A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

DEATH OR LIFE: To be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.—Romans 8: 6.

STABILIZING MAMMOTH PETROLEUM INDUSTRY

Since cotton hit the bottom petroleum products in an export value sense have taken first place in Texas. There is an important conference on in the city of Washington. All the big voices of the major companies are there. All the loud voices of the independents are there. Now what is the object of the conference? Well, in a message to the governors of oil producing states, Secy. Harold Ickes said it was "an attempt to grapple with the situation and an attempt finally to keep production to what can possibly be marketed."

Government experts in their reports to the secretary of the interior have estimated that the oil needs of the nation today are approximately 2,000,000 barrels a day while the present production ranges from 2,250,000 to 2,500,000 barrels. These experts say most of the surplus is bootlegged oil, "which avoids all taxation and is placed on the market at what the oil interests characterize as cut throat prices."

A CZAR TO HANDLE RAIL REORGANIZATION

Now the great Missouri Pacific line has taken advantage of the new bankruptcy laws. Is this the beginning of the end? Other rail systems may go the same way. President Roosevelt is preparing his rail program of unification. American rails have an indebtedness of more than ten billion dollars. Reorganization, another name for unification, may call for the czar plan of management. As for the Missouri Pacific lines they are controlled by the Van Sweringen brothers, Buckeyes who made history as sellers of newspapers in their boyhood, amassed fortunes in Cleveland real estate, invaded the railroad world and battled their way to the top.

S. M. U. TEACHERS 'CUT TO THE BONE'

There is salary slashing all along the line in the educational world. Southern Methodist university faculty members were informed by President C. C. Seelcman that a reduction of 50 per cent would be made in their salary checks for the last three months of this academic year. Their slash approximates 15 per cent of the yearly salary. Moreover, the cut was the first since last year when a general 20 per cent reduction was made in line with an attempt to balance the budget of the university and to live within its income.

Prejudice against your home city is like a bad case of indigestion. It spreads poison throughout the system, warps the judgment, sours the disposition and destroys that kind of action which builds and produces.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

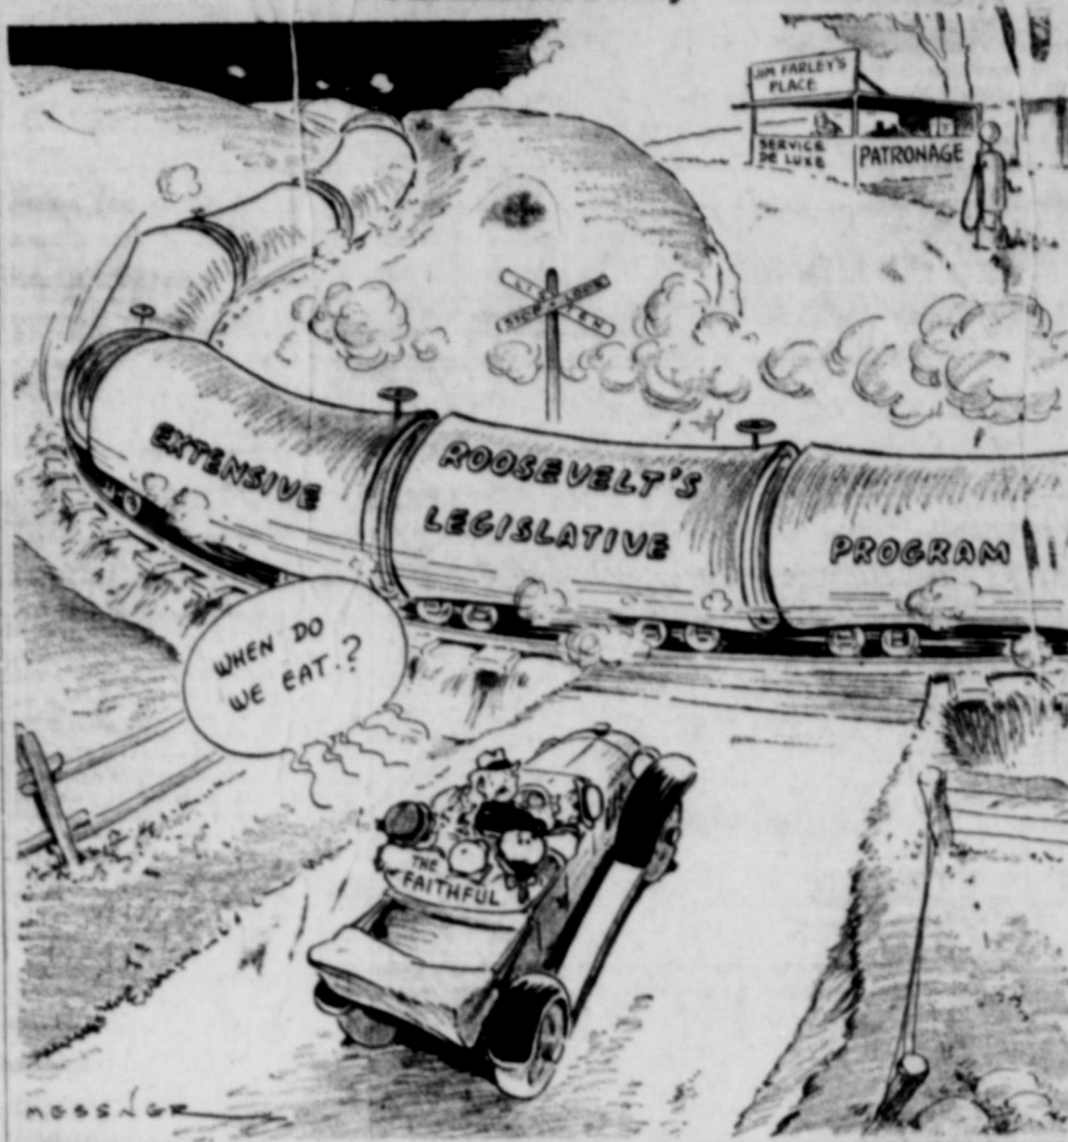

The attraction and distraction of life today are such that youth, however eager, is unable to keep up with them. In these circumstances, it is little wonder that literature, historical and viographical is neglected for sensational, exhilarating and exciting rubbish.

We must realize that today the Apple of Knowledge, good and evil, cannot always be withheld from the lips of our boys and girls. For that reason an enormous responsibility is thrown accordingly upon parents, teachers and churches. Much of society no longer collaborates with them in the protection of childhood. The work of the home and school must protect them.

The modern child does not tip-toe into the sea of life, but seems to be thrown out of his depth in order that he may teach himself to swim.

There is, we think, an old fashioned, yet sure, protection for the child, and that is through the building of a sound character in childhood by parents teaching the example.

DERRICK SHADOWS
By V. MARIE STEPHENS

April 6 stands out in American history in connection with two of the greater events in the nation's existence. In 1789 Washington was elected president of the United States, taking the responsibility of fatherhood upon his capable shoulders.

And what an unruly child the states proved to be. Forgetting Washington's immortal "Farewell Address" and admonition, "Let there be no sectionalism, no North, South, East or West . . . beware of the baneful effects of party spirit . . . cherish the public credit, avoid debt . . ."

Sixteen years ago today President Wilson approved the following declaration passed by congress: "Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That the state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared . . ."

We can almost smile now at the irony of fate who gave us our Father of Peace and took our youth to die on the anniversary 117 years later. All to make the world safe for democracy . . . which none of it has.

HERE-- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

How many people in this country remember that 16 years ago the United States declared war against Germany? The scenes of that war are still fresh in our minds. Families all over this nation had been fearful with anxiety that such a call must come.

Who would be chosen from the ranks to go to those uncharted shores? What breed of man would be spared? Would the youth of the nation be conscripted? Taken from the sheltered home, and sent to some training camp there to be made over into a soldier boy? Men's hearts were torn with anguish and fear, and yet filled with patriotism. Ah those were the days when a man's life was not to be forgotten by any woman who has lived through them.

Today our country faces a situation that must be handled with care for the feeling of the United States.

OUT OUR WAY

BORN THIRTY YEARS TOO SOON.

One I Love

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANET HILL knows her engagement to ROSE CARLYLE when she learns he has been going to the office with BETTY CARLYLE, secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine. She still loves him.

JEFF GRANT, young engineer, saves her purse from a holdup man and she and Jeff become friends. When she learns Hill has eloped with Betty she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she can never care for anyone else.

HAMILTON leaves the magazine and secures a job for Janet as a social secretary to his sister, MISS CURTIS. It is several days before Janet learns Mrs. Curtis is Betty Carlyle's mother.

Hill and Betty return from their honeymoon. Janet feels she should go away but circumstances prevent. The young couple move into their own apartment and, after one encounter, Janet seldom sees Hill.

She goes for a drive with Jeff and he tells her of a young man who is in love with someone else. Janet concludes the girl is Betty Carlyle. A SHAWN, a young man in the office where he works.

Mrs. Curtis decides to go to Silver Bay, a lake resort. Taking Janet with her, Betty comes to the station to see them off. Janet leaves, saying she has an engagement with Hill but Janet sees her mother and Betty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE "ONE I LOVE" CHAPTER XXXVII

SILVER BAY was Janet's first introduction to a summer resort. It was, as Mrs. Curtis had said, a "quiet" place but to Janet it seemed impressive. The two hotels facing the beach were built with huge verandas looking out over the lake. Two dozen or more cottages were scattered about and farther back were narrow streets lined with shops that did little business except during the summer months.

Most of the activity of the place centered about the beach and the landing where lake boats stopped whenever there were passengers. Fishing craft set out each morning and speed boats cut their way through the water, trailing spray. The water was blue and rather cold but swimmers braved it. The more indolent were content to sun themselves, lying on the sands, or viewing the water sports from the high walk leading to the hotels.

Mrs. Curtis had been coming to the Lake Shore Hotel for years. On the day that she and Janet arrived she spent half an hour chatting with old acquaintances before they could go in to luncheon. An hour later a bridge game was in progress on the veranda. The same bridge game, with new and then an occasional substitute for one of the players, was to continue as long as Mrs. Curtis remained at Silver Bay.

The days drifted into an easy pattern. It was cool at Silver Bay, the breeze from the water was cool. Janet had little to do. Each morning she went to the beach for a brief swim and then 10 minutes on the sands. The rest of the morning she spent with Mrs. Curtis, reading to her, answering her letters, sending dresses to be pressed and making appointments for manicures and facial massages. Though the hotel was so "quiet" it was a rather dreary place and the routine of dressing in the morning and then again for dinner was unalteringly observed.

On sunny days Mrs. Curtis and her friends had their afternoon bridge game on the veranda. When it rained they moved inside to one of the parlors but nothing except the recurrent arrival of Sunday, interrupted this program. Janet usually sat near-by with a magazine or book.

THERE were plenty of young people at Silver Bay. Some of them spent their days on the water and became brown as Indians. Others played golf, rode horseback or went spinning over the roads in long, low motor cars. Janet saw them, girls in sleeveless, low cut frocks and young men in fannels. She saw them laughing and smoking and apparently having very gay times together but she did not speak to any of them. These girls and young men were from Betty Carlyle's world. Janet did not need to be reminded that there was a vast difference between them and herself. Her visit at Silver Bay was a vacation and yet it was not a vacation. She sat beside Mrs. Curtis and her middle-aged acquaintances and looked on at the never-ending bridge.

There was always dancing at the Lake Shore in the evening. Sometimes a young man would manage an introduction and ask Janet to dance. Usually she refused and on the occasions when she did not she regretted it later. The young men were so obviously flirtatious that they were not even amusing.

Dancing made her think of Hill and evening they had spent together. Hill danced divinely. Circling a floor in his arms, steps matching perfectly, was like floating on air.

She always caught herself up abruptly when her thoughts went on like this. That scene in the library came back to her. The gray dusk and Hill appearing almost as in a dream. She could hear him saying, "You look beautiful!" and she could feel again the warm, bewildering sensation that had overtaken her. She had tried to run away--oh, yes she had tried! But if Betty had not appeared just then what might have happened?

Janet always refused to answer that question. "Nothing would have happened!" she would assure herself vigorously. "Nothing!"

But it wasn't true. She was very much afraid that something would have happened. There was something really fearful for her to confront these days. She had found that she couldn't trust herself. Here at Silver Bay with everything quiet and peaceful it was easy enough to say that she had put Hill out of her mind. Perhaps not completely but each day he meant less. Yes, she was forgetting about him.

That wasn't true either. Otherwise why was it necessary so many times during the day to say to herself, "I've forgotten about him."

ASIDE from Mrs. Curtis' friends--the only acquaintances Janet made at Silver Bay were some children she met each morning on the beach. Their mothers knew Mrs. Curtis. They seemed grateful when Janet kept the young children from their mothers and kept them busy at games. Janet really enjoyed the children and she was a favorite with them.

She sent a card to Jeff Grant and received a letter a few days later. Due to a change in office policies, Jeff wrote, there was no vacation in sight for him. He had spent another week-end at the home of his friend, Nelson. Lancaster had cooled and then become hot again. The letter was rather disappointing. It was brief. A few statements of facts, closing with the hope that Janet was enjoying herself. There was no chatty gossip.

She re-read the letter, looked at it a few moments and then laughed. How exactly like Jeff that letter was! Of course there was no gossip, nothing about what Jeff had been thinking or feeling. Of course not! But the letter had been written the day he had received her card. That was characteristic, too. Jeff was always punctual. He wouldn't write about himself because he so seldom talked about himself.

She sent cards to Mollie Lambert and Pauline Hayden and one or two others. Mollie's answer was an announcement of her marriage the week before. The wedding had taken place at Mollie's sister's home in a little town outside Lancaster.

Standing alone on the hotel veranda one night, looking out at the lake, Janet thought that of all those she knew Mollie was the one surest of happiness. She and her Al would get along. They would have their "trreks," as Mollie said, but afterward they would make up and be happier than before. Yes, they would be happy.

The breeze rustled Janet's skirt and blew her hair back against her face. Silver Bay in the moonlight was really silver. Far out on the water lights winked and music came from within the hotel. For an instant the beauty of the night swept everything else from Janet's thoughts.

Then she heard Mrs. Curtis' voice and turned quickly. She said, "Your coat? Yes, Mrs. Curtis, I'll get it right away."

Jeff had come to Silver Bay for two weeks. At the end of that time Mrs. Curtis decided to spend another week there and at the end of the third week she decided to stay a fourth. The first of September was just two days away when they finally arrived in Lancaster.

Frederick met them with the car. The servants had all been back for several days and the only sign of change about the house was that instead of roses and delphinium in the vases, as when they left, there were asters now and gladioli. The big house was fresh and cool and inviting. Far more attractive, Janet thought, than the hotel. She wondered why Mrs. Curtis had ever wanted to leave it.

Betty dropped in the first afternoon they were back. She wore a new and becoming dress and she talked of parties she had gone to and parties to which she was invited. She spoke of Hill casually and only after Mrs. Curtis had asked about him. She was working as usual, she said. Betty chattered on for an hour and then hurried off for an engagement.

She came in several times that week but always alone. Janet was unusually busy for letters had accumulated and there were bills to be paid. There were accounts to be gone over and checks sent to the bank. Janet thought Mrs. Curtis was interested. Mrs. Curtis was coming to rely on Janet more and more and when anything was wrong in the household it was to Janet that Bertha appealed.

She had errands down town too. She was walking along Center street one afternoon when suddenly she was aware of a figure beside her. Janet looked up. Hill Carlyle was standing with her.

"Hello, Janet. Guess I'm a bit late."

"I've been wanting to see you and I've put a band on my arm. You're coming along with me."

LOVE'S FORT

Safe within the citadel
Of love's fort I live and dwell;
Looking out upon the sea
Of the world's humanity;
Wond'ring why the look of care
On the faces everywhere.
Pond'ring why they cannot see
Just how happy they could be,
If they'd only let love in,
Closing out the noise and din;
Drowning out the fires of hate,
Wiping clean the blackened slate,
Building home-fires on the hearth,
Kindling love upon the earth.
Then the weary look of care
Would dissolve into thin air,
And safe in the citadel
Of love's fort we all would dwell.

Lillian Bond Is Star of Picture, "No More Children"

Dainty little Lillian Bond, the charming leading lady in "No More Children," is one of the most versatile and talented girls now in the public eye. Born in Vancouver, B. C., just 20 years ago, Miss Bond was a mere child when the World War broke out, yet because of her marked acting ability, she was drafted into a troupe of juvenile vaudeville stars and toured the United States and raising funds for the Red Cross.

In the four years that the war lasted this troupe of youngsters raised over $100,000 and visited every important city in North America.

At an age when most children are just starting in kindergarten, she was giving from eight to 20 shows per week and receiving their education from tutors back stage or in hotels and trains. Yet such was the precocity of tiny Lillian that at the end of the war she was several years farther advanced in her studies than the average child of her age, and she finished high school while yet a child.

Then turning again to the stage, she scored an instantaneous success in stock and played many of the principal cities of the northwest. Tiring of that she entered newspaper work as a special writer on the Vancouver Sun and won considerable distinction for her clever stories and articles. Finally feeling the call of the drama again, Miss Bond proceeded to Hollywood where she found a hearty welcome and was immediately given the feminine lead in "No More Children."

No at the ripe old age of 20 when most girls are just quitting high school Miss Bond can boast of being an accomplished linguist, a beautiful dancer, a clever horsewoman, a brilliant writer and an actress has won her spurs in vaudeville, dramatic stock and on the screen.

"No More Children" will be shown at the Arcadia theatre starting tomorrow.

Grocery Employees Get Bonus for 1932
By United Press
SAN ANGELO.—It may sound like a bedtime story, but Miss Marie Bunnell, billing clerk for the H. O. Wooten Grocery company branch office here, will show you a bank account to prove it.

Just as the national government ordered a pay cut for federal employees, Miss Bunnell received a letter from the head office. There was a lot of nervousness among the nine grocery company employees here: Was it a salary cut, a staff reduction, a "stagger shift" in working hours?

Miss Bunnell opened the envelope and found nine bonus checks. The grocery concern had not made much money in 1932, wrote President H. O. Wooten, but it had made some, and enclosed was part of the profits for the employees who made the record possible.

Dr. C. Q. Smith Addresses Junior College Assembly

A number of the high school clubs attended the Junior College assembly.

Library Club
The library club met in the Methodist church Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Doris Eaton, active member of the club, had charge of the program which consisted of guitar selections by L. C. Keel and Joe Shankle, "Libby" Cleveland, accompanied by Vera Hunt, sang "My Darling" and "All-American Girl."

Someone has said that "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." It is true to love all right.

Turns from one to another. Watch your step, girls, it's spring-time.

Why did two girls sit together and one of them laugh and the other cry when "Libby" sang "My Darling" in library club Wednesday?

One of our high school beauties has been pulling a "Hank the Hot-rod" anyway. I've told her it's useless.

It is possible that some people believe in starting all over again. Now wouldn't that be wise?

It seems that last summer some coaches meeting in Austin tried to take it upon themselves to vote the javelin out of the league, substituting the 440-yard relay. Say "Buzbe" didn't it thrill you to see him "throw" through, anyway she's talking about it still.

I could tell some things on somebody but far be it from me to trespass on the divinity's duty when he seems to have made such a good job of it.

A certain little girl was stood up last night—so we hear—but as she once said on a similar occasion, "the first time is the hardest."

Out-of-Town Visitors Welcomed At Woodmen Circle Meeting
Out-of-town visitors were extended a cordial welcome at the Woodman Circle county meeting held at the local hall Wednesday afternoon with the session called to order by the guardian, Mrs. C. C. Cash.

The important meeting coming on the regular meeting day of the Julia Alexander Grove No. 1954, was well filled with instructive points based around splendid talks made by various members, including the district manager, Mrs. Della E. Sappington, and Mrs. Kate Jackson, national representative.

Other prominent visitors included Mrs. Josephine Warkin, Mrs. Elizabeth White, and Mrs. Alice Moseley, all of Brownwood; Mrs. Ida Joyce, Mrs. Beulah Martin, Mrs. Dora Hancock, Mrs. Molly Nandred, Mrs. Viola Mahoney, of Desdemona.

Included in the talk made by Mrs. Sappington, mention was made of the Woodman Circle home at Sherman, of which the organization is proud. The local group was highly complimented by the group of visitors for the remarkable work now in progress and other features already having been completed.

Mrs. Sappington, a frequent visitor, recognized for her musical ability as a pianist, favored the hour with a carefully chosen piano number.

The orchid side is still in the lead in the attendance contest opened a short time ago. This part of the spring program will continue through another three weeks.

The penny prizes were furnished by Mrs. Sexton and Mrs. Gray and were won by Mrs. Cash and Mrs. Reynolds.

Eighteen members, 12 visitors and four juniors composed the assembly group.

An outstanding feature gained attention in that all officers filled their respective offices, with the exception of one, who was out of town.

Four other officers, entitled to proficiency certificates are Mrs. Pauline Frye, assistant attendant; Mrs. Frances Sexton, captain; Mrs. Dora Williams, third auditor, and Mrs. Edna Williams, junior supervisor.

The entire community is extended an invitation to be present for this revival.

College Has 150 Mail Courses
By United Press
IOWA CITY, Ia.—One hundred and fifty-one correspondence courses varying in subject matter from the business management of a country newspaper to a study of ancient Hebrew, are offered by the University of Iowa, a report by Bruce Mahan, director of the university's extension division, shows.

Students are enrolled in the division from all parts of the world, Mahan said. The courses have been specially beneficial to teachers in public and private schools. Many have improved their technique and standing to such an extent that their state certificates were raised, allowing them increased salaries, Mahan said.

The university pays the postage for mailing the lessons to the student, who in turn bears the expense of mailing his work back.

Among courses offered are: How to know ferns, inorganic chemistry, labor problems, educational psychology, essay writing, short story writing, literary criticism, Greek, German, Spanish, European, United States and Iowa history, news reporting, principles of advertising, magazine writing, differential calculus, introduction to philosophy, criminology, the American race problem, and public speaking.
