Dane Witherspoon...

Snyder graduate is 'soap' star

A graduate of Snyder High School is one of the lead stars of a new NBC daytime soap opera — Dane Witherspoon, who will portray the character "Joe Perkins."

The daytime drama "Santa Barbara" premieres Monday afternoon.

Witherspoon is a 1972 graduate of SHS. His parents, Don and Doris Witherspoon, have since moved from Snyder. While here, his father was a teacher-coach in the system and his mother a teacher also.

He is another graduate of the Jerry Worsham drama department, playing the lead role in the 1972 state-winning one-act play "Blood Wedding."

For this role, Witherspoon was named the best performer at the UIL state contest.

According to an NBC release, he will portray a character just released from prison after having served five years for a murder he did not commit. In the premiere episode, he heads home to Santa Barbara, resolved to clear his name and regain the love of his former fiance, Kelly Capwell.

Witherspoon trained with ACT (American Conservatory Theater) and Pacific Conservatory and has appeared in the Utah Shakespeare Festival and in New Haven's Performance Space in the play "Private Wars."

On television, he has guest-starred on "Eight Is Enough," and "The Waltons" and in the pilot "The Home Front."

The new daytime series will focus on the lives and loves of four resident families — the Lockridges, the Perkins, the Andrades and the Capwells.

"Santa Barbara" is videotaped on location in Santa Barbara, Calif. and in an NBC studio complex in Burbank built especially to house "Santa Barbara's" taping and production facilities.

It's no coincidence that "Santa Barbara" is premiering right at the beginning of the Olympics, an NBC spokesman said. "The schedule for our competition, 'General Hospital,' will be altered in most of the country," says Brian Frons, vice president for NBC's daytime programs. "We feel there will be a lot of viewers looking for something to watch, viewers who normally wouldn't leave 'General Hospital.' It's a unique opportunity and we're grabbing it."

DOE reports discrimination charge invalid

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

An investigation by the office of civil rights branch of the Department of Education has indicated "no evidence of discrimination" regarding the policies and actions of Snyder school district personnel.

This was the reply to each of four points alleged in a complaint filed at the end of last school year by local representatives of the NAACP and LULAC.

The results of the investigation were returned to school personnel last week by DOE officials. In each of four specific areas, the findings vindicated the school district of the discrimination charges.

An on-site visit by two DOE staffers was conducted here the week of April 29-May 4 in response to the complaints. This visit plus school records provided by district personnel were used as the basis of findings.

These allegations contended that the district discriminated because of race or national origin:

—When hiring and accepting applications for its professional instruction staff.

—By assigning minority teachers to schools on the basis of race.

—By realigning the district's attendance zones in 1983 to "maintain segregated elementary schools."

—By allowing white students to illegally transfer into and out of schools in various attendance zones.

The DOE report just completed indicated "no evidence of discrimination" in any of the four allegations.

Taylor D. August, director for the Region VI office of the DOE based in Dallas, writes, "We have determined that your district is in compliance regarding...the assignment of minority teachers to schools, the realignment of its attendance zones and student transfers."

In a side issue, the DOE official did note that two incidents occurring last school year had been confirmed which involved district employees "making public derogatory racial remarks."

As a remedy to this, school officials have provided the DOE office with a school policy statement noting that "epithets, manner of address and at-

3 youth suffer minor injuries

Three young children were treated for minor injuries after a two-vehicle traffic accident in east Snyder Friday afternoon.

Taken from the scene were 4-month-old Valarie Trusty, 18-month-old Amber Trusty and 12-year-old Christy Criswell, all of Snyder. They were transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder.

The mishap occurred around 5:09 p.m. in the 600 Block of East Highway. All three children were passengers in a 1983 Mazda driven by Teresa Trusty of 2805 Ave. Y.

Her vehicle was in collision with a 1977 Buick driven by Andrez Perez of 2001 Ave. K.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Before giving a piece of your mind, one should be sure he can get by on what's left."

Bill Zimmerman and Harold Denson were discussing the recent Scurry County Rodeo.

Zimmerman, the county probation officer, is a long-time official of the rodeo, and Denson is is one of the county's long-time philosophers.

Denson suggested that the rodeo parade should be the number one news event of 1984. "The parade was rained out, and rain certainly is due top billing this year."

If Geraldine Ferraro ever moves into the White House, we can just imagine the confusion. We've never known a woman to move into a new house without wanting to redecorate. If she's a typical woman, there would have to be a new closet or two added.

Some fashion folks are already taking advantage of a female vice presidential nominee. A shoe store in San Francisco quickly advertised women's pumps with the sign, "Shoe for a Vice President."

We don't happen to be one of those folks who checks the box on the income tax form to donate $1 to the presidential election campaign.

In fact, we'd like to see a limit on campaign spending and all of those funds coming from the private sector. It makes our blood boil to learn that, in addition to the federal money already received, each nominee from the two major political parties will receive $40.4 million in tax money to lure votes.

Elimination of federal election money would be a good start on chipping away at the nation's deficits.

Bloopers seem to be popular these days, and a minister is collecting miscues seen in church bulletins. A favorite was a preacher who was seeking volunteers to do a few hours of secretarial work.

His announcement read, "Your preacher really does need help with some of the office cuties."

Drama students to ATA conflab

Students in the Snyder High School theatre program are spending a portion of their summer preparing for a performance at the national convention of the American Theatre Association in San Francisco Aug. 11-14.

According to SHS drama instructor Jerry Worsham, a group of the local students will be appearing several times during the convention to present a series of workshops on the teaching of theatre in high schools.

The invitation to appear at the convention — first extended last spring after the department captured the state championship in the UIL one-act play competition — is a rare honor for high school students and instructors, according to state UIL Drama Director Lynn Murray.

"High Schools are not usually invited to such events," said Murray.

The local students, along with their instructor, are slated to demonstrate new techniques and approaches to the teaching of high school theatre which have been developed at SHS over the past several years.

John Faust of St. Louis, program chairman of the convention, was prompted to invite the Snyder group after he saw a similar series of demonstrations staged by Worsham and then-SHS student Scott Marlar at the association's convention in New York in 1979.

According to Worsham, funding available for the trip prevents taking all of the local students to the convention. Those making the trip will be selected on the basis of their activities with the local program through the past school year.

Funding is being provided by institutions and agencies in the city along with private donations from friends of the local program.

The students making the trip are also planning several fundraising efforts for the next two weeks including bake sales, car washes and garage sales.

According to Worsham, this summer's appearance at the convention holds great prospects for "showing off" the nationally acclaimed local program as the group will be performing for over 5,000 theatre people from the U.S. and Canada.

The latest honor won by SHS theatre students was the state one-act play competition in Austin. Their production of "The Crucible" was deemed the best in state for AAAA schools.

Q. — I've noticed a bright red bug which comes out during a rain. I've heard it called a Santa Claus bug, but can you give me some information about it?

A. — Deana Myers, county entomologist, said the bug is not an insect but a mite of the family tromdiculidae. She noted little is known about it other than the fact that it is only seen directly after a rain.

52 injured near Olympics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A motorist who wanted "revenge against the police" mowed down screaming pedestrians "like bowling pins" on a crowded sidewalk near an Olympic Village, killing a woman and injuring at least 52 other people, authorities said.

The driver, Daniel Lee Young, 21, of Inglewood, was not injured. He was arrested for investigation of murder, police said.

"There is no indication there is any connection with the Olympic Games in any way," said Police Chief Daryl Gates. The Olympics opened Saturday.

Hinckley seeks release

WASHINGTON (AP)--John W. Hinckley Jr. said Friday he's cured of the mental illness that caused him to shoot President Reagan in 1981, and he asked to be released from a Washington mental hospital.

"I am ready now," Hinckley told the federal judge who committed him after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity in the assasination attempt.

Hinckley appeared before U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker.

Crash kills one

ROANS PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officials are expected to begin investigating the crash of a single-engine plane that burned the pilot beyond recognition.

Justice of the Peace S.W. Freeman said investigators were not sure whether the victim was a man or a woman and said the plane was burned so badly that its numbers were not legible.

The Beechcraft plane crashed Friday afternoon in woods about six miles north of the Grimes County town of Roans Prairie, about 30 miles east of Bryan.

His visit locally is part of a 75-city campaign tour.

To fight rates...

Governor okays funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle has been given $70,000 in state funds by Gov. Mark White for Boyle's battle against Houston Lighting & Power's $554 million rate case.

The money, which came from a fund under the governor's discretion, will be used for expert witnesses at the hearing that begins in September, Boyle said Friday.

"Without that money we would have been in a deficit position. We could not have participated in the case effectively," said Boyle, who represents residential and small commercial utility customers.

Boyle's request was granted because it fell within the criteria set by lawmakers for spending the money, according to Hershel Meriwether, a White budget aide.

HL&P's rate hike request is the largest ever filed by a Texas electric company. Boyle said the case will have "far-reaching impact."

"One of the major questions is the prudence of construction of the South Texas Nuclear Project," he said.

The 1983 Legislature established the Office of Public Utility Counsel to represent ratepayers.

Federal judge is nominated

WACO (AP) — Walter S. Smith Jr., a former state district judge, has been recommended by Sen. John Tower for appointment as a federal judge for the Western District of Texas.

Smith, of Waco, served as 54th district judge from November 1980 to December 1982. If his nomination is approved by the Senate, Smith would occupy a new seat recently created by Congress.

Smith, 43, is currently a federal magistrate and is associated with the law firm of Vaughn, Terrell, Linn and Crowden of Waco.

The new judgeship was created because of an abnormally high court docket in the Western District, which has been approved for eight full-time judges, but currently is operating with six full-time judges and two semi-retired senior judges.

In recommending the appointment to President Reagan, Tower said Smith "has demonstrated exceptional ability while serving on the bench as state district judge. I believe his professional experience makes him an excellent candidate for this federal judgeship."

Disguised congressman gets street life view

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Less than two days after dining with President Reagan at the White House, an unshaven U.S. Rep. Bill Boner donned polyester pants, a T-shirt and a pair of old tennis shoes to get a first-hand taste of street life.

Boner, a Democrat from Tennessee's 5th District, became "Hoot Jackson," a drifter from Atlanta. He then spent a weekend roaming Lower Broadway, a downtown hang-out for street people, to learn about the homeless and unemployed.

"It's an experience I will long remember, but not one I'm proud to say I have had because it acknowledges that there is a blight on the community that sooner or later we must face," Boner said in an interview Friday night.

"I don't want to pretend to be an instant expert on street life, but I hope I can make the public more aware of the problem street people face. Now I thoroughly recognize the need for adequate shelter, the need for proper meals and the need for proper medical care," he said.

Boner, 39, said he was asked by Irene Ritter, editor of Nashville! magazine, three months ago to accept the challenge of living on the street for a weekend with no more than $5 to spend. An account of his experiences June 22-24 will appear in the magazine's August issue, which goes on sale Monday.

In the article, Boner wrote that on his first night as "Hoot" he was trying to go to sleep on the front steps of a downtown church when he thought about the Reagan dinner.

"My mind wandered back about 30 hours to the south lawn of the White House, where I had munched on Chesapeake Bay crab cakes at a congressional seafood dinner hosted by President and Mrs. Reagan," he wrote. "Throughout the evening, my colleagues kidded me about my 4-day-old beard."

Boner said he spent the weekend talking with transients and taking meals at Holy Name Catholic Church and a Salvation Army mobile food unit.

"These people are not freeloaders. They are the downtrodden who have incurred a great deal of difficult times," he said.

During a visit to the Nashville Union Rescue Mission, Boner said, he talked to a counselor named Bob.

"I remember a man named Hoot Jackson," said Bob Clark, who has worked at the mission since March. "I admire him for doing that," he said after learning that "Hoot" was actually Boner.

Boner, who is unopposed in his re-election bid this year, said he spent time "just hanging out, talking, walking, looking for cardboard to use as bedding.

Gym used for mass jailing in Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Songwriters and salesmen, carpenters and cab drivers are spending the weekend in a gymnasium-turned-jail as officials make a second attempt to reduce a massive backlog of motorists convicted under a stiffened drunken driving law.

"This is a lot better than jail," said car salesman Frank Forbes as he sat on his cot, serving out his two-day sentence for a first conviction.

"It's like being in the service with all these guys, but I'd rather just be able to sleep for 48 hours," added the 42-year-old Nashville resident.

Songwriter William Fitzhugh, who reported Friday to begin his 48 hours for his first driving-under-the-influence conviction, expected to be stuck in a cell and left alone.

Instead, he was assigned an Army cot, issued a towel and toothbrush and herded into the gymnasium at the Criminal Justice Center with about 150 other offenders.

"I had no idea it was going to be like this," Fitzhugh, 27, of Nashville, said as he was checked in, overnight bag in tow. "All they told me was show up by 5 p.m. I'd rather have privacy."

"This whole thing is a logistical nightmare but what else can we do?" Marty Szeigis, an aide to Sheriff Fate Thomas, said as the stream of weekend inmates was processed, frisked and sent to canvas cots spaced inches apart on the orange, 7,200-square-foot floor.

Thomas, overseer of Metropolitan Nashville jails, is using the mass jailing for the second straight month to cope with a backlog of some 1,100 cases that has mounted since the law, one of the nation's toughest, went into effect July 1, 1982.

The law carries a year's probation, the loss of regular driving privileges for a year and 48 hours in jail for a first offense; 45-day terms on a second offense; and 120 days in jail on a third conviction. Repeaters spend multiple weekends in jail because the law says the sentences must not interfere with the motorist's employment.

The offenders, most carrying extra cigarettes, a change of clothes, books and snack food, may not have much time to ponder their predicament. Barring rain, they were to be picking up trash in vacant lots and along roads, sweeping, painting and otherwise cleaning up government buildings today.

Weightlifting equipment, a pingpong table and a television were provided.

About nine women offenders were housed in another part of the building. They, too, were to be put to work.

Many of the weekend inmates said they prefered the gym, cooled by three large box fans, to a dingy cell with perhaps less desirable company.

"We're not criminals. We're just people who made a mistake," said Joe Cagle, 32, a carpenter from Nashville with 35½ hours left to do for his first offense. "I'd rather go to work and keep active than sit around in a cell."

The first group jailing was June 1-2, when 260 people served time in the gym.

India may have erred in terrorism crackdown

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government had to crack down hard on terrorism in Punjab state but might have made "mistakes" along the way, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has admitted.

Meanwhile, more alleged Sikh extremists were arrested in army sweeps through Punjab on Friday, and police patrols were stepped up to contain Hindu-Moslem rioting in the southern part of the country.

Authorities ordered a curfew Friday in Hyderabad, about 750 miles south of New Delhi, to contain the communal violence that erupted Sunday when a Hindu religious procession was attacked by Moslems. Since then, four people have been killed and more than 150 injured, news reports said.

Police opened fire at a 7,000-strong Moslem mob, injuring five people, after the use of clubs and tear gas failed to stop them from attacking Hindus in Hyderabad on Friday, the Statesman newspaper reported.

Two persons were stabbed to death and about 75 suffered knife and stone injuries Friday, the report said.

On Sunday, two other people were reported to have been killed and 85 wounded in Hyderabad. The newspaper said 130 people had been arrested on charges of rioting.

Authorities in Punjab announced Friday that 25 more suspected Sikh terrorists had been arrested by army troops, who have been combing the northern countryside for nearly two months to root out extremists and find arms caches.

In remarks to visiting intellectuals from Punjab, Mrs. Gandhi referred to the Indian army attack on the Golden Temple in Amritsar, which resulted in hundreds of deaths.

"There may have been mistakes. We do not believe in hiding our mistakes," she said. "Whatever action was taken had to be resorted to, as we were left with no alternative."

George Gallup...

Poll founder is dead

THUN, Switzerland (AP) — George Gallup, whose passion for monitoring public opinion inspired generations of political scientists, was a frenetic worker who was gathering data on the 1984 presidential race when he died at age 82.

"He's left a spirit that will be with everybody that's here," his assistant, Sarah Vann Allen, said Friday.

"When he'd come home from being away for awhile, I'd open his coat pocket and find no less than 75 articles neatly folded that he ripped out of newspapers," Ms. Van Allen said from Gallup's office in Princeton, N.J.

Gallup, who died of a heart attack Thursday after being stricken at his summer home in the village of Tschingel, continued his frantic work pace until the final hours of his life, she said.

"I talked to him yesterday morning and he requested that I put together the election figures for '76 and '80 and send them to him because he was working on the election," Ms. Van Allen said.

It was announced Sept. 21, 1972, that there had been no U.S. combat deaths for one week in Vietnam — the first such week since March of 1965.

YOUR CHILD: "JUST A LITTLE CHUNKY?"

You may call your child "just a little chunky" now; but when she's 21 her friends may call her "fat."

She's chubby and cute. Her curly blonde hair spills over slightly puffy cheeks and her tight, designer jeans act as a girdle to pull in a too-rounded tummy and hips. She's an adolescent now, and if she doesn't watch it she'll be fat before she's an adult. No longer will she be able to find Calvin or Gloria or even Brittania in her size.

If you feel your child may be overeating, whatever the reasons, you can do something about it. First on the list should be a visit to your doctor of chiropractic. The chiropractor is a health specialist who makes nutrition a regular part of his health regimen. Often a balanced diet coupled with a prescribed exercise program may be all that your child needs to deal with the weight problem. In addition, however, the doctor of chiropractic is skilled in correcting spinal misalignments, reducing spinal tension, and aiding in the restoration of normal nerve function to all vital organs of the body. This allows the body to function more efficiently, which may be instrumental in relieving the real problem.

While quick weight loss and fad diets are popular, they should be discouraged at all costs. They are dangerous and often result in the child regaining the weight lost with a resulting depression and loss of self-esteem. Here are ways the family can help:

- Serve a well-balanced diet of non-fattening foods.
- Avoid buying junk food. Who needs it? Moreover, it's expensive.
- Learn to make non-fattening desserts; substitute baked apples, for example.
- Encourage the teen; don't dwell on setbacks.
- Discourage skipping meals, especially at lunch. This leads to snacking after school.
- Encourage your child to get out of the house, to become involved in activities or sports. The earlier a regular exercise program is established in life, the better.
- Have periodic health examinations, including those of the child's back and spine.

Gets life term for trying to kill prosecutor

SAN ANTONIO (AP)-- Federal prosecutors say they are relieved the government has nearly closed the cases of a murder attempt against a former assistant U.S. attorney and the killing of a federal judge.

The comments came Friday after a federal judge sentenced admitted triggerman James Kearns to life in prison for a botched attempt on the life of prosecutor James Kerr Jr.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions also ordered Kearns to serve a concurrent 10-year sentence and pay a $10,000 fine for the Nov. 21, 1978, attack against Kerr.

Convicted drug kingpin Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra was sentenced to life in prison Tuesday for allegedly paying Kearns to kill Kerr.

Chagra already was serving 47 years on other charges when he drew the life sentence. Since the terms will be served concurrently, Sessions estimated Chagra could be parole in 20 years.

Kearns admitted using a .30-carbine rifle to fire at Kerr while he was driving to work. The prosecutor, who has since left the U.S. attorney's staff, escaped serious injury by ducking beneath the dashboard of his car.

The government said Chagra plotted to kill Kerr because the prosecutor was leading an investigation into Chagra's drug activities.

"We are pleased with the ultimate outcome of the case," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn.

"It's been a long haul. I'm glad it's almost over," said Jahn's wife LeRoy, also an assistant federal prosecutor.

Kearns, apparently angry at Chagra's concurrent sentence, told Sessions during sentencing, "He (Chagra) got absolutely nothing.

"I'm not surprised he came down here and turned like that. I tried to stop it," said Kearns, who pleaded guilty after Chagra made a plea bargain agreement in which he agreed to testify against Kearns.

Kearns also mentioned Robert Piccolo, an unindicted co-conspirator in the case. The government said Piccolo was the go-between Chat because they made deals to testify and I didn't, then I might get a tougher sentence," Kearns said. "I don't see that it (promises to testify) makes them a little less guilty than I am."

Kearns' attorney, Craig Mehrens, said, "Our government is rewarding those who use some other avenue than the court jury trial system.

"Mr. Chagra got a sentence that in all probability will end up in Mr. Chagra serving no time. Mr. Kearns does not see that as very fair," Mehrens said.

Sessions, in sentencing Kearns, admitted Chagra's guilty plea "imperiled you greatly as did Mr. Piccolo. I have never been in a penitentiary and you have. I know a price has been paid by those people in terms of days served. I don't know what will happen to Mr. Chagra."

Piccolo is serving 55 years on various drug charges.

Bonn miffed at propaganda

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West German officials fear that a recent Soviet press barrage against their country could be an attempt to spoil its improved relations with Communist East Germany.

The Soviet attacks may be aimed at discouraging East German President Erich Honecker from making his first official visit to West Germany this September.

Soviet accusations that West Germany is militaristic and revanchist — engaged in a vengeful quest for return of formerly-held territory — have increased this month as relations between East and West Germany reached a new high.

In the latest Soviet rhetorical attack, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda charged Friday that West Germany is trying to undermine East Germany's sovereignty.

Moscow is apparently concerned that its Warsaw pact ally, East Germany, is getting too friendly with staunch NATO member West Germany, according to the chairman of the Bonn parliament's foreign policy committee, Werner Marx.

The Soviet attacks on Bonn are "an attempt to pin down the East German leadership to a harder line" on the West German government of Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Marx said in an interview published today in the Ludwigshafen newspaper "Rheinpfalz."

"It has been recognizable for weeks that the Soviet Union is not showing itself to be especially cooperative towards Honecker's wish" to visit West Germany, said Marx, who like Kohl is a Christian Democrat.

"I am afraid that the (Soviet) attacks on Bonn cannot remain without implications for Honecker's intent to visit" West Germany, Marx said.

Houston money business...

'Hot' chimp celebrity

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police have taken possession of a chimpanzee which they believe is a missing prime-time primate that has appeared on television shows such as "The Dukes of Hazzard," "Private Benjamin" and "Alice."

An Aug. 8 hearing before a justice of the peace has been set to determine whether the chimp is 4-year-old Mikey, who turned up in Houston after being stolen from a California ranch last month, officials said.

Houston police officer G.G. Lively said the 3½-foot-tall chimp was found at an animal boarding farm near Houston after an anonymous caller tipped authorities.

'It's my first chimpanzee case, and hopefully my last," Lively told the Los Angeles Times.

George Toth, who owns an exotic animal compound near Palmdale, Calif., reported the chimp was stolen June 19, police said. Toth reported a ranch guard heard an animal screaming and a truck driving away, then found that Mikey's cage had been cut open.

The caller who tipped Houston police said the chimp in question was now being called Scooter and was being groomed to join a traveling circus in Europe, police said. The tipster sent police to the boarding farm.

Paulette Rottman, a Houston woman who provides animal acts for birthday parties and other occasions, had left the animal at the kennel, police said. She told investigators she had been shopping for a chimpanzee for several months and had spread the word through animal entertainment circles, according to police.

Ms. Rottman told police that she was contacted about June 20 by two men who said they had a chimpanzee for sale. One of the men posed as a well-known animal breeder, she said. She flew to the West Texas town of Van Horn and paid one of the men $5,000 for the animal.

"From what she told us, she knew the chimpanzee was a big star, but she insists she thought the sale was legitimate," Lively said. But she told police she did not know who the men were and the bill of sale contained no signatures or names, according to investigators.

Lively said the men who sold the animal have not been found.

Police said they are virtually sure the chimp is Mikey because of scars above his eyes.

Toth said whoever stole Mikey knew his way around the ranch.

"He found his way there in the dark and knew exactly where Mikey's cage was," Toth said.

He said he has had no contact with Ms. Rottman but figures "she didn't know that he was a hot chimp."

Reagan keeps doors open for arms control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, refusing to accept the Soviet Union's discouraging words as the final answer, is keeping open diplomatic channels to the Kremlin in hopes of salvaging comprehensive arms control discussions in September.

"The door is not closed so far as we're concerned, and we'll be there," President Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, told reporters on Friday after the Soviet Union called the U.S. approach to the talks "deceitful" and said it would be "impossible" to meet on Reagan's terms.

The Soviet statement and the quick reaction by U.S. officials were the latest superpower maneuvering over the possibility of resuming arms talks before the end of the year.

The Soviets proposed on June 28 that both sides meet in Vienna to discuss limitations on space and anti-satellite weapons. The Reagan administration accepted the offer, but said it wanted to also raise other arms control topics, notably limitations on medium- and long-range missiles, the subject of talks in Geneva that broke down late last year.

On Friday, after weeks of diplomatic discussions that included establishment of a tentative meeting date of Sept. 18, Deputy Foreign Minister Viktor Komplektov gave the Soviets' response: "The current position of the U.S. administration makes impossible the talks that were suggested by the Soviet Union in order to work out and conclude an agreement on the prevention of the militarization of outer space."

He also charged that the U.S. response made no mention of space weapons, the only topic the Soviets proposed to discuss. "The American side left no doubt by its reply that it was engaged in deceitful play," Komplektov told a news conference.

Speakes countered by saying, "We do not believe that such discussions are 'impossible' and we are continuing to deal with this subject in private diplomatic channels."

Despite Soviet objections the United States still intends to raise at Vienna the possibility of renewing the suspended Geneva talks on reducing offensive nuclear weapons, he said.

"If the Soviets do not choose to listen to our views on this subject, they need not," Speakes said. "But for us, and for mankind, this subject is too important to ignore."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When shopping today, do not yield to impulse spending. There is a chance that what you buy today can be purchased at a better price later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Important objectives can be achieved today, but they might not be attained too easily. If you're prepared to struggle, you get what you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may get caught in a ticklish situation with friends today. Be supportive of an old pal instead of siding with a newer acquaintance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something of considerable importance to you and another can be pulled off successfully today, even though conditions won't be optimum.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A close friend who is looking out for your interests may offer you advice today that will prevent a future disappointment. Listen well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to avoid mistakes today, it's best that you personally supervise work performed for you by others. Be sure they follow your specifications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not become involved in risky ventures today with casual acquaintances. If you team up with anyone, select a reliable old pal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It may be necessary for your to step in at the last minute today and straighten out a matter that is causing problems for an associate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make it a point to maintain a proper perspective today. Don't treat light matters too seriously nor serious matters too lightly.

ERS slide show slated August 10

Community residents who would like to know more about the Emergency Response System (ERS) to be initiated soon by the Senior Citizens Center are invited to attend a program planned at 11:30 a.m. in the center on August 10.

A slide program will be shown at that time and persons who have other questions will be welcome to ask those, Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, sad.

Persons who will be participating in the ERS are senior citizens or younger people with handicaps who would benefit from being able to summon aid in the event of an emergency. The participant will wear or carry a small electronic unit and can contact the base station by pushing the alarm button. An automatic alarm will be sent to the base station if the unit is not re-activated on schedule.

The slide program has been shown to several local organizations and is available for showing to other groups, Mrs. Shaw said. Arrangements can be made by calling her office at 573-4035.

"We would like to talk to organization or individuals who would like to make a donation to the senior center for the purchase of a $375 individual unit," Mrs. Shaw said. "There will also be a $10 service charge for each unit and donors could arrange to cover this cost."

No date has yet been set for accepting applications for participating in ERS. A local screening committee has been named and they will study the applications to determine priorities.

Fights city hall...

Woman stays in home

BAYTOWN (AP) — A woman has vowed to host a hurricane party at her home following her acquittal of violating a city ordinance forbidding homeowners from occupying houses in a condemned flood-prone neighborhood.

Roxanne Gillum, who owns one of about 300 houses in the fashionable subdivision of Brownwood, was found innocent Friday of violating the Class C misdemeanor.

She vowed to spend many more nights in her home.

Jury foreman Ed Tolley, a 41-year-old oil company supervisor, said his six-person panel was concerned by the fact that the term "occupy" was not defined in the ordinance. The Baytown City Council passed the law in September 1983, a month after Hurricane Alicia flooded Brownwood.

"What it (occupy) meant in everyday life to us was to live there on a permanent basis," Tolley said.

Defense attorney Andrew Lannie said jurors deliberated about 20 minutes before reaching their verdict.

Mrs. Gillum was accused of violating the ordinance by occupying the house the evening of May 31.

"I think the ordinance as the city has drawn it is vague and indefinite," Lannie said after the acquittal. "It's just a matter of how much time you can spend there and not be in violation."

But Lannie said he did not believe the case would set a precedent because no other families are living in the neighborhood. He said the trial did not contest the ordinance's regulations barring repair and rebuilding in the neighborhood.

Lannie represents seven families, including Mrs. Gillum and her husband, Ron, who are suing Baytown over the ordinance. The law was passed because officials in the city, located 30 miles east of Houston, said the cost of restoring utilities would be prohibitive.

The families contend the Federal Emergency Management Agency is offering to pay prices far below market value for the condemned property. The Gillums said their house is worth more than $150,000, but the agency offered them $10,153.

The Brownwood subdivision, flood-prone because of subsidence, has had all utilities cut off, prompting the Gillum family to use a gasoline-powered generator to supply electricity.

Unrefrigerated milk

A new type of milk product geared to today's lifestyles is being introduced in some Texas markets.

Ultra high temperature (UHT) milk is real, fresh, fluid Grade A milk that is heated to 280 degrees, quickly cooled to room temperature and then packaged in a five-layer, aseptic package.

UHT milk can now be found in the juice section of some grocery stores. The combination of ultra high temperature processing and aseptic packaging gives the milk an unrefrigerated shelf life of months.

The UHT process does not involve adding preservatives, and neither the flavor nor the nutritional value of the milk is changed.

What has changed is the convenience. For example, the lowfat white milk could be ideal for one or two-person households or for consumers who use small quantities of milk. Once opened, it will stay fresh twice as long as refrigerated milk.

People with busy lifestyles and those who have little time to shop may also find UHT milk a convenience, since it can be stored on a shelf or kept unopened in the refrigerator for months.

UHT milk is also handy to have on hand in case you run out of milk, or for cooking and baking needs, but it's not designed to replace refrigerated milk entirely.

Chocolate, strawberry or orange creme flavored lowfat UHT milks are available in half pint containers. These flavored milks could be good alternatives to other beverages for children, since they offer essential vitamins, minerals and calcium.

The availability of UHT milk may mean that more people will use milk for sack lunches, picnics, traveling and other situations where refrigeration is a problem.

It can be carried along just like other non-refrigerated beverages and quick-chilled or served over ice. Or it can be frozen the night before packing it into a lunch box. By noon it will have thawed, and the cold milk will be ready for drinking.

Nutrition and eggs

Despite once popular beliefs, fertilized eggs, which are rare today, are no more nutritious than nonfertile ones. The best choice to be assured of nutritious, high quality eggs without paying the high price demanded for fertile eggs is to select clean, sound shelled, graded eggs that are maintained under refrigeration and purchased from a store where movement is rapid.

Selecting watermelon

Judging the quality of a watermelon is very difficult unless it's cut in half or quartered. One recent produce industry study showed that about forty percent of consumers find melons the most difficult fruit to judge for ripeness and freshness. Here are a few appearance factors which may be helpful, but not totally reliable, in guiding you to a good, ripe, juicy watermelon. The surface sould be relatively smooth. The rind should have a slight dullness, neither shiny nor dull. The ends should be filled out and rounded, and the underside should have a creamy color.

Latin America's industrial output declined 5.3 percent from 1981 to 1982. Production of heavy industry declined even more sharply — nearly 14 percent — in 1981, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. The bank says, "Latin American manufacturing is in the midst of what may be the most serious situation to confront it in the 20th century," adding that production has increased at rates below those of the rest of the economy in six of the past eight years.

Not all exercise builds muscles

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm an 18-year-old male, 5 feet 9, and weigh 138 pounds. My forearms are small, and I think this is because of my eating habits. I hardly ever eat "junk food" and I eat plenty of meat. However, I don't eat a wide variety of vegetables. I doubt that my problem is caused by not exercising my arms enough. I usually eat two meals a day, not three. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — You may exercise your arms a great deal, but it may not be the kind of exercise you need to build muscular arms. You can work a muscle over and over and it may not increase in size. A good example is the long-distance runner. He has strong leg muscles that have a lot of endurance, but they are just large enough and strong enough to lift the weight of his body repeatedly in his running workouts.

It is not how often you work a muscle so much as it is how much you load the muscle. It is better to do 10 near-maximal contractions than 1,000 weak contractions if you want to increase the size of a muscle. The stronger the contraction or the greater weight it can lift, the bigger the muscle gets.

I doubt that your eating habits are causing you to have small forearms. Since you eat plenty of meat, you should be getting all the protein you need to build muscles. The other point is you need to get enough calories to support your energy requirements. You can get those from fat, carbohydrates or even excess protein.

Unless you are especially careful to eat very lean meats, you probably get quite a bit of fat because of the meat in your diet. I do not favor a high-fat diet, even for muscular development.

Vegetables are usually low-calorie foods and most of them are not high in protein, so eat your vegetables, but do so for the essential vitamins and minerals they contain.

You need to understand the principles of muscle development so I am sending you The Health Letter 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you are in school, get your physical-education teacher to help you with a proper exercise program. If not, try one of the health-club facilities that offer machines and weights to help build muscle size.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The new nursing home we recently entered delivers a small amount of a reddish fluid called "mouthwash" to patients every morning. We are ambulatory, clean our teeth regularly and drink water frequently. We do not feel any need for this service. We do not use it and regard the service as an unnecessary expense contributing to the high cost. Do you have any comments to offer in regard to this practice?

DEAR READER — It is probably a well-known commercial mouthwash. It has a pleasant taste, at least some think so.

In general, mouthwash does little good and does no harm. Some think a mouthwash will correct bad breath. It rarely does more than a momentary coverup of bad breath. It will not replace good dental hygiene. It is not a satisfactory substitute for clean dentures for those who have dentures.

Bad breath can come from many other sources besides your teeth. Mouthwashes merely mask these odors, too.

Considering the high cost of the other aspects of nursing-home care, I doubt this is a significant factor in your bill. I just wish all the aspects of nursing-home care were no more expensive than simple mouthwash.

Court challenges due in SW Bell rate increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell says it's been cheated out of $6.4 million. AT&T Communications says local ratepayers aren't paying their fair share.

Lawyers for cities and ratepayers say the whole thing should be thrown out.

Almost three months after the Public Utility Commission granted Southwestern Bell an $816.7 million rate hike, the decision is under court challenge from several sides.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle, who represents residential and small commercial ratepayers, filed suit Friday asking a state district court to order the commission to start over in Bell's $1.3 billion rate hike case.

"The purpose of regulation is to set rates based upon the actual, verified books of the utility, rather than crystal ball forecasts or guesstimates of the company's future expenses and revenues," said Boyle, who complained that Bell relied on economic forecasts of the possible effects of the AT&T divestiture.

He said Bell was given an increase that was "tens of millions" of dollars too high.

Bell wanted to double local rates, but the commission order added only 30 cents a month to basic service bills. Most of the $816.7 million comes from long distance companies — such as AT&T Communications — that pay Bell for the use of the local network.

AT&T lawyer Bob Lehr said his company's goal is higher local rates that could reduce AT&T's payments to Bell.

"Certainly, a $2 (monthly local rate increase) we feel is reasonable," said Lehr.

In addition to the suits by AT&T and Boyle, these challenges have been or will be filed in court:

— Bell says it was cheated out of $6.4 million in short-haul long distance rate hikes approved by the commission. The Bell suit asks for an increase of abo the commission for rehearing.

— U.S. Telephone will file an appeal similar to AT&T's, seeking reduced payments to Bell.

TML lawyer Don Butler wants the courts to rule that Bell simply got too much money as a result of the increase.

"We're concerned because the total revenue set for Southwestern Bell was excessive, by any standard," he said. "That was generally disguised by the fact we had a modest local rate increase."

Butler said he fears the AT&T suit could result in higher local rates.

"If these other parties are successful in whole or in part in escaping some of the revenue requirements, then we know that local customers are a good candidate" for increases, he said.

Bell's appeal is limited to a challenge of the short-haul long distance rates set by the commission staff. Bell retained the short-haul long distance service — now its only long distance service — after the Jan. 1 court-ordered break-up of AT&T.

Richard Harris, Bell vice president for revenues and public affairs in Texas, said the PUC order granted a $28.4 million rate increase. However, Harris said the rates put in place only produced a $22 million increase.

"As we said the day they approved the increase, we're not happy with it. So there's no surprise we're in here" appealing, Harris said.

Asked about the possibility that the entire, complex case could go back to the PUC as a result of the Boyle or Butler suits, Harris said sarcastically, "Oh goody."

Modern Bride's White Wedding Offends Old-Fashioned Friend

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A very good friend is planning her wedding and has asked me to be her maid of honor. She's planning a church wedding with all the trimmings, including walking down the aisle in a white wedding gown just like a pure and innocent bride, which she is not. She's presently living with her fiance.

Most who know her are either laughing at her or criticizing her. This is her first marriage and his second. I told her I couldn't participate in a church wedding because I disapproved of her past conduct and also the kind of wedding she's having.

She is now not speaking to me. This bothers me because we have been best friends since childhood. What do I do now?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: The fact that you are "bothered" indicates that you may regret your decision. If so, tell your friend.

Perhaps you may not know that a church wedding with all the trimmings is a first-time bride's privilege and is not reserved for virgins only.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing from jail, but I'm not blaming anybody but myself for ending up here. I hope to learn from my mistakes.

I'm writing to help the girl who wrote to you from Seattle. She said her boyfriend said, "If you really love me, you'll prove it by having sex with my friends." You told her to run from that no-good guy, but you didn't explain why.

I've lived on the streets, and I know how young girls become hookers. First they fall in love with a guy they think is nice, but he's a bum who only wants to use them. He says, "If you really love me, you'll have sex with my friends."

The girl doesn't want to lose him, so she has sex with a couple of his friends. What she doesn't know is that the guy she loves is a "pimp" who's training her to become a hooker. Before long, the "boyfriend" puts her out on the street, selling herself to guys, and the boyfriend (pimp) ends up with most of her money.

I've seen this happen to a lot of innocent girls, as young as 14 and 15. Next comes the dope, and pretty soon they're old, worn-out prostitutes before they're 19.

Print this, Abby. It might save a lot of lives.

IN JAIL IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR IN JAIL: Thanks for writing. It's well worth the space in this column.

DEAR ABBY: I write to you in the hope of reaching as many readers as possible. Fixing the drinking age at 21 may make little difference in curbing the number of drunk drivers. But fixing the penalty at permanent license revocation might make a huge difference! Then young people going out for an evening would do as they have done in some foreign countries for many years: knowing that the penalty for drunk driving is permanent license revocation, they draw straws to determine which one shall drink nothing but lemonade and be the driver.

Worth trying?

R.T. GORE,
WOOSTER, OHIO

DEAR R.T.: Yes, I'll drink to that. (You drive.)

Slain teen remembered

SPRINGTOWN, Texas (AP) — A 16-year-old girl has been buried in a cemetery across the street from a house where authorities say they believe she was raped and strangled to death.

Jarrel Tunnell, a Church of Christ minister here, asked those at the funeral Friday to remember Tracy Lee Bagley not for how she died but for her happiness and goodness.

"Tracy would want us to remember her for the good times she experienced in life," Tunnell said.

More than 100 teen-agers joined other mourners at the funeral, conducted in the church where Miss Bagley was active for most of the nine years she and her family had lived in Springtown, a town about 25 miles northwest of Fort Worth on Texas 199.

"She was in the church every time the door was open," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted one woman as saying.

A passing motorist found the girl's nude body in a ditch outside of town about 10 a.m. Tuesday, about eight hours after her parents reported her missing.

A 16-year-old boy that she went out with the previous night is being held in conjunction with her death. The youth, who Parker County District Attorney Mac Smith has asked to be tried as an adult, has been accused in court papers of murder and aggravated sexual assault.

The victim would have been a junior at Springtown High School and was captain-elect for the high school drill team.

The youth who was charged was a member of the high school football team.

"I knew him better than her," one teen-ager, Terra Koci, 17, said after the funeral. "It all won't soak in until school starts. It won't be the same if both of them aren't there. I just can't believe it."

AVOID CANCER

Cancer might be less common if people ate more fresh fruit and vegetables, and fewer animal fats, says Dr. Guy Newell of National Cancer Institute. "My family now eats less meat, more poultry and fish. We also eat lots of high fiber foods - peas, beans, cabbage, sprouts, spinach, oranges and apples, whole wheat bread and cereals. It will improve basic health and resist cancer," says Dr. Newell.

I read the other day whre a woman was grocery shopping and in trying to reach the last package of frozen broccoli lost her balance and fell head first into the freeze.

A man walking by grabbed her by the ankles, dragged her out, and drove her to the hospital where she was treated and released.

I have to believe that falling in the freezer was the easy part. The real trauma came when she had to deal with the people who fill out insurance forms. I can see it now.

"Was this an accident?"

"Yes."

"Was there any other way to get the broccoli out of the case?"

"Probably."

"Have you gotten broccoli out of the case like this before?"

"Many times."

Mothers know exactly what I am talking about. Most of the accidents that happen with children border on the bizarre. They never do anything in a conventional way. I always had the kid with the penny shoved up his nose, the arm wedged in the sweeper bag, the lip caught in a mousetrap. Things that everyone told me 30 years from now I'd laugh at .., and I'm still waiting.

I was only five years into child-raising when I stopped asking, "How in the world could something like this happen?" After awhile, I fully accepted the strange and prepared myself to defend it while riding to the emergency room.

"How did your son split his head open?"

"He did a swan dive into two feet of water."

"You can't do that."

"Right."

I used to watch nurses at the desk who would try to jam "Got pantleg caught in the mixer" onto insurance forms or, "Cut tongue while hiding Fort Apache soldier set from cereal box in his mouth to annoy brother" and wonder what some of the other insurance claims read like.

I'd surely love to have seen their faces when a woman reported recently her buttocks were lodged in an emergency exit when she was in the bus restroom and the bus swerved, forcing her into the window.

Can't you hear them asking at the hospital, "Was this your assigned seat?"

UGSA finals scheduled Saturday

All of the action in the UGSA West Texas State Tournament threatened to be over by 4 p.m. Saturday, but several once-beatens were threatening to hang in and fight the clock.

Midland Blue took both its Division I and II teams to the 12 noon championship games while in Division III, Odessa Black awaited on a 2 p.m. challenger.

In Division IV, where only two teams are entered, Odessa downed Midland 17-0 Friday and was to play again at 2 o'clock on Saturday.

All of the divisions are double-elimination. Therefore, if Midland Blue in Division I or II, Odessa Black in Division III or Odessa in Division IV should lose in the first championship game, a second would be held (4 p.m. in divisions I and II and 6 p.m. for the others).

Snyder's only hope to continue in the playoffs Saturday was with its Division III team. The Division I All-Stars lost to Odessa Purple 19-0 on Friday while Snyder's Division II squad was beaten by Odessa Lavender, 11-4.

In Division III, Snyder kept alive by eliminating Big Spring, 19-3. The All-Stars were to take on Midland Blue at 10 a.m. Saturday in a bid to reach the finals against Odessa Black.

Odessa Black remained undefeated by topping Midland Blue 6-6.

DIVISION IV
Odessa Purple 17, Midland 0

Odessa Purple got 17 runs on seven hits - including a double each from Dena Sipes, Sharon Rogers and Jennifer Reece - in blanking Midland. Winning pitcher Sherre Itz allowed only six hits, including a double to Norma Green.

Candy Warren was the losing pitcher.

DIVISION III
Od-Black 6, Mid-Blue 5

Chelle Sullivan cracked a double and a single and pitched three-hit ball as she led Odessa to a berth in the Division III championship game. Jeanie White and Kelle Hawley hit two singles apiece and Melissa Tucker notched a double.

Odessa got nine hits.

Snyder 19, Big Spring 3

Snyder got 21 hits, including a home run and a single from Christy Valdez, to defeat Big Spring. Yolanda Anderson took the win. Tammy Jennings had a triple and two singles while Jill Roemisch and Paula Caldwell powered three singles apiece.

Brenda Zajicek and Anderson added two singles each; Tracey Hicks and Chenelle Reeves had a double apiece and Connie Cates, Denise Yandrich and Hope Hernandez countered with one single each.

Lisa Dominguez led Big Spring's three-hit attack with a double.

DIVISION II
Midland Blue 13, Odessa Turquoise 1

Midland Blue blasted Odessa's Turqoise All-Stars to claim a berth in Saturday's finals. No other details were available.

Odessa Lavender 11, Snyder 4

T.J. Jones slugged a double and a single and pitcher Ann Burian cracked three singles as Odessa Lavender defeated Snyder.

Snyder got seven hits, but could not put enough offense together to get past a solid defensive effort. Sandra Morin had a triple for the locals while Teena Braziel and Pam Batchelor punched two singles each. Debbie Yandrich and Becky Davila had one single each.

Odessa Maroon 4, Odessa Lavender 2

Denise Moralez slammed a two-run triple in the bottom of the fourth inning that made the difference in this contest. It was one of two Moralez triples on the evening. Dena Quisenberry and Amy Moore added two singles apiece. Kristi Vardeman was the winning pitcher.

Vardeman gave up only three hits, a single each to Tiff Urias, Mary Burian and T.J. Jones.

DIVISION I
Midland Blue 7, Odessa Maroon 2

Midland Blue defeated Odessa Maroon to reach the championship game of Division I.

No other details were available.

Odessa Purple 19, Snyder 0

Pitcher Christi Hewitt allowed only one hit - a single to Angela Good - as Odessa Purple pounced on Snyder Friday.

The Purple team got 20 hits, ineluding a double and two singles by Kathy Burian, four singles by Angie Wright and three singles by Jessica McKibben. Brandy Craig, Becky Bogan, Becky David and Valerie Aguilar all hit two singles apiece.

Odessa Purple 16, Midland Red 5

Odessa Purple got only six hits but it was enough to defeat Midland Red in this Division I game Friday. Shawn Waylene and Katie Reed snapped two singles apiece while Lisa Thompson and Kim Nichols added one each for the winners.

Angie Wright belted a home run and two doubles and Kathy Burian hit a home run, a double and a single for Midland.

Seniors to host Sweetwater club

Snyder Senior Teenage League champions are to host Sweetwater in a best-of-three playoff beginning 8 p.m. July 30.

A second game is tentatively set for 6 p.m. on the 31st, with a third game, if necessary, to follow.

Western defeats Abilene Northern

Greg Cushman gunned down 15 batters while allowing only two hits as Lubbock Western defeated Abilene Northern in the first of a best-of-three Little League playoff series here Friday, 7-2.

The series continues with a game at 8 Saturday night. If necessary, a third game will be held Monday night. The playoffs are being held at Logan Field.

The score was tied 1-1 in the third inning when Tony Hinojosa rapped Abilene starter Matt Sherwood for a three-run homer.

Northern rallied in the fourth when Cushman walked in a run, 4-2, but Lubbock came back to seal the victory with three scores in the bottom half of the inning.

Sherwood gave up six hits.

NCAA places Illinois on football probation

MISSION, Kan. (AP) - The University of Illinois has been placed on probation and will be kept from appearing in any live telecasts during the regular 1984 season, the National Collegiate Athletic Association said in a news release.

The school is prohibited from participating in post-season bowl games for two years because of violations in the school's inter-collegiate football program.

Two representatives of the university's athletics program will be dissassociated from the program, the release said. Although the NCAA didn't identify the representatives by name, the university said it is punishing Head Coach Mike White and Assistant Coach Max McCartney.

The NCAA's Committee on Infractions listed 24 violations of NCAA rules by the university in its news release.

Most of the violations concerned NCAA rules on improper recruiting inducements, improper transportation, improper use of coaching staff members, improper extra benefits, improper offers, improper entertainment, unitemized expenses and ethical conduct.

"This case was considered to be quite serious by the NCAA Committee on Infractions and the committee would have imposed a more severe penalty if the institution had not taken substantial disciplinary action on its own initiative," Thomas J. Niland, interim chairman of the infractions committee, said in the release.

"Although many of the violations concerned actions involving previous coaching staff members, several current members of the football coaching staff also were found in violation of NCAA legislation," Niland said.

John Burness, associate vice chancellor for public affairs at Illinois, said Friday that White will have his salary frozen for the 1984 calendar year. McCartney's salary will be

Nicolette shares lead at Davis-Hartford Open

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) - Mike Nicolette, co-leader of the $400,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open, says his five birdies in the rainy second round came naturally.

"It was a day where you had to have patience," he said Friday after shooting a 3-under-par 68 to tie Peter Jacobsen for the lead with at 6-under 136 going into Saturday's third round.

"It wan't a day where you would try to force birdies," he said.

Nonetheless, Nicolette rolled in birdie putts of 30 feet and 40 feet, and chipped one into the cup on his final hole of the day.

Nicolette and Jacobsen were closely followed into Saturday's third round by Lance TenBroeck and Mark O'Meara, who were a stroke off the pace at 5-under 137.

O'Meara's 67 on the par-71, 6,800-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut was the lowest score of the day.

Despite a share of the lead, three stunning birdies and holding position for a shot at his second professional victory, Nicolette saw room for improving his game.

"It was a fair round," the Pennsylvanian said. "I wasn't too excited about it. I was terrible in putting. I kept leaving them short."

Jacobsen, however, attributed his round of 69 to a rejuvenated putting game that created a 25-foot birdie on the sixth hole.

He said he needed practice after putting poorly in last week's British Open, but he didn't like the practice green at the TPC-Connecticut. So he honed his skills on the carpet of his motel room.

Jacobsen said he didn't learn any specific lessons during his late-night practice session, just that "putting toward the door, the carpet breaks to the left."

Ben Crenshaw and George Burns, co-leaders after the first round, were in a four-way tie for fifth place at four-under 138 along with Mike Reid and Bill Kratzert.

Two notables not among the 79 golfers above the cut of 145 - 3-over-par - were Jerry Pate and 1982 GHO winner Tim Norris.

Nicolette said his 40-foot birdie putt on the redesigned sixth hole was fun to watch as it rolled up and over a big hump placed there by golf architect Peter Dye.

"That was one I didn't leave short," he said. "I think he (Dye) had a Volkswagen planted in the green there."

Degrate picked as All-American

Smog, politics may hamper opening of Olympic Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The politics that have clouded the Olympics the past few months are supposed to give way today to bright pageantry.

But the predictions call for the possibility of smog - and a potential political protest at the opening ceremonies against a country not even represented in these Summer Games.

The Ban The Soviet Coalition, an ad hoc group, has promised a demonstration even though the Soviets announced their boycott May 8. Fifteen countries have since joined the boycott. Two others, Albania and Iran, also have pulled out but for different reasons. That leaves 140 competing nations.

The latest to withdraw was Libya, which said Friday it would not be sending its six-member team - five equestrians and a weightlifter.

Libya gave no reason, but the decision came one day after three Libyans seeking accreditation as journalists were denied entry to the United States. International Olympic Committee sources said two of the three were on a secret list of known terrorists.

Not all of the remaining 7,800 athletes will march into the Memorial Coliseum, where the weather is expected to be partly cloudy and humid with the temperature approaching 90 degrees.

Some competitors will bypass the opening ceremonies to conserve their strength. "They will have to go on a long bus trip, wait for the parade to start and then walk for two hours," Charles Palmer, president of the British Olympic Association, said.

One athlete who definitely won't be there is American Jeff Michels. On Friday the IOC refused to reverse a two-year suspension imposed by the International Weightlifting Federation for alleged drug use at the Pan American Games last year. Had it reversed the suspension, Michels would have only been an alternate on the U.S. team.

The U.S. men's basketball team faced the prospect of a minor setback when Coach Bobby Knight said Friday that 7-foot center Patrick Ewing of national-champion Georgetown might not play Sunday in the Olympic opener against China. Ewing jammed several fingers in a mishap with a car door.

As the 4:30 p.m. PDT start of the 3½-hour opening ceremony approached, Mayor Tom Bradley said there is the same "electricity" in the air he felt as a spectator at the 1932 Olympic Games, the last time Los Angeles staged the events.

And, the big question still remained: who would light the Olympic flame? Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said it would be a U.S. citizen, but went no farther.

Whoever it is will light it in spectacular fashion. The torchbearer will climb the steps at the peristyle end of the 90,000-seat stadium and ignite the first of five interlocking rings, the symbol of the Olympics. From there, the flame will burn its way to the urn at the top.

Bradley, in a five-minute radio and television address on the eve of the Games, said the years of hard work and negotiations that led to the Los Angeles Games "were well worth it."

"The stage is set, the excitement is building and our spirit is soaring," Bradley said. "Let the Games begin!"

frozen through March 1987.

The university's disciplinary actions included reducing grants-in-aid in football from 30 to 20; prohibiting White and McCartney from off-campus recruiting during the 1984-85 academic year; and prohibiting five other institutional representatives from recruiting for two years.

In addition, Burness said the university would conduct audits of the football program every six months.

The effect the probation will have on Illini television appearances is unclear. A one-year moratorium on the policy of banning schools on probation from making college football television appearances was announced Thursday by the NCAA.

New scoreboard at Winston Park

Winston Park has a new electronic scoreboard, thanks to the Snyder Men's Slowpitch Softball Association and a host of sponsors.

Association board members Abe Gonzales and Bill Owens spent a number of hours soliciting funds for the new scoreboard, along with Mike Doolittle, president Lee Castillo and secretary Eddie Bane.

"We would like to thank the following businesses and individuals for their help in providing the scoreboard," said Gonzales, who along with Castillo is a member of the Fiberflex team.

Donating funds were Grimmett Bros., Frontier Well Service, Chevron U.S.A., Sam's Fishing Service, Exxon Chemical, Blankenship Packer Service, Great Western, Truco Supply Corp., Patterson Drilling, Thornhill's Hair Designers, Musslewhite Trucking, Midwestern Trucking, West Texas State Bank, Snyder National Bank, Fluid Transports Inc., and Merritt Trucking Co.

Roy Harlan donated time wiring the scoreboard.

The association is planning to raise monies for a clock in the future.

AL West tight race

by The Associated Press

It may not be the toughest division in baseball, with only two teams barely over .500, but the American League West is the best if you're looking for a torrid pennant race.

Only 5½ games separate the top six teams thanks to Minnesota's 2-0 victory over California on Friday night that left the Twins breathing down the Angels' necks, just one-half game behind the front-runners.

"We're in the pennant race - no ands, ifs or buts about it," said Mike Smithson, who checked California on two singles over 7 1-3 innings. "People keep sitting back and saying, 'The Twins are going to fold under the pressure.' But we're not going to fold."

In other AL games, New York downed Chicago 8-6, Kansas City clubbed Milwaukee 12-8 and then dropped the nightcap of their double-header 3-1, Seattle pounded Oakland 12-2, Detroit trounced Boston 9-1 but lost the second game 4-0, Texas beat Toronto 4-2 and Baltimore nipped Cleveland 4-3.

Minnesota scored both its runs off California's Tommy John in the first inning on singles by Darrell Brown, Dave Engle and Kent Hrbek plus Mickey Hatcher's grounder. The Twins then needed clutch relief from Len Whitehouse in the eighth and Ron Davis in the ninth.

Whitehouse retired Rod Carew on a foul pop with runners at second and third to end the eighth but surrendered a leadoff double to Fred Lynn in the ninth and gave way to Davis. The Twins' relief ace was greeted by Doug DeCinces' single, but with runners at first and third and no one out he struck out Reggie Jackson, retired Juan Beniquez on a pop foul and got Rob Wilfong on a grounder for his 19th save.

Royals 12-1, Brewers 8-3

Tom Candiotti and Rick Waits combined on a seven-hitter in the nightcap to end the Royals' six-game winning streak. In the first game, Frank White drove in three runs and Steve Balboni and Onix Concepcion had two apiece. White homered in each game while Kansas City's Willie Wilson stretched his hitting streak to 18 games.

Mariners 12, Athletics 2

Pinch-hitter Ken Phelps' two-run homer highlighted a seven-run fifth inning as Seattle pounded out 19 hits. Converted reliever Salome Barojas made his third start of the season and registered his third victory, allowing three hits in seven innings. Alvin Davis also drove in two runs in Seattle's big inning with a single and a bases-loaded walk. Al Cowens also homered for Seattle, while Oakland's Dwayne Murphy hit his 21st.

Tigers 9-0, Red Sox 1-4

Wade Boggs had four singles and drove in a run to back the three-hit pitching of Bob Ojeda in the nightcap. It was the second consecutive three-hitter for Ojeda, who leads the majors with five shutouts. Lance Parrish hit a two-run homer and Chet Lemon had a solo shot to back the six-hit pitching of Dan Petry as the

Rangers 4, Blue Jays 2

Mickey Rivers singled and Gary Ward tripled him home with the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning. Ward scored on Jeff Kunkel's sacrifice fly and Pete O'Brien, who doubled and scored Texas' first run on Buddy Bell's double, homered in the seventh. Knuckleballer Charlie Hough went the distance for the 13th time, tops in the league. He scattered nine hits as Toronto suffered its fifth consecutive setback.

Amazing Mets pulling away in East division

by The Associated Press

Amazin. At least so far. Worst last year - and five of the past seven years in the National League East - the New York Mets are first and show no signs of letting up.

Although there are two months left in the season, the air at Shea Stadium had an October chill to it Friday night as the Mets defeated the second-place Chicago Cubs 2-1 before a sellout crowd of 51,102 and moved 4½ games ahead.

After Sunday's doubleheader, surely nothing will be settled. First place certainly will not be locked up, and neither team may end up winning the division.

But, as Mets center fielder Mookie Wilson said: "Every game we win how is one less we have to win later."

The victory, their seventh straight, upped the Mets' record in July to 21-4.

Elsewhere, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in 10 innings, Montreal trimmed Philadelphia 6-1, Cincinnati shut out Los Angeles 4-0, San Diego defeated Houston 7-3 and San Francisco stopped Atlanta 6-0.

Second baseman Wally Backman drove in the decisive run in the duel between Dwight Gooden and Chicago's Dick Ruthen when he singled home Rafael Santana in the seventh inning.

Gooden, 9-6, pitched eight innings, allowing just four hits and striking out eight, raising his total for the season to 162 - best in the major leagues.

Ruthven, 2-7 and loser of seven straight, worked 6 1-3 innings, giving up both runs on seven hits.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 2

Willie McGee's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Chris Speier to give Joaquin Andujar his first victory since June 30.

Speier opened the 10th with a fly to the warning track in right field that Doug Frobel dropped for a three-base error. One out later, McGee lofted a fly to left off loser Kent Tekulve, 2-7.

Andujar, 14-9, became the NL's second 14-game winner, while Bruce Sutter worked the 10th inning for his league-leading 24th save. David Green became the first Cardinal to hit two homers in a game this season, while Jim Morrison clouted his sixth for the Pirates.

Expos 6, Phillies 1

Jim Wohlford cracked a bases-loaded double and Tim Wallach drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run single as the Phillies fell 6½ games behind the Mets.

David Palmer, 5-3, gave up six hits, struck out two and did not walk a batter in five innings, while Bill James pitched the final four innings for his seventh save. Steve Carlton, 9-5, absorbed the loss, his first after four victories.

Dollar stronger

By The Associated Press

Buoyed by hopes that interest rates have peaked, the stock market climbed for the third consecutive day while the robust U.S. dollar, blamed for the country's trade woes, continued its record-shattering rise.

The widely watched Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks ended the week on an upbeat note, finishing Friday at 1,114.62, up 7.07 points for the day and 13.25 for the week.

The Dow began its three-day climb Wednesday after Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said the nation's central bank had decided at its most recent policy-making session not to clamp down on monetary growth.

Meanwhile, the U.S. dollar continued its torrid pace on foreign currency markets Friday, threatening to further worsen the country's trade deficit.

The trade deficit edged up to $8.9 billion in June, the government reported Friday. It has been blamed for a loss of 1.5 million jobs in the U.S. economy and has triggered calls for protectionist legislation in Congress to aid such basic industries as steel, textiles and autos.

To establish fund

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — The widow of mass killer James Oliver Huberty plans to use part of any money she receives from her story to establish an education fund for survivors of Huberty's rage, a friend of the family said.

Ann Ruiz said the education fund was one of several gestures of sympathy made by Etna Huberty in the days following her husband's brutal assault at a McDonald's restaurant here.

Huberty, an unemployed 41-year-old security guard, opened fire with three guns on employees and patrons July 18, killing 21 and wounding 19 before he was shot to death by a police marksman.

Mrs. Huberty had drawn the ire of some residents in this border community by announcing she would sell book and movie rights to her story.

Medic shortage

HOUSTON (AP) — A senior surgical resident at Houston's busiest hospital says night emergency rooms lack people trained to deal with many emergencies.

Dr. Steven D. Schwaitzberg, who works at Ben Taub General Hospital, said a survey he conducted showed lack of training in any type of trauma care.

He told a seminar entitled "Urban Violence: Pandemic of Trauma" on Friday that many of the doctors with whom he talked did not have current training in advanced life support techniques used in treating heart patients.

Inmate slain

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — An earlier argument may have sparked the stabbing death of a state prison inmate — the eighth homicide this year in the Texas prison system, officials said.

Charges against an inmate were planned after Roderick Wayne McClendon was stabbed to death Friday at the Eastham Unit in Harris County, said Charles Brown, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections.

The suspect was serving a life sentence for attempted capital murder, Brown said.

McClendon, 23, had been stabbed in the chest, ribs and lung with a homemade knife. He died of wounds suffered in an altercation in recreation area shortly after noon Friday, Brown said.

McClendon, who was serving a 10-year term from Dallas County for attempted capital murder, had been in prison for about 2½ years. His death is the eighth homicide reported in the TDC so far this year.

Patients can return

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin nursing home that tried to evict 56 residents who paid their bills with Medicaid now say the residents can stay and 10 patients who had already moved will be invited back.

Ron Semingson, administrator of the Four Seasons Nursing Center, said Friday that the decision to order the Medicaid patients evicted and the reversal both came from Manor HealthCare Corp. of Maryland, which operates 150 nursing homes across the country.

On July 12 the patients, and their families, whose bills were paid by the Medicaid program, were sent letters informing them they had until Sept. 1 to find another home or pay increased private rates at Four Seasons.

Medcaid payments for the residents are set by the Texas Department of Human Resources at $29.96 a day. The same semiprivate room would cost "private pay" residents $41 a day, Semingson said.

School is cleared of discrimination

tempts at humor which refer to race, color or national origin, made by any employee of the district will not be condoned nor tolerated."

School officials have indicated to DOE officials that the policy statement will be announced to all staff members during in-service training this school year.

The DOE report includes specific findings related to each of the four allegations.

Regarding the charge that Snyder ISD discriminates against minorities with application and hiring procedures for professional staff, the report indicated in part:

—There have been 277 applications filed recently with the district. Some 222 of these could be identified by race. These included 212 white applicants (95 percent) and 10 minority applicants (4 percent).

To the charge that minority teachers were assigned to minority schools, the report found in part:

—Out of the present 13 minority professional staff, eight are at schools with a predominately white enrollment and five are at schools with a predominately minority enrollment. Two of these teachers indicated they requested assignments to a minority school.

—A review of minority professional staffers indicated that the majority have taught in schools with a predominately white enrollment during the last five years.

Concerning the charge that the district discriminted against minority persons by realigning attendance zones in 1983, some of the study's conclusions were:

—A comparison of elementary school enrollments after the revision indicated no significant changes in the racial-ethnic compositions of each elementary.

—A comparison of the two predominantly minority elementaries — Central and Northeast — revealed a decrease in the minority populations after the revision.

To the charge that the district allowed white students to illegally transfer into and out of schools in various attendance zones, the study found in part:

-Predominatly minitority Central had a 3.2 percent gain in its minority population due to transfers. Predominately white North had a 1 percent decrease in its minority population due to transfers.

—No school, including Central and North Elementary, had a differential above 1 percent when their 1983-84 student enrollments were compared to what the racial-ethnic ratio would have been had there been no transfers.

—As a result of inter-district transfers, district-wide there was less than a 1 percent change in the minority or majority percentage in the total population for the Snyder ISD.

—Race is not a factor in regard to transfers, in view of the fact that minority students as well as majority students are accepted as transfers.

Two die in police action

By The Associated Press

A man who fled after he was seen hot-wiring a pickup truck was shot to death by police in far southwest Houston early today after a freeway chase, authorities said.

Police said an officer saw the man hot-wiring the pickup in the parking lot of Gilley's Club in the southeast Houston suburb of Pasadena and ordered him to stop. South Houston and Houston police joined in the chase after the man drove away, officers said.

In Dallas police shot and killed a man they had chased at speeds of up to 100 mph through Dallas early today, a department spokesman said.

Details of the incident were sketchy. In radio reports from the scene, officers said the driver, after eluding police at high speeds, came to a full stop, then put his car in reverse in an apparent attempt to ram police cars.

Couple exchange nuptial vows

MR. AND MRS. KEITH RANDALL DAVIS

On Friday, July 13, at 7:30 p.m., Denyse Lorrayne Stackhouse became the bride of Keith Randall Davis. The double ring ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill York at 3733 Avondale. Calvin Brown, pastor of Avenue D Baptist Church, officiated.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis of Levelland.

Cheri Stewart provided "The Wedding March" on tape.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a long, high collared gown of white lace over white chiffon with lace, wrist length sleeves borrowed from Denise Crawford. The veil was made by Ms. Crawford's mother in Iowa.

The bride carried a bouquet of peach roses accented with teal blue carnations and baby's breath.

Her matron of honor was Denise Crawford. Shawn Marlow of Canyon and Laura York, both sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids.

Baron Land stood as best man and Steve Regalado was groomsman. Chris Marlow, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer.

The reception followed the ceremony. Rebecca Thorton and Lynn Toler presided at the bride's table which was covered with a white lace tablecloth. The three-tiered white cake was adorned with peach roses and hearts and was made by Louise York, the bride's mother, Ms. Thorton and Barbara Wilkerson.

Vicki Barlow registered guests in the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to Lubbock, the couple will make their home in Snyder.

A graduate of Snyder High School, the bride is a licensed vocational nurse employed at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The groom is a graduate of Levelland High School and is employed by Aid Ambulance Service.

Quilters need more contracts

Quilters at the Senior Center have caught up with all their quilting and would like to contact community residents interested in having quilts made.

Persons interested are invited to contact Jean Smith, assistant director of the center. They are to furnish the quilt top, batting, lining and thread. Mrs. Smith will help them decide how the quilting is to be done and discuss the cost. Proceeds from the quilting go to the operating fund of the center.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

The playing strength of the South hand increased dramatically when its long suit was supported. Although the South hand had many losers, when North raised to two spades, South carried right on to game. North would have accepted a game invitation anyway, since his raise was based on prime values, spade king and the K-Q of hearts.

The deal emphasizes the first rule for declarer play: Plan the play at trick one. Doing so should lead South to the right road to 10 tricks. Many deals involve postponing drawing trumps, usually so that dummy's trumps can be used to ruff losers. Here the reason for not playing trumps immediately is to retain an entry to dummy's good trick in a side suit.

After winning the ace of clubs, South led a low heart to dummy's king, West ducking. On the lead of a low spade from dummy, East played low, and declarer put in the nine. Although this is not the way to take all six tricks in spades, it is a safety play against East's holding all of the outstanding trumps not a completely unlikely holding in view of the takeout double by West. Declarer now played another heart. West won the ace and continued clubs, but the contract was home. A minor suit loser was discarded on dummy's good heart and South made five spade tricks, two heart tricks, the ace of diamonds and the A-K of clubs for 10 tricks. A careless play of the spade king at trick two would have led to disaster.

STEPHENVILLE—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Thompson of Huntington, W.Va. announce the engagement of their daughter, Lora Jane, to Russell Allen White, son of Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence N. White of Stephenville.

The open ceremony will take place at 6 p.m., Aug. 24 at the Souls for Christ Baptist Church.

In evening rites...

Double ring ceremony unites Cox, Beasley

A double ring ceremony united Kristi Diann Cox and Michael Alton Beasley on the evening of July 7 at Colonial Hill Baptist Church with Rev. C.J. Smith, the bride's grandfather, and Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of the church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Odell and Carolyn Cox of 2408 Sunset; and the parents of the groom are Charles and Marie Beasley of Rt. 2.

A heart candelabrum entwined with greenery centered the altar with a tree candelabrum also trimmed with greenery on each side.

Mrs. George Adams presented prelude music on the piano. As the parents entered, she accompanied Jefald Garner, minister of music at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, as he sang "Always." After the parents were seated, Elizabeth St. Pierre and Kevin Smith of Graham sang "Endless Love" accompanied by Kinney Robinson. Mrs. Adams played the traditional "Wedding March" as the wedding party entered.

When the couple moved to the top of the platform, Neva Reaves, accompanied by Kinney Robinson, sang "We've Only Just Begun."

As the couple lighted the memory candle at the end of the ceremony, Sharon Aplin sang "Gentle Shepherd Come and Lead Us" accompanied by Mrs. Adams on the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk organza gown with a fitted empire bodice accented with Chantilly lace and featuring bishop sleeves cuffed with lace and seed pearls. Ruffles of lace and chiffon edged the hemline and formed a chapel length train. The three-tiered bridal illusion veil edged with Chantilly lace was attached to a cap of lace and accented with a stand-up scallop of seed pearls.

Maid of honor, Phyllis Whitfill, wore a pink, tea-length, taffeta gown scalloped at the bottom and accented with bows. A matching sash ribbon adorned the waistline.

Wearing gowns of the same style but one in orchid, one in blue and one in yellow, bridesmaids Susan Beasley, the groom's sister, Rhonda Gordon and Elizabeth St. Pierre of Graham completed the bridal party.

John Crawford of Odessa, the groom's cousin, served as best man with Jim Simmons, Kyle Cox, the brother of the bride, and Kevin Smith of Graham, the bride's cousin as groomsmen. Shelby Smith of Graham and Kinney Robinson ushered.

The church's fellowship hall was the site of the reception after the ceremony.

Covered with a white floor-length cloth with a lace overlay, the bride's table held a three-tiered cake adorned with small pastel flowers in the bridal colors and topped with a "Precious Moments" bride and groom. Connie Henderson and Connie Nichols presided.

The groom's table, covered with a white floor-length cloth and a blue and white checked overlay, held a crystal centerpiece bearing blue tapers surrounded with daisies in pastel colors. Two German chocolate cakes, decorated with pastel roses surrounding the couple's names, stood on crystal cake stands. Kristin Kleibrink of Quanah presided.

A tall candelabra with pink, yellow, blue and orchid votives and pastel daisies and fern at the base centered the beverage table which was covered with a white floor-length organdy cloth. A silver punch bowl, a silver coffee service and other appointments in silver and crystal graced the table. Trina Seaton Jones and Sandi Stone presided.

Jennifer Johansen registered guests in the bridal book.

Members of the houseparty included Barbara McGee, Nona Williams, Loy Forbes, Gayle Wittie, Shirley Burrus and Sara Richter.

Out-of-town guests registered from Quanah, Bonham, Sweetwater, Roscoe, Levelland, Odessa, DeSoto, Abilene, Sand Springs and Graham.

The couple honeymooned at Six Flags and other Texas points and now make Snyder their home.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Snyder High School. A 1983 graduate of Snyder High, the groom is employed by Tri-State Construction.

BOOK REVIEW

THE GREATEST SLUMP OF ALL TIME. By David Carkeet. Harper & Row. 232 Pages. $14.95.

"The Greatest Slump of All Time" begins promisingly.

But about halfway through the reader begins to slide into a slump of his own and from there on it's steadily downhill.

David Carkeet writes well enough but just can't seem to kindle that initial spark of interest in the reader into a fire. His novel concerns the fortunes — rather the misfortunes — of the members of a major-league baseball team.

The team, unnamed, is on a hot streak, winning game after game and seems a sure thing for the World Series. But while the play is good, the players are not. All are depressed, all suffer from some ennui of the soul.

Apples, the pitcher, has a sexual identification problem — which he eventually resolves. Eddie suffers from a bad marriage. Jaimie, a South American import, neither speaks nor understands English. And Frank's problem "is his absurd belief that he is interesting. He is a dreaded conversation-killer, a Frank Buck of the verbal savanna."

The other players in the lineup also have problems. In addition, they all share one problem in common, a rude, crude manager whose best advice to the team is "no thinkin'. I don't put no stock in thinkin'."

The novel deals with the personal problems the players suffer and the ways in which they try to solve them, either alone or as a group. The results are comical some of the time, but mostly they tend to bore the reader.

"Dead skunk in the middle of the road. Stinking to high heaven."--lyric by Loudon Wainwright III.

Anyone who regularly walks, runs or motors down the same road knows it can get awfully boring out there.

And the situation reminds us of a fellow snowbound all winter with only a seed catalogue to read. If it's all you have, you can develop an interest in zinnias, periwinkles and mums.

So anyway, you begin to notice which of God's critters begin to show up either on or beside the road — the victims of speeding motorists.

Looking at it another way, those poor souls tripped up by blind fate, random chance, natural selection or just plain bad luck.

If soon becomes evident that they are not equal in their fates — neither in the frequency of their death nor the length of time their "memories" remain.

The world's most frequent victims, of course, are the rabbits. Timid creatures who approach the highway's edge too scared to either cross or go back.

This indecision seems to serve one purpose — to make them larger and slower targets for our four-wheeled version of doom.

Next in line comes the skunk. An unpopular little beast and perhaps slightly suicidal in his loneliness.

The remains of skunks and rabbits are frequent guests on our highway.

Those who come less frequently are the possums and racoons — animals who are neither given great credit for brains nor who rank high on the nusiance list.

The rarer carcasses are the red foxes and coyotes — critters of guile, cunning and quickness. Without considering the good or bad they do, they seem to be only occasional victims.

Equal in rareness are the snakes.

For some reason, snakes are thought of as "clammy" or oily. Those who have a working knowledge know they are cool and dry, emotionless and highly efficient. As blank as a gum drop and as scary as an opened pocket knife.

We mentioned that the remains of these road casualties don't seem to stay for the same length of time.

The treatment varies according to the guys in charge of cleaning up — those janitors of the road who pass their time in a circling and watchful pose.

The ones gone the quickest are the snakes — making us think there must be something tasty about reptiles. Or maybe they are placed on the business agenda first just to be rid of them.

Those who linger the longest are the skunks — whose hair and hide may be noted long after their fellow victims are dust.

In the end, there may be a little morality tale going on beside your random farm-to-market road.

Rabbits, possums, raccoons and the occasional fox or coyote get pretty much the same treatment.

But those who wish to be remembered the longest can guarantee it by raising a sufficient stink in life.

As for snakes, a justified end may be long in coming, but the little left behind is quickly gone.

John Dunnam

By BILL McCLELLAN

Good evening.

John Dunnam is on vacation in Houston.

Come to think of it, John Dunnam is always on vacation somewhere.

Of course, he never calls it "vacation," probably because the only thing he ever vacates from is Snyder. Period. It's not like he has a genuine job or anything like that.

About four times a month he manages to show up long enough to peck out a column. This time, he didn't show up.

I'm writing this column for him, and since he's somewhere out there and I'm here, I guess you might say that he's taking a vacation for me. Somehow I think he's got the better end of the deal.

Anyway, my editor said I could use this opportunity to retaliate against John Dunnam for all the pain and suffering he's caused me in his column. You can bet on one thing, every other column he writes mentions (1) me, (2) sports, (3) both, or (4) vacation, preferably hitchhiking or via bicycle, and either in Seattle, Las Vegas or Colorado.

That would be fine, if he spoke of me in the same way he does Seattle, Las Vegas or Colorado ... or even his bicycle. But he doesn't. I find it very unfair.

Do you know I've never been to Seattle, Las Vegas or Colorado?

Like I said, my editor told me I could use this space to get back at him. But that seems awfully shallow, small minded. You know what I mean. So what if he belittles me or makes fun of sports? Just because John Dunnam has to stoop so low, just because his definition of athletics is punching the snooze control on his alarm clock four times a morning - that doesn't mean I ought to say anything bad about him.

For those expecting the usual John Dunnam column however, I realize this must be terribly disappointing. So, for the couple of people out there who really do read his stuff, I'll interject something you are more use to hearing.

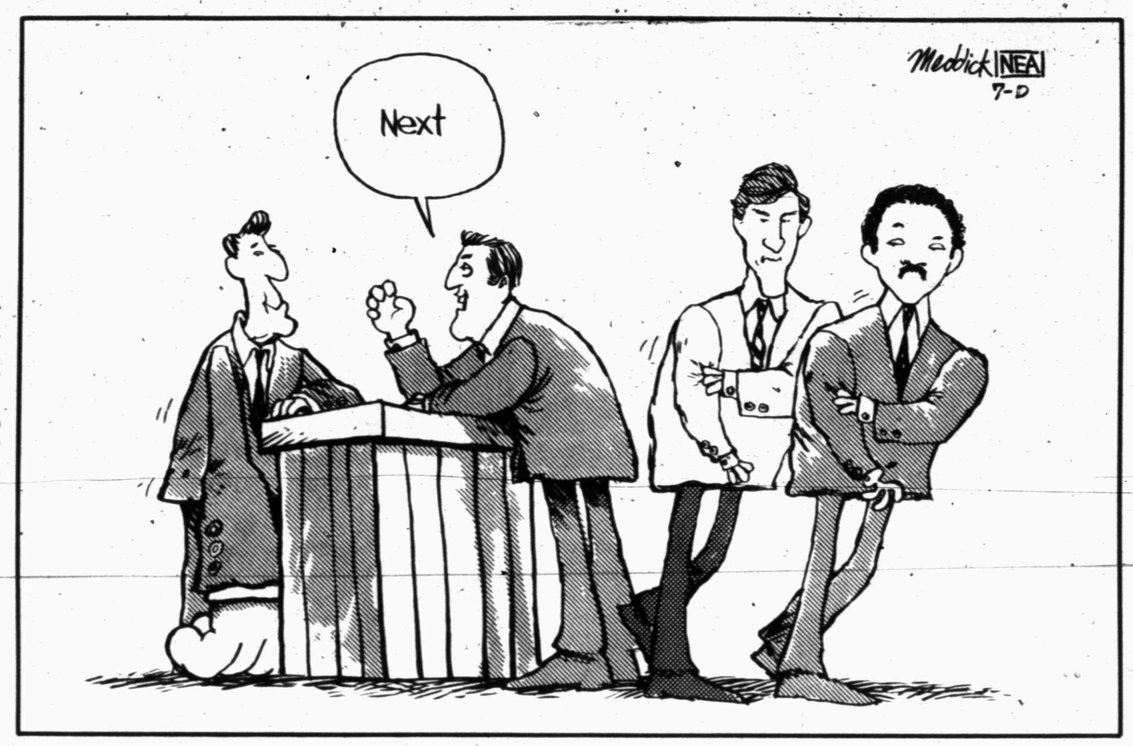

"Jogging.

I don't see how anybody can go jogging. Jim Fixx ought to be the perfect example. He spent a third of his life promoting the benefits of jogging, writing books and making personal appearances. Then he dropped dead one day while jogging.

Does that tell you anything?

Instead, he could have been hitch-hiking through Colorado, on his way back from Seattle, heading to Las Vegas, to a bicycle rally."

There. That ought to hold you until he gets back. It certainly suffices for me.

Cattell, Richter united

MR. AND MRS. JAMES DONALD CATTELL
(Ted Bigham Photography)

Deborah Lynn Richter and James Donald Cattell exchanged vows June 9 in First Presbyterian Church with Rev. Steven Smith officiating the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.R. Richter of Snyder. Mrs. Elizabeth Cattell of Lubbock is the groom's mother.

Four seven-branched brass candelabra decorated the church. The altar held a centerpiece containing the couple's unity candle and plumosa fern lined the choir rails. Holding arrangements of emerald leaf greenery, two brass containers were placed on either side of the pulpit and lecturn. The family pews were marked with ivory and mint green bows and streamers.

Emily Hataway, accompanied by organist Lynn Wormeringer, sang "Longer," "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Song." The bride entered to "The Wedding March."

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza chiffon over satin in candlelight. The bodice of pearl embroidered Alencon lace featured a Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves. The dress ended in a chapel train. A fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of matching pearl embroidered Alencon lace and outlined with matching lace rosettes.

She carried an irregular nosegay of white roses, starburst mums and baby's breath on a lace fan. Streamers of ivory and mint green completed the bouquet, which also held a handkerchief carried by her mother, maternal grandmother and great grandmother at their weddings.

In keeping with tradition, for something old the bride wore a pearl necklace belonging to her great grandmother; something borrowed were her paternal grandmother's pearl earrings; her gown was something new; and something blue was her garter. Her grandfather gave her pennies minted in her birth year.

Mickie Pennington of Lubbock served as maid of honor with the bride's cousin, Mrs. Randy Green of Wichita Falls, as bridesmaid. They wore mint green, A-line satin gowns featuring a chiffon ruffle and headpieces made of wreaths of baby's breath and mint green and ivory satin ribbon streamers with matching forget-me-nots.

Don Walker of Lubbock stood as best man for the groom with Louie Watson of Lubbock as groomsman and Paul Giles and Mike James as ushers.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. Mrs. Tom Lewis, the bride's cousin, and Mrs. James Richter, the bride's aunt, presided at the bridal table. Barbara Haire presided over the groom's table and Sherri Hagood registered guests.

A graduate of Snyder High School, Western Texas College and Texas Tech, the bride will teach high school science in Anton.

The groom is a student in business administration at South Plains College.

The couple plan to make Lubbock their home.

Can determine why a man is balding

BALTIMORE (AP) — Men continue to spend millions of dollars each year on drugs, hormone shots, scalp massages and other alleged "cures" for baldness, says the Hair Loss Center at Baltimore City Hospital.

The center, which conducts research on balding, says that with blood tests, hair plug analysis, diagnostic histories and biopsies, it can determine why a man is going bald. There are no known miracle cures, it says, and it is impossible to reverse or arrest the process of genetic balding.

The French National Convention voted in 1792 to abolish the monarchy.

Smiths to entertain for seniors

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith will be entertaining senior citizens with a musical program at 11:30 a.m. Friday in the Senior Center.

The Smith's program will precede the noon meal in the center's dining room and all senior citizens are invited to come for the program and luncheon.

A program on nutrition of special interest to senior citizens is planned for 11:30 a.m. in the dining room on Tuesday.

Realizing that exercise is an important part of good health for persons of all ages, the center has arranged on exercise class at 11:15 each weekday morning. The exercises stress stretching and bending and are suitable for persons with physical limitations. A more strenuous exercise class for women meets at 3:30 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Swimnastics offer exercises in the indoor pool at Western Texas College on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

The Senior Center is at 2603 Avenue M and is open each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Senior citizens who need transportation to the center or to run errands in town may call the office at 573-4035 to make arrangements.

Crystal chic

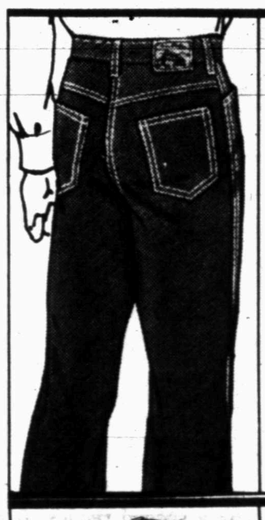

From flea market to exclusive department store to your very own "junk" jewelry box, you'll find this year's fun fashion accessory: crystal drop earrings. They are very '50s, very fun and should be easy to find or even to make. You may still have earrings squirreled away years ago. Prowl your mother's attic for super finds. Set off the "crystal" dangle look with a rhinestone clip on your suit or dress lapel.

Creamy facial

Do you have sensitive skin? Well; in the winter months, it can become very dry and flaky, so a gentle, nonabrasive mask is the answer! Try a buttermilk facial! Leave the container of butterminlk out overnight so the thick, creamy part rises to the top. In the morning pat the cream onto your skin very gently. Leave on for 15 minutes, then rinse with warm water.

Many homeowners experience a condition called "scorch" in their ornamental plants each year. "Scorch" develops when unfavorable conditions for plant growth exist. This condition is associated with (1) root failure, (2) lack of water, (3) atmosphere toxicity (air pollutants), (4) soil sterilizers and herbicide damage or (5) vascular diseases. These causes are very difficult to determine, but a large number of trees and shrubs are showing the symptoms.

Symptoms usually consist of leaves turning from dark green to a yellow blotched leaf and then the leaves begin to turn dark to black from the outside edges inward. In some cases the leaves will turn quickly from dark green to a brown or black color. Rapid defoliation of a limb or entire tree can follow.

A primary cause of "scorch" is herbicide and/or soil sterilizer intake. Many homeowners use soil sterilizers in rock beds, alleys and other areas they wish to keep free of weeds. They use these chemicals not realizing that a large tree's root system is very extensive and may reach the treated aea. Also, homeowners need to remember that small trees will grow and their root system may reach the treated area and that water drainage from treated areas can be hazaradous to plants.

In conclusion, be sure when using chemicals to control weeds and brush to analyze your situation. Many of these chemicals do an excellent job for their designed purpose but when misused can cause severe problems.

Recommendations for treatment of landscape plants after "scorch" systems occur are to simply practice good watering and sterilizing techniques. Hopefully the plants will survive, but many will die each year.

Prince Charles lives on farm for 3 days

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, a farmer by deed if not practice, has spent three days living and working on a Somerset farm to get a feel for how his tenants live, a spokesman said.

The prince, who as Duke of Cornwall owns 132,000 acres, began his visit on Monday as a guest of tenant farmers John and Mary Addicott at Stratton-on-the-Foss, according to the prince's Duchy of Cornwall office.

Charles made a similar visit to a different farm last year and worked a week of 12-hour days spreading muck, herding cattle and helping deliver a calf.

Person cooks soap

RISON, Ark. (AP) — The ingredients for Louise Dawson's most frequently requested recipe don't sound appetizing: three pounds of beef tallow, three pounds of pork fat and a can of lye.

Mrs. Dawson may spend her days sweating over a hot stove, and her neighbors will see her stirring the contents of an iron pot out by the wood pile, but she isn't cooking up hog jowls and turnip greens — just lye soap.

"Out on the farm when I was little, during butchering we always made soap. It was real strong and we used ours for washing dirty tea towels and overalls," she said.

Mrs. Dawson has long since gone beyond her mother's recipe for lye soap.

"I've always been allergic to soap, and I had heard of people making their own soap. That's how I got into soap-making," she said.

Mrs. Dawson saw an advertisement requesting a recipe for homemade facial soap and decided to try to make her own soap, too.

"I contacted the Extension Service — I think it was called home management then — and got a recipe." she said. But her family wouldn't even use it. It was her babysitter who was the first to try it.

Special school is no haven

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — In the heart of this industrial city, surrounded by crumbling housing projects and junk-strewn vacant lots, sits the neatly manicured campus of St. Benedict's preparatory school, a walled compound covering two city blocks.

But this is no preppie haven. Unlike most prep schools, most of the students here — 75 percent — are black or Hispanic and many are from families hard put to find tuition money for their sons.

In its 116 years, St. Benedict's, which has earned a reputation as a training ground for many corporate and political leaders, has always had its base among ethnic groups.

The school was founded by Benedictine monks who set out in 1857 from St. Vincent Archabbey in Latrobe, Pa., to care for German immigrants in Newark. They opened the school 11 years later.

Later, the Irish settled in the neighborhood, then the Italians, and now the blacks and Hispanics.

In the 1960s, in the wake of destructive riots, urban decay and white flight, St. Benedict's realized it would have to focus on the emerging black community if the school was to fulfill its goals.

"Poor people in this city ... were getting the short end of the stick," says Father Edwin Leahy, a Benedictine monk who graduated from the school in 1963 and now serves as headmaster to 372 boys, 75 of whom receive some assistance toward the $1,250 annual tuition.

About a dozen of the school's white alumni now living in the suburbs send their children to St. Benedict's, which includes grades 7 through 12. But they are the exception.

The school closed in 1972 as enrollment dwindled to 50. It reopened a year later, but 16 of its 30 monks had left and most of its 96 students were black.

To help make ends meet, monks, parents and pupils pitch in to scrub toilets, push brooms and wash floors.

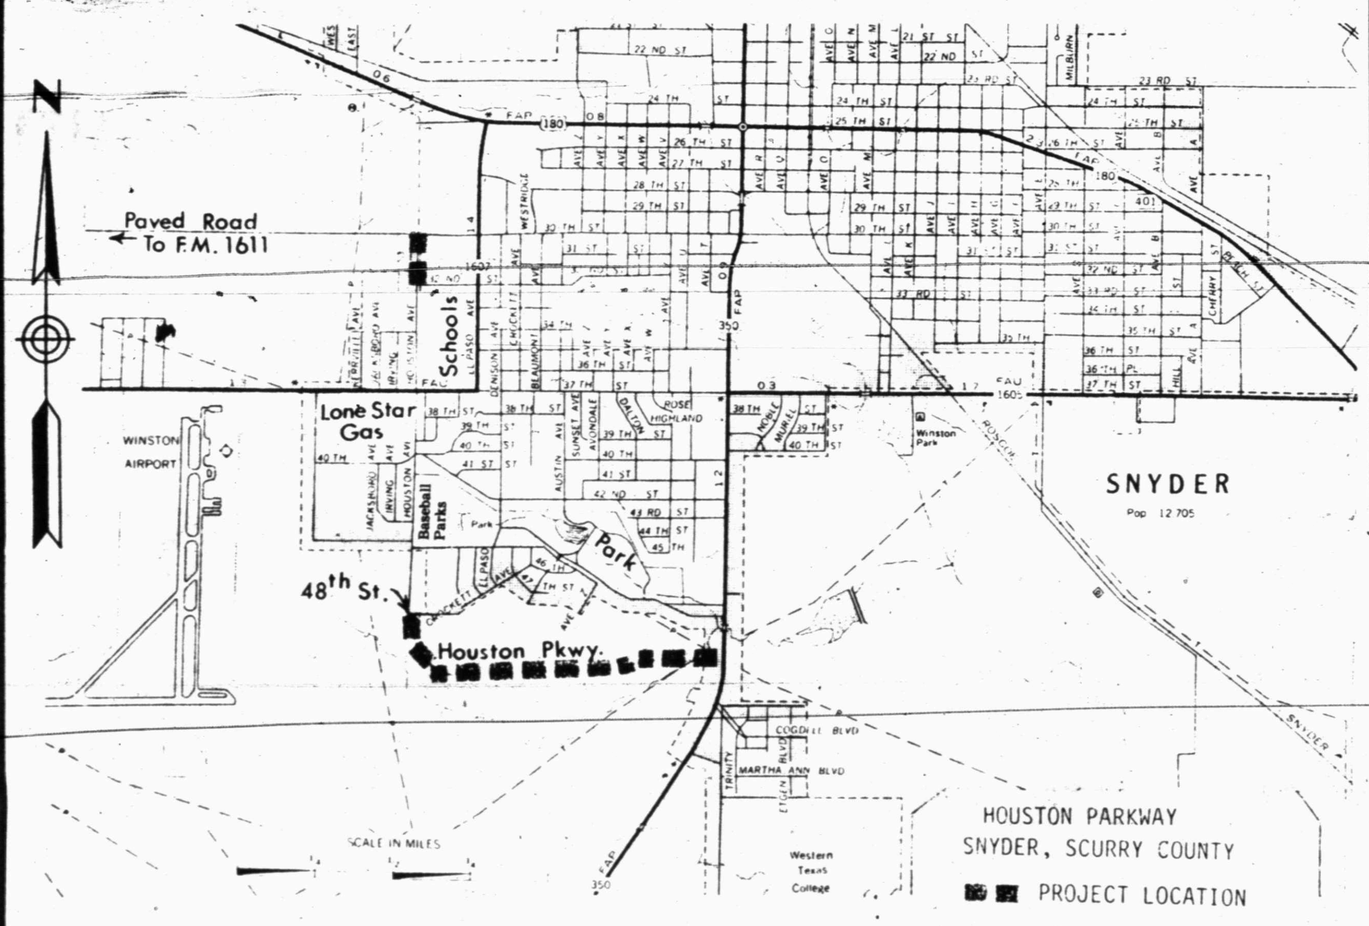

English teacher Paul Snellgrove says that for some students, attending St. Benedict's means "having to lead a double life" — refering to the contrast between life behind the walls of St. Benedicts and in the surrounding housing projects.

"At St. Benedict's, we are all one big family," says one student, Michael Greenleaf, a sophomore from Newark, where more than half the students live. "In the public schools, you're watching out for No. 1. It's like a jungle."

There has been at least one home run in every World Series since 1918, the year the Boston Red Sox defeated the Chicago Cubs without one homer being hit.

Are You Concerned Where Your Tax Money Is Being Spent?

The above map shows the proposed Houston Parkway extension that is to be constructed in the southwest corner of the city. The price tag for such construction is approximately $1,000,000.00.

The City Council has approved of the highway and said that there will be no development along this highway. They have confirmed this by already constructing a barbed wire fence along both sides of the right-of-way.

Clip and Mail

Dear Mr. Kitchell,

I am opposed to Houston Parkway [M.H. 725] because:

1] It will bring uncontrolled traffic by our ball parks, schools and residential areas.

2] It will not aid future growth of our city due to properties on the west and south of the highway.

3] It will not decrease traffic flow from Towle Park nor our school systems

4] Other.....

Clip and Mail

This highway will bring uncontrolled traffic up and down Houston Parkway which will pass by our ball parks, schools, and residential areas.

This highway will not aid the future growth of our city because it will be very limited growth due to properties on the west and south of the proposed highway.

This highway will not decrease traffic flow from Towle Park nor our school systems.

This highway has not been approved by the highway department in Austin yet. Approval of this proposed highway depends upon the amount of opposition received by the state highway department.

If you are opposed to the construction of this highway and the expenditure of your tax money, please clip this letter out, sign it, and mail to:

Mr. Charles Kitchell
State Department of Highways and Public Transportation

Please mail this before Thursday, Aug. 2nd, in order for your vote of concern to be counted.

Soil Conservationist

This summer's drought has weakened range plants and denuded large areas of range. So all you stockman, be prepared for an influx of poisonous plants this year.

Plant poisoning of livestock is not infrequent but is often mild and unnoticed. Only when several animals show symptoms or die is there much attention paid to the matter. As a general rule plant poisoning of major importance occurs when livestock are forced into unusual eating patterns due to overgrazing of ranges and pastures or severe drought. Unfortunately both of these conditions occur with some regularity in this area.

Most of the known poisonous plants are "weedy" species that flourish under overgrazing or some other type of distrubance. They also seem to be able to survive severe drought conditions better than most of our desirable plants. The poisonous plants are often noxious to taste and smell and may be structurally unpalatable. For these reasons they are rarely eaten unless other forage is not available.

If we have an increase of soil moisture this fall and winter that allows many species of annual plants to revegetate some of our most hard hit areas, the problem may be that some of these plants will be toxic to livestock. Cattle, horses and sheep will raze these plants because normally preferred areas will have made little growth over the past year.

If symptoms of poisoning occur, stockmen should immediately contact a veterinarian. If plants are suspected the veterinarian and the Soil Conservation Service can provide infomation about the kind of plants to look for in a range survey.

Livestock poisoned by plants can be treated in several ways. A veterinarian may prescribe a medicine, supplemental feeding may be in order, or the animals may simply be moved to a different pasture. Because there are so many different compounds in plants that cause poisoning, no one treatment will work in all cases.

Prevention is the best practice to reduce losses. Toxic plants can be controlled by hoeing or spraying. You can also fence hazaradous areas by using animals that can safely clean the pasture.

For long-range planning, develop a deferred-rotation grazing pogram to improve range conditions. A range in good condition has a high amount of perennial forage plants which offer heavy competition and a reduced number of toxic plants.

Toxic plants create a complex problem. A good range-livestock management program which plans for drought and infestations of toxic plants will help prevent livestock losses.

It is important to remember that even on the best rangeland, infestation of poisonous annuals still occur along roads, around watering areas, salt grounds and bedding areas.

The critical point is that conditions are present for livestock losses now, so be on the lookout for them. Come visit with us at the Soil Conservation Service, and let us help you with a range management program or to indentify toxic plants if you even suspect there may be some present in your rangelands or pasture.

Singer lands in hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A larynx problem that had plagued Tammy Wynette for "a couple of weeks" landed the country music star in a hospital following the taping of ABC-TV's "The Olympic Gala" special, a spokeswoman said.

Miss Wynette, 42, was in good condition on Thursday in Cedars-Sinai Medical Center with infected vocal cords. She was hospitalized following an appearance Wednesday on the all-star Olympic television special, said publicist Kathy Gangwisch.

Nixon makes public speeches

WASHINGTON (AP) — One campaign night long ago, Richard M. Nixon was described as the Satchel Paige of American politics. The line improves with age. So, it seems, does Richard M. Nixon.

He's still pitching.

Now it is the exhibition season of a political life that has spanned two generations, three wars and 10 presidential elections — including five with Nixon's name on the Republican ticket.

All that plus one resignation from the presidency and one pardon for any criminal conduct in Watergate.

"I don't know whether there is a new Nixon or a reincarnation, but there sure is an old Nixon," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last May. "I feel old."

But that Nixon, at 71, looked younger, not older, than the man who went before another group of news executives in Florida nearly 11 years earlier and declared: "I am not a crook."

The speech in May was the most recent major public appearance for Nixon, the man whose daily utterances once made international headlines. There are no campaigns now for Richard Nixon, once labeled by Lyndon B. Johnson as a chronic campaigner.

That night in Florida in 1973 was the beginning of his last campaign, the first engagement of a final, public battle to hold the presidency he sought so long, won twice, and sacrificed to Watergate.

His smile was clenched, his humor morbid, his gaze sometimes darting, sometimes glued to the pattern on the rug of the hotel ballroom at Walt Disney World.

It was a nationally televised news conference, in an hour of prime Saturday night time. And that wasn't quite enough. When time was up, Nixon pointed at the cameras and said "Televisions, keep me on just a minute." He wanted one more answer for the silence. He got it.

He ran overtime in his 1984 appearance in Washington, too. A half-hour speech, without a note. No lectern, by his instruction.

Nixon on foreign policy, the strong suit of his fallen presidency. Nixon observing that in the eyes of the Third World, "the communists talk about the problems and we too often just talk about the communists."

He spoke of foreign policy, but it could as well have been personal. It was as though Nixon could, at last, heed the counsel of Satchel Paige, the ageless pitcher who kept throwing baseballs past men half his age. Paige said his rule was "Don't look back. Something may be gaining on you."

There was a time when Nixon always seemed to be looking back. And in the end, something was gaining on him.

Nixon's speech to the editors was in large measure patterned on his most recent book, "The Real Peace." He didn't miss a line for lack of a text or a cue card.

Then to the questions, the first, inevitably, picking up where the questioning left off 11 years earlier. It came from an editor who had also been a questioner at the 1973 news conference in Florida.

Now Nixon was asked to review the most significant lesson of Watergate. And he gave a familiar answer. He said he'd lived through it, written about it, discussed it in two extended television interviews, had covered it as well and as honestly as possible.

"I think 10 years of Watergate is enough," he said, "and as far as I'm concerned, I'm going to talk about the future, not the past."

Subject closed, and even Nixon said later that he'd been surprised there were not more Watergate questions. In 1973, there were few questions about anything else.

On one non-Watergate question about the energy crisis, Nixon himself returned to the dominant topic with a gloomy comment about how he hadn't brought a backup plane to Florida in order to save money and fuel.

"If this one goes down it goes down — and then they don't have to impeach," he said, foretelling the Watergate outcome even as he struggled to avert it.

He always was given to political forecasting. He was at it again in his recent speech with an extemporaneous analysis of the 1984 presidential election. "Let me give you quickly a state by state analysis," he said, and did. His bottom line: President Reagan over Walter F. Mondale in a close election.

"Now I wouldn't bet the ranch on it," he said. "But I would bet the main house, and unless the economy goes down I wouldn't even bet the outhouse on Mondale."

It was the kind of analysis Nixon the candidate would offer, late of a campaign night, heading for tomorrow's target in pursuit of the presidency. He'd project his own election odds, state by state, right down to the electoral vote count, Republican, Democratic, too close to call.

For the record, in Orlando, on Nov. 17, 1973, Nixon said:

"I made my mistakes, but in all my years of public life, I have never profited, never profited from public service — I have earned every cent. And in all of my years of public life, I have never obstructed justice. And I think, too, that I could say that in my years of public life, that I welcome this kind of examination, because people have got to know whether or not their president is a crook. Well, I am not a crook. I have earned everything I have got."

What would he do when he left the White House?

"I think that depends on when I leave," Nixon said.

Centennial Corner By Charles Anderson

Snyder Square circa 1900

This picture, taken about 1900, shows Scurry County's first courthouse which was built in 1886. Notice the windmill which pumped water for the community well.

Snyder was slowly beginning a permanent growth which would firmly establish it as a town on the banks of Deep Creek. Even though people were already calling the town "Snyder," it was not officially named until July 2, 1907.

Sign language class popular

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Esther Border had trouble communicating with people she met until she decided to teach some of them her second language.

Now she's having a ball with all the new friends she's found.

Mrs. Border, 57, of Kingsville, Ohio, has been deaf since she was a child. She has retained the normal speech she learned before her world went silent. Her main problem has been understanding those she talks with.

When she learned as a teenager that she was losing her hearing, she enrolled in a sign language school in Tucson, Ariz., so she would have an alternative means of communicating with people.

Jacquie McTrusty, a social worker at the Day Treatment Center of the Mental Health Clinic of Ashtabula County, said Mrs. Border, a widow, was involved in an outreach program at the center.

"One of her complaints was that she was depressed because she spent so much time alone in her apartment," Ms. McTrusty said. "We have this day activities program where people socialize and we encouraged her to become involved in that.

"I asked her to try it for a few weeks but she said it was so hard for her to understand others. So then we started talking about her sign language and about teaching it to others and she was thrilled at the prospect."

Now, she has found that her students are also thrilled at the prospect. She is the only deaf person in the classes she teaches two afternoons a week.

"She started teaching sign as a volunteer and she is doing a wonderful job," Ms. McTrusty said. "She used to be depressed and now she is happy ... Now, they are learning her language and they can relate to each other in another way.

"She started with seven students," Ms. McTrusty said, "and now there are about 15 to 20 at every class." The students have normal hearing ability and are learning signs for their own interest.

"Most of the people we have here have very low motivation," Ms. McTrusty said, "but these people (in the class) have kept at it and that is amazing to me. Now, they know when the class is scheduled and most of them are here waiting for Esther to come in."

"I like it a lot here," Mrs. Border said. "At first, I was a little worried about doing it, but I kept coming back and I look forward to it. Sometimes being deaf is frustrating. But while I'm teaching a lot of that frustration is relieved and I feel like I'm really helping someone out."

Mrs. Border has a high school education and says this is her first effort at teaching a class.

Donna Grifftih, one of her a students, is a victim of cerebral palsy.

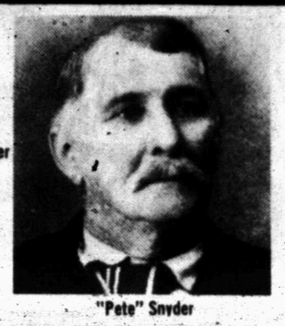

"I used to get teased a lot because of my handicap and became shy," she said. "(Mrs. Border) has done a lot for me. She brought me out of that shell — I love her for it. She has filled a gap in my life."

Euphausia superba, a krill shrimp that is the prime food of most antarctic creatures, is so plentiful in the Antarctic Ocean than an estimated 50 to 150 million metric tons of krill could be taken by humans each year. This, says National Geographic, would make a shrimp cocktail the size of a city block and piled five miles high.

Trillions of ants — between 12,000 and 14,000 species — occupy almost every habitable piece of the earth, according to National Geographic. Only permanently snow-covered mountain peaks and polar regions are not colonized.

There was no place or show betting on the 1948 Kentucky Derby. Calumet Farm ran 1-2 in a field of six horses with Citation winning and Coaltown running second.
