Coming Sunday . . .

What benefits can Midland expect to receive from the Texas Tech Medical School's Permian Basin Regional Academic Health Center?

The "bricks and mortar" of the center building will be in Odessa. But, according to Dr. Sam Johnson, assistant vice president for program development of the medical school, Midland will get most everthing else it would have gotten had it been selected as site for the center.

In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, staff writer Linda Hill Schaffrina takes a look at the Tech Medical School — its new facility in Lubbock, the way students are trained and what Midland can expect in benefits from the regional center.

Four-foot drifts stall state traffic

By The Associated Press

Snowdrifts as deep as four feet were reported between Amarillo and Lubbock and in the Wichita Falls area today as the latest winter snow storm moved across North Texas, closing airports and schools and snarling traffic.

Snowfall amounts at midmorning averaged five to six inches across North Central Texas, with more expected before nightfall. Lubbock, where the storm already had passed, reported nine inches.

Large wet snowflakes stuck wherever they landed, and some heavily laden tree branches broke under the weight of accumulated snow. Poor visibility slowed motorists trying to get to work, and delayed flights at the giant Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport for about two hours.

In Wichita Falls, the airport closed as drifts piled up after four inches fell and more was expected. Schools opened late.

Classes were cancelled at Texas Tech University in Lubbock and local schools and some businesses and federal offices closed.

In Amarillo, 120 miles to the north, life went on as usual under about five inches of the white stuff. Chilly sunshine was reported in both cities after the storm passed at mid-morning.

The Texas Department of Public Safety reported earlier this morning that roads in the Panhandle and South Plains were hazardous. Texas 145 and 168 near Dimmitt were closed.

Schools in Dallas, Fort Worth and smaller towns throughout the North Texas area closed, especially where busing was involved.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area broke its annual snowfall record at 9 a.m., with five inches falling since just before dawn. The new season total was 15.4 inches, surpassing the record set in the winter of 1963-64 when 15.1 inches fell. The National Weather Service predicted additional accumulations of six to eight inches for the area before the snowfall was expected to end Friday night.

The snow storm was caused by an upper level disturbance that moved across the state and was forecast to gradually end from west to east.

Between Abilene and Fort Worth the snow was preceded by freezing rain and sleet, making travel treacherous.

South of the area struck by the snow storm, rain, including locally heavy thunderstorms, and some fog spread eastward from the mountains of Southwest Texas into Central and Southeast Texas.

The National Weather Service at Victoria issued a special marine warning for the bays of Calhoun County as a heavy line of thunderstorms moved across that Gulf Coast area.

More cold forecast

After rain Thursday night and a trace of snow this morning, the weatherman is predicting less cloudiness but more cold tonight.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported .09 inch of rain Thursday night between 9:30 and 11:30 p.m. and a trace of snow from 5:25 to 6:05 a.m. today.

Texas Electric Service Co. readings showed .12 inch in East Midland, .16 inch in South Midland County and a trace in Odessa.

Public events top trip agenda

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's first campaign swing of this election year is taking him to three New England states where Democratic senators face re-election challenges.

Carter scheduled a midday departure today for the 25-hour trek into Rhode Island, Maine and New Hampshire.

The White House is not calling it a campaign journey because public events occupy most of the president's schedule. But when Carter is not engaged in overt politicking, he will be campaigning on behalf of his programs and seeking voter approval of his own stewardship.

Because the trip officially is deemed mostly non-political, Democratic organizations will pay only a minority share of the cost.

The biggest event on the president's Rhode Island schedule was a nationally broadcast regional news conference, at a hotel ballroom in Cranston this afternoon.

But he also set aside time for a reception for Sen. Claiborne Pell, a three-term Democrat who is not expected to face major Republican opposition.

In Bangor, Maine, where Carter will field questions from citizens at an evening "town meeting," the president may confront critics of a proposed Indian claims settement, a federal plan for a big waterpower project and a Pentagon blueprint to all but shut down Loring Air Force Base in Aroostook County.

Moreover, Democratic Sen. William Hathaway is expected to get a stiff GOP challenge from Rep. William S. Cohen and perhaps from Gov. James Longley, a Democrat turned independent who is judged potentially capable of beating both.

Carter will take part in a Hathaway fundraiser and, on Saturday morning, join the senator at a political rally before flying to Nashua, N.H.

The president will hold a 90-minute question and answer session with New Hampshire high school students in Nashua, then return to Washington.

With Carter in New Hampshire will be Democratic Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, whose only announced Republican opponent is Alf Jacobson, president of the state senate, rated an underdog.

Meldrim Thomson, the state's conservative Republican governor, has hinted at a possible race against McIntyre, particularly if the Democrat votes to ratify the Panama Canal treaty. But a Thomson bid for a fourth term as governor is seen as more likely.

The expected Maine race between Hathaway and Cohen is viewed as a toss-up.

Hill favors strong civil rights law

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Texas Attorney General John Hill Thursday called for stronger state civil rights laws to help in prosecuting cases involving deaths of prisoners in legal custody.

The attorney general spoke at a news conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Hill said the "official oppression" portion of the state penal code is very similar to the federal civil rights law concerning violations by law enforcement officials.

But, he said, unlike federal law, the state law does not make civil rights violations a felony when a death is involved.

Changing the state law to make it a felony would give district attorneys "flexibility," because a case could be prosecuted under that law without proving intent to kill, Hill said.

Rather, he added, it would be necessary only to prove intention to violate civil rights.

Hill made his proposal in response to questions about the Jan. 22 Ector County Jail death of Larry Lozano. The attorney general's office is conducting an investigation of that death in order to determine whether to recommend federal civil rights prosecution, he said.

"I don't like asking the federal government to involve itself in state affairs at any level," Hill said. However, he said, even if state law was strengthened, federal prosecution still could be used if local officials failed to prosecute.

Hill, a Democratic candidate for governor this year, had been accused by Ector County District Attorney John Green of entering the Lozano case for political reasons. Green said the attorney general had no jurisdiction in the case.

Hill called Green's charges "unjustified and unwarranted."

He said he has responded on several occasions to requests from citizens groups to investigate such cases, and the request from the League of United Latin American Citizens to investigate the Lozano case had come "in proper form."

The attorney general added that his office currently is investigating several other deaths of Mexican-Americans who were in legal custody. One of those cases is the Glasscock County death of Tiburcio Griego Santome Nov. 6, he said.

"We're interested in the truth and we're interested in the facts," Hill said.

He said he has a "responsibility" to investigate and determine whether to recommend federal civil rights prosecution. That, however, is his only jurisdiction in such cases, he said.

The attorney general said he had notified Green and Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught that he was investigating the Lozano death, and both pledged their cooperation. He characterized his conversation with Green as "sober and sane."

He said Dan Meso, who is handling the attorney general's investigation, has reported the investigation is proceeding "in a normal fashion, and I know of no obstruction."

Hill also called for increased spending for training law enforcement officers to help prevent police brutality incidents.

John Hill

Hill attacked incumbent Gov. Dolph Briscoe's leadership ability and competency. "Frankly, the office has gotten away from him," Hill said of Briscoe.

Hill said he is committed to imposing no new taxes on Texans, and he attacked Briscoe's handling of state money.

"He's had twice as much money to spend as his predecessors, and he's blown every penny of it....He does not have a strong hand on the helm and lets the Legislature predominate and dominate him" Hill said.

He called for an increase in education funding, and accused Briscoe of "hostility to education."

The attorney general pledged to take an active role in the budgeting process.

"I will be a working governor, and that'll help a lot — just to have somebody there on the job," Hill said.

The candidate said he has raised more than $700,000 of the $1 million budgeted for the primary campaign. He said he hopes to raise the other $300,000 at a fundraising event in Houston March 1.

At his press conference, Hill announced that his Midland County campaign will be run by Reagan Legg. Marilyn Baker and Pat Baskin will have "leadership roles" in the county campaign, he added.

In Odessa, Mayor Dan Hemphill will be campaign chairman, and Lucius Bunton, co-chairman.

Nixon aides dispute nuclear 'invitation'

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former foreign affairs aides to Richard Nixon are disputing H.R. Haldeman's claim that the Soviet Union asked the United States to take part in a nuclear strike against China in 1969.

There was no denial, however, that the Russians were considering a pre-emptive nuclear attack on China's atomic testing facilities during that period. One U.S. official said the Soviet's thinking was common knowledge.

The Soviet news agency Tass today described Haldeman's account as "nonsensical statements" that were "a lie from beginning to end."

The agency charged that American newspapers "continued to spread the fabrication," despite denials by other U.S. officials.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman in Peking said it was not Chinese practice to comment on reports such as Haldeman's.

However, a U.S. diplomat in Peking said today it was common knowledge at the time that the Soviet Union had considered a pre-emptive nuclear strike against China in 1969.

The diplomat, who asked not to be identified, said he doubts the United States was invited to take part.

"From the Chinese standpoint, there is no doubt at all that they believed in the possibility of a strike," he said.

Haldeman, who is in prison for his Watergate crimes, makes the claims in his book, "The Ends of Power," which goes on sale today.

However, Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser at the time, said, "This is not true," when asked Thursday about Haldeman's report that Russia had asked the United States to participate in the attack.

Kissinger, appearing on NBC's "Today" show, said, "All the papers on foreign policy matters run across my desk and I do not recall any such event and I would not have forgotten it."

In Peking, a U.S. official who asked

Mayor asks re-election

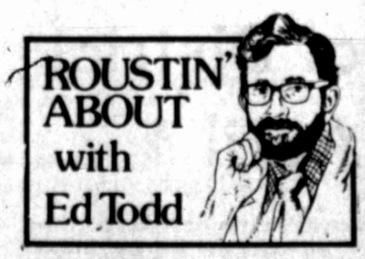

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. this morning announced he will seek another two-year term as mayor.

"For the last six years, I have enjoyed the privilege of serving as mayor of the city of Midland. It has been a challenging and rewarding experience working with a great community and fine people who live here," Angelo said.

"My enthusiasm for our city and its potential has not diminished over the years," he added.

City elections will be held April 1.

91-year-old ex-farmer has 78 great-grandkids

For almost a quarter of a century, Ira Freeman has been indulging in one of the world's most sought-after pastimes — doing nothing.

That seems to be his fruit, however shrunken, for a lifetime of labor.

And if that's a "just reward" for this 91-year-old ex-farmer and former filling station operator, well, it's also reward enough for his son, Leon, who owns up to "doing nothing" since he retired as a mechanic two years ago at age 63.

Their life seems to be one of easy relaxation, which may or may not be tantamount to idleness and nothingness.

"He still piddles around in the garden here," the son said of his father, who moved to Midland from Paris in Northeast Texas in 1954, when he retired to do exactly what he's doing today.

Ira Freeman is not your "typical" old-timer who moved to Texas from Alabama in a covered wagon. Perhaps he could have. But it must have been much simpler and more practical for his farming father to relocate the family by rail — The Texas & Pacific.

Freeman, one of 13 children, reckoned that his daddy brought the family to near Paris in Lamar County because his daddy's twin brother had already moved there.

"They were always close together," Ira Freeman said this week in the company of four generations of his kind. "I guess that's why he followed him."

Freeman has lived long enough to be counted among the first of five living generations in his lineage. He figures that that is worth mentioning.

But that's getting ahead of the mule

Saudi jet capability upsets Dayan

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's decision to sell top-line jets to Saudi Arabia may stiffen Israel's determination to hold on to military airfields in Sinai in negotiations with Egypt.

This became clear as Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told reporters after a meeting with Carter that he is "very upset" about the prospect of the Saudis being able "to cover the entire Israeli sky without refueling."

Dayan signalled a drive to either get Carter to change his mind, which seems unlikely, or to persuade Congress to block the $2.5 billion deal. There is a much better chance of that.

Already, 10 of the 15 members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have recorded their opposition. Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., has launched a drive to block arms sales to Egypt and Israel as well as Saudi Arabia, and Republican Party Chairman Bill Brock criticized the package as ill-timed during critical negotiations.

The Israeli campaign, which also seeks to scuttle sale of 50 F-5E short-range fighters to Egypt, will grow in intensity next month as Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and then Prime Minister Menachem Begin visit here.

"The Saudis, when they get the F-15s, would be able to get to Eilat, (Israel's vital Red Sea) within 10 minutes," Dayan said. "The Israeli people would be asking, 'Where would be the Israeli air field to meet and intercept the airplanes?'

"Shouldn't we have our airfields as close as possible to (Saudi Arabia)?

"What I'm saying is that these planes would have an effect on the entire military picture of Israel, its defensible borders and military installations."

Even before Carter made up his mind, Israel was trying in negotiations with Egypt to hold on to military airfields at Etzion, near Eilat and near the Yamit settlement to the north. Both bases are on the Sinai, just beyond Israel's old border, and were not included in the territory Israel offered to give up as part of a peace agreement.

The Egyptians, with growing support from Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, are also demanding that all 19 civilian settlements be dismantled. Israel is trying to retain them, but in a concession, Dayan told a news conference Thursday, it is prepared to have policemen rather than troops protect the settlers.

team, so to speak.

Once Ira Freeman's father "got up on his feet" after coming to Texas, he settled in the Broadway community 10 miles south of Paris to farm cotton and corn.

Freeman and his dad had a "four-horse crop" which amounted to about 100 acres, he recalled.

"I had a small crop, and he (the father) had the rest of it," Ira Freeman said.

Those draft animals used to pull the plows also included mules.

"They're all smart as long as you teach them what to do," said Freeman, who never traded his draft horse and mules for a tractor. "They're not dumb."

In 1909, Freeman entered into a marriage that was to last beyond 63 years. His wife, Zollie, died in Midland five years ago.

It was in the mid-1920s when Ira Freeman packed up the family and belongings and moved to Oklahoma in a 1917 Model T Ford to raise a "two-horse crop" of cotton and corn.

"Tractors always got the best land," said Freeman, who farmed at Blanchard, Okla. "And what you could get with mules and horses was poor (land), so I quit."

That was in the late 1930s, when he worked for a spell in clearing timberland in New Mexico for the Rural Electrification Administration (REA).

By 1942, he got caught up in the war effort. He was working for the U.S. Army Air Corps at the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant at Oklahoma City. His job was to "check in" stuff at the receiving dock.

Afterward, he returned to Paris and operated a gasoline service station for nine years.

By then, it was time to retire and do nothing. He came to Midland to be close to his children.

And just this week, Ira Freeman posed before the camera with his kind for that five-generation portrait. With him were his oldest living son, Leon Freeman; his oldest granddaughter, Barbara Roberts, 40, of Plainview; his oldest great-granddaughter, Kathy Marshall, 21, of Plainview, and his oldest great-great-granddaughter, Matthew Marshall, who's 12 weeks old.

For a man who's not doing much these days, Ira Freeman at least can count his "blessings" when he's not hoeing in the garden or reading the newspaper. He begat eight children, who in turn gave him 34 grandchildren. The grandkids gave him 78 great-grandchildren, and the latter brought him three great-great-grandchildren.

Hospital room rate increase in effect

ODESSA — Medical Center Hospital room rates will go up $10 to $15 a day, effective immediately.

The increases, approved Wednesday by the hospital's board of managers, are the first since May 1975.

Ward, semi-private and private rooms will increase in cost by $10 a day and intensive care and coronary care units by $15, according to Administrator San Glenney.

New rates will be $65 for ward beds, $68 for semi-private, $79 and $80 for private and $150 each for intensive and coronary care.

Glenney said those rates are lower than most of the hospitals in Abilene, Big Spring, El Paso and Midland. Midland Memorial Hospital's intensive care rate is $140, but all other Midland hospital rates are higher than the new Medical Center rates, Glenney said.

The new room rates are expected to produce $557,505, which, in turn, will yield $462,602 after deductions for Medicare, Medicaid, bad debts and free care, according to Glenney.

The major portion of that will go to salary increases for employees and night shift incentive pay.

Glenney said salary increases were necessary because Medical Center had "fallen behind" other hospitals and is having difficulty recruiting and keeping employees, particularly nurses.

Money shortage brings resignation

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Boren's office confirms that Grand River Dam Authority Manager Charles Richard Huddleston resigned from his job suddenly this week because of reports of a fund shortage at a Houston bank where he once worked.

"Records of the U.S. District Court Clerk's office in Houston show that Charles Richard Huddleston was charged on Aug. 4, 1971, with embezzlement of funds by a bank employee," the Daily Oklahoman reported in today's editions.

not to be identified said today he doubts the United States was invited to take part. "The Russians knew full well what our reaction would have been," he said.

And retired Maj. Gen. George Keegan, then the Air Force's intelligence chief, said he was unaware of any official, high-level Soviet invitation to the United States.

But Keegan acknowledged that "a number of lesser Soviet officials ...made discreet inquiries and suggestions to lesser Americans unofficially to ... determine whether the United States would be interested in participating in a surgical strike against Chinese nuclear installations."

"I am unaware of (discussions on) higher levels where Kissinger or Nixon would know directly," Keegan added.

When informed of Haldeman's account, he said, "How the hell would Haldeman know all that?"

Haldeman wrote that the Soviets, considered "paranoiac about China" by U.S. intelligence agents, moved several nuclear-armed divisions within two miles of the Chinese border in 1969, with plans to wipe out Chinese nuclear plants.

If the Chinese struck back, he said, there would have been global war.

"Insane. And yet, the Soviets were ready to go. In fact, they insisted we join them," he said.

Haldeman said Kissinger initially did not recognize the severity of the situation,

DEATHS

Grace Jordan

Grace Jordan, 86, of 716 Spraberry Drive, a retired registered nurse, died this morning in a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home. Officiating will be the Rev. J. W. Farmer, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church in Midland. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring.

Miss Jordan was born Oct. 9, 1891, in Jewell City, Kan., was reared in Kansas, and lived in Topeka, Kan., where she became a registered nurse.

She moved to San Francisco in 1929 and worked as a nurse for the Southern Pacific Hospital there 29 years. She retired in 1966. Afterward, she did some private-duty nursing.

She moved to Midland 18 months ago.

Survivors include a sister, Helen Faubion of Midland; a nephew, Kenneth Faubion of Midland, and three nieces, Barbara Pickett of Midland, Betty Crenshaw and Thelma Stuteville, both of Big Spring.

Carrie Nevells

Carrie Ann Nevells, 72, a Midland resident the past two months, died this morning in a Midland hospital.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Jordan and Sons Funeral Home in Ellsworth, Maine.

Mrs. Nevells, born Oct. 14, 1905, in Blue Hill, Maine, spent her early life in Maine before moving to Kansas in 1914. She moved back to Maine in 1965 and then moved to Midland in late 1977 to make her home with a daughter, Mrs. Max Domino.

Other survivors include a son, Edward A. Showman of Jacksonville, Fla.; a brother, Walter Pierce of Ellsworth; a sister, Vera Grindle of Bristol, Conn., and three grandchildren.

Odessa bail bonding firm judgment affects Midland

ODESSA — Ike's Bonding Co., Odessa's largest bail bonding company, has been ordered to stop making bonds in Ector County until $10,000 in forfeited bonds are paid.

The forfeiture judgments, involving four misdemeanor cases, were signed Thursday by Ector County Judge Gary Watkins. Under state law, once a judgment has been signed, no new bonds can be accepted in the county.

Watkins said there reportedly are forfeitures in excess of $75,000 pending against Ike's but he does not know how that figure was derived.

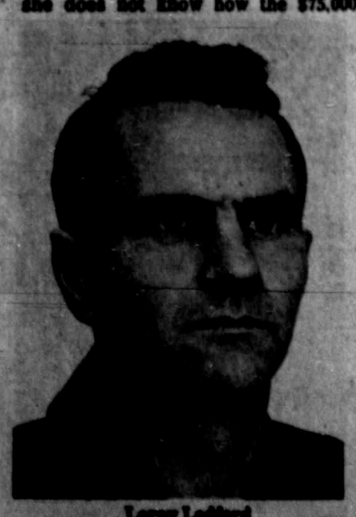

Audrey Isaacs of Ike's said this morning she does not know when the judgment will be paid. She also said she does not know how the $75,000 figure was derived.

The company also writes bonds in Midland County. A check of the district clerk's records this morning indicated nine pending forfeiture suits involving $87,500 in bonds for felony cases.

No judgment has been entered in any of those cases.

Marvin G. Manning

Two from Greenwood seek school board posts

Two Greenwood residents Thursday announced they are seeking spots on that school district's board of education.

Marvin G. Manning, owner-manager of Texas Motor Co., is running for Place 5. That post currently is held by Bud Lea, who is not seeking re-election.

Leroy Ledford is seeking Place 4, now held by Charlie Dunn, who also has decided not to run for re-election. Ledford is a lieutenant in the Midland Fire Department.

In announcing his candidacy, Manning said he wants to "help to improve communications between faculty, administration and parents" and to "work towards continuing high academic and moral standards in our school."

Ledford also pledged to "maintain the school system's high standards."

Ledford said he felt he can "better serve the school system as one of their trustees" after working closely "with the Greenwood School system for the past five years."

Midland County Hospital District board election set for April 1

By ED TODD

The board of directors of Midland County Hospital District on Thursday ordered an election April 1 to fill two places on the five-member board.

Filing for election to the posts they currently hold are rancher Frank Cowden Jr., the board's president, and banker William P. "Bill" Franklin, secretary.

The board was created last Sept. 17, when Midland County voters by a 3-to-2 margin authorized the hospital district and the selling of $10 million in bonds for expansion of the 28-year-old 175-bed hospital.

The hospital district, as a taxing entity, takes in the city and county of Midland.

Cowden and Franklin will be seeking two-year terms on the board of directors.

Filing deadline for candidacy is March 6.

Those wishing to get their names on the ballots may file petitions by March 6 with board secretary Franklin at the hospital's administrative offices.

To be eligible for candidacy, a would-be director must be at least 18 years of age, must own taxable property in the county, and must "file a petition . . . signed by not less than 25 electors asking that his name be printed on the ballot," reads the bill, passed by the 65th Texas Legislature, that authorized creation of the taxing district.

Serving with Cowden and Franklin on the board are board vice president L. Decker Dawson, president of a geophysical company; Edwin H. Magruder Jr., an oil operator, and Robert L. Pendleton, banker. An election to fill the places held by the latter three directors will be in 1979.

The board of directors Thursday agreed to:

— Share the six polling places on April 1 with the city of Midland, the Midland public schools and Midland College. The four taxing bodies will share election expenses.

— Set up a polling place at Greenwood, so that voters in that community will not have to travel to Midland to vote in the hospital district election. The Greenwood public schools election falls on April 1.

— Appoint Patsy Bohannan, Gene McDaniel and Walter Holton to the board of equalization, which is common to the city, Midland public schools and the college.

— Transfer on April 3 the $8.5 million in hospital assets (land, buildings, equipment) from the Midland Memorial Foundation to the hospital district. The hospital's board of governors and board of trustees already have approved the action. "I think that it is absolutely essential that we maintain a high degree of liaison between those two bodies," director Magruder said of the boards of governors and trustees. (In terms of replacement, the hospital is valued in excess of $20 million.)

The board noted that economic evaluators Standard & Poor of New York has given a "double A" bond rating to the hospital district. The bonds have yet to be solt.

VOTING PRECINCTS

The six polling places in the April 1 election are listing by voting precincts:

— Precincts 1, 10, 12 at Midland Fire Station No. 3, 1710 N. Edwards St.

— Precincts 6, 7, 9, 20, 23, 27 at Fire Station No. 4, Delano Avenue and Circle Drive.

— Precincts 8, 14, 26 at Fannin Elementary School, 2400 Fannin Ave.

— Precincts 11, 13, 21, 22 at Fire Station No. 6, Thomason Drive and Midland Drive.

— Precincts 4, 15, 18, 19, 28 at Lee High School, 3600 Neely Ave.

— Precincts 3, 5, 16, 17, 24, 25 at South Elementary School, 200 W. Dakota Ave.

Marcos gambling election will improve his image

The Los Angeles Times

MANILA — Under political pressure at home and abroad Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos is gambling that an April national election will give his faltering martial law regime a facade of parliamentary democracy.

The energetic, 60-year-old master political showman will certainly win the election. But winning the overall gamble will take more than the theatrics and almost monarchistic trappings that have marked the 12-year rule of Marcos and his wife, Imelda.

Marcos claims that a new interim parliament will move the Philippines toward an undefined "normalcy." The opposition which claims that the United States is supporting Marcos, says the election will simply give him a legal excuse for six more years of one-man rule.

What Marcos hopes for is an improved image that might enable him to overcome the country's problems. While this is questionable, the problems are real. The Republic of the Philippines is ailing. The clean streets, gleaming new hotels and showpiece convention and cultural centers of Manila are deceptive. The gap between poverty and the riches that Marcos promised to narrow with his "new society" actually has widened.

The government's own statistics show real wages for the poor majority have declined steadily for five years. In effect, the government's development plans — often leaky with corruption — have barely been keeping abreast of population growth.

The old family oligarchies, which Marcos said he was going to break up, are stronger than ever.

The country is $6.5 billion in debt to foreign bankers. It plans to borrow almost $2 billion this year and almost as much in 1979.

Economists do not view that debt burden as dangerously high. But prospects for getting more money are not helped by the growing Marcos reputation for cronyism, kickbacks and high living at the Spanish-style Malacanang Palace.

The presidential reputation was further tarnished by recent publicity given his golfing companion Herminio Disini, whose wife is a cousin of Mrs. Marcos. As the local agent for the American firm of Westinghouse, Disini won presidential approval for a $1.1 billion nuclear plant. That is not particularly startling in the Philippines, but nobody will say how much commission Disini got. The amount may have been as much as $50 million and the political opposition is charging some of that went straight to the palace.

Former Sen. Jovito Salonga, a leader of the opposition Liberal Party that is boycotting the April 7 elections, already is risking jail by making the charge in public speeches. Foirmer Sen. Jose P. Diokno is making similar charges.

Political sources say that more fireworks may come from former Sen. Benigno Acquino, Marcos' chief rival, who has been in jail since martial law was imposed in 1972. Marcos has promised that Acquino will be permitted to run in the elections, although he might have to campaign from jail. Even if Acquino is unable to campaign or decides to boycott the elections, his wife plans to use the campaign period for public speeches in his behalf.

Such statements are now muted in the controlled press. But Marcos has promised a free press and free speech during the 45-day campaign period preceding the elections.

It will be a busy time for the American Embassy in Manila. Part of the opposition already is charging that the only purpose of the election is to legitimize martial law and "protect the interests of the government of the United States at the expense of the freedom, welfare and dignity of the Filipino people."

On the other hand, some newsmen supporting Marcos are charging that unspecified American interests are giving money to the opposition and that some candidates are receiving support from the Central Intelligence Agency. Their theory is that the Carter Administration, which has openly condemned the treatment of prisoners in the Philippines, seeks to bring Marcos down.

Such charges coming so early indicate the campaign will be lively even if the election itself is already decided, as the opposition and others claim. It also may be the most personal campaign in Philippine history.

The Marcos penchant for lavish parties is well known and frequently reported in Manila newspapers as an acceptable example of famed Philippine hospitality. Not reported is where the money comes from. For example, Mrs. Marcos' handsomely embroidered long gowns, known as ternos, often cost $4,000 and she is never seen twice in the same one.

Card is missing from bridge hands

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Have you ever played a bridge hand in which it was quite clear that nobody could possibly hold the king of spades? That happened at two tables of the Pan-American Invitation Pair Championship in Mexico City last October.

Opening lead — ♡ K

West took three high hearts and then lead the eight of hearts and let East Ruff dummy's nine. West feared that the nine of hearts might eventually give declarer a useful discard or that East had the singleton king of spades.

At two tables East ruffed with his low spade!

South naturally overruffed and led a trump. When West played low, South suspected that he wasn't playing with a full deck.

GOOD REASONING

East couldn't have the king of spades since with just K-6 he would either ruff with the king or wouldn't ruff at all. West couldn't have the king of spades since with five hearts headed by the A-K-J and the king of spades he would have opened the bidding.

Both declarers took the finesse, and East got a trick with his unguarded king of spades. With all the cards in sight we can think of reasons for South to work out the winning play, but two of the best players in North America went wrong.

It's easy to have 20-20 hindsight.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S AQ108 H 9643 D A 3 C AKQ. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs. The hand is too strong for a jump to three spades. You plan to drive to a slam, and a jump response in your strongest side suit is the most informative first move.

Pyramid versus wheel

When Jimmy Carter began organizing his office in the White House a year ago, he said pointedly that there would never be an H. R. Haldeman or John D. Ehrlichman on his staff. Those two intimates of the Oval Office in the Nixon years had come to personify a rigid, autocratic pyramid of power — a source of criticism long before the Watergate scandal that sent both of them packing.

Mr. Carter was right about one thing. No president should be as isolated as Richard Nixon became when the Haldeman-Ehrlichman "Teutonic twosome" was guarding the door. But the former governor of Georgia, eager to show that things are going to be different, has thrown out the concept of a staff-pyramid altogether. We think he has made a mistake.

There is nothing wrong with the pyramid as a geometric model for an organization chart. It provides lines of communication and authority narrowing at the top where, finally, important decisions have to be made. An astute and trusted chief of staff sitting where those lines converge can be a lifesaver for the person on top.

But Mr. Carter's organization chart — such as it is — resembles a wheel, with aides and specialists arrayed on the rim, each with access to the president at the hub. There is no chief of staff, no individual with a finger on the flow of all presidential business—except, of course, the overworked president himself. It's no wonder the Carter administration seemed to spend its first year going around in circles.

Mr. Carter is said to like the free-wheeling atomosphere around the West wing. He wants to avoid the backbiting, and rivalry which can arise when there is a well-defined pecking order. But what about the results—in the efficient rationing of the president's time, in assuring that the president knows all he needs to know before speaking out on an issue or making a decision, in giving coherence and continuity to White House policy?

A chief of staff with open eyes and ears could have prevented Mr. Carter's blundering in the Marston affair. A chief of staff could improve his relations with Congress. That faux pas that cost him dearly on Capitol Hill last year—Vice President Mondale's intervention to break a Senate filibuster on an energy bill — need not have occurred. A chief of staff could reduce the number of occasions when Mr. Carter's public statements need correction or further explanation.

Mr. Carter campaigned against "Washington" and brought many fellow Georgians into the White House to endow it with his own style. Fine, but Washington and the rest of the country are still outside the White House gates, with political sensitivities and an ingrained system for getting things done.

Mr. Carter's wheel simply is not meshing with the demands on the presidency in a complex governmental system.

Hamilton Jordan, the presidential assistant who is perhaps Mr. Carter's closest confidant, resists being dubbed an unofficial chief of staff and says he would dislike the administrative detail that the title implies. Further, the chief of staff should be someone with roots in national affairs, not the Atlanta statehouse. The first candidate mentioned by some is Robert Strauss, the former Democratic national chairman, an outspoken and energetic Texan who knows what makes Washington tick, who has been acting as a low-profile lobbyist for administration programs in Congress and is winning applause for his performance as a trade negotiator.

Strauss is the kind of savvy oid hand who could be of immeasurable help to Mr. Carter at the second level of the pyramid — once the president acknowledges that the pyramid is there. Ceding him responsibilities as chief of staff would not diminish Mr. Carter's stature of authority as president. Indeed, a year's wheel-spinning suggests it might enhance both.

CHARLEY REESE:

'Peace plan is a sting, Uncle Sam is the sucker'

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — I finally have figured out Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative. The whole thing is a sting and Uncle Sam is the sucker.

Let's look at some facts and I think you'll see how the old fox constructed the con.

Egypt is between a rock and a hard place. The economy is a mess. Some months ago, the New York Times reported Egypt's debts were two and half times her gross national product.

It was partly to repudiate some of those debts that Sadat threw the Russians out, but when he did, he put the Egyptian army in a bad spot. Most of their equipment is Russian and now they have no spare parts. War machines without spare parts don't run.

So Sadat needs arms and money but he doesn't need peace. He doesn't need peace because he's got that. He knows the Israelis won't attack Egypt except to pre-empt an attack on them and so far as the peace goes, Sadat — not the Israelis — controls that. Unless he attacks or prepares to attack, there will be peace.

He can't go shopping in Europe because his credit is bad. The Saudi's are helping a little but the rest of the Arab states are about as useful as a sand box in the Sinai. They all have their noses buried in the fur of the Russian Bear anyway.

Naturally, Sadat looks for an easy mark and who is an easier mark than the United States especially since the Boy Scout from the peanut farm brought his troop of amateurs to town.

Now to construct a good con you have to offer people something they want very much. Sadat knows that both the Carter administration and American Jews want peace — the Jews because they are worried about Israel and Carter because he is worried about another oil embargo.

So off to Jerusalem! The Israelis are so delighted they practically lay palm fronds in his path and back in the U.S. the gullible Americans are crying in their beer and saying what a humanitarian Sadat is.

Of course it should be noted the only concession Sadat has made publicly has been to talk face to face with the Israelis. Except for that, his public demands are the same as Syria's: withdrawal, return of Jerusalem, a Palestinian state.

This is another clue that the whole business from the beginning was a con. Sadat knows those demands are unacceptable to the Israelis and he knows darn well that in the short run, the Israelis are in the stronger position.

But he has the Americans worked up to a fever pitch. Carter, who didn't have the foggiest notion of how to achieve a peace in the Middle East, is like a kid who falls through a skylight into a candy store.

"Gosh, Rosalynn," he must have said, "There's going to be peace and I'll get the credit for it."

Now Sadat springs the trap. Abruptly, he cancels the talks and starts his gloom and doom act. Carter is in a bloody panic. He sees his one chance to claim a foreign policy success going down the tube.

But Brer' Sadat hot foots over to Carter and says, "Now, James Earle, if I could get a commitment from you for some arms and a little cash, I just might go back over there and restart those talks.

And that's the con. Pay off, Uncle Sam, or no peace talks. If Carter had any sand in his craw, he would turn the tables on Sadat who is really just bluffing.

He would say, "Anwar, old boy, we'll give you a little bit to tide you over, but only if you do more than talk. Only if you actually sign a peace treaty. Otherwise, we'll leave you to the other Arabs and the Soviets to carve up into little pieces."

Unfortunately, hoping that Carter has sand in his craw is like believing in the Tooth Fairy. Sadat probably will get what he wants for just promising to talk. The Israelis will get no peace treaty and the American taxpayers will get the shaft.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Story elicits ire in Paraguay

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — On Dec. 20, 1977, we published a sordid story of sexual depravity among high officials in Paraguay. We reported that young peasant girls, ages 8 to 14, were being purchased from their impoverished parents and used for the sexual gratification of top civilian and military authorities in Asuncion.

Some of the young girls, we reported, were kept in a fashionable suburban home maintained by a "Col. Perrier." Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, the dictator who has kept Paraguay in his iron grip for 23 years, we wrote, is a frequent visitor to the house of ill repute.

Although we had been tracking the story for over a year, the final details were provided by Ada Rodriguez, a Paraguayan mother of three, who comes from a family of wealth and influence. She had personally seen the sexually abused bodies of three young girls and had tried to expose the scandal. She was imprisoned, beaten and tortured for her efforts. Her influential family eventually obtained her release and she came to the United States a year ago. She gave us a sworn statement to back up her tale.

While we were reporting the story, the Paraguayan embassy refused to return our repeated calls. After the story appeared, however, the Paraguayan ambassador to the United States, Mario Lopez Escobar, issued a press release that lambasted our report as an "obnoxious article," hinted that we were pawns of "International Marxism," and suggested they might initiate "legal actions."

The child abuse story, meanwhile, has created enormous problems for the Paraguayan government. Sources there informed us that copies of our article "are circulating in Asuncion right at this very moment and having a tremendous political impact."

"The dictator and his gang," said these sources, "are desperate because of the attitude of the State Department and the USA press." There were also reports, added our sources, that "a nucleus of military men are unhappy and are pushing for the moralization of the armed forces and a change of the Stroessner regime."

The story also brought a flood of letters to our office. One correspondent, Rabbi Stephen Listfield of Washington, D.C., also sent along a copy of a letter he had written to Ambassador Lopez Escobar. Officials in Paraguay, wrote the Rabbi to the ambassator, "should be ashamed to appear in the company of civilized people. Does it come as a revelation to General Stroessner that rape and torture of eight-year-old girls is not proper behavior for a decent human being?"

The United States government has also quietly begun to tighten the screws on the Paraguayan government. Among the actions taken:

—The U.S. representative to the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) informed his Paraguayan colleagues that he was prepared to veto two pending loans to the Stroessner regime totalling $23.1 million. To avoid embarrassment, Paraguay withdrew its applications for the loans. "All Paraguayan programs are in abeyance," IDB sources told us until the human rights situation in Asuncion improves.

—Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., has asked his colleagues to sign a letter to Gen. Stroessner expressing "deep concern for the reports of human rights violations in Paraguay." Attached to Ottinger's message to the congressmen is a photocopy of our child abuse story. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is also requesting signatures on a protest letter to the dictator.

—State Department officials told us they are checking into the sexual abuse of children story in the context of their "overall human rights effort" in Paraguay. U.S. Ambassador Robert White, has been asked to look into the report of child abuse, but has yet to confirm it. The State Department has also been pressuring the reluctant Paraguayans to set a date for an on-the-scene human rights investigation by representatives of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights.

—The White House is remaining silent on the matter.

Footnote: Once again, the Paraguayan embassy failed to return our calls for comment.

HOME CARE FRAUD: The government is pouring hundreds of millions of dollars into home health care for the elderly. These programs provide medical services and housekeeping help to senior citizens in their own homes, thus keeping them out of expensive hospitals and nursing homes. But some greedy providers are ripping off the program to an increasing degree.

One California operator, for example, billed the government for legal fees, liquor and meals in fancy restaurants. He even rented an orchestra and ballroom for a party and charged it to Medicare. Federal auditors found he had overcharged Medicare by more than $800,000. The company was dissolved and a new corporation was set up. It immediately began receiving government contracts.

Investigators recently discovered that over $1.5 million has been ripped off by home care providers in New York City alone.

We have obtained other documents showing attempts to write off bad debts and bank charges from home-care funds.

Mark Russell says

We are cutting way back on aid to Nicaragua because it doesn't appear that President Somoza will be getting the Albert Schweitzer Love Thy Neighbor Peace Prize this year.

Instead, the Nicaraguan ruler will be named runner-up in the Idi Amin Act-Alike Contest.

Nicaragua and Iran have flunked their human rights exams but we will continue to support oil-rich Iran until an automobile is developed that runs on bananas.

Nicaragua is attempting to improve. Its Minister of Torture, Dr. D.R. Stiletto, a Pistola-Bandito, says, "We're downplaying cruelty this year. What good is an election if they bleed all over the ballots?"

Certainly there's room for improvement in our own country. Jimmy Carter would like it to be known that he brought total justice to the world, and that he alleviated all human suffering and that on the seventh day he rested.

INSIDE REPORT:

U.S. Senate candidate beams SOS to the President

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Far from a routine political call, the 90-minute closed-door talk Feb. 7 between top presidential aide Hamilton Jordan and North Carolina Senate candidate Luther Hodges Jr. was a desperate SOS to get HEW Secretary Joseph Califano to shut up for a while.

Hodges is the leading Democratic hopeful against Sen. Jesse Helms, charismatic leader of the Republican right wing. Helms has transferred himself from a flukish 1972 winner into one of North Carolina's most formidable politicians.

Private polls show Hodges moving into a slender lead for the May 2 primary election, but his long-range hopes are chilled by Califano's new anti-smoking campaign. It is undermining all North Carolina Democrats.

Hodges complained bitterly to Jordan in the unusually lengthy meeting that Califano's public campaign, including a $23 million public relations fund to educate Americans on the health danger of smoking, could assure not only Helms' reelection but help Sen. Strom Thurmond, another Republican conservative, in South Carolina. Tobacco, a major economic support for North Carolina, also affects South Carolina significantly.

In addition to protesting Califano's anti-smoking habit, Hodges complained about the civil rights section of Califano's Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) Department forcing North Carolina to end "racial duality" in its colleges and universities.

Evans Novak

Also grating to North Carolina Democrats was a second anti-tobacco decision by the Carter administration: closing down the Oxford Tobacco Research Laboratory with its $1 million annual budget. That decision was the Agriculture Department's, not Califano's. But the political fallout is similar.

Jordan listened, with frequent telephone interruptions, and seemed sympathetic to Hodges' long list of grievances. He made no promises, and might not be able to keep them if he had. In early encounters with Califano, Jordan has come off second best behind the cabinet's most practiced and effective infighter.

SEN. KISSINGER?

Prominent New York Republicans are seriously talking about Dr. Henry Kissinger as candidate for the Senate if, as expected, Sen. Jacob Javits does not seek a fifth term in 1980.

Nobody has yet approached the matter to Kissinger, and some friends doubt the former Secretary of State would descend from his Olympian heights to serve in the Senate. Nevertheless, Kissinger's celebrity status makes him a clearly electable candidate in the eyes of Republican politicians.

Among them is the highly respectable Rep. Barber Conable, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee. Conable believes the strongest prospective GOP candidates in New York are Rep. Jack Kemp for governor this year and Kissinger for Senator in 1980. Conable has been trying to persuade Kemp to drop his 1980 Senate plans, using the Kissinger prospect as an argument with Kemp.

A footnote: Republicans look to the election of Democrat Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former ambassador to India and the United Nations, to the Senate in 1976 as an example of a diplomat succeeding in New York politics. An older example of a diplomat failing was the miserable showing in the 1949 Senate race by John Foster Dulles.

SEN. HUMPHREY'S PLANS

Contrary to early speculation, Muriel Humphrey has not closed the door to running in November for Hubert's Senate seat, which she now holds by appointment. Considering strong pressure on Mrs. Humphrey, both from her husband's Senate staffers (now working for her) and outside Humphrey political intimates, the odds on her running are slightly better than 50-50.

Muriel's recent political evolution points that way. When Gov. Rudy Perpich journeyed to Florida to offer her the Humphrey seat, he had two prepared statements: one announcing her acceptance, the other announcing his offer and her refusal.

In other word, whe waited until the last second to make up her mind, then said yes. Intimates say Mrs. Humphrey is going through the same process now — uncertain, but tugged by friends toward running.

If she runs, she will be a cinch, but such a decision could lead to bitterness within the Democratic-Farmer-Labor (DFL) party founded by Hubert.

Rep. Don Fraser, an important DFL stalwart, is an announced candidate. Neither Fraser nor any other Democrat would oppose Muriel in a primary election. Her decision to run therefore would postpone for at least four years the advancement of new faces within the party which Hubert made a hallmark of his DFL leadership.

A footnote: One reason for Mrs. Humphrey not to run is the possible effect on the campaign for state attorney general by her son Skip (Hubert H. Humphrey III).

Mardi Gras awakens, enlivens city

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rudyard Kipling thought he had experienced all this world had to offer when he had "seen the eagle and heard the owl."

But he never went stomping on Mardi Gras day way down yonder in New Orleans with Pete Fountain and his Half-Fast Walking Club, which puts this humble scribbler one up on that master of the folk tale.

Dawn was just breaking over the Mississippi delta when we joined that great Dixieland Clarinetist and 20 of his faithful followers, all decked out in Scottish kilts and swinging sporrans, at Commander's Palace, a restaurant up in the Garden District, for their 18th annual ramble down to Canal Street and the French Quarter.

Already the city was awake and alive with costumed revelers roaming the streets and perched on step ladders, balconies, tops of automobiles and lamp posts waiting for the Krewes of Zulu, Rex and Comus to come parading by with their colorful floats, showering the populace with souvenir doubloons and gaudy beads.

In between the big parades come marching clubs, like the Pete Fountain organization or lack of same, strutting and cake walking at will through the crowds to the frenzied beat of the old-time music that gave birth to blues down here on the way back from a thousand funerals.

Pete raised his gold buttoned clarinet, intoned "Down By the Riverside" in a magical, mournful wail that was echoed by the slide trombones, and we were off stomping behind a banner that proclaimed "Jack Daniels Country Club." Besides the Pete Fountain jazz combo, our ranks boasted the Onward Brass Band, a mostly black Dixieland ensemble that in the words of its leader Louis Coltrell "has been planting 'em in the graveyards around here since 1895 and never missed a Mardi Gras."

As always since he began marching in 1961, Pete had the Onward Band's kettle drummer, Freddie Kohlman, right at his elbow, rapping out a "street beat" that modern musicians just can't duplicate. Close by also were "Pops" or Red Fountain, Pete's father who shucks oyster for a living at Bozo's seafood palace, and comedian-musician Phil Harris in high button shoes.

By the time we reached St. Charles, one of the few avenues left in America where streetcars still run, a half million people were in the streets.

Pete hit them with "Hey, Li'l Liza," which they sang back from the hotel windows and balconies, and then had Jimmy Haislip, his lead trombonist, tear them up with the slush pump glories of begging Bill Bailey to come home.

The route, if there was one, meandered down streets that wouldn't see the big parades, and paused at a half-dozen "pit stops," neighborhood bars and people's homes, where the jazz pilgrims were refreshed with various alloys of branch water. A few fell by the wayside; some carried on with a helping hand, and a number of strutters developed pronounced staggers.

A few years ago when the Half-Fast Walking Club sauntered forth in the regalia of Roman gladiators, Pete was carried on his shield for the final portion of the march. But on this day, wearing the bearskin of a Scottish clan chief on the bare skin of his completely shaved head, our leader never faltered and rarely stopped playing as "Maryland," "South Rampart Street Parade," "High Society" and all the other favorites drifted through the canyons of apartments and office buildings.

In front of old city hall, Pete quaffed champagne toasts with Mayor Moon Landrieu, resplendant in the gold derby and polka dot bowtie of a burlesque comedian, and Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, wearing an open chested motorcycle jacket that didn't have a patch on Burt Reynolds. By now the street crowds numbered 750,000, most of them in costume and all of them howling at us to favor them with golden doubloons bearing Pete's countenance.

Peking's Square of Heavenly Peace, which is supposed to accomodate a million marchers, never looked this exciting on its busiest day, probably because the citizenry never has put aside its Mao suits to come forth as Kojak, Mickey Mouse, Tutankhamun and a thousand more.

Still strutting five hours later, our ranks were infiltrated by a "Jesus Saves" group, with placards held on high, a man in a Richard Nixon mask sang out for a doubloon and, in the French Quarter, a number of "flashers" whipped open a cloak or lifted a skirt to bare their souls and whatever to Pete's soulful clarinet.

"I love this city," said an exhausted Pete Fountain, and his clarinet spelled it out with "heaven on earth, they call it New Orleans."

Finnish design in slump

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The great age of Finnish design, which helped transform the international look of buildings, furniture, glassware and fabrics, appears to be in a slump.

Few new ideas are appearing, as Finns continue to manufacture raw wood furniture, graceful glassware and eyecatching clothing designs in the clean shapes and bright colors that have come to symbolize Finnish workmanship.

"There's nothing unique to be seen. Not much is happening in design," one Helsinki resident said recently. "Some materials have changed, but the basic approach that got its start years ago is still dominant."

A spokesman for the hugely successful Marimekko fabric design house said as much in a recent interview: "There seems to be a pause at the moment. Something new is due in design."

The spokesman, Juliana Balint, said Marimekko continues to sell its popular bold classics, but that its new spring line is following European trends toward more romantic, even Victorian patterns.

Some Finns suggest the lull is the product of a serious economic decline which is slowing down all fields of activity in Finland.

Architecture has been particularly affected by this, as fewer commissions are going out for the huge churches and halls like Helsinki's new Finlandia Conference Center.

Two of the country's great architects, Alvar Aalto — who designed Finlandia Hall — and Aarne Ervi, have died in the last two years. No successor has yet made a clear name for himself.

Some Finns also blame a trend toward politicization at the country's main design school, the Ateneum College of Design, where new ideas in design should be developing.

The college only now appears to be coming out of the period of radicalization that affected young people around the world in the 1960s. During the last decade, many of the college's students turned away from contacts with industry and trade, where new ideas would find their application.

Post Haldeman coup brings anger

By MARLENE CIMONS
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Publishing executives who had paid thousands of dollars for exclusive rights to H. R. Haldeman's memoirs reacted with consternation and bursts of anger after the Washington Post — which paid nothing — scooped them all by running a lengthy account of the book Thursday.

"It's a shoddy way to do things," snapped Sidney Gruson, executive vice president of The New York Times Co., which is publishing Haldeman's book, "The Ends of Power," Feb. 27 and had planned to begin running its own excerpts from the book Monday. "I'm not taken with this kind of journalistic enterprise."

Another New York Times staff member was more philosophical. "They just beat the . . . . out of us," he said.

Publication of the Haldeman book had been considered important not only because he had been former President Nixon's closest White House aide, but also because he was expected to break his long self-imposed silence and criticize his former boss.

The right to serialize the book had been the subject of lengthy negotiations between The New York Times Syndication Sales Corp. and dozens of U.S. newspapers and magazines, great and small.

Besides spending up to $25,000 each on serialization rights, many of the nation's most prestigious newspapers and magazines had committed large sums of money to the production and promotion of what they thought would be an exclusive story in their areas. Thus, the Post coup created flaps all across the nation as editors tried to decide what they should do.

And it appeared likely that the episode ultimately could turn into a monumental legal battle over contracts signed with The New York Times syndicate. The question for many editors was whether they were still obligated to pay for a story that was no longer exclusive.

After the story broke, editors of several major newspapers that had been part of the original deal said they would reevaluate their purchase agreements with The New York Times syndicate.

Asked what would happen if any of those newspapers refused to publish the excerpts or pay the contract price, a spokesman for The New York Times Syndication company said: "We don't know. We're trying to look at the bright side."

Some editors questioned the way in which the entire situation had been handled.

"What was shoddy was the way this whole thing was handled in the first place," said William F. Thomas, executive vice president and editor of the Los Angeles Times.

"It was naive (of The New York Times syndicate) to put an embargo on a book like this and expect it to stay secret for a week. What the Post ran, and I don't blame them a bit since they were frozen out of the bidding in the first place, really amounted to only a small piece of the story. We could have gone ahead with our original plan had not The New York Times decided to break the embargo, thereby forcing all of us into the same boat," Thomas continued.

"It appears the reason we were expected to sit on the book for a week was because they had made a pile of money from Newsweek, which couldn't print it until its next issue came out.

"That irritated some of us more than a little because when we bought the book we didn't know Newsweek was part of the package. Otherwise I never would have bought the book."

Stuart H. Loory, managing editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, which also contracted to run the New York serialization, said:

"Needless to say, we're very disturbed about the way this whole thing was handled. We took our side of the bargain very seriously. We treated this whole thing with a maximum amount of security. I wasn't even going to release the type to be set until Monday. Now all of a sudden we're faced with being beat on our own story."

Strike called

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP) — A Panama Canal union leader opposed to the new canal treaties called for a "sick strike" today in support of demands that their rights be insured by legislation before the Senate ratification.

"If the treaties are ratified before the implementing legislation regarding our rights is passed, you won't have anything," Bill Drummond, president of the Zone Policemen's Union, told a rally of 1,500 Americans Thursday night.

"You'll be threatened with summary dismissal, ... but I am going sick tomorrow and I believe you should too. I don't expect to return before the 25th of this month."

A 1976 sick-out lasted four days and cut traffic through the waterway to a trickle.

Postmaster General quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, a financial expert who was not able to eliminate the Postal Service's chronic deficits, is returning to private industry. And he suggests his successor take "a very vigorous approach to cost cutting."

Bailar announced his resignation Thursday, saying he had enjoyed his three years in the job, but that "a businessman's place is in the business community and I'm looking forward to going back."

He said he will have a higher salary as as executive vice president of United States Gypsum Co. in Chicago than the $66,000 the postmaster general earns. However, he did not specify his new salary.

In leaving, Bailar spoke out against pending legislation that would strip away much of the independence from Congress and the White House that the Postal Service was given in 1971 when the Post Office Department was abolished.

The mail agency was largely freed from political considerations and was organized like a private business and given the goal of breaking even financially. However, it has been in the red ever since.

The largest three deficits since re-organization were amassed in the last three fiscal years. However, Bailar's cost reduction efforts did reduce the red ink from $1.2 billion in fiscal 1976 to $688 million in fiscal 1977.

Those cost-cutting efforts frequently ran into opposition from the unions representing postal workers and from members of Congress.

For example, he urged serious consideration for eliminating Saturday mail deliveries, which would save the agency an estimated $400 million per year, but was opposed by the unions and by congressional representatives of rural areas.

He also moved ahead with eliminating money-losing rural post offices that serve tiny communities, and again was opposed by congresssmen representing rural areas and by the postmasters who would lose jobs.

Bailar came to the government as a graduate of Harvard Business School and a specialist in financial matters. He was a vice president of American Can Co. in New York before joining the Postal Service in 1972 as its top financial officer. Three years later he took over the top post.

Sixth-graders provide Rotary entertainment

The "Midland Celebration," a group of more than 125 sixth-grade students from Crockett, Rusk and Lamar Elementary Schools, furnished the musical entertainment Thursday noon when members of the Downtown Rotary Club had their Rotary-Anns as special guests at their annual Valentine meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The group of singers and dancers is under the direction of Ellen West, who emceed the program.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the young performers inspired the Rotarians and Rotary-Anns to join with the youths in some of the singing.

The singers opened their concert with a rendition of "Midland—That's My Home Town." Other slsections included "I May Not Pass This Way Again;" "If You Want To Get To Heaven, I'll Tell You What To Do;" "Don't Need No Short People Around Here;" "I'm An Old Cowhand from the Rio Grande;" "Cotton-Eye Joe," and "You Light Up My Life." They concluded the program by singing, in Hebrew, "Behold How Good and How Pleasant It Is for Brethren to Dwell Together in Unity," and by wishing their audience "Peace."

President Ted Kerr in welcoming the Rotary-Anns and the entertainers said the attendance was the largest ever at a Rotary function of this nature here.

Judgement on explosion of amonia truck approved

HOUSTON (AP) — A $1.25 million judgment has been approved by a state judge in connection with a May 11, 1976 ammonia truck explosion on a Houston freeway.

The suit was filed by J. Bill Mays, 49, and his son, Toby, 7, against Transport Co. of Texas. They initially asked for $2 million, claiming they suffered physical impairment.

Volunteers plan visits to homes

Volunteer interviewers this week began visiting Midland senior citizens in their homes to find out how they find out about services they need.

The survey is a project of the Senior Services Office of First Christian Church.

Marion Fisher, senior services director, said a great many Midland senior citizens do not know about special programs and services available to them. Many learn only through chance conversation about help designed to be delivered through community agencies, she said.

The interviewers will carry identification with them and will present each cooperating senior citizen with a packet of informative materials.

The survey is planned to include a representative cross-section of the approximately 8,000 Midlanders who are more than 60 years old.

Several cases of Russian flu confirmed

HOUSTON (AP) — Health officials have confirmed three cases of A-Russian influenza in the Houston area but they say the strain produces mild illnesses.

Transplant patient improves

HOUSTON (AP) — A 21-year old Texas oil field worker who doctors said was the first patient to benefit from an assist device and a human transplant was reported in stable and improved condition today.

The recipient received a new heart and one kidney from a suicide victim in what was described as "last ditch" surgery Wednesday. It was Houston's first cardiac transplant in more than eight years.

Hospital spokesmen earlier had said the young man's ailment began with a tooth abscess that caused infection to spread throughout the body, including the heart.

Meanwhile, two top oficials of the Texas Heart Institute in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital said a new heart transplant era soon may be possible by using partial artificial pumping devices until donor organs can be found.

The patient has not yet been identified.

"His mental status has been encouraging and he is cooperative and responsive," a statement the Texas Heart Institute said. It said the transplanted heart, which was removed from Leona Singleton, 38, a Houston mother of two who shot herself Sunday night and died Tuesday afternoon, was "functioning well."

However, the gift kidney had not started to work Thursday but hospital public relations representatives said the specialists in charge of the double transplant patient did not expect it to function for perhaps another day or two.

The statment said Dr. Denton A. Cooley and Dr. John C. Norman "maintain hopeful but cautious optimism."

Cooley is surgeon-in-chief at the Institute and Norman is chief of the institute's cardiovascular surgery research laboratories.

A statement read to newsmen Thursday quoted Norman and Cooley as being "encouraged" by the patient's condition and "optimistic" that the same type of technique could help other critically ill heart patients.

They emphasized "this is the first instance" wherein a partial mechanical heart, the abdominal left ventricular assist device (ALVAD), had been combined with a donor heart successfully to sustain the life of a patient after cardiac death.

The combined use of the assist device and donor organs "may open a new era for management of patients with terminal heart failure," the statement said

The patient came to the heart institute last week for for a fairly routine aortic valve replacement operation after the the abscessed tooth had caused a bacterial infection that destroyed the the heart valve, hospital representatives said. During that surgery, they said, his own heart failed, necessitating use of the ALVAD and he was sustained on the mechanical device for six days before the heart transplant.

"We are gratified at his present condition, especially since his own diseased heart ceased to function seven days ago," the Cooley-Norman statement said Thursday.

The ALVAD maintained the transplant patient's blood circulation normally for six days and could have been continued, the Cooley-Norman report said, but doctors "concluded his own heart would never recover and that cardiac transplantation offered the only viable option for survival."

The scientific and treatment effort for the transplant patient "is the result of some 10 years of research activity" at the Texas Heart Institute, the statement said.

The ALVAD "has been tested in experimental animals (calves) in excess of 20,000 hours and has previously been implanted in 16 patients," all of whom died.

Cotton meeting slated

LAMESA—The control of weeds and nematodes that plague cotton crops and aspects of cotton fertility will be discussed here Monday afternoon at the annual Dawson County Cotton Production Meeting.

The meeting at Forrest Park Community Center will be divided into three sessions, according to Joe Ed Wise, Dawson County agricultural agent.

Dr. James Supak, agronomist, will be talking about "Chemical Weed Control in Cotton" at 1:30 p.m.

Dr. Robert Berry, plant pathologist, will speak on "Use of Chemicals and Cotton Varieties to Control Nematodes" and on "Cotton Varieties in Helping Control Disease Problems" at 2:10 p.m.

Jim Valentine, soil chemist, will head up the session on "Cotton Fertility" at 2:50 p.m.

The three speakers are attached to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University System.

Paper earns honors

David L. Keese, currently a production engineer with Exxon Oil Co. in Midland, recently won first place in an American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics student paper competition.

A certificate and bronze medal were presented to him at the institute's national meeting in Washington, D.C.

Keese's paper, "Zero Pressure Balloon Design," was chosen in the undergraduate division and will entitle him to attend the 29th Internationale Astronautical Federation Congress in Yugoslavia this year.

Keese did the work for his award-winning paper in the under-graduate fellows program at Texas A&M University.

Two earn BU honors

WACO — Robin Malone and Jamie Bates have been named to the fall semester dean's list at Baylor University.

Miss Malone and Bates also were initiated into Gamma Beta Phi, the national college honor society.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. "Bill" Malone, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Bates, both of Midland.

Fares approved

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The Texas Railroad Commission has approved the passenger and baggage fares sought by The Chauffeur for serving Midland Regional Air Terminal and all points in Midland and Ector counties.

The three-member panel approved the service's $5 one-way adult fares and half fares for passengers between the ages of four and 14 years of age. Riders under four years of age will be carried free.

Personal baggage, up to a total of three pieces per individual passenger, will be transported free. An extra 50-cent charge per item over the first three pieces will be imposed.

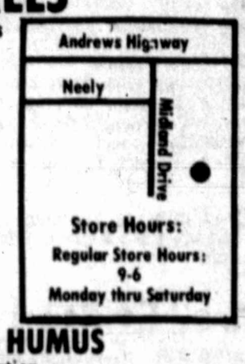

Instead of cash payments, adult passengers may purchase ticket books containing 10 one-way tickets for $46, all of them valid one year from the date of purchase.

Local TV show premiere slated

A new television show, produced locally, will have its premiere at 1 p.m. Saturday on KMID-TV.

"Youth Today," a 30-minute show planned for monthly presentation, has been written and produced by the radio and television department of Midland College.

"This program is designed to appeal both to young people and adults since it will be dealing with local problems, college and high school activities and various special events," said Jerry Watson, program coordinator for "Youth Today" and speech, radio and television instructor at Midland College.

An earlier program of the same title was produced by students at Edison Freshman School of Midland, with production assistance from Midland College students. The new show has MC students on-camera as well as handling production responsibilities.

The initial program in the series will include a segment on problems of teenage runaways in Midland. Called "Let's Talk About It," the segment provides an interview with Midland County Judge Barbara Culver who also serves as judge of the county juvenile court. The segment presents filmed scenes at the Culver Youth Home, the county's modern facility for runaways and juvenile offenders, and provides an interview with a Midland girl who was a runaway.

Other segments of the program will include a discussion of "Pyramid Power," with affirmative and negative views of the subject to be presented, and information about current activities and coming events not only at Midland College but at Lee and Midland high schools.

Researched and written by Midland College students, some portions of the program are being produced on videotape in the television studio at Midland College.

"We feel that 'Youth Today' provides an exciting learning experience for our students," Watson said. "They know that what they are working on is going to be seen on commercial television and judged against professionally-produced programs. That gives them the sense of urgency, quality and reality they will face when they enter the radio or television field."

Shorty Stokes of the KMID-TV staff is serving as program director for "Youth Today."

Escapee wanted on Midland warrant remains at large

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — One man who escaped from the Seward County jail Thursday night was still at large today, but another, charged with first-degree murder, was captured in Meade, the Kansas Highway Patrol said.

Wilson is wanted in Midland in the armed robbery of the Sheraton Inn on Jan. 15 He is charged in that case with taking a sum in excess of $100, according to reports by Midland police.

Midland police today said Wilson still is at large.

The highway patrol said that it, along with the Meade County sheriffs office and city police, arrested John Edwards, 26, in Meade. He has been charged with the Jan. 21 slaying of Bula Pervis of Liberal.

The other escapee was identified as Mark Wilson, 27, Lubbock, Texas, who was being held on a fugitive warrant issued in Midland, Texas, in connection with an aggravated robbery.

Meade County Sheriff Arlie Johnston said Edwards was stopped at a roadblock and offered no resistance. Johnston said Edwards told them he stole a pickup truck in Liberal and drove it to Kismet, where he stole the car he was driving when stopped at the roadblock.

It's lonely living in museum mansion

WOBURN, England (AP) — "I'm my own jailer," laments Lady Tavistock, bemoaning her life at Woburn Abbey, one of Britain's stateliest — and most expensive — homes.

"It's like living in a museum," the 37-year-old former society beauty complained in an interview. "There are 42 antique shops, five restaurants, a golf course, and a 400-acre game park."

"To be made a prisoner of inheritance is very cruel," said the marchioness, who has resided at Woburn Abbey, about 40 miles northwest of London, since 1974.

"I never wanted to live here," she explained to Press Association, a British domestic news service. "It is such an enormous strain on the family and the children."

An estimated one million visitors a year come to see the mansion and the game park located on the estate's 3,000 acres. The mansion, stables and gardens alone cover 42 acres.

Lady Tavistock says she was "imprisoned" by the decision of her father-in-law, the Duke of Bedford, to leave Britain with his third wife, French-born Nicole, and take up residence in Paris.

With that move, Woburn Abbey fell into the hands of the duke's eldest son, her husband Robin, the Marquis of Tavistock, a successful, Harvard-educated businessman.

Factors improve designs

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Arnold Kanarick once gave a speech on "What's a Nice Psychologist Like You Doing in a Job Like This?"

It's a fair question. In Europe his field is called ergonomics. In the United States, human factors engineering. On both continents, the field is so little known, he admits, that "when strangers ask me what I do I deliver a 30-minute lecture."

At Honeywell's Man-Machine Sciences Group here, Dr. Kanarick supervises an array of projects, the most recent ones including:

—How much new visual and auditory information can an airplane pilot process without suffering "overload?"

—Development of a "vision tester" for drivers that can test eyesight nine ways in minutes.

—What are the most effective colors for the indicators on a plane's display panel?

"What we try to do is improve the interaction between human beings and machines," the psychologist says. "The machine population is increasing even faster than the human population. Improving the interaction between them becomes more crucial every year."

Human factors engineering got its start during World War II when substantial numbers of people began to interact with genuinely complex machines, Kanarick explains.

"Airplanes are the principal example," he says. "One out of a hundred was crashing during pilot training. A terrible percentage. So people started asking: was it human or machine error?

"It turned out to be neither. It was human-machine error. The pilots were fine and the planes were fine; they just didn't work well together. The aircraft was designed for convenience from an engineering standpoint, not the pilot's. For example, the control knobs all were the same. Once they were redesigned — giving each knob a different shape so the pilot could tell just by touching what function it performed — the number of crashes diminished."

Since then, human factors engineering has expanded into scores of other areas.

DEAR ABBY

Helper softens cynic's heart

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: To all those cynics who say that everyone is out for himself, I would like to relate the following incident:

Over the Thanksgiving holiday I visited some out-of-state friends. At the airport for my flight home, the limousine driver dropped me off at the wrong airline entrance, which was a long walk from the right airline. I had three heavy suitcases and I was getting very, very tired. I paused for a moment to adjust my suitcases when a young man about my age (27 or 28) came along, took the two heaviest ones and asked, "Where to?"

I told him, but in my cynical heart, Abby, I kept praying that he didn't run off with my suitcases.

We chatted as we walked, and he told me that in his spare time he comes to the airport just to help people. I must admit that I became a bit suspicious. After all, how many people do you find today who do that kind of thing?

When we reached my gate, he set my suitcases down, and said cheerily, "Have a nice flight." Then he quickly walked off before I even had the time to say, "Thank you."

When it finally dawned on me that all this fellow wanted was to help people, I felt ashamed of myself for being suspicious.

Abby, I'm not so naive as to think that everyone who does something for others does it out of the goodness of his heart, but it's nice to know that there are still some people in the world who aren't out only for themselves. — —MANCHESTER, N.H.

DEAR MANCHESTER: I don't want to discourage good deeds, but Good Samaritans who make a habit of hanging around airports to "help" people could find themselves in trouble.

For example, say some grateful traveler forces a dollar or two on Good Samaritan; he (Good Sam) is in violation of working at the airport without a license or union membership, for which skycaps pay a pretty penny. Also, whether a Good Samaritan helps people for fun or profit, in effect he's competing with those who "help" people for a living.

DEAR ABBY: Recently there have been letters in your column from tall people who resented having strangers mention their height.

I had a gentleman friend who was 6 feet 7, and when someone would ask him how tall he was, he'd say, "I'm 5 feet, 19 inches."

One woman who was told that said, "Good heavens, I could have sworn you were over six feet tall!" — —A.B. IN ESTERO, FLA.

DEAR A.B.: Thanks for giving my tall readers a short course in how to handle that rude question.

Decision at birth affects future sex life

The Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS — The time that it takes a doctor to tell a newborn baby's sex can be the most important few seconds in the baby's entire life.

For the vast majority of babies born each year, a fast look is all that's needed to announce to the world: "It's a boy," or "It's a girl."

But for about one in every 3,000 births — or approximately 1,000 babies a year in the United States — the determination may be more difficult. These are the babies who for a variety of reasons have what doctors call ambiguous genitalia.

When the external sex organs do not clearly identify the infant's sex, what the doctor does next set the course for the infant's future.

Dr. William A. Van Niekerk, a South African obstetrician who has the largest number of "half-man, half-woman" cases in the world is speaking this week at the Obstetrical and Gynecological Assembly of Southern California here.

"When a baby is born, the first things the parents and relatives want to know are its sex and weight. If there is any abnormality of the external sex organs," Van Niekerk said, "the doctor must know what to tell them immediately.

"For the doctor to say, 'I don't know yet' or 'I'm not sure,' will be very traumatic to the parents and ultimately to the baby. The father and the mother should have no doubts that they have a boy or a girl," he said.

A clear-cut sex announcement is needed, he said, because of the great importance — that "the sex of rearing" plays in forming the child's own sense of sexual identity.

Whether the child is treated as a boy or a as a girl during the first four years of life is the most important factor in determining whether he or she thinks of him or herself as male or female, according to Van Niekerk.

The sex of rearing, he said, is more important than whether such a child has testes or ovaries or whether the chromosome makeup is that of male (XY) or female (XX).

Van Niekerk, who is chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Stellenbosch in Tygerberg, South Africa, said the size of the visible genitals is the key to making the crucial determination while still in the delivery room.

"If it's small, say it's female. If in doubt, say it's female," the physician said.

He said his reason for selecting female in doubtful cases is because the size of a penis cannot be increased by surgery or any other means but it is possible, at an appropriate time later in the child's life, to form a vagina.

"If there is any uncertainty about the baby's eventual ability to perform sexually, it would be (a serious mistake) to call it a male," he said.

In Van Niekerk's view, a "male" who is incapable of funcitoning biologically as a male might be better off functioning as a female, even if by other standards — such as the presence of the XY chromosomes — he might be judged male.

Marathons won't let lady runner compete

By HANK WELSCH
Copley News Service

The year was 1971 and the Australian national championship marathon race was nearing.

To qualify for the event a runner had to have covered the 26-mile distance and equaled or bettered a time standard of two hours and 50 minutes.

Coach pred Warwick was on the phone to officials to see about entering an athlete who had trained with him and met the time standard.

"I know what you're calling about and the answer is no before you even ask the question," was the meet official's opening line to Warwick.

"What if we came to the starting line and took off a minute later than the rest of the field?" Warwick countered, hoping to strike a compromise.

"I'll personally see to it that the timers ignore her at every point on the course," the official told Warwick.

That was the problem. Warwick's protege was a woman, Adrienne Beames.

And even though she had at that time run the world's fastest marathon for a woman and become the first member of her sex to complete the race in under three hours, the national championship was for males only.

"They're just now agreeing to let women run with men in marathons in Australia," Beames said. "But the women's track association doesn't recognize the longer distance runs even yet.

"In fact you can get into a lot of trouble with them by running in men's races."

Beames has run two marathons in her lifetime and each time with success.

The first was in August of 1971 when she broke the three-hour barrier for the first time. The second was at the Fiesta Bowl, where her time of 2 hours, 46 minutes and 25 seconds broke the course record for women.

"That time was really nothing compared to what we had hoped for," says Warwick. "But it was very fast considering the conditions."

"We thought it would be cool for the race, but it was a very hot day," Beames says. "Everyone ran much slower times than they had before..

"We had hoped to get in the two hour and 30 minute range and maybe set the world record."

It wouldn't be the first time she had the best mark in the world event.

In a 12-month period from 1971 through 1972, Warwick relates, Beames set 13 world records at distance from a mile (4:28 which would still rank close to the current U.S. record) to 16 miles and at 3,000 to 10,000 meters.

One of the disadvantages of being a female distance runner is that there is little Olympic incentive. The longest women's race on the Olympic Games list is 1,500-meters, the metric mile.

There is no possibility of adding a longer race before 1984. Even so, Beames was one of Australia's top Olympic hopes in 1972, having run 4:10.2. She planned to run in the world cross country championships in England, compete in several invitational meets in Europe, and finally at the Olympics that summer in Munich, Germany.

Apparently the United States isn't the only country, however, where a sport's bureaucracy can sometimes trip up an athlete.

Illegal midwifery flourishes in Ozarks

DONIPHAN, Mo. (AP)—Mau Blossom, a California expatriate with a penchant for wearing suspenders, has become an unlikely feminist symbol in this scrabbly Ozark hill country, following her arrest for delivering babies. Ms. Blossom is a midwife, a profession older than the Bible and once commonly practiced in the rugged Ozarks.

For almost four years she operated the Golden Light Birthing Service for women who wished to deliver at home or who couldn't afford to pay a doctor. She said it wasn't unusual for her to accept vegetables or a cord of firewood as payment.

All went well until that day in December when she was arrested and charged with practicing medicine illegally. She goes on trial later this month, and prosecutors admit they might not be able to find a jury willing to convict her.

"There's a strong tradition down here of helping yourself," said Ripley County Prosecutor James Hall. "A jury is just liable to say that it's your right to go to a midwife—or even to a witchdoctor—if you want."

Ms. Blossom has received messages of support from various feminist groups around the country, and her legal expenses are being underwritten by the National Midwives' Association, which views the upcoming legal battle as a test case.

Sheri Daniels of El Paso, Texas, a spokeswoman for the group, says that 12 states currently license midwives. Missouri hasn't since 1959, and after a year-long investigation by the state Board of Registration for the Healing Arts, Ms. Blossom was charged with illegally aiding in the delivery of two children, a misdemeanor.

Three Midland secretaries attending directors' confab

BEAUMONT — Three Midland Legal Secretaries members are in this city attending a meeting of chapter governors and other representatives of the Texas Association of Legal Secretaries. The board of directors meeting, hosted by the Beaumont Legal Secretaries Association, will conclude Sunday.

Attending from Midland are Governor Novilla Anderson, President Wilma Wheat and Pat Kinnison, TALS second vice president.

Elinor Stoffer, PLS, TALS president of Port Arthur, will preside at all business sessions. Scheduled events include two workshops Saturday entitled "Life Positions" and Human Relationship Skills." A buffet breakfast on Sunday morning will conclude the activities.

Midland Legal Secretaries Association will be the host city the TALS 1978 convention May 4-7. Mrs. Anderson is the convention chairman.

Additional information on the convention can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Wheat, public relations chairman of the MLSA, at 915-683-3351.

Cassini latecomer to designing furnishings

By DORIS HERZIG
Newsday

NEW YORK — Oleg Cassini was perched on a leather sofa, one of the few furnishings in his spectacular living room that do not date from the 15th or 16th centuries. Behind him two suits of armor stood guard near an array of arched, leaded, stained glass windows. In front of him hung four boldly colored heraldic banners.

Surrounded by such symbols of the aristocracy, Cassini, a former count who had to give up his European title to become an American citizen, said, "I consider myself very liberal. I am not a snob."

His home — obviously selected and furnished to proclaim his aristocratic heritage — was planned to recreate a familiar atmosphere, he explained. "This is a typical 15th-century Renaissance Italian house," the dapper, white-haired designer said. "I lived all my early life in Florence, and that part of history is the one I relate to."

Born in Paris, the son of an Italian countess and a Russian count, he was brought up in Florence, a city known as "the jewel of the Italian Renaissance." He studied law there. Before coming to the United States in 1936, he had "already made the transition" from law to design, he said, working in Paris and Rome. He chose his mother's family name, because it was easier for Americans to pronounce and spell than his father's, Loiewski.

And by 1961, Cassini was so well-known as an American designer that Jacqueline Kennedy, getting ready to move into the White House, responded to critics of her French clothes by naming him her personal couturier. He designed the bulk of her wardrobe when she was first lady.

Although he had been among the first women's fashion designers to branch out into menswear and other products, he is a latecomer to home furnishings. "I think I am the last of the big-name designers to go into sheets," he said. He is also the latest — though undoubtedly not the last — fashion designer to put his name on carpeting, a field that has just begun to twinkle with names of haute couture stars.

There are Cassini sheets on his bed, an intricately carved, 15th-century Italian four-poster, but there are no Cassini carpets on his floors. His carpets for Galaxy Carpet Mills were introduced at trade shows last month, and the small samples prepared for showroom displays would look like handkerchiefs in his 75-foot-living room, with its 30-foot-high arched ceiling.

Even in Manhattan's elite Gramercy Park area, his town house, wedged into an East 19th Street block noted for its architectural mix, is distinctive.

Texas Electric Service Co. will spend $222 million on construction during 1978, reducing its dependence on natural gas by building lignite-fired power plants and nuclear-fueled plants, such as this one at Comanche Peak near Glen Rose.

$222 million budgeted for TESCO construction

Texas Electric Service Co. will spend $222 million on construction in 1978, with most of the money going to the company's fuel-changing program, TESCO President Bill Marquardt announced late Thursday.

Texas Electric is building generating plants that use lignite and nuclear fuels in order to reduce dependence on natural gas and oil.

"We spent more on construction during the last two years than we did during the entire decade of the 1960s, but these lignite and nuclear plants will ensure a dependable supply of energy for our customers," Marquardt said.

Texas Electric and its sister companies, Texas Power & Light and Dallas Power & Light, are building a nuclear-powered generating plant near Glen. Rose and five lignite-fired units at three sites in East Texas.

Two of the lignite-fired units, one near Henderson and one near Mount Pleasant, will begin operation this spring.

"In addition to providing dependable energy, these new lignite plants are saving our customers money. By using lignite instead of market-priced natural gas, we saved our customers more than $50 million in 1977," Marquardt said.

Ruling against Bell reversed

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — The 11th Court of Civil Appeals today reversed a lower court decision ordering Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to pay fired executive James Ashley and his wife, Bonnie, $1 million in a privacy invasion suit.

The appeals court rendered a verdict in favor of the telephone company, nullifying the million-dollar award recommended by a trial jury in San Antonio Dec. 17, 1976.

Ashley, dismissed by the telephone company from his $55,000 a year post on Oct. 31, 1974, charged Bell invaded his privacy by tapping his home telephone. Ashley alleged the wiretapping followed his filing of a $29 million suit against the company after his dismissal.

The appeals court ruling means Ashley's lawyers now have 15 days to ask for a rehearing. If that is refused, Ashley could ask the Texas Supreme Court to overrule the appeals court.

The appeals court ruled the trial court verdict in favor of Ashley was not supported by evidence introduced during three weeks of testimony in December 1976.

C.L. Todd, Southwestern Bell vice president for San Antonio, stated after the ruling today:

"We do not wiretap and we never have wiretapped. We are naturally pleased the appellate court apparently supports our decision that no evidence whatsoever was presented in the trial to show that any wiretapping had taken place."

Drops don't help

Dear Dr. Solomon: Those eye drops are supposed to make your eyes look brighter and whiter. Do you think they are a good idea? My eyes get bloodshot from the overhead lights in the office.—Rosie C.

Dear Rosie: Let me pass along a few words of caution I happened to come across the other day. They are from Dr. Joseph A.C. Wadsworth, who is head of ophthalmology at Duke University. He says that the kind of drops you mention probably work by shrinking swollen blood vessels in the white of the eye. After their effect wears off, however, your eyes may end up being redder than they were at first. If you use "vasoconstricting" drops often, Dr. Wadsworth says, the tiny blood vessels may lose their ability to contract normally, and chronic redness results.

If you just want something to rinse your eyes with, Dr. Wadsworth advises a teaspoon of boric acid in a pint of lukewarm water.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am concerned about all this strenuous exercise so many young women go in for. I heard, for instance, that girl athletes often miss their periods. If this is true, would there be any lasting adverse effect?—Wilma V.

Dear Wilma: The best information on this that I have seen has been gathered by Professor Ken Foreman who coaches at Seattle Pacific College. He has found that long-distance running does affect menstrual cycles—one very zealous competitor told him she had not menstruated in six months. Cross-country skiers also have this trouble. But other sports such as volleyball and basketball do not seem to make any difference.

Once a woman with irregular cycles reduces her mileage, Professor Foreman says, she reverts back to normal. He has found that it is the women who run about 80 miles a week who have a problem with missed periods. Those who average around 60 miles a week usually have regular cycles.

Incidentally, one interesting point made by Dr. Harmon Brown of California State University at Hayward is that there seems to be a connection between menstruation and the percentage of body fat—which is greatly depleted in long-distance running. He is looking into this, along with the possibility that running may affect fertility. One long-distances runner who was unable to become pregnant while she was in training did so immediately once she quit.

Concern grows over alcohol content of foods, medicines

By PENNY GIRARD
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — It was in the fall of 1976 that the attractively wrapped little Babarum cakes first appeared on California candy counters, tempting hungry school children looking for snacks.

Along with several other states, California had been targeted as a test market for the imported Italian chocolate-covered mini-cakes that were selling for about a quarter each.

A number of children began buying the cakes repeatedly and touting them to friends after discovering that they could get some of the same kick from them that older folks appeared to get from liquor. There was at least one report of a child who consumed more than a dozen cakes and then exhibited signs of drunkenness.

When Assemblywoman Leona Egeland's then 10-year-old daughter brought one of the rum-soaked cakes home, it was enough to start the wheels going on legislation to take such products out of the hands of the young.

It became a misdemeanor in California to give anyone under the age of 21 any candy, cookies, cake or chewing gum containing more than 2 percent alcohol.

In the case of the Babarum cakes, the state Department of Health said several cakes contained the equivalent of an ounce of straight 80-proof rum. An alalysis of the cakes also showed that a child weighing 50 pounds would have to eat only two and a half cakes to get the same impact that an adult who ate six Babarum cakes would have.

"We see the law as a deterrent to keep children from becoming alcoholics," said Bert Barker, legislative assistant to Egeland.

The California law, the first of its kind according to Barker, underscores the public's increasing awareness and concern about the amount of alcohol routinely added to foods and patent medicines now on the market.

In response to California's concern about the Babarum cakes, the Food and Drug Administration issued an "import alert" last December to its field offices classifying these products as adulterated foods because they violated federal law. The law forbids sales of candy products containing more than 0.5 percent alcohol.

Generally, for most food products, which could include items like brandied fruits and other gourmet items, the FDA requires only that the products be properly labeled with their ingredients. It does not set alcohol content limits.

"We do get a number of complaints about these products," said Taylor Quinn, associate director for compliance for the agency's Bureau of Foods. He also noted in an interview that the agency receives complaints from people who would like to be able to buy liquid-center chocolates that contain liquor and are available outside the United States.

Some of these candies make their way across U.S. borders, usually via travelers, but FDA officials see no serious threat of abuse. "We view ourselves as setting the speed limit," said Quinn. "That doesn't mean somebody isn't going to speed."

A more pressing issue for the agency currently is its worry about birth defects which could be caused if pregnant women have as few as two cocktails a day. The agency is working with the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms on a product warning.

FDA now has jurisdiction over food products containing up to 7.7 percent alcohol, and the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol jurisdiction over items containing more than this. FDA's Quinn said, however, that the agency is now looking into some low alcohol content wines and drinks to see if tougher controls may be necessary.

Routine use of alcohol to lace common medicinal products and tranquilizing health tonics is not new. Such products as Vitalong and Hadacol enjoyed lengthy and successful lives with their sherry wine base.

Richard Penna, a pharmacist and the associate executive director for professional affairs of the American Pharmaceutical Association remembers when he used to sell Hadacol by the quart to his pharmacy customers. Penna also recalled that during World War II, when alcohol was hard to get, people turned to such plentiful substitutes as vanilla and other extracts, which essentially are natural flavors soaked in alcohol.

Still, the easily triggered concern over ready access to liquor and other products containing alcohol for the unsuspecting, the young, or recovering alcoholics, is evidenced by the barrage of criticism that television personality Betty Furness ran into recently when, as part of a story she was filming, she served teen-agers in a suburban New York City school a 30-proof strawberry-flavored drink produced by Heublein, Inc.

At times, when liquor, beer, or wine is not available, or for a fad, some youthful hard core drinkers have turned to any number of products containing alcohol, from cough syrups to gasoline.

A brief check of some cough products on drugstore shelves showed the following labeled alcohol content: NyQuil, 25 percent alcohol; Vicks 44 Effective Strength cough syrup, 10 percent; Vicks cough syrup, 5 percent; Pertussin cough syrup, 9.5 percent; and Robitussin, 3.5 percent.

Dr. Charlotte Catz, a pediatric medical officer at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, is concerned about the alcohol content of routine medicines that may be given to young children.

"A lot of children develop a sweet tooth when they're young," Dr. Catz said, "so it's also possible that others might develop an alcoholic one."

She said teen-age alcohol abuse may be deemed less serious by parents who are terrified by drug abuse and seem almost relieved when their children turn to alcohol instead.

Alcohol is used in such items as cough syrups and sedative products for a number of reasons ranging from flavor additive to a solvent for mixing other ingredients into a clear solution.

While the Food and Drug Administration has issued no ruling, a number of states have acted to regulate such former over-the-counter products as elixir of turpin hydrate, a cough remedy containing more than 20 percent alcohol. In some states turpin hydrate requires a prescription.

"It's too bad that had to be done, because it denied the public a very effective and inexpensive non-prescription cough remedy," said pharmacist Penna. "But people were walking from drugstore to drugstore and having parties.

Odessan treated, released

Robert V. Bernard, 29, of Odessa, was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital at 2:30 a.m. today, after his 1975 Chevrolet pickup truck ran into a ditch and overturned in the 4700 block of U.S. Highway 80 West.

According to Midland police reports, Bernard was going west on U. S. Highway 80 when the accident occured. Police said the pickup was totally destoryed.

Suspect in jail

Joe Cecil Lair, 21, remains in city jail today after being charged in the armed robbery of the Best Western Motel on Interstate 20, just south of the city, on Feb. 7.

Lair was arrested Wednesday on information supplied Midland police by undisclosed sources. Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set $25,000 bond on Lair Thursday.

A clerk at the motel told investigating officers that a man using a handgun took approximately $300 from the motel in the robbery.

Bus hijack shooting may cost driver job

DALLAS (AP) — Officials say a young Dallas bus driver faces possible loss of his job for carrying the pistol he used to shoot a Nigerian national who allegedly comandeered a bus and three passengers with a weapon that turned out to be a toy pistol.

Osogie Omoredioion, a 24-year-old car wash attendant who has used the name Tony Johnson, remained in serious condition early today with a gunshot wound to the neck. Police said he faces four counts of aggravated kidnapping.

Kenneth Earl Cobb, 22, a Dallas Transit Authority driver for three months, grabbed his pistol and shot the alleged hijacker Thursday afternoon after the man had held the bus for about 45 minutes.

Cobb was illegally carrying the pistol, but police spokesman Ed Spencer said, "The department has no intention of filing any charges on the bus driver. We will turn our investigation over to the district attorney's office."

Jerry Johnson, DTA director of marketing, said it is against regulations for a bus driver to carry a weapon. "The matter will have to be taken under advisement," added Johnson, who said "it is conceivable" that Cobb could be fired for carrying the pistol.

Cobb and the three passengers were unhurt.

Police remained mystified about the man's motive in the incident. Cobb said the man told him about 2 p.m. that he'd announce at 4 p.m. why he had comandeered the bus. Cobb shot him at 2:35 p.m.

"We don't really know what to call it. It is bizarre," said Spencer. "The suspect never said what he wanted."

"What his motive was, he was going to tell us at 4 o'clock," said Police Lt. Melvin Southall. "He didn't make it."

Cobb told officers that when Omoredioion was distracted while the passengers were allowed to leave, he pulled a .38 caliber pistol he was carrying beneath his coat and shot the alleged hijacker once in the neck.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the construction of approximately 1,050 lineal feet of concrete curb and gutter, 2,600 square yards of 8" caliche base with 2" HMAC surfacing and pipe culvert will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until 2:30 p.m. on the 6th day of March, 1978, and publicly opened and read aloud at 3:00 p.m. on the same day.

Any bid received after closing time as stated above will be returned unopened.

Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked "Proposal for Project 154."

Complete copies of plans, specifications and contract documents may be examined and/or obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, Midland, Texas.

A bid bond or proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, hereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalities, to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications, and to accept what in the judgment of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantageous bid.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Art. 5421q, V.A.T.S., notice is hereby given to the City of Midland Parks Department and the general public of a public hearing to be held on the 28th day of February, 1978, at 5:00 o'clock p.m. in the City Council Chamber at 300 N. Loraine St. in the City of Midland, Texas, for the following purpose:

The City Council of the City of Midland is contemplating the use of Block 23 of the West End Addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas, commonly known as "Crier Park" for the site of a combination park and Central Fire Station. This property is bounded on the north by Texas Avenue; on the east by North "H" Street; on the south by Wall Avenue; and on the west by North "I" Street.

The proposed program or project is described as follows:

The new central station for the Midland Fire Department will be a one-story building of 20,000 square feet which together with required parking and driveways will occupy approximately two-thirds of the site now used as Crier Park. The building will be situated in the southern portion of the lot facing Wall Avenue with the majority of parking in front. There will be additional parking to the side facing "I" Street and the fire truck driveways will exit both ways from the building onto "H" and "I" Streets.

To the rear of the building facing Texas Avenue will be a landscaped park area approximately one-third of the lot in depth, and occupying the entire block front along Texas Avenue. This park is designed with sidewalks, trees, benches, a playing field, and appropriate landscaping.

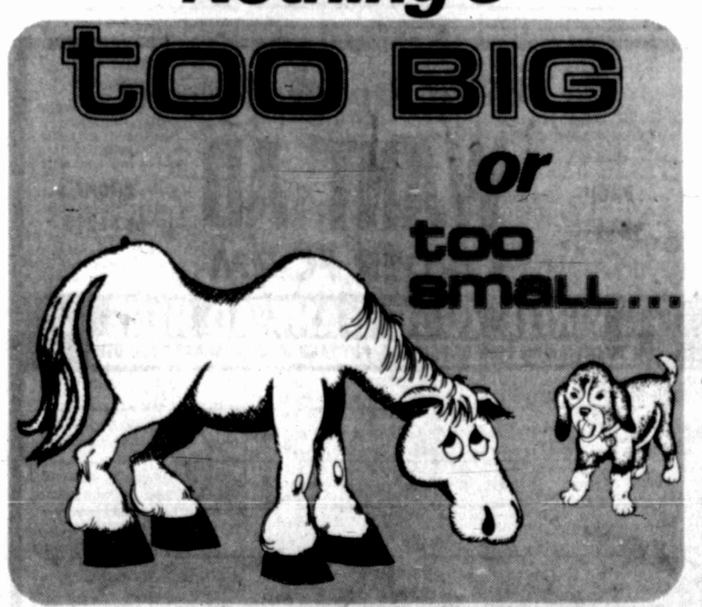

An Earth Berm will be constructed against the rear portion of the Fire Station itself to provide visual and sound relief from the station activities.

The park will provide an area approximately 90 feet by 300 feet which could be used for outdoor activities of all sorts from jogging to concerts, and is designed to accommodate the City Christmas tree.

The public hearing is to assist the City Council in determining whether or not (1) there is no feasible and prudent alternative to the use or taking of such land for the above described project, and, (2) such program or project includes all reasonable planning to minimize harm to such land as a park or recreation area resulting from such use or taking.

Why can't Ali die with a little dignity?

I can think of nothing quite so sad as watching a person suffer through the disparagement of a slow death. They lie there helpless and wasting away, stripped of perhaps man's greatest possession — his pride — and desiring only to leave this world with at least a small amount of dignity.

And so it was with Muhammad Ali Wednesday night. This once great champion, who many believe to be the finest boxer to ever lace on a pair of gloves, died a slow and undignified death on the floor of a Las Vegas gambling hall, his pride destroyed by the powerful punches of a young man who once idolized him.

Today, 24-year-old Leon Spinks, an ex-marine sergeant who trains on beer and eggs, is the new heavyweight champion of the world. And Ali, that once splendid fighting machine who believed he could beat any opponent in existence including age, becomes just another in a long line of great athletes who didn't know when to quit.

It's so sad to see a champion, an athlete of whom perfection has so long been a constant, struggle when it is perfectly clear to everyone but himself that his talents are eroding. It's like Van Gogh trying desparately to paint yet one more masterpiece even though he's got arthritis in both his hands. Their attempts to prove they "still have what it takes" are gallant, but they do nothing except tarnish a reputation that was built on a career of excellence.

AND YET, there are so few champions who have the intelligence and sense to realize when to call it quits. Jimmy Brown was one. John Havlicek, when he retires this spring, will be another. And even Havlicek waited one year too long.

The list of the great ones who demeaned themselves and their splendid achievements by staying around when their best was behind them is long and star-studded. Off the top of my head I can think of Joe Louis, Willie Mays, Mickey Mantle, Floyd Patterson and Johnny Unitas.

And Muhammad Ali.

ACCORDING TO Ali's doctor, Ferdie Pacheco, the 36-year-old fighter's best came to an end on that fall night in 1976 in Yankee Stadium against Ken Norton.

"That was the night Ali stopped being Ali," Pacheco wrote in his book "Fight Doctor." "It was the night all fighters dread. The night when the body can no longer do what the mind dictates. When thoughts cannot be translated into instant action, when reflexes fail and the body begins to feel the punishment and exhaustion."

Pacheco knew it, but Ali didn't. He refused to quit.

The erosion of Ali's once so beautiful boxing skills have been quite obvious since that Norton fight. He can still dance like only Ali can dance. But the music doesn't play so often anymore. He still throws the quickest jabs of any fighter in the game. But his punches don't have the sting they once had. And as Spinks proved Wednesday night, Ali's 36-year-old body can't take the same punishment it used to handle three or four years ago.

YOU ALMOST sensed Ali knew what fate was awaiting him against Spinks. He prepared for this fight almost like a condemned man awaiting the gallows. The "Louisville Lip" trained in silence. He stayed away from the press. And he made no predictions. This one was all business.

That 15th round will go down as a classic. There was Ali, with his back to the wall, hitting Spinks with everything he had left in his tired body.

I remember what Ali's friend John Marshall told me last year. "Ali is a man who has continually gone against the norm," he explained, "and he has the great ability to turn what appears to be absolute disaster into total victory."

But not Wednesday. Spinks took it all from the champ and then gave some. This kid from the St. Louis ghetto who grew up on peanut butter and cornbread for supper every night, stood there toe-to-toe with Ali and slugged it out.

The sad part of it all is that Ali still may not retire. After the fight, he talked of coming back. Of becoming the first fighter in history to win the title three different times. Talk like that is unfortunate. Because every time Ali steps into the ring, the legend will become just a little bit more tarnished. And dying with dignity will become a little bit more difficult.

Ex-Viking aide gets Bears job

CHICAGO (AP) — Neill Armstrong, defensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings the last eight seasons, is the new head coach of the Chicago Bears.

"The ultimate goal is to win," said Armstrong, who was reached at his home in Minneapolis after he was named Thursday night. "It takes people to win.

"I've coached in all phases of the game and I've coached on offense," said Armstrong, in an attempt to prove that he is more than merely a defensive coach.

ARMSTRONG'S SELECTION was announced by Jim Finks, vice president and general manager of the Bears.

Armstrong, 51, has been in the National Football League for 13 years and becomes the ninth head coach of the Bears. He succeeds Jack Pardee, who left the team after three years last month to take over the Washington Redskins.

The Bears called a news conference for today to introduce Armstrong, who played for Oklahoma State from 1947-1951 when the team won 21 straight games and was a member of the Philadelphia Eagles as a receiver and a defensive back.

ARMSTRONG COMPLETED his playing career with Winnipeg of the Canadian League in 1954 and spent seven years as an assistant with Oklahoma A&M.

He served as an assistant coach with Houston from 1962- 1963 and head coach of the Edmonton Eskimos from 1964- 1969. Edmonton three times advanced to the finals of the Canadian League before Armstrong joined the Vikings in 1970.

Armstrong's selection was considered a surprise although his name had come up in previous speculation along with numerous other coaches.

HIS SELECTION was yet another unexpected move by Finks, who was unavailable for comment after the Bears' office announced the selection of Armstrong.

Pardee's departure from the Bears was a stunning blow to Finks, who came to the Bears from the Vikings. Finks' initial move after one season at the Bears' helm was to fire Abe Gibron.

Finks then hired Pardee, who had done an excellent job with the Florida Blazers of the now-defunct World Football League. Finks felt Pardee was set to sign another contract during the past season but Pardee kept putting the Bears off and when George Allen was fired as Washington coach, Pardee requested permission to talk to the Redskins. Finks then announced that Pardee had resigned as coach of the Bears.

FOR THE past month there was speculation as to who would succeed Pardee. Most prominently mentioned was Bill Walsh, former assistant with the Cincinnati Bengals who last season coached at Stanford.

Armstrong said he had his first interview with Finks Thursday and after getting the job, he spoke with Minnesota Coach Bud Grant.

Palmer struggling

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Vaughan Somers, a little known player from the Australian state of Queensland, blitzed his way to the lead in the $50,000 Victorian Open Friday with a five-under-par 67.

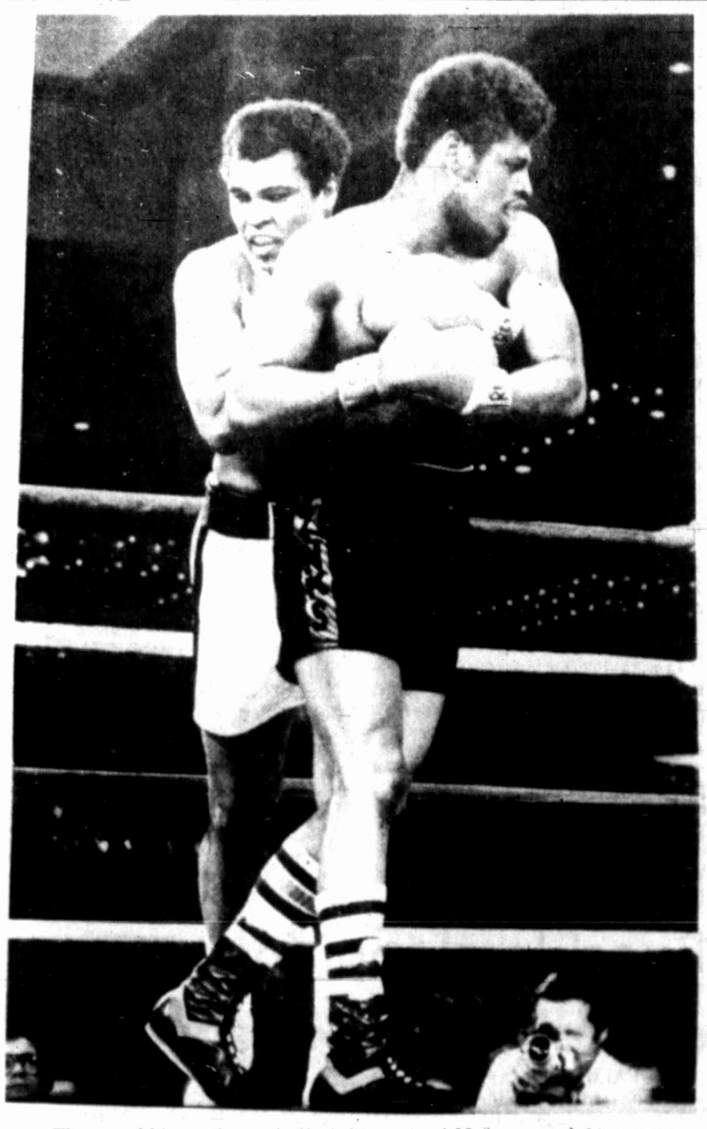

In his wake he left a weary Arnold Palmer struggling to keep up with the leaders and Australian Open winner David Graham fighting to avoid the cut.

Palmer, looking tired, shot a par-72 to add to his opening round of 73 Thursday, putting him eight strokes behind the leader.

Graham came close to dropping out of the competition with a 78 but made the cut by two strokes.

Palmer believed he had wasted nearly 14 shots in the opening two rounds with bad putting.

"I used 18 different putting strokes today and think I will need a 65 tomorrow to get back in the tournament," he said.

They could have danced all night. A tired Muhammad Ali hangs on to challenger Leon Spinks Wednesday night during their title fight in Vegas. "My plan was to wear him out in the early rounds," Ali said after the fight. But in the end, it was the 36-year-old Ali who lost to fatigue. (AP Laserphoto)

Chaps dominate Bulldogs, 75-70

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The Midland College Chaparrals finally ran into a Western Junior College Conference foe that didn't shoot like they were in the NBA, and the result was a 75-70 victory over the Clarendon College Bulldogs.

Even the score is misleading since the Chaps dominated the matchup from start to finish with a swarming defense and an offense that featured a good mixture of outside shooting and inside penetration. The Chaps led by 15 points, 71-56, with 1:58 left in the game, and even though the Bulldogs closed the gap, there was never really any danger of the Chaps dropping this one.

THE CHAPS climbed to 15-14 for the year and 6-10 in conference play to keep hopes alive for a Regional playoff berth. Clarendon is now 13-12 and 7-8 on the year.

"Despite what the paper says, we still have a chance to tie Clarendon for the fifth spot," said Chap coach Jerry Stone. "If we win our last two games against South Plains and NMJC, and Clarendon loses their last two games, we would be tied tor fifth place and that could get us in."

Although the prospects of that are slim, the Chaps seem to be playing much better. They completely dominated the Bulldogs Thursday night in the MC gym.

"We have played good basketball the last four or five outings. The team has really come together. I don't think the Boston Celtics could have beaten Western Texas last Monday the way they shot," Stone said, referring to Monday's loss to league leading Western Texas.

Clarendon, who knocked Odessa College out of the league lead last Monday in a big upset, just couldn't handle the tenacious Chap defense, and never led in the contest.

The Bulldogs started cold, hitting only one of 11 shots to start the game, as the Chaps jumped to an 8-2 lead. After a 33 per cent shooting effort, compared to 53 per cent for the Chaps, Midland held a comfortable 40-27 lead at the half. It was evident that the Chaps were going to put this one away.

Midland's 6-foot-5 postman Rick Hudgins, a sophomore from Fort Worth, had another big night. The big bruiser canned 20 points and had 12 rebounds.

RON JONES, a Stillwater, Okla., product, chipped in with 18 points. Henry White added 12 and Cullen Mayfield contributed 11 points and four steals while Alvin Mayes' 10 points gave the Chaps five men in double figures.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mayes Sr. traveled from Oklahoma City to see their 6-foot-3 son play. Alvin sure didn't disappoint them. He seemed to be the key of the Chaps' offense. He directed the offense with percision, and some of his lob passes from the backcourt to Hudgins inside bordered on the spectacular and produced several easy layups for the Chaps.

Six-foot-eight Frank Hobson was the only Bulldog to give the Chaps much trouble. He scored 19 points. The only other Bulldog in double figures was 6-6½ Tom Rogers with 10.

THE CHAPS took the first lead on an outside bomb by Mayfield and the Bulldogs countered with an offensive rebound by Hobson to knot the score at two. That was all for Clarenden as two bombs by White and another by Jones lifted the margin to 8-2.

The Bulldogs tried despertely to offset their poor shooting percentage in the first half, but they mostly got fouls for their efforts. Guard Dave Anderson and Keith Sawatzky eventually fouled out and three others had four fouls when the game ended. To make matters worse, the Chaps connected on 19 of 25 shots from the free throw line, and that played a big part in the game.

The Chaps close out the home season Monday with a date against South Plains, and Thursday the Chaps end the season on the road against NMJC in Hobbs, N. M.

CHAP CHIRPS: Mayes, Jones and Hudgins will be making their last start for the Chaps Monday at home. Clifford Taylor, the big 6-7½ sophomore from Ft. Worth, is no longer with the team. . .The Chaps will have 10 squad members returning next year. . .Thursday's game was not a good one for referee Jack Ratcliff. He cut his hand on his whistle chain early in the second half. Ratcliff had it taped up and continued to do his duty.

JIM MURRAY

Spinks had Kid Time in his corner

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Jack Dempsey could have told him. Joe Louis knew all about it.

Jim Jeffries found out about it climbing in that hot ring in the gold fields in Nevada in 1910. It was Jack Johnson's turn five years later lying on his back under the pitiless Havana sun.

Joan Crawford faced it when she looked in the mirror one day and a character actress smiled sadly back at her instead of a young dancer. John Barrymore confronted it when he could no longer remember the lines — even when they were Shakespeare's.

Ernest Hemingway learned it when he began to wonder where the verbs went.

Ben Hogan could have told him of the putts that didn't drop, and Arnold Palmer of the shots that have to go around trees instead of over them all of a sudden. Sam Snead could have talked of using a wood where he once drew a 6-iron.

THE BEST of them knew all about it. Ty Cobb suddenly noticing the bag was a yard farther away than it used to be. Joe DiMaggio losing them in the sun all of a sudden. Dizzy Dean's fastball crossing the plate one foot late. Rod Laver afraid to leave the baseline. The Babe unable to get around the fastball any more, Ted Williams, missing a ball he could once read the label on.

Muhammad Ali! Meet the all-time champ, the undefeated, untied, unscored-on Greatest, the most devastating fighter pound for pound, in history, the no-hit pitcher, the unstoppable fullback, the all-star power hitter of them all.

He's patient, cunning. You can't lay a glove on him. He's an outprice. Off the boards. Jimmy the Greek would make him a trillion to one. With no takers. Infinity to one. He's never lost a round, a set, a quarter, or an inning.

He fights dirty. He ties your feet. He holds your hands. He thins your blood. He dopes your thinking. He puts drops in your eyes. No Marquis of Queensberry for this thug. He doesn't need a commission license. He'll get you in an alley, a park, or a bed. Or in center ring at Las Vegas. Behind your back, up in your face, over your head. He'll push you off a building, throw you under a train. He doesn't care how much you scream, or who cries, or how good or how bad you are. You go. Muhammad Ali met the implacable foe. Leon Spinks was just a surrogate.

MUHAMMAD ALI might have been the greatest heavyweight champ who ever lived. This side of Joe Louis, anyway. But, to this foe, Ali was just another collection of capillaries, nerves, ligaments, muscles and fragile organs. Just another 89 cents worth of minerals. Just another bug on the face of a very small planet. Just another of those obsolescent creatures that live their lives in a flash of infinity. Ali was just another pushover to this foe. A Palooka.

Does anyone think Leon Spinks beat Muhammad Ali at Las Vegas Wednesday night? A kid with seven pro fights who drops his hands and leads with his left?

Spinks deserves credit because he looked across the ring and didn't see a god. He saw a tired, fat, slow, bored shell of a god. He saw a man who might be able to withstand ponderous pushes on the ropes by a clumsy, slow-moving behemoth but who could not take the slashing fists of a quick, savage, 24-year-old puncher. Leon Spinks moved in with the confidence of a guy who knows he has his big brother along. Because, in a sense, he did.

LEON SPINKS knew he was not going out there alone. He had somebody to hold the other guy, to put his fingers over his eyes, to tie his shoelaces together. He knew this man could cut and bleed because Leon's invisible ally would hold his head in the cut-and-bleed position a split second longer. He would no longer be able to practice the deft, swift removal from danger at the last precise instant. Leon knew his tricky sidekick would be tying knots in the veins of this champ, and squeezing his lungs with steel gloves in the late rounds.

Leon Spinks is 24 years old. His partner is as old as the world. Kid Time. Working on a string of 40 billion straight knockouts. Defends his title against all comers. Can be kept off with a jab only so long then he moves in for the kill. And it won't be any split decision.

OC, NMMI surprised

Upsets swept across the Western Junior College Conference like a winter northern with all of the first division teams losing with the exception of pace-setting Western Texas College, which was weathered out at Snyder.

New Mexico Junior College handed Odessa College its third straight loss, 100-96, which was the league leader prior to the tailspin.

Frank Phillips beat NMMI, 76-71, and Howard bumped Amarillo, 87-86, in other upsets.

As a result, five teams remained in the running for the fourth and fifth positions in the standings going into last week. Even ninth place Midland College, a 75-70 winner over Clarendon could finish in thr running for a Region V tournament berth.

MC is 6-10 going into the last week and needs victories over South Plains and NMJC to keep alive its hopes, but can catch up only if South Plains, Frank Phillips and Clarendon wind up with 10 losses also.

Bad back doesn't bother race winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Muhrcke retired from the New York City Fire Department four years ago and began collecting an $11,822 annual pension, claiming a back injury. He now has been revealed as the winner of a foot race up 85 flights of stairs in the Empire State building, bad back and all.

The 37-year-old Huntington, N.Y., pensioner won over a field of 13 other marathon runners in Tuesday's contest, climbing 1,575 steps in 12 minutes, 32 seconds.

The Fire Department confirmed that Muhrcke, who joined it in 1962, claimed his injury occurred while fighting a fire. "He applied for and received a three-quarter pay disability pension, which was granted on July 23, 1973," said a department spokesman.

"We are conducting an investigation," said First Deputy Fire Commissioner Stephen Murphy, acting chairman of the department's Pension Fund Board. "The case will be placed on the agenda of our next meeting on Feb. 28 and a determination will be made at that time whether Mr. Muhrcke should be re-examined."

Basin umps set meeting

The Permian Basin Softball Umpires Association will hold their first meeting of the 1978 season on Wednesday, Feb. 22 in the Ready Room of the Texas Electric building. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Anyone interested in becoming an umpire is asked to attend this meeting.

MC net teams swing into spring action

Midland College launches its spring tennis schedule Friday and Saturday with the men's and women's squads competing against New Mexico State and the University of New Mexico at Las Cruces, N.M.

Coach Brian Gilley beefed up his women's squad with a pair of Australian junior players at midterm.

Adding depth are Gerry Sayers and Kathy Bovell, both ranked in the top 10 in Under-19 players in Australia.

MC will play in the McClennan College Tournament at Waco Feb. 23-25 and host the Midland College Invitational Team. Tournament March 3-4

Deep, deep Irish keep on truckin'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tripucka clan was out in full force at Madison Square Garden.

There was Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tripucka and two of their children sitting in the stands. There was Kelly playing for Notre Dame. There was Tracy coaching Fordham and there was T.K. playing for his older brother.

"The Walton Family," Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps called the reunion, chuckling.

But when the game ended Thursday night it wasn't the most together family in the world. Loyalties were divided after Fordham lost to Notre Dame 95-76 — and it was a larger "family" of Notre Dame players that did it.

"I have to believe this is the deepest team in the country," said Tracy Tripucka of the seventh-ranked Fighting Irish. "Maybe not the best team — but certainly the deepest as far as personnel goes."

PHELPS THOUGHT so, too.

"I've never had more depth," Phelps said in between signing autographs and shaking hands in the celebrative Notre Dame locker room. "I've had players with better individual talents. (John Shumate and Adrian Dantley come quickly to mind).

"But I can do more things with this team than any I've had before."

The Irish, playing in the second game of a doubleheader at the Garden after Georgetown edged Manhattan 81-80, had little trouble flicking off Fordham, one of the few easy touches on their brutal schedule.

KELLY TRIPUCKA and Dave Batton each scored 15 points to lead six Notre Dame players in double figures. The Fighting Irish got little resistance from the outclassed Rams, bolting to a 46-34 halftime lead and drawing it out to 75-54 before Phelps called in the reserves with roughly six minutes left.

"I was concerned with stopping their outside shooting," Tripucka said. "I knew Notre Dame would have to have a sub-par shooting night for us to be competitive with them. But, of course they didn't."

What little competition the second game offered, the first game more than made up for.

Georgetown at first didn't live up to its ranking as the nation's No. 18 team and fell behind by 16 points in the first half. The Hoyas were guilty of 18 turnovers and some poor shooting and Coach John Thompson had something to say about that in the locker room at intermission.

"I told my players that I was embarrassed for them," said Thompson. "I told them they were a much better team than they showed in that first half. I told them they just weren't playing ball the way I knew they could. I told them to stop standing around."

THE HOYAS stopped standing around, all right, but it took them nearly eight minutes of the second half before they really got into gear.

Their backcourt tandem of Derrick Jackson and John Duren led a spectacular late rally after Manhattan had forged a 22-point lead, at 64-42. A 22-5 scoring burst in which Jackson and Duren scored nine points apiece keyed the Georgetown comeback and the Hoyas finally won in breathtaking style on Al Dutch's foul shot with two seconds left.

"Even when we had that 22- point lead," said Manhattan Coach Jack Powers, "I was concerned. I felt if we got into foul trouble, we'd really have problems. They had more bodies."

Said Thompson: "My team had a chance to die, but it didn't. They came out of the grave."

IN OTHER games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 Arkansas whipped Southern Methodist 86-75; No. 8 DePaul defeated Wisconsin-Green Bay 55-49; Purdue upset No. 10 Michigan State 99-80 and 13th-ranked Providence edged Jacksonsville 52-50 in overtime.

Ron Brewer scored 23 points and Sidney Moncreif 20 to lead Arkansas past SMU. The Razorbacks never trailed in winning their 25th game in 26 starts.

Dave Corzine scored 12 points and gathered 13 rebounds as DePaul beat Wisconsin-Green Bay. It was the first loss this season for Wisconsin-Green Bay, ranked No. 1 in the NCAA's Division II.

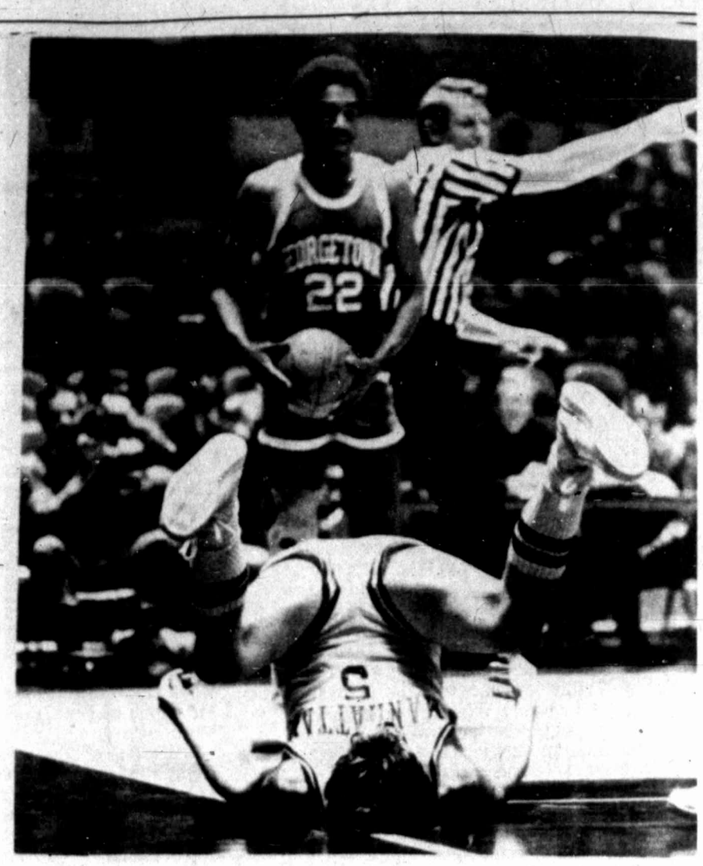

PURDUE SHOCKED Michigan State behind Walter Jordan's 26 points and revived the Boilermakers' hopes for their first Big Ten title in nine years. Michigan State was hurt by early mistakes and never could catch up.

"If there's a better competitor, a better forward in this league than Walter Jordan, I want to see him," said Purdue Coach Fred Schaus. "I thought this was Walter's best all-around game as a Boilermaker, and that's saying something because he has had some great ones."

David Frye hit a 15-foot jump shot with one second left in overtime to boost Providence to a surprisingly tough victory over Jacksonville. The Friars' Bruce Campbell led all scorers with 15 points.

ELSEWHERE, INDIANA beat Ohio State 83-70 behind Wayne Radford's 23 points; Ron Joshua's 18-foot jump shot at the buzzer gave Arizona State a 76-75 decision over Brigham Young; Creighton beat Indiana State 89-57 as John Johnson scored 19 points; Penn State edged West Virginia 76-75 behind Jeff Miller's 31 points and Charlie Brent's 17 led Wichita State to a 64-56 decision over Tulsa.

Also, Chris Potter's 16 points and 16 rebounds paced Holy Cross over New Hampshire 98- 69; Gary Wilson and Milton Huggins each scored 22 points as Southern Illinois trimmed West Texas State 80-61; Dave Baxter's two free throws with 26 seconds left boosted Michigan over Wisconsin 68-66 and Pittsburgh whipped Maryland 89-86 behind Pete Strickland's six points in overtime.

Some people sure have a funny idea of the proper way to play basketball. Manhattan College's Tom Courtney (the one doing the bicycle excercise) lands upside down Thursday night during the Jaspers' game with Georgetown at Madison Square Garden. The Hoyas' Derrick Jackson looks on in disbelief. (AP Laserphoto)

The eyes have it; Doc up by two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bunched field in the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament set sights today on an optometrist who leads his closest competitors by two strokes.

Dr. Gil Morgan, who has postponed a career of looking into eyes to look down the fairways, fired a 5-under-par 66 in the opening round of the tournament and says it might be nine years or so before he stops playing competitive golf.

The 31-year-old eye doctor from Wewoka, Okla., shot seven birdies with putts of up to 30 feet to head 146 rivals in the quest for a $40,000 winner's purse in this 72-hole event at the Riviera Country Club.

DR. MORGAN, winner of the B.C. Open at Endicott, N.Y., last year, banked $104,817 in tournament earnings in 1977 andd admits that's more than he would make any of his first few years as an eye doctor.

"I think I'll continue playing golf until I'm 40 or until I'm not competitive," he said.

On the current situation, he said: "I think this is a course, if conditions stay the same, where it won't take real low numbers to win. After winning last year, I've set my goal on winning multiple tournaments."

He faces tough competition at Los Angeles. Deadlocked at 68 after the first round were Danny Edwards and Forrest Fezler with five more at 69, another five at 70 and yet another five at 71.

A DOZEN were at 72, including Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper and last year's Los Angeles winner, Tom Purtzer, plus Bill Rogers, who captured the Bob Hope tournament just last week.

Winds ranged up to 35 miles an hour for the opening round although skies were sunny and the 7,029-yard Riviera course was drying out from the rains of recent weeks.

"It will get faster as the days go by," Dr. Morgan commented.

The game of the optometrist, who actually hasn't practiced that profession although licensed in both Florida and Oklahoma, came on the greens.

HE STARTED with a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole, dropped from 20 feet at both the third and fifth and then sank from 30 at the sixth. He missed the green at both the fourth and seventh to card bogeys and then had only a 4-foot putt for a birdie at the ninth.

Two more birdie putts dropped from 20 feet at the 10th and 13th and he didn't have a bogey on the back nine to finish 32-34.

Lurking from contending position was Nicklaus. "I was playing better golf than I was scoring," he said.

Ashe looking for groove

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Arthur Ashe's comeback continued Thursday in a $225,000 men's tennis tournament at Mission Hills Country Club.

The 34-year-old Ashe, attempting to find the groove after a year out of competitive tennis, upset sixth-seeded Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., 6-4, 6-1 in a third-round match here.

The unseeded Ashe, of Louisville, Ky., qualified to face unseeded Tom Leonard of Great Britain in today's quarter-finals. Leonard eliminated Ismail El Shafei of Egypt 3-6, 7-6, 7-6 Thursday.

In today's other quarter-finals, top-seeded Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., faces unseeded Peter Fleming of Summit, N.J.; No. 3 Raul Ramirez of Mexico meets fifthseeded Ilie Nastase of Romania and No. 4 Manuel Orantes of Spain faces eighth-seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

The semifinals are scheduled Saturday and the finals Sunday. First prize is worth $35,200.

Mama Spinks worried about Leon's future

By KENNETH DENLINGER
The Washington Post

LAS VEGAS — What his mother once feared would happen has happened to Leon Spinks. He is the heavyweight boxing champion of the world — after only eight pro fights.

"The main things that concerns me," Kay Spinks said not long before her son's stunning upset of Muhammad Ali Wednesday night, "is not the money, but how he takes success. I want him to have the right type of peace of mind."

Spinks, a child of a depressing public-housing project in St. Louis, said he learned to fight "by defending myself, from 9, 10, 11, 12, all the way to 16 I used to get beat up every day. I was pretty quick on my feet."

How fast could he run 100 meters? A man from England wanted to know.

"Two seconds if I was being chased."

IT SEEMS much to early to develop any sort of image of Spinks as champion. His pre-fight goals were modest and his post-fight goals were "to take a boat trip on water" and visit some foreign countries.

"I was raised in a big project, something like 25 buildings 11 stories high," he said. "The buildings started to rot and the plumbing got bad, so people started moving out." Later, the project was torn down.

Of his long-term ambitions, Spinks said a day or so before the Ali fight: "I'd like to get a club of my own. I'd like to be a bartender. Yeah, I'm serious. That shakes you, don't it? I'd like to wait on people. I love to talk to people."

LEON SPINK'S mother had talked of her reluctance to encourage him to fight Ali when it was first proposed and her gradual change in attitude.

"(At first) I thought it was the most terrible thing I ever heard of. I prayed hard. I asked Him to stop it. Muhammad Ali is kinda big to me. I told him (Leon) that I forbid it, but he didn't pay any attention to me," she laughed.

Mrs. Spinks usually may be seen near ringside at Michael's and Leon's fights, clutching a Bible and acting more like a fan than a mother.

"My kids get in the ring and I'm not even here," she said. "I forget people are here. Sometimes I box right along with 'em. I get a chance to holler like I'm 14 or 15 years old.

"I still look at this as a form of entertainment. I told Leon to hold out 'till the very end. I said 'Hang on, Leon, hang on. There's no reason to knock anybody out'."

Buerkle skipping rest of indoor track season

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Buerkle, the world record-holder for the indoor mile, says he has suffered an ankle injury and will skip the remainder of the indoor track season.

The injury is believed to be a stress fracture of the left ankle, but examinations have not been conclusive, Buerkle said Thursday.

"I've seen one of the best orthopedic guys in the country and he's not really sure."

The 30-year-old optical salesman said the injury wasn't serious now, "but it could be serious if I continue to work out on it. If I just take a few weeks off from heavy training it'll be all right."

Buerkle said he expects to return to action with the beginning of the outdoor track season either in Florida or at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia in April.

Gal just wants to make cut

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The goal of Barbara Reidl is a simple one as the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association $60,000 Orange Blossom Classic begins today.

"It's to make the cut," says the 21-year-old blonde amateur.

Miss Reidl, a native of Sydney, Ohio, will be playing her first professional event at the Pasadena Golf and Country Club. She is among only a half-dozen amateurs to make the 54-player field.

For Debbie Austin, who suddenly has done well after eight years of obscurity, her goal is a repeat of last week's victory in the opening 1978 tour event at Kendale Lakes in Miami.

"I can shoot low numbers on this course if I make a few putts," said the West Palm Beach native, who won five tournaments last year.

"But the greens here are hard to read. They've overseeded with rye, and the ball rolls different for some reason."

Reading the greens over the par-72, 6,109-yard course has been the chief obstacle for all players since the Orange Blossom started being played there four years ago.

Judy Rankin won the tourney last year, posting rounds of 69-70-69—208, five shots better than runnerup Joyce Kazmierski and six better than Sandra Palmer.

Practice rounds Thursday were rained out. Tournament officials said the tourney could be extended to Monday, if necessary.

Sports in brief

TENNIS

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. — Top-seeded Brian Gottfried rallied to defeat 11th-seeded Stan Smith 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 in a thirdround match of a $225,000 men's tennis tournament.

Gottfried will face unseeded Peter Fleming in a quarter-final match Friday. Fleming eliminated Tom Gullikson 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 earlier.

In other matches, Harold Solomon lost to Arthur Ashe 6-4, 6-1; Manuel Orantes downed Bob Lutz 6-3, 7-5; No. 4 Raul Ramirez topped ninth-seeded Jaime Fillol 6-4, 6-4; fifth-seeded Ilie Nastase whipped Cliff Richey 6-2, 7-5 and No. 8 Roscoe Tanner nipped Colin Dibley 7-6, 7-6.

GOLF

LOS ANGELES — Dr. Gil Morgan fired his way into the first round lead of the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament with a 5-under-par 66.

Morgan held a two stroke lead over Danny Edwards and Forrest Fezler.

MANILA, Philippines — Veteran Chen Chien-Chung of Taiwan fired a 4-under-par 67 and took the first round lead in the $100,000 Philippine Open.

He was one shot ahead of countrymen Lu Liang-Huan and Chang Chun-Fa, who shared second place with 68's.

GENERAL

SAN DIEGO — Former Columbia All-America quarterback Paul Governali died after a long illness. He was 56.

Governali played professional football for the Boston Yanks of the All-America Conference and the New York Giants of the National Football League.

Don't bury the Boston Celtics yet

By The Associated Press

Don't count the Boston Celtics out of the National Basketball Association playoffs yet.

The Celtics, seemingly out of contention not long ago, suddenly have regrouped, winning six of their last seven games, and are beginning to again put fear into their opposition.

Their latest victory was exceptionally eye-catching, a 98-95 decision Thursday night at Phoenix, where the Suns had won 16 in a row.

"You have to give Boston credit ..." said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod, whose Suns have the league's third best record, 36-18. "They controlled the game for the most part and made the big plays at the right time."

Boston now is 20-31 and has a long way to go to overcome some of the teams ahead of them in the playoff race. But since captain John Havlicek announced his retirement, effective at the end of the season, and Kermit Washington was reinstated following a two-month suspension, the Celtics have played more inspired basketball.

IN OTHER NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers routed the Denver Nuggets 119-87, the Washington Bullets whipped the Buffalo Braves 123-109, and the New Jersey Nets beat the Seattle SuperSonics 101-92.

Dave Bing led the Celtics with 23 points and Dave Cowens sank two free throws with 32 seconds remaining, putting Boston ahead 96-95.

Cavs 119, Nuggets 87

Cleveland took command by outscoring the Nuggets 13-2 during the final 3:45 of the first period for a 27-16 lead. By halftime, the Cavaliers were ahead 58-38 and Denver, the Midwest Division leader, never got closer than 16 points after that.

Jim Chones and Bingo Smith scored 18 points apiece for the Cavs, Austin Carr had 17 and Campy Russell 16, while rookie Anthony Roberts paced Denver with 19.

Bullets 123, Braves 109

"We were doing basketball things that are pretty," Washington Coach Dick Motta said after the Bullets' lopsided victory that avenged a 37-point loss — the worst of the season — to Buffalo in their last meeting.

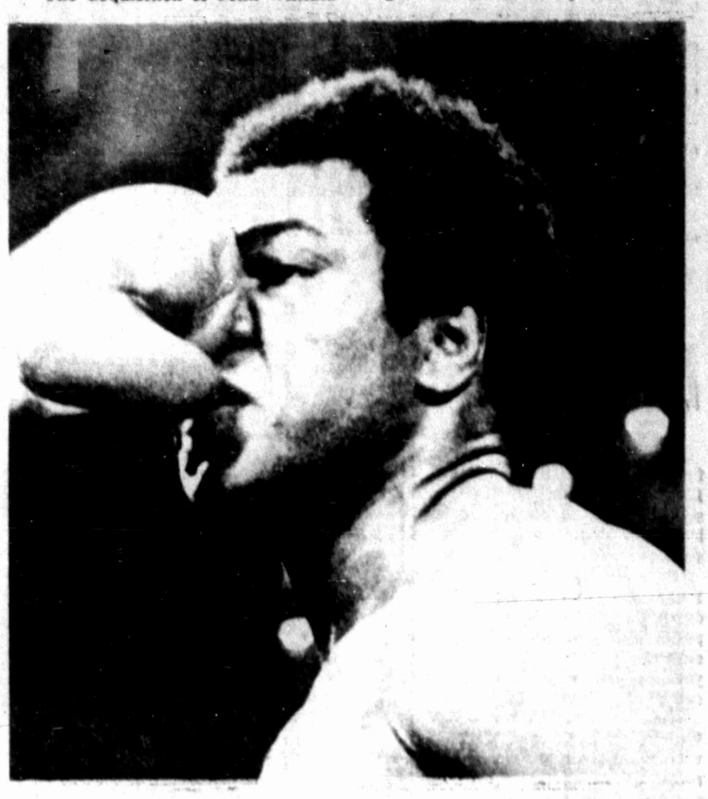

"We were awful ... awful from the start," admitted Braves Coach Cotton Fitzimmons.

Elvin Hayes topped the Bullets with 25 points, Bob Dandridge and Kevin Grevey each had 22, and Wes Unseld scored 14 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Swen Nater led Buffalo with 20 points and 16 rebounds.

Nets 101, Sonics 92

"The acquisition of John Williamson has given the team the confidence it didn't have earlier in the year," said New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery after the Nets — the losingest team in the league — had beaten the Sonics.

Williamson, nicknamed "Super John," lived up to his billing, connecting for 39 points. Kevin Porter chipped in with 23 points and 13 assists for New Jersey, while Gus Williams was high for Seattle with 24 points.

San Diego event lures big names

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Possibly the strongest field of the indoor season competes tonight in the 12th annual San Diego Invitational track and field meet and at least one world record holder thinks she'll better her standard.

"I want to break 2 minutes in the 880 and if I do it anywhere it'll be here," says Mary Decker, now 19 and the former child star of the half-mile.

Four years ago as a tiny 90- pound youngster she set the world indoor mark in the half-mile at 2:02.4 on the same Sports Arena track. "If someone will go out fast against me, I can do it," said Mary, a University of Colorado sophomore.

IN JANUARY, Mary began a comeback after shin splint surgery last summer by running the 1,500 meters in 4:08.9 and the 800 in 2:01.8.

Her old late kick has been replaced by a front-running style. At the Times Invitational two weeks ago in Los Angeles she romped to a world-record 2:23.8 in the 1,000-yard run.

"I think the 1,500 is my best distance for the future," she said recently, "but first I'd like to run the 880 again."

Dick Buerkle, who set the men's world indoor mile mark of 3:54.8 in Maryland last month, has withdrawn. He reportedly suffered a stress fracture of the right foot which he says might sideline him up to four weeks.

JAMES MUNYALA of the University of Texas-El Paso is a last-minute replacement for Buerkle in the mile. He'll line up against Mark Schilling, Jeff Jirele, Steve Scott, Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, John Konigh, Paul Cummings and Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, world record holder over 1,500 meters.

The 2-mile matches Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania, Dick Quax of New Zealand, Kenya's Henry Rono, Nick Rose of Great Britain and Americans Thom Hunt of San Diego, Duncan McDonald and Greg Meyer.

The high jump features the top finishers in the Montreal Olympic games in Jacek Wszola of Poland, Canada's Greg Joy and America's mercurial Dwight Stones.

Mike Tully, world record holder in the pole vault, will test Wladywslaw Kosakiewicz of Poland, who was top rated in 1977, Dan Ripley and Earl Bell.

Ted Williams coming back

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, the erstwhile Splendid Splinter who slugged his way into baseball's Hall of Fame in 19 seasons with the Boston Red Sox, is returning to uniform.

Williams, now 59 and out of baseball since leaving as manager of the Texas Rangers in 1972, will abandon his fishing paradise in Islamorada, Fla., to join the Red Sox March 1 as a batting instructor in spring training.

"Ted misses the game and wants to get back in," Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan said Thursday. "His contract is for more than one year. He'll be with us throughout spring training. Then he'll stay in Winter Haven (Fla.) when the Red Sox leave to work with our minor league hitters.

"During the regular season, he'll be in and out of here, evaluating our hitters. He'll also spend time with our minor league clubs to work with young hitters."

SULLIVAN SAID Williams has had "an open invitation" to rejoin the Red Sox' organization since shortly after the death of owner Tom Yawkey in 1976.

"We talked and told him to keep in touch," Sullivan said. "Then he dropped in during a brief visit to Boston a couple of months ago and we talked some more. He called me two days ago and said he wanted the job. We're delighted to have him back."

Although an avid fisherman, Williams is basically a baseball man. He broke in with the Red Sox as a brash, gangling kid in 1939, starting a brilliant, fiery and often controversial career.

Although his playing days were interrupted twice by Marine Corps flight duty during World War II and the Korean War, he lasted until 1960. In typical Williams style, he hit his 521st homer off Baltimore's Jack Fisher in his final time at bat — and refused to doff his cap.

WILLIAMS SERVED as a special batting instructor for the Red Sox the next five years, then became a vice president of the club during 1966-68. He left Boston to become manager of the Washington Senators, remaining with that club for its first year in Texas in 1972.

Williams, who had a .344 lifetime batting average and a .634 slugging percentage, hinted strongly that he planned to return to baseball before the Manchester, N.H., baseball dinner last month.

"You're damn right I miss baseball," he told Bill Liston, baseball writer for the Boston Herald American. "Baseball is part of my life. Certainly I miss it.

"I'd like to get back, but not as a manager, coach or scout. I'd like to work with young hitters, the younger the better."

The New York Yankees, who once tried unsuccessfully to sign Williams as a pinch hitter after he retired as a player with the Red Sox, recently tried to lure him as a batting instructor.

"Ted told me, 'You'll never see me in pinstripes,'" Sullivan said.

Longhorns open camp on Monday

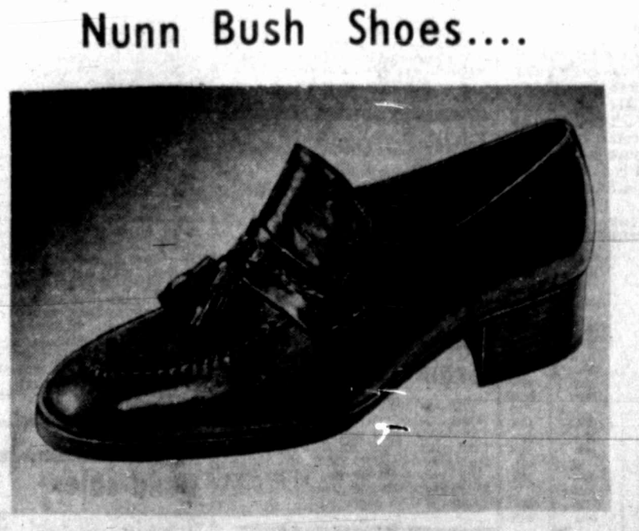

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Longhorns open spring training Monday, with the final spring training game scheduled for March 17 — Coach Fred Akers' 40th birthday.

Akers let the players decide on the starting time, and they wanted to get going early.

"It gives our players as much time as possible to go into finals better prepared," said Akers.

The March windup would also give defensive backs Johnnie Johnson and Derrick Hatchett — who are running track — and linemen-weightmen Guy Sellers and Dan Hunter eight weeks to get ready for the Southwest Conference track and field meet.

Upturn reported

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market managed a small gain today, attempting to right itself after a week-long decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 24.52 points in the past five trading days, was up 1.56 at 754.85 at noontime today.

Gainers held a 3-2 advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the upswing stemmed partly fom internal market forces after the steady slide in prices that began late last week. In particular, they noted short-covering by traders nailing down profits on borrowed stock sold earlier.

Another evident plus was the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a smaller-than-expected increase in the basic measure of the money supply.

The news tended to ease fears that the Fed would soon tighten credit further.

American Telephone & Telegraph gained ⅜ to 60⅜ in active trading. On Wednesday the company raised its quarterly dividend from $1.05 to $1.15 a share.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .07 to 49.01. But the American Stock Exchange market value index was off .15 at 122.63.

Volume on the Big Board slacked off to 7.29 million shares by noontime from 10.40 million at the same point on Thursday.

Lengthy talks in coal strike still in store

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall said Thursday that miners and mine operators will negotiate "as long as anybody can stand" in an effort to settle the 73-day-old coal strike.

Marshall told the representatives of both sides to meet through the night and into the morning hours in an effort to reach a new contract agreement before the weekend.

"The urgency of the problem requires that we put some deadline on it," the labor secretary said.

Meanwhile, President Carter declared an energy emergency in Indiana, giving Gov. Otis Bowen power to suspend clean air regulations. A similar emergency was declared in Ohio last Saturday.

Electric power plants in both states will be allowed to turn off the electrically-powered scrubbers that remove pollutants from smokestack gases. The scrubbers themselves use large amounts of electricity; shutting them down will enable the utilities to stretch out their dwindling coal supplies.

Even emergency steps, however, will not avert serious economic disruptions in the Midwest and the Atlantic coastal states depending on coal for generation electric power.

"Most of your states face another two months, or two months and a half until warm weather," President Carter told a meeting of 12 governors in the White House's state dining room. "We only have about 50 days of coal left."

"We are already experiencing severe job losses," the president noted.

Utilities will reduce power supplies to factories and industrial plants in order to keep the current flowing to homes, hospitals and other top-priority customers during the winter. Large scale service curtailments are expected to begin next week in Ohio.

The biggest users of bituminous coal, the American Electric Power Co. and the Tennessee Valley Authority, said Wednesday their coal supplies are shrinking fast, and called on all customers to conserve their use of electricity. Rotating blackouts — planned power shutdowns at specific times — might be put into effect by the companies.

Despite President Carter's meeting with the governors, federal officials insisted that the states have primary responsibility for handling the impact of the strike.

Federal attempts to move coal would produce "absolute chaos in the market" within 15 days, John F. O'Leary, deputy secretary of energy, told a hearing of the energy subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee.

"The coal problem we are facing today is not critical," O'Leary said. "If the strike is not settled for a few more weeks, it will be critical."

Several subcommittee members, including chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said the federal government is not treating the coal strike with sufficient sense of urgency.

"In our area, when people go out of work, that is an emergency," said Rep. Philip R. Sharp, D-Ind.

The meeting between President Carter and the governors produced no direct action other than statements of support for continued negotiating between the United Mine Workers union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

"Entering the negotiations at the White House level personally...has put the prestige of the presidency right on the line," said Gov. Milton Shapp, D-Pa. "I think that's a very courageous step for the president to take."

Shapp said unemployment could jump to 10 percent nationally in 60 days if the coal strike is not resolved soon. The jobless rate was 6.3 percent in January.

Many factories in regions affected by the strike, notably automobile plants, produce vital components of industry throughout the rest of the country. Shutdowns because of the coal strike could trigger a ripple effect of shutdowns and layoffs elsewhere.

Coal is the prime fuel for electric power plants in all or part of the following states: Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee, Maryland and Wisconsin.

State officials have asked businesses and individual consumers to cut back their use of electricity. Large-scale reductions in power supplies to industrial plants are not expected before next week, however. And no total shutdowns of electric power because of the strike have been reported.

Ector constable hospitalized

Leonard Garcia, 32, of Odessa, an Ector County constable, was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital at 2:55 a.m. Friday with multiple contusions and a broken rib after he was found lying in a puddle of water behind KMID-TV by Midland police.

He was found lying by his car, which had the lights on, the motor running, and the front door open, police said.

After arriving at the hospital in an ambulance, Garcia told police he was attacked by a group of men wearing white stockings as masks after he had left an Odessa bar near the intersection of Muskingum and Hancock Streets.

He told police he thought he might have been drugged in one of two bars he visted in that area.

Upon being revived by a Midland police officer behind the television station, Garcia reportedly told the officer he had no idea where he was.

His condition was reported as satisfactory by a hospital spokesman.

Odessan's condition said satisfactory

ODESSA — Jessie Z. Mishue, 27, of Odessa, was in satisfactory condition today and had been moved from the intensive care unit, according to a spokesman for Medical Center Hospital.

Mishue suffered head and abdominal injuries in a one-car accident at 12:05 a.m. Thursday in the 4000 block of Kermit Highway in Odessa.

Earlier, his condition had been listed as serious.

He was injured when his auto crashed through a fence and collided with metal drill collars on a storage lot, according to a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

Explosion suspect investigated

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Authorities say they are investigating a suspect who may have been involved in an explosion and leak that temporarily shut down oil flow in the trans-Alaska pipeline.

But state police are releasing few details of their investigation into the second act of sabotage against the $7.7 billion line.

Oil was flowing normally through the 800-mile line today after being shut off almost 24 hours because of Wednesday's blast, which ripped a 2-inch hole through the crude-carrying line.

"We do have a suspect in the case. That's all I can tell you," a state police spokeswoman said today.

Lt. George Pollit said the type of explosive used in the blast was not definitely known, but he said the person responsible "has knowledge of the use of explosives."

Investigators have said a 20-foot length of slow burning fuse, believed to be the remains of a primer cord used to detonate the explosives, was found in the snow. They would not say what new leads may have been uncovered during aerial and ground searches of the area.

Last July, dynamite blasts ripped some insulation from the pipeline and dented some fixtures on an elevated section of the line, but the pipe itself was not damaged. Two men were arrested in the case. One pleaded guilty; the other awaits trial.

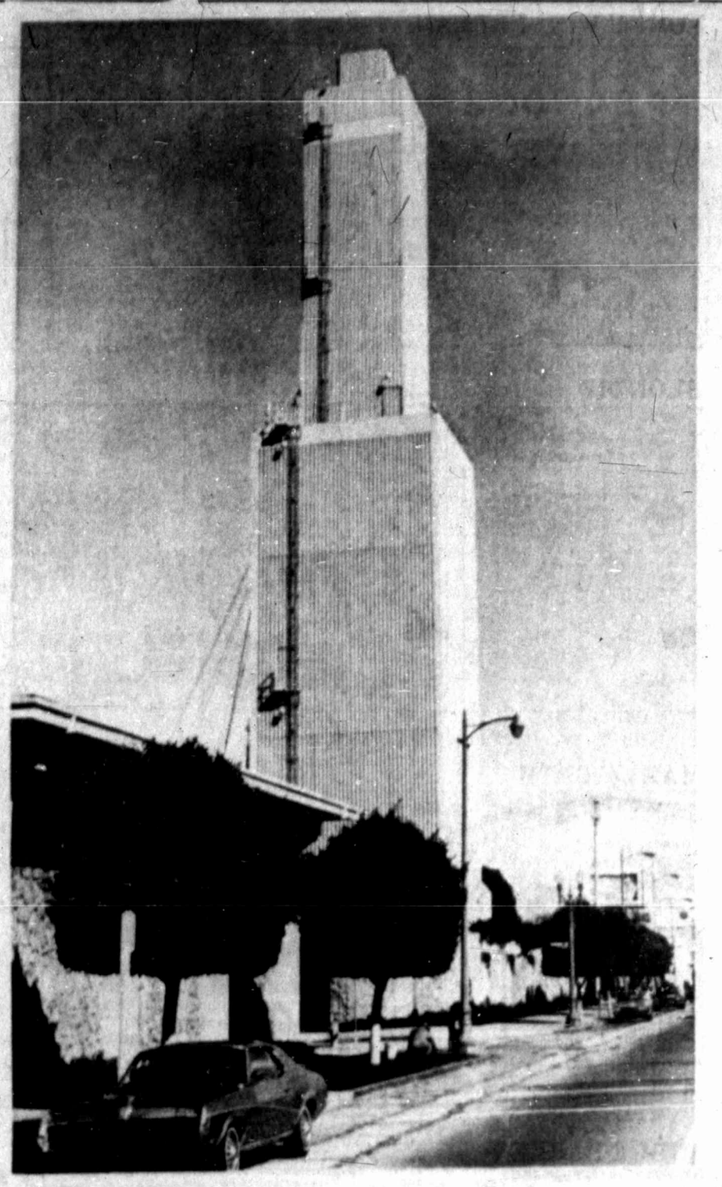

Oil started flowing through the line again Thursday at 10 a.m. and was "back up to normal"—730,000 barrels per day — by 2:30 p.m., said John Ratterman, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman.

The line carries Prudhoe Bay crude to Valdez. From there the oil is shipped by tanker to refineries in the continental states.

The spilled oil was pumped from the ground to tanker trucks for transport to the nearby North Pole Refining Co. plant. Ratterman said officials at the scene reported 90,000 gallons of oil had been removed from the site by noon.

State environmental officials said it was too early to assess fully the effect of the spill, first reported by pilot Gil Glover of Fairbanks.

Glover said he was on a short pleasure flight when he and a companion "saw smoke or steam in the area of the pipeline."

THIS IS AN OIL WELL drilling tower disguised as a tall building on Pico Blvd. in Beverly Hills, Calif. The school district wants to put another 130-foot drilling tower on the Beverly Hills High School campus. "The contract with the driller provides for screening and sound baffling . . . but no matter how you slice it, its going to be ugly," says Beverly Hills Mayor Richard Stone. (AP Laserphoto)

Striking miners must deal with steel, oil

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — When United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller sits down to bargain with industry negotiators, he's talking to big steel and big oil as well as big coal.

The Bituminous Coal Operators Association, negotiating an industrywide contract with Miller's rebellious union, represents 130 companies that operate about 1,800 mines producing roughly half the nation's coal.

The association's membership list is a who's who of steel and oil: Continental Oil owns Consolidation Coal Co., the nation's second largest coal producer; Occidental Oil owns Island Creek Coal, the fourth biggest; Ashland Oil owns Arch Minerals, seventh largest coal producer; 11th-ranked Old Ben Coal is owned by Standard Oil of Ohio; and Gulf Oil owns P&M, the 15th biggest.

Many of the nation's top steel firms own "captive mines," which produce coal solely for steel mills. U.S. Steel Corp., the country's biggest steel firm, is the sixth largest coal producer while No. 2 Bethlehem Steel ranks eighth in coal.

With their companies holding vast coal reserves, much of the ultimate authority within the BCOA rests with top-level executives of the major steel and oil firms.

Oil companies alone are expected to account for more than 50 percent of all coal produced for electric power plants by 1985, according to industry analysts.

When the BCOA sent five representatives to the White House Wednesday night for the resumption of contract talks, J. Bruce Johnston headed the list. Johnston, a U.S. Steel vice president, is playing an increasingly public role in the bitter labor dispute.

His private influence is even greater.

It was Johnston, sources say, who argued forcefully in private for the industry to reject President Carter's call Tuesday to return to the bargaining table and negotiate an end to the strike. And it was Johnston, these sources add, who drafted a sharply worded letter of rejection to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

The letter, however, was signed by BCOA Chairman E.B. (Ted) Leisenring, who is also chairman of Westmoreland Coal, an independent firm.

The coal industry, Johnston wrote, is "obliged to decline" the president's request. "This country should not be held hostage to any group which seizes the energy jugular," the letter said.

In later explaining the industry's refusal to negotiate further, sources who asked not to be named quoted Johnston as telling administration officials, "We haven't educated them (the UMW) yet."

It is believed the BCOA backed down only after high White House officials called the major executives of steel, oil and coal firms and threatened to denounce the industry bargaining association publicly.

Also, a number of influential members of the association reportedly were shocked at the rebuff to the president.

Discovery potentials

D. A. Metts of Midland No. 1 Mayer has been completed as a Canyon oil discovery in Irion County, 1.5 miles northeast of Barnhart.

Operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 101 barrels of 47.8-gravity oil, through an 18/64-inch choke and perforations from 7,535 to 8,079 feet.

The pay section was fractured with 40,000 gallons. Gas-oil ratio was 1,208-1.

The strike is 1,880 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 37, WCRR survey and 23/8 miles northwest of an 8,916-foot failure and four miles southeast of the Dow-Mayer (Spraberry-Dean) field.

Kingdom well finals

Marshall R. Young Oil Co. of Midland No. 2 a. E. Pool Trust is a new well in the southwest side of the Kingdom (Abo) field of Terry County.

Operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 145 barrels of 28-gravity oil and 65 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,634 to 7,996 feet.

Total depth is 8,100 feet and 41/2-inch casing is set on bottom.

Gas-oil ratio was 105-1.

Location is 467 feet from south and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 10 block D-14, C&MRR survey and nine miles north of Tokio.

W. W. West of Midland announced locations for wildcats in Concho and Runnels counties.

His No. 1 Judith Eaves will be drilled as a 4,200-foot wildcat in Concho County, three miles north of Paint Rock.

Location is 2,467 feet from north and 1,667 feet from east lines of section 541, T&NO survey. It is three miles northwest of the Paint Rock, West multipay field and 2¾ miles southeast of a 4,603-foot failure.

RUNNELS TEST

W. W. West No. 1-A Judith Eaves will be dug as a 4,200-foot wildcat in Runnels County, 3.5 miles southeast of Olfen.

Drillsite is 467 feet from north and 1,667 feet from west lines of section 21, WCRR survey and 1⅞ miles southeast of a 4,603-foot failure. It is four miles south of the T.J.C. (Capps) field.

FISHER RE-ENTRY

Fisher-Webb, Inc., of Abilene announced plans to clean out to 4,700 feet the R. W. Tesch Jr. No. 1 Toland, Fisher County wildcat failure at 6,280 feet.

The project is 2,173 feet from south and east lines of section 261, block 3, H&TC survey.

The site is three miles east of the Capitola (Strawn) field and separated from it by a depleted producer. It is seven miles west of Longworth.

IRION TEST

John L. Cox of Midland No. 1-D Miss Ela will be drilled as a ¾-mile southwest outpost to the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp gas) field of Irion County, 14 miles northeast of Barnhart.

Location for the 8,100-foot operation is 1,320 feet from the most westerly north line and 990 feet from the most westerly west lime of O. G. Coulson survey No. 4. Ground elevation is 2,462.1 feet.

MARTIN PROJECT

The test is 2,014 feet north of production and will be drilled to 12,300 feet.

Location is 550 feet from north and 1,350 feet from east lines of labor 10, league 259, Borden County School Land survey.

PECOS WORK

Gulf Oil Corp. spotted a pair of 3,900-foot tests in the USM (Queen) field 3¾ miles north of Fort Stockton in Pecos County.

No. 1 USM-Hillin is 1,807 feet from south and 853 feet from east lines of section 1, block 146, T&StL survey. It is 1,200 feet north of production.

No. 1-A USM-Hillin is 2,173 feet from south and 1,872 feet from east lines of section 1, block 146, T&StL survey and 1,150 feet northwest of production.

CROCKETT TEST

William Perlman of Houston announced location for No. 2-B Lillian M. Hudspeth Memorial Hospital 14/8 miles northeast of the Whithead (Strawn gas) field of Crockett County, 15 miles southeast of Ozona.

The 9,500-foot test is 1,111 feet from south and 1,412 feet from west lines of section 6, block N, TCRR survey.

UPTON TRY

A. G. Kasper of Midland staked No. 1 Amacker 1,750 feet northeast of the three-well Amacker-Tippett, South (Devonian) field of Upton County.

Slated for an 11,700-foot bottom, it is 11.5 miles northwest of Rankin and 660 feet from north and 2,637 feet from east lines of T. C. Jones survey No. 99.

SUTTON TESTS

William Perlman of Houston spotted a pair of projects in the Shurley Ranch (Canyon gas) area of Sutton County, 10 miles southwest of Sonora.

No. 1-190 W. E. Sawyer is ½ mile northeast of production and 933 feet from south and 2,000 feet from east lines of section 190, block C, HE&WT survey.

No. 2-190 W. E. Sawyer is ¾ mile north and slightly east of production and 933 feet from south and 4,000 feet from east lines of section 190, block C, HE&WT survey.

Each of the projects will be drilled to 8,500 feet.

IRION OUTPOST

MWJ Producing Co. of Midland No. 1 Tucker is to be drilled 1½ miles southwest of the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp gas) field of Irion County, 13 miles north of Barnhart.

Slated for an 8,300-foot bottom, it is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 66, block 14, H&TC survey.

MCCULLOCH PROSPECTOR

L. M. Young of Abilene No. 1 Kay Lindner is to be drilled as a 1,100-foot wildcat in McCulloch County, 11 miles southwest of Brady.

It is 2,000 feet from north and 2,100 feet from east lines of J. F. Schulze survey No. 232, abstract 1267.

COKE TEST

Fisher-Webb, Inc., of Abilne No. 1 Gartman has been staked as a 5,500-foot operation 12 miles northwest of Robert Lee in Coke County.

It is ome location west of Fisher-Webb No. 1 Cargile, third Pennsylvamian sand well in the Arledge multipay field. It is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 308, block 1A, H&TC survey.

Petroleum Development Corp. of Albuquerque, N. M., has completed its No. 1 Pedco-Gulf-Federal Communitized as a Wolfcamp oil discovery in Lea County, N. M., 10 miles south of Maljamar.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 271 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,461-1, through a ½-inch choke and perforations from 10,595 to 10,776 feet.

The well is two miles south of the Young (Wolfcamp) field amd ½ mile southwest of the Lusk, North (Morrow gas and Bone Spring oil) pool.

Total depth is 13,032 feet and 5½-inch casing is set on bottom. Plugged back total depth is 12,522 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 33-18s-32e.

FIELD EXTENDER

Petroleum Development Corp. No. 1 Sun-McKay-Federal has been completed to extend the Lusk, East (Morrow) field 1½ miles northeast.

The well finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1,932,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 12,631 to 12,934 feet.

Total depth is 13,000 feet and 4½-inch casing is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 12,955 feet.

Location is 1,850 feet from north and 1,730 feet from west limes of section 10-19s-32e. It is 13 miles southeast of Maljamar.

Culberson test slated

American Quasar Petroleum Co. No. 1 Scott Unit is to be drilled as a 17,000-foot wildcat 1½ miles northwest of the King Edward pool which has three Silurian gas producers.

The new project is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 19, block 45, psl survey and 45 miles north of Kent.

Upton well completes

John L. Cox of Midland No. 2-E Owens has been completed in the Spraberry Trend Area of Upton County, 13 miles northeast of Rankin.

The well completed on the pump for a daily potential of 165 barrels of 39-gravity oil, with a gas-oil ratio of 740-1, through perforations from 7,748 to 8,581 feet.

The pay was fractured with 90,000 gallons.

Total depth is 8,650 feet and 41/2-inch casing is set on bottom.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 30, block B, CCSD&RGNG survey.

Potential corrected

Tamarack Petroleum Co., Inc., has filed potential test with the Railroad Commission of Texas for its No. 1-37-A Windham, new well in the Parks (Spraberry) field of Midland County.

The filing listed the potential as 79 barrels of 34-gravity oil and 60 barrels of water, pumping through perforations from 7,797 to 8,690 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 1,127-1.

A previous report showed the potential to be 45 barrels of 30-gravity oil and 50 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,809 to 8,704 feet.

The pay was acidized with 4,000 gallons and fractured with 120,000 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 37, block 40, T-3-S, T&P survey and 1/ mile southwest of other production in the field.

The well is nine miles southwest of Midland.

Potential announced

Amoco Production Co. No 13 Schill has been completed as a long north extender to the Robertson, North (San Andres) field of Gaines County.

On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 24 barrels of 28-gravity oil and 216 barrels of water, from open hole section at 4,586-4,696 feet.

Total depth is 4,696 feet and 51/2-inch casing is set at 4,586 feet.

The producing section was acidized with 160,000 gallons and fractured with 12,900 gallons.

Location is 1,984 feet from south and 1,882 feet from east lines of section 2, block A-24, psl survey and six miles southwest of Seminole.

Runnels well finals

McDonnell Oil Co. of Abilene No. 1 Kirkham and others, a project drilled as a wildcat in Runnels County, four miles northeast of Winters, has been completed in the Clarke (Gardner) field.

The well finaled for a daily flow of 92 barrels of 43-gravity oil, through perforations from 4,404 feet after a 400-gallon acid treatment.

Total depth is 4,454 feet and 41/2-casing is set on bottom.

Gas-oil ration was 787-1.

The wellsite is 1,950 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of section 319, block 64, H&TC survey and one location southeast of the depleted (Clarke (Gardner) field. It is surrounded by depleted producers in the Briley (Palo Pinto and Gardner sand) field.

Dual well completes

Hytech Energy Corp. has reported the Strawn potential test for its No. 2 Montgomery, dual well in the Ozona (Canyon gas) field area of Crockett County.

From the Strawn, through perforations from 9,792 to 9,795 feet, the well finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.4 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The pay zone was acidized with 7,500 gallons.

Earlier, the well was finaled from the Canyon for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.7 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 6,177 to 6,621.

Location is 990 feet from the most northerly north line and 990 feet from the most westerly east line of section 20, block NG, William Branch survey.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Blair Exploration No. 1-A King; drilling 11,975 feet in lime and dolomite.
Hanley No. 1-7-25-B University; td 4,540 feet, preparing to run 8⅝-inch casing.
BORDEN — I. W. Lovelady No. 1 Wilson; drilling 2,975 feet in lime.
Britton Management No. 1 Judge Williams; drilling 2,293 feet in anhydrite and lime.
CHAVES — Flag-Redfern No. 2 Amoco-Federal; td 4,102 feet, circulated, ran logs, perforated 2,974 to 4,034 feet, released rig.
Union Oil Co. No. 1 Windmill-Federal; td 5,984 feet in lime and sand, tripping.
Mann Rankin No. 3 Arledge; drilling 6,419 feet.
CROCKETT — James L. Lamb, Jr. No. 1-13 Todd; drilling 1,210 feet.
Hytech No. 2 Montgomery; plugged back depth 9,812 feet, from Strawn perforations 9,792 to 9,795 feet, 7,500 gallons acid, calculated absolute open flow potential 1400 thousand cubic feet of gas per day.
Monsanto No. 1-29-35 University; rigging up and preparing to spud.
Stoltz, Wagner & Brown No. 2-3 Johnson; td 9,941 feet, still testing, no gauges reported.
Stoltz, Wagner & Brown No. 3-3 Johnson; td 9,900 feet, waiting on completion unit.
Estoril No. 1-23 University; shut in for pressure buildup.
Estoril No. 1-22 University; drilling 1,539 feet.
CULBERSON — Avance Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 Caldwell; drilling 8,743 feet in lime and shale.
DAWSON — Coquina Oil Co. No. 4 Huddleston; td 8,190 feet, repairing rig.
RK No. 1 Wise; drilling 4,426 feet.
Getty No. 1 Davis; td 11,655 feet, taking drillstem test.
EDDY — Bass No. 60-J Big Eddy; drilling 8,095 feet.
CITGO No. 1-A Polk; drilling 11,341 feet.
Texas Pacific No. 1 Hackberry; drilling 8,102 feet in lime and sand.
Gulf No. 1 Cardenas; drilling 8,297 feet in lime.

Gulf No. 1-GM Eddy; d td 11,200 feet, fishing.
Gulf No. 2-GF Eddy; drilling 1,145 feet in anhydrite.
Aminoil No. 3 Willow Lake Unit; dst (Strawn) 11,340 to 11,450 feet, opened with fair gas blow, too small to measure, through out flow period, recovered 2,030 feet of fresh water blanket and 840 feet of gas cut salt water, now drilling ahead.
Mesa No. 1 Red Bluff; drilling 11,334 feet in lime and shale.
Mesa No. 1 Diamond-Mound Federal; td 1,400 feet, drilling on cement plug.
Black River Corp. No. 1-BRC Madera; td 11,712 feet in lime and shale and sand preparing to test.
The Eastland Co. Bo. 1-L Harroun-Federal Comm. drilling 935 feet in anhydrite.
J. M. Huber No. 1-A Featherstone-McCoy; td 1,548 feet, cleaning out hole.
GAINES — Texas Crude & Florida Gas No. 7-9 Norman; drilling 7,528 feet in lime and shale.
I. W. Lovelady No. 2 Hudson; Acidized perforations 5,008 to 5,042 feet with 1,000 gallons, swabbed 62 barrels in 5 hours, being 30 percent oil on last 4 runs.
I. W. Lovelady No. 3 Hudson; td 5,050 feet, pulling out with drillstem test 4,985 to 5,050 feet, opened with few bubbles.
Fasken No. 4-214 ARCO-Fed; td 5,850 feet, logging.
Estoril No. 1 Neil; td 5,040 feet, running temperature survey.
GARZA — Getty No. 1-A Kirkpatrick; td 8,230 feet, spotted 250 gallons acid, preparing to perforate.
GLASSCOCK — Belco Petroleum No. 2 Edwards; drilling 5,010 feet in lime and shale.
HOCKLEY — Gulf No. 1 Cooke; td 8,050 feet, moving off rig.
IRION — Gulf No. 1-VE State; drilling 3,115 feet in shale and lime.
D. A. Metts No. 1 Mayer; td 8,105 feet, on initial potential test flowed 101 barrels oil per day, gas-oil-ratio 1208, gravity 47.8, 18-64-inch choke, tuping pressure 230 pounds. Completed from Canyon perforations 7,535 to 8,079 feet, after fracture treatment of 40,000 gallons and 43,000 pounds sand.
NRM No. 4 Rocker B; td 6,685 feet, shut in. Fractured Dean perforations (not reported) with 30,000 gallons and 60,000 pounds, set a retreivable bridgeplus, perforated 5,755 to 6,390, fractured with 30,000 gallons and 60,000 pounds sand, set retreivable bridge plug, perforated upper Spraberry 5,014 to 5,684, fractured with 30,000 gallons and 60,000 pounds.
NRM No. 5 Rocker B; td 6,800 feet, recovering load from perforations 5,010 to 6,309 feet.
NRM No. 6 Rocker B; td 6,615 feet, preparing to cement casing.
Union Texas No. 3-36 Farmer; td 7,343 feet, shut in for pressure buildup.
Union Texas No. 3-37 Farmer; drilling 6,587 feet in lime and shale.
NRM No. 1 Rocker B; td 7,428 feet, set retreivable bridge plug 5,700 feet, perforated upper Spraberry 5,015 to 5,681 feet, now preparing to fracture.
NRM No. 2 Rocker B; td 6,650 feet, recovering load. Perforationa 4,982 to 6,620 feet.
NRM No. 3 Rocker B; td 6,055 feet, recovering load, Perforations not reported.
LAMB — Delta Drilling Co. No. 1 Kenneth Day; td. 3,503 feet, finish logging, set 8⅝-inch casing at td., waiting on cement.
LEA — Superior No. 1-L Government; td. 16,228 feet, lost circulation, pumped in 500 sacks cement, waiting on cement.
C&K No. 1 Wilson State; td. 12,250 feet, running drillstem test from 11,780 to 12,250 feet, tool open with a 10 minute pre flow, had a fair blow of air, initial shut in pressure 320 pounds for 60 minutes, open 60 minutes with a weak blow, shut in 2 hours.
Cleary Petroleum No. 1 Felmont-Federal; drilling 5,245 feet in lime and sand.
Indian Wells No. 1 CITGO-Federal; shut in.
Atlantic Richfield No. 1 Langley Deep; cored from 13,790 to 17,848 feet, no discription, preparing to drill ahead.
LOVING — Conoco No. 1 ARNO Gas Unit; drilling 12 shale and sand.
Gulf No. 1-E Dickson; td. 6,400 feet; pumped 30 barrels of oil and 133 barrels water in 17½ hours through perforations from 5,080 to 5,116 feet.
MARTIN — Hanley No. 1-7-25-A University; td. 9,935 feet, drilling out cement.
RK No. 1 Woicott-Adobe; td. 12,089 feet, gone "Tight"
Henry Petroleum No. 1-A Holt; drilling 4,498 feet in anhydrite and lime.
Parker & Parsley No. 1 McKenny; drilling 7,780 feet in lime and shale.
MIDLAND — Tamarack No. 1-38-A Windham; td. 8,771 feet, waiting on potential.
MITCHELL — Meyer & Associates No. 1 Davis; td.7,600 feet, taking drillstem test.
NOLAN — Hamilton Brothers No. 1 Helen Haralson; td. 6,330 feet, waiting on orders, took drillstem test from 6,255 to 6,285 feet, recovered 5,500 feet gas in drillpipe, 150 feet oil and gas cut mud, final flow pressure 59 to 88 pounds, final shut in pressure 2263 pounds, took drillstem test from 6,255 to 6,350 feet, recovered 321 feet formation water, 558 feet gas cut salty mud, 93 feet gas in drillpipe, final flow pressure 324 to 478 pounds, final shut in pressure 2,196 pounds.
OTERO — Robert K. Hillin No. 1 Burro Canyon Unit; drilling 192 feet in lime, shut down to dress bit.
PECOS — Gulf No. 1-MX State School Board; td. 3,250 feet, gone "Tight"
Gulf No. 1 Taylor; td. 3,510 feet in lime, waiting on cement, set 5½-inch casing at td.
Gulf No. 1 Woolridge; td. 11,770 feet; pumped 25 barrels oil and 93 barrels water in 24 hours through perforations from 10,504 to 10,655 feet.
H. L. Brown No. 1 CITGO-Neal; deviation survey at 11,557 feet.
Aminoil No. 1 Harral; drilling 6,293 feet in shale, lime and dolomite.
I. W. Lovelady No. 4 Chalkley; td. 4,850 feet, swabbing, swabbed 1¼ barrels oil, unreported length time.
I. W. Lovelady No. 1-A Chalkley; drilling 2,758 feet in lime.
Union Texas No. 1 Clayton-Lowe-University; td. 11,900 feet, shut in.
Getty No. 2-38 Montgomery; drilling 7,813 feet.
Getty No. 1 Skeeter; td. 11,617 feet, shut in bottom hole pressure, perforated the Strawn zone from 9,133 to 9,152 feet.
CITGO No. 1-A Perry; drilling 8,154 feet in lime and shale.
Forest No. 1 Cabrillo; drilling 7,444 feet in lime.
Phillips No. 1-B Claude; td. 12,082 feet, ran 7-inch magnet, recovered 1 quart iron, now going in hole with 7⅞-inch bit.
Phillips No. 1-N Mitchell; drilling 10,587 feet in lime and sand.
Phillips No. 1-P Mitchell; waiting on rotery.
John R.Seay No. 2 Shearer; drilling 4,983 feet in lime and dolomite.
ATAPCO No. 1 Wanda Watts-State; drilling 4,811 feet in lime.
C. F. Lawrence No. 3 Merchant-State; drilling 1,880 feet in anhydrite.
Hanson Corp. No. 1 Alanton; drilling 3,755 feet in lime.
REEVES — Texas Pacific No. 1 Olsen; td 10,316 feet; on a trip; attempted to log and well started flowing.
Gulf No. 1 Gozar; drilling 6,226 feet in shale and lime.
Gulf No. 4 Barclay-Dean; td 13,470 feet; flowed 33 barrels of water in 18 hours, through perforations at 13,131-13,170 feet.
Gulf No. 9 Cleveland; drilling 11,923 feet in shale.
C&K No. 1-45 Meeker; drilling 13,612 feet in lime and shale.
