Answerline

Q. When will I receive my tax refund check under President Bush tax cut?

A. Taxpayers should generally expect to receive tax refund checks based on the last two digits of their Social Security numbers, according to the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS says taxpayers need only wait for the mail and need not take any other action. For married couples filing jointly, the first Social Security number on the return will be used.

Hospital building pad is completed

Mitchell County commissioners' road and bridge crews and a Snyder dirt work company finished site preparation for the new county hospital and physicians' clinic Monday morning.

In three weeks, they moved 28,000 cubic yards of clay dirt from the east side of the Colorado River just north of Interstate 20, compacted it into 18,000 yards and made an elevated building pad on 23 acres east of the Wallace-Ware Units at Rogers Road and South I-20.

It's built like a huge oblong table, raised anywhere from a few feet to six or eight feet above the old terrain, flat on top and stable underfoot.

The county crews moved about 2,800 truckloads of dirt, and Bill Price Construction Co. of Snyder, the first of numerous sub contractors who will help build the hospital-clinic, compacted and spread it.

Cooper Construction trucks from Odessa started moving in rebar, or steel reinforcement bars, Monday afternoon to prepare for the next steps of the 1 1/2 year, $7 1/2 million project.

Job Supt. Raymond Chaisson said he was satisfied with the work so far, in which the soil was compacted to 95 percent density for maximum stability.

"If it settles, it all settles together," he said.

With the clinic considered to be part of the same building as the hospital, the next steps will be to lay out the ground level building corners on the outside wall lines and put in things that are commonplace to building contractors but exotic sounding to anyone else -- batter boards, center line columns, grade beams and concrete spot footings that will go four feet into the ground and lie 15 to 20 feet apart all around the building.

"We got things started today," Chaisson said. "The be-

Juneteenth organizers encouraged

Reviving Colorado City's Juneteenth Celebration after a 10 year hiatus went well enough Saturday for leaders to start considering a two day observance next year.

About 500 people attended during the day.

"We want to take a look at what we would like to improve on and what went well and build on that," said Juneteen Committee member Bobbie Banks.

She said 11 a.m. opening ceremonies in the north agricultural show barn at the county fairgrounds went well with talks by Mayor Bob Reily, former Mayor Jim Baum and others.

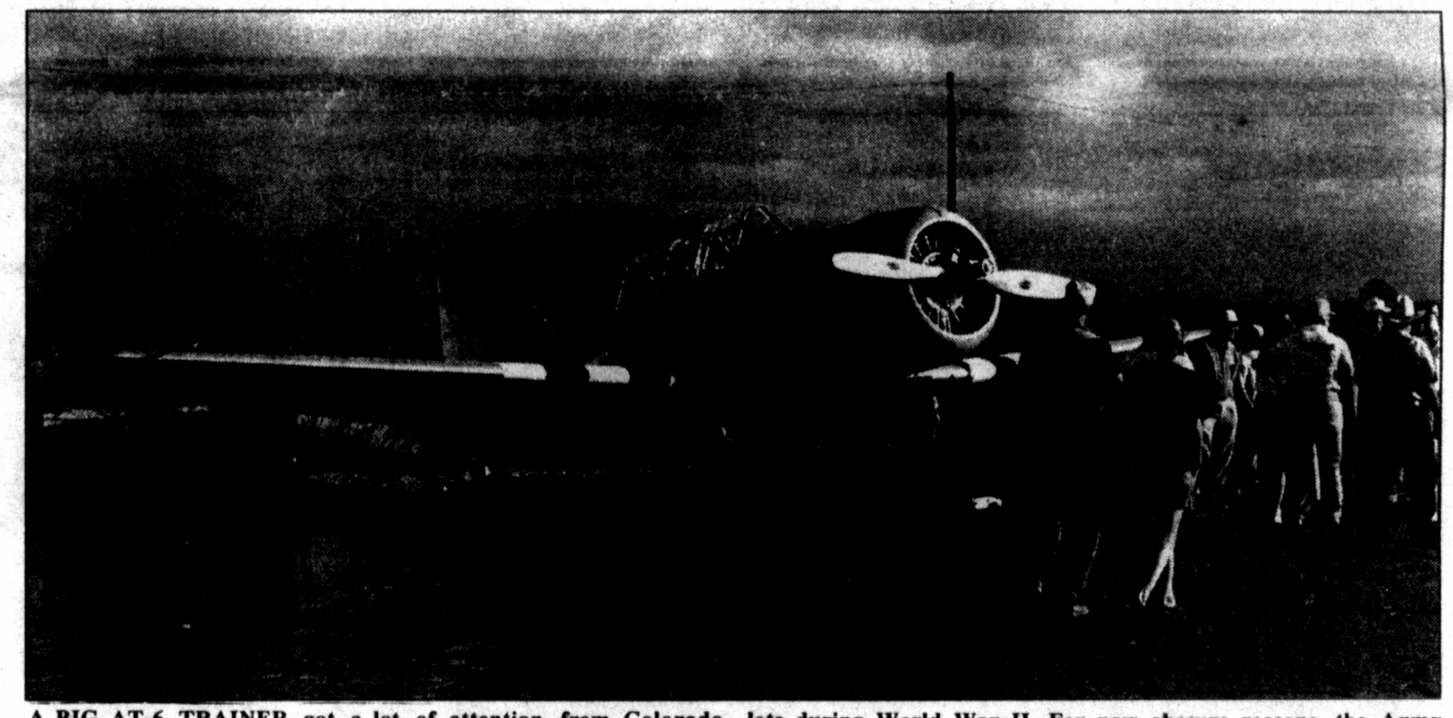

After a prayer by the Rev. Robert Bracy, Regina Selman of Snyder and Jackie Smith of Big Spring sang the Negro National Anthem and Carolyn Haynes of C-City the National Anthem, accompanied by her son on saxaphone.

Ms. Banks said it was gratifying to see City Council members Verta Hardegree, Sammy Contreras Sr. and Faye Ross there with County Judge Ray Mayo and hospital board member Larry Johnson.

Mayor Pro-tem Contreras and Councilwoman Ross were among the speakers, invoking the blessings of God and welcoming the participants.

A BIG AT-6 TRAINER got a lot of attention from Colorado City Fly-in spectators two years ago. It was used by the Army Air Corps, Navy and Marine Corps to train fighter pilots during World War II. For now obscure reasons, the Army called the advanced trainer "The Texan" and the Navy "The Harvard."

Vintage planes spice Fly-In Yellow, red, blue, brown, green, purple, white and just about any other color you can think of, slow and fast, trim and sharp, funky and experimental, vintage and new -- the annual Fourth of July Colorado City Fly-in at Jetstrip Airport attracts a lot of airplanes and usually a crowd.

Hitting a new peak last year after a couple of off years, it looks to match or exceed last year's 92 airplanes and almost 600 visitors on Wednesday, July 4, at the airport north of town off FM 1808.

A crew from City National Bank will begin serving $3 breakfasts of bacon, eggs, Texas toast, jelly, cantaloupe slices, coffee and orange juice at 7 a.m.

Free breakfasts were served to 162 pilots and passengers last year.

There was enough income to finance the construction of a 20 foot long, 11 foot high wall by H. C. Zermeño that can be used to shield the breakfast area from high winds.

Proceeds have also funded a lot more advertising, including a billboard on East Second Street, and Chairman J. O. Dockrey expects a strong turnout if the weather is good.

He's negotiating to bring a three member Midland Skydivers team who will jump from a Cessna Model 172 just before the 9:30 a.m. presentation of trophies by Abilene aviation writer Nancy Robinson Masters.

The oldest and youngest pilots, the one who has flown the farthest and the most unusual aircraft are recognized, which Dockrey said is unique among fly-in's of the Southwest.

"It creates a lot of interest," he said. "Some of the experimental airplanes that come out there, I don't know if I'd go up in."

Advertisements and notices have appeared in the national

Mitchell's redistricting is opposed in Austin

Board of Economic Development Chairman Woody Anderson testified Monday in Austin that moving Mitchell County into a different House district would be detrimental to its future.

Anderson told the Legislative Redistricting Board (LRB) that going from District 72 to 70, as the Texas House plan proposed, would jeopardize the county's future industrial development.

BOED Manager Windi Fuller said Tuesday that he and other spokesmen have also argued that a move out of Rep. Rob Junell's district would force Colorado City to compete in District 70 with Sweetwater, Big Spring, Snyder and other bigger cities.

She said the county has already established good working relationships in San Angelo and other District 72 citiies in brush control, the poppy mallow endangered wildflower garden at the new sports complex and Region F statewide

Fireworks show set for 4th

Colorado City's Independence Day celebration will be on Sunday, July 1, in Ruddick Park with free swimming, a fireworks show and other attractions sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Free swimming will be offered at the municipal pool from 4 to 8 p.m., and the Colorado High School twirlers will sell cotton candy, ice cream and lemonade.

At 6 p.m., the Chamber will have a bounce house for children.

Bingo, barbeque, soft drinks, water and pickles will be provided and glow-necklaces, mouthguards and glow-discs sold.

The C-City Volunteer Fire Department will assist with roadblocks and safety measures.

Western Enterprises will once again display the fireworks.

Beginning at 6 p.m., every hour on the hour, one three inch "Flash Salute" will be fired to announce the approaching fireworks display.

At 9:10 p.m. and then every ten minutes up to the opening of the show, which should be at 9:35 to 9:45, another flash salute will be fired.

Then there will be a barrage of 10 flash salutes to break high in the sky in a cannonade of thunderous reports to announce the opening of the 2001 Fireworks Show.

Sweatt in Anzio invasion

War may be the hardest for tender hearted men who do things like purposely miss when they go hunting.

They might mask their feelings in the military, especially in leadership roles, but the true personality resurfaces when the crisis is past and they return to civilian life.

The military doesn't ask if you relish the job. It just tells you to do it and keep doing it until it gets ready for you to stop.

In a story that came to the Record in a roundabout way, the late Army Sgt. Roy Sweatt was evidently something like that.

To be sure, the Carr Community native from Northwest Mitchell County did not enjoy his duty in the Anzio Beachhead invasion of Italy or subsequent combat with the Germans.

His sister, Bernice Wilson of Colorado City, never brought up the war because he was more sensitive about it than many veterans.

"I kept my mouth shut about it when I was around him because it was too deep with him," she said.

"He was one of those people who didn't want to talk about it, and if he ever did, it just broke his heart.

"He told his wife a lot of stuff, and she said she couldn't hardly take it. Some of the guys seemed to think it was like a party, but to him it was awful.

"He was not a killer, but he was forced. He was one of the fairest people in the world."

However, the story got back here because a private he instructed in basic training at Camp Hood in Killeen in 1944 was impressed with his toughness.

Archie Maness of Pampa had been looking for relatives of Sweatt's ever since he realized the sergeant had helped him survive the invasion of Okinawa in '45.

He heard Kerry Sweatt was the city manager of Fritch, northeast of Amarillo, visited out of curiousity and learned it was the sergeant's nephew.

The Eagle Press in Fritch ran a story and photos of their Jan. 26 meeting, and a second nephew, George Sweatt of Sweetwater, brought the clippings in.

"I hated him at first," Maness said. "He worked his training on us in such a way that it made an indelible impression.

"He was strict, extra thorough -- a leader that would be unequaled. He had us organized, and within a month or so we would have walked right through a building for him without opening a door.

"We loved him. He was our dad, our mother, our brother, our sister. . . our everything."

There was a particularly memorable event for the platoon during their four months' training.

They marched eight miles to the rifle range each morning, and an elderly man twice ignored their crossing guard and drove through their ranks, scattering them.

Sgt. Sweatt got a letter from the provost marshal, who told him to have the man sign it, give him a copy and take a copy to the office if he did it again.

He did it a third time, and the sergeant had the whole platoon crawl over the car hood in their brass hobnail boots.

"We skinned his car all to pieces," Maness said. "He was one mad individual and started a fracas.

"Sgt. Sweatt was in his face and said, 'I have a letter for you to sign. Take this to the office, and they will take care of you!'

"I don't know whatever happened to him, but he never did that again.

"I saw every bit of Okinawa. I couldn't have made it without Sgt. Sweatt. He was one tough sergeant."

THE LATE ROY SWEATT of Colorado City left memories of his gentle personality and devotion to duty in World War II. Shown here as a corporal, he was later promoted to sergeant.

According to Mrs. Wilson, her brother made a strict division between duty and personal feelings.

"He was one of the sweetest people in the world, but he took his Army career very seriously," she said. "Whenever he was supposed to do something, he did it.

"He was overseas and got back. We just didn't think he'd make it, but he did."

The youngest of five boys and four girls, he attended Rogers School and was a varsity baseball player at Colorado High School who graduated in 1940 and joined the Army before the war began.

Mrs. Wilson, 85, whose late husband's name was Arthur, is the next youngest.

Another sister, Pennie Hays of Coahoma, survives.

Sweatt's brothers Paul and Elbert also served in the Army during the war, Paul as an instructor because he was overage and Elbert in Europe.

One of his best friends was D. M. Smith of C-City, who joined the Army on July 2, '40, and took basic training with him at Ft. Bliss in El Paso.

Smith served in the First Cavalry Division under Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Australia and the Philippines and Sweatt in the 62nd Field Artillery in Sicily and Italy.

"We wrote letters to each other all during the war," Smith said. "He was an artilleryman, and he told me he was in a mulepack outfit for awhile.

"He was a first sergeant in the National Guard after the war and was called back to active duty for a year in the Cuban Missile Crisis."

Smith recalled going on double dates with the redhaired, lefthanded Sweatt in the other boy's Model A Ford, including midnight movies at the old Palace Theater where local musician Shady Mitchell now has Saturday night dances.

Sweatt pitched and played first base for the Wolves.

"I know his Army serial number," Smith said.

Sweatt farmed with his father George for awhile after the war and went to work at the Coltex Refinery, transferring to Big Spring when the plant was moved there in 1968.

He coached boys' youth baseball here for many years.

He and his wife, the former Dora Tedford, were members of the Westbrook Church of Christ.

They have three children -- Charles of Lawton, Okla., Roger of Big Spring and Sandra Chambers of Snyder.

He died of throat cancer and heart disease on Dec. 10, 1991, and was buried at Iatan Cemetery, where many of his kinsmen are buried.

Mrs. Sweatt passed away three years later.

"I'm very biased because he was my beloved brother, but he sure was a good guy," Mrs. Wilson said. "He was real easygoing and had lots of friends."

School Assistant Principal David Woods discussed President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation that ended slavery in Texas in 1865, and he recalled Reily's assistance as his coach when he ran 10 miles a day, six days a week, and won three state mile run championships.

Woods reviewed his training as an example of what young people can accomplish when they make up their minds to be successful.

Ms. Banks said a number of youths took part in the celebration, which ran to midnight with a dance after a day of games, food booths, two bands and two fashion shows.

She said the second fashion show, presented at 5 p.m. by the Private Collections Store in Sweetwater on a lighted runway built by prison inmates, had encouraging results and will be repeated next year.

A Lubbock Gospel band, the Soul Seekers, took the stage for an hour at 2 p.m. and the Clay Singers of Abilene followed at 3.

Ms. Banks said entertainment by out of town bands will be part of next year's celebration.

The Gospel program had a poetry reading by LaKeisha Emerson and selections by the Community Choir, Emmanuel Baptist Church, the First Presbyterian Church Children's Choir, Mt. Zion Baptist Church Youth, Sandra Green, Krystal Sanchez, Debra Collins, Heather Lucas, Barbara Monroe and George Blueford.

ginning of a project is always one of the toughest parts."

Austin architect Robert Cox had told hospital board members that the foundation could probably be laid with soil that was already on the site.

But commissioners learned a few weeks ago that the soil was too sandy and dirt with a heavier clay content would have to be brought in.

Commissioners Bill Preston, Ed Roach, Wendy Inman and Carl Guelker had already started preliminary dirt work to relieve the hospital district of more than $1 million in site preparation expenses and help cut the cost to within the $7.35 million bond issue that was passed by county voters on June 3, 2000.

They arranged with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice here and in Huntsville to get the clay from prison property alongside the river.

In the process, their bulldozers, loaders and trucks dug a hole for the TDCJ to create a tank, or pond.

80 John Wallace's legacy lives on

and their four children, just west of the family cemetery where they're buried.

Asked if they were ever tempted to sell any of it, Fowler said, "Never. That's what he wanted us to do -- and then keep on carrying it out."

80 John Wallace, namesake of the Wallace Unit prison, was a man of few words and a typical West Texas rancher's laconic nature.

Fowler, who looks a lot like his grand-dad and is only an inch shorter at 6-2, does not remember him saying much about keeping the land or even giving many instructions about personal conduct.

Wallace was 65 when Fowler was born.

Most of what he told the young man pertained to handling cattle and requiring him to help his grandmother gather eggs and feed the chickens and hogs.

"You were going to do it," he said, laughing. "I don't ever remember him whipping anybody, but when he spoke, we all jumped."

He added that Wallace was not given to frivolity. "He didn't joke any," he said. "He was pretty serious.

"He would saddle up a horse every morning and ride the pastures, checking on the cattle. He'd lay down after lunch. He didn't do much in the afternoons.

"He rode as much as any of us when we had the roundups. He wore a big white or gray felt cowboy hat."

"He didn't drink at all except when grandma made grape wine in the wintertime. He'd pour himself a glass and drink half of it and give the rest to me, but grandmother didn't like it."

The Wallaces had four children -- Carson, who worked on the ranch, and Eula Harris, Hettye Branch and Fowler's mother Mary, who all became teachers.

Fowler lived on the ranch with his grandparents and with his Aunt Hettye in Colorado City to go to school.

He grins when told he looks like his grand-dad and says he often hears it.

"I'm very proud of him," he said. "It's too bad I couldn't be more like him."

Fowler and his sister each have a child on whom they will depend to carry on the tradition of keeping the land, which is now all rented to farmers and ranchers, principally to farmers Frank Garcia and Robert Cox.

They had three oil wells in the Silver Creek Ranch area, but only one still produces.

Fowler and his wife Dorothy's daughter Daphne works for a telephone company in Irving.

Mrs. McMichael and her husband Alfred Sr., who is hospitalized at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Big Spring, have a son who lives in Los Angeles, Calif.

The Fowlers' grand-daughter Donnica lives with them, and they have a grandon, Donndric, in Irving.

Dennis Cleveland Fowler attended Prairie View A&M University in East Texas for a year after graduating here.

That took him to 1943 and the height of World War II.

He joined the Navy, took basic training in Great Lakes, Ill., and was assigned as a Capt. Bryant's steward on a communications ship in the invasions of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

"Okinawa was where the suicide planes started getting good," he said. "That's when I started getting gray-headed."

Fowler saw a lot of ships be clobbered by kamikazes, but his, an AGC-18, was one of the lucky ones that were missed.

"The gasoline was really the worst part," he said, referring to the burning gas that splattered across the decks from the kamikazes when they crashed.

He returned to work in Roscoe at grain storage elevators and for the Roscoe City Water Department and later became water superintendent for the City of Loraine.

(Next week: more about 80 John Wallace -- going on cattle drives on historic trails, fighting Indians in Mexico, going to school at age 25 and acquiring his nickname).

The story of Daniel Webster "80 John" Wallace and his descendants goes back to the Old West of the 1870's and '80's, cattle drives, fighting Comanches and ranching in Mexico and Mitchell County.

It's the story of a son of people born into slavery who rode out of Victoria County in Southeast Texas in 1875 to become a cowboy.

Mostly, it is the story of the multigenerational value of character.

Wallace, who died in 1939 at 79, saved enough from the $15 a month he earned as a cowhand to a buy cattle and then a section, or square mile, of land south of Loraine that he eventually built into more than 12 sections there and south at Silver Creek.

Perhaps as remarkably, his descendants and finally his two surviving grandchildren, D. C. Fowler and Elaine McMichael, have held onto the land through thick and thin and still have every acre.

Fowler, 77, and his 82 year old sister live on the old home place south of Loraine off Hwy. 644 -- Mrs. McMichael in the house that Wallace built for himself his wife Laura Dee

Warden lauds CO's raises

Senior Warden Tom O'Reilly

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice's correctional officers' recruiting and retention programs got a boost from the State Legislature this spring with a new eight year career ladder and significant pay increases.

Two more levels have been added to the correctional officer 4 grade, first instituted last year to allow a multitude of senior CO 3's to move up, and a new CO 5 grade has been created.

Starting pay goes from $18,924 to $20,592 a year, and officers will now make $24,432 after nine months on the job.

"It's a pretty good career ladder," said Wallace-Ware Units Senior Warden Tom O'Reilly last Friday.

"It's not what we asked for, but this is really going to help us out. I believe the Legislature treated us real fair this year."

He credits State Rep. Rob Junell of San Angelo, who represents Mitchell County, with playing a key role as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

"These folks deserve this raise," he said. "It's certainly not something that's a waste of taxpayers' money.

"These people earn it and deserve it."

He said last year's raises and career ladder improvements have helped the Colorado City units reach 90 percent of a full staff.

The Preston Smith Unit at Lamesa is still shorthanded, he said, and some C-City area graduates of the Western Texas College CO's academy in Snyder requested the local units but were assigned to Lamesa.

When the Smith Unit's shortage is solved, he said, they will probably transfer here.

"It's just a matter of the agency's need right now," O'Reilly said.

"People here have a good a work ethic as I've ever seen. Everybody has been great."

He also mentioned the support of Regional TDCJ Director John Gilbert of Plainview and Huntsville and Institutional Division Director Gary Johnson and Assistant Security Director Janie Cockrell, both of Huntsville.

New officers will go to $22,392 after three months and $25,932 after 20 months.

After three years, officers with the third CO 3 grade will earn $27,540.

There are now three CO 4 levels -- $28,380 after four years, $29,232 after five and $30,144 on the third step.

You reach CO 5 after 97 months, or eight years, earning $31,068.

A CO 4 now gets $28,380, so those who are qualified to become CO 5's will receive a 9 1/2 percent raise, Warden O'Reilly noted.

Non-uniformed, or non-security personnel, get the same 4 percent across the board raise that was authorized for all state employees or $100 a month, whichever is larger.

Supervisors were all given about a $3,000 raise -- sergeants generally from $29,000 to $32,000, lieutenants from $30,000 to $33,000, captains from $31,000 to $34,000 and majors from $35,000 to $37,000.

water planning.

Howard, Borden and Scurry are the only District 70 counties in Region F.

"Our fear is that we'll be overlooked because of the larger communities surrounding us," Ms. Fuller said.

"While in 72, we have had some tremendous success. We work well with the other communities there, and we want to stay where we have been for so long.

"We don't have medical airlift to a hospital in 70, but there is one in 72," she said, referring to helicopter Medivac service to Shannon Regional Medical Center in San Angelo.

If the House plan is adopted by LRB, Mitchell County will be in Knox City Democratic Rep. David Counts' district with Big Spring and Howard County, Snyder and Scurry County, Sweetwater and Nolan County, Lamesa and Dawson County and Jones, Haskell, Fisher, Garza, Borden and Knox Counties.

Since 1990 redistricting, it has been in the same district as San Angelo and Tom Green County and Irion, Coke and Sterling Counties, where it is the second biggest county.

Junell has sought, unsuccessfully so far, to keep Mitchell in his district.

Protest letters have been written to the LRB by the County Commissioners Court, Mayor Bob Reily, David Stubblefield in behalf of Producers Co-op, Rick Rickard for the County Hospital District, Bobby Lemons for City National Bank, Supt. Buddy Compton for the Colorado City School District and others.

The board consists of Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander, Land Commissioner David Dewhurst, Attorney Gen. John Cornyn, Lt. Gov. Bill Ratliff and Speaker of the House Pete Laney.

After hearing public testimony Monday, it will hear legislators June 26, present its plan July 10, hold a public hearing July 16 and formally adopt a plan July 24 in the Capitol Auditorium or Level E-1 of the Underground Capitol Extension in Austin.

You may submit written testimony to LRB Secretary Walter Fisher at P. O. Box 12068, Austin 78711.

"We shop, dine and enjoy entertainment much more in District 72 than the other one," Ms. Fuller said. "We support that district."

Parenting seminar slated at church

"Making Children Mind Without Losing Yours" is the topic of a daylong Saturday, June 30, seminar at Calvary Baptist Church at 1025 E. 15th St.

Dr. Kevin Leman, a Christian family counselor from Tucson, Ariz., will use videos to illustrate six lessons from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The only cost is $7 for a workbook, but you should call the church at 728-2262 to arrange child care.

There will be a one hour lunch break.

"This is to provide a ministry to help parents with raising children," said the Rev. Sammy Elliott, pastor.

"It covers toddlers to teenagers. It's not geared just toward the terrible two's or the teenage years.

"I know a seminar like this would help me out. I've watched the six lessons, and they're very insightful and helpful."

The lessons are on "Daring to be a Courageous Parent," why children misbehave, becoming the parent God wants you to be, nine ways to be your teenager's best friend, the ABC's of self image and "When to Let the Little Buzzards Tumble."

Sub topics are "Developing the Courage to Do What Is Best for Your Kids," understanding children and why they do what they do, maintaining authority without being an authoritarian, how to gain your teenager's love and respect and keep it forever, helping children feel good about themselves for all the right reasons and turning everyday hassles into everyday successes.

"We wanted to broaden it to offer it to our community," said the Rev. Elliott, who will be the moderator.

The operators will fire the shells at the start of the program and gradually move up to the four, five, six and eight inch shells.

After all the individual shells have been fired, the Grand Finale is lighted, beginning with a barrage of 200 Thundering Report Bombs, which lasts approximately 25 seconds.

Technicians then fire the remainder of the Grand Aerial Finale, with a tremendous Golden Brocade Willow Barrage.

"We hope to see the entire community come out and join us for a great time of celebration," said Chamber Manager Leigh Ann Erwin.

"The fireworks display costs $5,000, and donations are greatly appreciated."

When he returned to his vehicle he discovered that it had been hit on the driver side. Damage was minor; however the other person had fled the scene and failed to identify.

Hearing on FBI proposed

U. S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Abilene says the Federal Bureau of Investigation and most other federal agencies need more congressional oversight.

"The appropriate committees are going to have oversight hearings, and we need to let the committees with jurisdiction look into it," he said.

"I think the FBI does have a lot of questions that need to be answered about their operations and structure and how they're going about their business.

"But you could say the same thing about USDA and Health and Human Services and the Pentagon. I think all of our federal agencies need considerably more oversight to bring them into the 21st Century."

Stenholm was interviewed Friday morning at his Stamford office.

"We need to start spending more time on issues of this nature, which is our responsibility," he said.

He referred to the long series of controversies in which the FBI has been involved in the 1990's and recently, when top agent Robert Hanssen of Washington, D. C., was exposed as a Russian spy.

The Justice Department has just agreed not to seek the death penalty in return for Hanssen's testimony against himself.

Rep. Stenholm, policy chairman of the Blue Dog Coalition of conservative Democrats, said he is concerned that President Bush's $1.3 trillion tax cut package is too big and "backend loaded.

"I'm afraid the cut is much too big and we will end up jeopardizing Social Security and Medicare," he said.

"When you look at projected surpluses, if they turn out not to be real, within a year or two we could be running deficits again.

"I thought that was not a very conservative approach."

He disagreed with gradually phasing out the estate tax until its repeal in 2009, then reinstating it to current levels in 2010 under a "Sunset" provision.

"If you're going to die, you've got to die in 2009 or your estate planning is going to be very difficult and very expensive," he said.

"I would have much preferred an immediate exemption of $4 million, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year."

He said the House Agriculture Committee, on which he is the senior Democrat, has passed a $5.5 billion Ag Market Transition Assistance (AMTA) appropriation but is still faced with overall ag funding reductions.

"I don't disagree with all of it," Stenholm said. "The good news is that we're going to have some additional AMTA money."

He said rural health care and other small town issues would be discussed on the House floor this week.

"We've got our challenges right now," he said.

With the Republicans having only a six seat majority in the House, the Democrats have a good chance to take control in next year's election, he said.

Stenholm was considered for ag secretary in Bush's administration early this year but lost out to California Republican Ann Veneman.

But he said being chairman of the Ag Committee would be better, giving him control of every piece of ag related legislation that is considered.

"I would be much happier," he said. "Things have got a way or working out."

Misson remodeling funded

The Colorado City-Community Mission of Colorado has recently been awarded a $25,000 grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation in Midland to remodel the old American Legion building which they share with the Boys Club.

The foundation's grant will provide funding for much needed electrical and plumbing work to this aged facility. It will also provide funds for office and kitchen equipment needed in achieving the primary objectives of the Community Mission. The improvements scheduled for the building will vastly improve Community Mission's ability to store and distribute USDA commodities to families in need.

In addition to the funding for the building renovations, Abell-Hanger approved a matching grant for up to $5,000 which will match community donations for the operation of the Community Mission.

It is the hope of the foundation that this matching grant will encourage others in the community to provide much needed financial assistance to Community Mission in performing their critical mission to those in need in Colorado City.

The Abell-Hanger Foundation was created by George and Gladys Abell to provide funding for worthwhile charitable, educational and benevolent endeavors. Mr. Abell's business success was primarily achieved as an oil and gas operator in the rural areas of West Texas. As a result of his involvement in this geographic region, he developed a deep sense of obligation to the people and rural communities of the region

President's tax cuts applauded

By Jeff Clark,
State Director,
National Federation of Independent Business

I drew a bit of comfort from learning that Albert Einstein once said the hardest thing in the world for him to understand was his own income taxes.

After many late nights and more scratch pad calculations than I'd made since high school algebra, I completed my 2001 return.

I triple checked my work and sighed as I signed the forms but still had an unsolved calculation.

Why am I, after years of listening to political posturing about record government surpluses, still sending so much of my money to Washington?

I'm not alone.

At NFIB-Texas, I talk to numerous small business owners who are scratching their heads pondering the question.

Most people don't realize that the majority of American small business owners pay personal -- not corporate -- income taxes.

In fact, 1.4 million Texans included non-farm proprietor income in their 1999 individual returns.

Before the recent passage of President Bush's $1.3 trillion tax relief plan, Main Street America's entrepreneurs were handing more and more of their hardearned money to the taxman each year.

That greatly reduced the funds they had to create jobs, increase employees' pay or even maintain prices in a shaky economy.

The facts are simple. Taxes took 20 percent of the nation's Gross Domestic Product in 2000.

These dollars helped the federal government maintain a $125 billion surplus for 2001.

Then in the first quarter of 2001, we saw the economy grow at a weak one percent -- the slowest quarter since '95.

Small businesses tightened their belts while the federal government had a cash flow that made the most successful businesses green with envy.

President Bush's plan takes great strides to reverse the pattern.

It replaces the marginal income tax rates of 15, 28, 31, 36 and 39.6 percent with a simplified structure that cuts the four highest rates by one percent each for 2002 and reduces them to 25, 28, 33 and 35 percent by 2006.

The 15 percent bracket stays the same, but a new 10 percent level is created for people with annual incomes under $6,000.

The working parents' $500 child tax credit goes to $600 next year, $700 in '05, $800 in '09 and $1,000 in 2010.

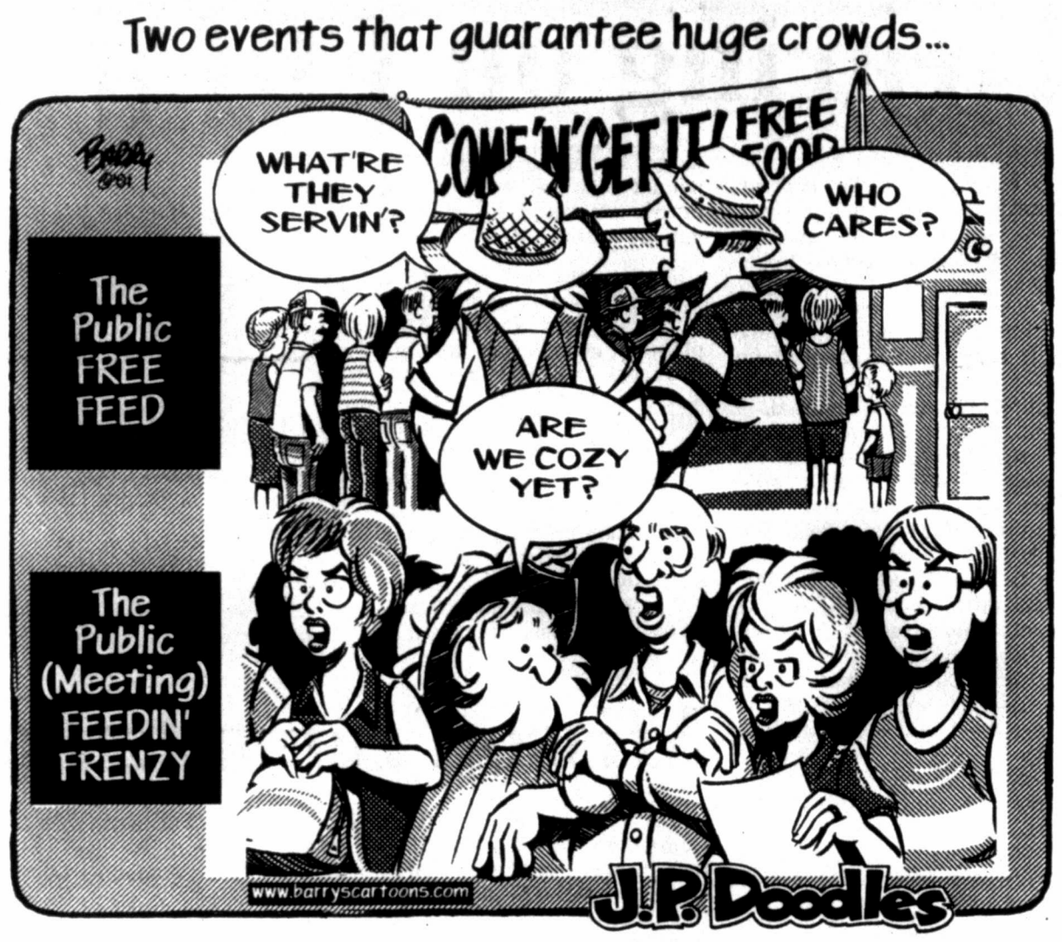

The Death Tax will be gradually eliminated by 2010 to keep the taxman from raiding family businesses when owners die.

Under a "Sunset" provision, the entire package will expire after 2010 unless Congress votes to continue it.

NFIB is encouraged to see the President respond to the outcry of the overtaxed public and address injustices in the Tax Code.

We needed relief, and it didn't take an Einstein to figure it out.

The back forty

by Roger Pond

The foot and mouth outbreak in Europe has U.S. airports on the alert. Anyone traveling overseas is now subject to the smell test when arriving at international airports in the U.S.

The Detroit Metropolitan Airport employs a beagle name Max to detect farm manure on passengers' shoes and to alert USDA officials, who disinfect the shoes. An Associated Press report says USDA agents are cleaning and disinfecting about 30 pairs of shoes each week at the Detroit airport. Before the foot and mouth outbreak officials cleaned roughly five passengers' shoes per week.

This tells me farmers and ranchers don't travel abroad much, or they don't go through Detroit Metro. It's possible to clean manure off shoes, of course, but I can't imagine passing the beagle test with anything I wear very often. (Those beagles don't have that big, long nose for nothing.)

The news report doesn't say how Max alerts officials to possible manure carriers. Maybe he howls, or jumps up and down. If Max is anything like the beagles I've owned, he probably rolls on the shoes.

There's nothing better than a beagle for detecting manure. My beagles would leave a hot trail and run 50 yards to roll in a pile of manure. Then, they would come back and pick up the trail right where they left it.

There are pitfalls in using these dogs for police work, however. Beagles will do anything for food, for example. If you give them a treat each time they find a suspect, they will finger everyone that comes through the door.

So now your chief investigator has you cleaning shoes that haven't been within 100 miles of a cow barn, sheep shed, or pig farm. The only way to prevent this is to fill the dog up in the morning and give him another donut at each coffee break.

The USDA agents gave Max a little vest to wear. That's a bad idea, too. If you give a beagle a uniform or a badge he thinks he's Chief of Police.

My first beagle, Gus, was a good example. Gus was an excellent rabbit dog, but that wasn't good enough for him. He wanted to be a guard dog.

Gus noticed a big silver truck was coming into the farm each morning and stealing milk out of the bulk tank. You could see it on his face, "Can't you guys see what they're doing? They're stealing your milk!"

Each time that truck came up the driveway Gus would chase it all the way to the barn. Then he chased it again on the way out.

We kept telling him, "Leave it alone, Gus. They pay us for the milk. Not very much, but they do pay us."

Finally, one day Gus slipped on the wet grass and the silver beast got him. I've often wondered what we could have done to prevent this tragedy.

I made lots of mistakes in training that dog, but if we hadn't given him the badge I think he would still be alive today.

The Voice From Ding Dong

By Tumbleweed Smith

Ding Dong is in Bell County. Where else, for goodness sake?

"Two brothers named Bell had a store here," says Ding Dong resident Tony Cleaver. "Those tow brothers were named Ding and Dong. That's how the place got its name."

Tony Cleaver has spent a good part of his life in the pulpit, so you're inclined to believe most of what he says. Some of Tony's kinfolks say the place was named Ding Dong after Tony got there and was named for him.

Tony has some cats.

"I think Six is back. Five is my lead cat and my new cat is Seven. I don't name my cats. I number them."

For a hobby and supplemental income, Tony creates sawdust. He actually makes and repairs furniture in his well equipped shop near his house, which he calls Hallelujah House. "My wife's parents live with us and we laugh a lot."

He gets up early, way before sunrise. "I think it's genetic. My parents got up early and I think it was passed along to me in the genes. But I go to bed early about 9 o'clock.

Tony taught elementary school for awhile, now is the counselor in the school at Florence, just down the road apiece.

He likes to sit on his front porch with a cup of coffee at dawn. "That's the best time to think, to read, to write, to meditate and just enjoy being in Ding Dong. When is'a a full moon, you can see a lot of deer. The man who lives above me and the man who lives below me feed deer. I don't feed them. But one morning I was out here and saw a white deer. I thought I had some real bad coffee. I didn't believe what I saw until I talked to my neighbor and he said yep, that's an albino deer. So I went back to drinking coffee."

"I was a preacher, but always wanted to be a minister. Ministers make more money."

He spends a lot of time in his shop, using some of the tools his grandfather used. His son helped build the shop. "Right now I'm working on a table for a short lady. I'm trying to make the table low enough so that when she sits down she can be comfortable. The legs are from an old sewing machine. I'm trying to put a top on it and make it sort of fancy with one of those sliding computer drawers under it. That's my current project."

He says doing physical work in his shop makes him think. He writes for some religious publications. A recent article was about things you don't find in a church bulletin.

For instance: "We had to get new offering plates because the other ones were too small. People were just giving too much money."

Here's another: "The parking lot had to have extra personnel to help people find a parking place because of the overflow crowds."

Nevada woman arrested in marijuana seizure

A West Central Texas Interlocal Crime Task Force agent stopped a Chevrolet Suburban from Las Vegas, Nev., early last Thursday morning and found more than 200 pounds of marijuana hidden in metal boxes that had been welded shut.

Agent Ron Stiltner stopped the westbound vehicle at 3 a.m. just west of Colorado City and escorted it, driven by 27 year old Rocio Alejandra Lazalde, to the Mitchell County Sheriff's Office.

Sheriff Patrick Toombs said the boxes were found in the back panels and fuel tank.

They had not been opened but were drilled into and marijuana residue brought out, he said.

Ms. Lazalde was incarcerated on a second degree felony charge and was being held Monday in lieu of a $10,000 bond.

The sheriff said the boxes might contain as much as 300 pounds of the drug.

FLY-IN

Flying and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association magazines, along with General Aviation News in Fort Worth.

Guided by Fly-in Committee members and other volunteers, the planes are lined up in front of the airport building where breakfast is cooked and on both sides of the runway to the north and a greater distance south.

After you eat and most of the planes are on the ground and parked, it offers a walking tour of a wide, or even wild, variety of aircraft.

Landing on the runway on the other side of the taxiway and taxiing past the crowd of pilots, passengers and spectators, most of the planes are garden variety private single engine craft -- shiny, new and airworthy.

Others, though, are World War II vintage or experimental, homemade planes with colorful pilots who have the spirit of pioneer aviators -- vivacious, spunky and essentially fearless.

Some even wear leather helmets with earflaps.

Other Fly-in Committee members are Jimmy Brown, Alan Ramage, Wendy Inman, John Jordan, Bob Brookshear, Kenneth Rogers, Tom Scott and Brad Dockrey.

Golf cart drivers include Ben Sparks and Bob Ratliff.

United Blood Services to hold drives in Big Spring

The United Blood Services will be at the following locations in Big Spring.

Sonic on Marcy Dr. on June 23 from 11 AM - 3 PM put on by Big Spring Rotary. For more information call (915) 263-3853.

In the Big Spring Mall across from Hallmark on June 30 from 12 PM - 5 PM. For more information call (915) 267-3853.

"Everyone is out playing and traveling." said Johnna Pevey, Community Relations Representative. "This makes the need for blood increase but the number of donors decreased. Please show your support at one of these blood drives."

Donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh more than 110 pounds and be in good health. Proof of identification and the names of any medication you may have taken in the past 30 days will be required, .

United Blood Services is the area's not-for-profit provider. In order to supply the 12 area hospitals, United Blood Services must collect more than 300 units each week. Blood products have a shelf life of 5 to 42 days.

If you would like to make an appointment to give blood, please call 653-1307. Please try to make an appointment. It will help you get in and out in a timely manner.

COOK'S CORNER

There are several ways to turn common high-calorie foods into healthy, low-fat, low-calorie treats. We've been searching for just those kinds of recipes. Please try some of these and see if you like them!

Mashed Potatoes (Low Fat)

8 med. Russet potatoes
1/4 cup non-fat milk
1/2 cup non-fat sour cream
1/8 cup parsley
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
salt and pepper to taste

Boil potatoes until soft, drain, cube and mash in a large bowl. Add all ingredients and mash together until well mixed.

Seven Layer Tex-Mex Dip (Low Fat)

16 ounces fat-free refried beans
1 cup salsa
1 cup fat-free sour cream
1 1/2 teaspoons taco seasoning
1 small container avocado dip
1 cup shredded low-fat monterey jack cheese
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
1/4 cup sliced green onions
2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives

In a medium bowl, stir together the refried beans and salsa. Spread the bean mixture on a 9" platter or in a pie plate. Spread the sour cream on top of the bean layer. Spread the avocado dip on sour cream. Then layer the shredded cheese, tomatoes, avocados, green onions and olives on top. If desired, cover and refrigerate for up to 4 hours. Serve with tortilla chips. Yields 16 servings.

Apple Cinnamon Coffee Cake

FILLING & TOPPING
2 tablespoons cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar
5 to 6 cups sliced apples (Granny Smiths are recommended)
CAKE
2 cups sugar
1 cup applesauce
4 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 cup orange juice
pinch salt
4 egg equivalents, lightly beaten
3 cups unbleached, all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Preheat oven to 350°. Grease a 12-cup tube or bundt pan with cooking spray. Combine cinnamon and sugar and set aside 1 tabelspoon. Toss prepared apples with remainder and set aside.

For the cake, whisk together sugar, applesauce, vanilla, oj, salt and eggs. Combine flour, baking powder and nutmeg and fold into sugar mxiture. Spoon a little more than 1/3 of the batter into prepared pan. Cover with half of apple mixture, then spoon in remaining batter and apple slices. Sprinkle top lightly with the reserved cinnamon-sugar. Bake in preheated oven for 1 hour or until done. Loosen sides with a butter knife, then invert cake onto a plate for serving.

Fiesta Chicken

8 oz. can tomato sauce
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons raisins
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
1/2 teaspoon oregano, crushed
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1 clove garlic, minced
12 oz. chicken breast halves
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
1/4 cup snipped parsley
3 cup hot cooked rice
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce
12 oz. boned skinless chicken breast halves, cut into quarters.

In a large skillet combine tomato sauce, orange juice, onion, pimiento, oregano, chili powder, garlic and hot pepper sauce until boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 5 minutes.

Stir in chicken; return to boiling. Cover and simmer 12-15 minutes or until chicken is tender and no longer pink.

Meanwhile combine cornstarch and water. Stir into skillet and heat until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Toss parsley with rice. Serve chicken mixture over rice.

The Colorado City Record, in cooperation with Al-Anon support groups and the Snyder Area Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (SACADA), are devoting this column to current information and answering your questions about the increasing threat of substance abuse.

Parenting Skills:
Tips and Ideas to help you make a difference.
(Part 1 of 2)

What's the biggest deterrent to your kids' using drugs and alcohol? It's you.
Look at the facts: Kids who learn from their parents or caregivers about the risks of drugs are 36% less likely to smoke marijuana than kids who don't. 50% less likely to use inhalants. 56% less likely to use cocaine. 65% less likely to use LSD.

Still think there's not much you can say or do? You are the most powerful influence in your child's daily life. But anti-drug parenting strategies rarely are instinctive, even for the best of parents. The tips that follow can help you turn your child away from the drugs that seem almost inevitable nowadays. You can do something. And you can start right now.

GET INVOLVED
Kids who are close to their parents are least likely to engage in risky behaviors. The more involved you are in your children's lives, the more valued they'll feel, and the more likely they'll be to respond to you.

1. Establish "together time." Establish a regular weekly routine for doing something special with your child – even something as simple as going out for ice cream.
2. Don't be afraid to ask where your kids are going, who they'll be with and what they'll be doing. Get to know your kid's friends – and their parents – so you're familiar with their activities.
3. Try to be there after school when your child gets home. The "danger zone" for drug use is between 4 and 6 PM, when no one's around; arrange flexible time at work if you possibly can. If your child will be with friends, ideally they have adult supervision – not just an older sibling.
4. Eat together as often as you can. Meals are a great opportunity to talk about the day's events, to unwind, reinforce, bond. Studies show that kids whose families eat together at least 5 times a week are less likely to be involved with drugs or alcohol.

LEARN TO COMMUNICATE
Do you know your kid's favorite music group? What's cool at school? The more you communicate, the more at ease your child will feel about discussing drugs and other sensitive issues with you.

1. Be absolutely clear with your kids that you don't want them using drugs. Ever. Anywhere. Don't leave room for interpretation. And talk often about the dangers and results of drug and alcohol abuse. Once or twice a year won't do it.
2. Be a better listener. Ask questions – and encourage them. Paraphrase what your child says to you. Ask for their input about family decisions. Showing your willingness to listen will make your child feel more comfortable about opening up to you.
3. Give honest answers. Don't make up what you don't know; offer to find out. If asked whether you've ever taken drugs, let them know what's important: that you don't want them using drugs.
4. Use TV reports, anti-drug commercials, news or school discussions about drugs to help you introduce the subject in a natural, unforced way.
5. Don't react in a way that will cut off further discussion. If your child makes statements that challenge or shock you, turn them into a calm discussion of why your child thinks people use drugs, or whether the effect is worth the risk.
6. Role play with your child and practice ways to refuse drugs and alcohol in different situations. Acknowledge how tough these moments can be.

Harris named All-American scholar

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Tommy Harris from Colorado City has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3, or higher, grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Tommy Harris, who attends Colorado High School, was nominated for this national award by Kim Anderson.

Tommy will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, winners of the All-American Scholar Awards should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects All-American Scholars upon the exclusive recommendation by teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the USAA for other honors.

Tommy is the son of David and Donna Harris from Colorado City. The grandparents are J.D. and Margie Marsh of Colorado City and Jimmy Murphy of Early, Texas.

CHS students participate in peer mediation training

Twelve students from Colorado High School participated in a three day training program for peer mediation, taught by Mr. Archie Green who has trained mediation teams all over Texas for two years. Peer mediation is students helping students. The trained students working in pairs help two disputants figure out for themselves how to solve their argument. Mediation has five steps: introduction and rules, storytelling, establishing needs, finding solutions, and the agreement. Listening and speaking skills are important factors for mediators. As Rose Macedo stated, " I learned better listening and speaking skills and it was all worth going to." Mediators must also be trustworthy, stay neutral to both disputants, and never give advice.

Of the 12 students that went through this program, many had raving comments on this training. Kevin Andrews said, " I learned how to help people by listening without actually giving them advice." These students will start a chapter of peer mediation at the high school this fall and will be coordinated by Mr. Ribble, Mrs. Fambro and Coach Keeton. Students from Hutchinson Elementary and Colorado Middle School have also been trained in peer mediation.

TAAS testing scheduled

Summer TAAS testing at CHS will be given on the following dates: July 10th - Writing; July 11th - Math; July 12th - Reading

The test will begin at 8:30 am each day. Please be on time. Come to the front office at the high school for directions to the testing room. Call 728-3424 if you have any question.

Strain named to Dean's List at Texas Tech

Amanda Annette Strain was named to the Dean's Honor List at Texas Tech University.

This recognition is awarded to students who have attained a grade point average of 3.5 or better during the indicated semester.

Swann graduates from CJC

Cisco Junior College Abilene-Cisco is proud to announce the 2001 graduating class. Amanda Nicole Swann was recently honored at commencement ceremonies in Cisco.

Anderson makes President's List

Hardin-Simmons University announces that Colorado City resident Kendra Anderson made the President's List for the spring 2001 semester.

The HSU President's List honors students who completed at least 12 semester hours with a 4.0 grade point average.

MOVIE REVIEWS

By Casey Eagan

In getting the opportunity to begin my own "Movie Review" column in the Record this summer, I hope to give the people of Mitchell County a unique service.

To provide our readers with valuable information and insights into one of the summer's most enjoyable pasttimes.

Plus, now I can get into movie's for free. Cool. The money I save can be used to pay off my late charges at the Video Store.

My first review will be for Tomb Raider (rated PG-13: violence, adult situations), now playing at Cinema I and II in Snyder through June 29.

Based on the hugely successful video game, Tomb Raider, follows the adventures of Lara Croft (Angelina Joile), a wealthy young thrillseeker who attempts to discover a hidden key to an ancient time-portal before it falls into the ruthless hands of a secret society with plans of their own.

At the same time, Croft wrestles with the temptation to use the time machine to reunite with her late father (played by Jon Voigt).

The action in Tomb-Raider is non-stop, giving the viewer little time to catch their breath before being plunged into yet another jaw dropping sequence. In this case, the less time to think, the better.

Fortunately, Tomb-Raider hit the jackpot in the casting of Joile, who is totally believable in some fairly unbelievable situations. On the down side, this was a movie that could have used a scene stealing villain or sidekick, but the supporting cast hardly registers at all.

Ok, so there's little plot or character development, but Joile keeps things interesting and the stunts are some of the best I've ever seen, earning Tomb-Raider 2 1/2 stars out of 4.

Next up is Evolution (rated PG 13: adult language, brief nudity) now playing at Cinema I and II in Snyder through Thursday.

Evolution is about a close encounter of the weird kind, as strange creatures begin to form and evolve after a meteor crashes near a small Arizona town.

College science professors Ira Kane (David Duchovny) and Harry Block (Orlando Jones) are the first on the scene. Before they can fully understand, and maybe cash in on the discovery, the government swoops in to take charge.

Naturally, things get out of control in a hurry and it's up to the professors, with some help from a government scientist (Julianne Moore), to save the world.

In the same spirit as "Ghostbusters", you'll probably realize early on that plot comes secondary to humor and special effects. Unfortunately, Evolution is not nearly as funny and the dialogue not as sharp.

On the plus side, the special effects are top notch and some of the alien critters are pretty original looking.

The cast is enjoyable and has a good rapport, despite the tired premise. Evolution may grow on you, earning it 2 1/2 stars out of 4.

B&PW Club meets for regular meeting

The Business and Professional Womens Club met June 12, 2001 for their regular monthly meeting and installation of new officers.

Mary Beth Love gave the pledge to the flag while Molly Bruce read the collect.

After dinner, Shirley DeLaney introduced our visitors, Karen Schafer of the Sweetwater Club and Vi Henry of Abilene of the Sweetwater Club.

Using candles and the Federation Club Pledge, Vi installed Pauline Light as president and Molly Bruce as first vice president. Donna Barlow was installed as second vice president, but she was not present so Kristine Cooley stood in her place. Also, Virginia Dearen was installed as recording secretary. She was out sick, so Barbara Stahl stood in her place. Mary Beth Love was installed as treasurer and Nancy Crow as corresponding secretary.

After the presentation services, president Pauline Light called the meeting to order.

The minutes were read and approved and the treasury report was filed for audit.

Issues Management Molly Bruce asked for programs and changes for the new book and also suggested that the district director should be invited to a meeting

Public relations chairperson, Mildred Free, gave a report on the Relay for Life, the bass tournament, the Fourth of July Fly In and the Juneteenth Celebration.

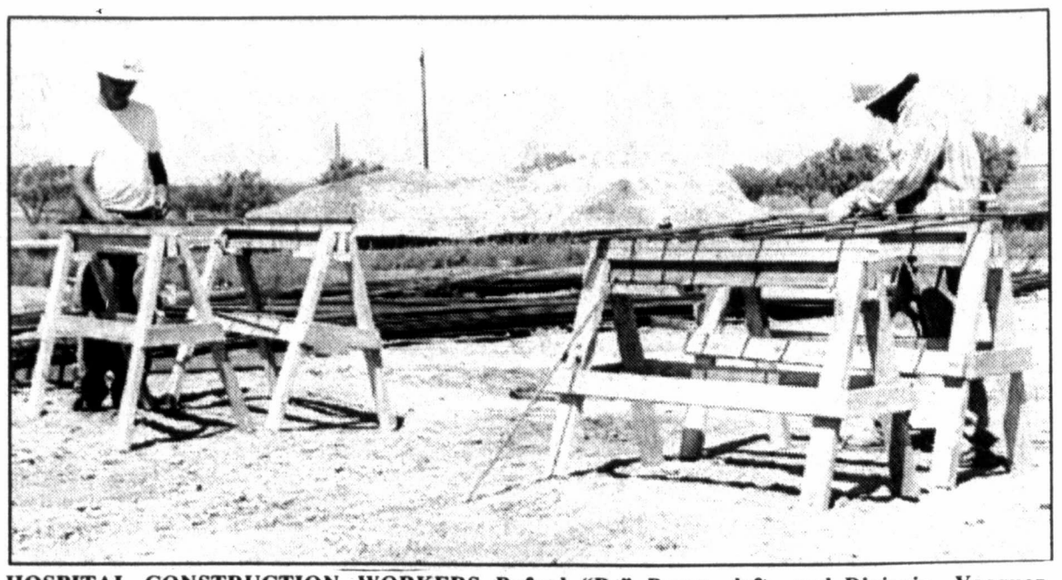

Nancy Crow read a letter from Louise Crenshaw with regret that she is resigning from B&PW Club.

By-laws chairperson, Shirley DeLaney, gave a report on changes and they were accepted and will be ready in July.

Happy birthday was sang to Sue Womack.

An audit committee was elected. Shirley nominated Donna Barlow. Mary Beth Love nominated Shirley Scott and Sue Womack nominated Kristine Cooley.

There was no further business so the meeting was adjourned.

HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTION WORKERS Buford "Bo" Boyce, left, and Divinsio Vasquez, both of Colorado City, were busy at the western C-City site Tuesday morning. They are employees of the general contractor, Cooper Construction Co. of Odessa.

2000 Drinking Water Quality Report

(Consumer Confidence Report)

COLORADO CITY CITY OF 915-728-3463

Special Notice for the ELDERLY, INFANTS, CANCER PATIENTS, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune problems:

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

ALL drinking water may contain contaminants.

When drinking water meets federal standards there may not be any health based benefits to purchasing bottled water or point of use devices.
Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

About The Following Pages

The pages that follow list all of the federally regulated or monitored constituents which have been found in your drinking water. U.S. EPA requires water systems to test up to 97 constituents

Secondary Constituents

Many constituents (such as calcium, sodium, or iron) which are often found in drinking water, can cause taste, color, and odor problems. The taste and odor constituents are called secondary constituents and are regulated by the State of Texas, not EPA. These constituents are not causes for health concerns. Therefore, secondaries are not required to be reported in this document but they may greatly affect the appearance and taste of your water.

Our Drinking Water Meets or Exceeds All Federal (EPA) Drinking Water Requirements

This report is a summary of the quality of the water we provide our customers. The analysis was made by using the data from the most recent U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) required tests and is presented in the attached pages. We hope this information helps you become more knowledgeable about what's in your drinking water.

En Espanol

Este reporte incluye informacion importante sobre el agua para tomar. Si tiene preguntas o' discusiones sobre este reporte en espanol, favor de llamar al tel. 915-728-3464 par hablar con una persona bilingue en espanol.

Where do we get our drinking water?
Our drinking water is obtained from Ground and Surface water sources. It comes from the following Lake/River/Reservoir/Aquifer: ALLUVIAL and LAKE COLO CITY.
TNRCC will be reviewing all of Texas' drinking water sources. The source water assessment process will be completed within three years. It is important to protect your drinking water by protecting your water source.

DEFINITIONS

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL)
The highest permissible level of a contaminant in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG
The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected health risk. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety

Treatment Technique (TT) -
A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Action Level (AL)-
The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

NTU - Nephelometric Turbidity Units
MFL - million fibers per liter (a measure of asbestos) pCi/l picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity) ppm - parts per million, or milligrams per liter (mg/l) ppb - parts per billion, or micrograms per liter (µg/l)
ppt - parts per trillion, or nanograms per liter
ppq - parts per quadrillion, or picograms per liter

Students seeking jobs need help from you

Community leaders are making our community stronger and also helping our young people find their places here at home with the "Summer Jobs for Youth Program."

Over 90 applications from students have been received in the office of Representative Junell since the program began this year. To date 45 students have found positions with 20 businesses in this program.

Many of the students seeking work are 14 and 15 years of age and it has been very difficult to find places for them. They are willing to baby sit, do outdoor work, indoor work - they are just willing to work! All of these students, ages 14-21, are eager to become a part of the work force of Mitchell County - they are just waiting for you to find a place for them.

Anyone who is interested in hiring a student may contact Representative Junell's office in the G-Kell Building, south entrance. The phone number is 728-8955 and the hours are 9-11:30 and 1-3:30, Monday through Thursday.

WTC honor lists name students here

Four Colorado City natives were named to the President's List for the spring 2001 semester at Western Texas College. The president's list is the highest scholastic ranking achievable at WTC. To be honored, students must maintain a 4.0 grade point average while taking at least 12 academic credit hours.

Honorees include: Jeannie Hart, Johnnie Riggs, Kamie Stubblefield, and Dorothy Ward.

Six students from Colorado City were named to the Dean's List for the spring 2001 semester at Western Texas College. To qualify for Dean's List, students must have a 3.5 grade point average and carry at least 12 hours of course work.

Students named to the Dean's List are as followed: Jeff Ellis, Michelle Guelker, Kyle Hammond, Stephen Hill, Andrea Moore, and Matt Thackerson

Colorado City native, Jo Anne Tovar has been named to the Merit List for the spring 2001 semester at Western Texas College. To qualify for Merit List, students must have a 3.5 grade point average and enroll for more than 8 but less than 12 hours of course work.

Greetings. You say your going to get married? Well, it is June.

June and wedding bells seem to go together.

Do you plan a big wedding or will you please your dad and elope?

Either way have a good life. Just think, after a year of living with the dear girl, you are only obligated to buy her something made of paper.

If the dear girl is smart she will choose a lot of green paper with president's faces that are smiling at her.

Nell Doyle visited with Chester and Beverly Collier Sunday in Westbrook for Father's Day. Jimmy, Jodi and Hudson of Silver also joined the family group.

Monday was Jimmy's birthday, so the birthday and Father's Day both were celebrated with a wonderful meal and birthday cake.

Grady and Elnora Mitchell enjoyed a nice Father's Day get-together with Judy Macha from Lockney. Henry and Penny Mitchell, Neil Miles and friend Betty Safford. They had a nice meal together and after lunch, Henry and Mandy Mitchell joined them. There was some guitar playing and singing that eveyrone enjoyed.

For Father's Day Sunday, Juanice Butler took Danny and Pam out to the Sportsman's Club for lunch.

Tharon and Doris Henderson enjoyed having their children home for Father's Day and also Pauline Smiley.

* * *

Bro. James Waddell and family were pleased to have his parents, Marvin and Sally Waddell in Loraine for Father's Day. They attended church at First Baptist Sunday.

Isaiah and Etta G. Williams celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and renewed their wedding vows to each other Saturday, June 16 at Loraine's Senior Center.

In the wedding party and giving of the bride was Isaiah Jr., their son, maid of honor, daughter Linda, best man was son Dave and bridesmaids were Rita, Michelle, and Trena, their daughters.

Groomsmen were Tommy, Tony, Melvin, Jossell, Anthony and Leonard, also their sons. The usher was Dane, a grandson. The flower girl was Alyssa, granddaughter and the ring bearer was Jeremiah, their grandson.

The center was beautifully decorated in gold and white and refreshments were served to almost 200 people.

Congratulations to Ike and Etta G. May they enjoy many more anniversaries.

If you missed the open house Saturday at Hitchin Post #2 in Loraine, you certainly missed a treat.

Tommy and Eva Lou Wright did theirselves proud with a menu that included beef brisket, ribs, sausage, hot dogs, beans, coleslaw, potato salad, key lime pie, peach cobbler and cheesecake. Free cokes were also served.

All the food was free to the public and it was delicious. Our appreciation goes to the Wrights, Vicky Martinez, Addie Mahoney, an Nick Mc Peters. It was a fun occasion with music and singing. Bill Crockett was there for the ribbon cutting and several Wright family members and friends were also present.

Sunday School

"The Ten Commandments"

The Sunday School teacher asked Young Johnny if he could remember any of the Ten Commandments? "I sure nuff can," replied the boy.

1. You don't steal anything
2. Honor your Mother and Father
3. Do others like you do
4. You can't kill anybody
5. Don't look at a burning bush
6. Go to church and keep it holey
7. Don't look at another mans wife.
8. For ever and ever amen

Welcome to Loraine.

See you around town.
