seconds, when the wind is right. That's with a single-shot, bolt-action rifle."

The quick-shooting technique paid off in Ohio in 1980, Austin in 1981, and at the 1982 championships in Knoxville. He dominated the 1982 test, winning the two-, three- and four-gun aggregates.

But he stumbled on the Midland Shooters Association range in 1983.

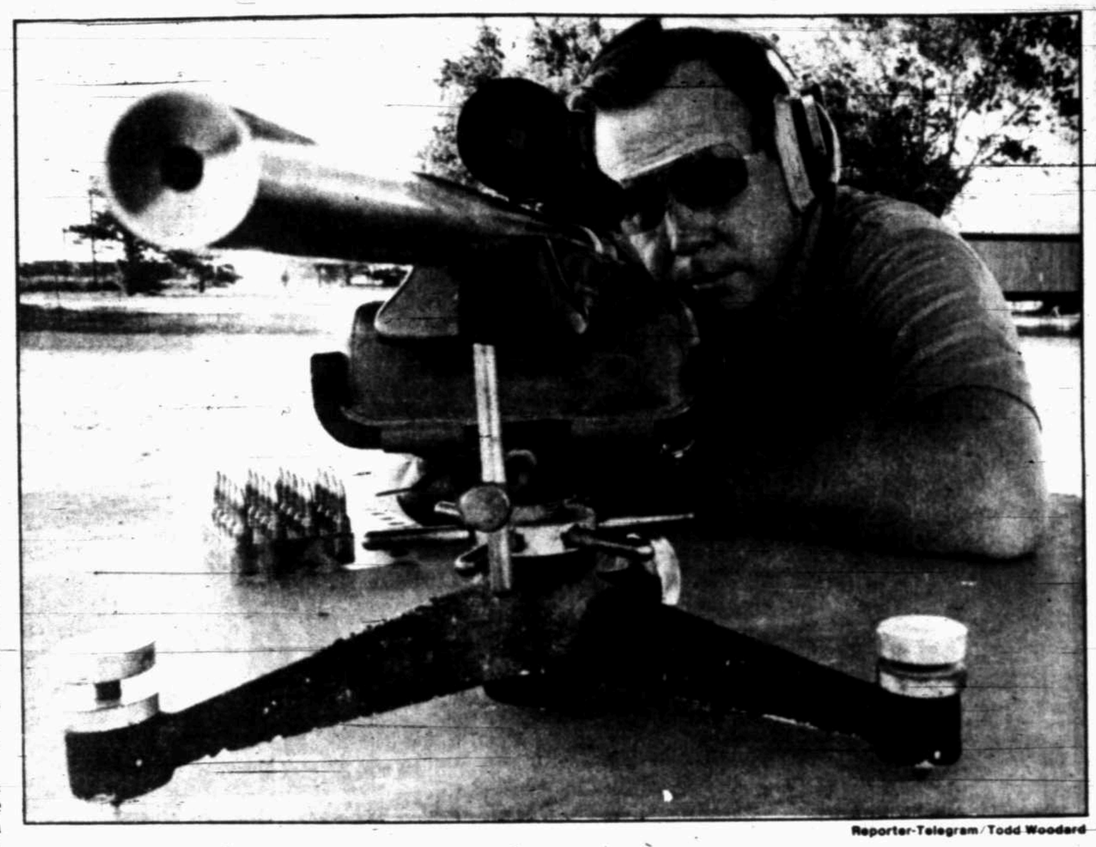

"I had to run the match as well as shoot. It was distracting," he said. "My nemesis, Don Geraci of New Orleans, won. I came in third."

The red-headed Fowler, who often doesn't wear a lens in the left frame of his glasses – because he's blind in that eye, said he's ready to regain his crown.

"I chose competition shooting because I have limited depth perception," he said. "But it's never been a disadvantage in bench rest. The target and the crosshair are in the same visual plane.

"My biggest advantage in regaining the championship is shooting in West Texas. Frequently in the southeast, you'll have what we call zero conditions. It's calm, still. Anybody with a good gun can shoot a low aggregate.

"It is never that way in West Texas. If you can learn to shoot well here, you can shoot anywhere."

Reporter-Telegram/Todd Woodard

Midlander Jef Fowler takes aim in a practice round as he prepares for an unprecedented fourth Bench Rest shooting title. From 1980-82, Fowler had the distinction of being known as the world's best shooter.

Amistad: stripers slow, catfishing in 15 feet of water good on worms and shrimp. Blacks hitting mostly in morning on chartreuse buzzbaits. Lake about 20 feet low.

Nasworthy: crappie at night hitting jigs and minnows, mostly around lights. Black bass around reeds hitting plastic worms, some worms trailing crawdads, 6 to 8 feet deep.

O.C. Fisher: unverified reports of 9-pound bass caught July 14. Lake manager said he's releasing water for San Angelo, lake losing water about an inch a day. All launching sites beyond use without four-wheel drive vehicle.

Spence: slow overall; but Sissy Manley of Midland caught an 8½-pound striper July 14. Kenneth Briggs, Larry and Chad Casey of Westbrook caught one 12-pound and one 8 pound blue catfishi July 14. Fishing around Paint Creek heavy for catfish and crappie.

Where trout fishing reigns, bamboo is king

By ROLLA WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. — R. W. "Bob" Summers, who has mastered and refined the art of making a fishing rod from a stalk of bamboo, has a philosophy all fishermen might embrace as their own.

"If the only thing a guy gets out of fishing is yanking fish out of the water, he's got problems," he says.

Fishing to Summers, who has a rod shop here, is not catching fish. It's the feel, the look, the touch of a fine fly rod. It's also the natural beauty of the Au Sable river, which flows east of here.

It's the listening in the dark for the slurp of a big trout, locating the fish, getting into position to cast to it, presenting just the right fly properly, the "take" of the fish, and then the fight that results.

A friend of his, a few days ago, attacked such a problem in just such a way and brought a 21-inch brown trout out of the Boardman River. It was an inch longer than Summers' best from this water, one which Ernest Hemingway's alter ego, Nick Adams, fished almost 50 years ago.

The natives like to mention that the young Hemingway never caught a trout on the Boardman. Instead, he landed two suckers.

"He traded them for a quart of milk at a house in Mayfield," the story goes.

Usually, Bob Summers releases small trout. But he might have kept that 21-incher, since it would have excited the folks who trade at his shop at 1142 E. 8th St. as well as being a high-water mark in his personal fishing history.

This is fly-fishing country. The Adams fly was invented here, as was the Michigan Hopper. A barber in town used to sell his personally tied flies with a money-back guarantee that they'd catch trout.

"That was Art Winnie," Summers says. "He gave flies away with his haircuts."

Summers, 43, master of bamboo, has lifted a 23-inch brown from the Manistee, a 21-incher from the Au Sable, but his best from the Boardman has been a 20-incher.

Summers has been associated with split bamboo, which comes in the form of a bamboo stalk from Asia, since 1956 when he took a job in Paul H. Young's shop in Detroit at age 15. He was fishing before that, of course, though he hasn't cast a worm to a trout since he was 14. He left the Young Company in 1974 to pursue his own ideas about fishing tackle in Traverse City.

In those days, back in the '50s and '60s, a top-of-the-line fly rod would sell for $70. Nowadays, such a rod might bring from $500 to $700 if made from split bamboo.

Bamboo rods became an endangered species during World War II because the source of Tonkin cane dried up. It was behind the Bamboo Curtain. The supply of cane has revived somewhat since, and in the interim fickle fishermen began singing the praises of fiberglass, graphite and boron.

Not Summers and many traditionalists in the fly-fishing ranks.

"If I were to choose between the best glass and the best bamboo, I'd go for bamboo," Summers says.

Why is this?

"Because it's smoother. It offers slower line speed."

What about "recovery," hook setting ability?

"I've never had any problem setting the hook with bamboo."

There is an aura, a magic, a mystique enveloping bamboo.

"Bamboo has a feel, a look, a touch. It is a thing of beauty," Summers says.

He remembers a black man, back in his Detroit days, a janitor who wanted a bamboo rod to fish for bluegill and bass. The man paid it off as he could, $10 one time, $5 another.

"This was spread over a two-year period," Summers says. "That fly rod meant more to him than it ever would to a rich man who'd pick it up for cash."

A fly rod, he insists, is not just for the wealthy industrialist, fishing a classic trout stream.

Judge dismisses Oakland suit against Raiders

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — A judge has dismissed Oakland's suit against the Raiders for a second time, again dashing the city's hopes of acquiring the National Football League team through the power of eminent domain.

A harshly worded ruling Monday by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Nat Agliano further diminishes Oakland's hopes of regaining the team in time for this season. The Oakland City Council was expected to make a decision later today whether to appeal Agliano's ruling.

City Attorney Richard Winnie said, "We are disappointed but not surprised. "We feel the Supreme Court gave the judge clear direction and he (Agliano) has chosen to cast it aside."

The ruling found Oakland's attempt to use eminent domain to get the team back from Los Angeles "devoid of the fundamental fairness element of due process."

David Self, attorney for the city, called the decision "without foundation," said the Oakland City Council would be asked to consider filing another appeal.

"That court does not like our case," he declared, "and that is putting it mildly. But that court is not the last word, thank God."

Judge Agliano said the city's stated purpose for acquiring the team was not for a public purpose because there is no reasonable probability the Raiders would be put to that purpose within seven years.

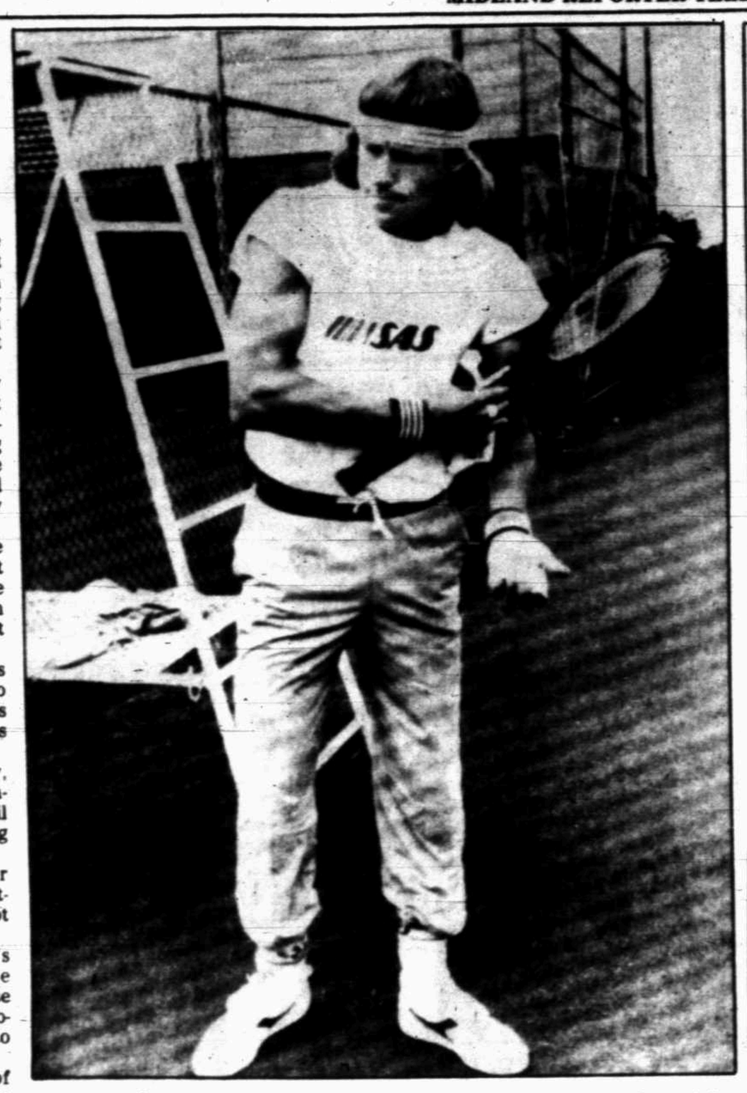

Agliano said he found a lack of due legal process in that the city failed to follow procedural requirements in adopting a resolution of necessity before filing the suit.

"The use of eminent domain as another means to keep the Raiders in Oakland is arbitrary, capricious, a gross abuse of discretion and devoid of the fundamental fairness element of due process," wrote Agliano in a 25-page opinion.

Raiders attorney Moses Lansky gleefully noted the opinion, declaring, "I always thought the suit by the city of Oakland was obscene ... we are winning all along the line."

The Raiders have played two complete seasons in Los Angeles. Before that, Oakland was the team's home since 1963.

Oakland filed suit in February 1980 to acquire the team through eminent domain.

Bjorn Borg warms up for his first match in 17 months Tuesday.

Leconte spoils Borg comeback

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Henri Leconte of France eliminated Sweden's Bjorn Borg 6-3, 6-1 Tuesday in the first round of a $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament.

The 28-year-old Swede came out of retirement to play the match, but was unable to show the form that made him a five-time Wimbledon champion.

Leconte, seeded seventh, took only 50 minutes to crush Borg.

The two last met in Monte Carlo on March 31, 1983, when Leconte defeated Borg, 6-4, 5-7, 6-7.

The Swede, winner of 62 Grand Prix tournaments during his career, went into retirement the following month, though he had announced the decision in January 1983.

Also on Tuesday, Spain's Jose Higueras beat Alvaro Fillol of Chile 6-4, 7-6, Givaldo Barbosa of Brazil beat West German Ruediger Benz 6-3, 7-6, Sergio Casal of Spain eliminated Wojtek Fibak of Poland 6-3, 6-1 and Lloyd Bourne of the United States beat fellow American Butch Walts 7-6, 6-1.

Houston starts workouts

HOUSTON (AP) — New Houston Oilers Coach Hugh Campbell will greet the early arrivals at the team's training facility on the Angelo State University campus Wednesday with a pat on the back for a job done well and a promise of a fair chance to make the team.

"In the past, I've always been willing to look at everybody during the preseason," Campbell said prior to the arrivals of rookies and free agents. "Otherwise you end up keeping the same veterans you had the year before."

Rookies and free agents, headed by mammoth offensive lineman Dean Steinkuhler, the Oilers' No.1 draft pick, are due in camp Wednesday and will begin twice-daily workouts on Thursday.

The veterans will report Friday and begin workouts Saturday with much attention being given to the first training camp for quarterback Warren Moon, who signed a five-year $6 million contract during the off-season.

Eight of 13 draft choices remained unsigned late Tuesday including the Oilers' two second-round selections, defensive end Doug Smith of Auburn and safety Bo Eason of California-Davis.

Smith and Eason are expected to bring immediate help to the Oiler defense that allowed 460 points last season, 27th among the 28 NFL teams, had the worst defense against the run and managed only 31 quarterback sacks.

Four veteran players remained unsigned Tuesday, wide receiver Mike Holston, offensive guard John Schuhmacher, kicker Florian Kempf and center Les Studdard.

Campbell, reporting for his first camp with the Oilers, says he prefers a positive approach to discipline.

"Everyone is business during business but they are allowed to smile in between," Campbell said. "It's OK to have a good time but not when you're the guy in the secondary back-peddling.

"It's okay between drills if you see the humor in a situation to express yourself."

Fines?

"My preference is to reward somebody for doing well rather than fine them for not doing well," he said. "Where discipline for me comes into action is where it's defiance or that type of mistake, not of dropping the football."

The Oilers also hope to benefit from the return of a happy and healthy Earl Campbell, who says he no longer wants to be traded and is recovering from arthroscopic surgery in the offseason.

The Oilers will work out twice daily until July 26 when they travel to Greeley, Colo., for a series of workouts with the Denver Broncos. Houston travels to Tampa for its first preseason game Aug. 4 and opens the regular season Sept. 2 in the Astrodome against the Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders.

Olympian kidnapped, shot

BIG SKY, Mont. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies staked out back-country roads Tuesday near where two men who called themselves "mountain people" kidnapped and shot a female athlete, killed a man who went to her aid and vowed not to be taken alive.

A second assault on a woman was reported 15 miles from the remote camp where the shooting occurred, and resorts in the wilderness area shut down outdoor activities.

Kari A. Swenson, 23, a member of the U.S. women's biathlon team, was in stable condition Tuesday in the intensive care unit of a hospital in Bozeman, her hometown, officials said.

She was rescued about noon Monday, four hours after she was shot in the chest at the mountain camp of the fugitives. Authorities said she was found chained around the waist to a tree. She was kidnapped Sunday afternoon while jogging in the area, several miles from the Lone Mountain Ranch where she worked.

Alan Goldstein, 34, of Big Sky, one of two men who began searching for her after she failed to return, was fatally wounded in the head by a rifle bullet early Monday as he tried to rescue her. He died instantly, officials said.

The other searcher, Jim Schwalbe, also of Big Sky, escaped and alerted authorities.

Authorities said the two men heard Swenson yelling, "Help me, I've been shot" as they approached the camp.

Gallatin County Sheriff John Onstad said police agencies in neighboring states were alerted to be on the lookout for the two who disappeard into the forest following the Monday morning shootings.

The motive for the attacks was not clear, authorities said.

Onstad said the two fugitives were possibly a father and son or perhaps brothers. He said a note written on a log at their camp said, "Danny and Don Nichols lived in these mountains July 14, 1984."

One was believed to be in his 40s and the other in his 20s. They were clad in military fatigues when they fled into the timber, officials said.

They called themselves "real mountain people," Onstad quoted Swenson as saying. They had guns and enough provisions to live in the mountains for a long time, she told investigators.

Swenson was the top finisher on the U.S. women's biathlon team that competed at Chamonix, France, last winter in the first-ever women's world championships in that sport, which combines skiing and marksmanship.

Meanwhile, a woman was assaulted Monday night on a road 15 miles from the shooting scene, and police said two of her attackers matched descriptions of the fugitives.

Madison County Sheriff Johnny France said the woman reported that three men in a red and white recreational vehicle forced her car off the road, and one man pulled her from her car and hit her. She said the men, who appeared to be drunk and carried rifles, then drove away.

Officials said the two wanted men had been seen in the Big Sky area previously in a brown station wagon with Alaska license plates.

About 13 sheriff's deputies from Madison and Gallatin counties manned stakeouts on backcountry roads in the Big Sky area Tuesday, believing the men might have stashed the station wagon and would attempt to drive away.

Onstad said officers were not combing through the woods. "The area is a natural baricade," he said. "There are many miles of dense cover."

A helicopter and plane were used in the search Monday to no avail.

Onstad said Swenson reported that her assailants vowed not to be taken alive.

Outdoor activities in the Big Sky resort area declined sharply as campers packed up and moved elsewhere. Some resorts asked guests to stay indoors.

"But there are a lot of people in the back country who still don't know what's going on and that's a little frightening," Onstad said.

IOC considers banning of boycotters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seoul will remain the host city of the 1988 Olympics and countries boycotting future Games may be banned from the next Olympiad under proposals being studied by the International Olympic Committee, IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch said Tuesday.

Quashing speculation that the 1988 Games may be moved from Seoul, Samaranch insisted the IOC will honor its contract with South Korea.

Speaking at a news conference that ended in a party for the IOC leader on his 64th birthday, Samaranch said he has a trip planned to Moscow on Sept. 3 to mend Olympic solidarity.

He warned that if "tensions" between the superpower nations remain high "we will be effected and we really will face some problems."

He said the boycott issue is a matter "we have to study" and suggested that countries that pull out of future Games for political reasons may not "have the right to take part in the next Games."

For the third consecutive Olympiad, the Games have been marred by political pullouts. About 30 black African countries walked out of the Montreal Games in 1976 over New Zealand's ties with South Africa. More than 80 teams boycotted the 1980 Moscow Games because of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Led by the Soviet Union, 14 Communist Bloc countries will miss the Los Angeles Olympics.

Olympics

Samaranch emphasized that the IOC's position on Seoul's status "is very clear. As always the IOC is honoring its contract. We signed a contract with Seoul and the 1988 Games will be held in Seoul."

He said the future of the Olympic Games "depends on the future of the world. If we have peace and normal relations between mainly the two superpowers, we will have great Games in 1988."

His trip to Moscow will be followed by a trip to Seoul on Sept. 27, where he will meet with Korean Olympic officials and attend the dedication of Seoul's new 100,000-seat stadium.

Asked if it was possible that the 1988 Games could be open to professional athletes, Samaranch did not directly respond, but said the IOC "must be realistic. We are living in the 80s. We're not living in the 20s."

He said the international federations are "very, very worried" about the professionalism issue, adding, "We would not like to favor some countries over others."

During the news conference, which ended in the presentation of a four-foot long birthday cake to the Spanish diplomat, Samaranch predicted the Los Angeles Games will be "a great success" and described the villages and sports facilities "wonderful" and among the best in Olympic history.

Peter V. Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, told reporters that the city's air quality "won't be great" during the Games, but should not affect athletic performances.

He announced that the villages, since opening on Saturday, have had more than 2,000 athletes from 64 countries check in to the residence halls at the University of Southern California and the UCLA.

He downplayed criticism from athletes, including superstar Carl Lewis, who have complained about cramped quarters, while Olympic officials reside in posh hotels.

According to Ueberroth, the Olympic setup will be "comfortable" for the athletes and each village will be "a great place to stay."

Asked about the current smog siege, Ueberroth admitted that air quality "won't be great" but added that it is a problem all major cities have and insisted that athletic performances will not be affected.

USA track team passes testing

GOLETA, Calif. (AP) — The Athletics Congress announced Tuesday that drug testing for all members of the 1984 U.S. Olympic track and field team a day earlier turned up negative.

Berny Wagner, spokesman for The Athletics Congress, made the announcement from the University of California-Santa Barbara, location of the U.S. training camp for track and field in preparation for the Games in Los Angeles, which is located about 100 miles to the southeast.

All members of the team were required to provide a sample at the U.S. Olympic Trials, which were staged in Los Angeles June 16-24.

Industry Changes Bring New Options

'Network Interface' or 'Protector' Marks Division of Responsibility

Among the many changes in the telecommunications industry is one which probably will affect you sooner or later, if it hasn't already.

It deals with your connection to the telephone network. Let's start from the beginning...

There's a device that marks the point where Southwestern Bell Telephone's lines (from a switching office) stop and where your inside wiring begins. (Inside wiring is simply the wiring inside your home.) That device is either a "network interface" or a "protector."

All telephone lines are installed with a protector (which protects against power surges), but not all telephone lines were installed with a network interface.

The network interface is a plug-in device which enables customers to connect or disconnect inside wiring from the telephone network access line.

If your home is a newer home, more than likely, it has a network interface installed either on the inside or outside close to where the telephone line comes to your home.

We started using network interfaces in 1982. If your home does not have a network interface, Southwestern Bell Telephone is responsible for the telephone line from the switching office, up to and including, the protector. This is where our lines ends and your inside wiring begins.

Until recently, we did all the installation and repair of wiring inside our customers' homes. Now that's all changed. Today, you have three options on how to handle installation and repair of inside wiring and jacks for your telephones:

(1) hire Southwestern Bell Telephone to do it,

(2) hire another contractor, or

(3) save the money by doing the work yourself. Materials are readily available from numerous retail stores.

If you choose Southwestern Bell Telephone to do the work, you should know about some new charges called "Premises Work Charges," recently approved by the Public Utility Commission of Texas. The charges, which include materials, are billed according to the time required to do the job.

Here is the schedule of those charges:

PREMISES WORK CHARGES FOR JACKS AND INSIDE WIRING

| | | 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday | Other Times: Monday-Friday All-day Saturday | Other Times: Sundays and Holidays |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Installation | Initial 15 Minutes | $18.50 | $22.75 | $27.00 |
| | Each Additional 15 Minutes | $10.50 | $12.50 | $14.75 |
| Repair | Initial 15 Minutes | $28.25 | $31.75 | $35.25 |
| | Each Additional 15 Minutes | $10.50 | $12.75 | $15.00 |

When we complete the work, you get a 30-day warranty against defects and malfunctions from the date of installation or repair. For your reference, keep this warranty handy.

For ease, convenience or cost savings, the choice is yours!

Distribution Clerk Machine (DCM)

The Midland Post Office has Indicated They Will Be Accepting Applications For The DCM Exam Soon. (Possibly this month) The dates for taking applications have not been set at this time, but those dates should appear in the near future on Post Office bulletin boards and in local newspapers. The DCM position currently pays $10.56 per hour plus excellent benefits. People are hired for these positions based on their exam score, i.e. the people with the highest scores are hired.

WORKSHOP BY POSTAL EXAM PREPARATION CENTER

Many cities often take applications and begin testing the very next week. This system does not allow adequate time for proper preparation. In order to make sure that you have enough time to properly prepare, this workshop is being offered before application dates have been set. This workshop was designed by the foremost authority in America on gaining postal employment. Stephen McNally is a former postal employee and a Ph.D. candidate in Education. He scored 100% on his first DCM exam. One of Mr. McNally's students recently made this statement, "This workshop was well worth my time and money. Using Mr. McNally's techniques allowed me to score 100% on my first 3 Clerk-Carrier exams!" K.A. Summerfield, IL The DCM exam and C/C exams are very similar.

GUARANTEED SCORE of 95% or HIGHER

★The Exclusive P.E.P.C. Double Guarantee: 1. At the end of the workshop, if you do not think these methods will significantly increase your score, your money will be refunded. 2. You will enter a written contract guaranteeing you a score of 95% or higher or your money will be refunded in full.

*After attending this workshop you will be personally notified of the application dates.

WORKSHOP TUITION IS $25.00. Payable in cash, Visa, or MasterCard. (No personal checks). This fee includes the 2½ hour workshop, the textbook ClerkCarrier, which includes DCM exam complete test, diagnostic practice exercises, tips to make you testwise, and more...

Cable television's The Nashville Network films one of 10 episodes Tuesday night at Water Wonderland. The production crew plans on completing five days of filming tonight at the amusement park. The segments, which will air this season beginning in August on the daytime series, feature area dancers performing the most popular country dances West Texas style.

'Dancin' USA' films local residents in 'Wonderland'

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

"Your eyes are getting heavy, real heavy," a young mother told her baby as she rocked the red and blue stroller back and forth. The baby, unconvinced, continued fussing.

It was almost time for the filming to begin at Water Wonderland for a segment of "Dancin' USA," but wee little people are not concerned about such matters, even when their mothers are part of the on-stage show.

Surrounded by cameras, lights, cables stretched underfoot in all directions and people milling around in groups of two to 20, a dance stage occupied the center area of the roped off space at Water Wonderland. Filming of one of the 10 segments of The Nashville Network television series was about to begin Tuesday night.

Suddenly a voice could be heard over the din.

"I'm going to count down from five," Billy Turner, stage manager and son of Bill Turner the series' producer/director, said.

Although all the dancers at the water amusement park were locals, most had been out for each night of filming since Saturday and knew exactly what to do. With few problems, two segments of the 30-minute contemporary country dance and music show were filmed Tuesday night between 8 and 11 p.m.

The production crew for cable television's The Nashville Network will finish the five-day shooting tonight with the last two segments before moving on to the next location. In all, the series will film 130 shows, 10 at each location throughout the United States, for this season.

During a break between the two segments, the show's host, country music artist Jacky Ward, talked about how he moved his singing career from Texas honky tonks to "Dancin' USA."

He was approached by The Nashville Network, which celebrated its first anniversary March 7, before the network went on the air. At the time, Ward, who was born in Groveton and grew up in the Dallas area, was recording and working one nighters on the road 250 days of the year. He had several hit singles behind him, such as "Big Blue Diamond," "A Lover's Question," "Fools Fall in Love" and "The Wisdom of a Fool."

"All of my life since I was a little boy," said the native Texan, "I've been singing in those night clubs where dancing was. I felt like it was a natural thing for me to do since I'd been singing to dancers all my life, so why not put it on television. And it's really been successful."

Although "Dancin' USA" has been termed a country Bandstand, Ward said it's not.

"I'm not like Dick Clark. I get to sing, I get to dance, and I get to be silly and have a good time. The show is primarily centered around dancers. We get to see how everybody dances different dances — Cotton Eyed Joe, two step and boogie woogie and all kinds. We're right now in the process of going all over the USA and seeing how people dance everywhere."

After performing since he was six years old and traveling on the road for most of his adult life, Ward said he's pleased with the transition to television. Even though he's traveling again, it's not the same as playing one night stands.

"It's a lot better. I've had a lot more time to get myself together and start writing again. I was really tired of the road. The road will really do you in after a while, and this was my relief."

For Melanie Greenwood, "Dancin' USA" represented an opportunity to work at what she loves the most — dancing.

In addition to watching local dancers do their steps, "Dancin' USA" includes dance lessons. When Mrs. Greenwood, who is the wife of country artist Lee Greenwood, was asked to audition for the dance instructor/choreographer on "Dancin' USA," she was also asked if she knew all the country dances.

Her reply was immediate. "Of course." Laughing, the California native said, "Then I went out and took a crash course at the Wranger. I'm a trained dancer and I specialize in jazz, ballet and tap. So I just went out and learned all I could. And I love it."

By filming the show on the road, Mrs. Greenwood has experienced how the same dances are stepped to across the United States.

"Basically what amazes me is the basic dances. They're all the same steps, but the style is different — the way the guys hold their ladies or a little bit of hips there or it's not any hips and they bounce. That's what I have to try and pick up on.

"But when I teach the dances, I keep them very simple so that the folks at home can learn them. And I'm amazed that when I'm out on the road or when I'm with Lee, visiting him on the road, people come up to me and actually say, 'Yes. I have learned such and such a dance from you on the show.' "

Alleged rape victim testifies acquaintance kicked in door

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The 33-year-old victim of an alleged aggravated rape recalled Tuesday for jurors how a previous acquaintance kicked down the door of her West Odessa trailer house and sexually assaulted her Aug. 20, 1983.

Thomas Capps, 35, faces a maximum sentence of life in prison and up to a $10,000 fine if found guilty of the aggravated rape. His attorney, Thomas Hirsch, repeatedly implied, during his cross-examination, that the victim had consented.

The victim testified she had met Capps about six months earlier at an Odessa nightclub. The defendant came to her home about 9:30 p.m. Aug. 19, the victim said, and she let Capps into the trailer when he told her he had a message from friends who had introduced the two at the earlier meeting.

She said Capps attempted to get her to go "have a drink" with him, but left without her after about 15 minutes. A knock at the door of the trailer about 1:27 a.m., Aug. 20, awoke her, said the victim.

While she was temporarily on hold after calling the sheriff's department, the victim testified Capps broke down her door, and "the next thing I knew he was in my bedroom."

Capps allegedly threatened to kill her if she had been calling the police, then struck her in the mouth, chipping her tooth, testified the victim. She told jurors he dragged her by the hair from the trailer to her car, then drove her to a nearby home, where he repeatedly threatened to kill her if she refused to have sexual intercourse with her or told anyone of the incident.

After making her promise not to report the attack, Capps allowed her to leave, said the victim. She arrived back at the trailer house at the same time as sheriff's deputies.

Capps was identified by the victim from a photo lineup later at the sheriff's office. Results of a rape test taken at the county hospital indicated she had had sexual intercourse during the time period the rape is alleged to have been committed.

Apparently, Capps' pick-up truck had broken down near the victim's residence. Sheriff's deputies testified they found a truck near the residence with a paper bearing the defendant's name in the glove compartment.

Midland commuters may find going easier if SH 349 widened

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Commuters on SH 349 in northeast Midland may eventually have two lanes to choose from, if a proposal to widen a two-mile stretch of the highway north of Loop 250 is approved by the Federal Highway Administration.

The proposal to expand the highway from two lanes to four was included in a transportation improvement program recently approved by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. It will be proposed to the federal agency in January 1986.

If the $750,000 project is approved, "You'll have four lanes of highway from downtown Midland to near the limits of Martin County," said Jerry Tschauner, director of planning for the Commission.

SH 349 connects Big Spring Street with the Lamesa Highway. According to Tschauner, the northward expansion of the city has increased traffic on the highway and made the reconstruction necessary.

"Back when things were booming, there was a lot of construction on the Loop, and that part of SH 349 became very congested," he said. Extending the four-lane highway two miles north of the loop "for all intents and purposes puts it past the residential area."

The proposal was part of the 1985-89 Midland-Odessa Transportation Improvement Program, which was given favorable comment by the Commission. The study lists transportation improvement projects for which local governments intend to apply for federal funds in the next few years.

"These are the primary projects that the government entities feel are most pressing," said Tschauner. "And in order for them to be approved (by the feds), they must be included in the document."

In other action, the commission:

— Gave favorable comment to proposals for improvements to Loop 338 and FM 1936 in Ector County and Spur 194 in Pecos County.

— Approved grant applications to the Texas Department of Community Affairs from Fort Stockton ($25,000 for a study on diversifying the local economy, now based primarily on the oil industry); from Seagraves ($9,200 to develop a wastewater collection plan); and Seminole ($24,100 to develop a plan for a new municipal well field to supply the city with water).

Area public aids Crime Stoppers in clearing Midland, Odessa cases

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Public participation in law enforcement through Odessa Crime Stoppers reportedly has helped clear 106 cases in Odessa during the program's first year.

Of 4,172 calls reported since May 1983, 377 people have supplied the local unit with 535 tips, according to stats released Tuesday.

Felony arrests have resulted 18 times from tips supplied through the program. More than $32,000 worth of narcotics has been confiscated after investigation of Crime Stoppers tips and $55,214 in stolen property has been recovered.

Tipsters have collected $10,350 from 31 rewards, with 18 informants declining their rewards.

Drug cases have been solved 38 times as a result of tip-offs provided through the local phone line, reached by dialing a local exchange (333 in Odessa), then TIPS in cities across the country. Programs have been developed in other Permian Basin communities, including Midland, Big Spring, Monahans, Crane, Colorado City and Andrews.

Burglars have been foiled 20 times and 18 fugitive felony warrants have been served using information provided to Odessa Crime Stoppers during its first 12 months of existence.

Midland began its program Jan. 27. Sheriff's Deputy David Cobos said calls have been more and more frequent as residents have grown more used to dialing the local number, 694-TIPS.

Stats through June showed 475 calls from 113 Midland informants resulted in 240 tips.

One area the newer program outdid Odessa's was in fugitive felony arrests, with 26 reportedly coming from local tips in little more than five months, compared to 18 over 12 months in Odessa.

Narcotics valued at $10,728 were confiscated in seven arrests. Stolen property worth $4,883 was recovered through investigation of the local tips.

Midland tipsters earned $2,700 from 14 rewards.

"Everybody we've talked to is having the same problems we are," said Butch Webb, president of the Odessa Crime Stoppers board, of continuing efforts to collect donations for the payoffs.

National statistics show a decrease in crime rates in cities with Crime Stoppers.

Forget about watering the streets

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Midland may not now be facing the drought conditions which are plaguing such eastern neighbors as Abilene and San Angelo, but conservation is still important, because in West Texas a city that seems to have plenty of water today could easily find itself rationing water tomorrow.

"The showers could all of a sudden favor us and not you," said Phil Neighbors, development director of the Abilene-based West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

There's a double-jeopardy element to drought conditions, because dry weather encourages people to use even more water than normal to keep their lawns green and their shrubs healthy. The Chamber is urging West Texans not to use more water than they need on their yards.

"I think you could cut back somewhere around a third of water use in the household and still maintain our quality of life," said Neighbors.

"It is always a concern to get the maximum use of our water resources," said John Lowe, Midland's director of public utilities. "Conservation practices wouldn't cost us anything and would pay a great dividend in the long run."

The Chamber recommends that homeowners conserve water by following certain guidelines:

— Water your lawn early in the morning during the hot months. Much water used on the lawn can simply evaporate between the sprinkler and the grass.

— Use a sprinkler that produces drops of water rather than a fine mist, to avoid evaporation.

— If you use a soaker hose, turn it so the holes are on the bottom, again to avoid evaporation.

— Water slowly for better absorption, and never on windy days.

— Forget about watering the streets or walks or driveways. They won't grow a thing.

— Condition the soil with compost before planting flower beds so that water will soak in rather than running off.

— Fertilize lawns at least twice a year for root stimulation. Grass with good root systems makes better use of less water.

— Learn to know when your grass needs watering. If it has turned a dull gray-green and footprints remain visible as you walk across it, it's time to water.

— Don't water too frequently. Too much water can overload the soil so that air cannot get to the roots, and can encourage plant diseases.

— Don't over-water. Soil can absorb only so much moisture and the rest simply runs off. A timer will help, and either your kitchen timer or an alarm clock will do. An inch-and-a-half of water applied once a week will keep most Texas grasses alive and happy.

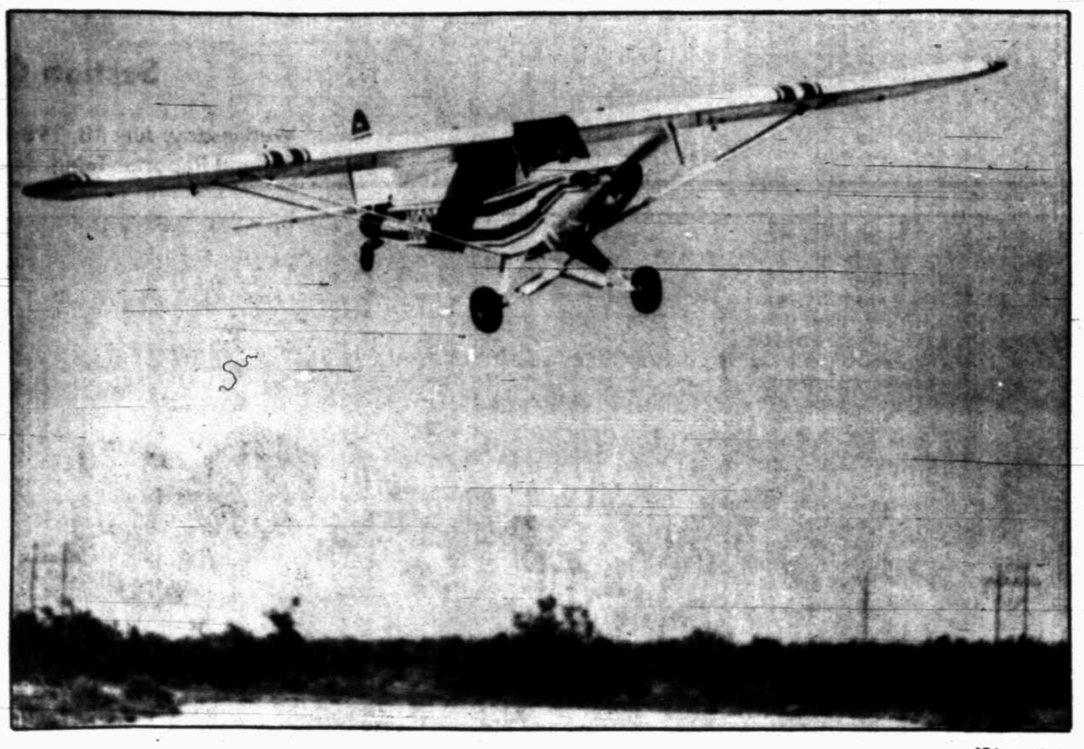

— Automatic sprinkler systems should be operated only when the demand on your town's water supply is lowest. Set the system to operate between 4 a.m. and 6 a.m.

— Don't scalp your lawn during hot weather. Taller grass holds moisture better. Cut grass fairly often, so that only a half to three quarters of an inch are trimmed off. This will produce a better-looking lawn.

— If small areas in your yard need more frequent watering (those near walks or driveways or in especially hot, sunny spots), hand water with the hose in those areas.

— Never "sweep" your walks or driveways with the hose. Use a broom or rake.

— When washing the car, use a bucket of soapy water. Use the hose only for rinsing.

Marcus Bates, 56, prepares to land a neighbor's Super Cub on a caliche runway at a remote airstrip six miles from Odessa, known as Bates Field. The 320-acre airfield is home to about a dozen admittedly unconventional families who share a passion for planes and wide open spaces.

Road to Bates Field leads to and from the world

ODESSA (AP) — "Danger" — the road sign from a tiny, private airfield in Midland County warns in bold, red letters. "This is the road to and from the world."

While Bates Field isn't exactly out of this world, it definitely is off the beaten track and home to about a dozen admittedly unconventional families that share a passion for airplanes and wide, open spaces.

Their similarities, however, seem to diverge at that point — except for a shared tragedy that likely will stick in the memories of many of them for years.

The owners of Bates Field, Marcus and Jo Ann Bates, run the Permian Basin's only patent office. When they purchased the 320 barren acres about six miles southeast of Odessa about eight years ago, they intended to live there alone.

By 1981, they decided to create two runways with materials from a nearby caliche pit and sell the lots to friends who build and fly airplanes, Bates, 56, said.

Alton Teague, a 25-year-old consulting engineer, said last week he doesn't really consider Bates Field "that remote."

EARLINE MURRAY, 51, has dozens of quarter-sized, multi-colored, speckled quail eggs in her kitchen.

And her backyard, marked by a homemade lake and make-shift wharf, is home to several birds including ducks, chickens, mockingbirds and guinea fowl.

In the morning, Ms. Murray says, her yard "sounds like a wheel that needs grease."

Other residents said the worst part of county living are the insects and the dust.

"I wouldn't say it's quiet out here," Mrs. Bates, 47, said of the animal noises and frequent aircraft takeoffs and landings. "Tranquil is a better word."

Other residents include an oil field contractor-entrepreneur, a machinist, an airport operator and an electronics expert.

And they're like a "big family."

A year ago on the Fourth of July, that "big family" along with about 100 other residents and friends of Bates Field gathered to enjoy an Independence Day barbecue and airborne stunts by a visiting pilot friend.

THE PILOT, 49-year-old Jesse Donald Gathright of Richardson, was performing in a rebuilt, highly modified, two-seat Taylorcraft about 8:13 p.m., Mrs. Bates recalled last week. His passenger was Gail Allen, 32, of Austin.

"I was standing right beside his wife," Mrs. Bates said, when Gathright appeared to lose control of the aircraft at about 1,000 feet. The aircraft hit some power lines about a mile north of the Bates Field runway and crashed.

The pilot died on impact and his body lodged against Ms. Allen, who was severely injured and "suffocating" against the weight of the dead man's body, Mrs. Bates said. Gathright's wife, she added, "went into shock and fainted."

Teague, who had lived at Bates Field only a month at the time, was among the first group of men to ride vehicles through a fence to the mangled airplane.

"IT WAS A pretty bad scene," he recalled. "We were very surprised that the lady was still alive."

By the time the ambulance arrived about 20 minutes later, the men had removed both occupants from the airplane and saved Ms. Allen's life, Mrs. Bates said.

Teague said he was worried about "a lot of adverse publicity" after the fatal crash.

Another Bates Field resident and aerobatic pilot, entrepeneur Sam Holloman — the first to arrive at the crash scene — said although the oil spot has faded where the crash occurred, he still thinks about his aircraft's "tail feathers" when he flies upside down or at high speeds.

But the "serene" life at Bates Field definitely is back to normal, said Holloman, 54, who characterized himself as a man who "likes to take risks."

"You don't have to worry about theft. There's no crime, no violence," he said. "You're in a very special little part of the world."

AND WHILE Holloman estimated he has invested more than $120,000 on his home and the swimming pool and hot tub he shares with several neighbors, he said a Bates Field homestead can be established for considerably less.

Police kill teen-age boy in robbery

PLAINVIEW (AP) — Authorities say a 16-year-old youth attempting to rob a convenience store early Tuesday was shot and killed by police, who apparently mistook a pair of bolt cutters for a weapon.

Police Chief Hugh Anderson said Dock Allen Parker was shot once by officer Gary Thurman as he exited the rear of Allsup's convenience store.

Sgt. Bobby Chandler responded to a tripped alarm at the store at 3:02 a.m. Tuesday, according to police reports. Upon arrival, he observed a man wearing a ski mask crouched behind a counter inside the store.

Chandler radioed for officers Eddie Burton and Thurman to cover the rear of the store. The officers stationed themselves at opposite corners of the rear of the store. Seconds later, Parker stepped out the rear door.

Police said the youth had a paper bag in one hand and a "metallic object" in the other. Officer Thurman then identified himself and ordered the suspect to "freeze."

According to the report, Parker "turned abruptly" and Thurman fired one shot from his .38-caliber revolver. Parker fell to the ground behind a dumpster. The officers then radioed for an ambulance.

Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone pronounced Parker dead at the scene.

Police said Thurman, who had 12 years of police experience in Lubbock before joining the Plainview force two years ago, will be placed on administrative leave while the incident is being investigated.

TRIAL

Hirsch questioned why she allowed Capps into the trailer and offered him a beer when he first came to the trailer, as she had testified. But she insisted her motive was to get the message Capps said he had from her friends.

She denied having left voluntarily to drive Capps home after the truck had broken down. Hirsch also questioned why no mention of the chipped tooth or any bruises, cuts or lacerations were included in the medical report.

Under questioning by District Attorney Mike Holmes, the victim insisted she had not resisted because Capps threatened her life, and brandished a gun after assaulting her.

Two deputies testified the trailer house door had been broken, apparently by someone forcing their way inside the residence.

Testimony was scheduled to resume today in the 70th District Court, with Judge Gene Ater presiding.

Survivors include her husband; three daughters, Johnnie Bargsley and Shelia Tipton of Midland and Wanda Damron of Crane; two stepdaughters, Karen Schultz of Tucson, Ariz., and Paula Westbrook of Lubbock; three stepsons, Cecil Riddle Jr. of Levelland and Mike and Melvin Riddle of Odessa; her mother, Lois Tindol of Crane; her father, E.L. Smith of Bakersfield, Calif.; a sister, Joan Nixon of Crane; three brothers, Gene and Jimmy Smith of Bakersfield and Al Smith of Spokane, Wash.; 17 grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Jim Sutton

Jim Sutton, 47, of Midland, died Tuesday following a sudden illness.

Graveside services are set for 1:30 p.m. Thursday at Sunset Memorial Cemetery in Odessa.

Robert E. Lea Sr.

ODESSA — Robert E. Lea Sr., 87, of Odessa, died Monday night in an Odessa hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Charles Crutchfield, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Odessa, officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Mausoleum.

He was born Nov. 8, 1896, in Archer City. He had been a resident of Odessa since 1924. He was a retired druggist, a member of the First United Methodist Church and a charter member of the Odessa Chuckwagon Gang. He was the first vice president of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce when it was first organized. He also was a member of the Sheriff's Posse of Odessa, the Sam Helms Masonic Lodge and was a former chairman of the board and a director of First National Bank of Odessa. He owned and operated the L&H Drug Store for 49 years and had numerous other business interests in New Mexico and other West Texas cities.

Survivors include a son, Robert E. Lea Jr. of Odessa; a daughter, Mary Ida Williams of Odessa; three grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

SW Bell fails to connect with consumers at hearing

ODESSA (AP) — If a public hearing here serves as an indicator, Southwestern Bell appears to be riding a wave of consumer apathy toward its proposal to charge for each outgoing local call.

During a Texas Public Utility Commission hearing Monday at Odessa's City Hall, only five consumers spoke out against local measured service — or LMS — which Bell wants to offer as an option to its 5 million Texas customers.

Rates for outgoing local calls would be based on length of call, distance and time of day like long distance calls. The only free outgoing calls would be those to Bell or emergency 911 calls.

Among those speaking out were the head of a temporary employment agency in Midland and a woman representing a rape counseling center and two senior citizen programs in Odessa.

Supporters of local measured service say it would allow phone customers to pay only for their actual use. Opponents contend it would mean higher rates for most phone customers.

The PUC will render a decision on the new rate proposal in September.

Woman marries, then gives birth

DALLAS (AP) — A determined 17-year-old woman in labor has gotten married at the courthouse, barely winning a dead heat between a marriage license and a birth certificate.

"She said she didn't want to leave until she was married," said Ardys Pyles, chief clerk for the marriage license office at the Dallas County Courthouse.

When Debra Tubbs and her 21-year-old fiance, Tony McDaniel, went to the courthouse Tuesday to get a marriage license, they were hoping for a church wedding.

Then things started getting complicated.

First, McDaniel found — after waiting in line for the marriage license — that the driver's license he needed for identification had expired.

When he went to get a new one, his name cropped up on a list of unpaid traffic tickets. The fine was $59 but McDaniel only had $41. A kindly police officer loaned him $18 to pay the rest of the fine, McDaniel said.

New driver's license in hand, McDaniel went back for the marriage license. Then he realized he'd spent all his money on the traffic fine.

This time Mrs. Pyles came to the rescue, loaning him $7.50 for the marriage license.

Legislative task force on cancer to hold public hearing in Odessa

From Staff Reports

Public input on cancer education, screening, care and nutrition will be given at a Thursday hearing hosted by the West Texas Subcommittee of the Legislative Task Force on Cancer in Texas at the Odessa Medical Center Hospital auditorium.

Subcommittees of the task force also are gathering public opinions about cancer registry, smoking, insurance coverage and transportation at the statewide hearings, which will be compiled into an interim report of recommendations and submitted to Speaker of the House Gib Lewis in September.

The hearings also will focus on unique regional issues and underserved areas.

The public is encouraged to submit either written or oral testimony at the local hearing, which will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the hospital, 500 W. 4th St. in Odessa. Oral testimony will be limited to 10 minutes and those who can only attend at a certain time are asked to contact Dr. C.R. Allen Jr. at (806) 797-4331 to schedule an appointment.

For further information, contact Allen or Jerry R. Walsh, chairman of the West Texas Subcommittee, at (806) 274-2161.

Man reports theft of tent, automotive tools

From Staff Reports

David Hay of 3810 Tanner told city police a six-man tent and a set of automotive tools worth a total of $1,400 were taken in a burglary of a storage shed at his residence over the weekend.

In another burglary complaint, an employee of Willow Bend Apartments, 2438 Whitmire, said furniture valued at $750 was stolen from a vacant apartment at the complex sometime Monday. Entry was through an unlocked bedroom window, according to police.

City official pays fine

AUSTIN (AP) — City Manager Jorge Carrasco wrote a $200 personal check Tuesday to pay a fine that the city received for violating its own water conservation ordinance.

"I will not condone violations of this type," Carrasco said. "As the person who is ultimately responsible for city operations, I am taking responsibility for the Monday infraction."

The city Parks and Recreation Department was one of the first offenders cited Monday, when watering restrictions took effect. Sprinklers were going illegally at Caswell Tennis Center and another park site.

Honey-making insects consider beekeeper the enemy

ODESSA (AP) — Although he's worked with bees for 25 years and understands their likes and dislikes, the honey-making insects still consider him an enemy.

That's the contention of James "Britt" Brittingham, a good-natured, 59-year-old retired telephone company employee whose hobby seems to have become a habit, if not a passion.

"It's nature's work," Brittingham said as he puttered around a white, wooden beehive next to his Odessa home. "God put insects on Earth to help mankind. And the honeybee is one of the most interesting insects on Earth," he said.

Although most beekeepers help their bees by providing a hive forever stocked with thin sheets of wax to be used as a honeycomb foundation, man still is an intruder "robbing them of their harvest," Brittingham said.

After pumping some smoke into the hive and popping a piece of honeycomb into his mouth, he said, "If I'm careful, they'll ignore me."

Brittingham explained bees react to the smoke by gorging themselves with honey in preparation for escape.

The gorging, Brittingham's wife, Dean, said, makes the bees too sluggish to attack.

The couple is among about 43 members of the Permian Basin Beekeepers' Association. But Brittingham estimated there are more than 150 beekeepers in Odessa alone.

The association, now about 10 years old, meets at 7:30 p.m. the second Tuesday of each month at the Odessa College Student Union Building, Mrs. Brittingham said.

The Brittinghams also are among about 400 members of the Texas Beekeepers Association, said that organization's former president, G.C. Walker, a professional beekeeper from Rogers.

While most West Texas beekeepers are hobbyists, selling some of their honey locally, Walker said honeybees are a "multimillion-dollar business" in Texas.

Professional beekeepers are concentrated in Southwest Texas "where wild trees and shrubs grow," said Walker, also a former American Beekeeping Federation president.

Nationwide, domestic and export honey sales combine for a $150 million to $200 million business, he said last week, estimating there are 5 million bee colonies nationwide — about 200,000 colonies in Texas.

But the real money is in pollination, Walker said.

Agriculturists "get $10 billion to $18 billion worth of pollination out of our bees" each year, he said.

Beeswax, used in a variety of products from cosmetics to rifle shells, constitutes about 2 or 3 percent of the industry, he added.

Brittingham, who sells his beeswax to manufacturers, said a hive can be started with a $100 investment for beekeeping equipment, a queen and some worker bees.

Despite precautions of smoking the hive, wearing a net over the face and covering most of the skin with thick clothing, getting stung is inevitable in the bee business, said another Odessa keeper, Gayland Reed.

Both Reed and Brittingham keep the bulk of their hives at a local ranch. Because the two beekeepers fear vandalism and theft of the hives, they declined to give the ranch's location.

Noting the theory that the smell of bee venom from one sting could trigger other bees to attack, Reed said, "It's how you react to them.

"The other day, I went out there (to the ranch) on a cloudy day, but that's not the time. They got kind of mean," said the 34-year-old Reed, who was stung "six or eight times" on the hand during that episode.

Another time, he said, "Britt and I went out there all afternoon robbing a pickup load of honey and we didn't get one sting."

The mood of the bees has a lot to do with the weather, Brittingham said, adding he gets stung 75 or 80 times per year.

Stormy weather, he said, makes the bees "a little bit angry," while sunshine brings a calmer mood to the hive.

POTATOES WITH A LATIN BEAT

With the impact of Hispanic cultures on "Americana" ways, good cooks across the country have come to regard favorably the mastery behind the simple but artful blending of flavors and ingredients that creates an exotic but diverse Hispanic cuisine.

But there are some really familiar elements. Take the potato. Throughout all the Americas, the potato has been part of the culinary repertoire, having been cultivated in Peru and Chile. What's even more interesting is that ancient Incas developed chuño, a freeze-dried version of the spud, as sort of a forerunner of what's considered an all-American food technology triumph, convenient processed potatoes.

Bring a flavor of Hispanic adventure to the table a medley of recipes from Peru, Mexico, Colombia or Puerto Rico, starting with Peruvian Potato Salad, made with dehydrated potatoes.

For a versatile side dish, Papas con Chicharos Mexicano (Mexican potatoes with peas) gives frozen hash browns a new look. The salad has the natural bite of onion and the color accent of fresh tomato bits, displaying the imaginative blend of Spanish and Indian influences at the core of most Mexican cookery. Introduce it the first day as a hot vegetable and if there's any left over, chill for the next day to serve in lettuce cups as a pleasant summer salad.

A well-known Colombian creation is papas chorreadas, cooked potatoes accompanied by a rich cheese sauce with onions, traditionally a favorite in the mountain plateau of Bogota. Our savory variation, Potatoes with Creamy Colombian Sauce, uses frozen French fries. Serve the fries as a finger food with dip or as a side dish bathed in the mellow cheese sauce.

Rounding out the selection is a delectable idea developed closer to home, Juan's Papas Rellenos from Puerto Rico. Ham, onion and peppers simmered in lard or oil make the sofrito, the filling for the deep-fried potato balls. With the heartiness and spiciness that characterize much of this island's cookery, these fritters are the perfect accompaniment for any kind of grill or barbecue. They can even be made ahead and refrigerated, ready to fry at the last minute.

PERUVIAN POTATO SALAD

(NOT ILLUSTRATED)

- 1 package (5.25 ounces) dehydrated, scalloped potatoes with sauce mix
- 3 3/4 cups water, divided
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
- 1 can (4 ounces) green chilies, drained, finely chopped (1/3 cup)
- 1 jar (2 ounces) pimiento, drained, finely chopped (3 tablespoons)
- Shredded lettuce
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/4 cup ripe, pitted, sliced olives
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and quartered

In a medium saucepan combine potatoes and 3 cups water; heat to boiling. Reduce heat, cover, simmer until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes. Drain. Cool to room temperature. Meanwhile in a small saucepan heat oil; cook onion and garlic until tender. Stir in packaged sauce mix. Gradually stir in remaining 3/4 cup water and lime juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens. In a large bowl gently combine sauce, potatoes, chilies and pimiento. Arrange mixture on a bed of shredded lettuce. Sprinkle with walnuts. Garnish with olive silces and hard-cooked eggs. YIELD: 4 servings.

PAPAS CON CHICHAROS MEXICANO

- 1/3 cup olive oil
- 1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
- 4 cups frozen hash brown potatoes
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas, thawed
- 2 medium tomatoes, chopped (1 1/2 cups)
- 1 can (4 ounces) chopped green chilies, drained
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano, crumbled

In a large skillet heat olive oil; cook onion 5 minutes. Carefully add potatoes to form a single layer. Cover. Cook 15 to 20 minutes over medium-heat until potatoes are done; stir occasionally. Add peas, tomatoes, chilies, vinegar, salt, pepper, thyme and oregano; cook until heated through. Serve hot as a vegetable or cold as a salad. YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

POTATOES WITH CREAMY COLOMBIAN SAUCE

- 1 package (24 ounces) frozen dinner fried potatoes
- 2 teaspoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground coriander (or 2 teaspoons chopped fresh)
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/8 teaspoon dried leaf oregano, finely crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 large tomato, finely chopped (3/4 cup)
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded Muenster cheese

Prepare potatoes according to package directions. In a small saucepan melt butter; add onion, salt, coriander, cumin, oregano and pepper sauce; cook 5 minutes until onion is tender. Add tomato, cook 10 minutes longer until slightly thickened. Gradually stir in cream; heat through. Remove from heat, add cheese, stir until cheese melts. Serve as a dip or sauce for potatoes. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings (1 cup sauce).

JUAN'S PAPAS RELLENOS

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 4 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups instant potato flakes
- 3/4 cup milk
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 small onion, finely chopped (1/2 cup)
- 1/2 cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1 small ripe tomato, finely chopped (1/2 cup)
- 1/2 cup cooked, diced ham
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon dried, crushed coriander (or 2 teaspoons chopped fresh)
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano, crumbled
- Oil for frying
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal

In a large saucepan combine water, butter and salt; bring to a rolling boil. Remove from heat, stir in potato flakes and milk. Mix until smooth. Cover. Chill until cool enough to handle. Meanwhile in a large skillet heat olive oil; cook onion, green pepper, tomato, ham, garlic, pepper sauce, coriander and oregano until vegetables are tender and liquid has evaporated. Stir occasionally. Measure out 1/4 cup mashed potatoes, flatten into a 1/4-inch thick circle. Spoon a heaping tablespoon of vegetable-ham mixture into center of circle. Press potato mixture around filling to form a ball. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Dip potato balls in beaten egg; roll in cornmeal. In a saucepan or deep-fat fryer, heat 2 inches of oil to 375°F. on a deep-fat frying thermometer. Fry balls until lightly golden on all sides. Drain on paper towel. If desired, serve on a platter lined with shredded lettuce. Garnish with tomato wedges. YIELD: About 12 balls; 6 servings.

California Slim Goddess Potato Salad is a delicious way to cut calories.

Potato salad has different twist

The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

Old familiar favorites with a new twist are a big part of "the new American cuisine." And certainly, those who make a pastime of trying to define the nation's culinary character would include potato salad on a list of American favorites.

The new twist to the California Slim Potato Salad here is that it is nutritionally more sensible than the old-fashioned mayonnaise-loaded salad. To begin with, potatoes themselves are a bargain of nutrients. A medium potato has only about 100 calories and provides 35 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for Vitamin C and 10 percent for niacin and iron as well as small but significant amounts of other vitamins and minerals. Add to that the nutritional contributions of other ingredients, such as zucchini and tomatoes, and take away the calories and fat when yogurt replaces mayonnaise in the dressing, and the result is a 139-calorie potato salad that offers more food value than its higher-calorie counterpart.

Compare those nutritional values with the more traditional Picnic Potato Salad. This recipe contains more than twice the calories of the first salad, but shows lower values for most other nutrients. Still, it is the typically old-fashioned American food many of us long for. If it's a favorite with your family, go ahead and serve it, but bring the meal nutritionally up to date by serving a low-fat entree such as grilled chicken or fish, sans any rich sauces.

CALIFORNIA SLIM POTATO SALAD

1 1/2 pounds potatoes
1 1/2 tablespoons white wine
Salt, pepper
3 cups shredded zucchini
3/4 cup halved cherry tomatoes
Slim Dressing
6 large green-leaf lettuce leaves
1 cup pitted black olives
2 tbsps. chopped parsley

In heavy saucepan with tight-fitting lid, cook potatoes in about 1 inch boiling water until tender, about 20 minutes. Cool slightly. Peel and cube. In bowl, toss warm potatoes with wine, 1-2 teaspoon salt and pepper to taste. Set aside. Place zucchini in colander. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Let stand about 10 minutes, then gently squeeze out as much water as possible. Add zucchini and tomatoes to potatoes. Toss with Slim Dressing. Arrange on lettuce-lined platter. Garnish with olives and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Slim Dressing

1/2 cup plain yogurt
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1 (2-ounce) can anchovy fillets, minced
1 tbsp. half and half
1 tbsp. tarragon vinegar
1 tbsp. minced parsley
1 tbsp. sliced green onion
1 1/2 tsps. lemon juice
1 1/2 tsps. chopped chives
1 1/2 tsps. minced fresh tarragon

In 1-quart jar with tight-fitting lid, combine yogurt, mayonnaise, anchovies, half and half, vinegar, parsley, green onion, lemon juice, chives and tarragon. Shake vigorously to blend well. Chill at least 4 hours.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD

1 1/2 pounds unpeeled potatoes
3 hard-cooked eggs
1 1/2 cups sliced celery
1/3 cup sliced green onions
3 tbsps. chopped parsley
2/3 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup sour cream
3 tbsps. white wine vinegar
1 tbsp. prepared mustard
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. black pepper
1/4 tsp. paprika

Scrub potatoes well and place in large, heavy saucepan with tight-fitting lid. Add 1 to 2 inches boiling water. Cover and cook over high heat 30 to 40 minutes or until potatoes are tender when pierced with fork. Drain, cool and peel. Cut into 3-4-inch cubes. Place in large bowl with eggs, celery, green onions and parsley. In small bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, sour cream, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper. Cover and chill. Sprinkle with paprika just before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Green goddess dressing tops potato salad

In 1915 the chef at San Francisco's Palace Hotel invented a new salad dressing, laced with green onions, parsley, tarragon, chives and anchovies, and named it after a play which was appearing in the city — "The Green Goddess."

Now this favorite salad dressing is gracing an unusual low-calorie potato salad.

Potatoes are packed with nutrition. A medium potato supplies 35 percent of the U.S. RDA of vitamin C, 20 percent of the vitamin B-6 and 10 percent of niacin and iron, as well as smaller but significant amounts of other vitamins and minerals. And all for only about 100 calories.

CALIFORNIA SLIM GODDESS POTATO SALAD

4 to 5 medium potatoes (about 1-1/2 pounds)
1-1/2 tablespoons white wine
Salt and pepper to taste
3 cups shredded zucchini
3/4 cups halved cherry tomatoes
Slim Goddess Dressing (recipe follows)
Lettuce leaves
Pitted ripe olives
Chopped parsley

In heavy saucepan with tight-fitting lid cook potatoes in about 1-inch boiling water until tender, about 20 minutes. Cool slightly; peel and cube. In bowl toss warm potatoes with wine, salt and pepper; set aside. Place zucchini in colander; sprinkle lightly with salt. Let stand about 10 minutes then gently squeeze out as much water as possible. Add zucchini and tomatoes to potatoes. Toss with dressing; arrange on lettuce-lined platter. garnish with olives and parsley. Makes about six servings.

Slim Goddess Dressing: In quart jar with tight-fitting lid combine 1/2 cup unflavored yogurt, 1/4 cup mayonnaise, 1 can (2 oz.) anchovy fillets, minced; 1 tablespoon each half and half or milk, tarragon vinegar, minced parsly and green onions and 1-1/2 teaspoons each lemon juice, snipped fresh or dried chives and minced fresh tarragon (or 1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon). Shake vigorously to blend well. Chill at least four hours.

Vegetarian kebabs barbecued

By DIANE SAVAGE
Copley News Service

The outdoor barbecue, an American tradition throughout the summer months, was named from the Spanish word, "barbacoa," a metal framework on posts, placed over a fire to smoke or dry meat.

Back yards and beaches are the setting for these outdoor feasts featuring hamburger and wiener roasts — but what are we vegetarians to do? Because we eschew meat, are we necessarily excluded from this summertime tradition?

No way! There are plenty of ways to rustle up a completely meatless barbecue. Here are a few ideas:

To grill fresh mushrooms, wash and pat dry, then dot with margarine and wrap in heavy-duty foil. If desired, sprinkle with herbs (parsley, pepper, paprika) and a few tablespoons wine or dry sherry. Fold foil tightly and place on grill, about 30 minutes for 1 pound mushrooms.

For barbecued onions, simply wrap whole onions (skins on) individually in heavy-duty foil. Arrange directly on hot coals, turning occasionally with tongs, until cooked through, about ½ hour. Remove foil, peel off outer layers and serve plain or buttered.

MARINATED VEGETARIAN SHISH-KEBABS

1 small eggplant, cut into 1½-inch chunks
2 doz. medium-size mushrooms, cleaned and patted dry with paper towels
2 doz. cherry tomatoes
2 medium-size bell peppers, cut into wide strips
2 medium-size onions, cut into 1-inch chunks
Lightly toasted sesame seeds (garnish)

Marinade:
1¼ cups wine vinegar
1½ cups vegetable oil
3 tbsps. red wine
2 cloves garlic, crushed
½ tsp. basil
½ tsp. oregano
3 tbsps. freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Prepare marinade first by combining all ingredients in large bowl. Mix well Place eggplant chunks on lightly oiled cookie sheet and broil until just soft — not mushy. Stir them into marinade, along with cleaned mushrooms, and refrigerate for at least 3 hours. Then skewer all vegetables in attractive arrangement and you're ready to barbecue. Baste often with marinade which remains in bowl. Sprinkle cooked shish-kebabs with lightly toasted sesame seeds, if desired, and serve on a bed of steamed brown rice. Serves 6 (2 skewers apiece).

Midland County Public Library Children's Department will present Jim McPherson in a magic show to celebrate the end of its summer reading program, "Magical Mysteries."

The show will be at 10:30 a.m. July 27. The only admission charge will be completion of the summer reading program. Because the reading program will continue throughout July, children still have an opportunity to participate.

McPherson is a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians (IBM), the Society of American Magicians (SAM) and The West Texas Wizards, local magic club.

Pasta long popular in Europe

Copley News Service

In Sicily, pasta is known as a "blessed food," and except in Northern Italy, where polenta and rice are traditional staples, pasta is a daily blessing.

Popular history has it that noodles were introduced to the Western world from China by Marco Polo, but there is some question as to the truth of this story. A tool identified as a macaroni-maker is depicted in the wall frescoes of an ancient Etruscan tomb — painted before the days of the Roman Empire!

Whatever its origins, pasta has been a well-loved staple of the Italian diet since the Middle Ages. In more recent times, with the immigration of many Italians to the United States, pasta at last found a place in the hearts, and diets, of Americans.

While spaghetti consumption is greater in the Eastern part of the country than elsewhere, it's a popular food all over.

Luckily for vegetarians, most Italian restaurants offer meatless variations of spaghetti, ravioli, etc. — at a lower cost, too.

In whatever form you eat it, pasta is a good source of B vitamins, iron, complex carbohydrates and contains almost no fat. And, contrary to popular opinion, pasta is not especially fattening: a plate of cooked spaghetti (about 5 ounces), has only around 210 calories.

ASPARAGUS STRAW AND HAY

¾ lb. fresh asparagus
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
¼ cup sliced green onion
1 cup light cream
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
⅛ tsp. nutmeg
2 tbsps. lemon juice
5 ozs. hot cooked linguine or fettucine
5 ozs. hot cooked green linguine or fettucine

Wash asparagus and slice diagonally into 1-inch pieces. Cook asparagus in sall amount of boiling water, in covered saucepan, for 8 to 10 minutes until crisp-tender. Drain well.

Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan over medium-low heat. Add green onion and saute until tender, but not browned. Stir in cream, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Cook, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes or until slightly thickened. Add cooked asparagus and lemon juice. Continue to cook 3 to 4 minutes longer, until asparagus is heated through.

Combine hot cooked pastas in serving bowl. Pour asparagus-cream mixture over pasta and toss to coat evenly. Serve immediately. Serves 4 as main dish; 6 to 8 as side dish.

HEALTHFUL WHOLE WHEAT NOODLES

2½ cups whole wheat flour
3 eggs
¼ tsp. salt
About 4 to 6 tbsps. water
1 tbsp. vegetable oil

Sift flour into pile on wooden work surface. Make well in center that is lage and deep enough to hold eggs. Break eggs into well and add salt, about 3 tablespoons water and oil. Beat eggs with fork. As you beat, eggs will absorb some of flour.

After a few seconds, the fork will become useless. At this point, flour your hands and begin kneading dough, adding small amounts of water as necessary to make dough smooth and moist. Lightly flour board as needed to prevent sticking, and continue kneading, with floured hands, until dough loses its stickiness and becomes smooth and elastic — about 10 to 15 minutes.

Divide dough in half and roll each portion into paper-thin rectangle (no more than 1/16-inch thick). Let dry for 30 minutes, then flour lightly and fold over and over, from the long side, into flat roll about 4 inches wide. With sharp knife, cut into ⅛-inch strips.

Separate noodles, gently shake them out, and cook at once or let dry for up to 3 hours. (If you are not going to cook noodles that day, roll them up loosely in paper towels and cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate for up to two days. Or wrap very well in plastic and freeze for up to one month.)

To cook, bring 4 quarts water to boil in large pot. Quickly add noodles, a few at a time, and stir with long wooden spoon or fork. Cook, uncovered, 3 to 5 minutes, checking texture frequently until pasta is al dente — just slightly firm. Serve at once with sauce or herbs, butter, cheese, sauteed vegetables, whatever suits your fancy. Depending on portion size, serves 4 to 8.

From "The Complete Vegetable Cookbook" by Dolores Casella (David White).

Club sandwich open-faced

The Associated Press

Once upon a time Club Sandwiches — filled with sliced chicken, bacon, lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise — were made with white bread. Not always any more. These days mixed grain loaves, now widely available in supermarkets, are likely to be used.

Hearty eaters will want their Club Sandwiches made with 3 slices of bread — the old-time way. Others, like me, prefer the filling with only two slices of bread whether the bread is white or the new mixed grain.

MIXED GRAIN OPEN SANDWICHES

Avocado Dressing, recipe follows
8 slices bacon
4 slices mixed-grain bread
Mayonnaise
4 slices Swiss cheese (4 ounces)
Alfalfa sprouts
Sliced tomatoes

Make the Avocado Dressing. Cook the bacon until crisp; drain and keep warm. Toast the bread lightly; spread one side of each slice with mayonnaise. Top with the cheese, making sure it covers the bread edges; place under broiler just long enough to soften the cheese.

Sprinkle generously with alfalfa sprouts; spoon ¼ cup of the Avocado Dressing over the sprouts on each slice. Top with the bacon. Serve at once with the tomatoes, extra alfalfa sprouts and the remaining Avocado Dressing as a side dish.

Makes 4 servings.

Avocado Dressing:

Medium-large ripe avocado (12 to 14 ounces)
4 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup thinly sliced scallion
Salt and pepper to taste

Halve, seed and peel avocado; puree. Mix with lemon juice and mayonnaise until blended. Stir in scallions, salt and pepper. Makes about 1½ cups.

Midlander places fourth in pageant

Tina Cates of Midland, a student at Midland College, won fourth place in the American Heart Association at the 1984 Miss Teen of Texas Scholarship and Recognition Pageant. She was one of 305 candidates from Texas who participated in the pageant recently in Austin. She raised $752.

Winner of the pageant was Jina Johnson of McAllen. All Miss Teen of Texas candidates were judged on service and achievement to school and community, scholastics, personal development, teen image/poise and appearance, written general awareness test and judges' interview.

Candidates raised nearly $30,400 for the American Heart Association Scavenger Hunt Event. Austin Jaycee Women served as Official Host Group for the pageant.

Burgers have buns made with cheddar cheese

Meals in the great outdoors call for easy-to-prepare foods for everyone's enjoyment. For a camp-out dinner that is sure to please serve Barbecue Burgers with Cheddar Biscuit Buns.

BARBECUE BURGERS WITH CHEDDAR BISCUIT BUNS

1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Bottled barbecue sauce
Cheddar Biscuit Buns (recipe follows)

Mix ground beef, onion, salt and pepper. Divide into five equal parts; shape each part into patty. Grill four to five inches from hot coals, brushing patties occasionally with barbecue sauce, until done, about 10 minutes on each side.

Prepare Cheddar Biscuit Buns after turning patties. Serve patties on buns. Makes five servings.

Cheddar Biscuit Buns: Mix 2 cups buttermilk biscuit baking mix, 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese and 1/2 cup cold water until soft dough forms; beat vigorously 20 strokes.

Gently smooth dough into ball on aluminum foil well dusted with baking mix. Knead five times. Divide dough into 10 equal parts. Pat each part into 4-inch round with hands floured with baking mix.

Grill four to five inches from medium coals until golden brown, 2-3 minutes on each side.

Sesame Seed Biscuit Buns: Stir in 1/4 cup sesame seed with baking ix.

NOTE: Grill times approximate as grilling conditions vary widely.

DEAR ABBY

Woman's former boss 'was an animal'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My ex-boss was an animal. First he asked me if I ever fooled around, then he asked me what kind of birth control I used. I didn't answer either question. He invited me to have a drink with him after work. I refused. When he tried to put his arms around me, I decided I had had enough, so I reported him to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and filed a complaint. It was a hard thing to do, but I had to do it so he wouldn't pull the same stuff with his next secretary.

I work for the state and was immediately transferred to another job where I'm very happy.

Don't ask me how they found out, but the people in the office I left know that I filed a sexual harassment complaint against the boss. Now, whenever I see my former coworkers, I feel uncomfortable because they laugh and make jokes about the circumstances under which I left. To me it was a serious matter and I had to put a stop to it.

Do you think I did the right thing in filing that complaint? And why do they try to make me feel guilty? — UPSET

DEAR UPSET: You did the right thing in filing that complaint. Trying to make the victim feel guilty is a cruel game some people play. Don't let it get to you. Working women everywhere would do well to follow your courageous example.

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to marry a guy who has to be the cheapest man in the world. He wants to start a chicken farm, but he doesn't want to invest any money. He refuses to buy an incubator; he wants me to hatch the eggs in my bra! He says there's a lot of good heat going to waste there.

He figures that every three weeks we should hatch from 6 to 12 chickens. Now get this, he says if my bra is too small, he'll buy me a bigger one. — BIG-BUSTED IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR B.B.: Don't be a dumb cluck. Tell "Mr. Cheap Cheap" eggsactly how you feel about his scheme. (Maybe he's making a yolk?)

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Mash sardines and mix with carrot, scallion and mayonnaise. (Makes 1 scant cup.) Spread one side of each slice of bread with extra mayonnaise, then the sardine filling; top with lettuce and remaining bread. Cut each sandwich into 2 triangles.

Buffalo, NY famed for chicken wings

The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Certain cities are symonymous with some of our favorite foods. Think Philadelphia, and hoagies come to mind. Then there are Cincinnati chili, Omaha steak and deep-dish pizza from Chicago.

New York has its bagels, and surely no one knows his sourdough better than a San Franciscan.

And don't forget Buffalo, New York.

After enjoying 20 years of local fame for chicken wings, the citizens of Buffalo are spreading the word that their product is more than a regional fancy. And they have Congress to back them up.

On June 25 Democratic Reps. Henry J. Nowak and John J. LaFalce stood on the Capitol steps beside Buffalo Mayor James Griffin and Wilhemina the Chicken (in costume) to proclaim Chicken Wing Day in Washington.

The ceremony coincided with a week of celebration in Buffalo, where the wings originated at the Anchor Bar in 1964.

The assembled took turns praising the Buffalo Chicken Wing. Norwak boasted that the popularity of the hors d'oeuvre had "spread as far as London."

LaFalce hailed the wings as "one of the riches of Buffalo" and predicted that he might live to see "more chicken wings sold than hamburgers" in the United States.

These men take their chicken wings seriously.

And so does Anchor Bar owner Dominic Bellissimo, whose livelihood rests on is mother's recipe for Buffalo Chicken Wings.

So protective is he of the family secret that he makes the sauce himself, away from the restaurant. Bellissimo won't devulge any trade secrets, noting only that his competitors normally deep-fry their wings.

And after 20 years in the chicken-wing business, his favorite accompaniment remains a plate of sliced celery, along with the standard blue-cheers dip.

Many restaurateurs have developed their own recipes for the wings. Some bake them, others insist on sauteeing.

Both bread crumbs and flour have been mixed with a number of hot spices in attempts either to duplicate or improve on the original coating.

Lynne Bien, owner and president of New York's Pie in the Sky, a combination specialty shop and restaurant, altered the classic recipe by adding sesame seeds and red-pepper flakes (instead of hot pepper sauce) to the coating.

She also uses vegetable oil in place of butter, which she says makes the original wings "too greasy."

Following is Bein's rendition of the Buffalo Chicken Wing. With flour, vegetable oil and salt on had at home, you can breeze through the express lane and have the wings on your table in less than an hour.

EXPRESS LANE LIST: chicken wings, sesame seeds, red pepper flakes, sour cream, vinegar, blue cheese, celery sticks (optional)

PIE IN THE SKY'S BUFFALO CHICKEN WINGS

½ cup sesame seeds
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon red pepper flakes
1 teaspoon salt
2 pounds chicken wings, disjointed into 2 parts and tips removed Vegetable oil for frying

Dip:
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon oil
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ cup blue cheese, crumbled

Pulverize the sesame seeds in a blender or food processor. Remove. Blend flour and red pepper flakes and process until the flakes are almost completely pulverized. Carefully sift the mixture to remove unpulverized pieces of red pepper flakes.

Combine flour mixture with sesame seeds and 1 teaspoon salt in a paper or plastic beg. Add the chicken pieces, a few at a time, and shake until well coated.

Fry in hot oil until well browned. Drain on paper towed and serve hot or cold with blue cheese dip and sliced celery sticks if desired. Makes two to four servings.

To make the dip, thin the sour cream with the oil and vinegar. Sprinkle the crumbled blue cheese in and mix to blend.

Versatile mushrooms tasty in wide variety of dishes

By OLIVIA and PAUL BENSEN
Copley News Service

Mushrooms have been pleasing palates around the world for thousands of years. The ancient Greeks and Romans prized mushrooms for their flavor and considered them the food of the gods.

In many ancient religions, mushrooms, because of their sudden appearance and rapid decay, were considered symbolic of the ephemeral nature of existence, and played a central role in religious rites.

The commercially grown mushrooms sold in American stores are almost invariably Agaricus campestris or Agaricus bisporus, closely related types that have a button-shaped top and a fairly thick, fleshy stem.

Almost every state has laws against selling wild mushrooms.

Some of the wild varieties, though, are delicious almost beyond description.

The luscious chanterelles of the Pacific Northwest and the European Steinpilz make the commercial types seem boring and tasteless.

Picking your own wild mushrooms is tricky — many poisonous varieties closely resemble their edible relatives.

Even experts generally examine at least 10 samples before making a positive identification. A mistake can result in anything from hallucinations to death.

Mushrooms that you buy in the store should be smooth and firm-fleshed, with no shriveling and discoloration.

The caps should be closed, so that no gills are showing, and should be attached to the stems — separation indicates lack of freshness.

Keep mushrooms refrigerated, and use them as soon as possible.

Commercially grown mushrooms are generally quite clean, and need only to be wiped with a damp cloth before they are cooked; never soak them. It is important to remember that mushrooms are over 90 percent water.

If you are preparing a dish that combines chopped mushrooms with other foods, chop the mushrooms and wring them out in a towel to avoid making the other ingredients soggy.

For recipes calling for whole mushrooms, saute them ahead of time to evaporate most of their moisture.

The recipe for Mushrooms Stuffed With Crabmeat is one of our favorites among the many delicious ways to stuff mushrooms. Use only the largest commercial mushrooms for stuffing.

Creamed Mushrooms on Toast is delicious for lunch or breakfast. Scrambled eggs make an excellent accompaniment.

MUSHROOMS STUFFED WITH CRABMEAT

24 large mushrooms
2-3 tbsps. butter
Stuffing:
2 tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
1 small pinch thyme
1 small pinch sage
1 cup crabmeat
⅓ cup fresh bread crumbs
2 tbsps. freshly grated Parmesan
2 tsps. dry sherry
1 egg, beaten with 1 tsp. heavy cream
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Remove stems from mushrooms. Melt 2 to 3 tablespoons butter in large fryingpan and saute mushroom caps over medium-high heat for 2 to 3 minutes per side, until brown.

Drain off any accumulated moisture and set mushrooms aside. Preheat broiler.

Stuffing: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in small frying pan over medium heat. Saute onion until just soft.

Transfer onion and butter to mixing bowl and toss in remaining stuffing ingredients. Mix well, taste and adjust seasoning as needed.

Stuff each mushroom cap with spoonful of stuffing mixture.

Place stuffed mushrooms in broiler-proof pan and broil 3 to 4 minutes, a few inches from flame, until golden brown and sizzling.

Serves 4 to 6 as appetizer.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS ON TOAST

3 cups sliced mushrooms, with tough stems removed ½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. freshly ground pepper
1 pinch chervil
3 tbsps. butter
⅓ cup heavy cream

Saute mushrooms, salt, pepper and chervil in butter over medium-high heat util browned and most of moisture has evaporated.

Stir in cream, mix well and saute 1 minute more. Spoon over 4 pieces of buttered toast.

Serves 2.

Strawberries used in desserts

Hearst Feature Service

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE
2½ cups biscuit mix
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons oil
½ cup milk
Sweetened sliced strawberries

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Mix biscuit mix, sugar, oil and milk until soft dough forms. Spread in ungreased 8-inch round cake or pie pan. Bake 15 to 20 minutes, until golden brown. Cut to serve six or eight. Cut servings to split. Spoon strawberries between halves and over the top. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

ECONOMICAL HOMEMADE STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM
Ice cream freezer or refrigerator
2 eggs, separated
⅔ cup sugar
¼ cup white corn syrup
1 cup crushed strawberries
1 cup light cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg yolks, sugar, corn syrup and cream in heavy saucepan. Cook over medium heat to thicken. Cool and add crushed berries.

To make an ice cream freezer, add egg whites and vanilla. Pour into blender and process until smooth. Pour into freezer can and follow manufacturer's directions.

To freeze in the refrigerator, pour thickened custard with berries into freezer tray. Freeze until firm, about 30 minutes. Remove to blender container. Add egg whites and vanilla. Beat until fluffy, avoiding over beating. Return to freezer for 30 minutes, or until frozen. Serves five.

FRESH STRAWBERRY PIE
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
1½ quarts fresh strawberries
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup whipping cream, if desired

Set aside half of the hulled berries (the best). Mash the remaining berries. Blend sugar and cornstarch and add to mashed berries. Cook over medium heat five to six minutes, or until clear and very thick. Stir in lemon juice. Cool. Select a few of the remaining berries for garnish. Add the rest, whole or cut, to cooled mixture. Pour into pastry shell. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired. Serves six.

FLUFFY STRAWBERRY PIE
1 graham cracker crust
1 package (3-ounce) strawberry flavored gelatin
⅔ cup boiling water
2 cups ice cubes
8 ounces whipped dessert topping
1 cup fresh sliced strawberries

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add ice cubes and stir until gelatin thickens, about three minutes. Remove any unmelted ice. Blend in whipped topping. Fold in berries. Chill until mixture will mound. Spoon into crust. Chill two hours. Serves six.

Baked fish ideal outdoor entree

Fish are wonderfully appropriate for outdoor cooking, and taste extra special when grilled or baked outdoors. Delicately textured fish such as red snapper, bluefish, sea bass, porgies and sea trout, are best wrapped in foil and baked. For more robust taste try stuffing the fish.

BAKED FISH BALBOA

2 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped shallots
1/2 cup packaged dried bread crumbs
1/3 cup frozen concentrated grapefruit juice, thawed, undiluted, divided
1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
2 whole fish (1-1/2 pounds each), dressed, boned, head on (bluefish, red snapper, sea bass, porgies, sea trout)
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
2 medium carrots, thinly sliced (1 cup)
2 medium ribs celery, julienned (3/4 cup)

In medium skillet melt butter; saute shallops until golden. Remove skillet from heat; stir in bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons grapefruit juice concentrate and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Place each fish on double thickness of aluminum foil or heavy duty foil, six inches longer than the fish. Spoon bread crumb mixture into the cavity of each fish. Combine remaining grapefruit juice concentrate, tarragon and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt; brush on both sides of fish. Spoon half carrots and celery around each fish and seal foil tightly by double folding all edges. Place on grill about six inches above hot coals. Grill about 30 minutes. Makes four servings.

NOTE: To bake fish in oven: Place foil packets in shallow baking pan. Bake at 350—F. for 40-45 minutes, until fish flakes easily when tested with fork.

Baked Fish Balboa expands an outdoor-cooking repertoire with an entree from the sea, lightly flavored with shallots, tarragon and citrus juice.

GRAPEFRUIT BLUSH

1 can (6 oz.) frozen concentrated grapefruit juice, thawed, undiluted
2 tablespoons grenadine syrup
1 tablespoon honey
1 bottle (28 oz.) club soda, chilled
Fresh mint, if desired

In large pitcher combine grapefruit juice concentrate, grenadine and honey; mix well. Just before serving stir in club soda; add ice. Serve with fresh mint if desired. Makes four servings.

Hotel claims origination of 'pie a la mode' dessert

CAMBRIDGE, N.Y. (AP) — When the waitress at the Hotel Cambridge returns after clearing away the main course and asks, "May I get you something else?" coffee or tea are not what she has in mind.

Not here. Because it was here in 1896 that Professor Charles Watson Townsend, perhaps responding to a similar question, ordered apple pie with vanilla ice cream on top. At a nearby table, Mrs. Berry Hall noticed the combination and remarked that he was eating "pie a la mode."

To this day, no one is sure why she chose those words, but description and dessert were thereby forever joined. "A la mode," means "in the fashion of, stylish," so maybe she was praising his palate.

But for whatever reason, the name stuck and today the Hotel Cambridge is proud to be the spot where such a savory institution reputedly began. The hotel itself is 100 years old this year but still makes its claim to fame with boyish pride.

Outside the 17-table dining room is a sign proclaiming the culinary significance of the room patrons are about to enter. Beside the guest register is a 1966 review from "Leisure" magazine recounting the story and giving it credence.

About the only thing current owner Walter E. Gann can say for sure on the subject is, "We know the whole story about Professor Townsend, but no one is alive from that era anymore" to verify the story.

As fact or legend has it, shortly after Townsend accepted Mrs. Hall's monicker for his concoction and it appeared on the hotel's menu, he visited New York City. There he dined at Delmonico's and there he ordered apple pie a la mode.

According to an undated reprint from Sealtest Magazine that is part of the hotel's menu, the following exchange occurred:

"Do you mean to tell me that so famous an eating place as Delmonico's has never heard of pie a la mode, when Hotel Cambridge, up in the village of Cambridge, N.Y., serves it every day? Call the manager at once. I demand as good service here as I get in Cambridge."

"Delmonico's never intends that any other restaurant shall get ahead of us," replied the manager, who then ordered the dessert added to the restaurant's considerable menu. A reporter from the New York Sun overheard the exchange and the next day the Sun ran an article about it, cementing Townsend's claim, the magazine reported.

Independent confirmation of such a claim is not easy to come by, but town historian Edna Young, said, "Well, we've always understood that (to be true) here in Cambridge. I think we're safe in saying it."

The Hotel Cambridge, where Grandma Moses, formerly of Eagle Bridge, stayed and in whose register are listed folks like former governor of Vermont Harold J. Arthur, has seen better days. Its outside appears rundown and the top two floors are closed to visitors, but it remains a popular restaurant locally.

Cooking outdoors over coals tasty, economical

Hearst Feature Service

Meat cooked on the grill always seems to taste better. A cut suitable for cooking over the coals is probably on your shopping list for a weekend meal. Costly tender steaks are first choice, but you can cook out more often when economical cuts are selected.

Cooking over the coals is cooking with dry heat, a method that toughens meat. Smart shoppers select meats which are naturally tender. Most cuts of pork, all poultry, fish and ground meats cooked over the coals can provide tender, moist products. Ham normally is fully cooked and requires only reheating to serve.

It is easy to cut costs and add variety to the menu by marinating less tender cuts of meat for the grill. Marinades turn beef rump, round and chuck roasts or steaks into flavorful, tender servings of meat. Cutting roasts into steaks is another way to save food dollars.

Marinades are a mixture of oil, herbs and acid. The oil and herbs play an important role in giving flavor to the food, but it is the acid that softens the connective tissue.

It is easy to make your own marinade. Bottled clear French dressing works well and is convenient, but making your own lets you control the amounts of oil and salt.

To marinate, place meat in a plastic bag set in a deep bowl or shallow baking dish. Pour marinade mixture over the meat. Close bag or cover dish with plastic wrap and refrigerate. Turn bag or spoon marinade over the meat occasionally to coat evenly.

The size of the piece of meat determines marinating time. Large roasts can be marinated several hours or overnight. One or two hours are adequate for small cubes of meat or for thin steaks which are from less tender parts of the animal. Marinate fish for 30 minutes. Meat becomes soft when the marinating time is too long.

GRILLED PORK STEAKS

3 pork blade steaks, cut 1/2- to 3/4-inch thick
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 to 2 teaspoons curry powder
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 can (8-ounce) tomato sauce
1 small onion, chopped

For marinade, combine brown sugar and curry powder in a small saucepan. Mix well. Gradually add soy sauce, tomato sauce and onion, stirring to combine. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and cook slowly 5 minutes. Cool.

Place pork steaks in plastic bag or baking dish. Add marinade, turning steaks to coat. Close bag or cover dish and marinate in the refrigerator 2 hours. Drain, reserving marinade. Place steaks on grill over low to medium coals. Cook 30 to 40 minutes or till done, brushing with marinade and turning occasionally. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

SPICY BARBECUE SAUCE FOR CHICKEN

2 tablespoons ketchup
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons pineapple jam or honey
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pepper
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
Dash of Tabasco
2 cloves garlic, chopped
2 teaspoons pickle relish

Mix all ingredients together in food processor with metal blade or in a blender. Remove to medium saucepan and bring to a boil. Simmer 5 minutes. Cool and store in refrigerator. Makes 1-1/4 cups, or enough for 3 to 4 chickens.

ASPARAGUS AND BACON STIR-FRY

5 slices bacon
2 pounds asparagus
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 teaspoons minced ginger root
1 can (8-ounce) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1/4 teaspoon sesame oil

Fry bacon in skillet until crisp and golden. Drain all but 2 tablespoons drippings in skillet.

Cut asparagus spears into thin (3/8 inch) diagonal slices, leaving tips whole. Heat bacon drippings in skillet over medium heat and saute onion and ginger. Add and stir-fry asparagus, except tips, until tender crisp, about 5 minutes. Add bacon, asparagus tips and water chestnuts. Stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes longer. Stir in sesame oil and serve. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Potatoes pesto, modeled after the popular fresh basil dish of Northern Italy, combines convenient processed potatoes with a gutsy cheese and herb mix.

Honeymoon potato recipe simple

Dinner for the newlywed cook, when armed with a simple, savory recipe and an efficiently set-up kitchen can be a breeze. The kitchen can be a constant source of fun and inspiration especially when couples share cooking.

Begin your culinary career with basics, such as this potato dish. It takes advantage of cupboard staples and processed potatoes.

Potatoes Pesto, modeled after the popular fresh basil dish of Northern Italy, combines convenient processed potatoes with a gutsy cheese and herb mix.

Whip it up by using one of your most basic kitchen machines: the blender or the more sophisticated food processor. It's a good opportunity to get to know these valuable kitchen aids which provide kitchen versatility.

Potatoes Pesto also has, in addition to great taste, the added advantage of taking just a few minutes to prepare and heat. Accompany with broiled meat and a green salad for a perfect meal.

POTATOES PESTO

1 package (5.5) ounces dehydrated hash brown potatoes
1 cup chopped fresh parsley
⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon dried leaf basil or 2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
⅓ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Rehydrate potatoes according to package directions. Drain. In container of electric blender combine parsley, cheese, garlic, basil, salt and hot pepper sauce; cover and process until mixture is smooth

Gradually add olive oil, and process at low speed. Mixture should resemble creamed butter when all of the oil is added. In a large skillet melt butter; add rehydrated potatoes. Cook 3 minutes. Stir in pesto sauce. Heat through. garnish with tomato wedges and fresh basil, if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

Milk products provide energy

Hearst Feature Service

Milk products are our main source of calcium, the most abundant mineral in the body. Milk, cheese, yogurt, cream and frozen milk desserts also provide protein, B vitamins and energy.

Regardless of age, everyone needs a daily supply of calcium. About 99 percent of the calcium in the body is found in the bones and teeth. Calcium also aids in the proper functioning of the heart, muscles and nerves, and helps the blood coagulate during bleeding.

Although all milk products supply calcium, fresh milk and nonfat dry milk are the most economical sources of this mineral. Two 8-ounce glasses of milk provide 75 percent of the daily recommended adult calcium requirement. Cost and calories increase when you replace milk with cheese, yogurt, ice milk or ice cream as primary sources of calcium.

One 8-ounce serving of whole milk contains 150 calories. Chocolate milk is whole milk with chocolate and sugar added, providing 208 calories. One cup of milk with 2 percent butterfat contains 121 calories. One percent fat cuts calories to 102.

When calories aren't important, it would be wise to purchase the weekly supermarket milk special. This is your best calcium buy as long as family members will drink milk with various fat contents. If a gallon of milk is more than your family can use, freeze some for future use.

Nonfat dry milk is skim milk from which the water has been removed. A one-cup serving of nonfat milk, reconstituted according to directions, contains the same nutrients as fluid skim milk.

Instant nonfat dry milk is used widely for cooking. Take advantage of its low calories or, in cooking, to equal the richness of whole milk, add 2-1/2 teaspoons margarine to 1 cup reconstituted nonfat dry milk.

Nonfat dry milk can be used to boost the calcium content of many foods. Add it to fluid milk, meatloaf, puddings and carbonated beverages. Dry milk is convenient to add to hot water for sauces and puddings prepared in the microwave oven. It also is convenient to carry on a camping trip.

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP
2 cups cooked asparagus, drained
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tbsps. margarine
2 tbsps. flour
2 cups milk
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Place asparagus and onion in container of electric blender and process until smooth. Melt margarine in a heavy saucepan over low heat. Add flour, stirring until smooth. Cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Gradually add milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Stir in asparagus puree, salt and pepper. Cook until thoroughly heated. Makes 4-1/2 cups.

Substitute 2 cups cooked carrots, spinach, corn, peas or tomato juice to make other vegetable soups.

COLONIAL CHICKEN CHOWDER
1 fryer, 3 pounds
1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
3 or 4 celery tops with leaves
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. thyme
3 cups water
⅓ cup margarine
3 medium carrots, diced
3 ribs celery, diced
½ cup uncooked rice
1 can (16-ounce) creamed corn
2 cups milk
3 drops hot red pepper sauce
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut chicken into pieces. In a large kettle, combine chicken, onion, celery tops, bouillon cubes, bay leaf, thyme and water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer until chicken is tender, about 25 minutes. Remove chicken and let cool. Strain broth and reserve liquid. Discard chicken skin and bones. Dice chicken meat and set aside. Skim fat from broth.

Rinse kettle and wipe dry. Add margarine, carrots and celery. Saute vegetables about 5 minutes. Add broth and rice; cook until rice is tender, about 20 minutes. Add corn, milk and reserved chicken meat. Season with red pepper sauce, salt and pepper. Heat and serve. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

RICE CUSTARD CREAM
¼ cup uncooked rice
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks, beaten
3 tbsps. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
2 egg whites
3 tbsps. sugar

Combine milk and rice together in a heavy saucepan. Cook over medium low heat until rice is tender, about 30 minutes. Into beaten egg yolks stir 3 tablespoons sugar, add salt and then stir in some of the hot rice mixture. Return to saucepan and cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Cool partially.

Stir in vanilla. Beat egg whites until frothy, then beat in 3 tablespoons sugar a little at a time, continuing until stiff and glossy. Fold into rice custard mixture. Chill. Serve with or without cream. Makes 6 servings.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING
3 tbsps. cornstarch
⅓ cup sugar
¼ cup cocoa
¼ cup cold milk
1¾ cups scalded milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Combine cornstarch, sugar, cocoa and cold milk in heavy saucepan. Add scalded milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Cool slightly. Add vanilla and beat. Pour into 4 serving dishes.

Truffles now growing in Texas

New York Times News Service

HOUSTON — "It used to be said," Francois Picard observed with a Gallic flair for metaphor, "that the truffle was the daughter of earth and thunder. In the old days they noticed that after a thunderstorm, the truffle bore fruit."

Picard grew up in the heart of truffle country in southern France and has been involved with the black, spongelike fungus since he was a child tracking the lusty pigs that rooted for it under the oaks around his hometown of Perigord.

He now lives in Dripping Springs, 200 miles west of here in the Texas Hill Country. But he still harbors a passion for the truffle, which, at a heady $40 or so an ounce retail, he likes to call "the black diamond" of haute cuisine. What took him to Dripping Springs was limestone, which laces the soil of the Hill Country in abundance. The normally diffident truffles, it develops, is ardent for limestone. And so Picard hopes to make Dripping Springs the truffle capital of the world.

Since the summer of 1982, when a French testing laboratory deemed the Hill Country soil a superb habitat for growing truffles, Picard has grown and transplanted 20,000 oak seedlings and inoculated their roots with the mycelia, or thallus, or vegetative part, of the tuber melanosporum, the name the black truffle answers to in scientific circles. For reasons best known to truffles and trees, the fungus hugs the roots of oak and filbert trees. The trees like it.

Picard has already committed about 3,000 truffle-kissed seedlings to the Hill Country earth. With the passage of time, five to 10 years, and the beneficent advent of a thunderstorm or two, each planting will yield a few ounces to four pounds of truffles a year. He is looking forward to harvest time.

Truffle hunters seldom use pigs anymore to root up the fungus. The pigs tend to get nasty when someone snatches away their nosh. So Picard has two truffle-snuffling dogs trained to do it. He is also working on a device that will detect the morsels' earthy odor electronically. Formidable!

Grilled cornbread served at barbecue party

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

BARBECUE PARTY
Ribs, Cornbread & Salad
Watermelon & Iced Tea

GRILLED CORNBREAD

1 tablespoon butter
2 large eggs
⅔ cup milk
8-ounce can cream-style corn
Two 12-ounce packages corn muffin mix
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
4 slices bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled

In an 8 or 9-inch disposable foil pan, melt butter over medium heat of surface unit of kitchen range. Off heat swirl butter to coat bottom and sides of pan. In a large bowl beat eggs and milk to blend; stir in cream-style corn; add muffin mix and stir only until moistened. Turn into prepared pan. Sprinkle with cheese and bacon. Place pan on barbecue grill 6 inches above medium-hot coals. Loosely cover top with foil. Cook until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 30 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Cheesy ideas used for fruit dips, sauces

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst Feature Service

Smart shoppers are buying cured cheese to store for summer meals. Of all the dairy specials, only nonfat dry milk, cured cheese, ice cream, sour cream and cream cheese may be purchased to store for future meals.

Cured cheese is versatile, convenient and ready to eat. Use it in dips, appetizers, sandwiches, sauces, casseroles and chilled summer salads. Packed in the picnic hamper or for camping, cured cheese will remain safe to eat.

Natural cheese is milk curd separated from the whey. Coagulation is caused and controlled by the action of rennet or lactic acid, or both. It takes five quarts of milk to make one pound of cured cheese.

The more cheese is aged, the harder and more flavorful it becomes. Mild cheese is cured two to three months. Medium aged cheese is cured up to six months, developing a smooth texture and nutty flavor. Sharp or aged cheese is cured more than six months, developing a richer flavor. It is preferred for cooking because it melts easily and blends well with other ingredients.

Process cheese is made by blending different types of natural cheese with an emulsifier and heating. Ripening stops. Cheese food is prepared the same way with the addition of nonfat milk or whey and water. It has a higher moisture content and lower fat content.

Imitation cheese is similar to cheese food. Only the butterfat has been replaced with vegetable oil, most often soy bean oil. It is a source of protein and calcium and has the same number of calories as an equal measure of cheese food.

Cheese is a source of protein, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A, though milk is always the most economical source of calcium. It takes 1-1/2 ounces of cured cheese to equal the calcium in one 8-ounce serving of milk.

The higher the moisture content of cheese, the lower the calories. A 1-ounce serving of Cheddar contains 113 calories. Count 105 calories for an ounce of process cheese and 80 to 90 calories for cheese food or imitation cheese spread

Cured cheese keeps well in the refrigerator for several weeks. Wrap well to exclude air. Natural cheese develops mold spots with handling or under moist conditions. This harmless mold may be scraped off. Cheese which has dried out can be grated and kept in a covered container in the refrigerator. Most natural cheese can be successfully frozen for six weeks to two months in the original package.

CHEESE DIP FOR FRUIT
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup Bleu cheese
1¼ cups sour cream

When cheese is at room temperature, mix well. Beat in sour cream until fluffy. Cover and chill to blend flavors. Serve with melon, pear and apple wedges, pineapple chunks and green grapes. Makes 2 cups.

EASY CHEESE SAUCE
¾ cup evaporated milk
2 cups process cheese, diced
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon marjoram

In heavy saucepan, heat milk over low heat. Add cheese and seasonings. Stir until cheese is melted. Remove from heat immediately. Serve over meat or vegetables. Makes 1½ cups. Chill leftovers to use as cheese spread.

ZIPPY SWISS SPECIAL
1 16-oz. can salmon, drained, flaked
1½ cups shredded Swiss cheese
1 cup sour cream
⅓ cup chopped celery
6 slices bread, toasted
6 tomato slices, optional

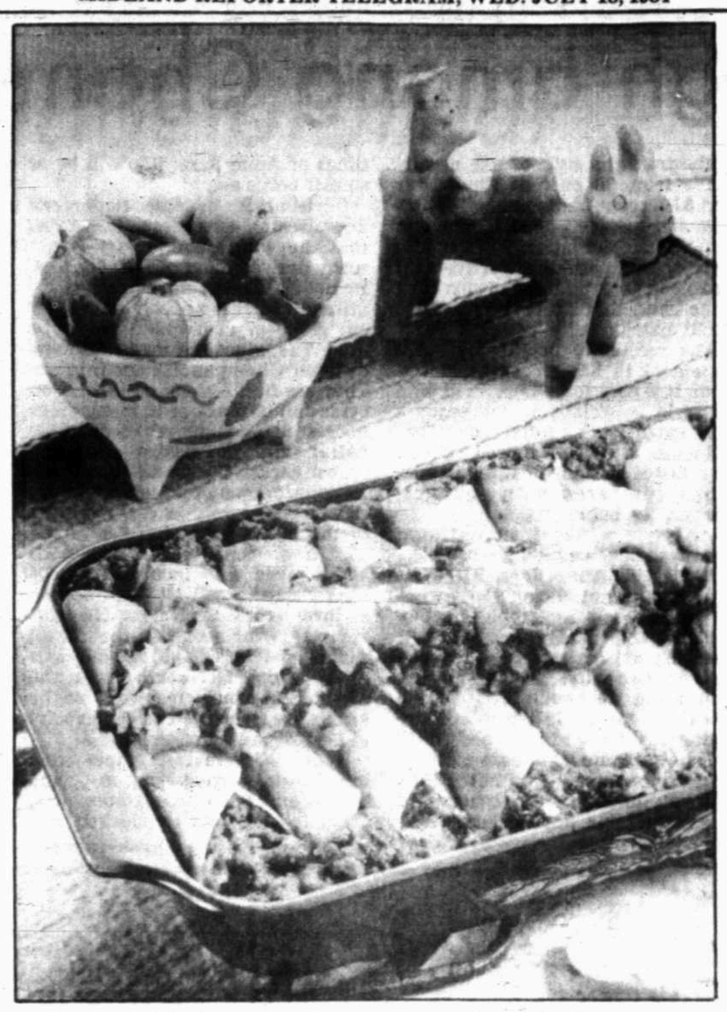

In a bowl, combine salmon, cheese, sour cream and celery. Butter toast. Place on baking sheet. Spread about ½ cup salmon mixture over each slice covering edges. Broil five minutes or until hot. Top with tomato slice if desired. Serves six.

SUN SALAD
Dressing:
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon dill weed
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard
Dash pepper
Salad:
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen peas
1½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
½ cup chopped sweet pickle
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup sliced radishes

For dressing, combine all ingredients and chill. For salad, cook peas according to package directions. Drain and cool. Combine peas, cheese, eggs, pickle, celery and radishes. Toss with dressing. Chill until serving time. Makes four servings.

CARROTS, PEAS AND CHEESE
1 cup raw green peas
½ cup diced carrot
¼ cup diced Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped sweet onion
¼ cup oil and vinegar dressing

Carrots and cheese should be cut to size of peas. Combine all ingredients and chill for at least 15 minutes. Serve on bed of greens. Serves four.

Tasty enchiladas can add spice to any family's dinner menu. This spicy enchilada recipe is reminiscent of the food created by early Southwestern settlers.

Enchiladas: Tex-Mex taste

In recent years "Tex-Mex" cuisine — the food created by Southwestern settlers in the late 1800s — has become a national favorite. According to Alison Pulver, researcher at Du Pont Silverstone surface cookwear, Americans consume more than 8 million pounds of chili peppers, key ingredient in Tex-Mex food, each year.

The most familiar Tex-Mex dish is chili con carne. Many states have chili associations whose members compete in cook-offs.

Chili con carne is more "Tex" than "Mex," said Pulver. Mexicans, in fact, say the dish originated in San Antonio, where one of the city's squares was named "Plaza del Chile con Carne."

More authentically Mexican are corn or flour tortillas, already a staple of Aztec diet when the Spaniards arrived. Tortillas form the basis of other favorite dishes including tacos, Sopa Azteca and enchiladas.

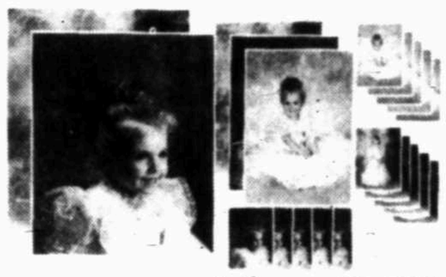

Try this spicy enchilada recipe like the ones early Southwestern settlers made.

TEX-MEX ENCHILADAS
1½ pounds ground beef
1 package (1¼ oz.) taco seasoning
1 can (12 oz.) tomato paste
1 cup water
1 cup onion, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
12 flour tortillas
Grated Cheddar cheese
1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies

Brown ground beef in 10- or 12-inch fry pan or electric skillet. Drain well. Stir in taco seasoning, tomato paste, water, onion and salt. Simmer for 15-20 minutes, stirring occasionally until liquid is reduced. Preheat oven to 350-F. Spoon two or three tablespoons meat mixture into each tortilla. Roll tightly and place in 13x9-inch baking pan. Sprinkle with green chilies. Top with remaining meat mixture and grated cheese. Bake for 25-30 minutes. Remove and serve immediately. Makes 12 enchiladas.

Bollinger ranks high among Champagnes

By NATHAN CHROMAN
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

It would not surprise me if one day soon, French Champagnes were to undergo a formal official ranking, not unlike the 1855 classification of Bordeaux wines.

Positioned at the top, or at least among the first five, would be Bollinger Champagne, largely because of the superb taste of its recent-disgorge (RD) wines, a term that refers to an expensive practice of allowing a vintage Champagne to age in contact with its natural sediment for seven to 10 years.

The best example is Bollinger's Tradition, RD, 1973, disgorged in 1981. Here is a sparkler that is tastefully austere with a complex softness in the finish that makes for quintessential taste distinction. Mellow, with refined bubbles that gently touch the palate rather than attack aggressively, the wine demonstrates a style and depth to qualify it as one of Champagne's finest experiences. Bollinger may be the only firm to currently offer a Champagne of this style.

Disgorging is simply the act of removing the sediment that has formed in Champagne during its secondary fermentation. Instead of removing it early on, Bollinger allows longer bottle aging with the sediment intact for the purpose of adding length, complexity and finesse. The theory is that the wine will continue to improve because no great prime aging development will occur after disgorging, except through very slow oxidation, provided it is stored at optimum condition. Upon release, Bollinger, RD, is generally matured sufficiently to provide ready-to-drink taste.

The late Madame "Lily" Bollinger, one of the region's most intelligent and celebrated of a long line of Champagne "wine widows," reasoned in 1955 that she wanted to produce an older vintage of her Champagne, principally to show her wine at its mature best. She was a no-nonsense, sparkling-wine believer who would not pander to the trade by offering wine in fancy bottles, or market fashionable, blanc de blanc Champagnes made exclusively from Chardonnay grapes. She died in 1979.

Her greatest triumph was to orchestrate the style of RD, usually made from 70 percent Pinot Noir and 30 percent Chardonnay. The former she believed aged longer and better than the latter. RD was also part of her passion to prove that Champagne is the "king of sparkling wine" and that no other sparklers could match quality.

The success of the RD style is a testament to her tenacity and wisdom. It is easy to be impressed with its style, especially if you enjoy a Champagne with a softer palate feel. Although it is an acquired taste, a few tastes should do it, especially when compared with younger, harder, big, bubbly types.

Another wine of exceptional breed, and even a bit more complex, is Bollinger, Anne Rare, RD, 1970, which was not disgorged for 13 years. This is an example of additional Champagne bottle aging at its best. I doubt if there is better, and indeed, the wine should start an emulation stampede. Contrasting the 1970 with the 1973 is most interesting, for it would have been difficult to speculate how there could be greater complexity than in the 1973, and yet, the 1970 offered more and in considerable depth. Future bottlings of Anne Rare, RD, will be of similar bottle age.

Christian Bizot, Mme. Bollinger's nephew and successor, maintains that the wine's complexity is not solely derived from the RD concept. He notes that only the best years are utilized and that appropriate different grape or cuvee blends may be used. The wines are made with traditional Champenoise techniques: They are first fermented in wooden casks (not in tanks, as in many other houses), aging under real cork in the cellar (and not under so-called crown corks). Bizot said that malolactic fermentation occurs at a very slow speed, rarely in casks, mainly in the bottle, and often, as in the 1973, never completed. Whether RD wines made with modern methods would mature as well is a question he loves to pose to rival producers.

Bizot is convinced that the overall Bollinger style is due to its vineyards at Ay, which face south across the Marne, and which ripen early so the grapes are richer and more flavorful at harvest than at other sites.

High-quality, mature grapes are a key factor, particu larly in Champagne, an area whose grapes must struggle each year for desired harvest readiness. For generations, the Champenoise have dealt with lean vintages and out of sheer necessity have become master blenders, mixing one vintage with the next.

Bollinger produces wines other than the RD. Special Cuvee is a nonvintage sparkler that is blended with 10 percent to 15 percent of wine from previous vintages. Although it is not RD, it is a most attractive fresh style that provides more structure and elegance than many other competing non-vintage blends.

Bollinger, Vintage, 1975, is like other Vintage Bollinger, that is, wine produced from a single vintage. Only especially good years are bottled, and indeed, no vintage will be produced with 1978 as it did not meet the firm's standard. The vintage shows greater richness, body and flavor than the non-vintage and offers more crispness than the RD.

Most of Bollinger's wines reflect a heavier body and bigger structure, with finesse, elegance and distinc tion. It is a style legacy requirement of Mme. Bollinger, who believed to the end that Champagne is a blended wine, nothing more and nothing less.

Shrimp curry served with rice

SHRIMP CURRY

2 pounds medium shrimp
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped pared apple
¼ of a lemon, unpeeled and finely chopped
1 large clove garlic, finely chopped
1 bay leaf
3 tablespoons unbleached all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
1 cup clear fat-free chicken broth
1 cup heavy cream
Salt to taste

Cook shrimp; shell and devein. In a medium saucepan melt butter; add onion, apple, lemon, garlic and bay leaf; cook gently, stirring often until onion is wilted. Stir in flour and curry powder. Off heat, gradually stir in broth and cream, keeping smooth. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. Remove bay leaf. Stir in shrimp and salt and reheat. Makes 6 servings. — (AP)

Quiz tests knowledge of meat

By MERLE ELLIS

Here's a little quiz to test your knowledge of beef.

Give yourself one point for each correct answer.

Twenty six correct answers means that you are very probably a professor of meat science at one of the land grant colleges in the country. If you're not, you may have missed your calling.

Twenty to 25 correct answers puts you on a par with most butchers in this country.

Fifteen to 20 correct answers means you probably know more about meat than most consumers, and as a result are able to eat better for less money.

Fewer than 15 correct answers is a sure indication that you should continue reading this column and pay attention.

BEEF FROM A TO Z

A - Nitrogen compounds that form proteins. (One word.) There are eight of these that man's system cannot synthesize.

B - A method of cooking that usually is done out-of-doors and most often by men.

C - One of the primal cuts of beef from the front quarter of the carcass.

D - The basic cooking method recommended for only the most tender cuts of meat.

E - The least tender, yet usually the most expensive, muscle of the full cut round steak.

F - In French meat terminology, cuts from the small end of the tenderloin. In America, often misused to describe the whole tenderloin.

G - A by-product of the meat processing industry used to make glues, soaps and Jell-o.

H - An animal form of iron that is easily absorbed by humans.

I - Pharmaceutical made from the pancreas of cattle that is used by the medical profession in the treatment of diabetics.

J - Dried smoked meat; one of the oldest methods of preserving meat.

K - A variety meat that often is used by the English in a dish called Shepherd's Pie.

L - The most tender section of the beef carcass; comes from along the back of the animal; from which we get (among other cuts) the T-bone and Porterhouse steaks.

M - Little flecks of fat interspersed throughout the lean tissue of the meat that adds greatly to flavor and tenderness.

N - Part of the chuck most often used to make groundchuck.

O - Another term for variety meats, as well as other meat by-products used for pharmaceuticals, cosmetic products, leather, etc.

P - The nine basic wholesale cuts of beef.

Q - The division of the beef carcass prior to being divided into the nine basic wholesale cuts.

R - Animals with four stomachs that can digest plant matter that humans and other animals cannot.

S - A rich broth made from meat and bones and used as a base for soups and sauces.

T - A variety meat obtained from the first and second stomachs of beef.

U - The first of four letters that appear on every wholesale cut of any beef carcass that has been graded.

V - The meat from young milk-fed bovine animals.

W - One of the middlemen that sells in large quantities.

X - A white mico-crystalline nitrogenous compound that's present in the muscle tissue of beef.

Z - An essential trace mineral found in meat.

ANSWERS

A - amino acids; B - barbecue; C - chuck; D - dry heat; E - eye-of-round; F - filet mignon; G - gelatin; H - heme-iron; I - insulin; J - jerky; K - kidneys; L - loin; M - marbling; N - neck; O - offal; P - primal cuts; Q - quarter; R - ruminants; S - stock; T - tripe; U - USDA; V - veal; W - wholesaler; X - xanthine; Y - Yankee; Z - zinc.

Fresh corn best for cooking

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

With the coming of summer, Americans across the land look forward to munching that rib-sticking delight that Russia's Nikita Khrushchev described as "sausage on a stick."

Corn is a staple in many countries today, but it was originally native to the Western Hemisphere. It is said to have first been cultivated in Mexico about 7,000 years ago.

Eventually, it became a crop of North American Indian tribes, who introduced it to the early settlers. They owed their survival in part to corn, eating it on the cob or, in winter, as flour for bread and cakes to eke out their catch of fish and game.

Today corn's popularity in America is still growing and people here consume about 6 billion bushels a year.

The vegetable gained wide dissemination when the early explorers took kernels back to Europe from the New World. The first written mention of corn in the colonies was in 1528 after De Soto landed in Florida.

Benjamin Franklin became keenly interested in corn, and conducted cross-fertilization experiments in his garden, producing a commercial crop that sold widely.

Corn is high in carbohydrates and contains vitamins A and C, plus only a small amount of sodium, so it is good for low-salt diets.

A corn-growing farm near where I live on Long Island has a warning printed in large letters: "What is sugar today is starch tomorrow."

CORN SOUFFLE

2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
1 cup milk
White pepper and salt to taste
Nutmeg and cayenne to taste
4 eggs, separated
1 cup corn, cream style
1 tablespoon dry mustard

Make white sauce with butter, flour and milk. Season with pepper, salt, nutmeg and cayenne. Simmer several minutes and let cool. Add 4 egg yolks, beat well, and add ¼ cup creamed corn and mustard.

Whip egg whites and pour over sauce and mix. Spoon half mixture into buttered souffle dish. Cover with ¾ cup creamed corn. Add remainder of mixture atop.

Bake at 375 degrees in preheated oven for 35 minutes. Serve with salad.

Insurance reduction proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance will consider a proposal for a $64 million statewide reduction in property insurance rates, when it meets next week.

The board's staff made the recommendation Monday. If the panel follows it, rates for homeowners insurance against fire, theft and other hazards on a $100,000 brick veneer home in Dallas, for example, would decrease by 11.8 percent, from $509 per year to $449 annually.

But rates for a policy that provides $20,000 worth of coverage on a brick veneer apartment should go up 17.3 percent, the staff proposed, from $220 per year to $258.

The three-member State Board of Insurance will consider the proposal at a rate hearing to begin July 26.

A spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute, an insurance association, told the Dallas Morning News insurance had not had an opportunity to review the board's recommendations and were not prepared to comment immediately.

Commission names new TEC head

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Grossenbacher was named new administrator of the Texas Employmnent Commission in a surprise, emergency meeting of the TEC Monday.

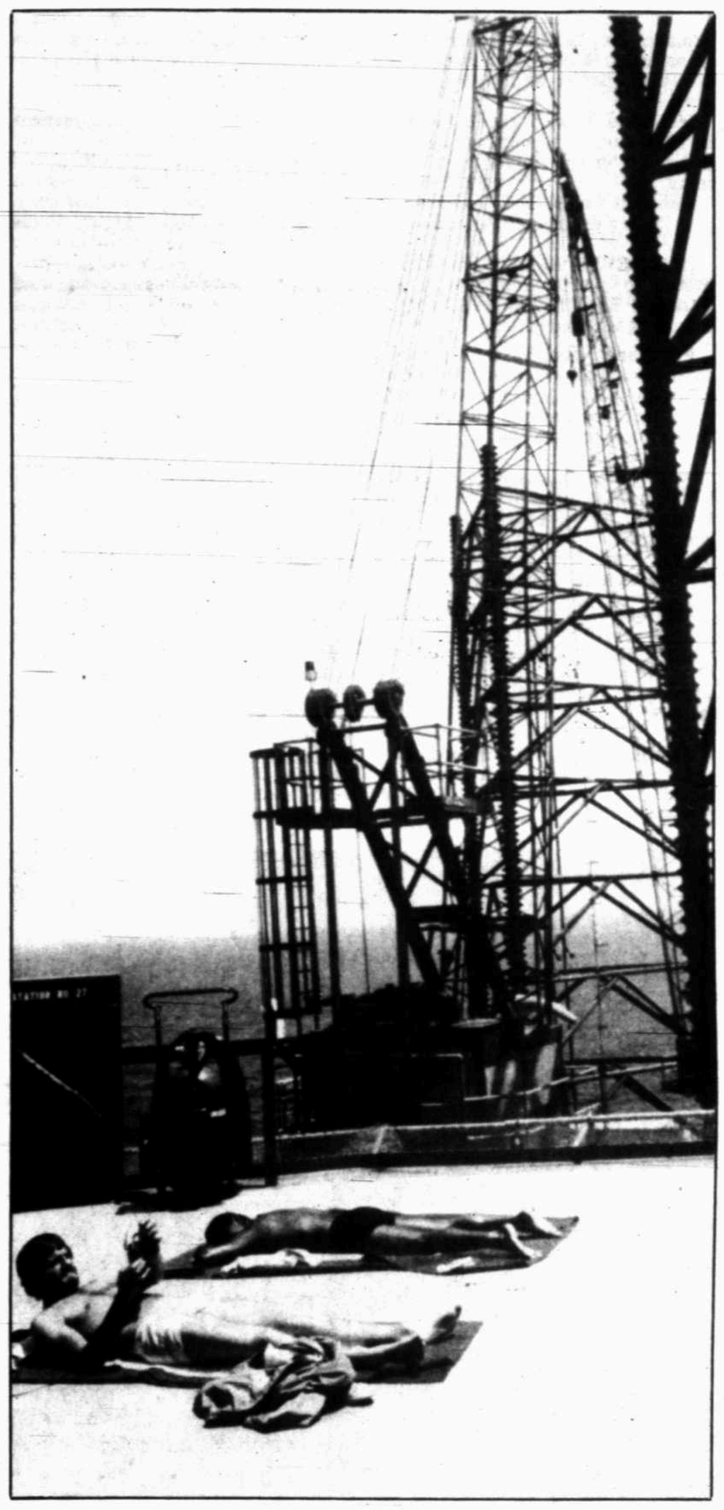

Grossenbacher, an 18-year-veteran and acting associate administrator, was the unanimous choice of the three-man board.

He replaces Ernie Tullis, who was fired on a 2-1 vote in April after a power struggle between Tullis and two new commissioners, Ed Grisham and Ronnie Luna.

The commissioners were on the verge of starting a nationwide search Monday for a new administrator when they abruptly chose Grossenbacher after a long closed-door meeting.

Grisham said there was no other motive behind the quick selection of Grossenbacher except that the commissioners believed he was the best candidate. "We had talked to a lot of people informally about who would be the best. It always came back to Bill," he said.

Grossenbacher, 40, began his employment services career as a counselor in San Antonio and worked his way up to director of the Employment Service division in the state office.

Where the boys are

It may be a long, hot summer, but these young oil workers on the Glomar Main Pass 4 jack-up drilling rig take advantage of time off to develop bronze suntans in anticipation of shore time — where the girls are. The workers, drilling for Pennzoil Co. 115 miles off Galveston, find comfortable ocean breezes often accompany a mid-day sun if you're on a helicopter deck 120 feet above Gulf of Mexico waters.

Housing starts climbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts climbed 5.3 percent in June, reversing a sharp decline in the previous month, the government said today. The increase was spurred by the biggest rise in multi-family units since September 1973.

Permits for new construction edged up 1.8 percent last month; they had tumbled 10 percent in May.

Spokesmen for the housing industry have complained that they're being hurt by high interest rates and that they see few prospects for those rates to fall significantly anytime soon.

Mortgage interest rates shot up in June to their highest levels in about two years, putting home loans out of the reach of many homebuyers. Charges for conventional, fixed-rate mortgages stood at an average of 14.76 last month, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which oversees the savings and loan industry.

Indeed, today's report by the Commerce Department said the June increase was due to a gigantic 32.5 percent surge in starts for buildings with five units or more.

For single-family homes, it said, starts were down 7.2 percent last month after falling 3.8 percent in May.

Overall, the report said work was begun on new homes at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.9 million units in June, up from the 1.8 million of May. Starts had plummeted 10.4 percent in May from the April rate.

Permit applications rose at an annual rate of 1.78 million, up from 1.75 million in May. That increase was also attributed to a burst in applications for buildings with five units or more.

June's housing starts were 9 percent above the year-ago level, and permit applications were 0.7 percent higher.

All the figures in today's report were adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

Before such adjustment, the report said, work was actually begun on about 185,400 new homes in June, up from 181,900 in May.

Business optimism at new record high

NEW YORK (AP) — A record percentage of the nation's business leaders anticipate growth in profits and sales for the third quarter, although expectation for new orders is down slightly, Dun & Bradstreet Corp. said Sunday.

The business information company also said that business leaders continue to foresee price increases, but remain optimistic about employment and inventories.

The company said its quarterly survey of 1,500 business leaders found that the percentage of those expecting higher profits was at an 18-year high and the percentage expecting sales increases was higher than anytime since the third quarter of 1978.

Joseph W. Duncan, corporate economist at Dun & Bradstreet, said the results were similar to last month's survey.

"The nation's business leaders do not foresee an immediate slackening of the economic growth in the months ahead," he said.

Dun & Bradstreet said its "Profit Optimism Index" — the percentage of business leaders seeing a rise in earnings minus the percentage of those expecting a decline — increased two points to 75 over the second quarter. Manufacturers of non-durable goods led the category with an index of 79.

The company said its Index of Sales rose to a five-year high of 80 over the quarter. Durable and non-durable goods manufacturers led with indexes of 83.

The percentage of business leaders anticipated new orders in the third quarter declined two percentage points to 81 percent, the company said.

Meanwhile, the survey found that 52 percent of those polled expected prices to rise. It was the third consecutive quarter in which a majority predicted price increases, Dun & Bradstreet said.

One third of the business leaders surveyed said they expected to expand their workforce and 50 percent expected to increase inventories over the third quarter, the report said.

Interior can accept offshore bids

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — The Interior Department can accept bids Wednesday on large-area offshore oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico, but a federal judge reserved the right to throw out the bids if he later agrees with Texas officials that the move is illegal.

U.S. District Judge Robert Parker heard arguments in the case Monday, then ruled that the federal agency is operating within federal law in its plans to sell leases in an "area-wide" system of 5,300 tracts of 5,000 to 6,000 acres each.

At issue is more than $230 million in revenue from 31 million acres of outer continental shelf lease property.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has complained that small firms will be cut out of the offering if only large areas are leased, thus keeping bids lower and cheating the state of income.

Although okaying the Interior Department action for the time being, Parker gave the state another opportunity to change his mind. He gave the state two weeks to file written briefs on the issue, and said federal officials then would have two weeks to respond.

Federal officials have argued that the law does not specify how large, or how small, tracts should be.

Gov. Mark White recently met with Interior Secretary William Clark to discuss the matter, but reached no agreement.

Mattox argued that leasing by the "nominations process" would produce greater revenue to both the state and federal government.

Under the nominations process, a small tract is nominated by an oil company, leased through an auction and explored by the winning bidder. If oil or natural gas is found, the subsequent bidding on the surrounding tracts is usually much higher.

"Interior's approach in this situation eliminates the panoply of bidders for individual tracts," assistant Attorney General David Richards argued Monday.

Japan PC invasion still not here

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

TOKYO — Since the beginning of the personal computer business about seven years ago, Japanese companies have been expected to invade the rich American market and take a big share of it, as they had with automobiles and televisions.

But the invasion has never materialized. And many Japanese executives are growing increasingly pessimistic that it ever will materialize, at least in the same way it did in autos and consumer electronics.

"For the next 10 or 15 years, Japan has no choice but to follow the American lead," said Kikuo Okuda, editor of Business Computer News.

Lagging Japanese computer technology — especially in software — combined with weak marketing and cultural differences have kept Japanese manufacturers a step behind the Americans.

In Japan, most computers are produced by large, well-established companies, which function best once a market has stabilized. But this has not happened in personal computers.

"The change is so rapid for an average Japanese manufacturer, it's hard to keep abreast of it," said Kazuo Saitoh, corporate director and deputy general manager of the instruments group of the Sharp Corp., a Japanese manufacturer of business machines and electric appliances. "Although we know we have to do something, most Japanese companies are not able to do it."

As a result, many of Japan's premier high-technology companies, having failed to penetrate the American market with their products, are falling back to other strategies.

Some are supplying products to be sold by American companies. The Kyocera Corp. makes the popular Radio Shack Model 100 portable computer, while the Mitsubishi Electric Corp. has started supplying the Sperry Corp., and Mitsui is selling a machine to the Kaypro Corp.

Other Japanese companies are concentrating on the peripheral equipment for computers, such as printers, display screens and disk storage devices. These do not require software and are easier to market.

Penn Square probe spreads

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 34-count indictment against a Penn Square Bank executive who wrote $2 billion in loans before the bank failed doesn't end the federal probe, which has spread to other cities around the country, the FBI says.

Senior Vice President William G. Patterson was charged Tuesday with wire fraud, misapplication of funds and making false entries in bank records. The activities were among free-wheeling operations that dragged down Penn Square on July 5, 1982, and threatened to topple some of the nation's largest banks, U.S. Attorney Bill Price said.

FBI agent Tony Daniels said Tuesday that a dozen agents remain on the case full-time and that the investigation has been taken up in other cities whose banks were shaken by the Penn Square collapse.

He did not identify the cities, and said any charges in those areas would come from separate grand juries.

Patterson, 34, faces a maximum penalty of 170 years in prison and fines of $146,000 if convicted on all counts.

The only person named in Tuesday's indictment, Patterson headed the bank's oil and gas division, which arranged loans of about $2 billion to energy concerns. Only $350 million was loaned by Penn Square; the rest was set up on behalf of banks eager to cash in on the oil boom and whose officers trusted Penn Square to scout the deals for them.

Loans to energy companies, many of which went bad as the oil industry turned down sharply, were blamed for many of the problems that led to Penn Square's demise, according to officials of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which is liquidating the bank.

The grand jury indicted Patterson on 24 counts of misapplication of bank funds, six counts of wire fraud and four counts of false entry to bank records, Price said.

"We believe this indictment reflects a major element in the failure of Penn Square Bank," he said.

Penn Square arranged loans for such major banks as Chase Manhattan in New York, Seattle First and Continental Illinois in Chicago. It was also associated with Michigan National Bank and Northern Trust Co.

When Penn Square failed, bad loans to other banks were left outstanding. Federal officials estimated it left behind $2.1 billion in loan participations sold to other banks.

Seafirst Corp., Seattle First's holding company, later said it had lost $224 million in 15 months and would merge with BankAmerica Corp. Continental Illinois was saved this year by a massive infusion of credit pooled by the FDIC from other institutions.

Patterson, whose division was responsible for 80 percent of Penn Square's loans, has refused to talk to reporters for months and has an unlisted telephone number. Price said Patterson would not make a court appearance until next week because his attorney is out of town.

The indictment alleges that Patterson knew of the dangerous condition of the bank and "continued to commit certain banking practices which subjected PSB to abnormal risk in loans until his removal from office on June 21, 1982."

Patterson deliberately withheld unfavorable credit information about borrowers and made loans to customers "he knew or should have known lacked adequate repayment capacity," the indictment says.

BOTTOM LINES

TANDY CORP.

FORT WORTH — Tandy Corp. has announced that preliminary sales for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1984, subject to audit adjustments, were $2,736,268,000, 11 percent ahead of the $2,475,188,000 reported in fiscal 1983.

Consolidated sales for the month of June were $201,588,000, a decrease of one percent from June 1983 sales of $203,604,000. Tandy's U.S. Radio Shack Division recorded sales of $154,479,000, a five percent decrease from sales of $162,231,000 in June 1983. Sales of U.S. Radio Shack stores in existence more than one year decreased four percent during June 1984.

WESTERN BANK

Western Bank reported net income of $510,994 or $.79 per share for the second quarter ended June 30th. The earnings represented return on assets and return on equity of 2.32 percent and 34.99 percent respectively, and brought the bank's cumulative earnings for the year to $881,265.

Western's deposits grew nine percent to $84.6 million from $77.9 million at the previous quarter, an annualized 36 percent growth. Total loans were reported up six percent to $68.5 million from $64.0 million at March 31, 1983, a 24 percent annualized increase. Total capital at June 30, 1984 was $5.8 million or 6.4 percent of assets.

Western Bank, a locally-owned independent bank was chartered in 1972. It specializes in perssonal banking and small to medium-sized business financing, including small business administration lending.

WALGREEN CO.

DEERFIELD, Ill. — Walgreen Co. has posted record sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months of fiscal 1984. Chairman Charles R. Walgreen III and president Fred F. Canning also announced they fully anticipate that fiscal 1984 will mark the company's tenth consecutive year of record results.

Sales for the quarter ended May 31 increased 17.5 percent to $685,046,000 while net profits for the period rose 21.3 percent to $19,187,000 ($.62 per share.)

Net earnings for the nine months were up 25.6 percent to $59,411,000 based on sales of $2,060,431,000 an increase of 16.7 percent.

Walgreen explained that net earnings from U.S. operations, benefited by strong sales and control of expenses, rose 23.9 percent for the quarter and 30.9 percent for the nine months. These earnings, he said, "more than offset the decrease in equity income from Sanborns, our Mexican affiliate." Sanborns continues to be affected by Mexico's weakened economy, high inflation, and peso devaluations. Estimated Lifo inventory calculatons contributed to a $331,000 loss from Sanborns for the third quarter.

TEXAS AMERICAN BANCSHARES INC.

FORT WORTH — Texas American Bancshares Inc. has reported net income of $1.18 per share for the second quarter of 1984, an increase of 15 percent from the second quarter of 1983 and a 40 percent increase from the preceding quarter.

For the quarter, TAB reported net income of $12,504,000 compared to $10,387,000 ($1.03 per share) for the comparable period in 1983 and $8,862,000 ($.84 per share) for the first quarter of this year.

Texas American reported a 22 percent growth in average loans for the second quarter compared to last year and a five percent growth compared to the first quarter of 1984.

INTERFIRST CORP.

DALLAS — InterFirst Corp. has reported its second consecutive quarter of increased earnings and third straight quarter of profitability for the period ended June 30, 1984.

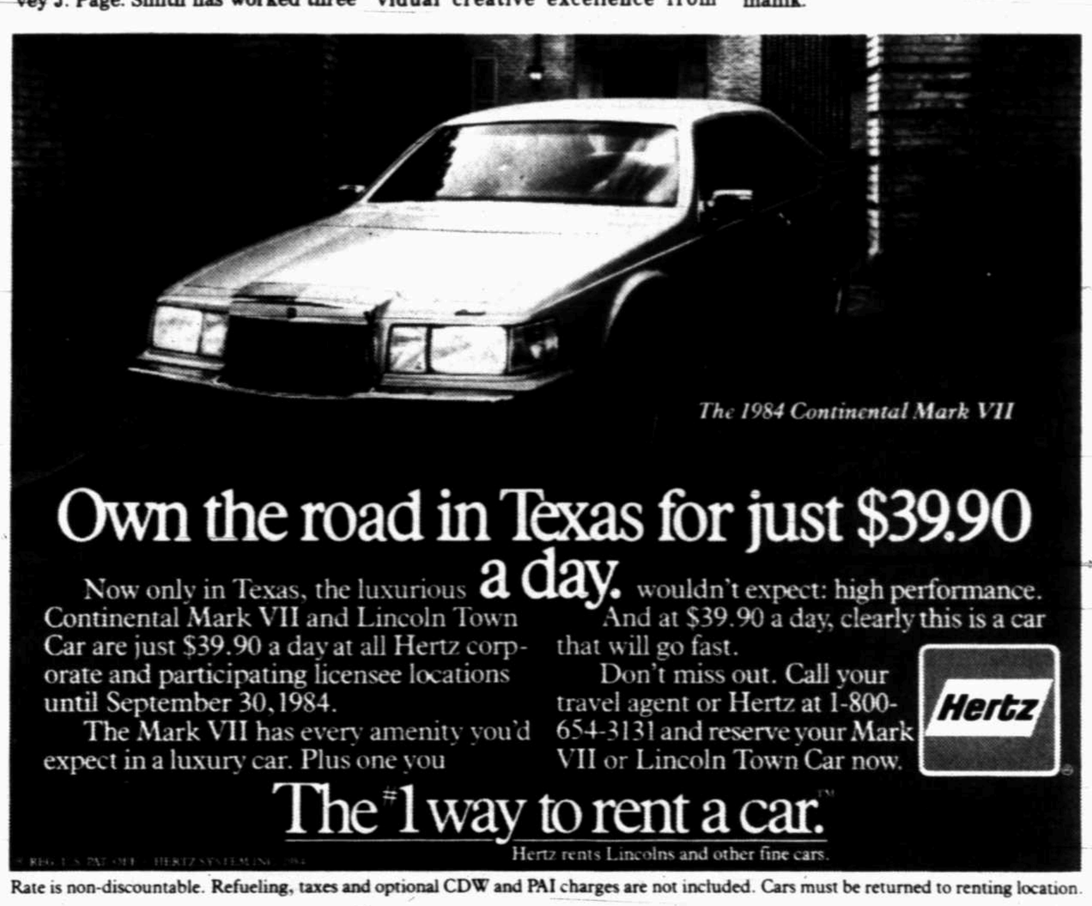

The company reported net income of $13.4 million (20 cents per share) in the second quarter. This compares to net income of $9.6 million (14 cents per share) in the first quarter of 1984 and $31.8 million (56 cents per fully diluted share) in the second quarter of last year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1984, the Dallas-based bank holding company reported consolidated net income of $23.0 million (34 cents per share) compared to $69.2 million ($1.21 per fully diluted share) in the comparable 1983 period.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Re-entry could spark new interest

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

Based on a recompletion in Glasscock County other wells in the area will probably warrant a second look, according to Bill Hendon, operator.

HENDON EXPLORATION INC., Midland, has completed its No.1 Cheatham "13" as a Strawn discovery flowing 84.5 bopd, 400 Mcfd and 6 bwpd on a 14/64 in. choke through perforations at 10,036-10,178 ft, following stimulation with 5,000 gal. 15 percent acid.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,067 ft. and plugged back to 10,275 ft. from a ground elevation of 2,622 ft. Formation tops were set as follows: Grayburg 3,303; San Andres, 3,661 ft.; Clearfork 5,128; Upper Spraberry, 6,740 ft.; Deans, 8,058 ft.; Wolfcamp 8,295 ft.

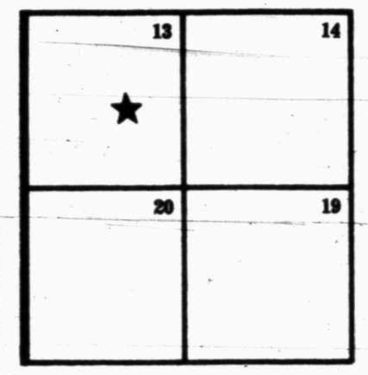

The well was originally drilled by Dorchester, tested low and wet in the Fusselman and was pronounced non-commercial in the upper zones.

Operator, Bill Hendon, said the well would be commercial under their guidelines, and predicated on the successful completion of the No.1 Chetham as well as other well control in the area plans further development. Hendon has about four sections on a farm out agreement in the area.

The No.1 Cheatham is a 1 1/2 mile northeast stepout from the Houston 25, another re-entry, and offsets the Houston 14 in the Wolfcamp.

Hendon has completed only the Strawn in the new pay discovery, but feels there is probably additional reserves behind the pipe in the Wolfcamp, which will be completed at a later date.

The Strawn in the area is a fairly consistent 100-150 ft. thick section with pays at various intervals. Four intervals were completed in the Chetham.

Wildcat discoveries elsewhere in U.S.

VALERO ENERGY CORP., an active buyer and producer of gas in the Permian Basin has completed a wildcat discovery in Galveston County, Texas flowing 10.9 Mmdfd gas and 308 barrels condensate.

Permian Basin operators active in the Rocky Mountains will be interested to know that LINMAR ENERGY CORP., Denver, has completed a well in the Altamont-Bluebell field in Northeast, Utah flowing 994 bopd, 1.3 Mmcfd gas and no water on a 17/64 in. choke.

Field activity report

CHEVRON U.S.A., Midland, is on the 11th well of a 45 well drilling program in the WESTBROOK FIELD in Mitchell County. Chevron is drilling 21 producers and 24 injectors as part of a coninuing 10-acre waterflood development program.

The program is looking for bypassed oil in the field that is one of the oldest in the Permian Basin.

MID-AMERICA PETROLEUM INC., Dallas, is reported to be planning a waterflood, with the drilling of up to 100 wells in the shallow TAYLOR-LINK FIELD in Pecos County. Mid-America has bought out most of the operators in the field with the exception of Ladd Petroleum, which is currently doing development drilling on its own structure within the field.

Discovered in the thirties, the field which produces from the lower Grayburg and San Andres at approximately 1,700 ft., comprises approximately 5-6 sections and contains about 200 wells.

Mid-America reportedly will plug some of the old wells in the field, while drilling new injectors and producers. Water for the flood may come from the Rustler sands if there is sufficient water.

In the past two weeks, Mid-America has completed three wells in the Taylor-Link field, with production rates ranging from 6-22 bopd.

GULF OIL CORP., Midland, reports success with the tightening of its waterflood pattern in the NORTH WARD ESTES field in Ward County, as a large scale drilling program, involving several stages, is still underway there.

AMOCO PRODUCTION (ANDREWS) continues to agressively drill in Andrews County. Four more wells are planned for the FULLERTON FIELD, one in the ANDREWS FIELD, and two each in the MIDLAND FARMS and PARKER PENN. Also, in Andrews County, EXXONN continues work on its tertiary recovery project in the MEANS FIELD, with three more applications being filed this week.

In District 8-A, TEXACO INC., Midland, intends to drill eight wells in the Jo-Mill (Spraberry) field, 15 miles southwest of Gail in Borden County. RJD MANAGEMENT CO. INC., Lubbock, plans to drill six new development wells in the POST FIELD(GLORIETA), 10 miles east of Post in Garza County. In Terry County, AMOCO PRODUCTION (BROWNFIELD) will drill eight development wells in the PRENTICE FIELD. ADOBE OIL & GAS will also drill one well in the Prentice field.

PARKER & PARSLEY, Midland, will drill three new locations in the SPRAYBERRY TREND. One will be 10 miles northwest of Stanton and two one mile northeast of Midland.

8-A draws 17 new wildcats

A virtual deluge of new wildcat applications has hit District 8-A, with nearly every county in the district drawing at least one.

Based on the success of its No.2 Ainsworth, which completed pumping 103 bopd, BUSH EXPLORATION, Midland, has staked its No.1-429 Ainsworth as an offset wildcat. TAUBERT, STEED, GUNN & MEDDERS, Wichita Falls operators, will drill two more wildcats on its S.B. Burnett Estate lease, as a result of a previous discovery on that lease. See wildcats for detatils and locations.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

IPAA chief speaks out on gas recontrol bill

WASHINGTON — Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) executive vice president Lloyd Unsell has passed off claims by congressman Phil Sharp (D-IN) and Tom Tauke (R-IA) that their recent letter to Speaker O'Neill represented a ground swell of solid support for the Sharp-Tauke natural gas recontrol bill (HR 4277).

Unsell noted that Sharp and Tauke claimed a majority of the house had ignored the letter urging O'Neill to use his office to bring the bill to the floor.

"They didn't even get that right," he said, noting that the District of Columbia's non-voting delegate Walter Fauntroy was used to produce the so-called majority.

"It once again points out how supporters of this legislation have tried continually to make their work appear significant."

Gas discovery announced offshore Texas

HOUSTON — American National Petroleum Co. has announced a natural gas discovery on State Tract 562-L in offshore Texas waters. The well tested at a rate of approximately 10 million cubic feet of gas and 30 barrels of condensate per day on a 40/64" choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,204 pounds per square inch with perforations from 6,300 to 6,315 feet.

The discovery adjoins State Tract 563-L where ANPC reported a gas discovery that tested at approximately 5.0 million cubic feet of gas per day last month. Although the two discoveries are separate fields, common production facilities will be utilized. Since fabrication of the facilities is already underway, the company anticipates that commercial production from the fields will commence late in the year.

Conoco receives first national safety award

WASHINGTON — The Department of Interior has named Conoco Inc. recipient of the first National Safety Award for Excellence (SAFE). The award recognizes the company for conducting its offshore oil and gas operations with "utmost concern for environmental protection and human safety."

Land of traditional filial piety now resorting to old-age homes

PEKING (AP) — The old-age home is beginning to appear in this land of filial piety.

Changes in family size and structure, and a longer life span, mean that many of China's one billion people will grow old without sons and daughters to look after them.

Rural China already has 11,000 old-age homes accommodating 147,000 people, including 181 in the remote northwest province of Xinjiang with its Uygur Moslem population.

At an attractive courtyard-style home for the elderly on Marco Polo Bridge commune in the suburbs of Peking, one resident, 79-year-old Su Ande, said:

"We were old peasants, growing corn, cabbage and other vegetables. We were looked down upon by others because we had no children and because we were poor.

"The government showed concern for us and asked us to come here and we're more than happy," she said, sitting on a large bed in the room she shares with her husband Li Mingshan, 80.

The home was built in 1982 at a cost of about $150,000. It houses 58 people, average age 71, and includes a tailor, barber's shop and clinic with two doctors. The only qualifications are age and childlessness. Residents get $2 a month pocket money.

"The best thing is the food, especially the pancakes and noodles," said Li.

In a nearby village, 68-year-old Xi Xiufang lives with her son, his wife and small son.

"In the old society we feared that when we got old nobody would take care of us," she said. "In the new society, we don't have to worry. When we retire, we get an old-age pension."

Commune rural affairs official Liu Shulan explained that 2,700 of the 50,000 people in the township are past retirement age — 65 for men and 60 for women — and get pensions averaging $8 per month, about one-third of normal income.

"Before we began the pension plan in 1980, they had to depend on their sons and daughters. Later, we had the idea for the old folks' home to provide for people with no one to support them."

Like cities and villages across China, the commune provides its elderly with "five guarantees," making sure they have food, clothing, fuel, education and a proper burial.

China has 75 million people aged 60 or older and most live in an "extended family" home shared by three generations.

But as living standards improve, many retired couples are deciding to remain on their own. The Chinese Academy of Social Sciences reports that the average household has shrunk from 5.35 persons in 1947 to 4.43 when the last census was taken in 1982.

"The number of economically self-sufficient older people living apart from their children will continue to increase," said Ma Xia of the academy's Population Research Center.

One survey in Peking showed that nearly 90 percent of young people aged 15-25 want to set up their own homes in the future, without parents or grandparents.

They belong to the one couple-one child generation subject to a birth control policy designed to limit the population to 1.2 billion by the end of the century.

The changes contribute to an aging problem. China had 40 million elderly in 1953, or 7 percent of the population. That rose to 80 million people, or 8 percent, by 1980 and will soar to 280 million, or 20 percent, by 2025, according to demographers.

John Huston still in control

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most makers of classic films spend their late years in sad self-imitation. Not John Huston, who is still in firm control of his creative faculties despite physical setbacks and the advanced age of 77.

Last summer Huston brought forth his first musical, "Annie," which drew carping reviews but enough business to prompt producer Ray Stark to plan a sequel. Now comes "Under the Volcano," a harshly beautiful film greeted with critical raves as well as pans.

"Under the Volcano" was the premiere attraction at Filmex, the Los Angeles Film Exposition. The audience reaction was reportedly subdued; the film's unrelenting dramatics occasion awe, not enjoyment.

But the premiere crowd had no restraint in greeting Huston, an august figure with patriarchal beard and black eye patch. He was roundly cheered.

Huston was at his ease one afternoon in his temporary quarters, Stark's apartment in a Sunset Strip high-rise building. He explained the eye patch: a recent cataract operation. Ten years ago he underwent surgery for an aneurysm in the aorta. He also suffers emphysema, but he seems to consider such things as minor distractions.

"Under the Volcano" was not an easy book to bring to the screen, Huston said. Malcolm Lowry's 1940 story about the disintegration of a British consul in Cuernevaca, Mexico, was hailed by many critics as a masterpiece of irony.

"I had read the book when it first came out," the director remarked. "I admired it, but I didn't consider it a masterpiece. I still don't. It had some flights of marvelous writing, but it didn't occur to me that it could become a picture."

Over the years, Huston said, he received dozens of scripts, but he didn't envision the story as a film.

"The problem was that Lowry was almost completely literary," Huston said. "The novel of (The Treasure of) Sierra Madre' was not literary at all; it was almost uncouth. The scripts of 'Under the Volcano' suffered under the influence of the esoteric aspect of the book. They fell victim to the symbolism and allusions instead of trying to get to the heart of the story.

"It wasn't a matter of my pursuing the project like the Holy Grail. I always said I was interested, but I never thought it was possible until the last script, by Guy Gallo."

The young producing couple, Michael and Kathy Fitzgerald, who had managed the "impossible" task of putting together Huston's "Wise Blood," did the same with "Under the Volcano." Because of salary deferments and a non-union Mexican crew, the film was made for $4 million, virtually assuring a profit.

"Over the years Richard Burton had wanted to play the consul," Huston said. "But he was committed to do that ghastly play ('Private Lives') with Liz (Elizabeth Taylor), and being a decent man, he would not withdraw. Albert Finney was far from being the second choice. I have great affection for him, and I'm in awe of his talent." Rounding out the cast were Jacqueline Bisset and Anthony Andrews.

Huston is considering three scripts for his next project.

"I can't imagine retiring," he remarked. "Why should film directors retire, any more than composers and painters? After all, Titian was still painting at 86."

For deception to succeed, you don't need the big lie. It is usually sufficient to deflect the attention from the crucial suit to another, as this example highlights.

North intended to employ the Stayman Convention as an invitational sequence over his partner's no trump opening. However, when South showed a spade suit, North changed his mind and barged into game. Because of his collection of quacks (as queens and jacks are known in the trade), he might have been wiser to carry through with his original intention and bid only three spades.

West led a diamond, and declarer thought that he had seen better contracts. But when East won the ace of diamonds and continued the suit, declarer saw a ray of light. If the opponents could be convinced to attack clubs rather hearts, he might get home. So, at trick two, declarer won the king of diamonds and continued with the 10. Since one heart discard would avail him naught, he sluffed a club from dummy!

Next came the king of spades, taken by West's ace. Impressed by declarer's haste to get rid of one of dummy's clubs, that worthy could hardly wait to get the 10 of clubs on the table. Declarer won in dummy, drew the outstanding trumps, then took his clubs to sluff two hearts from the table. The defenders ended up getting just one trick in each suit except clubs.

Whether West should have been taken in by declarer's ruse is open to question. Had he stopped to count declarer's points, he would have found that there was no way declarer could have enough for an opening no trump bid without either the ace or queen of clubs.

CBS to air documentary on Truman

By WES COOK

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — There's no doubt that many of the decisions and policies that were initiated in the nearly eight years of the Harry S. Truman presidency "changed America's course in the world."

That's the summation of Walter Cronkite when he reviews the Truman presidency on CBS Reports: "The Legacy of Harry S. Truman" Wednesday night.

CBS has scheduled the program for 8 p.m. EDT, but check your local listings.

The documentary is an entertaining, informative, rewarding hour. It's a celebration of the life of a man who said he "was a failure in business ventures but finally found success as a public servant." This is the centennial year of Truman's birth. He died Dec. 26, 1972.

Cronkite reminds us that following the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and having been sworn into office as president, Truman said "the moon, stars, and all the planets had just fallen on him."

Historian William Luechtenberg explained that, although Truman had been vice president for about 80 days, he was not privy to strategy planning for the war, had met with FDR only twice outside of cabinet meetings, was not briefed on diplomacy, had never met Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, and knew absolutely nothing about the atomic bomb.

"FACED WITH AN extraordinary series of crises," Cronkite says, "he responded with actions which endowed future presidents with a set of new and awesome responsibilities."

In addition to Luechtenberg, Cronkite interviews some of President Truman's closest advisors; counsel Clark Clifford; George Kennan, a member of Truman's State Department, and Leon Keyserling, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, created by Truman after he established the Employment Act of 1946.

Others interviewed are the President's daughter, Margaret Truman Daniel, and Robert Donovan, former White House Correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune.

The CBS special, written and produced by Joel Heller, focuses on Truman's decision to use the atomic bomb; the Berlin Airlift; development and ramifications of the Truman Doctrine and the George Kennan containment policy; the Marshall Plan; U.S. intervention in Korea; recognition of the state of Israel; his surprising re-election, and the Employment Act of 1946, which made the federal government responsible for using "all practical means to promote full employment production and purchasing power."

The CBS special has a refreshing vitality, combining the use of unusual historic and present-day film to illustrate some of the presidential decisions and policies discussed by Cronkite and his guests.

There is a touch of humor, most of it supplied by Truman, and we get a glimpse of his wife, Bess, embarrassed and frustrated when, time and again, a champagne bottle refuses to break in a christening ceremony.

TRUMAN STILL comes in for criticism for his decision to drop the atomic bomb on Japan. Luechtenberg suggests that because of the actual situation that existed, "Truman's action does not seem as out of the ordinary as it might at first glance," but "what does continue to trouble people is that Truman showed little concern about an action that had such devastating consequences."

However, as with other critics, Luechtenberg appears to ignore Truman's frequently stated concern in saving American lives.

Kennan is critical of the broad application by Truman of the containment policy, guaranteeing aid to countries in their fight against communism. He said his recommendation was essentially limited to containment of the boundaries of Soviet power, both in Europe and Asia. He said the distortion "has to do with our problems today in Central America and in the Middle East."

And Luechtenberg suggests that by giving it a "global sweep ... many of the seeds for disaster in Vietnam were planted in the Truman years."

KEYSERLING found Truman had a rare understanding of the economy. "When I asked Truman when is unemployment too high he didn't answer like other economists. He said, 'it depends on whether or not you're unemployed.'"

He had a realization that "the well-being of the people is the supreme law," said Keyserling.

Sinatra to hit Music Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a little help from his friends — and pals of Quincy Jones as well — Frank Sinatra is about to hit Music Television.

Though a world premiere date has yet to be set, a spokeswoman says the video of Sinatra's new single, "L.A. Is My Lady," will debut on the cable music channel, MTV: Music Television, July 28 in time for the start of the Summer Olympics.

The laid-back tribute to the City of Angels will be something of a departure from MTV's usual diet of rock and pop, and it will have plenty of star-watcher appeal.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: French artist Edgar Degas, surgeon and clinic founder Dr. Charles Mayo and English novelist A.J. Cronin were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: tennis' Ilie Nastase, former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and singer Vicki Carr. An intriguing business proposition could turn everything around for you. A close friendship becomes more important than ever. Give loved ones the same kind of freedom you demand for yourself. It is time to take a major career step. A bank is the best place to obtain financing for a new business venture. Avoid borrowing from relatives and in-laws. Mate wants greater independence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Concentrate on completing unfinished tasks. A misunderstanding over money could lead to a confrontation. Remain both calm and factual. A social event proves very enjoyable. A new romance is possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Trips and conferences enjoy favorable influences. Discard outdated methods and procedures if trying to boost profits. A computer saves both time and money. Influential person shows new interest in your ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be more considerate. Do not always put your needs ahead of your friends'. Travel is more important than usual where business is concerned. A family gathering could lead to new romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Contact with people at a distance could result in new profits. Come to grips with an important task. Someone you met recently will pull strings for you. Show your appreciation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid doing anything rash. Postpone making a secret agreement until more facts and figures are available. Romance takes a turn for the better. Your friends cheer you on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put personal matters aside for a while and devote full attention to your work. A short journey gives you an opportunity to meet someone influential. Avoid acting on impulse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get some extra cash from an unusual source. A long-standing debt will be paid. Make a special effort to get a new project off the ground. Be bold in romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take your time when working out a plan of action. This is not the day to start something new. Disregard gossip and do your best to patch up a family quarrel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not take needless risks with your money. A get-rich-quick scheme will come to nought. Group activities hold more appeal than usual. Beware of someone who offers you something for nothing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A letter or phone call brings thrilling news. The employment outlook improves. Do not use shortcuts. A positive attitude will help you get through to a teenager. Go slow in romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family responsibilities take up more time than usual. Reschedule appointments to tend to loved one's needs. Consulting your records helps you straighten out a billing matter. Romance keeps you guessing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Invite a loved one to accompany you to a social event. Money and friendship should not be mixed. Keep your eyes open for special investment opportunities. New profits can be made.

Sports, specials beat out reruns

Associated Press

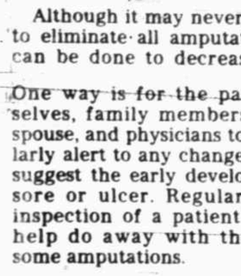

LOS ANGELES — Apparently tiring of summer reruns, television viewers last week chose baseball, movies and specials over regular series programming.

The "Miss Universe Pageant" on CBS, "All-Star Baseball" on ABC and the movie "Money on the Side" on ABC were the top-ranked shows for the week ended July 15.

Only one series, NBC's "The A-Team," was able to break into the top five, finishing fourth on the A.C. Nielsen Co. list.

An NBC movie, "Forbidden Paradise," was fifth, followed by CBS' "Trapper John, M.D." series. "60 Minutes" and "Alice" — both regulars from CBS — were next, while NBC grabbed ninth with "Hill Street Blues" and 10th with "Riptide."

Politics failed to draw too many viewers from regular shows, with CBS' "Campaign '84 Pre-Convention Special" finishing 34th out of 61 programs. NBC's fledgling "Summer Sunday U.S.A," which featured a heavy dose of presidential politics, finished last among all prime-time programs for the second straight week with a minuscule 3.2 rating.

Precaution may limit need for amputations

Dear Dr. Solomon: A very close friend of mine had to have the lower part of one leg amputated. He has diabetes and apparently the disease got out of control. What I have trouble understanding is why an intelligent person would wait so long until a condition became serious. I'm pretty sure he didn't just wake up one morning and find that one of his feet was badly infected. Can't these sores or whatever they are be caught earlier? — Randy, Fling, Mich.

Dear Randy: Patients with diabetes have a number of problems, each of which may contribute to the development of foot ulcers. For example, a loss of sensation may permit a developing sore to go unnoticed until conservative treatment is no longer feasible. A tight shoe or a small stone in a shoe can cause a blister to form that eventually develops into something more serious. To further complicate the situation, some diabetics have poor eyesight and may not even notice the early changes that warn of more serious complications if something isn't done about them.

Although it may never be possible to eliminate all amputations, much can be done to decrease the risk.

One way is for the patients themselves, family members such as a spouse, and physicians to be particularly alert to any change that might suggest the early development of a sore or ulcer. Regular and close inspection of a patient's feet may help do away with the need for some amputations.

Dear Dr. Solomon: In spite of all the publicity about AIDS, I think that doctors are naive if they expect gay men all of a sudden to completely change their way of life. What I would like to know is if the chance of getting AIDS would be lowered if a man limited himnself to sex once or twice a week. — Clem, San Francisco

Dear Clem: According to Dr. A. Sattar Memon, of Memorial Hospital in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, it is not so much the frequency of sex that places homosexual men at risk of developing the acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), but the number of different sexual partners.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am a 40-year-old accountant, and most of my time is spent at a desk. I would like to get into an exercise program, but I would first want to knwo if you recommend exercise testing. — Mel, Pittsburg

Dear Mel: Dr. John A. Lombardo, medical director of sports medicine for the Cleveland Clinic, recommends that anyone over 35 years of age who has been sedentary should have exercise testing. The same holds true for anyone who appears to be at risk on the basis of the history and the results of the physical examination.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother's doctor has prescribed aspirin for her arthritis. With all the advances in medical science over the years, and with all the wonder drugs I read about, aspirin seems to belong back in the horse-and-buggy days. Will you please tell me what drug or drugs you would prescribe for arthritis? — Mrs. W.P., Phoenix, Ariz.

Dear Mrs. P.: I would prescribe the drug that was most appropriate for the individual patient in the particular case, and I assume that is what your mother's physician has done. A drug that is best for one patient may not be appropriate for another.

Aspirin is the drug most often prescribed for arthritis. Although it is not magic, familiarity with it should not breed contempt.

Mattingly to take Naval assignment

Mattingly

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An astronaut who flew on both the Apollo and shuttle spacecraft says he will resign from the space program next year to take a new assignment with the Navy.

Navy Capt. Thomas K. Mattingly, 48, announced Monday he will become director of the Space Program in the Naval Electronic System Command, which has headquarters in Arlington, Va., early next year.

Mattingly orbited the moon as command module pilot on Apollo 16 in 1972. He was commander on the fourth shuttle flight and is to command a Department of Defense space shuttle mission in December.

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — W. Gillet Mitchell and Dorothy Gavin are "in seventh heaven" after their grade school love has survived the test of time — a 64-year separation.

The Fresno man and the Linden, N.J., woman, both 78, are engaged to be married at a church they remember from their childhood in Linden.

Mitchell, a retired engineer whose wife died last year, found it "very difficult living alone" and wanted to locate the eighth-grade girl he used to meet at the water fountain during recess.

He wrote the Linden Chamber of Commerce to see if anyone remembered a classmate whose maiden name was Walter. The mayor's secretary knew Mrs. Gavin, a retired secretary, and encouraged her to answer the letter.

Mitchell flew to New Jersey to meet Mrs. Gavin again in April.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hustler magazine publisher Larry C. Flynt's trial on charges of impeding justice was postponed at his request Tuesday until Sept. 13 because he said he suffers "physical illness."

He was released from prison on other charges two weeks ago, and has complained that he suffered from bedsores while incarcerated and was not given medical attention. He is confined to a wheelchair.

Flynt was arrested last November on charges he shouted obscenities at Supreme Court justices during arguments in a libel suit.

The self-proclaimed pornographer faces a maximum of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine, or both, on an obstruction of justice charge and 60 days and a $100 fine on an obscenities charge.

Owner 'brewing' over pub

From Wire Reports

HAYWARD, Calif. — Bill Owens wanted to avoid modeling his tavern after trendy spots with hanging plants. Nor did he want a smoky dive with loud music, blaring TVs and video games.

So last September, with a boost from the California Legislature, Owens took a step to ensure that his place would stand out — he opened a "brew-pub," that is, a pub that is also a brewery.

Owens' production — five barrels a week — is a drop in the bucket compared with the 177 million barrels the nation's 98 other licensed breweries say that they turned out in 1983. But his Buffalo Bill's "micro-brewery" and pub in Hayward, a San Francisco East Bay suburb, along with two other brew-pubs in the United States, make up one of brewing's more exclusive clubs.

ANOTHER OF the brew-pubs is 100 miles north in the rural Mendocino County town of Hopland, where Michael Laybourn, 46, a contractor by trade, and two partners opened the doors of their establishment last summer. The only other combination brewery and pub in the country is in Yakima, Wash., according to Charlie Papazian, president of the American Homebrewers Association.

About five states other than California allow combination breweries and pubs, Papazian said.

Both Owens and Laybourn started as home brewers and are trying to capitalize on the heightened interest in fine beers, especially hearty, imported brands. Both say their sudsy enterprises are breaking even.

The Hopland Brewery, which is also the name of the bar, sells its own brews along with local wines. It produces 16 barrels of ale a week, bottling some in magnums priced as much as $6 each. "People are more willing to pay for full flavor in their beer," Laybourn said.

OWENS SAID he wanted to break away from the traditional "beer bar with the guy with the pool cue," and took advantage of a change in California's liquor licensing laws last year that allows bars to sell beer "regardless of source," in effect giving the green light to brew-pubs.

Owens, 45, a former photographer who has produced six books, including "How-to-Build a Small Brewery," cajoled 27 friends to bet a total of $90,000 on his foamy dream.

Each investor became a limited partner with Owens serving as the managing partner. Owens estimates he is selling about $15,000 worth of beer a month, with half of the sales originating from his own brew and half from packaged beers.

He brews five barrels of his lager beer every Monday in the back of Buffalo Bill's. Each batch is made from barley, hops, water and yeast. No chemicals are added and the beer is not pasteurized. The end result tastes similar to most American beers, with an extra zip.

NOWADAYS all kinds of people are bellying up to Buffalo Bill's oak bar, crafted 104 years ago in South Dakota. The tavern's brick walls are decorated with photographs of breweries and bits of beer folklore that Owens dug out of books, a gimmick that apparently appeals to the secretaries who drop by at lunch time, plumbers and construction workers who stop on their way home and students and faculty members who come from nearby California State University at Hayward.

With his double-barreled enterprise, Owens is satisfied that he has accomplished more than just pouring a zesty tankard of beer.

"Some people only live this way two weeks a year."

Welcome to vacation living all year long. Welcome to Saddle Club Apartments. Saddle Club isn't a resort-we just look like one. We offer you 2 sparkling swimming pools, 2 lighted tennis courts, 2 indoor racquetball courts, a universal gym, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, and wet and dry saunas.

Once inside a Saddle Club apartment home you can cozy up to a warm fireplace, relax on your own patio or balcony and enjoy the feeling of luxury living.

There's privacy here, but if you want activities, we have planned resident get-togethers.

Rent beginning at $310. We're located only minutes from major businesses, recreation, fine restaurants and entertainment. We're probably only a few minutes away from where you work.

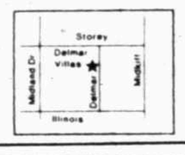

So if you feel like taking a vacation that never has to end, take a drive over to Saddle Club and let us show you how.
