Winter weather sinks Southern spirits

Sun Belt has taste of life in Snow Belt

By The Associated Press

Record cold blamed for at least 80 deaths across the country surged deep into Florida today with the hardest freeze in five years in places, flash-freezing oranges on trees and causing extensive damage to the state's billion-dollar citrus crop.

Some of the bitterest winter weather to hit the South in decades laced over bridges on the Mississippi Gulf Coast and spread sleet and freezing rain across Texas, from Del Rio on the Mexican border to the Louisiana border.

Elsewhere, Buffalo, N.Y., was digging out from a record 24-hour snowfall of 28 inches and hundreds of miles of roads were closed in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York because of blowing snow and drifts up to 6 feet deep. Travelers forced off the highways by blowing snow spent the night in highway service stations and church pews, and state office buildings in western New York were ordered to remain open as refuges.

In New York City, the Heat Complaint Bureau received more than 10,000 reports of apartments without heat.

Workers at Ashland Oil Inc. plant in Catlettsburg, Ky. were trying to clear a frozen pipe early today when explosions ripped through gasoline tanks, injuring two people, a company official said. A resulting fire was quickly contained and burned itself out.

THE MIDWEST WARMED to zero and above after record-cold weather that saw the wind-chill factor dip to as low as 100 below in Milwaukee.

Temperatures sank into the 20s today over much of the Florida citrus belt where most of this year's crop is still unpicker. Citrus fruit can be destroyed by six hours of 28-degree cold.

Many growers spent the night in the groves burning smudge pots and old tires in an effort to save their oranges and grapefruit as temperatures dropped to 22 degrees in Daytona Beach and 23 degrees in Orlando in the heart of the citrus belt.

Citrus damage was "very extensive and widespread," Mark Belcher of Florida Citrus Mutual in Lakeland said early today. Hardest hit were areas around Tampa, he said.

"There was a very general freeze across the entire citrus-producing area of Florida," Belcher said. "There will be an awesome effort to get out into the field this morning and salvage the damaged fruit. If picked fast enough, it can be turned into orange juice...it's been flash-frozen on the tree."

Only about 12 percent of Florida's projected orange crop and 10 percent of the grapefruit crop has been picked.

Most of Florida reported record temperatures for the date, ranging from 14 in Tallahassee to 33 in Miami. West Palm Beach had its morning in five years at 29 degrees.

IN OTHER PARTS of the nation today, temperatures dipped below zero across the northern plains, the upper Mississippi Valley and the northern Atlantic Coast States. New low temperature records for the date included 8 below zero at Worcester, Mass., and 16 at Columbus, Ga.

Schools, factories and businesses were shut Monday throughout the Midwest and South, and homes lost electricity as power lines cracked or generating facilities became overloaded.

There were some benefits, too. Fewer cars were on the roads, and the Wisconsin Transportation Department reported its first weekend in more than three years without a traffic death. Police in Chicago and Detroit reported a drop in some categories of violent crime.

"The weather is the perfect cop," said Detroit Lt. Fred Williams.

Wisconsin's temperatures hit an officially recorded minus 29 Monday morning, but unofficial reports said the air felt as cold as minus 100 degrees with the wind-chill factor.

ICY AIR THAT DIPPED to 5 below in Atlanta, the coldest since 1899, and 1 above in Augusta, Ga., the coldest ever recorded there, froze the radiators of cars, said Harry Murphy of the state Department of Transportation. Most schools that closed Monday were expected to reopen today.

Buffalo had 28 inches of snow between 1 p.m. Sunday and 1 p.m. Monday.

"It was like something out of a fairy tale," said Cathy Green, 21, of the Albany, N.Y. area, who was forced off the New York State Thruway southwest of Buffalo. "You couldn't see anything but white. It was like we were floating through white clouds."

WEATHER-RELATED DEATHS — including traffic fatalities, heart attacks and exposure — have been reported in 22 states.

On blades of ice

The winter storm predicted by the National Weather Service failed to materialize overnight, but there were some winter scenes in the city as sprinkler systems turned blades of grass into ice sculptures. This frozen tundra was three miles east of Midland off the north service road to Highway 80.

Midland misses most of misery

Although a considerable amount of winter storm activity was taking place only 50 miles south of Midland today, the chance for area residents to get a taste of freezing precipitation has decreased.

Due to the warming temperatures and improved conditions at its generating plants, Texas Electric Service Company notified customers this morning that it had adequate electricity to meet their normal needs. However, a spokesman for TESCO emphasized the "ever-present need to conserve."

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, today's considerable cloudiness will continue tonight, becoming partly cloudy on Wednesday. There is a 20 percent chance of rain today, turning to light snow tonight. The chance of precipitation is 20 percent tonight.

Area residents just missed the snow and ice Monday night as the winter storm forecast by the NWS failed to develop as extensively as predicted this far north. The Lubbock weather service issued a travelers' advisory today for persons in the portion of West Texas south of a line stretching from El Paso to Midland to Sweetwater.

After today's warmer temperatures in Midland, it should turn colder tonight with the low near 20 and the high on Wednesday near 40.

Monday's high of 28 was 50 degrees colder than the record high of 78, set for that date in 1935. The overnight low of 26 was 21 degrees warmer than the record low of 5, set in 1963.

Hospitals oppose certificate of need

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Administrators and lawyers from Midland Memorial Hospital and Parkview Hospital formally opposed Arlington Corporation's certificate of need for a psychiatric hospital with a chemical dependency unit Monday night.

About 30 people squeezed into the conference room at the Permian Basin Region Planning Commission at Air Terminal at the hearing for Southwest Health of Midland/Odessa Inc.'s application.

The proposed $4.16 million 60-bed hospital, to be named West Plains and to be constructed on 2.9 acres near Midland Regional Airport, was heard by three of the seven members of the local HSA committee. The hearing was taped for those members who did not attend because of the winter storm watch.

Five representatives of West Plains Hospital attended the hearing that included health agency and facility staff members and a few concerned citizens.

Carla Cox, attorney for the Southwest West Plains Hospital, was the first to speak. She expressed a concern that the hearing was set only for the Southwest application.

Durward Wright, HSA committee chairman, replied it was not the intention "to open a can of worms" and that testimony from the opposition would be conducted according to rules.

Both MMH and Parkview attorneys stated they were not opposing the concept of the Southwest hospital, but added that each would provide a better facility.

MMH's application proposes a 50-bed behavioral health service facility including a chemical dependency unit to be located away from the hospital in north Midland. Parkview's application proposes converting the existing 60-bed acute care facility to a 60-bed psychiatric hospital with beds for substance abuse.

A HSA public hearing for both local hospitals' applications for chemical dependency facilities will be heard at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18. On Jan. 20 the HSA committee will give its recommendations to the HSA Governing Body which in turn will make the final recommendation to the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

At noon Monday, Ray Branson, MMH president, told the media that "as a public, tax supported entity, MMH's continued existence does not depend on making profit. Its primary purpose is to make available, first to the residents of Midland County and second to the entire Permian Basin, the highest quality medical care."

"MMH is committed to fulfilling its mission. Consequently, in our responsibility to the citizens we serve, we have an obligation to oppose proprietary corporations that wish to provide services that can better be provided by the hospital," Branson added.

Parkview Administrator Dick Liley said Midland's existing facility would be more feasible to convert to a psychiatric hospital costing $500,000 compared to MMH's application for a similar facility costing $3.75 million.

At the hearing, Michael Bullitt, vice president of operations for Southwest, made the presentation for West Plains Hospital. He explained 20 beds would be used for adult psychiatric services, 20 for adolescent psychiatric services and 20 for chemical dependency with 12 of those for alcohol and eight for drug abuse.

"We do not want to duplicate any services available in this area. We feel our location will serve the Midland/Odessa area better," he said.

Bullitt added the corporation talked with local psychiatrists and Odessa's Medical Center Hospital Administrator Sam Glenney and they were supportive of the facility.

Dr. David Warner, an expert witness for Southwest from The University of Texas, testified to the need for a psychiatric facility in this area. He presented an elaborate methodology determining that 60 beds are needed.

However, one concerned citizen, Wanda Reed, questioned the number of beds.

"After the airport was built, it was discovered that the facility was too

Clements, Treen concentrate on energy issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Rep. Gib Lewis said he and other state legislators have received the assurance of a member of President Reagan's cabinet that if federal taxes on gasoline are hiked, the money will go exclusively for highway construction.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, and almost 20 others from the National Conference of State Legislatures met at the White House Monday with President Reagan and with Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis.

Shortly after their meeting, governors William C. Clements of Texas and David C. Treen of Louisiana met with Reagan. The governors urged Reagan to continue his support for deregulation of natural gas, but also asked him to battle a suggested windfall profits tax on it.

Because of a mounting national deficit, cries have been increasing among congressional leaders for additional taxes — including proposals that the federal tax be hiked on cigarettes, alcoholic beverages and gasoline, and that a windfall profits tax be levied against producers of natural gas, once it is deregulated.

"We had a nice meeting with Drew Lewis. We just went over problems of concern to the states, including proposals that the federal tax on gasoline be increased, and whether the funds would also be shared with states for their use," Lewis said.

Under consideration, the Texas lawmaker said, is either a 4 cent tax on gas, or a 5 cent tax, with 1 cent distributed for mass transit use.

"Our concern was whether the 4 cents would be used exclusively for highways or whether the money would go into the general revenue fund, and the Secretary assured us it would be used exclusively to complete the interstate system," Lewis said. "He was very emphatic about that."

Lewis said another concern he had was whether such an increase by the federal government on gasoline would take away from states a major source of future income.

About 20 to 25 states have used such a tax lately to finance their highway systems, and Texas is one of the few states that has not utilized such a tax recently, Lewis said.

Lewis said Reagan gave a general, opening statement in which he reiterated to the state legislators his hopes of turning over to the states more of the functions of government.

Clements, Treen and Reagan talked exclusively about the question of deregulating natural gas, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said later.

"I think the president was impressed by some of the arguments we made," Treen said.

Clements agreed.

"The president is totally on record, philosophically and otherwise, in support of deregulation of natural gas. The only question is when and how," Clements said, adding that Reagan had spoken in the past of his opposition to a windfall profits tax.

Texas reporters interviewed Lewis, then Clements and Treen, in biting sub-zero temperatures in front of the White House, immediately after their meetings with Reagan. Lewis and his fellow legislators from across the country met with Reagan at 10 a.m., and the two governors almost two hours later.

Both Treen and Clements said they are staunchly opposed to a windfall profits tax on natural gas, but the Louisiana governor said he isn't sure Congress can be sold on deregulation without the tax.

"Some of those (congressmen) are very outspoken about that," Clements said. "I've heard their echo all the way to Texas. But, as usual, Congress is going to be debating that issue," Clements said.

County seeks more expansion ideas

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners, who for several years have been mulling over what to do about expanding the courthouse, a year ago appointed a "blue ribbon" committee to come up with recommendations for expanding the courthouse.

The committee, headed by John Hyde, reviewed and studied options, apprised the county officials of its findings, and was de-commissioned and thanked. That was months ago.

Now, the commissioners are seeking additional recommendations, which may be from three to six months in the offing, and are willing to pay $30,000 to have Midland architect Walter Pate do a cost analysis on two major options and on one certainty.

The options, which the five-member Commissioners' Court has been pondering, are:

—An extension to the 1930-built courthouse. The extension might be a partial "wrap-around," which would leave the southside of the courthouse open, and a tower immediately north of the building, which was renovated and which got an additional fifth story — the jail — in a renovation program in the early 1970s.

—Construction of a courthouse annex on the county's parking lots just 1 1/4 blocks east of the courthouse and adjacent to that segment of Baird Street between Texas and Illinois avenues.

The apparent certainty is the renovation of the courthouse. And emphasis there apparently will be on the courts.

"We have begun research on the courtroom requirements through the procurement of planning criteria from the National Clearing House for Criminal Justice Planning and Architecture," Pate told the commissioners in Monday's session.

Pate's "feasibility study," which he figures may take up to 2,000 man-hours to complete, is Phase I of his three-phase program to lay the ground work for the courthouse expansion.

Prior to Pate's status report to the commissioners, Midland attorney Bill Kerr recommended the commissioners consider a building solely for the courts and adjunct offices.

"The (Midland County) bar association probably does not have a consensus" on any specifics in the matter, said Kerr, who noted the growth factor in the courts, particularly in civil and business litigation, during Midland's energy-prompted boom.

"I think it would be nice to have the courts in one place," Kerr said.

At present, eight courts operate out of the courthouse: two justice of the peace courts, juvenile court, county court-at-law, and three state district courts.

"I think, at least, to keep the district clerk, county clerk —

Soviet Union: U.S. using Polish crisis to cover up nuclear threat

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union sharpened its attack on the United States today and said Washington, "like a drowning man clutching a straw," seized Polish developments to cover up the U.S. nuclear threat to Europe.

With the exception of Greece, NATO's European members agreed Monday in Brussels that the Soviet Union bears heavy responsibility for the Polish crisis. They threatened Moscow with economic reprisals and voted limited economic sanctions against Poland's Communist regime.

Without noting the communiqué by NATO foreign ministers, who met at the request of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., a commentary by Alexander Mogilov in the Communist Party daily newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya charged:

"The United States, obsessed with hegemonistic ambitions, has simply missed the detente train through its own fault and is now bent — as a saboteur — on derailing it in a bid to restore its role as the ruler of the Western world's destinies. Therefore, the overseas strategy-makers are grasping at every pretext, even those clearly far-fetched, in an effort to poison the world atmosphere."

"The slanderers grasped at developments in Poland like a drowning man clutches at a straw. By provoking international crises, they count on diverting public attention from the U.S. nuclear threat to Europe and demoralizing and suppressing the activists of the anti-nuclear movement (in Europe)."

Late Monday, the official Tass news agency condemned the NATO communiqué as "intolerable interference" into Poland's internal affairs.

Within hours of the issuance of the NATO communiqué, Tass said it was the result of "gross pressure by the United States (and the results) mean impermissible pressure on a sovereign state, a glaring contradiction to the norms of international law, the U.N. Charter, (and) the Helsinki Final Act to which the United States and its partners in NATO are signatories."

Coinciding with the NATO meeting, the Soviet news media have apparently changed the focus of their propaganda from criticism of the U.S. sanctions and individual NATO members to denunciations of the entire Western alliance.

Western diplomats here said the shift was expected and that Moscow would now try to emphasize differences between the allies.

"The U.S. is after several goals by whisking the turbid foam of slander around Polish developments. The most important one is to rally Washington's junior NATO partners around the U.S. Or, to be more precise, to take them under full U.S. control," the Sovetskaya Rossiya commentary said.

"The rift in relations between the United States and Western Europe is growing still wider since most of the West Europeans have become convinced of the advantages of international detente which inspires them with confidence in a future without wars and enables them to pursue an independent policy," it said. "Economic relations with socialist countries are also very profitable."

Polish seamen set up picket lines around vessel

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Polish seamen set up picket lines around their fishing vessel the Regulus early today, vowing to keep the boat in Vancouver until Polish authorities meet four demands, including providing news about their families in Poland.

Tadeusz Kawecki, who described himself as a spokesman for the Polish trade union Solidarity, said the 74 seamen aboard the boat are worried about their relatives and friends in Poland, where martial law was imposed last month.

The boat was scheduled to leave Vancouver at 1 a.m. PST today, but remained at its Pier B-C berth after the departure time. Canadian labor groups are recognizing the strike, which prevents union waterfront workers from assisting the ship out to sea.

The crewmen said they will not leave Vancouver until they meet with the Polish ambassador to Canada, Stanislaw Pawlak. A telegram was sent to Pawlak listing four demands that must be met, said Kawecki.

"The men want clarification of the situation in their country; they want clarification on what the situation is with their families back in Poland; they want to know what the future is of the crews and ships now docked in Vancouver and they want to know why some of the men haven't received allotted foreign currency exchange payments," said Kawecki.

Meanwhile, Tom Fawkes, a spokesman for the British Columbia Federation of Labor, said the labor group will respect Solidarity's picket line. Provincial labor is necessary for refueling and piloting of departing vessels.

Earlier, a tug approached the Regulus with fuel supplies but turned away when the pickets appeared with a sign reading Solidarity on Strike.

Kawecki also said he was disturbed that the ship had been ordered to sail without maps which were to be supplied by the ship's agent. Another Polish vessel left port recently without any maps and the captain did not know where he was going, Kawecki said.

The seamen have not been permitted to contact their families, Kawecki said.

They are also confused about what is happening to them in their jobs, he said.

"First they are told that there is going to be a crew change in the middle of the month and then they are told there is not," said Kawecki. "Then they are told that the fleet is going to anchor out in the harbor to prevent further defections and then nothing happens."

About 15 seamen, some wearing red and white armbands symbolizing the strike, were gathered on the pier in front of the boat.

A crewman aboard the Regulus, speaking through an interpreter, said the crew did not fear reprisals should they be forced to return to Poland.

"We do not believe that we will lose this cause," said the seaman, who asked to remain anonymous. "We are sure that we will win this cause and all of us will freely go back to Poland."

"There is no fear because everyone realizes if we lose, we will have to go back to Poland and each will have to handle his sentence," he said.

Poles angered at threats to chicken, eggs

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Many Poles are angered by President Reagan's sanctions and the threat to their supply of chicken and eggs. But intellectuals believe such moves can bring pressure to bear on martial law authorities.

The Reagan administration decided shortly after martial law was imposed Dec. 13 to suspend credits and government food shipments to Poland, including American corn.

The Polish government reaction has been predictably sharp, with almost daily condemnations carried in the official media. But officials at a news conference last week appeared undaunted.

"The government will somehow feed itself," government spokesman Jerry Urban told reporters. "The Reagan measures will be felt mostly by the broad population."

That feeling, hammered home almost daily by the government-controlled media, is shared by many Poles who were surprised and even a bit shocked to hear of the aid cutoff.

One army guard at a checkpoint in Warsaw remarked to a foreigner: "The Americans won't send us their corn, but they want to drive around anyway."

Some economic analysts say the cut in corn will severely affect production of chickens and eggs, the alternative to scarce meat.

Poultry is the most available meat substitute for many families, and American corn was a staple for egg layers at the big state chicken farms. Eggs also are a vital alternative to meat because of their protein content.

Huge lines form as soon as eggs are delivered to shops, and their price at private markets — 25 cents a piece — reflects the demand. The official price is about nine cents.

"The feeling generally is that America, as a traditional friend of Poland, should now step up its help," one Polish journalist said. "Instead, it is imposing restrictions which make the government propaganda pointing out Soviet help really effective."

Some reactions are stronger.

"He seems to be trigger-happy," a 35-year-old woman with a young daughter said of Reagan. "But only in words, and his sanctions will hit the man in the street first of all."

But some intellectuals believe the authorities will only relax their grip on the nation under pressure. They say in private conversations that they regret West European nations have hesitated to join or back Reagan's moves.

Haitian troops hunt for invaders

PORT DE PAIX, Haiti (AP) — The Haitian government says its troops have captured three of the eight exile invaders from Florida who landed on Tortuga Island and are hunting for the other five.

The commander of the attempt to touch off a revolution against President Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, filling station owner Bernard Sansaricq of Fort Lauderdale, was reported to have sailed from South Caicos Island, 95 miles north of Haiti, with 30 more men. Their whereabouts were not known.

U.S. officials said the 6,000-man Haitian army had been mobilized. They said a Haitian coast guard boat and the U.S. Coast Guard cutter that intercepts Haitian refugee boats bound for Florida were patrolling around Tortuga, 15 miles off the north coast of Haiti.

Lherizon Alezi, the government's regional information director on the north coast, gave this account of the weekend invasion:

The government had advance word of the plot, but four men in a plane landed Saturday on Tortuga and seized the police station. The police commandant radioed for help, and two coast guard boats ferried over soldiers and militiamen.

The government force opened fire and the four invaders fled. There were no reports of injuries.

Another plane landed on Tortuga with four more men from the British Turks and Caicos Islands at the southern end of the Bahama chain. But they also fled when they discovered the earlier attack had been foiled.

Alezi did not say what happened to the two planes. He said Louis Celestin, Robert Mathurin and Richard Brisson were captured, and the hunt was on for the other five men.

Brisson carried a suitcase filled with cassettes proclaiming Sansaricq president, Alezi said. He said the plotters claimed about 5,000 supporters in Venezuela, Canada and the United States.

British journalist Tony Summers reported from South Caicos that Sansaricq and 20 other Haitians — all in camouflage gear — left that island late Sunday night aboard a chartered sloop, presumably bound for Haiti. Ten more men left earlier in a boat called the Widgeon, Summers said.

U.S. State Department representative Michael Donovan was on the neighboring island of Grand Turk and had interviewed Sansaricq for two hours prior to the rebel leaders' departure, Summers said.

He reported that Donovan told him he was investigating a DC-3 from Miami that landed weapons and ammunition on South Caicos last Thursday. The British government impounded the cargo, charged three Americans and a Haitian aboard the plane with possession of firearms and let them return to Miami with the plane after the posted bonds of $500 each.

Sansaricq, 37, said earlier that his force in the Turks and Caicos islands was the vanguard of a much larger force that would invade Haiti and touch off a revolution against Duvalier, the 30-year-old dictator who inherited the presidency when his father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier died in 1971.

Newspaper censorship lifted

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq lifted censorship on newspapers Monday for the first time in more than two years. Censorship will remain on magazines and periodicals, he said.

Zia asked editors of daily newspapers to observe "self-censorship," and warned them not to criticize Islamic traditions or attack the dignity of the judiciary and armed forces.

The president also said he did not oppose the return of democracy to his country, but said it should be "an Islamic democracy which suits the genius of the Pakistani people."

"I am not against democracy nor against holding parliamentary elections. But my point is that the known system of democracy is not the last word," Zia said at the opening session of the Advisory Council.

Opposition parties have refused to join the council because Zia has rejected their demands for creation of a British-style parliamentary democracy and the holding of national elections.

The council, made up of men and women from various professional and interest groups, consists of 287 members appointed by Zia.

The body, which will have only an advisory role on legislation and composition of the national budget, was created by Zia to fill some of the functions of the Parliament suspended when Zia came to power in a July 1977 coup and banned all political activities.

Shaw speaks at meeting of veterans

Rep. Larry Shaw of Big Spring will be guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the community room of the Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

The Brotherhood, a non-profit organization of veterans helping veterans, is headed by Midlander Roger Stinson.

Stinson formed the Midland chapter to help veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange, a toxic chemical used as a defoliant in Vietnam.

Shaw helped initiate a landmark bill for Agent Orange victims that took effect Jan. 1. The legislation allows the attorney general the jurisdiction to represent veterans in class action suits against the government and provide genetic counseling and screening for the veteran.

The meeting is open to all interested persons. For more information call Stinson at 683-3765.

Soldiers kill 24 guerrillas

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Troops tipped off by peasant informers killed 24 guerrillas in northwestern El Quiche province, the army says.

An army spokesman who requested anonymity for security reasons said Monday no government soldiers were killed in the attack in El Quiche, 100 miles northwest of the capital.

The spokesman said the soldiers found the guerrillas entrenched in the area on Sunday after being alerted by supporters among the local peasants.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the University of Oklahoma Petroleum Engineering in Oklahoma.

Comedian's no-show at party leads to friends finding body

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Paul Lynde, whose one-line wisecracks on the television game show "Hollywood Squares" belied his off-camera shyness, has died of a massive heart attack at age 55.

Friends who became concerned about the comedian when he failed to show up for a birthday party discovered the entertainer's body Sunday lying in the bed of his Beverly Hills home, said his manager Alan David. He added Lynde might have been dead since Saturday.

A coroner's autopsy Monday concluded the star died of a massive heart attack, said senior coroner's investigator John Decker.

"Everybody around here is in shock," said David, who noted that Lynde didn't have a history of health problems. "Everybody loved him. He was prolific, he was funny. He was contradictory. He was brilliant. He was everything that comedians are, but he sure loved his fans."

Although Lynde made at least five motion pictures and was a regular on at least 10 TV shows, he is best known for his 13 years on the "Hollywood Squares."

But his manager said Lynde had mixed feelings about the game show, knowing that he'd won many fans on it, but also felt it limited his career.

"Probably along with George Gobel, the brightest addition ever to the Hollywood Squares was Paul," said Peter Marshall, host of the program. "I can remember the first show he ever did. He had such style and he just knocked everybody out."

Marshall said that, off-camera, Lynde was "very serious, very shy — but very funny."

Comedienne Phyllis Diller, a fellow Ohioan, said she had known Lynde for 27 years and that "he was always thinking of how he could help other people."

Born June 13, 1926 in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Lynde was an overweight child.

He worked for years in nightclubs, but didn't get his first big break until the Broadway revue "New Faces of 1952."

Basin Inc. files suit on indebtedness

The Midland-based Basin Inc., a crude-oil marketing company, has filed a suit on indebtedness in federal court in Midland in an effort to collect $248,162.41 from Koch Industries of Wichita, Kan.

Basin contends that Koch owes it that much money for crude oil it sold to Koch in mid-1981.

"Though often requested, the defendant has failed and refused...to pay" the balance due Basin, the suit's petition contends.

Basin says that Koch already has paid about half — $252,495.05 — of its $500,657.46 Basin bill. But almost a quarter of million dollars is still due, Basin is alleging.

The crude oil, which sold from $32 to $35 a barrel, came from several leases, including the Doss Lease, for $4,267.92 worth of oil; Texas American & Arden Leases, $70,783.13; Flag-Redfern Lease, $302,619.87; and MGF Lease, $122,986.54.

Representing Basin in the civil suit is the Fort Worth law firm of Cantey, Hanger, Gooch, Munn & Collins.

Ghana's woes mount

Fragmentary reports from Ghana, on the West Coast of Africa, say that a military regime headed by former Flight Lt. Jerry J. Rawlings has overthrown the elected government of President Hilla Limann. It is the second time that Rawlings seized power, and the sixth coup in the 25 years since Ghana became the first African colony to win independence in 1956.

In 1979, Rawlings overthrew the military dictatorship, executed three former military presidents, and installed the democratically elected government of Limann, and then retired to private life.

But what Rawlings gave, he also took away. With lightning speed he and other junior military officers overthrew the two-year-old government, arrested Limann and 60 officials, suspended Ghana's constitution, annulled all political parties, and ordered foreigners, mainly Lebanese and Indians, to get out of the cocoa and retail and wholesale business to "save themselves from embarrassment." Rawlings' declared mission: To root out corruption that has "mutilated and destroyed all the positive and concrete achievements of the people in order to pave the way for their own corruption and greed."

Reports from Accra, the Ghanaian capital, say that hundreds of people streamed into the streets after the takeover shouting "Down with corruption!" and "Jerry, our savior." Rawlings' popularity stems from his relinquishing of power four months after his first coup, a move which was viewed as personally disinterested and statesmanlike. But he is viewed as a protégé of Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafi, and whether the Ghanaian people will back his return to power on a long-term basis remains to be seen.

The major problem facing Ghana's 12 million people is economic. Unlike nearby Nigeria, which has immense petroleum profits, Ghana depends on cocoa for its export revenues. Although it has a lively market economy, mainly controlled by village women, poverty and agricultural backwardness have plagued the culturally rich Ghanaians.

America must not interfere in the internal affairs of Ghana. But the Reagan administration should withhold aid and credit if the Rawlings regime turns its coup into a bloodbath. Corruption cannot be rooted out by violating human rights, and economic greed cannot be righted by greed for power. Ghana deserves a government that neither steals the hard-earned money, nor destroys the fragile democracy, of its people.

Prices take a jump

U.S. citizens who let the 20-cent cost of a postage stamp put a crimp in their Christmas card mailings can be glad they don't live in Canada.

Starting Jan. 1, Canada nearly doubled its postage rates. A first-class domestic letter increased from 17 cents to 30 cents, while the cost of a letter to the United States went up to 35 cents.

It now costs Canadians 60 cents to mail a letter to any other foreign country, as opposed to 35 cents in 1981.

While people north of the border get steamed up over high postal rates, those down Mexico way are burning over the sudden escalation in the cost of gasoline.

Recently Mexico tripled the cost of a gallon of gas, from 36 cents to $1.08 at the government-monopoly pumps. Though Mexico is swimming in oil, the government is trying to discourage motorists from doing so much driving. Anyone who has ever attempted to drive in Mexico City may understand why.

Gas at $1.08 would still look like a bargain in this country, but Americans did not have the shock of seeing their prices tripled overnight, nor their postal rates doubled at one crack.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

I predict that in 1982, the president's charm over Congress will continue with (a) the repeal of anti-trust laws and (b) tax credits for monopolies.

A slight rewording of the Preamble to the Constitution will be passed without debate — "That all men might very well be created equal."

The Cabinet will find the perfect solution to its image of confusion — musical chairs. This month, Haig becomes secretary of Defense, Watt goes to Commerce, Weinberger to Labor and Donovan to Justice.

On the entertainment scene, cable television will continue to expand with 137 separate channels, all showing "I Love Lucy."

War will be declared between the two major Christian networks. It will start with a threat — "Sure, over on Channel 15, Pastor Bob can quote Matthew 38:14, but I tell you, he doesn't know what he talketh about!"

Oil companies will continue trying to get out of the oil business. Watch for new products like Texaco Hand Creme, Exxon Sugarless Gum and Mobil-Cola.

INSIDE REPORT:

Hard-liners grumbling about administration's flaccidity

WASHINGTON — Within a week after President Reagan's Christmas message and subsequent imposition of sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union had cheered them, hard-liners in the administration were grumbling that the air had gone out of the balloon.

"Flaccid," snapped one critical Reagan administration official of the current state of U.S. policy on the Polish crisis. He and other hard-liners grumble that plans to follow the first round of sanctions with a tougher second round of sanctions have gone nowhere, even though there is not the slightest sign of Soviet easing on Poland.

The blame is put on Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who follows the recommendations of the State Department bureaucracy. This is a continuation of State Department objections to thretening and imposing sanctions in the first place.

NIXON NIXES STOCKMAN

Richard M. Nixon, as willing as ever to deliver judgments on all subjects, tells visitors to his New Jersey estate that David Stockman would no longer be around if he were president.

Although Nixon as president found it no less easy than Ronald Reagan to fire anybody, he now confides that Stockman's retention as budget director after his betrayal of the administration is an invitation to other infidelities. Smart as Stockman is, says Nixon, he would get rid of him.

A footnote: Stockman appears to have survived his crisis, but he and his aides were devastated by the president's refusal to go along with new cuts on the Headstart and urban development grant programs. One Stockman aide angrily suggested that the budget be sent over to the Oval Office for cutting there.

CLARK'S DEPUTY

William P. Clark's selection as President Reagan's national security adviser was quickly followed by a push from congressional conservatives to name a well-known anti-Soviet defense expert as his deputy.

Their candidate: William Schneider, who has served the past year as top defense official at the Office of Management and Budget. Considering Clark's inexperience in national secu-urity affairs, the identity of his deputy takes on special meaning.

Consequently, the Capitol Hill group does not feel Adm. James (Bud) Nance, who has been serving as acting national security chief, has the stature for the job. Schneider, who was defense adviser to then Sen. James Buckley and after that to Rep. Jack Kemp, is both knowledgeable and outspoken.

BYRD'S NEMESIS?

The biggest threat to Sen. Robert Byrd's hope for another term as Senate Democratic leader after the 1982 election may be Sen. Ernest F. (Fritz) Hollings of South Carolina.

As the Deep South's first serious candidate for party leadership in the Senate since the early 1930s, Hollings probably would command the votes of all Southern senators in the Democratic Caucus (currently 11 out of 47). His tough fiscal conservatism in serving as the Senate Budget Committee's senior Democrat the past year makes him the favorite of other moderate-to-conservative Democrats.

But Hollings also is preferred over Byrd by many liberal senators, who never have trusted Byrd and feel Hollings would be a tougher partisan critic of the Reagan administration.

JERRY BROWN'S FORECAST

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, who fancies himself an expert in Reagan-watching, predicts the president will transform the political climate before his term has ended with a new U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms treaty, probably concluded in a summit meeting.

That, says Brown, will be the equivalent of Richard Nixon's political recuperation in 1971 by opening the door to communist China and imposing wage-price restraints. According to Brown, Reagan will play the detente card once it becomes clear that his domestic economic policy has failed.

A footnote: Brown, who never flinches at inconsistency, says bright economic prospects for 1982 eliminate the need for state tax increases. Such hikes would be a heavy burden for him to carry in his Senate race this year.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Private enterprise ensnarled in red tape

WASHINGTON — Every private enterprise of any consequence is ensnarled in government red tape — to the extent that each year businesses prepare an estimated 114 million forms, 15,000 different types of them, for the federal government.

A glassy-eyed Chester Vande-Weerd got more than his share of them six months after he had obtained a loan guaranteed by the Small Business Administration. He was confronted with 80-odd pages of forms and instructions from the agency. "I couldn't believe it," he said. "It was beyond a layman to fill them out."

What boggled poor Vande-Weerd's mind was SBA Form 707 and its attachments. To the 52-year-old businessman in Rock Valley, Iowa, it was like a Boeing 707 trying to land on a helicopter pad.

Included for Vande-Weerd's edification were 18 pages of "Non-Discrimination Regulations" and a 40-page booklet from the Federal Reserve Board on "Equal Credit Opportunity," plus two copies of a "Compliance Report" and a statement for him to sign attesting that he had duly read all the material.

The original purpose of most of the paperwork is laudable enough — to enforce the civil rights law. But Vande-Weerd's modest firm, which reconditions farm equipment, consists of himself and four employees, all relatives or in-laws.

"They wanted to know about parking lots and drinking fountains," an exasperated Vande-Weerd told his associate Tony Capaccio. "That was the end of it for me."

The gasping businessman got his head above the paperwork long enough to appeal to his congressman, Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, who fired off an angry letter to SBA Administrator Michael Cardenas.

"Surely the proprietor of a firm that employs five people, all of whom are related by blood or marriage, has more productive ways to spend his time than by reading 80 pages of regulations and forms regarding equal opportunity regulations," Bedell wrote.

Vande-Weerd isn't the only small businessman to be getting the business from the SBA. In 1981, the agency sent out 69,915 of the civil rights forms, and received 31,531 in return. What happened to the other 38,384 is anyone's guess. Maybe the recipients just gave up.

During the Carter administration, the civil rights package that infuriated Vande-Weerd was mailed out to all SBA loan recipients with 15 or more employees. Last year, in response to a Justice Department suggestion, the SBA sent the package to loan recipients with as few as 10 employees.

In practice, however, an SBA official, George H. Robinson, acknowledged that everyone was getting the civil rights package. He blamed it on the agency's computer — evidently a sorcerer's apprentice out of control. "Sometimes it spun out the same form to the same company" two or three times if they had two or three SBA loans, he admitted.

In addition to "a lot of duplication," Robinson said the crazed computer might even have sent out the compliance forms to businessmen who had already repaid their SBA loans.

What plagues the bureaucracy — or rather, what permits the bureaucracy to plague the citizenry — is an internal, inexorable drive toward expansion. The end result has been growth beyond control or even comprehension.

But only part of government expansion can be blamed on the bureaucracy's inner dynamics. An added impetus comes from outside — in the demand of society at large for more services. Legislative bodies at all levels — federal, state and local — enact an estimated 150,000 laws each year.

The bureaucracy seizes upon each law and buffers it with regulations. The more entangling regulations that the bureaucracy can produce, the better it can justify its own expansion and consumption of tax dollars. Government at all levels now consumes over 40 percent of the gross national product, as compared to 10 percent 45 years ago.

Bureaucratization entails the rigid observance of set rules and procedures, the interminable seeking of permission for any divergence. Kept within its proper sphere, such rigidity is beneficial; imposed upon society at large, it results in stagnation.

Footnote: President Reagan is fighting the heroic battle to curb the bureaucratic growth. He has ordered the Small Business Administration, for example, to cut back drastically on the amount of paperwork it sends out to loan recipients. The agency had planned to mail out 64,000 forms this year to firms with 250 or more employees. Now, fewer than 900 businessmen will get the forms, which will consist simply of a single, five-page Compliance Report.

UNDER THE DOME, Freshman Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., may not create great waves in this country, but he's mentioned frequently by Tass, the Soviet news agency — apparently because of his staunch anti-communist views and his status as a former Vietnam POW. Tass has branded him a racist.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., is one of the few members of Congress who's not afraid to praise Interior Secretary James Watt. The Senator said Watt's faults have been overplayed, and "he's now beginning to engage in more dialogue."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 12, the 12th day of 1982. There are 353 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On January 12th, 1945, German forces in Belgium retreated in the Battle of the Bulge during World War II.

On this date: In 1960, President Sukarno formed the National Front in Indonesia. In 1970, the secessionist Biafran regime surrendered, ending the Nigerian civil war.

In 1974, the North African nations of Libya and Tunisia announced agreement to merge as a new republic.

And in 1976, the coalition cabinet in Thailand collapsed with the resignation of Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj.

Ten years ago, the U.S. auto industry won government permission for a second round of price increases on 1972 models, the 1 percent average increase to be used for safety and anti-pollution equipment.

Five years ago, an international uproar arose over the release by the French government of suspected Palestinian terrorist leader Abu Daoud.

One year ago, terrorist supporters of Puerto Rican independence claimed responsibility for a string of pre-dawn bombings that destroyed several warplanes at a U.S. Air National Guard base in San Juan.

Today's birthday: Baseball star Bill Madlock is 31.

CHARLEY REESE

Congress remains a disgrace

Despite some improvements made by the voters in the 1980 elections, the Congress remains on the whole a disgrace.

In the waning hours of the last session, with much public business still undone, the Congress sneakily voted itself a Christmas present — an increase in the amount of money members can earn outside and a tax deduction for their Washington homes.

In the better days of the Republic, congressmen and even presidents made their way to Washington by horse or public coach and lived in rented rooms or boarding houses while they conducted the public's business.

We are fools to have allowed our politicians to vote themselves into a higher living standard than that of 95 percent of the American people. The Congress, with its unbelievable perks and privileges, is grossly overpaid. The vast majority are simply not worth what they have tricked us into paying them.

If we judge them by the duties assigned to Congress by the Constitution which apparently few of them have read, much less supported, then we are bound to conclude they are failures. They have not provided us with a stable currency or an adequate common defense. It's a toss of the coin whether cowardice or greed is the dominant trait of the majority. Most of them represent themselves, not us, and they sell our votes to the highest bidder.

They cannot balance a budget, write an equitable tax bill, or even grasp the most elementary principles of the free market economy which created the wealth they have now largely squandered and wasted. From a fiscally sound, militarily undefeatable nation at the end of World War II, we have degenerated into a debt-ridden second-rate military power with a rapidly eroding industrial base. For this, the Congress bears a heavy responsibility.

The Congress fouled up the Social Security System, not the various presidents. Presidents can only propose, only Congress can enact legislation. The Congress created the majority of the bureaucracies which eat up our tax dollars and curb our freedoms. The Congress created the massive income re-distribution schemes as well as the deficits, the unfair tax laws, and the expensive but grossly inadequate volunteer army. Much of the waste that is blamed on the Pentagon is really the Congress's doing because they make even such crucial decisions as defense appropriations on a purely selfish basis, often forcing the military to accept weapons systems they don't want and to keep open military bases they don't need.

We have the solution. All we have to do is to keep purging them every two years until we gather a group of men and women with integrity and common sense who will see themselves as stewards of the public trust. I would love to see a Congress which really represented the citizenry — a Congress of preachers and housewives, tradesmen and businessmen, retired military officers, teachers, craftsmen and farmers.

Anyone who has served in a succession of public offices ought to be defeated at the next election. The greatest fraud perpetrated on the public in politics is the alleged need for experience. An experienced politician is like an experienced prostitute — it isn't virtue that's been gained by all that experience. The truth is the legislative process is simple enough to be understood by ninth graders; what experience teaches them is how to bamboozle the public.

What you want in a public official are integrity, intelligence and strength of character. Be wary of lawyers, salesmen and journalists — their training is in the manipulative use of language and above all, vote against anyone who sets out to make a lifetime career out of serving in public office. The professional politician is the cancer of democracy.

This grand land of ours belongs to the people, not to the government or the press or the bureaucracy. A good beginning toward restoring our public health would be for every American to remember that the best public official is only an equal and anything less than the best is an enemy of freedom.

Five who represent the whole 52

By The Associated Press

One's getting married and one's getting divorced. Some refuse to talk about it; others give speeches and many are writing books. After their return to America, the 52 men and women held captive in Iran have resumed their old lives or begun new ones.

Here is a look at five whose experiences are indicative of the varied paths the former hostages' lives have taken:

CHARLES A. JONES, 41, is getting a divorce from his wife of 19 years. He wants peace, quiet and privacy, and won't discuss the divorce, except to say that it has "nothing whatsoever" to do with his captivity.

Jones, who served as communications officer in Tehran and was the only black hostage, took a job in September as vice consul at the U.S. Consulate in Vancouver, B.C.

He describes the welcome he received upon his return to freedom as "probably the greatest thing that ever happened to me," but says he was equally grateful when the fervor died down.

"I did not want the notoriety," he says. Jones is writing a book about the life of a black foreign service officer that will be keyed on Iran, but also include his other experiences.

But for now, he is tight-lipped about his ordeal: "I live within myself and these are the things I keep within me."

WILLIAM Gallegos, 23, of Pueblo, Colo., one of the Marine guards at the U.S. Embassy in Iran, has nothing to say to reporters. Friends and relatives say he has abandoned plans for college in favor of looking for work. He is now out of work.

Gallegos spends part of his time with his girlfriend. He also works out at a local gym and frequents a "survivalist" store that sells equipment and provisions to those anticipating a major disaster or nuclear attack.

His last public appearance was in a parade at the state fair five months ago.

BARRY ROSEN, 37, of New York, is a "diplomat in residence" at Columbia University, the recipient of a presidential scholarship. He is still employed by the International Communications Agency, for which he was working when he was taken hostage.

Rosen and wife Barbara are collaborating on a book about their experience. It's due for publication next fall. Rosen lectures at colleges and synagogues, and spends "as much time as possible" with his two children.

"I try to put it behind me in many ways," he says of the ordeal, which has caused some stress-related problems.

"I don't live with it in the sense that it's an overwhelming part of my life."

I can't live with bitterness. But he adds: "I think I'm better for it."

JOHN GRAVES, 53, is having trouble getting anyone to publish his account of his experience in captivity, a book he calls "Maybe Tonight."

He is critical of the U.S. government and the news media for being "preoccupied with the soap opera aspects of the hostage crisis to the exclusion of real questions."

Among the questions Graves wants answers to are these: "Why was the embassy taken over? Why were the Iranians so angry at America? Why was the shah admitted to the U.S.?"

Graves, a senior foreign service officer with the State Department's International Communications Agency in Washington, says Congress has not kept its promise to thoroughly investigate the matter.

York, captivity in some ways proved liberating, giving him a heightened sense of self-confidence and "a chance to think over a lot of things."

Kennedy, who took early retirement from foreign service last summer, collects a "generous" pension and serves as executive director of the Peace Institute of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

He founded the institute after preaching at the Episcopal church, to "examine the role that religion plays in international affairs... as in Iran, Northern Ireland and Lebanon" and to "look at the psychological forces that move people."

Kennedy has only one recurring nightmare: that the State Department puts him on a plane bound for Iran, a plane that is met by his student captors.

He does not keep in touch with the other hostages.

As part of the preparations for the Jan. 20 anniversary of the return of the American hostages from Iran, 53 flags are flown in Hermitage, Pa.

Metrinko: A reborn patriot

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each of the former hostages in Iran has a personal story. In the second of a four-part series, AP Writer Fred Bayles reports on one who fell in love with America all over again.

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — After the parades and interviews, after the 20,000 letters from strangers and an emotional hometown welcome that "really ripped me up," former hostage Michael Metrinko decided it was time to see America.

At 35, the Olyphant, Pa., native had seen more of the world than his own country. He had been overseas since 1968, first as a Peace Corps volunteer, then as a foreign service officer.

His last seven years were spent in Iran; the last 444 days as one of the 52 American hostages. For 10 months, he was held in solitary confinement.

And there he dreamed of America. So when the first crush of welcome died down after his release, Metrinko decided to cut out. He bought a car and spent the next six months on the road.

He drove to Alabama, stayed on a ranch in Oklahoma, traveled Idaho's Ponderosa Pine Trail and attended church services in a tiny fishing village on Kodiak Island, Alaska.

He saw the country with what he calls "a stranger's eyes" and returned a "reborn patriot."

"I can be very lyrical about it," he says, sitting in his sunny Cambridge apartment. "How big it is, how beautiful it is..."

AND WHEN THE TALK TURNS to the American people, strong feelings nearly overwhelm his usually articulate thoughts.

"I was struck with how many different types of people there are here and they're all still Americans," he says.

"Farmers down in Oklahoma or Southerners in Alabama. Alabama is very different from Oklahoma. It's absolutely different from Pennsylvania. And then there's Colorado. I could just go on like that. It's tough to talk about it like that because I'm not really sure what I want to say."

The wanderlust that sent Metrinko into the heartland is nothing new. A graduate of Georgetown University, Metrinko joined the Peace Corps in 1968 largely because he wanted to travel.

He taught in Turkey and Iran, then joined the State Department, serving in Turkey, Syria and Iran. He came home a few weeks every two years, but he didn't miss the United States. He was fascinated by the way of life in other countries, particularly Iran.

"I liked the fact that things there were a lot simpler, far less based on technology," he said. "I spent all sorts of time watching a life that had all the qualities of a museum piece."

Links to the past are important to Metrinko, a soft-spoken, humorous career diplomat who is completing a course in public administration at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

HIS FAMILY HAS LIVED in the same house since 1904 and he keeps a copy of his grandfather's birth certificate on his wall. "I know exactly where he is from, and who his grandfather was. It gives you an anchor," he said.

He said his roots helped get him through the captivity in Tehran, where he spent weeks on end, alone in a room or cell, bound with rope or handcuffs. He had little to do, little to read. He developed the habit of exercise in his cell and now has exercise equipment in his apartment.

And he dreamed of travel. "I planned the trip a thousand times," he said. "I wanted to see Alaska and thought about Hawaii and wanted to see the Rocky Mountains. What I really wanted to see was anything green and sky because for months and months I only saw concrete. I wanted to see America."

But traveling had to wait until the nation welcomed the hostages. There was a parade from the Scranton airport to his hometown along a route that usually takes 20 minutes. It took Metrinko seven hours.

"It really ripped me up," he said. "You keep busy waving and smiling, but I felt as if I was hiding the real part of myself away."

There were 20,000 letters from grateful Americans.

He read all of them. Many were personal, emotional messages that deeply touched Metrinko.

HE REMEMBERS ONE letter that read: "My son died in World War II and I have been alone since then. You make me feel like you're my son."

"It was that focusing of a lot of emotion, a lot of loneliness that people felt on us and on our families," said Metrinko. "It was probably good for a lot of people."

It proved too much for Metrinko and he still bears the emotional scars. He doesn't like to have his picture taken, afraid people will recognize him. He is amused that reporters still seek him out. But a year ago, with people clamoring to talk to him, to thank him, Metrinko felt the need for escape.

"What I really wanted to see was anything green and sky because for months and months and months I only saw concrete. I wanted to see America."

"That's when I decided I had to get away from everything and just go off on a long trip," he said.

He flew to Denver and San Francisco to visit friends. Then he and his parents flew to Hawaii as the guests of the governor. It whetted his appetite for more.

"I came back fully expecting to go back to work," he says. "But I didn't. I bought a car and took off instead."

"It was a microcosm of America that we forget," he said. "This was my own family. Lutherans in Oklahoma City. In Idaho, Mormons. California, Jewish. And it's all one family, one blood family."

ONE OF THE FEW LETTERS Metrinko answered was from a village priest on Kodiak Island in Alaska. "He sent me a picture of the village and I thought, 'Gee, what a great place to go.'" So Metrinko flew up from Seattle.

There he had another vision of America.

"The island had a population of 300, a combination of Scandinavian fishermen, Russians and Aleuts in the Aleutian Islands," he said. "Hearing them sing old Slavonic in church because they're all Russian Orthodox, but they all look like they're from China and knowing that they all speak English... it was really something."

"We love to publicize examples of our intolerance, but Americans aren't intolerant," he said. "We tolerate failure in others, or differences in others far more than in anywhere else I can think of."

"If you're sitting in a room and hear people screaming over and over and over, 'Kill the shah. Kill the shah. Kill the shah. Kill the shah. Death to this person. Death to that person.' And you think of the tolerance that you have for political parties, political groups in the United States, and it's all the difference between the earth and the sky."

Metrinko returns to the foreign service next year and looks forward to the chance for more travel. But his experience has made him optimistic about his country's future.

"I have a faith in Americans," he said. "The freedom's here. Just the fact that I could travel. That no one tried to stop me. It makes us independent in our thoughts."

DIVORCE RECOVERY SEMINAR

Statistically, studies indicate that nearly 50% of the United States population is now comprised of single individuals. Of this 50%, a very high percentage is made up of singles-again. They are single again having gone through the trauma of divorce. We are a culture that still places a high premium on marriage, family, stability, etc. The result is a devastating avalanche of divorce followed by guilt, broken spirits, shattered self-esteem, fear about the future, loneliness and a deep sense of loss. And then there are the children-their hurt, their loss, their confusion, their anger. Your life will be touched by it-either directly in your own marriage or indirectly through friends or family.

Self-hypnosis provides help from cancer pain

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—With a Superman T-shirt hiding his thin chest and a baseball cap covering his bald head, Jeff hardly looked like the sick little boy he was.

But at age 4, with less than a month to live, he learned how to use hypnosis to ease the pain of life and accept the loneliness of death.

Jeff's mother, Betty, who asked that the family name not be used to ensure privacy, says the hypnotherapy treatments her son received at Riley Children's Hospital here played on his stubbornness, imagination and sense of humor to make death less frightening.

"He always had to be in control, he was really cranky and stubborn and he could always make me laugh," Betty says. "He hated the hospital and he was afraid of tubes and needles and doctors' and nurses' uniforms."

"So when they first asked me if I wanted to try the therapy on Jeff, I figured as long as they didn't have to poke him or stick him, it was worth a try."

JEFF WAS diagnosed in January 1981 as having neuroblastoma, a cancer of the red blood cells. Initial symptoms include high fever, weakness, weight loss and irritability.

Jeff was treated with drugs and chemotherapy for about seven months after his disease was diagnosed. In July, Betty and her former husband, Steve, took Jeff from the hospital to spend his last months at home.

"Jeff was real apathetic, constantly in pain," says Steve. "I thought then, 'Let's quit everything and let the boy die with dignity.'"

The chemotherapy treatments had caused Jeff's hair to fall out, and side effects of the treatment brought on nausea. An abdominal tumor made eating painful, his mother says, and Jeff was given the drug methadone to control the pain.

Shortly after Jeff came home, his parents decided to let therapists try to hypnotize him, mainly to lessen his fear of the pain involved in eating and to decrease the nausea. They also hoped it might decrease his dependence on methadone.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Gail Gardner, a Denver psychologist who has pioneered hypnotherapy with dying children, most work on hypnotherapy and cancer has been in the last 10 years.

Ms. Gardner described the ideal candidate for hypnotherapy as one who is "open to the idea, who wants to get well, who wants to alleviate pain, and who has some ability to use the imagination, which most children do."

With Jeff, the therapists — a child psychiatrist, a psychiatric social worker and Betty — had to be wary of the child's feisty nature during hypnotherapy.

"He was difficult, he was resistant, he didn't want other people messing with his life," says Paul Stewart, an Indianapolis psychiatrist who has used hypnosis on children in his private practice to curb nail-biting and other habits. "But I think it was effective."

In August, Betty, Stewart and social worker Dick Collins attended the first hypnotherapy session, with Stewart doing most of the talking. A videotape of the session shows Jeff surrounded by the therapists in a hospital treatment room. Because he was so weak, Jeff sat in a small wheelchair. The video camera was unobtrusive.

"Do you want to learn how to use a special talent, a special power to make you stop hurting?" Stewart asks on the tape in a soothing monotone. "Maybe sometime when Mom talks to you like this, you'll feel better and be able to go to sleep. And maybe you'll be able to eat and know that you don't have to hurt."

Despite Jeff's minimal response during the session, Betty says she saw him improve over the next week.

Two self-hypnosis therapy sessions like the one shown here helped 4-year-old Jeff, center, face dying of neuroblastoma, a blood cancer, with less pain than he felt previously. The main purpose of the self-hypnosis, a new technique in treating cancer, is to enable patients to minimize their pain themselves.

Doctors say drugs may aid conception

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Australian researchers say they have developed an improved method of using fertility drugs that should make it easier for some women to conceive children despite problems with ovulation.

The research team said in a report published Monday that their technique makes using the drugs easier and more accurate and results in a high success rate.

As outlined in the journal, Obstetrics and Gynecology, the method involves using fertility drugs to induce ovulation, the release of an unfertilized egg from an ovary.

Doctors then use ultrasound equipment to monitor the maturing of the egg to tell the precise time sexual intercourse should take place to fertilize it.

Drs. Colm O'Herlihy, Roger J. Pepperell and Hugh P. Robinson of the University of Melbourne said 14 of the 21 women taking part in the experiment became pregnant.

Seven of the women became pregnant during the first monthly cycle of treatment, they added. Each woman was allowed to go through up to six cycles of treatment seeking a successful pregnancy.

Of the seven women who did not conceive, five were later found to have a condition that blocked the tubes from the ovaries to the uterus. This made normal transit of the egg to the womb impossible even if ovulation was successfully achieved, the report said.

Dr. Warren Pearce of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, publishers of the journal, said that in two-thirds of the cases involving infertile couples, the problem is with the female partner.

Up to 30 percent of those women suffer from ovulation disorders that may be helped with fertility drugs, he added.

"The key element of this study was the use of ultrasound to tell when ovulation had occurred and how the egg was doing," Pearce said in an interview.

"Ultrasound is a non-invasive, inexpensive and clearly accurate way to follow people with this problem," he continued, "and you don't have to resort to the very expensive hormone assays now used to confirm ovulation."

Fevers can provide protection

Dear Dr. Solomon: Would you have any idea what my doctor meant when he said that fever is not all bad? I always thought that when a person had a fever, it meant that he was sick — Brad, Santa Fe

Dear Brad: There is increasing evidence that a rise in temperature sometimes provides a degree of protection for the patient. To give just one example, a study has shown that patients with bacterial peritonitis (an inflammation of the membrane that lines the cavity of the abdomen) who had a significant increase in temperature did better than patients whose temperatures did not rise to the same extent.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I understand that cystic fibrosis is an inherited disease. If that's the case, isn't it possible to check pregnant women to see if their children will have the disease? I'm thinking of the sort of screening now being done for Down's syndrome. — Mrs. A.M., Greensboro, N.C.

Dear Mrs. M.: A test to identify pregnant women whose children will have cystic fibrosis is being developed, but it is not yet perfected. The test involves sampling of the amniotic fluid during the second trimester.

Dr. Henry L. Nadler of the Northwestern Medical School reports that every pregnant woman who was predicted to have an infant with cystic fibrosis did so; however, some diagnoses were missed. Although the method used by Dr. Nadler may eventually become a screening test for the disease, it has not yet reached that point.

Dear Dr. Solomon: In a recent column you printed a letter from Bertha G. Simos, DSW, that addressed the issue of depression/emotional reactions to hysterectomy.

This is an area of great concern and misinformation, so much so that there is an organization for the hysterectomized woman, founded by myself and for the purpose of supporting and educating women who find themselves with unanswered questions and unresolved reactions.

While it may be true that underlying problems existed and the hysterectomy served as catalyst in bringing these problems and issues to the surface, there can be and often is, as Ms. Simos points out, more than meets the eye of even the most trained professional. Not only is the "death of an organ," and, along with that, its function, a very important concern of many hysterectomized women, but important too is the role the organ plays in sexual satisfaction.

It is also extremely important to clarify whether or not the term hysterectomy is being used to describe total hysterectomy, where the ovaries are removed. When the ovaries are removed there is often a fine, fine line between reactive depression and physiological depression. — Leslie Hanover, M.A., Executive Director, Womb 'n' Awareness, Inc., Los Angeles.

grandchildren. Her hobbies include flying, fishing in Mexico, hunting, golf, needlepoint, music and indoor and outdoor gardening.

Midland Genealogical Society to hear archivist Thursday

The Midland Genealogical Society will meet Thursday, January 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Commercial Bank Building. Mrs. Betty Orbeck, archivist at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, will discuss the latest methods used in the preservation of photographs, old letters, personal papers, and other records.

Mrs. Orbeck has been with the Permian Basin Museum, Library, and Hall of Fame since 1976. She is responsible for the administration of the archives and Library Center, its collection and preservation of up to 40,000 items, photographs, maps, manuscripts, tape interviews and books.

Mrs. Orbeck received her certification as a professional archivist from the American University and the National Archives and Records Service in Washington, D.C. She returned to the National Archives in 1979 for more extensive training and has attended numerous seminars on "Conservation of Archival Materials" throughout the United States.

She was co-founder and director of the Permian Historical Society from 1968-1977. She served as its first executive vice-president for four years and as the society's archivist from 1958-1977. She was organizing chairman of the Ector County Historical Commission from 1968-1982. She is also a member of the Society of American Archivists, the Permian Basin Civil War Round Table, the Permian Basin Revolutionary War Round Table, Odessa Bicentennial Committee and the Nathaniel Davis Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Orbeck was awarded the Texas Historical Foundation Citation for Distinguished Service in 1966, Permian Historical Society Appreciation Award for leadership, dedication and service in 1982, Odessa Chamber of Commerce Certificate of Appreciation in 1973 and was a nominee for the regional award from Texas in 1982 by the American Association of State and Local History.

She is a professional writer specializing in Permian Basin history, petroleum industry and military history. She is married to James Orbeck, a teacher with the Odessa schools. They have one son, Mark Lindsley, who is married and living in Lubbock.

The Genealogy Society also plans to cut birthday cakes with ten candles to celebrate their tenth birthday. Past presidents will be honored. Visitors are welcome.

AT WIT'S END

Indescribable grief

By ERMA BOMBECK

Grief. It's indescribable. Even if you could put it into words, no one has to be told what it means because we have all been its victims. In recent years, the victims have had to endure still another indignity—the selling of their sorrow.

Year after year, in the name of freedom to know, camera lenses have invaded the most private and sacred part of our lives—the pain of our existence.

A mother kneeling over the battered body of her child and his bicycle. (Tape at 10.) A man emerging from the water with the dangling, pale body of his best friend who has drowned. (Additional pictures on Page 15.) Unspeakable pain in the eyes of a movie star at his wife's funeral. (Cover story begins on page 26.) Numb horror as a woman near collapse watches her husband wheeled out under a sheet after a shooting. (Pictures courtesy of photo pool.)

Those who argue in favor of these intimate glimpses of raw emotion point out that people are mesmerized by the way people handle shock. I am mesmerized by Robert Redford, but that doesn't give me the right to enter his life and watch his every move.

I'm not talking about the coverage of disasters and accidents, I'm talking about the privilege to grieve alone.

Many years ago, a good friend of mine who was a bridesmaid at my wedding endured a tragedy in her family that found its way to the front page of the newspaper. The cameras chronicled the tragedy right up to the gravesite where her father was slowly inched into his grave.

"They took something away from me," she said bitterly. "Something very precious that belonged only to me. The last private moment with my father. I can never get it back again. Why? Why did they do it?"

Why indeed. Did it entertain? Did it inform? Did it fill 15 seconds of vacuum time between sports and weather? Did it feed the curious? Titillate the bizarre?

Seeing pictures of people who despair takes away something from all of us. After awhile, the sight of blood, a funeral, or a stretcher becomes so commonplace that we no longer flinch from shock or feel the pain.

Sorrow sells. But can we afford it?

A good name doesn't change

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — Barbara and Richard Rossman operate a small store here where mostly coal-burning stoves for home heating are sold.

Rossman, a high-school science teacher, and his wife started their business in their home selling only wood-burning stoves. They chose "The Wood Box" for a company name. The Rossmans moved the business into a separate store here two years ago.

Although 75 percent of their business is selling coal stoves, they kept their original name, The Wood Box.

Indoor plants need special watering

STREAMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Indoor plants, like those outdoors, require a watering schedule that varies according to the seasons, says the maker of Garden Scene planterware.

In the fall and winter, indoor plants can require watering less than once a week, explained Richard Husby, marketing manager. "During the summer months, the same plants can require watering more than once a week," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Best gift may be a little presence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you offered some suggestions on what to give the older person for Christmas. Unfortunately, it was no help to me. My problem is what to give my mother-in-law. She's 74, widowed and living in a condo in Palm Beach, Fla.

This woman has jewelry, clothing, knickknacks, perfume — name it and she has it. And what she doesn't have, she can go out and buy. — OUT OF IDEAS IN N.Y.C.

DEAR OUT: She can't buy a charm for her bracelet (or necklace) with a personal inscription on it from you. And she can't buy a new picture of you and her son — and your children, if you have any. And she can't buy thoughtful letters from you during the year to let her know that you are thinking of her — which would be far more precious than one expensive store-bought gift at Christmas.

DEAR ABBY: Because of you, Christmas was a lot merrier this year. Last year my husband drove me crazy sitting around the house doing nothing. He had just retired at age 65, was in good health, and didn't know what to do with himself. He'd worked hard all his life and never had time to cultivate any hobbies.

I kiddingly suggested he write to you, and he did. You told him to offer his services to some volunteer group, and you named a few. He called the Crippled Children's Society and was given the names of some handicapped children who needed transportation to and from the therapy clinic. He's never been happier.

Aren't men peculiar? They'll listen to advice from a stranger, but just let their wives tell them the same thing and they'll say she's off her rocker.

Thanks, Abby. You gave me the best Christmas present I've had in years. — ANGIE

DEAR ANGIE: Don't mention it. Greet your wonderful husband for me, and thank him for giving me this opportunity to remind others that they, too, can improve the quality of their retirement years by volunteering their services. Everybody can do something.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Hungarian-born woman, 48, and am told that I am very beautiful. However, I have always had a tendency to be slightly plumpish. If I lose weight, my face will sag and become haggard. If I keep my face full and wrinkle-free, then my figure will be too full.

So since I can't have both, which should I choose? — ILLONA FROM BUDAPEST

DEAR ILLONA: Choose your face, and sit down.

Are face lifts without surgery possible?

By BEA PIXA
Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Most prominent medical specialists are pretty well convinced that face lifting without surgery is impossible.

Peggy Tom and Joseph Saffon, however, are convinced the specialists are wrong.

Tom, a licensed cosmetologist and barber, owns the Nob Hill Barber Shop in the Mark Hopkins Hotel here, where she is introducing a battery-operated stimulator that works on acupuncture points (using a gentle electrical current instead of needles), purportedly lifting facial muscles while softening or eliminating lines.

As muscle firmness is re-established, supposedly, the sagging skin is corrected.

Saffon, author of "Youthlift" (Warner Publishers) claims his facial exercises, performed as a daily ritual, will restore a youthful appearance to muscles that have drooped with age.

His list of clients include such glamour queens as Sophia Loren, Grace Kelly, Rita Hayworth, Jennifer Jones, Cher and Marlene Dietrich.

To claims such as those made by Saffon and Tom, many medical professionals are skeptical.

But not all medical people. Saffon's book carries a preface by Willibald Nagler, M.D., of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, which states in part, "Interestingly, facial exercise is helpful both without a face-lift or in conjunction with a face-lift. I believe that facial exercise works. It does a great deal to tone the facial and neck muscles, to give the face a look of firm and youthful energy, and to help normalize contours."

Saffon answers his medical critics by pointing out that "I've never lost a patient, and I've never lost a client through anesthesia, and I've never had a malpractice suit. There's no way of somebody 'going sour' with facial exercises. I can't say the same thing about plastic surgery."

He maintains the exercises will work for people of all age groups, and, if done faithfully, will bring results to all parts of the face except the areas underneath the eyes that contain little lumps "due to herniated fat, which can only be removed surgically."

He accuses detractors of obdurately refusing "to see what the results are," and suggests they may be unwilling to explore his methods further because it would not be of value for them to do so.

Nonetheless, dermatologist Theodore Tromovitch, a clinical professor of dermatology at UC-San Francisco, maintains that hoping to do a face-lift by working the muscle tones is "impossible. If you just look at somebody who has sagging skin, and if you have them contract their face muscles by grimacing, the sag is still there. If building up the muscles were going to do something, you should see a great effect just by grimacing and you don't. The problem is that the skin has sagged."

Tromovitch says he has had a number of patients who have done facial exercises "and they have either done nothing or increased their wrinkles, particularly between the eyes and forehead. Wrinkles, in certain areas, have been caused by muscle contraction." To emphasize his point, he adds, "Put your head back. You're stretching the skin. Grab the skin and chew and even then, the skin doesn't tighten."

Plastic surgeon Vince Pennisi, also associated with UC-SF, takes Tromovitch's contention a step further. He says that facial exercising may "even promote the need for a facelift. They're the worst thing you can do. Facelifting becomes necessary when the skin is stretched. There's no way to do it without surgery. The problem is not due to the laxity of the muscles, unless the patient has a facial paralysis. The problem is the skin itself, which loses its elasticity and becomes overstretched."

Plastic surgeon John Owsley insists, "There isn't any evidence that any kind of electrical or acupuncture stimulation will tighten the skin on a permanent basis. Anatomically, it doesn't really sound possible."

Saffon argues, "we give credence to exercising from the neck down. Why not from the neck up? Physical fitness people say you can tone your belly, arms, everything else. Why not the muscles in your face?"

Saffon says the methods he uses are modeled after those used by his father, a plastic surgeon. He adds he would "gladly work with any university or physician's group who wanted to do a study on the benefits of facial exercise."

He says clients report visible results in three weeks, though he feels three to six months is a more realistic time span for most people. Some people, he adds, have also reported that the daily exercises have relieved migraine headaches and corrected vision problems.

Despite all the medical disclaimers, both Saffon and Tom can point to satisfied customers.

Several of Tom's clients spoke openly about their "lifts" but asked not to be identified. One woman says she was halfway through the 10-session treatment program when her skeptical husband commented on some improvement. "It's firming my face. I can feel the difference with my fingers. I have the same wrinkles but they're lessened and there's definitely been an uplifting. I have a better look, but not necessarily a younger look."

Tom admits the end result of the treatment is not as dramatic as a surgical lift. "Most of the comments from friends are that my clients looked relaxed or rested, or like they've been on vacation. They might get remarks like, 'Did you change your hairdo? Something's different.' The results are very subtle."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Handle correction fluid with care

DEAR HELOISE:

One of our secretaries spilled white, water-base correction fluid down the side of her skirt. She was unable to get it out, so she decided to write to the manufacturer for advice.

Since so many of us are office workers using this product, thought you might be interested in the reply.

"Once water-base correction fluid has dried, it usually cannot be removed. A professional dry cleaner may be able to make the stain less noticeable. However, if you do take it to the cleaners, tell them what the stain is."

"If you should ever spill this correction fluid on other garments, immediately flush the area with water before the correction fluid dries. This may prevent a permanent stain on your clothing." — D. Hall

Thank you for passing this info along to the rest of us girl-Friday types, because this is good to know in case we find ourselves in a similar situation. Accidents do happen, don't they...

This same advice will apply to almost any stain. The sooner it is treated, the less likely you'll have permanent staining. — Hugs, Heloise

PAN COATING

Dear Heloise: You will not have "flying flour" when preparing cake pans if you do as European women do and don't use flour...

Instead, grease the pans liberally with shortening and coat lightly with fine bread crumbs.

Installment credit rising slowly

By The Associated Press

Americans were cautious in taking on new debt in November, opting instead to pay off old bills at a record pace, the government says.

Consumers added only $342 million to their installment debt load in November, the smallest increase since outstanding consumer credit fell $1.2 billion in July 1980, the Federal Reserve Board reported Monday. Outstanding installment debt grew by an adjusted $1.01 billion in October.

The November figure was "a reaffirmation that there was a significant recession in the fourth quarter" of 1981, said Lacy Hunt, chief economist with Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia.

The Fed report covers relatively short-term debts, including bank credit cards, department store charge cards, travel cards and loans such as those financing the purchase of cars. It does not include long-term debts such as home loans.

Hunt pointed to other economic indicators — such as orders for manufactured durable goods — that have been showing more strength recently. "In spite of the (debt) number, the recession is still winding down," he said.

Meanwhile, crucial contract talks between Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. opened Monday in Detroit, with the automakers demanding concessions they believe are essential to the industry's survival.

In other developments Monday:

— The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, representing 55,000 oil refinery workers, agreed to a new two-year contract with Gulf Oil Corp. The pact includes a 16 percent pay raise and improvements in other benefits, but a no-layoff provision the union had wanted was not included. "We expect this to set a pattern for the industry," said union spokesman Jerry Archuleta.

— As expected, seven U.S. steelmakers filed a score of unfair trade suits against European steel companies. The suits accuse foreign producers of dumping — selling steel in America at prices below the cost of production — and of using government subsidies to illegally reduce many of those prices.

— President Reagan left Republican congressional leaders uncertain about whether he will call for increased taxes. Reagan has looked to spending cuts for slashing the bulging federal deficit, but some economists and congressmen say tax hikes also are unavoidable if the shortfall is to be lowered.

The auto contract talks are taking place amid the worst industry slump in half a century. Bargainers from both sides hope to have a pact in less than two weeks to replace parts of the current contracts, which don't expire until Sept. 14.

Little relief foreseen for savings industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief federal regulator of the nation's savings and loan associations foresees little relief this year for the financially battered industry.

Richard Pratt, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said in an interview Monday that he expected "modest savings flows (to the savings and loans) and continued earnings pressure" on the industry in 1982.

This year will be the "second year of a tough situation (and) ... just living under those unfavorable circumstances has an enervating effect," he said.

The savings and loan industry suffered unprecedented financial losses in 1981 due to high interest rates and inflation, which are forcing S&Ls to pay more to borrow money than they are receiving from old mortgage officials.

Bank board officials estimate that 70 percent of the approximately 4,000 federally insured savings and loans in the United States have experienced losses.

Pratt predicted a bleak future for the industry if interest rates continue to be high and Congress doesn't act to give the industry authority to operate more like commercial banks.

"If there were an extended period of high interest rates and no relief in terms of giving the industry better competitive powers, the existence of the industry would be jeopardized," he said.

Pratt also predicted that the government would provide financial assistance this year in a greater number of mergers of troubled institutions and healthier ones than it did in 1981. But he did not expect the government to be forced this year to shut down any association and pay off depositors, as it did in 1981.

"I don't anticipate any liquidation (but) it's an option that could always occur," he said.

UAW will seek further concessions

DETROIT (AP) — Union contracts must be revised dramatically if the slumping automobile industry is to avoid "the death knell," a Ford Motor Co. labor relations official says.

Ford and General Motors Corp. officials, meeting with United Auto Workers' union representatives on company demands for major contract concessions, say they need substantial reductions in labor costs to become more competitive with foreign manufacturers.

But UAW President Douglas Fraser emphasized Monday the union would seek its own concessions from the companies, especially on job security.

Fraser was scheduled to make the union's opening presentation to GM today in a meeting at GM headquarters in Detroit. Talks at Ford headquarters in suburban Dearborn also were to resume today.

The highly unusual talks, which began Monday, come six months before traditional midsummer negotiations and during the worst industry slump in half a century.

Bargainers from the union and both companies said Monday they hope to have an agreement in less than two weeks to replace the current contracts, which do not expire until Sept. 14.

"To fail to do anything is to write the death knell for a good part of this industry," said Peter Pestillo, Ford's vice president for labor relations.

After meeting with UAW negotiators Monday, Alfred Warren Jr., GM's vice president for industrial relations, declined to identify any proposals the carmaker would make. But he said GM was "prepared to discuss almost any avenue they (union leaders) care to discuss."

The companies are expected to demand that autoworkers surrender paid personal holidays they have enjoyed since 1977. It costs GM 50 cents an hour per worker to give employees paid days off and replace them from a pool of standby employees, industry experts say. Negotiations also could focus on company-paid insurance, health care and pensions.

Beside job protection, the union also will seek a seat on the Ford and GM boards of directors, a greater voice in the companies' decisionmaking and some kind of profit sharing, according to Fraser and Don Ephlin, UAW vice president and head of the union's Ford department.

"It's not one-way pressure here," said Fraser, himself a director of Chrysler Corp. "We're willing to be innovative. We're willing to explore any possibility."

Fraser insisted he did not "see any prospect at all" of the talks extending past Jan. 23 — the date the union's GM and Ford bargaining councils meet.

Douglas Fraser

United Auto Workers seek 'local content' legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another half million jobs could be lost in auto-related industries by 1985 unless Congress enacts so-called "local content" legislation, a United Auto Workers' official says.

"Without a local content law that mandates significant U.S. automotive investment by U.S. and foreign-based companies, we envision an industrial catastrophe of unprecedented proportions," said Lee Price, of the UAW research staff.

Local content requirements would limit the amount of imported parts used in U.S.-built cars.

Price testified Monday before the Senate subcommittee on employment and productivity. The hearings were to resume today.

Price said employment by automakers and their suppliers dropped from 2.6 million in 1978 to 2.2 million in 1980. "We face further rapid erosion of employment unless the government takes action," he said.

The UAW predicted that without local content restrictions, auto imports, which amounted to 25 percent of the U.S. market in 1981, would rise to 35 percent or more by 1985, and the domestically-produced content of U.S.-made cars would drop from about 97 percent in 1981 to 85 percent over the same period.

Such an invasion of the domestic auto market from abroad would result in loss of more than 200,000 "core auto jobs" and 380,000 associated manufacturing jobs, Price said.

Other UAW proposals were that the government improve, rather than scrap, the present worker adjustment assistance program and offer a "scrapage bounty" to encourage Americans to junk older cars.

"Something must be done about monetary policy," the UAW statement said. "The health of the auto industry depends on the availability of an adequate supply of credit at reasonable rates of interest."

Other witnesses, including John M. Mutz, lieutenant governor of Indiana, urged expanding worker retraining programs.

Mutz said Congress "should get the block grant program for vocational education and training moving."

"Many of the 37,000 people who have lost jobs in the Indiana auto plants over the past three years will never return to their previous work," Mutz said. "They need to be retrained to become employable again."

Many idled auto workers who started retraining programs are finding their benefits are running out, he said.

Mutz called for an extension of the Trade Adjustment Act to provide benefits for "as long as an unemployed breadwinner is in school."

Mutz said he would like to see the federal government "redirect some of its defense spending" into high unemployment areas.

Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., who conducted the hearing, said Michigan, Ohio and Indiana have been particularly hard hit by the auto industry slump, with more than 150,000 auto industry jobs lost and 17 plants closed.

For some, it's not-so-Super Bowl

By ANN JOB WOOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Pro football's "big party" is coming to town with its limousines and fur coats, but some people here hold little hope that much Super Bowl money will trickle down to Pontiac, where one-quarter of the workers are unemployed.

The northern Detroit suburb of Pontiac, where Super Bowl XVI between the Cincinnati Bengals and San Francisco 49ers will be played Jan. 24, had a 23.9 percent unemployment rate in October, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission's latest figures.

That means 10,900 people were unemployed, out of a workforce of more than 45,000 in the city. The area is heavily dependent on the slumping auto industry.

The Super Bowl "is going to be a big party, but nothing can take your mind off unemployment," said Marlene Smith, an assembly line worker at General Motors Corp.'s Pontiac division engine plant who will be laid off Friday for the second time in nine years.

"When your unemployment benefits run out and you no longer have (health) insurance and you're facing not being able to pay your bills... how can you take your mind off those things?" she said.

Ms. Smith, who was laid off from December 1973 to July 1976, blamed her layoff this year on large supplies of unsold cars.

For the six-county Detroit metropolitan area, the number of jobless totaled 255,300 people in October. The state's unemployment rate was 14.4 percent in December, the highest of the nation's 10 largest states, the MESC said.

Super Bowl planners say the game will help change the area's image.

The Michigan Host Committee for the Super Bowl estimates about 70,000 out-of-state visitors will attend the football championship game, spending $60 million, said Debi Hart, director of public relations for the committee.

Ms. Hart said visitors will spend $190 a day on room, meals, transportation and entertainment. She estimated individuals will spend $30.4 million, with group expenses providing $21.6 million.

Officials at the MESC, which tries to find jobs for the unemployed, said the Super Bowl won't make much of a difference.

"They may hire a few extra waitresses, bartenders and taxicab drivers for a couple weeks, but I can't imagine any long-term changes," said MESC spokesman Tim Nicholson.

Bob Bergstrand, assistant director of the Family and Children Services of Oakland, a counseling agency funded by the local United Way, said his clients don't think the Super Bowl "relates to them."

"So, it's the Super Bowl, so what?" he said. "Their lives will be the same in February as it is now."

"The truth is no one will get rich in one weekend," acknowledged Dawn Lynch, special events coordinator at Detroit Renaissance Inc., a non-profit civic group helping to plan Super Bowl activities.

State Sen. John Hertel, a Democrat from the Detroit suburb of Harper Woods and a longtime foe of the Silverdome, the stadium where the game will be played, contended that laid-off workers will be "more resentful than they already are."

"They're going to see people pull up in limousines, wearing fur coats," he said. "The thing is pretty outrageous."

Also, only 10,000 Super Bowl tickets have been allotted for state residents, although Michigan taxpayers have subsidized the Silverdome since construction on the $55.7 million stadium began in 1973, he said. The stadium's annual subsidy is $800,000.

An additional 800 tickets went to Detroit Lions players and staff and 1,200 went to owners of boxes at the Silverdome.

Claus von Bulow leaves Newport, R.I., Superior Court Monday after being arraigned for the attempted murder of his wife. von Bulow pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Stepchildren, mistress may be called in trial

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Up to 73 witnesses, including Claus von Bulow's stepchildren and reputed mistress, may be called by prosecutors attempting to prove the financial consultant twice tried to kill his heiress-wife at their Newport mansion.

Prosecutor Stephen Famiglietti read off the list of potential witnesses Monday in Superior Court as jury selection began in the case against the Danish-born von Bulow.

Famiglietti said he also may call to the witness stand several employees of Newport Hospital, where Martha "Sunny" von Bulow was taken after being stricken Dec. 20, 1980, and Maria Schallhammer, her personal maid whose suspicions led to the investigation and charges against von Bulow.

"I am not guilty," von Bulow, 55, said when the charges were read in court Monday. He made no other comment aside from giving his name, address and date of birth.

Mrs. von Bulow, 50, an heiress to a Pittsburgh utilities fortune has been comatose for more than a year in a New York City hospital, allegedly after her husband injected her with insulin and barbiturates. She is not expected to recover.

THE STATE SAYS von Bulow injected the drugs into his wife during Christmas visits to their estate, Clarendon Court, in 1979 and 1980.

The defense contends Mrs. von Bulow, who suffers from the chronic condition of low blood sugar called hypoglycemia, triggered the coma herself by indulging in sweets and alcohol.

Once a leading hostess in Newport's wealthy summer colony, her estate is estimated at $35 million or more.

Of 132 Newport County residents in the jury call — twice the normal number — 101 were asked to return after Monday's initial screening. Three had valid reasons for not appearing and 28 more were excused by Needham after conferences in his chambers.

He cautioned the prospective jurors against reading or listening to news accounts of the case and also instructed them on the mental attitude they should bring to the trial.

Needham said they would be wrong to think the defendant "must be a little bit guilty or else he wouldn't be here. That is the improper state of mind."

The judge divided the pool into three groups of 25 and one group of 26 and told the groups to report on succeeding days of the week as needed.

Needham has said he expects the selection to be completed by Friday.

Von Bulow pleaded innocent to the charges in August, but Needham said it is his practice to repeat the arraignment "so you may hear him reaffirm his plea of not guilty."

Texas officials may extend filing deadline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas election officials are thinking about extending the Feb. 1 filing deadline for congressional and legislative candidates because of redistricting challenges.

Redistricting plans for Texas members of the Legislature and Congress have been sent to the U.S. Justice Department for the necessary final approval.

Secretary of State David Dean said he is "encouraged" the department will rule on the 181 state Senate and House districts and the 27 congressional districts before Feb. 1.

However, each of the redistricting plans is tied up in at least one court test, and other challenges could be filed after the Justice Department acts. The congressional redistricting plan, drawn by a special legislative session, was tried before an Austin federal court. The judges said they would rule after the Justice Department acts. The state Senate plan was upheld in an Austin district court.

Libya got CIA agents by 'unspoken blackmail'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fugitive ex-CIA agent Frank Terpil says he and former agent Edwin Wilson got CIA personnel and contacts for their supply missions and terrorist-training in Libya by using "unspoken blackmail."

In an interview televised Monday night by the Public Broadcasting Service, Terpil also said, "We had people besides CIA employees; we had active duty Special Forces people." He did not, however, mention any names.

"Wilson and myself collectively had enough information and intelligence on current and past operations that would prove to be of great embarrassment to the United States government," Terpil said.

But, he added, "There were never any overtures made to threaten the CIA, at least on my behalf — it was an unspoken blackmail."

BOTH TERPIL AND Wilson are under indictment in the United States on charges of supplying Libyan Leader Moammar Khadafy with arms and training services in the late 1970s.

PBS, in its 90-minute program titled "Frank Terpil: Confessions of a Dangerous Man," said that two intermediaries had approached the White House and Senate with an offer from Terpil to trade highly sensitive information on State Department, White House and CIA officials for a reduction in his sentence.

CIA spokesman Dale Peterson said today he was not aware of the reported offer to trade information in exchange for reducing Terpil's sentence.

In response to Terpil's allegation about using "unspoken blackmail," Peterson said, "All I can say is that the CIA was not involved in his activities in any way."

Asked whether CIA employees may have been used by Terpil, Peterson said, "We can only speak authoritatively for the agency — we had no official involvement in his activities."

Terpil said in the interview that the operation he ran with Wilson "was useful to the CIA because it would give them knowledge" of Khadafy's plans.

PBS SAID THE interview took place in Beirut, Lebanon, last year, but did not say when. Terpil reportedly disappeared on Nov. 7 in the company of three purported Syrian intelligence agents.

Terpil and another associate, George G. Korkala, were sentenced in 1980 to up to 56 years in prison after being convicted of conspiring to sell machine guns to undercover agents posing as South American revolutionaries.

Both were tried in absentia after jumping $100,000 bail each.

Armstrong seeks PUC elections

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Democratic candidate for governor Bob Armstrong has said he supports electing instead of appointing members of the state Public Utility Commission.

At a Monday news conference, Armstrong, 49, who currently serves as Land Commissioner, said an elected commission would fend off rate hikes and bring the PUC "closer to the people."

He suggested regional elections of between six and nine commissioners.

"I believe it's time to put some good American democracy into the regulation of monopolies in Texas," Armstrong said. "In states that elect utility regulators, there's a closer relationship with the people instead of the utilities."

Armstrong said a recent $250 million rate hike for Southwestern Bell is one reason he favors electing commissioners.

"With the divestiture of Southwestern Bell from AT&T, the company already is talking about come back to the PUC for additional increases on local rates," he said. "These companies are entitled to make a profit, but the paramount duty of the commission should be to protect ratepayers."

Texas utility stocks are considered a good investment by Wall Street brokers, because "our PUC is considered to be oriented toward utility investors and bond ratings," said Armstrong.

Interim charter expected to be approved

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Banking has received an application for an "interim charter" for "Midland Bank," to allow acquisition of Western State Bank, Midland, by Consolidated Bancshares, Inc., Abilene.

Interim charters are a commonly-used device to allow acquisition of an existing bank by a bank holding company through exchange of stock.

The State Banking Board is expected to approve the interim charter request at a voting session later this month.

Operators stake eight wildcats in 8, 8A

Eight new wildcats, and a re-entry, has been staked in district 8 and 8A counties.

ECTOR TEST

The No. 1 Frank Cowden will be drilled by Paloma Exploration, Breckenridge, five miles north of Goldsmith. The scheduled 9,500-foot wildcat will be drilled in a relatively untested pocket surrounded by intensive production in numerous fields.

The test, with completions planned in the Cowden, North and the Emma fields, is 1/2 mile north of the Stano-lind No. 1-B Cowden, dry and abandoned May, 1944, at 10,523 feet.

GAINES RE-ENTRY

Laguna Petroleum Corp., Midland, will re-enter and plug back to 5,900 feet, the No. 1 Hunt, 10 miles east of Seminole.

The location is 649 feet from the south, and 796 feet from the east line of section 124, block H, D&WRR survey.

The project was originally Humble Oil Co.'s No. 1 Hunt Unit, a 10,750-foot, plugged and abandoned, Sept. 12, 1963.

GLASSCOCK WILDCAT

An 11,700-foot wildcat has been planned 13.02 miles northwest of Garden City by Davis Oil Company, Houston.

The No. 1 Lots Bialock "A" is 660 feet from the north and 660 feet from the west line of section 8, block 35, T-3-S, T&P survey.

The drillsite is surrounded by scattered production in the various Bialock field, but will be drilled deeper by two or three thousand feet.

HOCKLEY PROSPECT

Anderson Petroleum Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1-22 Jeff H. Davis, a 10,500-foot wildcat, 10 1/2 miles southeast of Levelland.

It is 525 feet from the south, and 1,120 feet from the west line of labor 22, league 21, McCulloch CSL.

The drillsite is within the Ropes, West field, but will be drilled about 700 feet below the Ropes production.

HOWARD VENTURE

Bonray Energy Corp., Oklahoma

City, will drill the No. 1 Simpson, an 8,200-foot wildcat, approximately 4 1/2 miles southeast of Vealmoor.

The site is 2,440 feet from the north, and 467 feet from the west line of section 46, block 32, T-3-N, T&P survey.

PECOS SEARCHERS

Keystone Oil Co. Inc., Abilene, has scheduled a 1,750-foot wildcat test seven miles west of Pecos.

Designated the No. 1-B Douglas, the project, also scheduled to test the Yates (Smith sand), is 2,060 feet from the north, and 820 feet from the west line of section 3, block 194, TCR survey.

****

TXO Production Corp., Midland, has scheduled the No. 1 Todd "C", a 5,700-foot wildcat 11 miles southeast of Girvin.

The project is scheduled to test the El Cinco (Wichita Albany), the El Cinco (Leonard, lower) and the Huber (5050 Wolfcamp) fields.

It is 850 feet from the north, and 950 feet from the east line of section 71, block 194, GC&SF survey.

The site is about 1 3/4 miles south of the tiny Huber field, which produces from an average depth of 5,345 feet.

PRESIDIO LONER

Miller Brothers, Monahans, will drill the No. 1 Thomas 150, a 6,200-foot wildcat, 10 miles northwest of Marfa.

The rank wildcat is 990 feet from the south, and 990 feet from the west line of section 150, block 2, T&P survey.

It is 11 miles northwest of Tucker Drilling Co.'s No. 1 H.B. Holmes Jr., a 6,020-foot project, dry and abandoned April 9, 1968.

REEVES PROSPECT

Texaco Inc., Midland, will drill a 15,800-foot wildcat, six miles southwest of Orta.

The No. 1 Chapman West Unit is 1,320 feet from the north, and 1,320 feet from the west line of section 44, block 57, T-2, T&P survey.

It appears this well will be drilled much deeper than anything else in the vicinity.

Groups attack plan to cut energy audit program

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ambitious government program to curb energy use by requiring utilities to conduct low-cost residential energy audits is in danger of being sunk by the Reagan administration, consumer groups say.

The groups are attacking plans to scale back rules governing the program, which affects the country's 60 million homes, saying the changes will hurt the program's effectiveness.

But the Energy Department said the changes are in line with the Reagan administration's belief that government should get out of the energy business, leaving such efforts to private enterprise.

Under a law passed in 1978, electric and natural gas utilities are required to offer their residential customers low-cost audits showing how such things as extra insulation, storm windows and weather-stripping can cut down on utility bills. A trained auditor is required to do an attic-to-basement review of the home to look for problems.

The Energy Department was slow in developing regulations for the program, and it was not until 1981 that utilities in most states began offering the audits. In all, 41 states now have DOE approval to run audit programs.

However, the Reagan administration is now proposing to revise the rules under which programs have been set up.

At a hearing on the issue Monday, consumer groups said the changes would leave little more than a shell of the original program.

Consumer groups were particularly upset with proposals that would:

—Do away with training requirements for the auditors and give states the power to set standards for energy conservation materials.

—Abolish requirements that utilities perform spot checks to ensure that contractors installing insulation and doing other home improvements are meeting standards. Robert Hemphill Jr., an official of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said this requirement was vital to protect consumers. He said that 60 percent to 70 percent of the installations of solar water heaters failed in the TVA checks.

—Eliminate a requirement that states provide homeowners with lists of qualified contractors and instead allow the utilities to provide such lists. Consumers said utilities would steer homeowners to their own companies offering various home-improvement services, shutting out small businesses doing the same work.

—Abolish requirements that the utilities present their list of recommendations in person.

"The proposed changes would totally undermine the intent of Congress and the goals of this federal program," said Richard Morgan of the Environmental Action Foundation. "Instead of saving money for taxpayers and business, these changes will cost the nation more money through increased imports and higher energy prices."

The Carter administration had estimated that the audits could save homeowners $34 billion in energy bills, but John C. Campbell, an official of the Lone Star Gas Co., said his company had received little response when it began offering the audits in Oklahoma. Campbell said it was unfair to make all customers pay through their utility rates for a service few would use.

But Hemphill said TVA had performed 508,000 audits so far and believed the program more than paid for itself by cutting down on the need for expensive new power plants.

Union, Gulf Oil reach tentative labor agreement

DENVER (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. used "raw power" to win major union concessions in a tentative labor agreement that is expected to avert a nationwide walkout of 55,000 oil refinery workers, the president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union says.

The agreement, which was to be submitted to more than 2,700 Gulf workers within two or three days, provides an average 16 percent wage increase over two years.

The tentative pact was expected to set a pattern for the rest of the industry. Traditionally, Gulf has been the first company to reach agreement with OCAW and other companies quickly followed suit.

"There will not be a nationwide strike unless the others refuse to go along," OCAW President Robert Goss told The Associated Press in an interview Monday night.

Within three hours after the Gulf accord was made public Monday, Shell Oil Co. made a virtually identical offer to its Deer Park, Texas, refinery workers, Goss said. The offer later was rejected because of a local dispute over starting pay. Negotiators were due back at the bargaining table later today.

The pay raise in the tentative agreement was a little over half of what the union had sought, and the accord included neither a no-layoffs clause that Goss had called a key union demand or a scaled-down version of the clause that Goss proposed late last week.

Goss, who hammered out the agreement in weekend bargaining with Gulf officials here, had said the no-layoffs issue was important enough to strike over. But he realized Sunday night that the industry position was firm, "and I did not think a strike would change that."

"I'm not pleased that the industry would not even deal with the most critical issue of job security," Goss said. Asked what he felt Gulf and the other refiners the upper hand in the bargaining, Goss responded: "Raw power."

Goss, who led the union on a 12-week strike in 1980 that was its longest ever, added that "the climate for bargaining was about the worst I've ever seen" because refinery output and consumer demand is down and oil refiners would not suffer seriously in a strike.

About 400 contracts with 98 oil refiners expired Thursday with the union and the companies still far apart on key issues. Goss agreed to a day-by-day extension of the contracts and most OCAW members stayed on the job.

In Port Arthur, Texas, however, more than 5,000 OCAW workers picked the plants there Monday for a four-straight day after the oil companies declined to extend the deadline.

The proposed contract calls for a 9 percent wage increase this year that would raise the average refinery worker's hourly pay from $11.66 to $12.71. In 1983, workers would get another 90 cents an hour.

Rebels seek to unmask 5-5A's Lone Strangers

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

When this zany District 5-5A basketball league cranked up action last week, everyone was saying that tonight's game between Midland High and Abilene High in the Key City was going to be the first real super test of the season.

Well, that prediction hasn't changed all that much since both MHS and AHS are riding at the top of the 5-5A standings as predicted. It is a shootout of major importance, but the league's Lone Strangers will be knocking at the door of Chaparral Center today at 8 p.m., wearing a mask and hoping the Midland Lee Rebels have left their hearts along the banks of the Concho River.

YOU SEE, the Lone Strangers, formerly known as the Abilene Cooper Cougars, are also sitting up there at the top with Midland High and Abilene High. How can that be?

These Strangers entered league play with a miserable 2-14 record. There were league coaches who were saying that any team in the league could win the title except Abilene Cooper.

Well, the Cougars put on their masks and stole the pocket books away from San Angelo and Odessa High last week. And now they look at the 12-7 Rebels, hoping Lee is still nursing the pains of a tough loss to San Angelo last Friday. However, Lee's Rebels, also given a good shot at running for this year's title, are still in control of their own destiny, despite the loss to San Angelo since they still face the three teams riding the top rung in the standings.

The Rebels know they can get back on the track by unmasking the Lone Strangers tonight.

DESPITE THE masks, it is known that Steve Youngblut led the Cougars against San Angelo with a 21-point outing while Kyle Cuddy and James Mantooth, with 11 and 10 points, guided the Strangers past Odessa High.

Lee opened district play with a 44-30 win over OHS, but got nipped at the wire in San Angelo, 63-60. Andre Van Buren with 19 points and Alvin Dunson with 18 led the Rebel scoring attack against San Angelo after 10 point outings against OHS. Van Buren is averaging 18.6 per game while Dunson has a 15.5 average. Center Kenneth Brown seems to improve every time out and has a 7.4 average while Barry Blackwell stands at 7.1. Randy Pepper directs the attack and looks for the assists.

Strange as it may seem, this is the contest that will be heard locally on KBAT-FM radio while we wonder what is happening on the road in Abilene.

Last Friday there were several transistors at Chaparral Center tuned to the Lee-San Angelo game while MHS and Big Spring were on the floor, but we won't have that luxury tonight when AHS meets MHS in a game that will have a big bearing on the district race also.

THIS IS the battle of recognized powers in the league with AHS owning a 16-4 season mark and MHS a 15-4 reading and both unbeaten in league play. Both had anxious moments last week. AHS defeated Odessa Permian 48-47 in overtime while MHS won 60-51 over Big Spring.

Preston Robertson, who is averaging 20.1 per game, scored 14 against Big Spring in his return after an ankle injury. He should improve mobility-wise with every outing. However, Jim Gunnels, the league's leading scorer in district play with outings of 21 and 19 points, is more of a threat in every game. He is averaging 8.4 points per game this year.

Don Sharnowski (13.7) and Raymond Parker (12.9) give the Bulldogs a lot of scoring punch also.

AHS has three players capable of scoring points in Brett Enzor, Shannon Daniel and Simmons. All have been the keys to victory in the previous two district outings.

San Angelo (1-1, 11-7) will try to keep its district hopes alive by facing Odessa High (0-2, 9-11) while Big Spring (0-2, 9-10) meets Odessa Permian (0-2, 7-12) in a game that appears to have little bearing on the first half race.

Chaps storm past Hawks

Tiny 5-6 Spud Webb hits for 23 points

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

BIG SPRING — Spud Webb, all 5-6 of him, defies gravity at times and defies description as well, as he did Monday night as Midland College stormed out of the cold in the last half for an 89-83 victory over Howard College at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

MC trailed at half 43-38 and could be thankful it wasn't a lot worse. The way they were playing was "if this is Monday, it must be Big Spring."

Held to a basket in the first half, Webb scored 21 of his 23 points in the second, but that was almost incidental. The make-something-happen freshman from Dallas was all over the court, once blocking a shot from behind the shooter and tipping the ball away to solo for a layup. As he glided in to the basket he turned his body to block off a pursuing defender and laid the ball in over his head with his back to the basket. That really doesn't do it justice. You just had to be there to see it.

OF COURSE, the second half wasn't a one-man show. The Chaps tightened up their defensive act, their zone forcing the Hawks, who were getting the inside shots in the first half, to scrounge for their buckets and as often as not forcing a turnover before the shot. At the same time, MC became more aggressive on both boards.

After Puntus Wilson, two for 11 from the field in the first half, opened the second half with a basket, 64 Jerome Crowe scored six points on two baskets and two free throws as MC inched to within three, 49-46. Webb hit a jumper and then fed Wilson as the Chaps took a 50-49 lead, the first time they had led since midway through the first half.

It was 53-50 Howard when Crowe hit a rebound, Webb added a three pointer and Wilson converted a tip-in to make it 57-53. Although it was tied at 59 and 61, MC was in charge the rest of the way, taking charge for good as Webb scored on the blocked shot and layup, Wilson's steal led to another Webb basket and Chester Smith scored to make it 67-61.

with 8:08 left.

IN THE second half, Webb had a direct hand in 12 of MC's 19 field goals, prompting Howard College Coach Harold Wilder to concede, "He was the difference in the second half. Our kids are young and inexperienced (all freshmen) and when we got behind in the second half, there was no one to take charge."

By winning, Midland College took over sole possession of second place in the Western Junior College Conference race with a 4-1 record, dropping HC to 3-2.

ALTHOUGH held to one field goal the first half, Webb had five assists and was a big reason Midland led 18-10, but it took the Hawks less than two minutes to wipe that out and take a 28-22 by outscoring MC 18-4 over a three-minute stretch.

James Barnett, who scored 15 of his 19 points in the first half, was almost more than the Chaps could handle. Sixteen Nathan Givins also had 12 of his 20 points. Meanwhile, 6-6 Chester Smith and Lance McCain were keeping MC alive. Smith hit eight of 10 field attempts for 16 points and McCain had an eight point first half while Webb and Wilson were limited to six points between them.

Even so, the Hawks' margin came at the free throw line where they were nine of 12. MC never got to the line in the first half.

SMITH finished with 22 points and Crowe had 14, 10 coming in the last half. Both Wilson and McCain left on fouls with 12 points.

Midland's victory also officially decided the winner of the recent ABC Classic in which the Chaps and Hawks both won two, but failed to play one another.

Midland returns to the Chaparral Center Thursday for a WJCC game against Frank Phillips Thursday night.

MHS, Lee girls snap skids

Janice Littlefield scored 12 of her game-high 26 points in the fourth quarter Monday night and sparked the Midland High Bulldogs to their first District 5-5A victory of the season by defeating Abilene High 56-44 at Chaparral Center.

Ten of Littlefield's points came in the final four minutes of play after the Bulldogs had rallied from a seven-point third quarter deficit to pull even at 44-44.

Trailing 44-40, the Bulldogs got a break when Shelly Parker was fouled on a shot followed by a technical foul on Eagle Tracy Hubbard. Parker hit both free throws and Littlefield connected on the technical shots to tie the game at 44.

AHS WAS hit with a second technical foul seconds later when Eagle Maurine Watkins threw a vicious elbow into Bulldog Penny Griffen. Watkins was ejected from the game by the referee but would have had to leave anyway because it was her fifth foul. Griffen canned one of two charity shots to give MHS a 45-44 lead.

Littlefield then exploded for eight straight points including a three-point play that gave the Bulldogs a 51-44 lead while the MHS defense shut down Abilene. In all, Midland scored 15 unanswered buckets down the final stretch.

The game was a fairly close contest most of the way. In the first quarter AHS took a 14-11 lead and held a 30-24 advantage at the half. The Eagles also won the third quarter by a 10-9 count but lost it in the final frame.

"I thought our press was good in the second half," said MHS coach Jane Young. "Our man-to-man was also very good. We held Tracy Hubbard (scored 22 points on the night) to only four points in the second half and Hubbard is a very good player."

"Janice Littlefield had her best game of the season so far," continued Young. "Sheila (Christian) gave some good assists and I thought Penny (Griffen) played an excellent game. Missy (Larremore) only scored two points but played well defensively and Shelly (Parker) rebounded well."

CHRISTIAN WAS the only other Bulldog to break into double figures with 10 points behind Littlefield's 26 while Hubbard was the only two-digit scorer for Abilene.

The junior varsity game earlier in the evening didn't even get a chance to finish as Midland High took advantage of Abilene High's lack of numbers and too many fouls to post a 48-18 victory.

With 6:10 seconds remaining in the final quarter and with only three Eagle players remaining on the court (four Eagles fouled out), Abilene High pulled out of the game giving the Bulldogs the victory which had already, more or less, been decided.

Margaret Stanley led the Bulldogs scorers with 10 points while Shawna Stokes added nine. Mary Seguin was the leading scorer for Abilene with 12.

MIDLAND LEE'S Rebels were also on the winning side of the score Monday night as they posted a 55-45 victory over Abilene Cooper.

The Rebels took control of the game early by running to a 17-11 first quarter lead and led 35-23 at the half. Cooper fought back a bit in the third quarter by outscoring Lee 14-10 but lost ground again in the fourth as the Rebels won the frame, 10-8.

The victory upped Lee's season record to 13-7 and 3-1 in 5-5A play while Cooper fell to 10-9 and 0-4.

Shun Harris was the big gun for Lee with 21 points while Yshun King added 13. Carla Seldon was the only double digit scorer for Cooper with 19.

IN OTHER District 5-5A games Monday night, San Angelo ran its conference mark to 4-0 by defeating Odessa High (1-3, 65-45). The Bobcats received 29 points from Elsa Ornelas while Karen Wallace scored 15 for OHS. Odessa Permian (4-0) kept pace with San Angelo by defeating Big Spring (1-3, 71-58).

Wood files against ABC

SAN ANGELO, TEXAS (AP) — For 3 1/2 months Gordon Wood refused to think, talk or speculate about his ongoing tussle with the American Broadcasting Company.

After all, it was football season and Wood had to give all his attention to the Brownwood Lions.

But with the season ended, and another Class 4A state championship added to his already-full trophy case, Wood turned his concentration again to the television producers who tried to "ambush" him on live national television Sept. 15.

Wood took his case to court Monday, filing a damage suit against the television network and the producers of its morning news-information show, "Good Morning America."

"Well, it (filing) is a relief," said Wood, winner of more football games than any other high school coach in Texas history. "It would be a weight off my mind if the whole thing were behind me."

Wood's problems with the network began when he was interviewed during a segment of "Good Morning America" dealing with violence in sports.

Host David Hartman then introduced a film clip which he said showed Wood. The coach in the film was seen cursing, beating and slapping his players.

After the clip ended, Hartman turned to Wood and asked how he could "justify such behavior."

"That wasn't me," said the surprised Wood. And, sure enough, ABC officials later admitted it wasn't.

"For a month after it happened, I couldn't function as a coach," said Wood, interviewed at his home in Brownwood by telephone. "Everyone was calling me, wanting to know what I was going to do. I finally had to leave my office and set up in a shop building just to get away and prepare for football games."

Wood's attorney, Gary Stephens of Houston, filed the lawsuit Monday in San Angelo U.S. District Court. It asks $10,000 actual damages, the same amount in punitive damages and the opportunity for Wood to appear on the program again, but on his own terms.

Texas stuns NCAA with court order

HOUSTON (AP) — Football television rights, the subject of a court action sprung on a startled NCAA convention by Texas, remained the No. 1 issue as more than 1,200 delegates settled back into their seats.

Delegates adjourned Monday's opening session thinking the key television proposals, Nos. 45, 46 and 47 on the convention agenda, would not be dealt with because of a restraining order obtained by Texas and served late Monday morning.

The order enjoined the convention from discussing or voting on the football television proposals because the University of Texas has a suit pending in state court in Austin challenging the NCAA's controls.

But NCAA attorneys scrambled to state themselves, and by 5:15 p.m. had persuaded a second state judge to vacate the order.

"What a day," one delegate said Monday night.

"You have a lot of these days at NCAA conventions," said another.

In another development Monday, Wichita State received its sixth public NCAA penalty, the most in collegiate history. Given a three-year probation, the 18th-ranked Shockers are barred from post-season tournaments this season and next and allowed only 14 basketball scholarships, one fewer than otherwise permitted, the next two years.

Besides the television proposals, which are expected to be decided in the NCAA's favor, delegates will decide on a variety of important issues before the three-day meeting concludes Wednesday.

These include rules to allow coaches to conduct tryouts for high school prospects; to let a player sell four complimentary tickets to each home game at face value, but not to sell them back to their school; to empower the Infractions Committee to fine rule-breaking schools as much as $50,000; and to let players whose schools are barred from post-season play for the remainder of their eligibility to transfer without sitting out a year.

The Texas action took the convention by complete surprise and angered many NCAA supporters among the 753 member schools. NCAA executive director Walter Byers and other Association officers were served with the order, issued last Friday by Judge Charles Mathews of the 200th District Court of Travis County, Texas, in Austin.

The order to vacate was given by Judge Harley Clark of the 250th Judicial District Court in Austin.

Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia were among the most militant big-time football powers who sought unsuccessfully to take football television controls away from the NCAA last year.

Texas contended its case would be "irreparably damaged" if the football television proposals were resolved. NCAA lawyers argued to Clark that the courts should not interfere in the affairs of voluntary organizations except in extreme circumstances.

Word of the temporary restraining order spread through the convention just as the morning session was breaking up for the annual "Honors Luncheon."

Byers, in a hastily called news conference, said NCAA lawyers were already at work on getting the order overturned.

Byers said he thought it "peculiar" that the order was issued on Friday but kept secret until Monday.

"I think it's astonishing that a great educational institution like Texas would engage in such a procedure," he said.

Charles M. Neinas, executive director of the College Football Association, which led the challenge against NCAA television controls last year, said even he was unaware of the temporary restraining order.

Ron Brown, Texas' vice president for student affairs, said there was no attempt to keep the order a secret for three days.

"You can't get constables over the weekend," Brown said.

Texas delegates said Monday night they had no comment on the overturning of the order. John Toner, NCAA secretary-treasurer and athletic director at Connecticut, said most delegates were angered by Texas' unexpected action.

"I just feel so disappointed that a member school felt it had to do this sort of thing and spring it on their associates at the latest hour possible, and then expect these couple of thousand people would be able to deal with the matter in an objective fashion," Toner said.

Victory cigar explodes in A&M's face

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf saw his team cruising along with a comfortable lead late against Texas Tech and ordered up the four-corner offense, a slowdown game designed to let a team coast home with a minimum of risk.

Metcalf may have thought he was lighting a symbolic victory cigar, a la Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics, but it exploded in his face when Tech plundered the Aggies for late turnovers and free shots, snatching a 68-64 Southwest Conference win Monday night.

"Tech went into a half-court trap and we tried to dribble through the double team rather than passing over it," said Metcalf. "We did a lot of things right to lose the game."

The Aggies were in command, 53-46, when Metcalf called for the slowdown game with eight minutes to play.

It was remarkably similar to A&M's Saturday night game when Metcalf ordered the four-corners early in the first half and the Aggies had to scramble for a narrow, 47-46 win against Baylor.

"We played hard every game this season and it kinda balanced off tonight," said Tech coach Gerald Myers, referring to a bitter, 78-68 loss to the Houston Cougars two nights previous.

"We lost that game against Houston Saturday night and it was hard on our players," he said. "We were really figuring on taking that one and having a tough time down here."

Now, says Metcalf, the Aggies must determine for themselves what kind of year this will be.

"The rest of our season depends on how we react to this," Metcalf said. "We spent a lot of time practicing against what finally got to us. It's a mystery to me, but I've got to hand it to Tech. They came out in the second half and beat us. They had just lost two close games and they came here and beat us — and we had everything going our way."

The game lifted Tech to a 10-4 season mark, 2-2 in SWC play. The Aggies dropped to 9-4 and 2-1.

No other SWC team was in action Monday night. Tonight's schedule finds Texas at Houston, Southern Methodist at Baylor and Rice hosting non-conference opponent Texas-San Antonio.

Tigers move to AP's No. 2

By The Associated Press

Missouri Coach Norm Stewart found out early that respect doesn't always with a No. 2 ranking. As a matter of fact, Mother Nature really did a number on his Tigers.

"We had to practice in the dark today," Stewart said in a telephone interview Monday night after being told Missouri had taken over the No. 2 position behind North Carolina in the latest Associated Press college basketball poll.

Record low temperatures were recorded across Missouri last weekend and power outages that occurred throughout the state also hit the campus.

"The weather has closed the school and we had to use auxiliary lights to practice, but we couldn't have played a game," Stewart said. "There was a photographer there who tried to take pictures with a flash. I'd like to see if they came out."

Stewart, however, believes things will heat up for Missouri this week as the Tigers have games with Big Eight rivals Oklahoma State and Nebraska and a Sunday showdown with No. 17 Louisville.

"The conference games are more important to us than Sunday's game with Louisville," said Stewart, who added, "Louisville is insignificant to us from a coaching standpoint."

North Carolina, which survived a challenge from Virginia last week in a battle of the nation's top ranked teams, was again a nearly unanimous choice in the poll. The Tar Heels, who edged then-No. 2 Cavaliers 65-60 last Saturday, received 58 of 59 first-place votes and 1,179 points — one shy of perfection — from the nationwide panel of sport writers and broadcasters.

Spradling paces Tulsa win

By The Associated Press

Phil Spradling missed a couple of games because of an appendix operation. It just wasn't the same Tulsa team without him.

That's why Coach Nolan Richardson was happy to see him back Monday night, looking none the worse for wear.

"Of course with Spradling back, that made a difference in the ballgame," said Richardson after a 98-84 victory over West Texas State.

Spradling, who missed two games and played only eight minutes in Saturday night's loss to New Mexico State, scored 14 points as the 18th-ranked Golden Hurricane beat its Missouri Valley Conference opponent.

"Sunday he looked real good in practice," said Richardson. "He said he was ready to play. He said, 'I was ready (Saturday) at Las Cruces, but I was afraid.'"

Stadling was an important part of a fast-breaking Tulsa attack that thoroughly disorganized the Buffaloes. He played 22 minutes, hitting seven of 11 field goal tries.

"At half time, they had 13 layups and made 12 of them," said West Texas State Coach Ken Edwards. "We only had two. We didn't shoot with authority. We shot scared. They didn't do anything except beat us down the court. They beat us at our own game."

Tulsa jumped to a 55-39 halftime lead. That lead ballooned to as many as 25 points midway through the second half. Hurricane freshman Steve Harris scored 20 points and 6-foot-10 sophomore Bruce Vanley added 16. Shawn Smith scored 18 points for the losers.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 4 DePaul defeated Creighton 76-67. No. 15 Oregon State routed Stanford 81-38 and No. 20 Virginia Tech edged Tulane 65-64.

The Top Twenty

Terry Cummings scored 29 points and Bernard Randolph added 20 as DePaul beat Creighton. Trailing 36-35 at the half, the Blue Demons outscored Creighton 15-3 in the first six minutes to take a 50-41 lead with 13:23 remaining and never lost their advantage.

DePaul Coach Ray Meyer called the victory "a stinker," making it the second game in a row that he wasn't satisfied with his team's performance. He was visibly upset with Saturday night's 71-69 triumph over Dayton in his 1,000th game.

"We've lost our momentum," he said. "We're just not having fun out there anymore. It showed tonight."

Paced by guard Lester Conner's 17 points and seven steals, Oregon State breezed past Stanford. The Beavers outscored Stanford 31-8 at the start of the second half in building up a 35-point lead and coasted the rest of the way.

Virginia Tech built a nine-point lead with 2:58 left behind Gordy Bryant's 17 points, then cut short a Tulane rally to nip the Green Wave.

The Hokies led 39-21 at the half and the closest Tulane got was the final margin, even though the Green Wave had a 27-17 rebounding edge and hit six of 12 free throws to just two of three for Virginia Tech. The Green Wave was led by John Williams' 22 points.

"I was terribly disappointed with our play in the closing minutes," said Virginia Tech Coach Charlie Moir. "We had a nine-point lead and tried to throw it away."

Midland fans see Cotton Bowl again

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE Sports Writer

"Any time you win a game as big as that one was for us, the reaction is positive from the alumni and the fans," said University of Texas' Ken Dabbs, a Longhorn assistant coach in charge of recruiting. "Fred does a hell of a job."

Of course the big game Dabbs referred to was the Cotton Bowl, a Texas 14-12 victory over Alabama which gave the Longhorns the No. 2 ranking in the final Associated Press football poll, and of course "Fred" is UT head coach Fred Akers.

Dabbs was in Midland Monday night for a Texas Exes banquet at the Midland Center and according to Midland Texas Exes President Bobby Henry, the former Longhorns got together "to enjoy a Texas Exes meeting, to enjoy the fantastic victory over Alabama in the Cotton Bowl and to listen to Coach Dabbs."

To make it seem more like the day of the Cotton Bowl, Dabbs narrated a game film that showed Texas' dramatic finish to its 10-1 season.

"We had a good group of kids, we did," said Dabbs about this year's crop of Longhorns. "But it takes a great leader to get the best out of them."

Dabbs has been an assistant coach at Texas for nine years and has been in charge of getting the right kind of talent to fill the orange and white uniforms each season.

"You try to get the best players possible and not the trickiest plays," said Dabbs about putting together a winning team. "I try and get the best tricky players for the University."

Navratilova wins Avon title

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martina Navratilova ended a string of upsets by unheralded Anne Smith, defeating the 22-year old tennis player 6-2, 6-3 Monday night to capture the $200,000 Avon Tennis Championships of Washington.

Smith, who had reached the finals after defeating three players ranked in the world's top 10 earlier in the tournament, proved no match for Navratilova, the world's third-ranked player and the tournament's No. 2 seed.

In her march to the finals, Smith eliminated second-ranked Tracy Austin, seventh-ranked Pam Shriver and West German's Sylvia Hanika, currently ranked No. 6 in the world.

Navratilova broke Smith's serve four times and needed just 25 minutes to capture the first set. Smith, an accomplished doubles player, appeared nervous as she reached the singles finals of a major tournament for the first time in her four-year pro career.

U.S., Soviet Union resume arms talks

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the chill in East-West relations resulting from the crisis in Poland, strategic arms control talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are resuming on schedule today in Geneva.

Nuclear arms talks, as Secretary of State Alexander Haig explained last week, "constitute a special category of East-West relations."

Discussions are already under way with the Soviets in Geneva on the reduction of medium-range missiles, or theater nuclear forces, deployed in western Europe. Those talks began last month.

The bottling of the atomic genie has overridden the world's diplomatic history since the first A-bomb was exploded more than 36 years ago. Although they have seldom agreed, the nuclear nations have seldom stopped trying.

After the bombs that would end World War II were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945, President Harry S. Truman proposed international controls while the United States still had the leverage to induce agreement.

His plan, presented to the United Nations Disarmament Commission on June 14, 1946, was the most daring disarmament offer ever made.

The United States would turn atomic development over to an International Atomic Development Authority. Moreover, if the Soviets would agree to the deal, the United States would hand over its atomic secrets and its stockpile of nuclear weapons to the new agency.

But there were immediate problems; fundamental problems that would frustrate arms control efforts far into the future. From the U.S. viewpoint it was a magnanimous gesture, but the Soviet Union harbored suspicions that still influence its disarmament policy.

Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin did not reject the proposition outright. He stalled it to death.

Later Soviet leaders explained their reasoning. First, they didn't have the bomb and the United States did. To the Soviets this meant second-class status in world power, especially in the eyes of the smaller nations they would court.

The Soviets didn't believe the United States really would reveal all of its atomic secrets, and they didn't trust the United Nations.

The fatal flaw in the U.S. plan was that it called for inspections to verify that participating nations were playing fair and not engaging in secret atomic development or weapons research.

Two months after Bernard Baruch presented the U.S. plan, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko declared that the inspection scheme would be a violation of any nation's sovereignty.

With that, the chance of nuclear arms control had been lost. The United States also was moving into a defensive stance, withdrawing its wartime missiles and leaving only the nuclear deterrent as the West's defense against a feared Soviet invasion of Western Europe.

On Aug. 23, 1949, the Soviets exploded their own nuclear bomb.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, as a military man, studied the nuclear arms race shortly after he succeeded Truman in the presidency, but didn't have any better luck in coping with it.

Eisenhower proposed "Atoms for Peace," which led to creation of an International Atomic Energy Agency

This 1946 file photo shows the mushroom cloud result of an underwater nuclear blast at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific Ocean. Despite the new chill in East-West relations resulting from the crisis in Poland, high level arms talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are scheduled to resume today in Geneva, Switzerland.

but did nothing toward the real danger of nuclear arms.

Later, Eisenhower proposed "open skies" with a swap of military data and free flights over the territory of both nations to verify nuclear restraint. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev labeled it a bald espionage plot.

Arms control talks continued through the 1950s to little effect, but the first test flight of an intercontinental missile and the launching of the Soviet Sputnik space satellite in 1957 startled America into a mood favoring buildup over disarmament.

Khrushchev, sensing the Soviets had the upper hand in the balance of terror for the first time, launched an era of missile-rattling diplomacy that almost led to nuclear war over the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

The arms race had nearly brought on World War III and both sides knew it. This brought a new effort to cooperate, and in 1963 President Kennedy and Khrushchev concluded a treaty that banned atomic testing in the atmosphere.

In the summer of 1968, the Soviets agreed to the long-sought Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, which would look at all aspects of arms control instead of the piecemeal approach of the past.

On May 26, 1972, the SALT I and anti-ballistic missile treaties were completed, freezing each side's strategic weapons and placing limits on anti-missile systems.

Although SALT I was ratified by the U.S. Senate, two companion agreements — the Threshold Test Ban Treaty, which placed a 150-kiloton ceiling on underground tests, and a treaty providing cooperation on peaceful nuclear explosions — remain unratified.

SALT II, which would have placed equal ceilings on strategic missile launchers and bombers, has never been ratified and appears at this time to be dead, although both sides at least talk of resuming negotiations.

The old problems are looming once again. Satellite photography had removed the need for on-site inspections that had held up agreement for so long. Now, with the quality as well as the quantity of missiles at issue, aerial photography and electronic snooping are no longer adequate for verification.

The Reagan administration insists that any future arms control accords will have to include on-site inspection and other direct means of verification, which the Soviets have always resisted.

China protests U.S. stand on arms sales to Taiwan

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese government issued a "strong protest" today against the U.S. government's announcement of its stand on arms sales to Taiwan while U.S.-Chinese talks on the subject are still going on.

The Nationalist Chinese government issued a statement in Taipei welcoming the U.S. decision to permit continued production of the Northrop F-5E jet fighter in Taiwan. But it took exception to the announcement from Washington that the Nationalist air force did not need more advanced planes.

The statement from a Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman in Peking ignored Reagan's concession to the mainland government: his refusal to let Taiwan have the F-5G Tigerhawk.

"The whole question of U.S. arms sales to Taiwan is a major issue affecting China's sovereignty which must be settled through discussions between the U.S. and the Chinese governments," the spokesman said.

"The Chinese government will never accept any unilateral decision made by the U.S. government."

"The question of U.S. sale of arms including airplanes to Taiwan is being discussed between the Chinese government and the U.S. Assistant Secretary of State John Holdridge, who is now on a special trip in Peking."

"The U.S. government has announced its decision to sell airplanes to Taiwan at a time when bilateral talks are going on. The Chinese government hereby lodges a strong protest against this."

Neither Chinese nor U.S. spokesmen in Peking would say with whom Holdridge was meeting Tuesday. A U.S. spokesman said he was to leave Thursday, and there were indications he would meet Wednesday with one of the senior members of the government.

Holdridge, the assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern and Pacific affairs, arrived in Peking Sunday. He met Monday with Vice Foreign Minister Zhang Wenjin. Xinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said they discussed "international issues of common interest and bilateral relations."

China objects to all U.S. arms sales to Taiwan and says they could lead to deterioration of U.S.-Chinese relations. The Chinese contend that American arms support of the Nationalists infringes on Peking's sovereignty and bolsters the Nationalists in their rejection of unification overtures from the mainland.

The Nationalist statement, issued by Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Tz-jen, said the U.S. decision to extend co-production of the F-5E in Taiwan will be "helpful in strengthening our present defensive capability."

"The government of the Republic of China welcomes the United States government's reaffirmation of its concern for the continued well-being of the people of the Republic of China and its unchanged long-standing policy of providing defensive weapons to the Republic of China," the statement said.

"Nevertheless, the government of the Republic of China has to take exception to the conclusion made by the agencies concerned of the United States that there is no military need to sell advanced aircraft to the Republic of China. We must point out that the Chinese Communists have never changed their intention to subjugate Taiwan by force."

"We earnestly hope that the United States will understand this situation and provide us with defensive weapons in accordance with the Taiwan Relations Act so as to enable us to keep sufficient military capability to defend ourselves at present as well as in the future."

BOSTON (AP) — A rare aftershock nearly as powerful as the earthquake that preceded it may foretell sporadic jolts for the next few weeks from Maine to Connecticut, researchers say.

"I expect smaller aftershocks to continue for days, possibly weeks," Neil Toksoz, director of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Wallace Geophysical Observatories, said Monday after the third major tremor in three days rocked buildings and rattled nerves throughout the six New England states and parts of Canada.

No damage or casualties were reported from Monday's tremor, and no major damage resulted from Saturday's quake.

"Sometimes these quakes can go on for days, weeks," said Russell Needham, a geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Center. "It can't be predicted. We just don't know."

Don Finley, a spokesman for the center in Golden, Colo., said the quake, reported at 4:41 p.m. EST, originated in Canadian province of New Brunswick near the Maine border and measured 5.5 on the Richter scale.

Saturday's earthquake, in nearly the same spot, was measured at 5.8.

"The recording of any aftershock is a rare occurrence in this area," said Toksoz, adding that Monday's shock "was the largest of about 80 that have occurred since Saturday morning."

The Rev. James McCaffery, assistant to the director of the Weston Observatory at Waltham, Mass., said the earthquake didn't release all of its energy Saturday.

"It's releasing its energy in bursts," he said.

Moderate quake occurs off Nicaragua's coast

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A moderate earthquake occurred in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Nicaragua, the U.S. Geological Service said.

The tremor registered 5.9 on the Richter scale, according to USGS earthquake monitors here. It was centered in the ocean about 90 miles northwest of Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and occurred about 11:48 p.m. Monday local time, 12:48 a.m. EST today.

Don Finley of the USGS staff said the quake was less severe than the 6.2 quake that destroyed much of Managua on Dec. 23, 1972. Monday's quake also was centered farther away from the capital than the 1972 tremor, he said.

There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

Henry Fonda 'feels very chipper,' learns of movie's glowing reviews

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda, home from the hospital and "feeling very chipper," has been kept informed by his wife of glowing reviews for his most recent film, "On Golden Pond," his press agent says.

"He isn't yet able to talk to people on the phone," John Springer said Monday from New York. But he added, "He's very happy with all the reaction that there's been."

Fonda, 76, suffering from a heart ailment, was released from Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Wednesday after a seven-week stay.

"I want to see him Friday, and he's feeling very chipper and confident that he is getting stronger," Springer said. "He's able to get out of bed, sit in his chair and walk in his walker."

"On Golden Pond" was nominated last week for six of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's Golden Globes awards. Fonda himself was nominated as best actor in a drama.

ATLANTA (AP) — Historians who, in a fit of "insensitive elitism," branded Jimmy Carter the 10th-worst chief executive in U.S. history will eventually praise his accomplishments, Mayor Andrew Young says.

Young, a U.S. ambassador to the United Nations during Carter's tenure, blasted the survey after receiving the former president and his wife, Rosalynn, in a courtesy call Monday.

Carter, who did not comment on the survey, told reporters after the 45-minute meeting that he offered some advice to Young.

He said he told Carter that the survey published Sunday in the Chicago Tribune Magazine showed "a kind of insensitive elitism that comes from some of our historians."

Historians and political scholars questioned by the Tribune had ranked Carter the 10th-worst president in U.S. history. Warren Harding was seen as the worst and Abraham Lincoln the best.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles says he'll keep on windsurfing despite his spills into the ocean because "I'm one of those masochists who loves taking violent exercise."

"I love thrashing about in the sea and coming back and feeling that you've done something really exciting," the 33-year-old heir to the throne said in an interview with Windsurf and Board Sailing Magazine.

Charles says the news photographs that have repeatedly caught him tumbling off his board into the water may be a little unfair.

"I don't fall off all the time," he said, adding that it's just "with the press standing there, inevitably you go thundering off."

ATLANTA (AP) — Entertainer Harry Belafonte, recipient of the 1982 Martin Luther King Non-Violent Peace Prize, has "dedicated his life to the struggle for justice, peace and equality," King's widow said.

"The generous support he (Belafonte) provided throughout the civil rights movement was often crucial," Coretta Scott King said Monday at a news conference marking the start of a week-long celebration honoring her husband's Jan. 15 birthday.

Mrs. King said Belafonte was "one of the most trusted and valued members" of King's advisory committee when the activist was alive.

The annual peace prize is the 10th awarded by the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change, where Mrs. King serves as president.

King, who would have turned 53 this year, was gunned down April 4, 1968 in Memphis, Tenn.

Past recipients of the prize include former United Nations ambassador Andrew Young, former president Jimmy Carter, former Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen, migrant labor organizer Cesar Chavez and Rosa Parks, whose refusal to give up her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus in 1955 helped launch a vast civil-rights protest.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Patti Davis, daughter of President Reagan, has added her name to a petition to freeze nuclear arms.

Miss Davis signed her name to a statement circulated by Californians for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze, seeking to qualify a state ballot initiative promoting an "immediate halt to the testing, production and deployment of all nuclear weapons... in a way that can be checked and verified" by the United States and the Soviet Union.

"We've got to do something," Miss Davis said Sunday at a "petition party" at the home of producer Bud Yorkin.

The organization needs 346,119 signatures by April 23 to qualify for the November ballot and has collected about 150,000 thus far, organizers say. If the initiative passes, the governor must send a letter to Miss Davis' father urging him to propose halting further development and deployment of nuclear weapons.

Others who signed the petition include entertainers Sally Field, Robert Culp, Ed Asner, Joel Grey, Katharine Ross, Linda Kelsey and Graham Nash.
