Latest Crisis Prompts Panic Food Buying Spree By Poles

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity announced today it will go ahead with a four-hour warning strike Friday after the Polish government postponed crisis talks with the independent labor federation.

The government said today's scheduled talks were postponed until Friday because both sides were holding private consultations. However, it did not inform Solidarity in advance, and the union decided to go ahead with the planned warning walkout.

Panicky food shoppers formed the biggest lines in memory as they tried to prepare for a four-hour warning strike Friday and a general strike Tuesday that the government said could only be averted only if Solidarity officials compromised and curbed their lust for "holy war."

The lines outside Warsaw food shops snaked for blocks. Signs in liquor store windows said no spirits, wine and beer would be sold for the fourth consecutive day so that the already explosive atmosphere surrounding the union-government talks would not be further charged.

After 90 minutes of inconclusive talks Wednesday with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, the government's chief negotiator, Deputy Premier Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, said elements of the union of want "holy war," and that "without compromise we shall sink into chaos or even perhaps fratricidal fighting."

He said union agitation may "open a new, this time really tragic period in the history of post-war Poland," apparently a veiled warning that Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces currently on maneuvers might have to step in to end nine months of sporadic labor turmoil.

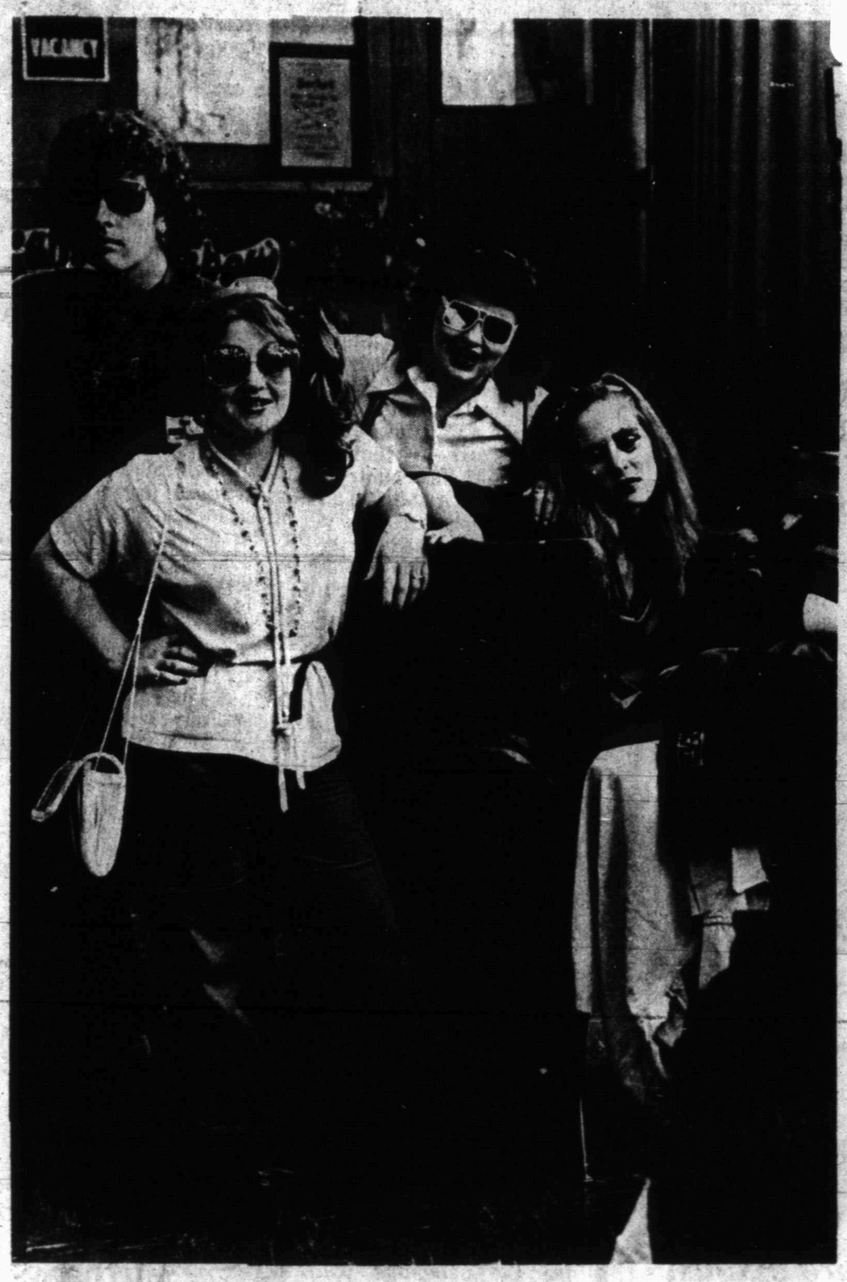

Solidarity wants the government to fire officials responsible for the police beating of union activists in Bydgoszcz last Thursday. One of the officials quit today and was replaced by a general, but Solidarity wants at least three more people dismissed, and is demanding other concessions.

The man who resigned was Edward Berger, the provincial council chairman in Bydgoszcz. He was replaced by Gen. Franciszek Kaminski, commander of the army's Bydgoszcz garrison and deputy commander of the Pomorski military region.

Solidarity's angry response to the reported police brutality plunged Poland into its worst crisis since the nationwide strike wave last summer but despite his grim words, Rakowski told Radio Warsaw he believes the strikes the labor federation has called Friday and next Tuesday can be averted.

Walesa had no immediate reation to Rakowski's warning. He emerged smiling from the meeting with him Wednesday and said the talks were adjourned for the night to await the results of the government's investigation of the incident in Bydgoszcz, an industrial center 170 miles northwest of Warsaw.

"Since there were no conclusions, there was no reason to sit 12 hours or so," said Walesa. But he added: "There would be no talks tomorrow if there had been no results today."

PUNK ROCKERS—The student council at Snyder High School designated yesterday as "Punk Rock Day," and several students turned out dressed for the part. Undercover Work Pays Off

GRANBURY, Texas (AP) — Weeks of undercover work, prompted by increased concern about drug trafficking through this small North Texas town, paid off in a big way for a recently hired police detective.

Carrying six search warrants and 37 sealed indictments, a state, county and city task force made 18 arrests on drug-related charges, authorities said. Thirteen of them remained in jail late Wednesday night.

Police Chief D.F. Steele said the undercover operation, led by detective Eric Blumberg, began after local officials grew concerned about the number of drug-related arrests they were making.

Distributors To Win Again

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Wholesale beer distributors are on the verge of winning another guarantee from the Texas legislature to protect their business in Texas.

The House today finally approved, 121-12, a measure limiting a brewer's right to cancel a distributor's franchise. The measure will be sent to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, called the measure a "Fair Play for Beer Distributors Bill."

But Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, called the Senate-passed bill a "boondoggle to protect incompetents," and chided Washington for going to bat for the beer middlemen.

Major Snag Hit By Drinking Bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill raising Texas' legal drinking age from 18 to 19 hit a major snag today as the House refused to accept a compromise worked out with the Senate.

House members voted 96-42 to reject the report of a House-Senate conference committee and call for additional negotiations.

The stumbling block was a House amendment saying a merchant or bar owner would be presumed to have "knowingly" sold alcoholic beverages to a minor if he failed to ask for a driver's license or other proof of age.

It is a crime to sell to minors only if done "knowingly," and the House amendment was designed to make the provision more enforceable.

Senators, however, refused to accept the House change.

The conference committee worked out a compromise giving beer and liquor sellers a defense if an under-age person looked 19 or older.

"You are going to see a lot more kids carded than you do under present law. I know that," said Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, sponsor of the bill.

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said, however, the change made the bill "totally unenforceable" and would create disrespect for law.

School organizations sought the bill as a remedy to what teachers said was a big increase in drunkeness in the schools.

Appraisal Office At New Site

The Scurry County Appraisal District has completed the transfer of its offices from the county courthouse to the Wallace Building on the northwest corner of the square.

Ray Peveler, chief appraiser for the district, said that regular office hours will be from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. daily, Monday through Friday.

Peveler said the new location provides considerably more room than the space used at the courthouse and that the staff has unpacked and is getting settled into its routine.

Meanwhile, the space in the courthouse vacated by the appraiser's office already has been taken over by Tax Collector Clarence Minton's office.

54 Attend CC Session

Fifty-four persons attended the quarterly Fun Breakfast held Thursday morning by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Rex Robinson, executive vice president of Snyder Natonal Bank, was winner of the $10 door prize. A drawing also was held for $300, but a representative of the law firm of Rosser, Armstrong and Terrell was not present.

Therefore, the door prize at the next chamber breakfast will be $400.

Joy Culwell of Colorado City presented a humorous program, and Delbert Downing of Snyder served as master of ceremonies.

Mike and Helen McLeod of McLeod Jewelry were introduced as new members of the chamber. Sponsors for the fun breakfast were First Natonal Bank, Snyder Truck & Tractor, and Thompson's Shoes.

Ask Us

Q.—Is it true that a person under 18 must take a special safety course before he can take the driving test for a motorcycle driver license, and if so, why hasn't the drivers license department furnished someone to give this safety class?

A.—A new law effective Jan. 1 this year requires completion of a class for motorcycle operators under 18 years of age before they can take the driving course, the Department of Public Safety reports. Also, a person must take the regular motor vehicle driving course (that offered in public schools) before he can take the motorcycle course. The DPS does not provide courses for any of these, since it is involved only in the driving tests for both automobiles and motorcycles. DPS spokesmen said they knew of no one offering the motorcycle course in this immediate area at this time.

The SDN Column

Mrs. J. E. Sorrells of Knapp passed along this story she picked up from Earl Nightingale, who, in turn, credits it to Henry Miller, the writer. It is an appropriate item for study at this time as varied reactions to the new federal administration's programs emerge and people wonder why many children seem to be unable to cope with life's problems or accept responsibility.

The story is about a small boy in India who walks up to a guru who is sitting and looking at something in his hand.

"What is that? asks the boy.

"It's a cocoon," the guru tells him. "Inside the cocoon is a butterfly. Soon the cocoon is going to split, and the butterfly will come out."

"Could I have it?" asks the boy.

"Yes," says the guru. "But you must promise me that when the cocoon splits and the butterfly starts to come out and he is beating his wings to get out of the cocoon you won't help him. Don't help the butterfly by breaking the cocoon apart. Let him do it by himself."

The little boy promised, took the cocoon and went home with it. He watched it until finally it began to vibrate and move and quiver, and then the cocoon split. Inside was a beautiful, damp butterfly, frantically beating its wings against the cocoon trying to get out and not seeming to be able to do so. The little boy desperately wanted to help, and finally he could resist no longer and he disobeyed the guru's orders. He pushed the two halves of the cocoon apart and the butterfly sprang out. But as soon as it got into the air, it fell to the ground and was killed.

The little boy picked up the dead butterfly, and in tears ran to the guru and showed it to him.

"You see, little boy," the guru said, "you pushed open the cocoon, didn't you?"

"Yes," said the little boy.

And the guru said, "You don't understand. You didn't see what you were doing. When the butterfly comes out of the cocoon, the only way he can strengthen his wings is by beating them against the cocoon. It beats against the cocoon so its muscles will grow. When you helped it the way you did, you prevented it from getting strong. That's why the butterfly fell to the ground and was killed."

The application of this story today should be obvious.

Over Foreign Policy...

Haig Apparently Puts Aside Reagan Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said today "the time has now come to get on" with the conducting of American foreign policy, apparently putting aside his differences with the Reagan White House over management of foreign policy crises.

"I have always been and remain in full agreement with President Reagan's substantive approach to foreign policy," Haig told a congressional subcommittee.

He testified amid uncertainty whether he would remain in office following Reagan's decision to put Vice President George Bush in charge of a new crisis management team, a position Haig wanted.

Members of his own staff were understood Wednesday night to be unsure whether the strong-willed Haig, described as "very upset," would stay on the job despite Reagan's assurances of support.

But Haig told the subcommittee it is "important that we all recognize it is the substance of American foreign policy that must be the focus of our attention."

He said that "sometimes form, organization and structure affect that substance."

"With respect to the so-called crisis-management situation, that form has been established and the time has now come to get on with the substance, the formulation of American foreign policy."

He said, "My energies will be dedicated in the period ahead to the substance of American foreign policy."

During his testimony on the administration's foreign aid program, Haig called for support for the $4.3 billion the president is asking for security assistance to friendly nations, and also for $1.9 billion in development assistance and $1.4 billion in contributions to international foreign-aid institutions.

At the outset of the hearing, the subcommittee chairman, Sen. Robert W. Kasten Jr., R-Wis., addressed the crowded hearing room, saying, "I'm pleased so many people are interested in foreign aid issues."

Pet Vaccination Day Set Saturday

Pet owners in Snyder will have an opportunity to get free city tags for their animals Saturday when the city and Snyder Jaycees hold their annual "Pet Vaccination Day."

Purpose of the event is to get all pets in the area vaccinated before the warmer months when the danger of rabies is greatest.

Pet owners are being urged to bring their animals to the livestock exhibit building on the Scurry County Coliseum grounds between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Saturday. Veterinarians will be on hand to vaccinate the animals, and the city will issue free tags. Although pet owners who live outside the city are not required to have the city tags for their pets, the tags can provide identification for them.

Rabies vaccination shots will be administered for $6 each during the day.

Pet Vaccination Day has attracted widespread participation here in previous years, and the sponsoring Jaycees and city officials are hoping that all pets in the area will be vaccinated this time.

yelp index roaring

Nothing is quite so bloodcurdling as the scream of a wounded federal establishment, we learned anew last week after the Reagan revisions of the Carter budget were announced.

Welfare recipients were being hauled into Washington to ask, in front of the TV cameras, where their next handout would be coming from, thus to reinforce the false suggestion that the Reaganites are going to throw poor people into the street. The director of the National Aquarium, apparently oblivious to the fact that some aquariums charge admission, was threatening to close his doors in response to funds cutoff. The Amtrak people were pitifully wondering what they would do with all the new rail cars they've bought. Federal Trade Commission lawyers were warning that they might have to drop investigations of film producers and a maker of teeth-cleaning equipment. And Department of Energy lawyers, also trying to save their jobs, were demanding yet one more investigation of the oil giants.

Budget Director David Stockman was being hustled from committee to committee on the Hill to be screamed at by Congressmen whose pet projects were being gored. Democrat James Oberstar of Minnesota had lined his subcommittee on economic development hearing room with pictures of all the wonderful things the nation's taxpayers had done to redevelop downtown Duluth. And the redoubtable Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum, who can always be counted on to fight for federal economic meddling, aimed a confusing tirade at Mr. Stockman:

"I think you've been brilliant. But I also think you've been cruel, inhumane and unfair. You're causing a perversion of justice for the poor, the middle class, the Northeast and the Middle West." Apparently, the budget cuts favor the Mid-Atlantic states, the South, the Great Plains, California and the rich.

The budget that has produced all this shock and consternation calls for the government to spend $695.3 billion in fiscal 1982. That's $48 billion less than Jimmy Carter wanted to spend, assuming that the hopeful economic predictions of the Reagan people prove valid, and are not, as some people think, over-optimistic. But it still is up 20% from fiscal 1980. And it's larger than the entire U.S. economy in 1965. It is hardly austere by any standard. It merely represents a recognition, which somehow escaped the Democrats during their recent four-year tenure, that the U.S. will soon bankrupt itself if it doesn't flatten out the upward curve in federal spending growth.

By happenstance, the same front pages of the Washington Post that recounted all the local cries of pain also told us something about the federal budget's spin-offs. One story reported a Census Bureau finding that one-third of all the households in the U.S. now receive some kind of non-cash federal benefits. Another disclosed that job gains in the Washington metropolitan area last year were double the U.S. average as government continued its expansionary march.

So far Mr. Reagan seems to have reacted to all this with typical unflappability. He sent out word through deputy press secretary Karna Small that his reaction to stories about 658,000 people getting their welfare benefits cut or ended was that "we heard the same thing when we reformed welfare in California." And that experience in that state alone was that 350,000 people left the dole with "no indication that any were victims of destitution."

In fact the cuts being suggested by the Reagan administration, while perhaps politically heroic, are not that drastic economically. The impressive thing is how much is left unchanged; no attempt was made to contain the indexing formulas that drive up federal payments faster than taxpayers' incomes, nor was anything substantial done to get a permanent grip on the open-ended entitlements that have driven up the budget over the last decade.

To judge by the yelp index, though, Mr. Reagan has at least started down the right track. But since the index could hardly have soared much higher than it did last week, we wonder whether the Reaganites might have erred in not doubling their cutbacks and getting twice as much mileage from the same amount of hysteria.

new wizard in town

A Kansas farm girl named Dorothy is swept up in a tornado and carried over the rainbow to the storybook Land of Oz.

On the yellow brick road she meets a tin man wanting a heart, a scarecrow lacking a brain and a lion in need of courage.

The four go together to the Wizard of Oz where each learns that what he wants -- he already has -- within himself.

Each is helped to find -- what he already has -- inside himself.

Nations of men -- collectively -- need a brain and a heart -- and courage.

The "wizards" of our own nation's recent past have federal-funded all of the heart and brain which our nation's economy can afford. Yet somewhere along the way we regressed into a cowardly country.

Americans, though educated and generous, are fearful.

We have been led by our great, generous heart into wars we were afraid to win.

Prospering industries -- including my own -- sedate themselves on drugs; reflective of a national amalga-mania.

Frightened individuals quaking at the thought of facing a new day -- unanesthetized.

City streets dominated by bullies while the frightened majority is cowering behind locked doors and barred windows.

For all our hearts and brains -- this Land of Oz has lost its guts.

Well--there is a new "Wizard" in town.

He is insisting that our lost courage is still within us.

Yet cowardly lions weep and growl and grumble.

You can hear them on the six o'clock news - whining, sobbing -- unwilling to be separated from their motherland's nipples.

Tenaciously they cling to those teats and their toys and their security blankets.

Cowardly lions.

Brainy scarecrows -- capable of big words but no other kind of bigness.

Compassionate tin men -- loving and generous -- and impotent.

Somehow they must be made to listen to the Wizard -- must be forced to face the Wicked Witch -- to rediscover the courage that is within them -- there and then to get it all together again.

Help him to help us again to be what we can be -- and then and there to recreate an Oz of such magnificence as neither fact nor fiction has ever envisioned before.

NEW YORK (AP) — The property-casualty insurance industry suffered an underwriting loss of at least $3 billion last year, and investment analysts who cover the industry say the losses may continue for years.

"In fact," says Allen Nadler, who studies the industry for Goldman Sachs, the big securities investment firm, "it is entirely possible that underwriting may never again be profitable."

Big awards by sympathetic juries, increases in the cost of automobile repairs, rising medical bills and inflation in general are among factors helping to spread the red ink across the industry's books.

And yet, some analysts say shares of property-casualty insurers are worthwhile investments. Nadler himself says some "appear to provide good value," especially for periods beyond 18 months.

The reason is suggested by another set of numbers.

Despite underwriting losses, says the Insurance Information Institute, the property-casualty industry last year earned $7.51 billion, up from $6.92 billion in 1979, a one-year gain of $590 million.

The gain, you might have surmised, came in part from the same source of the underwriting loss: It came as a result of inflation and other economic factors that drove up the return on money invested.

Last year the property-casualty people showed a net investment gain of $11.32 billion before taxes, coming mostly from dividends earned on stocks and interest earned on bonds, as well as from capital gains.

Insurance companies have lots of money to invest, and so long as they don't get caught by turns in the market, so long as they manage to ride with the investment tide, they tend to make money on investments.

An item called policyholders' surplus — holdings after liabilities have been deducted from assets — gives an idea of the amounts. Last year it reached $57.4 billion, up $10.5 billion for the year.

After viewing these investment results, you might correctly conclude that the business of insuring was poor, but the business of investing returned rich rewards. And Nadler expects the pattern will continue.

The industry is a good investment, he says, because it is "absolutely necessary for the world's economy." And, he says, it can be expected to continue offering dividend increases, underwriting losses or not.

There are deeper reasons too, connected for example with the ups-downs of the underwriting cycle, with inflation, and with what are considered by some analysts to be relatively low price-earnings ratios.

commentary

donald f. graff

If you want to stay on the right side of the U.S. State Department, stop reading. The subject of today's discussion is out of diplomatic favor.

It's El Salvador.

You say you've heard the name mentioned recently? How odd. Certainly that could have nothing to do with State having done its considerable best for some months now to present that country's multi-sided civil war as the greatest challenge to this country's security since the Cuban missile crisis. Or was it some fellow named Carter who made that comparison about a place called Afthanistan?

Whatever. Challenges come and go, and El Salvador is one the State Department has now decided should go to the bottom of the news columns.

Why? Because the press has overplayed it in the opinion of State as revealed to the newspersons on the diplomatic beat by a "senior official" who was otherwise initially nameless because that is the rule of the game played at State. One of the games.

Here it is not even 1984 and senior officials, if not yet Big Brother himself, are already busily rewriting history. Very recent history.

Those with even limited memories should be able to recollect that last fall Ronald Reagan was littering the campaign trail with attacks on the Carter administration's policies in El Salvador, its concern for human rights and reluctance to go all out in support of the Salvadoran military.

After the election, the Reagan transition operation was not so much leaking to the press as flooding it with promises of changes to be made in foreign policy, one of the first being the drawing of a line in El Salvador against Communist penetration of the Americas.

Early on after the inauguration, certain well-connected commentators — some whose professional histories just happend to include CIA connections — began hinting at the real dimensions of the Salvadoran crisis. SECRET intelligence reports of MILITARY aid reaching the MARXIST guerrillas from COMMUNIST sources.

After a barely decent interval, State took this show on the road. It dispatched teams to enlighten West European and Latin American governments on the awful details which it very shortly thereafter made public.

Really public. Special Report No. 80, Feb. 23, 1981, "Communist Interference in El Salvador," eight illustrated pages, was available not only to that portion of the press (most of it) without such hot Washington connections, but to anyone who cared to drop a line requesting a copy (postage and fees paid by State). Dissemination of No. 80 stopped just short of a bulk mailing addressed to "Occupant." Probably only because no one thought of it at the time.

By now we're ready for the real business — the new administration's announcement of its decision to meet the by now well-publicized threat in El Salvador with increased U.S. aid, most especially of the military variety.

Never mind that the junta's civilian president said no thank you and even his military colleagues mumbled that they didn't really need any. The warriors in Washington had decided they were going to get it anyway. Plus a platoon of American military advisers who, however, under no circumstances are to get anywhere near a real battle. This in a country where the U.S. Embassy had just served as a target range for rightest thugs and Americans, Salvadorans and whoever can get themselves killed in restaurants of the capital's downtown hotels.

So now State's senior official — since identified by his own boss Haig as John A. Bushnell, deputy assistant secretary for Inter-American Affairs — nails the press for running the story "about five times as big as it really is." Only five, when State's wolf-criers rate at least a 10 for effort in building it up? Under the circumstances, it would appear the press is guilty not of overplaying but of falling down on the job.

The story behind this headline is the administration's discovery that is has successfully focused attention on El Salvador at the cost of diverting attention from other foreign-policy issues and the domestic economic program. It cannot control what it has wrought.

Well, goodness gracious, golly sakes and gee whiz, fellas. Whenever you can take a few minutes off from trying to control the news, perhaps you should brush up on the story of Pandora's box.

Your Birthday

March 27, 1981

Problems can be avoided this coming year by acting in accordance with your finer qualities. Involvements in which your goals are lofty can bring you outstanding success; departures from your standards offer the opposite.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Situations that require partners or call for teamwork should turn out quite successfully for you today. You're luckiest when working in unison with another. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Work performed for a noble purpose is reward in itself, but services you render today to be helpful might also have a material bonus.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can learn much today by observing others. Notice especially how a bright associate manages people you may have to contend with later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to tackle those small home chores that you've never had quite enough time to finish. You'll take pride in knocking them off one by one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're competent in what you attempt today, and you're able to do it with a flourish. Onlookers will admire your style.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Stay on top of situations that mean dollars and cents to you today until they are concluded to your satisfaction. You're lucky in money matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't delegate to others today matters that affect your self-interests. They may be capable, but you can do the better job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Adhere to your hunches and instincts today in financial or business dealings. Your inner mechanism is zeroed-in on profitable signals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pals whose support you had difficulty in getting yesterday are likely to do an about-face today. Try asking again, but be sure to say "please."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's best to keep your secret ambitions to yourself today, because even those desiring to help you could get things off-track.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Substantial benefits could accrue today from dealings with people who match your high ideals. Maintain your standards.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Devote your efforts and energies today to ventures that are truly important. You have outstanding capabilities that shouldn't be wasted on trivia.

HERMLEIGH NEWS

By Adala Drennan

Mrs. George (Josie) Maule visited her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Carey, Sunne and Tracey of Fort Stockton recently.

Mrs. Weldon Bills is home from the hospital in Lubbock and is recuperating satisfactorily.

Angie and Lane Wall were met in Wichita Falls by their paternal grandparents last week for a few days visit during the spring break.

Mrs. Mary Neal Mayo and Mrs. Vera Farr were guests of Miss Addie Mayo in Greenville last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hanson spent the weekend in Alamogordo, New Mexico as guests of Rev. and Mrs. Don Hanson. Rev. Hanson has recently undergone surgery and is doing satisfactorily. They have two children in the service in Germany. He was pastor of Central Baptist Church several years ago.

The barbecue sponsored by the Hermleigh Community Association Friday night at the school was well attended. Approximately 250 were served. During the dinner hour, the music by the Richburg Trio (Quincy, Jay, and Herman, known as the Southern Instrumentalist) was enjoyed.

The community flag, which was created by Nell Henry, was sixty inches in size, in colors of white, red, blue, yellow and black, and won the prize of a check for $25. Hopefully, it will be hung on the Hermleigh Community wall permanently.

This contest was entered by both adults and children. Danny Ramey won first place among the children. First runner-up was Jerva Farr; second runner-up was Alex Costillo. Jane Ramey and Tom Olsen tied for third runner-up.

A one act play, called "The Arkansas Bear," and directed by Phillis Smith, was well received.

Denver Pettitt of Big Spring, a former resident of Hermleigh, and a great uncle of Daniel Ramey, designed the original Hermleigh Cardinal over fifty years ago and is still being used.

The Hermleigh Association will be involved in another clean-up day Saturday. All interested persons are urged to participate and asked to meet at 9 a.m. at the school.

The Canasta Club met Thursday with all members attending and one substitute, Rachel Lassiter. High scores were won by Maurine Wall and Rachel Lassiter.

It has been learned that Mr. W.L. (Dub) Spykes is in Santa Rosa Medical Center in San Antonio where he underwent open heart surgery. He is the brother of Hazel Hanback and Mrs. Joe Groves.

ART ENTRIES—Irene McCoy, left, was at the Coliseum yesterday afternoon to enter two of her sculptures in the Snyder Palette Club's Tenth Annual Art Show. The show will be open for public viewing Saturday from 2-9 p.m. and Sunday from 1-5 p.m. Shown at right accepting Ms. McCoy's work, "Legacy of the Bushman," for entry in the exhibition is Mary Lou Crawford. Dress Up Peanut Butter

Tired of the same old peanut butter and jelly sandwich?

Try mixing one cup peanut butter with one cup chopped raisins and one-half cup shredded carrots, says Cass Ryan-Crowe, a foods and nutrition specialist.

This will make enough spread for six sandwiches, she adds.

Here is a hand played by the student when he was just a beginner. He won the diamond lead in dummy and led a trump to his ace. East showed out and the student, who had planned a speedy wrap-up of the play, came to a sudden stop.

Then he saw that if he could get three tricks each in spades and diamonds he would be sure of four trumps and his contract. So he cashed dummy's second high diamond, played out the rest of his trumps ending in his own hand, cashed the diamond queen and led spades. Unfortunately for him, that third spade was ruffed and down he went.

"Maybe I'm too unlucky to play bridge," was his complaint.

"You aren't really unlucky," said the Professor. "You didn't choose the correct line of play."

Then the Professor played and made the hand. He found a way to win five trump tricks, two spades (there was no way to make three tricks in that suit) and three diamonds.

He cashed dummy's second diamond at trick three and then took two spades. Back to his own hand with the king of trumps to lead his queen of diamonds and discard dummy's queen of spades. Now he led his last spade and ruffed it in dummy and was home with game and rubber.

Sensible exercise is fine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — It has barely turned spring and we haven't seen the first robin yet, but my 45-year-old husband is out there trying to prove to himself and the world that he is really only 20.

Every spring he gets on a physical fitness kick and starts jogging again. I like to see him exercise, but I'm sure he is overdoing it. I'd go for a walk with him if he would do that instead of jog.

I tell him that many men his age have dropped dead from trying to prove they are not old yet. When I am really upset, I suggest he is going through the male menopause.

He claims the biggest danger is from automobiles and he is more likely to get hit by a car than he is to drop dead from a heart attack. Can you talk some sense into him?

DEAR READER — Sounds as if he is a pretty sensible guy to me. Maybe you are being a bit overprotective. And he is right about the cars. That is why I urge people to jog or run on quiet roads or streets, or better yet, on jogging trails and in parks.

Also, I think those who are out jogging or doing any lone sports should have some identification with them in case they do have any kind of accident. An unconscious body clad in jogging shorts and tennis shoes is rather hard to identify.

People who exercise sensibly seldom get into trouble because of the exercise. By this, I mean gradually increasing your ability to run longer distances and never, absolutely never, jogging or running so fast that you are short of breath or tired.

People who follow this approach and do not have obvious heart disease seldom have any problems with jogging. To give you a better appreciation of this, I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-4, A Perspective on Jogging Deaths. Others who want this issue can 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

By the way, there is nothing wrong with a good walk. Many people would feel a lot better if they did take a long, relaxing walk every day.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in a newspaper account that some doctors believed men might become immune from heart attacks by taking female hormones. Would this approach prove practical and acceptable for men in their 60s when heart attacks become an increasing concern?

What hormones should be taken and in what amounts? Are these available at pharmacies or are they sold only by prescription?

DEAR READER — You are a long way ahead of facts. Don't forget that women also have heart attacks — but not as commonly during the childbearing years.

Don't forget that blood clots and heart attacks have been cited as complications of birth-control pills, and such pills are female hormones.

The results of studies on administering female hormones to prevent heart attacks in men have not been encouraging to date. Perhaps we don't know enough yet about the real hormone differences between men and women.

Hormones are a factor and they influence blood cholesterol and tend to increase the "good" cholesterol and decrease the "bad" cholesterol (meaning small and large fatty-cholesterol particles). But high blood pressure and cigarettes are additional important risk factors and are not affected by sex hormones.

Patrolmen See Murder, Suicide

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two Tyler police officers say they had never seen anything like it before — a man shot and killed his wife then turned the gun on himself while the patrolmen looked on.

Oneta Nipp, 40, was dead on arrival at a Tyler hospital and her estranged husband, 47-year-old Charles Nipp of Van, died there about two hours after the incident Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The two Tyler officers involved, patrolmen Jackie Ray and Robert Sprague, said they were driving to the police station when they noticed a woman slumped over the steering wheel of a car traveling in the opposite direction.

The officers said they saw the auto weave from one lane to another and pursued it, thinking the woman was possibly ill. However, as they pulled up behind the car, Sprague said he noticed a man in the passenger's seat and shouted, "He's got a gun!"

Ray told authorities he looked up and saw the man point a pistol at the female driver, and shots were fired.

When Sprague and Ray approached the car, they said they saw the man place the pistol against his right temple and pull the trigger.

Mrs. Nipp had been shot three times, once in the head and twice in the neck.

Justice of the Peace Ray Day withheld ruling on the deaths pending autopsies.

New Mexiço Lake Bed Ready For Backup Landing

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — The desert here is laced with history. Billy the Kid, the outlaw, and Geronimo, the Indian leader, roamed the sands, the rocket age was born nearby and the atomic era dawned with a roar at a site dubbed Trinity.

Now the U.S. Army's huge desert missile range is ready and able to witness the first "runway" landing of a spaceship. Millions of dollars have been spent, and Very Important People have been invited.

Trouble is, if all goes well, the shuttle will land 800 miles away from the white gypsum sands of New Mexico, at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The space shuttle Columbia is scheduled to be launched around April 10 from Cape Canaveral, Fla., and return to earth 54 hours later at Edwards.

However, if weather conditions or technical problems make the Edwards landing impossible, touchdown could take place on one of two seven-mile runways smoothed out on a dry lake bed called Northrup Strip.

Although Northrup Strip is only an alternate site, preparations continue at a steady pace — both at the strip and at the headquarters for the missile range, 45 miles to the south.

Directed from a yellow control tower dwarfed by the great bed of white sand, hundreds of training missions have been conducted at Northrup Strip, lately averaging nine a week.

Flying Gulfstream II executive jets, modified to handle like a gliding shuttle, the training astronauts — including John Young and Robert Crippen, the Columbia crew — fly to within 10 feet of the sand, the point where touchdown would occur if they were flying the shuttle. Then they fly off to make another approach, and then another.

White Sands is the primary landing site for an "abort once around mission," which would occur if the shuttle fails to reach the orbiting stage and the astronauts are forced to circle the earth once before landing.

Northrup could also be designated as the "end of mission" landing site if Edwards does not dry sufficiently from recent heavy rains to withstand the weight of the 150,000-pound shuttle.

Al Paczynski, NASA project engineer at White Sands, said he personally would be disappointed if the shuttle didn't land there, but "for program reasons, I guess I would prefer it land at Edwards. They have more capabilities there." NASA spokesman Ken Senstad candidly described White Sands as "minimally equipped."

Paczynski estimates that construction and training at White Sands has cost $2 million. He calls the expenditure "good insurance," explaining that each day's delay in the shuttle launch date costs several hundred thousand dollars.

"If you land here as opposed to waiting a month for Edwards to dry out, that's a considerable savings," he said. "Time is money, especially in the space program."

The first three shuttle flights are to terminate in a lake-bed landing, Paczynski said. White Sands is scheduled to back up the first four shuttle missions, with an option on two more. "We have a very good chance that at least one" of the landings will be at Northrup Strip, he said.

This land was prime ranching country until the Army opened White Sands Proving Ground on July 9, 1945. One week later, the world's first atomic bomb was exploded on the range at an area now known as Trinity Site, about 40 miles north of Northrup Strip.

Just west of the range, near Roswell, Dr. Robert Goddard developed the first gyro-controlled rocket guidance system. Goddard, who in 1926 flew the first liquid-fueled rocket, was eventually flying rockets faster than the speed of sound and at altitudes up to 7,500 feet.

Today, the range is a multi-service facility used for testing missiles, weapons components and energy projects related to defense. It employs about 8,000 military and civilian personnel.

If the shuttle does land at Northrup Strip, there will be plenty of witnesses.

A group of 300 area leaders, including Gov. Bruce King, the state's congressional delegation and the mayors of Las Cruces, Alamogordo and El Paso, is being invited to Northrup Strip if the landing takes place there.

Jim Lovelady, a NASA public relations officer, expects about 150 reporters at Northrup on launch date — and up to 10 times that number if White Sands is the actual landing site. His office has had to politely inform CBS News that, no, it would be impossible to allow Walter Cronkite to fly in to land at Northrup Strip. A request by a radio reporter to camp at the strip was also rejected.

Besides the local VIPs, an end-of-mission landing at White Sands would attract several planeloads of dignitaries from Washington.

Stormy Marriage Revealed By Daniels' Letters

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — He didn't like the way his wife cooked, the way she greeted him when he returned from work, or her sweet tooth.

She didn't like being treated "like a peasant with no sense" and warned him that his throne "will crumble one of these days and you're going to need someone who loves you."

It looked like a marriage doomed to divorce — but worse happened.

On Jan. 19, Price Daniel Jr., former speaker of the Texas House of representatives and scion of one of Texas' most powerful families, was shot to death. His second wife, Vickie, was charged with murder.

She says it was an accident, says she remembers firing a warning shot at Price but doesn't remember shooting him.

Details of their stormy marriage are revealed in letters written by the couple to each other. The letters were submitted as evidence in a lawsuit that Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, filed in an attempt to gain custody of Vickie's and Price's two sons.

Daniel met Vickie while she was working as a waitress at Dairy Queen to support her two children by a former marriage.

The couple was married Nov. 1, 1976 in New Orleans by the Rev. David Murph, husband of Daniel's sister.

During one of the many separations during the marriage, the Daniels each wrote the other a list of items for self-improvement and another list of items for improvement they wanted in their mate.

The letters are undated but were written in 1979.

"Always have a pleasant greeting when I come home from work (even if it has to be faked)," Daniel listed as his No. 1 request of Mrs. Daniel.

"I don't mean that you have to be especially dressed, standing in the doorway with a smile from ear-to-ear, but I do expect more than to walk in and find you intently glued to the TV lying on the couch.

"And occasionally, when you see me drive in, come and open the door. If you try to do these things, and don't particularly like them, you will do them anyhow out of habit, not just for me but for anyone."

Daniel apparently was quite meticulous about his meals, asking Mrs. Daniel to make weekends special.

"I would like a good, hot meal Saturday noon and a hamburger with two pieces of cheese Saturday night, or vice versa," Daniel wrote.

Daniel chided Mrs. Daniel for spending too much of her grocery budget on sweets.

"Try to go to the store without buying any candy, cake mix, jelly rolls, pie mix, cookies, popsicles, etc.," he said. "Instead, buy more carrots, raisins, celery, apples, grapefruits, etc.

"Similarly, quit completely, stop absolutely forever and ever, stopping at Sonics, Dairy Queens, etc. for Cokes and ice cream. It's not only a waste of money, it's a bad habit."

By contrast, Mrs. Daniel admitted she could do better as a cook.

"I could possibly learn to cook the way you would like to, but with children around, I'm not sure I could ever give you as much attention as you would like," Mrs. Daniel wrote.

Mrs. Daniel also had a complaint about Daniel's eating habits.

"I think you should eat at the table, and not have me serve you in the playroom," Mrs. Daniel wrote. "I'm not a waitress anymore, I'm your wife."

Mrs. Daniel's No. 1 complaint about her husband was that he belittled her.

"Never make fun of, or put me down," she admonished. "Kid, yes, joke, yes, but no snipes."

It was suggested during the custody suit that Daniel teased his wife by calling her "Dairy Queen" in reference to her former occupation.

Daniel noted he would try to avoid put-downs.

In a list of things he should do to improve the marriage, Daniel wrote: "Do not lose my temper. Do not retaliate or try to get back. Try, Try Try to avoid what Vickie calls put-downs, especially when they are being interpreted by her as being mean or bad."

Mrs. Daniel, talkative and outgoing, was a contrast to Daniel's silent stiff upper lip approach to problems.

"Let me in on a few things that you do," she said. "Tell me about deals you make at the office (personal) so I don't hear about them from somebody else," she wrote. "If you want anything from me, ask. Don't expect me to know your every thought."

Daniel pledged to improve his communications.

"Show my feelings more openly and communicate more freely," he continued on the list of things he should do. Quit always being in such a hurry. Try to contain the nervous energy that prevents me from watching a whole TV show, sitting still, talking for more than five minutes at a time."

Despite their attempts, the lists failed to heal the wounds. Mrs. Daniel came across the list later and wrote Daniel a letter in another attempt at reconciliation.

"Why don't you come off your thrown (sic) and let your wife, who loves you, touch you and feel as one and not feel like you're someone who can't be moved," she said in a letter also submitted into evidence.

"Don't treat me like a peasant with no sense. Your thrown (sic) will crumble one of these days and you're going to need someone who loves you ..."

The letter ends in an elaborately scrawled "Love you" and a smiling stick figure of a girl.

Courter To Replace Yantis As Country Club Golf Pro

Mike Yantis, golf pro at Snyder Country Club for the past year, has decided to return to "get out of the golfing business" and return to San Antonio.

He will be replaced by 25-year-old Price Courter, who has been first assistant at Ranchland Hills CC for three years under former Snyder Country Club pro Bill Keys.

"There is no way I can fully express my feelings toward the people I've been associated with at Snyder Country Club and the people throughout the community as a whole," Yantis said. "I've been impressed by the friendliness of the people in Snyder and the extra effort that they were always willing to extend in my behalf. My wife and I consider Snyder a fine place to start a family," added Yantis who became a father shortly after he arrived here.

Yantis was named golf pro at the local country club on March 21, 1980. Courter, a graduate of Texas A&M University with a degree in finance, will take over "prior to the Pump Jack Tournament the second or third week in April."

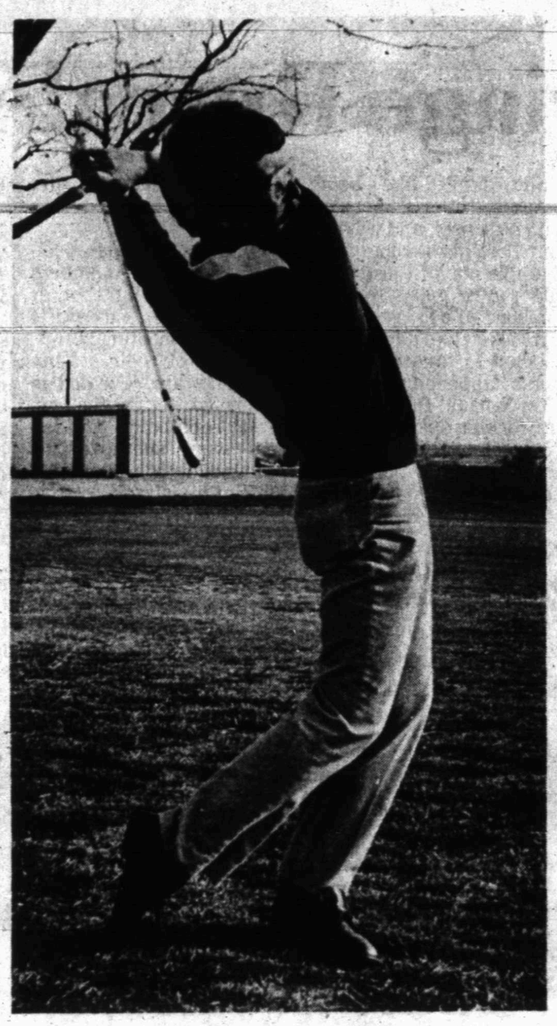

Snyder Country Club has made major strides during Yantis' tenure; particulary in the updating of maintenance and technical proceedures and in subtle but important features such as alteration of the landscape.

"I hope that we've continued to build on the friendships and goodwill that were already established and that we've introduced more people to this," said Yantis. "That by far would be the best thing that we could have done."

Yantis will enter the construction-development business in San Antonio.

Courter was named to the post after an interview with the board last night. He qualified and competed

Majors To Compete In Hobbs Tourney

HOBBS, N.M. – Snyder Major All-Stars will compete in the Hobbs Invitational Little Dribblers Basketball Tournament beginning March 27 here.

Eight teams are entered in the two-day tournament, which serves as a warmup for the April 2-3-4 Regionals in Lamesa.

Snyder, coached by Kris Seale, Brad Robertson and Barry Blackmon, is slated to play Lamesa in a first-round game of the invitational at 7 p.m. (Hobbs time), Friday.

Winner of the contest will play a Kermit-Hobbs Gold victor at 11 a.m. Saturday. Losers vie at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Other teams involved in the tournament include Levelland, Seminole, Denver City and Hobbs Black.

Playing for Snyder Majors are Kyle Guerry, Chris Garrett, Alan Holt, Chet Byerly, Trey Tippens, Johnny Ray Ward, Jeff Rose, Michael Long, Michael Risenhoover and Barry Byrd.

Basketball Coach Lou Carnesecca of St. John's University in New York commented on what it's like to coach college players: "It's not so much coaching them as counseling them."

Golfers Enter District Meet

MONAHANS – Snyder varsity team will try to shave a place or two off of its current standing as the second of four boys 2-AAAA golf tournaments gets underway at 11 a.m. here Friday.

The Tigers are currently in 10th place after the first tourney, held March 20 at Fort Stockton.

Friday's meet will consist of 18 holes. Other scheduled meets are at Sweetwater on April 3 and at Andrews on April 10. The top two teams and individuals qualify for regionals.

Andrews leads the standings with a 313, 11 strokes in front of preseason favorite Lamesa, 324. Third is Fort Stockton with a 325, followed by Sweetwater, Monahans and Pecos.

Snyder, playing without two of its returning starters last week, finished 10th with a 373. Coach Mackey Greene expects his No. 1 team to finish higher Friday. He will take two squads to the meet.

The 10 events in the decathlon are the 100-meter sprint, the 400-meter run, the high hurdles, the long jump, the shot put, the high jump, the discus throw, the javelin throw, the pole vault and the 1,500-meter run.

Tulsa Claims NIT Title!

NEW YORK (AP) - They were refugees from junior college - some called them outlaws - but Tulsa basketball Coach Nolan Richardson, himself a refugee, molded his players into winners of the National Invitation Tournament.

GREG STEWART
NIT's Top Player

"If I have a chance to shoot, I shoot. They say junior college players are outlaws," said Golden Hurricane forward Greg Stewart, "but I don't believe it. Junior college players might be quicker; they're usually smaller."

Stewart, a 6-foot-9 junior center, is one of four players Richardson brought from his national junior college championship team at Western Texas College when he departed after last season for Tulsa. The others were guards Phil Spradling and Paul Pressey and forward David Brown, all starters this season for Tulsa.

Western Texas went 37-0 last season, and Richardson's transplanted team compiled a 22-7 season record with a second-place finish in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. Still, the Golden Hurricane was ignored by the NCAA tournament's selection committee, but Richardson hopes Wednesday night's 86-84 overtime victory over Syracuse for the NIT title is a sample of great things to come.

"This is one of the highest points in Tulsa basketball history," Richardson said. "In the dressing room, I told the guys if we can win one more game, it would be a grand slam of sorts. If we can win the junior college title, the NIT and the NCAA next year, I quit."

Stewart, named the NIT's most valuable player, scored a team-high 23 points. He capped off a 12-point run that started midway in the second half with seven straight points, giving Tulsa a 69-65 lead with 7:03 to play, and he hit the winning basket with 30 seconds left in overtime. The Golden Hurricane finished the season with a 26-7 record.

Syracuse, winner of the Big East Conference tournament, battled back behind Tony "Red" Bruin and Erich Santifer, taking a two-point lead, 71-69, with 5:53 to play on a tip-in by freshman Sean Kerins. After again falling behind, however, Syracuse sent the game into overtime when Santifer hit a short jumper at the buzzer.

The Orangemen, 22-12, went into the overtime, however, without any of their starting front line. Center Dan Schayes had scored just four points when he fouled out with 7:03 to go, giving Stewart a three-point play that capped his run of seven points. Then, with 2:17 to play, Bruin fouled out with 25 points, and Leo Rautins, Syracuse's other forward, exited 1:01 later.

Neither team scored in overtime until 2:54 was left when Brown was fouled by Santifer and hit both free throws. Thirty-six seconds later, Kerins, a freshman reserve, tied it for Syracuse with a pair of free throws. The two teams played keep-away, Spradling missing a short jumper and Syracuse committing a turnover, until Stewart found himself under the basket for the winning points with 30 seconds left.

Stewart rolled around a defender and was alone to take a pass from the right corner for the layup. Brown added 17 points for Tulsa, and guard Mike Anderson, Richardson's sixth man, scored 17. Santifer topped Syracuse with 29.

In the consolation game, Purdue (21-11) defeated West Virginia (23-10) in overtime, 75-72.

...former WTC Coach leads Tulsa to title

Stewart Picked Tourney MVP

NEW YORK (AP) - Coach Nolan Richardson called him his midseason superman.

Greg Stewart, one of four transfers that Richardson brought with him from last year's national junor college champions, scored 23 points, including the winning basket, in Tulsa's 86-84 overtime victory over Syracuse in the championship game of the National Invitation Tournament Wednesday night.

"In the middle of each season he becomes our superman," the coach said of Stewart, the transfer from Western Texas College who was named Most Valuable Player in this year's NIT.

Stewart hit the winning basket with 30 seconds to play in the overtime period, falling off a defender and finding himself clear for a pass under the basket.

"Somebody left me open and I just jumped up and took the ball," Stewart said.

Stewart, a native of the Bronx in New York City, said he had about 300 of his fans at Madison Square Garden for the title game.

"My father, cousins that I haven't seen in a long time, and my entire school are here," Stewart said.

He said the impact of winning the NIT had not yet hit him.

"I feel it's like a dream," said Stewart, whose Western Texas team last season went 37-0 and won the JC title under Richardson.

"This is one of the highest points in Tulsa basketball history," Richardson said. "We had some great teams in the NIT this year."

The coach said he expected even bigger and better things from his team next season.

"We're a young basketball team, and I tried to instill in them the killer instinct," Richardson said. "Our players don't give up."

in the Texas State Open last year, and tied for first in the West Texas Chapter PGA Assists Championship.

Born in Midland, he and his wife Gina, from Lamesa, are native West Texans. "I consider him to be a good teacher. He'll do a fine job here," said Yantis. "At Ranchland, he had full control of the ladies and juniors programs, lessons and clinics."

Lost Five Previous...

Smith Tries 6th Time

by The Associated Press

It's been well documented that teams coached by Dean Smith have lost each of the five times they've appeared in the finals of the NCAA basketball tournament. But the veteran coach of North Carolina remains excited about making the Final Four for the sixth time.

"I wish all coaches had this opportunity," Smith says "All four of us are on top of the mountain."

North Carolina's Tar Heels, 28-7, play Atlantic Coast Conference rival Virginia, 28-3, in the semifinals Saturday at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. Indiana, 24-9, takes on Louisiana State 31-3, in the other matchup, with the winners meeting Monday night for the national championship.

The battle between North Carolina and Virginia will be their third of the season, with the Cavaliers roaring from behind in the second half of each game to win both of the previous meetings.

It will be the first meeting of the year for Indiana and LSU.

"To counter Indiana's size, we must rely on our quickness, and that is the best attack we can use," says LSU Coach Dale Brown. "Defense will dictate the course of the game."

Indiana's Hoosiers rely heavily on an intense man-to-man defense that often eats up fast-break offenses. And their own scoring machine, led by sophomore guard Isiah Thomas, appears capable of staying with LSU.

Chris and Matt Bahr, placekicking brothers, both have Super Bowl championship rings. Chris won his in Super Bowl XV with Oakland and Matt in Super Bowl XIV with Pittsburgh.

Mackey Takes Honors At LCC

MITCH MACKEY
LCC Player of Week

LUBBOCK -- Mitch Mackey, former Snyder High School baseball standout, has been named Lubbock Christian College Athlete of the Week, representing Coach Larry Hayes' Chaparrals.

Mackey had five hits in eight at-bats as a pinch hitter last week, including a triple, a home run and seven RBI.

Fast becoming a key cog towards LCC's No. 9 NAIA ranking, Mackey has hit nine-for-19 as a pinch hitter this season. Thirteen of his 14 runs batted in have come as a clutch hitter and his hit total represents a school record for a single season of pinch hitting.

The Chaps, 22-16, had won 13 consecutive games until falling 4-0 to No. 2 ranked Southeastern Oklahoma yesterday. The teams were slated in double header action again today at noon in Lubbock.

Tigers Slated For 2-4A Start

Snyder's Tigers, 8-5 on the season, open District 2-AAAA competition here tomorrow by hosting Fort Stockton's Panthers at Moffett Field, 4 p.m.

Fort Stockton is considered to be one of the top teams in the district this year, having returned much of the group that claimed the second-half 2-3A title last year.

Snyder Coach Albert Lewis indicated he would start fireballer Tony Degrate on the mound Friday. Degrate is one of two returning starters from last year's 3-3A championship and state semi-finalist squad.

Snyder's strength thus far in the season has been its hitting, though it would appear a fast-improving group of pitchers may soon share that honor. The Tiger defense, shakey due to lack of experience earlier in the year, is also improving each outing.

Bat-wise, six Tigers are hitting over the .300 mark.

Below are averages through the Snyder Tournament. Tabulations from Tuesday's game with Coronado are not added, since that contest is to be completed here April 3.

Jane Doe Identified

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The family of amnesia victim Jane Doe positively identified her today as 34-year-old Cheryl Ann Tomiczek, a suburban Chicago woman who dropped out of sight seven years ago, officials said.

Irene and Andrew Tomiczek, of Roselle, Ill., two other children and a Chicago disc jockey met with Miss Tomiczek at South Florida State Hospital in Pembroke Pines for about an hour this morning.

"I'm very happy," Mrs. Tomiczek said after the private meeting. "I assured her we loved her.

Hospital spokeswoman Jackie Dale said Jane Doe responded by saying, "I'm very happy that you came. I'm pleased to meet you.

"She was very cool," Mrs. Dale said. "That's normal ... we expected that."

"It's just like a dream," said Miss Tomiczek's brother Robert, 32.

The polite young woman, who became known nationwide as "Jane Doe," had been at the hospital since December when a park ranger found her naked and near death in Fort Lauderdale's Birch State Park.

The Tomiczeks were accompanied by Chicago disc jockey Wally Phillips, whose station, WGN, arranged and paid for the trip.

TV Broadcast Upsets Counsel In Daniel Case

by The Associated Press

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A television broadcast that showed Price Daniel Jr.'s children crying as they were taken from their mother and charges by Vickie Daniel that an attorney threatened her sent attorneys for both sides in the custody trial into a meeting this morning.

The bizarre series of events began Wednesday night when two Houston television stations broadcast videotapes of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, crying, "I don't want to go, I don't want to go," as he was being taken from his aunt's home in Houston.

The tapes earlier showed Franklin and his brother, 1-year-old Marion Price IV, hugging and kissing their mother.

Vickie Daniel is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of her husband, a former Texas House Speaker.

Daniel's sister, Mrs. Jean Daniel Murph is asking for custody of the two children.

The videotapes showed the children crying as Mrs. Murph came to the home of Rita Steadham, Mrs. Daniel's sister, for a court-ordered two-day visit.

The two television crews apparently had followed Mrs. Daniel to the home and, according to Mark Morefield, the tape did not show what really happened.

"Mrs. Murph would try to take the children and Vickie would not let go of them," Morefield said. "Vickie was playing it for all it was worth."

Morefield said he and Mrs. Murph were taken totally by surprised by the presence of newsmen and cameras at the residence. He said they did not know television cameras were present until Mrs. Murph went inside the home.

"They asked me to stay outside while Mrs. Murph went in to get the children," Morefield said. "I thought the request was only for a smooth exchange of the children."

Mrs. Daniel got into the car with the two children and left with Mrs. Murph and later told reporters she was forced to walk back to her house and had been threatened by Morefield.

"That is total nonsense," Morefield said. "I dropped her off two houses down from where we picked up the children to avoid another encounter with the cameras, and I did not threaten her."

The incident occurred after a Liberty County Sheriff's Department investigator testified Wednesday said a box thought to contain marijuana and a white plastic bag found in the Daniel's home following the shooting.

Marvin Powell, the sheriff's investigator, testified Wednesday that Howard Oldham, a former Daniel business associate, told him of the box several days after Daniel was fatally shot.

Powell, who spent the entire day on the witness stand, said the box contained "very small pieces of a green substance." He said he was looking for marijuana because Oldham had told him some of the weed was located in the Daniel attic.

"He indicated to me he knew Price Daniel very well," Powell said. "He said Price Daniel and his first wife tried marijuana cigarettes once and didn't like it, so Daniel put them in the attic."

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in her husband's death, testified earlier in the trial that Daniel and Oldham had smoked pot in the attic.

Powell said he did not send the box to be analyzed until at least three weeks after it was found and therefore had not yet received a lab report.

The white plastic bag, containing personal items such as greeting cards, pictures of Daniel's children and a set of keys, was found beneath insulation in the attic, he said.

Mrs. Murph said she recognized the keys as belonging to her father, Price Daniel Sr., but declined comment on the significance of the bag.

Variety Of Cases Keep Police Busy

Police arrested suspects in a variety of cases Wednesday, including theft, shoplifting and harassing telephone calls.

An employee of the Skinny's Convenience store on 37th and Ave. E was arrested, after a total of $506.71 was discovered missing over a period of a few days. Charges were being filed today in 132nd District Court. Sgt. Ed Neely was arresting officer.

Sgt. Neely also investigated a woman's complaint that she had been receiving harassing telephone calls. A subject has been arrested and charges were being filed in county court.

Patrolman Bill Armstrong arrested a shoplifter Wednesday at 3:07 p.m. at Gibsons's Discount Center. The 22-year-old Spanish female allegedly took a $1.63 comb and a $1.63 pin. Earlier in the evening, she is also believed to have taken necklaces, valued at $3 from K mart.

Police also investigated a case of criminal mischief and two auto accidents.

Jean James reported $200 damage to windows and screens at a vacant house in the 2100 block of College Ave. Patrolman Kerry Fritz is investigating.

Fritz also worked a minor accident Wednesday at 1600 26th St. Involved were a 1972 Chevrolet, driven by Hilario Fuentez of Rt. 3 and a 1978 Chevrolet, driven by Caleb Bonner of Rt. 2. Only minor damage was reported and no ambulance or wrecker was called.

At 12:57 p.m. in the 2000 block of 25th St., a 1977 Ford, driven by Ruben Hernandez of the Lubbock Highway, was in collision with a 1976 Chevrolet, driven by Jeanne Duke of the Clairemont Rt. Wreckers were called to remove the vehicles. A Scurry County EMS ambulance was also dispatched but treatment was declined. Patrolman Buddy Kinney worked the wreck.

Liability Insurance Required By Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Forcing Texas drivers to buy automobile liability insurance might hurt poor people, but a lawmaker says they shouldn't be on the road if they can't pay for damage they do.

All Texas motorists would have to buy the insurance under a bill that was finally approved in the House and sent to the Senate today. Rep. Gene Green's measure would require the driver to show proof of coverage upon request of a policeman.

Liability insurance pays for injuries and vehicle damage done by accidents that are the fault of the policyholder.

Failure to have liability insurance would be punishable by a fine of up to $200 for a first offense, and up to $1,000 and 180 days in jail for subsequent violations.

Rep. Rollin Khoury, R-Waco, led the attack on the bill, saying it wouldn't help the situation and would hurt the poor.

"No piece of legislation you pass is going to stop people from driving without insurance," he said, adding that poor people have trouble paying for food and gasoline without also having to pay insurance premiums.

"The poor are going to have problems, but ... if they can't pay for the damage they do, they shouldn't be on the road," replied Green, D-Houston.

He acknowledged insurance rates might increase if uninsured drivers are forced to get insurance, but he dismissed contentions the increase would be large.

"The insurance industry opposes this bill, and I have yet to understand why they testify against it every session if they are going to make so much money from it," Green said.

Under the bill, mandatory liability coverage would be $5,000 for property damage and $10,000 per person for bodily injury, up to $20,000 for all persons injured in one accident.

Green said the Department of Public Safety estimates the proportion of uninsured motorists would drop from 25 percent to 10 percent if the bill becomes law.

Similar legislation passed the House in 1979 but died in the Senate.

Man Has Rude Landing After Falling in Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old man in the process of being divorced. I recently met a very bright and attractive businesswoman. Joyce is 29, divorced and in real estate. She's very money-oriented, lives well, and I think she's much better off financially than I am.

We fell in love, and Joyce agreed to marry me as soon as my divorce is final. Then she asked me to sign a premarital agreement stating that I had no legal right to her present assets or anything she earns or inherits in the future. (Her family has money.)

I was stunned and refused to sign the agreement. I walked out, and that's the last time I saw Joyce.

Abby, if two people love and trust each other, why do they need a written agreement to protect themselves against being taken advantage of?

I still care for her, but I just can't see myself signing that agreement. If the situation were reversed, I would never ask her to sign one.

Am I wrong? Should I reconsider? Or should I try to find a woman who doesn't demand a premarital agreement to protect her from a man who is after her money?

SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: With one out of every two marriages ending in divorce, a premarital agreement makes sense — particularly when one of the partners is much better off financially than the other. It matters not who has what. The time to worry about what happens should the marriage end is before it begins. (P.S. But don't sign anything until your lawyer sees it.)

DEAR ABBY: To the man who switched to boxer shorts and begat four children, I would like to point out some figures:

So far he has nine grandchildren, but if his four each have four offspring as he did, it will be 16. Adding this up we have 20 more people on earth. To carry it further, if the 16 each have four, that is 64; if they have four, that is 256; and if they have four, that is 1,024 more persons.

If we go around one more time, we reach 4,096! Adding up the figures, we now have 5,460 more people on earth. All that humanity just because one man dropped his drawers!

PRO JOCKEY SHORTS IN OREGON

DEAR PRO: Before we drop the subject, can you stand one more letter?

DEAR ABBY: Your boxer shorts letters intrigued my wife and me because we had been trying to conceive a child for some time. After reading a number of your articles about boxer shorts, we also decided to give it a try. A number of months prior, we had also put our name with an adoption agency.

The next time my wife went shopping, she purchased three pair of boxer shorts for me. On the third day of the third pair of shorts, we received a telephone call from the adoption agency informing us that they had a 1-day-old baby girl for us. We were ecstatic!

I don't think anyone's boxer shorts ever worked so fast. All three of us want to thank you and your readers for such a fast-working idea.

Seeks To Take Children From Family With History Of Crime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Wilson" family is a poor, sprawling clan with a record of more than 150 arrests over three generations. Now a police officer determined to "break the cycle of crime" is trying to take at least four of the family's youngsters away from their parents in a case that could set a startling legal precedent.

"My judgment was based on the parents being criminal role models," said officer Tom Corey. "Extrapolated to its extreme, this case could mean that the government has the authority to drive up and down the street and say, 'You're not an appropriate role model, so we'll take your kids.'

"But at some point, there's got to be a way to break the cycle. It's up to the judge to decide that."

The case began last fall when Corey, assigned to the Pasadena Youth Services Division, noted a report that two cousins — aged 8 and 9 — had been caught shoplifting $3.97 worth of toys. The report said the children had no prior record and required "no further counseling."

Then Corey noticed the children came from the "Wilson" family. Wilson is not the family's real name.

"These minors," the 35-year-old former teacher wrote in a report, "spent their formative years in a family environment in which it was the norm for family members to be arrested and incarcerated — their fathers in prison, their mothers both serving 90-day jail terms this year, nearly all the adult members of their immediate family have double-digit arrest figures, and even their great-aunt was arrested twice this year."

Corey has placed three of the children in protective custody. Next month, the county Juvenile Dependency Court will determine whether at least one other child in the third generation of Wilsons — a family led by a 46-year-old woman and her 14 children — should be removed from their homes.

Court observers say Corey's action could break new legal ground and could redefine what constitutes an unfit home.

"It's possible the county will try to keep chipping away until finally, any parent with a criminal background can have his kids taken away," said one of the Wilsons' court-appointed attorneys, Ron Marks.

D.M. COGDELL MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
SNYDER RADIOLOGIST INCORPORATION
ARE ANNOUNCING SEPARATE BILLING
EFFECTIVE FROM APRIL 1st, 1981

WHY THE RADIOLOGIST'S BILL IS SEPARATE FROM THE HOSPITAL BILL

X-Ray Costs
Hospital's Charge
Radiologist's Fee

The radiologist is a private physician specializing in the use of x-rays and radioactive substances used in medial diagnosis and therapy. Your physician requested the services of the radiologist in interpreting the results of your recent examination in the X-ray Department.

With some examinations, the radiologist was personally involved in the examination. If you had only films made, your personal contact may have been solely with the technologist. Once the films were made and checked, they were presented to the radiologist for his interpretation, as well as his written and oral consultation with your physician.

The hospital bill will include a charge for x-ray to cover the use of its equipment, the films, supplies, and technical personnel. The bill from the radiologist is for his professional consultative services.
