A Place to Play—Most Important—Better Relief—He's Satisfied—

Spending a half million dollars to develop a first-class resort at Lake Wichita is as important to this town as the addition of another industrial plant, or some new agricultural project. A city which hopes to continue to grow, which seeks to become the principal point of commercial and civic life of its area, must provide wholesome recreation and entertainment for home folks and for visitors alike.

Wichita Falls has industrial advantages equalled by few cities in the south. It has agricultural possibilities which await only development to turn this area into one of the most productive spots in the nation. A lake playground for thousands of residents of Northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma, for any and all visitors who may consider coming here, will prove as powerful an attraction as figures on per acre yields or production costs and profits.

The Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce will pay for 300 subscriptions to a dairy magazine to be distributed to farmers of the Wichita area, another step in building up the dairy industry in this section. An unlimited market for milk has been provided, and now the chamber is to aid farmers in producing more milk. Farmers in this section should not need relief. They have been given opportunity.

According to the correspondent of a North Texas paper, in the piney woods some 14 miles from Huntsville near the village of Dodge, is the grave of George R. Wood, elected governor of Texas Nov. 1, 1847. He was a Democrat, a Mason and a pioneer. Again, according to the correspondent, trees have been permitted to grow on the last resting place of the noted Indian fighter and Texas has marked the spot with a small headstone. His wife's grave, unmarked, is also unkept and doubtless forgotten.

Well, it's supposed to be a sad story, this neglect of a noted figure. Why mourn? The birds sing in the trees, the wild flowers grow in the lonely place and perhaps the old Indian fighter who was governor of Texas is supremely satisfied with his resting place. And satisfied with his work, if his shade return to the lonely grave to tell the old warrior of the onward movement of things in the empire state he had a hand in the making.

Woman First to Apply as Passenger On Zeppelin Trip; Pays $5000 Fare

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 21.—Five thousand dollars is the fare that has been fixed for the first transatlantic passenger from Germany to America on the new and first transatlantic super-zeppelin passenger airship, the Count Zeppelin, which will start for Lakehurst probably at the end of July.

The first passenger to be booked is an English woman.

"Women are no less brave and venturesome than men when it comes to taking to the air," remarked the Zeppelin commander, Dr. Hugo Eckner, who will guide the super-Zeppelin on its American and round-the-world flights.

Only Applicant

"That is not only shown again by Miss Earhart, but no less by the fact that the first and only application we have had to cross the Atlantic with us to America is a woman. She is Lady Drummond-Hay, of London, widow of a noted British diplomat, and who came personally to Friedrichshafen some weeks ago to see about it.

"We have booked her and if she will accept the conditions we are compelled to impose on this trip because of the sale of news monopoly. Lady Hay will have the distinction of being the first transatlantic woman passenger in an airship."

With Pullman-like staterooms, and a drawing room which also answers as a diningroom, affording an opportunity to "dance in the air" to radio music from the best orchestras in Berlin, London and New York, she will have a more interesting and comfortable voyage through the air than did Miss Earhart, Dr. Eckner said.

The world's first "air cook" has been engaged here. His name is Herr Lehmann. He will be combination cook, steward, dishwasher and chambermaid on the coming journey.

Spring Poultry and Dairy Show May Succeed Texas-Okla. Fair

Organization of an exposition company to present a fair or dairy and poultry show during the spring in Wichita Falls and the discontinuance of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association and the fall fair was decided upon Thursday at a joint meeting of the directors of the association and the chamber of commerce.

Efforts will be made to dispose of the association's equity in the present fair grounds and from the proceeds the indebtedness of the association liquidated, according to a decision reached at the meeting. Equity in the grounds is valued at $150,000.

Whether the money remaining with the association, if the fair grounds are sold, will be divided among the stockholders or used in the formation of the exposition company will be a matter for the stockholders of the present association to determine, according to a decree of the directors.

If plans for the holding of a spring exposition are successfully worked out efforts will be made to obtain grounds nearer the business section of Wichita Falls than the present fair grounds.

A committee was appointed at the meeting to formulate plans for the new association and to consider the holding of a spring exposition. The committee is composed of George D. Keith Sr., J. L. McMahon, J. T. Harrell and Orville Bullington, president of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association.

NORWAY SENDS SHIP IN HUNT FOR AMUNDSEN

Sixteen Wanderers Now In Floating Fields Of Ice

FATALITIES FEARED

Aviator Plans Immediate Rescue of Nobile Crew

COPENHAGEN, June 21. (US)—The Norwegian government has ordered the battleship Tordenskgold to proceed north immediately in search of Captain Roald Amundsen, polar explorer who failed to return from his attempt to reach the stranded Nobile party.

LONDON, June 21 (US)—Reports tonight from the ice breaker Braganza, off the north shore of Spitzbergen, that the arctic ice has begun to split, hastened the efforts of the several relief expeditions that have been undertaken to rescue the 16 men now lost in the icy wastes. While six members of the crew of the dirigible Italia, including General Umberto Nobile, have been located and are in no danger, 10 other members of the Italia's crew have not been heard from in more than a month. Now it is also feared that Roald Amundsen and five companions who went to Nobile's rescue in a French seaplane have also met disaster.

Lost Monday

Amundsen, Lieut. Lief Dietrichsen, Commander Rene Gilbaud and three Frenchmen, members of the Farman seaplane's crew, were on the Amundsen expedition. The members of the crew are reported to be Gilbert Brasy, mechanic; Emilie Valeta, radio operator, and Lieut. Albert Cuverville, relief pilot. They have not been heard from since Monday when the plane hopped off from Tromsoe, Norway, headed presumably for Kings Bay, Spitzbergen. The plane carried a radio, but no signals have come from the plane in more than 72 hours, a few hours after it left Tromsoe. However, reports from Tromsoe said the radio was not working perfectly when the plane left, and that has given rise to the hope that Amundsen and his companions made a forced landing in some isolated inlet on Spitzbergen and have not been able to communicate with any of the several relief ships in the vicinity.

Has No Radio

Another possibility, however, is that Amundsen persuaded Gilbaud to fly directly to Northeast land, near the position where the dirigible Italia crashed. It is known that he wanted to search for the seven members of the crew who were carried off when the bag rose after the crash and drifted off towards Franz Joseph land. Nobile and his five companions were in the gondola of the Italia which was torn loose from the envelope. Those of the Italia's crew who were in the envelope had no radio, and there was doubt as to the quantity of food supplies. Amundsen was known to have felt that he was in more need of aid than Nobile who had a radio and had given his position to the rescue ships.

Three other members of the Italia's crew, who left Nobile and set out overland for North cape nearly two weeks ago, are also believed to be in dire straits, and if they are still alive their situation is more desperate by the splitting up of the ice with the approach of warmer weather.

Major Umberto Maddalena, who made a flight over Nobile and his small group of Italia survivors yesterday, was reported in Kings Bay dispatches ready to attempt another flight today and had announced that he would fly on east of Nobile's position to search for Amundsen and the other Italia men.

Matt Kimes' Father Shot To Death By Officer

Attack With Ax Precipitates Fatal Encounter In Raid on Bowlegs Establishment; Third Man Escapes

SEMINOLE, Okla., June 21. (AP)—C. Kimes, father of George and Matthew Kimes, Oklahoma bandits now in the state penitentiary at McAlester, was shot and killed late today near Bowlegs, an oil town, by Jack Sparks, deputy sheriff of Seminole county.

Shaw Nelm, Jim Clinton and Sparks went to raid an establishment Kimes maintained near Bowlegs.

As the officers approached, Kimes emerged from the building and raised an automatic, the deputies said. At the same time another man, who has not been identified, ran from the house and attacked Clinton with an axe.

Sparks fired, he says, as Kimes raised his gun to shoot Nelm, and then went to the assistance of Clinton. The man with the axe was captured, but refused to give his name. A third man, who ran from the house during the fighting, escaped.

Jim Calls Hoover 'British Subject'

PARSONS, Kan., June 21. (UP) Senator James Reed attacked Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate in an address he made here tonight on the platform of a train which is carrying him from Kansas City, Mo., to Houston, Texas.

"I see that Mr. Hoover says he is going to study and solve farm problems," Reed said. "I do not know whether he is going to do it from his experience with British or with American farms, but I want to tell you that no one in Washington is really going to solve the farm problem. That's something that you farmers must do for yourselves."

Reed referred to Hoover as a British subject and expressed the belief that congress cannot solve the farm problem. Reed will be placed in nomination as a presidential candidate at the Democratic convention.

Houston Waits For Arrival of Big Guns

HOUSTON, Texas, June 21. (AP)—With many big guns of the party yet to arrive, the last minute drive to line up delegates for and against Smith in next week's Democratic convention was held in abeyance today, with activity confined mostly to informal conferences and no end of circulating around hotel lobbies.

The tendency all-round seemed to be to await arrival of delegates and of some of the party strategists before any definite attempt should be made to build up convention alignments.

G. O. P. OPENS WAR FOR VOTES

Hubert Work Elected National Chairman

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP)—The Republican national campaign was launched today in Washington under the personal supervision of Secretary Herbert Hoover and Senator Charles Curtis, its presidential and vice presidential nominees.

A group of 24 members of the party's national committee met the candidates at the New Willliard hotel, and in an enthusiastic session ratified the slate of committee officers presented to them and authorized the first campaign steps.

Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, was elected national chairman, and announced that his resignation from the cabinet would be presented to President Coolidge before the end of the month.

Aid Is Selected

To aid him the committee approved the selection, as vice chairman, of Ralph E. Williams of Oregon; Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky and Daniel E. Pomeroy of New Jersey.

Representative Franklin W. Fort of New Jersey was elected secretary and Joseph R. Nutt of Ohio, treasurer.

Chairman Work announced that the central campaign headquarters would be opened in Washington, but that an eastern headquarters would be located at New York and a western headquarters at Chicago.

Secretary Work also made public that the committee had tentatively arranged for the formal notification of Secretary Hoover at his home in Palo Alto late in July, while Senator Curtis will be notified at Topeka, Kan., his home.

Hoover Silent

Secretary Hoover declined to make any announcement of his plans as to the time of his resignation from the cabinet.

"I will make a speech some day," the presidential nominee said, "and then say what I want to convey to the voters."

The committee caucused upon its nominations and then had luncheon, which the candidates attended. Their sessions were all executive, but was marked by frequent applause, and, according to Secretary Work, utmost of good feeling and informality was displayed.

SMITH FIRM IN STAND FOR PRO CHANGES

Davidson Blazes Path In War for Moody Dry Plank

AMAZED AT MANAGER

Smith Repeats Approval Of 'Temperance' Voiced By Mack

NEW YORK, June 21. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith declared tonight he had not altered his previously stated belief that "There should be amendment of the present prohibition provisions."

The governor's statement was in reply to a written question presented him by a reporter, as follows:

"In view of the question raised by Norman Mack's statement, the world wishes to know: Have you changed your belief that there should be amendment of the present prohibition provisions?"

"I have not," the governor replied verbally, with emphasis on the negative.

DAVIDSON AMAZED AT MACK'S STATEMENT

HOUSTON, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Declaring that "the truth will out," Lynch Davidson, chairman of the Moody harmony Democrats, expressed his amazement at publication of a statement made by Hon. Norman E. Mack, Democratic national committeeman from New York, upon the prohibition question and Mack's declaration that Governor Al Smith "is opposed to prohibition."

Davidson declared his amazement was at publication of Mack's statement and not because, as he charges, it did not represent the real attitude of Governor Smith as to the prohibition question in general.

Opening Gun

"I understand," commented Davidson, "that what Mr. Mack said is in entire accord with views and attitude of Governor Smith, whose success in perfunctory conventions throughout the United States has emboldened his supporters to take it as an expression of the national will to undermine and destroy our prohibition laws."

Davidson's statement was considered the opening gun of the attack promised by Governor Dan Moody on the Smith candidacy. The governor is expected to represent Texas on the platform committee, where it is expected he will make a strong fight for a dry plank in the Democratic platform which automatically would bar Smith's acceptance.

Chairman Davidson charged that the fact that George H. N. Van Namee, Governor Smith's campaign manager, attempted to repudiate Mack's right to make the statement shows a desire upon part of the Smith managers, who, he claims, are not quite as frank as Mack, to "keep under cover just how the governor stands" and that Mack, a Democrat of long service and experience "would not undertake to say what Governor Smith's attitude on the question of prohibition, state and national, is unless he knew."

For Temperance

"Mr. Mack says," continued Davidson, "Governor Smith believes that if any state desires a certain alcoholic content of beverages that state has the right to determine that content; if the state desires to be dry, then it is the right of that state to be dry: Governor Smith is opposed to prohibition. He is for temperance.

"The important question is: Does Mr. Mack represent what Governor Smith believes in and not what Mr. Van Namee and other Smith supporters would be willing to have the public believe?"

Has Forebackings

"My information," concluded Davidson, "is that Mr. Mack has frankly and correctly stated Smith's attitude and has done a public service so that, if Governor Smith is nominated, the Democratic convention will at least know the responsibility which it has taken."

"I do not think," he added, "that had the campaign been conducted with full knowledge to the people of the views of Governor Smith which Mr. Mack expressed, that the situation which confronts the

Bremen Pilot May Head First Air Navigation Line to Span Atlantic

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 21. (US)—Germany is preparing to organize the first transocean passenger and mail air lines with both planes and Zepplines, Herman Koehl, pilot of the Bremen, according to advices from Berlin, has been asked by the Lufthansa, which is the German Air Navigation corporation now running more than fifty land lines, to become the head of a special branch in the Lufthansa for transocean air travel.

When Capt. Koehl started for America with the Bremen without official permission, he was peremptorily dismissed from service with the Lufthansa, and there were reports in the last few days that he had accepted a position in America.

The adventurous "sporting hops" across the Atlantic which blazed the way through the air are now to be followed by the practical utilization of the experience gained. The next three years will see great strides in the direction of developing passenger-carrying sea planes for transocean passenger traffic, Dr. Dornier, head of the Dornier Wal works, here, told me, but he added:

"Reports that the largest sea plane in the world is now being built by us for transatlantic traffic with New York, is erroneous. I do not consider it large enough for that. It is designed more for mail and passenger service on the shorter stretch to the Canaries, to South America, or on the Mediterranean to Egypt."

PLATFORMS NO AID TO FARMS

Expert Urges Industrial Methods

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 21. (US)—Politics aside, what are the prospects for genuine relief for the farmer?

Is the American agrarian forever to lag behind while pursuers of other forms of economic activity advance through the application of science to business? Is farming perpetually to be carried on in relatively small units, while mergers and consolidations bring a trend toward big business in most other lines?

These questions go to the heart of the American farm problem, and are not likely to be satisfactorily clarified by planks in political platforms. The rejection of the patent medicine McNary-Haugen principle, instead of solving the farm problem, leaves it wide open.

Farmers Silent

Politicians and academic economists have had their say concerning what the farmer needs, but thus far the country has heard little in the way of a concrete program from the farmers themselves. Thomas D. Campbell of Montana is a forerunner of the coming generation of big business men in the domain of agriculture. Mr. Campbell, a graduate engineer, was raised on a farm in North Dakota. He is president of the Campbell Farming corporation, which cultivates a farm of 95,000 acres in Montana. Mr. Campbell's company, which has applied modern industrial methods to farming, has facilities to plow 1000 acres a day, and to seed 2000 acres a day. He believes that it will find its salvation by pursuing the same general methods that brought prosperity to American industry.

"The engineer and the industrial chemist will do for agriculture what they have done for other industries," Mr. Campbell points out in the Magazine of Business. "It will not be long until many products will be made from material which is now wasted on the farm.

"The chief difficulty in this new development of farming is the problem of financing. The biggest obstacle that farming has to overcome is the universal belief that it cannot succeed.

"We—my associates and I—believe that the biggest industrial opportunity in the United States today is in agriculture.

"Farming should be considered as a manufacturing business, with a proper record of costs and a constant endeavor to reduce these costs.

NO CURFEW

Village Bell Stolen By Youths In Small Town

LATHROP, Mo., June 21. (UP) Curfew did not ring in this village all week—because it was stolen—but officials found it in a St. Joseph, Mo., junk yard today and hope to have it in place by Sunday.

Reckless Driver "Avenger" Enters Insane Asylum

AUSTIN, June 21 (AP)—A man who wore out his small automobile driving up and down Texas highways, a pistol by his side, in an effort to "sacrifice" at the "command of God," the first hapless driver with whose machine his might collide, has given it up and surrendered voluntarily to the state insane asylum here.

R. B. Walthall, chairman of the board of control, which supervises eleemosynary institutions, said today that the "avenger" alighted from his rattling car with the simple but unique request that he be taken into the asylum.

He told the superintendent that more than two years ago "God came in a vision," ordering him to make a "human sacrifice" that reckless motorists forever might be warned. Vainly, he added, he traveled about until his money was exhausted and his automobile was in about the same condition. Then, realizing his mind was "growing worse," he concluded to become an inmate.

Bourland Tells Program Of Tax Equalization

A. M. Bourland, Vernon, newly elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce asked the support of Rotarians of Wichita Falls in making "West Texas a better place to live in," when he addressed the Rotary club at noon luncheon Thursday.

"I make this one request of you fellow Rotarians," said the Vernon man, "that you help Andy Bourland help West Texas."

Mr. Bourland named as objective for the coming years the equalization of taxes over the territory. West Texas, he declared, is being taxed much higher than any other part of the state.

Reports from committee chairmen for the progress made in the various departments during the past year were also heard.

Mr. Talbert praised the work of a boy in Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, aided by the Rotarians, has done.

Larry Halin, boys' work committee, reported that 3264 passes had been issued to the knothole gang and that employment had been found for 10 boys. The committee also helped in the observance of boys' week.

Mr. Rady, a highway engineer, made a report giving preliminary estimate of the cost of building hard surfaced roads on all designated highways in Haskell county comprising some 113 miles.

Ranchman Traps Hordes Of Parasitic Buzzards

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Because buzzards are very dumb birds, 4000 of them have given up their liberty and been sentenced to death on the farm of J. W. Beck, a ranchman near Victoria, in the last two years. Beck believes that he is probably the champion buzzard exterminator of the state.

His trap is merely a coop about 12 feet square and 11 feet high. The entrance is covered so that it extends several feet into the cage. The birds, attracted by the bait in the trap, enter the cage, but never learn how to leave it. Instead they follow the walls, walking around and around the enclosure, and hopping over the covered entrance at each circuit.

It was unlawful to kill buzzards in Texas until it was discovered that they spread diseases among livestock. Due to the efforts of ranchmen the birds have been almost eradicated in the section near Beck's home.

Court to Complete Refinery Case Today

With hearing of tax matters extending over a prolonged afternoon session of the special session of the U. S. District court Thursday afternoon plans for completing the hearing of affairs of the American Refining company Thursday were abandoned and court recessed until Friday morning shortly before 6 o'clock Thursday.

The report and recommendations of Walter Nelson, special master in chancery, on debts of the company was upheld in every particular by Judge William H. Atwell. The master's report covered recommendations on more than 500 claims against the company. Exceptions were heard by the court on a number of these claims but the report was accepted without change.

Judge Atwell said that he expected to complete the case Friday.

CIVIL SERVICE TESTS

Two candidates for the office of immigration inspector were given examinations here Thursday morning by William A. Whalen of San Antonio, immigration secretary of district No. 22; E. H. Jennings of New Orleans, secretary of the 10th civil service district, and C. K. Johnson, secretary of the local civil service.

Official Summer Finds Harvest Hands Out of Luck in Soggy Fields

WICHITA, Kan., June 21. (UP)—When summer descended officially on the wheat country today, it found binders clicking merrily in soggy fields, farmers overhauling combines, highways littered with harvesting machinery being moved to advantageous locations—and the harvest hand out of luck.

With prospects for a record crop a month ago, this section of the wheat belt has been hit by torrential rains, cyclonic winds and damaging storms. The lowlands have been flooded and estimates of the damage have been placed variously at from 10 to 40 per cent.

H. L. Hildwein, farm agent, however, declares a few days of warm sunshine will dry out the fields and straighten up the matted grain.

A new wrinkle was introduced in surveying the damage to this section when D. S. Farley, assistant general manager of the Santa Fe's eastern lines, yesterday chartered an airplane and surveyed the damage between Wichita and Emporia. He reported a 10 per cent loss.

Flood danger in this section is past except for the possibility of the Walnut river causing some trouble south of Augusta in case of another severe rain, says S. P. Peterson, meteorologist.

Ranch Manager Denies Reports Of Cattle Shortage On Texas Range

SAN ANTONIO, June 21. (AP)—An emphatic denial of statements that there is a shortage in cattle was issued here today by Richard Kleburg, manager of the King ranch, one of the largest cattle raising enterprises in the United States.

Kleburg was here to attend a meeting of inspectors for the Texas Cattle Raisers' association.

"The situation, which many refer to as a shortage," Kleburg said, "is merely the adjustment of the industry to supply the demand. In the past cattle raisers have produced a surplus which has ruined the price of their product and caused them to lose money. They had now adjusted supply to demand fairly evenly and are able to operate their business at a profit.

"The high prices which producers are now obtaining for their cattle will not be saddled on to the consumer. The cattle industry will establish a more direct contact with the consumer and thus enable the two most important links in the industry to share the profits."

Liddell Freed Of Bank Charge

MARIETTA, Okla., June 21. (UP) Acquitted by a district court jury after six hours' deliberation, Vernon Liddell, arrested in connection with the $9000 robbery of the Love County National bank here, was freed of a conjoint robbery charge today.

He was charged with his brothers, John and Haynie, as an accomplice in the raid in which Sheriff Sam Long was slain. Charges against John Liddell were dismissed. Haynie Liddell has not been apprehended.

Claude Andrews pleaded guilty to a similar charge and was given five years.

Failure to recover $5000 of the loot led to ouster and larceny charges against County Attorney Wes Croy and County Judge James Mathers, but the state did not prosecute, saying conviction was impossible. The two officials were said to have agreed to leave the county.

Building Continues Active in Vernon

VERNON, Texas, June 21.—Building in Vernon continues active despite business depressions. Permits totaled $393,000 during the month of June. Permits issued since April, 1927, when the business depression caused by the low price of cotton the preceding fall, begin to make itself felt, total $1,109,605. Permits since the first of January of this year have totaled $742,010.

Two Scholarships Given to College

The total number of scholarships at the Junior college has been increased to 12 with gifts from Orville Bullington, Wednesday, and by Judge A. H. Carrigan, Thursday, according to Judge W. B. Chauncey, president of the board of education.

The movement to grant scholarships to those students whom the inauguration of a tuition fee might handicap, started about four weeks ago, when Judge Chauncey made the first such gift. Since then interest in the movement has increased, and gifts of scholarships are coming in steadily to Judge Chauncey.

A recommendation was made Thursday at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club by J. Wilke Talbert, that the student loan fund now operated by the club be discontinued and three of four scholarships be given by the organization each year.

Third Planting of Crops In Storm Area Finished

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, June 21.—Farmers of Hardeman county are hard hit by the several rain and windstorms in different sections of the county within the past two weeks. The third planting of crops in some sections has already been made, and unless very seasonable weather comes from now until harvest time there will be a considerable shortage of both feed and cotton crops.

In the Hooleyann section in the northwest part of the county, the sand has blown to such extent that some farmers have suffered 100 per cent loss of the cotton crop. Feed and cotton on the tight land are standing the hot winds of the past few days very well.

Mary Garden Acclaims Effect of Juice

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

PARIS, June 21.—What two of the world's most famous and fascinating beauties think of various aspects of modern life, from face lifting to sex appeal, was revealed today when Mary Garden and Cecile Sorel exchanged confidences. The perennially youthful French actress is visiting the American diva in the latter's flower-banked apartment overlooking the Champs Elysees and the Arc de Triomphe.

"La Divine Mary" is still as attractive as ever. Her hair has taken on a more alluring tinge of red—dyed in her own special solution of red ink. Her figure remains trim and youthful by rigorous diet. Mary in ardently praising her latest beauty secret, "strawberry baths," declares that the crushed juices in her daily tub prove a miraculous treatment for the skin.

No Beauty Operations

Rumors that she had had her face lifted were indignantly denied by the American opera star.

"I have never had any beauty operations performed on me for the simple reason that I do not need them," said Mary. "When it becomes necessary I will have my face lifted and anything else done necessary to preserve the illusion of youth."

Madame Sorel interrupted to ask Mary her weight.

"I now weigh 122 and rarely go above 125," said Mary. "That is an ideal weight for a woman either before or after 35. Fat accumulated after 35 can never be taken off."

Mary's diet is based on one meal per day. Nothing but coffee in the morning and tea at night, and her sole repast consisting either of chicken or fish—never red meats—with lots of vegetables, being taken at noon.

Gift of Author

At this point Cecile burst into ecstasies over a finely spun gold and platinum unique anklet adorning Mary's shapely silken clad limb. Mary confessed that the anklet was a gift from Gabriele d'Annunzio, who presented it to her with a rapturous compliment after her first singing in "Pelleas et Melisande."

"That is the man who possesses to the fullest degree what the Americans call sex appeal," said Mary.

Cecile Sorel demanded an explanation, which, half in English and half in French, Mary gave. Cecile then gave her understanding of it:

Divine Fire

"That is what we French call the fluid or divine fire which shines in the eyes of a man or a woman irrespective of their beauty or ugliness. Mary is right about d'Annunzio. When he looks at a woman she forgets he is small, bald and sallow, in the intense light of adoration she sees in his eyes.

"The famous Italian actress, Eleanor Duse, had the same spiritual quality also, call it sex appeal or any other name. Men forgot her gray hairs and wrinkled hands when she entered the salon, and saw only her beauty."

Mary is leaving for the Riviera where she will spend the summer making preparations for the opera season next fall. She took occasion to say:

Sun Baths

"In my little retreat high above the Mediterranean I can take my sun baths after my morning swim. Lying without clothing under the rays of the sun is an excellent tonic for the whole body, and everybody should follow the nature cure, but we have too many hypocrites among us.

"I am going to show them up in my memoirs—but they will only be published after my death. I have always kept a diary and that will be the source for my book."

Depleted Funds Threaten Loss of Cops' Pensions

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Retired firemen and policemen of San Antonio are threatened with the loss of the pensions, which have been paid for years from the pension funds maintained by those departments.

When the pensions for the month of June are paid the fund will be depleted, with no prospects of receiving sufficient contributions next month to meet the payments which will be due at the end of the month. The fund is kept up by a per cent assessment on the salaries of firemen and policemen and by donations and the proceeds from the annual Firemen's and Policemen's ball.

A ruling from the city attorney makes it impossible to employ municipal funds in keeping up the pension payments. Officers of the pension board are casting about for some form of insurance that will be cheaper and can be maintained with the help of the city.

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

I'M LOOKING for a calico dress. I mean real calico, done up with braid and all the accessories that calico requires. If I locate a dress of that material, it will mean that the entire line of old fashioned cotton and flaxen materials are again bedecking the fair sex of the city. Today, I ran across a pink pique (do you remember which way the point over the "e" should be headed?) dress, minus sleeves and worn by a smart looking saleswoman in one of the downtown shops. Said she liked it because pique allows one to travel light, whatever anyone could mean by that remark.

Well, there, now is pique. Point d'esprit is again popular, especially in bridal dresses and gowns for attendants. And linen, especially handkerchief linen, is being worn with a new vim this season. And cotton net, gracious, it has a vogue now that has seldom been attained. That is just the beginning of materials that may be named, but the important fact to remember is that women are learning that they may be more comfortable during the hot summer months when clothed in cotton than in warm silks. I mean comfort, not economy.

A FAMOUS behaviorist throws us with the opinion that petting among the youth of the country is okay. "Let 'em pet," he says, "it is good for them. It prepares them for later love life." Gracious, what are we to believe? Now if some comes across with columns and columns on this new idea, what will we teach 'em?

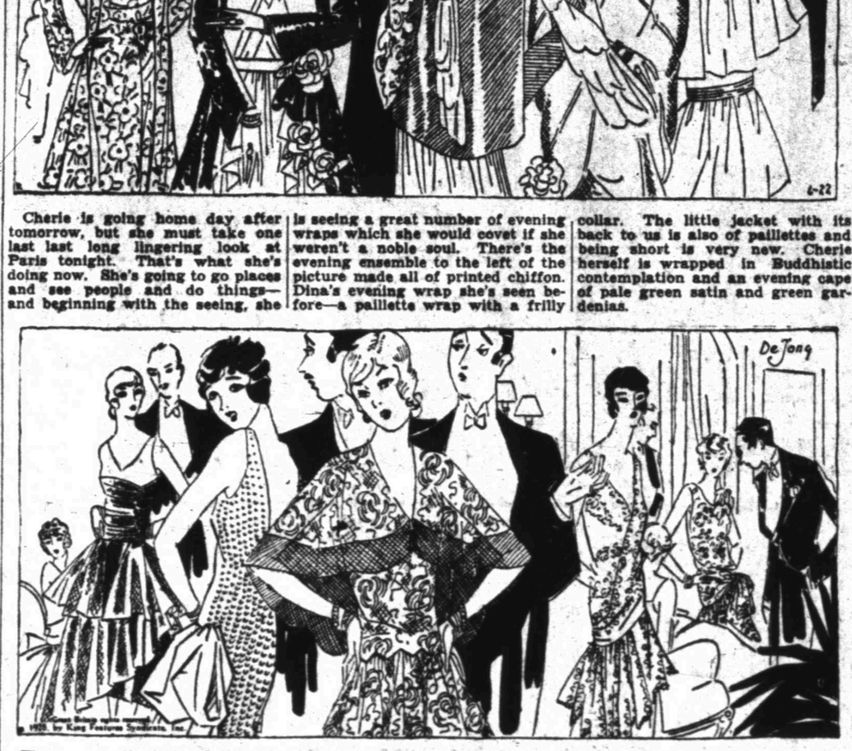

DID you accomplish more than usual yesterday, the longest day of the year? I can't see the object in having our attention called to the fact, each year, that there is such a thing as the longest day in the year, and no suggestions offered on what to do with the extra few minutes allotted human kind. Have we been expected to bring in an extra sheave or something? Well, I haven't, and after having read over the top part of this column, I can't see any real reason for having a longest day in the year.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stahl and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Curd of Childress, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gotcher, have returned to their home.

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie is going home day after tomorrow, but she must take one last last long lingering look at Paris tonight. That's what she's doing now. She's going to go places and see people and do things—and beginning with the seeing, she is seeing a great number of evening wraps which she would covet if she weren't a noble soul. There's the evening ensemble to the left of the picture made all of printed chiffon. Dina's evening wrap she's seen before—a paillette wrap with a frilly collar. The little jacket with its back to us is also of paillettes and being short is very new. Cherie herself is wrapped in Buddhistic contemplation and an evening cape of pale green satin and green gardenias.

The gown to the left is tulle with a minaret skirt (remember that word, you'll meet it again this fall). Dina is glittering all over the place in a form-fitting affair of sequins with a large taffeta bow attached for no known reason to one hip. Cherie is being melancholy (it's so becoming to her) in a dress of printed lace; printed, we add, in a pompadour pattern and edged on all its edges with tulle. Fading off the picture on the right are a dress of silver lace made on the diagonal and another evening gown of printed chiffon. Eustace, who is always so understanding, is suggesting that if Cherie has seen all the dresses present, isn't it time to go on to another place he knows?

Bridge Compliments Visitors From Nocona

Guests were: Misses Katherine Weldon, Dell Hatchett, Catherine Weeks, Eleanor Adams of Dallas, Camille Avis, Corinne Tucker, Rose Marion Art, Elizabeth Langford, Joline Woods, Mary Delaney, Dorothy Shamburger, Marxuerite Norwood and Virgie Mae Adams.

First Load of 1927 Wheat Comes to Hereford

Special to The Record News

HEREFORD, Texas, June 21.—Opening officially the 1928 wheat harvest in the Hereford territory, L. E. Tucker, farmer living south of here, brought in the first load of wheat Tuesday, June 20. It was sold to the Harrison elevator.

Mr. Tucker's one load tested 56 pounds to the bushel. He received $1.35 per bushel.

Most of the wheat in this region is hardly ready for cutting. The harvest season is expected to get into full swing after the first part of next week.

Forty Tables Of Guests Play In Bridge Tourney

Miss Calista Morrison won high score prize in the bridge and "42" tournament sponsored by the members of the Junior Forum in the clubhouse, Thursday afternoon, when about 40 tables of guests were entertained.

Miss Wilma Brown won second high score award in bridge and Mrs. Wallace Bright won cut prize. Mrs. E. B. Gosline won the high score award in the "42" games.

The clubhouse was attractively decorated with cut flowers in bowls and floor baskets. Frozen punch was served during the games by members of the Junior Forum.

Prizes for the tournament were donated by the following business houses: The Orchid Shop, Perkins-Timberlake, The Georgianna Shoppe and the Kruger Jewelry company.

Experience Disproves Old Adage About Propinquity, Says Dix

Now That Men and Women Work and Play Together, and Learn Each Other's Quirks of Disposition, Wedding Bells Ring Out Less Frequently Than When Members of the Opposite Sex Seemed Either Godlings or Angels

It used to be said that propinquity was the great match-maker, and it was devoutly believed that all that you had to do was to throw a boy and girl together, and let nature take its course. They would inevitably proceed to fall in love with each other and get married.

On that idea was based the custom of segregating the sexes in schools and preventing youths and maidens from meeting except under the wary eye of a chaperon, or really getting acquainted with each other unless their elders considered it desirable for them to form an alliance.

But, alas and alack, the naive theory that young men and women would prove irresistibly attractive to each other if they only knew each other well enough has not been borne out by experience. In these piping times all of the barriers between male and female have been swept away. Men and women work together and play together. They know each other as well as one human being can know another and yet there is not more marrying, but less marrying. Propinquity, as a matrimonial agent, has got a black eye.

This seems logical and reasonable, for the unknown has a glamour that the familiar lacks. When men and women got only brief, tantalizing glimpses of each other, they could let their imagination fill in the picture and paint such portraits of angelic women and heroic men as would have ravished the fancy of a saint, or an anchorite. When all that was permissible was a whispered word, or a stolen kiss, it naturally whetted the appetite for more, and made every youth willing to risk his neck climbing up to his lady's window and every girl ready to throw herself out of her window into her sweetheart's arms.

It was easy enough to idealize Angelina and see in her his heart's desire, when a man never beheld her except when she had on her prettiest frocks and frills and her most alluring smile, and was in her most butter-wouldn't-melt-in-her-mouth mood. But no man can have any illusions about Sally whose desk is next to his, and whom he sees with the powder off her nose and with a neuralgic headache, and just after the boss has called her down, and whose every quirk of character and disposition he knows just as well as he does his own sister's.

It has been said that no man has ever been able to fathom the mystery of why any man should ever fall in love with his sister.

And it is the same way with Angelina. She had no difficulty in seeing the hero of her girlish dreams in Reginald because she only saw him in his grand moments when he was making his great gesture; when he was shaven and shorn and spic-and-span and looking the perfect lover and gallant knight; when he was throwing money about with lordly indifference, and offering his good, strong, right arm for her to lean upon.

But it is a hard thing for Sally to see a godling in Tom with whom she works, and whose limitations are hourly forced upon her attention. He is no figure of romance as she sees him often needing a haircut and a shave and to have his clothes pressed; often grouchy and rude; often fretful and irritable, with petty, childish vanities and weaknesses; too fond of talking about himself; with ambitions he lacks the strength to realize.

Of course, the reverse of this is also true, and in the close contact of everyday association men and women discover the gold as well as the dross in each other's characters.

Many a man falls in love with a girl with whom he works, because he finds in her the sweetness, the gentleness, the intelligence, the sympathy and comradeship for which he yearns. Many another man marries the girl with whom he works because she has become a habit to him and he has adjusted himself to the angles of her disposition and is too lazy to go through the process a second time.

And many a woman falls in love with the man with whom she works because through her daily experiences and observation she comes to know, as nobody else does, just how fine and noble, how generous and unselfish and kind he is. And many another woman marries the man with whom she works just because he is a failure, and because he is so weak and helpless that she has an irresistible desire to mother him and take care of him.

The point I am trying to make is that the men and women who work together have no illusions about each other. Propinquity has dispelled them. Therefore, they are not as likely to fall in love with each other as they were in the old days when their association was more restricted. Undoubtedly our grandmothers, who wore their veils down, and kept their daughter's suitors at arm's length until after the engagement was announced, knew their sentimental onions.

Another reason why there is less marrying now than there used to be is because marriage is less an adventure and arouses less of the sporting spirit than it did in the days when men and women were marrying comparative strangers, and were taking a gamble on what they got. Matrimony was truly a lottery then. Now it is a certainty, for, with the opportunities that the young have to get to know each other, if they do not know exactly what they are getting, it is because they are too stupid to read as they run.

Then, too, the attitude of both men and women toward marriage has altered. No novel now ends as the old three-volume romances used to end: "And they were married and lived happily ever afterward." Intelligent young people know that marriage does not automatically secure their everlasting bliss. On the contrary, they know it for an ordeal that tries men and women's souls, and through which only those win who have fitness for each other—who are really mates. So a new carefulness in marrying is growing up among them.

They are analyzing more discriminatingly their own emotions, and they are deciding that while they like and admire this man or that woman, for this or that quality, they do not want to marry them. They desire them as friends, but not as husbands and wives. They know each other too well.

"Oh, John is a splendid fellow," says Mary, "and he has a keen line, but after you have heard it as many times as I have you wouldn't let yourself in for a lifetime of having to listen to it."

"Mary is a great little pal and I love her as a friend, but as a wife, nothing doing. I wouldn't marry her on a bet," says John.

And there you are. And that is one reason why wedding bells ring out less frequently than of yore. Familiarity may not breed contempt, but it certainly doesn't boom matrimony.—DOROTHY DIX.

Smartly Dressed Women Attend Ascot Opening

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES

ASCOT, England, June 21. (US)—Lace and painted chiffon divided honors as the most popular dress materials at the Ascot race meeting which opened today. As one of Europe's great fashion parades it is evident that Ascot has lost none if its popularity for the paddock was filled with smartly dressed women from all parts of the world, Americans, as usual, being there in large numbers.

There was green and blue and purple lace in addition to the more prevalent blonde and beige lace that is worn with chiffon or georgette.

Some Colored Shades

The weather was threatening, although the rain held off, but as a precaution against the cold many women wore fur trimmed coats. It was noticed also that there was a revival of colored shoes to match dresses. One woman in a violet lace dress and panne velvet coat to match, chose grey stockings and pale purple leather shoes. A youthful owner of an almond green dressed selected kid shoes to match.

Flowered chiffons were chosen for their bold designs and gay colors and I saw many dainty dresses frilled from the waist to hem.

The younger set chose hats with wide, floppy brims.

One note that couldn't be missed was the number of monocles worn by women. I counted half a dozen in as many minutes.

Queen Mary, who drove up in state with King George, wore a coat of gold tissue patterned in green, blue and gold over a light blue dress. Her coat was collared in light fur. Princess Mary, in pale pink, had a large hat of pale pink crinolene. The Duchess of Roxburghe, seated in the royal box, had a coat of cherry red velvet, which matched her hat. Lady Granard wore grey with silver fox fur. Lady Patricia Ramsay was in a brown and white patterned crepe de chine with a brown coat and hat. Lady Blandford also wore printed crepe de chine.

Results of Proof

MONTREAL—What the U. S. lost in revenue through the sale of liquors the last few years, Canada apparently has picked up. The increase in that country's sale of beverages since the event of prohibition in the United States is significant. For the 12 months ending February of this year, Canada's liquor sales were valued at nearly $44,220,000, an increase of about $16,000,000 over the preceding year.

Alamo City Adds Another Fiesta

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21. (AP)—A new fiesta has been added to San Antonio's many celebrations. Members of the San Antonio conservation society announced that they will make the fete which they have this year during the General Federation of Women's clubs convention an annual affair.

The society is interested in preserving as much as possible the Castillian atmosphere which the monks and the conquistadores and their descendants and successors brought here through old Mexico. The scene of the society's chief activity has been the old market plaza where the Mexican farmers, peddlers and open air restaurateurs hold forth.

Native Costumes

The society has had a quaint Mexican lantern designed for use on the chili stands which the city rents as concessions and in doing everything to preserve this picturesque market that it can.

During the conservation fiesta a part of the plaza is cleared for dancing the Mexican stringed orchestras which play from house to house ordinarily, rather at the plaza and local senoritas and caballeros, attracted by the celebration, don native costumes and parade about the market just as they do in old Mexico.

Poincare Resignation Topic of Discussion

PARIS, June 21. (UP)—The possibility that Premier Poincare will be forced to resign after stabilization of the franc, expected at the end of the week, is being openly discussed in the corridors of the chamber of deputies.

As soon as stabilization has been accomplished a great debate on the government's general policies will come up in the chamber, and in this Premier Poincare is expected to make an important speech, demanding that the 450 delegates who were elected because they were supporters of the government, tell where they stand.

OLD WAR HORSE

Gen. M. M. Crane of Dallas is the second on the list of delegates at large selected by the Beaumont convention to attend the national convention in the city of Houston. Governor Moody has first place. General Crane was elected lieutenant governor on the ticket with James Stephen Hogg in the year 1890. He was elected attorney general on the ticket with Hogg in the year 1892. He had been a member of both houses of the legislature prior to that time. He was a delegate to the Baltimore convention in 1912. He was a delegate to the San Francisco convention in 1920. He was not a delegate to the Madison Square garden convention. He led the anti-Bailey forces in many battles in Texas. He led the anti-Ferguson forces in many battles. He led the anti-klan forces when he supported Mrs. Ferguson for governor. He made prohibition speeches in 1887 and he has been making prohibition speeches ever since. He was a member of the committee on platforms in the city of San Francisco eight years ago. He will attend the Houston convention. He read the Republican platform. It did not appeal to him.

G. O. P. PROMISES

"The Republican national convention for 1928 met and adjourned," he writes. "Its platform includes an expressed promise to enforce the 18th amendment and all other laws. That is its only reference to prohibition. Its platform for 1924 was equally as dry in that it promised to enforce all laws, without expressly mentioning the 18th amendment. No intelligent person will assert that the promise to enforce all laws does not include prohibition laws. In addition to that, when the president of the United States, Mr. Coolidge, took his official oath on March 4, 1925, he expressed a promise to cause all laws to be enforced. That promise certainly included the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

ON NOTICE

"In order to comply with that promise and the plank in the Republican platform, Mr. Mellon, the greatest distiller in the nation, was appointed by Coolidge as the head of the prohibition enforcement department," remarked this former associate and friend of James Stephen Hogg. "Mr. Hoover was a member of President Coolidge's cabinet, and in a note to the convention expressly promised to follow Mr. Coolidge's lead. Optimistic, indeed, must be the prohibition intellect that can reasonably hope for any better things from Mr. Hoover in the matter of prohibition enforcement than from Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Mellon evidently so understood the situation, because he, as the newspapers report it, as well as Mr. Vare, who tried to purchase a seat in the United States senate, heartily approved the selection of Mr. Hoover as the Republican standard bearer. Mr. Mellon would not likely have cast the 76 votes of Pennsylvania in the Republican convention for Mr. Hoover if he suspected that it would reflect on his (Mellon's) official attitude or convict him before the public of non-enforcement of the prohibition laws. It would seem, therefore, that Mr. Hoover has put the prohibitionists on notice as to what to expect from him in that particular.

BOLTERS

"Unless there are some who are not so set on bolting the Democratic party that they think the express mention of the 18th amendment makes the obligation more binding, than to include it in the general statement of 'enforcement of all laws,' they will accept that view. If they conclude that the mention of the 18th amendment changes the meaning, they descend to the level of the old stockman who refused to accept a bill of sale to a herd of cattle which recited that it included all of the cattle in the herd, but insisted that it be rewritten so as to mention particularly the old black cow with the crumpled horn."

One-Minute Sermon

Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom: but a man of understanding walketh uprightly.

Without counsel purposes are disappointed: but in the multitude of counsellors they are established.

A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth: and a word spoken in due season, how good is it!—Proverbs, xv, 21-23.

The Sea Serpent

THE old things are always comforting. In this day of constant innovations it is nice to know that our oldest traditions are being maintained.

The liner Laconia docked in Boston the other day, and what do you supposed happened? Why, the passengers insisted they had seen a giant sea serpent! Some of them even described it minutely, dwelling on its green eyes and coarse, flowing mane. To be sure, the ship's officers said it was a whale; but the passengers stuck to the serpent story.

Every year we get at least one such story from the sea. That is as it should be. From the day the first Phoenician galley ventured out to the great deep beyond Gibraltar men have been seeing non-existent sea serpents. We would not have this old custom done away with for anything.

The Things We Imagine

THREE American women are off for Bagdad on a quest that will certainly be fascinating, even though it probably will prove fruitless. They want to find the storied palace of Haroun al Raschid; and, in the process, they hope to find out who wrote the Arabian Nights stories.

Maybe it is unkind, in advance of their explorations, to say that their venture probably will fail. There are certain riddles, bequeathed us by history, that weren't meant to be solved; and it does seem as if this Arabian Nights business were one of them.

Haroun al Raschid, like King Arthur, Ulysses and other romantic figures of the past, was very likely a more or less legendary creature. It is more than possible that old Bagdad never knew a ruler by that name. Hunting for his palace will be much like trying to find King Arthur's island vale of Avalon; it will mean looking for a place that never was on the map, that never had reality, that never was meant for the profaning feet of realistic antiquarians.

Yet, for all that, the old Arabian and his storied palace are quite as real today as most flesh-and-blood personages of the old days. More so, in fact; anyone who can read and can walk to the nearest library can make the acquaintance of both in short order. For when you invent a man, or a place, you at once make all ages free to come and see. The things we imagine are nearly always more real and substantial than the things which really happen. What boy hasn't strolled the quarter-deck with Long John Silver?

The truth is that we are not realistic people. We are servants of dreams. The shapes that we conjure up in cloudland are the forces that mold our lives. Even in our history books this truth is apparent. George Washington, for instance, was once a live, human figure; yet we have interwoven into the story of his life so much legend, so many fanciful tales, that the Washington of popular imagination would be unrecognizable to Benjamin Franklin, say, or John Adams, who knew him in the flesh. And that is not a fact to be regretted, either; for the legendary Washington has become gigantic, an image of the ideals and aspirations of his countrymen.

The ladies who are hunting Haroun's palace are, one suspects somewhat like those present-day biographers who are trying to "de-bunk" our histories. Their motive is, very likely, highly praiseworthy; yet there is a limit to the usefulness of hard facts. Legends are most important. They are the stuff our souls grow on.

It does not good to try to take the old tales apart. The man who is nourished and supported by them is the man who suspends his faculties of unbelief and absorbs them for what they are. He is the man who can steer his ship into a harbor on the seacoast of Bohemia, while the sober fact-seekers beat to and fro outside, looking in vain for a beacon.

Beauty Close at Hand

NEVER be in too much of a hurry to lament the passing of old-time romance and color from the world. It often happens that the new, which seems prosaic and dull at first, will take on hues more haunting and compelling than those that have vanished.

Three quarters of a century ago the American who went traveling had to put up with a lot of discomforts; but he traveled romantically, according to our standards. If he went overland he rode in a big coach drawn by six horses; if he traveled by river he boarded one of the big, gingerbread-and-push steamers that Mark Twain loved; if he went by sea he embarked in a graceful white-winged clipper, one of the most beautiful methods of conveyance ever devised by man.

Today he gets there quicker and enjoys much more comfort on the way; yet, to many people, a great deal of beauty and color have gone from the world with the passing of the stage coach, river steamer and sailing vessel. A solid Pullman train is an elegant thing to ride in; but it isn't quite as dashing a thing to look at as the old-time stage coach, with men in beaver hats seated on top, with the driver flourishing his long whip and the guard sounding periodic blasts on his trumpet.

So we rather take it for granted that our age, while better furnished and more efficient than the age of our grandfathers, is drabber. The sun may shine as brightly, the wind may blow as fresh and clear, as of old; but it does seem as if something worth preserving for its own sake had departed from us. We are pretty well wedded to modern ideas, so we accept that as the inevitable price. But, deep down, many of us secretly regret it.

It may be, though, that we are wrong. Perhaps our grandfathers looked on the stagecoach as a bumpy, unwieldy sort of thing and failed to appreciate its aesthetic qualities. Charles Dickens was not at all impressed by the "romantic" Mississippi river steamers; he loathed them. The up-to-date ocean steamer has a beauty of its own, too; perhaps we would see it more clearly if it occurred to us to look for it.

On top of all of this we are devising a fourth method of travel that, ultra-modern though it is, is certainly clothed in as much color and sparkle as any ever invented. The airplane is just coming into general use as a passenger carrier; and if you have ever waited at an airport and seen a great silver monoplane soar overhead, rapidly taking form from the mere speck it was when first sighted, circling lazily over the field and then swooping to earth like an unbelievably graceful bird, you will agree that no one ever traveled more romantically than the modern who goes by air.

Our children, it may be, will grow up to take the airplane as a matter of course. Very likely they will be no more thrilled by a flight than we are now by an auto ride. And—who knows?—they may look back on the outmodeled days of 1928 and sigh for the color and beauty of the old days, complaining that while an airplane is certainly speedy it lacks the dash and thrill that attended the old Pullman trains.

Stranger things have happened. It is only human nature to see beauty in that which is old and to fail to see it in that which is close at hand. We are bound to ascribe an especial appeal to anything that we happen to have missed. That is what we get for being a nation of romantics.

At a debate at Apple Grove schoolhouse, last night, it was resolved that th' fishin' worm is a better friend o' th' farmer than Sen. Capper. Th' first thing a feller does when he's held up is change his mind about what he used t' think he'd do.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 21.—"Where should I go to see the celebrities?" inquires a prospective visitor to the big town, who neglects to indicate whether by "celebrity" she refers to such as Gene Tunney, "Daddy" Browning, William Faversham, Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the winner of the "Bunion derby," Babe Ruth, "One-eyed" Connelley, Bud Fisher, Texas Guinan, et al., or, possibly, John Dewey, Dr. Lee De Forest, Dr. Will Durant, W. C. Durant, Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters, Cass Gilbert, THE Mrs. Vanderbilt, Elisabeth Marbury or H. L. Mencken.

New York celebrity hunters have the most sport at the openings of Broadway shows, at fashionable church weddings on Fifth or Park avenues, at charity balls promoted under "proper" auspices, and at benefit performances given by prominent stage organizations.

There comes to mind some vagrant glimpses of persons notable or notorious: Charles M. Schwab, the steelmaster, astride a stool in Grand Central oyster bar. Fred Stone, the buffoon and acrobat, hanging perilously to a strap in a crowded Long Island train. Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, doing the same in a subway train. George Jean Nathan, the critic who dislikes the movies, and Lillian Gish, the cinema actress, unrecognized in a movie theater in Greenwich Village. Anthony Fokker, the plane-maker, grinning back at me as he turned off first one motor, then two, as the trimotored ship bounced along at 100 miles an hour over New York city. Chorus girls "playing up" to Erich Von Stroheim, the movie badman, at Texas Guinan's.

Also Irvin Cobb, the story-confector, walking moodily in Sixth avenue. Burton Rascoe, the editor and critic, eating corn off the cob at Coney Island, at 3 a. m. Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, the society great-lady, and Mabel Boll, the "diamond queen," at a movie opening. Rube Goldberg, the cartoonist, taking in "home-movies" on Fifth avenue. Babe Ruth, in the third row of a mystery melodrama. Adolph Ochs, owner of the New York Times, pausing in the doorway of the Times annex to talk with pressmen and compositors, waiting there for time to go to work.

And a few more: Morris Gest, the impressario (the high-brow word for show producer) having a sandwich in a quick-lunch. Paul Whiteman consuming chile at the Chile Villa. Koehl, Fitzmaurice and Von Heunefeld, the ocean flyers, at a musical "leg" show. A famous movie hero making whoopie in a speakeasy. Christopher Morley, the novelist and poet, trying to read while standing in a subway train. Jascha Heifetz, the fiddler, walking around Central Park reservoir. (Many notables go there for daily exercise). Texas Guinan riding a horse in Central park after her club had closed for the day. Lieut. Comdr. Richard E. Byrd in an elevator at the Hotel McAlpin. Miguel Covarrubias, the caricaturist, eating fried bananas at Forno's cafe.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, New York, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

PRAYER CANCELLED

A worthy Scot was persuaded by his minister to become an elder. The new official was doubtful of his ability to produce that extempore prayer which is sometimes called for.

To make sure that he would never be caught unawares, he pasted a prayer in his tall hat.

The call came at a funeral some days later, when, as the parson had not arrived, the elder was asked for "a few words."

He went into the hall for his hat. He bowed over it reverently, as did his little audience. To their astonishment the new elder cried out in an agitated voice:

"Guidness, this is no' my hat!"

COMPLETE NEW ROAD SURVEY

Route To Carlsbad Caverns Shortened

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, June 21.—District Engineer George Fields and his corps of engineers have just completed a cut off survey for the Dal-Paso Cavern highway through Gaines and Dawson counties which will save some six or more miles from Lamesa to Seminole over the present routing of this highway. Fields has approved the new location for the reason that it is the most practical and shortens this important cardinal highway for the Carlsbad caverns. This will make the distance from Lamesa to the state line west only some 70 miles and over the new routing only 154 miles to the Carlsbad caverns, whereas with all crooks and turns of the old routing some 36 mile more would be traveled.

According to state highway officials work will be started soon on actual grading of this new location.

Tourist travel has picked up considerably over a like period last year over this new highway. It is estimated that a 50 per cent increase of travel is realized over last year.

All roads leading out of Lamesa including highway No. 9 have been placed in the best possible condition for the summer tourist travel.

Press Meet Discusses Postal Rate Reduction

BILOXI, Miss., June 21. (AP)—A detailed account of the manner in which the Southern Newspaper Publishers association secured a reduction in postal rates that included an attack on metropolitan publishers and Washington correspondents for throwing cold water on their activities was delivered here today at the opening of the opening of the opening of the association's annual convention by Urey Woodson, publisher of the Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger, and chairman of the association's postal committee.

In having postal rates on second-class matter reverted to the 1920 basis, Mr. Woodson declared opposition from within and without congress had to be overcome.

Vernon Delegation Returns From C-C Meet

VERNON, June 21.—Jubilant over having won three distinctive honors at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Fort Worth, the Vernon delegation returned home Thursday morning. With them came A. M. Bourland, newly elected president of the organization who lives near Vernon, the first prize in the float contest, and third in the "My Home Town" contest, which was won by F. A. Newth Jr.

This city sent a delegation of approximately 100 to the convention on a special train, and many others went in automobiles. Miss Edna Ladd represented Vernon as sponsor.

SECRETS.

Now, all of us have secrets—
Those personal events,
That we must guard from others
In strictest confidence.

The store-room for our secrets
Is very, very small;
We feel we must find someone
To tell them to—that's all!

I doubt if many secrets
Have gone thru time unspoken;
The instant that we tell it,
It falls, inert and spoken.

But still, it's only human;
I guess it's nothing new
To look around for someone
To tell your troubles to.

For it relieves a pressure
To get them off your chest.
Of all good points of secrets,
Their telling is the best.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, a struggling artist, gives a party at his Greenwich Village studio in honor of his fiancee, VIRGINIA, beautiful daughter and heiress of RICHARD BREWSTER, Wall Street financier.

NIEL'S model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries the wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art. He tests VIRGINIA by showing her his studies in nude and then introduces her to the model, but her reaction is so wholesomely sweet that he is more in love than ever.

While the party is in progress NIEL receives a phone message that VIRGINIA'S father is found dead of heart failure. He hurries to her home, where she is prostrated with grief. At sight of the peculiarly tortured expression on the dead man's face, NIEL involuntarily asks the doctor, "Do you think it was a . . . natural death?"

NOW GO WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Dr. Meyerling regarded Nathaniel with grave thoughtfulness before replying to his question.

Then he said quietly, "Why do you ask me that?"

Nathaniel hesitated just a second. "That look on his face," he began uncertainly; "sort of fearful and . . ."

"You are engaged to Miss Brewster, I believe?" Dr. Meyerling broke in. "Yes? Well I'll tell you that Mr. Brewster worried himself to death. I warned him often that it would come to this."

"What in the world did he have to worry about?" Nathaniel asked unbelievingly.

"Money, young man; the thing that is at the bottom of most men's worries."

"I can't imagine Mr. Brewster in financial difficulties," Nathaniel remarked frankly, "but if it was as you say, could that have made him look as though he saw an assassin before him?"

"He did see an assassin. He saw Death, and this time he must have known that Death would be victorious."

"Still, I can't see why facing death could have marked him like that. Surely it must have been something more. I don't believe Mr. Brewster could have feared so greatly to die."

"He did not fear for himself, no, but he wanted to live so that the day when his daughter must learn that for years his fortune had been rapidly dwindling away would be postponed."

Nathaniel uttered a sound of dismay, but he was thinking only of Virginia, and Dr. Meyerling comprehended this.

"His only relieving thought was that his daughter was going to marry a man he believed in," he told Nathaniel warmly and put a friendly hand on his shoulder.

"I think it would be advisable to have Mrs. Pike communicate with some of Miss Brewster's friends and get someone here as soon as possible," he went on, not waiting for Nathaniel to speak. "I'll send in a nurse, but Miss Brewster will sleep for several hours. You'd better go home and get some rest. She will need you tomorrow."

Nathaniel remained until a friend of Virginia's appeared. He thought the girl loked incapable of comforting her; Mrs. Pike assured him that she was Virginia's closest friend.

Strange he hadn't met her before, Miss Dean? Then he remembered. She had been in Europe for two years, but Virginia often had talked about her. He wondered why Virginia cared for her. The attraction of opposites, perhaps, he told himself.

As he walked home, the many blocks uncounted, his heart ached with pity for Virginia. In his studio he took a stiff drink from a bottle that he found on a side table. The guests were gone, the butler, too.

When he put down the glass Nathaniel seemed to view his surroundings with a new meaning. The table was somewhat disordered and the once temptingly-garnished patties and jellies were messy looking now. The orchids drooped and in the hollow stems of champagne glasses a pale of liquid had lost its effervescent power. It seemed to symbolize the joy that had blossomed here, and died.

"My God," he cried sharply, and sank down with his head on the table. He felt for the moment that he and his guests had danced on a grave.

"Have a cigaret?"

Nathaniel lifted his head.

"Why didn't you go with the others?" he demanded of the girl who stood there, proffering a package of cigarets.

"Guessed you'd get into a funk. What was it, Niel? Is her father dead?"

Nathaniel nodded. "Heart trouble."

"That's too bad for you. Now you'll have a rich wife instead of merely an heiress."

"No! Though it's going to be rough on Virginia, I won't have to play that role, Chiri. Mr. Brewster did not leave a fortune."

Chiri gasped. "Well, you found that out soon enough. She must be sure of your love to tell you."

"She—if you mean Virginia—didn't tell me. In fact, she doesn't know it yet; at least I believe she doesn't."

"Ah." Chiri breathed the word as though with its utterance she experienced an exhilirating emotion.

Quickly, through her scheming little head, had passed a new idea, one that she accepted with a satisfaction that took no thought of what it would mean to Nathaniel if the idea became a reality.

Virginia Brewster, heiress to Richard Brewster's millions, could afford the luxury of a poor husband—but Virginia Brewster, deprived of those millions . . . ? she might throw Niel over!

Chiri rose, having seated herself, and got the bottle from which she had seen Nathaniel pour his drink.

"Here, have another," she urged, coming back to him. It wouldn't harm her newly-born hopes if she could send Nathaniel to Virginia with the effects of drinking showing on his features.

"At a time like this," she thought, "she'd hate it. Even I would if it were my father."

But Nathaniel had needed only one bracer. It was enough. He told Chiri so. She shrugged at the quick failure of her plan. After all, she shouldn't have expected it to work—Niel was too decent for that.

"Well, there's nothing more to offer you—except that I know you don't want my loving comfort—so I'll get on to my downy couch. It hasn't been impressed with my dainty figure for two nights. I don't suppose you'll be working for some time. Mind if I go to Hark for his series? He won't finish with me very soon, but when you're back at work again you'll have to do the murals and let your illustrations go, any how, so you won't need me."

"Good night," Nathaniel muttered, and Chiri understood she could go to Fell Harkness or anywhere else she liked.

"Good night," Nathaniel muttered, and Chiri understood she could go to Fell Harkness or anyone else she liked.

"Good night," Nathaniel muttered, and Chiri understood she could go to Fell Harkness or anywhere else she liked.

"I'll come in and make you some coffee," she promised. "What time are you getting up?"

"I'm not going to bed, and don't bother, please."

"You mean you're going to sit up all night and soak yourself in grief over what's happened to Miss Brewster?"

Nathaniel glanced at his watch. "It's almost morning now."

"Then I'll make the coffee before I go."

"Never mind . . ." Nathaniel feared she would want to stay to drink with him. But she surprised him by leaving as soon as she had the percolator going and sugar at his elbow.

Chiri often did the unexpected. Nathaniel thought of that with gratitude as he drank the steaming black liquid. Then he forgot her entirely in thinking of Virginia.

As early as he dared he was at her apartment that morning and for the next few days he remained at her side as much as he was permitted to. She had not been told about her father's financial troubles. He learned this from Dr. Meyerling, who had talked with Mr. Brewster's lawyer. The physician had advised against telling her until after her father's funeral.

Nathaniel dreaded the hour of disclosure for her. Its coming so aldee on the shock of her great bereavement made him wonder if she could stand up under it. She was so pitifully near collapse as it was.

But he was to see a new side of Virgina's character when Mr. Gardiner, the lawyer, intoned the bad news in an excessively grave voice. Nathaniel had been rather astonished at her abandonment to grief such as one expects only from less tortured persons. He had expected more self-control from her, but then, he reminded himself, her love for her father was not of the ordinary filial kind. They had been truly devoted to each other. Nathaniel sensed the fact that Virginia's loss had terrified her.

It was different now, however, when she learned that she had lost a fortune as well. It semed rather to bewilder than to hurt her.

"But I can't understand," she murmured; "how can you say there is nothing left? We still have the house at Glen Cove and . . . daddy . . . never curtailed our expenses . . ."

"He ruined himself to keep up appearances," Mr. Gardiner explained bluntly. "All the property he inherited was heavily mortgaged long ago. Somehow he managed to keep the estate you speak of clear . . . until about three months ago. What he did with the money he obtained on it at that time I have not been able to discover. There are no receipted bills of any recent date. I fear, Miss Brewster, that there is an appalling number of accounts yet to be paid, and foreclosures on your property are sure to be immediate."

The man all but droned the words, doing his duty. He found it difficult, of course, but Virginia's attitude deceived him. She seemed so indifferent, except to Nathaniel, who sat close enough to watch her reactions coming and going in her grief-filled eyes.

Mr. Gardiner suspected it was possible she possessed some means unknown to him . . . ah, yes, the money her father had raised on the estate at Glen Cove . . . no, no . . . that would not be like them. Richard Brewster hadn't known how to brake the toboggan of habit on which he was riding to financial doom, but his lawyer knew that he would not have planned to cheat any one to whom he owed money.

Nathaniel felt that his voice could have been softer, his manner more gentle, and he was infinitely glad when it was all over and he was alone with Virginia. He had something he considered very important to say to her before he left her this time. But he did not get to say it. They were interrupted by an unexpected caller whom Virginia would not refuse to see.

New Baptist Convention Urged

DALLAS, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Organization of a new Baptist convention of Texas during the week in November that the two existing state organizations will be in session at Mineral Wells was asked in a circular letter issued and signed by M. H. Wolfe, of Dallas, former president of the Baptist general convention of Texas. Wolfe said copies had been sent to hundreds of Baptists in Texas.

Purpose of the new body would be to secure the cooperation of the "more than 2000 Baptist churches in Texas not now cooperating with the Baptist general convention of Texas," toward promoting and magnifying missions and evangelism and in the payment of debts of schools and hospitals operated by the Baptist general convention of Texas.

Numerous Baptist leaders of the state are in favor of the movement, Wolfe said. He suggested that all Baptist churches of the state send the same delegates to the Baptist general convention and the proposed new convention. The state sessions of the Baptist general convention of Texas and the Missionary Baptist convention will be held November 5.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Robert W. Chambers has written more than 50 books, numerous plays, several motion pictures, is a regular contributor of fiction to leading periodicals and is well known as an artist—having had his canvases exhibited in the Paris salon after a career of illustrating for various magazines. So you see here are others besides Mussolini.

Rivet special attention to the identity of the man who told me that the following was his favorite slice of humor, because it sounds like something that might have come from H. G. Wells, Conan Doyle, or even Mr. Darwin.

Mr. Chambers said:

Do you wish to know my favorite jest,
The jest I think the very best?
It's the joke God played on this decent earth
When parasite man was given birth.

"Still," Mr. Chambers went on, "I have been amused by the answer a man gave a friend of his when the other inquired as to a third friend's health.

"'Didn't you hear about your old Richard?' said the second. 'He was killed up in the mountains of Kentucky—in a feud.'

"'Well,' replied the other, 'I warned him about riding in them cheap cars!'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Nervous Exhaustion

Doctors sometimes refer to America as a nation of neurasthenics, which means those with nerve debility. One peculiarity of a neurasthenic is that he may develop the symptoms of almost any other disease because he readily receives suggestions, especially about sickness.

The symptoms of neurasthenia are so many that it is almost impossible to give a complete description of a case, but there usually is an inability to sleep, or lying awake for hours with a tendency to fall asleep when it is time to get up for work, and arising more exhausted than when they retired. There are weakening pains, headaches, backache, night sweating, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, muscular spasms such as difficult breathing, choking sensation, and fault finding and criticism.

Most people who have a nervous breakdown compliment themselves with the belief that it is due to overwork, but it is more likely due to a toxic condition of the body, associated with an unpleasant environment. Many of these sufferers are under the impression that their disease is incurable and that they are doomed to death. Doctors sometimes add to this trouble by assuring these patients that they are just a bundle of nerves" and that they need a good rest or trip to the seashore, or any place where they are not living at that time.

The sooner the nervous patient realizes that he alone is responsible for his trouble, the more quickly will he find the real cause. One cannot get away from one's own habits by taking a trip to the country. It is destructive habits that are practiced 24 hours a day at home that are causing the nervous breakdown, and if these bad habits are changed to good ones, the patient will then be on the road to health and happiness.

Many men and women patients of 45 or more claim they have had from five to 10 nervous breakdowns. These people will generally assure the doctor that they have been over-working when they probably have really been suffering from a lack of enjoyment of their work.

Really successful men and women seldom complain of nervousness. It is only those who waste energy with dissatisfaction with what they are, and are constantly disappointed at their lack of success, who develop real nervous breakdowns.

When really nervous women become angry, they sometimes work themselves into a hysterical state, almost losing their reason, screaming and kicking until they are exhausted or get what they want. This is a little different from nerve exhaustion, but it usually shows a spoiled nature that is simply having an acute attack of bad temper. In almost every case of hysteria there is a pelvic congestion. Temporary paralysis is frequently produced by hysteria. The patient is sometimes unable to move, although perfectly conscious, and retaining the power of reason and speech. Sometimes there is a paralysis of the vocal cords or inability to swallow. This paralysis usually only lasts a few minutes, but in extreme cases may continue for years if the cause is not removed. In almost every case there is a congestion in the womb of the female, or the prostate of the male. This may be caused by prolapsed organs or inflammation. This trouble which is often related to or mistaken for nerve exhaustion, is all brought on by pelvic congestion.

Real nerve exhaustion is usually brought on by the absorption of poisons from the intestines, so you see that in both these cases, a cure depends upon a proper functioning of the abdominal region, combined with good mental habits and proper recreation.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. O. J. L. writes: "Please tell me the cause of severe pain at the lower end of the spinal column. When sitting or lying down it is the most painful. What would you recommend as a remedy? I suffer from piles and constipation."

Answer—First, get rid of your constipation, then your rectal trouble will quickly disappear, and perhaps the pain in the lower spine, as such pain is often caused from constipation and the distension of the rectum because of the packing up of fecal matter.

Question—K. L. M. asks: "What special element does the grapefruit contain that makes it such a healthful fruit?"

Answer—The large amount of organic quinine contained in grapefruit is beneficial in liver complaints.

Question—Jerry writes: "Every fifteen minutes or so, night and day, I have a "flush" or heat wave. These are preceded by a most depressing sensation. I have had them for about ten years."

Answer—You probably have some kind of functional heart disorder which makes your circulation irregular. Systematic exercise and diet if persisted in, will bring about a cure.

Question—Mrs. O. H. asks: "Is an operation for varicose veins on the leg a serious one?"

Answer—Removal of the enlarged veins is always a dangerous procedure not so much because of the danger of the operation itself, but because of the after-effects. It is far better to wear an elastic stocking, or to reduce the size of the vein by electrical treatments or the application of ice. The ice should be held against the enlarged vein for three or four minutes at a time, and this treatment given two or three times daily.

Cattle Movement In Midland Nears Close

MIDLAND, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Spring movement of cattle from the Midland country has about ended for this year. Thousands of head bought for spring delivery have been shipped into the corn belt to be finished. During the last few days of the livestock exchange Midland and Des Moines moved over 4000 head into the northern feed belt.

The Midland section has fewer head of left overs than at any time in many years, veteran cattlemen say. High prices, competitive buying and excellent condition of the cattle caused the unusually heavy movement.

Mexicans Sentenced In Monahans Stabbing

BARSTOW, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Francisco Pueblo and Salvador Delgado, who were the indirect cause of the killing of John Jones and wounding of B. Murray by a sheriff's posse near Monahans on the night of May 6 were sentenced to five years in the penitentiary here today.

Pueblo and Delgado were convicted for robbing and stabbing Henry Seitz near Monahans. It was while searching for the two men that the sheriff's posse, led by Deputy Sheriff McDonald, killed Jones and wounded his companion, Murray.

OLD SCHOONER TAKES TO SEA

Four-Masted Ship Calls Up Old Days

TEXAS CITY, Texas, June 21. (AP)—In days of old when young men went "down to the sea in ships," a four-mastered schooner was commonplace. It was not even classed as a "windjammer" with other ships of romance which depended upon the erratic winds for their power.

But now, things have changed, and even a schooner with four masts is regarded with awe by the youngsters and hailed by old seafaring men as an emblem of the past.

Texas has such a ship. She is the Mable Gale of Houston, now here taking on cargo for a voyage to "who knows where?" And the Mable Gale, while not as young as she used to be, soon will sail away to "foreign shores" and old timers will watch her leave them behind as they wish for a chance to re-live the days of their youth.

Built in 1902

The Mable Gale was built in Port Blakely, Wash., in 1902. With her four masts reaching 125 feet toward the heavens, she sailed the oceans of the globe for 26 years before she was bought by a Texas firm. During her lifetime she has touched at many points in Australia, Europe, Africa and South America, carrying her cargo of 1000 tons and her crew of nine through storms that swamped many less hardy ships.

She is 200 feet long and draws 18 feet. She carries before the wind four large sails, four topsails, four staysails and three jibs. Only one note shatters the picture of a figure from the past—her sails are raised and lowered by donkey engine, and not by husky sailors rolling out their chanteys as they heave.

Her captain, Owen D. Tibbets, as are all good sailing vessel captains, is well capable of bearing tradition. Although he is only 30 years old, he has had 18 years at sea, having taken a post as cabin boy when he was 14. He has 10 brothers, and all of them follow the sea.

Ayres Will Not Back Out of Race, He Says

TOPEKA, Kan., June 21. (UP)—Representative W. A. Ayres of the eighth Kansas congressional district, for whom the Kansas delegates to the Democratic convention are instructed for president, stated that he is not contemplating any statement that would withdraw him from the race in favor of Al Smith or any other candidate.

Tex Rickard Named in Tax Suit

Records Bare Tale of Penniless Days

NEW YORK, June 21. (US(—If you have tears, prepare to shed them now!

For, laid bare to public gaze, and strewn over the records in the county court, is the astonishingly complete poverty which George L. "Tex" Rickard endured in 1926.

His was none of your petty poverties—a starving boy hiding under silks and satins. His was no mere dilettante flirtation with the lack of things! Boy—he was poor!

Sued today by the city of New York for $263.00 taxes due on personal property, which suit was filed by the corporation counsel in the county clerk's office, there was attached thereto an affidavit which might be entitled:

Poor Rickard's almanak!

It sets forth that at the time mentioned he had a job as manager of the Madison Square garden—but:

He had no shares of any sort of stock, no bonds, no real estate, no mortgages, no dividends, no income from rent, no interest in any business, no marine property, not even an inconspicuous yacht, he had neither horse nor hound, no real property of any kind, nor even of description. He adds that he was only in New York infrequently that year, and made no tax return because he was out of town.

The corporation counsel adds that he will probably be also out of luck.

FARMER FIRST

A. M. Bourland, New C-C Head Known As Builder

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 21.—A. M. Bourland, newly elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, although he has many business interests, is described by his friends here as first of all a farmer, then a community builder. In spite of a number of business interests in Vernon, Mr. Bourland resides on his farm three miles east of here on the Wichita Falls highway.

At present he is president of the Farmers State bank and president of the Vernon National Farm Loan association. He is a past president of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce, and a former commissioner of Wilbarger county. As commissioner he became one of the county's most active proponents of good roads, and took a leading part in bringing about the building of the free bridge across Red river.

Woman Predicts Hoover Landslide

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Herbert Hoover is expected to poll the biggest woman's vote a candidate for the presidency has ever received, Mrs. J. C. Griswold, Republican national committeewoman for Texas declared here upon her return from the party convention in Kansas City.

Mrs. Griswold was enthusiastic over the action of the party in choosing Hoover. She pointed out that if elected he will be the first engineer-president since Washington and that an engineer and economist would be an ideal combination for the head of an administration that must see the Mississippi flood prevention program through.

She was equally enthusiastic about the selection of Senator Curtis for the vice presidential berth and believes that such a man in the administration is needed if progress is to be made in farm relief.

Mrs. Griswold was unanimously re-elected committeewoman at the Kansas City convention. She has already served in that capacity six years.

BYRD LAUDS AMY EARHART

Gets Formal Word of Hop In Phone Call

BOSTON, June 21. (UP)—"As we say in aviation, 'she's a regular fellow,'" was Commander Richard E. Byrd's tribute to Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the dangerous waters of the North Atlantic, as he was about to leave for New York.

Commander Byrd, who is planning an Antartic expedition, was particularly interested in the flight as the Friendship originally was to have been used in his polar expedition. Plans were changed and the plane sold to the backers of Miss Earhart's flight.

After being questioned by the United Press, Byrd admitted he had received a phone call from Miss Earhart today, giving a formal report of the flight.

"Miss Earhart reported that the plane had averaged 112.1 miles per hour and had covered 2246 miles on the flight," Byrd said. "What is most remarkable about the flight is that they missed their objective by only a mile—much closer than other transatlantic fliers have done.

"Miss Earhart is a very high type of young woman," he continued, "and the flight was made for the progress of aviation and not for selfish reasons. She's a regular fellow.

"Stultz is a great pilot and expert navigator and Gordon a great mechanic," he said in enthusiastic tribute to Miss Earhart's companions.

"I didn't doubt the success of their flight for a moment," he declared.

Commander Byrd said the contribution of the flight to the progress of aviation lay in the use of a pontoon-equipped plane for the first time in a transatlantic flight. The forced landing at Halifax could only have been made with such a plane, he pointed out.

"The next step in ocean flying lies in the use of pontoon-equipped planes," he predicted.

Miss Earhart plans to return to this country on June 27, according to her phone conversation with Commander Byrd.

Americans Spend Large Sums On Liquor, Says Canadian

HOUSTON, Texas, June 21. (UP)—Norman Mack, Smith supporter, declared in a statement today that millions of dollars had been spent in Ontario by Americans principally for liquor.

"The people in the states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and New York spend the greater portion of their time and money imbibing the liquor so easily obtained in Canada in the various provinces," he said.

"It is absolutely criminal for this country to lose the tremendous amount of money to foreign nations simply because of prohibition."

Army Mules May Aid In Replanting Ruined Crops

WASHINGTON, June 21. (UP)—Army mules from Fort Sill, Okla., will be pressed into service in replanting the cotton crop in Tillman county, Oklahoma, replacing farm horses killed in a recent tornado, the war department announced today.

Following a request from the Frederick, Okla., Chamber of Commerce for help, the war department instructed Brig. Gen. Dwight E. Aultman, commanding Fort Sill, to confer at once with Frederick officials as to how far the army can go in helping the farmers.

The Frederick chamber's request for help said that all work horses in the vicinity had been killed and that the "entire crop in this area depends on us getting work stock within the next day or two."

GALLOWAY'S MEN SWEEP FOUR-GAME SERIES WITH SANTONE

SPUDDERS COP FINAL, 8 TO 7

Estell Rescues Contest; Champions Bat Hard

SAN ANTONIO, June 21.—Fans of San Antonio are wondering what it's all about. They are bewildered, a state of being shared by the Bears. The Spudders trounced the Bruins today in the final of the four-game series, a sweep for the champions. Today's score was 8 to 7.

Trailing 7-1 in the sixth the Bears tied in the seventh by hammering Herb Cobb off the hill and scoring six runs. Tom Estell, who is becoming a most excellent relief worker, did his stuff and checked the Bears and held them runless thereafter. The Galloways then scored in the seventh to win.

Both clubs maced 13 hits. Roetz and Swenson led the Spudder attack with three blows each. Turgeon pounded two knocks. Grimes' three blows led the Bear assault. Every Spudder except the batterymen hit safely.

YANKEES BLANK MACKS, 4 TO 0

Ruth Hits Homer But Rain Halts Finale in 3rd

NEW YORK, June 21. (AP)—The Yankees whitewashed the Athletics, 4 to 0, here today in what was to have been the first game of a double header, but rain washed out the second clash with the visitors leading 3 to 2 in the third.

For the first time in his major league career of 15 seasons, Babe Ruth lost a home run in a game halted by rain. He hit his twenty-sixth in the first inning of the night cap with Combs on base, and took a lead of 16 games, 12 days and four home runs over his 1927 record only to see it vanish. Score:

West Texas Loop Moguls Rescind 'Penalties' Imposed by President

Stevenson's Actions in Forfeiting Franchises and Suspending Managers Unanimously Abrogated

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The display of "authority" by J. McAllister Stevenson, evinced in a manner as startling as an Oklahoma storm, yesterday ended as suddenly as it was manifested. Moguls of the West Texas league, in conclave at Abilene rescinded the action of Stevenson, president of the loop, in forfeiting the franchises of the Abilene and San Angelo clubs, and the suspension of Les Tullos, manager of the Abilene team and Earl E. "Red" Snapp, president and manager of the San Angelo nine.

The meeting of the West Texas league magnates was as harmonious as a Republican presidential convention. They unanimously repudiated Stevenson's hasty and unwarranted action and deplored the president's move as creating unfavorable publicity for the league.

Games Here Okeyed

Transfer of the Abilene and Midland games, scheduled for Abilene today, tomorrow and Sunday, to Wichita Falls, also was approved by the moguls with no dissenting vote.

The West Texas league club owners will convene again next Monday afternoon at Abilene. Other than to say that "important business" will be settled, no statement of the purpose of the Monday confab was made.

Stevenson Not Present

Yesterday's meeting was presided over by L. L. Shields of Coleman, vice-president of the league. Stevenson was not in Abilene yesterday, it was said.

Others attending the meeting were C. E. Hill and E. Magness of Hamlin, F. D. Hunter of Lubbock, James Maloney of Midland; M. A. Snodgrass of Coleman, Earl E. Snapp of San Angelo and President W. R. Keevle and Les Tullos of Abilene. Guy Airey, secretary of the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league, acted as secretary.

J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Spudders, is chief owner of the Abilene franchise.

West Texas Loop Champs Play Here

Abilene and Midland Open 3-Game Series Today

We are to have some professional baseball out at the lot this week, even though the Spudders are on the road. The three games opening the second half of the West Texas league, scheduled for Abilene with Hamlin today, tomorrow and Sunday will be played here.

The usual starting time for Spudder games, 4 o'clock for week days and 3 o'clock Sunday, will be observed.

Abilene, owned by J. Alvin Gardner, Spudder prexy, won the first half schedule in the West Texas. The Aces, as they are known, won 12 straight with the finish of the first half.

Several stars, potential Spudders, are on the Abilene roster. These include Debs Garms, shortstop; Cam Best, left fielder; Chick Galeria, bespectacled left-handed pitcher; Garland Orr, right fielder, and Ed Kallina, pitcher and first baseman. Among other Abilene players who were here in spring training are Roland Roberts, Buster Jackson and Ash Hillin, pitchers, and Bobby Turgeon, third baseman. Bobby is a brother of Pete.

WALKER OUT FIGHTS HUDKINS IN FIERCE GO AND KEEPS TITLE

MICKEY VICTOR IN TEN ROUNDS

Champion Resists Boring-In Attack of Challenger

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

COMISKEY PARK, CHICAGO, June 21. (US)—Literally wading in water through the final rounds, their faces smeared with blood that came so fast even a torrential rain couldn't wash it off, Mickey Walker of Rumson, N. J., the middleweight champion of the world, and Ace Hudkins of Omaha, Neb., fought ten mad rounds here tonight, Walker getting the decision.

Some of the 20,000 spectators who sat soaked to the skin in the White Sox park, barely able to see the whirling, dripping figures through the blinding downpour, squawked briefly about the decision before hurrying home for dry clothing. Eddie Purdy was the referee, Ed Kline and Harry Carroll were the judges. The former is a restaurant man, the latter in insurance.

Decision Correct

The decision was all right. Walker had at least six of the ten rounds. Once he had this so-called wildcat teetering dizzily from a body punch. They fought the ninth in a drizzle and the tenth in a snorting deluge, locked head to head and pummeling furiously, with Hudkins' face caked with what looked like red mud but which was his blood. Their gloves were soaked with water until they flew spray from them with every punch. Their trunks clung tightly to their writhing forms. Their feet made a splashy sound as they stepped around.

Purdy, the referee, looked like he had just been fished out of the Chicago river. All around the ring the men and women who contributed over $100,000 to see the Rumson bulldog defend the title he won right here in Chicago against "the Nebraska wildcat" were huddled in their seats stoically mopping up the rain. It was a memory of Philadelphia in 1926, only the rain wasn't so cold. It was just as wet, however.

Mickey Too Strong

Walker was 2½ to 1 favorite. No one figured "the wildcat" much of a chance. He fought a game fight, which you might call a "heady" fight if you wished to wax facetious. His wavy blond head was in Walker's face most of the evening despite the plaintive outcrys from Jack Kearns and Teddy Hayes in Walker's corner. It was a desperate, grinding battle from start to finish with both men mean and vicious in their attitude toward each other. Walker was too strong for Hudkins, a great welterweight but not yet a great middleweight. At long range Walker did his greatest damage, though Hudkins outbuffeted him at times in the clinches.

The wildcat never stepped back except when he was knocked back. He certainly out-pushed Walker, but he failed to do enough damage while pushing.

After this fight was over, the promoter wanted to call it a night, but the crowd had been promised another bout and remained in the ball yard yelling furiously. Finally, the water was shoved out of the ring and Les Marriner, former University of Illinois tackle, pinched out Tex McEwen of Philadelphia and all hands waded home somewhat appeased.

Polo Grounds At Coleman Finished

Team Practices for State And District Meets

COLEMAN, Texas, June 21. (AP)—One of the best polo grounds in Central West Texas has just been completed near here, and will be used by the Coleman team of the West Texas Polo association, which is affiliated with the national association.

The grounds consist of 30 acres, of which 40 are available for games. A large shed with 20 stalls, a saddle room and a granary has been completed.

The Coleman team at present has 11 members. Last year the team ranked along with the best in the West Texas association, which is composed of 12 teams divided into several districts. Coleman is in district one with San Angelo, Abilene and Fredericksburg.

In September this year the various districts will compete for the district championship, and the two leading teams will play for the championship at the San Angelo fair.

Captain Richard L. Creed, army officer, will coach and referee games here.

ACE HUDKINS

THRILLS MARK SOUTHERN GOLF

Massingill Shoots Ace But Loses to Gunn

BROOK HOLLOW GOLF CLUB, DALLAS, June 21. (AP)—In a day of thrilling second-round play in the southern amateur golf championship in which four matches went to the last green and none was decided before the 16th, Frank Dyer, former metropolitan champion, was eliminated in a startling upset and the first ace in the history of the tournament was scored today.

Dyer, one of the last two hopes of Memphis, Tenn., which qualified seven men in the championship flight, succumbed to the inspired playing of Lanham Connor, young Dallas Country club player engaging in his first big tournament. They battled to the 18th green, where the former New York champion went down, 2 and 1.

M. L. (Happy) Massingill of Fort Worth, Texas, wrote golf history when he sank his 135-yard mashie shot from the 10th tee. He was trailing Watts Gunn, the sturdy Atlanta, Ga., youth favored by many to win the championship, two down at the time.

Gunn Startled

The lusty iron shot screamed into a driving wind, struck the green a few inches from the pin and hopped into the cup on the first bounce. Gunn was visibly startled, but settled down to play harder than ever and eliminated his opponent by the most decisive score of the day, 4 and 2.

L. R. Robertson defeated Dennis Lavender of Stamford, Texas. They fought a careful battle that ended only on the 18th green when Robertson laid the West Texas youth a dead stymie.

Fred Lamprecht of New Orleans, former intercollegiate champion, played consistently to down J. Y. Ballard of Fort Worth, 3 and 2.

Dallas was assured of a place in the semi-finals at least when Robertson and Connor won their way into the quarter finals upper bracket and Louis Jacoby and Charles Dexter Jr., found places in the lower bracket.

Dallas Players Win

Jacoby defeated William Holmes of Dallas, 3 and 2, and Dexter downed J. E. Osborne of Paris, Texas, 2 and 1.

Jacoby was a runner-up to Bobby Jones in 1917 and again to Nelson Whitney in 1919. Dexter won the championship in 1915.

Tomorrow Jacoby will battle it out with Charles Cawthorn, Memphis; and Dexter will cross clubs with Ossie Carlton of Houston. If Dallas men are victors they will re-enact in the afternoon a meeting of seven years ago when the lanky Dexter defeated Jacoby for the Texas state championship. The results of today's matches, with the winners paired in two's through the list for tomorrow's quarter finals:

L. R. Robertson, Dallas, won from Dennis Lavender, Stamford, 1 up.
Lanham Connor, Dallas, defeated Frank Dyer, Memphis, 2 and 1.
Fred Lamprecht, New Orleans, downed J. Y. Ballard, Fort Worth, 3 and 2.
Watts Gunn, Atlanta, defeated M. L. Massingill, Fort Worth, 4 and 2.
Louis Jacoby, Dallas, defeated William Holmes, Dallas, 3 and 2.
Charles Cawthorn, Memphis, won from Gibson Payne, Dallas, 3 and 2.
Ossie Carlton, Houston, downed Howard H. Wynne, Dallas, 3 and 1.
Charles Dexter Jr., won from J. E. Osborne, Paris, Texas, 2 and 1.

A new generator is being installed in the fire department box alarm system that will keep for Wichita Falls its 100 per cent good fire rating, according to Fire Chief J. L. McClure.

Frank Ball and Henry Cuici Tie For National Golf Lead With 70

Another Comparative Unknown, Leonard Schmutte, Third; Favorites Start Slow; Galleries Bother Players

By WARREN BROWN

CHICAGO, June 21. (US)—While the distinguished members of the cast were trying to find their way through the wild charging galleries at Olympia fields, today, a golfer from Atlanta, who wasn't Bobby Jones, and another from New York, who wasn't Walter Hagen, up and slashed a single stroke off par, to negotiate seventies, and take the lead that looked good enough to last until the boys got down to serious shooting in the national open golf championship which began today.

The two leaders were Frank Ball, who is pro at Jones' home club, East Lake, and Henry Cuici, who is employed around Stratford, Conn., looks like, and plays like Gene Sarazen.

Each of these two had a pair of 35's for the very desirable 70, which was just a stroke better than the 36-35—71 accumulated by another comparative stranger in the big time, Leonard Schmutte, of Lima, Ohio.

After this, it was a scramble. There were golfers tied at 72; there were golfers tied at 73; there were golfers tied a stroke apart almost as far down the list as any self respecting championship seeker would care to have his name found.

It was that kind of competition today, and it figures to grow even more exacting tomorrow.

Bobby Jones Shoots 73

Jones, one of the championship possibilities, Bobby, of course, weighed with a 73, which was four strokes better than his playing partner, Johnny Farrell's 77 appeared to be.

Hagen, the British open champion, had 38-37—75, and Tommy Armour, the defending champion, had 38-38—76, and Archie Compston, the prise package from England, long pants and all, had 39-37—76.

Putting and the galleries had a lot to do with the lack of par breaking scores today though the high run in bum putting was not reached until Chick Evans fooled a two footer at the 18th green. Chick was among the numerous 77s.

Leo Diegel, not annoyed by very many galleryites, but off to a bad start, hauled himself and his game together, and wound up with 72, to be very much in the running. He had as partners Johnny Goldem, the Jerseyite, Bill Leach, of Pennsylvanit, and Horton Smith, of Joplin.

Mac Smith Scores 75

This sort of work was much nattier than that of another one of the Smith boys, MacDonald, who scored a 75, which was neither very, very good, nor very, very bad, in the light of what was going on all over the place today.

Perhaps the best way to give an indication of what was doing, in the way of putt missing, gallery dodging, and what not, is to list the scores, and their makers, in the leading divisions.

Thus among the 73s, were Long James Barnes, Willie Hunter of California, Willie MacFarlane of New York, the above mentioned and to be mentioned later, Jones of Atlanta, as distinguished from Jones of Seattle, Freddie McLeod, who sunk a putt clear across the green at the ninth, that prompted Jock Hutchison to gurgle: "The older he gets, the better he gets. It's the Scotch."

Von Elm Gets 74

Fred Morrison, another Californian, was the first of the 73 compilers to finish, and his tally looked good, until Schmutte got in.

Back of this set, a single stroke, were, among others, George Von Elm, the former national amateur champion, Billy Burke, one of the better class of up and coming young pros, and Frank Walsh, of Appleton, answering the same general description as Burke, except that the Irish implication of his name is 100 per cent correct.

Still keeping to the stroke-apart divisions, the field trailed out after this.

Some of the lads who will have to make up some territory today, are Al Watrous, the guy from Grand Rapids, who shot a 77, as did Evans, Farrell, Harry Cooper, Ed Dudley, Jack Forrester, and the pair of amateurs who kept Chick from being lonesome, Maurice McCarthy of Ne wYork, and Jimmy Johnson, of St. Paul.

This collection was a shot worse off than Armour and Compston, another Cuici, front name, Al, and such a familiar person as Hutchison, floppy hat, and everything.

City Plan Group To Meet Next Week

The first meeting of the city planning commission, recently named by the city council at the suggestion of the chamber of commerce, probably will be about the middle of the coming week, it was learned from Walter S. Curlee, chairman of the commission, Thursday.

"Tentative plans of what the commission will first take up are being thought over," Mr. Curlee said. "Our first meeting probably will be called for the middle of the week, but as yet we have not set the exact date."

He stopped in at a near beer parlor and enjoyed a glass of froth. Larry Dailey saw a man who wore no necktie. Going down the street and stopping at a drug store to have an ice cream soda, Larry Dailey saw the man again. This time he was wearing a necktie. A man with more presence of mind than Larry Dailey had told the man he had no necktie. So the man borrowed a necktie. The sun was hot so Larry Dailey went back to the office. He observed that men are wearing neckties.

McLarnin Stops McGraw in First

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y. June 21. (UP)—Jimmy McLarnin, the the baby-faced, blue-eyed Irish lad from Vancouver, B. C., pounded his way back towards the heights of the lightweight division when he knocked out Phil McGraw, Detroit Greek, in two minutes and 45 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10 round fight here tonight.

Unleashing a savage attack that sent McGraw to the canvas four times in the first round, McLarnin knocked out McGraw for the first time in the rugged Detroit fighter's career.

AN EXTRA $5,000 . . . . TO BE DISCOVERED AFTER YOU'VE GONE
If a man leaves Life insurance, sufficient to provide ordinary comforts, he has met the obligations of "duty." But men who love their families deeply . . . . men who struggle to give them something more than necessary food, clothing and shelter . . . . such men will not be satisfied with merely the "dutiful" amount of insurance.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 21. (AP)—Continuation of yesterday's buying which found additional inspiration in today's weather and crop news, seemed responsible for further advances in the cotton market. October contracts sold up to 21.50 or 37 points net higher, and 137 points above the recent low level, but lost part of the gain under realizing and closed at 21.29. The final tone of the market was barely steady at net advances of 12 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 6 to 9 points and very soon showed net gains of 20 to 26 points on overnight buying orders and fresh buying brought in by relatively firm cables and reports of showers in the South. Realizing was heavy, but it was absorbed on reactions of 10 or 15 points and the market soon firmed up again.

All months made new high ground for this movement. July selling up to 21.30, and December to 21.37 or 33 to 37 points above yesterday's closing quotations on active positions, and within 28 points of the best price touched on the early spring advance in the case of May contracts. Demand appeared to taper off somewhat at these figures, which evidently attracted considerable realizing and there were reactions of 15 to 20 points from the best in the last half hour.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 21. (AP)—After advancing to levels nearly $2 a bale above the previous close, the cotton market weakened in late trading today under rather extensive realizing by satisfied longs. October contracts eased off from 20.93 to 20.76, where it closed net 17 points higher for the day. The general market closed barely steady at a net advance of 16 to 20 points.

Liverpool cables were 1 to 3 penny points better than due, and first trades here showed gains of 6 to 8 points. Despite a dry weather map, the market continued to advance after the start under the stimulus of short covering and on unfavorable crop reports coupled with private advices of rain in Oklahoma and North Texas. Before this initial demand was supplied July traded to 21.07, October 20.80 and December 20.75, 20 to 21 points above yesterday's close.

The market was on the upgrade for the whole morning session, due mainly to the unfavorable reports from the interior of crop deterioration and boll weevil infestation. The buying persisted well into the afternoon, trading coming both from the trade and speculative interests. At the highest, July reached 21.22, October 20.93 and December 20.90, or 34 to 36 points above the previous close.

In the final hour satisfied longs started to take profits and when the market closed July had traded off to 21.06, October 20.76, and December to 20.73, or a net advance of 16 to 20 points.

The favorable weather over the belt failed to exert any influence on the market as traders seemed to be of the opinion that a few days of fair weather would hardly offset the recent long spell of rains and winds.

Cotton futures closed barely steady at a net advance of 16 to 20 points.

Release of Call Money Funds By Bankers Stimulates Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, June 21.—Favorable money news rallied the stock market today. At least the decision permitting the Pittsburgh & West Virginia to build extension to the Wheeling was construed as bullish as the day progressed and the transportation shares jumped ahead and influenced better demand for industrials.

scored the best individual gain as did other Taplin roads while Central, Chesapeake and others gained from 1 to 3 points. Only desultory price movements were experienced before noon as the street waited on the reserve bank reports. Industrials later made up part of their loss but Radio, Nickel, Steel, General Motors and other standard industrials closed net lower.

Call money ruled at 6½ per cent all day, held there reputedly by the funds sent in by Morgan banks. Sterling dipped rather fast and influenced irregularity in other foreign exchanges. The grain market recovered further on news of storm damage with similiar influence effecting advance in cotton options.

The most powerful stimulant to better feeling was the report that the most powerful bankers had released funds for the call money market as told of exclusively here yesterday. The street placed the amount available late Wednesday afternoon at $20,00,000. As it was sent over just as expectation was widespread that the call rate was going to 7 per cent, it was regarded as evidence that these bankers were "friendly to the market" for the time being at least.

It also renewed talk of a "money pool" but that was rather foolish in as much as the reserve banks made such combination practically impossible.

None knows the exact reason for the release of funds by the bankers concerned. It is known that a good amount suddenly was available Wednesday afternoon. The probable reason was the bankers had the money available until needed for month-end payments and decided to let it work for the week intervening.

Brokers reported quiet pickup of rubber shares on reaction. They pointed out that the price of rubber now seems stabilized below the average cost of production so that only the severest kind of business slump would prevent the rubber and tire manufacturers from securing normal profits. Goodrich and other companies with the best inventory position to take advantage of the low price of crude were particularly mentioned and it was emphasized that all were selling at low points for the year and from 25 to 30 per cent below the highs.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, June 21.—In debatable ground wheat moved up and down in the pit today like a sluggish plunger in a churn, but it didn't make much better for anybody. It closed only a shade above its final level of the day before. Corn was weak.

At the end wheat was ⅛c to ⅜c higher; corn was down ⅜c to 1⅜c; oats were unchanged to ⅛c off; rye was ⅛c higher to ½c lower.

To me the wheat situation looks as if shrewd operators correctly disagnosing forthcoming export business bought the future around the recent bottoms—say between $1.36⅜ and $1.37⅛ for the September. Now they want to get rid of it at a price 3 or 4 cents higher.

Announcement of the export business that was done turned the market up, but it has not gone far enough nor attracted sufficient buying to let the holders at lower prices sell out. On this analysis, wheat, of course, does not look like a good purchase here.

Corn, in the face of the resisting power in wheat, was decidedly weak. The market broke down well into the bids, but came up out of them again and closed with a show of strength.

But it is worth remembering that the strength at the end came after a break of a couple of cents and should not be regarded, in my opinion, as impressive.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was unchanged to 1½c lower; oats were unchanged; rye was dull; barley was steady.

CHAMPAGNOLLE MAY DEVELOP

75 Wells Expected to Come In by July

TULSA, Okla., June 21.—The Champagnolle pool of Union county, South Arkansas, offers possibilities of becoming an area of considerable size, but at present it is not alarming oil men as it did when it began to become important early in May.

The second phase of its future is to occur early in July when the 75 or more wells now drilling there come in. They may prove the new pool to be of considerable size, and also may link up the old shallow East pool, with the new and deeper Champagnolle area.

The above digest on the new Bear state oil district came from H. L. Norris, chief scout of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, just home from a 10 day's inspection trip over Champagnolle and vicinity.

Boom Results

"The Champagnolle pool has given Arkansas another oil play," said Norris, "and El Dorado is experiencing a slight boom as a result. The 34 deep and shallow wells there when I left were making close to 27,000 barrels daily wide open. Some of the wells are making water, and it is not because of defective casing seats as some reports have intimated. The oil is 35 gravity, however, and is much in demand from the El Dorado, Smackover and Shreveport refineries. It commands $1.26 a barrel and has already caused some West Texas oils to back up.

"The new pool is three-fourths of a mile wide by one mile in length and is on a pronounced pimple, or structure, cut off to the northeast, the northwest and southeast, with the southwest still open for extensions.

The Champagnolle wells are producing from the redbeds of the lower Cretaceous geologic age, and the sand is found at or below 3200 feet, while the old production in the area and in the East pool was from the Nacatoch sand, around 2100 feet.

Drills With Rotary

Drilling in Champagnolle is with rotary, and it takes from seven to 10 days to get a derrick up and ready to spud. Almost as much time is then required to drill to the sand, while four days are used in camenting casing on top of the sand, before drilling out the plugs and bailing in. The wells flow after the body of rotary mud is lifted and the wells last week averaged 875 to 800 barrels per well.

Where sand, rock, shales, limes and what nots are found in the other Mid-Continent areas, only gumbo, shales and soft sands are found at Champagnolle, and some wells have been drilled in 11 to 12 days. Nearest thing to the limestones of Oklanhoma are three to five feet of lime shells.

New Decline In Seminole

TULSA, Okla., June 21.—Where the greater Seminole oil field made a new peak day by day during the middle of 1927, reaching a zenith of 526,700 barrels on July 30, the field is now registering a new low decline.

Wednesday it was down to 252,500 barrels a day from 1092 wells, the lowest since February 5, 1927, when it passed the 255,000 barrel a day mark on its ascent to the record of being the nation's greatest individual oil field.

The comparative output follows:

Pools—	Wed.	Wells	Tues.
Little River	43,128	131	43,262
Bowlegs	59,424	317	59,636
Earlsboro	84,603	272	86,367
Semi. City	51,595	302	51,280
Searight	13,350	68	13,233
Maud	.....	2	.....
Totals	252,500	1,092	253,828

At the rate that the Seminole output has been declining, field men wonder just how low its production will be when the flock of 80 or more new tests in Little River are completed and permitted to go on production in August. Many estimates are being made.

Round by Round As Fighters Went 'Round and 'Round

Round One—Walker stuck a left into Ace's stomach and drove him to the ropes with a hard poke to the jaw. Hudkins forced the champion into a corner and held him there banging away with a left to the body. Walker hooked a short right and left to the body and Ace a long right to the head. Hudkins swung a left to the body and hooked his left to Mickey's jaw. Ace jabbed a light left to the face and made Mickey miss. Hudkins rushed and missed with a wild right and drew blood from Walker's nose with a left hook. Mickey drove a hard right to the body. The champion swung rights and lefts to head and punished Ace at close quarters. Hudkins drove a straight right to the face. He jabbed left to face at the bell.

Round Two—Ace dove in and stuck his head in Mickey's chest carrying the champ off balance and then stabbing him with rights to the head. Mickey missed a left to the face and then caught Ace with a right and left to the head. Walker blocked a hard right to the body and they clinched. An old cut over Walker's left eye was opened and bled profusely. Hudkins was warned for butting and they stood toe and toe, slugging away. Walker crossed a short right to the jaw and swung a right to the body. Hudkins jabbed a left to the face and Walker tied him up in a clinch as the round ended.

Round Five—Walker hooked light left to the face and then missed with a lap as Ace bored in. Hudkins drove straight over to Mickey's injured eye and was warned for hitting on the break. Walker hooked left to the head. Ace was a foot low with a left to the body. Walker drove right to the body. In return Walker leaped in with three left hooks to the face and crossed a light right to the face. Hudkins refused to break clean and just kept on fighting but Walker was landing heavy left hooks now and had him on the run. Hudkins hooked a right to back of Walker's head. Mickey straightened him up with a left uppercut to the face. Walker jabbed left to the face and Ace missed a wild right swing. The champion jabbed a left to the mouth but missed his right cross and Ace went at him again.

Round six—They clinched in the middle of the ring and Hudkins wrestled the champion to the ropes without a blow being struck. Ace jabbed two lefts to the face and Walker hit a hard right to the face. They exchanged lefts to the head and Ace sprawled after Walker and was warned for butting. Walker drove hard lefts to body and a light left to the face. He swung a hard left to Hudkins' body. Hudkins drove low left to the body and Walker hooked him with a left to the jaw. Hudkins was warned for a low left to the groin. Hudkins swung a hard right to the head. Walker missed left and right uppercuts. The champion cut Hudkins' face to pieces with left hooks while Hudkins kept wrestling in. Walker hooked left to face and body. Rain began to fall in the middle of the round.

Round Seven—Walker hooked hard left to face and made Ace miss badly. Hudkins jabbed left to face and then backhanded the champion with a left to the head. Ace jabbed more lefts to the face as the champion backed away. Mickey put left to the face as they clinched. Walker hooked left to head and then Ace forced him to the ropes again with light lefts. Walker drove a hard right to the body. There was a great deal of infighting and wrestling with Hudkins landing several light blows. Walker backed away and brought up left and right to the face, but Ace kept on top of him, swinging with both hands Walker swung right to the body. Hudkins fought in close, swinging with both hands to the head and body. Walker stepped away and swung left and right to the head. Hudkins swung left to the face.

Round Eight—Walker hooked right to face and made Ace miss. Hudkins went boring in as usual making a sloppy fight of it. Hudkins hooked left to the body and jabbed a hard left to the mouth. Walker hooked a hard right to the face and left to the body. Mickey drove Ace to the rope and swung a hard left and right to the body. Hudkins was again warned for hitting on the breaks. Walker hooked hard lefts and rights to the jaw. Hudkins pummelled Walker about the body at close quarters with Mickey trying to tie him up. Walker hooked two lefts to the face and then left and right to the body. Hudkins uppercut savagely to jaw and drove him across the ring with left swings. The Ace just put down his head and let go with both hands.

Round Nine—It was pouring rain as the ninth round started. Fighters met in midring and rammed and slammed away. Walker backed away and hooked lefts to the body while the Ace kept driving with his left to the body. Hudkins continued his boring in tactics and then drove Walker to the rope with a hard left swing. Walker hooked lefts to the face and jabbed the Ace off balance. Hudkins pushed him to the ropes playing for the body. Hudkins was low with a left swing and was warned. Walker uppercut lightly with a right to the jaw. Hudkins wrestled in close. Ace did little damage with the champion on the ropes well covered up. Mickey hooked left to the face after they broke. Walker jabbed left and right to the face and then Ace was on top of him again slamming away wildly with both hands.

Round Ten—The rain by this time had developed into a cloudburst. Ace drove Mickey half way to the ropes with a barrage of left and rights. Walker hooked left and right to the face. The ring was ankle deep in water. Hudkins forced Mickey against the ropes but Walker fought him off with a left hook to the head. Walker staggered Ace with a left to the face but Hudkins was right back on top of him. The storm was so severe the fighters could hardly find each other. Hudkins was boring in with both hands, punishing and driving him against the ropes. Walker covered and fought his way clear. Walker hooked right to the face and Hudkins pushed him against the ropes. Ace swung lefts and rights to the body. Hudkins drove low left to the body and was warned again Walker hooked left to the face.

Hallas Grapples Parelli Tuesday

That tough boy, Billy Hallas, will have his hands full Tuesday night when he ties up with Joe Parelli, who is both rough an' tough, in a finish wrestling bout which has been added to a boxing card to be staged by Alec B. Ross in Spudder park.

Both Parelli and Hallas "like 'em rough" and as a result it promises to be an exciting evening for all those present and a tough one for the "wrasslers."

K. O. Shorty will hook up with Tommy Barwise in a six-round argument. Both of the mitt pushers believe in "saying it with wallops" and from present indications the match promises to be one of the best scraps ever staged by Ross in Wichita Falls.

Shorty put up a fast and furious argument with Young Griffin at the Spanish-American War Veterans' show a short time ago, and in Barwise he is meeting a boy that believes in socking where the socking is good.

Alvie Anderson and Johnny Owens will go four rounds. These scrappers tied up about a month ago and went to a four-round draw, with every round full of action from gong to gong.

FIESTA MAY BE CANCELED

San Antonio Holiday Called Menace

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21. (AP)—The possibility that the annual Fiesta de San Jacinto, San Antonio's big gala celebration of Texas' independence, might not be held next year loomed here this month when two of the fiesta's oldest traditions were threatened.

Mayor C. M. Chambers issued an ultimatum refusing the use of San Antonio's streets for the many fiesta parades, unless the annual coronation of the fiesta royalty is held in the municipal auditorium. On top of this the merchants in the vicinity of Haymarket Plaza, Milam park, Washington square, and adjoining streets petitioned the city to refuse carnivals and shows, which throng the town during the fete, permission to use the plazas.

Called Menace

The mayor said that the custom of holding the coronation, chief social event of the celebration, in a theater, disappointed many visitors who could not obtain seats. The coronation is a part of the fiesta, but is not under the jurisdiction of the fiesta association, being held every year by an organization known as The Order of the Alamo.

The merchants in the vicinity of the plazas were joined in their petition by one hospital. They sought to exclude the shows because they created noise and trash, congested traffic and were a fire menace to the district.

Indian Breaks Record In Marathon Races

GRANTS PASS, Ore., June 21. (UP)—Greeted by a roar of approval from a crowd assembled here, Flying Cloud, young Karook brave, today ended the 482-mile marathon from San Francisco to Grants Pass.

The slender Indian swung along sure and strong as he touched the tape here, making the end of the Redwood Empire highway race at 10:22 a. m. today. He was 17 miles ahead of Melika, the aged Zuni Indian who was running in second place.

About 11 miles back of Melika the Indian, Ukiah, plodded along toward Grants Pass.

Flying Cloud shattered the marathon record and won a prize of $5000.

Electra Bible School To Close June 30

ELECTRA, Texas, June 21.—The vacation Bible school which has been carried on at the First Methodist church for the past two weeks, will close on June 30. Enrollment up to date is 325, exceeding by over 100 the peak of last year's attendance.

Over 40 teachers and helpers are employed in the school with special outdoor recreation under expert supervision. On next Saturday, the junior and intermediate pupils will be treated to a swimming party at Sandy beach, on the Wichita Falls highway out of Iowa Park.

Primary and beginners have been promised a lawn picnic before the school closes. Rev. L. D. Grafton, one of the leading supporters of the movement, states that the school this year has been one of the most successful in which he has participated.

6000 ATTEND PARK PROGRAM

Bellevue Vaudeville Draws Record Crowd

Six thousand persons, the largest crowd so far this season, attended the free vaudeville program and band concert in Bellevue park Thursday evening.

"Lord Help Us and His Entertainers from Jolly Old England" was the unannounced surprise act on the bill that rocked the park with laughter. Paul Seeds' concert band played a full concert, and was well received.

Scott Allday blew a lot of notes out of his harmonica, much to the enjoyment of the big crowd of boys and girls in the audience; and R. E. Shepherd made an unusual hit with his vocal solos.

Frank Humphreys and his daughter, Ollie, played the bagpipes and danced Scotch dances. George Taylor and his daughter sang and played several numbers.

C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, said after the concert that the assistance of the public is needed in getting numbers for the programs. "There are many competent artists in the city," Mr. Bunnenberg said.

"We don't know where they are, and we will more than appreciate it if they or their friends will call the park department at the auditorium and help us out."

10,000 Attend Segall Party

Many Visit New Home Of Tire Company

Ten thousand persons visited the Segall tire shop at the opening Thursday night.

Flowers for the ladies; cigars for the gentlemen; music outside for the dancers, and soda pop for all were parts of the evening's entertainment. Nothing was sold during the celebration.

Favors of a more lasting nature also were given. Each woman received a bathing cap, and each man was given a cold patch outfit or a knife and letter opener.

But it was not all going out, so far as the tokens of friendship were concerned. Handsome boquets and baskets of flowers banked the inside of the shop. They were for the owners from their customers, competitors and jobbers.

Goodyear representatives and dealers from many places attended the celebration, as the shop features Goodyear tires exclusively. Chief among these visitors was R. E. Rain, Goodyear branch manager of Dallas. Mr. Rain was especially elated over the reception the new Goodyear Double Eagle tire is receiving. "This tire will travel 35,00 to 40,000 miles and will last several years," he said. "Where the exceptional tire of the old type would run 20,000 miles, the exceptional tire in the new Double Eagle will run 50,000 miles. We hope to catch up with our orders by the last of July."

Goodyear visitors in addition to Mr. Rain included: S. English, Dallas; William Townsend, Fort Worth, and Raymond Kendrick of Waco, all Goodyear dealers; Stacey Rogers, H. M. Pavey and H. V. DeWitt, Goodyear representatives, and E. C. Vandervort, Wichita Falls Goodyear representative.

Gene Segall is the owner and Charles Morgan is the manager of the plant which is one of the largest and most complete tire and gasoline service plants in this part of the country.

Announcement was made that every motorist buying five or more gallons of gasoline Friday afternoon will be given, free, a half pound box of candy.

Texas Mother Was Right

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children! That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Texas mother, Mrs. J. Owen, 126 Thompson St., San Antonio says: "Before my daughter, Lillian was a year old, she began having constipation. Mother got me to give her California Fig Syrup and in a few days she was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all her colds or little upset spells. It always stops her trouble quick, strengthens her, makes her eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.—Adv.

Today At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Zane Grey's "The Vanishing Pioneer." Comedy. Cartoon. Paramount news.

STRAND: Syd Chaplin in "The Fortune Hunter," (vitaphone feature). "Non Support" and "In a Monastery Cellar," vitaphone shorts. Pathe news.

OLYMPIC: W. C. Fields in "Fools For Luck." Fox news. Comedy.

GARDEN: "Quick Trigger." Serial. Comedy.

GEM: "Gold From Weepah." Serial. Comedy.

Names and stars change. In the films listed by major producers for the immediate future are the names of stars who were unknown a short time ago. Did you ever hear of Sylvia Beecher, Loretta Young, James Hall, Sally Phipps, Barbara Kent or Joe Brown two years ago?

◇ ◇ ◇

Today, do you ever hear of Marguerite Clark, William S. Hart, Mary Miles Minter, Fatty Arbuckle and a host of others who held the spotlight in the earlier days of the movies? They are gone or have faded or have transferred their activities to other fields.

◇ ◇ ◇

Charles Ray belongs to both classes. He was just about the highest paid of all. He started to produce for himself. Financially he found he was a flop. Then he came back as an actor. Film magnates are shrewd and wise. They had Ray where they wanted him, and today he works at their figure, not his.

◇ ◇ ◇

Money rules a lot of things. When a few stars start to sew things up, just that soon the producers start schools of acting, beauty contests and the like to produce a new crop of stars.

◇ ◇ ◇

Ethel Jackson has more silver loving cups for her dancing than any other girl in the movies. She is a new comer and has been tested for the screen by Monta Bell, D. W. Griffith and Fred Thomson. All report favorable. So far, no one has announced that she has signed a contract, but that is just a matter of time. Watch this little Los Angeles deb and you will see that she is given the big lines inside of a year.

◇ ◇ ◇

W. C. Fields, who can make you laugh when you don't feel like it, is at the Olympic Friday and Saturday in "Fools for Luck," a new Paramount comedy. He is teamed up with Chester Conklin.

◇ ◇ ◇

The Olympic has some real western action coming Sunday and Monday in Tim McCoy's "Wyoming." This picture has received some mighty fine press comment in the east.

◇ ◇ ◇

The Vitaphone is tuning up for another big feature in "The Fortune Hunter," starring Syd Chaplin. This picture opens Friday at the Strand.

◇ ◇ ◇

Zane Grey, who seems just about perfect in his own type of plays, is the author of "The Vanishing Pioneer" now at the Majestic.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Non Support" is the title of the Burr McIntosh skit which it at the Strand on the new vitaphone program opening Friday. It is a new angle on the divorce deal. This, and "In a Monastery Cellar" are both short features that are adding so much life to the Strand's programs.

Programs Tonight At Three City Parks

A sing-song and two motion picture shows will be given free by the park department of the city of Wichita Falls Friday night, according to announcements made Thursday by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

The sing-song will be on the Carrigan schoolgrounds.

The movies will be at the Bowie and Washington schools.

AID AWARDED TO HARDEMAN

Commission Passes Over Stamford Project

AUSTIN, Texas, June 21. (AP)—Almost every section of Texas was represented in road construction contracts, costing $839,380 for five counties, let today by the state highway commission in the first day of its June session.

The biggest part of the commission's docket went over until tomorrow.

Counties seeking aid and advice were few and only one—Jones—got favorable response to a request for money. A motion providing that the state would pay two-thirds of the cost of concreting about 11 miles of highway No. 30 from Stamford to near Anson, was submitted by Commissioner Cone Johnson, but was passed over for final action later.

Others Considered

Petitions of Bosque, Somerville, Jim Hogg, Starr and Pecos counties for designations were taken under advisement or referred to the engineer.

Contracts let: Hardeman, concrete pavement on 15.6 miles of No. 5, from Quanah to Wilbarger county line, McClung construction company, Fort Worth, $374,823.

Anderson and Cherokee, grading 1.4 miles of No. 43, in Neches river bottom, between Palestine and Jacksonville, Howard Kenyon Dredge company, Houston, $26,472.

Fort Bend, grading and drainage structures and concrete pavement on 14 miles of No. 3 between Wharton county line and Rosenberg, Allen Smith, Bryan, $338,693.

Austin grading and drainage structures on 1.4 miles of No. 56, between Bellville and Sealy, Davis and Pace, Dallas, $23,120, and for large drainage structures on same section, $76,272.

Davidson Amazed At Dry Statement

Democratic party in regard to presidential nominations could possibly be as it now appears."

MACK SAYS STATEMENT WAS UNAUTHORIZED

HOUSTON, Texas, June 21. (UP) Anti-Smith forces are making their final effort to build up a battalion of death to hold more than one-third of the Democratic convention delegates resolutely against the governor of New York.

They are encouraged by the confusion arising among Smith's friends over the statement issued by Norman E. Mack, New York national committeeman, emphatically stating that Governor Smith favors permitting each state to fix its own alcohol content on beverages.

Mack and George R. Van Namee, Governor Smith's campaign manager, both denied this statement was authorized by the candidate but the extreme anti-Smith drys seized upon it gleefully as a weapon unexpectedly placed in their hands.

Plan Deadlock

The women drys, taking the initiative in the fight against Smith at the moment, are planning a series of local mass meetings over the weekend which they hope will impress arriving convention delegates sufficiently to develop resistance enough to throw the balloting into a deadlock.

Smith's forces are claiming more than 650 convention votes, but they are not claiming the 733 necessary to nominate. The whole strategy of the opposition is to hold the line for a few ballots in the hope of forcing Governor Smith to withdraw.

On the other hand, Smith's managers are extremely confident. They are bringing 800 rooters from New York state. They have brought dozens of huge packing boxes filled with campaign pictures, buttons and literature. They are planning a mass demonstration, designed to overwhelm the last remaining hostile delegates early in the convention.

Van Namee Confident

"Governor Smith will be nominated and elected president of the United States," said Van Namee today. "The Democratic party will not overlook the fact that Smith is the only man who can win in November. The people want a winner and Smith has always been one."

Reed's headquarters had no public comment to make on the Mack statement, presenting Governor Smith to Houston as a wet.

"Our campaign is progressing according to schedule and we again reiterate that Senator Reed will be the nominee of this convention," said F. J. Prince, Reed's publicity director.

Reed arrives late Friday.

Natives Gape at Cal's Cowboy Hat And High-Heeled Fishing Boots

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 21. (AP)—First definite accounts of President Coolidge fishing—showing him wearing a 10-gallon hat, rubber boots and a slicker over his khaki shirt and using dry flies as his bait—both puzzled and delighted this town of ardent fishermen today.

Mr. Coolidge's hat gave rise to the puzzlement, while news that he did not use worms for bait caused much relief among the easily touched sporting sensibilities of the trout anglers.

Mr. Coolidge's tall hat, apparently the same one he wore last summer in the Black hills of South Dakota, was strange sight in the timberland of this northern lake region. It caused much wonderment among guides and workmen at Cedar Island lodge, who saw Mr. Coolidge wearing it and who had previously only seen such headgear in the movies.

The wonderment increased further when it was learned that while lounging on the little island in the brule, in addition to the 10-gallon hat, Mr. Coolidge habitually wears the high-heeled boots customary in the cattle lands of the west.

Advised to postpone his first trip to his offices in Superior because heavy rains during the night had swamped roads in places, President Coolidge spent the morning trying out various new fishing tackle.

WOMEN WAGE WAR ON REED

Desperate Effort Made To Stop Al

HOUSTON, Texas, June 21. (UP) Parleys between the forces of Senator James A. Reed and the allied dry women's organizations are proceeding here in an effort to line up the dry women behind the Reed presidential candidacy.

The negotiations represent a desperate effort to stop the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Some of the women dry leaders have put their feet down firmly against the move, and will have nothing to do with it. Those considering it are doing so on the theory that Reed is the strongest candidate in the field against Smith. Even these do not favor any open pronouncement, but only tacit encouragement to Reed to hold out as long as possible.

"If Senator Reed could hold out for 15 ballots, Smith could be stopped," one said today.

Lieutenants Active

Reed lieutenants have gone to the women dry forces with the argument that the Missouri senator is dry and would enforce the law. They have pointed to Reed's stand for teeth in the Volstead act, which had been interpreted generally as a move to defeat such legislation or make prohibition so rigorous that a reaction would set in against it. The contention that Reed is "dry" was described by his opponents as a "novel idea."

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson of Maryland said plainly she never would support Reed or give him any encouragement whatever. This followed Reed camp hints that Mrs. Nicholson would be aligned with the senator.

Reed Denounced

"We will not have Reed," she declared.

In dealing with the women drys, the Reed lieutenants also have run up against another obstacle. Many of the women are Wilson Democrats. They recalled today the Missouri senator's fight against the League of Nations, which they have not forgotten. They said they could not forgive Reed for that.

"Now that Governor Ritchie of Maryland has taken himself out of the picture, the only thing now is for Governor Smith and Senator Reed to remove themselves from the picture," Mrs. Nicholson said.

Joining forces here against the Smith candidacy are Mrs. Nicholson's organization, the W. C. T. U., and the Non-Partisan Law Enforcement league. They have set up headquarters and are distributing literature.

Mass Meetings

They will bring their pre-convention campaign to a climax with a series of mass meetings next Sunday and Monday, on the eve of the convention opening, which will be addressed, among others, by Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, and Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the national Democratic committee chairman.

Mrs. Shaver is taking an active part in the women's fight against the Smith candidacy.

Airport Directors To Hold Meet Tuesday

The steel framework of the hangar at the Wichita Falls municipal airport is up and the steel covering will be placed at once to be completed by the early part of the week.

This announcement was made Thursday by C. W. Cahoon, president of the airport company, in connection with the announcement of progress of plans for the formal opening of the airport July 4.

A national guard air unit from Houston will come to the city for the celebration, he said.

Directors of the airport will meet Tuesday morning to discuss the progress of the field and the plans for operation.

Longest day Ushers in Summer Greeks Had Driver for 'Charot of Fire'

There was no blaring of trumpets to welcome summertime in Wichita Falls at 10:07 a. m., Thursday.

Although Thursday was officially the longest day of the year, unofficially it is on a par with six other days during 1928, with 14 hours and 19 minutes of time between sunrise and sunset.

If watches in Wichita Falls were on time, old Sol arose at 4.52 Thursday and did not drop over behind that bank of clouds in the west until 7:11 o'clock. The sun will repeat this same trick Friday and Saturday, if Helios, the Greek god, who steers the chariot of flame across the heavens, sets his alarm clock on time.

The Greeks felt that driving the sun chariot across the heavens was quite an honor, and this task, during the evolution of Grecian mythology was given four different persons.

Hyperion was first to guide the steeds carrying the sun chariot across the sky. He gave way to his son, Helios, who, in the main kept the honor. Apollo, however, is sometimes referred to as the sun god. Phaethon, son of Helios, once boasted that he could drive the high tempered steeds as well as his father. After constant teasing he was given a trial. The horses got away from the youth, and only a thunderbolt hurled by Zeus saved the world from destruction, the story goes.

Apparently Helios was back on the job Thursday, driving a fairly accurate course, with the thermometer recording a maximum for the day of 96 degrees.

From June 20 through June 26 the days are equal with 14 hours and 19 minutes between sunrise and sunset. Then the days grow shorter until December 20, when there will be only 10 hours between the rising and the setting of the sun. Six days later the days begin their climb again.

Trade Delegation to Entertain Frederick Merchants at Meet Today

Wichita Falls trade trippers will step on the starters at 9 o'clock Friday morning for Frederick where they will be hosts to the business men in their own home town at 12:15 o'clock.

There will be no stops at other cities along the road, and tentative plans call for the Wichita Falls party to arrive in the Oklahoma town at 11 o'clock. The route followed will be over the free bridge at Burkburnett.

Luncheon will be served in the basement of the Christian church at 12:15 o'clock and the return trip will be made early in the afternoon.

The manufacturers and jobbers section of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, sponsor of the trip, has urged everyone to make the trip who can possibly get away.

Second Bribery Charge Filed Here In Trial of County Court Case

The second bribery charge in connection with an aggravated assault case tried in county court Thursday was filed Thursday morning following an investigation by Gage McDermett, assistant district attorney. C. A. Smelley, the man charged with bribery, was arrested by county officers.

The accuser in the assault case is a 15-year-old girl whose parents claimed Smelley offered them $10 to leave Wichita Falls.

The assault case ended in a verdict of not guilty.

The first charges of bribery were filed Monday against a man not yet arrested when a witness revealed that he had been approached with a suggestion to make his testimony favorable to the defendant.

Mutiny Threats Alarm Passengers

COLOMBO, Ceylon, June 21. (UP)—Mutinous sailors aboard the Australian liner Jervis Bay, carrying 600 passengers, have threatened to burn the ship, a wireless message from the captain of the vessel to the British cruiser Enterprise said today.

Passengers have gone on guard with the officers and loyal members of the crew to beat back the mutineers, the message said. The situation, however, is serious and help is needed, the message added.

The Enterprise dispatched an armed guard of 20 men, commanded by Lieut. Whitfield, to proceed aboard the auxiliary steamer Slavol and escort the Jervis Bay to Colombo harbor.

Within an hour of receipt of the message asking for help the relief detachment was under way.

Nellie Coleman was charged with the possession of whiskey and her bond set at $500 for hearing before Commissioner Lantz June 27.

TEXTILE PLANT OPEN AUG. 1

Operation Schedule Is Advanced

Opening of the Tuf-Nut Garment manufacturing plant by August 1 instead of at a later date as first announced, was seen Thursday by O. P. McClain, manager.

"The construction work has progressed so rapidly on the building, and conditions are looking so good that it looks as though we will be in production in 40 days," he said Thursday.

"The contractors are making good time on the building and are doing good work. We have received good cooperation here in the city, and will do everything in our power to show we appreciate it. Our force of employes will be Wichita Falls people, and we want them to get to work at the earliest possible moment."

Modern Woodmen To Hold Ceremony Tonight

R. J. Vidler, state deputy of the Modern Woodmen, will attend the initiatory ceremony of the Wichita Falls lodge at 8 o'clock Friday night in the Odd Fellow hall, according to announcements made Thursday. After the initiation, a luncheon will be served.

Vanishing Pioneer Tells West's Story

By The Record News Critic

Action and well acted dramatic scenes are responsible for the fact that "The Vanishing Pioneer," which opened Thursday at the Majestic theater, is one of the best western film stories ever presented on a Wichita Falls screen.

Jack Holt is at his best and portrays his part as an intrepid follower of "the covered wagon" to perfection.

The film was adapted from Zane Grey's novel of the same name as the photoplay.

Jack Holt Jr., son of the star, is a member of the cast and from his work it is evident that he will some day hold the same place in the motion picture world as his father.
