U.S. pledges to aid Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. Rep. Stephen Solarz met today with President Corazon Aquino and pledged support for her government's efforts to recover billions of dollars allegedly plundered by Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Answering questions from journalists after his hour-long meeting with Mrs. Aquino, the New York Democrat said he told her: "I intend to do anything I can to facilitate the recovery of these assets."

Solarz, chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee on Asian affairs, arrived in the Philippines late Tuesday to sound out Mrs. Aquino and other officials on the amount and type of assistance her government needs from the United States.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Aquino's executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, told a news briefing that resistance to Mrs. Aquino from key national officials appointed by Marcos during his 20-year rule was crumbling, with nearly all members of the Supreme Court and the entire Commission on Elections handing in their resignations.

"I would expect that within one or two days, almost all constitutional officers, appointees, would have resigned," Arroyo said, which would clear the way for Mrs. Aquino to revamp the executive and judiciary.

Solarz declined to give many details of his conversation with Mrs. Aquino on U.S. military and economic aid, saying he would touch on this in a speech on Friday.

He said upon arrival that Americans were so awed by Mrs. Aquino's popular support and the peaceful revolution that swept her to power that it would be much easier to persuade Congress to increase aid to the Philippines than it was for Filipinos to drive Marcos from office.

Solarz said he also handed Mrs. Aquino a letter from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., inviting her to visit the United States and address a joint session of Congress later this year.

In addition to Mrs. Aquino, Solarz said he met today with former Sen. Jovito Salonga, who heads an official commission assigned to find ways to recover any of Marcos' ill-gotten wealth.

Dump control becoming major task

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

The matching sofa and loveseat had been placed just where the owners wanted them — in the middle of a dirt road on the east side of town.

The furniture stood as a symbol of a problem that surrounds Midland — illegal dump sites — and has prompted city employee Jack Burns to describe the residents doing this dumping as "inconsiderate, uneducated or just flat don't care."

As assistant street superintendent for the past six months, Burns' primary job is to see that streets are maintained and potholes repaired. But he also has the duty of keeping track of these illegal dump sites and of removing trash from the right of way.

It's not just small items being tossed into pastures out of sight of the public's eye, but furniture, television sets, washing machines, dryers, dishwashers — anything too large to put into a Dumpster. Nor is the illegal dumping confined to one side of Midland. Burns knows of seven to nine sites on the east and northwest sides which are being used on a regular basis for dumping trash.

"You're talking about a lot of time and manhours to clean these things up," said Burns.

"We shouldn't have to do it. It's coming out of the taxpayers' money. We're running out of money. Our revenues are down and they (city officials) have asked us to cut expenditures in all the budget. It's senseless for us to spend the money on this."

Removing the matching sofa and loveseat will require one truck and two men, costing the city between $25 and $50 when the person who dumped it at that spot could have taken it to the city landfill and paid $3-4 to leave it there, according to Burns.

Among the sites he's found are a pasture between Tilden Road and Fairgrounds Road, along a dirt road parallel to Scharbauer Draw in east Midland, on an open tract in back of the closed Wild River Canyon and, the biggest of all, adjacent to County Road 1230 North, between Northgate Avenue and the Green Tree development.

The site between Tilden and Fairgrounds would require about three weeks of work, he said, while the largest site would need at least six men, several dump trucks and a front end loader working full time for a month.

Congressman told America 'meddling'

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Texas Rep. Albert Bustamante said a leader of forces fighting the communist Nicaraguan government told him Wednesday the Reagan administration is "meddling" in Contra affairs.

Eden Pastore, who became famous as "Commander Zero" during the 1984 takeover of the National Palace in Managua, then left the revolutionary "Sandinistas" and turned around to fight them, visited Bustamante in his Capitol office.

"Pastore told me he is concerned about the fact that the administration wants to assist, but also to meddle. He said they, in fact, want to select the Contra leadership," said Bustamante, a Democrat from San Antonio.

Pastore, who maintains his secret headquarters in Costa Rica, leads one contingent of so-called "freedom fighters" trying to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

A House Armed Services Committee source said Pastore was in Washington at the request of the Reagan administration, but he was not included in a group of three Contra leaders who held a widely-publicized meeting with the president at the White House earlier this week.

Meeting with Reagan were Adolfo Colero, commander in chief of the largest group of Contras, the Democratic National Forces, called "FDN"; Alfonso Robelo, head of another group of fighters based in Costa Rica, and Arturo Cruse, head of a business-oriented group. They pleaded for military aid to "bring the Sandinistas to the (negotiating) table."

The three told the president about 6,000 insurgents were active inside Nicaragua and another 22,000 sympathizers have gone into hiding.

The open animosity between Pastore and Colero contributes to criticism from some members of Congress that the Contra forces are divided and ineffective.

Sprayberry challenges accuser to polygraph

By MARK LEWIS

Charlie Sprayberry, the embattled Midland magistrate accused of attempted sexual assault, held a press conference this morning to deny the charges and challenge his accuser to take a lie-detector test.

"I am not guilty of any of these sensation-seeking, smut-laced charges," said the 45-year-old justice of the peace, who took an unpaid leave of absence in November after being indicted for the third-degree felony.

Sprayberry also said he had recorded a conversation he had with Midland District Attorney Al Schorre in which Sprayberry refused Schorre's offer to drop the charges if the magistrate would resign.

Schorre was unavailable for comment this morning.

Soviet spacecraft shares first view showing icy core of Halley's comet

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet space probe beaming live pictures to a Moscow space center swept past Halley's comet today, giving scientists from around the world what they believe is their first view ever of a comet's icy core.

The images from the spacecraft Vega 1 arrived at the Soviet Institute for Space Research nine minutes after the probe made its closest approach, passing about 5,555 miles from Halley's nucleus of ice and dust at 10:20 a.m. (2:20 a.m. EST.)

It was the first of five probes scheduled to fly by the comet in the next nine days, and scientists burst into applause when the images appeared on the television monitors.

"It is a triumph, it is truly a triumph," said Fred Whipple, of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass. "It's the first time in history we have had this sort of imaging system this close to a comet."

'Dawn at the Alamo' celebration marks 150th anniversary of its fall

By SHEILA ALLEE

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texans have inherited a spirit that was born at the Alamo 150 years ago today.

The 188 defenders of the ancient mission lost their lives March 6, 1836, at the hands of a Mexican army.

But the famous fall of the Alamo set the stage for an eventual Texas victory at San Jacinto.

"Dawn at the Alamo" ceremonies were scheduled to begin at 5:30 a.m. today with a narration of the 13-day siege of the Alamo.

Candles representing the 188 fallen defenders were to be lit during the narration.

Buglers from the Fifth Army Band were to sound out "Deguello," a traditional Spanish signal indicating no prisoners will be taken. The music was played by the Mexican army band during the final attack in 1836.

The re-enactors then were scheduled to fire a musket salute in tribute to the fallen heroes. As the volleys are fired, the candles were to be extinguished.

"Being a Texan is special because they've inherited a spirit that sort of sets them apart," said Margaret Jackson, president of the Alamo Mission Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

The DRT operates the Alamo, now a public shrine.

"The men at the Alamo set an example by their willingness to risk their lives for a principle of freedom. These men have not only inspired Texans by the entire world," she said.

Today's ceremonies were expected to be a high point in the Sesquicentennial celebration marking Texas' declaration of independence from Mexico 150 years ago.

The long Alamo battle served to delay the army led by Mexican Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna and gave the Texans time to gather forces for a final victory about six weeks later at San Jacinto.

Texas went on to become a republic, then a state in 1845.

Following the opening ceremony, a "Travis Draws the Line" re-enactment was to be staged across the street at Alamo Plaza.

Legend has it that Col. William Barret Travis, commander of the Texas troops at the Alamo, knew his warriors were doomed against Santa Anna's troops, which numbered about 4,000.

In an 11th hour meeting, Travis broke the news of the pending doom to his men. Then he drew a line on the ground with his sword and asked those who would stay to "cross the line."

All but one man crossed the line, according to the story.

At today's ceremonies, there was to be a noon memorial service honoring the Alamo heroes. A roll call of states and nations who were represented among the Alamo defenders also was set.

Later in the day, floral wreaths were to be laid at the memorial in Alamo Plaza and there was to be a musket salute.

Texas Gov. Mark White and Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander were to plant a tree honoring Davy Crockett and the 33 Tennessee volunteers who died in the Alamo.

Long cold spell dulls Big Ben's sound

LONDON (AP) — A prolonged freeze has taken its toll on the chimes of Big Ben, dulling the distinctive sound of the great clock and belltower in the Parliament buildings along the River Thames.

After days of freezing weather, a rubber fitting that absorbs the strike of the hammer on the largest quarter bell froze hard, junior environment minister Sir George Young told the House of Commons on Tuesday.

"The effect of this is to curtail the sound of the last strike.... This problem has not occurred since the harsh winter of 1947" — the coldest February since records were first compiled in 1659, Young said.

"The expected onset of warmer weather will return the chimes to their former familiar sound," Young said.

The temperature has dipped as low as 22 degrees in the current cold snap.

House panels deny aid request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress dealt President Reagan a pair of first-round defeats in the fight over whether to provide $100 million in aid to the U.S.-backed guerrillas who are battling the leftist government of Nicaragua.

Two Democratic-controlled House panels generally followed party lines Wednesday as they voted against Reagan's request for aid, which includes $70 million that could be used for military help and $30 million in non-lethal aid.

The votes came after Reagan, leading a lobbying blitz, said the money is needed for the Contra guerrillas "so we will never have to send our own American boys" to fight the Sandinista government he says is a menace to democracy in Latin America.

The House Intelligence Committee turned down the package on a 9-7 vote, with nine of the panel's 10 Democrats opposing Reagan. Only Rep. Dan Daniel of Virginia joined Republicans to support the move.

That was followed minutes later by an 8-5 vote against the package in the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere. All eight Democrats voted against it, while all five Republicans supported Reagan.

Despite the defeats, the measure eventually will reach the floor of the full House, which is controlled by Democrats, and later will face a series of votes in the Republican-run Senate.

Reagan, speaking at the White House to members of a Jewish organization, said that "if the members of Congress hide their heads in the sand and pretend the Nicaraguan threat will go away, they are courting disaster and history will hold them accountable. Nothing less than the security of the United States is at stake."

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., disagreed, saying at his daily news conference that U.S. help isn't what the outnumbered Contra fighters need. He predicted that Americans eventually will be drawn into the conflict.

"I can see what's happening," O'Neill said. "Eventually some American will be wounded and you'll find us in the fray.... I think it's a wrong American policy. You ought to be able to go the diplomatic route. I haven't met a world leader who agrees with American policy."

O'Neill said he expected a House vote on the aid request March 19. A Senate vote was expected before the March 26 Easter recess.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, speaking to the House Armed Services Committee, defended the request and echoed Reagan's statement that U.S. weapons and other help are needed so U.S. troops won't be sent. He denied that there are plans to send Americans to fight.

Democrats and some Republicans pointed out repeatedly to Weinberger that no other nations in Latin American support the U.S. policy, but he answered that those countries offer their support for the Reagan administration in private.

"I wouldn't expect any public endorsement of private positions from the neighbors who are very much threatened" by the Nicaraguan military might supplied by communist nations such as Cuba and the Soviet Union, he said.

Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala., told Weinberger, "I understand what you say about the neighbors being intimidated, but I find it hard to believe that someone down there wouldn't have the temerity" to support the United States.

The chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., predicted Reagan's request will be defeated when it reaches the floor. A similar prediction came from Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the western hemisphere subcommittee.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., agreed there is no broad popular support for Reagan's plan and said the president should give a nationally televised speech to lay out his case.

"It would be very helpful," said Dole. "A lot of people out there just haven't had a chance to focus" on Nicaragua.

The General Accounting Office, the congressional watchdog agency, reported Wednesday that the administration can't account for how most of last year's $12.2 million in non-lethal aid to the U.S.-backed guerrillas was spent.

Weinberger answered that the problem arises because the money is being spent in a guerrilla war.

"It's a little difficult for GAO auditors to wander into Nicaragua and be able to give us a line-by-line, nice high school accounting of where every shoe went and where each package of food went," he said.

Two guerrilla leaders, meanwhile, said they think their forces can win if Congress approves the aid package.

CONTRAS

Pastore, who has been a frequent visitor on Capitol Hill, is here this week to drum up support for President Reagan's proposal to reinstate military as well as humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels. But to Bustamante, Pastore appeared to be almost angry at what he considered slights by the administration.

"Pastore said his group — the ARD — hasn't received any aid. Not only that, they are paying $150 apiece for old German guns worth about $4.50," Bustamante said.

In an Armed Services Committee hearing Wednesday, with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger as chief witness, Bustamante asked why the president doesn't invoke his war powers and send the Marines into Nicaragua, like he did in Grenada, "if he thinks that little country is such a threat."

"Weinberger said we couldn't do that because world opinion would be against us," Bustamante said.

The administration is pushing hard for the increased aid, totaling $100 million. Of that amount $30 million would be for non-military assistance, to be administered by the State Department's Nicaraguan Humanitarian Assistance Office.

Because of congressional concern about reported human rights violations by the Contras, Reagan proposed setting aside $3 million for training and other efforts to curtail those violations. Reagan could use the remaining $70 million as he saw fit — for weapons, ammunition, helicopters, trucks and other supplies.

Bustamante is one of 31 Democrats in the "McCurdy group," headed by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., who are seeking an alternative to military aid in Nicaragua.

"They don't want to just walk away from Nicaragua, but they want to be sure the pledge the president made last June, when Congress voted for humanitarian assistance, has been kept," said an aide to McCurdy.

They advocate economic and other assistance to countries neighboring Nicaragua, along the lines recommended by the "Jackson Plan," that came out of the presidentially-appointed Kissinger Commission in 1984.

The administration received a blow Wednesday, even as Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz stepped up the pressure for military assistance, when the General Accounting Office said it could not verify "actual delivery or receipt of items" in the field in Nicaragua.

Congress may vote within two weeks on the president's request. The House Intelligence Committee, in closed session Wednesday, voted 9 to 7 against spending the $100 million to support the Contra rebels. Also, the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, voted 8-5 against the increased aid.

The House Appropriations Committee will take up the request on Thursday.

"It's any place they can find where no one is looking," Burns said. "It's a sofa, part of an air conditioner, a washing machine and mattresses. I hate mattresses. They are hard to pick up — one man can't handle it. They split and the cotton goes everywhere.

"Anytime one of these places starts, it's like a cancer. It keeps growing," he added.

The site north of Northgate Street started during the construction boom in the early 1980s, theorized Burns, because of the large amount of building materials deposited there. But it continued growing once residents moved in and found it.

In two locations, city employees attempted to cut off access to the pastures by putting dirt berms in front of the roads. But in all cases several yards down from the first road another road popped up.

Illegal dumping has been a problem for years, said Burns, but it appeared to have increased after the city moved to a new landfill farther away off Garden City Highway.

"It's a public problem" that will take everyone's cooperation to solve, he said.

Clean Midland plans a city-wide cleanup campaign each spring in which the city uses its equipment to pick up large items at residents' homes and take them to the landfill at no charge. Burns is hoping people would stop the illegal dumping and wait for Clean Midland and then work to see that others don't use the illegal sites.

This year, Clean Midland will be taking reservations for picking up large items March 17-28. The actual cleanup is planned for two weeks in April.

"It's going to be one of those things we're never going to solve until we can mobilize a big effort," he said.

Although illegal dumping has always been a problem, it becomes more noticeable during slow economic times and the city coffers are not flush with money. "When they ask you to cut expenditures in your department and cleaning this up is on your schedule to do, you think if it's going to cost $25,000 do you want to use the money for cleanup or for streets?"

It was Sprayberry's first public comment on the charges. He did not testify at his first trial, which ended in a mistrial Feb. 20 when a 238th District Court jury was unable to reach a verdict after almost nine hours of deliberations.

One juror later told the Reporter-Telegram the jury was deadlocked 10 to two for conviction.

Sprayberry is accused by his former secretary, 36-year-old Wanda Niblett, of trying to force her to perform oral sex on him while they were riding in his car on April 26, 1984.

The trial has been reset for March 25, but because the first trial was heavily publicized, a change of venue may be granted by Judge James H. Clack of Andrews, who is hearing the case for 238th District Judge Vann Culp of Midland.

Sprayberry's attorney, John W. Smith of Odessa, said this morning that he and special prosecutor Andy Shuval of Austin were discussing possible new locations for the trial, with San Angelo or Abilene the most likely sites.

Clack is expected to grant the motion once the lawyers agree on a location.

Smith said he advised Sprayberry not to comment while charges are still pending.

"However, despite their advice, I feel that I have been silent too long," Sprayberry said this morning at a press conference at Centennial Plaza, across from the Midland County Courthouse.

He likened the Midland Sheriff's Office investigation to a "witch hunt," and said Schorre and Sheriff's Office investigators declined his offers of cooperation and refused to let him take a lie-detector test or tell him of the accusations against him.

Sprayberry said he also had asked to speak to the grand jury, but was not notified when the case was presented for possible indictment Nov. 20.

Sprayberry said he was out of town that week on a previously scheduled hunting trip.

He was indicted Nov. 20 on the attempted-sexual-assault charge and five misdemeanors, but Clack later dismissed the felony indictment on a technicality.

The grand jury re-indicted him in January. Sprayberry said he chose not to try to give his side to the jurors "since my name and reputation had by this time been greatly impugned."

This morning, he challenged Ms. Niblett to submit to a polygraph test.

"I feel sure that the special prosecutor, Andy Shuval, will assist in arranging this testing, since his only role is to seek truth and justice," said Sprayberry, who refused to answer questions after reading his statement.

Midland Sheriff Gary Painter and Texas Ranger C.J. Havrda, who assisted in the investigation, would not comment on Sprayberry's remarks, referring all questions to Shuval.

Shuval was in McKinney and could not be reached for comment.

Sprayberry, a Republican, was first elected justice of the peace for place one, precinct one in 1980, and re-elected in 1984.

Sprayberry faces a penalty range of two to 20 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine if convicted, but he is also eligible for probation.

He is also under indictment for two counts of telephone harassment and three of barratry, or improperly soliciting cases for an attorney. Those misdemeanor charges were to be tried at the county-court level after the felony charge is disposed of.

Smith declined to comment this morning on his client's statements.

"I'm going to try this case in a courthouse somewhere," he said. "I'm not going to try it in a newspaper."

Salonga has estimated that the total assets of Marcos, his family and associates is between $5 billion and $10 billion.

Marcos received an annual salary of about $4,700, and says that his other assets came from a lucrative law practice before he became president.

Solarz said he pledged to Salonga "our complete cooperation to facilitate the recovery of the hidden wealth," adding he has sponsored legislation to make it easier for the Philippines to file suits in U.S. courts.

State Department officials in Washington said Wednesday they will give Mrs. Aquino's government a list of most of the cash, jewels and documents taken from Manila in 300 crates by Marcos when he fled the country on Feb. 26.

Scientists hope all five probes will provide clues about the origin of the solar system, since comets are believed to be pristine remnants of the solar nebula, the swirling cloud of dust and gas out of which the planets and the sun are believed to have been formed.

Color-enhanced television monitors showed an image of a fiery red-brown center surrounded by yellowish gases on a blue background. Halley's nucleus is believed to be a dirty snowball of dust and ice about four miles in diameter.

The images also were transmitted by the space institute to ABC News program "Nightline."

Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan, who was among 12 Americans joining scientists from around the world at the Soviet institute, told "Nightline" this morning that the Vega 1 had successfully penetrated the comet's huge coma, or cloud of dust and gas, and apparently took the first pictures ever made of a comet's nucleus.

Couple acts out 'Live Free or Die'

By TOM MOONEY

LEBANON, N.H. (AP) — A couple who drugged and shot her children, torched their house, and killed themselves were "tired of fighting the system" over veterans benefits, according to letters they apparently wrote, citing the state motto: "Live Free or Die."

The letters purportedly written by Michael Dean and Caroline Hull, delivered Wednesday to WMUR-TV in Manchester and the Valley News here, say that the couple were "totally sane" Tuesday when they carried out the murder-suicide pact that ended their lives and those of her three children.

The letters said the action arose out of frustration over veterans benefits, "out of deep love for each other," and out of "continuous fears and threats we must live under from the world and our government."

"We are tired of fighting the system our leaders want to forget," said a six-page letter received by WMUR after bodies believed to be those of Mrs. Hull, 32, Dean, 43, and the children were found in the charred rubble of their home.

A similar but not identical letter was mailed to the Valley News. Both letters, whose authenticity has not been verified, contained numerous spelling and grammatical errors, and bore the signatures Caroline Hull and Michael Dean.

The letters, both written from Mrs. Hull's point of view, described the preparations, killings and fire as if they had happened. The handwriting in the WMUR version appeared to match Mrs. Hull's signature; the handwriting in the newspaper's version appeared to be that of Dean.

The badly burned bodies were found close together in the cellar of the home and were tentatively identified as Dean, Mrs. Hull and her children Kenneth, 11; Jeremy, 6, and Theresa, 4. The remains were sent to Maine for positive identification and autopsy by Dr. Henry Ryan, the state medical examiner.

"Before the children went to bed we dissolved sleeping pills in a glass of water that they always have before bedtime," said the letter to the newspaper. "30 pills each so they would be totally asleep. Then I helped Mike prepare the house for the fire. Spreading clothes everywhere, making holes in the wall. We poured Kerosene (this sentence was crossed out) I then took sleeping pills. We all laid on a mattress in the cellar."

"After Mike knew we were all asleep, and would feel no pain or suffer, he then shot us in the heart once," the WMUR letter said. "He then poured Kerosine all over up stairs in closets, holes in the wall and etc. making a stream to the cellar. And then spread Kerosine all over the basement. With a sheet wet with fuel oil sticking out of the fuel tank and a 55 gal drum, He then lit the fire upstairs. Once he was sure the fire was going good, He laid on the mattress beside me and our children. Then lit the cellar on fire from laying down. He then shot himself."

Firefighters found the couple's car and truck parked in a "V" blocking the driveway when they arrived at the predawn fire Tuesday.

A letter about the deaths also went to John and Kitty Hull of Wilder, Vt., parents of Caroline Hull's late husband. A letter also went to her own family in Hartland, Vt.

Swedish police release drawing of suspect

The composite picture, the first such depiction, was distributed to newspapers and television as the nationwide manhunt for the man who killed the Swedish leader entered its sixth day.

The portrait also was to go to police throughout Sweden and to border officials.

Palme, 59, was killed with a powerful .357-caliber Magnum revolver last Friday as he strolled home unguarded with his wife, Lisbet, 55, along a snowy downtown Stockholm street. She was grazed by a bullet, but not seriously hurt.

Using a device brought to Stockholm Wednesday by two specialists from West Germany's Federal Criminal Office, police were able to transform witness descriptions into the portrait of the straight-lipped man with medium-length hair.

Police declined comment on the portrait when telephoned by The Associated Press, but were quoted by the Swedish national news agency TT, to which they first provided the picture, as saying: "We don't recognize this man."

However, the presence of the two West Germans for the Wiesbaden-based office, which also is responsible for countering terrorism, increased speculation that Swedish investigators believe West German terrorists carried out the attack.

Swedish police say there have been several claims of responsibility on behalf of the Red Army Faction and the Holger Meins Commando, related left-wing West German terrorist groups.

Stockholm Police Commissioner Hans Holmer said a professional draftswoman who "bumped into" a man shortly after Palme was killed had drawn a sketch of that man for police, which the West German instrument would be used to refine.

Holmer said the 22-year-old woman encountered the man, identified by police as the suspected assassin, near the spot where police believe at least one accomplice was waiting with a getaway car.

Swedish television Wednesday said police believe the getaway car was a blue Volkswagen Passat, with Swedish license plates.

Meanwhile, police officials, criticized for their handling of the investigation, announced they would hold daily briefings to keep the public informed of progress in the case.

Critics earlier this week charged that police were not making enough progress, and had made basic errors in the early stages of the investigation.

But Holmer said at a news conference that investigators were working on several ideas, and that the manhunt had become the biggest search in Swedish history.

"A light goes on every time we get a clue," Holmer said.

Office fire blamed on security police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A fire today destroyed the headquarters of a group working for the release of jailed black leader Nelson Mandela. The group's leader blamed security police, but authorities termed the charge "ludicrous."

Elsewhere, four blacks were reported killed in unrest around the country, including a bus driver who was stoned to death in the black township of Soweto on Wednesday night when a mob attacked his bus.

Spokesman Pat Rogers said this morning the Putco bus company had suspended indefinitely all service to the community of 1.5 million located near Johannesburg. The suspension cuts service to approximately 150,000 Sowetans who commute to Johannesburg, he said.

Rogers said both workers and management felt that "we have had enough" after repeated attacks on buses since widespread anti-apartheid unrest broke out 18 months ago. He said the company has lost the equivalent of nearly $10 million in damage and reduced traffic.

Attacks on buses have reflected anger over fare increases and transport systems seen as inadequate to meet black needs.

Marcos tried to influence Aquino investigation, prosecutor claims

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Ferdinand E. Marcos tried to prevent the filing of charges against 26 men accused in the assassination of opposition leader Beningo Aquino and intervened with prosecutors in the case, the chief prosecutor said today.

Bernardo Fernandez maintained, however, that despite "some pressure" from the ousted Philippine president, he had done nothing wrong in the trial. A court found the 25 military men and one civilian innocent of any role in the 1983 slaying of the husband of new President Corazon Aquino.

"I can honestly say I didn't do anything that I should be ashamed of," Ferdandez told The Associated Press.

The case has recaptured public attention following statements by a lawyer Wednesday that two of the defendants acquitted by the three-judge court in December had admitted their involvement, and that witnesses had implicated Marcos himself.

The lawyer, Lupino Lazaro, told the AP he also has evidence linking former first lady Imelda Marcos and four ex-Cabinet ministers to the Aug. 21, 1983, assassination of Aquino, slain at Manila airport as he returned from self-imposed exile in the United States.

Lazaro was the lawyer for the family of Rolando Galman, said by the military to have been a communist agent who shot Aquino moments before being killed himself by soldiers. The court that tried the case agreed with that version of events.

Chief prosecutor Manuel Herrera was quoted today by the Philippine News Agency as saying Marcos had told prosecutors, "Let's just play-act."

Iraq says planes bombed Iranian military targets

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes bombarded oil and military installations inside Iran Wednesday, but Iran charged that the raids actually were on civilian targets.

Iran said it holds the the United Nations responsible for the consequences of alleged Iraqi raids on Iranian cities and warned oil-rich Arab states to stop supporting Iraq in the 5½-year-old Persian Gulf conflict.

The Arab states should "abandon their support of Iraq and refrain from escalating the war," a spokesman for the Iranian Foreign Ministry was quoted by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, IRNA.

The warning came as the chiefs of staff of the six Arab states of the Gulf Cooperation Council met in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to "coordinate defense strategies against a possible spread of the war."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Riot death toll set at 107

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A semi-official newspaper today quoted authorities as saying 107 people died in last week's riots, triple the number first reported, and that more than 21,000 unfit troops would be purged from the security force that started the violence.

The daily newspaper al-Ahram quoted police Maj. Gen. Farouk el-Heini as also saying the number of injured in the rioting totaled 719, almost 400 more than first reported.

El-Heini was quoted as saying 104 people were killed in greater Cairo, including the suburb of Giza, where security force conscripts mutinied Feb. 25 after hearing rumors their tours of duty were being extended by one year.

Three other victims died in Assiut, a provincial center 228 miles south of Cairo, where mutineers burned down a rice packing depot.

Cairo remained under curfew today for a ninth straight day, although authorities announced it would be suspended from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m. Prime Minister Aly Lutfy said the curfew would be lifted altogether later this week.

Church groups praised

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government newspaper Wednesday praised American church groups for their support and criticized the Nicaraguan clergy for not speaking out against President Reagan's proposed aid for the U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

"This firm and dignified attitude taken by the religious leaders, representatives of millions of Americans, expresses the real feelings of the people of the United States who are asking to leave Nicaragua in peace," the paper, Barricada, said in an editorial.

Reagan's request to Congress for $100 million in aid to help the Contras overthrow the Sandinista government has sparked scores of protests in the United States.

Tuesday, hundreds of religious protesters formed a human cross on the Capitol steps in Washington and accused the Reagan administration of lies.

The group's declaration, signed by about 200 U.S. religious leaders, formally declared opposition to Reagan's aid proposal.

Talks with Contras rejected

MOSCOW (AP) — A leader in Nicaragua's ruling party Wednesday rejected a proposal by Salvadoran President Napoleon Duarte that both governments open talks with the rebels fighting to overthrow them.

"We will never talk with the Contras because we do not want to waste time," said Bayardo Arce, vice president of the Sandinistas' coordinating committee. He referred to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua, for whom President Reagan is seeking $100 million in military aid.

Waldheim: Stories of atrocities part of smear campaign

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Kurt Waldheim said Wednesday that stories about his World War II service in a German army unit are part of a smear campaign by political opponents, and he repeated that he had no part in Nazi atrocities.

"The whole story is invented," declared Waldheim, commenting on a statement by the World Jewish Congress suggesting he had tried to cover up his service with a unit that has been tied to frontline cruelty. Waldheim said he worked behind the lines as a translator.

"There is nothing in it to justify my participation in any way in any cruel action," he said during an interview with NBC-TV's Today Show.

He denied having had knowledge of any atrocities by his unit, which is alleged to have helped deport 42,000 Greek Jews to death camps and taken part in savagery against Yugoslav partisans.

"I heard for the first time of this from the New York Times correspondent who came to see me in Vienna last Sunday," said Waldheim.

Waldheim, 67, former U.N. secretary-general, is running for president in Austria and broke from campaigning to deny the accounts. He has repeatedly protested his innocence.

His campaign manager, Gerold Christian, said Waldheim does not plan to comment further on the matter.

"One cannot repeat every day 'I wasn't a member, I had nothing to do with these...atrocities.' One cannot repeat it every day like a litany," Christian said.

Although it leaked information on Monday, the World Jewish Congress in New York did not make public until Wednesday the document that alleges Waldheim's membership in Adolf Hitler's notorious "Brownshirt" stormtroopers and in the Nazi Student Union.

The document, an evaluation form from Austrian government archives, shows that on April 1, 1938, Waldheim became a member of the Nazi Student Union and on Nov. 18 of that year he joined Hitler's stormtroopers, the Jewish group said.

Austria's Profil news magazine published a copy of the card Monday identifying him as a member of the S.A. and the Nazi Student Union, along with Waldheim's statements denying he had enrolled in either group.

Waldheim has said his participation in youth riding club activities caused a Nazi student union official to register him as a member by mistake, and he has denied joining the S.A.

Waldheim said the accusations were part of a smear campaign to keep him from winning the May 4 elections.

U.S. to give Philippines list of Marcos' goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will give the Philippines a list of most of the cash, jewels and documents taken from Manila in 300 crates by Ferdinand Marcos when he was forced out as president, State Department officials say.

The inventory has begun with the recording of serial numbers of pesos worth an estimated $1 million and contained in 22 of the crates flown from Manila on U.S. Air Force cargo planes to Guam and then Hawaii, where Marcos and his wife, Imelda, are staying.

A department official, who demanded anonymity, said Wednesday only questions of privacy and U.S. laws bearing on public access to all the documents were delaying an accounting to the Philippines government.

The General Accounting Office, at the request of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is preparing a report on U.S. military aid to the Phillipines during the Marcos presidency.

A preliminary report, given to two Kennedy assistants on Wednesday, raised questions about the way the funds were distributed, sources said. The final version is expected in about a week.

Philip Habib, the special envoy who was in Manila during Marcos' final days in office, met in Hawaii with Adm. Ronald Hayes, commander of U.S. Navy forces in the Pacific, and was due home today. He will report to President Reagan on the situation in Manila.

The Central Bank of the Philippines requested an accounting of the contents of the crates through the U.S. District Court in Honolulu.

"These are complicated questions that we are sorting out, step by step, in a spirit of cooperation with the Philippine government," Bernard Kalb, the State Department spokesman, said.

"We will handle all such questions in accordance with U.S., Philippine and international laws," he said.

Jovito R. Salonga, who heads a Philippines commission charged with recovering the Marcoses wealth, has estimated the assets of the former president, his wife and their friends at $5 billion to $10 billion.

That total would represent several times the Philippines national budget for 1985 of $3.1 billion. Marcos received an annual salary of 100,000 pesos, worth about $4,700.

He was a wealthy lawyer and land holder before taking office as president 20 years ago.

Asked if the offer to Marcos of safe haven was irrevocable, Kalb said, "He is in the United States at the invitiation of President Reagan and he may stay here if he so desires."

Two State Department officials were sent to Hawaii earlier in the week to consider legal questions surrounding Marcos' flight from the Philippines, his plans for the future and the security arrangements the United States has made to protect him.

"He may stay here if he so desires," Kalb said. "I know of nothing on which there is a circled date on the calendar."

Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee, said Marcos may have taken more money into exile than the $1.5 billion in U.S. foreign aid to the Philippines over the past decade.

"If you take all the money that we put into the Philippines in the last 10 years and you compare what Marcos took out, we'd come out second best, according to some of the numbers I've seen," Obey said.

The U.S. aid program is tied in part to use of the Clark and Subic Bay military bases.

Marcos' girlfriend, sister own $11 million in property

Copley News Service

Former Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos has financial ties to more than $11 million in California property, including half a dozen in Beverly Hills owned by an actress acquaintance, state Sen. Paul Carpenter claimed Wednesday.

The Cypress Democrat was scheduled to hold a news conference this morning in front of the $446,000 Pasadena home of actress Dovie Beams de Villagran, whom he called a "longtime girlfriend" of the deposed dictator.

Carpenter said he will release information concerning at least 100 homes and pieces of real estate he said were either owned by Marcos' sister, Fortuna Marcos Barba, by the actress alone or owned jointly by Villagran and her husband, Sergio.

Carpenter, chairman of the state Senate Select Committee on the Pacific Rim, said he assigned members of his staff to compile a list of California holdings with potential ties to the former president and forward the information to newly-installed Philippine President Cory Aquino.

Carpenter is a candidate for a seat on the state Board of Equalization and is pursuing state legislation that would request the Board of Equalization to aid in the search for Marcos holdings — something the tax agency says it is not now empowered to do.

Carpenter said evidence of Marcos' holdings came from "a source from within the Philippine community" whom the senator called "reliable on other occasions."

Some congressional estimates of Marcos' wealth, including office buildings in New York City, have been placed as high as $3 billion.

A written statement from Carpenter's office said he was looking for "questionable parcels (which) apparently have been hidden behind all sorts of front names...."

Carpenter declined to give exact details of his findings prior to the news conference, but an independent check of Los Angeles County property records showed both Barba and Villagran as the owners of dozens of homes and parcels. The sister's holdings, however, were less numerous and less valuable than those of the actress.

The actress was listed as the owner of half a dozen properties in Beverly Hills, ranging in value, for tax purposes, from $203,000 to $442,000. County assessor officials stressed the market values would probably be much higher.

Media coverage may be prompting reports of glass in Gerber

Associated Press

The prospect of appearing on television or filing a lucrative lawsuit may have enticed people to report finding glass in Gerber baby food jars, a federal official says, and the chairman of Gerber Products Co. blames the news media for exaggerating the reports.

"Unfortunately, (there have been) some suspected cases in which the incident may have occurred in the home," Bill Grigg, a spokesman for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Washington, said Wednesday.

"It's hard to believe, but that can happen, either in hopes of being able to sue somebody or for other publicity reasons."

Glass has been reported in baby food, from all major manufacturers, in 30 states and the District of Columbia since Feb. 11, Grigg said.

The FDA has received 200 complaints from consumers in 22 states about foreign objects in Gerber products, but can find no instance in which a child has been seriously injured by glass in a jar.

"There's a suspicion that some of what we are seeing is more than just increased consumer awareness of breakage, but is a kind of, 'If I have a report like this, I can get on television' phenomenon,'" Grigg said.

Gerber chairman William McKinley, in his first statement on the controversy, said Wednesday, "It's what we refer to at Gerber as 'the media event.'"

McKinley, at a business seminar in Muskegon, Mich., defended his company's decision not to recall its products.

McKinley said the company believes most of the actual glass breakage occurred in the homes of consumers, perhaps when people tapped jars on hard surfaces to make them easier to open.

Individualism crisis

Individualism has its merits, but even it can be carried to extremes.

Those of us classed as middle-age or mature Americans undoubtedly get a new awareness of this after seeing a young woman with bushy purple hair, a young man in tight, black-leather pants with chains, and their child. For sheer garishness, this teenage couple would be hard to beat anywhere.

True, variations of outlandishness abound throughout the country. Those who lived through the tumultous 1960s are well aware of that fact. Nowadays, we see spiked hair, Mohawks, theatrical makeup, spiked dog collars, and gaudy clothing. Why? How? One school of thought attributes such fantastic outfits essentially to modern musical stereotypes featuring "punks," "mods," "heavy metal," and "new wave." All of this forms a subculture utilizing the power of style to disturb and subvert. It primarily exerts itself in the form of rebellion.

Rebellious youth is hardly new to society and it would be difficult to pass judgment on what the kids of today are rebelling against. Parents? School? Society? Themselves?

A primary concern is that this rebellion in recent years has manifested itself in dangerous ways. That's tragic. The high incidence of drug use and promiscuity among teenagers is a tragic fact. But an equally distressing and often ignored casualty of wild self-expression is the lost innocence of youth. The embrace of various fads is an awkward attempt at sophistication. The result is often a jaded, world-weary nonchalance and cynicism, a startling counterpoint to the promise and opportunity available to the youth of the nation.

Parents, of course, are caught in the middle, somewhat inhibited on discipline by their responsibilities and the legacy of tolerance left by the 1960s and 70s — a pronounced drug culture, a loosened family structure, and increased permissiveness.

Although the idea of increased tolerance is theoretically appealing, the reality of it is not. Consider undercover drug raids at high schools and a dramatic rise in births outside wedlock to teenagers, who in many ways are still children themselves.

That is, of course, a wrenching way to bring us back to the couple, which is the subject here. Do teens with purple hair and chains make good parents? That isn't easy to ascertain. But while most youths recover from dangerous excesses of individualism, some walk a perilous line between self-expression and self-destruction.

That may be a part of society, but it's certainly a sobering part.

Improving economy

The automobile industry, always a significant indicator of the country's economic times, kept rolling along in high gear during the middle 10 days of February. The United States Department of Commerce reported an 11 percent increase in sales of new domestically-manufactured cars, continuing an upward trend consumers have maintained for many months.

Commerce Department officials reported that 253,906 units were purchased in the Feb. 11-20 period. This was an increase over the same 10 days last year, when 228,761 cars were sold.

The department announced that the seasonally-adjusted annual rate was 9.1 million cars. That is a vigorous forward march over the 8.4 million of a year ago.

Sales of automobiles are not the only facet of the economy speeding merrily along. The National Association of Realtors recently reported that purchases of single-family homes in 1985 was the healthiest of the past seven years. That's quite a record. 1985 was the first year since 1979 that this type of house hit a reselling pitch of more than 3 million units.

Sales of cars and houses are not the only signposts of a brightened economic horizon. But they have played a substantial role in a recovery that is about to enter the fourth month of its fourth year.

These surges are only two of many, but they clearly suggest that the rebound under the Reagan administration's leadership will keep rolling ahead in the months to come.

Another View:

Turn to America

Russian consumers might not be the only beneficiaries if Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev succeeds in his efforts to make food more plentiful for his people.

In his opening speech to the 27th Party Congress, Gorbachev set a goal of doubling food production in the next five years.

The dismal record of Soviet agriculture suggests that Gorbachev will have trouble meeting the goal — at least in the short term — merely by increasing agricultural output. The result could be more exports for farmers elsewhere in the world, perhaps including those in the United States.

Russian farmers are hampered by a number of factors beyond their control. The growing season in parts of the country is relatively short. A lack of fertile soil restricts yields even when the weather is favorable. The weather often isn't favorable, however. Russian winters are harsher than those in the U.S. Farm Belt. The Russian winter takes a heavier toll on fields and livestock.

It could be necessary for Gorbachev, to show progress toward his goals, to maintain or increase Soviet purchases of grain on the international market.

As a trade partner, the United States would be in a position to benefit from the Soviet situation. So would other grain exporters such as Canada, Australia and the European Common Market. Competition could be fierce.

The United States couldn't expect the Soviets to turn only to America for their grain. The Soviets, despite their Marxist contempt for the workings of the free market, have demonstrated that they are tough bargainers.

In its favor, the United States has a provision in the 1985 farm bill. The program rewards buyers of U.S. grain by throwing in extra bushels of government-owned surplus grain. Nebraska Sen. Ed Zorinsky, who is pushing for the Soviets to be included, said, "The Soviets would be eligible for the subsidies only if it was in our best interests for them to be eligible."

With Gorbachev's pledge to provide more food and reason to doubt that the Soviets could accomplish it alone, wouldn't it be in the best interests of the United States to have the Soviets turn to America for grain?

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1806, poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning was born in Durham, England.

In 1834, the city of York in Upper Canada was incorporated as Toronto.

In 1853, Verdi's opera "La Traviata" made its debut in Venice, Italy.

In 1857, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its Dred Scott decision, in which the justices held that Scott, a slave, could not sue for his freedom in a federal court.

In 1933, a nationwide bank holiday declared by President Franklin D. Roosevelt went into effect.

In 1944, U.S. bombers staged a daylight raid against Berlin during World War II.

Nuclear power plants 'firebombs'

WASHINGTON — Several nuclear power plants in the United States probably could not be shut down in case of a bad fire, because their control rooms are not adequately protected, federal safety inspectors have reported. This means, in effect, that a nuclear "bomb" could go off in somebody's back yard in case of a serious fire.

Jack Anderson

The danger of fire at nuclear plants is no Nervous Nelly's nightmare. In 1975, a fire at the Browns Ferry nuclear power facility in Alabama almost caused a meltdown. And, since then, more than 100 potentially disastrous fires have occurred at other nuclear plants.

"Many of these fires affected systems and components important to safety," one Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector wrote in a report we've seen. The "safety" he referred to was the elaborate system of precautions that make sure nuclear power plants will not spew deadly radiation into the atmosphere. Based on the record of fires so far, the inspector concluded that "the threat of fire damage to systems and components important to safety is significant."

Yet the safeguards against fire are neither uniform nor adequate in the nation's nuclear plants; in a few, fire precautions are practically non-existent, according to sources at the NRC and agency documents obtained by our associate Corky Johnson.

For example, a recent, unpublicized fire at the Dresden nuclear plant in Illinois burned without being detected for four hours after toxic polyurethane foam was ignited. Fortunately, the plant was not in operation at the time, but nuclear agency sources said the fire could have been catastrophic if the reactors had been running.

Widespread fire safety violations have plagued the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for years. A 1984 memo from NRC reactor safety director Richard Spessard noted at least 738 "fire protection deficiencies" in the previous several years, in three of four regions across the country.

Most appalling of all the "deficiencies" was the failure of several plant operators to provide adequate protection against fire in the control room. Spessard's memo pointed out that this meant "the plant could not be brought to and maintained in a safe shutdown condition."

The oversights in many cases were basic. "Licensees failed to properly install, test and maintain fire suppression systems in accordance with established codes," one NRC summary stated. Several dozen agency reports indicated that certain plants hadn't even bothered to coordinate with local fire departments.

In Michigan, federal inspectors found so many fire safety violations at the D.C. Cook nuclear plant that they found it pointless to proceed. A grand jury is investigating the matter.

In Massachusetts, Robert Ferguson, a former fire protection section chief for the NRC, filed an objection to the granting of an exemption to the Haddam Neck nuclear plant, which wanted to be excused from installing a separate control facility in case the main control room was crippled.

Despite the safety expert's objection, the exemption request was granted by the NRC. Haddam Neck has the dubious distinction of being the only nuclear plant in the country without a backup control room to shut down the reactors in case of emergency.

DOLLAR DIPLOMACY — What does it cost to fly a dethroned dictator into exile? Well, Baby Doc Duvalier and his retinue were relatively cheap. As near as our Air Force and State Department experts could estimate, it cost $47,410 to fly Duvalier and his family from Haiti to France in a single C-141 jet. Ferdinand Marcos and his extended family required a C-141 and a smaller jet over a longer stretch of territory. Estimated cost: $151,180, not including the expense of the four helicopters that plucked him from his palace for the 50-mile trip to Clark Air Force Base. All things considered, we'd say both trips were dirt cheap.

SILENT SUPREMES — After a quarter-century of scholarly listening pleasure, tapes of lawyers' oral arguments before the Supreme Court (including, of course, the justices' questions) were abruptly denied in 1979 to the National Archives, which had made the recordings available to the public. Archives sources say Chief Justice Warren Burger was apparently outraged by the commercial use made of one tape and refused to send over any more. The Archives proposed guidelines last fall restricting use of the tapes, but the high court has yet to respond.

GEORGE F. WILL

Soviet Union suffering death of Lenin's mind

MOSCOW — History is the history of mind, and the Soviet Union is brain dead. The regime that considers itself custodian of the science of progress is frozen, as in cloudy amber. This conclusion is compelled by Mikhail Gorbachev's marathon speech of self-revelation at the Communist Party congress, and the tone of the entire congress.

George F. Will

There is a stunning contradiction between Gorbachev's demeanor and his meaning. His body language is commanding; his delivery suggests a march along a smooth path paved with syllogisms. But his words — nearly 50,000 of them — show how a foolish philosophy can kill the capacity for thought.

Enduring five hours of Gorbachevean rhetoric is an exercise in fascinating boredom. Rhetorical modes can characterize a regime, and his mode is leaden Leninist boilerplate leavened — sort of — by consciousness-contracting trivia about this or that ministry that failed the heroic Soviet worker by neglecting to use a new lubricant. All of this is couched in the clanging, grinding jargon of Marxism.

"Capitalism negates itself as it develops ... general crisis of capitalism ... intrinsic contradictions of the capitalist world ... irreversible process of socio-economic transformations ... protecting culture from bourgeois vandalization ... the prevailing dialectic of development ...."

The "metropolitan center of imperialism" (that's us) is filled with "predatory appetites" and lust for "social revenge." But in the Soviet Union, things proceed swimmingly, although "the formation of the new type of family is no simple matter," even with the infallible guidance of Lenin:

"As Lenin says ... Lenin wrote ... Lenin stressed ... Lenin regarded ... Lenin held ... I should like to remind you of Lenin's words ... to carry out the great Lenin's behest ... the firm foundation of Marxist-Leninist theory ... the vitality of the Marxist-Leninist doctrine ... the inexhaustible riches of Lenin's ideas ... the principled Leninist decision ... nobody has a right to forget Lenin's stern warning ... there can be only one answer to this, a Leninist answer ... our Party's tradition traceable to Lenin ...."

There is not a scintilla of evidence by which to defend Gorbachev against the charge of sincerity. He goes on, and on, and on about "scientifically substantiated answers to fundamental questions ... the laws and objective logic of history's law-governed onward process ... penetrate deep into the dialectic of events, into their objective logic ...."

To traditional ideology he adds technological monomania, which also is a tradition. Lenin's obsession was electricity: He even defined communism as Soviet power and the electrification of the countryside. Stalin, having heard of a giant grain farm in Montana, launched collectivization of agriculture and acquired his own obsession: the tractor. (While killing 20 million peasants, he accused them of, among other crimes, anti-tractorism.) Gorbachev, a broad-gauged thinker, has three panaceas: better attitudes, "reorganziation" for good "management," and "technology."

On the eve of the party congress, a front-page editorial said the people must show "selflessness, persistence, a fearless rejection of mental inertia, of complacency and of everything that has outlived its time." Everything? How about reliance on such exhortations?

Gorbachev denounced "sluggishness," "dullness," "inertia" and "stagnation," while saying principles should be adhered to "unswervingly," and everyone should be "dedicated" and "resolute" about doing everything "resolutely." Gorbachev, the common scold, complaining about inadequate uses of the communist system, is called "bold." Actually, no Soviet tradition is older than that of scolding underlings.

In January, 1918, Lenin promised a purging "of all kinds of harmful insects," meaning not just class enemies but "workers malingering at their work." They included typesetters at the party print shops in Petrograd. Fifty years later, Solzhenitsyn noted acidly that it was odd, surely, that workers who had just become "dictators" under Lenin's dictatorship of the proletariat were nevertheless immediately malingering at work that they were, by definition, now doing for "their" state — themselves.

The state, which Marx said would wither away, is suffocating Soviet society. What is withering away is the appeal of the Soviet model, and communist parties outside the Soviet bloc. Marx used the term "Bonapartism" to describe military suppression of popular movements. Communist Poland is governed by Bonapartism. And in Moscow, the news is that nothing is, or can be, new.

In his biography of Lenin, Louis Fischer reports that the autopsy on Lenin showed neglible sclerosis, but that the blood vessels of his brain were calcified: "When struck with a tweezer they sounded like stone." In that sense, too, Gorbachev's regime is true to Lenin.

For that reason, the regime is going to continue driving the nation into decline. That fact should shape U.S. foreign policy in ways discussed in my next column from here.

ART BUCHWALD

'PR' for Imelda is money, money, money!

Almost every public relations firm in America is after the Imelda Marcos account. Myron Steaknife told me why. "Mrs. Marcos has a distorted image in the U.S., but fortunately she has enough money to change it. I'm making a presentation next week. What do you think of it?"

Art Buchwald

Myron opened a large folder. "The way I see it, Imelda owns half of all the real estate in New York, and Leona Helmsley owns the other half. I want Imelda to move to New York and personally advertise her real estate properties in the same manner that Leona does hers.

"I see Imelda in a full-page photo stretched over the top of a piano saying, 'Leona is wild about Harry and I'm wild about Ferdinand. If you really want to have a ball come to the Golden Casa for a lovers weekend. We feature free breakfast, free ice, free movies and free elections.'

"I have another based on Mrs. Helmsley's ad in New York Magazine. It shows Leona standing in the dining room of her Palace Hotel saying, 'It's the only palace in the world where the Queen stands guard.'"

Steaknife said, "We'd show Imelda singing into a microphone on the balcony of her hotel. The copy would read, 'Leona Helmsley has no idea what it takes to guard a palace. Would you believe even a company of crack troops and a dozen tanks isn't enough?'"

"Why the ads?"

"I want the public to think of Mrs. Marcos as an astute businesswoman instead of someone who keeps shoving pesos in her Calvin Klein jeans. The fastest way to do this is through advertising. I also have a brokerage firm interested in signing up Imelda for a commercial. She would stand in front of the plane she arrived on from the Philippines and say, 'Hello, I'm Imelda Marcos and my husband and I made money the old-fashioned way — we smuggled it out of the country in a trunk. If you expect to be overthrown soon, call me at this toll-free number, and for a fee I'll advise how to keep your loot with the blessing of President Reagan.'"

I said, "You think that will help Imelda's image?"

"It can't hurt it. I want to persuade the country Imelda was not one of these dictator's wives who spent all her time in Paris buying clothes with her country's Fresh Air Funds. I'm going to show that there were a lot worse spendthrifts kicked out of their countries this year."

"You're not talking about Mrs. Duvalier?"

"Let's just say I'm talking about anyone who knows anything about voodoo economics."

Steaknife said if Imelda doesn't want to go head-to-head with Leona Helmsley or do brokerage commercials, she could always venture into the jewelry business. "She has enough diamonds to light up the Statue of Liberty for a week," he said.

"That's a lot of diamonds."

"Just because a person is a head of state's wife doesn't mean she can't own a few nice things."

"Your entire presentation seems to be built around getting Mrs. Marcos a job."

"Every woman has to fulfill herself," he said. "Since Imelda owns shopping centers, art treasures, stocks and chests full of gold bullion, she doesn't have to lift a finger for the rest of her life. But when you've been married to someone like Marcos you have to keep occupied in your spare time. There is just so much polo Imelda can play with Ferdinand."

"This is a pretty good presentation," I told him. "Do you think Madame Marcos will go for it?"

"I don't see why not. If she doesn't want to do it I have a book contract for her to sign. A publisher wants her to write 'Hawaii on $750 Million a Day.'"

Study finds suicide risk 86 percent higher for Vietnam vets

BOSTON (AP) — A study suggesting that Vietnam-era veterans are more likely to commit suicide than those who didn't serve means authorities should weigh all the costs involved in military conscription, the author says.

"The casualties of forced military service may not be limited to those that are counted on the battlefield," researchers wrote in a study published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

It concludes that Vietnam-era veterans were 86 percent more likely than non-veterans to die of suicide in the years after the war, and were 53 percent more likely to die in traffic accidents.

The study "indicates that before sending young men to war, especially one in which they may have experiences similar to those of Vietnam veterans, those who make the decision should weigh all the costs," the researchers wrote.

The researchers said their work shows a cause-and-effect relationship between military service in Vietnam and the elevated suicide risk.

"I think it demonstrates the experience of being drafted during the Vietnam era had profound, long-term psychological effects on people," said Dr. Norman Hearst of the University of California, San Francisco.

Several reports have noted a variety of problems — including marital difficulties, legal problems and depression — among Vietnam-era veterans.

But some experts argue that those who went to Vietnam were poorer and less educated than young men who avoided the war, and they would have had more problems later in life, regardless of their military service.

In an editorial accompanying the study, Dr. Lawrence C. Kolb of Glenmont, N.Y., called the analysis "ingenious" and said it "demonstrates the long-term excessive mortality of men who served in the military during the Vietnam War."

He said many veterans suffer from a condition called post-traumatic stress disorder, and that physicians should work harder to spot the symptoms.

The new study was based on a review of death records of men in Pennsylvania and California who were born between 1950 and 1952. In the three-year period from 1970 through 1972, the military lottery randomly assigned these men on the basis of their birth dates into two groups — those with low lottery numbers who were eligible for the draft and those with high numbers who were exempt.

The researchers noted that the two groups were identical except for their draft status. So any differences between them in later years must be caused by the draft, they said.

"We've hit upon what we call an experiment of nature," Hearst said. "When we see a difference, it's clearly a cause-and-effect relationship."

Between 1974 and 1983, 14,145 of these men died. The suicide rate was 13 percent higher among those with low numbers than those with high numbers. This figure was diluted, however, because a low lottery number didn't necessarily mean military service. In fact, only 26 percent of the draft-eligible men entered the military during the three years, while 9 percent of draft-exempt men served as volunteers.

When the researchers took into account the percentages in each group who actually served, they projected that the suicide rate was 86 percent higher among the veterans.

Although the higher than usual risk of fatal auto accidents dropped to normal in the first few years after draft eligibility, the higher mortality from suicide persisted during the entire followup period.

The researchers concluded that military service during that three-year period was directly linked to 1,250 non-war deaths throughout the United States in the years that followed.

"If the draft affected men in the same way through the whole Vietnam era as it appeared to affect them for these three years, then the number might be in the tens of thousands," Hearst said.

Of the 9 million Americans who served in the military during the Vietnam era, 4 million spent time in Indochina and 800,000 were assigned to combat.

The researchers speculated that physical handicaps acquired during the war might have contributed to the increased suicide rate, along with social and economic problems after returning to civilian life, increased susceptibility to mental illness and greater familiarity with firearms.

Reagan pushes for June summit in Washington

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
News America Syndicate

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, noting that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has not yet responded to his call for a June summit, warned Wednesday that no summit in Washington this year would mean no summit in Moscow next.

"If it (an '86 summit) slips through our fingers," he told reporters over breakast, "there won't be an '87 summit in Moscow."

In other comments at his annual session at the White House with members of the breakfast group presided over by Godfrey Sperling of the Christian Science Monitor, the president:

- Ruled out for the first time any possibility that he would endorse Vice President George Bush or anybody else in the fight for the 1988 Republican nomination. "I don't see how as the titular head (of the Republican Party)," Reagan said, "you can insert yourself in a primary."
- Rejected an oil import fee as part of blanket opposition to any tax increase. Reagan a month ago said he might consider an oil fee to balance revenues in the tax reform but told the reporters Wednesday: "I have to say I'm opposed. I would have to say it has a bad effect on the economy." He said he was looking "very closely" at a one-time federal tax amnesty.
- Said that if asked by President Corazon Aquino's new Philippine regime, he would consider increased military aid to fight the communist insurgency.
- Said "no decision" had been made on an organized crime commission's recommendation for mandatory drug testing for all federal employees, but indicated he would prefer a voluntary plan.
- Said he considers congressmen who oppose aid to anti-Marxist contra guerrillas in Nicaragua to be supporters of the Sandinista regime there. "It's hard not to," the president said.
- Proposed repeal of the 22nd Amendment limiting a president to two terms, though he stressed it would not affect his own situation.

Panel disputes how to retaliate against terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal task force studying ways to combat terrorism found present methods were working fairly well, but could not resolve disagreements inside the Reagan administration over how best to retaliate against terrorist acts, an administration official says.

An interagency group led by Vice President George Bush submitted its report to the White House last month, and a declassified version of it was being released today following a presentation to President Reagan.

One senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the recommendations include several proposals that have been floating around government for some time. They were said to include a call for tightening embassy security around the world and improving control of intelligence information involving terrorist activities.

The source said the report also commends U.S. and allied law enforcement agencies for averting many planned terrorist attacks, including nearly two dozen in the United States.

Ambassador-at-Large Robert B. Oakley, the administration's top counterterrorism specialist, said the panel found the existing system "pretty good."

"The commission found no major overhauls are required," Oakley said in an interview, and the report "won't be anything startling."

Nor, he said, does it resolve policy differences within the administration over how and when to retaliate for terrorist acts.

Reagan has at least once approved an air strike against a suspected terrorist headquarters in Lebanon following the suicide truck bombing of U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, but the attack never took place because, he revealed later, the Israelis struck the target first. And he authorized the naval bombardment of the hills overlooking Beirut during the multinational peacekeeping mission there in 1982.

But in subsequent terrorist incidents, including the hijacking of the TWA flight last June that led to creation of the Bush task force, Reagan refused to use force that he said might harm innocent victims or bystanders.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin, Howard, Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight clear. Low in the mid 40s. Southeast winds 5 to 15 mph. Friday becoming cloudy. High in the upper 70s. Southeast winds 15 to 20 mph and gusty in the afternoon.

Clouds should move in soon

Clouds should be moving into the Midland-Odessa area on Friday, according to the forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The high will be in the upper 70s.

Tonight will be clear with a low in the middle 40s. Winds will be out of the southeast at five to 10 mph tonight, increasing to 10-20 mph and gusting on Friday.

Wednesday's high of 80 was only five degree below the record high set for the date in 1956. The chilly 34 degree low this morning was 18 degrees warmer than the record low set in 1948.

STATE

A mass of cool, dry polar air moved across Texas early today, bringing with it slightly cooler temperatures.

But a second and much stronger cold front was poised to enter the state Friday, bringing with it much colder temperatures and the possibility of precipitation in the form of rain, mostly scattered showers and drizzle.

At dawn, the leading edge of the cool air curved from the Piney Woods to the coast near Corpus Christi and westward to Laredo and El Paso.

It will be fair and cool statewide tonight. Lows will be in the upper 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s and 50s elsewhere.

Clouds will increase and it will be windy and colder over northern portions of the state Friday. It will remain clear and warm to mild in South Texas. Highs will be mostly in the 50s and 60s except in South Texas where readings will be in the 70s. Temperatures will be falling rapidly Friday afternoon as the second cold front arrives across the northern half of the state. Highs should drop into the 50s during the late afternoon.

NATION

A windy snowstorm swept into the upper Midwest today, dumping up to a foot of snow, slicking roads, and packing strong gusts that whipped up gale warnings on the Great Lakes.

Most of Michigan was under travelers' advisories for slippery roads and snow, with accumulations of 1 to 6 inches possible. Three inches of snow fell in six hours overnight in Detroit and Saginaw, 2 inches in Flint and Grand Rapids and 1 inch in Lansing, Marquette, Alpena and Traverse City.

The storm dumped 5 inches to a foot of snow on northeast Wisconsin's Door Peninsula, where a travelers' advisory for blowing and drifting snow was in effect, and piled 2 inches on Green Bay and Wausau, Wis.

"We have to be realistic. In hard times we have to tighten our belts."

"Our future is tied to the oil industry. I think it's a very bright future, with 25 percent of the nation's proven reserves right here in the Permian Basin. But our destiny is not in our hands. We're subject to fluctuations in price that are beyond our control.

"We'll see good times again. And I couldn't think of a better resource to have than oil in the ground. But now is a time for caution."

On February 4, Carroll Thomas was instrumental in alerting the City Council that a $10.8 million bond issue at this time was ill advised. Although he is generally in support of the proposed improvements, Thomas felt the election should be delayed until the local economy improves. At its February 11 meeting, the Council agreed, and deferred the bond election.

A Positive Approach

Thomas stands for positive, constructive improvements within the present City government. He is committed to:

- Improved street repair and maintenance programs to protect our $150,000,000 investment
- Drainage system improvements
- Synchronization of traffic signals
- A freeze on the citizen's City tax burden, the City budget, and City hiring
- Better relationships with other elected bodies.

Thomas believes that improvements to streets, drainage systems, and traffic signal synchronization can be funded out of the City's present cash surplus and unexpended bond funds. When the economy appears more favorable, he supports calling the bond issue to authorize necessary capital improvements.

TJ favored to gain TofC title

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

In past seasons, the Tournament of Champions has more than lived up to its name. And this season, with another quality field including Dallas Thomas Jefferson, Lubbock Monterey and Amarillo Tascosa the tournament is once again deserving of such a title.

What hosts Midland High and Midland Lee are hoping is that they haven't outdone themselves with the quality of the 1986 field.

" I don't know if any of us are going to compete with TJ," Rebel coach Ernie Johnson said "They have a real fine, experienced pitching staff. They could manhandle the rest of us becuase we're all not that strong this year. But surprises happen every year."

"There are some pretty potent people in the field," admitted MHS coach Tim Whalen. "But it's good for us to play this kind of competition before district play. It shows the kids they've really got to be ready or they're going to get blown away.

"It really makes us feel good when we play a darn good game against one of these teams like we did last year (a 2-1 loss to Thomas Jefferson). You find out who is going to compete for you. You also find out who your snowflakes are real fast — the ones that melt in the heat."

IF WHAT has happened on the field in past years and so far this season is any indication, the Rebels and Bulldogs will have no reason to hang their heads when all is said and done.

Lee, the runner up in District 4-5A last season, has brought back few starters. But Ernie Johnson's clubs keep on winning. The Rebels are 5-2 this season with their only losses coming to perennial powers Abilene Cooper and Lubbock Monterey.

Midland High, with six starters back from the third place team in 4-5A in 1985, has been something of a disappointment at 2-3. But the Bulldogs have shown ability to hit with the best, sporting a .336 team average.

But to win the T of C title, there is more than one formidable team to hurdle.

MONTEREY, AS Rebel fans are all too aware, has won District 3-5A the past three seasons — and ousted Lee each time in the bi-district playoff round. The Plainsmen won the state title in 1984 and weren't eliminated until the semifinals last season.

But the Rebels are not unaccustomed to putting a lump on the proud crown of the Plainsmen now and again. For the second year in a row, Lee split a doubleheader with Monterey in the week prior to T of C action, handing coach Bobby Moegle his first loss of the season in embarrassing 20-13 fashion.

And as Moegle himself claims, this is his most inexperienced team ever. But don't expect the Plainsmen to give up their Tournament of Champions title without a fight, they never have.

Thomas Jefferson has emerged as a champion in its own right the past 15 seasons under coach Gerald Turner. The Patriots were District 11-5A champs last year while compiling a 28-3 record. Turner brings his top three starting pitchers back from that bunch in senior Mike Moscrey, junior Morris Moss and Jamin Castleman.

THE PATRIOTS, off to a 4-0 start and ranked No. 3 in Dallas area polls, return 12 lettermen from last season, and Moss and Moscrey are both rated in the top 10 Dallas area prospects. Moscrey, the lefthander, is off to a 3-0 start on the hill this season.

But TJ came to town with impeccable credentials last season, as well, and both Lee and Monterey left the Patriots with black marks on their record, including a masterful performance by Lee's George Matta that put the clamps on the big TJ bats. But Turner turned them around once they left the Tall City, going undefeated until Regional play.

Amarillo Tascosa may be the weak sister of the field, coming off a last place finish in 3-5A in 1985 and breaking in new head coach Randy Vinson. The Tascosa Rebels do boast pitching depth, bringing five hurlers with varsity experience to the tournament.

BUT WHALEN, with his team's up-and-down play so far, would sooner tab his Bulldogs as the underdog than Tascosa.

"If you're going to classify a weak sister, with the erratic way we've played, it would have to be us," Whalen said of his 2-4 Bulldogs. "But if we play well, we can beat these teams.

"We've just had a lack of concentration at times. We've got people who were thinking they didn't have to bust their butts to compete. But you can't coast in this league, or in this tournament. If you do, there's going to be someone right there who will put knots on your head faster than you can rub 'em."

Midland Lee center fielder Tuey Rankin (14) is off to a hot start this year, hitting .458 for the Rebels, second only on the team to first baseman Danny Jordan's .478. Rankin leads the team in runs scored with 11 followed by Jordan with 10 while both are tops in RBIs with seven each. Both would like to add to their stats this weekend in the Tournament of Champions at Angels Stadium.

Bradley's winning streak blown away

Associated Press

As the longest winning streak in the nation came to an end, Bradley Coach Dick Versace found reason to be proud.

"I am proud to be associated with a team that has tasted defeat only twice this season," he said.

The ninth-ranked Braves lost 74-58 to Tulsa on Wednesday night in the championship game of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, giving the MVC's automatic NCAA berth to the Hurricane. Forwards Brian Rahilly and David Moss had 22 points apiece for the Hurricane.

With the best record in the nation at 31-2 and, until Wednesday night, the country's longest Division I winning streak of 22 games, Bradley also was expected to be picked for the 64-team tournament field.

Bradley's loss, its first since Dec. 28 against Clemson, came at Tulsa, and Versace said the crowd of 6,300, primarily Hurricane fans, played a role.

"We had three games in three days, and we needed the adrenalin boost from the crowd," Versace said, "and of course we didn't have that today."

Bradley trailed by 10 or more points most of the second half until pulling within 50-42 with 13:25 left. At that point, Tulsa outscored Bradley 14-3 to take a 64-45 lead with 4:15 to play.

Tulsa Coach J.D. Barnett agreed that the crowd helped. "It doesn't mean much at times, but it helped tonight," he said. "I hope it doesn't take away from the glitter of the win. This team played a great basketball game."

Hersey Hawkins led the Braves with 16 points and seven rebounds.

Indiana 97, Michigan St. 79

Indiana took a half-game lead over idle Michigan and eliminated Michigan State from the Big Ten race. Steve Alford had 31 points and freshman Ricky Calloway added 19 for the Hoosiers, 13-4 in the Big Ten and 21-6 overall.

Scott Skiles scored 33 points and became Michigan State's all-time leading scorer, needing 21 points going into the game to break the old mark of 2,014 by Greg Kelser. The Spartans dropped to 11-6 in the conference.

"The game was kind of the way I thought it would be," Indiana Coach Bob Knight said. "It was an offensive game more than anything else. I knew they would score, so I just told our kids they would have to score also and not get knocked out of the box."

In some other conference tournaments:

Big East

In New York, Sophomore center Mark Bryant scored 18 points, and Seton Hall won its first Big East post-season game, 76-66 over Connecticut, to earn a berth in the tournament quarterfinals Thursday night against eighth-ranked St. John's.

The Pirates, who had lost three in a row, led 45-38 when they outscored Connecticut 20-7 to boost their lead to 20 points. Bryant scored nine of his points in the run, and Connecticut lost its eighth straight game. Both teams were 3-13 in the Big East.

Southeastern

At Lexington, Ky., Mississippi State and Mississippi both advanced to Thursday's quarterfinals of the SEC tournament.

Chauncey Robinson scored eight of his 14 points down the stretch as Mississippi State rallied to beat Vanderbilt 62-54 in one first-round game. Raymond Brown had 20 points for the Bulldogs, who will meet Auburn in the next round.

Joe Ayers and Eric Smith had eight points apiece in separate scoring surges that allowed Mississippi to beat Tennessee 73-56, advancing the Rebels against SEC regular-season champion Kentucky. Ayers and Curtis Ritchwood finished with 18 points each.

Southwestern Athletic

At Jackson, Miss., Prairie View A&M and Alcorn State won first-round games in the SWAC tournament. Reginald Jones scored 23 points to lead Prairie View over Southern University 75-67, and David Whitney Jr.'s 21 points paced Alcorn State over Grambling 71-53.

Both teams advanced to Friday night's semifinals with an automatic NCAA tournament bid at stake. Prairie View will play the winner of tonight's Jackson State-Texas Southern game, while Alcorn plays the winner of the Mississippi Valley-Albama State contest.

Hogeboom may retire rather than remain in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Gary Hogeboom, the Dallas Cowboys' backup quarterback who demanded a trade two months ago, says he would consider retiring rather than remaining with the National Football League team.

The move would cost him $3.8 million.

"Right now, I'm gearing myself to possibly not playing," Hogeboom told Norm Hitzges of Dallas Radio Station KLIF.

"It's a possibility right now," Hogeboom said. "I've been here six years, and things have't worked out the way I planned. I've always believed that if you don't enjoy what your are doing, you have to do something else."

Hogeboom became the Cowboys starting quarterback in 1984, but lost the job back to Danny White after 10 games. In 1985, he started two games when White was injured and asked Coach Tom Landry to trade him.

Cowboys Vice President Gil Brandt said he hasn't received any offers for Hogeboom, but said he expects to begin shopping Hogeboom at the NFL meeting next week in Palm Springs, Calif.

Hogeboom has $800,000 in salary coming the next two seasons and would stand to lose $3 million in deferred payments if he quit now. According to the terms of a contract Hogeboom signed after the 1984 season, he will receive $300,000 a year between 1994 and 2013, a total of $6 million. If he plays less than four years, the amount of his deferred payments would decrease accordingly.

Hogeboom says money isn't the most important matter.

"I could stay and relax and stay a couple of more years behing Danny. But that's not how I feel or what I want to do," he said. "Retirement is a possibility."

All defending champs eliminated from '86 state tourney

AUSTIN (AP) — The 66th annual state schoolboy basketball tournament has a new look from 1985.

Only two of the 20 semifinalists — Nazareth and Morton — played in the tournament last year. Both lost in the finals, so there are no defending champions.

In the tournament opener today in Class A, Nazareth, whose girls' team lost in the finals last weekend, was matched against Laneville, making its fourth tournament appearance and first since 1957. Nazareth was a semifinalist in 1980 and finalist in 1984-85.

The second semifinal game in Class A pitted Livingston Big Sandy, which won titles in 1952 and 1957 and has been a runner-up five times, against Archer City, which lost in the semifinals in 1967, 1980 and 1981.

Big Sandy ousted No. 1-ranked Snook in the regional playoffs.

The big-school division, 5A, had no clear favorite as it did last year when Houston Madison climaxed a 40-0 season with a state-title victory.

In the first round in 5A, newcomer Dallas Kimball, 30-3, will play Houston Wheatley, perhaps the best team in that division over the past 20 years, on Friday afternoon.

Although Wheatley's 21-13 record is the worst of any team in the tournament, the Wildcats have had great success at the tournament, winning five titles — 1968-70, 1973 and 1978, which is a 5A record.

Austin Johnston, a semifinalist in 1978, will play Amarillo in the other 5A semifinals Friday night. Johnston, 34-2, is the first Austin team to gain the tournament since Lanier, which lost in the 1979 semifinals.

The Rams are led by Jason Shead, a 6-foot-1 guard who received much of the credit for Johnston's success in the San Antonio regional.

Amarillo, 29-5, returns to the tournament for the first time since 1948. The Sandies, paced by coach Allen Simpson's son, 6-2 Sammy Simpson, have never advanced past the semifinals in four previous appearances.

Port Artnur Lincoln, a champion in 1981 and 1984, has a 31-1 record in 4A, and also defeated highly touted Bay City in regionals.

Dimmitt in 3A returns to the tournament for the 13th time, breaking its own record in that division. Dimmitt won championships in 1952, 1975 and 1982-83.

Two former champions have advanced to the tournament in 2A — Gladewater Sabine, 1980-81, and Morton, 1972, 1977, 1983 and 1985.

Bucks still hot, tip Nets 119-106

NBA Roundup

Ricky Pierce wanted to prove that Sidney Moncrief wasn't the only reason the Milwaukee Bucks have the third-best record in the NBA this season.

Pierce, making only his third start of 1985-86, gave Moncrief's sore ribs a rest Wednesday night and scored a career-high 32 points as the Bucks won for the 12th time in the last 13 games, 119-106 over the New Jersey Nets.

"The big guys were setting picks for me and I was in my rhythm," said Pierce, whose previous high of 30 points came when he was with the San Diego Clippers in 1983-84. "With Sidney out, I knew we all had to pull together, work a little harder and execute well to make up for those 20 points we were missing."

Pierce came out firing from the start, scoring 11 points in the first quarter and 12 more in the third period. The 6-foot-5 guard was 13-of-18 from the field for the game.

"Ricky's got no conscience," said Bucks forward Terry Cummings, who scored 24 points. "He's a great offensive player, who came into this game with his mind prepared. We got him the ball and he knew what to do with it."

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said Pierce also was a standout on defense against the Nets. He helped limit Otis Birdsong to 12 points.

"Ricky rose to the occasion," Nelson said. "You can talk all you want about the 32 points he scored, but what I want to talk about is the defensive job he did. He's developed a dedication to defense since he's come here."

Pierce came to Milwaukee from the Clippers before the 1984-85 season, along with Cummings and Craig Hodges in a trade for Junior Bridgeman, Harvey Catchings and Marques Johnson.

Pierce and Cummings had six points each during a 16-2 second-half spurt that turned a five-point deficit into an 88-79 Milwaukee lead with 10:44 left. Pierce put Milwaukee ahead to stay at 78-77 with a free throw with 3:06 to go in the third period.

New Jersey's Albert King scored 12 of his 27 points in a four-minute span to help close the gap to 97-93, but Pierce, Cummings and Paul Pressey, who had 21 points and 13 assists, led a Milwaukee run that carried the Bucks to a comfortable 109-98 advantage with 2:47 remaining.

Hawks 122, 76ers 114

Atlanta won its fourth straight against Philadelphia this season and second in two nights as Dominique Wilkins scored 37 points, including seven in overtime.

After the 76ers took a 110-108 lead to start the extra period, the Hawks took control with a 14-2 streak that made it 122-112 with 53 seconds remaining. In the third period, Atlanta had scored 14 consecutive points for a 74-68 lead, but Philadelphia had a 14-2 run later in the quarter to lead 82-80.

Celtics 108, Bulls 97

Boston won its seventh straight and 18th in a row at home as Larry Bird scored 15 of his 26 points against Chicago during a 29-6 streak that started with 7:29 left in the second period and ended 11 minutes later.

Bird had 11 consecutive points at one stretch for the Celtics as they turned a 43-41 deficit into a 70-51 advantage with 8:24 to go in the third quarter. The Bulls closed the gap to 97-91 with 4:10 left in the game, but could come no closer.

Cavaliers 115, Suns 100

Cleveland broke an 0-10 streak in Phoenix by outscoring the Suns 22-7 in last 6:12 of the game.

Roy Hinson, who scored 22 points, scored nine points and World B. Free and John Bagley had eight each in the decisive final quarter for the Cavaliers. The game was tied seven times in the fourth quarter before Free, who finished with 23 points, put Cleveland ahead to stay at 95-93 with 6:12 left.

The Suns, who hadn't lost to the Cavaliers in Phoenix since November of 1976, got a game-high 30 points from Walter Davis.

Lakers 130, Jazz 84

Los Angeles completed a sweep of its five-game season series against Utah with a rout that was decided by halftime.

After taking a 32-21 first-quarter lead, the Lakers connected on 15-of-18 shots from the field in the second quarter to expand the margin to 65-41, then scored the first eight points of the second half to lead by 32.

Pacers 120, SuperSonics 112

Rookie Wayman Tisdale scored 31 points and Clint Richardson and Ron Anderson added 21 each as Indiana climbed out of the Central Division cellar with a victory over Chicago.

The SuperSonics trailed only 101-98 midway through the fourth period before Richardson and Anderson sparked a 13-6 spurt that made it 114-104 with 1:30 remaining.

MHS opened the season in inglorious fashion, dropping two straight games in the Pre District tournament last week. Finally, the 'Dogs punched out a 12-6 victory over Abilene High to gain some respectability.

THEN IN a twinbill against Lubbock Coronado on Tuesday, MHS welcomed a two-hitter by Kenny DeLaGarza to post a 6-2 victory. Then in the nightcap, MHS reversed itself and committed seven errors en route to a 14-3 pasting.

Whalen is searching for some stability to his Jekyll and Hyde ballclub.

When the Rebels, 5-2, get strong pitching, they have been very tough to beat. And when George Matta (2-1, 3.06 ERA) or Terry Baxter (3-0, 0.00) have been on the mound, Johnson has gotten the consistency he's been looking for.

At times, Tuey Rankin, coming out of the bullpen, or more accuarately his centerfield spot, has gotten the job done. At others, Rankin (2 saves, 4.38) has been wild and hittable.

Lee begins with the extra game in the tournament, a 10 a.m. eye-opener with Tascosa.

Whalen will count on De La Garza to bring the Bulldogs through their opener with Monterey at 12:30 p.m.

Jets notch victory for returning coach

Associated Press

NHL Roundup

John Ferguson got a victory and a sore throat in his reappearance as the Winnipeg Jets' coach.

Ferguson, the club's general manager, took over behind the bench himself and was a noticeable vocal supporter throughout most of the game. He had a lot to cheer about. The Jets moved past the idle Vancouver Canucks by one point in their battle for the fourth and final playoff spot in the Smythe Division.

Ferguson took over behind the bench once before, replacing Tom Watt briefly before giving the job to Long in 1984.

While the Jets continued to struggle for the last playoff berth in the Smythe, the Edmonton Oilers continued to make a runaway of the division with a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Kings. The victory gave the defending Stanley Cup champions a 25-point lead over the idle Calgary Flames.

Oilers 6, Kings 3

Wayne Gretzky continued his assault on another 200-point season with two goals and a pair of assists, leading Edmonton over Los Angeles.

Gretzky is the only player to ever produce 200 points in an NHL season, having done so twice, and holds the NHL record with 212. The four points gave the brilliant center 181 for the season, including 47 goals and 134 assists, one short of the league record of 135 he set last year.

Gretzky assisted on Jari Kurri's 51st goal as the Oilers took a 3-2 lead after one period before scoring the only goal of the second stanza. Gretzky continued his hot hand in the third period, scoring his 47th goal and assisting on Mark Messier's 28th, an empty-netter.

North Stars 5, Maple Leafs 3

Dino Ciccarelli led a three-goal Minnesota burst in the second period and goaltender Don Beaupre stopped 31 shots for his 10th straight victory as the North Stars beat the Maple Leafs.

The victory lifted the North Stars, 30-27-8, into second place in the Norris Division over St. Louis and within five points of front-running Chicago.

With the score tied 1-1, Ciccarelli connected 23 seconds into the second period on a power-play goal. Brian Lawton then made it 3-1 at 3:36, and Ciccarelli fed Scott Bjugstad from behind the net at 17:07 to give the North Stars a 4-1 lead.

Beaupre's last defeat was Jan. 29 in Los Angeles. Wednesday night's victory was his fourth over Toronto since that time.

Whalers 5, Sabres 1

Sylvain Turgeon registered his 11th two-goal game of the season, leading Hartford past Buffalo in the opener of a home-and-home series.

Turgeon scored his 38th and 39th goals to spark a 33-shot barrage at goalie Tom Barrasso. Kevin Dineen, Dave Tippett and Paul Lawless added goals as the Whalers moved within six points of fourth-place Buffalo in the Adams Division playoff race. The teams play Friday night in Buffalo.

Goalie Mike Liut stopped 24 shots as the Whalers, 30-33-2, equaled a franchise record set last year for most wins in a season. Gilles Hamel tallied Buffalo's lone goal on the power play.

Red Wings 8, Blackhawks 3

Petr Klima, collecting his first career hat trick, triggered a five-goal second period to help Detroit end an eight-game losing streak against Chicago.

Klima, who also connected on a second-period power-play goal, gave the Red Wings only their fifth win in the last 26 contests. The Wings had lost all five previous games to Chicago this year and were 0-6-2 against the Blackhawks dating back to last season.

NCAA looking into violation by Longhorn

AUSTIN (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is investigating the University of Texas football program because of a possible violation concerning a player's car, a university official said Wednesday.

But Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said the university has not been officially notified of a full-scale investigation of how junior tailback Edwin Simmons obtained his car.

"We've had phone conversations and other correspondence with the NCAA," Dodds told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "The NCAA has talked to us. We have told the NCAA everything we know. We are sharing our information from our internal investigation with the NCAA and they are looking into it."

The university is conducting its own investigation, Dodds added.

"We don't know anything yet," Dodds said, "except the kid made a bad deal."

Dollar gains

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rose on European exchange markets early today in jittery trading. Gold bullion prices edged higher.

At midmorning, the dollar was quoted up from the previous day's levels in Europe against all major currencies, although it had eased from sharply higher levels reached in New York.

Traders in Frankfurt noted an air of nervousness hanging over the market prior to a scheduled midday meeting by the policy-making body of West Germany's central Bundesbank.

They said the central bank council was expected to cut the Bundesbank's discount rate — what it charges commercial banks to borrow money — from 4 percent to 3.5 percent.

Midmorning dollar rates compared with levels in Europe late Wednesday:

–2.2520 West German marks, up from 2.2197

–1.9065 Swiss francs, up from 1.8905

–6.9250 French francs, up from 6.8850

–2.5635 Dutch guilders, up from 2.5285

–1,532.00 Italian lire, up from 1,522.00

–1.4180 Canadian dollars, up from 1.4165

The value of the British pound fell to $1.4515 from $1.4580.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to 180.95 Japanese yen in active trading, up from 179.30 yen. Later, in London, the dollar was quoted at 180.60 yen.

London's five biggest bullion houses fixed a recommended gold price of $343.00 a troy ounce, up from $340.90.

The metal was quoted at a bid of $342.10 in Zurich, up from $341.50.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold closed at a bid of $341.91, up from $341.67.

Silver bullion was quoted in London at a bid of $5.61 an ounce, a gain of 2 cents.

Experts say oil production agreement could be near

Associated Press

U.S. crude oil futures prices seesawed Wednesday after Persian Gulf nations scheduled an emergency meeting, heightening speculation in skittish markets that agreement could be near on production cuts.

The main U.S. crude, West Texas Intermediate, fell as low as $11.49 per 42-gallon barrel on contracts for April delivery at the New York Mercantile Exchange, surged to $13 then dropped back to $12.09, amounting to an overall gain of 11 cents from the previous closing price.

"It was a wild day. It was very volatile day," said Andrew Lebow, a oil futures specialist at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., a New York investment firm.

Analysts said the Persian Gulf meeting scheduled for Saturday had led some traders to believe that the oil-endowed nations led by Saudi Arabia would devise a strategy limiting production.

This view caused the brief upward spurt in prices before underlying skepticism about the ability of producers to cooperate pushed the market down, they said.

The fluctuation also was attributed to short-covering, a scramble to buy oil to lock in profits or limit losses from earlier sales of borrowed oil. Traders had sold borrowed oil as a means of betting on further declines.

The oil price plunge over the past four months represents about a 60 percent drop from the November high of $31.70 a barrel.

Outside of the speculative markets, Mobil Corp., second in size behind Exxon Corp., announced its U.S. subsidiary lowered the contract price paid for West Texas Intermediate by $1.75 to $17 a barrel, the second reduction in less than two weeks.

Mobil is among many U.S. oil companies have cut official prices for the major grade of domestic crude. Contract prices, which began the year between $27 to $29, range from a low of $14 a barrel for West Texas Intermediate quoted by Citgo Petroleum Corp. to a high of $19.10 quoted by Shell Oil Co.

Wednesday night, the Mexican government oil monopoly Pemex announced a cut in crude prices of an average 61 cents a barrel to an average of $14.46 a barrel for oil sold under contract in the last two weeks of February. Mexico sells oil only by contract and announces its prices retroactively, and is the second-largest foreign supplier of oil to the United States.

The depressed market has been blamed on a production war between the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and non-OPEC producers, and has drastically hurt the earnings of major producers while improving the economies of industrialized consumer countries, such as the United States.

Texaco closes 1,500 wells

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Texaco says it has closed 1,500 oil wells in California's huge Kern River field because plunging crude oil prices have made them unprofitable.

As the price of crude oil in world markets has plummeted from the $32-per-barrel range in late November to as low as $12, the posted price for Kern River crude in recent days has hovered just above $11 per barrel.

"When you've got production costs of $12 a barrel and you're getting $11, that's an uneconomic situation," Robert B. Livesay, manager of operations for Texaco USA's Los Angeles operations division, said Wednesday.

The 1,500 wells are Texaco's smallest producers, representing about one-third of the firm's wells in the Kern River field and about 10,000 barrels of crude per day, the company said. That represents 10 percent of the company's Kern River production and about 1 percent of the state's total.

Before the Texaco move, as many as 3,000 small, independently owned wells in the state have closed since Jan. 1 because of falling oil prices, industry officials estimate.

The Texaco decision, however, is the first by a major oil company in California.

Texaco said none of its own employees will be affected, but other firms that maintain the wells and perform other services for Texaco may have to cut back on their employees. Economists at Bank of America have estimated that plunging oil prices could cost California 7,000 oil field jobs.

PBPA cancels plans for Ruidosa meeting

From Staff Reports

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association has cancelled plans to hold one day of its annual meeting at the Inn of the Mountain Gods in Ruidoso, New Mexico. The organization has previously announced plans to hold a split meeting with one day of events planned for Midland and a second in Ruidoso.

PBPA President Perry Bolger said the decision to cancel the one-day affair at the Inn of the Mountain Gods was the result of current economic conditions. "Now we direct all our efforts to the Midland meeting and a worthwhile program," said Bolger.

He said activities include seminars on dealing with bankruptcy and FDIC auctions, investment banking and a capital hill update. Featured luncheon speaker will be Gib Lewis, Speaker of the House of the Texas Legislature.

Afternoon activities will consist of a panel discussion by Republican gubernatorial candidates: Bill Clements, Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance. Governor Mark White will be the key note speaker at the evening dinner, which will honor former PBPA executive director, Ed Thompson and his wife Billie.

Adobe unit reports decreased earnings

AOI Coal Co., a unit of Adobe Resources Inc., Midland, has reported a decline in earnings for 1985.

The firm announced revenues of $55,956,000 and net earnings of $2,274,000 or 20 cents per share for 1985. This compares to revenues of $60,568,000 and net earnings of $5,503,000 for 1984. Per share earnings for 1984 were 48 cents.

Tonnage sold by the coal firm was down from 1,711,000 tons in 1984 to 1,551,000 in 1985.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

New polyethylene plant to create 450 jobs

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A $50 million polyethylene plant by U.S.I. Chemical Co. should create up to 450 construction jobs and eventually employ 40 permanent workers, company officials said.

Tom Turner, plant manager of the chemical company's Port Arthur location, said Wednesday that demolition and on-site work would start immediately on the 1,100 acres adjacent to the existing plant.

Construction will begin within six months with completion expected in late 1987, Turner said.

"We've been working for a number of months," Turner told the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce. "I'm happy to say to you this morning that your efforts have been successful ... There was a tremendous cooperative effort within the community ... it sent a clear message to U.S.I. I think this was very important."

The various taxing entities in Jefferson County also have agreed to grant U.S.I. a tax abatement during the construction phase and first five years of the unit's operation. A new state law allows entities such as city councils, commissioners courts and school boards to abate property taxes to a business for up to 15 years.

Turners said the U.S.I. payroll, excluding construction wages, will add $1.45 million into the economy. He said the company's decision to build the unit adjacent to its Port Arthur location seemingly secures the existing 231 non-management jobs.

Aerospace firm tries to buy health company

ST. LOUIS (AP) — McDonnell Douglas Corp. on Wednesday announced it has joined a group led by Dr. Leroy A. Pesch that is trying to complete a leveraged buyout of Republic Health Corp. of Dallas.

Republic, one of the largest investor-owned health corporations in the country, owns or manages 90 hospitals or medical facilities that contain 87,000 beds in 24 states, said Jim Reed, a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas.

The St. Louis aerospace and information systems corporation and Pesch would be the two largest shareholders if the buyout of Republic was successful, Reed said.

Pesch and McDonnell Douglas are the largest stockholders of Republic. Reed said McDonnell Douglas owns about 13 percent of the health company's shares. Other members of the group attempting the buyout include James E. Buncher, chairman and chief executive officer of Republic, and James W. McAtee, the health company's chief financial officer.

Volkswagen, UAW continue pact bargaining

DETROIT (AP) — Contract bargaining between Volkswagen of America Inc. and the United Auto Workers continued under a news blackout Wednesday, four days from the contract expiration at two foundering domestic factories.

Neither side would discuss the issues publicly or give any indication of the status of the talks as the Sunday midnight expiration approached.

Joseph Bennett, a spokesman for the company, and Karl Mantyla, a union spokesman, acknowleged that negotiations were continuing at the Westin Hotel in downtown Detroit but they refused to comment further.

Mexico drops crude oil prices to below $15 a barrel

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico cut its crude oil prices an average 61 cents a barrel to an average $14.46 a barrel in the last two weeks of February, the government oil monopoly Pemex announced Wednesday night.

For the United States, Mexico's biggest oil customer, prices in the second half of February were $14.50 per 42-gallon barrel of light crude oil, down from $16 in early February, and $13 a barrel for heavy Mayan crude, down 40 cents from early February, Pemex said.

The late-February price is down from $15.07 per barrel in the first two weeks of February and from $19.75 in January.

Pemex, which sells oil only by contract and skips the spot market, has been announcing its prices retroactively since Dec. 31. On March 1, the company began setting prices daily because of the volatility of the world market, although it remains unclear how often it intends to announce the prices.

Each $1 drop in oil prices means an annual revenue loss of $550 million for Mexico, according to the government.

Pemex also announced it would maintain a target of exporting 1.5 million barrels a day, despite urgings by OPEC that exports be held down to keep world prices up.

However, the company said, daily exports totaled only 1.161 million barrels in February and 1.101 million barrels in January.

Mexico, the second leading oil supplier to the United States after Canada, does not belong to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. It sells by one-year contracts to approximately 45 customers in 20 countries.

Pemex sets different prices for three geographical regions, to account for transportation costs.

For European customers, the company said, the average prices for the second half of February were unchanged at $16 a barrel for the light "Isthmus" crude, and $13.40 for the heavy Maya crude.

Prices for Asian customers in the last two weeks of February were $16.50 a barrel for light crude, up from $15.75 in the first two weeks of the month, and $13.50 per barrel for heavy crude, down from $14 in early February.

Meanwhile, the government news agency Notimex said Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog was due in Washington on Thursday for more talks with U.S. counterpart James Baker on helping Mexico meet payments on its $96.4 billion foreign debt.

Silva Herzog spent two days in Washington last week discussing Mexico's financial plight in the face of rapidly falling oil prices. Mexico depends heavily on oil income for the foreign reserves it needs to make its debt payments.

Based on those talks, Silva Herzog announced Mexico would seek $6 billion in new aid this year from international financial organizations but would not immediately solicit emergency bank loans.

Mexico is due this year to pay $10 billion in interest costs and $2.5 billion on the principal of its foreign debt, second highest in the developing world.

Silva Herzog is also to continue talks begun last week with Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, World Bank President A.W. Clausen and International Monetary Fund Director Jacques de Larosiere, according to the news agency Notimex.

A group of Mexican financial officials is already in Washington for talks on getting new credits.

Marketing committee set up to attract atom smasher

From Staff Reports

A marketing committee has been established for the purpose of promoting a specific site in West Texas for the Superconducting Super Collider project.

Known as the SSC or "atom smasher" project, it is one which the U.S. Department of Energy would like to see instituted, but has not been authorized or funded up to this time. A total of 22 states and several sites in Texas are vying for the opportunity to have the SSC project in their area.

A steering committee promoting a site just south of Garden City in midland, Glasscock, Upton and Reagan counties has been operating steadily for the last three months. Recently, a subcommittee charged with putting together a written proposal for this site was formed, including representatives from Big Spring, Midland, Odessa and San Angelo. The group hopes to have a final written proposal to submit to the Reagan administration and the Department of Energy within the next three months, and Zachry Associates of Abilene has been retained to assist the Committee in its efforts.

Under the auspices of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, these four cities have pledged support in order for geological surveys to be made and a written proposal to be finalized. The proposal will include quality of life factors for these cities in West Texas, as well as answer specific criteria set up by the SSC Central Design Group for the project, should it be built.

"Now the hard work really begins," stated Joe Kloesel of Midland, chairman of the marketing committee. "The next several weeks will be spent gathering information and pulling it into a cohesive selling proposal" stated Kloesel, a member of the original steering committee and the past president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. "We hope our chances are good, but the opportunity of attracting this facility and this kind of research to West Texas is too important an opportunity to let pass by."

Eastern Airlines plans to call back 1,010 furloughed flight attendants

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines, which has record bookings after it cut fares, will recall laid-off flight attendants, give them a raise and hire more, the company said.

The nation's third-largest carrier, which has agreed to a $676 million buyout by cost-cutting Texas Air Corp., laid off 1,010 flight attendants Feb. 4 during contract negotiations with the Transport Workers Union.

By April 1, all the laid-off flight attendants who want to return will have jobs, and 735 have said they would return, Eastern President Joe Leonard said Wednesday.

He said the company also would begin recruiting new flight attendants.

Eastern is reporting record bookings from its campaign to lure back passengers who stayed away for fear of a strike during bitter negotiations between the carrier and its flight attendants and pilots.

Eastern's 4,200 pilots agreed to a 20 percent pay cut and more flying hours.

Eastern spokesman Jerry Cosley said the pilots' agreement and the tentative contract with flight attendants means the airline gets more use out of its fleet, flying some planes as much as eight additional hours a day.

The furloughed flight attendants were the most junior of the Eastern workforce and, under the TWU contract that expired Jan. 20, were paid lower wages than so-called regular flight attendants, said TWU spokesman David Butler.

Under Friday's TWU settlement, the furloughed attendants will be paid the regular scale when they return, in effect a 5 percent raise. The senior flight attendants, however, took a 2 percent pay cut under the new contract, which made a temporary 18 percent cut into a permanent 20 percent one.

Under the tentative, three-year pact, new flight attendants hired after March 2 will be paid lower wages than the old junior scale, Butler said.

Also included in the contract are increased work hours, less vacation pay, a bonus program if Eastern turns a profit, about $11.5 million in back pay and settlement of a lawsuit that sought $33 million in back wages.

Butler said the settlement also requires Eastern to pay most of the union's approximately $250,000 legal bill stemming from lawsuit that challenged a 1983 wage investment program.

Eastern's three major unions filed separate lawsuits last year for resumption of their wages, but the machinists and pilots withdrew their lawsuits and after negotiations with the company restored their pay Jan. 1.

The settlement will give most Eastern flight attendants 6 percent of the gross income they had been scheduled to receive in 1985.

Diversified Land acquires overriding royalty interest

LOS ANGELES (SWN) Diversified Land & Exploration Co., a Los Angeles-based oil and gas exploration firm, has acquired a one percent overriding royalty interest in a 20 well development drilling program on the north end of the Hugoton and Panoma gas fields in southwestern Kansas.

The company acquired its interest under 12,800 acre block in Kearny County, Kan. The Hugoton field is the largest dry gas field in the United States, producing from the Chase formation of Permian age.

The Hugoton field has produced in excess of 54.7 trillion cubic feet of gas. It is estimated that the ultimate recovery will be in excess of 70 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Accumulative production of 54.7 trillion cubic feet of gas calculates to be an average recovery of 4.6 billion cubic feet of gas per 640 acre unit. The estimated ultimate recovery is 70 trillion cubic feet of gas, calculates to be an average recovery of 5.8 billion cubic feet per 640 acre unit.

The Panoma field produces from the Council Grove formation of the Permian. In addition the limestone of the Lansing-Kansas City and Marmaton formations of the Pennsylvanian age of limestone of Mississippian age, and sandstones of the Morrow of Pennsylvanian age all produce oil in this area.

Oil recoveries range between 50,000 and 150,000 barrels per well. Acccording to Fred Luke, president of Diversified, the likelihood exists that the wells in the North Hugoton prospect will average ultimate gas recoveries exceeding one billion cubic feet of gas per well and optimistically the better wells could approach three billion cubic feet of gas per well.

Luke said, "Despite our small interest, we expect this program will make significant additions to our reserves." Diversified Land & Exploration is a natural resources company with operations in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

Diamond Shamrock lays off 5 percent of workforce

DALLAS (AP) — Buffeted by a continuing plunge in worldwide oil prices, Diamond Shamrock Corp. will lay off 600 employees and consider selling its chemicals and coal subsidiaries, company officials say.

Those moves, part of a series of corporate streamlining maneuvers, are designed to give the Dallas-based company a "more focused emphasis on oil and gas," William H. Bricker, chairman and chief executive officer, said Tuesday.

Diamond Shamrock has not decided which of its 11,500 workers — about 800 of whom are in the Dallas area — will be laid off by the May 1 deadline, company spokeswoman Ginger Shearburn said. According to a company spokesman, there are only 15 Diamond Shamrock employees in the Permian Basin.

"This is corporate-wide. It's across the board. We're centralizing staff functions," she said, "from top to bottom."

The company said it will consider selling Diamond Shamrock Chemicals Co. in Irving and Diamond Shamrock Coal Co. in Lexington, Ky. The two have assets valued at about $1 billion and employ 5,900 people worldwide.

"Although our chemicals and coal businesses are solidly profitable, they are not consistent with this more focused emphasis on oil and gas," Bricker said in a statement.

Bruce Lazier, an analyst who followed Diamond Shamrock for Prescott, Ball & Turben in Cleveland, said the divisions' sale would give the company a "war chest" to pay off debts and eventually acquire new oil and natural gas reserves.

"I think they're making the right decision," Lazier told The Dallas Morning News. "It's not a very popular one ... but in this case I think it will be viewed favorably. They are putting themselves in a very strong financial situation and they are concentrating."

Part of that streamlining will mean consolidating its two Dallas-based subsidiaries responsible for domestic and international exploration, the company said.

Introducing Briercroft's new TaxBreak CD.

You hear a lot of talk about tax reform these days. But that's all it is. A lot of talk.

Briercroft Savings has actually done something about it. We came up with a one-year CD that can defer your taxes on the interest earned. We call it the TaxBreak CD.

Here's how it works.

Deposit as little as $500 in a TaxBreak CD. Then wait. For one year.

When a year's up, you collect your interest in one lump sum. Only at that time are you liable for taxes on the interest earned.

If you'd like to take a break from paying taxes on your interest earned this year, and who wouldn't, sign up for Briercroft's all-new TaxBreak CD.

FOCUS on BUSINESS

Eyeing 'em up

An inventor holds a model of a hemoglobin molecule monitored by an IBM PC Computer AT.

Employees at more than 300 companies nationwide are submitting their eyeballs to electronic scrutiny.

At these companies, the retinal scanning device has replaced the time card. In less than one second, a device, made by Eye-Dentify, Inc., of Beaverton, Oregon, reads the blood vessel patterns in the retina — the light sensitive membrane lining the inner eyeball — and compares taht reading with a copy of the employee's retina scan stored in its data base on a memory chip base.

According to company officials, no two people in the world have the same retinal pattern, not even twins, so people can't get their buddies to closk them in.

Replacing the traditional time card with the retinal scanner can help employers solve the problem of time theft.

Bone mending

A new medical technique uses electric current to heal badly fractured bones. The therapy has sent racehorses with minor but painful injuries galloping back to the track within weeks. For humans the healing takes longer, but the procedure can be done at home. Insurance companies, cracking down on medical costs, increasinly see electric bone-mending as preferable to extensive surgery and hospitilization.

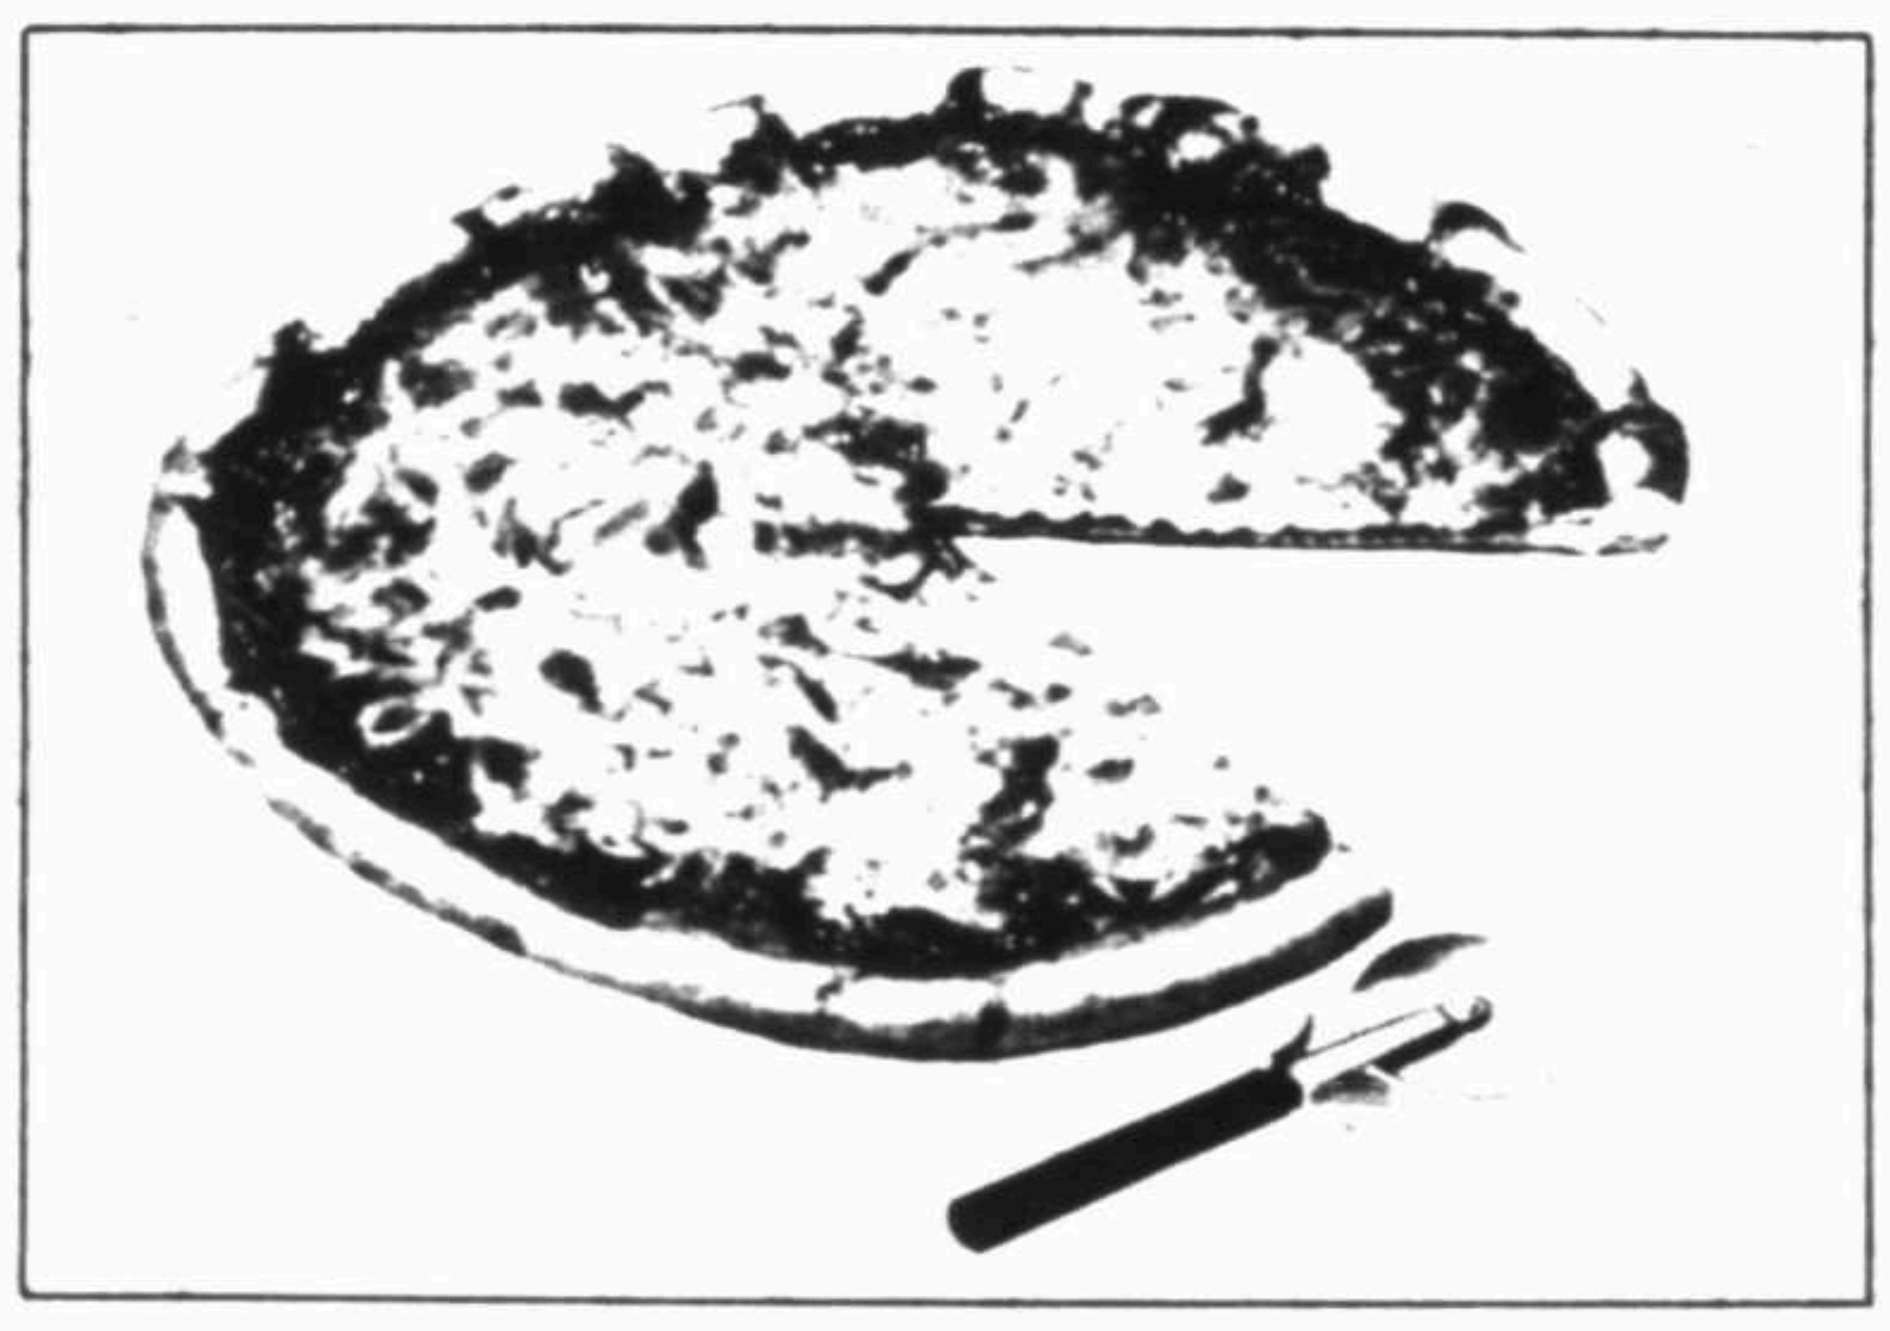
Electric treatment sends pulsed low-energy magnetic waves into the bone to mimic the body's signals. The damaged bone cells then heal normally.

Atom watching

Scientists using the world's most powerful microscope will soon get their first look at individual atoms found in living cells and other materials.

Using a Scanning Transmission Electron Microscope (STEM), the digitized images of atoms dancing in celestial innerspace will be viewed on the screen of an IBM Personal Computer AT and photographed. STEM inventor Albert V. Crewe believes that peering at molecules found in earthworm hemoglobin or at atoms spinning in specks of gold will ultimately lead to advances in virtually every field, from medicine to materials science.

STEM will be able to capture images of individual atoms half an Angstrom in size.



Scientists are using pizza and other staples of the American diet to study diets.

Diet patrol

The scientist pulls a slice of pizza out of a freezer and drops it into a large blender.

He does the same with frozen samples of cooked steak, french fries, spinach, eggs and other staples of the American diet. Even water. Tossing in some "cocktail" made of whiskey, beer and other commonly consumed beverages, he revs up the blender and the blades start whirring.

The resulting creamy broth is a research "recipe": an accurate composite that represents the average daily food intake of a 25- to 30-year old adult male in this country. About 3,075 grams — roughly 15 coffee cups full — make up this portion. At this point, the 201 different foods that make up breakfast, lunch and dinner are now a scientific material that will be freeze-dried, then studied and studied again.

Settlement reached in strike against can manufacturers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 16-day strike by the United Steelworkers against four of the nation's largest can manufacturers was settled and work has resumed, but contract talks continued with Canada's largest can maker, a union official said.

The settlements include a wage freeze and two-tiered wage scale slanted against new employees. The union preserved cost of living bonuses and vacation schedules and won improved pension benefits, said Leon Lynch, a United Steelworkers vice president and negotiating leader.

"Picket lines are down all over the U.S.A., and all those who were scheduled to work last night and today were urged to return," Lynch said today.

Analysts had said shortages would develop in the beer and soft drink industries if the strike lasted much longer.

With a single 90-12 vote, Lynch said, the union's container industry conference ratified three-year pacts late Tuesday with Continental Can Corp. of Stamford, Conn.; American Can Co. of Greenwich, Conn.; National Can Corp. of Chicago; and Crown Cork and Seal Co. of Philadelphia.

The offers from the four companies "don't differ in any significant ways. That's why the one vote that was taken by the conference was the ratifying vote for all four U.S. companies," Lynch said.

The conference includes chairmen of the negotiating teams assigned to individual companies and the presidents of about 85 union locals in the United States and Canada. Their decision is binding on the union members.

The agreement covers about 6,000 workers at Continental of Connecticut, 4,500 at American, 2,500 at National and 600 workers at Crown Cork and Seal.

Union members walked out against the four U.S. companies Feb. 17, and 1,850 workers began picketing Continental Can of Canada Ltd. three days later after a three-day wait required by Canadian law.

Lynch said union negotiators would seek an offer from the Canadian company that is worth at least as much as the packages accepted from the U.S. manufacturers.

"As a matter of fact, we're demanding more because it is the most profitable of the companies," he said.

He said the major provisions are:

— Twenty percent lower wages for new hires for the first two years of their employment.

"It really isn't 20 percent ... because new hires are entitled to 100 percent cost of living participation. It's estimated that at least 5 percent will be generated from COLA. If that happens, the difference would be around 15 percent," Lynch said.

— No wage increases, but a bonus of $400 in the first year, payable on return to work; a $300 bonus the second year and another $300 bonus the third year.

— Retention of cost of living increases, which the company previously had asked to eliminate.

— An increase in pension fund benefits of $3 per month per year of service, payable to current employees and those who retired in 1984 and 1985;

— A cost containment program for health coverage and the addition of hospice care for terminally ill employees.

Japanese firms invited to rent space in Japanese development

AUSTIN (AP) — Japanese business firms will be invited to occupy space in the $8.3 million office building being constructed by the first Japan-based firm to develop a real estate project in Austin.

A delegation of officials from Sumitomo Construction Co., headquartered in Tokyo, and the Austin Chamber of Commerce on Monday broke ground for the building, which is expected to be completed in about a year.

The five-story Town Lake Center is on 2.4 acres just south of downtown Austin near Town Lake.

Owners of the project will be Sumiken Real Estate Co., a Sumitomo subsidiary, and Sumico Development, a subsidiary of Belco Equities of California.

Sumiken Chairman Takesada Hori said the Japanese developer is optimistic about the site, across a street from the Palmer Municipal Auditorium. Hori said his company is looking toward doing different kinds of projects in Austin over the next few years.

"This is the first investment," Hori said. "We want to expand here into land development and housing if it is feasible. We do all kinds of business."

Sumitomo executives said they do not have formal agreements from Japanese companies to lease space in the new building, but plan to lease space to both Japanese companies coming to Austin and to American tenants.

Last June, an Austin-San Antonio delegation visited Japan to promote Central Texas. Since then, five Japanese delegations totaling more than 120 government and business executives have visited the two Texas cities.

A delegation from the Keidanren, Japan's most influential business group, is expected to arrive this month.

Another Japanese development firm, Kumagaai Guni Co. of Tokyo, has announced plans to build a $125 million hotel-office-retail project in downtown Austin.

Recent-issue bonds available to all, not just 'big boys'

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I was interested in buying some bonds of a big corporation for which bid and asked prices had appeared in a financial publication for a number of days under the heading "Prices of Recent Issues."

I called my broker and he told me these bonds were not on the market yet. Are such bonds just for the "big boys"? Do they remain unavailable to ordinary investors as long as they are listed as recent issues?

Doyle

A. I'd like to think you misunderstood your broker. If he said what you say he did, he either doesn't know his business or was giving you a snow job.

Recently issued bonds and stocks most certainly are "on the market" and can be bought and sold, just as securities that have been around for years can be traded.

Here's how a new issue of corporate securities comes to market.

The corporation sells the entire issue to a group of brokerage firms acting as "underwriters." The underwriters then offer the securities for sale to investors at a slightly higher price. The markup between the two prices is the underwriters' profit, assuming the entire issue is sold at the higher price.

Underwriters naturally attempt to sell new issues to large institutional investors — the "big boys" you mention. But they also offer new issues to their other customers.

As soon as even part of a new issue has been purchased by investors, those buyers can — and often do — sell. The newly issued bond or stock trades in the marketplace. Anybody can buy it.

It may be that your broker's firm was not part of the underwriting syndicate or selling group handling the new issue of bonds you wanted to buy. But your broker should have been able to purchase some of those bonds for you in what's called "after market" or "secondary trading."

• • •

Q. Who fixes the bid and asked prices on recently issued securities?

A. That depends on whether or not the new issue was a sellout. If the securities are still "in syndicate," meaning the underwriting brokerage houses handling the initial offering have not completed the sale, the underwriters normally attempt to stabilize the price by bidding to buy just a smidgen below the offering price.

After the new issue is all sold, "goes out the window," in Wall Street parlance, or the underwriting syndicate is dissolved because all of the new issue could not be sold at the offering price, prices are set by the marketplace — buying demand and selling pressure.

The "bid" is the price at which securities dealers "making a market" in the particular security are willing to buy. The higher "asked" is the price at which those dealers are willing to sell.

But don't count on being able to buy at exactly the asked price or sell at precisely the bid price. Those are "inside prices" at which securities dealers trade with one another.

The public often buys at a price marked up from the bid and sells at a price marked down from the asked.

• • •

Q. The brokerage firm through which I occasionally buy and sell stock advertised a new issue of stock for sale, at $24 a share. I called my broker and said I wanted to buy 100 shares at that price. He said the new issue was all sold and I would have to pay a higher price to buy that stock. Isn't this a rip off?

A. No. When a new issue is to be sold, the brokerage firms acting as underwriters usually get "indications of interest" from big institutional investors and other good customers, even before the offering becomes effective. In effect, they pre-sell the issue.

At least, they try to. If they can't sell the entire issue that way, the brokers get on the phone and call their other customers.

However, small customers often don't get a crack at a new issue at the initial offering price.

Former Gov. Bill Clements, a candidate for the GOP nomination for governor, addresses members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

Clements calls for budget cuts over tax hike

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

> "I understand the petroleum industry. I know you're having difficult times, but we'll come out of this. There are solutions to these problems...There are ample revenues. We don't need any new taxes."
> — Bill Clements

Advocating budget cuts over tax increases, Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements drew thunderous applause from Downtown Lions Club members on Wednesday as he wound up a two-day campaign swing through Midland.

Clements blamed the state's present budget crisis on reckless spending and vowed not to increase taxes or fees if elected governor.

"We don't need any new taxes. We need to cut the cloth to fit the pattern," Clements said Wednesday during an afternoon luncheon.

Clements, who served as governor from 1979 to 1983 until his defeat by Gov. Mark White, took a non-partisan approach as he addressed concerns including education reform, a balanced state budget and import fees on crude oil and refined products.

"It's entirely appropriate for us in 1986 — our Sesquicentennial year — to take a long hard look at where we are in Texas," Clements said.

To see Texas tomorrow, Clements said it's imperative that Texans understand where they are today.

"I find it more productive to not look back, but rather look at where we are today," Clements said.

Clements said he sympathizes with the state's oil and gas, real estate, financial, agricultural and high tech industries who are facing economic hardships.

"I understand the petroleum industry. I know you're having difficult times, but we'll come out of this," he said. "There are solutions to these problems."

Clements said the state budget is at an all-time high of $18.6 billion per year, and can be cut. In addition, state revenues are up 41 percent under the current administration.

"There are ample revenues. We don't need any new taxes," he said.

Clements also advocated an import fee on crude oil and refined products, claiming that the United States' dependency on foreign oil "makes us vulnerable from a national security standpoint."

Clements called the no-pass, no-play issue a "sports page cliche" associated with House Bill 72, but that the concept is an honest effort to improve the quality of education for children.

"We want quality education in our high schools and I think we ought to pass if we're going to participate," he said. "but the six weeks are too long."

Clements said House Bill 72 — like other pieces of legislation — should be fine-tuned.

"We need to address the teacher career ladder that's not being fully funded, discipline in the classroom that's being diluted, and the school board's accountability that's being diluted.

"It's wrong and we need to give the responsibility of educating our children back to our local school boards," he said.

Teachers call Clements' claim 'hogwash'

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Former Gov. Bill Clements' campaign Wednesday stood by its televised claim that teachers' salaries increased 49 percent under his administration in the face of a counterclaim that the figure is "hogwash."

"Teachers did receive pay raises in Texas during the time Clements lived in the governor's mansion, but not 49 percent," John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, told reporters. "Neither were the pay raises due to Clements' work on behalf of teachers. Indeed virtually every dime appropriated by the Legislature for teachers' salaries came despite protests — and occasionally over the threat of a veto — from Governor Clements."

Gainor Eisenlohr, spokeswoman for the Clements campaign, backed the claims made in a recent Clements TV advertisement by pointing to figures supplied by the Texas Education Agency. Those numbers show average annual salaries increased from $13,037 when Clements took office to $19,550 when he left, a 49.95-percent increase. A similar comparison shows a 24.88-percent boost under the three years of White's administration.

Under questioning from reporters, Cole conceded that point. But he went on to say that the state-paid portion of the salaries increased just 30.08 percent under Clements, compared to 36.81 percent under White.

"Local taxes went sky-high" to support the remainder of the pay raise that Clements is claiming, Cole said.

Adjusting the figures for "the most rampant inflation experienced in America during this century," he added, shows average teacher pay increased 1.09 percent under Clements, while the state-paid portion actually declined 12.08 percent. Comparable figures for White show an 8.79-percent average salary hike and a 21.88-percent increase in the state's share.

In summer 1984, White backed the largest tax increase in state history, much of which went to teacher pay, other educational reforms and high-

Fear, anger expressed over eye clinic

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

The expansion of an Odessa eye clinic into the Midland and Big Spring markets has been met with both anger and nonchalance by area ophthalmologists.

Fears that addition of local versions of the Sheets-Tolia and Associates Eye Center will drain patients from the two cities into Odessa and the eventual demise of the solo eye practitioner have been expressed by some.

"I don't mean to put down Sheets because I've cooperated with him over the years, but it will disrupt me to some degree," said Dr. Ralph Berry, a longtime Midland ophthalmologist. "These satellite offices tend to drain patients into the parent center."

Berry said he has prepared for the clinic's opening by closing down his Illinois Street office and opening an emergency eye center at 1200 Andrews Highway "in defense."

"It's quite likely that the larger groups like these clinics will survive at the expense of the solo practitioner," he said. "I'm talking about the near future. The individual physician will be forced into a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) or a Preferred Physician's Organization (PPO) — a group of physicians banded together."

Both Berry and another local ophthalmologist agree the coming of group eye clinics to Midland will mean a drop in eye surgeries performed at Midland Memorial Hospital and Physicians and Surgeons Hospital.

"This will definitely take away from MMH and P&S for surgery," said Dr. James Arrington. "I don't think it will destroy the individual ophthalmologist though. I don't think that we're going to lose patients."

Another ophthalmologist, Dr. T.J. Grosev said Sheets' decision to open the Midland office "would affect every ophthalmologist in town."

Berry explained that Medicare's system of reimbursing hospitals and physicians for costs — chiefly DRGs (Diagnosis Related Groups), a list of 400-plus medical conditions that have been given a "price" — will play into the hands of group clinics.

"DRGs are in favor of outpatient surgery," he said. "These clinics are able to function without having to go through DRGs."

Some participants cut from food program

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

About 2,600 Permian Basin women and their children will no longer have access to formula, eggs and other nutritional foods provided by a federal program to improve the health of low income families.

"It's a drastic cut. It's obvious if we're not getting the infants on the program, there will be a significant number of health problems," said Rhonda Gage, director for the Permian Basin Women, Infants and Children program.

The Permian Basin slot load of 6,000 participants was cut two weeks ago to 3,400, Ms. Gage said.

However, the program's 6,000 slot load had not been filled when the cuts came. About 4,100 women and their children are receiving aid in a 17-county area around Midland.

Seventy-two participants have been cut from the program in the past two weeks and 700 more will be taken off the program in the next two months, Ms. Gage said.

"They have not been angry. They've just been very hurt. We've had a lot of people cry. It's so sad.

"They just cry and ask 'what am I going to do now,'" Ms. Gage said.

Newborns to women on the program usually receive rations. However, no newborns will be added to the program in April, Ms. Gage said.

"The new infants won't be getting any formula from us," she said.

If women are pregnant they receive aid until six weeks after they have given birth. Women who are breastfeeding receive food for up to one year and women who have just given birth, but are not breastfeeding, can receive aid for six months.

Along with aid cuts, portions of some foods are also being reduced. Eggs will not be given out in April and the juice allocations will be reduced by one-third, Ms. Gage said.

MISD trustee candidates may continue to file until April 2

By JULIE HILLRICHS
and RON GILMORE
Staff Writers

Midland County hospital, school and college candidates, who met the Wednesday filing deadline for the April 5 election, are readying for contested races for various at-large positions.

Midland Independent School District officials are proceeding with plans to hold an election for two trustee postions on May 3. At the same time, trustees are pursuing an appeal of U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's order to switch from the at-large system to a single-member district system.

Candidates for the MISD election may file in the MISD business office at 702 N. N St. through April 2.

In the Greenwood Independent School District race, two candidates are vying for one at-large position on the board of trustees.

Incumbent Archie Blackwell is being challenged by Pete Wilkinson in a race for Place 2 on the board.

Greenwood resident Vicky Moody is unopposed for election to Place 1. Incumbent John Underwood chose not to seek re-election for personal reasons, he said.

The 'man-woman' chase no simple matter

Aging and mating are so pervasive.

I've no copyright on either, contrary to my selfish antasy.

I was reminded of that by a lady friend who is coming up on 39 again. She lamented: "I'll never get maried again. Men want younger women. They're marryng younger women."

To her right now, there's none older among her competition." Besides, she cried, the statistics are gainst her. More women are "out there" competing for ates and security than there are men — eligible and ot so secure.

I told her not to give up on herself; I haven't. If you new this gal, you'd know that she really doesn't have ny competition.

She's the sage who's the perennial friend. You know, always a friend, never a lover. Maybe never should be rarely or not always.

She's an adventuresome, exciting, intelligent and inquiring individualist who sets her own pace. I suspect that she would lead the pack were she running in concert. She, as a loving friend, would never forget you. You would thrill to backpack, camp out, hole up, or travel with this friendly gal. She's vibrant and comely. Never a drag.

Of course, I've never lived with her, either. But I can't imagine her being in the least bit boring. I would just leave her space to modify her own world and to create whatever havoc pleased her. I'd step aside and not be an inhibiting factor.

So, I'll salute her independence and hope she finds happiness living solo or with a mate. If one tends to dominate and rule over another, problems could be brewing in River City — unless the one being sat on objects.

The "problem" in living with a mate is side-stepping inhibition and avoiding a dilution of individualism — character. I should know; I've had mate problems — both aired and suppressed — most of my married life, which has been 16 years of my 39-plus years on Earth. I gave each of them the old college try, then thrice went to divorce court with varying degrees of humility. Enough is enough.

My friend will do fine "in love" or out of the mercurial state. I reckon that she will live an adventuresome life either way. Why not? She's charmingly independent.

Now, what about the man scanning the horizon for a woman? Is he looking for unexplored and unexploited worlds? Must his mate always be younger? Must he afford the security traditionally associated with an older man?

The man-woman hunt is no simple matter. The idea of "the chase" is exciting; but the reality of the "kill" is so sobering that I would be inclined to give flight. And today I have no consuming desire to get into the combat zone from which there may be no retreat.

Yes, darling, the yearning is there, but I'm learning to not be consumed by passion and desire.

CLINIC

Sheets-Tolia, however, stated they have applied for hospital privileges at MMH and "probably will apply at P&S." P&S President Dick Liley said the group had already applied.

Arrington acknowledged the group indicated they would be bringing more surgery to local hospitals but added "just because they have hospital privileges doesn't mean they have to use them."

Even Sheets admits that some patients may go to Odessa for treatment.

"I'm sure that there will be some surgeries done in Odessa," he said. "We are going to let the patient decide where they want the surgery done. We won't dictate it. We have worked with the medical community in Midland for years and years and we think that the new clinic will work out best for everyone involved."

Sheets-Tolia downplayed any concern over their new offices.

"We have a very large number of active patient files (20,000) and a very large area from which we draw patients," said Don Nichols, a spokesman. "What people don't realize is that Dr. Sheets is probably considered one of the world's leading cataract surgeons. He has developed one of the two intraocular lenses approved by the Food and Drug Administration."

Nichols added the clinic's and physicians' reputations bring in patients from all over the world.

"Both he and Dr. Tolia are national speakers and have won national awards," he said. "We have patients coming in from Europe and from all over the country. We're one of the largest eye clinics in this country.

"We do hundreds of operations a month," he continued. "I don't think that people realize the magnitude of our reputation. Approximately 75 percent of out-patients come from outside the Midland-Odessa area."

Arrington, however, questioned Sheets' international standing.

"I don't think he has a world reputation," said Arrington. "The American Academy of Ophthalmologists has very real rules about those things. It's something their ethics committee is jumping on. They're trying to crack down on people making claims that may not necessarily be true."

While the majority of Sheets-Tolia's patients are not from the immediate area, the clinic said there are enough patients seeking treatment from Midland to warrant opening an office here.

"We have a number of patients from Midland already who come over to Odessa," said Nichols. "The reason we're coming to Midland is because the population supports it."

Nichols referred to a recent market survey he conducted which proves the need.

"The number of patients we have from Midland warrants an office here. Our patient load there is proportionate to other communities."

While Berry opposes the new office, he also acknowledges that group clinics are a part of the changing medical environment.

"I'm not against this idea — I almost joined a clinic myself a year ago," he said. "It's a competitive field. But if others can sell more services it will mean less patient population at MMH and P&S."

Selling more services is just one advantage the group clinic has over the solo practitioner, indicated Berry.

"I was in a meeting in Dallas a few weeks ago where physicians from Houston and Dallas said their practice was 30 to 50 percent less because they were trying to compete with clinics that had 12 or 13 physicians.

"These clinics can afford more elaborate and expensive equipment than the solo practitioner can provide," he added.

Berry compared Sheets-Tolia's expansion with that of a Dallas group.

"In the Dallas area, the Dallas Eye Institute functions as an ambulatory surgical center which offers cataract surgery. They've developed satellite clinics in a surrounding area of about 100 miles."

Berry added the phenomenon is occurring all over the state.

"There are doctors in Houston, Corpus Christi, Plano, Nacogdoches, Weatherford, Denison — all solo practitioners — who are competing with large groups and experiencing a marked reduction in surgery," he said. "This is my frank opinion. The ultimate result is that patients will be drained to Odessa."

A Big Spring physician, however, was unconcerned about the opening of Sheets clinic in his community.

"Frankly, it would be no more of a concern than if another doctor moved into town," said the ophthalmologist, who asked not to be named. "I could care less. It's a free enterprise system and a free world. I have great respect for Sheets.

"Besides, people don't just pack up and go to another doctor just because someone new comes to town," he added. "I am sure Sheets will find his niche in Big Spring."

Arrington, however, believes that Big Spring ophthalmologists may be more affected than those in Midland.

"In Midland, we have a real transient patient population," he said. "In Big Spring, they're not as mobile and new physicians coming in could take patients away leaving them with very few new patients to replace them."

While ophthalmologists react in various ways to the introduction of group ophthalmology in Midland, Sheets-Tolia is adamant in downplaying their effect on solo practitioners.

"We're not here to steal customers," said Nichols. "This is not being done to take markets away from the Midland physicians."

Sheets-Tolia have indicated a tentative opening date of April 1 for both the Midland and Big Spring offices. Four to five physicians from the clinic have applied for local hospital privileges.

ELECTIONS

The race for three vacant seats on the Midland Junior College District Board of Trustees will include a contested race for one incumbent board member.

Incumbent John Cooper, a long-time member of the board of trustees, will be challenged by Hugh G. White for Place 3 seat.

Former Midland College President Al. G. Langford will seek election to Place 1. He is being challenged by Steve A. Kiser.

Long-time MC trustee Fred Wright is running unopposed for the Place 2 seat.

While mayoral, city and MISD races have gained much public attention, the run for two vacant seats on the Midland County Hospital District Board of Directors remains an uncontested issue.

Pat Estes, long-time MCHD member, will be running again for her position. She currently is the only female member of the board and is MCHD secretary.

Tevis Herd, president of the Board of Directors and former Board of Trustees member for Midland Memorial Hospital, announced recently that he would not be running for the position again, stating that 12 years on hospital boards was enough.

One newcomer to the Board of Directors race announced her decision to run two weeks ago. Margaret Purvis, a long-time member of the MMH Board of Trustees and an active supporter of Allison Cancer Center, will be vying for the open seat vacated by Herd.

FOOD

The cuts come at a bad time for many Permian Basin women, who have been forced to go to the program after their husbands have lost jobs.

"We're now seeing quite a few people coming in who have just lost their jobs. The womens' husbands have lost work," Ms. Gage said.

One-fourth of the WIC clients have never asked for help before, she said.

The list to get on the program continues to grow with 600 from Midland and 2,000 from Odessa waiting to receive aid, Ms. Gage said. Those on the lists will have to wait for existing slots to open up, she said.

Around the state about 26,000 women and their children are expected to be dropped from the food program due to cuts to the federal Special Supplemental Food Program For Women, Infants and Children. The federal money is administered by the Texas Department of Health.

"I think if they're going to cut any program, they need to cut any program besides WIC. I'm very upset," Ms. Gage said.

WIC attempts to improve the nutrition and health of low income mothers and their young children through educational programs and free rations of iron-fortified formula, cereal, cheese, juice and eggs. Along with income qualifications, the women and their children must show health and nutritional problems such as anemia, slow growth or a poor diet.

Low risk 3-and 4-year-olds with inadequate diets will be cut from the program first, Ms. Gage said.

The long run costs of the cuts will result in more health problems including, "...Anemia because they won't be getting the sufficient iron they need and inadequate growth from a lack of calories," Ms. Gage said.

Prisoner tries to hang himself

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 32-year-old man remained under observation in the mental ward at Medical Center Hospital today after attempting to commit suicide in the Odessa city jail last night.

According to police spokesman Frank Beam, Paul A. Long, 1307 Castle Road, was arrested around 5:30 p.m. Wednesday after he was observed speeding at the intersection of East University Blvd. and Tanglewood on the city's northeast side.

Long was finally stopped by officers in the 2900-block of Beechwood. He was cited for exhibition of acceleration, having no driver's license and placed under arrest.

Beam said officers reported Long attempted to kick out the rear window of the patrol unit and threatened an officer with bodily harm while being taken to jail.

Long was booked into the city jail on two traffic charges, one charge of criminal mischief in connection with trying to kick out the patrol unit window and one felony charge of retaliation because of threats made against a police officer.

Shortly after being placed in a cell, another prisoner alerted jailers who found Long hanging on a rope braided from torn strips of a mattress cover. He was cut down by jailers and transported to Medical Center Hospital, then placed in the hospital's mental unit under a protective custody order for observation.

way projects. Cole's group is the only one of the four major teacher groups to stick with White and back the public school changes contained in House Bill 72. White has made the education reforms his campaign theme.

"The Texas Federation of Teachers is a union, they are pro-union and they are pro-Mark White," Ms. Eisenlohr said. "These people are just after Bill Clements. They've never been for him."

Cole said his group has not endorsed White's re-election bid. His top aide accompanied White and mingled with the governor's staff when he travelled to a Houston school room to kick off his campaign in January.

Answering Cole's claims that the Legislature passed teacher pay raises over Clements' objection, Ms. Eisenlohr said, "If he had been opposed, he would have vetoed it."

Clements served as governor from 1978 to 1983. In 1982 White, a Democrat, upset Clements with the strong backing of Texas teachers. One of his campaign promises was a 24-percent salary increase for teachers.

Two New Mexico men in critical condition after traffic accident

From Staff Reports

Two New Mexico men were listed in critical condition this morning in Odessa Medical Center Hospital after a Wednesday-night traffic accident, according to hospital and Department of Public Safety reports.

Michael Greer, 19, of Livingston, N.M., suffered a broken arm and head injuries after losing control of a 1984 Chevrolet pickup about 11:05 p.m. on 16th Street about three miles west of Odessa, reports said.

His passenger, 21-year-old Michael Peacock, also of Livingston, N.M., suffered abdominal injuries. Both were being treated in the intensive-care unit this morning, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The two men were thrown from the pickup after it hit a ditch and flew up into the air, according to DPS reports. Neither man was wearing a seatbelt.

In other reports, a house at 2306 W. Storey was damaged Wednesday morning by a fire that was probably started by a bathroom wall heater, according to Midland fire reports.

The fire in the house belonging to Cam Wiseman was reported at 8:08 a.m. It caused heavy damage to the bathroom and hall, and heat-and-smoke damage to the rest of the house, reports said.

Another Wednesday fire, caused by an electrical short under the dashboard, destroyed a truck belonging to Jeffrey W. Leak, 2509 Gulf, fire reports said.

The fire was reported about 8 p.m. at a location on County Road 140 about a mile east of Midkiff Road. It was extinguished with about 250 gallons of water, reports said.

About $5,940 in currency was reported stolen by Miguel Angel Aguirre, 1608 Garden Lane. The money was taken by a man who entered Aguirre's home about 2 a.m. Wednesday, according to Sheriff's Office reports.

Karen C. Oliver, Route 7, Box 222, reported the theft of a $1,500 silver flute. The musical instrument was taken from 1400 N. A St. Tuesday, reports said.

A $400 videocassette recorder was among several items reported stolen by Pat A. Shores, 4402 W. Dengar. Also taken in the Wednesday burglary were a $75 telephone, a $70 television and a water jug full of pennies valued at about $210, reports said.

Ector among country's fastest-growing counties

Associated Press

Five of the 15 fastest-growing counties over the last five years are in Texas, including Ector County, according to a study by a division of Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

The study of counties with populations of over 100,000 by Donnelly Marketing Information Services showed that Fort Bend County, south of Houston, was the second-fastest growing county in the nation, up 50 percent to 195,742.

The fifth-fastest-growing county was Montgomery County, north of Houston, up 32.3 percent to 169,939; sixth was Collin County, north of Dallas, up 31 percent to 189,480; 11th was Ector County (Odessa), up 29.4 percent to 149,318; and 14th was Hidalgo County, in the Edinburg-McAllen area, up 26 percent to 355,582, the study said.

Part of telethon will be at ClayDesta

From Staff Reports

Saturday will mark the beginning of the annual Easter Seals Telethon on KOSA-TV, Channel 7. The telethon will begin at 10:30 p.m. on Saturday and will continue until 6 p.m., Sunday. The local beneficiary of the telethon is the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center that has facilities in both Midland and Odessa.

For the first time, a portion of the telethon will take place in Midland. A phone bank will be set up in the Telemarketing area of ClayDesta Communications. All phone pledges from Midland, as well as all long-distance pledges, will be received at ClayDesta. A VIP phone bank will take place from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on Sunday with Victoria Steele of KOSA as host.

In addition, the Atrium of ClayDesta National Bank will be the scene of "Pleasant Under Glass." The Atrium will be transformed into a park — complete with food and entertainment.

The Pickwick players of Midland Community Theater will be making special presentations geared for children every hour beginning at noon on Sunday. The play they will present is one that is to be presented in an upcoming competition.

Other activities will include Tommy the Clown, Benny T. and a live broadcast by KNFM Radio. All entertainment will be provided to the public free of charge.

Local venders will also be selling food items — hot dogs, nachos, soft drinks and popcorn. All proceeds from the sale of food will be donated to the Easter Seals Telethon. A fishbowl will also be located in the Atrium for donations.

This fund-raiser is the joint effort of several local companies. Albertson's, Coca-Cola of Midland, Coates and Campbell, Corley Paper and R.C. Easton have joined with KNFM Radio, Reynolds Bros. Reproduction, Taco Villa, Tall City Ice, Tommy the Clown, and the Clayton W. Williams, Jr. Companies to host the "Pleasant Under Glass" and the "Midland Telethon." All goods and services required for the Midland activities have been donated by these vendors so that all proceeds may be donated to the telethon.

The "Easter Seals Telethon" is a national event hosted in Los Vegas by Donna Mills and Pat Boone. Local hosts will be Lynn Leever, Jim Reese, Doug Olsen and Victoria Steele. More than ninety percent of local pledges will benefit the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center. The Center is open to anyone in West Texas who needs assistance.

World Day of Prayer to be held

From Staff Reports

World Day of Prayer, being celebrated for the 99th consecutive year, will be held at St. Nicholas Episcopal Church at 7:30 p.m. today.

"This year's theme 'Choose Life,' was suggested by Christian women of Australia and celebrates God's gift of creation and challenges Christians to respond in love," said a Church Women United spokesman.

Christians of all denominations will celebrate in 170 countries as an expression of the church universal.

CWU and the Midland Association of Churches, local sponsors, invite all who are interested to "participate in this expression of hope for a troubled world."

High-speed chase ends in death

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A high-speed chase from Midland to Odessa early today ended when the 34-year-old driver suffered fatal injuries after apparently losing control of his vehicle.

Midland police attempted to stop the man's car near the intersection of Bankhead Highway and Front Street around 3:30 a.m. today because the vehicle was traveling without lights.

The driver, whose name was not being released pending notification of next of kin, eluded officers and headed toward Odessa on U.S. Highway 80 with Midland police units in pursuit.

As speeds moved in excess of 100 mph, according to Odessa police spokesman Frank Beam, Midland police contacted Odessa police and asked for assistance.

The driver apparently saw Odessa police units as he approached the westside of East Loop 338, attempted to turn north, lost control of the vehicle and was thrown out as it rolled two or three times.

Beam said efforts to notify next of kin, as of mid-morning, had been unsuccessful.

Justice goes to peers in attempt to force his opponent off ballot

By JIM WARREN

STATE

AUSTIN — Texas Supreme Court Justice Jim Wallace went to his peers on the high court Wednesday, trying to force his sole opponent off the ballot.

Dallas appelate Judge Charles Ben Howell, a Republican, filed for two different seats on the Supreme Court, a violation of the state's Election Code, Wallace charged. Howell countersued, arguing Wallace improperly filled out his application for re-election.

An early morning fire in the Supreme Court Building forced the justices to meet in their historic chambers in the state Capitol for the first time since another fire rousted them in 1984.

Austin attorney Randall Buck Wood, who represented Democrat Wallace, said Howell first filed for Place 1 on the court, Justice Sears McGee position. Howell then filed a "conditional withdrawal" from the Place 1 race under the condition the GOP state Chairman George Strake would accept his application for Place 3, Wallace's seat.

Wood argued that by not completely taking himself out of the Place 1 race before filing for Place 3, he in effect filed for two offices, which is illegal. "He makes it explicit that that letter (of withdrawal) is good only if it's clear he can have his name appear as a candidate for Place 3," Wood told the court.

"His letter says, 'When Chairman Strake accepts my application then I withdraw.' " Wood said. "Anything but a complete withdrawal frustrates the intent" of the Election Code.

Howard Pattison, an Athens attorney representing Howell, said once a candidate files a withdrawal from a race, the candidate automatically is off the ballot. Pattison also argued that the all-Democratic court should recuse itself and the governor appoint a special panel to hear the case.

Wallace and McGee disqualified themselves from the case because of a conflict of interest.

Chief Justice John Hill assured Pattison the court will rule in a nonpartisan manner. Justice C.L. Ray said, "When we step up on the court, we leave our party affiliation behind."

The court must decide first if Howell is eligible to run for Place 3. If the court rules he cannot, it then must decide if he can run for Place 1. The court also must say whether Wallace filled out the application correctly and is eligible to seek re-election.

Pattison, a former Dallas and Henderson County Republican Party official, said after the arguments that Howell decided to change races because Wallace had no opponents from either party, and because Howell would receive the GOP nomination without contest.

El Paso lawyer says he's had it with 'rat race'

EL PASO (AP) — Many people may fantasize about it, but lawyer Dale McCleary may be the only one to have a judge grant a motion allowing him to officially withdraw from the legendary "rat race."

State Judge Sam Callan granted the motion, acknowleging that McCleary "has paid his dues and has enough points to qualify."

McCleary offered several reasons for his motion, filed last week after a good laugh with the judge.

McCleary said that as a lawyer he "has been through two county clerks and two district clerks, several county attorneys and an unmentionable number of municipal, county and district judges, not to mention qualified and unqualified justices of the peace."

McCleary, however, declined to use clients as an excuse to withdraw.

"When I presented it to (Callan)... he started laughing. He said to me, 'You know, Dale, your motion has merit, but I'm going to take it under advisement.' "

Tongue in cheek, the judge granted the motion Tuesday, McCleary said.

Asked what his plans are now that he doesn't belong to the rat race, McCleary said his fantasy is to get a boat and sail the islands.

"But I've got to stay here and work," he added.

Test results shouldn't have been evidence, ex-nurse's lawyer says

AUSTIN (AP) — Results of a drug-detecting test used to help convict Genene Jones of killing a baby should not have been allowed as evidence at her trial, the ex-nurse's attorney says.

Ms. Jones was convicted of injecting a powerful muscle relaxant into 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan of Kerrville on Sept. 17, 1982. The girl died after suffering mysterious seizures while in Ms. Jones' care.

The drug found in the girl's body — succinylcholine — is difficult to trace in human tissue. Prosecutors relied on a new test developed by Swedish toxicologist Dr. Bo Holmstedt.

Defense lawyer Laura Little told the 3rd Court of Appeals Wednesday, "We have no testimony as to the accuracy of this test to detect succinylcholine."

Experiments with the test had not been conducted on human tissue, only on rat tissue, and the test has not received "requisite acceptance in the scientific community," she said.

At the trial, Holmstedt had said his test had been considered "better than a fingerprint" in accuracy. Dr. Fredric Rieders of Philadelphia had traveled to Sweden to use Holmstedt's method to check for succinylcholine in the young girl's tissue.

Prosecutor Ron Sutton of Kerrville said the test results were "based upon reasonable scientific certainty." As to the lack of experiments on human tissue, he said, "You can't take someone and kill them with succinylcholine and then test the tissue."

The appeals court adjourned without indicating when it would rule, but it usually takes several weeks after oral arguments for a ruling.

Ms. Little contended trial judge John Carter of Georgetown had erred in refusing to allow jurors to consider conviction of a lesser offense, such as involuntary manslaughter.

A murder conviction requires that a defendant be found guilty of acting intentionally. An involuntary manslaughter conviction involves reckless, but not intentional, actions.

Sutton said the evidence showed Ms. Jones acted intentionally. He recited the history of problems at Dr. Kathleen Holland's Kerrville office, where Ms. Jones worked.

From Aug. 27 to Sept. 27, 1982, six children — including the McClellan girl — suffered unexplained seizures while in Ms. Jones' care. All had been brought to the office with relatively minor complaints, he said.

Chelsea was scheduled to receive routine immunizations, and the nurse gave the injection while the young girl was in her mother's arms.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A sense of humor helps you through a year filled with business challenges. Financial success is likely, however. Just remember, as you attempt to put your lofty ideals for mankind in to place, that not everyone sees the world as you do. Romance comes full circle, and for most this is a year of pleasure and joy. New friendships will abound. In the year ahead children will need more attention as they acquire their own sense of freedom. The future, not the past, is the key to your destiny.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: football's Billy Joe DuPree, auto racing's Janet Guthrie, actress Anna Magnani, actor Stephen Joyce.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress and tension could be affecting your health. Keep your mind off personal problems by plunging yourself into your work. A financial situation will demand your attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Try to combine business with pleasure today. Much can be accomplished by working at a steady pace. The direct approach is best when a sensitive situation presents itself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Vary work tasks in order to avoid mental fatigue. An exercise regime during your lunch hour will also help to relieve stress and tension. Keep information learned through unusual channels to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look forward with excitement to a fun-filled weekend. Do not neglect your professional responsibilities, however, as an influential person is evaluating your performance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Try to plan errands carefully in order to conserve time and money. Communication with your loved one is at an all-time high. Your mate will help you arrive at an important decision.

Just because a play looks natural doesn't mean that it is right. Before you play to the first trick, make sure you have drawn up a winning strategy.

The auction was straightforward. South described a balanced hand of 19-20 points, and North had enough to raise to game but no more.

West struck it lucky when he elected to lead a top-of-nothing spade rather than from his shabby four-card suit. The hand looked easy, so declarer wasted no time in covering with the ten of spades. He captured East's queen with the ace and took a losing club finesse. Back came a heart. Declarer still had only eight tricks, so he won the heart, cashed his club tricks ending in the dummy and tried the diamond finesse.

That, too, lost. West reverted to spades, and the defenders netted three spade tricks and the two minor-suit kings for a one-trick set. "Unlucky," muttered South.

Only partly true. While it was unfortunate to have both kings offside, declarer had only himself to blame for failing to make the contract. See what would happen if declarer plays low from dummy to the first trick and wins the ace.

When the diamond finesse loses, East cannot tackle spades without giving declarer his ninth trick. Assume he returns a heart. Declarer wins, crosses to dummy with a club and loses the diamond finesse. Now when West returns a spade, declarer covers with one of dummy's honors. The defenders can take only two spade tricks and the contract is safe.

Montana imposter uses quarterback sneak in end run around marriage

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A woman's plan for a Hawaiian honeymoon with Joe Montana were shattered by a San Francisco 49ers official who said her Montana wasn't the quarterback — who already is married and was visiting Indonesia.

Pamela Jones got the call from 49ers spokesman Jerry Walker Tuesday, one day after she was married to a man claiming to be Joseph Charles Montana.

The Rev. Bob Nelson of Southern Hills United Methodist Church, who officiated, said the groom told him, "I wouldn't want you to be embarrassed later, preacher. I am Joe Montana, the football player. The San Francisco 49ers' quarterback."

Nelson said he didn't believe the man at first.

"He didn't look big enough to play in the NFL. But he was so sincere. And he looked a little like Montana," he said, adding that Miss Jones kept telling him, " 'But he told me he was Joe, and he had the NFL jacket.' "

Telephone calls to the real Montana's hometown of Monongahela, Pa., and to the 49ers' office in Redwood City, Calif., showed the Montana here was phony, Nelson said. He called the couple and told them he wouldn't sign the marriage certificate — and therefore, they weren't married — without some answers.

Miss Jones remained unconvinced until Walker called and said the impostor may have been the man who showed up in Nashville recently, "walking around there wearing a Super Bowl jacket and telling people he was Joey."

The groom disappeared early Tuesday after promising Miss Jones he would "go downtown and get all this straightened out."

Reagan

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Global Media Ltd., organizers of an 11-hour-long anti-drug concert called "The Concert That Counts," said Wednesday they withdrew their request that the first lady participate.

Concert promoter Tony Vera said the White House staff had attempted to eliminate certain entertainers from the program. "We respect Mrs. Reagan's concern," Verna said, "But there will be no, I repeat, no prior censorship from the White House. Any attempt to sanitize the concert would have left a smell of disinfectant."

There had been considerable publicity from the organizers that Mrs. Reagan would lend her support. But the White House said Wednesday it was never in the plans for the first lady to attend. Concert organizers, who still haven't found a location for the massive event, estimate the concert could reach 2 billion people in 150 countries.

The April 26 telethon, which is designed to raise consciousness but not money, according to the organizers, ran into problems with the White House over concern about groups that had offensive lyrics in previously recorded songs.

Elaine Crispen, the first lady's press spokesman, said Mrs. Reagan never planned to attend the concert because she will be on a trip to Japan with the president on the concert's scheduled April 26 date.

WASHINGTON (LAT) — President Reagan, who made 53 films during his movie career, once again has said he isn't all that proud of the kind of pictures Hollywood is producing. In an interview with the Smithsonian News Service, Reagan said he liked movies best during the period when the code required how long a kiss could take, outlawed profanity, and saw to it that criminals always got their comeuppance in the end.

Humphrey

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Once when the irrepressible Sen. Hubert Humphrey was bouncing through the corridors of the Russell Office Building, giving a running dialogue to aides desperately attempting to keep up, he turned his attention to all the wasted empty wall space on Capitol Hill. That space, he said, could be well used to hang art from the states back home. Congressional offices generally contain little more in the way of artworks than autographed photographs of other politicians.

Rep. Ed Markey, however, unaware of Humphrey's interest, has packed his political pictures away and has turned his office into an art gallery.

Markey had been back home in Boston talking with artists who told him that development and rising real estate prices were driving them out of their studios and galleries. So last October, Markey turned his suite of offices in the Rayburn building into an exhibit space for Massachusetts painters, sculptors and print-makers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hank Williams Jr. and the band Alabama received four nominations each in the Academy of Country Music awards competition including entertainer and album of the year selections, officials said Wednesday.

Lee Greenwood, Ricky Skaggs and George Strait were also nominated in several categories including entertainer of the year for the 21st annual presentations of the "Hat" trophies, which are shaped like a Stetson.

Winners will be announced April 14 during a nationally televised program on NBC-TV.

Five nominees in each award category were selected by the 2,800 members of the academy.

Nominated for best album were "40 Hour Week" by Alabama, "Five-0" by Williams, "Does Ft. Worth Ever Cross Your Mind?" by Strait, "Why Not Me?" by the mother-daughter duo The Judds, and "Highway" by the quartet of Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash, Waylon Jennings and Kris Kristofferson.

"Highway" was also nominated for single record of the year along with "I'm for Love" by Williams, "Love is Alive" by The Judds, "Dixie Road" by Greenwood and "Baby's Got Her Blue Jeans On" by Mel McDaniel.

"Baby's Got Her Blue Jeans On" was also a song of the year nominee with "I'll Never Stop Loving You" by Gary Morris, "Lost in the Fifties" by Ronnie Milsap, "Some Fools Never Learn" by Steve Wariner and "Seven Spanish Angels" by Willie Nelson and Ray Charles.

DALLAS (AP) — Singer David Crosby is being transferred from a Dallas jail to a Texas Department of Corrections unit in Huntsville, officials said Wednesday.

Crosby was sentenced in 1983 to five years in prison for possession of cocaine and possession of a firearm in an establishment licensed to sell liquor.

The sentence is on appeal. Crosby decided to transfer from the Lew Sterrett Justice Center to state prison because he can earn "good time" toward parole, which he can't get in county jail, Dallas Sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell said. He said the transfer would be Thursday.

Ewell said Crosby requested a guitar in county jail, but officials would not allow him to have one.

Potato skins removed by pressurized steambath

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. There must be billions of pounds of potatoes used every year for french fries. I was wondering how McDonald's gets the peel off. Someone told me the peel is soaked off with chemicals. What chemicals are used? Also, what is done with all the peel?

A. Beth Petersohn, a representative of McDonald's, first said that when these restaurants started 29 years ago, the fries were cut right on the premises. As business grew, changes obviously had to be made.

Now the potatoes are processed somewhere else and transported frozen to each franchise. Petersohn stated that 80 percent of the peels are removed by a pressurized steam process, while 20 percent are loosened by a "harmless caustic solution."

When I asked Petersohn what this chemical was, she replied, "I found out (after further investigation) that all of our potatoes are now peeled by a steam process and there is no longer any caustic solution used."

After the potatoes are softened by pressurized steam, they bounce around on a rolling belt which further loosens the peels. Scrubbers and brushers finally remove what peel remains.

The peels are used as cattle feed.

A. I have a question about soda water. Someone I know who is sexually active uses it as a douche to prevent pregnancy. She is against pills and claims this is a natural contraceptive. Does it work?

A. This practice "is not merely worthless," states Carol Ann Rinzler in the book "Strictly Female," but "is downright dangerous."

Rinzler explains what could happen: "The soda is aerated; it contains oxygen and carbon dioxide. It enters the vagina under pressure, which means that it may rise through the cervix into the uterus, which is lined with tiny open blood vessels. Theoretically, any oxygen or carbon dioxide that enters these blood vessels could send a deadly air embolism through the bloodstream."

Advise your friend to stop this practice at once.

Q. What do you think of pills you can buy that the advertisements say will flush the calories right out of your body so that you can eat all you want? Apparently the pill does all the work. Is there such a thing?

A. Americans are experiencing an obsession with slimness, so it stands to reason that if such a miraculous pill had been discovered, it would be on the front page of every newspaper and people would be clawing at each other for places in line at the drugstore.

The National Council Against Health Fraud has this to say about the ad in question: It is designed to look like a legitimate news item, with headlines and a dateline. The disclaimer saying "Advertisement" at the top of the story is printed in letters so small that you might easily miss it.

The product, Amitol, is sold by Dyna Labs of Beverly Hills, Calif. You can't order this alleged gem through the mails. There is no address, only a toll-free 800 number. You pay for the pills by credit card or have them shipped C.O.D. Your order will be shipped by U.P.S., so if there's anything wrong with the product or the promises touted, the company avoids any postal regulations.

Remember, there are thousands of good people trying to help Americans relieve themselves of excess fat, and just as many charlatans trying to relieve the public of its money.

Q. Just about every time I buy romaine lettuce, there are large rust spots on the stalks of the leaves. My friend says this is caused by a deficiency in the soil. Is that right?

A. Paul Vossen, a farm adviser with the University of California's cooperative extension, tells us that rust spots, also known as russet spotting, occurs on all kinds of lettuce, not only romaine. It happens after harvest and is caused by an accumulation of ethylene. Ethylene is a gas which plants emit after they are picked. Lettuce is often stored and transported with other fruits and vegetables which give off ethylene, and this causes the rusting.

At a White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health, experts asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture experts about the state of American soil. They reported that they kept close tabs on our soils, as did agriculture colleges and state agricultural services. None knew of such depleted soil being farmed, adding that such worries were scientific impossibilities.

"Plants grow and make vitamins for their own sake, not as a favor to humans," writes Ron Deutsch in "Nutrition Reviews." "A pea or bean is complete, or it simply isn't there. The plant takes up the trace minerals in whatever amount it needs, or it doesn't grow."

In other words, if a farmer's soil were deficient, he would have healthy plants but considerably less of them, and would go broke in one season.

Reader Feedback:

- Andrea Trapper, Stanhope, N.J.: "I have what I believe is the creamiest rice pudding recipe that I have ever tasted. Even the finest restaurants can't come close to it. The recipe below makes a large quantity of pudding. You may want to cut it in half.

6 cups milk (skim or fat-free milk may be used)
1 large can of evaporated milk (or skim evaporated)
2 ½ cups water
1 cup regular rice
4 large eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Simply br milk, water and rice to a boil and boil for 40 minutes (less if recipe is cut in half), or until rice is done and mixture is thick and creamy. Stir often.

In large bowl, mix eggs, sugar and vanilla until very frothy. Add rice mixture to egg mixture and fold. Chill. Enjoy!"

CONSUMING INTERESTS

'Home-baked' rolls come in cans

By LINDA ANDERSON

To paraphrase a long-running (and maybe obnoxious) commercial, "nothing says loving" like the aroma and taste of homemade bread. Every once in a while our family cook makes bread "from scratch," but for the most part the process is too time-consuming and too iffy (you never know if the dough will rise) for us to make bread very often.

But aren't hot, homemade rolls and loaves wonderful? My grandmother used to live a few blocks from a commercial bakery, and I learned early in life that even store-bought bread smells marvelous when it is baking.

Enter Pillsbury, home of the Dough Boy, with its line of bread-dough-in-a-can. Now the company has introduced "Bakery Style Rolls" as part of its refrigerated biscuit line.

Well, I'm all for ease and convenience, so the usual taste-testers checked out these new-style rolls (in "country white" flavor) for taste, price and advertising accuracy — and just for fun, we also tasted regular bakery rolls.

An 11-ounce can containing dough for eight "big, quick" rolls cost $1.27 at a local supermarket, as compared to 79-cents or so for a can containing dough for eight "Hungry Jack" biscuits or about 30-cents for a 10-biscuit can of ordinary biscuits. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Each of these bakery-style rolls contains 100 calories, according to label information, and is made of such things as enriched bleached flour, hydrogenated vegetable oil, vital wheat gluten, salt, baking soda, natural and artificial flavors, sugar, corn starch, citric acid, rice flour, sodium acid pyrophosphate and sodium aluminum phosphate.

I have no idea what the real bakery rolls were made of or how many calories they contained. They were, however, much bigger than the Pillsbury rolls, and they cost 99 cents for six at a local supermarket's bakery.

Label advertising claims the Pillsbury rolls have "no preservatives added," and are "big" and "quick." I'll agree with the quick part — and even the big part, if the rolls are compared with regular canned bisquits (they are considerably smaller than the real bakery rolls). But the "no preservatives" part is not entirely true. The biscuits do contain salt, according to the label, which is a preservative — a natural preservative, yes, but still a preservative. Maybe the label should be more specific.

The canned rolls are easy enough. Just grease a cookie sheet and bake at 350° until rolls are golden brown. And they do smell nice when baking.

The taste-testers enjoyed them, too. They look nice, taste much better than ordinary canned biscuits, and have the advantage of smelling delicious while cooking — something missed with bakery rolls, unless you happen to be there when the rolls are in the oven.

We'll probably try them again sometime, but not too often. That's a steep price for canned biscuits.

Filing tax returns can be complicated

By JOHN K. SCHMIDT

Schmidt

Why not prepare your own federal and state tax returns? The forms and free government guide booklets are designed so that just about anyone can follow them. And, should all else fail, the Internal Revenue Service provides free telephone information assistance.

In many cases, where a person's income is modest and uncomplicated and where there is no need to itemize deductions such as for home mortgage or car payments, taxpayers should be able to fill out the forms themselves.

However, when income becomes larger and more involved, and when home mortgage payments, car loans and business expenses become part of the picture, taxpayers may consider hiring a professional tax advisor.

The value of such advice and its cost often corresponds to the amount of professional tax expertise the adviser can offer.

Chain tax preparation services are relatively inexpensive. However, some of their advisers may have minimal experience in tax preparation, and they are not usually directed by their employers to suggest advice that exists in a gray area or a claim that may be disputed by the IRS. As a result, their possible failure to uncover legitimate tax deductions may be more costly to you than mistakes in arithmetic that they may help you avoid.

Certified public accountants, tax lawyers and enrolled tax agents generally are highly trained in tax preparation and will usually give you advice on how to find legitimate tax shelters to which you may be entitled. While the cost of hiring one of these specialists may be higher than using a less experienced tax preparer, the eventual savings to you by using an "expert" may sometimes surpass the increased cost.

When considering hiring a tax preparer, ask the following:

- What is their training or expertise in preparing tax returns?
- How does the preparer check for accuracy and will he or she sign the return?
- How much will it cost and what is the cost based on?
- Can and will the preparer represent the client in case of an IRS audit? What will the charge be?

DEAR ABBY

Doubting diner fed up with tips

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please lay off your one-woman crusade to make waiters and waitresses filthy rich. Now you come out with the ridiculous statement that if you don't leave at least 8 percent of the bill, you are cheating the waitperson! You haven't convinced me that they are living on the verge of starvation. I've heard of a Philadelphia waitress who racked up $80 in tips in one night, and a waiter in the Washington, D.C., area who averages $45 to $50 an hour in tips!

Anyone who pays $14 for fish and fries for two and leaves a $2 or $3 tip yet needs to have his head examined.

This hoax you're perpetrating about the "poor" waitress has just about run its course.

I'd sign my name, but there are a lot of dingbats out there, so I'm taking no chances. — FED UP WITH TIPS IN EBENSBURG, PA.

DEAR FED UP: You are misinformed and sadly mistaken. I've never known a "filthy rich" waiter or waitress, but I've known a few who were lucky to break even.

With your attitude, please do them all a favor and restrict your dining out to fast-food places where you serve yourself. Or have a pizza delivered to your door. On second thought, forget the pizza; you may have to tip the driver.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning disclosing one's religion and marital status on a hospital form for a goiter X-ray: You are correct in stating that a patient does not have to answer those questions.

Any patient or potential patient told that "unless you complete the form there will be no X-ray," should ask to see that employee's supervisor. If the supervisor has no better answer, one should request to see the department supervisor. No luck? Go all the way to the top and report to the facility's administrator. Health-care facilities in today's competitive health-care environment are not turning away potential patients simply because they refuse to indicate religious preference and/or marital status.

Many of your readers are not aware that such a profession (medical record administrator/health information specialist) exists. — CAMILLE C. GANNON, RRA, MEDICAL RECORD CONSULTANT, TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR CAMILLE: This writer was also not aware of it. Thanks. There is no end to the things I learn from my readers.

DEAR ABBY: I have a physiology question that has me completely stumped. How do humans distinguish between "left" and "right"? For instance, I can explain "up" and "down" using words alone: "up" is toward the sky, and "down" is toward the ground. However, "left" and "right" defy explanation using reference points, so how do we remember which is which after a parent or someone else shows us?

Calcium needs change with age

By MARIAN FARR

Most of us know that we need calcium throughout childhood and adolescence to help build strong bones and teeth. However, dietary calcium requirements vary at different age levels. Teens require 50 percent more dietary calcium than children who, in turn, need much more calcium than infants.

Infants up to one year old need dietary calcium to help the change over from firm cartilage to hardened bones. Within this first year of life, calcium requirements more than double. Dietary requirements vary from one infant to the next due to individual differences. Therefore, it's a good idea to check with a pediatrician about your baby's dietary needs.

Children ages one-10 require 800 milligrams of calcium daily. This means a recommended three servings a day from the dairy group as part of a balanced diet. For example, 1½ ounces of cheese, a glass of milk and a cup of fruit yogurt will more than meet a child's recommended dietary allowance (RDA) for calcium.

Due to increased bone growth (length) and development (strength), adolescents 11-18 years old increase their calcium RDA to 1200 milligrams as day. This can be met by eating four servings a day from the milk group, such as three ounces of cheese and two glasses of milk.

According to recent government studies, many young people do not get enough calcium daily. In fact, females over 11 years of age were reported as one group with the greatest risk of calcium deficiency. Prolonged calcium deficiency may lead to osteoporosis (fragile, brittle bones) in later years.

This disease has reached epidemic proportions in the United States, especially among women. Over 15 million Americans have some degree of it and, as a result, there are an estimated 1.3 million fractures each year. Once a person develops osteoporosis, it is not reversible.

Consuming the RDA for calcium every day during childhood and the teen years promotes strong bones — the best deterrent for osteoporosis. Moderate weight-bearing exercise such as walking, light jogging, bicycling, dancing and skating and avoiding cigarette smoking are also helpful in preventing the disease.

Dairy foods are the best and most abundant source of calcium in our food supply. Many products contain lactose and vitamin D which enhance calcium usage by the body. The wide variety of products, available in lowfat, skim and whole milk, make it easy for children and teens to meet their RDA for calcium the delicious and natural way.

Banks' check-holding policies cost consumers

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Three-quarters of the nation's banks hold checks for six or more business days before depositing the money into accounts and 20 percent of them hold them for more than two weeks, according to a survey by the United States Public Interest Research Group.

These check-holding policies caused 9.7 million checks to bounce last year and, because penalties charged for bounced checks average $13 a check, consumers lost more than $125 million because of banks' holding policies, according to Consumers Union.

During the last several years, consumer groups and state and federal legislators have been supporting laws that would set a maximum time for banks to hold checks before making money available to depositors.

A few states, including New York, Massachusetts and California, have passed laws that do just that. On Jan. 23, the House of Representatives passed the first federal law that established such limits. A less restrictive version of the law has been proposed in the Senate by Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn.

The consumer groups that are lobbying to pass Dodd's version of the House bill say that banks profit by holding the checks.

The House Banking Committee, in a report considering the Expedited Funds Availability Act, found that returned check penalties generate $3.4 billion a year in bank revenues and that banks receive more than $290 million a year because of their ability to take advantage of the float.

The consumer groups also say they do not believe banks would be hurt by the new requirements. A Fact Sheet that Consumers Union distributes says, "In fact, according to state bank regulators in states that have hold laws, banks have reported no significant increase in losses under the state-imposed ceilings."

In the same Fact Sheet, the Federal Reserve reported that 99 percent of all checks are paid the first time a bank seeks to collect on them and in the end, "only one in every 5,245 returned checks must be written off."

A study by the United States Public Interest Research Group found that 18 percent of the 669 banks it surveyed around the nation already grant access to local checks immediately and 10 percent grant access to out-of-state checks within two business days.

Michelle Meier, Consumers Union's general counsel for government and regulatory affairs, said that the House check-holding bill has a three-year grace period, after which it becomes more restrictive.

In the first year after the bill is passed, in-state checks must be made available to depositors three days after deposit. In the second year, they are available after two days and in the third year the in-state checks become available the next day. During the three years, all out-of-state checks must be made available to depositors after six intervening business days.

After the three-year period, in-state checks must be made available the next business day after they are deposited and out-of-state checks must be made available four days after they are deposited. In other words, if the check is deposited Monday it will be available Friday.

Bureau gives tips on using low-cost divorce services

New York Times News Service

Those in need of a divorce lawyer should carefully check the details of advertisements before using low-cost divorce services, the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York says.

The bureau recently reviewed the advertising practices of 22 firms in the New York area that offered such services and found that many exaggerated or did not fully disclose what they provide for the price.

Barbara Berger Opotowsky, president of the bureau, advises consumers to be wary of the following:

■ Failure to disclose additional fees. Often the cost of additional services can exceed the advertised price, the bureau found.

Though court costs can be at least $105, only a few of the services in the survey placed "plus costs" near their advertised price and none disclosed their extent.

■ Failure to disclose the limits of an offer. Some of the ads did not reveal that the advertised price applied only to an uncontested divorce and did not indicate that other types of divorce are often more expensive.

■ Failure to provide the consumer with a written list of divorce services.

New York State law requires that "a lawyer or law firm advertising any fixed fee for specialized legal services shall have available to the public a written statement clearly describing the scope of each advertised service," Mrs. Opotowsky said. That statement must be made available upon request, she said.

■ Use of abbreviations and terms that are not commonly known.

Some ads, the bureau found, use such abbreviations as "unc" for uncontested. One firm used "filing immed pro se," to refer to the practice of having clients complete their own papers.

The bureau got in touch with all the firms in the survey and notified them of any unsatisfactory practices.

Eleven firms agreed to make all the changes recommended, three agreed to make some changes, three refused to make any changes, and three told the bureau that their ads were no longer running. The bureau received no response from two others.

For a complete copy of the bureau's report, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, 257 Central Park South, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Warnings given for home-work schemes

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Earn hundreds of dollars a week, at home in your spare time," is a pitch often seen in media ads, and it entices many hopeful people. The offer sounds too good to be true and, consumer experts warn, it usually is.

"While some work-at-home plans are legitimate, many are not," the Federal Trade Commission warns in a circular. "Home employment schemes are one of the oldest kinds of classified advertising fraud."

Consumers deceived by such promises have lost thousands of dollars and wasted their time and energy in many cases, the commission reports.

According to the consumer-protection agency, the schemes often fail to tell participants in advance that they may have to work many hours without pay, spend their own money to place ads in newspapers, make photocopies or buy envelopes, paper, stamps and other supplies.

The company making the offer may also demand a membership, or some other sort of regular payment to obtain continued information or materials, the commission warns.

Not all work-at-home projects are frauds, though, and the commission says legitimate firms should be willing to tell participants — in writing and at no charge — what is involved.

They should be willing to fully describe the tasks to be performed, whether pay is salary or commission, who will pay and when, and the total cost of the program including supplies, equipment and fees.

Only by knowing such things can an individual decide whether such a program is good for them. And before investing, check the reputation of the company with both consumer protection agencies and the Better Business Bureau in the area where the firm is located.

The fraudulent schemes most often fall into two categories, the Trade Commission reports — envelope stuffing and assembly or craft work programs.

Those who have already been victimized can complain to their state attorney general, local consumer offices and the Better Business Bureau, the local postmaster if they contacted the firm through the mail, the publication which ran the ad and the Federal Trade Commission, Division of Marketing Practices, Washington, D.C., 20580.

Bodies of mutilated horses, mule found at Houston drive-in bank

HOUSTON (AP) — Police are trying to unravel the mystery of why someone placed mutilated bodies of two horses and the carcass of a mule at a downtown Houston drive-in bank.

"That's the weirdest thing I've ever heard of," said one investigator about the early Wednesday morning discovery at the downtown M-Bank.

Two full-grown horses with their front legs and hindquarters severed were found in the bank's driveway along with the mule, said Houston police officer T.F. Joyner.

"There were no visible wounds on the mule. The assumption is it died of malnutrition," Joyner said.

The dead animals formed a triangle and six horse hooves and two tails were lying between the dead animals, Joyner said. He said it appeared the anmials were killed somewhere else and then dropped outside the bank.

Denver to join Challenger tribute

HOUSTON (AP) — Entertainer John Denver will join the Houston Symphony, the Houston Grand Opera and the Houston Ballet for a tribute March 27 to the seven Challenger astronauts.

Chamber of Commerce President Gerry Griffin, former director of the Johnson Space Center, said current and former astronauts also may be involved in the program.

"It's a wonderul way for the city to show its support of and confidence in NASA and the space program," Griffin said.

Proceeds from the benefit will go to the Challenger Benefit Fund, which serves as a trustee for public contributions in memory of the seven crew members killed Jan. 28 when the shuttle exploded on its way to space.

Youth gets life sentence in shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A district court jury has set punishment at life in prison for a youth convicted of robbing the wife of the chairman of the board of Dr Pepper and shooting her four times.

The sentence was handed down Wednesday for Reginald Yancy, 16, after he was convicted on charges of aggravated robbery. Yancy was 15 at the time of the robbery in the parking lot of NorthPark Center, but he was certified to stand trial as an adult.

Yancy was acused of shooting Mrs. Margaret Virginia Clements, 59, four times after taking her purse which contained about $40, some credit cards and a gold chain.

Houston adds new 'sister city'

HOUSTON (AP) — The City Council has authorized a cultural exchange with the city of Shenzhen in the People's Republic of China, despite objections that Houston's "sister city" relationship with Taipei, Taiwan, might be threatened.

Council members voted 13-1 on Tuesday to add Shenzhen as a Houston's ninth "sister city."

Councilman Frank Mancuso opposed the plan, saying he was concerned that China might try to pressure Houston officials to break off the 25-year relationship with Taipei.

Lawmaker says lottery could raise revenue

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — One state representative is gambling on a state-run lottery to help tackle the state's revenue shortfalls.

Democratic state Rep. Ron Wilson of Houston Monday projected a lottery could raise hundreds of millions of dollars in state revenue. Wilson sponsored a lottery bill that failed in the 1985 spring legislative session.

But hard times for the state, caused primarily by falling petroluem prices, make a lottery more attractive, Wilson said. He said California's lottery will pour more than $2 billion into that state's treasury. State Comptroller Bob Bullock last year projected a state lottery would generate roughly $200 million a year for Texas.

Wilson proposes 50 percent of the lottery proceeds go to the winners, 37 percent to the state, 10 percent for administrative costs and 3 percent to the retailers selling lottery tickets.

Critics argue that poor people — those least able to afford to buy lottery tickets — will participate more than affluent Texans, resulting in a regressive tax. Wilson called those arguments "a smokescreen."

"If people want to participate in a state lottery, by God go ahead and let them do it," Wilson said. "I don't see these same folk coming around when we get ready to raise the sales tax. They don't say 'Don't raise the sales tax because it might hurt poor people.' They don't care one iota about poor people."

Wilson said Bullock and two appointees of the governor, lieutenant governor and house speaker should comprise a panel to work out the specifics of a lottery.

Without a special legislative session, the earliest a lottery could reach voters is Nov. 1988. Both chambers of the Legislature must approve a lottery by a two-thirds vote. Then voters must approve a constitutional amendment.

Yugloslavian who conned Austin man kills himself

Lilic

SANDSTONE, Minn. (AP) — An admitted con man, convicted of bilking an Austin businessman out of $46,000 by pretending to be a Soviet KGB agent, apparently killed himself in his federal prison cell, authorities said.

Bratislav Lilic was found hanging in his cell at 12:19 a.m. Wednesday, said corrections officer Douglas Brindle.

Lilic, 34, "hung himself with a sheet," Brindle said.

The Yugoslavian received a 30-year prison term in November, after being convicted by an Austin jury.

Douglas Pierce testified that Lilic had promised to find Pierce's son, John, who had been aboard a drilling ship that sank during a 1983 typhoon in the South China sea.

There were no reported survivors from the Glomar Java Sea, but Douglas Pierce remains convinced his son is alive, possibly as a prisoner in Vietnam.

Lilic was convicted of promising to arrange the return of Pierce's son, who he claimed to have seen alive in a Vietnamese hospital.

In January, in a telephone call to The Associated Press at Austin, he said he had found religion and wanted to confess. He said he had never seen John Pierce and had no means to win his release.

"I was nothing but a criminal and a con man," he said.

Lilic also had called Pierce several times since the trial. But Wednesday, when told of Lilic's death, Pierce said, "I hope he has made his peace with God.

"I am quite sure there will not be a great number of mourners at his grave," said Pierce, adding, "He is shut up."

Senate pushes for $5 billion farm relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a three-week snarl heavy with political overtones, the Senate has agreed on an emergency $5 billion infusion for farm programs together with a list of changes in the recently passed 1985 farm law.

The two bills — which promised to be just the first shots in a pitched election-year battle over agriculture — won passage on voice votes late Wednesday.

The farm money bill now goes to a House-Senate negotiating committee to work out differences between the two chambers' versions. The farm law modifications go to the House, where similar legislation ran into partisan bickering last week.

Included in the package of farm law changes was a non-binding statement urging the Reagan administration to make advance crop loans to farmers in time for spring planting season. The amendment was adopted on a 65-18 vote.

Such loans would cost farmers only about 8 percent interest, rather than the 13 or 14 percent they otherwise would have to pay, said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, the amendment's sponsor.

But it was unlikely the administration would heed the congressional call. Reagan vetoed a similar effort a year ago, and Agriculture Secretary-designate Richard Lyng on Tuesday said the idea was "a violation of my common sense."

The action came only a few hours after the Commodity Credit Corporation, the arm of the Agriculture Department that makes crop loans and subsidy payments, ran out of money to operate its programs.

The agency was expecting a surge in demand for money beginning today, as farmers began signing up for price- and income-support programs for their 1986 crops. Under the law, they are eligible for immediate subsidy checks when they sign up, as advances against payments that normally would come after harvest.

Money also is needed for a range of other routine programs, including purchases of surplus dairy products to support milk prices at levels set by law.

The House last week passed an emergency $5 billion money bill for the CCC that would keep the agency running at least through the summer. But when the measure reached the Senate, it became snarled in a politically charged debate over the proposed changes in farm policy.

As finally passed by the Senate, the money bill was stripped of House language that conservationists said would have endangered a new and ambitious program designed to take millions of acres of highly erodible land out of cultivation in the next five years. It was unclear whether the House would accept the Senate revision.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., had been trying since mid-February to assemble a list of eight or nine changes in the new farm policy to blunt growing rural criticism that the law, which its authors promised would protect farm income, actually cuts income subsidies slightly.

The changes in the packages include restoration of slight cuts in the subsidies farmers receive on cotton, rice, wheat and corn crops; limits on non-subsidized crops that can be grown on land taken out of production by farmers who receive subsidies; and cuts in export incentives to offset the increased costs of the other provisions.

But the package also became the vehicle for a controversial change in how the budget cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law would be achieved in the dairy price-support program. The large milk cooperatives, which control the industry, want to achieve the savings through an increased fee on all dairy farmers rather than a price-support cut.

Family pushed off farm flooded with offers of aid

HOLLANDALE, Wis. (AP) — Ken and Sue Massey say they have been deluged by offers of help since they lost the family farm to foreclosure and they may use donations from caring strangers to establish a trust fund for their children's education.

"We felt that the ones who lost the most from the foreclosure were our five children because we had hoped the land would pay for their college educations," Mrs. Massey said Wednesday evening. "We haven't decided about the trust fund, but we're seriously thinking about it."

She said the family had been overwhelmed with offers of help, including calls from people offering to buy the 310-acre egg farm from its new owner and give it back to the Masseys.

The family has remained on the farm, which was sold in an auction Tuesday to Raphael Peterson, a feed grain dealer, for $45,000.

The Masseys drew national attention last September when a letter Mrs. Massey wrote to the country western band Alabama about her family's plight was read by the band's lead singer during the nationally telecast FarmAid benefit concert.

She said one of the band members called her Tuesday to express sorrow and concern about the loss of the farm.

Mrs. Massey said she and her husband had not yet spoken with Peterson about his plans for the property, which had been in the Massey family for more than 80 years.

Peterson, who had said the Masseys owed him about $65,000, could not be reached Wednesday for comment. Telephone calls to his home went unanswered.

Massey, 34, and his wife, who is 29, have five children ranging in age from 18 months to 10 years.

Mrs. Massey said the family began receiving calls Tuesday afternoon — only hours after the farm was sold — from concerned people across the nation.

"We've just been overwhelmed," she said. "The telephone began ringing as soon as we got back from the auction yesterday and it hasn't stopped."

She said a caller from Denver offered to buy back the farm from its new owner and give it to the Masseys. Other callers, including one from Oklahoma, said they had land the family could live on or farm.

"Kenny and I haven't had time to figure out what to do," Mrs. Massey said. "People mean so well that we hate to discourage them, but we're kind of mind-boggled. We need time to figure out what to do and what is best for our family."

In addition to offers of help, Mrs. Massey said the family had received many calls from people who were upset that the Masseys were forced off their land.

"The public is just furious," she said. "They can't believe the U.S. government is letting this happen to its farmers.

Among the most touching calls, she said, was one from a woman in Missouri who said her 16-year-old daughter had recently committed suicide. The woman called to thank Massey for saying suicide was no way to solve personal problems.

Replacement of Challenger could cost $4 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are preparing a multi-billion-dollar request for Congress to replace the lost Challenger and to build unmanned rockets to help launch satellites held Earthbound by the grounded shuttle fleet, congressional and administration sources say.

These sources, who spoke Wednesday only on condition of anonymity, said the overall price tag for the space shuttle, related equipment and at least 10 new Titan rockets could be as much as $4 billion.

It was not clear whether the proposal would seek the full amount immediately or spread the request over several years; one administration official said whether to include some smaller proposals was still being debated.

The sources said an inter-agency task force is expected to present the proposal to President Reagan within the next several days, and decisions on the package are still subject to change.

The administration is under pressure from some members of Congress to move quickly on the proposal, which would represent a comprehensive response to the Jan. 28 accident that destroyed the Challenger and killed its seven-member crew.

Despite continuing support for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from members of the House and Senate who oversee its program and budget, congressional officials also predicted that any multi-billion dollar request from the administration would encounter opposition in the current, economy-minded Congress.

A request for $4 billion in the current fiscal year, for example, would come in the wake of $11.7 billion in cuts that the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law forced in domestic and military programs. Those cuts took effect March 1.

Work on an urgent supplemental budget request is proceeding as administration officials also search for a full-time NASA administrator.

Congressional officials said they believed an announcement could be made before the end of the week, and former Administrator James C. Fletcher remains the leading candidate.

But administration officials say they are puzzled by recent statements by Fletcher that he is not interested in the post. Fletcher also has criticized acting administrator William Graham and the presidential commission investigating the shuttle accident.

NATION IN BRIEF

FAA asked to cut load on controllers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration should curtail scheduled airline traffic to ease the pressure on overworked air traffic controllers, according to a new congressional study.

Congressional sources said the study by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, concludes there are not enough experienced controllers to handle today's traffic loads.

The report also says that plans to increase the controller work force are being hampered by stepped up retirements and training problems, the sources said.

The FAA has 14,000 controllers in airport towers and 20 en route air traffic control centers around the country. Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has promised to add another 1,000 controllers in the next two years.

But Mrs. Dole and FAA Administrator Donald Engen repeatedly have insisted that there are enough controllers to handle current traffic needs. They said that when there is a question of controllers being overburdened, flights are held back through traffic flow controls.

But the GAO study, sources say, concludes that there are far fewer experienced controllers available than are needed, especially during peak travel periods and in parts of the country where the skies are particularly congested.

Mexican cheese recalled

A Southern California manufacturer of soft, Mexican-style cheese shut its plant and recalled its products Wednesday at the request of California health officials, after authorities found potentially deadly listeria bacteria in one of the company's cheeses.

Officials of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration told state authorities Wednesday that they had tentatively linked three cases of listeriosis in Tucson, Ariz., to the Queso Fresco brand of moist cheese manufactured by Rodeo Industries Inc., in the City of Industry, about 15 miles east of Los Angeles.

The listeria bacterial infection produces flu-like symptoms, including fever, abdominal pain, headaches and nausea. Those at greatest risk are unborn and newborn babies, pregnant women and cancer patients, authorities have said.

German art returned

WASHINGTON (LAT) — More than four decades after the end of World War II, 6,255 works of German war art produced while Adolf Hitler ruled the Third Reich are about to be returned to West Germany by the United States.

The return of the art collection follows years of negotiations, an official request from the West German government and finally an authorizing act of Congress.

With little fanfare, operations have begun at several U.S. military locations, including an Army vault in a suburb of Washington and storage facilities in Pueblo, Colo., to pack the art. The first shipments by air could begin late this week.

"We're in the midst of packing them now," Marylou Gjernes, curator for the Army's art activities, said in an interview.

The final step facilitating the German government's longstanding request to regain possession of the artworks was taken several weeks ago when the State Department and the government in Bonn signed papers officially transferring the works to West Germany.
