"crumpet" or "scone" served in a fashionable tea room. The muffins must be toasted evenly brown and quite crisp and must be generously buttered. Spice cakes are particularly appealing in cold weather. The following cake is an adequate dessert in itself.

Spice Cake Yolks of 2 eggs, 1 whole egg, 1 1/4 cups brown sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and beat in sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Add about 1-3 of the dry ingredients to first mixture. Mix thoroughly and add 1-3 milk. Continue adding dry ingredients and milk alternately until all is used. Turn into and oiled and floured dripping pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Let cool slightly after removing from the oven and cover with the following frosting.

Frosting Whites 3 eggs, 1 1/4 cups brown sugar. The frosting uses the whites of the eggs left from the cake. Roll sugar on molding board to remove lumps. Beat whites of eggs on a large platter with a wire whisk until stiff and dry. Beat sugar into white gradually. Pile on cake and put into a hot oven for eight minutes to puff and brown the meringue. A pan of cold water placed under the cake will prevent too hard baking on bottom while the meringue is browning. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Young women are being selected as sponsors for the campaign in the Southern States and elaborate balls are being planned in the capital cities of the states for the two sponsors, with their escorts, from each city who sell the most coins. Another ball is being given in Atlanta, Ga., and the two sponsors from each State who have the best selling record will be sent to this ball. The Texas ball will be given at Austin about the middle of March.

The mayor of Lubbock, various civic organizations, the schools or individuals may select young women as sponsors in this campaign. All of the local banks are selling the coins according to Mr. Groce and the sale of each coin allows a specified number of cents to favor of a chosen sponsor.

The coins have a legal tender value of 50 cents and they sell for $1. The money raised in the sale will go toward the carving of a memorial to the Southern heroes of the Civil War on Stone Mountain near Atlanta, Ga. The governors of the Southern States are sponsoring this campaign. Lubbock's quota of coins is 752 and more than 200 of these have already been sold, Mr. Groce said.

Interesting Facts about Gasoline

Gasoline Thrown Away!

From the time the first commercial oil well was drilled in 1859 until about 1905, when the automobile became popular, crude petroleum was refined mainly for its kerosene, lubricating oil and medicinal contents.

Kerosene was used extensively for home and street lighting and cooking. Lubricating oils were needed for all types of machinery, while certain products of petroleum were in demand for medicines.

The gasoline resulting from the refining process was a drug on the market. There was little or no use for it. A few stoves used it for fuel, thus giving the name of "stove naphtha." Gasoline sold for a fraction of a cent per gallon; often there was no market for it at all. Refiners dumped it into rivers and harbors until there was legislation against such dangerous practices; then the waste gasoline was burned.

BATTLE LINES DRAWN AND FORCES AMASSED FOR ROTARY-KIWANIS CAGE BENEFIT EXHIBITION HERE TONIGHT

The lines of battle have been drawn, the forces amassed in gallant array, and all is now ready for the opening whistle that will set in motion a basketball exhibition at the Tech College gym tonight that promises to be one of the hardest fought tussles of the nature ever staged for the approval of local fandom. Members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of this city will stage an exhibition, the proceeds from which will be given over entirely to college athletic officials to aid in clearing up the deficit in this department.

Rumors were afloat here Wednesday that the exhibition would be one of more brawn and beef rather than skill and science, but these were set at rest Thursday by announcement from headquarters of the opposing teams that the line-up had been so arranged to offer fans as near the real thing as is possible, and in the light of past performances of some of those on the line-up nothing short of a real exhibition will be displayed.

Early this afternoon, however, no one had been found that wished to take the chance of attempting to keep abreast of the expected rapid fire action, in the capacity of referee, but fans were assured that a man will be secured that will be able to least keep up with the bulk of the action. The starting line-up was given out as follows:

Rotary: Lee Duggan and Charlie Guy, forwards; Edwin Y. Froelich, center; Walter Myrick and Sid Allen, guards.

Kiwanis: A. C. Jackson and Armos Howard, forwards; Mansell center; Herbert Stubbs and Lonnie Montgomery, guards.

The latter is admitted to be a little even in Rotary circles, but the Rotary quintet promises that their lack of experience will be counterbalanced by their flight and pep.

(AP)—On a wild, mountainous tract of 1,800 acres located in the hill country 18 miles southwest of Kerrville, 75 Texas girls this summer will range, gathering strength and energy from the "back to nature" life. These girls will live at Log Cabin Lodge, and will be under the guidance of 13 Texas women, most of them well known high school teachers. Miss Minnetta Thompson, instructor in English in Houston Central high school, will be camp director.

Eight roomy log cabins, built from logs gathered from the tract on which the camp is located will house the girls. A large two-story log building will serve as headquarters for the staff of directors, an administration building, a hotel for the fathers and mothers of the girls who may care to visit, and as a dining hall. A nine hole golf course, a large stable of thoroughbred horses, and electric lights supplied from the camp's own plant will be other features.

E. J. (Doc) Stewart, head Texas University football and basketball coach, conceived Log Cabin for Girls, and it will be run under his ownership. For the past two summers, Stewart's Camp for Boys, located on a 27 acre tract one mile west of Kerrville on the Gaudalupe river, has been a big success, with the enrollment in 1925 being double that of 1924. All indications are that in 1926, the enrollment at the boys' camp will exceed 200. The number of girls has been limited to 75 in Log Cabin Lodge.

Adrian Paulen, crack middle distance runner of Holland, who is now in this country to show what he can do against American performers. In his native domain, Paulen is quite an idol. live with the girls at Log Cabin Lodge. Mrs. Thompson, camp director; Mrs. Crofoot, dean of the summer school work, and the following instructors, Mrs. Miriam Cooper, Galveston public school music teacher; Mrs. J. R. Starton, Fort Worth high school teacher; Miss Marcella Walker, Amarillo high school teacher; Mrs. Joe Ward, Wesley college teacher; Miss Lou Davis, Cameron high school teacher; Mrs. H. G. Wilson, Amarillo; Miss Anna Epps, Brownwood; Mrs. L. V. Perkins, Cameron; Mrs. C. L. Wilkerson, Longview; Mrs. W. N. James, Austin; and Miss Theima Dillingham, Austin.

In Stewart's Camp for Boys, athletics, rather than woodcraft, will be stressed. A nine hole golf course, a number of tennis courts, a baseball diamond, a basketball court, a cinder path for track sprinters, a football gridiron, and any number of swimming holes in the Gaudalupe river will be available. The direct activities of the boys there will be a large number of coaches, headed by Stewart.

TEXAS BASEBALL PROTEGES ARE LIMBERING UP

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 18. (AP)—Austin's large baseball colony of major and minor league players is limbering up winter stiffened muscles in anticipation of the summons to report to spring training camps.

Some of the best known tossers who are wintering here are: "Rip" Collins, Detroit Tiger hurler; "Bib" Falk, Chicago White Sox left fielder; Frank Gibson, Boston Brave catcher; "Spot" Falk, St. Louis Brown twirler; "Flop" Kibbie, Boston Brave shortstop and second-sacker; "Heinie" Odom, infielder of the St. Louis club of the American League; "Swede" Lind and "Moose" Woebler, who made favorable impressions last fall in trying out for the Dallas Mavericks of the Texas League, and who may make the grade this year. Both will report for spring training. Lind is a first-sacker, while Woebler is a fair hurler, but shows to best advantage in the outfield. For two years, Lind was recognized the most promising first baseman in the Texas Association when he played for Temple.

Collins, former Texas Aggie football star, is taking excellent care of his arm, in hope of regaining the effectiveness he knew in 1924 when he was one of the leading pitchers of the American League with 15 victories and six losses. Last season his mound work was far from what had been expected of the big right-hander.

Falk, who was rated in 1924 by Christy Matheson as the greatest left fielder in the game, is keeping in trim by running down sales prospects—"Bib" is now a full-fledged salesman of sporting goods, and has an interest in the Dallas firm for which he works.

Frank Gibson, who is expected again to bear the bulk of receiving duties for manager "Beauty" Ebercroft's Beaneaters, is in tiptop physical condition. Frank takes a brisk workout each day at the Austin Athletic Club. He has developed into an excellent handball player.

Kibbie, captain and second baseman of the Texas University Longhorns nine of 1925, which won the Southwest conference title, is now coaching the freshman diamond squad. He will report to the Boston Brave training camp. Last summer he got away to a good start with the Braves. After playing in a number of games, his fielding became erratic, and the little infielder was sent to the Worcester, Massachusetts club of the Eastern League where he showed to advantage.

Woebler, a former St. Edward's University star here, is coaching the St. Edward's basketball team, which has made an excellent record.

fielded regarded Hammonds as his best prospect in the vault. If the pulled ligament heals, Hammonds likely will be able to make 12 feet 6 inches this season.

Sheppard, in addition to being a crack vaulter, is showing exceptional promise in the high jump. Last year, Sheppard went three inches above the six foot mark a number of times in the high jumping event.

Rufus Haggard, 1925 letter man holds the Southwest conference record of 6 feet and 5-8 of an inch in the high jump, will be pleased to retain his honors by the young sophomore, who hails from Cisco. Haggard also has gone as high as 4 feet 3 inches.

Longhorns Will Make Strong Bid For Pole Vault

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 18. (AP)—With five men who are able to clear the bar at 12 feet available, Texas University will be well represented this spring in the pole vault.

R. O. Brown, J. T. Patterson, Garland Sheppard, Hammonds, and Sanberg are the crack vaulters at disposal of Coach Clyde Littlefield. Brown and Patterson are "men" of last season's championship aggregation; Sanberg was a member of the squad but did not letter; while Sheppard and Hammonds are recruits from the sterling Yearling track and field team of 1925.

Hammonds, who holds the national amateur championship in the middleweight wrestling class, will be handicapped by a shoulder injury suffered a short time ago in wrestling against a strong Oklahoma Aggie rival at Stillwater, Oklahoma. Despite the injury, Hammonds managed to win the decision.

At close of last season, Coach Littlefield regarded Hammonds as his best prospect in the vault. If the pulled ligament heals, Hammonds likely will be able to make 12 feet 6 inches this season.

Billy Evans Says

That Big Opportunity Stands Second Only to Ability in Making of Stars

Opportunity is often the only thing needed for certain athletes to become stars. Ability is of course the most important asset in any sport, but opportunity is a very close second.

Often baseball stars in the making sit on big league benches for years before getting a chance to show, simply because some steely veteran whose work satisfies the manager, plays the same position.

Take the case of Freddy Lindstrom of the New York Giants. If just prior to the 1924 world series, Lindstrom's rise to fame would have been delayed at least a year, probably longer.

In the emergency, Manager McGraw could call upon no one other than the 19-year-old rookie, Lindstrom, stepped into the breach and played such remarkable ball that the dependable Fred wasn't missed. Indeed his work featured the series in the field and at the bat.

Manager McGraw is now paying the penalty of Lindstrom's rise to fame. He's the first New York holdout of 1926.

OBERLANDER'S CASE. The past season in football furnished another shining example of what opportunity means. The outstanding figure in college football was Swede Oberlander of Dartmouth. He was the big noise in the Green machine.

The thing that made Oberlander the most talked about man in the grid game was his marvelous forward passing. While proficient in all departments of play, Oberlander's greatest punch was his passing game.

For two seasons, 1923 and 1924, Oberlander of Dartmouth was a mighty good football player, but he didn't break into the headlines very often. Dartmouth's forward passing was done by Mr. Edward Dooley. An injury, due to a fall while horseback riding, made it apparent that Dooley would be lost to Dartmouth for 1925.

Oberlander set about to take his place. A football was his constant companion last summer. It is said he spent one hour a day throwing forward passes. His phenomenal play of last fall was a tribute to the effort.

If Oberlander can impart his forward passing ability to the Ohio State players, where he is to coach next fall, look out for the Columbus eleven.

PROPER RECOGNITION. The past season in football furnished another shining example of what opportunity means.

The outstanding figure in college football was Swede Oberlander of Dartmouth. He was the big noise in the Green machine.

Getting on the card at one of the big boxing shows in the east often makes a fighter who otherwise would have a hard time getting the proper recognition.

It isn't always an easy task to break into the elite of the east's boxing. The promoters are loathe to gamble with some unknown.

In this connection, I recall the case of Johnny Kilbrane, ex-featherweight champion. In his early days as a boxer he was a hit in Ohio, but little known outside the state.

Jimmy Dunn, his manager, asked me to use my influence in getting him a chance in the east. Johnny Mooney, an old friend of mine, was then the matchmaker at the Army Athletic Club at Boston.

Mooney put Kilbrane on as a favor to me, taking my word that he would deliver. He was the hit of the show and to the end of his career remained a big favorite in Boston. Then came a chance to box in Philadelphia where he also scored heavily.

Those two bouts let the natives know there was such a person as Kilbrane. In a few short years he was featherweight champion. He needed only the big opportunity.

HELEN WILLS HAS VICTORY AGAIN AT CANNES

BEAULIEU, France, Feb. 18. (AP)—Helen Wills, looking drawn and pale in her first appearance on the courts since her strenuous play against Suzanne Lenglen on Tuesday, won her match in the opening round of the Beaulieu tennis tournament today in straight love sets, defeating Miss Lily Hamerton.

KING OF BRAG

For a man, reputed to be sick and dying, Mussolini has shown himself capable of more insolent bragadocio and less judgment than such erstwhile world conquerors as Alexander, Hannibal, Napoleon, Bismark and the last of the German Kaisers. If any ailments is a superiority complex complicated by super-patriotism.

In his last patriotic oration before the Italian chamber, Premier Mussolini grandiloquently called upon Germany to remember that Italy is ready if necessary to carry her banners beyond her present frontiers, but, back, never!

This young, proud Fascist Italy is not in the habit of being afraid of anyone, the arrogant dictator is quoted as saying in the same address. And also, "We exact the payment of two eyes for the loss of only one eye and a whole set of teeth for the loss of only one tooth."

Of course the Italians cheered and the Germans sneered and the rest of the world smiled knowingly. Some Americans must have read Mussolini's speech and remembered their own Teddy Roosevelt and other such Great Americans.

"His public utterances have put the brand of politician upon the gallant Mussolini. He is not the first self-seeking politician to use patriotic subterfuge more effective, and in this particular instance Mussolini is made bold by the thought that there is not a country in all bankrupt Europe which has the money or the desire to call his bluff.

Between the ancient Athenian and Roman conquerors and Mussolini there is but one difference. The former retained their power at home as long as they were victorious abroad, while Mussolini hopes to retain his power at home by talking about the conquests he is going to make abroad.

THE LAST STRAW

A Little Rock (Ark.) city councilman would forbid stage jokes "ridiculing prohibition, religion or faithfulness to marriage ties," and would bar from the stage "the display of feminine nudity, except arms, shoulders, back from waist up and legs to the knees."

The mayor of a Pennsylvania city would prohibit jazz music in his fair municipality.

An Oregon police magistrate has fined a married couple for kissing in their automobile on a public, but secluded, thoroughfare.

From Martinsburg, (W. Va.) comes news of the enforcement of a burghess edict against "parking necking," which, translated into pre-war slang, means spooning in a parked automobile.

The new dictator of the Greeks has threatened imprisonment for all women who venture forth on the boulevard with skirts of less than the length prescribed by him.

New York's new mayor proposes to make Broadway dry because it is the big butter and egg men from the West who keep the great white way lit up all night and then go back home to vote dry and palm shockingly red pictures of the metropolis.

But there is always that last straw which breaks the camel's back. And the spine-splitting straw in this instance is the banning of corned beef and cabbage in Chicago's fashionable

Enough of This Nosing Around

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. Police find a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from a theater in CLEVELAND.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga Maynard, and she faints when he tells her she is suspected of murder.

Mary, put with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga is arrested. She tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. She doesn't know who he was and police scoff at her. Jimmy believes her and goes back to Grafton to persuade the district attorney to release her. He receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and on his way home one evening discovers he is being followed.

Olga tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief were hers but might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland. He is followed one evening and escapes from his two shadowers after wresting a blackjack from one of them. He tells POLICE LIEUTENANT O'DAY that it was a blackjack or something similar that caused his father's death.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church presses his courtship for Mary through her mother.

"He tried to follow him, but he lost him and came in to tell us about it. We've been looking for him ever since. Now I think you're on a wild goose chase, sticking around in Cleveland. This fellow probably has a pretty good reason for hanging around Grafton, and that's where we'll find him if we do."

"You're letting this Maynard woman kid you. She's in on this somehow, and that story of being picked up by somebody who got her ticket stub and handkerchief sounds pretty thin. I'll bet she knows who this Jones guy is and she's covering up for him. She never thought the thing would be traced to her and she had time to think up a yarn when the police got her. My own private idea of this thing is that this guy Jones is operating some sort of blackmail game and he uses a woman now and then to help him out. He answers the description of a man who's been doing that sort of thing in cities around this neck of the woods for some time."

"In the case of your father," he ran up against the wrong man and he got scared and killed him. You see if I'm not right. You might think this is some kind of wild dream I've got, but I think I know what I'm talking about. At any rate, Mr. H. A. Jones isn't in Cleveland and I think you're wasting your time. Why don't you let them bring the Maynard woman back here and come back yourself."

"Best regards."
 "MOONEY."
 "Mooney, you're dead wrong," Jimmy said softly as he folded the letter. "If the man I'm looking for is in Grafton, how do you explain these warnings I'm getting to leave town? And how do you explain that affair last night? No Mooney, if H. A. Jones isn't the man we want, He's right here in Cleveland and I need Olga Maynard to help me find him."
 He finished his breakfast hurriedly and then sat down and wrote Mooney everybody." He didn't tell her that Mooney had written telling him that the man known as H. A. Jones had been seen in Grafton.

"I don't blame you for being suspicious of me," she turned her eyes away from him as she spoke. "But I thought somehow that you believed me. No one else does, apparently. Whether you do or you don't, you should go back to Grafton. I don't want to see you hurt."

He studied her a long time. "Don't you realize," he asked her finally, "that if I go back to Grafton you'll have to go there, too? The District attorney consented to letting you go free temporarily so you could help me find this man you told about. They'll be wanting to make an arrest soon. They think they have to save their faces. Someone will have to stand trial pretty soon for this murder. If I go back now, it will be you."

Olga appeared to be thinking this over. She bit her lip nervously, and tears came to her eyes. "I don't care," she said softly, turning to face him. "I don't care what they do to me. You go back. You've been kind to me—the only one who has, the only one who helped me. I don't want anything to happen to you."

He flushed uncomfortably, not so much at what she had said as at the way she had said it. It suddenly occurred to him that a remarkable change had come over this girl. That hardness of manner which had characterized her on the occasion of their first meetings had gone. The old air of defiance—it had amounted at times almost to brazenness—also was missing.

"You've changed a lot since I first met you," he said hesitantly, and her eyes dropped before his inquiring look. "Are you surprised?" she asked. "Hasn't—hasn't what has happened been enough to change me?"

"Troubles do sober us," he agreed. "I'm a different sort of person myself to what I was before this happened. But with you—I don't know—it's hard to understand." He was about to tell her that her very appearance had changed—that she was dressed differently—more quietly—and was using less rouge. But he thought better of it.

"The old life doesn't interest me any more," she said. "I don't know. Something inside of me has snapped since—"

"Since when, Olga?" It was the first time he had called her that.

"Oh, since this happened," she answered evasively.

They parted then, and he went home, vaguely troubled.

The sun was shining brightly when he left his room the next morning, and the air was cool and bracing. He had taken "back" of his finances the night before and it hadn't been encouraging. "Less than $200 between me and starvation," he said ruefully. "If I don't get a job soon I'll be on my uppers." There was nothing to buy, and his evenings with Olga, although not expensive individually, were making serious inroads. He was still firmly determined not to ask his mother or Janet for help.

The cheerful aspect of the morning he regarded as a good omen, and he went quite hopefully about the task of job hunting. But it was just another morning of discouragement, and soon time found him weary and depressed.

He told himself, "If I don't find something to keep me busy in the day time—something to get my mind off myself—I'll go crazy."

He turned into Cleveland Park and wandered absent-mindedly along the walks. The sun had taken the chill off the air. Office workers, out on their lunch hour, were sitting on the benches, gossiping and laughing.

"That's what I need," he muttered almost savagely, "something to make me laugh."

He plodded on, his hands thrust in his overcoat pockets, his head down. A squirrel jumped across his path and he idly followed the frisky little creature with his eyes. Then he saw something ahead of him that made his heart leap.

On a park bench just ahead of him was a girl. She was sitting alone, resting her weight on her arm and looking down at the ground. There was something disconsolate looking about her, but that was not why he had started so eagerly at sight of her. She was Mary Lowell.

She was sitting alone, and she looked disconsolate. She was Mary Lowell.

(Now Go On With The Story)
CHAPTER XX

JIMMY RAND awoke the next morning with a violent headache, the after effects of the previous night's encounter with his two mysterious shadowers. His ear was swollen; he ached in every muscle.

He lay in bed longer than usual, turning over in his mind the jumble of events that had crowded in on him during the last few days, trying to put some semblance of order to his chaotic thoughts.

The landlady knocked on his door and, when he opened it, handed him a letter.

"It just came, Mr. Rand." It was a special delivery. She hesitated a moment and then she said, "I—I sort of thought you might not be feeling well this morning. Mr. Rand, after last night, and I fixed some breakfast for you. I'll bring it right up."

"That's mighty kind of you, Mrs. King, I'm sure. You shouldn't have gone to all that trouble for me." He was a little uncomfortable in the face of this unexpected kindness.

He sat on the bed to open his letter. It was postmarked Grafton and was from Detective Mooney. Mrs. King found him with a puzzled frown on his face when she returned with the breakfast tray.

"I hope it's not bad news, Mr. Rand." She could not keep the curiosity out of her voice. This new roomer of hers, with his mysterious phone calls and strange encounters, was a puzzling proposition.

He smiled. "No, Mrs. King. It's from an old friend in Grafton. He's just telling me the news."

"Oh!" She threw her hands in her apron pocket and left the room.

Between bits of buttered toast, Jimmy read the letter again:

"Dear Rand: I'm writing to tell you a new angle on this case of yours. It's the doggonedest case I was ever on and it's got me nearly batty. You remember that the day clerk in the Canfield Hotel said the man who registered for the room you father was found murdered in gave the name of H. A. Jones of New York. Well, the clerk shows up yesterday with word that he had seen this man Jones on the street the day before.

an answer, telling of the warnings and the attack of the night before.

"Of course," he wrote, "you mustn't think I'm ignoring the possibility that H. A. Jones may be in Grafton. Keep on looking for him. But there's a lot going on here that I want to find the reason for."

The days that followed were uneventful. To Jimmy they were wholly uninteresting. Despite the efforts of Lieutenant O'Day and the best detectives at his command, the solution to the identity of Jimmy's assailants on that eventful night was still as far away, apparently, as ever.

And as for the man whom Olga Maynard mentioned as having got hold of the ticket stub and the handkerchief, if he did actually exist and was not a creation of Olga's imagination, he seemingly had succeeded in dropping completely out of sight.

With Olga, Jimmy frequented the cabarets and roamed at night the brightly lighted downtown streets of Cleveland, hoping to catch a glimpse of him.

"I don't know if that's the way to look for him or not," Olga told him. "But I saw him downtown once and he seemed to know a lot about the restaurants and theaters and other night life. I don't know how else to go about it."

"It's the only way," Jimmy agreed. "Unless I run into those men who followed me home that night." He had told her of the episode and she had been greatly alarmed to learn that he was in danger.

"You should go back to Grafton," she told him. "You'll be hurt—maybe killed—if you stay here."

"How do you know?" he followed up quickly. "You talk as if you knew something about it."

She appeared hurt at the suspicion in his voice.

"I don't know why you ask me that—in that way," she answered. "What do the police think of it—don't they think you're in danger? Why shouldn't I think the same thing without being hurt?"

"I beg your pardon," he said contritely. "I shouldn't have spoken that way. The fact is, though, I'm getting to be suspicious of everything and WASHINGTON.—Raymon C. Shannon, of the National Museum staff, here in Washington, is on his way to the Argentine republic to hunt big game.

It seems President Alvear spent a night on his ranch in Santa Fe province, away from his mosquito net in Buenos Aires, recently, and just escaped being eaten alive. It's summer that side of the line now. So as soon as he got back to the capital he told the ministry of agriculture that something just had to be done.

The ministry of agriculture appealed to the Rockefeller Foundation, the mosquito's arch-foe, on the ground that he spreads yellow fever and malaria—at least some varieties of him do.

The foundation recommended Shannon, as perhaps the world's foremost mosquito expert, to direct a campaign against the nuisances.

"In the name of mercy," cabled back the Argentine government, "send him along," or words, in Spanish, to that effect. It's a nice assignment for a scientist of his particular brand. Trillions of insects don't create a paradise for anybody else, but they do for an entomologist.

The first step in every well-conducted anti-mosquito war is to classify the different breeds and go after them.

Shannon expects just the task of classification in Argentina to take him two or three years, an estimate which speaks for itself as to the ungodly swarms there must be there.

He has fought mosquitoes in many parts of the world.

"You can go by any clock you like," responded the porter, "but yer can't go by the train, for it's gone."

INVESTMENTS

Outside capital to the extent of $271,000.00 is extended Colorado as finance for erecting and equipping a modern five story hotel and theatre building to cost $336,000 on condition that the citizens to be directly benefited subscribe to only $65,000 in bonds. Would such an investment be worth the price to the city? Was it worth $3,000,000 to the progressive city of Fort Worth a few years ago to go down into their pockets and dig up that huge amount of finance in order to guarantee erection of the Texas, one of the Southland's finest and largest hotels, and an asset which has contributed much to Fort Worth's big development program during the few years which have passed since the Texas was built.—Colorado Record.

Introducing the Senate's Most 'Surging' Insurgent

BLEASE LEADING "ANTI" IN CAPITOL

BY GEORGE BRITT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The insurgent of insurgents here is no farmer-labor radical from the middle west, but a son of the conservative old south, Senator Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina.

For nearly forty years he has been mostly "agin the government," playing a lone wolf game, capitalizing discontents.

Probably no other member of the Senate has been subjected to such slashing and voluminous criticism as was Blease during his two terms as governor, from 1911 to 1915. Yet for every South Carolinian who thinks him the Beelzebub of demagogues, there is another who phrases his confidence by saying, "I'd vote for Coley if I saw him steal a sheep."

Typical of the man is the statement in his recent maiden speech in the Senate:

"I am proud of the fact that I am the only man from a southern state who is against this league court. I wish every senator would vote for it and let me be the only man to vote against it."

HE'S QUIETER NOW

Cole Blease in the Senate, however, has been so far a man of different technique from Cole Blease in the governor's chair. In the old days when he was scandalizing the nation by his qualified defense of lynchings and by his wholesale pardoning of convicts, he was an epitome of violence. He stamped and bellowed, called his enemies "gut-ternipes," and offered to "shoot out" controversies with them.

His campaign for the Senate a year ago was something new. His two opponents in the Democratic primary were having a hammer and tongs fight. Blease campaigned mildly and stepped in.

Senator Coleman L. Blease

Blease already is one of the "main attractions" of the present Senate, but when visitors ask to have the fire-eater pointed out to them, they usually re surprised. They behold a slender, alert, quiet figure, usually wearing gray clothes which hang with a "neat as a pin" stiffness.

His once flowing mustache is trimmed close, his gray hair is brushed to an upstanding pompadour and his face is extremely ruddy. His eccentricity is an enormous black felt hat. Few of the new senators have been less obtrusive than he, but his recent vitriolic attack on foreign diplomats indicates that this is the "quiet before the storm" and that he may soon resume his dramatic swash-buckling methods.

His platform is definite, and for the most part anti. He was an anti-Wilson, anti-war, anti-league Democrat. He is anti-Volstead, although he announces he will vote for prohibition as his constituents desire. He is anti-Mellon on tax reduction.

WANTS BIG ARMY

On the other hand he is for an army and navy that can lick the world. He is for farm relief and for a requirement that industrial employes must have 60 days notice or pay before they can be laid off from work. He is for a national Jim Crow law.

Blease is considered one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the south and one of the readiest stump speakers.

He knows more cotton mill workers personally than any living man, and the masses of the people in South Carolina believe that they have in him at last no aristocrat but one of themselves in power. He is the champion "jiner" and lodge member of the Senate.

One accomplishment which seems curious in this Jeffersonian individualist was putting thru an act prohibiting the sale of cigarets and cigaret papers in South Carolina.

law element that has wrought so much havoc in the Southwest, has had many experiences in his dealings with Inman that the ordinary man would not care to contend with. It was through a spirit of helpfulness to the family of Inman that Mr. Hill agreed to sign the bond, he said.

He recounted the many trips of he and his friends to the half-hidden mountain home of Inman, whom he characterized as a squatter, of the expense he had been out personally in sending men in search of Inman after he had escaped into New Mexico in an effort to induce him to return and face the issues before him, and of his dealings with men in various walks of life—law and outlaw—during the nearly three years that Inman has been missing.

He told of his dealings with other outlaws in an effort to find trace of Inman, and said that up until the time Inman had been gone for several months, he firmly believed he would return to account for the bond. Mr. Hill denied statements of Inman that a part of the bond had been paid by him (Inman) in cash before he shipped, and said that as far as he knew Inman had never owned a home in Oklahoma or anywhere else.

He also said that Inman did not have a brother in the banking business in Chickasha, saying that there is an Inman there who is a banker but that he is no relation to the outlaw.

He told of his efforts to keep Inman in Oklahoma under the $10,000 bond while Texas officers were seeking him to answer to a charge of swindling at Childress, and of his success in this through the aid of Jack Walton, who was Governor of the Sooner state at that time. Walton refused to honor requisition papers for Inman pending disposition of the appeal case in Oklahoma.

Inman, he said, was serving a one year sentence in the state penitentiary on a minor charge, and penitentiary authorities, at the expiration of his term, were in the act of delivering the prisoner to Texas officers when evidence, showing that Governor Walton would not honor requisition papers, were produced.

Mr. Hill is determined that Inman shall be returned to the Sooner state, he said, to answer to the charge of jumping bond, which in the meantime, has been forfeited, but stay of execution granted on a portion of it, and said that if necessary he will make a trip to Austin personally to gain the approval of Governor Ferguson of the requisition. The papers, however, have not yet been received in connection with the case.

WELCOME SIGN REMOVED FROM U. S. DOORMAT AS OFFICIALS RULE ON CASE OF COUNTESS OF CATHCART

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—The door to the United States is closed to the Countess of Cathcart because she eloped several years ago with the Earl of Craven, leaving a husband in England.

The episode, admitted by the countess, has brought into action against her the "moral turpitude" provision of the Immigration and Secretary Davis of the Labor Department has ordered her excluded from this country.

Decision Made Wednesday
The secretary rendered his decision last night after considering the recommendations of the board of review that heard pleas in her behalf by her counsel and others interested in her case. Mr. Davis declared exclusion was mandatory under the law and that it left him no exercise of discretion.

One slim chance to get into this country remains to Countess Vera, now held at Ellis Island. Her attorneys plan to request of New York courts a writ of habeas corpus which, if issued, would cause a review of the law and might grant the countess permission to enter under bond.

Is Not First Case
Exclusion of the countess is not the first case of the sort. Secretary Davis declared, adding that he was bound to consider the case solely on evidence submitted.
The National Women's party which had urged admission of the visitor, followed announcement of the decision with a protest against the exclusion "as an official recognition of a double moral standard which women are determined to destroy in our social system and which they certainly will not tolerate in our government."

Women Back Her
Appearing at the hearing on Monday, spokesmen for the party contended that the countess should be permitted to land, as was her elopement companion, who then was in this country with his wife. The Earl of Craven left New York for Canada, however, just before a Labor Department warrant for his arrest preliminary to exclusion was issued. It waited for him at New York but it likely will remain unserved for he plans to sail for Bermuda this month. The Countess of Craven, who has protested against exclusion of her formal rival, announced in New York that she was going to Montreal to "mother that bad boy."
She called the immigration authorities "dolts" and the exclusion order "disgusting."

Santa Fe Water Lines At Slaton Connected To City

SLATON, Feb. 18.—Santa Fe railroad officials announced today that the water connection between the railroad's water supply had been made with that of the city supply. The tap was made just west of the depot and a valve was installed to separate the water except in time of emergency.
The city of Slaton already has two wells of 275 gallon per minute capacity each, one of which is now in use.

With the addition of the Santa Fe wells, the city will now have capacity to 725 gallons per minute of water from the wells. The city has four storage tanks which total 425,000 gallons capacity. The Santa Fe has one storage of 500,000 gallons and it is rumored that the railroad will soon construct another storage tank raising its capacity to 650,000 or 700,000 gallons.
The city now has a total capacity of almost a million gallons and enough water to refill the storage tanks in twenty-four hours, making an almost inexhaustible water supply for a city of 5,000 people.

MEXICO MOVES TO HALT ENTRY OF CRIPPLES

LAREDO, Feb. 18. (AP)—A Mexican governmental proclamation prohibiting foreigners from entering Mexican territory who do not comply with all sanitary and health requirements, may check the flow of hopeful patients to the Nuevo Laredo for "divine healing" at the camp of four long haired Yaguacates Indians.
"The divine healers" who came to Nuevo Laredo several days ago, have their headquarters just outside the Nuevo Laredo cemetery, where long lines of persons are standing awaiting their turn for treatment.
Among the patients, which number upward of 10,000, are many cripples, paralytics, blind and deaf persons from both sides of the Rio Grande.
Miraculous cures have been reported as the result of the touch of the "divine healers." No specific cures, however, have been confirmed officially.

Slaton School Class Inspects City Plant

SLATON, Feb. 18.—The entire first year class of the Home Economics Department of Slaton High School were taken, upon an inspection tour of textile machinery of the city of Slaton. The class visited one of Slaton's mills, the cotton compress, and the newly completed 250,000 cotton mill. At each one of the places visited, officials in charge of the plants escorted the young ladies over the plant explaining its workings in detail.
Miss Anita Mawdsley, director of the department, said that the class was studying textiles in connection with their sewing work, and that the trip was made that they might become more thoroughly acquainted with the details of the manufacture of cotton products.

WAR VET RELEASED

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—Because the court charge that he neglected and refused to support his wife failed to describe the offense as "wilfully" committed, the court of criminal appeals today dismissed the wife desertion case against Jim Covington, fined $25 in Hopkins county. Testimony showed him to be a world war veteran suffering from effects over being "gassed" overseas.

DAVE HILL, ONE OF 3 BONDSMEN FOR JOE INMAN, TELLS OF LONG SEARCH FOR OKLAHOMA BAD MAN

GUNMAN MAY YET RETURN TO SOONER STATE WITH OFFICERS, SHERIFF JOHNSTON REPORTS, AND VISITORS REMAIN HERE ANOTHER DAY

Dave Hill of Chickasha, Okla., one of the three bondsmen who secured for the State of Oklahoma the appearance of Joe Inman, notorious gunman, on his appeal following conviction on a charge of assault with intent to kill, who is here now seeking to have Inman returned to the Sooner state to serve out his sentence, Thursday recounted to the Daily Journal his story of the hunt for Inman since he disappeared from his mountain home on May 1, 1923, leaving the bondsmen the responsibility of making good on the $10,000 guarantee that he would appear when a ruling was made on his appeal.

Mr. Hill explained that instead of returning to Oklahoma Wednesday evening, as the party of officers had intended to do after Inman announced he would fight extradition from Texas, they remained overnight here after they received a call from the local Sheriff's department as they were planning to leave saying that there is yet a possibility that Inman may be induced to return with them.
Seeks to Save Bond Money
"I have been a friend to Inman," Mr. Hill said, "to the best of my ability, and have tried to carry out save myself and the other bondsmen the forfeit money as far as possible. So far as I am personally concerned, it makes no difference to me what they do with Inman, so far as I am protected on the bond, except for the fact that I expect to do all in my power to see that he is not harmed enroute to the penitentiary in Oklahoma."

He discounted Inman's fears in connection with his return to the Sooner State in the custody of Oklahoma officers, saying that there is not a man in the party who would take advantage of him in the least. Inman has expressed fears that he will be killed enroute home if he leaves here in the custody of Oklahoma officers.

Following the spurt of activity at the start, the market soon became with prices new the lows. Moderate prices indicated a slight demand, freer offerings and a lower basis.

The market ruled steady during most of the morning and prices rallied moderately on price fixing by mills and more or less trade demand for near positions. March traded up to 15.53c, May 19.05c, or 10 to 13 points above the previous close.

The latter positions attracted less attention and called but little, July making a high at 18.47c and July at 17.62c or six points on both positions above the lows and two points above the previous close. There appeared slight disposition to trade as far as the near months were concerned.

The market ruled quiet and somewhat irregular during the afternoon. Near months kept within the previous range but July made a new high at 18.48c or nine points up from the low while October made a new low at 17.52c or

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Buying activities predominated at the opening of today's stock market with the advance in prices accentuated by vigorous short covering in some of the high priced industrial shares.

American Can mounted more than 3 points to a record high at 32 1/2 and initial gains of 1 to 3 points were scored by American Smelting, Coca Cola, Dupont, Allied Chemical, Republic Steel and Tobacco Products.

The rapidity of rise in a few special issues suggested a resumption of pool operations at the expense of short interests. At the same time the mar?

Kets tone generally benefitted by active bidding for merchandise issues such as Sears Roebuck, Woolworth and Montgomery Ward.

General Electric and United States Cast Iron Pipe joined American Can at the head of the upward movement and were closely followed by other popular stocks including Foundation Company, Savage Arms, Mathieson Alkali, Jordan Motors and Brooklyn Edison, in which the early advances ranged from one to 3 points.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION ON PLANS FOR HARD SURFACE HIGHWAY DALLAS TO LUBBOCK PERFECTED AT MEETING

A permanent organization for the promotion of a hard surface highway due east and west as near as possible from Lubbock to Dallas was perfected at a meeting of representatives from all interested towns and cities along the proposed route held at Four West-day, according to reports brought back here by local men who attended the meeting.

R. F. Penick of Stamford, a man who for many years has been an ardent supporter of good roads, especially in West Texas, his home section, was elected president of the organization, a name for which has not yet been chosen. W. K. Dickinson, Sr., of Lubbock, chairman of the Lubbock chamber of commerce highway committee, who has spent a great deal of his time in the past few years in the interest of better highways on the Plains, was elected vice president and Hamilton Wright, secretary of the chamber of commerce at Stamford, who is always ready to do his best for any move that is for the advancement of West Texas, was elected secretary treasurer.

Committees Named A committee to draw up constitution and by-laws, was named as follows: Clifford E. Jones of Spur, R. J. Murray of Lubbock, and R. L. Henry of Stamford. A board of directors for the organization composed of a representative from each town was named. S. F. Thors was named for Lubbock. The publicity committee, headed by S. W. Cooper, secretary of the chamber of commerce at Crosbyton, is composed of Roy Eddle, A. B. Davis, of Lubbock; Ed McRae, traffic manager of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce; and John Boswell, formerly of Pampa, but now with the Dallas chamber of commerce. Mr. McRae, in Fort Worth, representative made the statement that his department during the past year or two has received more inquiries as to how to reach Lubbock than any other town or city in the state.

Various speakers, including Clifford E. Jones, of Spur; Porter A. Whaley, of Stamford; R. L. Henry, of Stamford; and R. J. Murray, of Lubbock, recounted the efforts made in West Texas in promotion of better highways and told of the gigantic development program that has been under way. Mr. Jones told of the first highway meeting on the present route that sought to institute a highway from the commercial centers of the state to West Texas and New Mexico. This meeting was held in Spur in 1914, and resulted eventually in having the present highway named as a state route, with the consequence that much work has been done to bring it into first class condition.

A meeting of the directors of the organization was called to meet in Stamford March 17, when division engineers of Lubbock and Stamford districts from the state highway department, and the state highway commission will be invited to attend. Present plans provide that the gathering will go over the proposed route on an inspection tour, when it is hoped that present plans for hard surface launch in several counties may be speeded up, and others interested in the road to be derived from such a highway.

The proposed route as outlined at the meeting will follow State Highway No. 1 out of Dallas through Fort Worth, Weatherford, in Parker county, Palo Pinto county to Metcalf Gap, on Highway No. 18 through Stephens and Shackelford counties, thence northward through Jones county across the southwest corner of Haskell into Stowall, cutting off the northeast corner of Kent county into Dickens, county seat of Dickens on a due east and west course into Lubbock through Crosby county. This is considered the best available and most direct route, and one on which the least amount of conditioning for hard surface will be necessary, local men said.

12 Outfits in Division 5 At the present, there are twelve road grading outfits on this highway in Division 5 under supervision of Geo. A. Field, of the State Highway Department. Mr. Field said Thursday. The work is being done between Lubbock and Sargent, bringing the highway into first class condition as standard dirt construction.

Many of the counties interested in the program are now considering hard surface programs, or have them under way already, while the route is already under hard surface from Dallas to beyond Mineral Wells in this direction. It will be the work of the organization to try to speed up action along this line, and later to encourage and foster an extension from Lubbock on into New Mexico, possibly through Hockley and Cochran counties.

RESCUE CREW IS BUSY IN DEBRIS OF LITTLE TOWN

Bonnie Cole, Lloyd Nelson, Mrs. William Rimby, Tommy Tibby, 7 years old, Mrs. Mary Davis, Mrs. Jack Bentz, Leonard Van Newland, Elsie Von Neuhard, 10 years old, Tony Cassaret, Sam Trimel, James Sanderson, 21, Gunnison, Utah; James Murphy, 21, Butte, Mont.; two unidentified Americans, seven unidentified Mexicans, four unidentified Finlanders.

Many Are Injured. The list of injured: Luther McCandless, back and head hurt; John Perry, knee and head injured; William Whittle, head, back and leg hurt; Mrs. Joe Vanovick, internal injuries, lacerations in arm, caused by large splinter; Couchita Balta, 4 years old, exposure, fractured leg; Johnny Balta, 12 years old, exposure, frost-bitten foot; Mrs. Marvin A. Caywood, shock, exposure; Jimmy McDonald, injured hip, shock, exposure; Eva McDonald, his wife, fractured left arm, shock, exposure; Miss Alice Van Newland, exposure, shock; Tony Valacic, exposure; Wayne Hawalo, fractured leg.

The rescue workers, numbering more than 50, were spurred on in their attack upon debris by the finding alive of Jimmy McDonald and his wife, owner of the boarding house, after more than 14 hours imprisonment under the wreckage.

Cries Are Heard. A miner heard their faint cries coming through the snow and splintered timbers. Calling for aid, he dug and chopped his way to them. Both were conscious.

McDonald, with a badly injured hip, had borrowed his way a distance to his wife who was pinned to the wreckage by timber over her left arm which was broken. Every effort thus far has been bent toward recovering those beneath the debris and succoring the injured survivors and those who have been made homeless.

Snow Slides Two Miles. The slide began two miles from the little settlement, more than a mile above sea level in the Ogulrh mountains, when the freshly fallen snow slipped from its resting place on an earlier fall that had become crustified. It gathered momentum, weight and speed as it charged down the canyon. In its slide of more than two miles, the avalanche dropped at least 10,000 feet. A mile from the start it passed over and closed a tunnel mouth. Half a mile down it closed still another.

One man, Ed Hoverson, an occupant of the two-family house, was carried on the crest of the avalanche a distance of half a mile and only slightly injured. His wife is among the missing.

Bathtub Saves Two. A bathtub and wash basin in the Balta home saved little Couchita and Johnny Balta, four and two, and a half years, respectively. Their mother and a baby boy are among the recovered dead and a sister is missing. The father, John, was in the mine and was among the rescuers, who after six hours tireless effort, extricated the two surviving members of the family.

While the rescue was in progress, Dr. F. E. Straup, county physician and mayor of Bingham, called an emergency meeting of the town board to take action toward relieving the suffering of the homeless, numbering about at least 200.

SNOWSTORM REACHING BLIZZARD PROPORTIONS SWEEPS OVER THE SOUTHWEST TODAY, REPORTS SAY

(By the Associated Press) KANSAS CITY, Feb. 18.—A snowstorm that reached blizzard proportions in the teeth of a high north wind swept over the Southwest, today, routing the mild temperatures that have prevailed. Sharp drops in temperature were recorded with further drops scheduled for tonight. In Missouri and many sections of Kansas the storm was the heaviest snow fall of the year.

AMARILLO, Feb. 18. (AP)—Following on the heels of a blustry controversy waged in the press and on the streets of Amarillo concerning Dorothy Scarborough's West Texas novel, "The Wind," a biting Northern swept out of the clouds last night, ending a two week's spell of spring like weather. With it came flurries of icy snow.

Amarillo Rejoices But Amarillo is rejoicing as it shivers. Physicians declared today that the below freezing temperatures accompanying the wind probably means the end of an influenza epidemic here. It is estimated there are 2,000 cases of disease in a mild form in the city. The wind and snow flurries were general over the Panhandle. Today is clear in Amarillo but the much-maligned wind continues to whistle around the corners of buildings. The temperature at 10 a. m. today was 30.

CLEANUP GOES ON IN TIA JUANA

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Feb. 18. (AP)—Following the indictment of four men on charges connected with the attacks on Clyde and Audrey Petoet, American girls in Tia Juana recently, the Mexican town today prepared for further steps in the cleanup which officials have promised as the result of the outrage.

Business men in the place admitted that a large difference would be made in their trade by the order from Washington which now closes the boundary line from six p. m. to 8 a. m., but opinions as to what would be the ultimate result were by no means pessimistic.

Reports in Tia Juana last night that the Mexican government would retaliate by enforcing a closing order that would bar entry to Mexico at noon, were not confirmed.

ITALY RAPS TALK OF AUSTRIAN PREMIER

ROME, Feb. 18. (AP)—The Italian press considers as "unnecessary and dangerous" the reopening of the upper Adige question by General Hamek, Austrian chancellor in his speech before the general committee of the national council in Vienna yesterday. (Chancellor Hamek was quoted as declaring that Austria wishes to live on terms of amity with Italy, but that the measures adopted by the Italian authorities against the minorities in the upper Adige were in contradiction to the Italian government's promises of liberal treatment. The upper Adige, sometimes called Southern Tyrol, was detached from Austria and given to Italy after the World War.)
