

Kracker Krumbs Odd Bits Salvaged at Random

"Munday, home of the National Wheat King."

That's the wording our shop printed on the batch of ribbons during the week end.

They were ordered by the C. D. A. as a means of kinda letting folks know Munday is still on the map.

They are to be worn by Munday people who desire to boost their home town in this manner when they attend the 1952 Wheattime festival in Wichita Falls next week.

There's a limited number of these ribbons, and those who are going to the festival to see the crowning of the Wheat King—who is none other than John Michels, Knox County farmer—may have them for the asking.

They are at the C. D. A. office to be dispensed by Hattie Ann Borden, who might also pin one on your person, free gratis, too.

Munday seems to have been recognized for its agriculture lately.

Soon after the local farmer qualified as 1952 Wheat king by marketing the nation's first load of 1952 wheat, we came through with another first.

The J. B. Graham Grain Company shipped out a carload of wheat which reached Fort Worth early Friday, barely in time to be acclaimed the nation's first carload of 1952 wheat to reach the market.

It seems that two towns and two railroads were vying for this honor this year.

There's a town up in Indian Territory—Grandfield, Okla., by name—that was determined to market the first carload this year, since Munday was first last year.

This town, serviced by the Katy railroad got it out to rolling along the rails about the same time as the Burlington headed toward Fort Worth with Munday's wheat.

From reports it was a nose-to-nose finish. Munday's load came to a halt at its destination at 6:05 a. m. Friday. The minutes later the Katy came in with the Oklahoma load.

Again in the realm of agriculture, another honor come to two Munday men last week.

They had tilled their soil, summer fallowed land, rotated crops in other soil conservation practices not for any honor that might come their way—not because any honors might be bestowed on them, but because they believed in saving the soil as they went along and that such practices meant greater harvests.

And by their work and their practices they were declared outstanding farmers of the Miller-Brazos Soil Conservation District.

Although both men lived in Munday, their farming operations were within that district. So W. R. Moore and his son, W. R. Moore, Jr., were invited guests at the Seymour Lions Club luncheon on Wednesday of last week, where their farming practices were reviewed and they were presented a plaque designating them as outstanding farmers.

We reckon most folks are agricultural minded nowadays, anyway.

Combines are going at a rather fast clip in the wheat fields of the area this week. And it's pretty good news that wheat is turning out better than expected.

Recent rains have placed most of our farming land in planting condition, and farmers have their tractors busy in the fields. Some are planting for their first time; others are planting over, since the rain come in the nick of time to destroy their earlier plantings.

Move To Complete Labor Reception Center To Get Under Way Next Week

A concerted move will be started next week to complete the migratory reception center in Munday, which was started last year and to which many farmers of the area contributed funds. The reception center, when completed will be under the direction of the City of Munday. It was stated.

A total of $2,136.10 has been spent on the grounds thus far, most of which money was contributed by farmers of the area. There remains more money to be raised and spent in constructing the necessary buildings, providing sewerage and bath facilities, etc.

The center, when completed, will serve as a point of contact between the laborer and the farmer, and it is also planned to use the site for 4-H Club and F. F. A. project shows, as well as other activities as needed.

C. R. Elliott, who has just returned from a trip on which he inspected a number of reception centers, made the following report to C. D. A. directors last Monday night: The reception center will aid

In a race as exciting as the selection of the National Wheat King recently, Munday has gained the distinction of shipping the first load of wheat in the nation for the second consecutive year. The race was between Munday and the Burlington Railroad and Grandfield, Okla., and the Katy Railroad.

Munday's first load, shipped out by the J. B. Graham Grain Company, left here on the afternoon of Thursday, May 22, and arrived in Fort Worth at 6:05 a. m. May 23, ten minutes later the carload from Grandfield, Okla., arrived in Fort Worth. M. H. Dean, local depot agent, received word that Munday's car was declared first in the nation.

The first load of wheat was consigned to the Transit Grain Company and was purchased by W. P. Bomar for the Bewley Mills for $2.60 per bushel, this being a premium for the first load. The car containing 93,000 pounds of wheat which was graded No. 1 hard, 60.1 per bushel, 14 per cent moisture and 12.5 per cent protein.

GOREE SHIPS LOAD

According to E. V. Shackelford, depot agent at Goree, the first load of 1952 wheat left that shipping point at 2 p. m. Monday. It was shipped by George Nix, manager of the Graham Mill and Elevator Company to the Kimbell Mills in Fort Worth.

Wheat harvest is getting well under way in this area, and reports are that wheat is turning out better than expected.

Weinert School To Have Election For School Bonds

On Saturday, May 31, an election will be held at the Weinert school to determine if the school shall issue bonds for improvement purposes. It is proposed to make improvements on the school plant and to replace worn equipment.

"The floating of this bond issue will not raise taxes," those in charge stated. "The bonded indebtedness of the district has been reduced to a comparatively low figure, and the amount of taxes set aside now for the interest and sinking fund will not have to be increased enough to handicap the school program. The improvements will add greatly to the efficiency of the school."

Drive carefully—the life you save may be your own!

A CORRECTION

Widening Of Highway 277 Termed An Important Move Toward Safety

There's A Few Honest People

The following letter received by the City Drug Store this week convinced J. K. Jackson, owner, that there's still a few honest people in the world:

"Dear Sir: "Three years ago this last Easter I sent a friend of mine into your drug store for four ice cream cones. I gave her a five dollar bill, and on the way to the home where we were visiting at the time, I discovered the clerk in your store had given my friend a five and three ones, instead of four ones I was supposed to have back.

"I wanted to stop by on our way to our own home, but we didn't have time. I've thought of this mistake many times since; although honest, it should have been corrected. Please accept the enclosed four dollars, and forgive me."

The distinction of being the outstanding farmers of the Miller-Brazos Soil Conservation District went to two Munday men last week as they were awarded a plaque for this distinction.

They are a father-son farming team, W. R. Moore and W. R. Moore, Jr., both of Munday, but whose farm is located southeast of town in the edge of Throckmorton County.

Mr. Moore has been considered one of the area's successful farmers for many years. When "Dub", as W. R., Jr., is familiarly known here, came out of the service after World War II, he joined his father in farming operations.

For a number of years, they have carried out many soil building and conservation practices which have proven to be of value through greater production and cost successful farming. These practices have been studied by officers of the soil conservation district who voted them the outstanding farmers of the district.

Mr. Moore and Dub were honor guests of the Seymour Lions Club on Wednesday of last week, when Lion James F. Lester presented them the plaque and gave a brief account of the many soil conservation practices carried out in their farming operations.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

ELKTON, MD., CECIL WHIG: "The situation created by the seizure of the steel mills by President Truman is both serious and difficult. If . . . the President had been in the same frame of mind which possessed him some years ago when he was angered by the leaders of the Railroad unions, he might conceivably have seized the CIO Steel Workers Union, placing all of its property funds and organization under the direct operation of some federal agency."

VICTOR, N. Y., HERALD: "Two months ago the government halted a New York Central rail walkout by enjoining the workers to go back. Two years ago he (the President) thwarted John L. Lewis' will to strike through the courts and won his fight. Yet in the steel case he has gone far beyond normal executive powers. His seizure of the steel industry can only add up to an act of unwarranted power . . ."

ANGELS CAMP, CALIF., CALVERAS CALIFORNIAN: " . . . In that part of the Constitution known as the 'Bill of Rights', Article IV states, 'The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated x x x x . . . the court say fit to grant the steel industry an order voiding the industry's seizure.'"

BISHOPVILLE, S. C., LEE COUNTY MESS- ENGER: "Quoting Donald Richberg: The seizure of the properties of the steel companies by President Truman is the most inexcusably lawless act of any President in our entire history.' Mr. Richberg is a distinguished attorney, author, General Counsel and Chairman of NRA, co-author of the Railway Labor Act and for years conspicuously identified with Government Administrative policies."

TERMITES

It is reported that some Congressmen feel that there is a lack of interest on the part of consumers in price control. Therefore, these lawmakers reason, why stick your neck out in an election year? Just let matters drift along as they are now.

If such reports have any basis in fact, they reveal a cynical and shocking disregard of the national interest on the part of the Congressmen involved—no less than a disregard of the national security. Controls, no matter how wisely drawn and how carefully applied, eat like termites at the very foundations of the free enterprise system which has given us our economic might and living standards. Controls discourage initiative and ultimately reduce production—a man who is smothered in red tape can hardly be progressive. Controls substitute political flats for the orderly, historic workings of the free market.

From the purely practical point of view, controls can work serious and permanent harm on business on which we all depend for essential goods and services. That isn't just a theory—it has happened under OPS. At one time, for instance, OPS attempted to put into effect regulations on retailers which amounted to a form of profit control. Stores would have been unable to pass along increases in costs about which they could do nothing. The result would have been to force some stores out of business and to force many others to curtail buying and operations. Luckily, Congress blocked this to some extent—even so, existing regulations are, in many instances, unfair to retailing and other business.

There is only one sound way to deal with controls now—abandon them.

OUR STAKE IN THE RAILROADS

A top executive of an American railroad recently spoke on the subject of agriculture's and industry's stake in rail transportation. He described in some detail the intensive work the railroads have carried on since their earliest days in behalf of business and the farmer. Then he said:

"In my opinion, industry's and agriculture's stake in rail transportation is to see that the American railroads continue to operate as a private enterprise, privately owned and privately operated, and that management be permitted to exercise managerial discretion to meet changes in our economic situation which . . . will permit them to earn a return on their investment sufficient to meet changes in our economic situation which . . . will permit them to earn a return on their investment necessary to insure safe, economical and efficient service, adequate to meet the needs of domestic commerce and national defense."

Without the railroads, agriculture and industry would be paralyzed—other forms of transportation provide valuable supplementary service, but only the tireless Iron Horse can do the biggest jobs. Yet our confused transportation policy strongly discriminates against the rails and favors their competitors. That policy is almost totally obsolete. It was largely framed in the era when the railroads had a near-monopoly of commercial transportation. It dodges the fact that transportation today is competitive in the extreme.

The rails ask no favors—in the form of tax subsidies or anything else. They ask only for equality of treatment.

"Controls of the type we have in force on wages and prices can do little more than retard inflation. The experience of six great commercial nations in two years has proved that it is at best, a retarding device."

Herbert Hoover.

"The spreading ownership of stocks by individuals . . . and the new purchases of stock by trustees and insurance companies are ingredients of a developing 'people's Capitalism,' which would have far-reaching social effects."—Walter Maynard.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Wants Truce Negotiations Started Right Now For All Possible Future Wars

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek has an involved suggestion this week his letter reveals.

Dear editor:
 After the truce negotiations in the Korean war passed the eleventh month and they were still arguin, I got to thinkin.

This is a new wrinkle in modern warfare, taking nearly a year to shake hands and call the thing off, and if it's goin to become a general practice, we ought to get set and I have a suggestion for Washington.

Take the next war. Now of course we may not have one, but we can't afford to take a chance and it seems to me we'd be ahead of the hounds if we started truce negotiations long before the fightin starts, so they can have some chance of comin out even.

I don't know who our enemies are gonna be next time, but there's no use takin chances on that either. We ought to start truce negotiations with all possible enemies now, just in case. Arguin is cheaper than shootin.

As far as I know we ain't got anything for example against the African pygmies and I don't suppose they got anything against us, but there's no use in takin a chance. Set up a truce team to negotiate an armistice just in case. How about Borneo? Iceland? Pitcairn? Russia? A re-armed Germany? Italy? I don't know how many possibilities there are, but there must be room for at least three or four dozen truce teams all negotiatin at the same time, and they ought to be set to arguin right now.

That way, let somebody drop

a bomb, and before the troop transports can get loader the truce teams ought to come staggerin out of the truce tent with everything drawn up and agreed on.

I don't know who'd be the best people for this assignment, but how about ex-Congressmen, as a starter? They've had years of patient wranglin over split hairs, and many of them could hold their own with pygmies I know. Or club women who are sticklers for parliamentary rules? Or school teachers who have stood up for years to childish prattle without breakin more than the average?

At any rate, I believe we've got the talent for this job and Congress ought to establish a

Cattle Eat Well When 'Menu' Planned Early

If history repeats itself—and it usually does—cattlemen will be ahead if they prepare now for next winter's feed supply.

"The fable of the industrious ant and the lazy grasshopper has a good lesson for cattlemen," according to A. L. Ward, Educational Director for the National Cottonseed Products Association. "A review of old newspaper stories emphasizes that cattle raisers who have the right feed supplement ready at the right time usually come out of the winter with the least losses, best gains and most profit." Did you ever hear of the blizzard of '88? Do you remember the 1918 "blue norther"? These famous storms almost wrecked many cattle raisers. But, probably the deficiency of protein in nature and leached winter grasses and dry roughage has caused much more loss of beef production over a period of years.

A January, 1930, southwestern news story told how cattle raisers came out of what was called "the most devastating blizzard of the century" because a good supply of cottonseed cake was readily available by motor transportation to herds of cattle, "foraging unsuccessfully in the never ending blankets of snow."

So, it was not surprising, as those "blizzard baby calves" were going to market the next November, to find an Extension

Natchez, Miss., has many grand and stately home of pre-Civil War days: "Dunleith," a palace in a setting of wonderful trees, "Elms," which derives its name from a noble old tree with a twisted trunk; "Greenleaves," christened for the many trees, to name just a few.

Then there is the Briers, where Jefferson Davis' second marriage occurred. The home is a dazzling white and the drive-ways, flowers and shrubbery are so well-kept that the visitor half expect to see the front door open and the president of the Confederacy emerge with his bride on his arm. The roadway, built in carriage days of course, is narrow and is so enclosed by trees that it is almost like a

Most beautiful of the home is Rosalie, named by the owner for his young and lovely wife. The front is white, flanked by red bricks and there are a dozen green shutters—truly brilliant

The mansions appear to have 30 or 40 rooms—I entered only one and that one I will tell you about in a moment. It must have required an army of servants to maintain those princely establishments.

The story of Longwood is the most intriguing of all—and this is the mansion which I visited. The owner was said to have had 700 slaves. You enter the ground floor and find that the furnishings are very much the same as they were when the plantation owner dwelt there. His picture and his wife's picture smile a welcome to you from the wall. There is a big, four-poster bed. Above the dining table is a pun-kah, imported from India—a large, flat piece of highly polished wood, which a slave operated by pulling a cord, the device serving as a fan.)

Here is why Longwood is so intriguing: You gaze at a five-story building of red brick, surmounted by a silver dome. Then you view the ground floor with its furniture brought by steamboat from Philadelphia and the marble from Italy, then climb the steps and open the door to the next floor—and you see bare rafters, unfinished floors, scaffolding. Only the ground floor had been completed when the Civil War broke out, stopping construction. So the work stands just as it was that fateful day in 1861. Not a nail was driven, not a saw has sounded in more than 70 years. Outwardly magnificent, Longwood is but a shell—the shell of a dream that was never fulfilled.

And that is the story of the most romantic of the many romantic old homes of Natchez.

Let's Talk LIVESTOCK
(By Ted Gouldy)

FORT WORTH—Horse meat has been very much in the news in the past couple of years as various shady characters made the headlines by palming off various cuts from O' Dobbin as beef steak, sirloins and hamburger.

The latest ripple in the caustic comment coming from the American Meat Institute concerning Amendment 1, CPR 129, the OPS's May 14th release pertaining to changes in ceiling prices for horse meat products.

The AMI says that OPS authorization permitting addition to sausage of horse meat is an open invitation to crooks and chislers who have already been selling horse meat as beef. "It is possible, by analysis, to determine whether raw meat is horse meat, but if this could be mixed with beef in a cooked meat product, it would be impossible to detect the substitution. For their own protection, we urge consumers to insist on getting sausage from makers of known integrity," the AMI statement says.

Oh, well, after all, it may boost the price of oO' Dobbin! But on the other hand, we can't help wondering what Big Brain wrote that regulation?

Seasonal weakness in grassy kinds of cattle and calves was noted at Fort Worth this week. Some prices were 50 cents to $1 lower, and cows and the common to medium in-between grade calves, yearlings and heifers bore the brunt of the weakness.

Stocker trade continues very slow with only the high quality and thin light kinds getting a fairly good play. The lesser quality kinds have been sticky and slow, especially since a good many stockers are now carrying more and more flesh and that makes them "dollar" lots higher and hurts the per pound price.

Hogs set a new high at Fort Worth since August when they topped at $22 on May 19. However, the Corn Belt movement of hogs picked up during the week and the heavy offerings weakened prices steadily all week. Feeder pigs have climbed steadily in the past five weeks and gained 50 cents per hundred last week.

Texas authorities have already pointed out that it is a violation of the law to add horse meat to products for human consumption in this State, but admittedly, there is a chance.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN—In the past, medicine and public health have concerned themselves largely with the health and disease problems of youth and middle age, said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. We have neglected our aged population and have waited upon the devastations of time before extending aid to the old.

Our population each year includes an increasing number and percentage of older people. In 1950 in the United States, it is estimated that there are 11,000,000 persons over sixty-five years of age, as compared to 3,000,000 in 1900. In absolute numbers, aged persons among us have almost quadrupled in the last fifty years, whereas the proportion of elderly persons to the remainder of the population has merely doubled.

Dr. Cox stated that preventive medicine, private medical care, and social service have assisted in extending the life span. As encouraging as this fact may be there is an accompanying tribulation; the aged are subject to the chronic diseases, which because of destroyed tissue structure, are especially weakened. Heart disease, cancer, diabetes, and other long-termed illnesses resist the physician's most skillful attack and are notably disabling and lethal.

To insure health and peace of mind to our old people, preventive and curative medicine and social service can contribute techniques of prevention and care. These techniques should properly include the early discovery of beginning disease processes through periodic examinations that begin in early life and continue for one's remaining years. By such means cases of chronic disease, with all their

The bride wore a lead blue linen hanashan suit with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was two large orchids. Mrs. Jack Lillard, sister of the bride, served as matron or honor. She was dressed in beige linen with beige accessories and a corsage of baby orchids.

Steven Harrison, brother of the groom, was best man. Terry Donald, also brother of the groom, and Rosemary Hughey, sister of the bride, served as Reports from Dr. Eiland's office are that Dr. Eiland, who underwent surgery for his sinus, is getting along nicely. He is in the Baylor Hospital in Dallas. Mrs. Eiland and "Ma" are there with him.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Vassar of Weatherford, visited her mother, Mrs. Lansford, and sister, Nettie, and other relatives over the week end.

COTTON IN THE FLOWER BED

The American housewife, long noted for her "fixit" ingenuity with the common hairpin, has come up with another unique feature in the home scheme. She has discovered that the ordinary cotton plant is an attractive addition to her flower garden.

This may come as a surprise to those who think of cotton only in terms of its importance in the Texas economic structure.

It may also be hard to visualize by a person who remembers the drudgery of his youth spent in pulling a heavily loaded cotton sack down endless rows in the boll field.

But it is sometimes difficult to see the trees for the forest—and it is equally hard to recognize the individual beauty of a single cotton plant when it is swallowed up in the millions of acres of green fields that extend throughout the state of Texas annually.

Yes, cotton is a beautiful plant. Varieties with green lint, red leaves or long staple are ideally suited for garden and display purposes. Given ample space and moisture, the plant produces an abundant number of attractive blooms during the summer which are transformed into a snowy wonderland of open bolls in the early fall. In recent years, the Texas

"Exactly Where You Are Device" Aids Operational Safety of Airplanes

Arrow and shadow of plane on TV-like screen automatically shows pilot and co-pilot within 4/10 mile where plane is and where it's headed.

Fog, Low Ceilings No Hindrance

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Operational safety on the airways has been brought an important step closer by the manufacturer's recent unveiling of a completed instrument which automatically calculates an aircraft's distance and azimuth from a known point of radio transmission on the ground. The instrument is called a pictorial computer and was designed, developed and manufactured by Arma Corporation, a subsidiary of American Bosch Corporation. Smaller than radio equipment of earlier vintage, the pictorial computer mounts flush on the airplane instrument panel. There, within detail seeing range of both pilot and co-pilot, it continuously displays on a luminous screen the exact orientation of the aircraft with respect to the ground.

Navigation with the Arma pictorial computer is based on the Omni-Bearing Distance System and is simply a matter of selecting the proper chart and keeping the aircraft heading in line with the route or destination. For example in a plane leaving LaGuardia Airport for the West the pilot would select either the route or sectional scale chart of the Caldwell OBD station. As the aircraft flies west, the computer will indicate position and heading, continuously tracking the aircraft, and the pilot may control the plane to remain in the assigned airway.

housewife has discovered the fact and she has taken advantage of it. But there is another factor to be considered. She might be breaking the law!

There are 189 cotton producing counties in Texas which are subject to pink boll worm quarantine regulations. Fifty nine of these counties in South Texas and the Rio Grande Valley are limited to specific cotton growing periods during the year to combat the spread of the destructive pink bollworm insect. It is in the latter counties that the housewife risks running afoul of the pink bollworm law as administered by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

For example, a cotton fancier in Brownsville, where planting and plow-up dates are mandatory, may find she has to destroy her "flower bed" by August 31 this year if she is to comply with regulations. This might ruin the entire effect of her summer garden, especially if she planted late in the season and the cotton did not have adequate time to bloom.

The Texas Department of Agriculture certainly has no intentions of pressing charges against housewives who innocently violate the cotton regulations. However, plants found growing in areas where their existence may constitute a breeding place for pink bollworm will have to be destroyed if they conflict with the legal growing season.

This word of advice, then to the person who may contemplate adding cotton in the flower garden this year: Make sure of the law—then go ahead.

Renew Worn-Out Wagon Bed!
YOU DON'T have to get along with a rough and splintery wagon bed any longer. Here are the easy directions for covering the old surface with a material that is inexpensive, extremely smooth, moisture-resistant and very durable.

With wagon sides removed, place panels of Masonite 1/2" tempered hardboard over the entire bed. Fasten it with bolts or screws. Necessary openings may be made with a drill and keyhole saw. The wagon sides and ends may be lined in the same way. The smooth surface of the tempered hardboard makes shoveling a cleaner and easier task. Farm wagon beds aren't the only spots for this versatile material. For working surfaces in the shop, barn or milk house, tempered hardboard is the answer. It also is widely used in dry wall construction.

National Wheat King Gets Fan Mail; Magazines Feature Story

Since being designated National Wheat King for harvesting the nation's first load of 1952 wheat, John Michels, local farmer, has been receiving fan mail and national publicity.

A staff writer and photographer came to the Michels farm last Sunday, compiling information and getting pictures for the July issue of Colliers. The story will be entitled "Boxcar Movement," it was stated.

A representative of the Saturday Evening Post has also made efforts to contact the wheat king.

Michels has received many letters, one of which came from Ontario, Canada, asking for samples of the wheat and a history of the seed.

Another from a boy from India, who is an exchange student at Louisiana State University. The boy, I. Singe, stated he would be out of school in about ten days and offered to work on the Michels farm for only his room and board in order to learn more of farming operations in this area.

Michels will be crowned King of Wheatime in ceremonies June 5 in front of the Kemp Hotel in Wichita Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley D. Bell and children visited with relatives in Odessa last week.

Mrs. C. J. Wilde was in the latter part of last week and had her Munday Times address changed to Decatur. They moved to Decatur last Saturday.

Air Downflow Conditions Grains

An improved, inexpensive means of drying and storing corn, wheat and other small grains on the farm or in commercial quantities is indicated by success of a Quonset adaption featuring downward flow of unheated air, as sketched above. The new method, developed and operated by the Craighead Rice Milling Co. of Jonesboro, Ark., has proven effective in handling rice—one of the most difficult crops to keep safely—cotton seed and soybeans. It takes advantage of the principle that grain in flat bulk storage can be cooled and dried by drawing outside, unheated air downward through the pile, rather than blowing it upward as is conventional practice. In the Jonesboro operation during the 1951-52 season, the air flow was maintained continuously for an initial 45-day period, then intermittently as grain temperature required. This aeration reduced moisture content of rice from as much as 22 to 14 per cent in two months time. Germination and milling qualities of the grain thus dried and stored were better than usually experienced by customary methods.

too, so our guess is we'll make some kind of crop this year, too.

Well, when all that palaver preceding this was written on Monday, it looked like another week of dry weather. By the time we got it all in type it was raining again, and the tractors and planters, the combines, etc., had stopped. You can nearly always count on a rain during wheat harvest time in Knox County.

Mrs. Paul Pendleton and daughter, Jan, left last Monday for a week's visit with her mother in Dittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Peek of Berger spent the week end with relatives here.

We want to express our sincere thanks to those who called in person or by telephone to ask about the welfare of our son, Collis, who is in a Dallas hospital. Your inquiries and expressions of encouragement have meant much to us and proved you to be loyal friends.

News From The Fire Department

One fire was reported during the last week. A load of bundle feed caught fire from ashes blowing from burning trash on the G. W. Hawkins farm two miles east of town. The fire was almost under control when local firemen arrived and was extinguished with little damage resulting except loss of feed, and one trailer tire was burned.

The local firemen are planning to have another pie and cake sale June 14th. Any one wishing to contribute pies or cakes are cordially invited to do so. Also any one wishing to buy a delicious cake or pie may have the opportunity to do so on June 14th.

The money obtained from this sale will be used to replenish the diminishing funds which are used for local chapter entertainment and expenses involved in the operation of the local organization.
