JUST FOR FUN — The serious business of fire fighting is being practiced "for fun" by Snyder firemen as they prepare to compete in "pumper races" scheduled in Abilene. The race entails removing the fire hose from the truck and hooking it up to water supplies, as illustrated by Jack Callaway here. ## Bingo absentee at zero

A called election to legalize bingo games in Hermleigh's Voting Pct. 13 has failed to draw any absentee votes since balloting began last Monday.

The election is set for Aug. 9. The county will bear the cost for it. Absentee balloting will continue through Aug. 5.

Billy Haynes approached county commissioners on May 27 to request the special election. He presented a petition bearing 70 signatures of qualified voters at that time. On June 2, all but three of the names were certified by officials with the County Clerk's Office.

Should the measure be accepted by Hermleigh residents, only a charitable organization — as defined by the Internal Revenue Service — can benefit from the proceeds. The games can be sponsored through a non-profit organization that has been granted tax-exempt status for

Water officials eye clams, chemicals

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

A study approved last week by the Colorado River Municipal Water District (CRMWD) is expected to help direct City of Snyder officials on a course of action regarding what they call "two separate problems confronting the city."

In simple terms, one problem is chemical and the other is animal and the city would like to know if the first is caused by the second.

The one involving chemical levels is a nagging water compliance problem which the Texas Dept. of Health has now directed them to address — trihalomethane levels in the water.

The second involves a noted increase in a creature called the Asian Clam, whose shells are being counted in increasing numbers in water brought into the city water treatment plant.

The two problems may or may not be related, a fact which the CRMWD study is expected to pinpoint.

At a meeting last week, the CRMWD board approved a study of the water intake structure at Lake J.B. Thomas which draws water from the lake for use in Snyder.

Snyder's intake is currently located some 6 ft. from the lake's bottom. The CRMWD study will address first the "cost effectiveness" of converting this to a "multi-draw down intake," one which would allow water to be siphoned at different lake levels.

City officials say they believe the current low intake level is adding to the number of Asian Clams being drawn into the system.

There is also a theory — as yet unproved — that the presense of the animal matter associated with the clams is increasing the chemical levels of trihalomethanes in the water.

Other purposes of the CRMWD study, as outlined by District Manager O.H. Ivie, is to determinie if constructing a multi-draw intake would "eliminate the problem of trihalomethanes and in any way improve or eliminate

'Copter lease bid to court

Representatives with Travland Helicopters International will present bid proposals Monday to commissioners to lease the airport terminal.

Court members are due to open sealed bids at 11 a.m. during their regular weekly session.

On June 23, Lewis Travland requested permission to lease the building at Winston Field in order to begin a helicopter sales business here. At that time, he noted that he had been flying into the local facility since 1963. He added, "It offers a good approach without flying too low over residential areas."

In addition to helicopter sales, the company will provide rental service and limited training.

In other action, representatives of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and the American Junior Rodeo Association (AJRA) will discuss the upcoming AJRA Rodeo.

Commissioners also expect to discuss the county budget.

Mandated test for entering freshmen 'in place' at WTC

Western Texas College officials say they have no quarrel with a recent recommendation generated by the special study committee organized to scrutinize Texas' public colleges and universities.

In fact, notes WTC President Dr. Harry Krenek, the local college is already doing it.

Krenek was referring to a recommendation that state colleges be required to adopt a basic reading, writing and math test for incoming freshman.

This in response to a report from the Texas College Coordinating Board that almost one-third of students entering Texas colleges cannot pass a test on material that should have been mastered in the 10th grade.

"We're doing just exactly what they're saying we should do," Krenek noted.

At WTC, entering freshman are asked to take — not absolutely required, Krenek noted — a standardized test for reading, writing and math skills during Freshman Success seminars held on campus.

Those identified as lacking in necessary skills in these areas are then directed toward "remedial" or "developmental" classes offered through the college.

These same classes also caused a stir in educational circles last fall when community colleges were criticized for offering college credit toward graduation for them.

This credit has since been dropped at WTC.

Locally, it is recommended every fulltime student take them. While they are not absolutely required, Krenek said there has been no problem convincing students to take the tests.

"I think most students realize

Planning updated on event honoring Mize

Tickets for the Aug. 21 Roger Mize Day will go on sale this week at various locations in the city.

The event's steering committee met Friday afternoon to be updated on plans for the day which will feature honors for the long-time Snyder banker and civic leader.

A delegation of state officials–including Gov. Mark White and Sen. Ray Farabee–have announced that they will be present at the event which will be held as a joint civic club luncheon at the Scurry County Coliseum.

In addition to White and Farabee, there has been tentative indications that U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen--a long-time friend of Mize--will also be on hand.

Following the luncheon, there will be a reception held on the campus of Western Texas College.

Tickets are priced at $6 and will be on sale beginning Aug. 4 — a Monday — at the chamber of commerce, city hall, Line and Line Oil Co., The Shack, West Texas State Bank, American State Bank, K-Bob's and the Senior Citizens Center.

Jack Denman, a member of the steering committee, said the purpose of the occasion is to honor Mize for his many years of efforts in the betterment of Snyder and Scurry County.

Snyder Mayor Rod Waller has declared Aug. 21 Roger Mize Day. In addition, Company E of the Texas Rangers will present Mize with an honorary Texas Ranger designation. Mize has

When a woman passes age 39, men have a problem. Women don't like to be reminded of birthdays, but men can be in real trouble if they happen to forget.

Jerry Baird, director of continuing education at Western Texas College, has a good memory when it comes to important dates such as his wife's birthday.

Mickey Baird is director of student activities at WTC, and husband Jerry had promised her an evening on the town in observance of her birthday last week. Jerry won't reveal Mickey's exact age, but it's between 44 and 46.

Jerry called home the afternoon of the big event and reminded her to dress up and be ready when he got home. As instructed, Mickey had fixed her hair, put on her best dress and topped if off with just a scent of Jerry's favorite perfume.

Driving down College Avenue, Jerry turned into McDonald's. Thinking Jerry was just putting her on, Mickey objected playfully. She realized he was serious when he parked the car and went around to open her door.

Mickey reminded him a hamburger wasn't exactly what she had in mind. Inside, the birthday girl was greeted by a host of family friends--all who had been invited to the McDonald birthday party by Jerry.

McDonald birthday parties are generally geared for the younger set, but Mickey and friends enjoyed the balloons, party favors and games provided.

Next year, says Mickey, it's okay if Jerry happens to forget her birthday.

---

Baird's situation reminds us of a fellow who went into the bookstore to get an autographed copy of the writer's latest book.

"My wife likes your stuff," he told the author. "I thought I'd give her this autographed copy as a surprise birthday present."

"A surprise?" the writer asked.

"I'll say," said the husband. "She's expecting a fur coat."

Ask Us

Q. — Why doesn't Snyder bring pro wrestling to Scurry County?

A. — The same question was asked some two years ago. The answer at that time was that area wrestling promoters have booked matches in the coliseum, and these efforts haven't proved financially successful. Such ventures are private business operations which don't involve either the city or county.

In Brief

To deny visas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is considering denying visas to white South African officials and taking other actions in concert with the European allies, as the Reagan administration continues pondering steps to take against Pretoria.

"This is a critical point in time, and it is important for us to meet and consult with allies on the issues that face southern Africa," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Friday.

Bomb blast

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — Suspected Basque separatists attacked two barracks of the paramilitary Civil Guard today with anti-tank rockets and a bomb. One guard was killed and two injured, one seriously, police said.

No group claimed responsibility, but police blamed both attacks on ETA, a group that seeks independence from Spain for the three-province northern Basque country.

Assailants fired an anti-tank rocket at a Civil Guard station in Aretxabaleta, 31 miles south of the Basque city of San Sebastian, at 6:40 a.m., police said. No one was injured.

Staff stumped

DALLAS (AP) — The staff of the National Transportation Safety Board will issue a report next week saying the crash of singer Ricky Nelson's airplane destroyed too much of the aircraft to pinpoint a single source of a fire aboard the plane, according to a Dallas television station.

Nelson, the singer's girlfriend and five band members died when Nelson's two-engine DC-3 crashed near DeKalb in northeastern Texas while on a flight to Dallas, where they were to peform in a New Year's Eve concert.

Bridge block could create over 180,000 plant layoffs

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A customs broker predicted layoffs within days among 180,000 workers in plants across the border in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, unless trucks are able to cross over soon to deliver U.S. electronics components.

The Bridge of the Americas linking the two cities has been blocked since Thursday by thousands of Mexican political activists protesting alleged election fraud in Mexico.

The bridge occupation put a halt to commercial truck traffic. A plan by U.S. Customs officials to route the trucks to two other bridges failed because Mexican customs officials didn't issue exit permits.

"The Mexican customs officials said they wouldn't give us our export papers until this bridge is freed," said Jose Rios, a trucker for a Tucson, Ariz. company. "The sale of the load I was supposed to bring (to Tucson) will be lost because we can't deliver on time."

About 700 loaded trucks and another 400 empty ones pass through the bridge each day, said Nicholas Goldstein, U.S. Customs service supervisory inspector for cargo in El Paso.

Mike Miles, a customs broker, predicted layoffs among Juarez workers if something isn't done soon.

"Some of these wire harnesses in Juarez need to be in Detroit by this afternoon or tomorrow or Monday at the latest," Miles said Friday. "If not, it will shut down American jobs."

Most of the Juarez plants assemble electronic boards and other goods for U.S. companies. The U.S. parent company only pays duty on the value of the Mexican labor — not the American components — when the finished assembly is shipped back to the United States.

Hundreds cry over statue

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Applause and tears greeted the arrival at a San Antonio church of the statue of the Virgen de San Juan de Los Lagos, revered as a symbol of miracles for more than three centuries.

About 300 people gathered at the San Juan de Los Lagos Catholic Church Friday night when Father Hugo Orosco Santoyo of Jalisco, Mexico, arrived with the 350-year-old replica.

The original statue remains on constant display in the shrine in San Juan de los Lagos, Mexico, where a young girl killed in a circus accident was said to have been brought back to life in 1623 when the statue was placed upon her.

Father Hugo van den Bussche, pastor of the West Side church, said he expects about 150,000 people to visit the statue during its 10-day stay in San Antonio.

Tentative accord could end strike

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators have tentatively agreed on a three-year contract for 7,000 municipal employees whose 10-day-old strike has left tons of garbage uncollected and forced 200,000 bus riders to find other transportation.

The agreement late Friday came hours after a state mediator ordered both sides to resume talks that had been abruptly broken off earlier in the day.

"We've hammered out a tentative agreement which moves AFSCME members forward on important wage and contract language provisions," James Glass, president of Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said today.

The last bargaining session started at 8 p.m. Friday when mediator Charles Jamerson called both sides together for the day's second round of talks.

About 3½ hours later, chief city negotiator Roger Cheek and his AFSCME counterpart, Al Garrett, announced the agreement but said its terms wouldn't be revealed until later.

"We're going to keep it closed until our members are acquainted with the specifics before we go public," Garrett said.

Asked if he was pleased with the agreement, Cheek said, "If it gets ratified, I'll be satisfied."

Garrett said he didn't know when the strikers would return to work. Both sides were to meet today to work out further details.

The talks this week took place under an order by Wayne County Circuit Judge Sharon Tevis Finch, who had refused to rule immediately on the city's request for a back-to-work order.

Scottish chemist Charles MacIntosh gained immortality by lending his name to waterproof coats he made by pressing two rubber-coated fabrics together.

EL PASO — What would prompt someone to set a fire that ultimately killed six people?

Investigators believe revenge is a likely motive in the tragic arson at El Paso's Alexandria Apartments in September, 1982.

Two brothers, Omar and Humberto Vasquez, have each been indicted on six counts of capital murder and arson. This week, $1,000 is being offered by the Governor's Office for information leading to the capture of each of the brothers.

According to arson investigators, the Vasquez brothers had been living at the Alexandria Apartments until their eviction in early 1982. They reportedly swore they would get even with the apartment manager.

Around 11 p.m. on Sept. 24, 1982, a raging fire engulfed the apartments. Despite the efforts of the other tenants and some passerby, three apartment residents died at the scene and three more died at a local hospital. The victims ranged in age from five to 68 years old.

Investigators say witnesses placed the Vasquez brothers at the scene.

Gasoline apparently was spread from the apartment manager's door, down a hallway, down some steps to the exterior of the building. The fire was started outside the building, investigators reported.

Omar Adrian Vasquez is 24 years of age, 5-5, 145 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. Huberto Vasquez is about 21 years old, 5-5, 150 pounds, with dark brown hair and brown eyes.

Anyone who might have information on the whereabouts of the Vasquez brothers is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative program between the Department of Public Safety and Texas Crime Stoppers.

West Texas cities seek prisoners

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — West Texas cities, seeking to bring in income by holding immigration prisoners for the government, would have plenty of business unless Congress cuts funds, a federal official said Friday.

Competition to house illegal aliens prompted one court fight between the city of Marfa and Presidio County. Marfa won, with a district judge ruling Friday that Presidio County officials' July meetings with Detention Systems Inc. of Houston violated the Texas Open Meetings Act.

Other governments vying for the federal prisoner business include Brewster County and Alpine. In Reagan County, construction is expected to begin next month on a $3.5 million, 219-bed detention facility.

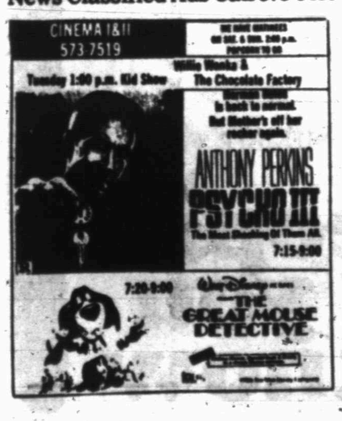

There are enough prisoners to fill the West Texas facilities but the detention center builders could run into problems because of possible federal budget cuts cutting funds available for the service, said U.S. Marshal Bill Jonas.

"The only vacant jail beds I know of anywhere are at Alcatraz and that (prison) is being used a tourist attraction," Jonas said.

The court fight stemmed from a suit brought by Marfa Mayor Jane Shurley, charging that Presidio County official's actions obstructed the city of Marfa's efforts to build a similar facility.

Ms. Shurley said her city now can participate in the bidding project. The contract with Detention Systems Inc. called for construction of a 200-bed facility to house low-risk prisoners, employing as many as 35 people.

Responds to Soviets...

Reagan offers to delay 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is seeking Soviet agreement for deployment of a hypothetical "Star Wars" missile defense system within the next decade, administration sources say.

The White House announced that Reagan "responded to recent Soviet arms control proposals in a private letter to General Secretary (Mikhail) Gorbachev" on Friday.

A brief written statement provided no details of the latest offer, but said the United States remains committed to seeking significant reductions in offensive nuclear weapons.

In its only reference to the Strategic Defense Initiative, as the Star Wars program is formally known, the statement said, "We look upon the energetic research effort of our government toward finding a defense against these weapons of mass destruction to be an essential part of the task of reducing the effectiveness and the very need for these offensive weapons."

Administration sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan proposed to delay deployment of a nuclear weapons defense system for five to seven years in exchange for an agreement that such a system could be deployed by either or both superpowers after an agreed-upon date.

The president's letter was sent in reply to a June 23 letter from Gorbachev outlining a new Soviet arms plan that Reagan said could open the way to a breakthrough in the long-stalled Geneva arms talks.

Administration officials and scientists have said the SDI program is not expected to produce any workable weapons for several years, if ever. It was not clear, therefore, what the Soviets, who have strenuously opposed the U.S. research program, would gain by agreeing to a delay.

The program envisions the use of futuristic technology, perhaps including super-powerful laser and particle beams, to shoot down incoming enemy missiles before they reach their targets.

Development of any nationwide defense system by either side now is prohibited by the 1972 Antiballistic Missile Treaty. However, the United States has suggested it may unilaterally reinterpret certain provisions of the agreement to permit it to go forward with the SDI program or break out of the treaty altogether, which it can do by giving six months' notice of its intentions.

The New York Times reported Friday that a draft of Reagan's response offered the Soviets a choice of adhering to the existing ABM treaty — with the implicit threat that the United States might withdraw from it at any time — or agreeing to deployment of a defensive system as early as 1993.

One administration source, while refusing to confirm any date, sought to portray the president's response as an offer to delay deployment until the early 1990s, while conceding there are practically no prospects of building an SDI system before that.

An unidentified official quoted in the Times story pointed out, "This is a bargaining process, as anyone who reads the letter can tell, and the president is laying down his first card."

Reagan, speaking to a group of student leaders Friday before leaving the White House for a weekend at Camp David, his Maryland mountaintop retreat, said he "would never let (SDI) become a bargaining chip in the sense of that if they would do something we'd give it up and not go forward."

But he added, "There are a lot of details that, at the moment, with negotiations to come and so forth, that I don't feel free to say."

In a related development, the government said Secretary of State George Shultz will meet Monday at the State Department with Aleksandr Bessmertnykh, the Soviet foreign ministry official in charge of relations with the United States.

The discussions will focus on preparations that may lead to a summit meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev.

Avoid hospitals

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a new movement in medical treatment that could keep you out of the hospital and save you money if you become ill.

Alternative health-care facilities — diagnostic centers, ambulatory surgery centers and walk-in emergency centers — are taking over many of the medical tasks that once required a hospital stay.

Is the care any good? Sometimes, it's even better, says Family Circle magazine. A well run diagnostic center provides an efficient, low-stress environment in which to have tests done. It's less costly than hospitalization and is usually covered by medical insurance.

Corps volunteer relates way of life

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Carol Sahm made some serious sacrifices to serve in Honduras on the Peace Corps, but she says she would do it all again.

"I wouldn't give it up for anything," she said Friday as she helped prepare for a national conference of former volunteers for the Peace Corps, now in its 25th year.

More than 200 former volunteers were expected to attend the annual meeting of the National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers.

The Peace Corps began its work in 1961 at the suggestion of President John Kennedy, who first proposed it while on the campaign trail a year earlier.

Since then, more than 120,000 Americans have served in undeveloped nations in a quest for technical and cultural exchange.

For Ms. Sahm, 33, who spent two years teaching hearing-impaired children in Honduras from 1984 to 1986, her service has meant putting on hold her dreams of a career in nutrition and of having a family.

Now, she works as a sales clerk for a clothing store in San Antonio, where she grew up. And she hopes to find a job soon in her chosen field.

Living in Tegucigalpa, the capital city of Honduras, stretched her to the limits, she said.

"You were always learning something. Every day was something new. It was really a challenge to live. Here, it's so easy," she said.

The experience, she said, taught her more patience with life's difficulties.

"If my car breaks down, I take a bus. It's not so important for me to have the most beautiful clothes. And my patience with people who get upset about those things is more limited," she said.

Ms. Sahm first applied for a Peace Corps position in 1975, but she said it was for all the wrong reasons.

"I wanted to travel. I wanted to know what countries were available," she said, adding she was turned down.

A few years later she applied again and was assigned to Honduras, a country she had to look up on a map.

The political and military turmoil in that Central American nation had not yet erupted, but did so while Ms. Sahm was there. The effects on her and her work was minimal.

In the first three months in Honduras, she lived with a native family that spoke no English. She was forced to learn the language quickly.

"You leave all your friends and family, your whole emotional support system in the United States," she said.

"You're forced to make friends fast. It's really lonely if you don't make those friends," she said.

Because she was light-skinned and a blonde, Ms. Sahm said she felt like she was in a fish bowl.

"I had longer blonde hair and I cut if off because people just passing you on the street would stop and try to run their hands through my hair," she said.

The Hondurans, she said, view Americans as rich. American women, she said, are perceived as beautiful, well-dressed and somewhat promiscuous.

"You get to see the United States through different eyes," she said. "I didn't know the United States had a culture since I had grown up here."

Ms. Sahm was able to see firsthand a cultural exchange that is a key goal of the Peace Corps.

The Honduran people she met, she said, "learned that not all women in the United States are like they are in the movies."

Also among the Peace Corps objectives is a technical exchange. Ms. Sahm helped write a book that for the first time documented the Honduran sign language for the deaf.

The project was not finished when she left. Another volunteer took over.

"You're not going to change things overnight. It's a real slow process," she said.

We would like to express our appreciation to the many supporters of our Scurry County Rodeo:

Police kill bus commando following hour-long ordeal

CARTHAGE, Texas (AP) — A 19-year-old man claiming he had a bomb commandeered a bus and took a woman hostage before he was shot in the head by a police sharpshooter, authorities said.

Investigators were still without a motive Saturday as to the cause of the Friday ordeal in which the suspect, Billy Wayne Reid of Meridian, Miss., was shot and killed by police.

His purported bomb turned out to be books, photographs and a map of Vietnam.

None of the half dozen Trailways Bus passengers in this far East Texas town was injured, including a Houston woman who was handcuffed to the suspect's belt when he was shot, police said.

Reid was pronounced dead at Panola General Hospital after he was shot about noon Friday, ending an hour-long ordeal that began with a cab ride in Louisiana, said Carthage assistant police chief Duane Baushke.

Baushke knew of no motive for Reid's action. He said officers could find no previous criminal record.

According to police, Reid commandeered a taxicab in Shreveport or Bossier City, La., shortly after 11 a.m. Friday. After traveling into Texas, he released the cab driver unharmed near Panola, about 15 miles east of here, Baushke said.

Reid then drove to Carthage and was spotted by local police at the Trailways Bus station after the cab driver reported the theft of his car.

Dressed in camouflage pants and a T-shirt, Reid paid $21.60 for a ticket and boarded the Houston-bound bus, said Betty Smith, a Trailways ticket agent.

Ronald Robertson, a bus passenger from Judsonian, Ark., said the first indication anything was wrong was when a police officer boarded the bus and asked Reid to get off.

"(Reid) got on the bus, went to the back and sat down. The next thing I knew he had a gun out," Robertson said.

Baushke said Reid pulled a .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol when he saw officers approaching the bus.

"I don't think he intended the hijacking until he saw the officers there," Baushke said.

The suspect released all the bus passengers except Rita Brady, 42, of Houston, whom he handcuffed to his belt. He told police he had a bomb in the trunk of the taxi with a timing device set to detonate the explosive at 12:19 p.m., Baushke said.

The officers convinced Reid to leave the bus and either defuse the bomb or reset the timer. He was shot by a Carthage police officer from a parking lot across the street as he bent over the taxi's trunk with Ms. Brady still handcuffed to his belt, Baushke said.

Ms. Brady was unharmed.

"He seemed pretty calm" throughout the incident, Baushke said of the suspect. But "it was a consensus of the officers that there was a pretty good possibility that there was, in fact, a bomb in there. We did not want him to leave the area with a bomb.

"He kept the gun to (the hostage's) head most of the time."

Government reports Marcos stashed millions in overseas bank accounts

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Ousted president Ferdinand E. Marcos and his wife, Imelda, deposited at least $229 million in overseas bank accounts during his 20-year rule even though their official income was less than $500,000 during the same period, government investigators say.

The figures were contained in documents filed Friday by government attorneys with the Presidential Commission for Good Government which is preparing a graft case against Marcos and his associates.

Marcos, 68, went into exile in Hawaii when his government fell to rebels backing Corazon Aquino Feb. 26.

Mrs. Aquino's government claims the Marcoses plundered the country of up to $10 billion.

"In the course of his (Marcos') 20-year reign, there was no let-up in the opening of countless foreign exchange accounts, trusts, foundations abroad," the solicitor general's office said in a statement filed with the commission.

The panel was created by Mrs. Aquino to recover the money Marcos and his associates allegedly stole from public coffers and to prepare cases against them.

Assistant Solicitor General Eduardo G. Montenegro on Friday presented to the commission a second batch of documents as evidence in the case.

The panel was to have begun holding preliminary hearings last week, but Montenegro and attorneys representing about 20 Marcos associates asked for a postponement until Sept. 1, saying they needed more time.

"The bank accounts and foundations are so many," Montenegro said in a telephone interview. "That's why the government is having such a hard time determining how much money is involved or where the money is now."

"Even Marcos, especially if age is catching up with him, may not know where he has hidden all his money," Montenegro added.

Documents presented to the commission earlier this month showed that the Marcoses earned less than $500,000 in government salaries during the last 20 years. They listed no other source of income.

The solicitor general's office said Friday that the $229.5 million mentioned in the documents "can in no way be reconciled . .. with the paltry salary income of Marcos and or Imelda for all the years each or both held office."

According to the documents, Marcos deposited $215,000 in an account at Chase Manhattan Bank in New York in 1967, his second year in office. In 1968, he had receipts for $950,000 in four accounts at the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich.

Two of the Swiss accounts were in Marcos' name. The third was also in his name but assigned the pseudonym "William Saunders," and the fourth was under the name of "Jane Ryan," the alias assigned to Mrs. Marcos.

In 1970, Marcos created the Sandy Foundation and transferred the four Swiss accounts there, the documents show. By 1980, the accounts were worth $25.9 million.

According to the documents, Marcos told trustees that when he or Mrs. Marcos "would wish to make withdrawals, we will send you a cable ... 'Happy Birthday' ... That you will then cause your Hong Kong representative ... to visit us personally in Manila" and that he "may contact us through Col. Fabian C. Ver."

Ver, who was Marcos' armed forces chief, fled to Hawaii with the former ruler.

Synthetic rubber was invented during World War II to replace the natural rubber supply that had been cut off by the Japanese. Seven tire companies cooperated with the federal government in building a synthetic rubber factory in Baton Rouge, La.

Sen. East blamed doc

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wheelchair-bound Sen. John East killed himself last month after writing a note criticizing his doctor and Bethesda Naval Hospital for not diagnosing a disease that he said diminished his intellectual abilities, a published report says.

The North Carolina Republican, who committed suicide June 29, wrote, "Dr. Cary and Bethesda Hospital failed to diagnose my hypothyroidism (as they should have.) They ruined my health," according to five people who saw the note quoted in today's editions of The Washington Post.

Dr. Freeman H. Cary, a rear admiral in the Navy reserves and the attending physician of Congress, was one of the doctors who treated East for the thyroid disease that was diagnosed in April 1985.

East also suffered from polio and had been in a wheelchair since before attending law school.

The newspaper did not identify the five people who saw the letter, which East left near his body in the carbon-monoxide-filled garage of his home in Greenville, N.C.

The Post report was confirmed by sources who spoke on condition of anonymity earlier this week and told The Associated Press that they understood from people who had seen the note that it blamed Cary and the hospital in the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md.

There was no answer at Cary's home Friday night. A man who answered the phone at the home of his aide Robert F. Moran said Moran was out of town.

Farm hotline flooded with calls

The Associated Press

South Carolinians were urged to pray for rain and one Georgia town plans to shut off its water system part-time this weekend as officials seek relief from the deadly drought that's blamed for more than $1.6 billion in farm losses.

North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin on Friday asked that his whole state be declared a drought disaster area, joining parts of three others already on the list, and eight Southeastern senators urged the government to speed up aid.

Rain fell in several Southern states Friday and more was predicted for today, but forecasters said it was too little and too late to be of any benefit to farmers, who continue receiving tons of donated hay.

And hundreds of calls seeking and offering help for farmers flooded a U.S. Department of Agriculture hotline on its first day of operation.

In Georgia, the city of Flovilla planned to turn off its water system from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. today and Sunday to conserve the precious resource, said City Clerk Virginia Williams. Barnesville reopened two wells closed for 40 years.

Eight U.S. senators, meanwhile, urged Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng to act quickly on applications for federal disaster aid from the region.

Their request came as Martin asked Washington to declare North Carolina a disaster area to make the state eligible for emergency loans and grants.

Parts of South Carolina, Virginia and Florida have been declared disaster areas, and a dozen Tennessee counties have asked for federal aid.

South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley urged churches and synagogues to pray for rain this weekend.

"Our farmers are watching their farms, and in many instances their way of life, wither away with the lack of rain and searing heat," Riley said. "Many of us have learned just how precious our state's water supply really is."

Some rain fell Friday on parched North Carolina, and the National Weather Service predicted more today across the Tennessee Valley and the Carolinas to the central Gulf Coast and Florida.

"Anything we get is certainly not going to hurt anything. It's going to be helpful. This is the kind of typical summer weather that we needed to see all summer long — afternoon and evening showers," said forecaster Mike Sabones in Raleigh, N.C. "But still, we're chipping away at the problem."

Tons of hay moved into the South by truck and plane, sent by farmers in Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Vermont and Wisconsin, to substitute for cattle fodder devastated by the heat and drought.

One bale had a special meaning for Henry Sewell, of Newnan, Ga.

"In one of the bales of hay," Sewell said, "was a card off of a feed sack that said 'Fellow farmers. Hope this helps. From the McPhersons of Lavalle, Wisc.'

"I say, 'God bless you and thank you.' I just don't know what words to use. It's just like something dropping out of the sky."

Former honky tonk converted to church

By KEN PELLIS
Lufkin Daily News

LUFKIN, Texas (AP)—Bar taps that once dispensed beer for thirsty country music fans will offer drinks called "Living Water" and "Fruit of the Spirit" when conversion of an ex-honky tonk near hear is complete.

A charismatic church, the Family Worship and Teaching Center, started holding services last month at the Texas Stage building on U.S. 59 south of Lufkin, once a showcase for top country entertainers such as Ronnie Milsap and Je[illegible] Lee Lewis.

Pastor V.E. "Buddy" Leach said the 150-member congregation leases the building at present but plans to meet the $1.28 million selling price of a Conroe corporation which owns the building and 10½ acre tract.

"It's come a long way," says the 39-year-old Leach. "As someone said the other day: from the badland to the holyland."

In his view, the demise of the Texas Stage and occupation by the non-denominational group were divinely directed.

"As a club, I'm sure it did not make it because of the prayers of people in the area who asked to close the bar down and turn it into a work that is a help and not a hindrance.

"In a bar is where many kinds of sin are generated, and people are tempted beyond morality into immorality."

Leach says he wasn't among those who unsuccessfully opposed the granting of a liquor license when the Texas Stage opened in 1982; but he "prayed" as an individual" against the business succeeding.

About a year and a half ago, the Texas Stage closed down.

Now, heaven's the limit for ambitious church members.

Plans call for a youth center — including a gameroom, reading center and music and video facilities — that is scheduled for completion in two months and will welcome area youth.

Other goals include a Sunday-morning television show, and baseball diamonds and tennis courts in back. The church recently invited bids for paving the rocky parking lot.

"One of the reasons we took (the building) is because it's so versatile," says Leach. "If you walk into a cathedral, it can only be used for one thing: that's a cathedral. If we want to, we can stack these chairs and the kids can skate on the floor."

Leach says his wife, Connie, saw the building's potential when they rode by it early this year.

"We passed this place, and my wife said, "Wouldn't that make a great place for a church and youth work?"

Leach said later he felt God asked him and his wife to go to the parking lot and pray. "As we prayed, we began to see the real potential for it, and God said, 'I'll direct you.'"

Leach adds that God spoke "spirit to spirit." "There's been only twice when I've heard God speak in an audible voice" — both at troubled times in his life, says the born-again pastor.

A newspaper advertisement in late April called together those willing "to spread the Gospel of the Kingdom to all men" and "to take the now abandoned Texas Stage on Highway 59 South for Jesus!" An original group of about 50 met at a building on Schuller Street.

According to Leach, an unexpected telephone call followed from a Monroe, La., acquaintance who did not know of the plans to occupy the Texas Stage building. Leach says the man, a retired tugboat captain, told him: "Buddy, I'm fixing to come into a large amount of money, and I've been praying, and God wants me to send you this much ($150,000)."

Leach expects the money to cover the 10 percent downpayment on the property, which is owned by Velma Inc. of Conroe, according to records of the Appraisal District.

Veteran director dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning director Vincente Minnelli, whose more than 34 motion pictures included such standards as "Brigadoon," "An American in Paris" and "Gigi," has died in his sleep at age 83.

Minnelli died Friday, hours after his daughter, singer Liza Minnelli, left following a two-day visit, his wife said.

Minnelli had just finished eating supper when he went to sleep and never woke up, said his wife, Lee.

Miss Minnelli, the director's daughter from his marriage to the late singer and actress Judy Garland, was with her father Thursday and Friday before leaving on a flight to Paris, Mrs. Minnelli said.

Minnelli had been in and out of Cedars Sinai Medical Center for the past year, suffering from pneumonia and emphysema, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise.

While he was hospitalized in April, Minnelli was awarded France's highest honor, membership in the Legion of Honor, for his contribution to French culture.

Minnelli, born in Chicago on Feb. 28, 1903, began in show business when he was 3 years old, performing with the Minnelli Brothers Dramatic and Tent Shows.

Convicted rapist released after winning state pardon

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Steve Fossum, convicted of a rape he says he didn't commit, says he knew the truth would come out someday and he could leave a Texas prison a free man.

Friday was that day.

After more than two years behind bars, Fossum, 25, of Mabel, Minn., tearfully was reunited with family and friends outside the front door of the Walls Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Fossum was pardoned Thursday by Gov. Mark White after getting a favorable recommendation from the state Board of Pardons and Paroles.

He had been imprisoned since May 1984 to serve a 12-year term for his second rape conviction.

"There aint' much to say right now," he said, embracing his teary-eyed mother. "It's been a long time — too long. I'm happy, scared, nervous."

"It's a real big day, real exciting," his mother, Delone Fossum, said. "It's been real tough. It's been an ordeal I hope no one else has to go through."

Ms. Fossum, another son, Roger, and some friends rented a limousine to take him the 90 miles to Houston, where he will remain until lawyers obtain a court order allowing him to return to Minnesota. He remains on probation for the initial conviction, a rape he also denies.

"I knew the truth would come out sometime," Fossum said. "It took a long time."

Odessa sees low prices

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A gasoline price war is under way in this West Texas city, one of the state's most economically battered from falling oil prices.

Two convenience store service stations dropped prices by almost a dime on Friday, luring a swarm of anxious buyers.

But the low prices offered little comfort to most residents of Odessa where a local bank closed just a week ago.

"As the gas prices go down, the unemployment rates go up," said Charles Perry, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

William Kent, president of Midland-based Kent Oil Co., said Friday he dropped gasoline costs at only one of his Kent Kwik Convenience Stores where he offered a gallon of regular leaded gasoline for 58.9 cents and a gallon of unleaded for 69.9 cents.

A spokesman at that outlet reported business tripled after the gas prices were lowered.

"We decided to lower the prices to try and stimulate a little business," Kent said. "We may be starting a gas war, but that was not our intention."

EZ-Mart, located on the same street as the Kent location, followed suit, pricing regular leaded at 59.9 cents and unleaded at 69.9 cents a gallon, said store manager Jan Welch.

Tom Carter, EZ-Mart's gasoline operations manager, declined to characterize the price changes as ammunition in a gas war. But, he said, "We just followed competition.

"The only reason we dropped it down so low was because Kent dropped it first. We had to lower our prices if we hoped to sell one drop of gasoline," he said.

Herbert Johnson of Johnson Brothers Oil Co., gasoline distributors, said it's "probably been 10 years" since Odessans have seen gasoline prices so low.

Perry said the prices may be signs of both a slow economy and the downward pressures from the crude oil prices.

The price war had other service station operators cringing.

"We sure the heck can't stay in competition with any of those stores because our distributor is selling it to us at such a high price," said Darla DeVore of DeVore's Exxon. "There's no way we can lower our prices to match theirs. There's just no way."

Congressmen score low on world events

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two members of Congress and Gov. Harry Hughes were among Senate candidates who took a five-question quiz on current events, but don't look for them at the top of the class.

Neither Rep. Michael Barnes nor Rep. Barbara Mikulski could identify the leader of the African National Congress, the South African opposition group, or name both the Israeli prime minister and his designated successor.

Democrats Barnes and Ms. Mikulski each got 1½ in the quiz, scores indicating they had one answer right and one answer almost right.

Hughes, also a Democrat, scored 2.

The quiz was given by WJZ-TV to the 17 candidates seeking to replace retiring Republican Sen. Charles McC. Mathias.

The top score went to Republican Linda Chavez, a former Reagan administration aide, who answered four correctly. The highest-scoring Democrat, with three correct, was Debra Freeman, a follower of extremist Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr.

The ABC affiliate interviewed the candidates over three days so none would have time to prepare. Their responses were broadcast Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The candidates were asked on the day of scheduled campaign interviews to participate in the quiz. Although some objected, all agreed to answer the questions.

The candidates also were given the chance to say on the air whether they believed the quiz was fair. Ms. Mikulski was the only candidate to protest, saying, "I don't think word game questions are really the criteria for what determines who's going to be a United States senator."

The station received more than two dozen telephone calls about the quiz from viewers, most of whom said they were alarmed by the candidates' inability to answer the questions, assistant news director Ross Mason said Friday.

The station got the idea for the quiz from a Boston affiliate, said Mason, who added, "We weren't trying to embarrass people.

"We thought it would be a good way to find out a little bit about what they knew of foreign affairs. We thought they were darn basic questions.

"A U.S. senator should have a pretty basic knowledge of what's going on in the world today."

On the question of who heads the African National Congress, the station counted as correct either jailed leader Nelson Mandela or exiled president Oliver Tambo.

Moslem kidnappers free American Roman Catholic priest in Lebanon

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — An American priest held nearly 19 months by Shiite Moslem extremists arrived in Damascus today a free man hours after being released by his captors in Lebanon, a high-ranking Syrian official said.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Rev. Lawrence Jenco "is already in Damascus safe and sound."

Moslem and Christian radio stations in Beirut said Jenco would fly from Damascus to the United States.

The 51-year-old Roman Catholic priest from Joliet, Ill., was kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut on Jan. 8, 1985. He was released hours after publication of a statement from his captors saying Jenco would be freed because of "'deteriorating health."

The statement did not elaborate. Jenco's family has said he has a heart problem.

Lebanese police said a police patrol found "Father Jenco free and alive at Qaroun area in the western Bekaa at 10 a.m." Jenco arrived at the Syrian army intelligence command in the Bekaa town of Anjar, 31 miles east of Beirut, at about 12:30 p.m., police said.

The Islamic Jihad organization, a Shiite Moslem group believed loyal to Iran, claimed it kidnapped Jenco and four other Americans. It freed a sixth American hostage, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, last Sept. 14.

The Beirut newspapers an-Nahar and as-Safir both published a picture showing Jenco from the waist up, staring into the camera. He wore a red T-shirt. His balding head and trimmed beard appeared grayer than in previous photographs released since his abduction.

The Islamic Jihad statement said Jenco's release would be its "last gesture."

"From then on the American government shall bear the full responsibility of the lives of the rest of the hostages," the statement said.

"There will be grave consequences unless our demands are met. We shall give Father Jenco a letter from the rest of the hostages to their families and the American people," the statement concluded.

Details on the group's demands are not known. An American hostage released by the Islamic Jihad 10 months ago has hinted that it wants the release of 17 comrades imprisoned in Kuwait for bombing the French and U.S. embassies there in December 1983.

Optimists and pessimists clash on economic future

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy is being jangled by so many new factors that forecasters are having more trouble than usual getting a peg on its direction.

While the majority outlook is for more of the same — slow growth — some respected economists have worked up plausible scenarios that range from a boom to a mild recession.

"It's the old story about economists: You lay them all end to end, they still point in different directions," said Robert Eggert of Sedona, Ariz., who surveys 52 economy-watchers for his Blue Chip Economic Indicators.

"The problem is, we've got a growing number of uncertainties in the economic climate we just haven't had before," Eggert said. "Econometric models work well when the variables are within historic ranges, but now there are such extremes."

Three examples: interest rates, oil prices and the value of the dollar have dropped by bigger percentages than ever before in the last couple of years.

Meanwhile, consumer debt burdens are at record levels while consumer prices are falling quarter to quarter for the first time since the 1950s.

"There's just a number of violent cross-currents," said Richard Hoey, chief economist of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

Most economists expect the nation's longest economic expansion to continue its sluggish ways. Blue Chip's average of 52 forecasts is for growth of 2.5 percent in 1986 and 3.3 percent in 1987 in the nation's inflation-adjusted gross national product, or GNP.

But the average conceals a disparity of opinions.

Among the pessimists is Robert Marks, president of Siff, Oakley & Marks Inc. economic consultants in New York. He predicts a mild recession beginning in the next month or two and lasting into early 1987.

Among the optimists is David Levine, chief economist of Sanford C. Bernstein & Co. He argues that the economy is poised for a "late-cycle boom." Levine believes the boom will start when growing demand for goods meets up with small inventories, stimulating production.

In other business news this past week:

—The Commerce Department reported a sharp slowdown, to a 1.1 percent annual rate, in the nation's inflation-adjusted growth in the output of goods and services.

—Consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in June, the steepest rise in seven months, mainly because of a brief spurt in the price of gasoline, electricity and natural gas, the Labor Department said.

—The sales pace of existing homes declined by 1.2 percent last month, according to the National Association of Realtors. The trade group blamed a slight increase in mortgage interest rates.

Mother saves child's life from techniques on show

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Sherman Hemsley may portray the obnoxious George Jefferson on the popular television show "The Jeffersons," but the Hollywood star proved to a San Antonio mother that he's really a sensitive guy.

Dorothy Acosta received a personal telephone call and an autographed picture from the actor after he learned from The San Antonio Light that Acosta had saved her infant daughter's life using cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques demonstrated on an episode of the show.

Mrs. Acosta used CPR to revive her 14-month-old daughter Crystal, who was pulled unconscious from a backyard wading pool July 9.

"I'm going to save it (the picture) for Crystal," Mrs. Acosta said Friday just minutes after receiving the autographed photo, which she immediately hung on her living room wall.

"Without that show she wouldn't be here."

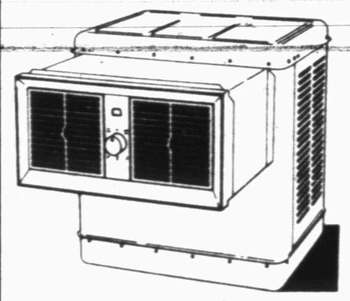

Mrs. Acosta and her husband, Guy Acosta, were hanging clothes in their backyard when they saw the child lying face down in the pool under 8 inches of water.

Guy Acosta carried Crystal inside and called an ambulance. But Crystal was already unconscious. Out of desperation Mrs. Acosta tried performing the CPR movements she saw Hemsley do on television a couple of nights earlier.

"I had to try," she said. "I didn't want to let her go — not so soon. But if she would have died, at least I could have said I tried."

During the television program, Hemsley, a black, performs CPR on a Ku Klux Klan member against his wishes.

FLYING CATCH – Jill Roemisch, playing for Snyder's Division IV All-Star team, leaps high in the air to stab an errant pickoff attempt. Division IV lost its first two games but rallied to make Saturday's finals and earned a berth in next Thursday's national tournament at Monahans. (SDN Staff Photo)

Three Snyder teams advance to finals; reach national level

SWEETWATER – Snyder will send three of its four teams to the United Girl's Softball Association National Tournament in Monahans next week.

Snyder's Division I, II and IV teams were all playing for first place in the Area UGSA Tournament here Saturday. First and second place teams automatically advance to the national level. Snyder's Division III team, which had only two losses in five games, will finish in third place behind Merkel and Sweetwater.

"All of the teams representing Snyder just did a great job," beamed Snyder UGSA president Jerry Martin. "We're real proud of them."

Below is a wrapup of the action by division, including a schedule of Saturday's finals.

DIVISION I ALL-STARS

Snyder's Division I All-Stars were to begin a best-of-three series for first and second place beginning at 3:30 Saturday afternoon. At 8 Saturday morning, Colorado City and Sweetwater were to vie with the winner advancing to face Snyder.

The second of the best-of-three games was to start at 5:30 p.m. and a third game, if necessary, was set for 8 p.m.

Results for Snyder thus far:

Snyder 21, Coahoma 6: Getting hits for Snyder were Stephanie Hernandez a single; Jodi White, three singles and a triple; Amanda Davis, two singles and a double; Mandy Baker, a single and a double; Paige Gayle, a single; Lauri Allen, a single; Brooke Lowrance, two singles; Biancha Rocha, three singles; Amy Vaughn, a single; and Jamie Franks, a single. Davis was the winning pitcher.

Snyder 20, Lake View 15: Getting hits for Snyder were Hernandez, a double; White, two singles and a double; Davis, a single and a double; Baker, two singles; Gayle, a single; Allen, two singles; Lowrance, three singles; Rocha, a single; Vaughn, two singles; and Franks, a single. Lowrance was the WP.

Sweetwater 21, Snyder 3: Hitting for Snyder were White, Davis, Gayle, Allen, and Rocha, a single apiece.

Snyder 15, Merkel 12: Hitting for Snyder were Hernandez, two singles; Jodi White, a single and a home run; Davis, a single; Gayle, a single; Allen two singles; Rocha, a single; Lowrance, a triple; Vaughn, a single; and Franks, two singles. The winning pitcher was Davis.

Snyder 14, Colorado City 4: Getting hits for Snyder were Davis, a single; Gayle, two singles; Allen, two singles; Lowrance, two singles; Rocha, two singles and a double; Vaughn, two singles; Stephanie Buchanan, a single; Allison Hester, a home run; and Franks, a single. Buchanan went the five-inning distance to pick up the win.

DIVISION II ALL-STARS

Snyder's All-Stars were to meet San Angelo for the championship in the first of a best-of-three series at 8 a.m. Saturday. Game Two of the series was set for 10 a.m. and a Game Three, if necessary, was slated for 2 p.m.

Results thus far include the following:

Snyder 27, Coahoma 12: Getting hits for Snyder were Rebecca Ramey, a single; Renee Matthews, three singles; Misti Watson, two singles, a triple and a home run; Angela Good, a single, a triple and a home run; Lee Ann Owens, two singles and a double; Karri Blackledge, a single; Angela Vaughan, a single; and Lisa Rodriquez, a single and a triple. Ramey took WP honors.

Lake View 11, Snyder 7: Getting hits for Snyder were Ramey, a single; Matthews, a single; Watson, two singles and a home run; Good, a single; Amy Ramirez, a single; Owens, a home run; Sherry Fisk, a single; and Angel Scarber, a single.

Snyder 24, Merkel 9: Hitting for Snyder were Ramey, two singles and a double; Matthews, a single, a double and a triple; Watson, two singles and a double; Good, three singles and a triple; Ramirez, three singles; Owens, a single; Blackledge, a single; Fisk, a single; Rodriquez, a single; Scarber, a single; and Vaughan, two singles. Watson was the winning pitcher.

Snyder 11, Colorado City 4: Getting hits for Snyder were Ramey, a single and a home run; Matthews, two singles; Watson, a single; Good, two singles; Ramirez, a single; Owens, a single, a double and a home run; Blackledge, a triple; and Scarber, a single. Ramey was the winning pitcher.

Snyder 25, Sweetwater 24 (8 innings): Hitting for Snyder were Ramey, two singles; Matthews, two singles and a double; Watson, two singles and a double; Good, three singles, a double and two home runs; Ramirez, three singles, a double and a home run; Owens, two singles; Lisa Rodriquez, two singles; Fisk, two singles; Tiffany Bly, two singles; and Scarber, two singles. Ramey was the winning pitcher.

DIVISION III ALL-STARS

No scores were available but Snyder won three games and lost two. Merkel and Sweetwater had only one loss apiece, however, and advanced to the championship series.

An 18-13 loss to Sweetwater on Friday evening knocked Snyder out of contention.

DIVISION IV ALL-STARS

After losing its first two games of the tournament, Snyder's All-Stars rallied to reach Saturday's championship series.

The All-Stars' opponent was still undetermined this morning.

LISTEN UP – Division II All-Star coach Bill Owens gives the team a pep talk during UGSA tournament play this week in Sweetwater. The Snyder girls were to play for the Division II championship Saturday, and have already qualified for the national tournament. (SDN Staff Photo)

Clemens helps Red Sox snap string

by The Associated Press

Rich Gedman says the Boston Red Sox can overcome adversity and losing streaks. Apparently they can - provided Roger Clemens is pitching.

Clemens, the top winner in the major leagues, pitched a two-hitter and Gedman hit a grand slam Friday night, leading the Red Sox past the California Angels 8-1.

Clemens, 17-2, has won 10 of his games following Boston losses. His latest victory ended a four-game losing streak, the Red Sox' longest of the season. Boston has won only three of its last 11 games, and Clemens has all three wins.

"The character of this team is, 'If we can work this out, we can win.' We have run into hard luck before. But a win like this can turn it all around," Gedman said.

Clemens gave up doubles to Reggie Jackson in the fifth inning and Jerry Narron in the seventh. He struck out seven and walked two in his seventh complete game.

In other American League action, Minnesota beat New York 9-5, Detroit trounced Kansas City 9-2, Oakland downed Toronto 6-5 in 10 innings, Baltimore defeated Chicago 6-2, Milwaukee beat Seattle 4-2 and Texas topped Cleveland 7-5.

Twins 9, Yankees 5

Gary Gaetti drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Kirby Puckett also homered as Minnesota ended New York's three-game winning streak.

Gaetti hit a three-run homer and Puckett connected for a two-run shot during the Twins' six-run second inning. The home runs were the 20th for each player.

Gaetti added a two-run homer in the seventh. Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield homered for the host Yankees.

Neal Heaton, 4-9, won for the first time in four decisions with Minnesota since being acquired June 20 in a trade with Cleveland.

Tigers 9, Royals 2

John Grubb homered and drove in four runs while Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish connected for consecutive homers, powering Detroit past Kansas City.

Rookie Eric King, 7-2, yielded one run on five hits in 6 2-3 innings as the Tigers won for the 11th time in 15 games.

A's 6, Blue Jays 5

Carney Lansford's leadoff home run in the bottom of the 10th inning carried Oakland past Toronto. Lansford connected for his 10th homer on an 0-1 pitch from Bill Caudill, 2-3, who had relieved to start the inning.

Orioles 6, White Sox 2

Fred Lynn's solo homer broke a sixth-inning tie and Rick Dempsey's solo shot sparked a four-run eighth that led Baltimore over Chicago.

Mike Boddicker, 13-5, gave up one run on six hits in seven innings. Don Aase finished up for his major league-leading 26th save.

Neil Allen, 7-2, who had pitched two straight shutouts, took the loss. The host Orioles ended his scoreless-inning streak at 21 2-3 with a run in the fourth.

Brewers 4, Mariners 2

Charlie Moore hit a two-run double and Milwaukee overcame its baserunning mistakes to win in Seattle.

The Brewers rapped 10 hits and drew four walks, but had five runners thrown out trying to take extra bases.

Ted Higuera, 12-7, struck out 10 in seven innings.

Rangers 7, Indians 5

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Pete Incaviglia's run-scoring single broke a seventh-inning tie and Larry Parrish drove in three runs Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 7-5.

The Indians, trailing 5-0 after five innings, tied it with one run in the sixth and four more in the seventh. But Texas scored twice in the seventh against Scott Bailes, 7-6.

Oddibe McDowell led off with a single and took third on a double by Scott Fletcher, his fourth hit of the game. After Pete O'Brien lined out, Ernie Camacho relieved Bailes and gave up Incaviglia's single. Parrish followed with his second sacrifice fly of the game.

Greg Harris, 4-8, the third Texas pitcher, got the victory with three innings of scoreless relief.

Astros winning streak ends

by The Associated Press

Houston's seven-game winning streak, which has given the Astros some breathing room in the National League West, was ended by a man with a bellyache.

Despite a battle with persistent stomach pains, Philadelphia's Charles Hudson beat Houston 4-2 Friday with six innings of five-hit ball. He only gave up one unearned run.

The Astros' lead in the West was trimmed to 2½ games as the San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh 7-3.

Before his last two starts, Hudson was 4-9 and was frequently being mentioned in the same sentence with Portland, the home of the Phillie' top minor-league club.

He now has had two straight effective starts. Stomach problems and all.

"Charles gave us six good innings, even though he had an upset stomach," said Phillies Manager John Felske. "He's keeping the ball down more and has been much more consistent in his last two games."

Hudson struck out three batters and walked two. Steve Bedrosian pitched the final two innings for his 13th save.

Mike Schmidt hit his 22nd homer for Philadelphia. He leads the National League with 74 RBI, and is now tied with Cincinnati's Dave Parker for the home run

Theismann gets his request; Redskins put him on waivers

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) - After a 12-year stint that featured nine winning seasons, two Super Bowls and five trips to the playoffs, Joe Theismann and the Washington Redskins are finally parting company.

The Redskins said Friday that Theismann had failed his physical and, since he refused to announce his retirement, they gave in to the veteran quarterback's desire to be put on waivers.

The announcement came eight months after Theismann broke his right leg while being sacked in a game against the New York Giants. While doctors said it would take him 18 months to work his leg back to normal and that he would likely never play again, Theismann vowed he would return to compete again this season.

It was not to be.

"He just couldn't physically play any more for us," Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. "He had the desire, but after awhile it became evident that it would be harder and harder for him to play. The odds were really against him."

Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke, in a three-page hand-delivered letter to Theismann, wrote that he would have preferred that the Notre Dame product announce his retirement rather than make Washington release him.

"But since you've cast your die for this waiver," Cooke wrote, "...I give in to your wish."

Cooke declared that the waiver "is the friendliest ever reached between an owner and a player."

By putting Theismann, 36, on the waived-failed physical list, Cooke is doing the quarterback a $65,000 favor. The veteran of two Pro Bowls will receive that amount from the National Football League for injury protection, and his medical bills will be paid by the league for one year.

The Detroit Lions did the same thing for Billy Sims and the Philadelphia Eagles did likewise for Wilbert Montgomery.

Theismann is expected to announce soon that he has accepted a job as an analyst with CBS-TV this fall.

In addition, Theismann has a $1.4 million insurance policy with Lloyd's of London to cover a career-ending injury. According to published reports, he must fail another physical in November, then take another examination in November 1987. If he flunks the second physical or passes and is not picked up by any other team, he can begin collecting on the policy he took out two years ago.

Theismann owned eight club records, but will be best remembered by Redskins' fans for his performance in 1982 and 1983 when he led Washington to consecutive Super Bowls.

Oilers still without Everett

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - The Houston Oilers and No. 1 draft pick Jim Everett of Purdue are $1.5 million apart in their contract negotiations, Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzeg said Friday.

Agent Marv Demoff and Everett, the third player selected in the 1986 NFL draft, are seeking a four-year contract totaling $3.6 million and the Oilers are offering about $2 million, Herzeg said.

"I think they have to come back to us with another proposal," Herzeg said. "They are asking for more than (Tony) Casillas and the top three picks have usually gone in a domino effect."

Casillas, a defensive lineman from Oklahoma, signed a four-year contract with the Atlanta Falcons for a reported $2 million. He was the second player chosen in the draft.

Buffalo made Auburn's Bo Jackson the draft's No. 1 selection, but the 1986 Heisman Trophy winner instead signed a baseball contract and currently is playing in the minor leagues.

Herzeg, trying to help first-year coach Jerry Glanville end five years of losing records, also has two unhappy starters and unsigned second- and third-round picks.

Drew Hill, who added a needed deep threat to the Oiler offense last season, wants to renegotiate his contract and starting left tackle Harvey Salem is demanding to be traded to a West Coast team.

Both are being fined $1,000 per day as camp holdouts and will continue to be fined until they show up and begin honoring their contracts, Herzeg said.

"Our point is not to be a stumbling block to Harvey," Herzeg said. "We've tried to make a fair market trade but obviously that hasn't happened.

"When a player tells a team there's no way he'll play for you in 1986, there's no way you can get fair market value because the other teams believe you can be exploited.

"The point is, we are not going to be exploited and if Harvey Salem must sit out the season, so be it."

Navarro JC announces mandatory drug testing

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) - Navarro College will begin mandatory drug testing of college athletes and some staff this fall.

"We plan to test everyone initially," said Dr. Kenneth Walker, college president, "and then test randomly afterward. If an athlete refuses testing, he gets suspended from the program."

The testing program follows the cocaine-induced deaths of two prominent athletes, University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, who was celebrating being drafted by the Boston Celtics, and Cleveland Bears defensive back and UCLA Rose Bowl MVP Don Rogers.

In a resolution passed by college trustees Thursday, the school said the use of drugs is particularly prevalent among athletes, justifying the singling out of only a portion of the college's students for testing.

Walker said coaches and other staffers in the athletic department, as well as staff involved in administering the tests and the college's senior administrative staff, will be tested.

"I will be the first volunteer," Walker told the Corsicana Daily Sun.

Bob McElroy, head football coach at Navarro College, voiced his support of the program.

"I'm in favor of testing," McElroy said. "I believe we have an obligation to our student athletes to set a positive example and to help them in their own lives.

"I believe most responsible citizens are concerned about this country's drug problems and so am I. I'm proud that Navarro College is taking the lead in this. I believe other schools will soon follow our example."

In the new scholarship agreement for athletes, a provision agreeing to drug testing must be signed by the student.

Walker also said he is developing a health education course on illegal drugs which will include information on where to go for help. The one-semester-credit course would be mandatory for all full-time Navarro College students, he said.

A student can currently be suspended for possession of either drugs or alcohol on campus.

Tentative plans for administering tests call for testing everyone at a practice early in the season without advance notice. Other tests would be conducted during the season. Each test will cost the school about $20 to $30.

Walker said the football association of junior colleges will have drug testing on the agenda at its December meeting.

"I have written letters to a number of junior colleges and several of them have called me about drug testing," Walker said. "The response from all of them has been very positive."

Clements to address coaches convention which opens Monday

HOUSTON (AP) - Coaches accustomed to hearing strategy described with X's and O's will discuss political moves and get a pep talk from former Gov. Bill Clements when the 54th Texas High School Coaches Association convention begins Monday.

The coaching organization, with 9,840 members, has mobilized support against Gov. Mark White, a strong proponent of the state's controversial no pass, no play statute.

Clements, seeking to unseat White, will address the coaches on Wednesday.

"I'm sure we're going to throw our support behind him (Clements)," THSCA Executive Director Donald Jay said.

The law bars students from extracurricular activities for six weeks if they are failing a course at the end of a six-week grading period.

"Gov. White says 77 percent of the people are in favor of no pass, no play," Jay said. "We say that 80 per cent are in favor of having a kid play if he's passing.

"The way the law is now, a kid could be passing the next week or the next day after he gets a failing six-weeks grade. But he's got to stay away for six weeks."

Retired Brownwood coach Gordon Wood has traveled the state speaking against the stringent provisions of the law.

"We're not opposed to students passing their grades, we've always had high standards in this state for that," Jay said. "It's the type of punishment we're against. In some cases we're punishing kids that end the term with a B average."

Incoming THSCA President Charlie Johnston of Childress will outline the association's Positive Action by School Supporters committee, formed to seek changes in no pass, no play.

The North-South All-Star basketball game will be played in Hofheinz Pavilion Wednesday night and the four-day convention ends Thursday night in the Astrodome with the All-Star football game.

Both games start at 7 p.m. CDT.

Bob Perry, with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in Houston, will address a session on drug detection at the high school level and give coaches advice on how they can assist troubled athletes.

Jay said the convention set a record for pre-registration by midweek and he anticipated an attendance record topping last year's 8,415 registered coaches.

Attendance at the All-Star games continues to decline.

"Our own coaches aren't supporting the All-Star games," Jay said. "If it hadn't been for our commercial sponsorship by Whataburger, we'd be in real trouble."

Whataburger became the coaching school's first commercial sponsor two years ago and has helped the THSCA approach a break-even point with the All-Star games.

Players in the football and basketball games are chosen from graduating senior classes from the previous school year. It is billed as the star's final appearance before starting their college careers.

"It used to be that everyone wanted to see the players they'd be watching in college, but now people want to spend $18 to watch a pro game instead of $3 to watch our game," Jay said.

The North basketball All-Stars will be coached by George Byerly of Seminole and Roy Garcia of Mission will coach the South. Marty Criswell and his staff from Denison High, will coach the North football team and Tomball's Lynn Etheredge and his staff will direct the South.

lead.

In other NL games, Cincinnati beat Montreal 9-2, Chicago topped Los Angeles 8-3 and St. Louis edged San Diego 3-2. The New York Mets and the Braves were rained out in Atlanta.

Giants 7, Pirates 3

San Francisco scored four times in the third, twice on errors by Pittsburgh first baseman Sid Bream, then added three runs in the fifth, two on Dan Gladden's double, to beat the Pirates.

The victory snapped a three-game Giants' losing streak and was Pittsburgh's fourth straight loss.

Reds 9, Expos 2

Eric Davis and Eddie Milner hit bases-empty homers and Buddy Bell homered for three runs as Cincinnati overpowered Montreal.

John Denny, 7-9, pitched a five-hitter for the Reds.

Cincinnati ended a five-game losing streak, sort of. The Reds did win the conclusion of a suspended game Thursday in the middle of the five losses.

Davis has now hit in 17 consecutive games, the longest current streak in the National League.

Cubs 8, Dodgers 3

Jody Davis homered and Keith Moreland had four hits, scored two runs and knocked in another to help Chicago snap Los Angeles' four-game winning streak.

Steve Trout, 4-3, allowed five hits over six innings for his first victory since June 8.

Cardinals 3, Padres 2

ST. Louis' Bob Forsch won his third straight start and St. Louis won its fourth straight game.

White's future hangs on special session

AUSTIN (AP) — When the Aug. 6 special legislative session opens, Gov. Mark White's political head goes on the chopping block. The opposition is planning a Nov. 4 execution at the ballot box.

The budget crisis is growing. The Senate is talking taxes. The House is talking program cuts. The governor is not talking much.

"Media Mark" — a name the governor garnered with his knack for getting publicity — has been uncharacteristically unavailable to reporters in recent days.

"He's taken an ostrich approach to state government," said Reggie Bashur, press secretary for former Gov. Bill Clements, White's Republican opponent.

Due to falling oil prices, White finds himself as governor of a once-rich state that is now cash poor.

For White, these are days that simultaneously offer great political opportunity and considerable danger.

"White is going to get credit if we solve the problem. Similarly, he'll get a lot of blame if we fail," said Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis also have a big political stake in the special session.

Both face Republican opponents in November, but the opponents are virtual unknowns. Hobby — a 13-year incumbent sometimes jokingly called "lieutenant governor for life" — is so unfazed by challenger David Davidson that he is calling for tax hikes.

Lewis may be a bit more worried. His opponent, K. Wayne Lee, is trying to brand Lewis as a tax-and-spend Democrat. Lewis says spending cuts, not tax hikes, are the order of the day.

White has said he leans toward the Lewis view of life in a budget crisis. His proclamation issued Friday says the special session is "for the purpose of making spending cuts." Taxes weren't mentioned, but could be added later.

Lawmakers want to hear more specifics from White.

"I watched him the other night on educational television an hour after he announced he was going to call the special session and he spent the entire hour talking about things that were impossible to reduce and the things he was against reducing," said Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline.

"He didn't suggest one single thing to be cut. So, I don't know what his position is and I don't know anyone who does," Hollowell said.

Bashur, Clements' spokesman, said, "What White needs to do is come up with some kind of plan. He's the governor."

House Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said of White, "It's in his ballpark."

The choices seem clear. The first decision is whether to merely reduce the $3.5 billion projected deficit in order to solve the short-term cash flow problem, or erase the entire deficit. The second decision is whether to cut spending, raise taxes, or do both.

"Before Mark White would go along with a tax bill, it would be so obvious that it was an absolute necessity that nobody would argue about it," said Dwayne Holman, White's campaign director, when asked if signing a tax bill is political suicide.

long been a supporter of law enforcement in general and the Texas Rangers in particular.

Mize has also been an active board member and investment advisor of the Teachers Retirement System of Texas, and many of their officials are expected to be on hand.

Mize has been president of Snyder National Bank since 1957. He also serves as chairman of the board of Snyder Savings and Loan.

Others are Jeff Lowrance, Ray Summers, Bob Hawes, Harry Krenek, Bill Stone, Keith Collier, David Byrnes, Preston Wilson, Renal Rosson, Tom Holcomb and Ralph Williamson.

Assisting with planning for the event is Randy Perkins, owner of The Shack, who is coordinating both the meal preparation and decoration.

it's for their own benefit," he said. He also attributed the work of the campus counseling staff and instructors in the three study areas as helpful toward this goal.

He pointed out that the recommendation for the screening exam was one of the first "hard-fast recommendations" coming out of the Select Committee on Higher Education which was named by legislative leaders to improve the quality of the state's public colleges.

"If this is an example of what they'll recommend, I certainly have no problem with it."

The committee's recommendation — which would require legislative action for final approval — specifies also:

—All freshman entering public colleges should be tested in reading, writing and math beginning in the fall of 1989.

—All components of the test should be passed before completion of 60 semester hours of credit.

—Each college must report annually to the coordinating board on its test results.

—The Legislature should provide funds to prepare and administer the test.

—Each institution should be required to offer remedial instruction to students needing assistance.

Water problems mulled by city

the Asian Clam problem."

Regarding trihalomethanes, the city's treated water supply is currently out of compliance with the state regarding levels of the chemical substance.

The health department and the Environmental Protection Agency list it as a suspected carcinogen or cancer-causing agent.

A warning regarding the substance has been included on city water bill mailings this summer, a requirement directed by the Texas Dept. of Health.

Exactly how dangerous trihalomethanes are, however, is questioned by some.

The state health department has set a maximum level of the substance at 100 parts per billion (ppb) gallons of water. The level currently being reported in Snyder is 122 ppb.

The Austin-based chief of enforcement of water rules for the Texas Dept. of Health — James Pope — admits that danger of excessive levels of trihalomethanes is "slight."

Ivie is more vocal in his opinion, noting that to him the concern being expressed regarding trihalomethanes across the U.S. "just doesn't make sense."

Regardless of opinions, however, two years ago cities the size of Snyder were placed under EPA rules related to the substance.

Compliance has been gradual since that time and Ivie noted Friday that Snyder is the last city served by the district to still be out of compliance.

Ivie noted that when the EPA first identified trihalomethanes as a possible carcinogen, the first directive from the federal agency was that only the nation's largest cities need be concerned.

"The first regulations were only for major U.S. cities, and that's one of the things which doesn't make sense to me. If it's so dangerous, why did they let some cities of a certain size continue to take the risk if there is one?"

Only within the past two years have cities the size of Snyder or Big Spring come under the rule, he said.

Regarding how common the problem is, Ivie noted that all cities served by surface water — water mainly derived from lakes — likely have to some degree trihalomethane levels.

Pope with the department of health said he suspects approximatly one-half of Texas cities which depend on surface water likely exceed the maximum level of 100 ppb. The majority of these are either treating or taking steps to treat it, he added.

How long have trihalomethanes been in water supplies derived from lakes? "Probably forever," notes Ivie. "It's just lately that we've identified them."

While still awaiting results of the CRMWD study, the city does have a contingency plan for treatment of trihalomethanes — an extra chemical treatment process which uses increased levels of ammonia to purify the water.

Addition of equipment to do this is estimated at some $10,000, according to City Manager John Gayle.

The Asian Clams — regardless if they are contributing to higher trihalomethane levels — are causing other problems at the plant, however.

City officials believe the shells being drawn into the system are causing excess wear and tear on equipment parts.

The most noted example of this was a giant wooden paddle wheel which mixes the chemicals in the water treatment basin.

This past spring, city officials discovered the shaft of the paddle wheel — called a floculator — had been literally worn away. They suspect the accumulation of clam shells at the bottom of the holding tank greatly contributed to this wear.

Regarding the CRMWD study, Ivie said it will likely take only two to three weeks to complete. He expects it to be done during August or early September, he said.

And city officials say they will place decisions regarding both trihalomethanes and Asian Clams "temporarily on hold" until its results are known.

Hit-and-run mishaps noted

Two minor hit-and-run traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Friday.

Teresa Vasquez of Rt. 3, Snyder filed the first report at 11:01 a.m.

She told police that her 1980 Chevrolet had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked at the McDonald's Restaurant on College Ave.

Judy Fennell of 315 35th St. filed the second report at 11:30 p.m.

Her 1981 Pontiac had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked on Eastridge Dr. earlier in the evening.

Stolen bike said found

Police closed the books on a recent bicycle theft Friday.

Kenny Buchanan of 115 30th St., who had reported his 20-inch BMX bike stolen July 23, called police at 8 a.m. Friday to report finding the bike abandonded in an alley near his home.

No further investigation will be conducted in the case.

In other action, officers jailed seven suspects on misdemeanor charges Friday evening.

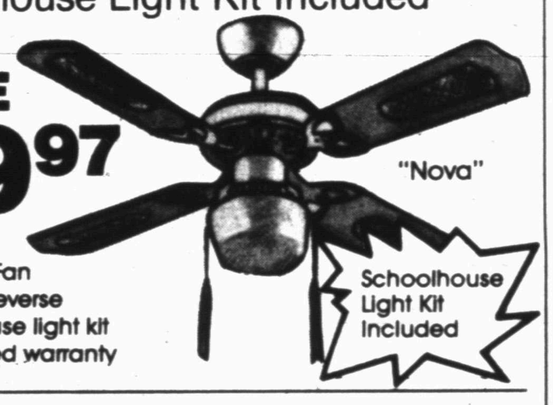

Two men were jailed — one for public intoxication and one for evading arrest — at 6:24 p.m. after police responded to a report of a fight in progress near the intersection of 17th St. and Ave. M.

The individual jailed for evading arrest initially attempted to flee from police on foot.

Four other subjects were arrested for public intoxication and one was jailed on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

World War II spawned woman's career

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — As it did for millions of others, World War II changed Laura Blackmon's life.

She always had planned to teach. She even earned a degree at West Texas State Teachers College and a job teaching that paid $67 a month.

It was a meager salary, she said, but, it still was the Depression, and Mrs. Blackmon was happy to be able to pay her debts. Then came the war and a better-paying job as a clerk-typist at the Amarillo Army Air Field. Not an exciting job, the young woman thought.

Mrs. Blackmon, now crowding 70, remembers sitting in an office and thinking to herself that she would remain a quiet shadow in some typing pool the rest of her life.

Suddenly her supervisor appeared at the door of the room with a young lieutenant in tow.

"Have any of you had any art training?" the lieutenant asked the women who filled the room.

Mrs. Blackmon said she remembers her head jutting upwards. She looked about the room and thought, "Well, I guess they're talking to me." She said her hand went up and they motioned her into the hall.

"I didn't know a T-square from a triangle. But the lieutenant told me he thought he could make a draftsman of me, and so we drove in a staff car to the post warehouse district. We went into a tremendous warehouse with some offices to one side and one lone drafting table."

The lieutenant picked up an instrument, waved it in her face, and told Mrs. Blackmon, "This is a T-square."

Mrs. Blackmon said she watched the young man intently as he began taking her through procedures and equipment used in engineering drawing.

"'You know what? I said to myself, I like this. I'm gonna go to school. I found some night courses and have a certificate for engineering drawing from a branch of Texas Tech.'"

Within two years, Mrs. Blackmon, still in her early 20s, had earned recognition for her inventions and received several top awards. She remembers two well: a printing process and a safety device used in repairing tires on the B-17 bombers.

The bomber tires "were awful," Mrs. Blackmon said. "They would blow up on the servicemen."

She later was offered a job with another division where she became head of the drafting deparment.

After marriage and the birth of two sons, Mrs. Blackmon's inventiveness turned homeward. She continued painting and won numerous awards. But as she carried around her suitcase with paints, she became disgruntled with its clumsiness.

"It opened wrong. Everything spilled out."

So she began using her technical training to design an artist's case and in 1969 received a patent for her work. Although it was marketed and Mrs. Blackmon began receiving royalty checks, she said the wrong material and advertising strategies [illegible]

Instead of something light, the manufacturer made the case out of aluminum. It cost nearly $90. Since a patent is good for 17 years, Mrs. Blackmon decided to renew hers, except that this time she labeled the design a "multisectioned storage case." She received that patent in 1984 and plans to market it in lightweight plastic for $20. The mold alone will cost $60,000.

Priest knew hazards when choosing missionary work

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco once told his family that "if he were to die, he'd like to die as a missionary." But he is coming home alive.

Shiite Moslem kidnappers freed Jenco today in east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, and he was taken "safe and sound" to the Syrian authorities, the Moslem-controlled Voice of the Nation radio station reported.

Jenco, who turned 51 on Nov. 27, was abducted Jan. 8, 1985, in Beirut when eight gunmen overtook his chauffeur-driven car. He had been in the war-torn city five months as local director of Catholic Relief Services.

Members of the Shiite Moslem organization Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, saying it was intended "to show they mean business" in warning Americans to leave the country.

Jenco's 55-member family, who said he suffered from a heart problem, has relentlessly lobbied Congress, talked to reporters and even visited President Reagan in Washington to press for help in securing his release.

The family drew support from many of the other 76,000 residents of this blue-collar community in northern Illinois. A Jenco Hostage Fund was established at Joliet Federal Savings & Loan. And a special Mass was said in his honor at St. Raymond Cathedral on the six-month anniversary of his abduction.

Outside the home of Mae Mihelich, Jenco's sister, stands a sign counting the days her brother has been held captive. As of today, the number will be 563, she said.

She said the Jenco family last heard from the priest in November 1985, when they received a letter from him. Several months ago, they saw him in a news picture with six other hostages in Lebanon.

In the summer of 1984, Jenco returned to his hometown to celebrate the 25th anniversary of his priesthood.

Train-truck crash kills 10

LOCKINGTON, England (AP) — A passenger train plowed into a truck at a railroad crossing today near this northeast England village, killing 10 people and injuring at least 30, British Rail said.

Officials said the three front carriages jumped the tracks and turned over. Eleven fire engines and dozens of ambulances raced to Lockington, in the county of Humberside.

Firefighters and rescue workers were still cutting passengers free several hours after the midmorning accident, while heavy machinery was brought to haul the carriages from the line.

The diesel powered train was traveling from the coastal town of Bridlingtonon, 40 miles south of Lockington, to Hull, on the Humber River.

The partially crushed truck was hurled down the rail line. The male driver and his sole passenger, a young boy, were cut from the wreckage and rushed to hospital, both in serious condition, police said.

Passenger Ian Simpson, 19, who was traveling in the second carriage, said he felt the train careen to the left.

"Suddenly it (the carriage) was on its side. The windows had been blown through and two of the other three people in my carriage had been sucked under the train. A girl flew past me and knocked her head on the seat," said Simpson.

"She just lay there, unconscious. There was a lot of steam and noise and I managed to get out of the window," added Simpson.

State-owned British Rail said in a statement a test on the lights at the unmanned crossing showed no fault. The lights flash automatically when a train is approaching.

Cattle industry faces problems, report says

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hard-pressed cattle business is still in the doldrums, with no major expansion indicated for the near future, according to a mid-year inventory report by the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Friday that an estimated 112.2 million head of cattle were on the nation's farms and ranches as of July 1, down 4 percent from a year ago and 8 percent fewer than two years ago.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said the July 1 tally was the smallest since USDA began keeping mid-year cattle figures in 1973.

Hard times in agriculture, including the cattle business, have forced many producers to liquidate breeding herds or to cut back sharply, often selling animals to raise money to pay debts or meeting current operating expenses.

Ron Gustafson of the department's Economic Research Service said record-large supplies of total meat, poor returns and forage problems, including the drought in the Southeast, have forced a continued liquidation of herds.

"More importantly, continued slaughter of the beef cow herd and a lower heifer retention (for breeding) are sharply reducing the base for future beef production," Gustafson said.

Consumer prices of beef and pork are expected to rise the remainder of this year because of production cutbacks, but USDA economists say the increases will be tempered by abundant supplies of poultry.

A related report showed July 1 feedlot inventories — cattle headed for the consumer beef market — at 7.95 million head in the 13 major beef states. That was the lowest mid-year feedlot count since 1975.

The 13-state feedlot report showed these July 1 inventories by state and percentage changes from a year earlier:

Arizona, 238,000 head on July 1 and 94 percent of a year earlier; California, 370,000 and 80; Colorado, 660,000 and 87; Idaho, 128,000 and 72; Illinois, 390,000 and 100; Iowa, 500,000 and 75; Kansas, 1,365,000 and 97; Minnesota, 255,000 and 84; Nebraska, 1,460,000 and 99; Oklahoma, 265,000 and 91; South Dakota, 245,000 and 83; Texas, 1,930,000 and 96; and Washington, 144,000 and 94.

This spring the supply of beef was kept up by the larger slaughter of dairy cows under the government's whole-herd buyout program designed to reduce surplus milk production, Gustafson said. However, additional government buying of red meat to offset the extra cow slaughter "should more than offset the impact of the dairy slaughter."

But Gustafson cautioned that the impact of the drought in the Southeast is still not known and that it could have an effect on where the U.S. cattle inventory will wind up next Jan. 1, another benchmark used by agency experts and the industry.

The July 1 inventory of 112.2 million head of cattle — which includes calves and dairy cattle as well as dairy stock — compared with 116.3 million a year earlier and 121.5 million on July 1, 1984.

Of importance to the future, the report estimated the 1986 calf crop at 40.1 million, down 2 percent from last year and 6 percent below 1984.

By Vicki Brown

What would prompt an individual to abandon a music career on the West Coast and a brush with stardom for the seemingly serene life of West Texas?

Gary Lindsey of Fluvanna cites burnout and a reexamination of priorities as his major reasons for returning to his roots in oilfield country.

The 45-year-old trumpet virtuoso now supports his family as a piano tuner through Smith's Music Place on the square.

Originally from Andrews, Gary headed for Odessa College after graduation to study theater and music. As a student, he performed with the school's stage band.

His love for performance and his belief that he could succeed in the music industry led him to become one of The Swingin' Six — his first nightclub band.

Although the group relocated to Dallas to seek a break into the business, its members soon decided to pursue individual careers.

Because he needed money quickly, Gary headed for Alaska on the promise of a roughneck position with an oil company. The promise, however, did not materialize.

"The oil company said they needed two hands. When the helicopter came to pick us up (in Anchorage), they said they only needed one," he remembered. "The other guy got on the helicopter and left me standing."

That broken promise proved to be the catalyst that thrust him back into the music industry. Within a few days, he landed a spot in a Dixieland band — a job he kept until an offer surfaced to play in a contemporary rock group.

With its hard rock sound, Lead Feather toured the West, playing nightclubs in Reno, San Francisco, Las Vegas, Hollywood and Hawaii. "We really had quite a following on the West Coast," he boasted.

The band also played studio backup for such famous "hippie era" groups as Ike and Tina Turner.

During his stint with Lead Feather, he enjoyed "jam" sessions with members of the rock group Three Dog Night and Joe Cocker. "I had an opportunity to go with Cocker, but Capitol Records cut a demo record and we thought we had a good chance to land a contract," he said.

But the record company subsequently rejected the group's attempt. Although he harbors little bitterness against the firm, he learned "that at Capitol, they ran bands through there like a factory and made all kinds of promises."

When hopes of signing a contract dimmed, the band dissolved. Gary joined a rhythm and blues show band, Seven Souls. "We were considered one of the top show bands in the country at that time," he said. "We played Las Vegas, Los Angeles and Hawaii."

The group only lasted a year and a half. After the split, Gary decided to return to Andrews as a disc jockey for KECT Radio. "I was just burned out on touring. I was tired and needed to rest," he sighed.

But with music firmly entrenched in his lifestyle, he headed for Fort Worth to join the group, Lux Monday. While in the Metroplex, he learned to tune pianos part-time. "We called it survival. Music is a hard life. You may play steady for a year then have to hunt two or three months to find another band," he explained.

Restless and uncertain the direction his career should take, he relocated to New Orleans to roughneck on offshore drilling rigs and tune pianos part-time. There he met his wife, Mary, a talented choreographer and musician who had been touring the country.

Married nearly eight years ago, the versatile duo vowed to place road life in the past. Until about three years ago, they constantly received job offers. "But we decided we didn't want to get involved in it anymore. We were at a crossroads and decided to turn everything over to the Lord. He led us here," Gary explained.

After securing a job as a truck driver with Drum's Transport, he moved his family to Fluvanna four months ago. Slumping oil prices, however, forced layoffs.

Now, Gary's career has returned to the music field and he credits J.D. Smith (owner of Smith's Music Place) for his successful start here. "When I decided to build a piano tuning business here, I came in the store to get new tools to replace the ones that were stolen when we lived in Shreveport," he said.

"J.D. sent me home with borrowed tools and a piano to get started on. I just loaded it up and took it home," he laughed.

After his business stablizes here, he hopes to organize a jazz

Eros statue being restored

STOCKTON ON TEES, England (AP) — Eros, the famous statue that has graced London's Picadilly Circus since 1898, has left the square to seek rest and restoration.

Radiographic inspection by a British subsidiary of American-based Foster-Wheeler will search out areas of the statue needing repair after its long stay in London's foggy air. Repairs will be made later this year on the 400-pound, 8-foot high statue by Charles Henshaw & Sons of Edinburgh.

Eros, the first piece of sculpture in England to be cast in pure aluminum, consists of 15 separately cast sections butted together and secured by rivets. The statue of a male aiming a bow and arrow was erected to commemorate the achievements of the then Earl of Shaftesbury in philanthropy and social work.

Alsup, Hill exchange vows in Sweetwater

MR. AND MRS. DAVID SCOTT HILL

SWEETWATER — Jennifer Ann Alsup became the bride of David Scott Hill July 5 at the Broadway Baptist Church in Sweetwater. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Max Smiley.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Alsup of Roby and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hill of Pevely, Mo.

Rebecca Alsup served her sister as Maid of Honor. The best man was Maurice Hill, father of the groom.

Those attending the wedding were the groom's parents and two sisters, Tracey and Jamie Hill; the bride's parents, sister, and brother, Dale Alsup; the bride's grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ballard of Snyder, and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Joplin of Cooper; one great-aunt, Allie Lawrence of Roaring Springs and two cousins, Cathy and Charles Eckelt of Tulsa, Okla.

After the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was a graduate of Snyder High School.

MERRY GENTLEMEN (AND ONE LADY). By J. Bryan III. Atheneum. 326 Pages. $17.95.

J. Bryan III is a very lucky man. Not only has he known some of the great wits of our time, but he also has the talent to write about them in a fine prose that introduces the "Merry Gentlemen (and One Lady)" to those not as lucky as Bryan.

Robert Benchley, Frank Sullivan, and John Steinbeck are among the 13 gentlemen recalled in these pages. The lone lady is Dorothy Parker. And she was really something.

The first time Bryan met Benchley, Benchley had a hangover and commented of his breakfast: "All I had was one aspirin, lightly grilled." Another time Benchley went to Italy and cabled back from Venice: "Streets here full of water. Advise."

Cubes reveal water softness

WATERLOO, Ontario (AP) — You can tell if your water is hard or soft by looking at your ice cubes.

"Hard water cubes have a white spot in the center where minerals congregate, while soft water cubes are uniformly cloudy," says Lou J. Smith, executive director of the Canadian Water Quality Association.

Smith says most people will see white spots in their cubes as some 85 percent of the water in the United States and Canada is at least moderately hard.

Couple united in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Sharla Gaye Hagler and Bradley Lance Bufkin were united in marriage May 31 at the Highland Baptist Church in Lubbock at 8:00 p.m. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Dr. Richard Waters of Oklahoma, former pastor of the church.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. Marion Hagler of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bufkin of Snyder.

The vows were exchanged before a lacy, brass arch of 100 candles and fresh greenery with a 15 point candle arch above it. The aisles were decorated with hurricane globes with candles and garlands of fresh greenery accented with satin ivory bows.

The Wedding March was played as the bride made her way down the aisle. Other musical selections were Wedding Day, All in His Own Sweet Time, Fathers Call and Midsummer Night's Dream. Soloists were Terrie Gressett of California and April Lovell of Lubbock. Kathy Holmes of Lubbock served as pianist and organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown designed by Demetrios for Ilissa. The elegant Bateau neckline is of sheer re-embroidered alencon lace jeweled with pearls and sequins, forming a cameo design in the center. The basque waist bodice features lace which comes to a point in the center front. Long court sleeves of French chantilly and alencon lace also feature a cameo design and are beaded with pearls and sequins. The full ballroom skirt of heavy satin is edged with a border of alencon lace cascading into a cathedral length train.

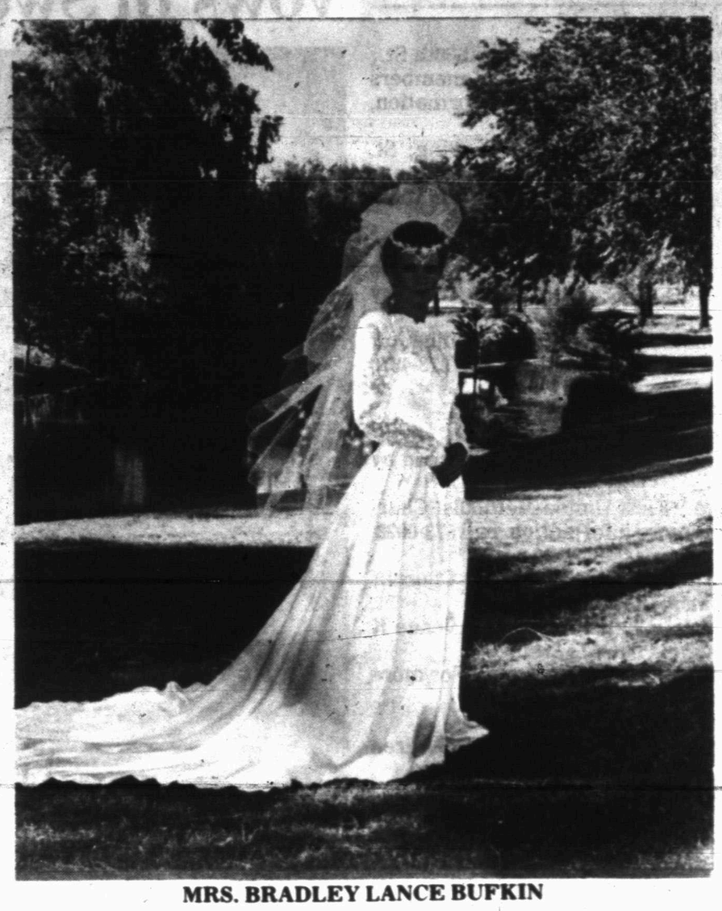

The bride's headpiece consisted of a wreath of pearls, accented by a pearl studded pouff of illusion. The elegant fingertip veil was edged with sciffli embroidery.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, ivory roses, stephanotis and freesia and fresh greenery, completed with satin ivory ribbon.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore pearls belonging to her grandmother as something old. Her wedding gown served as something new, and she borrowed the garter worn by her mother in her own wedding for something borrowed and blue.

The couple's gift to one another was a 7-week-old English Setter which they named Chelsea.

Matron of honor was Lesli Lamb of Lompoc, Calif. Shanna Hagler, sister of the bride served as Maid of Honor. Bridesmaids were Terrie Gressett of Bakersfield, Calif.; Karen Harrison, April Lovell and Catherine Goodwin, all of Lubbock.

MRS. BRADLEY LANCE BUFKIN

The Maid of Honor wore a tea length dress of wood purple moire fidlle taffeta. Her dress featured a scoop neck and short puffed sleeves which tapered to fit. The drop waist began gathering on either side of the hips, and gradually came to a point in the back of the dress where heavier gathers formed a bustle.

The bridesmaids also wore tea-length gowns of moire taffeta in wood purple. The sleeves and neck repeated the look of the Maid of Honor. The full skirts came to a small point in the front and small gathers continued evenly around their waists. They all wore an ivory pouff of toole, similar to the bride's. They also wore crochet lace gloves, ivory hosiery and pumps to complete their outfits.

All the bride's attendents carried bouquets of fresh ivory lillies and freesia with fresh greenery, complimented with satin ribbons of ivory.

Flower girl was Alyson Michelle Keeling of Lubbock. She wore a dress of ivory moire taffeta with tailored tucks in the front. The dress also featured a sailor collar covered in ivory lace along with the cuffs. She wore ivory lace tights and ivory shoes.

Serving as ring bearer was Trey DeTournillon of Lubbock. He wore an ivory tuxedo with tails, accented with an ivory bow tie, cumberbund and shoes. He wore an ivory rose with wood purple baby's breath and fresh greenery. He carried a pillow created by the bride's cousin. It was an ivory pillow with purple and olive green cross-stitch, completed with a lace and satin ribbon.

The groom wore the traditional black tails and ivory shirt. The bow tie and cumberbund were also black. His boutonniere was stephanotis surrounding an ivory rose, finished with fresh greenery.

Serving the groom as Best Man was Burt Moritz IV of Lake Jackson. Groomsmen were Shelby Bufkin of Snyder, brother of the groom, Steve Gressett of California, Glen Harrison, Brian Roark and Greg Hagler, brother of the bride, all of Lubbock.

Ushers for the occasion were Howard Benedict, Tom Davee and Don Bowles, all of Pecos.

The groomsmen and ushers wore the traditional black tuxedo with the short over coat. They wore ivory shirts, with black bow ties and cumberbunds. The groomsmen's boutonnieres were ivory roses surrounded with purple baby's breath and greenery. The ushers wore ivory roses with greenery.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose an ankle-length gown of coral chiffon. It featured a tight fitting bodice and full skirt. The sleeves of chiffon gathered around the wrist with lace covered cuffs, all in coral. The bodice featured tucks of coral chantilly lace.

Friends of the couple listed as special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hill of McKinney; Carol and Johnny Crowder and family of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. Coy Hudson and Brendon and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Mosley, Dennis and Dale, all of Pecos. Special guests from Snyder included Jill Holt, Jennifer Floyd, Beth and Jerry Bowen, David and Karen Burkett, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cross.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table consisted of one eight foot oval table with four foot round tables on each end. All three tables were covered with sheer ivory floor-length cloths. The smaller tables held the wedding cake and punch, while the center table held a large spray of fresh flowers in shades of purple. The spray was placed in a crystal bubble ball.

The bride's cake was completely ivory, and consisted of six large and small layers of Italian Creme. An ivory silk flower arrangement in a pedestal topped the cake. Serving at the bride's table were Darla Hendricks, Kathy Johnson, and Tonia Richards, all of Lubbock.

The groom's table was a seven foot maple harvest table covered with an ivory crochet lace runner. The centerpiece was a brass tree with two separate brass mallards. Brass appointments were used. The groom's cake was a two-layer round chocolate cake iced in light chocolate, encrusted with almonds. Chocolate syrup was drizzled down the sides of the cake. Mrs. R. L. Shipley, cousin of the bride from Earth and Jeannie Farris of Lubbock served at the groom's table.

The newlyweds took a honeymoon trip to Ruidoso, N.M. The trip was a gift from Bobby Garcia.

For her going away attire, the bride chose a skirt and blouse ensemble of powder blue. She also wore the corsage her mother wore in the wedding.

After the honeymoon, the couple will make their home in Houston where the groom will be attending Baylor College of Medicine and the bride will continue her education at the University of Houston.

The bride is a graduate of Monterrey High School in Lubbock. She also attended Texas Tech University as an Interior Design major.

The groom was the Valedictorian of Pecos High School where he graduated in 1982. He has received a Bachelor of Arts degree in chemistry from Texas Tech, and was graduated Cum Laude. At Texas Tech, the groom was a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta, a pre-medical honor fraternity, for four years. He served as president of the organization during the 1985-86 term. He was also a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents May 30 at the County Line Restaurant in Lubbock.

The couple received many courtesies which included two miscellaneous showers, a lingerie shower, two dinners and a bridal luncheon.

Securities cause fall

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A stock's price usually falls when the corporation issues a new security, says Clifford W. Smith Jr. of the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management.

In examining more than 1,300 announcements of five types of security offerings by both industrial and utility firms, Smith says he found either a drop in price or no change at all. "In no case did the stock rise after the new security was issued," he says.

The price may drop because the announcement of a sale of new securities is often interpreted by investors as an indication that managers had received bad news that shareholders had not yet fully anticipated, Smith suggests.

ABWA holds meeting

The Deep Creek chapter of American Business Women's Association met at the Martha Ann Woman's Club July 17 for their monthly meeting.

Pauline Withers, vice-president of the club presented a program entitled, "New Member Orientation." The two major orientation areas covered were the local chapter and the national level.

There is a Procedure Manual which outlines rules and bylines that govern all chapters of the association. National and local dues are paid once a year by the members.

Withers also outlined the basic history of the ABWA. The Deep Creek Chapter was chartered Sept. 22, 1983. The governing body of the chapter is an executive board made up of 5 officers: president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary and treasurer.

The chapter has a local scholarship fund; they also contribute to the national scholarship fund, the Stephen Bufton Memorial.

Social activities of the club include Bosses Night, Woman of the Year and the Hand of Friendship Tea, held each March and September. The group hears a guest speaker each month as well as a vocational speaker.

The ABWA has twelve regional meetings in the spring and a National Convention in the fall.

Joyce McCoy reported news from the MAWC. She said that Lil Rascals will present a style show Aug. 2 from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. Brunch will be served, and admission is $5 for adults and $2 for children over 6.

A report on the 4th of July activities was given, and plans for White Buffalo Days were completed. The chapter will sponsor a food booth and serve nachos.

The next meeting will be held Aug. 21 at Towle Park Barn with a pot-luck dinner.

Visitors in attendance at the meeting were Jeannine Rundell and Grace Bryant from the Scurry Charter Chapter of ABWA.

Hostesses for the meeting were Joyce McCoy and Elodia Melott. Jerri Workman gave the invocation and Tina Sullenger gave the benediction.

Opening lead: ♠ K

Eddie Kantar uses today's deal to make three important points. First, there's one involving card reading. After you get to four hearts, West leads the king, ace and another club. Naturally you ruff, and you should now be thinking about where the ace and queen of spades might be. Although you cannot be certain, West might have opened the bidding in first seat if he held two aces and a king. But he passed. Therefore, when it comes time to guess what to do when you lead up to the K-J of spades, you should lean heavily toward putting in the jack, playing East for the ace.

The second point is that although your trumps are good, you have only seven in the combined hands, and it is very likely that one opponent or the other has started with four hearts. It may well be that by the time you draw trumps, you will be reduced to playing without the ability to trump anything the nasty defenders might lead at you, like another club.

And that brings us to the third point. Since drawing trumps may leave you open to a club attack, you need to play for your 10th trick while you still have some trump protection. So lead a spade right away. When you guess it right by putting in dummy's jack, East can win the ace. It won't help him to lead back a club, because you can trump in dummy, with the heart queen if need be, and then you can draw all the trumps, provided they split no worse than 4-2.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT — Mr. and Mrs. Grady Steelman and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harlan are proud to announce the engagement of their children, Regina Faye and Ricky. The couple will be married at the Morningside Baptist Church Aug. 16 at 7 p.m. (Karen Wadleigh Photograph)

Carpenter cares for wildlife

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — As one of the Pennsylvania Raptor Association's most important working members, Hope Carpenter cares for 100 or more birds of prey and other wild residents each year at her secluded Northampton County home.

Currently 14 great-horned owls of varied ages and sizes live in an enclosed pen separated from her kitchen by a wall and window, where they can keep their eyes on one another. In an adjacent room an osprey with a broken wing sits on a low perch, surrounded by cages containing a pair of merlins, kestrels, screech owls and a fledgling saw-whet owl.

Outside, a blind turkey vulture struts across the patio. A half-dozen screech owls, a pair of long-eared owls, two snowy owls, two golden eagles, a one-winged bald eagle, an assortment of red-shouldered, red-tailed and broad winged hawks plus a lone goshawk inhabit varied pens that take up most of the back yard — along with baby possums, raccoons and other injured and orphaned wildlife.

Mrs. Carpenter, a former airline stewardess, and her partner, Rita Schaadt, have full-time babysitting and nursing jobs every day of the week. Both women are licensed by state and federal wildlife agencies with which they work closely in caring for the wild animals, particularly birds of prey brought to them for care, rehabilitation and eventual release. But not all of the animals can again be returned to the wild.

"Sometimes we have to put them down," explained Mrs. Carpenter, sitting in her Mount Bethel living room while giving a young raccoon its 4 o'clock bottle.

"Putting them down" is a euphemism for putting injured hawks and owls with no hope for recovery out of their pain and misery.

Last year, however, 80 percent of the 94 birds she took under her wing were "hacked" back to the wild. Miss Schaadt has had similar success with the 100 plus animals she treated in 1985. A few of the birds, depending on their state of health following surgery, are retained for educational purposes.

This year so far the success rate is similar — bolstered by the liberation of a red-tailed hawk recently. The mature hawk had been brought to the rehabilitation center by Jim Loundsberry, a youngster from nearby Flicksville who saw the bird "fall out of the air" and brought it to the center.

band through the store.

He would also like to compose some original pieces for the group. "I can arrange for a 16-piece orchestra. I've had the training," he said. "I wrote a great deal of the music used by Lead Feather. Most of them were, I guess, period pieces — music to fit the times."

Helping his wife and two children, Beth Ann and Josh, adjust to West Texas lifestyle, Gary doesn't regret giving up a career which included appearances at Caesar's Place in Las Vegas and The Factory — a once famous Hollywood nightspot owned by Peter Lawford and Tony Curtis.

To local aspiring artists, Gary offers this advice: "A musician's life requires a lot of hard work and a lot of praetice. If you're really, really serious about it, you need to learn to be patient — success comes slowly.

"Be cautious as a snake — some people will try to take advantage of you — and as gentle as a lamb. Learn as much about the business part of it as the creative end. And hang in there."

Cochran elected Woman of the Year

Penny Loyce Cochran has been elected Woman of the Year by the Deep Creek Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Cochran is a part-time clerk-typist for the Texas Department of Human Services.

Annually, each ABWA Chapter elects one of its members for this award. Selection is based upon the member's achievements in her field of business, education, community activities and her participation in the association.

Cochran worked 4 ½ years as a full-time clerk for the Protective Services, then she began working part-time in order to spend more time with her son.

In her job, Cochran is responsible for various welfare and protective agency duties in Snyder and Sweetwater.

A graduate of Trent High School and Western Texas College, Cochran has an Associate in Arts and Science Degree. She is married to Mark Cochran who is employed by Lario Oil & Gas company as a pumper. The couple has a 17-month-old son, Cory. They are members of the First Christian Church. She is a deacon of the church and a member of the board of the church. Cochran also enjoys her hobbies, swimming, water skiing and snow skiing. Her husband is involved in softball.

Cochran joined ABWA in 1981 and has been a member of the Deep Creek chapter since 1983.

By Marvin Ensor Extension Agent

COTTON INSECT SITUATION

Area cotton fields are still experiencing economic numbers of fleahoppers and bollworms. Farmers should be scouting their fields on a regular basis.

Bollworm egg numbers range from 6 to 89 per 100 plants checked. The highest numbers are being found in the Hermleigh-Inadale areas. High numbers are being seen county-wide. Many of these eggs should hatch by July 26th with some hatching earlier. The economic threshold for blooming cotton is 8 to 10 worms per 100 plants. Farmers should use the threshold for blooming cotton if the plants have a large number of one-third grown squares and will bloom in the immediate future.

Deanna Myers, County Entomologist, reported the figures shown above and made the resulting recommendations. Deanna also reported large numbers of fleahoppers in many cotton fields.

If producers need to treat for bollworms they should use a pyrethroid insecticide. Also some farmers may want to treat for fleahoppers at the same time they are spraying for the bollworm. The pyrethroids can be used for both pests.

TIME TO CONTROL WHITE GRUBS IN LAWN

Scurry County residents who want to protect their lawns need to keep a close lookout now for white grub worms.

May or June beetles have been emerging from the soil and swarming in lawns in the evening. Females laid eggs which have hatched into white grubs. These grubs are beginning to feed on roots of home lawn grasses.

Once grubs begin feeding, control measures should be taken.

Treatment time varies with the area of the state. Homeowners in the South Plains need to treat between mid-July and early August. Timing of chemical application is critical for adequate control.

White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining the roots and soil to a depth of four inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for 1,000 square feet of lawn area.

Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod. Diazinon, Dursban or Oftanol provide adequate control and should be used at recommended rates given on the chemical container label.

Strawberry wins

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to frozen fruit bars, Americans rank strawberry as No. 1.

A survey by Paleta International, a distributor of the bars, shows strawberry was the favorite flavor. It was followed by coconut, raspberry, banana and pineapple.

Fruit bars account for about 22 percent of the $1.8 billion frozen novelty business, according to Paleta.

Day care training offered

County Extension home economist Kathryn Roberts is looking for some professional help from 20 local women who provide child care in their homes.

Our county is one of 29 around the state that has been chosen to pilot test a four-week home study program for day care providers.

The program includes video tapes and self-study guides about child development and guidance, nutrition, health and safety and business management.

Each child care provider participating in the program will be helping test the usefulness of the program before it's distributed throughout Texas.

Most child care providers have lots of experience raising their own children and caring for others, but this program can give new ideas and more indepth knowledge.

Women participating in the program will get to keep the study materials, and certificates will be awarded.

Enrollment is limited and beginning program dates are August 25 and October 6, so now is the time to sign up. Priority will be given to day care providers who are registered with the Texas Department of Human Services, but registration is not a requirement.

For further information, please contact the County Extension Office, 573-5423.

Reading meter helps

NEW YORK (AP) — Learning to read your electric meter is helpful when trying to cut down on electricity consumption.

By monitoring usage, you can, for example, see how much it costs to run the air conditioner for several days straight, or how much you save when the water heater is turned off for a day compared with leaving it on.

Carpenter cares for wildlife

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — As one of the Pennsylvania Raptor Association's most important working members, Hope Carpenter cares for 100 or more birds of prey and other wild residents each year at her secluded Northampton County home.

Currently 14 great-horned owls of varied ages and sizes live in an enclosed pen separated from her kitchen by a wall and window, where they can keep their eyes on one another. In an adjacent room an osprey with a broken wing sits on a low perch, surrounded by cages containing a pair of merlins, kestrels, screech owls and a fledgling saw-whet owl.

Outside, a blind turkey vulture struts across the patio. A half-dozen screech owls, a pair of long-eared owls, two snowy owls, two golden eagles, a one-winged bald eagle, an assortment of red-shouldered, red-tailed and broad winged hawks plus a lone goshawk inhabit varied pens that take up most of the back yard — along with baby possums, raccoons and other injured and orphaned wildlife.

Mrs. Carpenter, a former airline stewardess, and her partner, Rita Schaadt, have full-time babysitting and nursing jobs every day of the week. Both women are licensed by state and federal wildlife agencies with which they work closely in caring for the wild animals, particularly birds of prey brought to them for care, rehabilitation and eventual release. But not all of the animals can again be returned to the wild.

"Sometimes we have to put them down," explained Mrs. Carpenter, sitting in her Mount Bethel living room while giving a young raccoon its 4 o'clock bottle.

"Putting them down" is a euphemism for putting injured hawks and owls with no hope for recovery out of their pain and misery.

Last year, however, 80 percent of the 94 birds she took under her wing were "hacked" back to the wild. Miss Schaadt has had similar success with the 100 plus animals she treated in 1985. A few of the birds, depending on their state of health following surgery, are retained for educational purposes.

This year so far the success rate is similar — bolstered by the liberation of a red-tailed hawk recently. The mature hawk had been brought to the rehabilitation center by Jim Loundsberry, a youngster from nearby Flicksville who saw the bird "fall out of the air" and brought it to the center.

Cochran elected Woman of the Year

Penny Loyce Cochran has been elected Woman of the Year by the Deep Creek Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Cochran is a part-time clerk-typist for the Texas Department of Human Services.

Annually, each ABWA Chapter elects one of its members for this award. Selection is based upon the member's achievements in her field of business, education, community activities and her participation in the association.

Cochran worked 4 ½ years as a full-time clerk for the Protective Services, then she began working part-time in order to spend more time with her son.

In her job, Cochran is responsible for various welfare and protective agency duties in Snyder and Sweetwater.

A graduate of Trent High School and Western Texas College, Cochran has an Associate in Arts and Science Degree. She is married to Mark Cochran who is employed by Lario Oil & Gas company as a pumper. The couple has a 17-month-old son, Cory. They are members of the First Christian Church. She is a deacon of the church and a member of the board of the church. Cochran also enjoys her hobbies, swimming, water skiing and snow skiing. Her husband is involved in softball.

Cochran joined ABWA in 1981 and has been a member of the Deep Creek chapter since 1983.

He would also like to compose some original pieces for the group. "I can arrange for a 16-piece orchestra. I've had the training," he said. "I wrote a great deal of the music used by Lead Feather. Most of them were, I guess, period pieces — music to fit the times."

Helping his wife and two children, Beth Ann and Josh, adjust to West Texas lifestyle, Gary doesn't regret giving up a career which included appearances at Caesar's Place in Las Vegas and The Factory — a once famous Hollywood nightspot owned by Peter Lawford and Tony Curtis.

To local aspiring artists, Gary offers this advice: "A musician's life requires a lot of hard work and a lot of practice. If you're really, really serious about it, you need to learn to be patient — success comes slowly.

"Be cautious as a snake — some people will try to take advantage of you — and as gentle as a lamb. Learn as much about the business part of it as the creative end. And hang in there."

COTTON INSECT SITUATION

Area cotton fields are still experiencing economic numbers of fleahoppers and bollworms. Farmers should be scouting their fields on a regular basis.

Bollworm egg numbers range from 6 to 89 per 100 plants checked. The highest numbers are being found in the Hermleigh-Inadale areas. High numbers are being seen county-wide. Many of these eggs should hatch by July 26th with some hatching earlier. The economic threshold for blooming cotton is 8 to 10 worms per 100 plants. Farmers should use the threshold for blooming cotton if the plants have a large number of one-third grown squares and will bloom in the immediate future.

Deanna Myers, County Entomologist, reported the figures shown above and made the resulting recommendations. Deanna also reported large numbers of fleahoppers in many cotton fields.

If producers need to treat for bollworms they should use a pyrethroid insecticide. Also some farmers may want to treat for fleahoppers at the same time they are spraying for the bollworm. The pyrethroids can be used for both pests.

TIME TO CONTROL WHITE GRUBS IN LAWN

Scurry County residents who want to protect their lawns need to keep a close lookout now for white grub worms.

May or June beetles have been emerging from the soil and swarming in lawns in the evening. Females laid eggs which have hatched into white grubs. These grubs are beginning to feed on roots of home lawn grasses. Once grubs begin feeding, control measures should be taken.

Treatment time varies with the area of the state. Homeowners in the South Plains need to treat between mid-July and early August. Timing of chemical application is critical for adequate control.

White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining the roots and soil to a depth of four inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for 1,000 square feet of lawn area.

Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod. Diazinon, Dursban or Oftanol provide adequate control and should be used at recommended rates given on the chemical container label.

Strawberry wins

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to frozen fruit bars, Americans rank strawberry as No. 1.

A survey by Paleta International, a distributor of the bars, shows strawberry was the favorite flavor. It was followed by coconut, raspberry, banana and pineapple.

Fruit bars account for about 22 percent of the $1.8 billion frozen novelty business, according to Paleta.

Day care training offered

County Extension home economist Kathryn Roberts is looking for some professional help from 20 local women who provide child care in their homes.

Our county is one of 29 around the state that has been chosen to pilot test a four-week home study program for day care providers.

The program includes video tapes and self-study guides about child development and guidance, nutrition, health and safety and business management.

Each child care provider participating in the program will be helping test the usefulness of the program before it's distributed throughout Texas.

Most child care providers have lots of experience raising their own children and caring for others, but this program can give new ideas and more indepth knowledge.

Women participating in the program will get to keep the study materials, and certificates will be awarded.

Enrollment is limited and beginning program dates are August 25 and October 6, so now is the time to sign up. Priority will be given to day care providers who are registered with the Texas Department of Human Services, but registration is not a requirement.

For further information, please contact the County Extension Office, 573-5423.

Reading meter helps

NEW YORK (AP) — Learning to read your electric meter is helpful when trying to cut down on electricity consumption.

By monitoring usage, you can, for example, see how much it costs to run the air conditioner for several days straight, or how much you save when the water heater is turned off for a day compared with leaving it on.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

Sunday morning, we had stayed up too late and awoke too early.

Slopping down the hall barefoot, our greatest wish was to get to the bathroom without confrontation.

Once there, the mirror reflected a sorry sight. Instead of matching pajama top and bottoms, it showed a worn T-shirt, the sleeves ripped away for the rag drawer, and old warm-up bottoms, hacked off at mid-thigh.

The face looked like someone had let all of the air out, then had blown it back up to only half pressure.

The hair — recently barbered — rose in uncombed spikes, mashed sideways and up by an uncooperative pillow.

Opening the door to pursue coffee, we were confronted by the six-year-old, "Neat Dad," he said, "Punk."

Later, it occurred to us he was referring to the hairdo.

To point out that fashion goes around full circle is an old cliche. But this is the first time it has ever made a complete 360 degrees within our particular lifetime.

Now the trendy young are wearing the haircuts that all of we don't-give-a-hoots wore way back then — burrs and flat tops.

To save some of you fellows some embarrassment, we'll note a couple of things about the two.

First off, don't try a flat top on a goose egg head.

A true flat top only looks good on certain craniums. And the definite best is of the compact, bullet-like variety.

The same can be said of faces. A pointy face — for example, a long, sharp nose with a narrow, extended chin — will only look awful under a flat top. Button noses and square jaws are again best.

The good news about these short haircuts is how comfortable and cool they are. Hair nubbed down to a quarter of an inch is springy and airy, prompting at least one woman wit to proclaim she'd like to walk around in it barefoot.

The bad news is it leaves your face "nekkid" — spotlighting such attractive features as jug ears, pencil necks and sloped foreheads.

When we were in college, we knew a couple very much in love. They walked around on campus with their hands in each other's back pockets.

He had thick, shoulder length hair, parted down the middle and framing either side of a handsome, full beard.

They graduated, married and moved away. He got a job — a responsible business job — and the first thing they told him to do was to lose all excess hair.

It was then his wife got her first look at her sheared husband. The last word we heard, they weren't doing too well.

It seems to us menfolk have only become more vain about their hair the past 20 years or so. And for guys in my generation, who are either pushing 40 or already there, it's only natural that what you have less of you prize more highly.

Because of this, it's not likely many of our compadres are yearning to return to the burr.

But while the style lasts, we have to at least say it's an honest one.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

HAUL/hol/vb 1: to exert traction on: draw or pull.

Now, far be it from me to call to question any definition ole Webster might choose to give a word, but I would like to offer, at the very least, an expansion on that term, "haul":

HAUL/hol/vb 2: the act of cramming kids, coolers, saddles, tack, horses, and parents into various vehicles and traveling many miles to assorted horse shows, ropings, cuttings and/or rodeos for the purpose of bringing home numerous ribbons, trophies, buckles, trays and, hopefully, prize money which can then be used for the purpose of paying more entry fees for similar events.

Hauling is the peculiar pastime of country families who have a thing about horses. Not all country families do, you know. Some country families don't own any horses. Some own horses but don't use them. And some, like us, rotate a large portion of their lives around the big, loveable critters.

There are three types of haulers. The first type, I call "Super-Pro Haulers". These people are never at home, ever. They live on the road and you can always spot them on the highway by the sleek, color-coordinated one-ton crew-cab pick-ups and long, air-conditioned horse trailers that are nicer inside than my house. They have changing rooms, bathrooms and separate little tack rooms.

The horses have their own compartments with fancy little windows to look out of when they get bored. Each horse has his own specialty and gets to goof off when it's not his turn to compete. Their owners look like fashion models from the Shepler's catalogue, handsome and well-dressed.

Then there are "Pro Haulers". Their horse trailers match the pick-ups, but the only air-conditioning those horses get is when the wind blows through the open sides of the trailer, and the owners do their changing at home. They walk around pretending that they don't have any more money than the rest of us and everybody has a big time.

Then there's us. We don't have a horse trailer. A stock trailer, we figured, could haul either six cows or four horses, and that seemed like a pretty good all-around deal. We picked a white one so that it would "go" with any color rig (in our case, a battered '78 blue and white Blazer), and that's as color-coordinated as we are likely to get. The drawback of hauling in a stock trailer is that you have to pile all your saddles and stuff in the back end of the Blazer, so our family car always smells like horse sweat.

But once everybody gets there and unloads kids, coolers and horses, and all the kids are competing together, rich and poor, and all the parents are hanging around visiting and watching and cheering and coaching each other on...nobody cares much how the other got there.

And the look on some kid's face when he or she comes trotting out, clutching a prize and patting the sweating horse, and the whole family gathers around for congratulations, and the competitors are saying things like, "That's a good horse, there," makes all the heat and dust and exhaustion and frustration and expense worth while.

You even look forward to the next time.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board members Thursday were informed of the new free blood pressure screenings now being offered area businesses by hospital staffers.

The report was given by Kathy Minemier, community relations director.

FRIDAY
July 25

It was reported Friday the operation of the Snyder school district this past school year has been compared to district's statewide — a time when costs of enacting House Bill 72 mandates raised property taxes across Texas some 13.3 percent.

In Snyder, the increase in taxes was held to 4.7 percent, according to figures released this week by the Texas Research League. In addition, an "average" Texas property tax rate for school districts last year was 76.3 cents. In Snyder, the rate was 51.5 cents.

A similar profile for the two rural county schools was offered also.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

I moved to the Snyder School District in the beginning of my elementary years. One of my fondest memories is of Mrs. Phyllis McGinnis, the librarian at Stanfield Elementary. She would read us the most interesting books. She read a story like no one else could. She made me think I was there in the middle of every adventure. She taught me how to find my own way around the library. So as a parent now, I believe that the library and librarian go hand in hand as a very important part of a child's learning years. They open new and challenging worlds for a young child to explore. Children learn skills that can be used for a lifetime.

Due to a need to cut our school budget, there is discussion about not replacing the librarians who retired last year. This would leave two schools for each existing librarian to care for. This will be a tremendous responsibility for them and I feel our children will be cheated in the process. There are petitions being circulated throughout our city against this proposal. I would like to urge each of you to look for these petitions down town, at the college and at the county library. PLEASE SIGN THEM FOR OUR KIDS.

To the Editor,

With the economy as it is and seemingly going backward instead of forward (though not admitted by some) you would think there would be a cut in salaries instead of a 3 per cent increase. HOME FOOD PRESERVATION WITHOUT SUGAR

Foods can be preserved at home with less sugar, but the results may or may not be acceptable to your tastes.

Before trying no-sugar recipes on your produce, experiment with small batches first to see if you are pleased with the results.

Recipes for canning fruits call for the addition of sugar or a sugar syrup to maintain texture, shape and color of the fruit and to improve the flavor.

When canning without sugar, use only firm ripe or slightly under-ripe fruit so it won't become too soft from canning. By adding ascorbic acid or a commercial anti-darkening agent, fruit will retain better color.

If you plan on using artificial sweeteners, add it when the fruit is served. The heat of processing can cause some artificial sweeteners to become bitter and others to lose their sweetening power.

Fruit can also be frozen safely without added sugar, but will not maintain its quality during freezer storage as well as fruit that has sugar added.

Berries and fruits which do not darken when exposed to air can be frozen in single layers on trays and then packed into freezing bags or containers. The fruits which freeze well in this manner are blueberries, strawberries, dewberries, blackberries, raspberries, cherries, plums, dates, grapes, melon balls, pineapple chunks and rhubarb slices.

Light-colored fruits such as apples, peaches and apricots freeze well in unsweetened juice or water to which ascorbic acid has been added to prevent darkening. Light colored juices, including apple, pineapple and orange juice are suitable as liquids to cover frozen fruits.

Since sugar gives sweet pickles and relishes their unique texture and flavor, omitting this ingredient can result in a mushy and less flavorful product.

It's also difficult to get good sugarless jams and jellies, since sugar is essential to gel formation, serves as a preserving agent and improves the flavor.

Jams and jellies made without sugar are more like a gelatin product than a true jam or jelly. The "mouth feel" will be different and the flavor tart.

Even with these drawbacks, the jams and jellies made with artificial sweeteners, a small amount of sugar or a combination of artificial sweetener and sugar can be acceptable.

In addition, some brands of low methoxyl pectins give instructions for making jellies without any additional sugar. But if this method is used, use very ripe fruit which has a high concentration of natural sugars.

RESPONDING TO "FREE" OFFERS

Have you ever responded to an ad for a "free trial" offer and then been surprised when you received extra unordered merchandise — and a bill?

Some companies count on the fact that many consumers mistakenly believe they are obligated to pay for the merchandise or to return it at their own expense.

If you're sent things in the mail that you did not order, you have a legal right to keep the shipment as a free gift, according to Federal Trade Commission (FTC) rules.

Although it's not necessary as a requirement for keeping the merchandise, you may want to write a letter to the company saying you plan to keep it as a free gift. This may discourage the seller from sending you repeated bills or dunning notices, and from sending you other unordered merchandise in the future.

If you don't want to keep the merchandise as a gift, you can write "Refused — Unordered Merchandise" on the package and return it to sender. You don't have to pay postage to have the package returned.

Some "free gift" offers come with strings attached, that the consumer doesn't find out about until the merchandise has been received.

Under FTC rules, all conditions and terms for receiving a free item must be sent out with the original offer.

Photography clinic slated

"Improving your Photography" will be the title of an educatonal seminar set in Snyder Aug. 12. Photography instructory Larry C. Sanders, a Certified Photographic Counselor by the Photo Marketing Association, will conduct the event. The seminar is designed to help photographers understand their equipment and take better pictures.

The seminar will be held in the Texas Electric Ready Room at 2301 Avenue R from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. There will be time for questions and answers regarding personal photographic problems. Sanders recommends the seminar for both the beginning and the intermediate level photographer, and assures everyone will leave a more confident photographer.

Cost for the seminar will be $5 per person. Tickets are available in advance from Keaton Kolor at 3805 College or at the door.

Sanders has instructed photography for over eight years through Keaton Kolor's School of Photography, the Abilene Tri-College Program, TSTI in Sweetwater and in school workshops throughout the region. He also hosts "Photo Focus", a program seen on KTAB-TV.

Woman works to prevent drownings

By SUE MAJOR HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

Betty Heard doesn't hear of her successes, only her failures.

She pulls the bodies of her failures out of lakes, rivers and ditches. She deals with their grief-stricken and guilt-stricken families.

The Farmington woman conducts water safety courses, including a "drown-proof your family" program. She also recovers the bodies of drowning victims.

She said the words she hears most are "if only."

Family members tell her, "If only I had put her life jacket on; if only I hadn't taken her out in a boat when I wasn't quite sober," she said.

Drownings were the third-leading cause of accidental death in the United States in 1985 and the second-leading cause up to age 44. The highest rate of drownings was in the 15-24 age group, with the second highest rate from infants to age 4.

New Mexico, known more for its deserts than its water, has a drowning rate 40 percent above the national average. Sixty-two people drowned in the state last year; 51 drowned in New Mexico the year before.

Unofficial statistics place drownings through mid-July at 20.

Mrs. Heard said New Mexico's rivers and lakes tend to be terribly cold, which can lead to hypothermia.

State officials have said that water takes away body heat 30 times faster than air and people have only a 50-50 chance of surviving 50 minutes in 50-degree water.

New Mexico also has winds which can arise suddenly and kick up high waves.

Bill Vargas, director of search and rescue for the state police, said eight people, including four small children, drowned in Elephant Butte Lake in March 1984, after their boat capsized. High winds also were responsible for a boating accident that killed three men and a 9-year-old boy at Eagle Nest Lake in May 1984, he said.

"People don't realize a lake in New Mexico can get as rough as the North Sea when the winds pick up," Vargas said.

Mrs. Heard said 80 percent of all drownings are "just simply mistakes we shouldn't make, unthinking acts, carelessness."

She and her husband Mac, both scuba divers, became body-recoverers on Mother's Day 29 years ago, when the San Juan County sheriff's office asked them to help find the bodies of a young brother and sister so the department wouldn't have to use grappling hooks.

That was the start of San Juan County Search and Recovery, which Mac Heard directs.

"We've had a couple of saves, but unfortunately, our job is the sad one, the end result of these accidents," Mrs. Heard said.

Now she's concentrating on trying to prevent the accidents. She began her water safety programs 18 years ago and started the drown-proof sessions three years ago.

The drown-proof program actually is two separate presentations — water safety education using Omar the Octopus for preschoolers to third-graders, and using a nine-minute film for older kids and adults.

"We do more good in nine minutes than in two hours of talking," she said of the film.

Vargas described her adult awareness program as highly emotional and very sobering. Mrs. Heard calls it attention-getting, but won't discuss the film in detail, saying she doesn't want it to lose its punch.

"I presented it to almost 20,000 people at a national safety conference, and that number of people make a lot of noise sitting in an auditorium. Within three seconds, it was deathly quiet," she said.

Her program for young children is designed to get them involved in their own safety. She gives them everything from water safety tips to ways to help rescue drowning victims.

She stresses they should learn to swim, citing statistics that say kids who know how to swim have a 70 percent better chance of surviving in a water emergency than children who don't.

Omar, a person in a life-sized octopus costume, helps with much of the teaching, using his treasure trunk full of right and wrong things to do around the water.

The trunk includes beach balls and inflatable mattresses, "things you have no business out in big water on;" life jackets "you always, always wear on a boat," and ropes, plastic ice chests and plastic water bottles, "things you can throw to someone to help them come in or help them float," Mrs. Heard said.

The program warns children to stay out of ponds and ditches and to never go swimming alone.

It also stresses using life jackets from the second they set foot on a boat. Coast Guard figures show half the people who drowned in boating accidents had life jackets aboard, but were not wearing them.

The program tells people they should use life jackets even on inflatable mattresses or in inner tubes.

A 20-year-old Grants woman drowned in July 1984 when her inner tube was caught by fast water and she fell out, hitting her head. She was not wearing a life jacket.

Mrs. Heard teaches children not to try to rescue someone by swimming to them, but rather by throwing floatable objects or holding out ropes or branches to them.

Swimming class set for children

Beginning Swimming for children will be offered by the Western Texas College Continuing Education department in afternoon classes starting July 28.

The class will meet from 1-2 p.m. Monday through Thursday for two weeks, ending Aug. 7. Fees are $35 per person.

Children must be at least 48 inches tall to register for this class. They are to be pre-registered by calling the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240. Enrollment will be limited to 10 students so the instructor, Mike Harrison, will have time to work with each student.

Registration will be held from 12:45-1 p.m. July 28.

Senior center activities set

Senior citizens who enjoy playing dominoes are invited to enter a domino tournament scheduled Monday in the Senior Citizens Center.

Play will get underway at 10:30 a.m. and continue until 11:30 a.m. Table games including dominoes are a regular activity in the center each weekday.

On Tuesday, Dr. Gary Sisson will discuss eye ailments. Members will have the chance to list those they would like information on. These will be discussed in depth by Lubbock specialists at a later meeting.

Sisson's appearance will be at 11:30 a.m.

The Senior Citizen Choir from Colorado City will bring a program here on Wednesday at 11:15 a.m. in the center dining room.

A Sing Along program will get underway Friday at 11:30 a.m. in the dining area.

Center personnel remind senior citizens that numerous local businesses offer discounts upon presentation of an identification card. A complete list of cooperating businesses is available at the center at 2603 Avenue M.

Avenue D sets musical program

An evening song service is planned Sunday at Avenue D Baptist Church. Entitled "Song Sermon," the program will begin at 7 p.m.

Rev. Calvin Brown, pastor, will serve as scriptural narrator with Margaret Bigham as pianist and Barbara Mott as organist. Singers slated to appear include Mrs. Fred Overman, Delynn Mabry and Rev. R. Virgil Mott, director of music.

The public is invited to attend the program. The church is located at the corner of 30th Street and Avenue D.

Dad's Hang-Up About Doctors Could Hang Up Baby's Health

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I have been married for 10 months and am pregnant. This baby is wanted by both of us. The problem is, my husband has forbidden me to go to a doctor. I have already gone twice. Tomorrow will be my third visit. I was only able to go because I lied to my husband about where I was going.

I knew when we married that he had a hang-up about doctors, but I didn't think it would extend to me and our baby. I tried to explain to him that out of concern for my health and our baby's, I should see a doctor, but he refused to even listen to me.

He has no confidence in doctors. He even threw away my vitamin pills. I don't know where to turn. We both have jobs, and I have an excellent insurance plan, so it's not the money. I hate to keep lying to him. When he finds out I've been to a doctor — and I know he will — it will be the end of our marriage.

I am 33 years old and don't want anything to go wrong with this pregnancy. I want my husband to be part of it, but I don't know how to get through to him. Don't suggest counseling. He has no confidence in counselors either.

ME IN MARYLAND

DEAR ME: You should not have to lie to your husband about receiving prenatal care. He has all the makings of a tyrant, and you are being emotionally battered. Please see a counselor and learn how to deal with a domineering, possessive husband. If he leaves you because you are consulting a doctor to ensure your health and the health of your expected child, you might be better off without him.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice about a situation that arose a few days ago. My husband was married to a woman who had a 5-year-old son by a previous marriage. When the boy was 8, my husband adopted him. This adopted son died a few days ago. In the obituary of our local paper, my husband's ex-wife stated that her deceased son was born to her and my husband on a certain date and in a specified city. (It was four years before my husband had even met this woman!) What was even more bizarre, my husband was not listed as one of the survivors.

This woman has been married and divorced three times since she and my husband were divorced, but she always took back his surname.

We've been married for 28 years. Should my husband ignore this flagrant fabrication, or should we ask the newspaper to print a retraction? Or is there a more appropriate solution to this situation?

UPSET IN ENID, OKLA.

DEAR UPSET: Unless it is important to your husband to publicly set the record straight, it might be wiser to let it go. But do consult a lawyer for a legal opinion.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our second child in September. My adoptive mother, who was unable to have children, has asked to be an observer in the delivery room. She has promised not to interfere in any way. She wants only to be present and share in our joy. She told me she has always felt a little cheated in not having experienced a new life coming into the world. I could tell by her eyes how important this is to her.

I would love to have her there. It's the least I can do for the woman who gave me everything but life itself. My husband feels the birth of a child is a private moment between a husband and wife, and he doesn't want to share it with anyone.

We've agreed to abide by your decision.

MY MOTHER'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Since the deciding vote is mine, I'm casting it in favor of allowing your mother to be present in the delivery room. I fail to see how inviting her to share that private moment could diminish your husband's joy.

Achievement award given

Delraine P. Ferguson has been named a Collegiate Academic All-American by the United States Achievement Academy.

Ferguson, who resides in Snyder and attends Texas Tech University, was nominated for this national award by Dr. Mackie Bobo, Department of Education. She will appear in the Academic All-American Collegiate Directory, which is published nationally.

She is the wife of Ken Ferguson, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kuchenski of Rodgers, Ark.

The USAA has established the Academic All-American Collegiate Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The Academic All-American Collegiate Scholars must earn a 3.30 or better grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school official or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA. These are awards few students can ever hope to attain.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in American history. Certainly, winners of the Academic All-American Collegiate Awards should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director.

The Academy selects Academic All-American Collegiate Scholars upon the exclusive recommendations of professors, instructors, deans and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the USAA for other honors.

Famous estate purchased

By DOUG CRICHTON
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — It would have been easy to capitalize on the intrigue, murders and scandal to help sell pieces of the famed Cullen Davis estate.

The rumors, gossip and tall tales could have made a great, if slightly macabre, sales pitch.

But this is Stonegate, a 189-acre, $900 million planned community from a company eager to dump the Cullen connection — and manager Kathryn Genton doesn't believe in doing things the easy way.

"Using his name would be [illegible] sensationalism," says Ms. Genton, of the Cambridge Cos.

"I want people to look and say, 'I've heard about this first-class place,' not 'That's where the Davis murders were,'" she said.

It was 10 years ago — Aug. 2, 1976 — that a gunman burst into the Fort Worth estate of Cullen Davis, a millionaire industrialist. By the time the shooting ended, Davis' 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Lee Wilborn, and Stan Farr, a companion of Davis' estranged wife Priscilla Davis, were dead. Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel Jr. were wounded.

Davis was tried twice for murder — one trial ending in a mistrial and the other in acquittal. The killer never has been brought to justice.

Ten years ago, the Davis mansion loomed by day as a glittering trapezoidal monument to money and architectural originality. At night, it glowed like a garish ghost ship surrounded by a sea of darkness.

The art-filled interior included such touches as a swimming pool, a conversation pit with a circular fireplace in the center, a grand piano in an alcove and a game room with Davis' three pool tables and stereo equipment.

Despite a glittering chandelier, objects d'art from around the world, a secret room behind a set of bookcases, a massive fireplace and a circular hardwood staircase, the most memorable furnishing in the mansion was a large mural of Davis and Priscilla commissioned by Davis shortly after their marriage.

When Ms. Genton targeted Texas for her blitzkrieg of resumes in 1983, she had never heard of Cullen Davis or his celebrated murder trials.

While Davis sat in a courtroom, Ms. Genton, now 29, was being interviewed for an article naming her one of Glamour magazine's top 10 college women of 1979.

She arrived in Dallas in 1983 after getting a master's in business administration at Harvard Business School and within weeks landed a job with the Cambridge Cos., a real estate development firm.

Cambridge had just spent $32 million to acquire Davis' mansion and the surrounding acres for a mixed-use development, but its plans had run into a brick wall of community opposition.

She and her managing partners shepherded the project — scheduled for completion in the 1990s — through complicated negotiations with area residents, who eventually dropped their opposition to the planned community of 201 luxurious condominiums, a private membership fitness center, offices, retail space and custom homes starting at $400,000.

The condominiums already are built, although only a few of the homes are finished so far.

decide to cut a little, everything else will come down and match.

I once heard a Presbyterian preacher say, "By the year of 1990 our country will be all high rise apartments and roads, no one will own any land or houses because they cannot afford to pay the taxes." Don't you see this coming true? Is this the country you want to live in? Let's cut instead of raise that we all might live.

To the Editor,

Here's hats off to a dedicated group that's going beyond the call of duty for the benefit of every Scurry County resident. The staff of Snyder E.M.S., by drawing on personal hobbies and abilities, have been able to furnish a radio system approaching state-of-the-art in medical communications for a fraction of the cost of an outside-engineered system. The extra cost would have been to the city and county budgets and in turn each citizen.

Let's all take note of this big step forward for our local emergency medical service, a system that can now provide, in some areas, better care than many larger cities' systems. This very tough job is being met daily by the intense personal interests of the people involved.

On a similar basis, if you or your friends, club or group have expertise in an area that could benefit others, contact your county comissioner, city councilman or any social service agency today. The volunteers working every week with many fine organizations in Scurry County are helping keep your tax rate as low as possible. If we all do what we can, we all benefit.

Thanks,

Tattoo doctors bypass the brain

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Tattooing is an ancient practice that has been in demand for the past 4,000 years of recorded history. Its usual purpose is to adorn the body. Decorative tattooing reached its highest development among the Maori of New Zealand and among the Japanese, who perfected the use of color and intricate designs.

Body marking is depicted in prehistoric rock carvings. Ancient tribes used the technique as means of identification, evidence of rank and for magical significance. A relatively recent development is the puncture tattoo, in which various pigments are introduced, with a needle, into the deeper layers of the skin (dermis). Today, an electric needle is used.

Tattooing was introduced into Europe by seamen who had traveled to the Far East. The practice has been used to identify prisoners and criminals, but it is still used for valid medical reasons — to camouflage missing skin appendates, like nipples, or to mark key points on the body, as for the attachment of instruments to astronauts.

In the past few years, about 7,000 people have been tattooed for a strange reason: the application of permanent eyeliner. This is truly a sign of the times. According to news reports, more than 1,200 ophthalmologists, dermatologists and plastic surgeons have plunked down $7,000 each for state-of-the-art tattooing instruments. Yes, my friends, about 1,200 doctors have become tattoo artists. Let it never be said that today's medical entrepreneur is beneath learning any skill that will make him or her essential to whatever fad is sweeping the country. If there is money to be made, the aggressive practitioner can be counted present in the long line of people eager to make it.

There are problems, of course. The pigments — largely iron oxides — have not been proven safe, nor are they approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for injection. The companies that sell tattooing instruments, and rake in the thousands of dollars for each how-to teaching course, say: "Hogwash!" They suggest that doctors are not acting like doctors, but are functioning merely as tattoo artists. (I can't fault that reasoning.) Therefore, they say, FDA approval is not necessary.

However, iron oxides can cause allergic responses, scars, chronic skin reactions, swollen lymph glands and infection. When one dissatisfied woman goes to court with a complication of eyelid tattooing, I wonder if the judge and jury will assume that the mild-mannered, wealthy dermatologist-perpetrator is, in fact, just a tattoo artist. Or is this malpractice?

In addition, what happens when the patient decides that permanent eyeliner is no longer glamorous? Fashions change, you know. Removing unwanted tattoos is already a booming business; it's much more difficult a procedure than the application of tattoo pigments. Taking off the lines of dots on the upper and lower lids would involve an operation called blephoroplasty, and the result is usually undesirable from a cosmetic standpoint.

Some concerned physicians are justifiably asking, "Why? How come? What's it all about?" If the current rate of tattoo-equipment sales continues, by the end of the century, we may be up to our eyelids in doctors who specialize in tattooing. Other doctors are calling for a moratorium until the devices and substances have bee proven safe in careful follow-u studies.

I predict that this form of eye em bellishment will provide easy mone for rapacious doctors, as long as ther are people who clamor to have i done. Unquestionably — sooner o later — there will be patient dissatis faction and lawsuits. Then we'll dis cover whether being a tattoo-parlo operator is as much fun — and as fi nancially rewarding — as certain doctors think it is.

For now, I wouldn't touch the eyelic with a 10-foot needle. My specialty is those cute little butterflies on the in sides of thighs.

Computers help improve basic skills

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Joe Sanchez is deep in thought as he stares at his computer screen. He says he's good in math, except for subtraction, so this problem is giving him a little trouble.

The computer asks Sanchez to subtract 267 from 2,125. He gets the answer wrong on his first try — subtracting is hard when you can't do it on paper, he says — but the computer responds with a "Good" when he answers 1,818 on his second attempt.

The next question is an easy one for Sanchez. "The price of a kilogram of meat is $3. How much does four kilograms of meat cost?" He answers 12, to which the computer responds "Very Good."

Sanchez, 15, is spending a few hours each week working on his math skills as part of the Computer Assisted Instruction Project at the University of New Mexico.

The program, which began in the spring of 1985, is designed to improve basic education skills — including math and English — and enable instructors to monitor individual progress at the same time, said Peggy Blackwell, project coordinator and assistant dean of the UNM College of Engineering.

Participants include middle, high school and college students who need help with specific skills and Job Training Partnership Act teen-agers and adults who seek training before they enter or re-enter school or the job market.

"One of the advantages is that it's very non-threatening to students," Blackwell said. "We're working in areas where we have poor or displaced workers. We find that when we bring adults back to school, their level of anxiety increases.

"In a typical classroom you're on center stage, so to speak, perhaps perceived to be judging. The computer is used to supplement classroom instruction."

Blackwell said the computer provides the initial diagnosis of a participant's skill level, after which students complete lessons at their own pace on individual terminals.

The system allows instructors to monitor individual progress, including the number of lessons a student completes and areas of individual difficulty, Blackwell said.

"Students can then receive personal assistance from the instructor in the traditional teacher-student manner," she said.

Two computer assisted programs are operating in the state, one at UNM and another at Ernie Pyle Middle School in Albuquerque.

Luna Vocational Technical Institute in Las Vegas, the Grants branch of New Mexico State University and Western New Mexico University in Silver City wrapped up computer assisted programs last month, Blackwell said. Those sites were chosen to enable a maximum number of JTPA students from economically depressed areas to receive the training, she said.

A mobile trailer that houses 32 terminals has brought the computer program to rural areas of New Mexico, including Springer and Crownpoint.

"We have adults who have never put their hands on a computer. To them it's a magical, mystical thing," Blackwell said. "Hopefully, we expand some horizons."

Students at UNM and JTPA sites average a fourth-grade level of mathematic skills before enrolling in the program, she said, while all other adult students had at least eight years of math training before beginning the program.

After an average of 18 lessons, which represents about three hours of computer instruction, students showed a gain in math skills of about six months.

"We found that students in the program learned mathematics at a rate at least four times faster than they had learned previously," Blackwell said. "That kind of increase in rates is remarkable."

Sanchez, who will begin his sophomore year at Rio Grande High School this fall, has been working on the computers at UNM for four weeks. And while he hates subtraction, he says he becoming better at it.

"It's keeping me refreshed so I don't go back not knowing anything next year," he said. "Math is my best subject, and this is pushing me up."

Alex Gonzalez, coordinator of the lab at UNM and a graduate student in computer science, said students test in at an average fifth-grade level for the English as a Second Language program.

After an average of five weeks, working one hour a week on the computer, students increase their English skills at a level of between six and nine months, he said.

"We're seeing this kind of fairly steep achievement gain with all people working on it," Blackwell said. "It hasn't leveled off, and I suppose at some point they may just test out of the program."

The program is developed in stages, so that a student who tests out of the first and easiest stage advances to the second, more difficult stage.

Program will provide food

Officials with the Snyder Child Day Care Center announced that the center will begin the Child Care Food program.

All children attending the facility will be offered the same meals with no physical segregation or other discrimination based on race, color, handicap, sex, age, national origin or ability to pay.

Rates for the meals are set on a sliding scale according to the family's monthly income and family size.

Single member households with a monthly income of $569 can receive free meals. If wages rise to $810, the family qualifies for a reduced price.

For other family sizes, income must be: two members-$764 or $1,087; three members-$959 or $1,365; four members-$1,154 or $1,642; five members-$1,349 or $1,920; six members-$1,544 or $2,197; seven members-$1,739 or $2,475; and eight membes-$1,934 or $2,752.

Swimming class for preschoolers

Toddler Swimming classes will be offered July 28-Aug. 7 at Western Texas College, Mike Harrison, instructor, said.

The class will meet from 12 noon to 1 p.m. in the indoor pool at WTC. Children must be at least three years of age. Fees will be $35 per student, to be paid at registration at 11:45 a.m. on July 28 preceding the first class.

To reserve space in the class, parents are to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

July 27, 1986

Favorable changes in your basic life style are in the offing for you during the year ahead. The improvements you experience will benefit other members of your family as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have cross words with a family member today, don't talk about it to others. Your problem at home will be patched up, but what you say will be repeated over and over. Major changes are ahead for Leos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you dislike may be getting a bit too chummy with a close pal of yours. Before it goes further, explain your dilemma to your friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't put a friend in an embarrassing position today by asking to borrow something in front of others that you know he or she doesn't want to loan out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Participate in fun activities today instead of trying to do something you hope will further your personal ambitions. You need a break from the workaday world.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful or you might trip over your own ego in competitive situations with friends. Don't take life so seriously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Information passed on to you today by "insiders" should be taken with a grain of salt. There's a chance they may just be talking to hear themselves talk.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Think before speaking today or else you may make some comments that another will find offensive, even though you didn't intend them to be so.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If a competitor beats you at a social sport today, it could be because he or she has been busy practicing or taking lessons while you weren't.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Family disagreements should not be discussed in the presence of outsiders today. Arguments will make guests in your home feel extremely uncomfortable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Partnership arrangements may not work out too well for you today. It appears as if neither you nor your partner will use his or her best judgment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless it is absolutely essential today, it's best to temporarily set aside your commercial transactions. If you must conduct business, be extra careful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because you'll feel you have so much to say today, you might attempt to dominate conversations with friends. Bear in mind we also learn by listening.

July 28, 1986

Small spare-time enterprises could provide you with additional money in the year ahead. However, be careful they don't consume too much time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you allow your ego to get in your way today it could hamper you from achieving an important goal. You might make the wrong moves just to prove you're right. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a possibility you might have to contend with someone today who will try to impede your progress with underhanded methods. Watch out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Linking up with the wrong person in a collective venture today could produce undesirable results. Be wise with your selection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Make concessions when dealing with companions today, provided they don't ask something not in line with your standards and principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be sensible about the agenda you set for yourself today. You'll impair your effectiveness if you try to do too many things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone who isn't overly fond of you might offer you an attractive proposal today. Examine the bundle to see if there are strings attached.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you are obstinate and inflexible today, you may run into two people who will be prepared to stand up to you. There will be no victories in these contests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're the type of person who recognizes faults in others, but is usually forgiving. This splendid quality may be absent from your makeup today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take a realistic and prudent stance in your commercial affairs today. Be a trifle tightfisted, but don't expect a lot for a little.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In order to be a leader today you must first set a proper example. Others cannot be expected to do things that you won't do yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might spend so much time worrying about whether you can rely on others, that you'll fail to be dependable yourself. Hold up your end.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Temper your enthusiasm and optimism with practicality today. Don't take financial gambles where the odds are overwhelming.
