Car dealership back to Shroyer

BIG SPRING — A Pontiac-General Motors dealership has changed hands — again. Shroyer Motor Company, returning to its former name after one year as Williams Motor Company, is undergoing reorganization, owner Sonny Shroyer said.

The car dealership, under the ownership of Frank Williams for the past year, suffered financial problems and was returned to Shroyer, he said. Shroyer said he is open for business now and many of his old employees have come back to work in both sales and service. Shroyer had been semi-retired during the last year. "I was here 50 years the first time. I guess we're going to try for 50 more," Shroyer said.

Sands kindergarten sets registration

ACKERLY — Sands Schools in Ackerly will hold pre-registration for kindergarten Wednesday at 2:40 p.m. in the Kindergarten Room.

Parents of children at least 5 years old by Sept. 1, 1990 should bring immunization records, social security number and birth certificate to the registration.

For more information, call 353-4888.

Re-elected HC trustees recognized

BIG SPRING — Four re-elected members of the Howard County Junior College District Board of Trustees were officially recognized at a special meeting Monday.

After an official canvassing of the votes, Dr. P.W. Malone, James Barr and Dr. Charles O. Warren signed a Statement of Officer swearing that they offered no bribes to gain the trustee position.

The statement will be sent to Austin in order to be received by the Secretary of State before the trustees take the oath of office May 28.

Election results following the official canvassing showed six write-in candidates received one vote each. The incumbent trustees were elected by more than 1,000 votes each.

In other business, the trustees accepted a bid by an Odessa pest control company for extermination of the dorm at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. The extermination bid, awarded to Lester Humphrey Pest Control, will cost $3,200.

A bid for fourteen microscopes was accepted from Carolina Biological in Burlington, NC at a cost of $8,961. The microscopes will be used at the San Angelo campus.

New reservoir 'taking shape'

BALLINGER — Those attending the May 19 ceremonies at the state's newest reservoir will get to see a lake taking shape.

Although flooding rains which engulfed Brownwood largely missed the new watershed, Lake O.H. Ivie has gained 25 vertical feet since closure of the outlet works April 24.

While much of the 17,000 ac. ft. is represented in filling the Colorado River channel and the borrow area at the foot of the dam on the upstream side, the main body of the fledgling lake is just beginning to spread.

Approximately two square miles of surface area are now inundated, according to John L. Taylor, president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District which built the project as a long-range regional water supply. This represents about 6 percent of the reservoir area at capacity, and 3 percent of the 54,000 ac. ft. capacity.

The reservoir has only 17 more vertical feet to go before the lake is opened to the public for recreational purposes.

Gloria's parents indicted; charged with moving body

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

ODESSA — An Ector County grand jury indicted the parents of Gloria Castillo Monday on charges of abuse of a corpse and misdemeanor charges of providing false information to law enforcement authorities.

The indictments were returned after a seven hour meeting in the case of the former Big Spring girl's strangling death last month.

Jose Francisco Castillo, who was reported to be the victim's putative father, and Ninefa Castillo, the victim's mother, were each charged with abuse of a corpse when they were alleged to have illegally moved the victim's body away from their trailer house in West Odessa.

The parents were each charged with abuse of a corpse when they were alleged to have illegally moved the former Big Spring girl's body away from their trailer house in West Odessa.

The body was found April 21 in a field near the Castillo trailer home after Mrs. Castillo reported her daughter missing April 14.

The parents were also charged with making false reports to law investigators and lying while under oath, according to Michael Griffin, a prosecutor in the Ector County Criminal District Attorney's office. Officials were originally told that Gloria Castillo had been abducted, but investigators do not believe the report was valid, according to Ector County District Attorney Gary Garrison.

The Castillos voluntarily surrendered to authorities Monday and were released on bond, Griffin said.

The grand jury also indicted Donald Wayne Bleckler, 31, maintenance man at the trailer park, with two counts of aggravated sexual assault against another child. Griffin said this morning that the arrest of the former maintenance man is connected with the Castillo case, but would give no details.

Bleckler was indicted on charges of abuse of a corpse and making a false report as well.

He remained in Ector County Jail this morning in lieu of a $250,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford.

An autopsy report showed that the 8-year-old girl had been strangled, and authorities said a rope was around the girl's neck when her body was found.

Griffin declined to further elaborate about the case, but said the investigation will continue under the jurisdiction of the Ector County Sheriff's Department.

GLORIA CASTILLO

Griffin said the Texas Department of Human Services has custody of Mrs. Castillo's minor children.

Search on for missing brother

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — A local man has been missing for two days, and law enforcement authorities and family members are combing the area.

Michael "Mickey" Kenneth Hendricks, 28, was last seen by a friend at about 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Snyder, according to Hendricks' brother, Scott Hendricks. Mickey Hendricks has lived in Big Spring with his mother, Beverly Hoffmann, for about a year, Scott Hendricks said.

The missing man, who family members say threatened suicide on Sunday, is described as being about 5-feet 8-inches tall, and weighing about 160 pounds. He has dark hair and a mustache and brown eyes. Anyone with information is urged to contact the family at 267-3469 or 263-0701.

Scott Hendricks said the family has reported Mickey Hendricks, who is employed by Universal Oil Field Services, as missing to both the Sheriff's Office and the Police Department.

Police Lt. Terry Chamness confirmed that the department received the report Sunday night and that officers are searching for

Cox joining staff of Hall-Bennett

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Hall-Bennett Hospital is one step closer to reopening today with the announcement that it has hired a new general practitioner, according to a hospital spokesman.

Dr. Bruce Cox, currently affiliated with Malone-Hogan Clinic, will join the staff May 14, said Cheryl New, the hospital's administrative assistant. She described Cox as a young and enthusiastic doctor. "We're extremely pleased with him," she said.

"It's an interesting set up and I'm excited about it," Cox said. "I worked over there before on staff privileges. In fact I may be the only one in town to have privileges at all three hospitals." Cox has worked with Cowper, which closed in 1985, Scenic Mountain, and Hall-Bennett during his ten-year tenure in Big Spring.

"The hospital's another alternative for Big Spring and it deserves it. We have big hopes to get it started," said Cox.

Cox and Dr. Louise Worthy, a pediatrician, comprise the kernel of Hall-Bennett's medical staff at the moment. New said she expected another doctor to sign-on by July 1, but he has not made a final decision yet. Eventually the hospital will have a staff of four physicians: two general practitioners, a pediatrician and a general surgeon.

"We're moving right along. We'll reopen the hospital in the latter part of the summer," New said.

The clinic has stayed open throughout long negotiations on the fate of the hospital. Cox and Worthy will keep office hours there, with hospital privileges at Scenic Mountain Medical Center until the surgery is reopened.

Hall-Bennett's former board of directors wanted to close down the financially troubled hospital when they could not attract new doctors after Dr. Clyde Thomas retired. But New and other staff members rallied the community and organized a new board of directors motivated to keep the hospital running.

Since March, when the new

Lawmakers OK another school reform package

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis said he hopes lawmakers will send Gov. Bill Clements a school finance reform measure by the end of the week that could present the governor with difficult choices.

- Vetoing the bill and possibly putting reform in the hands of a judge.
- Approving the bill without new state education funding, which could shift money from property-rich to property-poor school districts.
- Breaking his vow to veto new taxes and allowing the $555 million funding level lawmakers want for next school year.

The Democrat-controlled Legislature wants to help pay for school reform with a half-cent sales tax increase, which the Republican governor vetoed in the last special session that ended last week.

"The governor will just have to do what he feels is necessary, as we feel we have to do what we feel is necessary," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Monday. He said the choice is between a higher state tax or higher local property taxes.

The governor this session — backed his own $250 million reform plan, to be financed with budget cuts and an increase in the state fee for driving records.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, sponsored Clements' plan in bill form. But Leedom wasn't present

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said if at least $550 million isn't put into the Legislature's plan — the amount Parker deemed lawmakers' bottom line — he would support simply redistributing current state funds to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order for change.

That could require local property tax increases or budget cuts in

HOWARD COUNTY — It was a slow Sunday night in the county.

As sheriff's deputy Woodie Howell patrolled a lonely stretch of Gatesville Road in the purple dusk, he noticed an aberration in the road's surface. The asphalt was grooved several inches deep and in one place a foot of pavement had caved off the side of the roadway.

His interest piqued, Howell followed the marred marks onto Hilltop Road. They ended at the residence of Leo Salazar. The deputy asked Salazar about the marks and the man accepted responsibility for the ridged roadway.

Salazar told Howell he had bought a 14-by-56-foot mobile home

Labs to examine ripped aerostat

MARFA (AP) — Pieces of a helium balloon that monitors drug smuggling on the Texas-Mexico border are being analyzed in labs to determine why the blimp ripped during a powerful wind storm.

The aerostat, considered by Customs to be the backbone of defense in the government-declared war on drugs, ripped in three pieces April 28 when surface winds were measured at 50 knots or about 57 mph. It was tethered near the ground when it was damaged.

The balloon, made of eight layers of compressed laminated polyester and adhesive, should be able to operate in winds of 65 knots when it is tethered at 15,000 feet above ground and withstand winds as high as 90 knots when it is moored near the ground, according to brochures by the balloon's designer, General Electric Government Services.

The Marfa balloon and one in Rio Grande City have been grounded since December when another balloon aloft over Eagle Pass snapped its tether and was deflated after it floated several miles away.

Nudists prepare for mosquito plague

DALLAS (AP) — The news from biologists that record flooding over the past two weeks is likely to produce a bumper crop of mosquitoes has been particularly unsettling to one group of Texans — nudists.

Claudia Adcock, manager of the Ponderosa Ranch nudist colony near Wills Point, said her camp is putting up bird houses to lure purple martins, which eat mosquitos "like nobody's business."

Officials said pests such as mosquitoes, fleas and fire ants will be plentiful because of the moisture this spring from the worst flooding since 1908.

Spring is a particularly tough time for nudists anyway because many people are venturing out into the sun for the first time all year.

To protect novice nudists, Ponderosa keeps an ample supply of insect repellent, sunburn ointment, poison-ivy lotion and other skin-injury remedies.

"Sunburn is our biggest problem with newcomers," Ms. Adcock said. "If your butt ain't seen daylight before, you don't have any idea how quickly it's going to burn."

Greyhound claims drivers strike is over

DALLAS (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. may have resumed most of its operations, but analysts question whether the company has enough cash to avoid bankruptcy as it tries to recover from a 9-week walkout by bus drivers.

Greyhound Chairman Fred G. Currey said Monday the strike is "in effect concluded from the point of view of day-to-day operations."

He said Greyhound is serving areas which brought in 98 percent of its revenue last year, and will be running at 90 percent of scheduled pre-strike miles by June 19.

Union officials challenged the assertion, pointing to the company's recent announcement of a $55.8 million first-quarter loss and continuing drain. The company said it would not make a $9.75 million interest payment due May 15; in addition, Greyhound did not pay about $5 million in lease payments due at the end of April.

Analysts also focused on Greyhound's liquidity, wondering if the Dallas-based company will be able to pay bills to operate, even if creditors don't call in their loans — a possibility because of the missed payments.

Greyhound, which had amassed a strike fund of more than $50 million, has said the frequently violent walkout has cost more than anticipated. In documents filed with the federal Securities and Exchange Commission last week, Greyhound said it had spent $20 million on beefed up security, legal fees and extra driver training.

"They've been crunching through cash," said one analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The question is how much cash do they have and can they operate based on that."

"I'm surprised at how much cash they're burning," said another analyst, who also declined to be identified. "Cash could become a real bind."

Both analysts said they believed it likely, although not certain, that the company would have to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors.

One analyst gave the company only a 20 percent chance of avoiding bankruptcy, a turnaround from a previous prediction of an 80 percent chance.

The current Greyhound was formed three years ago when Currey led an investor group's $270 million purchase of the bus operations of Phoenix-based Greyhound Corp., since renamed Greyhound Dial Corp. The former parent retains 24.8 percent ownership of the new company, although Currey controls Greyhound Dial's shares.

On Monday, Currey would not disclose Greyhound's cash resources, although he said money that would have been used to cover interest and lease costs is being used to help operate the company.

However, Currey said the creditors recognize Greyhound can be rebuilt and "we expect and we've received cooperation."

Currey said ridership increased last week to its highest levels since the strike began, although it remains between 65 percent and 75 percent of year-ago levels.

Revenue is running at about the same level, he said, and remains less than expenses, although it is nearly a break-even level.

Union officials said Currey's victory claim was a publicity stunt and suggested Greyhound was trying to scare drivers back to work.

"It's a common ploy to try to scare a few more strikers into scabbing by announcing that there's no hope," said AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty.

"Mr. Currey's claim that the Greyhound strike is over is like Napoleon claiming victory at Waterloo — it's both ridiculous and false," said Jim La Sala, international president of the Amalgamated Transit Union, the umbrella organization for the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

Accidental shooting deaths up

HOUSTON (AP) — Accidental shootings blamed on unsafe gun handling and a lack of parental supervision have claimed the lives of more Houston children so far this year than in all of 1989, authorities say.

Debbie Mcmenhemy, who keeps homicide division statistics for the Houston Police Department said Monday that two youngsters were shot to death by youngsters Sunday, bringing this year's total to eight, compared with seven such juvenile slayings during all of 1989. Four of this year's victims accidentally shot themselves, she said.

In the most recent killing, 18-month-old David Rosales was shot in the head by his 3-year-old brother at their home.

Police said the father took his .380-caliber semiautomatic pistol out of a closet and placed it on the floor. While he returned to the closet to retrieve a bullet on the floor, the 3-year-old picked up the pistol and it discharged.

The boy died early Monday at Ben Taub Hospital.

In Sunday's other incident, a 12-year-old boy was shot in the chest by a playmate who thought he was handling an unloaded weapon.

The victim, Kendrick Darton, was lying on a bed when a 13-year-old boy picked up a .25-caliber pistol from a dresser and began to play with the weapon.

Police said the boy pulled the ammunition clip from the pistol and pulled the trigger. The boy died later at Ben Taub Hospital. The 13-year-old apparently was unaware a bullet remained in the firing chamber, officers said.

Homicide Capt. Bobby Adams blamed almost all accidental shootings on people's failure to secure firearms safely in their homes.

"Children pick up a gun and are not familiar with guns and don't understand how they work," he said. "They start playing with it, and it goes off. Even a lot of adults are not fully educated about firearms."

"The common thread is unsafe handling of firearms and not enough parental supervision," Adams said. "Children just shouldn't be around guns. It's that simple."

A program aimed to educate the public against such accidental shooting was instituted four years ago by then-Police Chief Lee P. Brown, but the program is no longer in operation.

Police Capt. Dale Brown said the department does offer seminars and presentations to group of parents and children.

"We still have some of the materials from the program, and our officers do touch on the subject during their regular safety talks to children," Brown said.

The presentations stress responsible gun ownership to adults and tell children that guns are not playthings.

"If a young child finds a gun, they can't tell the difference between a real one or a toy," he said. "We tell the kids that if you see a gun, don't even touch it. Go get an adult."

Attorney says fetus burial illegal

EL PASO (AP) — An anti-abortion group arranged a burial for four fetuses found in a landfill in March, but the El Paso County attorney said Monday the group has no legal right to do so.

Sammy Oppenheim, director of Rescue El Paso, announced the funeral service and burials for the fetuses in a news release he hand-delivered to the media. The release said the county attorney's office had issued a legal opinion allowing Oppenheim to take custody of the fetuses.

"We want to pay those babies the honor and the dignity they deserve as human beings," Oppenheim said.

But County Attorney Joe Lucas said his office did not issue an opinion allowing Oppenheim to take custody of the fetuses.

"I specifically told Mr. Oppenheim that he was not allowed by law to accept or to receive the fetuses," Lucas said. "I told (the medical examiner's office) it could not give them to him."

The fetuses were found March 2 in jars in a trash dump near Vinton, on the outskirts of northwest El Paso. Police said a man working in the landfill found the fetuses at about 7:30 a.m. and called Oppenheim, who arrived at the scene before police.

An ecumenical service is scheduled Thursday at St. Patrick's Cathedral and burials is scheduled for Friday morning. The caskets were donated by Futrell Funeral Home.

Lucas said the county is investigating why the fetuses were released by the medical examiner's office to Oppenheim.

NASA to bury disaster remnants

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The charred remnants of America's two worst space tragedies, the 1967 Apollo fire and the 1986 Challenger explosion, will soon be united in an abandoned missile silo miles from any plaque or memorial.

The Apollo capsule will be moved from NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., where it has been in a shipping container for 23 years, and buried atop the remains of the shuttle.

No ceremony is scheduled when the capsule, its heat shield and 31 cartons of hardware and investigative material arrive on a flatbed truck around May 20. No marker is planned.

"It's not as if by putting this in the silo we have forgotten the contribution these guys have made to the program. There are memorials" elsewhere, said NASA spokesman Mark Hess. "We didn't think it was really appropriate that we do anything special or make some kind of a public event out of this."

People will remember, regardless of what happens to the spacecraft remains, Hess said. "They will remember that as long as there is a space program," he said.

Fire on U.S. destroyer kills one

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A fire broke out early today aboard the guided-missile destroyer USS Conyngham about 80 miles off North Carolina, killing a crew member and injuring at least nine others, the Navy said.

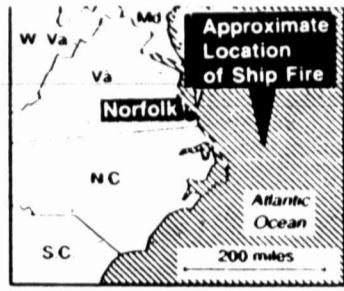

Five of the sailors had injuries serious enough to require evacuation to shore, Capt. Paul Hanley, a U.S. Atlantic Fleet spokesman, said.

The Conyngham was conducting routine operations with about 360 crew members when the fire broke out at 5:35 a.m. in the ship's engineering area, officials said. Fleet spokesmen had no information on the extent of the blaze or damage to the ship.

Hanley said three Coast Guard cutters were standing by along with the guided-missile cruiser

USS Normandy and the destroyer USS Briscoe as the Conyngham crew fought the blaze.

"The cause of the fire is unknown at this time. The primary fire is out. The crew is fighting secondary fires," Air Force Maj. Tom Johnston, joint duty officer at the Norfolk naval base, said at mid-morning.

Scientist favors animal rights bill by Stenholm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas Tech researcher whose lab was destroyed by animal rights activists says he favors legislation in Congress that would make it a federal crime to steal animals from farms or universities.

"We're back working at great cost," said Dr. John Orem, a physiologist whose study of infant sleep disorders was disrupted for nearly 10 months by vandalism and theft of research animals.

An underground group called the Animal Liberation Front took credit for the theft of five research cats and $70,000 in vandalism to Orem's lab last July 4.

A bill by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, would make breaking into facilities such as Orem's a federal crime punishable by up to three years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

"The entire biomedical research effort in the United States is under constant pressure from these groups," Stenholm said Monday.

"Local law enforcement agencies were confronted with a terrorist act. The perpetrators were members of a national, if not international group. To counter these requires involvement of agencies that are national in scope," Orem said.

"The extremists you've got to fight. The only way you fight extremists is on their battleground," Stenholm said.

But a leader of the nation's largest animal rights organization said Stenholm's bill and others pending in Congress on the issue are "inflammatory."

Ingrid Newkirk, national director of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, urged lawmakers instead to create an adequate way to review allegations of animal abuse.

"What really is needed for everybody's sake is some oversight system," Ms. Newkirk said.

Though not included in his bill, Stenholm said he favors creation of a panel that would investigate such allegations and give protection to the whistleblowers who make them. He said he planned to discuss such a panel with officials from the Humane Society.

Another animal research bill, which may be debated with Stenholm's in a House Agriculture subcommittee next week, would give legal standing to persons who want to file lawsuits on behalf of animals covered by the Animal Welfare Act.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., would penalize the theft of research animals, except those taken "temporarily, for the purpose of documenting that violations of Federal regulations ... have occurred."

Stenholm said he thinks his bill has a better chance for passage.

Police: Cartel plans house bombs

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — In the latest terrifying twist in the drug war, traffickers are buying up homes near police stations in intent on turning them into house bombs, a top police official says.

"The traffickers are willing to pay five or six times the value of the houses in order to fill them with dynamite and blow them up," said Col. Oscar Pelaez, chief of the country's investigative police.

Pelaez told a news conference Monday that the case was still under investigation, but did say that some of the homes involved were adjacent his agency's headquarters in southern Bogota. The Medellin cocaine cartel, as part of a terror campaign in retaliation for a government crackdown, has targeted police in its latest onslaught of car bombings and other attacks.

Most of the violence has been in the city of Medellin itself, where more than 30 police officers have been killed the last two months. Several civilians have also died in the attacks.

The drug lords have said in communiques that they are retaliating for what they say is police torture and killing of detained cartel members.

Jews honor victims at historic villa

WEST BERLIN (AP) — The World Jewish Congress today solemnly honored the memory of the 6 million Jewish victims of the Holocaust at the picturesque mansion where Nazi leaders plotted their "Final Solution."

In Hebrew, German and English, participants read words penned by death camp survivor and Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel.

"What does a Jew today feel in this place, marked by evil and malediction? Fear and trembling, anger — incommensurate anger, helplessness and grief, infinite grief."

The ceremony came on the final day of a three-day meeting of the World Jewish Congress, its first in Germany. Some delegates declined to attend, saying the trip to the heart of Nazi tyranny would be too traumatic.

Under brilliant, sunny skies, the congress leaders gathered in front of decaying Wannsee villa, where on January 20, 1942 high-ranking officials of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich planned the extermination of the Jews.

Pope defends church's colonial role

VERACRUZ, Mexico (AP) — In the port city where Christianity first entered Mexico, Pope John Paul II defended plans to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christianity in the New World from critics who say the church came as an agent of conquest, repression and disease.

"The discovery, the conquest and the evangelization occupy a decisive, luminous place taken all together, even though they are not without shadows," John Paul told thousands of people at a waterfront prayer service on Monday.

In Veracruz, 200 miles east of Mexico City, the pope spoke from a raised platform along the Gulf Coast harbor where conquistadors led by Hernan Cortes first reached Mexico in 1519.

They were followed five years later by the first group of missionaries.

The celebrations planned for 1992, the 500th anniversary Columbus' arrival in America, have prompted a fierce debate in Latin America.

Bank turned over to Philippines

NEW YORK (AP) — A Los Angeles bank that allegedly was used by Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos to launder money stolen from their country has been turned over to the Philippine government.

The bank, estimated by a defense attorney to be worth $20 million to $30 million, was transferred Monday in a significant victory for the government of President Corason Aquino.

The Philippines is trying to recover more than $220 million allegedly embezzled by the Marcoses from the country's treasury during Marcos' 20 years in power. A newspaper reported today that the Marcoses doled out about $8.5 million to politicians, reporters and others in the last 100 days of the Philippine dictator's regime in a desperate attempt to retain power.

The transfer of all shares in the California Overseas Bank to the Manila government was part of a March 16 plea bargain in federal court, where Mrs. Marcos is on trial. The bank had pleaded guilty to wire fraud.

The bank was owned by Robert S. Benedicto, a one-time Marcos crony whom prosecutors charged with conspiring to help Marcos shift stolen money to secret Swiss accounts and other personal uses.

Mrs. Marcos is alleged to have participated with her husband in the embezzlement, using the money to live in luxury and invest in New York real estate.

World War I veterans still fighting for pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The struggle for World War I veterans for a small pension makes it seem as if the trench fighting never stopped.

Each year brings a new assault on a seemingly impregnable position known as Capitol Hill. Each new wave is smaller, as those who escaped bullets, gas, influenza and shrapnel are felled by time.

More than 4.5 million Americans served from 1917 to 1918 — 2 million "over there" with Gen. John J. Pershing's American Expeditionary Force. Half a million or more risked their lives elsewhere making "the world safe for Democracy," according to the organization Veterans of World War I.

But these veterans — the few that are left — complain that they never were recognized for their service the way other veterans were. They say they were underpaid compared with their civilian counterparts who profited from war production, and the Depression devoured the meager benefits they were able to squeeze out of a prostrate economy.

Most were too old and settled by the end of World War II to take advantage of the array of housing, educational and other benefits offered in the GI Bill of Rights.

So they tried again last week. "Please help us over the top," Don R. Pears, 90, of Buchanan, Mich., said at a joint hearing of the House and Senate Veterans Affairs committees.

After receiving a brief extension of his allotted time to testify, Pears asked, "How many minutes do I have?"

Not too many.

Five years ago the World War I veterans were 171,000 strong. In March 1989, there were 111,000. This past March there were 90,000, and their average age was close to 95.

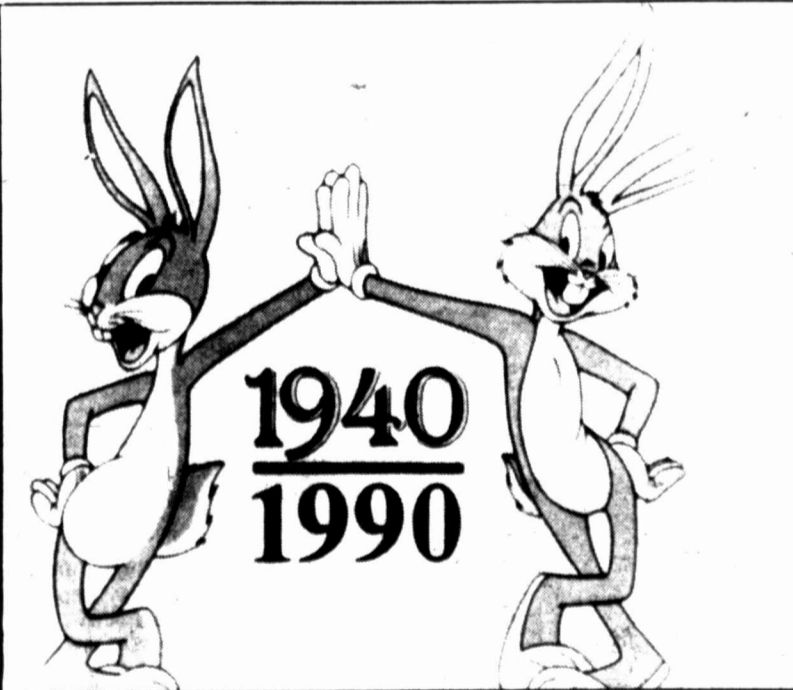

Three-quarters of the veterans are in hospitals or nursing homes, and the Department of Veterans Affairs estimates that by the turn of the century there will be 7,000 left; by the year 2010, fewer than 500.

Some World War I veterans receive pensions based upon illness or poverty. But the veterans group seeks passage of any of the perennial handful of bills that would grant either a $10,000 lump sum or $150 a month for veterans simply because they served in the war. A smaller amount would go to widows over age 80.

The WWI veterans have gained at least one vocal ally in Congress. Rep. Glenn M. Anderson, D-Calif., last month delivered a long speech on the House floor in favor of H.R. 1918, one of the pension bills, picking up about 25 more sponsors to bring the total to 100. Anderson also wrote a letter last week to President Bush calling attention to the veterans.

HUD has a big housing job to do

In a Capitol Hill hearing room last week, a former official in the Department of Housing and Urban Development, provided seamy details about how the department functioned under former Secretary Samuel Pierce. HUD money, taxpayers' money, went to Pierce's friends and political associates, DuBois Gilliam testified.

Gilliam, now serving an 18-month prison sentence for taking bribes at HUD, said recipients included a former campaign manager for Pierce who was "down and out" and a Kansas City developer with ties to then-Vice President Bush.

The campaign manager, Sam Singletary, received a $350,000 HUD grant even though the city that was supposed to benefit from the project, Camden, N.J., had never requested it. Gilliam said aides to Bush pushed through the Kansas City grant, $500,000, even though the developer was clearly undeserving.

While Pierce and company allegedly were using taxpayers' money to dole out favors to their friends, they also were systematically dismantling HUD programs designed to provide housing for the nation's poor. And Congress is having a devilish time putting some kind of program back together again.

Congressional Quarterly reports that 800,000 to 1 million families are on waiting lists for public housing across the country. Another 1 million are waiting for federal vouchers and certificates to subsidize their rents.

Despite the need, Congress has discovered that it can't do much, mainly because of budget constraints. The most ambitious of three omnibus housing bills under consideration would add less than 200,000 households to the subsidized rolls in 1991.

Clearly, that's inadequate, but as Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, points out, an imperfect bill is better than no bill. "We have a chance at least for a starting point," the Banking Committee chairman told Congressional Quarterly. "We have to make up for the last nine years."

Gonzalez' own bill would significantly expand existing programs; a Senate measure co-sponsored by Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., would reorganize the current programs and create new ones. The Bush administration's proposal would create a program called HOPE (Home Ownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere). HOPE, which would create programs to help low-income people buy homes, is expected to be incorporated into both the House and Senate measures.

It's important to learn how HUD was abused in the 1980s; DuBois Gilliam and his former cronies should continue to sing. It's even more important to get HUD back into the low-cost housing business. Several million Americans with acute housing needs are painfully persuasive evidence that HUD has a job to do.

Few lawmakers dispute the need for reform bill

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A close observer may doubt Congress' sincerity on issues such as the environment, abortion and the deficit. But not on campaign finance reform.

Many lawmakers sincerely want to reform their campaign opponents out of contention.

For the past two years, the idea of revamping the federal campaign finance system has been at the top of the congressional agenda.

But so far there's been more heat than light from the 535 experts grappling with the issue from their seats in the Capitol.

The Senate deadlocked repeatedly on the issue in 1988, and agreement remains elusive today. House Republican and Democratic leaders formed a task force on campaign reform in the wake of the ethics-related resignation of former Speaker Jim Wright, and nearly a year later it is stalled.

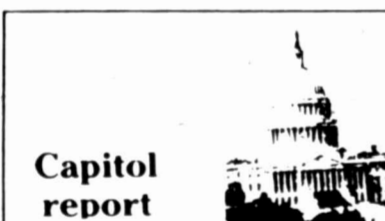

There's little disagreement over the problem. Campaigns cost so much that raising money for them is a full-time job, prone to conflicts of interest and not leaving much time for legislating.

But almost any solution favors one side over another.

The main Democratic proposal would cap the total amount that candidates may spend in a campaign. Republicans don't like the idea because the Democrats get a lot of off-the-books help, primarily from labor unions.

The GOP would eliminate most donations from political action committees, non-monetary help from labor and other groups, and give the political parties a bigger role in House and Senate elections. PACs give mightily to Democratic incumbents while the Republican Party, with President Bush as chief fundraiser, can easily outpend the Democratic Party.

Some Democrats favor public financing of campaigns, perhaps through an income tax checkoff, but that proposal is anathema to most conservatives.

The differences between the parties are so sharp that in the House, Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., recently agreed to hold off action until later in the spring in hopes the Senate can find some common ground.

There are a few areas of possible agreement — for example, mandated discounts for television campaign advertising.

But even proposals that would hit incumbent candidates from both parties equally can be sensitive, such as the proposal by Senate Republicans to place tough restrictions on taxpayer-financed mailings by senators in an election year.

The congressional "frank" is one of the big advantages incumbents have over their challengers. The minority Republicans are looking to make all of Congress more vulnerable, to increase their own chances of taking over.

But House Speaker Foley recently refused to consider even the moderate step of disclosing publicly how much each House member spends on mass mailings. Foley said the public has repeatedly said in polls that it wants to hear from elected officials more often, not less.

It's too early to rule out a significant revamping of campaign laws. But resistance to any proposed changes must be expected because those 535 experts on Capitol Hill have proven they can master the current system.

Despite grumbling about its burdens, it's still the devil they know.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

House for sale — very cheap

By ART BUCHWALD

Real estate is not the fun game it used to be. In the '80s everyone talked about making a killing with their houses, and there was hardly a man or woman alive who didn't own a house that had sextupled in value. In addition, all the great homes that were built with borrowed money are now going begging in a market that most S&Ls believed would last forever.

Everyone has a real estate story. My cousin Flo's tale more or less sums up what people are experiencing now that the boom times are over. She called me a few months ago to tell me she was about to sell her house and move to a leisure garden apartment in New Jersey.

"How much are you asking?" I wanted to know.

"Well, I paid $45,000 for it, so I've priced it at $210,000."

"Could you tell me how you arrived at that figure?"

"The real estate person said that I should be able to get $150,000. My son thought that $200,000 was about right, and I added an extra $10,000 as icing on the cake."

"It sounds good to me. I wish you luck."

Flo telephoned a month later and told me, "Nobody wants to buy my house. The market is dead. What shall I do?"

"How about lowering the price?"

"If I do that I'll lose money on it. I am not going to let some bargain chiseler steal it from me."

"I agree. If you lower the price it will only be a sign of weakness."

The following month she was on the phone again.

"I've decided to advertise it for $200,000. I'll eat the $10,000 loss because sometimes in business you have to take it on the chin to survive."

"I believe that you have done a very wise thing. You are now competitive with all the other $45,000 houses in the neighborhood. Let me know if you sell it. I'll have an announcement placed in the Wall Street Journal."

Flo called again in three weeks.

"It isn't moving. Bloomfield, N.J., is in a real estate wasteland — it's worse than Chernobyl."

"There's only one course of action, Flo, and that is to lower the asking price even further."

"Are you suggesting that I sell my $45,000 house for $160,000?"

"I'm just advising you to do what the big guys on Wall Street would do in your place. They would take their losses and get out of Bloomfield as fast as they could."

"If I follow your advice I'll lose $50,000. Life can't be that unfair."

"Then keep the house and hope that the price will rise."

"No, I'll sell it for $160,000, which means I'm going to be the laughingstock of the Garden State Parkway."

"If you don't sell it, you could always give it back to the savings and loan people and let them deal with it. How big a mortgage did you get on it?"

"One hundred forty thousand dollars two years ago."

"Well, call them up and inform them that you would like to refinance the house."

"I can't. They are no longer in business. It seems that they kept making million-dollar loans to people who were buying $45,000 houses."

Industry focuses on environment

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Some of it is hype, some of it is genuine commitment and some is begrudging acceptance of reality. Whatever, American corporations are becoming environmentalists, or at least environmentally conscious.

This year's crop of glossy annual reports sent by corporations to stockholders every spring is green with environmentalism.

Firms are eager to tell about their good citizenship on planet Earth. Texaco brags that mussels taken from its offshore oil rigs are served in the finest California restaurants.

Dow Chemical touts the environmental awards it has won. Carolina Power & Light tells how conservation has saved 1.75 million kilowatts.

Even the tiny Central Vermont Public Service Corp. wants stockholders to know that it has invested in a power generating plant that burns waste wood.

Not so long ago, business was hostile to environmentalism. It saw the movement as an advocate of restrictions that would impede operations, require big, non-revenue generating outlays, undermine competitiveness.

Environmentalists were looked on in corporate boardrooms as "pointy headed liberals that really didn't know business," says Bruce Smart, former Commerce Department official in the Reagan Administration.

"We had a lot of name-calling, a lot of rhetoric on both sides," says Alexander Trowbridge, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers and former oil executive. But as it turned out, he says, "environmental improvement has been a corollary to economic growth."

Still, there's some grumbling. Marco, Inc., in the business of producing coal and natural gas and transporting natural gas, complaints in its annual report. "Each of our business segments has the potential to be impacted adversely by the environment issues being debated both in Washington, D.C. and in states throughout the country..."

Guest column

"We believe that many of these issues are being addressed politically rather than with a more deliberate approach based on a sound, rational review of scientific data."

And Inland Steel Industries, in its annual report, says a Democratic clean air bill in the Senate would have imposed standards "unscientific and unattainable for steel and other affected industries."

But they are exceptions. Most companies which make a potentially polluting product or use a polluting process, have become environmentally proud.

"Mussels are especially sensitive to pollutants, yet they thrive on the legs of Texaco's Habitat platform off the coast of California," says Texaco's annual report.

"When a marine firm discovered that the water around the platform exceeds stronger state water quality requirements for growing mussels, it arranged with Texaco to gather the mussels from the platform and sell them to gourmet restaurants from Los Angeles to San Francisco," Texaco says.

Phelps Dodge Corp., which produces one billion tons of copper a year, tells of plans to cover a 60-year-old pile of tailings with a golf course.

"Simply complying with environmental regulations is not enough," the company says. "Papermaking is a water-intensive process. It takes thousands of gallons to make a ton of coated paperboard," says the Mead Corp. So how much extra water will be pumped from the river for use in Mead's new 1,000-ton-a-day coated board expansion in Alabama?

"None, thanks to the fact that water once used only for cooling will be recycled and used in the manufacturing process."

Dow Chemical tells one of its secrets: "Dow gives plant managers a direct incentive to reduce waste by charging each plant for all waste management costs."

Dow brags it has reduced its plants' air emissions by 85 percent since 1974 and seeks to cut them another 50 percent in five years.

"Nearly 75 million pounds of polyethylene milk bottles became drain pipes, lumber replacements and recycling containers in 1989," says Dow. "Nearly all the scrap from Dow's plastic foam production is recycled or sold rather than being disposed of in landfills."

McDonald's Corp., which had been taking a public relations beating because of all that greasy waste paper and polystyrene it generates, fills its annual report with conservation messages.

Inside, McDonald's reprints a letter received from Dan Getty, 11. "If we stop wasting resources, our land will be clean. If we don't stop, we won't have anything left."

Perhaps in response, McDonald's came up with a McSolution: "McRecycle," a $100 million plan to buy high chairs, wastebaskets, insulation from recycled materials and to use paper bags made from recycled newspapers. Its first step was to ballyhoo the program in full-page newspaper ads.

Woman wonders if she should still play

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago, a guy I work with asked me to go out with him. Knowing he was married, I told him no, but he kept begging me, so against my better judgment, I finally agreed to go. (I planned on showing him a lousy time so he wouldn't ask me out again.) Well, we had a great time and became very close friends in the next couple of weeks. Within two months, we were more than friends. I never thought it would happen, but I really fell in love with him.

Somehow his wife found out about us and threatened to kill herself if he didn't quit seeing me. I found out later that she was eight months pregnant at the time. Needless to say, he stopped seeing me. I was heartbroken.

Three weeks ago, he started calling me and coming to see me. I didn't want to play it cool because I didn't want to get hurt again, but we went out one night and ended up in bed!

He told me he never meant to hurt me — he still cared for me and wanted to keep seeing me. He said he wasn't happy at home, but if I would be patient, one day we would be together. He also said he couldn't file for divorce because he's afraid he'd lose his two children. Abby, I'm not sure if I should try to forget about him, or be patient and let him try to work things out for us.

Please help me, Abby. I'm con-

Dear Abby

IN LOVE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR IN LOVE: I'm glad you asked, because it's time you realized you have no future with this man. He will keep seeing (and using) you as long as you let him.

Furthermore, you knew he was married when you started seeing him, so if you are "hurt," you asked for it.

Back off. You can't build happiness on the misery of others. And if he were finally to divorce his wife and marry you — what kind of prize would you get? A man who cheated on his wife, then dumped her for somebody else.

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw a local TV show featuring a panel of women who had had breast cancer. The host of the show was a male who stated that the show was for women since the subject was breast cancer.

Ironically, I was watching the show in an out-of-town motel room as I was preparing to go to the hospital to visit my husband, who had had surgery the day before for breast cancer! He had a modified mastectomy in which the nipple, some nodes and some chest muscles were surgically removed.

Although it's rare, breast cancer can happen to men. Fortunately my husband saw his doctor immediately after he discovered the lump. As with female cancer, some lumps are malignant and others are benign. My husband's was malignant.

Abby, please encourage your male readers to examine their breasts and underarms. Breast cancer is not exclusively a female concern. — A WIFE board was voted in by the old board, a requisite of the non-profit Hall-Bennett foundation's by-laws, changes have been in the air. The 61-year-old hospital has been repaired and generally spruced-up, largely by volunteer help and donated supplies, equipment has been updated and doctors are being interviewed.

When reopened, the hospital will specialize in overnight stays and same-day procedures, rather than long-term hospital stays that insurance won't pay, New said.

New is thrilled with its progress. "I've been here 20-plus years. I've seen it at its highest and its lowest points and I'm ready to see it at a high point again," she said.

Council to tackle trash rates, industrial board

By RUTH COCHRAN
 City Editor

BIG SPRING — City Council will tackle two ticklish issues today when it considers garbage rates and an industrial development corporation.

The council also will accept a new member, Corky Harris, when it meets during regular session at 5:30 p.m. in terminal building 1106 at the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark. Harris defeated Councilman D.D. Johnston in Saturday's city elections.

Council members will sort through garbage collection rates — again. Mayor Max Green's veto of a $2, or 40 percent, increase failed to gain the votes necessary for an override at the last meeting, and a new increase was proposed. Councilman Tim Blackshear is supporting a 15 percent increase in both residential and business rates, which would mean an increase from $5 to $5.75 for persons with residential service.

that recommended the 40 percent increase, said the lower increase will be adequate to fund sanitation department needs.

"It's a compromise," he said. "I was leaning toward the 15 percent for businesses and 20 percent for residences. The feedback I got... was that if we were going to have an increase, have the same for both."

Blackshear said the 15 percent increase will generate enough revenues for:

- A mandated state garbage tax expected to amount to $15,000 annually.
- Payback to the capital revolving fund for a loan made in 1990 to purchase sanitation equipment.
- Savings for a regulatory agency surcharge fund.

The Environmental Protection Agency is expected to pass this month costly new regulations for closure and post-closure of landfills.

• Payback to the capital revolving fund for a loan made in 1984 to purchase sanitation equipment.

• Establishment of a sanitation equipment revolving fund to replace old and worn equipment in the sanitation department.

The council also may discuss the formation of an industrial development corporation approved by voters in Saturday's city elections.

City residents approved a 1/2 percent increase in the city sales tax to fund the corporation, and the council must appoint a five-member board to oversee it.

Before the election, some residents expressed concern that the senate bill allowing the corporations required only that boards "serve at the pleasure of the council."

The sales tax increase, which passed by a 1,111-to-657 margin, is expected to generate about $700,000 annually. The money would be used to lure new businesses to the city, as well as help businesses already established.

In other agenda items, the council will:

- Proclaim May 7-13 as Public Service Recognition Week.
- Canvass the returns and declare the results of the May 5 election. Voters re-elected Councilwoman Pat DeAnda, and they replaced Johnston with Harris. Residents also approved two 1/2 percent sales tax increases. One will fund a decrease in property taxes and the other will fund an industrial development corporation.

DeAnda and Harris will be administered the bribery oath.

• Consider awarding bids for: water works parts; and the city depository.

• Consider a request submitted by Larry Edwards for a carnival permit. The carnival would be held May 22-26 at the College Park Shopping Center.

• Consider the final reading of an ordinance providing for an additional 15 percent penalty to defray costs of collecting delinquent taxes.

• Consider the final reading of a resolution authorizing an agreement between the city and Robert Sanders for Lake Fest '90.

• Consider the final reading of a resolution authorizing an easement a right-of-way for McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark between the city and TU Electric.

and had had it hauled by Joe Martinez of Joe Martinez Dump Truck Service, who was with Salazar when Howell visited.

Martinez said he pulled the trailer down the road on its metal wheel rims with a front-end loader. He neglected to see that the trailer lacked rubber tires.

Howell advised the men that a report would be filed on the incident and that they should contact County Engineer Bill Mims about restitution they may owe.

Reached by phone Monday, Mims was nonchalant about the damaged drive. He had received a call on the caved-in condition from a resident in the area north of Big Spring as well as the sheriff's office report.

"This happens pretty regularly. Sometimes they're more careless acts than that," he said.

"Roads get broken up when companies are moving heavy equipment. Farmers turn their tractors around at the edge of the pavement when they're plowing and the plow blades dip into the road," said Mims.

He said he'd sent a crew out to survey the scene. By this morning the grooves were patched to the engineer's satisfaction. Mims does not plan to assess Martinez or Salazar for the cost of the repairs.

"I'm not going to ask them to reimburse the county. They're just one case out of a hundred. If we're not collecting on those, why make an example out of them?" he said.

Missing

Hendricks.

"We are asking any citizens who might have information of his whereabouts to please contact us," Chamness said. Callers may contact the department at 263-8311.

The police investigation included a search yesterday evening of the abandoned Settles Hotel. Chamness said, after a vehicle was discovered parked behind the structure.

According to the police log, six officers were dispatched to the downtown building at about 7:30 p.m. yesterday on an "attempt to locate." That entry on the log followed one made at 5:15 p.m. about a suspicious investigation, welfare concern at the Settles Hotel.

"We were there," Chamness said. "(Officer) walked through the Settles looking to see what was in there."

Chamness also said the fire department pumped water out of the basement of the Settles, apparently as part of the search.

Fire Chief Frank Anderson confirmed that crews pumped about 20,000 gallons of water from the basement in attempt to find a missing person although he did not know who.

"The police had received a message about a person being absent or missing," Anderson said.

When the person's car was found parked behind the Settles, he said, "they thought possibly he might be in the basement."

Anderson said crews didn't find anything in the basement after lowering the water level from about 9 or 10 feet to 1 foot. The basement of the Settles frequently fills with water, he said, because it is level with the underground water table and water seeps through the walls.

wealthier school districts. But Parker said under the Senate plan, lawmakers would be forced to put in new state money or dismantle the finance system next year.

"Even if we had to suffer through one more year of unequal, inadequate funding, it would give us better hope for future generations," he said.

"If the governor chooses to disrupt or impede the efforts of this Legislature to put funding with (the reform bill), then that's the choice he makes, and he and his party can then be judged by the voters of this state," said Parker, Senate Education Committee chairman.

Unlike last session — when the reform bill was wiped out by the tax veto — Clements would have to directly act on this school reform bill. Because the bill's funding would be in a separate measure, it wouldn't have to wait at the comptroller's office to ensure revenues exist to pay for it.

If lawmakers and Clements don't write a reform plan by June 1 making more money available to property-poor school districts, a state judge has said he would appoint a court master to do it for them.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said if a court master is appointed, he would blame Clements, who has refused to budge from his stand against new state taxes.

"I think the Legislature has acted extremely responsibly," Hobby said.

Clements wasn't at the Capitol on Monday. Aides said he was traveling from Taos, N.M., to Dallas and issued a statement quoting Clements as saying the Senate bill is so costly it would require a state income tax to fund it.

Detroit forward top NBA defensive player

NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Dennis Rodman, who helped make the Detroit Pistons the best defensive team in the NBA, today was named the league's Defensive Player of the Year, beating out Houston's Akeem Olajuwon.

Rodman received 49 of a possible 92 votes from a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters — three from each of the NBA's 27 cities and 11 representing the national media.

Olajuwon finished second with 35 votes. Detroit's Joe Dumars and Dallas' Derek Harper each received two votes, while Chicago's Michael Jordan, New York's Patrick Ewing, Milwaukee's Alvin Robertson and Utah's Mark Eaton got one apiece.

The 6-foot-8 Rodman was one of the league's top sixth men before becoming a starter for the final 42 games of the season. He averaged only 8.8 points per game, but led the Pistons in rebounding average with 9.7 per game and usually guarded the opposing team's most dangerous scorer, often at his own request.

Rodman's defensive tenacity set the tone for the Pistons, who allowed only 98.3 points per game, lowest figure in the NBA. "As a starter, I think I add some intensity," said Rodman, selected to play in the All-Star Game this season for the first time and chosen to the NBA All-Defensive first team last season.

"My defense is more important than anything. I don't like scoring because to me it's not exciting. I just love defense so much that it's like a burning desire that keeps me going.

Netter solid as a Rock (y)

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Perhaps befitting a veteran of the state tennis wars, Rocky Tubbs is exhibiting an air of quiet confidence as the UIL state tennis tournament approaches.

Tubbs, a junior at Big Spring High School, will be representing BSHS as he makes his second consecutive appearance at the class 4A singles competition beginning Friday in Austin.

And, as he and his coach will attest, having one state tournament under your belt makes a world of difference when you're preparing for the next one.

"Rocky has a lot more purpose to his play this year," BSHS Tennis Coach David Lawrence said. "Last year, it was as if Rocky was playing to see how good he could get. This year, he has a better idea of what he wants to do.

"I'd like to see him break through so that he'll get over that hump," Lawrence added. "I don't think Rocky is going to do anything but get better... I like his chances."

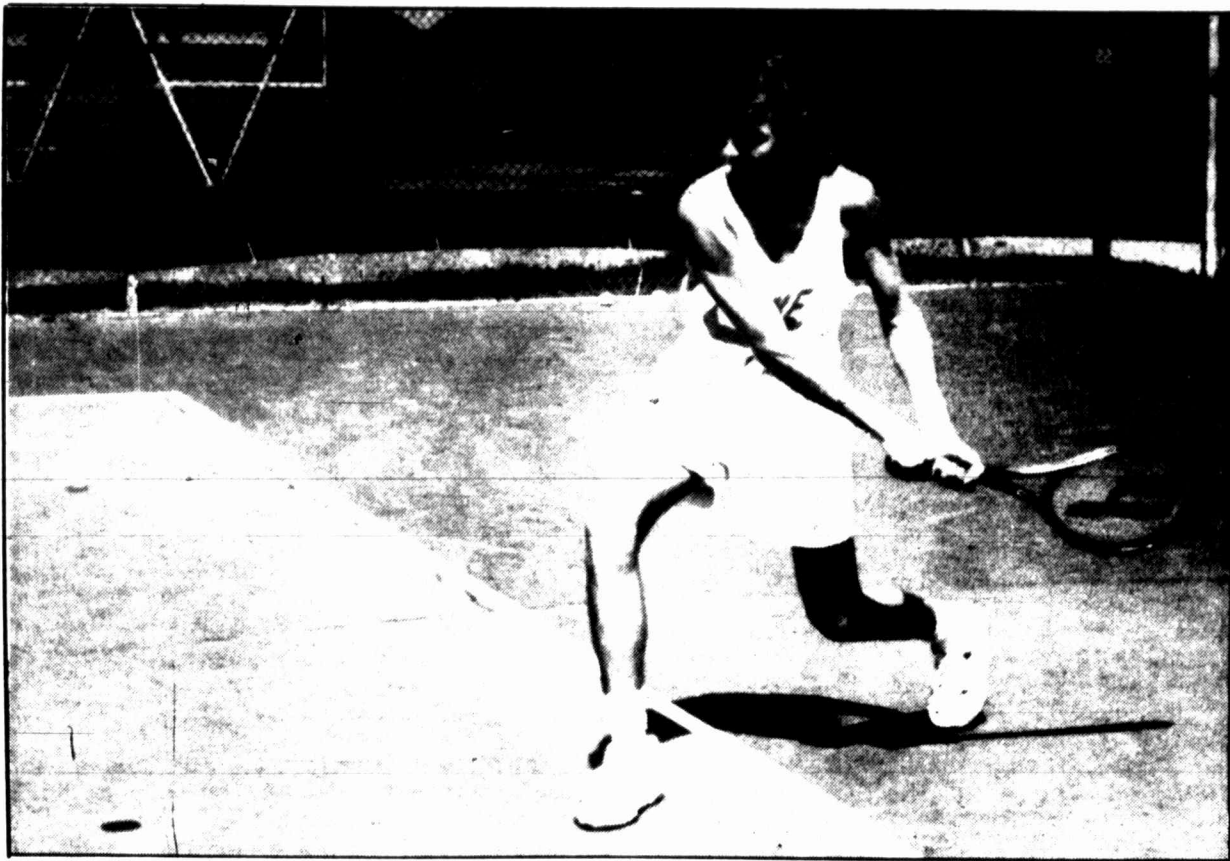

And Lawrence is not the only one who thinks Tubbs will do well at the tournament. Rocky also believes the experience he's gained the past couple of years will serve him well come tournament time.

"I won regionals this year — and that helps. I get to play a number-two seed instead of a number-one," Tubbs said. "That gives me a little more confidence, going in as a winner instead of a second-place (finisher at regional)."

Tubbs also said he would be better prepared mentally for the state tournament this year.

"It wasn't so much that I was nervous at state; it was more excitement. I had to get that out of my system," Tubbs said. "I'm not having any trouble motivating myself this year."

Rocky's first-round opponent Friday will be Corky Nix of Athens.

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Steers junior Rocky Tubbs gets ready to hit a backhand during a practice session Monday afternoon at Figure Seven Tennis Center. Tubbs will be competing in state singles this weekend.

Lawrence describes as "a very dangerous type of player."

If Tubbs gets by Nix, his second-round opponent will in all likelihood will be San Antonio Alamo Heights star Holt Vaughn, who is one of only three high school players to best Tubbs this season.

"Holt beat Rocky earlier this year in a USTA (United States Tennis Association) tournament," Lawrence said. "His play confused Rocky; he didn't know when and how to attack it."

"Vaughn is probably the (number-one player) at the tournament," Lawrence added, "but there are four guys with a legitimate shot to win it — and three are in our bracket."

If Rocky does make the finals Saturday, there is a good chance he could face a rematch with Highland Park star Andrew Menter.

Menter raised eyebrows before last year's tournament by stating in the Dallas Morning News that Tubbs "didn't have enough weapons in his arsenal" to beat him in the tournament — which Tubbs did in the first round.

Overall, Tubbs said this year's field promises to be tough. "I think the field is as good as last year's — maybe even deeper," Tubbs said. "All of us are real close (in ability)."

Even with a closely bunched pack, Lawrence believes that this might be the year for his star junior to shine.

"I think he's hitting the ball better — and there's two reasons for that: he's physically stronger; and he understands the game better," Lawrence said. "He's not trying to force things as much. His serve is a lot stronger, plus he's a lot more confident. He doesn't play as shaky as he did."

And the key for Tubbs playing well at the tournament this year? "I just have to play smart," Rocky said. "I have to make the right choices."

"I've been to state a lot of times," Lawrence said. "but I've never felt as good about our chances as this year... Rocky's got a tough draw, but both of us would just as soon have it that way. That way, if we win, we deserve to be the best."

Bulls win defensive battle

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan never had any doubts when he and the Chicago Bulls went through an agonizing scoreless spell that could have cost them the game.

"It was important that our defense stopped them and they couldn't make up much ground," said Jordan, who helped to turn things around by scoring 15 of his game-high 39 points in the closing minutes, leading the Bulls to a 96-85 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Monday night in the opener of their best-of-7 NBA playoff series.

The Bulls led all the way and held several 10-point leads in the third quarter that ended with the score 73-65.

Then came the fourth-quarter drought. The 76ers inched within 73-71 on a basket by Charles Barkley.

Scottie Pippen, who finished with 18 points and 12 assists, broke the spell with a pair of free throws before Jordan, sore ankle and all, took command to clinch the victory. Pippen had six of the Bulls' other eight points in the final quarter.

"Michael and Scottie delivered when it came to crunch time," Chicago coach Phil Jackson said. "We were 0-for-7 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, and I think for about three minutes there we ran out of gas. We had fresh bodies out there but nobody was clicking."

"We had some good shots but they weren't falling in," said Jordan, who iced his left ankle after the game. Jordan twisted it in the final game of the Milwaukee series, but it is not considered serious.

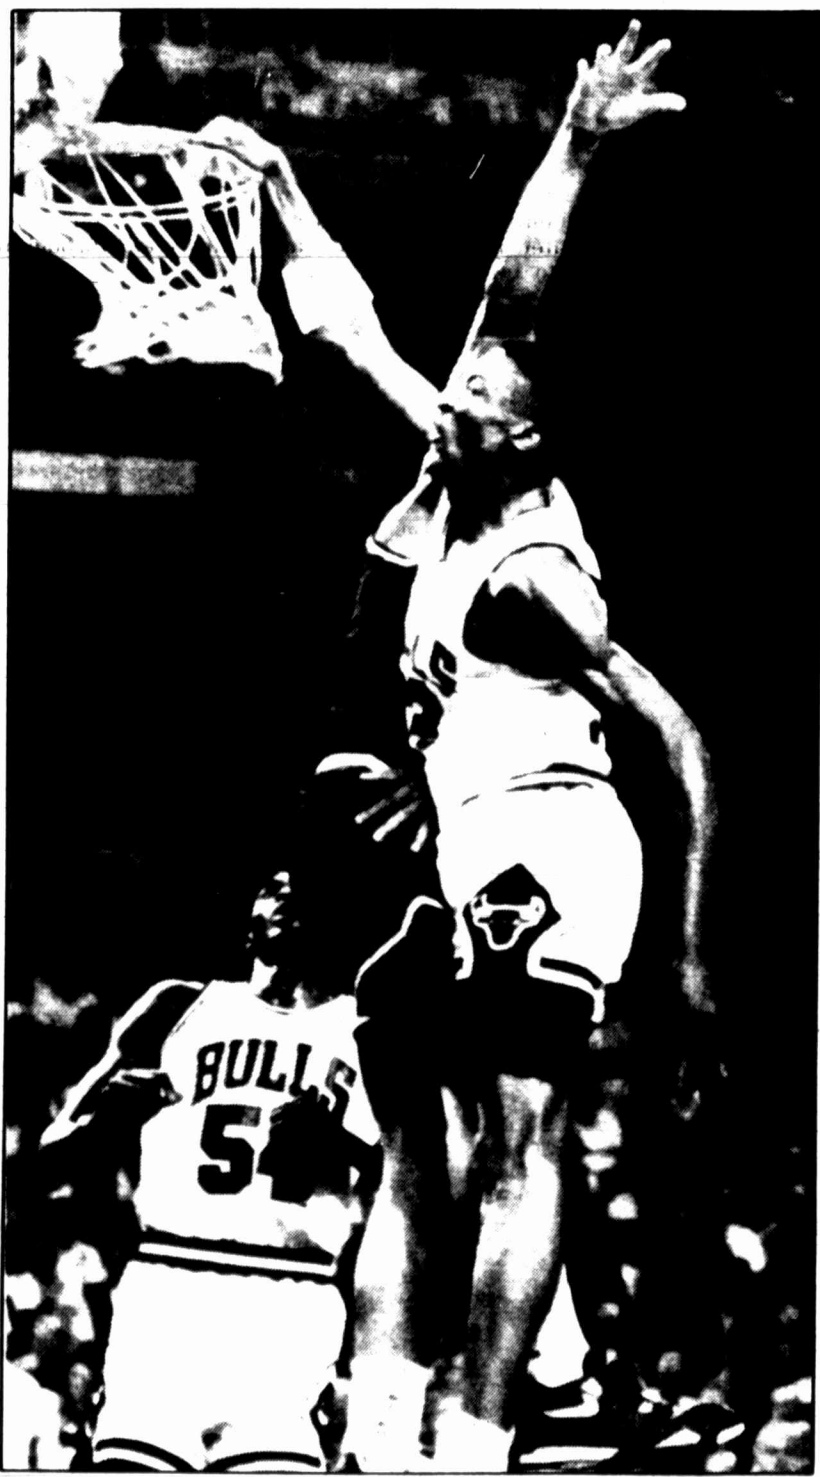

Jordan, who held Hersey Hawkins to 12 points, credited the defense with the victory. He even gave Horace Grant credit for "holding" Barkley to 30 points, high for Philadelphia.

"I think Horace did a heckuva job on Barkley," Jordan said. "He kept the pressure on. Otherwise Barkley could have dominated the game."

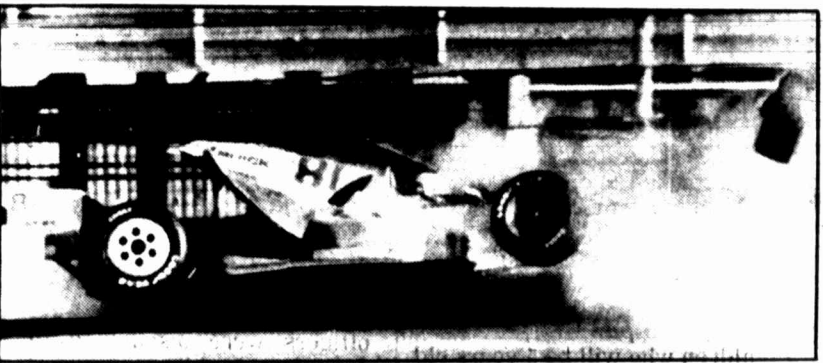

Barkley almost did. He had 20 rebounds. But he wasn't happy.

"I'm disappointed we didn't do

Blazers seeking good defensive game tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers have yet to play a great offensive game in the NBA playoffs. They've yet to lose, either.

Aggressive defense and dominant rebounding have made the difference. And the Blazers are counting on more of the same tonight when they meet San Antonio in Game 2 of the Western Conference semifinals.

"You have off nights shooting. You can have off nights on the offensive end. But if you're a good rebounding team and a good defensive team, those are constants for you," Portland Coach Rick Adelman said. "We try to maintain that, and it's won us a lot of games."

Offensive rebounds were a big reason the Blazers swept Dallas in the first round. And Portland had a 23-13 advantage on the offensive boards in its 107-94 victory over San Antonio Saturday. The Blazers won that game despite shooting just 42 percent from the field and missing 16 free throws.

Portland's rebounding "is the best in the league," Adelman said. "The reason we're so good is we're so active and we have guys who want to rebound," he said. "Jerome (Kersey) and Buck (Williams), I don't know if you'll find two other people who pursue the ball as well as they do."

The Spurs say they didn't match Portland's intensity and physical play in Saturday's opener, but vow that won't happen again tonight.

"It was a real lesson for us," Coach Larry Brown said. "They beat us up. They were much more physical, much more aggressive. They were relentless in terms of hustle."

"They probably played as hard as any team we've played against all year," he said. "For us to be successful, we realize we have to play as hard and as aggressive." David Robinson, who scored only nine points in one of his worst games as a professional, said the young San Antonio players now know what it takes to win against the rougher teams in the league.

"It was different from the first round," he said. "It was something that a lot of our players had never faced, as far as the intensity level and being physical."

Robinson was 3-of-11 from the field and took only one shot in the second half.

"It was a bit of a wake-up call," he said, "but I don't think any of our guys are intimidated at all. I think we're going to come out and respond."

Defending champ avoids second round upset

ROME (AP) — Two-time defending champion Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina recovered from a shaky start, nearly losing the first set, and went on to a 7-6, 6-0 victory over unseeded American Ann Grossman in the second round of the Italian Open today.

Sabatini, seeded fourth, powered to a 5-1 lead against Grossman. But the American, No. 79 in the world rankings, reeled off five straight games to take a 6-5 lead with Sabatini serving.

Faced with the prospect of losing the set, Sabatini hit four straight winners to force a tiebreak. Back in the match, Sabatini took the tiebreak 7-3, and went on to crush the fatigued Grossman 6-0 in just over 20 minutes.

"I started playing too fast and making too many mistakes. I wanted to end the match too quickly," said Sabatini, who has won the last two Italian Opens and is a favorite with the Foro Italico crowd. "In the second set I was much calmer and played with patience."

In other second round matches, Italy's Laura Golarsa ousted No. 7 seed Nathalie Tauziat of France 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) and sixth-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain beat Donna Faber of the United States 6-0, 6-2.

In the first round, 10th seeded Raffaella Reggi of Italy defeated Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union 6-0, 6-3 and No. 13 seed Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden outlasted Nicole Jagerman of the Netherlands 7-5, 6-7 (9-7) 6-2.

Seventeen-year old Monica Seles was scheduled to play later today.

Born in Yugoslavia but now living in Sarasota, Fla., Seles seems far too young to have witted as a girl wonder. She

Tar Heels guard arrested for assault

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina guard King Rice was released under $2,500 bond this morning after police arrested him for assaulting a female, resisting arrest and destruction of public property.

Rice was brought before a magistrate and charged with resisting arrest, including the injury to Wiseman and assault on a female. Pendergraph said Rice was allowed to make a phone call.

After he made the phone call, he appeared to become upset and struck the wall with his fist and punched a wall in the plaster board, he said. That resulted in the destruction charge.

Rice was placed under $2,500 secured bond and transferred to the Orange County jail, about 10 miles away. He was released around 6 a.m., but a spokesman for the jail could not say who posted bond for Rice.

As expected, the NCAA is charging the Tigers with having an agent help them recruit a specific area. The area would presumably be Detroit and could constitute a serious violation since so many of Stewart's finest players have come from there.

Secondly, NCAA watchers learned long ago the Enforcement Department dislikes being lied to. And allegation No. 13 says a member of the athletic department provided false and misleading information acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct.

Missouri hoop program under fire

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Two of the 15 allegations against Missouri may put Norm Stewart's basketball program in particular peril.

As expected, the NCAA is charging the Tigers with having an agent help them recruit a specific area. The area would presumably be Detroit and could constitute a serious violation since so many of Stewart's finest players have come from there.

Some of the allegations, however, are not true and we will contest those before the committee," Stewart added. "I am confident the committee will conclude that no infractions occurred with regard to those allegations which we contest."

The investigation began in February 1989, the same month Stewart, 54, underwent surgery for colon cancer.

Other allegations include awarding financial aid to a recruit who was not academically eligible; arranging for roundtrip airline transportation between Columbia and a recruit's hometown to obtain information about his high school academic records; excessive entertainment of recruits, including athletic shoes; arranging entertainment, meals and lodging for recruits; providing meals, transportation and summer camp employment for several prospects; providing cash exceeding the actual cost of transportation to several prospects during their official visits to the campus; and arranging for private tutorial services to help a recruit improve his ACT score.

Reds complete sweep in St. Louis

By The Associated Press The Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals are streaking in opposite directions.

Tom Browning pitched a three-hitter Monday night as the Reds beat the Cardinals 3-0 to complete their first four-game sweep at St. Louis since 1966.

It was the fifth straight win for the Reds and fifth straight loss for the Cardinals, who were outscored 20-6 in the Cincinnati series. After scoring three runs in the series opener, the Cardinals' run production dropped to two, one and zero in the final three games.

"We got progressively worse," St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog said. "That's what you call a real team batting slump. There's nothing you can do. Just keep sending them out there."

Browning (3-2), who threw the first perfect game in Reds history in 1988, limited the Cardinals to three singles — by Rex Hudler in the fourth, Jose Oquendo in the eighth and pinch-hitter Tom Pagnozzi in the ninth. He struck out three and walked one in the Reds' first complete game of the season.

"I had pretty good command of the outside part of the plate," Browning said. "I felt real comfortable out there."

In other NL games, Montreal edged San Francisco 7-6, New York beat Houston 7-1, Pittsburgh downed San Diego 4-1 and Atlanta defeated Chicago 9-8.

Paul O'Neill's run-scoring single in the sixth broke a scoreless tie and little-used reserve Luis Quinones added a two-run double in the inning as the Reds improved their record to 18-5, best in the major leagues.

Herm Winningham beat out a bunt and Barry Larkin got a bloop single to start the rally. With one out, O'Neill singled home Winningham and Quinones followed with a double into the right-field corner.

"I was trying to put the ball in play and I found the hole at the right time," O'Neill said. "We got a few runs, and the way Tom was pitching that's all we needed."

Loser Jose DeLeon (2-2) went six innings, giving up three runs on seven hits.

Expos 7, Giants 6 At Montreal, Andres Galarraga broke out of a 1 for 16 slump with a three-run homer in the sixth inning and a game-winning double in the ninth.

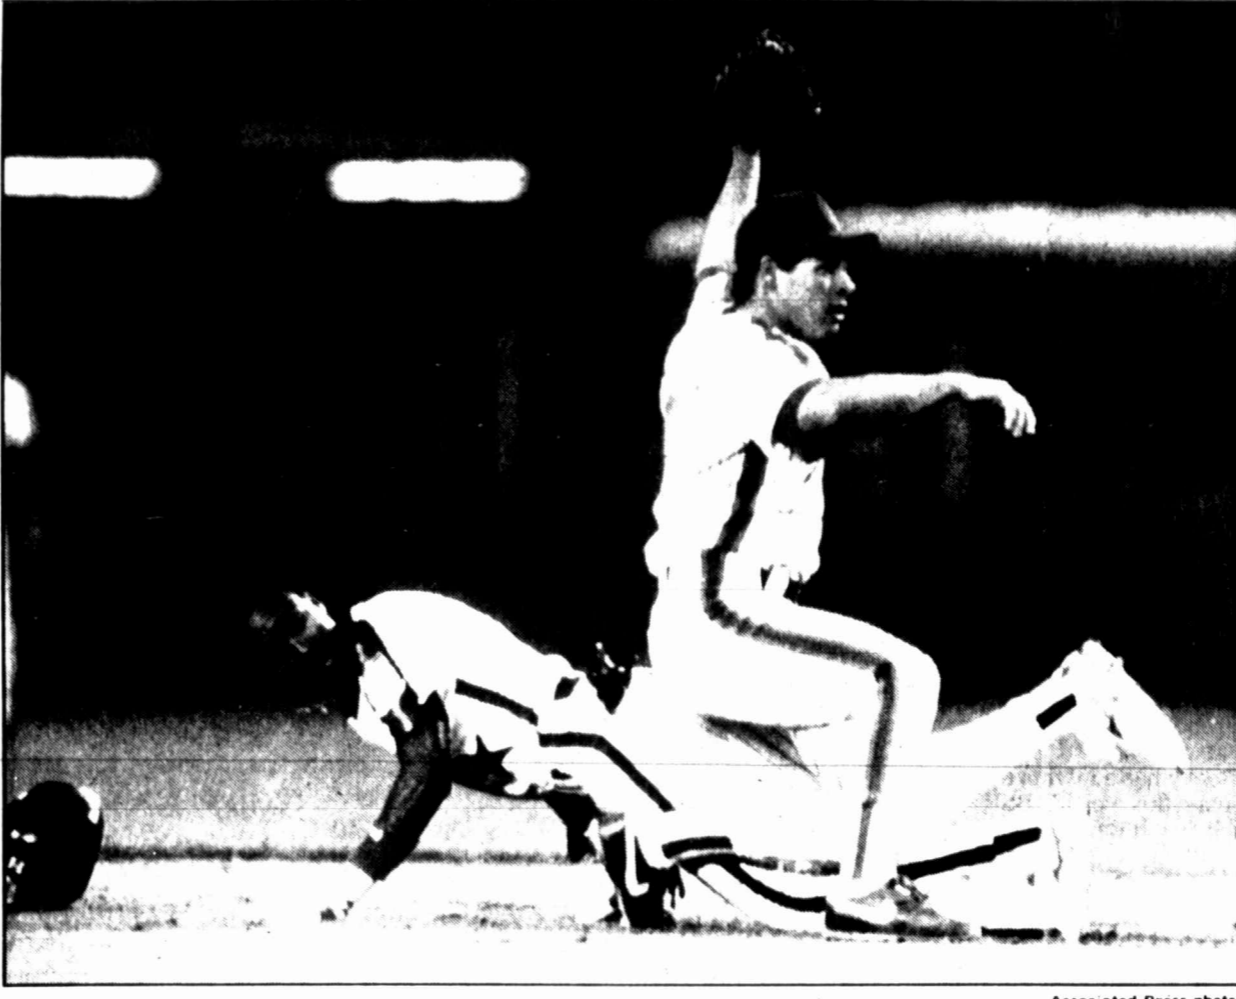

It was the Giants' fifth loss in their last six games.

Delino DeShields started the Montreal ninth with a walk, but was thrown out at second on Marquis Grissom's sacrifice attempt.

Trailing 6-3, the Giants tied it in the top of the ninth on an RBI double by Kevin Bass and a two-run homer by Matt Williams off Tim Lincecum.

Trailing 4-0, the Orioles turned right-hander Bert Blyleven's two-out error into five unearned runs for their biggest inning of the season.

Canseco cranks two; A's whip Yankees

By The Associated Press Cecil Fielder, Kelly Gruber and Jose Canseco staged their version of home-run derby, with the Oakland slugger winning a round.

On Sunday, Fielder hit three homers and Gruber two, while Canseco was shut out.

Canseco got started early Monday night, hitting a three-run homer in the first inning and adding a solo shot in the eighth as the Athletics beat the New York Yankees 5-1.

The two homers raised Canseco's total to eight for the season. But that's still short of Fielder and Gruber.

Fielder, who played in Japan for two seasons, hit his major-league leading 11th home run in Detroit's 5-4 loss to Milwaukee on Monday. He also leads the majors with 27 RBIs.

Gruber helped Toronto beat Chicago 6-1 with his 10th home run of the season. All 10 have been hit at the SkyDome.

Canseco has been particularly tough against the Yankees.

It was Canseco's 17th and 18th lifetime homers against New York since he joined Oakland in 1985. He has hit two homers in a game 10 times, the last time coming Aug. 29, 1989, against the Yankees.

Canseco entered the game in a 5-for-32 slump.

The A's have won four straight against New York this season, including a three-game sweep at Yankee Stadium last week.

Mike Moore (3-1) allowed one drives on both her forehand and her backhand, says she doesn't miss the adoration.

"In truth, I barely noticed it," she said. "And now that it's gone, I notice it even less. If anything, it will be easier now for me to concentrate on my playing."

Although she draws crowds like a magnet, another of the teen-age whiz kids, Jennifer Capriati didn't seem to have too much difficulty concentrating in her opening match Monday. The eighth grader from Saddlebrook, Fla., needed only 50 minutes to defeat Czechoslovak qualifier Leona Laskova 6-0, 6-3.

It was an easy workout for the 12th-seeded Capriati, who since turning pro in March has reached the final of two of three tournaments and moved to No. 25 in the world rankings.

Blazers

Continued from page 1-B Kersey, who has scored 54 points in Portland's last two games and had a playoff career-high 16 rebounds Saturday, said the Spurs can get as physical as they want.

"I welcome them to play like that. I don't think they'll win that battle," he said. "They're not a physical team. If they're going to concentrate on that, it's going to take them out of the things they've done well all season."

Brown is looking for more defensive pressure from his team.

"The Blazers are a team that I think will turn the ball over if you pressure them," he said.

Portland is without Kevin Duckworth, probably for the rest of the playoffs, with a broken right hand, but Adelman countered with a series of players at center in Game 1. He started rookie Cliff

Division II Untouchables 20, Wildcats 2

The Untouchables ran their record to 2-0 by blasting 16 hits against the Wildcats. The Untouchables got a combined one-hitter from Jessica Cobos, who was the winning pitcher, and Jennifer Cohn and Melissa Martinez. The only hit for the Wildcats was a single by Allison Aleanter.

Top hitters for the Untouchables were Keri Hall with two doubles, Michelle Haro, a single and double, and Nichole Stauss and Cobos with two base hits each. Martinez and Erica Lanspery hit homers for the winners.

Top defensive players for the 0-2 Wildcats were catcher Angela Green and third baseman Jennifer Green. Defensive stalwarts for the Untouchables were short stop Lanspery and Cobos.

Robinson and, at various times, also had Wayne Cooper, Mark Bryant and Williams guarding the San Antonio center.

Clyde Drexler, who had 23 points, 11 assists and nine rebounds Saturday, expects a different San Antonio effort this time.

defense did the job, really."

So much so that the 76ers shot only 38 percent from the field.

"We obviously didn't shoot the ball well," said 76ers coach Jim Lynam. "We shot 40 percent in the first half and about the same in the second half for a total of 85 points. That's below what I expect from our offense."

"Our perimeter shooting was not at all what we expected."

Bulls

Continued from page 1-B more, compete more," said Barkley. "We didn't play intense. We should have played much more physical. We didn't hit anybody."

But the 76ers' problem was scoring. Everytime they threatened, the Bulls simply pulled away.

"I felt confident all the way," Jordan said. "I had good shots, but a few fell short. I couldn't push off the ankle like I wanted. But our

The Rebels pushed their record to 5-1 by whipping the Tigers.

Joe Montez was the winning pitcher for the Rebels, pitching a three-hitter. Chris Yanez took the loss for the Tigers, who fall to 2-5.

Same school bill passes

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis said he hopes lawmakers will send Gov. Bill Clements a school finance reform measure by the end of the week that could present the governor with difficult choices.

- Vetoing the bill and possibly putting reform in the hands of a judge.

- Approving the bill without new state education funding, which could shift money from property-rich to property-poor school districts.

- Breaking his vow to veto new taxes and allowing the $555 million funding level lawmakers want for next school year.

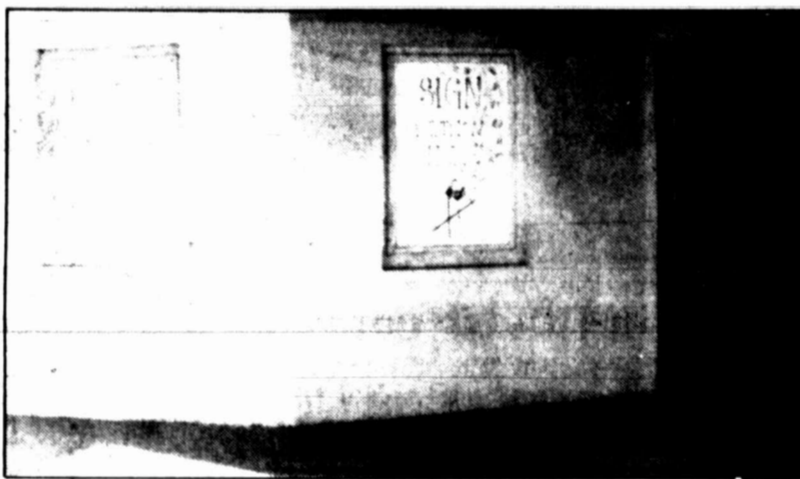

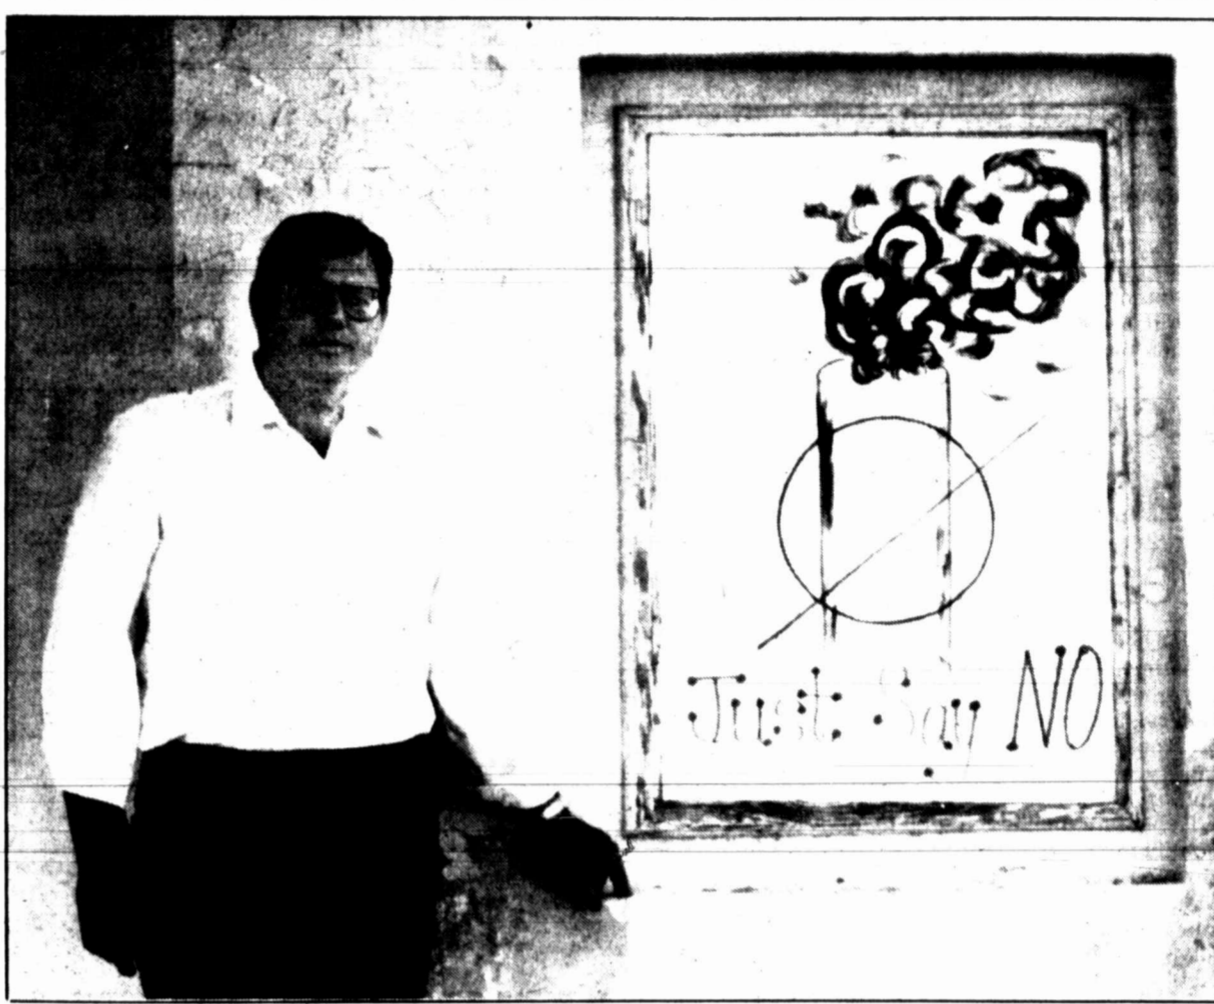

The Democrat-controlled Legislature wants to help pay for school reform with a half-cent sales tax increase, which the Republican governor vetoed in the last special session that ended last week.

"The governor will just have to do what he feels is necessary, as we feel we have to do what we feel is necessary," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Monday. He said the choice is between a higher state tax or higher local property taxes.

The governor this session lawmakers' third on school finance — backed his own $250 million reform plan, to be financed with budget cuts and an increase in the state fee for driving records.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas.

Officials consider waste disposal

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — A group of citizens and city and county officials may visit other states to examine hazardous waste incinerator operations in wake of a proposed incinerator for Martin County which may be used to burn hazardous wastes.

One organizer of a group against locating an incinerator here, Gene Louder, said they will wait until after the trips before deciding what to do. They canceled a Sunday afternoon organizational meeting pending reports on the trips, he said Sunday.

However, petitions drafted Friday by another opponent, County Attorney James McGilvray, continue to circulate.

A trip could be made as early as Thursday to Bartlesville, Okla., said City Administrator Paul Lively Monday night during a discussion with the City Council. He said that he, County Judge Bob Deavenport and three local citizens, who have not been chosen yet, may make that trip.

"I feel like if we're going to do it let's do it and get it over with," Lively said. "It's hinging on Bob (Deavenport) right now."

Deavenport said this morning that he needs to get back in contact with Lively about the trip. "I haven't visited with him this

Heavy rains cause downstream floods

DALLAS — River flooding that continued to move downstream from record rains in North Texas forced hundreds from their homes as authorities issued warnings for people and livestock along the waterways today.

"They're still expecting record flooding this week," said Kelly Kerbow, a police dispatcher at Liberty in Southeast Texas, north of where the rain-swollen Trinity River empties into Trinity Bay.

The river was over its banks at a depth of 26.41 feet, she said. Authorities said the flooding, which could affect about 7,000 residents, would be the worst to hit the area since the early 1900s.

Authorities stepped up evacuation efforts and the American Red Cross sent teams to prepare shelters in East Texas as the river continued to rise.

"Right now, we're anticipating maybe having problems with the Trinity (River) in five or six more counties," said Judi Oestreich, public affairs officer for the Red Cross.

"We're just sort of moving along with the water, so to speak," she said.

High water blamed for six deaths in last week's thunderstorms also was prompting other river flooding. Ranchers were warned to remove livestock from the Guadalupe River channel bottom from above Victoria and downstream.

The National Weather Service predicted lowland flooding near Dupont in South Texas by today.

Overbank flooding was also forecast for the Nueces River above Cotulla and downstream to above Tilden, the weather service said. More flood advisories included the Brazos, Trinity, Sabine, Navasota and Neches rivers.

Brazos flooding hit marinas and dwellings around Lake Whitney and closed the Kimbell Bend Bridge on Texas Highway 174 near Cleburne. Many residents still couldn't return to their homes and businesses Monday.

"Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the bridge was closed," said Charles Thompson, a Bosque County resident.

DALLAS — Steven Moses watches water cascade from his truck after he retrieved it from 15 feet of water in the Rochester park area on Monday. As Moses was helping evacuate people Thursday, his truck was stolen and abandoned in a flooded underpass.

"There's so many people in the Metroplex who live in the country and work in Dallas-Fort Worth," he said, explaining that the bridge across the Brazos is a main route. "We are turning that 1 1/2-hour drive into a three-hour drive."

Across North Texas, the Red Cross has opened shelters and served meals for evacuees since the start of heavy rains, flooding, tornadoes and high winds a week ago.

Through Sunday, 1,564 people had been sheltered, more than 19,000 meals had been served and 28 shelters had been opened, although only three shelters remained in operation Monday. Ms. Oestreich said.

New reservoir 'taking shape'

BALLINGER — Those attending the May 19 celebration of completion of the state's newest reservoir will get to see a lake taking shape.

Although flood rains which engulfed Brownwood largely missed the new watershed, Lake O.H. Ivie has gained 25 vertical feet since closure of the outlet works April 24. While much of the 17,000 ac. ft. is represented in filling the Colorado River channel and the borrow area at the foot of the dam on the upstream side, the main body of the fledgling lake is just beginning to spread.

Approximately 2 square miles surface area are now inundated, according to John L. Taylor, president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District which built the project as a long-range regional water supply. This represents about 6 percent of the reservoir area at capacity, and 3 percent of the 54,000 ac. ft. capacity.

Plans are shaping for the 11 a.m. event which will give the public its first look at the lake and dam. U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm will be the dedicatory speaker, and Taylor said several state senators and representatives, other state officials, mayors of the member (Big Spring, Odessa, Snyder) and contract cities (San Angelo, Abilene and Midland) already have accepted invitations along with county officials and others.

Because the site is about 50 miles removed from most public eating places, Taylor suggested many may want to avail themselves of the barbecue dinner at the ceremony location. Tickets ($7.50) are available at area Chamber of Commerce but must be purchased by noon May 24.

Shuttle launch may be delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A cooling valve on space shuttle Columbia that doesn't seem to be working right could delay next week's launch with a $100 million observatory known as Astro, NASA said Tuesday.

Launch had been scheduled for May 16 or May 17.

The valve in question, located in one of Columbia's two freon cooling loops, controls the proportion and rate of freon distributed between the crew cabin heat exchanger and the cooling system for payloads.

Engineers on Sunday saw an unexplained change in the flow rate of freon going to the cabin heat exchanger and payload heat exchanger, NASA said.

Coahoma, Grady students win Youth Tour

Matt Edwards of Grady High School and Brandy Taylor of Coahoma High School were named winners in final competition of Cap Rock Electric's 1990 Rural Electric Youth Tour Contest.

They were named in final competition conducted April 25 in Cap Rock's auditorium in Stanton.

Matt is the 18-year-old son of Floyd and Trudi Edwards of Tazan. Brandy is the 18-year-old daughter of George and Judy West of Coahoma.

Laurie Romine, daughter of Gary and Pat Romine of Lenorah, was named runner-up in the competition. She will participate in the trip if either of the winners is unable to attend.

The Rural Electric Youth Tour is a two-week, all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C. Cap Rock Electric has been sponsoring students to the Youth Tour since the 1960s. It is an opportunity for students to observe the nation's government in action.

They will tour the House and Senate Chambers, the Library of Congress, the Supreme Court, the Kennedy Center, the White House, all the national monuments, plus the National Geographic Society, Ford's Theater, Washington Cathedral, Arlington Cemetery, Mt. Vernon, the National Archives, the FBI, and the Smithsonian. There are stops at Elvis Presley's Graceland home and Lookout Mountain in Tennessee.

Over 200 youngsters make up the Texas delegation of the Youth Tour. They will meet over a thousand other young people in Washington, all students who are sponsored on the Youth Tour by their local rural electric cooperatives.

Cap Rock's Youth Tour contest was open to any student, ages 14 to 19, who attends a school in a school district in which the cooperative serves meters. Edwards and Taylor won the contest on the basis of a written essay and appearance before a final judging panel. The final panel was made up of Mike Barker and Becky Neighbors of KMD-TV in Midland, and Jack Bounds, Member Services Director of South Plains Electric Cooperative in Lubbock. The win-ing students were chosen from a field of 10 finalists whose essays were graded best in the 111 essays entered in the contest.

Cap Rock Electric serves 17,000 meters in 13 West Texas counties. Ulen North, Director of Administrative Services for the co-op, stated to the crowd at the contest finals, "The young people of our service area are our greatest asset. Along with college scholarships in conjunction with county livestock shows all over our service area, the Rural Electric Youth Tour is another way to co-op shows appreciation for the fine young people in our area."

Waste

"I talked to some people at Phillips and they said they'd be more than happy to have us," Lively said.

A trip to McIntosh, Ala., which could take place next week, may include councilmen, commissioners and a city-county retained engineer as well as citizens, Lively said.

"I really feel like one or two of the council and one or two of the commissioners ought to go," recommended Councilman Ronnie Christian during the discussion Monday night.

Councilmen lauded the idea of private citizens going on the trips. "I like the idea," Christian said.

Councilman Gene Wheeler even suggested that an opponent of the proposed incinerator go. "I'd like somebody from Caprock (Electric Co-Op) to go who's against this thing so they can see," he said.

Christian, voicing concerns he feels should be addressed on the trips, said that he would like to find out who is responsible for monitoring the operations of the incinerators they will see and also who pays for the tests.

"These are some of the questions that I think people need to ask," he said. "I think we owe it to all citizens to look at all aspects."

Lively and councilmen said they want to talk to officials that operate the incinerators as well as local government officials and citizens where the incinerators are located.

Phillips Petroleum owns two incinerators in Bartlesville. One is a Vulcan Iron Works incinerator which has incinerated over 3,000 types of hazardous wastes and is the same type of incinerator that would be located in Martin County. A second incinerator there was built by Phillips Petroleum.

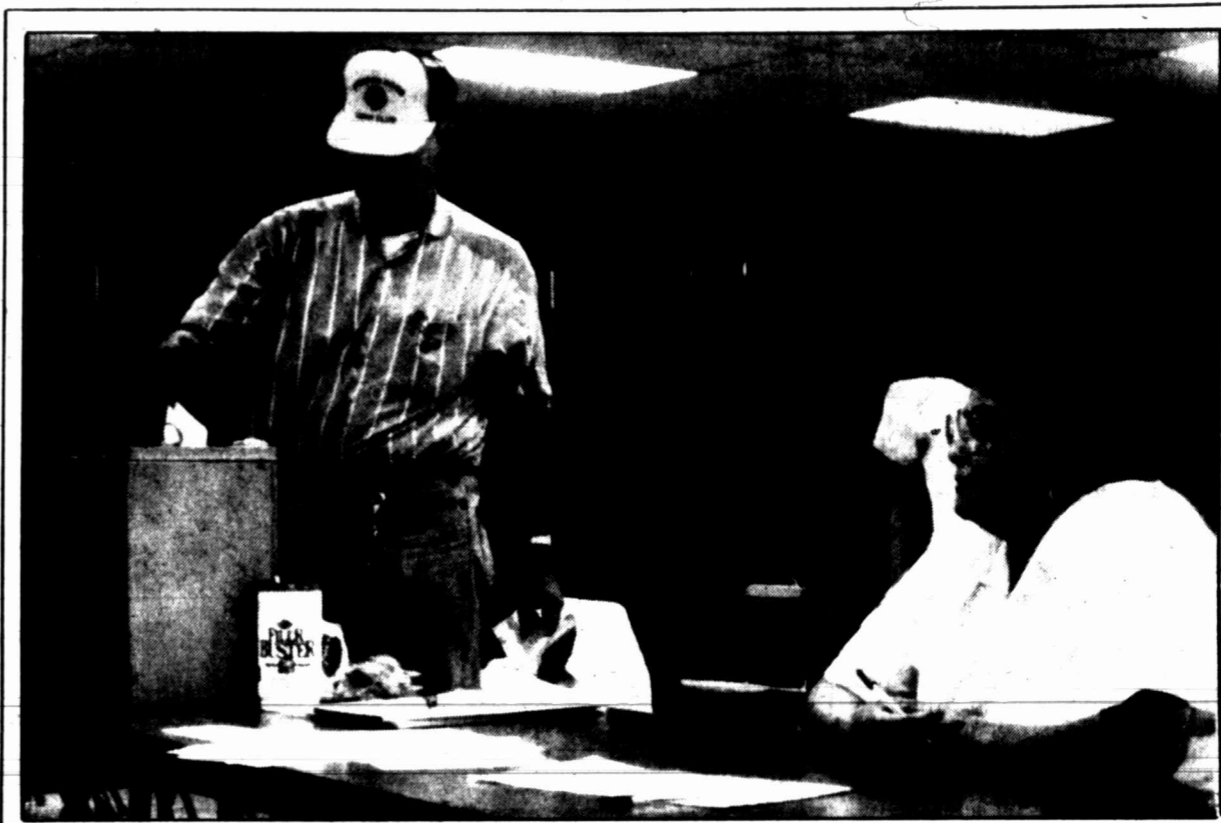

The incinerator in McIntosh is also a Vulcan. In operation since 1973, it incinerates hazardous waste from Ciba-Geigy plants, a major multinational chemical company. The incinerator is owned by All American Environmental Corp., of Brooklyn N.Y., the same company which has proposed the location of an incinerator here in Martin County.

The incinerator in Martin County would be used to burn oil and petroleum contaminated dirt and sludge, though in five to 10 years, or possibly more, it could be used to burn hazardous chemicals, said All American Texas representative J.E. "Jim" Bradley of Lubbock, at a public hearing last week. More than 50 citizens attended the hearing at the county courthouse.

Oil sludge is not considered to be hazardous, according to an Environmental Protection Agency spokesperson in Dallas. Burning hazardous waste would require a permit from the EPA. Bradley said they have the right to burn any waste safely that they want, but they would not do so without permission from the City Council and Commissioners Court.

Lively said a trip to Bartlesville would be either by car or chartered plane. It would cost $1,650 to charter a plane, he said. The total cost of the trip could run $6,000-$8,000. For the trip to McIntosh, air fare is $285 for a round trip for each individual, he said.

The two or three citizens who would go on each trip would have their expenses paid by the city and county.

sponsored Clements' plan in bill form. But Leedom wasn't present for the education debate Monday, when senators passed virtually the same reform measure Clements killed with his tax veto.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said if at least $550 million isn't put into the Legislature's plan — the amount Parker deemed lawmakers' bottom line — he would support simply redistributing current state funds to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order for change.

That could require local property tax increases or budget cuts in wealthier school districts. But Parker said under the Senate plan, lawmakers would be forced to put in new state money or dismantle the finance system next year.

"Even if we had to suffer through one more year of unequal, inadequate funding, it would give us better hope for future generations," he said.

"If the governor chooses to disrupt or impede the efforts of this Legislature to put funding with (the reform bill), then that's the choice he makes, and he and his party can then be judged by the voters of this state," said Parker, Senate Education Committee chairman.

If lawmakers and Clements don't write a reform plan by June 1 making more money available to property-poor school districts, a state judge has said he would appoint a court master to do it.

In Dallas, 84-year-old Ellen Hickman said the flooding was the fourth such experience she had gone through. But the latest flooding caused water in her home for the first time.

"You don't cry, you don't moan; you do the things you have to," she said.

Diseases, including encephalitis, were also a concern in the wake of flooding. Some animals in flooded areas had been diagnosed with encephalitis.

"In most folks," said Dr. Charles Haley with the Dallas County Health Department, "it (encephalitis) results in bad headaches. But in some people, particularly the elderly, it can result in coma and death."
