Herter Leaves Reds On Spot

By W. B. DICKERSON JR.
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter's firm stand on Western rights in Berlin left the next move squarely to Russia today in negotiating for a settlement of the East-West crisis over Germany.

Herter told the nation Tuesday night in a nationally televised report on the deadlocked Geneva foreign ministers' meeting that "possible areas of agreement" exist.

But he said the Soviets first must back down on their threats to force the West out of West Berlin.

The Secretary also declared there had been no progress to date at the foreign ministers' level that would warrant a summit conference between President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other heads of government.

The foreign ministers of Britain, France, Russia and the United States will resume talks at Geneva July 13 following the current three-week "cooling-off" recess.

Gray County Law Officers To Be Honored

Reservations for a Monday luncheon honoring law enforcement officers of Gray County are going fast at the Chamber of Commerce office, according to Margaret McLeod, receptionist. To date, approximately 100 reservations have been made with the deadline for reservations set at 5 p.m. Friday.

All law enforcement officers of Gray County will be special guests of the Chamber of Commerce Monday, June 29, at the luncheon. Other special entertainment features are being arranged.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety in Austin, will bring the main address. Other special entertainment features are being arranged.

E. L. Henderson, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside at the luncheon, with the Rev. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist Church and official Chaplain of the Texas Sheriffs' Ass'n giving the invocation.

Don Cain, County Attorney and member of the Executive Board of the Chamber, will introduce special guests while Bill Waters, District Attorney, will introduce (See OFFICERS, Page 3)

Ike Wants Shift In Foreign Aid

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower asked Congress today to place U.S. foreign military aid on a long-term basis and shift its control to the Defense Department to end "contentious" bickering.

These were two of 12 recommendations for a sweeping reorganization of the aid program made in a 36-page report by Eisenhower's special committee on military assistance. The President endorsed the proposals in letters to Speaker Sam Rayburn and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The chief executive said he probably would put into effect by executive action all the recommendations which did not require legislation. These include the planning of military aid to Allied nations on a three-year and eventually a five-year basis.

Eisenhower asked Congress to amend the mutual security law so he could carry out these other key proposals:

Sound Framework
There should be a continuing authorization for the military assistance appropriation in order to provide a sound legislative framework for multi-year planning and programming.

The military assistance appropriation should be placed in the Department of Defense budget in order to center responsibility for administering the program more positively in the Defense Department.

In plugging for long-range aid planning, William H. Draper Jr., head of the committee, said news-men: "We can't fight a 100-year war, which I suppose this is, by a year-to-year approach." Even if planning and authorization of the aid program were placed on a long-run basis, Congress would have to provide funds each year.

Under the present system, military aid money is appropriated to the President who allocates it. The State and Defense departments share responsibility for military aid policies.

Draper told reporters that cooperation between the departments had broken down frequently. The report said the departments "have tended to exercise their respective responsibilities at the working level in a contentious rather than a fully cooperative manner."

He referred to a Moscow speech in which the Soviet premier repeated previous Soviet threats to abandon their responsibilities to the Western powers concerning Berlin.

Two Pampans Are Nabbed With Marijuana Plants

Two Pampa men were arrested and charged with illegal possession of marijuana Tuesday while making an auto trip from Amarillo to Pampa. Charged were Len Royal Bowie, 21, 332 Harlem, and Willie J. Wilson, 27, 527 Elm.

Bowie and Wilson were arrested one-half mile east of White Deer by Highway Patrolmen Royce Logan and Travis Underwood. Found under the front seat of their car was one marijuana plant, carefully kept alive in fertilizer.

Logan and Underwood made their arrest at the request of the Amarillo police department which earlier in the day had stopped the Pampa men and found three other marijuana plants in their car.

Bowie and Wilson denied any knowledge of the plants. They maintained the plants were put in their car while it was parked in Amarillo.

Auto Stolen

A 1950 black Chevrolet was reported stolen Tuesday afternoon from the locked garage of R. J. Thomas, 630 N. Zimmer.

The garage was apparently broken into Monday night with a two-inch metal pipe. The car was described by police as a four-door bearing license plate number AU 4888.

DURING BANQUET

Rotary Installs Officers for '59

The Pampa Rotary Club held its 1959 installation banquet at the Country Club Tuesday evening, installing L. J. Edmondson as president and Don Cain as vice president.

Edmondson and Cain are the top officers on an eight man board of directors. This number does not include the secretary-treasurer, Dale Thut, who is appointed. The remainder of the board is made up of Dick Batson, Max Bolick, Roy Sparkman, Lucian Young, Floyd Watson and H. V. Wilks.

The last banquet of the civic club season was attended by 180 Rotarians, Rotary Annas, Lions, Kiwanians, Jaycees and Optimist Club members. Cain introduced the program, a musical revue by the Weldon Bright Company of Amarillo.

Proceedings got underway with an invocation by Floyd Yeager, songs led by DeLee Vicars and an introduction of visitors and guests by Ed Williams.

In a Welcome to Rotary Annas, Cameron Marsh named some famous women in American history who contributed to the success of their husbands. Floyd Watson gave special recognition to Mrs. Irvin Cole, who has been the club pianist for 17 years; and Mary Ann McCloskey, who works on the club bulletin.

Edmondson recognized the wives of Rotarians who have made perfect attendance records. Then the Rotarians got down to business as E. E. Shelhamer installed the officers and directors. Cain, the 1958-59 president, installed Edmondson and took up his new position of immediate past president and vice president. Floyd Watson served as vice president during the past year.

Cain is Gray County attorney and Edmondson is principal of Pampa Senior High School. Weldon Bright took the stage with his combo and brought on a company of singers and dancers from Amarillo. Dancing girls from the Dixie Dixie Dance School opened and closed the revue.

The Hi-Fi's, Tascosa High School girls, appeared in straw hats and Bermuda shorts to sing "Down in Bermuda" to the rhythm of a tom-tom. One number was heard from Linda Lee Oakley, a young vocalist.

The combo presented a medley of Garth Brooks' "Somebody Loves Me" (See ROTARY, Page 3)

'Mad Dog' Killer In Last Day!

By CHARLES E. WIESER
United Press International

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Mass killer Charles Starkweather stochastically sat out what may be the last full day of his life today while his parents fought to win him a new reprieve from the electric chair.

The 20 year old ex-garbage man, who killed 11 persons during a two-day rampage, was scheduled to be electrocuted in Nebraska State Penitentiary sometime Thursday — probably shortly after midnight — unless he gets a dramatic new lease on life.

His father Guy, who won a mid-die of the night appeal for a stay a month ago minutes before Starkweather's head and legs were to be shaved in preparation for electrocution, was expected to renew his battle today in Lancaster County District Court.

He was reported searching for an attorney to ask the court for a new stay and a writ alleging errors in Starkweather's trial.

Court attaches said the elder Starkweather might make the plea personally if he were unable to line up a lawyer.

The confessed slayer's mother, Mrs. Helen Starkweather, said, "We're going to keep right on fighting. We're going to use all our rights."

The Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday set the execution for Thursday. The seven man court took the action within 20 minutes after Nebraska Atty. Gen. C. S. Peck received notification that the U.S. Supreme Court had denied Starkweather a new hearing.

Pampa Oilman Donates $500 To Aged Home

A quiet fund raising campaign has netted another $500 for the construction of the Barrett Memorial Convalescent Home. The latest donation was made by Earl Clayton, a Pampa oilman.

Contributions may be made to the Top O' Texas Foundation, of which James McCune is treasurer. The Foundation was organized by the Rev. E. G. Barrett to build a home for the aged. Barrett donated 20 acres of land on the Miami Highway, where the Mt. Zion Church was located.

The church building has been sold but the land is still available. The Foundation later received a gift of land from Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Castleberry. The proposed home will be built on the Castleberry Hill site, west of Highland General Hospital.

The building, as designed by Moore and Heller, will cost $400,000, with $100,000 added for equipment and furnishings. The board hopes to get $250,000 from the federal government, in addition to the $250,000 that it is raising now.

Mrs. Long Flees As Court Decision Nears

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The first lady of the state of Louisiana Tuesday night fled its borders and her husband's fight to regain his executive powers from a mental hospital.

Mrs. Blanch Long, whose destination was not known, was known to fear what a psychiatrist termed the "homicidal tendencies" of her husband, Gov. Earl Long.

Her departure was not expected to interfere with a sanity hearing for Long scheduled for Friday, although she signed the commitment papers. It had been planned to subpoena her as a witness but she left the state before the papers were served.

Long's attorney, Joe Arthur Sims, said today that Mrs. Long's departure "makes Governor Long's return a lot easier."

"She can't sign any more papers," he pointed out. "Of course the hearing will have to go on."

As Mrs. Long fled, the props were being carried in for a drama to be played beneath a basketball hoop to determine whether her husband is fit to be governor.

CRASH, BANG BOOM!

A three-fourth inch steel cable fastened to a huge sand tank at the Pampa Foundry snapped Tuesday afternoon causing a series of misfortunes that luckily injured no one. The mishap caused the tank to topple onto the Pampa Foundry office, while released tension swung the boom of a huge LS 90 crane over and onto the cab of a truck.

seen above. Both Crane operator Harry Varvil, Borger, and truckdriver J. B. Tollett, Borger, escaped injury. The accident, which occurred at 2:20, caused heavy damages to the Foundry office. The sand tank was being lifted to a nearby building.

Police Probe Blaze

VOSSESTRAND, Norway (UPI)

Police questioned a Norwegian today in belief a party in his Stalheim Hotel room may have caused a fire which destroyed the building and killed possibly 24 persons, mostly Americans.

Seven bodies were recovered from the wreckage of the 50 year-old wooden tourist hotel 30 miles northeast of Bergen on Norway's Atlantic Coast and 17 persons were missing and feared dead.

The four story, 100 room hotel was crowded with 147 tourists, 130 of them Americans, and its Norwegian staff when the fire flashed through the structure at 3 a.m. Tuesday, trapping many persons in their rooms.

Many persons were injured when they jumped from their upper floor rooms or fell while trying to escape down makeshift ropes. About 35 persons were taken to the hospital at Voss, 20 miles away but ten were released after treatment.

Bones Broken In Leap

The victims, mostly between the ages of 40 and 50, suffered burns and broken bones in their escape. Police did not disclose the names of the Norwegians they were questioning but they said he gave a party in his first floor hotel room a few hours before the fire started and that a cigarette may have caused the blaze.

Officials were reluctant to list the 17 missing hotel guests as dead even though there was no chance that anyone would be found alive in the ruins. They said many of the guests fled into the woods surrounding the hotel and there was a possibility that some of those unaccounted for may still turn up. A few persons were known to have been given aid by nearby Norwegian families.

Bulldozer & Gas Put Down Riot

By CARL CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — The warden of the U.S. Prison Medical Center said today that three men were ringleaders of the riot in which five guards were held prisoner for 16 hours.

Bones Broken In Leap

The victims, mostly between the ages of 40 and 50, suffered burns and broken bones in their escape. Police did not disclose the names of the Norwegians they were questioning but they said he gave a

Thought They Would Die

The five guards held captive said they had been positive they were going to be killed in the final minutes before a five pronged assault force of 125 lawmen broke into the wing and freed them. The prisoners had no guns. They were armed with knives.

All Five Guards, Stripped to Their Shorts, Were Injured One Seriously

Associate Warden G. V. Richardson said it wasn't known if the ringleaders and their associates were just malcontents, if they really were trying to escape or if the riot broke out because of a minor altercation.

Damage In Cell Block

As law officers unleashed their assault on the ward, rioters overturned beds and chairs, poured liquid soap on the floors and started several small fires.

The guards were put in one cell facing the onrushing bulldozer so they would be hit first if any shots were fired. Settle said the entire assault took only 12 minutes, but that it was some time later before prisoners were herded back to their cells with orders to clean them up.

As officers rammed through a heavy metal door the patients used, as a barricade, one guard, William I. Fitch, 45, slipped out to safety.

In the last five minutes before we were freed," he said, "we felt positive we were going to die."

Following to safety were Leonard Appleby, 55, Robert Rosen-dahl, 38, Charles Allen, 48, and Jung, 57.

Rosen-dahl had a severe scalp laceration and was hospitalized, believed in serious condition. The other four guards suffered slight knife wounds and were treated.

Long Says He's Competent

Earl Long says he is completely competent to resume the responsibilities of his office. He says he was "kidnaped" by his wife and others. He says he has been impeached without a hearing and put in a state mental hospital unable to communicate with his aides.

His attorney, Joe Arthur Sims, spoke out Tuesday on Earl's condition for the first time since he was committed, shouting and screaming, as a schizophrenic paranoiac.

Sims is one of the three non-medical people who have seen Earl Long in the hospital since he was committed last Thursday.

Sims today has subpoenaed Long's wife and the lieutenant governor of Louisiana plus 10 others to appear at the hearing.

Mrs. Blanche Long asked for her husband's commitment. The lieutenant governor has declined to take over power from his political chief. Louisiana today is without a governor.

SMATHERS TO LEAVE PAMPA

Jim Smathers, working conservationist in the Pampa area the past three and one-half years, has been re-assigned to a similar post at Seymour, it was reported today.

Smathers, his wife and two sons will begin a two week's vacation Friday before moving to Seymour, a city located south-west of Wichita Falls.

Conservationist Smathers, recognized as outstanding in his field, first came to Pampa as soil conservationist early in 1956. He has lived in this area at the Cabot Kingsmill camp.

EDMONDSON INSTALLED

Don Cain, 1958-59 Rotary president, right, installs L. J. Edmondson as new president of the Pampa Rotary Club. The pinning took place at a musical installation banquet Tuesday evening. Cain has recently returned from the Rotary International Convention in New York City, N.Y. and as immediate past president will serve as vice president of the club. (Daily News Photo)

DEMOCRACY HAS HEAVY GOING IN PARAGUAY

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

Naturally rich but perennially poor Paraguay is another Latin American nation where democracy has found heavy going.

Uprisings and revolts, some successful, others failures, almost have been the landlocked country's history since the end of its war with Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay in 1870.

And the seeds of revolt scattered throughout Latin America by the winds of Fidel Castro's successful revolution in Cuba, have found fertile ground in Paraguay, which has been under state of siege for nearly 30 years and today is ruled by the military dictatorship of President Gen. Alfredo Stroessner.

In the last six months, spurred by the Cuban revolution and a number of abortive invasion attempts by Nicaraguan exiles in neighboring states, Stroessner has made some gestures at restoring a democracy which most Paraguayans never knew.

Press Freedom Returned

On April 28, he raised the state of siege and announced restoration of freedom of the press.

He also called for election of a constituent assembly to rewrite the constitution, to be followed by national elections to name a truly representative congress.

On paper, it made encouraging reading.

But Stroessner's opponents have called it lip service only and Stroessner's own gestures toward carrying out his program have seemed but half-hearted.

His opponents gained ammunition for their charges when on May 30, Stroessner reimposed the state of siege and arrested 15 members of the House of Representatives and at least as many political leaders within his own Colorado Party.

The arrests grew out of anti-government demonstrations protesting a rise in transportation fares.

A deeper cause of the demonstrations was poverty pitted against the steadily rising cost of living in general.

Stroessner came to power five years ago after a "palatable" revolution which ousted President Federico Chaves.

While Stroessner is an undoubted dictator, there also are indications he is not entirely his own man.

Stroessner does not have the strong man temperament and he seldom makes decisions without consulting the military junta which surrounds him. On his own volition, he is inclined to deal lightly with his opponents, or even those who plot against him.

A man behind the scenes is Lt. Col. Ramon Duarte Vera, powerful chief of police who is a law unto himself, untouchable even by Stroessner. Besides his own police force, Duarte Vera also has the backing of the army cavalry division at Campo Grande which guards the capital of Asuncion.

Aligned with Duarte Vera is Tomas Romero Pereira, president of the Colorado Party, the only legal party in Paraguay.

These two, more than any others are blamed for Paraguay's backward march from democracy.

Paraguay's constitution is modeled after that of the United States. But it exists on paper only, and meanwhile the people of Paraguay seem to have little immediate chance of enjoying their natural riches which range from fertile lands to timber and vast mineral resources.

Atomic Tests Needed To Fill Gaps In Knowledge

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Experts said today that more atomic tests are needed to fill gaps in knowledge of what an H-bomb war would do to the warring nations and the world.

They made this suggestion as a congressional atomic energy subcommittee continued hearings on the "biological and environmental effects of a nuclear war."

The subcommittee was told Monday that a major nuclear attack on the United States would destroy or make unusable for varying periods half the nation's total swiftness.

For the purpose of the hearings, the subcommittee assumed that on a "typical October day" an aggressor hit 224 target areas in the United States with 260 H-bombs ranging in power from one to 10 megatons. One megaton equals one million tons of TNT. Counting bombs dropped on Allied targets in Western Europe and U.S. retaliatory bombing of the aggressor's homeland, the total megatonnage in this hypothetical war adds up to 4,000.

As the hearings went into their second day, the subcommittee sought to learn from expert witnesses details of what nuclear blast, fire, radiation, and fallout do to human beings.

The survivors of the A-bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki have given the world much information on this score. But scientists can't relate this information precisely to radiation dosage because they lack detailed information on just what dose the two wartime bombs delivered at certain distances.

In testimony late Monday, Dr.

G. S. Hurst of the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Laboratory suggested matter-of-factly that "the most effective way" to get the needed data "would be to detonate reconstructions of the two weapons fired over Japan."

"Air dose measurements from these devices," he said, "would then complete the information needed on radiation dose and would provide a basis for the correlation of medical effects in Japan with radiation dose."

This proposal was endorsed today by other scientific witnesses plagued by other gaps in knowledge about weapons effects. One atomic authority said that if the current test suspension hadn't been ordered, the United States would have set off two devices in Nevada to get the information sought by Hurst and others.

CECHS SENTENCE PRIEST

VIENNA (UPI)—A Roman Catholic priest was sentenced by a Czech court to five years imprisonment for anti-state activities, it was disclosed today. The priest, Jaroslav Tyrner, was accused of doing "everything to incite the population against the Communist regime," the Czech newspaper Pochoden said. Tyrner, 21 and Robert Harold Finn, 25, rode the tower to their deaths after the middle section of the framework collapsed.

FROM BATTLEFIELD TO JUNKYARD—This tank crunched junked autos in Cleveland, Ohio. The monster (original cost, $35,000) was purchased from the Army for $300. It was to have been scrapped but the owners found it was handy for demolishing the autos, switching railroad cars in the yard and lifting objects weighing as much as 15 tons.

TWO DIE IN FALL

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI)—A 12-foot steel radio relay tower collapsed Monday, killing two workmen. Wesley G. Shufford III, 21 and Robert Harold Finn, 25, rode the tower to their deaths after the middle section of the framework collapsed.

Silkworms are hatching at Lovett Memorial Library in an exhibit contributed by Mrs. Margaret Martin, 412 N. West. Mrs. Martin brought the collection with her from McKinney when she came here a week ago. She began the project for her sixth graders with six silkworms from the North Texas State College demonstration school. The silkworm cocoons were placed on display at the library this week. Now the worms are hatching into moths and will live only a few days while they mate and lay their eggs.

Ranch Movie Being Filmed In Clarksville

PARIS, Tex. (UPI) — Joe Ed Russell, owner of the 50,000-acre Kickapoo Ranch near Clarksville, was demoted to foreman Friday. But it was just a one-day stint. Russell, 10 of his cowhands and 300 head of his cattle turned actor for the day to film a sequence in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's upcoming Technicolor production of "Home from the Hill." The story is an adaptation of the novel of the same name written by William Humphrey, a native of Clarksville.

The scene in which Russell and his hands appeared revolved around Robert Mitchum and George Peppard.

Mitchum Accuses
Mitchum, the ranch's owner in the film, comes upon Russell in the process of cattle clipping, accuses him of holding out profits, and angry words follow.

Director Vincente Minelli, director of "Gigi," was well-pleased with Russell's performance, in which he was called upon to out-shout Mitchum.

Friday was Mitchum's first day of work on the film. The company has been shooting about a week, working in the swamps of Red River county, where the chief sport has been keeping a running box score on copperhead snakes killed.

Game Warden Charles Barnett, who has been working with the group on arrangements for the movie, saw to it that the company took out a hunting license before killing any snakes.

Boar Hunt Scene
An MGM spokesman said the main purpose for using the Kickapoo location is to film an action-packed boar hunt sequence graphically described by Humphrey in the novel.

MGM imported two of its own boars to use in filming the sequence but the larger one died of heat prostration during the long trip from Hollywood and the other arrived packed in ice and too tucked out to "act."

Game Warden Burnett then arranged an off-camera hunt and bagged two genuine Texas boars. Burnett also arranged for the company to buy three deer, a fawn, armadillos, possums, squirrels and geese, all of which will be photographed in the hunt.

The film troupe includes in addition to Mitchum and Peppard, Everett Sloane, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Dub Taylor, Art Director Preston

Hawthorne Rites Conducted Today

Mr. Hawthorne died of a heart attack sometime Sunday in his home in Dallas, where he had been residing for the past six months. Prior to moving to Dallas, he had been a barber in Lefors for many years. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Robert Dryden of Fairbanks, Alaska; five brothers, Albert F. of Lubbock, Paul of Amarillo, Lloyd of Pampa, W. J. of Severn, Md.; Omer L. of Travis Air Force Base, Fairfield, Calif.; and one grandchild.

Interment will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Dr. McKean Dies In Gladewater

Funeral services for Dr. J. C. McKean, one of Pampa's earliest doctors, will be held Friday in Gladewater. Dr. McKean died at 9:30 a.m. today in Gladewater, where he operated a private hospital.

Dr. McKean came to Pampa from Wink in the 1920's and started the McKean Hospital, located in the White Deer Land Company Building and then above the Malone Furniture Company. Mrs. P. A. Worley, mother of Inez Carter, financed the construction of Worley Hospital for him in the 1930's. Later he went to Gladewater and was married to Miss Amy Smallwood, a nurse. He is survived by his wife. The McKeans had no children.

FIREMEN TAKE LITTLE BREATH

Pampa's Fire Department is in the midst of another long string of fireless days. Chief Ernest Winborne reported this morning. The city is now in its eighth straight day without a reported fire. A recent string of "fireless days" ended after 12 days, two days short of a record.

Police Officer Ill

Pampa police officer Bill Robinson was taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital shortly after midnight last night apparently in great pain. Assistant Chief J. O. Dumas reported today.

Dumas said doctors at the hospital are running a series of test to determine the nature of Robinson's illness.

Amulance On Way Lefors (Sp)

A community ambulance, ordered by the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department, is scheduled to arrive this week. The department will then be equipped to provide ambulance service to the community.

RUSSIAN ESCAPER DROWNS

HELSINGBORG, Sweden (UPI) — A Russian sailor was drowned in the two-mile-wide strait between here and Denmark Monday after jumping ship in a dramatic bid for freedom. "I was watching the Russian ship through binoculars and saw the man jump overboard," said Port Capt. Folk Herlin. The man began swimming toward Sweden and deliberately turned his back on a lifeboat sent by the Soviet ship before he went under, Herlin said.

The famed singer, Hildegarde, is excellent proof that a mature woman can be a beauty. Offstage, the singer uses very little make-up. Her skin is a clear pink-and-white and her hair is a soft gold. Her figure is trim and lithe. She has no need of many of the beauty props that actresses use. But she does work hard at beauty. She adheres to a special diet (left) which provides her with 26 natural vitamins each day. Here, she sweetens cereal with honey. A close-up of her really flawless skin (center) also shows her with the lacy handkerchief which has become her signature. She uses an astringent cleanser (right) as a part of her skin-care program. She is a firm believer in massage, in walking, swimming and setting-up exercises. She is, in short, completely disciplined about maintaining good looks.

Local Delegates To Attend Convention Of Altrusa International In Chicago

The world's oldest organization for women in business and the professions, Altrusa International, comprising some 16,000 women doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs in hundreds of different fields — will hold a biennial convention, July 19-25, at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago, Ill.

The Altrusa Club of this city will be one of 480 in seven countries: Bermuda, Canada, Guatemala, Great Britain, Mexico, Puerto Rico, United States, to be represented.

Attending from the Pampa Altrusa Club will be Mrs. Mark Heath, president, and Mrs. Clyde Vandenberg, vice president.

The entire convention is geared to the new role voluntary organizations such as 42-year-old Altrusa must take today. Mrs. John Nelson, Richmond, Va., Altrusa International president, explains: "Voluntary organizations are invited to send top leaders as advisors, consultants and participants in conferences — governmental and non-governmental, on every vital issue from foreign policy to health, welfare, aging, employment, education and traffic safety. To justify this trust we must continue to improve our own programs."

Altrusa will endeavor to do so by launching, at convention, a new two-year program for the 1959-61 biennium under the new theme, "Make Service Your Business," and by conducting five leadership training seminars for officers and members.

The new program, which is channeled through the International Relations, Public Affairs and Vocational Information committees, especially calls for intensified traffic safety efforts, increased services to the aged, more career clinics for high schools, and more hospitality programs for foreign students and visitors.

Two major projects of Altrusa International will be evaluated and expanded: 1. Grants-in-Aid, which awards $250 to $750 grants to women from Latin America and Asia for graduate study in any field. Since 1945, $141,000 has been given to 267 women.

2. Founders Fund Vocational Aid, which grants program of its kind for women of all ages, provides $50 to $250 grants for training or equipment needed for home business. Since 1953, $61,300 has been given to 297 women, most of them over 35.

Speakers for the six-day convention will be: Ivy Baker Priest, U.S. Treasurer; Miss Chloe Gifford, president, General Federation of Women's Clubs; Kenneth Wells, president, Freedoms Foundation; Blanche (Mrs. Skulgi) Paulson, director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services, Chicago Board of Education; Eunice (Mrs. Keith) Roberts, director, women's educational programs, Indiana University; Miss Anne Rambo, training specialist and vocational counselor, Relations With Schools, Missiles and Space Division, Lockheed Aircraft Corp.; Miss Elizabeth Hatch, make-up colors if you've left your skin a pretty porcelain.

Summer Switch To New Cosmetics

Another switch should come in nail polish shades. Put away the winery, deep reds of winter and the deeper pinks of spring. Try a clear, light, vivid pink that's in complete harmony with summer colors. Paris pink is one of these, light and lovely. It comes in both pearlized and regular nail polish.

Crystal necklaces in unusual and beautiful colors are more expensive than the usual pastels and worth the difference in price. Try a two- or three-strand necklace of crystals in olive green and soft blue spiked with glittering gold beads.

When you travel, take along enough lingerie to keep you comfortable through the entire trip. You won't want to spend all of your time hanging over a washbasin and laundry service is not always reliable.

The glow of warm summer colors is the cue for a whole change in make-up. For it isn't just the colors you wear, the pinks and blues, sand and gold and tawny shades. It's the very reflection of the day about you, the clear blue sky, the hot sun and green grass.

On a summer day, the clear light does something to and for your skin quite different from the effect achieved at, say, 4 p.m. on a dark winter day. If your skin is a golden tan, you need a completely different shade of powder, rouge and lipstick. But equally, you need different and new

Singer Works At Being Mature Beauty, Leads Disciplined Life For Results

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

When the time comes to self-consciously stammer "over 21" at the voting polls, we can no longer depend on nature alone to maintain our good looks.

The mature woman must work to remain lovely, and half a job isn't enough. You can meticulously care for your skin and hair, but if you neglect your figure, you'll never create an illusion of youth.

Discipline is the key to mature beauty, and no one can offer more undisputed proof of its success than the "incomparable Hildegarde." It's true that her living as a singer depends on her appearance as well as her talent. But it would benefit all of us to learn a bit about how this charming woman continues to always walk in an aura of elegance and beauty.

It isn't chance. She works at it. And there's no reason why anyone should permit maturity to bring about frumpiness rather than charm.

Rest and proper food are most important. Hildegarde firmly believes. She gets as much rest as possible in a life that is made hectic by fittings, rehearsals, travel and business appointments.

She has strong preferences where food is concerned. Her choices may or may not work for everyone, but they most certainly seem to be right for her. She drinks papaya juice frequently as a refresher, uses honey as a sweetener for cereal, and consumes 26 natural vitamins a day in the kind of food she takes at her meals.

Hildegarde is a strong advocate of exercise and feels that walking and swimming are the two that do the most for her figure. In addition, she does the usual setting-up exercises each day. Her figure is excellent as a result.

This famous singer has a lovely pink and white skin, and keeps it that way with facials, massage and creams to replace the moisture. She cleanses her face first with cream, then with soap and water, and occasionally uses an astringent.

Her hair is naturally light, but she does have it lightened from time to time, for like most blonde hair, it has darkened through the years.

Above all, she is delightfully feminine, as is evidenced by her trademark.

In her wardrobe, she combines the elements of color and harmony apparent in a work of art, for she feels that a woman creates her own picture for all to view. Hildegarde is living proof that a maturity can be an asset. With discipline, good grooming and a graceful manner, every woman can be attractive.

Mrs. Vaughn Hostess To Mexican Dinner

LEFORS (Spl) — A Mexican dinner was given by Mrs. B. D. Vaughn in her home on Tuesday night. All of her children were present except Captain Jimmy Vaughn, who is stationed at Metuchen, N.J.

Attending were Meses. and Mrs. Ray Vaughn, Billy Joe and Mary Jane of San Antonio; Ches Smotherman of Albuquerque, N.M.; Jack Vaughn, Eosie and Patry and Joe Archer, Jody, Don, and baby of Lefors; Robert Newmeister and Mrs. Charlotte Smotherman of Claude.

Today's job holders would probably be more alert if they realized they could be replaced by a push-button.

Mrs. Berry Has GA Meeting

LEFORS (Spl) — "Counting the Cost" was the program topic of the Intermediate Girl's Auxiliary, held in the home of Mrs. L. M. Berry on Monday morning.

Miss Shiree Cable was in charge of the program, with Mrs. Berry, Miss Cable, Oreda Jernigan, and Mrs. David Robinson taking parts. The group opened with singing "Are you Able," and closed with a song, "Wherever He Leads I'll Go."

A definition of the word, "Thailand" was given by Miss Cable. Refreshments of cakes were served to those present.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and think I should have something to say about this matter. My parents are forcing me to go to summer camp again this year.

I went last year and hated it. I didn't have one friend.

My parents tell me there are plenty of kids my age who would give anything to go to summer camp. I told them they could go in my place.

They said if I thought I was going to sit around all summer and watch television I was sadly mistaken. What wrong with staying home and watching television? I think my parents are just trying to get rid of me. What can I do?

CAMP HATER

DEAR HATER: Change your attitude. You are being offered a healthy, constructive summer in a wholesome out-of-doors atmosphere. Here is an opportunity to gain valuable experience in learning to get along with others. Determine to make friends and enjoy camp — and you will. You parents know what they are doing.

DEAR ABBY: If answered in the paper, my problem could help many other married men with the same trouble. My wife is a convention hound. National, State, Regional or District. It doesn't make any difference. She joins organizations for the sole purpose of going out of town to conventions. She spends money on clothes to keep up with the national officers, and

A Seattle couple recently gave their 12-year-old daughter her birthday wish. They turned her loose for one hour in a department store, free to charge anything she saw and wanted.

As she rushed through the store grabbing first this and then that she probably had an exciting hour. But I can't help but think her indulgent parents have a lot to learn about child psychology.

Any kid, I'm sure, would have gotten a far bigger thrill out of being told she could take her time — take all day — if she wished — to choose one present for herself — the one thing in the store she most wanted.

Then instead of running through the store to latch onto as many possessions as possible before her hour time limit ran out — she would have begun a real search.

As she compared one thing with another, yearned over first this and then that, thought of the advantages and disadvantages to each purchase, she would have had a memorable day.

And she would have learned a worthwhile lesson — that we can't have everything and so it is important to know what we want most.

But maybe the little girl's parents taught her a lesson in reverse. Maybe that one hectic grabbing spree taught her that being able to have "anything" isn't quite as satisfying as she thought.

That's something few people ever have a chance to find out — especially at age 12.

CONGRESS MAY HAVE TO HEAD OFF RUSTLERS

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rustlers are reported after the cattle again in the West, and it looks like Congress may have to head them off at the interchange.

Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.) said he is informed bad hombres under cover of night have been snatching sick (newborn) calves, loading them into panel trucks and floorboarding it for unsupervised markets in Kansas.

The victims naturally are yelling for help.

Meanwhile, back at the Capitol, our lawmakers also have promised a fight to save the West's few remaining wild horses. It seems that city slickers in airplanes and helicopters have been running the mustangs to exhaustion, with a view to grinding them up into dog food.

Rustling on Increase

Rep. E. Y. Berry (R-S.D.) is already in with a bill to make rustling cattle a little less promising as a life's work, although he does not say anything about enforcing the new law with a rope, as in some earlier days.

"Rustling is on the increase," Berry said. "There's been an awful lot of it lately. One reason is that under federal law as now written this offense ordinarily is punished as only a misdemeanor."

Under the Berry Bill taking a cow across state lines for an immoral purpose like stealing would be cause to throw a man in the stockade for up to five years and fine him as much as $5,000.

The Justice Department is against this, and that's not so surprising. The federal bulls are so busy now chasing interstate car thieves they haven't got much time to spend running down cows.

Under present law, Berry says, you have to ascertain how much the missing dog is worth before you know whether you are hunting a felon or only an adult delinquent. Only where you can prove the stolen critter would have brought $100 or better can the deed be punished as a felony.

Quotes In The News

United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Warden Russell O. Suttle of the U.S. Medical Center for the criminally insane, on rioting inmates who held five guards hostage:

"We are in no position to negotiate until we hear something from them. They said they'll call us when they are ready to talk."

BATON ROUGE, La. — Lt. Gov. Letha Frazier, declining to take over as acting governor while Gov. Earl K. Long is being held in a mental institution:

"I don't know what I'm going to do."

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Rev. David H. Brooks, a Negro minister, applauding the life sentences given four white youths for raping a Negro code:

"But I cannot help thinking of the four Negroes now in the death house at our state prison for raping white women."

WASHINGTON — Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida: reporting that President Eisenhower advised him and eight other governors to stay in a good humor during their trip to Russia:

"I told him that if they don't say anything bad about Robert E. Lee I won't say anything bad about Lenin."

What with the way beef prices vary and all, Berry proposes to disregard the price tag. This seems only fair to the rustler, who otherwise can't be expected to know how regretful to feel at what he is doing.

Even Sheriff Raided

A Denver cattleman named Lawrence C. Phipps Jr. wrote Al lot the other day that 10 to 15 of his newborn calves recently turned up missing, and that several of his neighbors also have been raided by rustlers, including John Hammond, a sheriff.

Rustlers who steal cows from the sheriff obviously have no sense of ethics at all, but where they really blew it, according to Phipps, was when they picked as a victim a rancher named Sherman Burns.

Phipps said Burns operates not only a ranch near Sheridan, Wyo., but also a well-known detective agency of the same name.

"He put some of his operators on the case and brought the thieves to court," Allott's constituent reported.

However, not all the ranchers out that way have access to quite the same facilities for tracking down rustlers as Burns. That's why Allott is considering whether Congress ought to send out a posse or something.

As for the aerial bronco busters, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) told the Senate the other day only 20,000 of these cayuses are left and that something has got to be done to save them from early extinction.

Accordingly, a House Judiciary subcommittee will start hearings July 15 on assorted bills to blow the whistle on mustang hunting.

Wallace, Hopkins Didn't Have Commerce Job Qualifications

WASHINGTON WINDOW
By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Old-timers around town will remember that Harry L. Hopkins and Henry A. Wallace were confirmed for service as secretary of commerce, the job for which the U.S. Senate has refused to confirm.

Neither Wallace nor Hopkins had qualifications for that post, either by experience or point of view. Their nominations shocked the business community. This shock was aggravated by the belief that, in both instances, President Roosevelt was seeking to provide himself with a hand-picked successor in the White House.

Wallace got the nomination because he had been a good boy in the 1944 presidential campaign, making powerful campaign speeches to the political left wing in behalf of the Roosevelt-Truman ticket. FDR had wanted Wallace to be renominated for vice president in 1944 but the Democratic convention would not have him.

Partly Loyalty
Wallace could have sulked or bolted the ticket but he stayed on the team. FDR made room for him by firing Commerce Secretary Jesse H. Jones, a financier with ample qualifications for that post.

"Henry is entitled too what he wants," FDR told Jones, and that was that. The nomination went up on Jan. 21, 1945. In his autobiography, Jones recalls:

"The suggestion sent to Congress by President Roosevelt that Wallace, who possessed odd and mystic notions about business and finance, should be placed in charge of the government's lending agencies, which were dealing in billions of dollars, startled the country and shocked Congress."

"Congress immediately took steps to assure that, whatever else Mr. Wallace got hold of, he wouldn't get his hands on Uncle Sam's check book."

Jones, as secretary of commerce, also had been federal loan administrator. That included supervision of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. and its subsidiaries. How "congressional" Republicans and Democrats alike felt about Wallace in that kind of clover was indicated by the vote in the House to separate the FIA from the Commerce Department. The vote was 400 to 2.

Strong Opposition

The Senate Commerce Committee voted 15 to 5 against Wallace's confirmation as secretary but he finally was confirmed. Finally, also, he ran for president. That was in 1948 as the nominee of the Progressive Party, which was invented, operated and ballroomed by the Communist Party of the United States.

Hopkins was nominated for the Commerce Department in 1938. Some days before the nomination was made Gallup pollsters put this question: "Would you approve Harry L. Hopkins' nomination for commerce secretary?" The returns: yes, 34 per cent; no, 66 per cent.

Harry the Hop, as FDR called him, was confirmed, however, and served an undistinguished Cabinet term. In furtherance of his White House ambitions, Hopkins planned to buy a farm in his native Iowa and joined an Iowa Methodist church. Nothing came of that.

The Wallace, Hopkins, Strauss incidents suggest that the Senate is working under new ground rules on confirmations.

Business Views

Magnesium demand has improved more than was originally expected at the end of 1958, the Commerce Department said. Consumption this year is now estimated to run 25-30 per cent above 1958, compared to a January estimate for a 20 per cent increase.

Coffee prices dropped in 1958 to the lowest level in 10 years because growers produced nearly 1 million more tons of the beans than were consumed. This is the substance of a comprehensive review of the year to be presented to the directors of the Pan-American Coffee Bureau, which opens its annual meeting.

TIED BONGONG
LEAKSVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Pat Fox's bongo drums were stolen three months ago. Monday a young, anonymous telephone caller told him where he could find them, and he did. "I guess he just got tired of the drums," Fox said. "Or his parents did."

Mother, Daughter United For Roles In Hollywood Movie

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — More drama unfolded behind the cameras of a new movie than registered on film when a mother and daughter were reunited after 16 years of bitter separation.

The daughter was Venetia Stevenson, a sultry blonde newcomer. The mother was Anna Lee, a star 20 years ago. They were playing mother and daughter in the picture.

"At first the tension and the emotional strain was terrible," Venetia said. "I hadn't lived with my mother since I was five years old."

"My parents were divorced, and I lived with my father. Mother and I corresponded a little bit, but we were never friends. And when we did see each other we usually had an argument."

Separated by Article

Intropective and sad-faced, Venetia said the basis of her estrangement from her mother was a magazine article which misquoted her as saying Anna Lee had never been a real parent to her.

"She was very hurt by the story," Venetia said. "But it is true we were never close. And it was a shock playing her daughter on the screen, because I've never felt like her daughter in real life."

Venetia added she suggested her mother for the role in "Big Night" in which she co-stars with Dick Contino.

"I left my father's home to live by myself when I was 15," Venetia went on. "I missed having a mother. Teenage girls have a special need for a mother's advice, and dad wasn't able to fill the gap."

"Mother and I always looked more like sisters — because she's so youthful appearing. She acts young, too. And I act old."

Mother Pictured Differently

"My own picture of a mother has always been a good-natured, elderly woman with an apron and a twinkle in her eye. It's pretty different from having a glamorous actress for a mother."

During the filming of "Big Night" Venetia and Anna talked things over, and the coolness they felt for one-another gradually gave way to friendship.

"Friendship" is the word, too, the blue-eyed actress said.

How A Paris, Texas Lady Lost 45 Pounds

We have received several thousand letters similar to the following, written by grateful users of Barcetrane. Mrs. Paul Cooksey, 605 25th St., Paris, Texas, wrote us as follows:

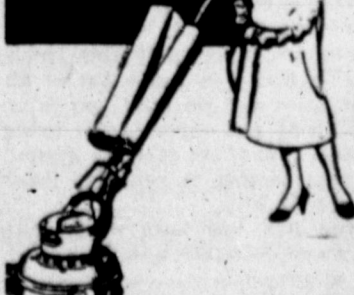

"I have lost 45 pounds taking Barcetrane. I can easily lose 7 pounds per bottle without suffering hunger pains or loss of energy. I also find it a wonderful tonic."

Just ask any Texas druggist for Barcetrane. Mix and take according to directions and watch the fat just seem to melt away. Money back guarantee on first bottle.

Non-Govt. Money

It is astonishing how many people miss the single important fact that the money supply is not the phenomenon of inflation.

Certainly it is true that we experience the results of inflation by virtue of the continuing and alarming rise in prices. But inflation is not caused by price increases any more than a wet pavement causes a shower of rain.

Beginning with our Constitution, in enormous fallacy in thinking developed in this country. Even that immortal document failed miserably to explain something which has finally been recognized as an incontrovertible fact of life. The Constitution has it that the government shall have the power of coining money and regulating its value. The fact is that the government, however much money it coins, can in fact regulate its value. And this is true, whether we use gold, silver, cigar stamps or shoe buttons for money.

Money does not lend itself as a value determinant. It is a medium of exchange and that is all it is. All money fluctuates in value. Even gold is just as subject to fluctuation as is paper currency. Thus, the transient value of money relates only to the amount of goods or services which can be purchased by it at the given moment in which you elect to spend it. A single piece of gold, in its time, could have purchased as little as a sandwich or as much as a small farm.

We have, on numerous occasions, stood firmly for a redeemable currency, backed by gold. Our purpose in taking this position has not been sired by our belief that the value of gold does not fluctuate. On the contrary, our belief in the efficacy of gold as the proper metal of currency support relates to the fact that gold is scarce and that it cannot be counterfeited. What this nation requires is something which governments cannot manipulate.

Inflation, as it presently rears its ugly head, is the result of government manipulation of money and credit and nothing else. And nothing is quite so susceptible to government manipulation as paper money.

Understanding

Some 20 members of a well-known Southern California manufacturing company's "top echelon" are back in school — not studying advanced management — but getting a refresher course in basic moral absolutes.

The course is an outgrowth of Philip M. Watts' growing trend toward socialism in the United States.

Convinced that a better understanding of America's free enterprise system was the best antidote for the poisonous spread of socialism, Watts, head of the world's largest manufacturer of metal household furniture, Virtue Bros. Manufacturing Co., sought a means to help provide this understanding.

To date the group of Virtue employees have attended 15 hour long sessions under the tutelage of Dr. V. Orval Watts, economist, teacher and author and long an outstanding critic of the "welfare state."

Dr. Watts' aim is "to present the philosophy of free enterprise in the belief that if enough people understand how to act in freedom we will get freedom."

His present course consists of a series of 20 lectures which cover the wide variety of — yet closely related — subjects of Property, Liberty, What Is Man; Capital, Humans Need One Another; Money, Credit, Currency, Politics, Credit, Banks and Politics in the Business Cycle; Government, Its Use and Abuse; the Constitution of the U.S. and the Erosion of the U.S. Constitution.

Communism's Great Retreat; Foreign Trade, Threat or Promise; the U.N. vs the U.S.; and Government, Union and Wages are also included in the system called "free enterprise."

A believer that "the Golden Rule promotes the greatest good for the greatest number," Dr. Watts says he attempts to show how "when men follow the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments they establish capitalism and free competitive markets."

Man lives in a complex, constantly changing environment, Dr. Watts says. "We must continually

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. ROILES

"Moral Basis Of A Free Society"

Since the ministers and all those who are striving to promote the ethics and morals of the Jewish and Christian religions are working under great difficulties, I want to quote from a graduation speech made by Howard E. Kershner before the Grove City College last year.

Because the ministers have a very difficult job with so much demand for their time and with their congregations in various stages of comprehension of the Judeo-Christian ethics, anything that anybody can do to help them should be done. The ministers cannot do it alone. The laymen must put their shoulders to the wheel and give them all the assistance they can give in spreading the gospel of goodwill.

I have read eight or ten books on the Commandments, and Mr. Kershner explains them about as clearly and completely and rationally as any book I have read on the subject.

I do not see how anybody can read this address without being able to clarify his own thinking and thus be useful to himself and everybody else.

Mr. Kershner has had a world of experience throughout South America and Europe in administering relief, and he was one of the founders and organizers of the Christian Freedom Foundation, Inc.

The confusion we are in today, indicates that there is great need for more light being thrown on the causes of this confusion.

From here on I am quoting from this address:

"Forty-three years ago, young ladies and gentlemen, I sat where you sit today. The world then was very different from the world today. No one could possibly have foreseen the changes that have taken place in my generation. No one can foretell what will happen in yours. One thing seems certain, the rate of change is accelerating."

"During my school days we were taught that freedom had come into the world to stay and that free government, such as we have enjoyed in our country, would gradually be extended until it covered the whole world. We took freedom for granted and did not sense the danger of losing it nor the urgent importance of seeking diligently to defend and preserve it."

"About a quarter of a century ago I began to see that freedom was in danger, that it was even then slipping away from us. I became concerned that we might lose our precious heritage and slip back under the waves of some form of totalitarian tyranny for one or more long periods of time before mankind finally achieved the integrity and knowledge necessary to preserve freedom, free government and economic well-being."

"When the communists conquered China, I asked an old Chinese friend of mine how long he thought their rule would endure. 'I don't know,' he replied, 'but it is only temporary.'"

"But tell me how long it must be endured," I said.

"I do not know how long it will last in years," he replied, "but I must make a guess I would say possibly four hundred years."

The Fight for Freedom

"We also might lose our freedom for one or more long periods. The fight for liberty is as old as human history. We learn from recently deciphered clay tablets that the people of ancient Sumer were plagued by an excessive number of bureaucrats, exorbitantly high taxes, and extensive regulations which made life miserable, reducing many to almost the status of slaves. We learn also that they rebelled against this tyranny and from time to time won a considerable measure of their freedom, dismissed most of the bureaucrats, freed themselves from controls, and enjoyed surcease from oppressive taxation. Then freedom would be lost as government tyranny again prevailed. We find, from a study of the past, that the battle for freedom has ebbed and flowed from the beginning of recorded history. My generation lost; yours must try again.

"We shall better understand our situation I think, if we search for the source of freedom. If we find from whence it came, we shall be able better to protect and defend it."

The Source of Freedom

"Freedom was inherent in the act of creation. God created us as free moral agents, with the power to choose between right and wrong. Freedom is possible for who choose the right. Tyranny, oppression and slavery is the lot of men who choose the wrong. William Penn summed it up accurately when he said, 'If men will not be governed by God, then they must be ruled by tyrants.'"

"Some thirty-two hundred years ago the highest level conference in the history of the world was held at the top of Mount Sinai. God was present and the charter of our liberties was formulated. Freedom was born the day Moses came down from Sinai bearing the Ten Commandments. There had been glimpses of it before, but the battle for freedom as an ideal for all men was made possible when the principles set forth in the Ten Commandments began to take hold of the minds of men."

"Let us consider the relationship of these Commandments to human affairs."

Robert Allen Reports:

'Windfall Profits' Being Made on Cotton

WASHINGTON—"Windfall profits" running into many millions are being made on purchases of surplus cotton from the government.

Directly involved in these extraordinary transactions are the Commodity Credit Corporation, presided over by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson, and the International Cooperation Administration (foreign aid), headed by James Riddleberger, former ambassador to Greece.

These highly lucrative operations at taxpayers' expense are being uncovered by Representative L. H. Fountain (D., N.C.), chairman of the Government Operations Investigating Subcommittee. Previous probes by this group resulted in the recovery of $1,500,000 in "windfall profits" from large cheese makers, and the indictment of a number of drug manufacturers for price-fixing, particularly on anti-polio vaccine.

As traced by Representative Fountain and his counsel James Naughton, these juicy "windfall profits" cotton deals were carried out this way:

The Commodity Credit Corporation sold a quantity of government-owned surplus cotton to a private trader. He immediately claimed a refund on the ground the cotton was of a lower grade than he paid for. After obtaining this refund, the trader thereupon sold the cotton, at the original or even higher grade, to the International Cooperation for shipment abroad as economic aid.

All these proceedings took place in a matter of a few days, and without the cotton ever leaving the CCC warehouse. It was all done by paper juggling between the CCC and ICA — to the trader's hefty gain and the taxpayers' cost!

Following are revealing details of these operations so far uncovered by the Fountain committee, aided by the General Accounting Office:

CCC has refunded more than $1,500,000 to private cotton buyers on regading claims.

One spot check disclosed CCC refunded $24 a bale on a 3,000-bale sale, after which the trader sold this same cotton at a higher grade to ICA. Result: "Windfall profits" children the fundamentals of education. (They must be made to feel responsible, exercise choice in schools, pay attention to the progress and do their part in the education of their children.)

"A good teacher should be published as a good doctor is, Dr. Watts says, and then he should be imitated. 'You can't teach anyone to be a real teacher by rules. It is mainly a matter of sincerity, knowledge of subject interest in education, knowing how to communicate — a matter of imitation as much as anything else.'"

Our inability to get good teachers, according to Dr. Watts, "is not because of wages. Their wages have increased along with other fields."

In government schools it is very difficult for a student to get an education because public schools attract security seekers and bureaucratic minds," he said. Tests show that students going into teaching rank at the bottom portion of their classes, Dr. Watts added.

Individuals in Dr. Watts' course at Virtue Bros. have shown enthusiasm and responded well in the course. Success of the venture is demonstrated by the company's intention to continue with the same type of course in the next lower level of supervision at the manufacturing company.

Dr. Watts hopes that the idea of offering the course on the Free Enterprise System will spread to other business concerns as an effective means of combating the spread of socialism.

"The crackpots of our G.I.'s in Korea," Dr. Watts says, were in many cases "not due to torture, but they failed by not being able to resist the socialist arguments."

digging into the purchase of millions of dollars of metal grain bins which are disintegrating after less than a year.

The Missouri is also looking into complaints of "influence peddling" in the sale of surplus commodities at low prices.

Comptroller General Joseph Campbell will shortly issue a report sharply criticizing CCC on the grain bins, charging 33,000 of them have had to be repaired although guaranteed for two years. This denunciatory report will state:

"Rehabilitation of the bins was undertaken at the expense of the CCC even though it appears that CCC could have had recourse to the supplier of the bins. Under the terms and conditions for purchase of the bins, the supplier warranted for a two-year period that 'all structure and parts thereof will not be defective in design and workmanship.'"

"The CCC should have billed the supplier for these heavy repair costs."

NEW YORK — CUFF NOTES: The girl I wrote about yesterday, Marcella Laine, the British showgirl who is six feet tall, earns $190 a week, will net $152.45 after taxes and would like to save $100 of it each week for the year she will be there, not only is a nude in the "Lido de Paris" show booked for the Stardust Hotel in Nevada, but was responsible for my learning what tall, lissome nudes in Las Vegas shows think about while standing there buck naked in front of all the people. . . . She introduced me to Irene Hill, and Irene told me. . . . Don't get your temperature going, because you'll be astonished at what they think about. . . . Irene asked me if I had been to Las Vegas and I said, yes, when living in California, not since. . . . "Boulder Dam," she said. . . . "Hoover Dam, once more," I said. "The Republicans are in regime again."

. . . She didn't understand that, so we dropped it, but I asked what would a beautiful, tall and shattering French showgirl care about Hoover Dam? . . . "I want to see it," she said. . . . "But that's the point, Irene," I said. "Why do you want to see it? What is so compulsive?"

"My father is a construction engineer in France," she said, "with an idea fix on 'Hoover Dam.' I grew up on his passion for it. Pictures by the dozen, articles about it."

I want to go see it and write him a letter that I did see it."

"That seems reasonable enough," I said. "Now tell me something. What does a girl like you actually think about when standing there in the show nude and facing the people?"

"In my case 'Hoover Dam,'" she said. . . . Now you know the kind of thing those kids think about.

After leaving the 30-odd girls from the "Lido de Paris," I went out to get a cab and the first one had all the windows closed. . . . Inside, it was cool and refreshing. . . . It turned out that the cab was personally owned and not a fleet car. . . . "It's wonderful in here," I said. "You are considerable of your passengers."

The driver gave a cynical laugh and said: "Do you honestly think after driving one of these for 24 years on the streets of New York I have much consideration left for a bunch of faceless men and women who get in and out of here every day? That air-conditioner for me. Just for me, I'm in this rig 12 hours or more a day and on days like this I look out after me, first, and the faceless people second."

. . . Now you know what you are: faceless. Helene Hennabery on amor, amor: "Platonic love is like inviting someone to your wine cellar and offering them a chocolate soda. . . . Helene! . . . Not only is the grammar awry, but . . . Waco's Gene McKinney flew into New York for a week of show-seeing and confided that at least one big, economically able New York producer was infatuated with Paul Baker's "Time And The River," production of the Thomas Wolfe novel. . . . Gene did the final draft of the adaptation and all that stands in the way is clearance of dramatic rights from the Wolfe estate, its having already given the Baylor Theater group an amateur rights. . . . If you notice a name Mr. BoBo running anywhere at all, wire Fred Kline in Hollywood. . . . It's missing from his stable of thoroughbreds. . . . Saw a guy on one of the TV, the other night, who was a badge, no one reached for a gun, no faces were slapped; no children were left orphans by gunfire and no one uttered threats in a saloon. . . . Unique thing."

Note to Stardust Hotel, Las Vegas: "At the lunch in New York the other day for your 'Lido de Paris' troupe, the souvenirs for the ladies were tiny sewing kits, complete with threads and needles. . . . Thought you'd like to know that of 20-some kids in the troupe, six knew what the kit was for. The others thought it was a game or a puzzle or a parlor trick, something like that. . . . It's not ready for the public yet, but more than one American shoe company is experimenting with cork heels to take the place of rubber heels. . . . Long Wins Public Hearing On Whether He's Held Legally

United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Earl K. Long battled a step further back toward the Louisiana governor's seat today by winning a public hearing Friday on whether he is legally held as insane.

District Judge Robert D. Jones signed a writ of habeas corpus ordering the director of state hospitals to produce Long in his court at Covington, La., at 10 a.m. June 26 for the hearing.

The 63-year-old Long, committed to Southeastern State Hospital as a schizophrenic paranoid, will remain in custody until he is brought into the court.

But should Jones then rule that he has been illegally committed, Long will have the legal power to grab the reins of government including command of the state police and National Guard. Consensus is there will be "hell to pay" if the state succeeds.

Long was reported by the hospital to be cooperating quietly with some of the state's top psychiatrists who were examining him.

The allegations in the petition for the habeas corpus writ included one that he had been given a hasty examination in a "circus like atmosphere" in the back seat of a police car with a crowd pressing around and two doctors talking to him for only a few minutes.

It said, state law requires that full reasons and particulars be given in writing why a patient is ruled insane and that the commitment papers on Long state only that he is in a "run down condition" and "in need of treatment."

More than 100 detailed psychiatric questions in the official form were left blank in the haste to get Long behind bars after he freed himself from a hospital in New Orleans and headed for the capital.

The petition said that if the court believes Long was insane at the time of his commitment, which Long emphatically denies, then his alternate plea is that he has "completely recovered."

The writ was obtained by Long's top attorney and political henchman, Joe Arthur Smith.

It was signed after Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion handed down his formal opinion that Long was no longer governor but that he could resume power the moment he was freed.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, June 24, the 175th day of the year, with 190 more days to follow in 1959.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history: In 1497, John Cabot became the first European, since the days of the Norsemen, to sight the mainland of the North American continent.

In 1647, Margaret Brent—possibly the first suffragette in America—appeared before the Maryland Assembly to demand a voice and a vote in that body. The Assembly was shocked.

In 1813, Henry Ward Beecher, later a celebrated preacher, was born.

In 1863, Confederate Troops under General Robert E. Lee crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, Virginia, to begin their invasion of Pennsylvania.

In 1947, the first "flying saucers" were reported, near Mount Rainier, Washington.

In 1948, Russia began the Berlin blockade.

Thought for today: The Roman poet, Juvenal, said: "No man ever became extremely wicked all at once."

SIR WALTER BUS DRIVER

ATLANTA (UPI)—George W. Rignold, a bus driver, was officially commended by the City Transit System for carrying a waiting woman passenger across a mud puddle so she could get on.
