Jap Warships Hit At Kavieng

Clopper Reports: Frisco Busy Combat Port For Pacific

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Raymond Clapper, famed Washington correspondent who early last year toured the European fronts, now is on his way to the South Pacific where he will see, first hand, "what's going on." Clapper's articles, to be transmitted from the fighting fronts and way points by radio, will be found exclusively in The Morning Avalanche on the South Plains).

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—Whatever the war has done it has not slowed down air travel. I was just 17 hours getting here from Washington, and we arrived 80 minutes ahead of schedule. People do it every day, yet it is still to me an exciting and marvelous thing that space and time can be reduced to such size, even though it is a question whether the time so saved is put to any purpose sufficiently useful to justify the saving.

CLAPPER

Anyway, I left Washington after a full day's work and was at the Bohemian club here making telephone calls before 10 the next morning.

The airlines have tried to keep up their old standards in spite of the war. They still have pretty hostesses skipping up and down the aisles, putting pillows under the heads of weary passengers and tucking blankets around them. Our stewardess said she would become an Army nurse next month and work on airplanes evacuating wounded soldiers. Graduate nurses are leaving the airlines to go into air-evacuation nursing, and college girls are taking their places.

Sleeper Planes "Out"

Sleeper planes have disappeared for the duration, but the girls still pass the chewing gum. You don't get cigarets any more with your meals, but the meals are up to prewar standards.

The stewardess even hands around a fancy printed dinner menu to make the passenger's mouth water while he waits for his food. But they couldn't match the beefsteak I had at the Chicago airport restaurant. The waitress said they had those thick, juicy steaks every day except on the two meatless days a week. What's the Chicago Tribune complaining about anyway?

BUT THE WAR has made changes. Few civilians are riding transcontinental planes. We had only two or three on the whole trip. Women and babies have disappeared as familiar sights on the airliners. In fact, if you don't have a government priority you will have trouble on a transcontinental trip. Some with low priorities are not sure of going through. At every stop there is a recheck, and passengers with low priorities get nervous lest they be put off.

Flying at night, sitting up, you are awake a good deal but not completely so, and the hours slide by without being very distinct. You know how much ground you are covering by the changes in the weather. You leave Washington in mild weather and two hours later at Toledo you get out in an icy wind. At Cheyenne, there is snow on the field. Then a few hours later you come down in balmy, moist sunshine at San Francisco. Around the airport here bright geraniums were in bloom, and calla lilies. It was like a late spring morning in the East. But when I called the San Francisco News the telephone operator was apologetic and asked how I liked the cold weather here.

I checked a little bit later with a sailor who drives for the Navy. He was wounded at Guadalcanal and now is a chauffeur for an admiral. He didn't know whether this was unusual weather or not but he said he liked Michigan weather best.

Pacific War Progressing

San Francisco is classed as a combat port, and the streets are full of the Army and Navy. Yet it seems like a peacetime boom town and the downtown streets are packed with shoppers. I have seen numerous women streetcar conductors. Like elevator girls, they wear slacks and

Soviet Forces Sweep On Into Old Poland

RED GAINS, TRANSPLANTED TO U. S.—Here is the Russian front (only approximate, since yesterday's map already is out of date), transposed to a map of the U. S., to give an idea of the territory Red armies have retaken since their successive counter-offensives started to roll back the Germans, who now are behind the pre-war Polish border west of Kiev. Dotted line at right indicates farthest German penetration, culminating with the Stalingrad debacle.

Vast Quantities Of Goods Taken

Reds Say Debacle Beats Stalingrad

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Red Army, continuing its offensive west of Kiev, has smashed across the 1939 Russian-Polish border, it was disclosed today.

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 4—Soviet tank columns apparently swept into old Poland yesterday, toppling Novograd-Volynski and the pre-war border town of Olevsk enroute, and a Moscow bulletin early today said the Red Army killed 6,000 Germans in its unchecked offensive over territory which had been lost in the first month of the conflict.

Hundreds of Germans were surrendering, throwing down their arms and going "over to the side of the Red Army" by entire company lots, said a midnight communique describing one of the worst Nazi debacles since the Stalingrad disaster.

Much Equipment Taken

Huge quantities of war equipment fell to Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's forces, which included Siberian infantrymen. The torrent of power unleashed by the First Ukraine Army and the crumbling of German lines over the entire area opposite central Poland made it almost certain that flying Soviet columns now were across the old frontier below the Pripet marches. The border recognized by Moscow, however, lies 150 miles beyond captured Olevsk, once a customs station seven miles from Poland.

Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin in an order of the day late yesterday announced the capture of Novograd-Volynski, a rail and road hub 15 miles from the former frontier.

General Vatutin, co-captor of Kharkov and the liberator of Kiev, now has led his men 760 miles from Stalingrad. Berlin lies nearly 600 miles to the west, and the Russians are driving ahead on a 60-mile front.

Vast Strides Made By Army Air Arm

Arnold's Report Shows Fate Of Vaunted Nazi Luftwaffe Soon To Be Determined

(By The Associated Press)

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of Army Air forces, said Monday the primary aim of his command "is to make the coming invasion of Germany as economical as possible by drastically reducing the war potential of the Third Reich and its satellites."

Into a report on the operations and history of the air forces, Arnold put these statements:

"Our strategic air plan is predicated on the fundamental fact that our bombers can fly deep into enemy territory, drop an effective load of bombs, and return to base without losses disproportionate to the damage accomplished. We have proved that we can do this."

Luftwaffe's Fate Near

The near future likely will determine "the survival or destruction" of the German Air force as an effective agency. The destruction of the enemy's fighter strength is aimed at through two methods—the bombing of fighter plane manufacturing plants and the destruction of planes in the air in battle with Allied bombers.

The United States now has "the world's largest air force," manned by 2,385,000 officers and men.

The War Production board has 145,000 planes scheduled for production during the next 15 months.

"Those persons who think that after the costly and time-consuming defeat of Germany we can by simple order fly our planes to China, bomb Tokyo and bring Japan to her knees, do not yet understand the need for vast supply lines, well-equipped bases and planes built to fight under entirely different conditions from those that prevail over Europe."

British General Hints Of Action

LONDON, Jan. 3. (AP)—The first meeting of the Allied "invasion war council" is imminent and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, whose arrival was disclosed tonight, told friends, "I don't expect to be here long."

Montgomery, designated as commander of British land forces for the invasion of western Europe, added, "I'm always on the move these days."

The Allied air commander, Air Chief Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory, and the U. S. Strategic Air force commander, Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, also are already in England, and the rest of the invasion command is expected soon.

There is every indication that the master plan for the invasion already has been set, needing only the arrival at a starting date.

Montgomery, who before leaving the Eighth Army told his troops 'the end of the war is definitely in sight," was greeted with cheers when he was quickly recognized in a London hotel lobby.

GENERAL TAKES FAREWELL OF FAMOUS EIGHTH ARMY

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, Dec. 3. (Delayed) (AP) — Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told British Eighth Army troops in a farewell address today that a victorious end of the war was in sight, "though I don't say next month, next week or next year."

(Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, under whom Montgomery will serve as commander of British ground forces in the western invasion of Europe, flatly declared at Allied headquarters in Algiers Dec. 27 that "we will win the European war in 1944.")

Montgomery reviewed the work of the Eighth Army from El Alamein to Ortona in his farewell praparatory to assuming command of British western invasion armies.

Diseased Meat Reported Sold

AUSTIN, Jan. 3. (AP)—A House committee reporting that it has found evidence that large quantities of meat from diseased cattle is being slaughtered for human consumption in Texas today asked Attorney General Grover Sellers for advice in halting the practice.

Rep. Roger Q. Evans of Denison, chairman of the committee named by the last regular session of the legislature, said the investigators had found that present statutes apparently are insufficient to halt the practice. He asked whether it would be legally possible to halt such slaughtering by injunction proceedings, or by bringing sabotage charges.

Can Furnish Evidence

In a formal request for an opinion, Evans as committee chairman said the investigators could furnish evidence from veterinarians "that hundreds of heads of such cattle are being slaughter-

Evacuation Of Berlin Said In "Full Swing"

"Trains are crowded throughout Germany," he said.

Berlin Ripped, Seared Again

Hitler's Official Quarters Wrecked

By ROBERT STURDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Berlin was ripped and seared by another 1,000 tons of explosives and incendiaries early today in a second successive assault by RAF bombers spilling doom from the skies.

Hitler's proud chancellery was made a shambles by block-busters, with hundreds of persons believed trapped in its big shelter, Swedish traveler said. There was no indication Hitler was there at the time.

Two fires were burning in the chancellory ruins at 8 a. m., a witness said. The area was cordoned off and heavily guarded.

Templehof Pounded

The Templehof airdrome's main administration building also was ablaze when passenger transport planes took off in the afternoon. In the factory district of southeastern Berlin, considerable damage was reported.

Traffic within the city was paralyzed. There were no street car or elevated service. Subway trains alone were functioning. Newspapers were printed, but were not delivered. There were no bread deliveries.

The travelers in Stockholm said Berlin's streets were clear of snow, but the penetrating cold worked great hardship, especially on persons bombed out and those trying to live in windowless homes.

Fleets of Lancasters and Halifaxes bored through freezing gales and a strong barrage of fighters to hit the Nazi capital at 3 a. m. — the same hour as on Sunday—in the 10th mammoth raid since Nov. 18.

Over 14,000 Tons On City

Those 10 strikes have dumped more than 14,000 tons of bombs on Berlin—twice what London took in 11 months — and the Nazi center appeared marked for building-by-building extinction. Berlin is but half of London's size in area and population.

Hails of flak and reinforced swarms of fighters failed to halt the RAF, which lost 27 bombers over Berlin and in other operations. Twenty-eight fell the previous night, when Hamburg also was hit.

Swedish travelers, who termed the latest assault the "worst raid we've yet experienced," said a block-buster must have smashed Hitler's huge grey stone chancellery running a full block from the Wilhelmplatz to Hermann Georing Strasse along Voss Strasse.

"Buildings across the street also suffered" in this heart of the government center, they added. "We heard that hundreds of persons were trapped in the tremendous shelter built under the chancellery."

All Of Area Battered

Early in the war, Hitler used to turn over the chancellery shelter to children and expectant

Bombers Fire Two Cruisers

At Least 32 Nips Downed In Two Separate Air Raids

BY DEAN SCHEDLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Tuesday, Jan. 4.—Bombers and fighters from a carrier force under the South Pacific command sent New Year's greetings to Japanese naval units in the harbor at Kaviens, New Ireland, in the form of bombs, torpedoes and machine-gun fire which hit two heavy cruisers and two destroyers.

The warships were attacked early in the morning, just as they were about to enter the harbor. American fighters and bombers attacked them in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire, setting both cruisers on fire and hitting one of the destroyers with bombs and torpedoes, and heavily strafing all four vessels, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said today.

Christmas Blow Duplicate

The attack was a duplicate of another carrier-borne plane assault on this important enemy base made Christmas morning, when the American warbirds sank a destroyer, damaged another and sank two big 10,000-ton cargo ships.

Soldiers of the Sixth Army's 32nd division who landed at Saidor, on the north coast of New Guinea, last Sunday have overcome light enemy resistance and have secured their objectives, the communique said.

The objectives of these veterans, Wisconsin and Michigan men who won glory in their capture of Buna on the Papua peninsula, New Guinea, a year ago, were not mentioned in detail.

13 Planes Downed In Raid

Aside from the damage done enemy ships in the Kavieng attack, the American fliers shot down 11 of 30 intercepting planes over the target, and probably four others were destroyed, the communique said. Another enemy fighter and a bomber on reconnaissance were destroyed later, making a total of 13 Japanese planes downed.

Liberator heavy bombers and fighters from the South Pacific command attacked the Lakunai airdrome at Rabaul, New Britain, New Year's day and did heavy damage despite intercepting efforts of 80 Japanese fighters.

The Liberators shot down 14 enemy fighters and destroyed a bomber on the ground, while the American fighter pilots sent four more Japanese attackers crashing, bringing the raiders' bag to 19 planes.

10-Day Total Is 160

All American planes returned to their bases. Their toll of enemy aircraft brought to 160 the total shot from the skies over Rabaul in 10 days of Allied raids on this prime Japanese plane and sea base, against the Allies' loss of slightly more than 20.

The Marines at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, are extending the beachhead established in their Dec. 26 invasion. Their patrols have advanced from the airdrome, which the Leathernecks captured Dec. 30 after fierce fighting, to a village about four miles west of the Cape. Another Marine force which landed west of the Cape, on the westernmost tip of New Britain, having advanced three miles south as far as Sag Sag without contacting the enemy.

Pro-Nazi Bulgarian Regime Said Ousted

All Communication Broken Suddenly And Details Unknown; Peace Calls Reported

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 3 (AP) Telephone and telegraph communication with Bulgaria, broken off suddenly yesterday without explanation, remained severed today amid reports that the pro-Nazi government of Premier Dobri Bojilov had fallen.

There was no reliable explanation of what was happening within Hitler's wavering Balkan satellite, but unverified reports said the Bulgarian regency was having difficulty in finding a new government.

Crisis Reported Recently

A Bulgarian cabinet crisis was reported only last month, growing from the implied threat emanating from the Tehran and Cairo conferences that the Allies would strike in the Balkans and by the growing conviction that Russia, with which Bulgaria is not at war and with which the Bulgarian people traditionally have been friendly, could not save Bulgaria from responsibility for her German alliance.

Recent American air raids on Sofia, the capital, also were reported to have convinced the people of the growing peril of Axis domination, and to have resulted in street disturbances and clamors for peace.

ALLIES REPORTED GETTING SET FOR BALKAN INVASION

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Partisan armies of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), now reported officered in part by Allied commanders, presumably were still engaged in a fight to complete their capture of Banjaluka, mining and agricultural center in central Bosnia and Yugoslavia's fourth city.

Broz' war communique today said the Partisans had captured half the city and that many German officers and men have been taken prisoner in bloody street fighting. The city is headquarters for the Second German Tank Army charged with defending the Nazi-held Adriatic coast.

(A Budapest dispatch to the Swedish newspaper, Stockholm-Tidningen, said many of Tito's divisions now were commanded by Allied officers, presumbaly American and British. It added rumors were rife in Belgrade that the Allies were getting ready for an invasion of Yugoslavia by making landings and establishing bridgeheads off the Dalmatian coast.)

London Yugoslavs, meantime, were awaiting the arrival of a military delegation from Broz which they were confident would shape up the invasion program.

Blizzard Stalls Armies In Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 3 (AP)—Snow, sleet and rain, all whipped by an icy gale that ripped tiles from roofs, stalled the Fifth nad Eighth armies on the Italian front except for spasmodic fighting some nine miles from Pescara on the Adriatic coast, where the Nazis are stubbornly resisting a Canadian advance.

(The Cairo radio reported that Fifth Army troops had crossed the Garigliano river in several places near the western end of the battle line).

Eighth Army artillery was in range of Pescara, but a dispatch from a correspondent accompanying the Canadians today gave no indication the key port was being shelled. The Germans still are in possession of high ground between the coastal road and the sea, about a mile south of Tesore river, and will have to be gouged out by infantry before the advance on Pescara can continued.

The foot of snow that fell Saturday had largely melted near the coast, turning roads into a morass. Vehicles took seven hours for a trip normally requiring but a half hour.

Air operations, after having been at a standstill for two days, were rescued yesterday at points on the front, and an Allied communique said fighters and fighter-bombers scored "widespread damage" on enemy motor transports and railway rolling stock.

U. S. Destroyer Lost In Atlantic

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — An American destroyer was torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic on December 24, the Navy reported today.

The Navy communique said only that the fighting ship was sunk by a torpedo, not disclosing whether a submarine, airplane or surface craft launched the torpedo.

The Navy also reported that Army bombers hit Paramushiro, Japanese base at the north end of the Kurile island group, on December 31. This was the fifth time that base had been bombed.

Four Lost Recently

Four destroyers out of the latter total have been lost within recent days. A Navy communique on Saturday reported the destroyer Perkins lost in a collision off the coast of New Guinea. Earlier Secretary Knox had said that another destroyer was lost in the New Britain-New Guinea area. A destroyer blew up and sank off New York harbor today.

Last November the destroyer Borie damaged herself fatally in riding a Nazi U-boat to the bottom in one of the most spectacular naval actions of the war, and had to be sunk by U. S. forces. The last naval vessel reported as probably actually lost to the enemy in the Atlantic was the destroyer Sturtevant, which went down after an underwater explosion off Florida in April, 1942.

28 Men And Two Women Indicted On Charge Of Plot To Overthrow Government And Set Up Nazi Regime In U. S.

By TOM REEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. — A three-year plot to incite mutiny in the armed forces, unseat the government and set up a Nazi regime, was charged by a federal grand jury today with the indictment of 28 men and two women on conspiracy charges.

The bill declared that, by phamphlets, books and circulars, the accused sought since 1940 to spread word that:

1.—Democracy is decadent; a Nazi or Fascist form of government should be established and a Nazi "revolution" is inevitable in the United States.

2.—The major political parties, Congress and public officials "are controlled by communists, international Jews and plutocrats."

3.—The U. S. deliberately provoked war with the Axis nations which are seeking only to live at peace with the rest of the world.

4.—President Roosevelt and Congress "sold out the United States and forced the Axis powers to wage war upon us." The Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor was "deliberately invited in order to involve this country in a foreign war."

5. — Communists, international Jewry and war profiteers prevent "an honorable and just peace" being brought about speedily.

Among publications the defendants were charged with distributing was Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

Twenty-four of the 30 were named in previous sedition indictments which however did not allege an actual conspiracy to set up a Nazi government here.

The case was brought by O. John Rogge, special assistant to Attorney General Biddle, on information supplied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Conviction entails a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

Biddle indicated that the Justice department inquiry was continuing with the possibility of further disclosures.

Joseph E. McWilliams of New York and Chicago, described by the Justice department as the organizer of the Christian mobilizers and publisher of "The Christian Mobilizer" is among the eight indicted for the first time.

Those indicted previously and also named in today's indictment include George Sylvester Virereck, who now is serving a prison sen-

EXPECT to give ration stamps for sugar for a long time, according to OPA. Unrationed sugar consumption would gobble up our supply in a short time. Rationing limits consumption to 24 pounds per person each year, plus special home-canning handouts. Unrationed sugar consumption in the carefree days of 1935-36 amounted to about 55 pounds per person.

Unrationed sugar consumption could easily get out of hand since there is more money to spend than in pre-war days and other foods are limited.

IN THE MAIL

THE WOMAN'S ANGLE:

Your mention about the three men composed of Roosevelt and company meeting in the Holy Land is all well and good. You further state that 1943 years ago, the Three Wise Men, also, were there. I admit that wise men were there for the purpose, same as Roosevelt and company, but where do you get the "three" in Bible times. So far as I can determine the Bible does not say there were three. It just says "wise men."

There might have been only two or there might have been three, five or 3,000 of them.

If you find the correct number please advise through the Womans' Angle.

A Reader.

DEAR READER: So far as we have been able to find out, there is no mention in the Bible of the number of wise men who saw the star in the east and came to Bethlehem to worship the Christ Child. As you say the Bible mention in St. Mathew II, 1 is "there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem."

According to a medieval legend three Magi or Wise Men came to present gifts to the infant Jesus and sometimes they are referred to as the Three Kings of Cologne since their bodies were said to have been brought by the Empress Helena to Constantinople and finally to Cologne. Some historians have distinguished them as Gaspar, Melchior and Balthasar.

The Magi were supposed to be keepers of sacred things and astrologers, hence their interest in the unusual star. It seems that some Bible commentators lean to the theory there may have been more than three wise men or else King Herod would not have seen them and have become excited over their proposed trip.

It seems generally accepted by many worshippers, however, there were three wise men or else one would not see three men pictures on Christmas cards and we would not sing of "We three Kings of the Orient are." Others have thought there were three because of the gifts: gold and frankincense, and myrrh, which are mentioned, which were presented to the Holy Child after the Wise Men had knelt and worshipped Him.

Perhaps there were more than three Reader, but we seriously doubt there were 3,000 wise men.

Miss Lillie Hundley, Missionary To China And Former Prisoner Of Japs, Speaks At Church

"The greatest possible danger to arise from imprisonment by the Japanese is the lack of nourishing food," Miss Lillie Hundley, for 20 years a foreign missionary to China who was confined by the Japanese in a so-called "Civil Assembly Center" for seven months before returning on the exchange ship, Gripsholm; told approximately 150 people assembled in the First Baptist church chapel Monday afternoon. She spoke under the auspices of First Baptist WMS but members of other churches and anyone interested were allowed to attend.

In opening her speech Miss Hundley thanked the local circle for choosing her name. She continued by telling the assembly that civilian prisoners were not allowed at any time to associate with prisoners of war; therefore, she knew nothing of American boys who are captives there.

With headquarters in Shanghai, Baptist WMU building fell into the hands of the enemy shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor. The missionaries and other foreigners were allowed to continue their work for several weeks which included evangelistic, medical and educational duties; the latter being Miss Hundley's chosen field. She assured those present that missionaries are doing a worthwhile work in foreign lands for over 90 per cent of students enrolled in Chinese schools taught by Americans were converted before completing high school. During the frequent bombings of the city in 1932, 1937 and during the weeks before its downfall, missionaries worked in hospitals and cared for refugees in churches and schools.

The foreigners there, American, French, German, Dutch and others, were given a few weeks notice before being taken to the prison camp in order that they might dispose of all furniture and articles other than the bed, chair, food, personal clothing and bedding they were allowed to carry with them. Crowded conditions in the camps resulted in unsanitary conditions; the prisoner's only luxury being a shower bath behind the two dormitories they occupied just outside Shanghai.

"Perhaps even a greater thrill to those returned to the States than their liberation was that experienced when the group was met by the Gripsholm with mail from home that they had not been able to receive during their seven months' imprisonment," she continued.

As a parting remark, Miss Hundley told of the courage and kindness of the Chinese people and pointed out the need for added support of the missionaries during the present crisis.

Preceding Miss Hundley's speech the First Baptist WMS conducted a brief meeting at which time Mrs. R. S. Wilkinson read a devotional and J. D. Riddle sang. The same organization presented the speaker with a corsage of white carnations in appreciation of her appearance.

A further patriotic motif was carried out in table decorations of red white and blue candles. Plate favors were fashioned with wedding bells tied with the three colors of yarn.

Eddy To Direct Vocation Plans

AUSTIN, Jan. 3 (AP)—James R. D. Eddy was chosen executive officer of the vocational education program in Texas by the state board of education here today.

This action climaxed differences between the board and state Supt. L. A. Woods over administration of the vocational program. When he was by-passed as executive officer by board action at a meeting several months ago, Woods promised that "you've got a fight on your hands."

Responsible To Board

Eddy at present is director of trades and industries education, a part of the larger program. As executive officer he will be in complete charge but his actions will be subject to ratification by the board.

The board also continued Eddy as a division head and reappointed for a year the other division directors: Ruth Huey, home-making, Robert A. Manire, vocational agriculture, and J. J. Brown, vocational rehabilitation.

Royal R. Watkins of Dallas and Maco Stewart of Galveston were elected president and vice-president, respectively, of the state board by acclamation. Watkins succeeds Phil M. Stevenson of Houston.

Fund Report Adopted

The board adopted a report on administration of the equalization fund which said a saving of approximately $2,250,000 had been effected during the 1942-43 school year after 100 per cent payment of all legal claims.

It was voted to return the savings to the state general fund.

The board's bond committee was authorized to purchase $3,000,000 in government bonds.

Captured Diary Of Nazi Reveals His Change Of Heart

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 3 (AP)—Allied headquarters today released a diary of a former storm troop leader in the Hitler youth movement captured in Italy which showed that the young Nazi had had a complete change of heart after less than a year of fighting.

Extracts from the diary, as released by headquarters, included these:

Jan. 15, 1943—"What excitement. My first day as a real soldier."

Jan. 23, 1943—"Fitted out in uniform. I look fine if a little odd."

Feb. 15, 1943—"Gradually I am beginning to feel myself a real soldier."

There followed a long poem about the armored grenadiers. In September, the ex-storm troop leader came to Italy, and in November the tone of the diary changed. There were references to the weight of "Tommy's artillery fire" and the number of German casualties.

Then in December there was this notation: "I wish I was an Englishman. All this retreating does not agree with me."

On Dec. 22, the day before his capture, the official statement said, the following was found in his diary:

"Yesterday night, during retreat, I broke finally and irrevocably with my old life. Gone are all the old values, all that was precious to me. In my soul only one thing remains, hatred for the bestiality of the German army. For at last one is human.

"What have we to fight for? Everyone cursed the Nazi government but few have the courage to run against it. Why? Because of brutality and the power of oppression are still strong. If only the opportunity offered. I would help strengthen the thousands who long for the day of the fnial collapse . . . if I ever survive to leave the front alive at least I shall have seen through the tawdry facade of Nazi politics. I shall know the points at which the Nazis are weakest . . . Why was I born a German? I feel myself always a slave."

High Court To Hear "State Rights" Case

DALLAS, Jan. 3 (AP)—Rep. Hatton W. Sumners (D-Tex) said today he would appear before the United States against the South-Eastern Underwriters association to argue against what he called "another clear cut attempt by the federal government to usurp state rights."

He stated he would make the appearance as a friend of the court.

"In this case," he said, "the federal government is seeking a ruling which would place insurance in interstate commerce and under federal jurisdiction and control.

'At the present time, as has been the case since the start of insurance firms in the nation, complete control and regulation has been in the hands of the states. If, however, insurance is declared interstate commerce, it will fall under federal control and become another in the parade of state rights which have been lost to Washington."

BISHOP TO RETIRE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3. (AP) — Bishop Ernest G. Richardson announced today he will retire this spring as resident head of the Methodist church in the Philadelphia area. Next month he will be 70, the retirement age under the church law.

Green States Gen. Marshall Author Of Labor Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — General George C. Marshall was linked publicly tonight with the New Year's eve statement that U. S. labor troubles have hurt the Allies: President Roosevelt was described as thinking "along the same lines;" and AFL President William Green challenged Marshall "or any one else" to prove such a thesis.

It was Green who named Marshall in connection with the originally anonymous warning that rail and steel strike threats may have delayed victory by providing grist for the Axis propaganda mill. Green said that the Army chief of staff was reported to have made the statements.

Challenge Is Issued

"We challenge General Marshall or anyone else to prove that the record of America's soldiers of production provides an effective propaganda weapon for the enemy," said Green in a statement.

The White House did not identify Marshall as the source of the remarks. Stephen Early, presidential secretary, contended himself with saying that the source was a "little bit more military" than the president.

Asked if it was proper to deduce that the president had been advancing to some extent the view of the anonymous authority, Early replied:

"I don't know whether there is any relation or connection. One probably is a little bit more military than the other, you see. This is his responsibility, entirely and completely, and so is it the president's as commander-in-chief.

Thinking On Same Lines

"I don't think they are connected or related except as they seem to have been thinking along the same lines."

Green's vigorous challenge, which also contained a sharp blast at government officials for their handling of the labor situation, climaxed a day of swirling developments arising from the publication of the statement.

Reverberations were heard in Congress, several members criticizing the anonymous statement in terms ranging from "unfortunate" to "insulting." There were demands for investigations, but the Senate Truman committee which inquires into a number of things relating to the war effort, said the matter was simply none of its business.

Murray's Statement

At Pittsburgh, President Philip Murray declared in a telegram to War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson, with a copy to Gen. Marshall, that more than 90 million tons of steel were poured at the enemy last year. He added:

'There must be little 'psychological comfort' for the enemy in this amazing record. When our bombers fly over Europe they drop steel encased bombs and not psychology....

"In making reference to psychology I am referring particularly to the term used by the unnamed 'high Washington official' in his recent irresponsible attack on this organization."

Murray declared the steel industry, "through no fault of the union and perhaps no fault of management," is scheduled to operate below capacity this week that "this means some 64 open hearth and electric furnaces are out of production."

"This nation," he said, "either needs a maximum output of steel to win the war or it does not."

Murray asserted he sent a copy of the telegram to General Marshall because "he is entitled to know the situation in steel, on the eve of the invasion of Europe."

Defends Workers

Green called his remarks "a message of sanity" to the public in which he said:

"The statements that recent wage dispute may delay victory come as a surprise and a shock to labor. It is now reported in the press that such statements here actually made at a secret press conference by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

"Because of Gen. Marshall's consistently fine record, we are loath to believe he is responsible for the irrational, uninformed and inflammatory charges published in the press."

Labor's record has had the effect, on the contrary, of silencing "Hitler's propaganda guns" and has shortened the war, said Green.

"Our enemies know the war will be decided only by force of arms; American workers are producing those arms and will continue to do so until final victory is won."

Green, whose unions were not directly concerned with the rail and steel situations, said nevertheless that responsibility for the disputes "rests entirely upon bungling, fumbling and incompetent handling by government officials and agencies."

155 Million Paid In Survivors And Old Age Program

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3. (U.P.) — A year-end report by the U. S. Social Security board revealed today that $155,000,000 in old age and survivors' insurance checks were mailed during 1943 to 750,000 persons, about half of them women and children.

Joseph J. Skorup, field office manager, said another 100,000 persons were eligible for benefits during the year but chose to continue working.

Larger Payments Forecast

The report showed that retired workers received about $83,000,000 during the year, wives of retired workers were paid about $13,000,000, children $32,000,000, widows with young children $17,000,000, widows 65 and older $10,000,000, and aged parents $600,000. In addition, 165,000 persons received lump sum cash payments totaling $18,000,000 in cases where an insured worker was not survived by a relative eligible for immediate monthly payments.

Skorup predicted larger payments in 1944 and said many older workers probably would retire during the year because of inability to continue work and that others would quit their jobs with continued Allied war successes.

New Type Plea Filed By Thomas

Sam Thomas, sentenced March 16, 1942, by Judge Dan Blair of 72nd district court to 20 years in the penitentiary after conviction on forgery of a land title charge, has made application of 99th district court of Judge J. E. Vickers for a writ of habeas corpus for purpose of testifying in a 99th court civil action brought against him Dec. 27 by T. J. Vallas of Lubbock.

The application, received Monday afternoon by Elmo Payne, deputy district clerk, described itself as seeking a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum, which is defined as a means of compeling release from custody to testify in "some courts."

No Provision Made

Texas, however, according to the opinion of Burton S. Burks, district attorney, makes no provision for returning a prisoner from the penitentiary to allow him to testify in a civil action.

Thomas maintained in his application he should be released to allow him to appear before Judge Vickers to "defend his personal, financial and legal interests" involved in the Vallas action.

Title Said Clouded

Vallas' suit was in trespass to try title as well as for possession of lot 11, block 137, original town of Lubbock, a piece of property Vallas values at $3,000. The title to the property inferentially was clouded by Thomas' forgery of a deed to it, court officials said, and the trial would be Vallas' method of clearing it.

Thomas is not, however, deprived of his rights of being heard in court, through deposition or through an attorney or other personal representative.

The application is believed the only one of its kind ever sought here, officials said. Judge Vickers not seen it late Monday.

WEATHERRED RECOMMENDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP) — Representative Worley (D-Texas) announced today he had recommended appointment of W. S. Weatherred as postmaster at Pampa, Texas. He issued the announcement from Bethesda Naval hospital, which he entered yesterday to undergo treatment for the flu.

During the first eighth months of 1943, 13,740 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

Mahon Fights For Soldier Vote, And Curbs On Labor

Announcing that he is a candidate for re-election, Congressman George H. Mahon, in Lubbock for a short visit, said Monday that Congress will do everything it can to co-operate with the individual states to permit uniformed citizens, at home and abroad, to vote in this year's national election.

Complete victory for the United Nations in the European side of the war will come about "sometime in 1944", Mahon prognosticated, and the Japanese phase of the conflict will carry on for about a year following the victory in Europe with defeat of the Nipponese.

May Move Upward

An anticipated Republican capture of the House in next November's election will probably place Mahon, upon re-election, from fourth to sixth on the powerful House Appropriations committee, on which now, serving his fifth term, Manon stands No. 11 among 25 Democrats.

Leaving Washington December 26, Congressman Mahon went directly to his father's Mitchell county farm spending the holiday season with members of his family, and arriving in Lubbock late Sunday. He expects to leave here Wednesday, returning to Washington via Mitchell county to visit his father, J. K. Mahon, and brothers and sisters again.

Can't Divulge Details

Necessary secret war information from Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Chief of Staff, and other military leaders often is given to Mahon since he is a member of the seven-man sub-committee on Military appropriations.

"I am not at liberty to be specific," Mahon said, "but we do have numerous fine weapons of various kinds which we are just now preparing to use and which will play a big part in the United Nations victory. I know that the war at both ends of the globe is in fine shape."

Labeling the war-time labor situation as "intolerable", Mahon was disgusted with recent strikes and threats of strikes. An opinion identical with that of the majority of his constituents in his 25-county district which he expressed was: "A law with teeth in it should prevent wartime strikes."

Favors Labor Control

However, showing no optimism over passage of such legislation, the representative said, "Every southern Democrat in Washington favors stern legislation to control recalcitrant labor. But the trouble is, members from labor districts will not support such legislation, being cowed by labor which is organized politically, as well as for its own affairs. Furthermore, even if strict legislation were passed by the Congress, it would be vetoed by the President and there would not be strength enough in the Congress to repass the legislation over the presidential veto."

During his Lubbock stay, Mahon will attend to various official business. Mrs. Mahon and their daughter, Daphne, did not accompany the representative home.

Jap War "Half Over"

Mahon believes the European end of the war is "two-thirds over," even though the last third is expected to "see most of the bitterest fighting." He considers the Jap end of the conflict "half over." In both cases, he bases his calculations on the war's opening date of Dec. 7, 1941.

As to the soldier vote, Mahon believes "that if a man dons a uniform; if he fights for his country or is ready to, he certainly has a right to vote. The Congress cannot, alone, give the uniformed men and women the right to vote, but it can give co-operation to the individual states so they may do so. I am for all the co-operation the federal government can give and so is the majority of the Congress."

Although a lawyer by profession and a district attorney in the Big Spring-Colorado City area before being elected to Congress in 1934, Mahon has small farm and stockraising interests in Mitchell county. Therefore, he said, the "feed situation hits home to me, personally, as it does to countless thousands of the people of the 19th district." He expressed hope that War Foods Administrator Marvin Jones, who preceded him as representative in the Lubbock area, would "work the problem out," and said Jones was doing everything possible in effort to improve the situation.

On Two Other Sub-committees

In addition to his membership on the sub-committee on Military appropriations, Mahon also is serving on two other sub-committees, having to do with appropriations for the Postoffice and Treasury departments. Under congressional rules, a member of the House Appropriations committee may not serve on any other major committee.

Mahon brought to Lubbock a complete set of material issued to overseas Army units and contributed it to the West Texas Museum, at Texas Tech. Intrinsic value of the material probably is not in excess of $10, he said, but in years to come will form a very interesting memento of the war. Included in the material are the various booklets, covering U.S. soldier conduct in the various countries where war actively is being waged; phonograph records on the same subjects; books covering languages, customs, etc., of the world's people; materials for camp shows and entertainments.

Yugoslav Airmen Fly With 15th Air Force

CAIRO, Jan. 3. (AP)—In the two months since they arrived in the Mediterranean war zone, American-trained Yugoslav airmen, flying Liberators presented to the Yugoslav air force by President Roosevelt, have averaged two operational flights a day.

They are attached to a squadron of the United States 15th Air force.

Pork Sardined In Mid-West Markets

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (AP) — More pork-on-the-hoof was crammed in midwestern livestock pens today than at any other time in the last 19 years.

All previous high established in the current heavy marketing of hogs were shattered when farmers unloaded 241,000 head at the principal livestock terminals of the corn belt. This was the largest single day's receipts since Jan. 5, 1925, when 277,000 hogs arrived.

Facilities of meat packing plants were unable to cope with the huge outpouring. Thousands of head went unsold and will be offered later this week. Farmers were urged to withhold shipments until the glutted situation is cleared.

The worst congestion occurred at Chicago. Beginning early Sunday afternoon, trucks loaded with hogs started to line streets outside the stockyards. When the market opened, 54,000 squealing pigs were squeezed into the bulging pens.

Slaughter Of Hogs Hits All-Time High

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (U.P.)— The American Meat institute said today that the slaughter of hogs last month reached an all-time high estimated at 7,600,000 head.

Despite seasonal decreases in the slaughter of cattle and sheep, total slaughter in December increased 3 per cent over November, the institute said, and 14 per cent over December, 1942.

The slaughter of cattle, calves, sheep and lambs decreased from the high levels of the preceding month. Nevertheless cattle slaughter was 22 per cent higher than in December, 1942; calves were 10 per cent higher, and sheep and lambs increased 3 per cent.

The huge volume of hog marketings taxed over-burdened packing plants suffering from manpower shortages and necessitated embargoes on hogs at a few midwestern markets.

Domination By Russia And Britain Foreseen

DENVER, Jan. 3 (U.P.)—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, D., Colo., predicted today that the postwar world will be divided into "spheres of influence" dominated by Russia and Britain.

The United States has no territorial aspirations, he said, but "secretly she hopes to develop commercial imperialism on a gigantic scale." He predicted the "keenest kind of rivalry" in a race for commerce between Britain and the United States.

Russia, Britain and the United States, he said, will exercise a "sort of joint overlordship" in the Orient.

Johnson, writing in the Rocky Mountain News, said he based his forecast on agreements reached at the Cairo and Tehran conferences.

POSTAL RECEIPTS UP

WICHITA FALLS, Jan. 3. (AP)—Postal receipts here reached an all-time high in 1943 with a total of $520,419.25, as against $466,655.95 the year before.

BOOSTING QUININE SUPPLY—Workmen in the Andes highlands of northern South America dry cinchona bark to boost Allies' output of quinine. The United Nations lost their principal source when the Japs seized Java, whence came 90 per cent of world supply.

Federal Agencies Upheld By Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (U.P.) — The Supreme court, in its first decision session of 1944, today upheld efforts of two federal agencies —the Federal Power commission and the Office of Price Administration—to control prices.

The OPA ruling was on a technical point, but one which the government described as essential to proper enforcement of OPA price regulations. It held that violators of price regulations could be prosecuted even though they were not indicted until after the regulation involved had been reversed. The case arose in Boston.

In the power commission case, the tribunal upheld an order directing the Hope Natural Gas Co. to reduce its rate to distributors in Ohio and western Pennsylvania. The order was expected to save $3,609,857 for consumers in Cleveland, Akron, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Altogether, the court delivered formal opinions on 14 cases in an unusually lengthy decision session which lasted nearly two hours.

Travel Time May Be Given On Furloughs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP) — Senator Millikin (R-Colo) was advised today that his recommendation that travel time be allowed enlisted men on furlough had been favorably considered by the War department.

Soldiers stationed at some distance from their homes, the Senator said, are spending six days or more on trains and buses with the result that the normal 15-day furlough shrinks to little more than half the allotted time.

He discussed the matter with Undersecretary of War Patterson and today was advised by letter that the department had issued instructions to camp commanders that, where the military situation permits ,the normal 15-day furlough may be extended by the amount of travel time involved.

NEGRO ON JURY

WICHITA FALLS, Jan. 3. (AP)—A. E. Nelson, negro undertaker, was serving on the grand jury here today, probably the first member of his race to do so in this county.

Christmas Packages Still Arriving Here

Some of Santa's Christmas packages are still arriving at the post office.

A lot of people who thought they could mail Christmas parcels after Dec. 10 and get them to their destinations by Christmas are the instigators of the late Christmas for hundreds of Lubbock residents.

All of the packages arriving daily now bear postmarks after Dec. 10 ranging from Dec. 16 to as late as Dec. 24.

All of the packages which arrived here prior to Christmas were delivered on time, Postmaster Amos Howard reported. But since Christmas the packages have been coming in a steady daily stream and late trains Monday brought more of them.

Not Enough Clothing For Children, Home Economics Group Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — The needle and thread brigade let out a holler today that (A) there's not enough clothing around to keep the children warm (B) what there is, isn't good enough to make sewing repairs worth while.

The protest was voiced through the American Home Economics association by housewives interviewed by the association in 25 states. The survey indicated:

Shortages are most critical in clothing for children under 15 years of age; underwear, elastic and panty waists are in great need.

Yard goods has depreciated in quality—"Women are willing to sew but can find no outing flannel . . . yard goods is so poor that it isn't worth the time to make up."

In the wintry northern tier of states, boys' overalls, long underwear, stockings and heavy coats are needed.

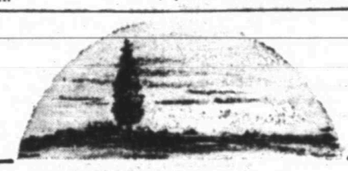

SUNNY AINSWORTH

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP)— Sunny Ainsworth, 19-year-old seventh divorcee of Tommy Manville, was robbed of jewelry she valued at $1,150 yesterday by three men, one of whom later was shot by police.

The wounded man was identified by Lieut. Harry Penzin as William Auburn Thompson, 26, Salem, Ore., who was described by Penzin as an ex-convict and Army deserter.

THE INNERMOST FEELINGS of the heart cannot be revealed by outward display. Nor can the reverent faith of those who attend the funeral be expressed in words. But the ceremony seems to give pause to the passing of life even as the sunset's afterglow lingers to mark the passing of a bright day.

Crucial Battles Over U.S. Foreign Policies Expected

By ALLEN S. DRURY
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. — Congressional internationalists — the men who want to see the United States get into world affairs and stay there—looked forward today to a new year filled with crucial battles over foreign policy.

Agreements, treaties, declarations, commitments, as well as the two-thirds Senate vote now required for ratification of treaties, promised to evoke intense controversy during the months ahead.

No Strategy Plan Devised

However, no over-all plan of strategy is being devised by the internationalist group, according to two of its principal leaders, Sens. Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn., and Harold H. Burton, R., Ohio. They said they planned to "cross our bridges when we come to them."

Ball felt the group had done all it could for the time when it helped push through the Senate the Connally resolution pledging United States world cooperation.

Up To The President

"Further action is up to the President," Ball said. "He must draw Congress more closely into the formulation of policies and agreements with our allies."

He said that if such cooperation could be achieved between the President and the Congress it might not be necessary to seek repeal of the Senate's two-thirds rule.

Burton together with Ball and Sens. Carl Hatch, D., N. M., and Lister Hill, D., Ala., sponsored the "B2H2 resolution" which failed to pass the Senate but precipitated the debate which resulted in the Conally resolution. Burton agreed that closer cooperation was imperative between the executive and legislative branches.

"Take the recent meeting of UNRRA in Atlantic City," Burton said. "Over 250 representatives of the United States there, and not one from Congress. That simply spells trouble for the administration—and for any treaties it may propose."

He felt the administration's apparent intention to by-pass Congress could only result in a reaction that would have a most "unfortunate" effect on the peace program.

Burton urged creation of a broad international council exercising general supervisory powers over a series of regional groupings as a successor to the League of Nations.

People Are Determined

"Something along the lines of the Swiss federation, possibly, might do for Europe. In our own hemisphere we have the Pan-American union for a started. Regional groupings coupled with an over-all controlling unit, capable of preventing dissensions among the groups but not charged with too many problems and responsibilities, strikes me as perhaps the best solution for our problems."

He believed the American people were determined now to work for world peace.

"This is the first time that one generation has had to go through two great wars," he said. "I think won't happen a third time."

WRIGHT FUNERAL HELD

LEGISLATURE MEETS

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 3 (U.P.) — The Georgia legislature met here today for a brief session to authorize service men and women to vote in primaries and general elections.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (U.P.) — Industry and agriculture generally will continue to face manpower shortages during 144 but present indications are that the West coast and particularly during 1944 but present indications are that the West coast and particularly the San Francisco area, will be most critically affected in the new year, a survey showed today.

Reports from representative war production centers indicated there would be little possibility of easing manpower controls, either in war plants or on farms, until the end of the European phase of the war when some relaxation might be permitted in the east. The situation on the west coast, already tight, will grow more intense as increased activity in the Pacific shifts additional war burdens there.

Traceable To Housing Shortage

War Manpower Chief Paul V McNutt said in an interview that much of the West coast problem was traceable to the housing shortage, which continued to exist because of lack of adequate funds. Asked if a national service or labor draft law would solve any impending new West coast crisis, McNutt said it could be effective only if housing, transportation and other essential living facilities were available for new workers drafted into service there.

While production cutbacks were anticipated in some industrial areas in the East and Midwest, none were in prospect for the West coast. On the contrary, officials said, activity will mount in both the San Francisco and Loos Angeles areas, and July 1 may find San Francisco the nation's No. 1 critical labor area.

A survey also showed this manpower outlook for other regions:

Dallas, Tex.: little change seen of getting additional industrial labor except from other parts of the country. Farm labor shortages expected to be relieved to a certain extent by the release to farmers soon of labor-saving farm machinery.

Forehand Rites Set At Sundown Today

Funeral services will be conducted at the Church of Christ in Sundown at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Mrs. H. B. Forehand, 79, of Sundown, who died at midnight Sunday in Levelland.

Burial will be in Levelland cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral home.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Forehand is survived by two sons, A. D. Forehand of Sundown and Dee Forehand of Pasadena, Calif., and two sisters, Mrs. L. F. Forehand, Lampasas, Tex., and Mrs. Johnie Rowe, Foss, Okla.

A pledge of cooperation with the effort to compel taxicab drivers to drive more carefully was given by the operators of four Lubbock taxicab companies in a special meeting with members of the city commissison in the city hall Monday morning.

Furthermore, the operators agreed upon the need for such a campaign, and commended members of the city commission for their efforts in the matter.

"The operators need this evidence that the city is behind them when they demand that their drivers observe traffic regulations," commented Ray Farmer, a partner in the ownership and operation of the City and Bryant cab companies. "The action of the city commission gives the operator a sort of club to use in dealing with drivers who drive recklessly."

Other Operators Present

The operators present, additional to Farmer, were Clif Cocanougher, manager of City Cab company; Walter Jay, manager of Bryant Cab company; Ed C. Abbott, operator of Yellow Cab company; and E. G. Abbott, operator of Domino Cab company.

Present for the city were Mayor Carl E. Slaton; Commissioners J. O. Jones, who is police commissioner, and Garland Newsom; City Manager Marlin R. Smith, jr., and City Attorney Durwood H. Bradley.

The general plan agreed upon to enforce more careful driving includes the following:

1. Cab company operators are to keep police supplied with up-to-date lists of their drivers.

Rules To Be Devised

2. Rules will be devised under which a taxicab driver will be asked, after a given number of traffic offenses, to surrender his license voluntarily for a given period of time. If he refuses to surrender it, then steps will be taken to have his license cancelled. These regulations are to be worked out by Police Chief Don Reeder, City Traffic Sgt. Lewis Kittrell, Police Commissioner Jones, the city manager and the operators. In some instances, involving serious offenses, one violation will be grounds for suspension of license. In others less serious, two or three violations may be allowed before a suspension.

3. Police are to keep operators informed of drivers named in traffic complaints. It often happens now, it was explained, that the driver simply pays his fine, and the operator never knows anything about the violation.

4. Everyone will be urged not to tell the cab driver to "step on it." Drivers already are under orders not to travel at excessive speeds, regardless of the emergency. The driver who does "step on it," does so at his own risk.

To Practice Courtesy

5. Operators said they will urge their drivers to practice "courtesy in driving." Officials and operators were agreed that one reason for prejudice against cab drivers is that too many of them adopt the driving attitude of, "Here I come; you'd better get out of the way."

Those participating in the meeting were agreed that most cab drivers are careful. They were agreed, too, that no driver is superior to a competent and careful cab driver. But they also were in agreement that a very few reckless cab drivers can quickly give all drivers a bad name.

"It is to our interest, and the driver's interest, to get rid of those who drive recklessly," Farmer remarked. "All operators and most drivers appreciate this."

The operators also agreed that they will cooperate more closely in dealing with the driver who is inclined to be "cocky" and independent because of his confidence that, if he is "fired" from one job, he can get another quickly. Henceforth, it was indicated, the driver who is discharged from one job in Lubbock will find it difficult to obtain another.

Special Incentives

All the operators reported that they attempt to offer special incentives to encourage careful driving.

Farmer, Cocanougher and Jay related that, in their companies, they have put a bonus plan into effect under which the driver can make up to $30 extra for a month he completes without an accident. But if he is involved in an accident, regardless who may be at fault, he loses the bonus.

Ed C. Abbott reported that women drivers are helping to solve his driver and safety problems. They are proving the most careful of drivers, he said.

Mayor Slaton expressed the hope and confidence that, by working together, cab company operators and officials can eliminate most of the causes which have led to numerous recent complaints because of the manner of driving taxicabs. There already has been improvement since the commission gave warning about 10 days ago that cab drivers had to become more observant of traffic regulations, the mayor said.

However, the mayor and Commissioners Jones and Newsom made clear that the commission is prepared to take more positive action if cooperation fails to bring about the desired end.

Commissioners W. B. Price and Hub Jones were out of the city and did not attend the meeting.

OPA Certificates Go To Board Members

Each ration board member in the Lubbock OPA district is being presented a certificate of award for meritorious service by the Office of Price administration as a token of appreciation for two years of service.

The Lubbock district comprises seventy-one counties throughout West Texas.

The boards have handled the following rationing programs during the past two years: in 1942, tires, effective January 5, automobiles, effective February 2, typewriters, effective March 13, sugar, effective April 28, national gasoline, effective December 1, bicycles, effective May 15, rubber footwear, effective September 29, fuel oil, effective October 22, coffee, effective November 21, and heating stoves, effective December.

In 1943, shoes effective February 7, processed foods, effective March 1, and meats and fats, effective March 29.

Today in the seventy-one counties in this district the number of board members has been increased from 213 to 980 members, not counting the hundreds of men and women who assist the boards regularly. All of these board members are unpaid volunteer workers.

New High Set Here By Postal Receipts

Postmaster Amos Howard revealed Monday that postal receipts in Lubbock set a new all-time record in 1943, increasing approximately $60,000 over the 1942 total.

Receipts for 1943 totaled $373,213.94 compared to $313,343.63 in 1942.

December's receipts totaled $45,170.36 to bring the year's last quarter to a total of $115,289.16. December, 1942, receipts were $43,546.05.

Increase in the receipts for an average of $5,000 each month kept Postmaster Howard's record of increased receipts unbroken. In the nearly nine years he has been postmaster, the receipts have shown a steady increase month by month over the same month the year before. Not a single month has shown a decrease.

Tax Returns Are Being Mailed Out

Copies of the 1943 individual income and victory tax return are being mailed to the thousands of federal income taxpayers in this district, Deputy Collector L. B. Barkley said Monday.

"Although these returns are not required by law to be filed until March 15, "Barkley said, "I cannot urge too strongly that everyone prepare and file his return as early as possible.

Two Points To Consider

"There are," he said, "two major points that are vital for everyone to understand. First, many persons will owe a substantial tax and should start immediately to find out how much they will owe and to make plans for meeting the obligation. I must emphasize this as a simple matter of fairness to those taxpayers who may have overlooked this phase of the change-over to the pay-as-you-go system.

"Second, although many taxpayers will find that they are substantially paid up on their 1943 taxes—some of them, in fact, being entitled to refunds—it is still necessary for them to file a return."

May Get Assistance

Many taxpayers, especially those who use the 'short' form will not need assistance in making their returns. However, any taxpayer needing help may obtain it by calling at room 213 in the Lubbock National bank building.

Barkley explained that, under the pay-as-you-go system, all current tax payments through withholding from wages or by means of payments on "declarations of estimated tax" are only approximate. Therefore, it is necessary to file a return at the close of the year to determine the exact amount of each person's tax liability and to determine whether he underpaid or overpaid his taxes. In instances where the current payments were less than the tax payable March 15th, remittance of the difference will be necessary at the time of filing the return. THIS AMOUNT CANNOT BE PAID IN INSTALLMENTS. In instances where the current payments were larger than the final tax, the taxpayer will be enabled to secure a refund merely by filing his return.

Substantial payments will be necessary in certain instances because (a) most individuals who had a 1942 tax must pay at least one-half of the unforgiven portion of that tax in addition to their 1943 tax, and (b) during the first six months of 1943 only the victory tax, but not the income tax, was withheld from wages.

Should Determine Liability

Particularly, persons who took jobs for the first time in 1943 and those whose wages increased sharply from 1942 to 1943 may have substantial payments to make, Barkley said. As an illustration, he pointed out that a single person who earned $2,000 wages in 1943 but had no 1942 tax, will owe nearly $130 on March 15, or nearly three and one-half weeks' wages. Since this payment must be made in one sum at the time the 1943 return is filed, the collector pointed out the advantages of determining the liability and saving for it in advance.

In the past, many taxpayers have postponed filing returns until the last minute in order to delay the payments which had to be made with the returns. However, this year a great many taxpayers will find that, under the pay-as-you-go system, they are already substantially current in their tax payments. These taxpayers, especially, ought to find it convenient to file as early as possible.

In any case, early filing will help the taxpayer know where he stands, how much he owes, or how much refund he should expect; it will assure him of any assistance he may need without standing in long lines; it will help the government and the war effort.

Who Must File

A return must be made by every individual who during the taxable year 1943—

Was single and had $500 or more income.

Was married and had more than $624 income.

Was married and together with wife or husband, had $1,200 or more income.

In addition, a return must be filed by everyone who paid or owed a tax on 1942 income.

A return should be filed likewise by anyone claiming a refund of taxes withheld from wages.

The requirements for filing 1943 returns on or before March 15, apply to civilians and personnel of the armed forces alike, except that postponements or extensions are allowed those who are on sea duty or outside the continental United States. If a member of the armed forces is on sea duty or outside of the continental United States, his wife may also postpone her return if her own income is less than $1,200. There are several ohter special provisions applying to members of the armed forces, and Collector Thomas invited any service personnel needing tax advice to contact his office.

Forms To Use

As in past years, there are two income tax forms. Form 1040, commonly called the "long form," may be used by any individual. Form 1040A, called the "short form," may be used by individuals who (a) are citizens or residents of the United States, (b) had in 1943 $3,000 or less income, and (c) received all their income from salaries, wages, bonuses, commissions, or other forms of personal compensation, or from dividends, interest and annuities. In the case of husbands and wives filing separate returns, each must use the same kind of form. The short form may be used as a joint return for a husband and wife, if, in addition to the other conditions for using that form, they were living together on July 1, 1943, and their combined income for the year did not exceed $3,000.

On or before January 31, 1944, every employer is required to give to each employee a receipt on Form W-2, showing how much wages were paid the employee during 1943, and how much tax was withheld. These receipts supply two important figures needed for making the annual return and the best time to prepare and file the return is as soon as the employee gets his receipt.

Barkley also pointed out that along with the tax blanks, mailed to all taxpayers who filed taxable returns in this district for 1942, notices showing the amount of each individual's 1942 tax and the amounts paid on that tax are also included. These are two additional figures which income taxpayers will need in the preparation of their returns for 1943. The notices should be sent back to the collector along with the return.

Building Permits In 1943 Drop Sharply

A look at the building permit figures for the year 1943 shows a decided drop as compared with totals for 1942. Permits issued in 1943 amounted to only $262,961.02 with $112,733.50 of the sum being issued for building of residences. In 1942 total permits issued amounted to $2,072,334 with $514,503 of the sum issued for building residences.

This decrease can be traced to the fact that in June, 1942, the War Production board order limiting permits for the building of residences not to exceed $200 went into effect. This order still remains and it is not expected that the ban will be lifted in 1944. Although it is a common rumor that retail lumber companies stocks will be "frozen" in 1944, a check determined that an order has not been issued to that effect yet.

There's a New Glow in Texas Skies Tonight

The men and women of this new Waco industrial unit take pride in the essential part they play in filling the nation's wartime needs. For glass containers, made of noncritical materials, are more important than ever in distributing products of all kinds to our armed forces and to the home front as well.

South of Waco, the Texas sky reflects the glow from the fiery furnaces of America's newest and most modern glass container plant.

Construction of the plant was started by Owens-Illinois before we entered the war. Now it goes into operation at a time when glass containers are more urgently needed than ever before for the transportation of vital products.

Serving industries of many kinds, this new Owens-Illinois glass container plant typifies the progress that has been made by the Southwest in enlarging its manufacturing facilities and adding further to its other great natural resources—agriculture, lumber, minerals and oil.

Throughout Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Louisiana, you can see almost daily new manufacturing and processing plants that are creating this essential part of the Southwest's economy—a new and vitalizing factor in its constantly growing prosperity. Some, such as dairies and beverage bottlers, serve their local areas. Others send their products into many states, near and far.

Owens-Illinois dedicates its new Waco plant to the service of industries in the Southwest. With them we share a deep-rooted confidence in the future of this great region.

Hayhurst, Barrett Added To Lubbock Coaching Staff

In the first step of the movement to enlarge the athletic setup in Lubbock schools, two new coaches were added to the faculty personnel Monday with the announcement from acting Supt. R. W. Matthews of the hiring of Marlin R. "Shorty" Hayhurst and Curtis Barrett.

Hayhurst started on his new job Monday, taking over the duties of physical education instructor at the senior high school. Barrett will not report until the start of the second semester, Jan. 17, and will teach woodwork in the junior high school.

Both men are married and each has one child.

Hayhurst has been coaching at Seminole for the past two and a half years, winning the Region 2 championship there this season in football, snapping the 22-game winning streak of the Wink Wildcats in the final game.

Hayhurst graduated from Texas Tech in 1928. Following his graduation from Tech, he coached five years at Brownfield before moving to McCamey in 1933 where he was coach until 1940 when he moved to Seminole.

Hayhurst will coach track and assist in basketball and football, working in the latter sport with the Cowhands.

Barrett is a graduate of Sul Ross State Teachers College at Alpine, where he was a football letterman. He graduated in 1940, and coached in Brownfield from 1940 to 1942 and has been at Seagraves for the past year and half.

Barrett will coach in junior high school.

The hiring of Hayhurst and Barrett is only the first step in the proposed enlargement of the coaching staff in Lubbock, and at least two more coaches are expected to be added in the near future.

Fritzie Zivis Kayos Pittsburg Scrapper

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3 (AP) — Old rubber-legs Fritzie Zivic launched his 14th year in the ring tonight by a spectacular tenth round knockout over Ossie (Bulldog) Harris, slugging Pittsburgh negro. The former welter king weighed 152 for the contest, his 180th, to 155 for Harris.

Zivic, always a more polished boxer than slugger, floored Harris for an eight count earlier in the tenth then sent him down for the ten. Despite a snow storm, 4,200 fans paid $11,700 to witness the battle, which ended two seconds before the final bell.

Sugar Bowl Tilt Has Fans Still Talking

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3. (AP) — Georgia Tech and Tulsa university broke at least three records in Sugar Bowl stadium Saturday: In fact they broke the record for breaking Sugar Bowl records:

This statistical vandalism first drew attention in the second quarter when a spike-legged stripling by name of Jimmy Ford rollicking 76 yards for a Tulsa touchdown; the longest scoring trip in the 10-year Sugar Bowl history.

Ford skimmed around his own right end and ran the sideline like a big league tight-wire artist; once in the open his speed assured him plenty of privacy.

Sugar Bowl officials pointed out that in no other bowl game here were so many points scored, and that the 18-point second quarter was the busiest yet recorded in the Sugar test. Santa Clara's 21-14 win over Louisiana State seven years ago was the closest thing to it.

But, with the score board reading like a couple of social security numbers, Tulsa was unable to earn a single point after touchdown. Halfback Clyde Leforce couldn't find the range that would have given the Oklahomans an upset.

Against the University of Utah Leforce sliced seven out of 11 between the uprights. Coach Henry Frnka said that normally Leforce just kind of waves his foot at the ball and the result is technically perfect.

Leforce said after the Sugar Bowl game that he didn't even remember missing them. He said he tackled Georgia Tech's Eddie Prokop in the first quarter and drew a blank for the rest of the afternoon.

Prokop's wide-legged sprints were the core of a great Georgia Tech ground game which netted a total 372 yards and coasted in a solid surge for 78 yards and the game-winning touchdown in the final quarter, bringing Tech into the throne room from behind. Tulsa was seldom able to knock Prokop off his feet. They had to smother him.

Ford's long gallop represented more than a third of the yardage gained by Tulsa's outclassed ground machine. In the air, Tulsa completed six pitches for 87 yards; Tech gained 83 yards on four.

Pro Grid Gains Give Rickey Undue Alarm

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jen. 3 — Branch Rickey puts on his worry wig and warns baseball it will have to show signs of life or pro football will run it right out of its own parks. But somehow we can't get too alarmed over this stormy weather forecast.

Mr. Rickey visions numerous stout pro leagues scattered over the country playing six-month seasons, with college boys dreaming of football careers instead of signing up with the Yanks and the sports fans more interested in two on the 50-yard line than a pair right back of third base.

Now baseball had a poor year in 1943 while pro football had its best year, and this comparison probably influences Mr. Rickey in the taking of his 'view' with alarm" attitude. However, 1943 was anything but a normal year and certain circumstances make the comparison misleading.

Most of the minor baseball leagues were forced to fold because of lack of manpower, transportation difficulties and sundry reasons. The major clubs were not up to normal strength because of the demands of the armed services, and the manpower losses included individual drawing cards, such as Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller and Ted Williams. Possibly because of war work, midweek attendance fell off to a shadow of its former self and the game became practically a weekend sport.

While baseball was being slugged from all sides, certain factors worked in favor of pro football. To begin with, it always was a weekend game primarily.

Pro football's losses to the armed services were not small, but the gents with the names that have packed in the fans in recent years still were around, such as Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman and Don Hutson.

College football normally gets more than its share of the spotlight in the fall. The past football season had not much to offer for the fans' interest. There was a handful of really good teams, but on the whole the game was at ebb tide. The football fans had to have an outlet for their enthusiasm so they turned to the still robust pro game.

As to Mr. Rickey's vision of a six month season, we just can't see it. The game stretches out for nearly four months now, with its playoffs and all, but except for the meetings of the better teams the late season games aren't such drawing cards.

In truth football and baseball are seasonal games and should remain that way. They overlap a little but not much. Baseball fans usually are pretty well fed up with baseball when the season ends. A six month grid season would have the fans yawning.

Dates Set For Texas Open At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 3 (AP)—The 1944 Texas Open golf tournament will be held here the second week in February, it was announced tonight by Sam Goldfarb, local golf association president who managed the 1942 Open meet.

Members of the local association voted to hold the tourney over the Brackenridge Park golf course, Feb. 10, 11, 12 and 13. Prizes will be in the form of war bonds. The regular tourney prize of $5,000 plus several additional prizes will make the value of the meet at around $7,000 on a war bond basis.

Goldfarb was selected by the members to manage this year's tourney.

Westerners Play Army Five Tonight; Face Lamesa Next

The ambitious Lubbock Westerners clash tonight with the third veteran Army team of the year, facing the 498th School Squadron from Lubbock Army Air Field at the high school gym at 7:30.

The soldiers, coached by Norman Volz, former Texas Tech star, has won three games and lost one this season, losing this after an overtime period, and is made up of mostly high school stars, most of which are from Texas schools.

Besides Volz, one other college experienced man is listed, Clark from Sam Houston State Teachers college at Huntsville. Volz, however, indicated that his work tonight would be largely confined to coaching the team and would play very little, if any.

Two of the players are listed from high schools outside of Texas, and include Henry Moldreski from Roosevelt High school at East Chicago, Indiana, and Robert Sellers from Concordia (Kansas) high school.

The Texas high school boys on the roster include Revis Harris from Lockney high school, H. E. Taylor, Fort Worth Northside, Lovell from Martinsville, Lyons from Oldton and Slemmons from Caddo. Another member of the team, Verne Johnson is listed as an unexperienced member.

Coach Dixie White put the Westerners through a stiff scrimmage session Monday afternoon as a final tuneup for the game with the LAAF cagers, and pronounced the team ready for the battle.

The Westerners have played nothing to date but Army teams from the local bases, splitting even in two games.

White indicated that he would probably start Jerry Crawford, Bill Cope, Marion Manderson, Billy Joe Walker and George Brewer for the Westerners.

The Westerners will get another stiff test this week, and the first appearance against high school opposition, when they clash with Volney Hill's Lamesa team at the local gym.

Lamesa, winners of the Tahoka invitation basketball tournament, is rated one of the best high school teams in this area and will give the Westerners a rigid test.

Burl Huffman Visits In Lubbock Monday

Thirty pounds lighter and with his waistline trimmed three or four inches, 1st Lt. Burl Huffman, former member of the Texas Tech coaching staff, visited in Lubbock Monday on a brief leave from his duties as director of physical training in the technical school at Keesler field, Biloxi, Miss.

Lt. Huffman, who definitely looked "in shape", is on detached duty in this area and stopped only briefly in Lubbock.

He enlisted in the physical training program of the Air Corps in June, 1942 and after a two-months stay at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., he was transferred to Miami Beach, Fla., where he entered officer candidate school in November, 1942, receiving his commission as a second lieutenant in January, 1943. He was promoted to a first lieutenant in August. He has been stationed at Keesler field since being commissioned.

Finance Dept. 498th Cagers Win At LAAF

Squadron League basketball play was resumed Monday night at Lubbock Army Air Field with the 498th TEFTS five and the Finance Department cagers winning in torrid battles while 84th Base Headquarters won by a default from the 355th Colored Squadron.

In the opening game, Revis Harris led the 498th to it's third victory of hte season by a spurt in the last five minutes to gain a 35-to-29 win over the 495th Squadron.

The game was tied 13-to-13 at the halfway mark, and was tied five times during the game, but Harris led a spurt in the last five minutes that found the 498th pulling away for a comfortable lead.

Harris dropped in six from the floor and three from the foul line for 15 of his team's points. Grieser paced the losers with four field goals and one free toss for nine points.

The Finance Department team had little trouble in winnng 55-to-29 over the 1017 Guard Squadron with McNeily and Reece leading the way for the winners as McNeily poured in 11 baskets for 22 points and Reece accounted for seven for 14 points. Ensor was the leading scorer for the Guardsmen.

The 498th Squadron will play the Lubbock High School Westerners tonight on the high school court.

Navy Stars Win Lily Bowl Battle Sunday

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 3 (U.P.)—The Navy, avenging the defeat it suffered in the first Lily Bowl last year, won a 19-0 victory over an Army team before 10,000 fans comprised of civilians and British and American service men yesterday.

All the scoring came in the first half.

Halfback Dan Vargo, Navys passing ace in last year's 19-18 defeat, paced the victor's offense with two touchdown passes and a scoring line plunge. Other stars in Navy's lineup included Lt. Chub Peabody, former Harvard guard and All-America selection in 1941; fullback Harry Jensen of San Francisco, and right half Chet Wimberg of Egg Harbor, N. J.

The losers' backfield consisted of quarterback Robert Murphy, former Georgia Tech star, halfbacks James Kirk, ex-Fordham stalwart, and Jack Bucheister of Plainville, Kan., and fullback Charles Painter, who formerly starred for Gordon Military college in North Carolina.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — As part of the fourth war loan drive, purchasers of $18.75 bonds will be permitted to take three foul shots each when New York University meets Rochester and Long Island tangles with Canisius in a basketball double-header at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 8.

Indiana Cage Coach Claims Tallest Team

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 3. (U.P.) — Whenever a prospective draftee is rejected by the Army and Coach Loren Ellis of Valparaiso university hears about it, he promises to find a basketball uniform that will fit him.

As a consequence, the students at this school in the Indiana "hot bed" of basketball contend this season that they have the tallest team in the nation, with an average of 6 feet, 5 inches per man.

Admitting he is on the lookout for others, Ellis already has landed two draft-exempt skyscrapers as regulars, Capt. Don Warnke, 6 feet, 10 inches, and Milt (Long Goon) Schoon, 6 feet, 9 inches.

Bob Dille, who at 6 foot, 3 inches is one of the "little boys," is the team's leading scorer and its most consistent breaker of training rules, but Ellis sighs that it can't be helped. His regimen, which isn't strict, has a fundamental requirement—"get plenty of sleep."

For Dille, that is impossible. The 26-year-old family man, who has a 4-year-old son, works a 48-hour week in a manufacturing plant at Valparaiso, carries 13 hours of class work and keeps up his grades.

Although he doesn't get time for every practice session, his shooting eye is sharp enough so that he has scored 119 points in six games for a 20-point average. He figures that he gets about four hours sleep a day, whenever it can be sandwiched in after he leaves the graveyard shift at the war plant at 8 a. m.

He seems to be thriving on the routine. He has lost the slight paunch he had when school opened and hopes to settle down some day to the more "peaceful life" of a basketball coach.

Completing the all-civilian Valparaiso roster are Albert Schmidt, 6 feet 4 inches; Alvin Schmidt, Nick Hasu and Mike Bansh, all 6 feet, 1 inch and Chuck Eades, a "midget" at 5 feet 10.

The combine is one of the highest scoring teams in the nation, having run up more than 60 points in six games and close to 50 points in two others.

The chances are good that Ellis can keep his squad intact since two are too tall, two are 4-F draft rejectees, one is only 17, another has an honorable discharge from the Army, one is a deferred student and Dille is an essential war worker.

COMMITTEE MEETS SOON

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP)—Post-war planning committees, named for the Major and Minor Leagues at the December baseball meetings in New York, will probably meet for the first time in Chicago later this month, Commissioner K. M. Landis said today.

OVER THE HUMP

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 3 (AP) — President Billy Evans of the Southern Association thinks "professional baseball passed over the hump in 1943" with the result that Southern Association clubs will be "infinitely better" this season.

Golden Gloves List 6 Boxers

The district Golden Glove boxing tournament entry list soared to six Monday with the promise of 'about ten" more coming in a letter from Wiley McCarty which said about ten more from Littlefield were planning on entering the meet at Texas Tech Gym Jan. 14, 15 and 17 with him.

The list of six which have sent in entries include two defending champions already announced. They are McCarty, defending bantamweight champion, and Billy Bracken, defending flyweight champion from Slaton.

Others include Lawrence Balch, Lamesa, Marion Harper, Anton, Thomas Miller, Portales, N. M., and Eugene Conger, Lubbock.

The only possible pairings from this list will come in the flyweight and welterweight divisions, each with two entries. Other divisions represented are middleweight and bantamweight.

Balch and Bracken are the flyweights, Harper and Miller the welterweights. McCarty is the veteran of the group, and is 26 years old. All others are teen agers, with Conger the oldest at 19. Balch, Miller and Bracken are 17 with Harper the youngster of the boys at 16.

Pro Football Starts Talk Of Expansions

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP)—The National Football League is ready to push its frontier westward, to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

This appears to be the initial move, officials say, of an expansion phase which promises to become so extensive after the war the pro circuit may be split into separate Major Leagues like baseball.

"I am confident expansion is inevitable," Commissioner Elmer Layden said, thus indicating that he was in favor of the league accepting franchise bids from the two Pacific Coast cities.

Being a comparatively new organization, the football league can talk with more ease about growing pains than such long established sports as baseball. It is difficult to find a trace of a rumor that major baseball contemplates any change.

The football league may not even wait until the post-war sports boom to start growing. Last June Ted Collins of the radio, was granted a franchise to operate in Boston and he may field a team next fall. Several wealthy business men, entire strangers to the sports world, have talked to Layden about the possibilities of starting up in San Francisco.

A prayer service will be conducted by representatives of the Protestant, Jewish and Catholic faiths, Robertson said.

The meeting will be open to the general public, it was announced, as well as to all veterans and their wives and members of the armed services.

Robertson stated several short talks, a musical program and refreshments had been planned.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Strikes---And Anonymity

WE agree thoroughly with the general condemnation of strikes and threatened strikes during wartime.

Every man, woman and child who can count to 10 knows that all strikes and threatened strikes are hurtful to the war effort—some only psychologically, but many both psychologically AND actually.

The recent steel strikes and the threatened rail strikes cannot be defended before the American public as a whole, and certainly not before that segment of the American public which has loved ones on the firing lines. Such strikes and threatened strikes should not be possible under the law. It is an everlasting shame that the Congress hasn't had the courage to pass anti-strike legislation with teeth in it; and that the Roosevelt administration, in its vote-trading with organized labor, is responsible for constructing a Frankenstein which it cannot control.

But just as thoroughly as we condemn strikes and threatened strikes in war industries and war-connected industries, we also condemn anonymity in criticizing strikes and threatened strikes. Entirely disgraceful and uncalled-for were the charges the other day, and attributed only to "a high government official," that the steel and rail unions, by their selfishness, have delayed victory and will be the cause of Americans being killed on the fighting fronts.

If it is true that strikes and threatened strikes in wartime delay victory—and certainly common sense dictates that they do—they why an anonymous official blast against them?

If it is true that a delay in victory, brought about by strikes or threatened strikes, will cause fighting men to die when they otherwise would not have died—and common sense dicates that the longer the war runs the more casualties there will be—why be anonymous in official reference to the fact?

As these lines are written, there has been no official, no exact, pointing out of the anonymous person who made the charge that strikes and threatened strikes have delayed victory and contributed to the death of American fighting men. But regardless who delivered the statement, we condemn him for his hiding behind anonymity. If he has the facts to back up his statement; if he feels as he says he feels, why shouldn't he let the nation know who he is?

WE think rail union leaders are entirely within their rights in demanding that the Truman Investigating committee of the U. S. Senate find out who the official was who made the charges—then announce to the nation his identity.

Furthermore, we consider the anonymous charges also to be hurtful to public morale, and to the psychology of the war effort on the home front. If there are grounds for such charges, certainly the individual who is familiar with those grounds should not object to letting his fellow citizens know who he is and where he got his facts. To be out in the open would contribute to strengthening public morale, but to hide behind anonymity weakens the charges and throws them open to doubt.

WE further think that the great news services—Associated Press, United Press and International News Service—made a mistake in accepting an disseminating the anonymous charges by "a high government official."

We realize that by refusing to disseminate the anonymous statement they would have left themselves wide open to being "scooped" by radio commentators and special correspondents in Washington who might have disseminated the information to their individual editors. Yet by standing together and declining to support anonymity in high places, the news services would have strengthened their own positions in the future and, by their action, would have ended, once and for all, such "off the record" material. If the Editor of The Morning Avalanche had been head of a great news service he would have told the "high government official": "If you have a statement to make, you'll be quoted, or our wires will not carry your remarks."

There is no call for strikes in wartime. The government has set up an elaborate set of machinery to handle disputes between employers and employes without the necessity of strikes, walkouts, or and it is indefensible that the law does not provide stiff punishment for those who refuse to work for their country when other men are dying for it.

But there also is no call for anonymity in high places and, for our part, we resent one fully as much as the other.

We see by the papers that the United States Senate is in for a postwar organization of peace-loving nations to maintain peace, provided such an organization be constitutional.

CHAPTER XXVI

"Lorry! For Pete's sake keep mum now. This is the big moment!" Jimmy Carr was pleading in hushed but desperate tone.

The reporter had run to get his staff photographer who was a few yards up the train of sailplanes. In the interim, four people held strange conference.

"Keep mum, Jimmy?" Loraine asked loftily. "But why? I thought we had an understanding."

"We did! But—my lord, we—" Pat spoke up. "Loraine, please! You mustn't spoil the show now. For Jimmy's sake. Your own! Any hint of personal trouble or scandal that might involve Jimmy—"

"That's a fact, lady!" Big Ed Bryan added. "You better let Miss Pat keep right on using your name."

The reporter was back. "That's the one. The tall girl, Rusty. In the flying togs." He was speaking rapidly to his photographer, and he called louder to Jimmy now. "Okay, Captain? Is she on?"

Ed Bryan stepped in once more to help a friend, and save face here all around.

"Sure she's going," Ed boomed, genially. "Name's Lo—uh, names Mary Smith. S-M-I-T-H, Smith. More woman interest for this sky train, see? She's gonna ride with Captain Carr in the towing plane."

"Swell! Can I talk to her now?"

Jimmy, suddenly understanding Ed, grabbed Loraine's arm. "Not till we get back! Come on, Loraine!"

Nobody noticed that he used her real name, grabbing her and rushing away toward a jeep. In a moment they were riding up to the tow plane, far ahead. And the officials assumed this was a signal for everybody else to get going.

They saw all pilots sent to their ships, but most interest centered on Pat Friday — alias "Loraine Stuart, Captain Carr's fiancee"—as she got in the last sailplane of all. And then, before anybody quite realized it, the hour was 4 o'clock. A signal was given and far ahead Jimmy started rolling.

A great cheer rose from the 20,000 spectators.

Bands blared out. People were in a frenzy of excitement, and justly so. Slowly, s l o w l y, the glider train began to snake along the runway. Then all at once it was gathering incredible speed. Pilots waved. The cheering increased.

Like some gigantic kite tail, this sky train lifted gracefully off the ground. It was s p e c t a c u l a r! Breath-taking! Here indeed was a beautiful maneuver, and here indeed was a harbinger of things to come.

Back in the tag-end plane, Pat Friday felt a sensation of achievement and power. She was in the big company and yet she was all alone! Many yards ahead of her was the ninth plane, flying prettily as its notch in the kite tail. Phoenix was streaming under them now, for Jimmy was circling, far far ahead. As if she didn't know how many, Pat began counting—1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and then her own plane. Beautiful craft, all. In varied colors against the Arizona sky.

Suddenly Pat was aware of that sky. She looked around the horizon. It was steel-to-azure-to-turquoise until it neared Superstition mountain; there on its horizon lay an ominous black. This gave Pat a little shuddery feeling, for she remembered the warnings of death up there. Then of course she laughed. Superstition was just a legend, a name.

Jimmy was making a great arc now, leading back toward the east and that same mountain. To demonstrate what could be done, he made the train form as deep a curve as possible. It brought him almost half way around, or so it appeared, and when he began to straighten again he actually managed to stick out a handkerchief and drop it.

"Yoo hoo, Number 10!" he called via radio, devilment in his tone.

"Oh!" Pat saw the white dot.

Then she promptly dipped her plane in return salute.

The maneuver sent a wave up the entire line! It could have been scary, and it was to people who just looked on. Playing crack-the-whip this way in the sky was distinctly unconventional! Radios began to have their fun about the hero and the heroine playing games along the sky train.

"Okay, back there in Number 10!" Jimmy now radioed. "You're doing swell, Pat." He quite forgot to call her Loraine.

"Not doing so bad yourself, Jimmy."

"Are you scared?"

"No."

"You're tops, lady! You have what it takes to fly these things!"

That was deserved praise, but untactful. Beside him, the real Loraine had heard the conversation in her own ear phones.

She reached over and flipped both set off the air, then snapped at Jimmy direct: "What do you mean?"

Jimmy turned to her. "Hunh?"

"Jim Carr, if you don't stop making love to that girl!" Loraine was biting mad and Jimmy saw it.

"I wasn't making love!"

"You certainly were and I don't like it. She's a contemptible little sneak, and if you intend to marry me you might as well understand I won't put up with it. Do you hear?"

She said it so vehemently, so harshly, so wilfully, that Jimmy only stared. Then he concentrated on handling his plane. A frown had darkened him and his lips were tight. So this was his Loraine! The girl he was to marry tomorrow noon! . . . She danced well, looked pretty, but — as a wife? . . . Apprehension began to assail Jimmy. And yet—"I've obligated myself; I'll go through with it!" he told himself, flying there. Thus matters rested for 10 minutes.

It was just time enough for Loraine to come to her senses again.

In a nervous strain herself, of course, she had done the wrong thing. And now she realized it. Contritely, and a bit desperately, she smiled at him and began talking in a melting tone.

"Jimmy, darling, I didn't mean it. Not that way. I—you do love me, and I do love you."

Jimmee d a r l i n g apparently didn't want to answer. He flipped back to the radio, began speaking to his pilots in strictly technical language, all - for - business now Even Pat, far behind him, caught the odd change in his manner and tone.

But neither Pat nor Jimmy nor any of the others really had time to conjecture on personal details.

Each of the 10 pilots, plus Jimmy towing them, had seen that Superstition cloud. It wasn't a mere cloud now. was a black, boiling monster, stretching around the compass from north to south.

And as a harbinger it was already attacking the sky train with driving, pelting, hailstones and sand.

Fort Huron Asks For Republican Meeting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (U.P.) — The Republican national committee has been invited to hold its presidential nominating convention at Port Huron, Mich., it was revealed today.

The invitation was extended by Frank J. O'Hara, secretary-manager of the Port Huron convention bureau, affiliated with the chamber of commerce.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

WELL, Christmas had come and gone, and my wife and I just went over our cards and presents once again, to see whom we overlooked, who overlooked us, and just how we came out on the whole thing.

Sounds awfully matter-of-fact, I know, but everybody I know does it the same way, so why not we?

The nicest Christmas card this year came from our laundry. It's a new laundry and they do really good work.

The plumber as always sent us greetings in excellent taste; must be a college-bred plumber.

Our bank sent the usual steel engraving. A picture of the bank, impressive, confidence-inspiring, with just enough green and red on the card to make us see that there's no funny business going on within those walls.

An awfully cute card came from the garbage collector. It had silver dust sprinkled all over it. A hint perhaps? It arrived early enough, but I don't think he is that kind of a fellow.

As a whole the cards were more conservative this year than usual. Most of them said "A Happy Christmas" instead of "Merry Christmas."

There were several from people who had never sent us cards before and others were missing.

Our old liquor dealer was among those who weren't represented. Unfortunately, he got himself into a jam with the government, and is unavoidably detained. But you should have seen our new supplier's card. A masterpiece.

Many of our friends are in the service, so their cards either didn't reach us in time or may not come at all. Some sent V-mail letters, some will never write again.

Of course there were a lot of "duty" cards. You know the kind that come from people who think they really ought to send you one.

I just love those that are hand-addressed by a secretary or on the typewriter, don't you? So personal, so sincere. Oh, well; I do the same thing.

NOW for the presents. Enough handkerchiefs to keep me in colds for the rest of the year. Neckties—why talk about them? Read the funnies and you'll know. Perfume for the wife (and some of it smells awful), some chinaware, a few potted plants, a box of ginger, and so forth—make up your own list.

What a lot of nonsense! What a lot of junk! What a lot of buncombe!

But the most delightful junk and nonsense and buncombe that you could possibly ask for.

Every Christmas I swear I'll never give another present, never send another card as long as I live.

Every Christmas I say I hope nobody'll send us anything, forget al labout us.

I say it. But do I mean it? NO!

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON

By Ray Tucker

AN oak-paneled room in a snow-white structure on Constitution avenue will be the nerve center for future conduct of the war as a result of the decision to keep Gen. George C. Marshall in Washington. In this building, which once housed the U. S. Public Health service, decisions will be made affecting over-all Anglo - American strategy and even tactical operations.

It is the headquarters of the eight American and British high - ranking specialists in the three-dimensional combat—land, sea and air. Every major or minor move against the Axis, with the exception of Russian maneuvering, originates here. Around its conference table were planned the Solomons offensive, Doolittle raid, North African invasion, the intensified strafing of German cities and the descent on Tarawa.

Resembling corporation executives rather than warriors—for battle is now big business—the members of the Joint United States Chiefs of Staffs and the Combined Chiefs of Staffs meet here regularly to plan, direct and observe global operations against the enemy. E v e r y nation fighting Hitler and Hirohito has representatives in near-by offices, and they are called in on all matters involving their interests.

BRITISH: These men would have carried on, naturally, even if our Chief of Staff had been transferred to London as originally scheduled. But no one dominates the discussions more than he — through the power of his personality and his acknowledged pre-eminence in his chosen field. And no successor could present the American viewpoint as forcefully as he does at the daily get-togethers.

The American group consists of Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to President Roosevelt, General Marshall, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army, Admiral Ernest J. King, U. S. Fleet commander and Chief of Naval Operations, Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Army Air Forces commander.

Their British opposites are Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of his country's staff Mission here, Admiral Sir Percy Lockhart Noble, representing the Admiralty, Lt. Gen. G. N. Macready, spokesman for Alan Brooke, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Air Marshal D. C. S. Evill, agent for Sir Charles Portal, chief of the Air Staff.

SOLOMONS: Here is an A-B-C blueprint of the manner in which the greatest war in history is conducted, allowing for the fact that a similar body exists in London and that both groups must integrate their policies:

The eight men function as a board of directors under the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain. In most instances, notably the Solomons and North African offensives, the inspiration for action comes from the two heads of states.

It then becomes the problem of these experts to decide whether the proposel operation is practical and worthwhile from a strategic standpoint. Should they so report, they receive instructions to make detailed plans. For this purpose they have subcommittees on supplies, personnel, shipping, communications, intelligence, food and all the other pertinent matters.

If the contemplated movement requires British and American cooperation, as in North Africa and Italy, the eight sit together. If it affects only Uncle Sam, as in the Solomons, it is mounted by the four United States members.

GLORY: When every angle of a proposed campaign has been studied from both the strategic and the tactical viewpoint, the octet's conclusions are submitted to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. They have the final word, for political and diplomatic factors must also be taken into consideration.

Once the show is on, these managers have a seat down front and in the center.

In a theater-like room on the first floor the eight can follow the course of the global warfare almost as closely as if they were on the battlefields

The walls are covered with charts which show in detail the land, sea and air operations at any given moment. A curved metal relief map of the world, 20 by 12 feet, fills one corner. Clocks inserted in this representation give the time in every zone. Weather conditions in each sector are depicted by colored lights. Magnetized metal markers on the map reveal the positions and movements of military, naval and aerial units at all times.

There is nothing of the so-called romance and glory of war in this setting. The place is as businesslike, as workaday and as mechanical as the main offices of United States Steel or General Motors.

EPIDEMIC: The Army frequently asks for strange sorts of specialists. But it recently sent out a call which few in the War department thought would be answered.

GHQ wanted "the names of Americans who possess a knowledge of epidemiology and chemotherapy, are competent in the diagnosis and control of endamoeba histolytic and other protozoan infections, have a knowledge of the Hindustan language, are skilled in the operation and the use of specialized bacteriological research apparatus, and who have traveled in the tropics."

Within a few days a man possessing these qualifications was on a Clipper heading for a tropical island, where an epidemic had broken out among civilian builders of an air base. He needed acquaintance with the Indian tongue because it was thought the germs had come from India, and part of his assignment would be to question laborers from that region about previous outbreaks.

WINNING THE WAR

By Albert Leman

NEARLY all trained observers of the national panorama admit that this closing week of the old year was one of the most shameful on record.

As thousands of American lads prepared to sail overseas for the zero hour of hte Western front, their final glimpse of the country—for which many of them must die within the next six months—was the spectacle of railroad and steel workers threatening to cut off the Army's supplies unless they were granted a few cents an hour pay increase.

Another smoldering volcano t h a t may erupt momentarily exists among the more than half a million employed by General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Powerful groups in the aluminum, textile, furniture and electrical industries are plotting fresh salary demands.

How can normally patriotic workers run out on their own flesh and blood who are fighting in the Pacific and in Europe?

Apologists for the unions argue that they are no worse than the farm bloc, big business renegotiators and other pressure bodies that are finagling to "get theirs" now before the war boom collapses. They know that in an election year the professional politicians in both parties will be afraid to block them.

PEACE: A representative of the rank and file steel craftsmen told Murray, "You're nice to Roosevelt. All you get is a smile and the brush-off. John Lewis is tough. And he comes away with a $1.50 a day raise. Now it is up to you, Phil; either deliver or get out."

And so the genial but weak-kneed boss borrows the Welshman's winning slogan: "No contract, no work"—despite his organization's pious no-strike pledge.

The trainmen's case is different. Conductors and brakemen are more conservative than CIO hotheads. Their contract has been under consideration for a long time.

Finally, Economic Stabilizer Vinson ignored the Railway Mediation board, which has been keeping peace in the railroad field for nearly a score of years, and offered terms which proved unsatisfactory. The men lost patience and prepared to walk out—and thereby lost the sympathy of the public.

According to Senator Butler (Rep., Neb.), our South American "good neighbor" policy is a huge WPA project, with boondoggling and all the trimmings. No doubt this is true to a considerable extent. Uncle Sam always did wear his pocketbook too close to his heart.

On Being A REAL PERSON

BY DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

The Best and Worst Spring From the Use of Our Imagination

ANXIOUS fear always involves the misuse of the imagination. Even when fear is physically induced, as in delirium tremens its terrifying power lies in imaginative pictures that occupy the mind. Anxiety as humans experience it is possible only to a highly developed organism endowed with the gift of fantasy.

Animals suffer cruelly, but they do not, so far as we can tell, lie awake at night picturing difficulties that make them panicky about tomorrow. Such apprehensive dread is a tribute to one of man's supreme endowments—imagination.

Upon this endowment all inventive progress depends, for whatever man creates he first imagines; upon it all ethical life depends, for the beginning of serious goodness lies in a man's imagining himself in another person s place; upon it all spiritual wealth and development depend, for no values ever vitally belong to us until they have captured our imagination. It is equally true, that upon this endowment all ruinous anxiety depends.

The best and the worst in human life spring from our use of this faculty.

Our picture-making capacity can fill our minds with visual images of disaster, possible and impossible, until many of us spend our lives bearing troubles, most of which never happen. From hypochondriacs, exhibiting infinite ingenuity in imaging their various ills, to families where habitual anxieties about one another range over the whole field of credible and incredible possibilities, such misuse of imagination curses daily life. As another put it, "An imaginary worry may be unreal, but a worried imagination is very real."

The clear recognition of the fact that we ourselves are creating this disaster in ourselves by the the misuse of one of our noblest faculties can be, in many cases, a long step out toward freedom.

For one thing, most of us can exercise a considerable measure of control over our imaginations. To be sure, visual images rise unbidden, but all chronic worries can, if they will, recognize the pet reels of moving pictures which they habitually run through their minds to stimulate anxiety.

A cowboy, enraged at the villain in a cinema, began shooting at the screen where the figures move instead of at the projector where they originated. So we, tormented by the creatures of our imagination, center our attention on the mental screen where their visual procession moves rather than on the inner faculty where we ourselves project these obsessive and abhorred, yet self created fantasies.

ONE of the sovereign cures for unhealthy fears is action. Dr. Henry C. Link gives this illustration of a mother of six children:

"As a young woman I was troubled with the fear of insanity. After the birth of our first child, these fears persisted. We soon had another child and ended up by having six. I had to do all my own work. Whenever I started to worry about myself, the baby would cry. Or the children would quarrel. I would suddenly remember it was time to start dinner, or that I must run out and take in the wash before it rained, or that the ironing had to be done. My fears were being continually interrupted by worries about my family, most of which were fears into which I had to put my back. Gradually my fears now I look back on them with amusement."

This furnishes one explanation of the prevalence of nervous and emotional ills among prosperous and leisurely people. They have time to sit around, feeding their imaginations. In wartime they can listen over the radio to every news broadcast and commentator until, unlike a healthy soldier who is in the thick of affairs and who has a job to do that he must practically tackle, they welter in the whole world's worries, become morbidly distraught over dangers concerning which they do nothing pratical, and end by adding to mankind's general hysteria without contributing any useful service. In ordinary peacetime such people are they prey of endless imaginary woes, so that it is commonly true that those worry most who have least to worry about.

TOMORROW: The feeling of being "no good."

President Appoints 3-Man Committee

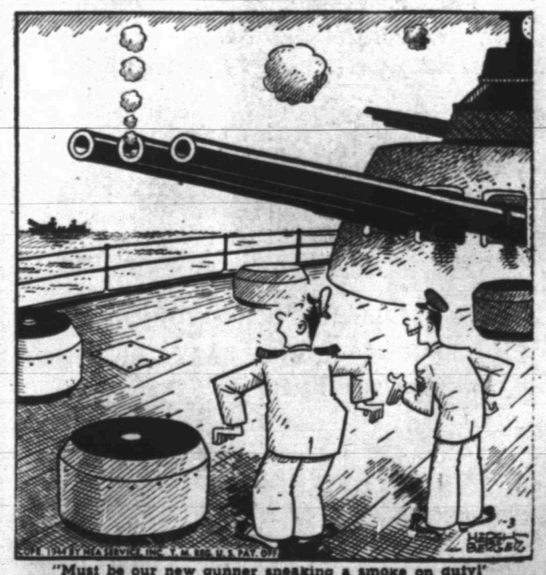

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (U.P.)—The White House announced today that President Roosevelt has appointed a three-man special committee to investigate racial d i s c r i m i n a t i o n charges lodged against 16 southern railroads and several unions by the fair employment practice committee.

Named to the special committee were Judge Walter P. Stacy of Raleigh, N. C., chairman, Judge William H. Holly of the federal district court, Chicago, and Mayor Frank J. Lausche, of Cleveland, Ohio.

1943 PERMITS LOWER

HOUSTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Houston's building permits in 1943 slumped to $7,960,000 from $11,292,000 in 1942, the city secretary reported.

Negro Boy's Fun At Underpass Stopped

A 14-year-old negro boy apparently was having himself a mess of fun Monday night dropping rocks from the top of the Broadway underpass on passing cars beneath.

When police arrived he was gone.

That and a report of a stray horse were typical of last night's demands on the police.

Monday afternoon Estelle Gordon, who, police said, lives at the rear of 1313 Avenue N, complained of theft of three dresses from that address valued between $40 and $50.

Police were unable to find a trace of two cars reported to be racing up and down Twenty-eighth street yesterday afternoon.

Evidence of an attempted breakin Sunday night at the Dryer and Lee Oil Co., station, 802 Avenue H, was discovered Monday morning but police said nothing was found missing.

Investigation was under way into a complaint that an usher at a downtown theater, who "called down" several rowdy customers Sunday night, was severely whipped later in the night by a "gang" after he stepped off a bus near his home.

None was said injured in a traffic mishap early Monday afternoon at Fifteenth street and Avenue J. Police said drivers of the two vehicles involved were Oscar D. Weil, 31, of O'Donnell, and Wilburn L. Richardson, 17, of Idalou. The right front of the Weil car and the right rear of the Richardson car were reported damaged.

Arnold's Report

over American air fields on the Hawaiian and Philippine islands on Dec. 7, 1941, we had a total of 526 planes suited for combat in defense of the islands. . . . "Within a few hours that number was reduced to 176."

The Air Transport command now has 110,000 miles of routes. A chart discloses such new and remote routes as one running northward to Baffin Land at the northeastern corner of the American continent, and another reaching the big mineral producing area in South Africa. "On one recent day 680,000 pounds of materiel, munitions and supplies were delivered by air to one theater of operations.

During one year of operation in the Mediterranean theater, from Nov. 8, 1942, through Nov. 7, 1943, Allied aircraft dropped 92,233 tons of bombs on enemy installations and supply routes, of which 65,377 tons were dropped by the AAF. The targets were in Austria, Yugoslavia, Greece, Albania and France as well as in North Africa. In that theater, "we destroyed in aerial combat and on the ground 5,511 enemy aircraft, probably destroyed 750 and damaged 1,903."

"Two years after Pearl Harbor . . . it is now plain that for us the beginning has ended; for our enemies, the end has begun"

Number Not Disclosed

Arnold did not disclose the number of planes in operation by the air forces, but he said that "some conception of the size of the Army Air forces may be gained from the recent statement of Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air, that over one-half of the Army's entire production in 1944 will be aircraft and its equipment."

The general reported that planes in the War Production board schedule would be heavier and more elaborately equipped than those now in the air. The weight of heavy bombers to be produced in the next 18 months will exceed that of all types of planes produced in the first year and a hlaf of war, Arnold said.

There was an intimation in his report that the new B-29, now in production, will be only one of super-bomber types to come.

Prior Statement Recalled

Arnold recalled his statement of a year ago that the B-17 and B-24 were perhaps the last of the "small" bombers, that newer and bigger ships with more speed, fire power and bomb capacity were on the way. Then his report said:

"The B-29, for example, will see action in 1944."

Arnold made a point of explaining that the life of an airplane is short.

"I can now reveal," he said, "that in one of our theaters, the typical Flying Fortress is at present in operation 231 days before it is lost in combat or damaged mechanically in routine flights so that it is torn down and used to rebuild other B-17's, and the crew assigned to another plane. During this average life period, in addition to the numerous practice, training, test, supply, administration and ferry flights, the average B-17 will fly 21 combat missions in this particular theater. This is true today, but it may not be true tomorrow, for war changes constantly."

26,900 Planes To Allies

Up to last October 1, a total of 26,900 planes had been flown to our Allies by lend-lease or direct purchase agreements, Arnold said, adding that Russia has received 7,000 planes under lend-lease.

The near future likely will be the crucial period for the luftwaffe, Arnold said, "in view of the high rate of attrition of German fighter aircraft on the western front."

"If the present rate of attrition keeps up, and the German aircraft factories producing these fighters continue to suffer progressive destruction, a point will be reached where German reserves are exhausted and only a trickle of new replacements can be supplied," Arnold declared.

Major Turning Point

"It is difficult to appraise the present struggle for air supremacy as representing anything short of a major turning point in the war. What American and Royal Air force plane bombers can do to the whole German war machine, once the German fighter force is rendered impotent, needs no comment. The issue hangs now on which side first falters, weakens and loses its punishing power."

Arnold saw a "number of especially significant trends" in the German reaction to the operations of the United States Eighth Air force, based in England and flying over German and German-occupied Europe. Among them, he noted:

"General unwillingness of fighter forces to join combat with invading aircraft other than heavy bomber formations."

"Furious, all-out attack, with little heed of fighter losses, on heavy bombers dispatched against key targets" and the increasing employment of fighters armed with cannon larger than 22 mm. caliber and with rocket projectiles."

After the destruction of enemy fighter strength, the next step is the smashing of industrial targets vital to the enemy's military strength on the ground, Arnold said. In this connection, he explained that "contrary to prevailing beliefs, all industry is not absolutely essential to every belligerent country" and that industrial damage even on a large scale might have no effect on front line strength for "20 years or longer."

As an example, he said that only a small portion of steel manufactured in any modern industrial nation goes directly into front-line strength.

STOCKS LIMP INTO NEW YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—The stock market stepped into 1944 today with a slight limp.

Hesitancy prevailed at the start with dealings unusually slow. Scattered favorites managed to hold fractional advances but small declines were widespread when the final gong sounded. There were isolated wider recessions.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .1 of a point at 49.5.

American Distilling "Plain" and "Stamped" lost 1¼ each and J. C. Penney 2. Lesser casualties included U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Pacific, N. . Central, Western Union "A," Goodyear, Oliver Farm, Boeing, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont and Standard Oil (NJ).

Johns-Manville advanced 1¾.

On the offside in the curb were Electric Bond and Share, Cities Service, Aluminum of America and Glen Alden Coal. Brewster Aero, St. Regis Paper and Republic Aviation edged forward.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today with futures trading restricted to routine price-fixing against textile contracts. Offerings were scarce and prices closed unchanged to 25 cents a bale higher for the more active months. The relatively inactive January position lost 50 cents.

Spot markets were extremely firm, reflecting the effects of a heavy movement into the government loan and resultant scarcity of offerings despite only light mill interest.

Soldier Pours Wrong Bottle Down Sink

LONDON, Jan. 3. (AP)—A mother's frantic appeal had a doctor and ambulance waiting at the station today for a young soldier who had boarded the train a few miles away after ending a home furlough.

"I gave him something out of the wrong bottle," his mother explained, fearing the lad was poisoned.

But the soldier shrugged nonchalantly.

"Mother always gives me a dose of medicine when I'm going away," he confided. "But I pour it down the sink when she isn't looking."

U. S. GETS HYDE PARK

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 3. (AP)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have deeded the family homestead and 33 acres of land at Hyde Park to the United States government for use as a "national historic site."

mothers.

Another person reaching Stockholm said all windows were shattered in the Esplanade hotel near the chancellery, and that "Potsdamerplatz looked as though it was completely destroyed." A Swedish businessman said Berlin's air raid alarm system appeared to have been disrupted.

One report quoted a Stockholm newspaper as saying 2,760 dead had been counted in Berlin, 70 per cent of them workers who had been forced to carry on in factories during the raid.

Meanwhile the Vichy radio reported an attack at an unspecified time on Nice in southern France.

A few German planes raided England, killing one woman and injuring several persons in a southeast town. Four craft were shot down. London had a brief alert.

Destroyers Lost

near the entrance of lower New York bay today with a blast so terrific that it hurled men and guns into the sea.

The blazing ship sank in 40 minutes as coast guard craft edged to her side to rescue 163 men, includinging 108 injured.

Hours after the first blast, which occurred at 6:18 a. m. (EWT), (5:18 CWT) the Navy said the cause had not yet been determined. There was no announcement regarding loss of life, but destroyers in wartime carry crews ranging from 150 to 300 men.

Breaks Windows Ashore

The blast, breaking windows ashore and arousing thousands of metropolitan News Yorkers from their beds, ripped the ship as she was preparing to get underway six miles northeast of Sandy Hook, N. J., and just a few miles off Coney Island, N. Y., naval spokesmen said.

An eye-witness said another explosion "split her in two" about five minutes after the vessel was abandoned at 7:05 a. m. It sank a short time later.

The spokesmen gave no indication of whether the sinking could be attributed to a torpedo attack, a mine or an accident.

Survivors told graphic stories of crewmen manning hoselines to fight the fire, despite explosions of the ship's own burning shells, and of heroic rescue work by the coast guard, but they gave no indication of the blast's origin.

One survivor said that a crewman, found drifting on a mattress, "must have been blown through the side of the ship," indicating possibly an internal explosion.

below Olevsk, was stormed and taken by "a decisive offensive of tank and infantry formations," Stalin's order of the day said. He termed the town of 18,000 "a large railway junction and an important stronghold of German defenses."

The Germans in the Dnieper bend apparently were faced with a hard choice between two alternatives—and in either case must act quickly. They either must withdraw as quickly as possible from the southern Ukraine, or send ill-spared reserves into relieving counter-attacks.

It was estimated that Germans need from 150,000 to 300,000 reserves in southern Russia if they are to avoid disaster.

The Russians last were reported within 35 miles of the Warsaw-Odessa trunk railway running through Zhmerinka. If they cut that line it would leave the German Dnieper bend forces dependent on the entirely inadequate railways running into Rumania from Odessa.

Many Bottled In Crimea

The Germans are estimated to have 500,000 to 750,000 men in southern Russia, including those units bottled up in the Crimea. Three Russian armies are exerting constant pressure on them—waiting apparently to hit them in full force when General Vatutin's forces slash the enemy's main arteries at the rear.

The Soviet front extending toward Rumania is from 50 to 60 miles wide. The Russians have by-passed Belaya-Tserkov, a German strong-point 50 miles below Kiev. Among the towns seized during the day was Tetiev, a district center 80 miles southwest of Kiev.

San Francisco is a kind of way station between Washington and the Pacific war. Brass hats are constantly passing through. Their presence may be known to many but it never gets into print until they are gone. Attention is wholly absorbed with the Pacific war. Instantly here you begin to feel the size of it. Literally dozens of islands scattered thousands of miles over the Pacific have been converted from their native state into busy Naval bases. Outwardly the Pacific war may seem to have proceeded very slowly, but a truly staggering amount of preparatory work in building bases and accumulating supplies has been done.

That is the first thing you get here at the jumping-off place for the Pacific, at the end of an overnight plane hop from Washington.

Reds Reach Polish Border, Unhinge Whole Nazi Setup

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Probing Russian patrols probably are already over the old Russian-Polish frontier in pursuit of routed Nazi invaders although Moscow may withhold formal announcement of the fact until the border has been crossed in force.

With the fall of Novograd-Volynski, last of the Nazi's river protected anchor points east of the Polish border in the northwestern Ukraine, Russian troops were within sight of the boundary on a 40 mile front. No formidable natural obstacle loomed ahead of them to bar a sweep in Poland, once the Stuc tributary to the Pripet on which Novograd-Volynski stands, was crossed. From that point to captured Olevsk 40 miles to the north, Russian heavy field guns were in range of Polish territory, less than 10 miles away.

SIMPSON

Beginning Of End

Russian practice would call for a special award by Marshal Stalin to the first troops crossing the line. Their surge into Poland will mark the beginning of the end of the Nazi invasion of Russia, tiny as may be the first footholds seized beyond Russian frontiers.

The surging Russian advance in the northwestern corner of the Kiev bulge, however, holds a more ominous threat to the foe than the fact that he has been driven at one point off Russian soil. In the seizure of Novograd-Volynski and investment of Olevsk, the Russians have firmly anchored their right flank against the Pripet-Pinsk marshes, forbidding Nazi flanking attacks from the north. They are in a position to start a great wheeling movement south and southwest, aimed at entrapment of the still huge German forces in southern Russia against the Rumanian border.

The critical importance of Novograd-Volynski to the strategic pattern of the battle of the Kiev bulge, already the most outstanding Russian victory and the bitterest Nazi defeat of the war, is obvious. Its capture puts the Russians astride a rail line running from that point to Shepetovka junction, 30 miles to the southwest.

Leave Nazis In Vise

A Russian thrust down that railroad to engulf Shepetovka would leave the Nazi garrison of Berdichev, 60 miles to the southeast, caught in a deadly vise. It is already cut off from escape southward by Russian capture some days ago of Kasatin junction, just below it on the Kiev-Zhmerinka railroad.

Berdichev is already half-encircled by Russian columns pressing in upon it at close range from the north, east and south. With Russian units now probably sweeping down on the last westward escape route far in the rear at Shepetovka, a minor Stalingrad could result for the all but trapped Nazi units still clinging to the Berdichev anchorage.

Some 70 miles farther to the southeast at Russian-captured Volodarka, another Russian claw is reaching out from the lower sector of the Kiev bulge threatening to break the last Nazi hold on the lower Dnieper river.

Last Supply Route Near

At Volodarka the Russians are within 20 miles or less of the Cherkasi-Vapujarka narrow-guage rail line, the only remaining supply feeder for the Nazi front southeast of Kiev. The Russians are already due south of Byelaya Tsarkov and well in the rear of the German forces still standing along the Dnieper below Kiev. The Nazi plight seems desperate in that section and a fast-paced retreat alone can save them from entrapment by every indication.

The deadliest threat of all for the Germans, however, ominously enhanced by the indicated doom of the Berdichev bastion, is down the Kiev-Zhmerinka railway where advance elements of the hard-hitting Russian forces are reported less than 35 miles from Zhmerinka junction.

The fall of Berdichev would certainly increase that threat. A Russian advance to Zhmerinka would turn the potential Bug river defense line from the north before Nazi forces in the Dnieper bend could fall back to it for a stand. Even the Dniester and Pruth river lines, beyond the Rumanian frontier southwest of Zhmerinka, can be similarly turned leaving the whole Nazi right flank in Russia solely depending on rail and road routes westward through Rumania for supply or escape.

Orphans' Home Has Good Health Record

DALLAS, Jan. 3 (U.P.)—Buckner Orphan's home trustees, meeting here yesterday, marveled at a health report presented them by General Manager Dr. Hal F. Buckner.

Not a single case of influenza, nor infantile paralysis, was recorded at the home, a Baptist institution housing some 600 children, during 1943.

Only new members named to the home's board of directors was A. Burleson of Waxahachie, who succeeded W. S. Howard of Ennis, who asked for retirement.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

The Plainsman Says . . .

building custodian at the courthouse, is another connected with officialdom who has had two decades — 21, to be exact—in the same job.

The Plainsman came here on The Journal, a few weeks after that paper was established and before its machinery arrived. A weekly, The Journal was printed under contract in Amarillo and we used to go up each week to help get it out and bring the printed copies back on the train.

The Avalanche, however, was an oldtimer, even then, and two printers then on the job have stayed with the paper right on through. They are Alfred Eubanks and Anthony L. Borho. W. C. Edwards and Tim Stovall have been Lubbock printers for more than 20 years but briefly over the past two decades were in other employment.

MAYBE our memory has been dulled a little by the hurly-burly of 20 years on the job. If we've missed anybody we should have mentioned, we regret the oversight and ask to be informed of it.

But, anyhow, the last 20 years have been happy years, spent among people unexcelled anywhere For their innumerable acts and words of kindness, for their forebearance with his peccadilloes, The Plainsman is truly and sincerely grateful.

We came here as a kid of 21; feel like a kid of 21 today, and are looking forward to the conclusion of a second 20-year stretch when we expect—and hope to be—just a kid of 61!
