World leaders briefed...

'Thumbs up' given on arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. officials fanned out today to brief world leaders on the agreement to resume arms control talks with the Soviet Union, an agreement the Americans said was nearly derailed by a Soviet walkout.

No date or place has been set for the negotiations, which the two sides — in a joint statement issued late Tuesday — said would be aimed at "preventing an arms race in space" and "the complete elimination of nuclear arms everywhere."

The agreement came after two days of discussions between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, along with top aides, at the U.S. and Soviet missions in Geneva.

Shultz, before leaving for Washington this morning, made no comment but gave a "thumbs up" sign. Gromyko, who left for Moscow 45 minutes later, read a brief statement in English in which he spoke of the "immense tasks" that lie ahead for the two superpowers.

"There is no need to speak at length that the talks were not simple," said Gromyko, adding that the Soviet Union "will go its part of the road fully aware of the responsibility shared by the two great powers."

President Reagan, interviewed by the Dallas Morning News shortly before the agreement was announced, was quoted as saying, "It sounds very good."

The agreement to reopen nuclear arms negotiations, which the Soviets broke off a year ago, nearly didn't come off, top U.S. officials said, because Gromyko threatened to walk out of the discussions and because of a dispute over Reagan's "Star Wars" research program.

Gromyko "was on the verge of walking out without an agreement," Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said Tuesday night.

If Gromyko had walked out, only a "vague statement" would have emerged from the discussions, Adelman said.

Instead, the superpowers issued a joint statement, saying: "The sides believe that ultimately the forthcoming negotiations.. .should lead to the complete elimination of nuclear weapons everywhere."

The statement added that the "objective of the negotiations will be to work out effective agreements aimed at preventing an arms race in space and terminating it on Earth, at limiting and reducing nuclear arms, and at strengthening strategic stability."

The principal dispute, according to Adelman and Robert C. McFarlane, the White House national security adviser, was over the "Star Wars" space-weapons program.

Degrate 'Day' is today

Following an autograph-signing appearance at city hall Wednesday afternoon — and the official declaration of "Tony Degrate Day" — Snyder's Lombardi Award winner will return to his alma mater Thursday morning.

After the school assembly at Snyder High School, he will be due Thursday night at a recognition banquet which will feature also Head UT Football Coach Fred Akers.

The events have been scheduled to honor the 1981 Snyder High School grad, a senior this year at the University of Texas; a two-time All-Southwest Conference defensive tackle for UT; and this year's winner of the prestigious Lombardi Award, presented to

1985's first drive yields 122 donors

The first county blood drive effort for 1985 Tuesday was called a success as 142 individuals registered to give with 122 blood units eventually drawn.

These figures included 28 first time donors. In addition, the contributions of traditional blood drive participants were honored as seven 1-gallon pins and four 2-gallon pins were presented.

For every eight pints of blood contributed, local donors are given a 1-gallon donor pin.

Those receiving 1-gallon pins Tuesday were Temi Boren, Jamie Boren, Leonard Broach, Danny Campbell, Adolph Flores, Tommy Rios and Jo Ann Williams.

The 2-gallon pins were presented to Mike Garcia, Don Gressett, Nona Sutton and Cheryl Watkins.

Following the drive, local Cub Scouts assisted in the cleanup at the Senior Citizens Center. Assisting Tuesday were members of Pack 37, Den 3 with Den Mothers Diane Hatter, Debbey Farmer and Dawn Fish. Cub Scouts working were Drew Wilson, Andy Craig, Daniel Fish, Cole Sterling, Jared Graves, Jeremy Farmer, Chad Walker, Brian Lickey, Tyson Cromeens and Chris Gayle.

County blood drives are conducted here six time a year under the joint sponsorship of the United Blood Services of Lubbock advisory council and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The next blood drive is scheduled March 19.

Post's search ongoing

The search for an adult and juvenile probation officer here will likely continue for at least two more weeks, according to District Judge Gene Dulaney.

The search was prompted by the unexpected death Dec. 19 of longtime probation officer Bill Zimmerman, who held both positions.

Dulaney said earlier this week 10 applications for the position had been received in his office. He estimated the process of reviewing the resumes and interviewing applicants would take at least two weeks.

Dulaney noted the only general state requirement for an applicant is that the individual have at least a bachelors degree from an accredited college or university.

This requirement can be waived at the district judge's discretion.

Dulany said Monday his personal preference would be to have someone with not only a college degree but a college degree

WTC's Tully assumes financial aid position

Dr. James Tully, dean of learning resources at Western Texas College, will serve in an expanded capacity effective with the spring semester.

In addition to his current post, he will serve as WTC's director for financial aid. He will succeed Jimmy Parker, who resigned the post in December to assume the position of assistant director of financial aid at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Tully joined the WTC staff in August of 1971 after completing work on his doctor of education degree at East Texas State University where he was an assistant instructor in the Department of Audio Visual Education.

He received his bachelor of science degree from ETSU in October, 1949, and a master of education degree from the University of Houston in 1957.

Tully taught mathematics for 16 years for the Houston ISD prior to obtaining his doctorate. He has served as a materials center supervisor, a media specialist and consultant, and building coordinator for audio visuals at the secondary level.

He has served as executive secretary, a director and president of the Texas Association of

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Old age is when work becomes more fun and fun becomes more work."

For years Texans have dreamed about turning their state into a nation. Two researchers have come up with some substantial claims that Texas would stack up pretty good on an economic basis with other nations.

According to one of the researchers, Texas' 267,000 square miles would rank 28th among countries.

Gross national product per capita of $13,410 would have ranked second only to Switzerland's $16,210.

Crude oil production of 925.3 million would have placed Texas fifth behind the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia, the U.S. and Mexico.

Only the U.S., China, the Soviet Union and West Germany produced more salt than Texas.

As a cotton producer, Texas would rank fifth in the world.

It was also concluded that Texas is a healthy place to live and that Texas would have better health statistics than most nations.

For example, the infant mortality rate in Texas is among the 10 lowest in the world, equaling the rates of the U.S. and England.

If Texas were a nation, would Mark White be president or king?

Hodel picked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary Donald Hodel has been chosen to succeed William Clark as secretary of the Interior, an administration source said today.

The source, who demanded anonymity, said he expected the White House to announce Hodel's choice Thursday. Earlier, other administration officials said there would be no announcement today.

Hodel, in an interview with The Associated Press late Tuesday night, said no decision had been made.

He also said proposals under discussion to merge the Energy and Interior departments don't have "any momentum presently."

Clark last week made a surprise announcement that he intends to resign in two or three months.

Certain officials in the White House used Clark's resignation to revive Reagan's 1980 campaign promise to abolish the Energy Department, a move that was overwhelmingly rejected by congressional leaders two years ago when the administration proposed folding it into the Commerce Department.

Jobless up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent of the civilian work force in December as a surge in Americans looking for work surpassed the creation of about 340,000 new jobs during the month, the government reported today.

The number of Americans actually holding jobs in December rose to a record 106.3 million, but the total of unemployed increased to 8.2 million as the labor force expanded by 390,000, the Labor Department report said.

Meanwhile, the number of "discouraged workers," those without jobs but not counted as unemployed because they've given up looking, increased to 1.3 million from the September level of 1.2 million.

Rate climbs

DALLAS (AP) — The unemployment rate in December hit 6.2 percent in Texas — the first time since August of last year that the seasonally adjusted rate crept above the 6-percent mark, the government reported today.

The increase from the 5.7 percent November rate was not considered statistically significant and may have resulted from less retail hiring for the Christmas shopping season than economists anticipated, said Bureau of Labor Statistics economist Bryan Richey.

Farm policy disputes settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration may be close to settling some internal disputes over farm policy and how government programs can be pruned back over the next few years.

President Reagan plans to send his new budget proposals to Congress on Feb. 4 for the fiscal year that will begin next Oct. 1. The budget material is expected to reflect the administration's farm policy strategy on Capitol Hill this year.

Congress is set to design a new omnibus farm bill to replace the Agricultural and Food Act of 1981, which is due to expire this year. The administration wants to roll back some of the price support and payment features of the old program and put greater reliance on the marketplace.

As a step in that direction, the proposed budget to be sent Congress next month is expected to urge that many Agriculture Department programs be cut back sharply or eliminated altogether.

One of the department's senior policy officials says that the sniping between USDA and the Office of Management and Budget has eased and that the administration hopes to put the finishing touches on a farm bill "by the first or second week" of February.

"It don't think that there's ever been any real serious problems on the numbers," said Randy M. Russell, deputy assistant secretary for economics. "It's been more on some of the policies used to achieve those numbers — and we've basically ironed out the differences."

Russell said Tuesday in an interview that "we can buy the overall numbers that OMB was floating in the budget. It was a question of what policy assumptions you use to get to those numbers."

Although Russell would not be specific about the numbers involved in recent disputes, many have seeped out in recent weeks.

For example, OMB chief David Stockman, a long-time critic of government farm programs, initially wanted to do away entirely with soil and water conservation programs. This has been opposed by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, among others.

Massive cutbacks still are being considered, but conservation groups are hopeful that Block's efforts will help ease the blow.

Another initial recommendation by OMB included a limitation of $10,000 per farm on federal crop payments in any one year, compared with a $50,000 limit at the present time. A lid of $200,000 per farm was proposed for price support loans, compared with no limit on loans now.

The government's dairy price support program also would have been eliminated by the initial round of budget proposals.

More recently, Block reportedly has prevailed upon the budget cutters to modify some of the proposals so that an initial $20,000 limit on direct payments is now being considered instead of the $10,000 lid. However, the limit would gradually be reduced to $10,000 by 1988. The $200,000 limit on loans, however, is still being talked.

The outright elimination of dairy price support has been changed instead to a phase-cut over several years.

Meanwhide, as has been indicated for some time, the administration wants to get away from fixed crop supports by linking loan rates — the amount farmers can borrow from USDA by using crops as collateral — to about 75 percent of the average market price of the previous three years.

That would put the loans at "market clearing" levels instead of having them so high that the loan rates actually become the floor price in the market.

A reduction in target prices in 1986 also is part of the package, also by linking them to recent years' market averages. Those would be progressively lowered and eventually eliminated.

Ag department to lower fees again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that fees charged producers to graze livestock on national forests and grasslands will be lowered again this year.

R. Max Peterson, chief of the Forest Service, said Tuesday the fee will be $1.35 per animal unit month, down two cents from the 1984 rate, on national forests and grasslands in Idaho and Oregon, and on national forests in Arizona, California, Colorado, Montana, Nevada, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Chairman: Shamrock not vulnerable

DALLAS (AP) — Diamond Shamrock Chairman William Bricker rejected the idea that his company's merger flirtation with Occidental Petroleum Corp. has left Shamrock vulnerable to a hostile takeover.

"We didn't miss a lick in terms of further developing our prospects," he told the Dallas Times Herald Tuesday night.

Bricker said his board rejected a merger with Occidental because of unhappiness about the fate of Shamrock managers in the new company and the margin of profit for Shamrock shareholders.

The merger, which would have created the nation's seventh-largest oil company, suddenly fell apart Monday afternoon, just hours after the heads of both companies announced a tentative agreement.

Some analysts said risk arbitrageurs, who had bought about 9 million Shamrock shares, faced hundreds of millions of dollars in losses.

Analysts said Shamrock is now open to a hostile takeover attempt because arbitrageurs and others with big holdings would be eager to recoup their losses and might sell their stock to the first suitor that came along.

"Once exposed, vulnerable, and Diamond Shamrock better watch out," said Alan Edgar of the securities firm Schneider Bernet & Hickman in Dallas.

Bricker said the merger intially seemed to offer great benefits for Diamond Shamrock shareholders.

He said the proposed merger also had the blessing of top executives with both companies. But Bricker said he changed his mind about the deal during discussions with his board Monday.

Bricker said the $3 billion stock-swap plan was conceived last Wednesday, when he was talking to Occidental Chairman Armand Hammer about another matter.

The proposed merger had called for the shareholders of the two companies to exchange their stock for stock in a new company on a one-for-one basis.

That could have given Diamond Shamrock shareholders a substantial premium, since Occidental's stock was trading at about at about $25 per share when the tentative agreement was reached, while Diamond Shamrock's was at about $17.

But word of the negotiations quickly spread among Wall Street, Bricker said.

The rumors put the participants under "tremendous and unnecessary pressure" to go public while the merger discussions were still in the early stages, he said.

After both companies announced Friday that they were discussing a possible merger, Diamond Shamrock's stock rose sharply in trading on the New York Stock Exchange while Occidental's fell, narrowing the difference in value.

By the time the board met Monday, trading in the stock of the two marriage partners had nearly halved the premium he first thought Diamond Shamrock shareholders would get, Bricker said.

He said it appeared last week that shareholders of the Dallas company stood to receive a $6 or $7 premium for their stock and an increase in dividend from $1.76 to $2.50.

Bricker told the Dallas Times Herald that the Diamond Shamrock board got its first look at the plan when they met Monday, and by then the premium for Diamond Shamrock stock was reduced to a range of $2 to $3 as Occidental's stock price dropped.

"The board had nothing other than a small batch (of documents) to brief them prior to Monday," Bricker said.

The Diamond Shamrock board was also concerned about the small role its managers would play in the merged company, Bricker said.

Hammer, the 86-year-old Occidental chairman has in recent years ousted half a dozen top Occidental officers with whom he did not agree and was considered unlikely to relinquish his iron grip on Occidental.

The deal was appealing to Occidental, Bricker said, because the company would receive "top-flight" Diamond Shamrock management, financial flexibility and high-quality coal and petroleum assets."

Bricker had labeled Occidental managers "a bunch of clerks holding professional positions." He added, however, that his criticism of Occidental management did not include Hammer or Ray Irani, Occidental's president and a former research director at Diamond Shamrock under Bricker.

Bricker said there were never plans for him to take a role in the new company "in any shape or form." He said had agreed to leave the company for $5 million.

In Los Angeles, Occidental denied rumors it is trying to salvage the deal.

"This matter is dead," said Frank Ashley, a spokesman for Occidental.

"This is incredible, Diamond Shamrock walking away from this," said Bruce E. Lazier of the Wall Street investment house Prescott, Ball & Turben. "Their shareholders are going to have a tough time matching what they would have gotten out of this."

The surprising termination of the deal knocked the wind from Diamond Shamrock's stock.

In composite New York Stock Exchange trading Tuesday, Diamond Shamrock fell by $1.87½ a share to $18.12½. It was the Big Board's most active issue for the second straight day, with 3.7 million shares changing hands.

Occidental's stock rose by $1 per share to $25, offsetting the $1 loss it posted a day earlier.

No closet advisers this term in office

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is embarking on his second term without the coterie of close aides and advisers who helped propel him into the Oval Office and guided White House operations and policy during his first term.

In a spur-of-the-minute, nationally televised announcement, the president surprised even his own staff Tuesday when he disclosed that two of his most senior advisers — Chief of Staff James A. Baker III and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan — are switching jobs.

The president praised the two men as having "compiled outstanding records of achievement" during his first four-year term, and explained the change by saying they sought new opportunities and challenges.

Reagan added that he hoped the swap would help them inject "renewed vigor" into their work and that he was confident it would "contribute substantially to our second term."

The moves were greeted with general praise on Capitol Hill, where Majority Leader Robert Dole said there were "no losers." Dole described both men as pragmatists who understand the need to reduce the deficit, but he also predicted the staff turnover would not have any affect on the president's opposition to tax increases.

Reagan himself addressed that point in an interview Tuesday with The Dallas Morning News. "The true believer in the White House is sitting in the Oval Office," Reagan said.

"No one has been whittling at me or trying to change my philosophy since I've been here," the president said. "Sometimes I wonder if some of those very vocal conservatives are really conservatives in conservatives' eyes. They're not in mine."

Reagan announced the switch barely 24 hours after it was put to him by his long-time aide and deputy chief of staff, Michael K. Deaver, who revealed his own intentions to leave the White House only last week.

According to presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, Deaver, Regan and Baker engineered the staff maneuver during the past several weeks, keeping the president in the dark until they had worked out the details of the arrangement.

The 73-year-old president endorsed the plan when it was put before him on Monday, Speakes said. Reagan's style has been to delegate many of the details of management to his staff, preferring that his aides reach a consensus before they approach him for a decision.

"Frankly, I thought it was a great idea. It sure beat having them decide to go back to private life," Reagan said in The Dallas Morning News interview.

But the job swap, along with several other major personnel changes announced in the early days of the New Year, means that few of the president's long-time California cronies and none of the "Big Three" aides who managed Reagan's White House during his first term will remain in their posts.

The top threesome — Baker, Deaver and White House Counselor Edwin Meese III — are all headed for positions outside the White House gates.

Deaver, who has complained about low pay at the White House, is expected to take a post in the high-powered whirl of Washington public relations.

Meese has been renominated for attorney general, and if confirmed, he will succeed William French Smith, another old friend of Reagan's who wants to return to private life in California.

William P. Clark, national security adviser to Reagan and also a close friend, left the White House to become interior secretary. His resignation was handed to the president last week, and he intends to return to California and his ranch.

Lyn Nofziger, one of the first to leave Reagan's senior staff after coming to Washington with Reagan from California, predicted there will be a "different approach" inside the White House under Regan's direction.

"Now all the troika will be gone. You have a new man in there," Nofziger said. Nofziger said he viewed the switch as a "good idea for everybody. ... (Regan) is a good administratior, he certainly is a strong supporter of the president."

First the strip, then the end play

By James Jacoby

Sometimes it looks as if the only challenge on a deal (today's, for example) would be to find a way to go set. On the first day of the World Team Olympiad last fall, one of the world's greatest players did find a way to be defeated in five hearts doubled.

Looking at all the cards, you might think that South would have to lose the two top hearts and a diamond for down one. That would be true except that when a defender wins a trick, he must then play to the next trick, often to his own disadvantage.

South trumped with a low heart from dummy on the opening lead of the spade king. Next came the heart queen, wisely ducked by East as his partner won the singleton king. West was now on lead and didn't like it. A spade would give a sluff and a ruff, a diamond would be away from the Q-J, and clubs were unattractive. He finally decided on a low club. South won the club jack, cashed the club ace, and then played another heart. East was in with the ace, but he had an easy return of the singleton diamond. Eventually West made a trick in diamonds, and declarer was down one.

South makes the contract if he plays a few more minor suit cards before putting East on play with the heart ace. If East can no longer exit with a diamond, he will have to lead either a spade, giving declarer a diamond sluff and a ruff, or a club, giving declarer a diamond discard and a free finesse.

TEATIME FARE

Cocoa Madeleines & Tea

COCOA MADELEINES

¼-pound stick butter, cut in 16 equal pats
½ cup sugar
½ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large eggs
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Beat together until blended the butter, sugar, cocoa and vanilla; beat in eggs one at a time, until blended. Sprinkle in the flour and baking powder; beat gently until blended. Spread a rounded tablespoon of the batter in greased madeleine pan wells (each 2 tablespoon capacity). Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 5 minutes. With the tip of a paring knife, loosen edges; with a small spatula remove to a wire rack, shell-shape side up. Makes 24. Given on request.

"I THOUGHT YOU ALREADY TOLD ME FOR THE LAST TIME TO EAT MY CARROTS!"

Attempt fails to free accused's stepmother

HOUSTON (AP) — The attorney for a woman jailed for failing to testify about a slaying in which her stepson is accused says he's depressed by yet another refusal to free her.

U.S. District Judge Carl Bue Tuesday became the third federal judge to deny Odette Port's appeal. Mrs. Port was jailed Sept. 12 for refusing to answer a grand jury's questions about the June 7 killing of mail carrier Debora Sue Schatz.

Seventeen-year-old David Port is charged with murder in the slaying. He is free on $20,000 bond.

Bue rejected an argument by Mrs. Port's attorney, Randy Schaffer, that continued jail custody would not prompt her to cooperate with grand jurors, whose term expires Jan. 31.

Schaffer said he has been unable to "make the court come to grips" with the idea that Mrs. Port could not help in the state's search for grounds for capital murder charge.

"I'm getting tired of saying I'm disappointed," Schaffer said. "We thought legally we were in a sound position."

He said he plans no further appeal. The grand jury's term expires Jan. 31.

Bue held that the contempt citation issued by State District Judge I.D. McMaster has produced the desired effect by compelling Mrs. Port to testify about the case.

Mrs. Port and her husband, Bernard, were jailed last fall. They have argued their testimony would violate a parent-child privilege similar to one that allows spouses not to testify against each other. But Texas law does not recognize a parent-child privilege.

In November, the couple testified several hours before the grand jury. But McMaster freed only Bernard Port and ruled Mrs. Port's testimony was not sufficient to purge her of the contempt ruling.

Prosecutors contend Mrs. Port was the first person to return home the day Miss Schatz was killed and could have information to warrant upgrading the charges against David Port to capital murder, which carries a possible death sentence.

David Port is scheduled for trial next month in New Braunfels, a city about 175 miles west of Houston. The case was moved on a change of venue after the youth's attorneys argued it had attracted too much publicity to be tried fairly in Houston.

Bue said Tuesday he was "adopting the reasoning" of federal judges James DeAnda and Norman Black, who also have denied requests to set bond for Mrs. Port and permit her release.

"On Nov. 7, Mrs. Port, while still refusing to answer all of the questions propounded to her by the grand jury, did answer many of the questions," Bue said in seven-page ruling.

"Moreover, when called back for further questioning on Nov. 9, Mrs. Port answered a large number of the questions asked of her two days earlier, thus indicating that the coercive contempt order is having its desired effect."

Brad Beers, a prosecutor in the murder case, declined to comment on Bue's ruling, noting, "all of the attorneys in the David Port case are under a court gag order."

He said, however, that he expects all contempt citations in the case to expire when the grand jury term ends.

Miss Schatz's body was found two days after the killing in a remote wooded area of northwest Harris County.

Investigators searching the Port home said they found bloodstains, bullet holes and a collection of weapons. Officers said that Bernard Port gave them a recently fired .22-caliber pistol found in his son's room.

Republican withdraws name

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Sam Walsh said Tuesday he has withdrawn his election contest petition before the Texas House of Representatives.

Rep. Mike McKinney, D-Centerville, was sworn in Tuesday as a new representative from District 15. A hearing on Walsh's election contest had been scheduled Wednesday before a House committee.

Walsh was an apparent winner in early election counts but fell behind McKinney by 47 votes in a recount.

IRS says 299 taxpayers made big bucks but paid no taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two hundred ninety-nine couples and individuals with incomes over $200,000 used deductions and tax credits to avoid paying a penny of federal income tax in 1982.

Their income totaled $149 million.

The number of untaxed upper-income Americans was down slightly from the 304 who escaped the tax net in 1981 but considerably higher than the 114 recorded by the Internal Revenue Service in 1979.

However, since the number of returns with incomes over $200,000 a year more than doubled from 1979 to 1982, the IRS says, "a high-income return was 55 percent more likely to be non-taxable in 1982 than it was in 1979."

In 1979, about 9 of every 10,000 people above the $200,000 level paid no tax; by 1982 the portion had grown to more than 14 per 10,000.

The IRS is required by Congress to report annually on the tax status of Americans with incomes above $200,000. The report is based on the unaudited returns filed by these people, and the IRS declared that almost any change caused by an audit would add the 299 couples and individuals to the roll of taxpayers.

The latest report is for income earned in 1982 and reported on returns filed in 1983. The IRS said 207,291 couples and individuals reported incomes above $200,000 in 1982.

The report is understated in one respect. A favorite legal way of avoiding taxes is to invest in tax-free state and local bonds, whose interest is not even reported to the IRS. An uncounted number of Americans are pushed above the $200,000 threshold by their tax-exempt interest.

The biggest single means used by the 299 non-taxpaying returns to avoid any liability was the foreign tax credit, which allows a $1 reduction in U.S. taxes for each $1 paid to a foreign government.

On the other hand, 153 of the high earners paid no income tax to either the United States or any other country.

Sleeping With Obese Spouse Has Become Waking Nightmare

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A marriage of 35 years is about to end because my spouse has become repulsively obese. It's not that this person cannot "perform"—it's that I get totally turned off before I ever get to the bedroom.

Have you any advice for the partner of the fat one? I think I could handle sickness. A person can't help getting sick, but growing fatter and fatter because of overeating is another story.

If I just didn't have to sleep with that spouse, I could survive. What is there besides divorce?

TURNED OFF IN SEATTLE

DEAR TURNED OFF: There's understanding. Overeating is an addiction. Food, like drink and drugs, is used by many to make them feel better. Don't be judgmental or unkind. Communicate with your spouse on a loving level. Try to get that spouse to the family physician for an examination, a sensible diet and an exercise program. Then suggest Overeaters Anonymous. (There are chapters all over.) I've seen the miracles they have performed. It's worth a try. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you were a 5-foot-8, 60-year-old lady in love with a shrimp?

STATUESQUE

DEAR STATUESQUE: I'd get on my knees and thank God if he loved me back. Then I'd pray that no 5-foot lady was fishing off my dock.

DEAR ABBY: The 80-year-old woman who is heartsick about her 28-year-old grandson's decision to have a vasectomy should mind her own business. She says he already has two children and makes a meager living, so she pays his rent and utilities. I wonder if Grandma has given any thought to who will pay her grandson's rent and utilities when she's gone?

After we had a girl, then a boy, we decided our family was complete, so I had a vasectomy. We also heard a lot of "what ifs" from family and friends. "What if something happened to one of your children?"

We told them, "What if we had 10 children, our house burned down and we lost them all? One child could never be replaced with another."

I was asked, "What if your wife died, or you were divorced, and you married again and you wanted children with another wife, then what?"

I had my answer ready: "I'm covered at the sperm bank."

DEAR ABBY: I know you would want to give credit where credit is due, so please let your readers know that the originator of National Smokeout Day ("Quit smoking for 24 hours and you can quit forever") was Lynn Smith. He was at that time the editor and publisher of the Monticello Times in Monticello, Minn. (He's now retired.) Mr. Smith launched his quit-smoking campaign in 1974, and it was so successful that it went national in 1977.

Prison unrest rocks women's units

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas prison Director Raymond Procunier broke up a protest at a women's prison shortly after Christmas by pushing his way through a barricade, a spokesman says.

Procunier shoved open a door blocked by furniture and ordered prisoners to clean up the barricade Dec. 28, Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections, said Tuesday.

Jeanette Boudreau, acting warden of the Mountain View unit near Gatesville, was "told to take a few days off" after between 10 and 15 inmates sealed themselves inside a dormitory, Guthrie said.

Guthrie said Procunier discussed the inmates' complaints after they cleaned up the barricade.

Guthrie said the women were upset about rumored changes in some privileges, including how many shoes they would be allowed to keep in their cells and how much yarn they could have with them for a knitting project.

Guthrie said Ms. Boudreau "was not relieved, fired or in any way disciplined." But he said she was off the job for about a week because Procunier "was not entirely satisfied" with her communication with inmates.

None of the rumored changes were put into effect, Guthrie said.

Ms. Boudreau has since returned to work as an assistant warden at the unit, Guthrie said. Jerry L. Gunnels, 38, was named to the warden's job Monday.

Guthrie said a guard, Mary J. Reynolds, suffered first- and second-degree burns when inmates doused her with hot water during the incident.

Groups decry bumper idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Safety groups and insurance companies say a court decision upholding the Reagan administration's relaxation of automobile bumper standards spells a major defeat for consumers and leaves motorists with "eggshell protection."

A federal appeals court on Tuesday upheld a decision by the Transportation Department nearly three years ago to scrap a federal requirement that all cars have bumpers that protect the vehicle from damage in crashes up to 5 mph. The requirement was cut to 2½ mph.

Robots headed for prison guard duty

BOSTON (AP) — Faceless robots manufactured in Woburn are headed for a firm in Texas and ultimate use as prison guards.

Denning Mobile Robotics announced Tuesday that it had secured a $23 million to $30 million contract to supply Southern Steel Corp. of San Antonio with 680 Sentry robots, The Boston Herald said today.

Benjamin Wellington, vice president of Denning, said Southern Steel builds and renovates prisons and Sentry robots are an intrinsic part of the firm's new prisons.

The Sentry will be used on routine patrols and possibly in dangerous encounters with prisoners, he said.

"It can act as remote eyes, ears and voice for a guard," Wellington said. "The key is it knows where it is in the world. It doesn't just wander through blindly."

He described the Sentry as the first commerical autonomous robot, moving and responding to its environment.

Sentries are 4 feet tall, weigh 400 pounds and are equipped with navigational computers. They use ultrasonic signals to steer and to sense people through body heat.

The Sentry looks "very clean and high-tech. It doesn't have a face. It looks quite business-like," he said.

They also will be adapted for industrial security jobs, such as patrolling warehouses, he said.

The first robots are to be shipped to Southern Steel this summer.

Prehistoric bones found at work site

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bones of prehistoric mastodons uncovered at a construction site may be the second largest finding in North America, an expert said.

Ernest Lundelius, paleontologist with the University of Texas geology department, said Tuesday he was waiting for confirmation from the Smithsonian Institution that the site ranks second in quantity of remains to a mastodon site in Missouri.

The bones, teeth and tusks of mastodons, prehistoric elephant-like beasts, were found over the weekend in what may have been a watering hole more than 10,000 years ago.

The discovery was uncovered 17 feet below street level by a backhoe operator who noticed a flash of ivory in a mound of clay.

Lundelius said the bones were found in clay material which was probably the bottom of a pond on the old flood plain of the nearby Colorado River. Lundelius said he did not know if the construction crew would discover any more bones.

Scientists used hand shovels Tuesday to sift through the damp soil where the first bone was found Dec. 30, while bulldozers scooped up dirt from other parts of the excavation for a 22-story office tower.

Your Birthday

Jan. 10, 1985

Trends indicate that this could be a more fun-filled year for you than usual. Your popularity is on the rise and lots of social involvements are likely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, others will be receptive to your suggestions if presented in a friendly manner. When you try to impose your views, you'll encounter opposition. Your Astro-Graph predictions for the new year can help guide you to happier tomorrows. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extra cautious in commercial and financial dealings today. If you act impulsively without thinking, it could be costly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A valued relationship could be jeopardized today if you are too insistent upon having your own way. Be flexible and bend a bit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you do a favor for another today, do it with a happy heart. Under no conditions should you put strings on your deed or make the recipient feel obligated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might find yourself in an uncomfortable position today where peer pressure is exerted on you to do something you'd rather not. Don't yield.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point today not to bring work or office problems into your household. They can't be resolved at home and they'll only cause disruptions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to take competitive social activities too seriously today. Play to win, but don't let it become a matter of life or death.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep your generosity within reasonable bounds today. You might have to write the debt off later if you make a loan to a poor risk.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Listen to what others have to say today but don't discount your own judgment. Your conclusions may be far wiser than theirs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone fond of you may invite you in on something good today, but this person's offer could be rescinded if you involve others he dislikes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Instead of trying to be head honcho today, blend into the group. It will put your pals at ease and you'll have more fun being one of the crowd.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Success could elude you today if you try to do too many things at one time. Keep your priorities in order and take unnecessary irons out of the fire.

Gunman bails out, disappears

NEW YORK (AP) — On the eve of his arraignment on charges of trying to kill four youths on a crowded subway train, Bernhard Goetz bailed himself out of jail with a $50,000 check and slipped quietly away.

Goetz, who has become a hero to many crime-weary straphangers, shunned public efforts to provide his bail and posted it himself with a cashier's check early Tuesday evening, said Correction Department spokesman Edward Hershey. Hershey said he believed the $50,000 was Goetz's own.

Goetz was scheduled to be arraigned in Manhattan Criminal Court this morning on four counts of attempted murder.

He allegedly shot the four teenagers on Dec. 22 after they approached him on a crowded subway car and asked first for a match, then for the time and finally for $5. Saying "I have $5 for each of you," Goetz stood up and fired five shots from a .38-caliber revolver, according to police.

Two of the four youths have been released from hospitals. One, James Ramseur, 19, was released from Bellevue Hospital Tuesday for a court appearance and then readmitted. The fourth, Darryl Cabey, 19, is paralyzed below the waist from a bullet in the back and remains at St. Vincent's Hospital.

In the court appearance, all the youths but Cabey said they would not testify before a Manhattan grand jury because District Attorney Robert Morgenthau refused to grant them immunity from prosecution.

Boston College falls; Hoyas roll on, 90-70

by The Associated Press

Recognition hasn't been much of a blessing for Boston College's basketball Eagles.

Thanks to the attention lavished on Doug Flutie and rest of BC's football team, the basketball players labored in glorious anonymity while winning 10 straight games. Only when the Eagles lost for the first time - an 82-80 overtime decision to No. 1 Georgetown last Saturday - did Boston College gain a spot in the national rankings.

BC's first outing as a ranked club proved just as disappointing when No. 7 Syracuse rallied for a 64-58 victory Tuesday night.

"I feel frustrated, rather than down," said Boston College Coach Gary Williams.

BC led 43-34 in the second half but Syracuse went on a 10-2 run featuring three baskets by Dwayne Washington to bring the Orangemen back.

In other games involving ranked clubs, Patrick Ewing hit 15 of 17 shots from the field in a 33-point performance to pace Georgetown to a 90-70 romp over Seton Hall and Clemson's Vincent Hamilton scored 27 points to pace the Tigers to a 90-81 victory over No. 9 Georgia Tech.

Georgetown, 14-0 overall and 3-0 in the Big East, rolled to a 40-26 halftime edge over Seton Hall and turned the game into a rout with a 14-6 spurt opening the second half.

Ewing enjoyed the third 30-point game of his career.

Georgia Tech, 10-3, was condemned to its second loss in three Atlantic Coast Conference starts when the Yellow Jackets couldn't find a way to stop the hot-shooting Hamilton. Clemson's bomber hit 12 of 16 shots from the floor, many from the 20-foot range. Bruce Dalrymple led Tech with 24 points.

At Raleigh, N.C., reserve guard Terry Gannon scored 10 points to spark North Carolina State to a 51-45 victory over Virginia, snapping a three-game losing streak that had cost the Wolfpack a spot in the Top 20.

In other games Tuesday night, it was Army 63, Fordham 59; Niagara 71, New Hampshire 69; James Madison 80, Old Dominion 68; Western Kentucky 75, Jacksonville 64; Wake Forest 79, Furman 64; Iowa State 106, Abilene Christian 86; Toledo 67, Kent State 58; New Mexico 64, Baptist of South Carolina 59; and Pepperdine 90, Colorado 64.

WIN AGAIN – Snyder's girls defeated Lake View 51-42 here Tuesday, upping their season record to 15-4 and their district mark to 4-1. Above, Coach Ken Housden instructs his Tigers during a timeout. Tigers blast Chiefs; meet 'Stockton next

SAN ANGELO – Snyder's Tigers opened with a hot hand here Tuesday night and went on to defeat San Angelo Lake View, 76-43, in District 2-4A play.

The Tigers, now 7-12 for the season and 2-1 in district action, will trek to Fort Stockton for a 2:30 game Saturday afternoon.

Coach Larry Scott said his Tigers should have no trouble getting ready for Fort Stockton, despite the Panthers' 0-3 loop record.

"Fort Stockton beat us last year at their place and we've got that to think about," said the coach. "I think you can pretty well forget all your records and everything. In our situation, I know when Lake View heard our record they thought 'Hey, here's a team we can beat.' We tell our kids we have a new season start in district and everybody has a chance to knock you off."

Tuesday, Snyder ran up a 22-10 lead in the first quarter and extended it to 41-22 by halftime. The Tigers put the game away by outscoring the hosts 22-11 in the third period.

"We hit our first five shots and that really helped. We played real good, rebounded well. We switched our defenses up a whole lot. It was a good game for us," said Scott.

Snyder got double-figure scoring from four players. Jackie Anderson, who missed last Saturday's game because of illness, led with 19. Bobby Scott put up 15 while Trey Tippens and James Powell added 10 each. True to the Tigers' balanced attack, Mike McWilliams pitched in 8 points and Charles Bollinger had 7.

Snyder outrebounded the hosts 42 to 13. Anderson handled 9 rebounds while Tippens had 7 and Garrett 6.

Ed Franco led Lake View with 14 points.

Snyder hit 32 of 51 shots from the field and was 12 of 17 from the freethrow line. Lake View, which fell to 2-14 and 0-3 with the loss, was just 21 of 57 from the field and 1 of 4 from the line.

The Tigers played without the services of Wade Forga, who was ill.

In other action here Tuesday, Snyder junior varsity popped Lake View 55-43.

Bad night for Pecos

PECOS – It was a tough day for Pecos High School here Tuesday.

Both basketball teams lost to Andrews. The Lady Eagles didn't simply lose. They were defeathered 100-18 by the fifth-ranked Mustangs.

Pecos' boys, undefeated in their first two District 2-4A games, also lost to Andrews, 64-54.

All of that was overshadowed by a doctor's report that could darken the senior season of Elias Payan. Payan, a three-sport standout performer, was diagnosed as having "frayed nerve endings" in his arm.

The diagnosis cuts short his basketball season, but perhaps more importantly leaves doubt as to his baseball future. Payan was an All-District pitcher for 2-4A runnerup Pecos last year. Sources at Pecos indicate that it is doubtful he will be able to pitch for the Eagles in 1985, at least on a regular basis.

Payan would be one of four first-team all-loop returning starters for Pecos, which also brings back two honorable mention picks.

Hogeboom to stay, at least for awhile

DALLAS (AP) - After a talk with head coach Tom Landry, Dallas Cowboys quarterback Gary Hogeboom said he wants to remain with the club even if it means competing with Danny White for the starting job again as in 1984.

On several occasions last year, Hogeboom had said he wanted to be traded if the Cowboys weren't going to give him the first-team role.

Landry had also indicated that, rather than continue the quarterback controversy, he would attempt to deal either White or Hogeboom during the off season. But several days ago, Landry said he planned to sit down with both of his quarterbacks and hadn't decided whether to trade either or, if so, which one.

"We had a real good talk," Hogeboom told the Dallas Morning News Tuesday.

Hogeboom said the coach told him that everything depends on what happens in the off-season.

"He said Danny and I both could be here," Hogeboom said. "If that happens, we will just have to fight for the job."

Landry said he met with Hogeboom for 15 minutes Monday. He said he wants to meet with White, too, before he leaves next week for his Super Bowl assignment with ABC.

"At this point, I don't have any intention of trading either one," Landry said. "But I can't say I won't. If I can help the team enough, I would trade most anybody."

Landry also said that he has had no inquiries about a trade involving White, whose market value is higher than Hogeboom's.

"There have been no calls from other teams," Landry said, but he added that he had been "out of pocket" since Christmas.

Landry said he will pick a starting quarterback next season and stick with him. This season, Hogeboom started the first eight games and two others. White started six, including the last four.

"If he's going to open it up to the best player, that's all I can ask for," Hogeboom said. "And that's all Danny can ask for."

Girls post 51-42 win; are 4-1 in loop play

Snyder's Lady Tigers won their fifth game in a row here Tuesday night, whipping the San Angelo Lake View Maidens 51-42.

The win, the Tigers' third straight in 2-4A wars, gives Coach Ken Housden's bunch a 15-4 season record; 4-1 in district play. Lake View fell to 5-9 and 1-4.

Snyder will play again on Saturday, hosting Fort Stockton at 2:30 in the high school gym.

The Tiger junior varsity also won Tuesday, nipping Lake View 29-27 in double overtime. The Cats, boasting a 12-1 season mark, will host Fort Stockton at 1 o'clock Saturday.

"We kind of played in spurts but we managed to hold on to the lead and even build on it there for awhile," said Coach Housden of the varsity performance.

"The Tigers showed they could come through without a big game from leading point-gatherer Karlene Thompson, who never got on track in the contest. The 5-8 junior, who normally scores in the 20-point range and pulls down double-figures in rebounds, managed only 4 points and 6 boards.

But her teammates filled in the gap admirably. Wendy Lunsford took up much of the slack as she punched in 12 points. Donna Anderson added 9 and dominated on the boards with 20 rebounds.

That, plus a steady, 16-point performance from senior all-loop player Carie Housden and good work off the bench from Becky Gray, Threasa Ashworth and Christi Comer, kept Snyder on top.

"Becky and Wendy came in and played real well. So did Threasa and Christi. Donna had a pretty good offensive game and she really came through on the boards," said Coach Housden.

"Add Stephanie McKnight's six steals and seven assists, and the Tigers were clearly the better team.

Snyder opened the game by hitting its first four field goal attempts for an 8-0 advantage. Lake View came back, although Snyder kept a 12-6 lead going into the second quarter.

The Tigers added a margin of two more points in that period for a 22-14 halftime advantage and broke the game open in the third when Gray came off the bench to score six straight points, 32-16.

Lake View, bouyed by 5-10 forward Krista Olin, cut the lead to 34-22 by the end of the third quarter. But the Maidens never got closer than eight points the rest of the game.

Olin scored 14 points to lead the Maidens. Jana Williams added 12.

Earlier in the evening, Jill Roemisch intercepted a pass and put up what proved to be the winning points with 60 seconds left in double overtime to propel Snyder junior varsity to its win. Teammate Stacy Dunk added a pressure freethrow with 18 seconds left to add insurance.

Both teams had chances to win in the first overtime and in the second but could not hit their freethrows. Lake View's Lisa Lumpkins went to the line three times in the final 1:37 of the second overtime but managed only a single point.

Leslie Ward led the Cats with 9 points while Deedra Tomlin scored 8. Tiffany Jackson had 12 for Lake View.

Crafts store opened to raise needed funds

HENDERSON, Texas (AP) — Irene Harkness was about at the end of her rope. The Henderson woman is constantly raising money for Rusk County needy and even donated her own money.

To the point it was beginning to hurt her family finances.

So, this fall, she did the only logical thing.

Moving all of the stereos and televisions sets out of a corner of her husband's TV repair shop, she opened Harkness Galleries, a consignment arts and crafts shop whose profits she uses to fund her charity work.

Surrounded by handmade dolls, she sat in her shop and reflected back over 16 years of intense volunteer charity work.

"I did not go out and seek this," she said. "They find me."

While she works with many Henderson civic cubs, most of her charity work is done with individual cases. Her penchant is helping victims of disease, car wrecks and house fires in which everything is lost. "I have to work one-on-one," she said.

Most weekends, Mrs. Harkness and her small corps of volunteer students can be found on Henderson street corners and busy intersections seeking donations to one cause or another.

She said she tries to get as many young people as possible involved in charity work because it instills in them early on a sense of caring.

"I feel more and more people are building walls around themselves and they're becoming immune to other people's suffering," she said. "I tell them — 'When you go home tonight you're going to sleep well because you're going to feel good about yourself.'"

Helping others seems to come naturally to Mrs. Harkness. Sixteen years ago, as the wife of a civilian supervisor in the Marines and travelling all over the world, she began to make others feel more at home.

"No matter where I was, I was always putting together something for someone," she said. "The chaplains used to come to my house and I'd feed 42 people at a time."

Mrs. Harkness said she feels obligated to help others less fortunate. She said she has been blessed with a happy marriage and four children and said she feels God wants her to help others because of that blessing.

"I try to live every day as I feel is a good Christian, loving life," she said. "I think God has a reason for each one of us experiencing what we do so we can trun around and use it."

Mrs. Harkness has had a lot of experiences to draw on.

Born in Long Beach, N.Y., in 1930, Mrs. Harkness grew up living the life most only dream of. At the age of 17 she modeled for "Seventeen" magazine. The next year, she ran errands for Sid Caesar and Imogene Coco on "The Show of Shows."

"That apprenticeship I served there for a year was fascinating," she said.

It was the organization and production skills she learned then that she says have helped her become successful at staging fundraising events.

She's also drawing on those skills in her gallery, which she said is being used solely to fund her charity work.

But after she opened her gallery, she said she found another need she was helping to fill — aside from art and trade shows there is no permanent home market for Rusk County artists.

"It's to give a market to designers and artists we have in the area," she said of her gallery. "That's the fascinating part about this — going to meet these people and seeing how they do this."

Right now, her space is somewhat limited and she only has room for things like meticulously crafted hand-made dolls and wooden toys. But as soon as she can move some more television sets,

Of the 10 applicants currently under consideration, he said two of them had criminal justice-related degrees.

Under the law, the district judge has the power to appoint the adult probation officer. The appointment of the juvenile probation officer must be made by a three man board, however, consisting of the district judge, Scurry County Judge Preston Wilson and Borden County Judge Van York.

Dulaney said the feeling of the board is they would like to find one individual who could take over the combined position of adult and juvenile probation officer.

the nation's top collegiate lineman.

He was due at Snyder city hall beginning at 4 p.m. Wednesday to meet with local fans and to be on hand as "Tony Degrate Day" is officially declared here.

His appearance before an assembly of SHS students Thursday morning will be in Worsham Auditorium from 11:15 until 11:40 a.m.

From 7 until 9 p.m. Thursday, the Snyder Country Club will be the scene for a dinner in his honor. Some 220 tickets printed for the event are reported already sold out.

In addition to UT Coach Akers, many of Degrate's former high school teammates and friends, as well as former and current coaches, are expected to be on hand.

Degrate's parents — Sidney and Gracie Degrate — will also be in the audience to see their son honored.

Minors injuries noted following noon wreck

A two-vehicle accident just before noon here Tuesday resulted in both drivers being sent to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

It was one of four traffic mishaps reported or discovered in Snyder Tuesday.

The accident with injuries occurred at the intersection of 35th St. and Ave. V at 11:58 a.m. Involved vehicles were a 1982 Mercury driven by Faye Deffebach of 3774 Ave. V and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Wesley Ball, also of Snyder.

Both Deffebach and Ball were taken to the local hospital by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder where they were treated and released.

Police discovered and filed Tuesday's first minor accident report at 8:11 a.m.

According to reports, a hit-and-run driver apparently knocked a city owned stop sign at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. B sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

The day's second mishap was recorded at the intersection of 37th St. and College Ave. at 11 a.m.

Involved in it were a 1979 Chevrolet driven by Haywood John Clay of 3301 Ave. M and a 1977 Pontiac driven by Betty Bolton Whitaker of Ira.

The 1800 Block of Huffman Ave. was the scene of Tuesday's last mishap at 2:40 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1977 Ford driven by Rafael Hernandez Torrez of 309 36th St. and a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Petra Delao Martinez of Rt. 3, Snyder.

Phone calls case closed

Police here reported clearing a complaint of harassing phone calls Tuesday evening with the identification of a juvenile suspect in the case.

A phone company trap was used to identify the source of the calls. Police say they had been placed over the past several days to one and possibly more residences.

Officers have turned the case over to county and district court authorities for disposition.

In other action, city police jailed one local man for public intoxication Tuesday evening.

Lawmakers are told about money woes

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators gathered for a second day today after hearing gloomy predictions about the state government's money woes and a list of other key issues that will command their attention this year.

House Speaker Gib Lewis urged lawmakers to avoid raising taxes, while Sen. Ray Farabee, new president pro tem of the Senate, cautioned that the state faces tough choices.

"We will do with what we have, or we will do without," Lewis vowed as the 69th Legislature opened its 1985 session shortly after noon Tuesday.

"Texas is at a crossroads, and we must decide whether to continue or terminate programs created over the past 100 years," added Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

Lewis, a Fort Worth Democrat first elected to the House in 1971, noted that state Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that the $36.6 billion in state revenue expected for the 1986-87 biennium will fall $1 billion short of what is needed to pay for state government services at 1985 levels.

"It is my intention, with your help, to (adjourn) this session with an appropriations bill on the governor's desk that is within the available revenues of this state," he told colleagues.

"We will have to demonstrate beyond a doubt the truth of the statement that biggest is not always best and this goes double for state government and state spending," Lewis said.

Declining oil prices, the national economic recession, disastrous weather and financial difficulties in Mexico have combined to create trouble for Texas, Lewis said.

While increasing taxes would make up the difference, Lewis cautioned lawmakers that their responsibility to the public should be their overriding concern.

"It is now our turn to keep faith with the people of this state," he said. "We will have to make difficult decisions across the board to trim state spending whenever and wherever possible."

In a challenge to federal judges who have imposed their wills on the Texas prison and mental health systems, Lewis also voiced the belief that the state should contest the court rulings in the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I am tired of trying to make reasonable deals with unreasonable people," he declared. "I am not ready to abdicate ... to any judge until Texas has pursued its right to the highest courts in this land."

Both houses organized for business during brief sessions Tuesday.

The Senate chose Farabee, a 10-year veteran, to be assistant presiding officer. Senators got their committee assignments from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. The 31-member upper chamber also invited new Chief Justice John Hill of the Texas Supreme Court to address a joint legislative session later this month.

In the House, Lewis was the only lawmaker nominated for speaker. He said he probably would announce committee appointments next week.

In his acceptance speech, Lewis said the Legislature will be forced to address many issues besides the budget in a session he described as "one of its most difficult" in recent years.

The list included:

— A statewide water use plan. Following a year of significant drought across the state, Lewis said, legislation is needed to deal with both development and water conservation. "If Texas is to survive one of its greatest crises of all time, we must enact a statewide water plan that will meet the needs of generations to come," he said.

— Crime. The speaker said he will push for a package of bills designed to beef up crime-fighting efforts. This includes continuing authority for wiretaps in felony narcotics investigations; keeping a state law requiring that a copy of prescriptions for some dangerous drugs be given to the state Department of Public Safety; applying the death penalty to people committing more than one murder, and allowing juries to be told the effects of parole when deciding punishment for those convicted of crimes.

— Health care. "We will be asked to undertake new advances in the constant battle to deliver better health care to our citizens, especially those who lack adequate means to always provide for themselves," Lewis said. "We must never lose sight of the fact that compassion is an equal responsibility of government."

The 150-member House that assembled Tuesday included 30 freshmen and a total of 52 Republicans, the most in recent times. The Senate included two new members.

Other officials said they believe Lewis means his "no new taxes" pledge.

"I think the speaker is committed to no tax increase and living within whatever revenue estimate Bob (Bullock) sends us," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Dick Merkel, Lewis' press secretary, said he thought the no-tax vow was one reason fewer bills were introduced in advance of the session this time than in past years.

"One of the reasons we've seen so few pre-filed bills is that the word has pretty well gotten out that if it's going to cost money, don't do it," Merkel said.

Indictment caused Parker, family, associates problems

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Carl Parker, indicted four months ago on felony criminal charges that later were dismissed, says the charges dried up his law practice, put him $200,000 in debt and taught him the meaning of true friends.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, talked about an ordeal he compared to "incurable cancer" minutes before being sworn in Tuesday for another legislative term.

The 50-year-old lawmaker said he never doubted that he would return to the Legislature.

Parker was indicted on Sept. 11 by a Jefferson County grand jury on felony charges of aggravated promotion of prostitution, wholesale promotion of obscene material and aggravated perjury.

Visiting State District Judge Perry Pickett, Midland, dismissed the indictments Nov. 14, a week after Parker was re-elected without opposition. The judge said evidence presented at a pretrial hearing indicated some grand jurors may have been biased.

Even today, however, Parker's problems are not over. A new grand jury in Beaumont has begun hearing evidence against him.

"Oh, God, it was awful. It's kind of like somebody telling you you've got incurable cancer," Parker said of the original indictments.

"My daughters cried, my son got mad, and (his wife) Beverly — she's a trooper. I'm sure she's just overwhelmed by it."

Asked how people responded to the indictments, he said, "Well, it was more than I had hoped for, better than I had hoped for. You never know when you're charged with a heinous thing how people will react."

On the first Sunday after his indictment, Parker attended church at Memorial Baptist in Port Arthur. He recalled that former state Rep. Otis Lee stood up at the close of the service "and said he had known me since I was a boy, and he was standing in support of me, and other members that felt the same way he did should stand, too.

"Everybody in that church stood up," Parker said.

He said within a week he got 500 to 600 favorable telephone calls from all over the state and about 250 to 300 letters of support.

"I even got some from Republican officials locally, because they knew that it was a bunch of garbage," he said.

Local lawyers started a fund to pay Parker's legal fees and raised "substantial money," he said.

Parker said he only received "one nasty letter — from Lubbock," and "one crank phone call from a county that wasn't even in my district."

In winning re-election, Parker got 64.3 percent of the Jefferson County vote, but acknowledged the indictments probably cost him support.

Aware that the district attorney's office was scheduled to present evidence in the case again Tuesday, the opening day of the Legislature, Parker asked, "How's that for timing?"

"I've gone almost $200,000 in debt to find out and take statements from almost everybody that appeared before that other grand jury, and unless they're swearing to two different statements, there is no evidence of criminal activity against me," Parker said.

He said he had been accustomed to getting new law business from a half dozen clients a day, but after the indictments, "Just overnight, it was kind of lonesome around the office. Nobody was coming in."

Reflecting on how the indictments had changed his life, Parker recalled that "somebody said it was a blessing in disguise. What a disguise.

"Oh, there are some blessings. The blessings are that you find out there are some people who truly care about you, and it makes you stop — just as if you had been told you had terminal cancer — and think about what's really important and what's not.

Actor Vincent Price now has new role as pop star idol

NEW YORK (AP) — At 73, Vincent Price, "The Merchant of Menace," has found a new generation of fans because of his monologue on Michael Jackson's hit song, "Thriller," and the current film festivals and late-night TV broadcasts featuring his old horror flicks.

"You really feel ancient when they start showing retrospectives of your work," said Price. "That, and when you're in a wax museum. It all makes you feel as if you've been buried."

Back from the casket, Price's career received a boost from the spooky verse he performed on "Thriller." All it took was one day to tape his rap, and now kids are turning up at his lectures, where he performs a campy version of Jackson's trademark dance, the moonwalk.

"I'm finally famous," he told the newsletter for his alma mater, Yale University.

Price, the suave host of public television's "Mystery!" series, is also friendly with other rock stars, including Alice Cooper and mes of the group Kiss.

It was Price's work in Cooper's music video, "Welcome to My Nightmare," that interested Jackson's producer, Quincy Jones. "I think I might be the only one left who is identified with that kind of title," Price said.

About the enigmatic Jackson, Price said, "he couldn't be more adorable. I really don't know him very well. But he did send me a platinum album."

It might surprise some that Price was born and raised in St. Louis, Mo. Even as a kid he had a distinctive voice. His deep resonance gained a continental flavor when he was a young art student in England.

Price has appeared in more than 100 films, the bulk of them straight dramatic roles ("Laura," "The Three Musketeers"). He says his career direction took a turn toward the bizarre when actors like "James Dean and Marlon Brando came along and stopped speaking English."

His serious films and musical sojourns aside, Price's legacy will always be his horror movies, including "The Pit and the Pendulum," "The House of Wax" and the spoofy "Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein" and "Dr. Goldfoot and the Sex Machine."

Price says many of today's horror films are repugnant, not scary, substituting sex and gore for the good old-fashioned surprises and shockers.

Price said the public has become desensitized and immune to violence, but it still appreciates a good BOO! now and then.

"Mystery!" is more faithful to the old classics, and that's why Price thinks viewers are so loyal to this clever, well-crafted series, which has the three-part "Praying Mantis" starting Thursday, followed by the six-part "Agatha Christie Mysteries."

In April, TV audiences can see Price as Sir Desfard Murgatroyd in Gilbert & Sullivan's "Ruddigore." A gourmet chef with two cookbooks to his credit, the veteran actor also pops up in TV commercials for the American Dairy Association and other products.

America's households shrink

(Source: U.S. Census Bureau) NEA GRAPHIC

During the past 50 years, families in America have swapped togetherness for personal freedom. Government statistics show that the average size of U.S. households has dropped steadily ever since the 1930s.

No authority to collect tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general held Tuesday that the Guadalupe County tax collector has no authority to collect fees for preparation of lists of delinquent taxpayers or purchasers of new automobiles.

The opinion was asked by former District Attorney Houston Munson, Gonzales, who said the county tax collector's office staff in the past has been hired to produce lists of names of delinquent taxpayers for the attorney hired to collect delinquent taxes. The money received for the lists was divided among the tax collector and his deputies.

Chocolate and breast disease

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In a recent column, you recommended that women with fibrocystic disease should give up smoking and should stop drinking coffee. I hope you will add some more items to your list.

My breasts swelled for two weeks out of four for 15 years. Then a friend of mine who had this problem was told to give up both coffee and chocolate, and her trouble ended.

I had eaten chocolate for as long as I could remember, so I decided to try cut out chocolate and cut down on coffee.

The results were astounding. In two weeks, I had improved so much that I knew the problem was caused by chocolate. The pain and swelling were gone. Please spread the word and add chocolate to the list of items to be eliminated.

DEAR READER — Caffeine is one of a group of drugs called xanthines, which may affect fibrocystic disease of the breast. These drugs include caffeine, theophylline and theobromine. Cocoa and chocolate are high in theobromine, and the amount of caffeine they contain is disputed. In general, if you want to try this approach to relieving the symptoms of fibrocystic disease, you should not drink tea (including the decaffeinated variety), coffee (you might be able to use decaffeinated coffee), colas that contain caffeine, chocolate or cocoa. You also should not smoke. For the best results, you should follow this program for at least one year.

Some studies have not demonstrated good results with this program, but those studies were of short duration and not all of the sources of xanthines were controlled.

No one with lumps of any sort in the breasts should follow such a self-treatment program without a physician's examination. Let the doctor decide what you have; otherwise, you might miss a dangerous lump.

I'm sure you will want to read The Health Letter 18-12, Breast Basics, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We installed a water softener 25 years ago. Then two years ago, I developed edema. On a hunch, I called our Health Department for an analysis of our water. They told me the sodium content was abnormally high. We disconnected the water softener, but I still have edema.

I was also informed recently that I had a mild case of congestive heart failure. I spent 10 days and nights under oxygen. I was told the edema and congestive heart failure were related. Can one overcome edema and congestive heart failure?

DEAR READER — You did the right thing in disconnecting the water softener. When you have congestive failure, your body retains sodium. That, in turn, leads to water retention. The retained water causes the edema — swelling of the feet and ankles. This is why many physicians put patients with congestive heart failure on a salt-restricted diet.

Obviously, if you are going to restrict salt in your diet, you don't want it in your water either.

Yes, many patients with congestive heart failure successfully are treated. With medicines and salt restriction, the heart beats stronger and the excess fluid is eliminated.

Gramm nominates congressman for judge's post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Phil Gramm has chosen a colleague from his days as a Democratic congressman, U.S. Rep. Sam B. Hall Jr. of Marshall, for a U.S. district judgeship.

Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary, said Tuesday that Gramm had sent the names of Hall, Howell Cobb of Beaumont and Paul N. Brown of Sherman to the White House as nominees to fill three judgeships in the Eastern District of Texas.

"I am honored to have had my name submitted and if confirmed by the Senate will accept the appointment," said Hall in a statement issued by his office here. He was on his way to Taiwan at the invitation of a private trade group.

Gramm, who won the seat John Tower vacated last year, has said he was always impressed with Hall's knowledge of the law and thought he would make an excellent judge. Gramm and Hall were fellow members of the "boll weevils," conservative Democratic congressmen who broke party ranks and backed President Reagan's economic policies in 1981.

If Hall is confirmed, as expected, his congressional seat will be filled through a special election called by Gov. Mark White.

Hall would replace U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher of Beaumont, who is retiring. Brown and Cobb would fill newly created seats.

The next step is for the White House to send the nominations to the Senate, where the three will undergo confirmation hearings before the Judiciary Committee and then a vote on the floor.

Hall, 60, was elected to Congress in 1976. He serves on the House Judiciary Committee and chairs the subcommittee on Administrative Law and Governmental Relations. He received his law degree from Baylor in 1948.

Brown received his law degree from the University of Texas in 1950. He currently serves on the Texas Republican Executive Committee. Brown was Assistant U.S. Attorney, then U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Texas from 1951 to 1961.

Neal said there are still three vacant U.S. district judge jobs in Texas.

Vote by union pleases Phillips

BORGER, Texas (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. officials said they were pleased that employees here and in Utah agreed to defer pay increases so the company can regroup after an aborted takeover bid.

Although members of the Local 351 International Union of Operating Engineers in Borger approved the deferment, ballots from the company's 26,000 employees nationwide had not been totaled.
