Report: Guard accuses Harding

■ U.S. Olympic team member is under 'active criminal investigation,' according to law enforcement source.

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Tonya Harding met with attorneys after surfacing with her ex-husband Friday, and NBC News said her bodyguard accused her of being involved in the Jan. 6 assault on Olympic figure skating rival Nancy Kerrigan.

NBC said Harding's bodyguard, Shawn Eric Eckardt, accused Harding of being involved in the "planning and cover-up" of the attack on Kerrigan during the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Detroit. Eckardt was arrested Thursday.

A law enforcement source told NBC there is no warrant for Harding, but that she is under "active criminal investigation."

Authorities have said there are no indications Harding, 23, was involved.

Asked about the NBC report that they were investigating Harding, Multnomah County deputy district at-

Restitution center to reopen doors after almost year

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland Community Restitution Center will be re-admitting residents Tuesday for the first time in almost a year.

"We've worked very hard to reopen that center and are anxious to see our efforts come to fruition," said 318th Texas District Court Judge Dean Rucker, administrative judge of the Midland Judicial District.

The district oversees the Midland Community Supervision and Corrections Department, which regulates 3,000 probationers and the restitution center, which is equipped to accommodate 48 residents for up to 24 months.

The center's program, which was established in 1985, is "to provide the defendants with structure in their lives and, probably for the very first time, steady employment, life skills and a chance to exercise self-responsibility," Rucker said on Friday.

The center, which has a budget of about $1 million, was closed last February and denied its funding after the Community Justice Assistance Division (CJAD) of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice found flaws in the center's programming, management, and safety and security features.

CJAD — which had charged the center with falling short in 96 programming and physical-plant areas — early last year ordered the center to implement 96 "Action Plans" to bring the fa-

Mrs. Bobbitt testifies she doesn't remember sexual mutilation

MANASSAS, Va. (AP) — A trembling Lorena Bobbitt tearfully insisted Friday she has no memory of slicing off her husband's penis, contradicting her testimony against him at his sexual assault trial.

Mrs. Bobbitt testified that her head swirled with images of past abuse the night she claims her husband, John, raped her. As for cutting off his penis minutes after the alleged assault, she said, "No, I don't remember that."

She clung to the assertion despite what she said two months ago at Bobbitt's trial: "I lifted the sheets and I cut it." He denied assaulting her and was acquitted.

Displaying the 9-inch, red-handled kitchen knife Mrs. Bobbitt used, prosecutor Mary Grace O'Brien demanded, "What were you thinking when you picked up the knife? . . . Did you think about cutting John?"

"No," Mrs. Bobbitt again insisted, saying her mind was filled only with horrible, humiliating episodes from her four-year marriage.

Concluding two days of emotional testimony, the 24-year-old manicurist described a life torn apart by Bobbitt's violent outbursts, selfishness, infidelity and insults.

"I was just crying, crying loud, but I couldn't breathe. I just couldn't breathe. It was hurting me. He hurt me.'

—Lorena Bobbitt

She said she endured being hit, having her hair pulled, humiliated in public about her looks and even taunted about needles "so big they were going to go through my bones" before the abortion he insisted she have.

Mrs. Bobbitt has pleaded innocent to a charge of malicious wounding, saying that years of abuse led to an irresistible impulse to strike back. The Ecuadorean-native faces 20 years in prison and possible deportation if convicted. The trial has recessed until Tuesday because of Monday's holiday.

Under questioning from O'Brien, who alternated between being gentle and insistent, Mrs. Bobbitt also admitted stealing from her employer and shoplifting from a department store.

She said she took the money because bills were piling up and Bobbitt would not help her pay them. She said she later repaid her employer.

She said she took clothes because Bobbitt had said

Combest speaks to frustrated area citizens

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, attending a town-hall meeting Friday morning, faced Permian Basin citizens who appeared frustrated by what they believe are too many government regulations and uncertainty about health-care and welfare reform.

That frustration was evident early on, when someone at the meeting — held at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification — asked what could be done to help businesses grow and create jobs.

Combest said he believes jobs should be created by the private sector and that he fails to understand his more liberal colleagues who think government should become more involved in solving problems.

"Then there's those of us who think government is the problem," he said.

Combest said his philosophy has always been to encourage investment and savings and encourage businesses to succeed. But excessive government regulations are forcing companies out of the country, he said.

Combest said he sponsored a bill requiring the government to study the economic impact of new regulations and to void an equal number of existing regulations.

He said an independent think tank found that in 1991, the average American family spent $1,850 on health care, and $4,200 complying with federal regulations.

"Every time you take a drink of water, switch on a light, heat or cool your house, get dressed, drive your car or fill up the tank, you're paying for regulations," he said.

He said he is trying to enact legislation banning unfunded mandates — which in order to comply with, cities, counties and states have to increase fees and taxes.

Combest's own frustration was apparent when he described recent efforts to cut government spending, the deficit and debt.

Clashes between Palestinians, Israelis kill 5

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — In the bloodiest day since Israel and the PLO signed their peace accord four months ago, five Palestinians and an Israeli were killed Friday in clashes in Israel's occupied territories.

A nine-hour gunbattle with soldiers in Hebron ended in the deaths of three prison escapees and a fourth man. One soldier was wounded.

In the Gaza Strip, an Islamic militant stabbed an Israeli to death and seriously wounded another before being shot and killed.

The Islamic Resistance Movement, or Hamas, claimed responsibility for the Gaza attack in announcements made over mosque loudspeakers in Gaza City. The army issued a statement saying said the four men killed in Hebron also belonged to Hamas, which opposes the Israel-PLO accord.

It was the highest single-day death toll in the occupied territories since the peace accord was signed Sept. 13. Fifty-six Palestinians and 20 Israelis have been killed since then.

Talks between Israel and the PLO on implementing the accord have bogged down over disputes. As attention focuses on a scheduled Sunday summit meeting between President Clinton and Syrian President Hafez Assad in Geneva, the latest bloodshed was likely to deepen disenchantment on all sides.

A Hebron resident predicted that the deadly standoff would increase support for Hamas, which seeks to undermine the peace agreement.

"People in Hebron were already against the peace accord and seeing a fight like this is going to turn everyone into a Hamas supporter," said Taysir Hassan, 23.

Hebron, a city of 90,000, was under curfew Friday.

The standoff began when soldiers traced three prison escapees to a house in Hebron on Thursday evening. When a soldier approached the house, he was shot in the leg.

Scores of troops surrounded the house.

ANC unveils plan to give blacks greater share of land

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The African National Congress, pledging to correct a "racially distorted" economy, unveiled a plan Friday to give nearly a third of the country's farmland to dispossessed blacks.

Expected to triumph when South Africa holds its first multiracial election April 27, the ANC also said it would consider nationalizing some industries.

While the plan does not explicitly say white-owned land or businesses would be bought or expropriated, its clearly stated goal is to give blacks a greater share of wealth now controlled mostly by South Africa's long-dominant white minority.

"Our income distribution is racially distorted and ranks as one of the most unequal in the world — lavish wealth and abject poverty characterize our society," the African National Congress said in its 61-page Reconstruction and Development Program, which was released at a news conference.

President F.W. de Klerk's government has warned that an ANC victory will lead to economic stagnation and flight of foreign investors, and it pointed to another ANC draft document released Wednesday that called for an end to private control of mineral wealth.

"This is clear proof that the ANC is still clinging to outdated socialist policies," the National Party said on Thursday.

The ANC's economic policy document is expected to be ratified by the party leadership later this month. It was drafted with the help of aid, labor and research groups and an important pillar in its election platform.

Even as the plan was being made public, ANC leader Nelson Mandela said his party had moved away from nationalization and sought only to reorganize the economy to satisfy the needs of the long-denied black majority.

Speaking to an ANC Youth League meeting, he said his movement would not do anything to scare off foreign investors.

The post-apartheid development plan was outlined at a news conference of other ANC officials. It stressed the need for land reform and calls for massive construction and improvements in basic services.

The plan vows to "build 1 million houses, provide all with clean water and sanitation, electrify 2.5 million new homes, and provide health care and phones to all citizens."

A land claims court would be established to settle disputes arising from the forced removals of millions of blacks from their land during apartheid. The plan sets as a goal the redistributuion of 30 percent of agricultural land within five years.

Under the program, the government would buy property from willing whites and sell it to blacks at subsidized prices, but would expropriate land "where applicable." Compensation would be paid for seized property.

Clinton ends summit with arms accord, message to Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and Russia took the world off nuclear alert at a breakthrough summit Friday, and President Clinton urged the Russian people to "choose the future" as they stand at a crossroad of history.

His message of hope, in a televised speech after signing two major weapons accords at the Kremlin with President Boris Yeltsin, resonated in a country gripped with winter and the upheaval of the crash conversion from communism to capitalism.

"This is a crossroad and a difficult one, but the younger generation of Russians will look back on this time with either gratitude or regret," Clinton declared.

He was leaving for Minsk, the capital of Belarus, this morning, then flying on to Geneva and a meeting Sunday with Syrian President Hafez Assad before returning to Washington. He pronounced his trip "very, very successful" and added, "I am elated by it."

He spoke from the television station that old guard communists tried to storm in October. Two months later, seizing on soaring prices, lagging production and inadequate housing, extremists showed surprising strength in the election of a new parliament.

"I believe you will choose the future," Clinton said in the live town-hall style TV session. "I know the present is difficult, but if you make the right decisions, if you choose hope over fear, then the future will reward your courage and your vision."

In their own effort to make the future safer, Clinton and Yeltsin signed a declaration promising by May 30 to stop aiming their long-range nuclear missiles at each other or at other countries.

"For the first time in nearly half a century — virtually since the dawn of the nuclear age — the United States and Russia will not operate nuclear forces, day-to-day, in a manner that presumes they are adversaries," their declaration said.

Most of the missiles will be taken off-target. A few of the older ones will be aimed at ocean expanses.

Experts say there is no way for one side to know if the other is cheating. And the missiles can be retargeted within minutes.

But the growing trust between the United States and Russia, on trigger-alert and glowering at each other for more than four decades, obscured such reservations.

At the same time, though, Clinton cautioned North Korea, Libya and Iraq they should not relax.

"No, no," he said in an interview on CNN, "What it means is that we will not have our weapons on alert targeted. But because we do that by computer we can do it in a hurry. So for those nations that may be trying to become nuclear nations, they shouldn't read from that that they can act with impunity."

"If we had to target a missile, God forbid, at North Korea or any place else, we could do it very quickly," he said.

In a parallel agreement, Ukrainian President Leonid M. Kravchuk pledged to dismantle and ship to Russia "in the shortest possible time" all 1,800 long-range nuclear warheads left behind by the Soviet Union after its disintegration.

A White House statement said 46 SS-24s, the deadliest missiles in the third-largest nuclear arsenal in the world, would be deactivated within 10 months by having their warheads removed.

At least 200 warheads from SS-24s and older SS-19 missiles will be shipped to Russia during this period.

Russia, in return, will provide Ukraine with fuel assemblies for its nuclear power industry — the country is sagging under energy shortages — with 100 tons of enriched uranium.

Battle may decide fate of Bosnia, government says

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The government and its Serb foes deployed massive reinforcements Friday to the front lines of a raging battle that a government spokesman said could determine the outcome of Bosnia's war.

The Serbs are trying to cut across a swath of government-held territory northeast of Sarajevo to isolate Tuzla, the largest government-held town outside the capital, from government strongholds to the south.

"It's a battle for Bosnia-Herzegovina. ... If they can cut us in pieces, it would be easier to deal with us," government spokesman Ekrem Avdic said.

The battle comes ahead of a new round of peace talks Tuesday in Geneva. Bosnian Premier Haris Silajdzic threatened to boycott the talks if the shelling of Sarajevo and other Bosnian towns continues, Bosnian radio reported.

Silajdzic spoke at a ceremony marking what the radio said was the success of the Muslim-led government forces in repelling one of the "strongest offensives" by the Serbs in the Sarajevo area.

The Serb army claimed its troops had breached government lines Thursday near Olovo, but the government denied the claim.

The government-held corridor extends from Olovo and Vares, northeast of Sarajevo, to Gradacac in the north and Zenica to the south. The Serbs are trying to push northwest toward land they hold in northern Bosnia.

"We're expecting a fight for life or death," said Avdic, whose Bosnian Army 2nd Corps protects the Olovo area. "We reinforced all front lines because we are aware of the importance of this front line for the entire state."

Olovo is midway between Sarajevo and Tuzla, a Muslim stronghold about 50 miles northwest of the capital whose prewar population of 130,000 has more than tripled with refugees.

The government's loss of Olovo would narrow its land corridor to Tuzla and give the Serbs a greater chance to divide and conquer.

German prosecutor claims girl carved swastika herself

HALLE, Germany (AP) — A 17-year-old handicapped girl who claimed three neo-Nazis carved a swastika into her cheek earlier this week apparently mutilated herself, the state prosecutor's office said Friday.

There is little doubt the girl, who is confined to a wheelchair, "inflicted the injuries on herself," the Saxony-Anhalt prosecutor's office said in a news release.

The girl, who was identified only as Elke J., told police in the east German city of Halle that three neo-Nazis, one a girl, attacked her on Monday.

Word of the attack stunned Germans. Leading politicians demanded quick police action, and President Richard von Weizsaecker condemned the attack.

Hundreds of police across the country tried to track down the alleged attackers, and authorities searched the homes of dozens of suspected neo-Nazis. A few were held briefly for questioning, but all had alibis and were released, police said.

On Thursday, about 10,000 people demonstrated in Halle against neo-Nazis. However, the Hamburg-based Bild newspaper reported the same day that officials had doubts about the girl's story.

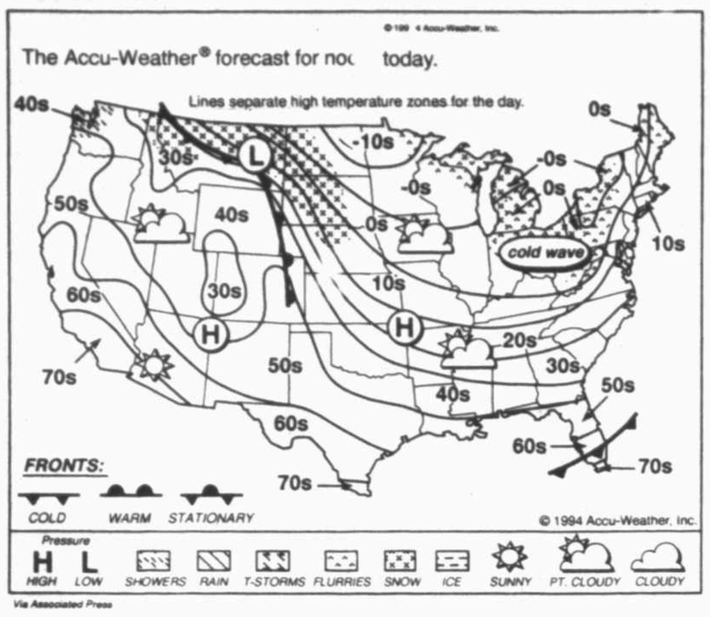

The prosecutor's statement said claims by the girl that she screamed during the alleged attack were doubtful because people who were nearby at the time said they heard nothing.

Doctors who examined the wound "also suspect that it was self-inflicted," the statement said.

A psychologist called in to talk with the girl has been unable to do so because the girl has gone into seclusion, it said.

Today to be partly cloudy, 50s

Staff Report

Today's forcast calls for partly cloudy skies, cool with a high in the upper 50s and northeast winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy, turning to mostly cloudy with a low in the low 30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Sunday should be mostly cloudy in the morning, partly cloudy in the afternoon with a high in the mid-50s.

After an overnight low of 32, Friday's high reached 69 compared to the record high for that date of 79 set in 1953. The record low was 6 degrees in 1972.

STATE

It was unseasonably warm all over the state Friday, as temperatures reached into the 70s in south and north Texas, according to the National Weather Service.

Skies were sunny over most of South Texas, with temperatures mainly in the 60s and 70s. The fair skies should continue through today, with lows ranging from the 30s in the eastern portion of the region to the 50s in deep South Texas. Highs should be in the 70s.

Light winds prevailed over much of North Texas and skies were mostly clear. Temperatures were generally in the mid 60s to lower 70s.

Today should be cloudy in North Texas, becoming mostly sunny by the afternoon. Highs should be in the 50s, and lows were expected in the high 20s.

West Texas skies were cloudy and temperatures were in the upper 50s to near 70. The region should be partly to mostly cloudy through tonight. Lows should be in the 20s. Highs were expected in the 40s in the panhandle and South Plains, but into the 60s elsewhere.

NATION

Arctic cold kept a clamp on much of the nation Friday, with temperatures well below zero in the Midwest. Wind-chill advisories were issued for a large part of the Northeast.

A cold air mass curved from the mid-Atlantic coast across the Tennessee and lower Mississippi valleys and into the southern Plains and the central Rockies.

The cold was blamed for several deaths in Chicago, where officials activated special plans to help the poor and homeless.

The cold closed several school districts in Wisconsin, including the 100,000-student Milwaukee system. Milwaukee canceled its Winterfest for two days.

Morning temperatures were below zero across the northern Plains, the upper Mississippi Valley and the western Great Lakes region.

The morning low in the Lower 48 states was 34 degrees below zero in Wild River State Park, in Minnesota. Despite the cold, no record low temperatures were reported.

Brisk northwesterly winds also added considerable chill to the bitter cold temperatures. Wind chill advisories were posted for North Dakota, eastern South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, portions of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, northern Illinois, most of Indiana and Ohio. The advisories were also in effect in Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, eastern New York state, Vermont and the mountains of West Virginia and North Carolina.

As cold air poured over the Great Lakes, snow fell along downwind shores. South Bend, Ind., picked up 3 inches in three hours. Heavy snow also fell across parts of New England and the central Rockies, with lighter snow from West Virginia into Mississippi and across Oklahoma and eastern Kansas.

Forecasters predicted even colder temperatures today and another arctic blast early next week.

Much of the West had fair and dry conditions, with temperatures in Southern California and southern Arizona reaching the 60s and 70s during the day.

ATTACK: Bodyguard accuses Harding, report says

(From 1A)

torney John Bradley said, "Not at this point."

"We are investigating everything," he said. "So I mean, we are going to be as complete as we can. Whatever you make of that."

Harding's lawyer, Robert Weaver, said: "I really can't speak to what Mr. Eckardt may or may not have said. . . . I do know that there are no charges outstanding. That was confirmed to me an hour ago in a meeting I had in the district attorney's office.

"This continuous reporting by some people that there are charges outstanding needs to stop."

Weaver said Harding was cooperating with the district attorney's office.

"She is quite exhausted by all of this," Weaver said. "While she will be making a statement, she's not prepared to do that today."

So far, three people, including Eckardt, Harding's 350-pound bodyguard, have been arrested in the Kerrigan case.

Derrick Brian Smith, 29, was arraigned Friday along with Eckardt, 26, on conspiracy charges and will next appear in court Jan. 24. Pleas of innocent were automatically entered for them.

Smith's nephew, Shane Minoaka Stant, 22, of Chandler, Ariz., surrendered Friday in Phoenix. Jeff Gillooly, Harding's ex-husband, hasn't been charged.

Eckardt's lawyer, W. Mark McKnight, said his client had admitted taking part in the plot to authorities. But he said Eckardt is "not smart enough" to have formulated and carried out the plan.

"He had a deep and profound sense of remorse, and he still carries that sense of remorse," McKnight said. "I believe that sense of remorse began when he watched on national television a beautiful and promising Miss Kerrigan cringing and crying on the floor."

McKnight labeled the report of Harding's involvement "part of a frenzy of speculation" by television.

Harding and Gillooly were seen for the first time since Tuesday, when reports of the alleged plot surfaced. They drove past reporters without answering questions after leaving their rural home in Beavercreek, about 20 miles southeast of Portland.

Gillooly allegedly suggested a plan to injure Kerrigan, according to sources quoted in The Oregonian newspaper. His stormy marriage to Harding ended in divorce last August, but they reconciled and resumed living together.

Indictments unsealed Friday said Stant, Eckardt and Smith conspired in late December in Portland to "unlawfully and intentionally cause physical injury to Nancy Kerrigan by means of a dangerous weapon, by striking Nancy Kerrigan in the leg with the dangerous weapon."

Kerrigan was injured when a man hit her on the leg with a metal rod, forcing her to withdraw from the championships — an Olympic qualifying event — later won by Harding. Both were named to the U.S. Olympic team headed for the Winter Games in Norway next month.

During a news conference Friday outside her Massachusetts home, Kerrigan refused to answer questions about arrests in the case. She said her recovery was going well and she did not expect the injury to hurt her Olympic performance.

Asked why someone would want to hurt her, Kerrigan said, "I don't think I could ever understand the answer because I can't think that viciously."

Asked how she felt about being on the Olympic team with Harding, Kerrigan, 24, said in a flat, emotionless voice: "I have nothing to say to her."

Multnomah County District Attorney Michael Schrunk refused to describe the roles the three men charged in the case allegedly played in the attack on Kerrigan.

But The Oregonian has reported that authorities believe Gillooly asked Eckardt to find someone to club Kerrigan, and that Eckardt went through Smith to hire Stant for $100,000.

Neighbors of the isolated rural home that Smith and Stant shared until last November said the men often wore camouflage clothing and set booby traps along their driveway.

Smith worked four years as a vocational instructor for a company that employed mentally retarded adults. He told friends he was involved with a Swiss industrial counterespionage company called Blackstone.

FBI spokesman Bart Gori said Stant was "a paramilitary sort of guy who is familiar with weapons."

In the nearby rural Canby area, sheriff's deputies arrested a woman identified as Stant's grandmother after a reporter for KGW-TV complained of shots fired at her crew.

Meanwhile, state law enforcement officials in Michigan and Oregon have accused the FBI of releasing information publicly too quickly, a law enforcement official told The Associated Press. Another law enforcement source said the FBI was even asked to back off by Multnomah County officials.

TRIAL: Mrs. Bobbitt testifies 'I don't remember that' her dresses were ugly. "I wanted to be pretty for him," she said.

(From 1A)

Mrs. Bobbitt said she was awakened around 3 a.m. June 23 when her husband returned home with a friend from a night of drinking.

She said she went back to sleep, but woke up with Bobbitt on top of her, forcing her to have sex. Mrs. Bobbitt, sobbing and wringing her hands, testified that her husband grabbed her wrists and pushed off her underwear with his foot as he pressed his shoulder into her face.

"I said, 'I don't want to have sex.' He wouldn't listen to me," Mrs. Bobbitt testified haltingly.

"I was just crying, crying loud, but I couldn't breathe. I just couldn't breathe," she said. "It was hurting me. He hurt me."

The sex was so rough, she said, that she felt "like my vagina was ripping open."

She paused and slumped forward, clutching the cross on her necklace. Regaining her composure, she testified that her husband pushed her away afterward and said he didn't care about her feelings. She demanded of him, she said, " 'Why do you do this to me again and again and again?' "

Mrs. Bobbitt said she tried to calm herself, going into the kitchen for a glass of water. It was there she saw the knife in the dim light cast by the open refrigerator.

She said her next memory was of screaming as she looked down and saw the organ in her hand as she drove away.

"I was driving. I couldn't make a turn. My hands were busy and I saw it and I screamed and I just threw it out," she said.

The severed penis landed in the grass near the road, where it was found and reattached surgically later that day.

Bobbitt, 26, has denied ever striking his wife and claimed she often lashed out at him. He claims his wife cut him because she was jealous and angry that Bobbitt planned to leave the marriage. Both Bobbitts have filed for divorce.

Ms. O'Brien challenged Mrs. Bobbitt's memory, noting she had told police "I pulled back the sheets and then I did it. . . . cut him" as he slept. Mrs. Bobbitt insisted that was simply what she had assumed happened.

The prosecutor also suggested that Mrs. Bobbitt once told a friend she would cut off her husband's penis if he ever had an affair. Mrs. Bobbitt denied saying it.

About the abortion, Mrs. Bobbitt said, she was thrilled when she found out she was pregnant in the spring of 1990. But she said her husband got agitated and threatened to leave her if she didn't end the pregnancy.

She said he then made fun of her at the abortion clinic. "I was very nervous. He was laughing about me and I was crying."

Testimony concluded Friday with Dr. Susan Fiester, a psychiatrist who decided Mrs. Bobbitt fit the definition of a battered woman after 13 hours of interviews over four separate sessions.

"Lorena started to believe a lot of the things John was telling her," she said.

About 300 demonstrators stood outside the courthouse Friday shouting "Lorena" in support for Mrs. Bobbitt. In Ecuador, about 100 supporters of Mrs. Bobbitt demonstrated outside the U.S. Consulate in the port city of Guayaquil.

OPEN: Restitution center to re-admit residents

(From 1A)

cility up to standards before refunding would be considered.

Even after those problems had been rectified, the Austin-based CJAD denied funding.

Midland's three district judges, John Hyde, George "Jody" Gilles, and Rucker, appealed to the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, which governs the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

The nine-member state board last November unanimously voted to refund the restitution center.

But it wasn't until this week that Dimitria Pope — CJAD executive director — lifted the center's moratorium on admitting residents to the center.

"I am very excited for the opportunity to prove to CJAD that we can run a first-class restitution center," Rucker said.

The staff of CJAD — which monitors probation departments statewide — is "satisfied that we have made all of the necessary corrections."

The Midland Community Restitution Center offers the three district judges an alternative to sentencing defendants to prison.

Since the refunding was authorized in November, the Midland district courts have "sentenced a number of felony defendants to the center," said Charles K. Johnson, assistant director of the Midland Community Supervision and Correction Department.

"However, the defendants have either been retained in jail, placed under house arrest under electronic monitoring, or transferred to other centers," he said.

Now that the moratorium is lifted, those defendants may be admitted to the Midland center.

Jay Webster, acting director of the center, said his staff is "enthusiastic and eager" to take on the residents and to rekindle the rehabilitation program, which includes jobs, education and learning responsibility, self-restraint and discipline.

Linda K. Smith, director of the Midland Community Supervision and Corrections Department, is a former restitution center director. She played a major role in correcting the defects at the center and helping it conform to CJAD standards.

"We've made a commitment to the judges and to CJAD that the center will be operating its programs according to standards required by CJAD," Ms. Smith said Friday night.

"We appreciate the opportunity to implement those action plans that were developed over the past few months."

Earlier, Hyde said, " . . . All of us in the courthouse believe that the restitution center is vital to the criminal-justice system of this county as well as surrounding counties.

"It, in my opinion, offers an alternative that the penitentiary cannot offer," Hyde said. "Very few people are rehabilitated through the prison system. But the restitution center offers an alternative to prison for youthful, nonviolent offenders. It is that promise of rehabilitation that has some merit."

Gilles said that the restitution center offers judges "an alternative . . . We are hoping to alter their lifestyle or their habits."

MEET: Combest speaks at town-hall event

(From 1A)

"One of the things we've continuously seen in the nine years I've been in Washington is a lot of 'feel good' issues — people vote on something and they can say they voted on spending reduction. But nothing's enacted. I'm tired of playing this game. We need . . . a workable program that . . . can be enacted."

Other issues Combest dealt with are:

■ He said the federal government shouldn't have the role of providing health insurance. He would like to look into medical IRAs and competition to help families pay for health care. While he thinks other health-care reform plans are viable, Combest said Hillary Rodham Clinton's proposal "will be the vehicle by which reform will be discussed." He doesn't believe the plan will be passed as presented and it will be 1995 before the issue is fully considered.

■ He believes the time has come for Congress to discuss term limits, and that "Congress has brought this on itself by passing laws it doesn't have to live under, like family leave, OSHA, minimum wages and fair-hiring standards. He thinks the constitutionality of term limits will be tested in the courts before Congress considers it.

■ He supports "sunset" reviews of laws to determine if they're still needed and said government needs to be more open. He praised new rules that allow discharge petitions to be made public. These are petitions signed by half the House to force a bill out of committee and onto the floor for consideration. Combest predicted that under this new rule, a balanced-budget amendment that has been held up in committee for several years will be considered this year.

Hubble sends first post-repair pictures, astronomers see white dwarfs

By John Noble Wilford
N.Y. Times News Service

ARLINGTON, Va. — Astronomers Friday announced the first discovery made by the Hubble Space Telescope since its vision was restored with corrective optics.

It was no surprise, but it was something never before detected by the Hubble or from the ground, and it further confirmed the orbiting telescope's improved ability for cosmic exploration.

In one of the first post-repair pictures by the faint-object camera, astronomers identified a large population of aging stars, known as white dwarfs, in a dense field of other stars, a conglomeration known as a globular cluster.

White dwarfs are dim, and in globular clusters they have previously been obscured by the light of their brighter neighbors.

The discovery should enable astronomers to understand more clearly the physical processes of stellar aging that occur in white dwarfs, which are natural end points for much stellar evolution.

The new picture, taken on Tuesday, was shown to scientists at the meeting of the American Astronomical Society here a day after the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the repairs on the telescope, made last month by astronauts on the shuttle Endeavour, were a complete success.

The pictures and scientific reports by the Hubble research team were greeted by enthusiastic applause from more than 1,000 astronomers at the conference.

In tests over the last few weeks, astronomers determined first that the replacement wide-field planetary camera had fully compensated for the Hubble telescope's flawed primary mirror.

More recent tests have now established that a set of corrective mirrors installed in the telescope have almost completely restored the focusing for the faint-object camera and two spectrographs.

Referring to the corrective optics for the faint-object camera, Dr. James Crocker, an astronomer at the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore, said, "We now know we have the prescription exactly right."

Appeals court denies challenge to Pennsylvania abortion law

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An appeals court refused to hear a challenge to Pennsylvania's strict abortion law Friday, making it likely the law will take effect in as little as 21 days.

In May, a federal judge stayed the law, saying abortion rights advocates deserved a chance to prove it posed an "undue burden" to women seeking abortions. The state appealed that decision to the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which issued its ruling Friday.

In 1992, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Pennsylvania Abortion Control Act, which requires women to receive counseling about alternatives to abortion and then wait 24 hours before undergoing the procedure.

The law also requires unmarried females under 18 years old to get their parents' permission before obtaining an abortion. The high court struck down a provision requiring women to notify their husbands.

In their opinion, the justices created a new standard of "undue burden" to determine the constitutionality of state abortion laws.

A three-judge panel of the appeals court disagreed with U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Huyett III's order to hold hearings on whether the law posed such a burden to women seeking abortions. The panel said the law had to go into effect before a woman could claim undue burden.

"This new challenge cannot be brought before implementation," the panel said.

In three weeks, the appeals court will formally send a mandate to Huyett ordering him to lift the injunction that had prevented the law from taking effect.

Kathryn Kolbert, an attorney for the Philadelphia abortion clinic that challenged the law, said her client hasn't decided yet whether to appeal.

"This is most definitely a substantive loss," said Joan Coombs, executive director of the clinic, Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania.

Anti-abortion advocates were pleased.

"That's fantastic," said Denise Neary, executive director of the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation. "We're obviously delighted this law is finally going into effect. It's a very reasonable law that's good for women and good for children."

Police question man in death of letter carrier

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — A gunman shot a letter carrier to death as she made her daily rounds Friday, first in the head at close range with a "long weapon" then with up to six shots from a pistol, an eyewitness said. A suspect was in custody.

The suspect is a former postal worker who was fired for threatening the woman, a letter carrier who spoke on condition of anonymity told The Associated Press. Authorities would not confirm that.

Detectives were questioning a man about the shooting but no charges had been filed, police Chief William Byrne said.

The victim was not immediately identified.

Bob Hilton, a news anchor Cedar Rapids television station KGAN, said he was driving through the area on his way to work when he saw a man and a woman struggling in the street.

"She was screaming for her life," Hilton said. "He was standing over her in a threatening way. He was holding some kind of a long weapon. He pointed it right at her head and shot. And then he shot her a second time."

Hilton said the man ran away but returned quickly with a pistol and shot her several more times.

"He unloaded it. It must have been four, five, six shots. He grabbed her collar and drug her from the street over to the curb," Hilton said.

Cedar Rapids is a community of 108,000 people located about 120 miles east of Des Moines.

A series of 10 incidents over the last decade have resulted in the deaths of 34 postal workers.

Offers for defense fund in second trial swamp Menendez attorney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A day after Erik Menendez's murder trial ended in a hung jury, his lawyer said Friday she was swamped with offers to start a defense fund for his second trial.

In interviews on national television Thursday, defense attorney Leslie Abramson said a defense fund would be needed for the second trial because the family fortune was exhausted.

She said Friday the defense will need another $1 million for such costs as witness travel, experts' fees and attorneys and she would ask to be Erik's court-appointed attorney because his money is gone.

Abramson also said she was receptive to "a reasonable plea bargain," which she defined as "some sort of manslaughter."

But District Attorney Gil Garcetti appeared to rule out that possibility Friday as he reiterated plans to retry Erik for murder.

"I'm obviously disappointed that we're going to have to retry it again, but given the alternative I'd much prefer retrying this case, because it is a murder case in our opinion," he said.

Within hours of the attorneys' comments, Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg issued a gag order prohibiting further public comment on the case by all attorneys.

The jury for Erik's older brother, Lyle, continued deliberating for a 22nd day Friday.

Erik, 23, and Lyle, 26, are charged with murder in the Aug. 20, 1989, shotgun slayings of their wealthy parents in their Beverly Hills mansion.

Prosecutors said the defendants were spoiled rich kids who acted out of hatred and greed for the family fortune.

However, the executor of the estate testified at trial that the fortune was never as large as the $14 million it was once thought to be and has been depleted.

U.S. finally allows Vietnamese pilot who saved American GIs into country

By Dara Tom
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Nearly 25 years ago, South Vietnamese helicopter pilot Maj. An Quy Nguyen risked his life to rescue four American soldiers from a sniper-filled Laotian jungle.

Despite his wartime heroism, which included another mission that cost him both arms, Nguyen was refused admission to the United States under a refugee program for Southeast Asians who fought alongside Americans.

The program requires that the refugee spent at least one year at an enemy labor camp. Nguyen spent only nine weeks; his Viet Cong captors threw him out because, without arms, he was considered "useless."

But now, thanks to lobbying by U.S. senators and military friends, the 51-year-old veteran is finally heading to California to start a new life.

He and his daughter, Ngoc Kim Quy Nguyen, left Ho Chi Minh City on Monday in an Air Force jet, listed as "distinguished foreign nationals." They were scheduled to arrive today at Travis Air Force Base, and plan to live in San Jose.

"It's like a long-lost brother coming home," said Capt. John Liner, one of the four rescued soliders.

On Jan. 17, 1969, U.S. forces had just dropped troops near the Ho Chi Minh trail and were taking off when 37 mm bullets punctured the gas and hydraulic lines of Liner's helicopter.

Taking his own helicopter into a power dive, Nguyen guided the crippled U.S. chopper away from a clearing filled with spikes to an emergency landing on a safer patch of 15-foot-high grass.

"We were started into one clearing and he cut across our nose, like on a collision course, and made us peel off," said retired Col. Robert Stratiff, the helicopter's pilot.

After landing, the American crew hacked through the grass toward the rumbling sound of Nguyen's helicopter rotors.

Davidian attorney suggests 'friendly fire' killed ATF agents

By Chip Brown
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — Agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms may have been killed by "friendly fire" during a deadly raid with religious followers of David Koresh, a defense attorney said Friday.

Prosecutors say four ATF agents were killed early last year by heavily armed Branch Davidians obsessed with fulfilling a prophecy of Koresh that Armageddon would come in a violent clash with the government.

Morning testimony in the federal murder trial of 11 Koresh disciples focused on 39 bullet shells from high-powered rifles recovered by the FBI and Texas Rangers at two residences used by the ATF while staking out Koresh.

The residences, dubbed by attorneys as the "undercover houses," were located behind the area where two cattle trailers unloaded 100 ATF agents seeking to arrest Koresh on weapons charges last Feb. 28.

Texas Ranger Ronny Griffith, who helped collect the bullet shells from the undercover houses, testified under cross-examination that the rounds had been fired by ATF agents during the raid. Griffith also said that agents in the houses received gunfire.

Four ATF agents were killed and 16 others were injured in a 45-minute gun battle that broke out as the agents closed in on Koresh. Six Branch Davidians also are believed to have died in that exchange.

When attorney Dan Cogdell, who represents Clive Doyle, was asked outside the courtroom whether the bullet shells found at the undercover houses raise the possibility that ATF agents may have been killed in their own crossfire, he said: "I think a fact-finder could conclude that."

He suggested defense attorneys would put on evidence to back up his claim later in the trial but declined to elaborate due to a gag order imposed by the judge in the case.

"The conclusions in the Justice Department reports that the agents were not killed by friendly fire are glib at best," Cogdell added. "They are not that strong."

James Cadigan, an FBI weapons expert from Washington, told jurors 46 of more than 200 weapons he identified Friday were fully automatic. He said dozens of high-powered military-style semiautomatic rifles, such as the AR-15 and AK-47, had been converted to fully automatic weapons. Prosecutors contend the modified firearms are illegal.

"I have not seen that many firearms and that quantity of ammunition outside of a firearms assembly plant," Cadigan said.

When asked under cross-examination if he could determine with certainty that any automatic weapons were used during the Feb. 28 raid, Cadigan responded, "I can't say that they were used, but they were there."

Cadigan said 20 of 61 AK-47 rifles recovered from the ashy remains of Koresh's city-block-sized compound had been made fully automatic.

While all 11 defendants are charged with murder of federal officers, Paul Fatta faces additional charges of conspiracy to unlawfully manufacture and possess machine guns and unlawful possession of machine guns.

Fatta's attorney, Mike DeGeurin, contends his client collected firearms as an investment for the Branch Davidian sect. Cadigan acknowledged most of the weapons possessed by the sect could be purchased legally at gun shows.

Defense attorneys also grilled Texas Rangers investigators about a missing front door to the compound. One of the two, white front doors where Koresh was believed to have stood seconds before gunfire rang out Feb. 28 was introduced into evidence by prosecutors Friday.

El Paso ISD considers placing armed officer in every high school

EL PASO (AP) — An armed peace officer with full arrest powers would be stationed at every high school campus in the city's largest district under a proposal to expand one of the state's few school police forces.

The shift to community-based policing would allow each officer to have a closer relationship with the student population he protects as well as improve his ability to recognize trouble spots and repeat offenders, said officials with the El Paso Independent School District.

"Our schools are safe. We just want to make them safer," district spokeswoman Kari Hutchison said Friday.

A preliminary proposal for the expansion was presented Thursday to the district's board of trustees, which asked the administration to fine tune it and present it again next month.

The district's interim police chief, John Jara, said the new plan would allow him to add eight officers to his 12-member force and enable the department to patrol each school individually, instead of having to spread units all over the city.

This "monitoring would be to our advantage in that we would know what is happening in the realm of that high school," said Jara.

The El Paso ISD is one of about 49 districts in the state to have its own full-fledged police force, with officers certified to arrest offenders and carry guns like any municipal officer.

Most are located in large urban centers, but they have been slowly increasing across the state, said Jeff Ward, a member of the executive board of the Texas Association of School District Police.

"I think this is something that we're just going to see explode in the future," Ward said.

He said having a certified officer on campus is better than relying on a regular security guard because officers have more training, are better prepared to handle confrontations and are more in tune with the community.

Man kills ex-girlfriend, himself in San Antonio, police say

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man shot and killed his ex-girlfriend and wounded two other people before taking his own life, police said.

Joseph Ray, 29, stormed the southeast San Antonio apartment his former girlfriend shared with relatives about 9 p.m. Thursday. San Antonio police Detective Larry DeHaven said Ray evidently was upset about the breakup with his ex-girlfriend.

Ray was pronounced dead at the scene from an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound, authorities said.

Eulalia Martinez, 33, was dead on arrival at Brooke Army Medical Center, police said. She was identified as the former girlfriend.

Glenn Thomas, 33, was in critical condition Friday at Wilford Hall Medical Center, where he was being treated for a gunshot wound to the abdomen.

Rachel Martinez, 35, was in serious condition Friday at Brooke Army Medical Center with a gunshot wound to the arm. Rachel Martinez is Eulalia Martinez's sister.

Police reported that there were four children, ages 12 to 14, in the apartment at the time of the shootings. None was injured.

Temperatures plunge across Midwest

Associated Press

It was so cold they called off a celebration of winter in Milwaukee, and icicles dangled from eyebrows.

Across the Midwest, temperatures plunged well below zero on Friday, in many areas to their lowest levels in a decade.

A howling wind dropped the wind chill in Devils Lake, N.D., to 68 degrees below zero. Even without the wind, the mercury registered a bone-numbing minus 36 overnight at Tower, Minn.

Highway patrols warned motorists to make sure their cars were equipped with extra warm clothes and blankets in case they got stalled away from help.

Soup kitchens and shelters opened early to keep the destitute from having to wait outside in the cold.

While the severe temperatures could be life threatening, some people who work outdoors shrugged off the discomfort.

"Oh, it's bearable," said Bob Voight, a Wausau, Wis., utility meter reader with icicles dangling from his eyebrows.

Maybe so, but forecasters said it would get even colder Saturday and that another arctic blast was expected early next week. A low pressure trough was expected to spread across the Great Lakes into the Ohio Valley and the Northeast.

In Orchard Park, N.Y., site of Saturday's National Football League playoff game between the Los Angeles Raiders and Buffalo Bills, officials planned to have medical teams in the stadium to treat fans for frostbite.

For northern Indiana there was the added problem of snow. Frigid winds whistling southward down Lake Michigan picked up huge amounts of moisture capable of producing a foot of snow, forecasters said.

In Warren, Ohio, about 50 miles southeast of Cleveland, several inches of snow piled up on city streets after 20 municipal snowplow drivers parked their trucks and went on strike. The strike was settled about eight hours later.

Elsewhere, several deaths were attributed to the cold.

Four people were killed in a fire in a Chicago apartment where the gas had been turned off. Fire officials said it appears electric space heaters may have caused the blaze.

In another apartment where both the gas and electricity were turned off, neighbors found the body of a 79-year-old man who police said may have frozen to death.

Chicago officials activated special cold weather plans to help keep the poor and homeless warm.

Human Services Commissioner Daniel Alvarez Sr. said some of the city's homeless refuse to use any of the 4,700 emergency shelter beds. A group of mentally ill people hangs out near City Hall and refuses help, he said.

"We know them by name and check on them every night," Alvarez said. "We're making them tired of looking at our faces."

Officials announced Friday that households throughout Massachusetts would be eligible for increased federal fuel assistance payments, while officials in North Dakota, where heavy snow has paralyzed some areas, urged residents to stock up on food and medical supplies.

"There's a chance that people may not get to their normal services on a daily basis if this keeps up," said Doug Friez, North Dakota's emergency management director.

The cold forced several school districts to close in Wisconsin, including the 100,000-student Milwaukee system.

Milwaukee officials also decided that wind chills from 30 below to 50 below made it a little outrageous to celebrate the season, so they suspended the city Winterfest for two days.

The South did not go unscathed, either, as snow fell, schools closed and motorists skidded across Kentucky. Some of those school districts have been out since before Christmas, when the first of four snows hit the state.

Bitter cold apparently won't deter some hikers in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park this weekend in Tennessee.

"It's a holiday weekend so it's going to be busy," park spokeswoman Nancy Gray said, referring to Martin Luther King Day on Monday.

She said 48 shelters and sites along the Appalachian Trail that require reservations were booked. Hikers who called the park got a warning about the weather, but most said they still planned on spending the weekend in the park.

"They come ready; they're prepared," she said. "It didn't discourage them."

Big top mourns clown, elephant trainer

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Ceslee Conkling traded a computer terminal for cotton-candy hair and a greasepaint smile. Ted Svertesky was a kid off the street who loved elephants and ran away to join the circus.

Both performers who followed their dreams to "The Greatest Show on Earth" were killed in the derailment of a Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus train Thursday that injured 14 others.

"Life slapped us in the face," ringmaster Jim Ragona said Friday. "We're trying to get it together. We're talking to each other and dealing with our feelings."

Ringling officials canceled three performances in Orlando through Saturday evening to give crews time to check the safety of equipment aboard the 53-car train. Sixteen passenger cars jumped the tracks at a rail crossing as the circus moved from St. Petersburg to Orlando in central Florida.

Federal investigators at the scene Friday said a wheel on one of the passenger cars broke into three pieces about 2½ miles before the derailment. "The major focus of this investigation will be why the wheel fell apart," said National Transportation Safety Board member James Hall.

"Shock would be the best word to describe the circus people right now," said the Rev. Jerry Hogan, a priest who counseled the performers Friday.

"They are dealing with the aspect of grief — two people killed. But many of these people have been displaced from their homes. ... We're a city without a zip code."

Conkling, 28, of Fort Worth, Texas, joined that traveling city two years ago when she gave up her job as a municipal data entry clerk and left for the Ringling Clown College in Venice, on Florida's Gulf Coast.

With her signature bright white makeup, pink hair and wide greasepaint smile, the former high school athlete made the daring falls that brought the biggest laughs.

This year, she moved her act up a notch, performing falls while stilt-walking.

"We always worried that she would hurt herself in one of her falls," Bonnie Conkling said after learning of her daughter's death. "She told us many times, 'If I go, don't worry. I'll go happy.' "

"Just making people laugh was what was important to her. She wanted people to see her smile.

"We don't worry about her now," her mother said. "She'd tell everybody to keep smiling and follow your dream."

At 13, Svertesky ran away to join the circus. His parents dragged him home the next day. But it didn't dissuade him. Four years later, he went back to the circus and spent the rest of his life training elephants.

"It's kind of a way of life more than a job," Svertesky, a 39-year-old trainer from Bridgeport, Conn., said in an interview last week before taking his first road trip with the circus.

Svertesky had managed the circus' elephant farm in Williston northwest of Orlando since it opened in 1985 and oversaw the breeding of Romeo and Juliette, two yearling Asian elephants who are the headliners of the circus' 124th edition.

"It was his dream," said Betty Svertesky, an aunt. "When he was a boy he built a model of a circus. It was all he talked about."

Circus owner Kenneth Feld said Friday he planned to meet with the performers and hold a brief memorial service. Performances in Orlando resume Saturday night.

"We have a common goal," Feld said. "The great thing is that people get strength from each other."

Added ringmaster Ragona: "The best thing that would happen to this group of people is to put on a show. They need it."

POLICE REPORTS

Escape

After escaping from a Milan County jail, Ronnie Ray Dedrick was arrested in Midland late Friday.

Dedrick was being held on Midland warrants for delivery of cocaine and misdemeanor evading arrest, according to a police report.

By switching identification bracelets with a prisoner who was being released, Dedrick managed to escape, according to the report.

Midland detectives were alerted to the possibility of Dedrick returning, and a vehicle he was suspected of driving was spotted Friday at the intersection of Parker Avenue and Big Spring Street.

Police officers began searching for the car and received a tip that Dedrick was in a house at 1400 N. Colorado St. After getting permission from the building's owner, police searched the dwelling and found Dedrick hiding in a closet, according to the report.

He was arrested without incident and is being held without bond on a previous charge of aggravated assault, officials said. Milan County officials are expected to file felony escape charges.

Police search for armed man who robbed Fabric Warehouse

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Midland police are looking for a knife-wielding man who threatened employees at The Fabric Warehouse before escaping with an undisclosed amount of money from the store's cash register.

Shortly after 1 p.m. Friday, the man reportedly entered the store at 15 Meta Drive and "milled around" for 10 to 15 minutes, according to the store's owner.

Because of the man's strange movements and appearance, three of the store's clerks asked the man if he needed assistance, but he said, "I'm waiting for my wife," the store's owner said.

After waiting until most customers were out of the store, the man approached the cashier and brandished a knife of unknown type or size and demanded money. The store employee complied with the man's demands. The man then ran out of the store, escaping to the south on foot, according to police reports.

The suspect is described as a white male in his late 30s, between 6 feet and 6 feet 2 inches tall and with a slender build.

At the time of the robbery, he was reportedly wearing a brown stocking cap, blue jeans and either a dark shirt or dark coat. The suspect's clothes were described as very dirty, with the dirt appearing "ground in" according to witnesses at the scene.

It is yet unknown if this robbery is related to recent Odessa robberies, according to police investigators.

Witnesses in the store spent much of Friday afternoon at the Midland Police Department working with forensic artists to produce a composite sketch of the suspect.

Dallas woman seeks disclosure of radiation tests done on father

By Linda Leavell
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas woman whose father was injected with plutonium as part of secret government experiments during the 1940s hopes she can persuade the government to release his records.

Elmerine Whitfield's father, Elmer Allen of Italy, Texas, was one of 18 people who received the radioactive injection under a 1947 Manhattan Project experiment at San Francisco's University of California Hospital.

Appearing Friday with U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, who has been helping Allen's family obtain information about the experiments, Mrs. Whitfield said she will plead with the Energy and Power Subcommittee Tuesday to release his medical records.

"What we request at this time is full and total disclosure on what was done to my father in 1947, what was done with his limb . . . and any follow-up studies that occurred," said Mrs. Whitfield, a teacher at Edison Middle Learning Center.

For Allen, it all began Sept. 3, 1946, when a train jolted, knocking the porter sideways and injuring his knee.

The knee never healed, and Allen was referred to the San Francisco hospital. Doctors noted on Allen's records that he had agreed to be injected on July 18, 1947, with a radioactive trace element. Three days later, the leg was amputated.

Mrs. Whitfield's family contends that Allen never approved the injection and then later was lured for additional studies on false pretenses. In 1973, he was asked to participate in follow-up examinations for his bone sarcoma — and that was the first time he'd heard that he had been diagnosed with cancer.

Mrs. Whitfield said she intends to tell the subcommittee that her family is offended that the government played on her father's ignorance. Allen, who had an eighth-grade education, never knew he had been used for a government experiment. He died at age 80 on June 30, 1991, of respiratory failure caused by pneumonia.

"What I hope to tell them is how put upon my family feels. And how my father felt all his life. He was aware that something had happened to him. He did not know exactly what it was. . . . He always complained of being ill in some way," Mrs. Whitfield said.

"Can you imagine an African-American man telling folks that he had been in one of the best teaching hospitals in the nation and someone had given him something that was a mistake and that caused his leg to be amputated?"

She added that she understood the importance of the data that was revealed from the experiments, particularly with regard to chemotherapy, but still believes her father should have been told.

State approves emergency funds to build prisons

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials Friday passed an emergency resolution to spend $168.7 million to construct prisons within the next six months to house an additional 15,000 inmates.

But a county representative said that wasn't enough to relieve dangerous conditions caused by the backlog of nearly 30,000 convicted felons in county jails.

The action by the Texas Board of Criminal Justice "is similar to mailing a garden hose to someone who has reported a house fire," said James Allison, general counsel of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas.

He said the backlog of state inmates in county jails has increased 60 percent in the last year and resulted in 28 jails exceeding 150 percent of their capacity.

Five violent disturbances have occurred in county jails in the past several months, Allison said. "The critical need for emergency relief continues," he said.

Allison asked the Criminal Justice Board to approve a plan that would allow counties to finance and construct facilities for 16,000 more prison beds, in addition to the 15,000 approved by the board.

Under the county proposal, the lockups would be funded by certificates of obligation that would be repaid from state bonds.

Several board members said they did not like the proposal.

"I'm real skittish about the situation of having counties throw up speculative jails," said Allan Polunsky of San Antonio. "The left hand is not going to know what the right hand is doing."

Board Chairman Carol Vance of Houston said the state was trying to help the counties. About 28,000 prison beds will be added to the system this year. By September 1995, the current 68,000-bed system will increase to 143,000 beds, he said.

"This will give Texas the largest prison system in the world," Vance told Allison.

Hutchison attorneys, prosecutors swap accusations of impropriety over publicity

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorneys for U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and prosecutors Friday traded accusations of improprieties related to publicity surrounding her ethics charges.

In a letter to Judge John F. Onion Jr., Travis County First Assistant District Attorney Steve McCleery said Mrs. Hutchison's side has made unprofessional comments to the media about the case.

"The defendant . . . through her attorneys and various agents including her press spokesman, David Beckwith, continues to initiate contact with the press, making frequent comments of an inflammatory nature," McCleery said.

He asked Onion, who will preside over Mrs. Hutchison's trial, to issue a warning "to refrain from initiating contact with the media during the pendency of this case."

Mrs. Hutchison's lead attorney, Dick DeGuerin, responded with a letter calling McCleery's proposal a "gag order."

DeGuerin said Mrs. Hutchison has the right to address campaign issues. Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, has claimed that the charges against her are an attempt by Democrats to derail her political career.

"Any attempt by the District Attorney to interfere with her First Amendment rights or the constitutional political process should be summarily dismissed," DeGuerin said.

Mrs. Hutchison has been indicted on charges that she used state funds, state employees and state computers for personal and political purposes while she was Texas treasurer and had records altered as part of a cover-up.

She won a June 5 special election for Senate and is seeking re-election to a full, six-year term.

MHS takes district lead

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's Veronica Poage (32) and Odessa High's Donnell Jones wrestle for control of the ball as Lady Bulldogs Michel Ann Thompson (54) and Elaine Rogers, right, look on.

■ The Lady Bulldogs outscore Odessa High 9-1 in the final three minutes to win the battle of the District 4-5A unbeatens.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

Odessa High coach Harry Masch did what he said he was going to do to the Midland High game plan. And it worked.

It just didn't work in the fourth quarter when the Lady Bulldogs found a way to counter Masch's plan and went on to win 49-41 in District 4-5A girls basketball action Friday night at Chaparral Center.

The run-and-gun Lady Bulldogs and the halfcourt-oriented Lady Bronchos met in a classic battle of unbeatens and the game never lacked in excitement as there were five ties and six lead changes in the second half. And the crowd of 1,800 Midland and Odessa fans, probably the largest crowd for a Midland High girls game this season, definitely got their money's worth.

But Midland overcame Odessa's stifling zone defense and took the lead for good with 3:22 left in the game when point guard Karie Cornelius hit from 10 feet for two of her six points in the final period. That boosted the Lady Bulldogs to a 42-40 lead that they never relinquished.

Midland improved to 22-3 overall and 6-0 in district play in breaking the Lady Bronchos' 15-game winning streak and dropping them to 22-4 and 5-1. Ironically, the last time the Lady Bronchos lost was when the Lady Bulldogs took a 60-43 win in the Concho River Classic December 3.

What Masch did was find a way to stifle Midland's deadly fullcourt press, which has now caused a total of 97 turnovers in the last three games.

Friday night, Odessa's defense kept Midland from scoring in the halfcourt offense and so the Lady Bulldogs could never set up their press after a made basket.

In fact the only time Midland was able to utilize its powerful weapon was the in the first quarter when it forced three straight Odessa turnovers on the press and the Lady Bulldogs scored seven points in about 30 seconds to give them a 7-3 lead — a margin they held throughout the first half.

It all comes down to the fact that Masch thinks a strictly transition game

Bulldogs blast Bronchos, 92-60

■ Odessa High puts up little resistence as Midland shoots 59 percent from the field for the game.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland High might as well have been wearing ice skates in a 92-60 win over winless Odessa High in District 4-5A basketball action at Chaparral Center Friday night.

It was a quick, easy and painless slide to a 3-1 4-5A record for the Bulldogs while OHS fell to 0-5 in what may have been a sun setting performance by the Bronchos, who may be out of the race before the first half even ends.

The Bulldogs shot a whopping 59 percent from the field as team leaders Donald Carter and Jumon Hailey each led all scorers with identical 22s.

"This team can shoot. There is no question about that," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson of his Bulldogs. "The kids are playing very well right now. Some people were laughing when I said this team was the best 2-5 team in the state when we got off to a poor start, but they are playing better every time out.

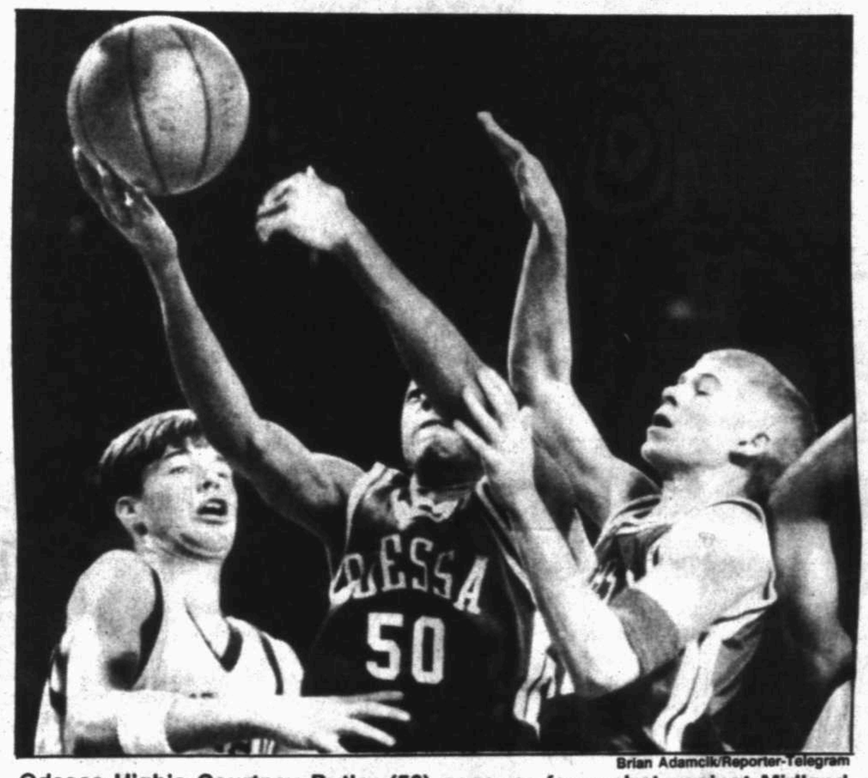

"I think the key for us came in our tournament in Dallas when we played 18-0 The Colony and we should have won the game. It's been uphill since then."

Carter scored 16 second half points. Ryan Bradberry scored 14 points, all in the first half. And Jason Kopp just missed a double-double with 14 points and nine rebounds.

MHS led in every category of the game, winning the rebound battle by a narrow 34-32 margin.

The Bulldogs also hit nine of 16 three-point shots. Bradberry hit four of five treys in the first half and Hailey hit

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The California Angels avoided their only potential arbitration case Friday when reliever Joe Grahe agreed to a one-year contract worth $925,000, more than four times his 1993 earnings.

Grahe, 4-1 last season with 11 saves and a 2.86 ERA, can earn an additional $110,000 in performance bonuses. He earned $230,000 last season.

Grahe, 26, appeared in 45 games last year, all in relief. In 1992, he was 5-8 with a team-leading 21 saves and a 3.52 ERA. He has a career record of 15-18 with 32 saves.

The incident occurred with 2:01 remaining in Thursday night's game at Auburn Hills, Mich., which the Knicks won 94-80. Blackman will sit out today's game against the Pistons at Madison Square Garden.

Black coaches four corners boycott idea

■ The Justice Department offers to mediate dispute between the Black Coaches Association and the NCAA.

By Matt Yancy
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Black basketball coaches agreed Friday to postpone a threatened boycott of college basketball games this weekend after the Justice Department offered to mediate their dispute with the NCAA.

However, the NCAA indicated it has no interest in allowing government lawyers into the dispute, even those with no enforcement or investigative powers.

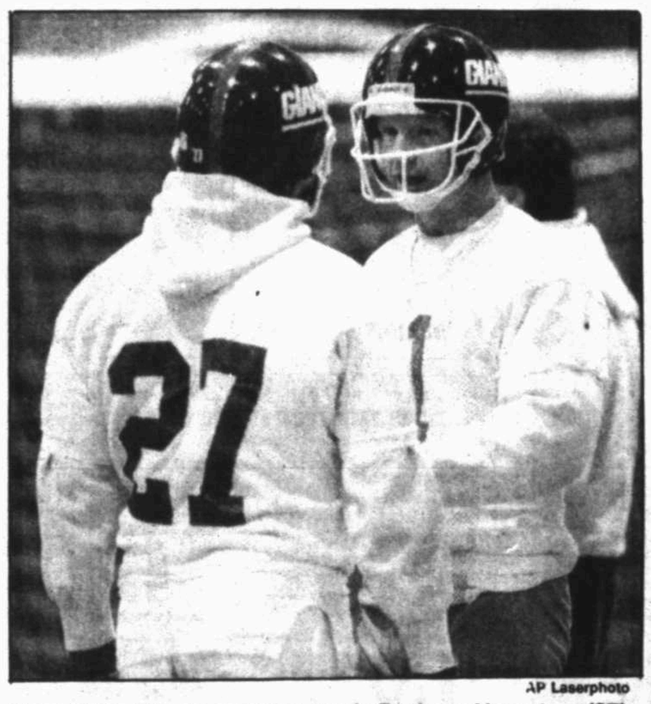

"If the (House) Energy and Commerce Committee and the Ways and Means Committee are willing to let the Justice Department mediate health care reform, we'll think about using their services on these issues," Francis Canavan, an NCAA spokesman, said.

Canavan said later he had not intended to suggest that continued dialogue called for by the coaches and the caucus "is not the way to go."

"We have to keep talking, and that's very positive," said Canavan, who worked 10 years for the Ways and Means Committee before going into athletic administration. "My comment was to suggest that an arm of the justice department might not be a good fit for the parties involved to reach consensus on these issues."

In any case, a boycott and other threatened job actions, such as

Giants begin ground assault on 49ers'D'

By Dennis Georgatos
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Running could be the key for the New York Giants AND the San Francisco 49ers in their NFC playoff game today.

Much has been made about the matchup between the 49ers' young, inexperienced defensive front and a Giants offense ranked first in the league in rushing. Rodney Hampton showcased New York's methodical style by running for 161 yards and two touchdowns in last week's 17-10 playoff victory over Minnesota.

■ TV: Giants at 49ers, 3 p.m., CBS. Radio: KCRS (AM 550).

For all of that, the 49ers, with the No. 1 overall offense in the league, were not far behind the Giants in rushing. They finished with the third-best rushing attack even though halfback Ricky Watters wound up 50 yards short of a second straight 1,000-yard season because a right knee strain kept him out of three of the last four games.

"They're going to run the ball on us, run it right down our throat," San Francisco guard Ralph Tamm said. "We're sick of (hearing) it. Who says we can't do that to them?"

They might have to try, because the Giants' defense, which allowed the fewest points in the NFL this season, is designed to prevent the big play.

Bills hope to ice down Raiders

By Barry Wilner
AP Football Writer

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Please excuse the Los Angeles Raiders if they are impatient. They have all this speed, you see, and they're anxious to use it.

Whether they get the chance today at Rich Stadium could be the deciding factor in their playoff game against the Buffalo Bills.

"People always say cold weather is tough on speed," said Tim Brown, the Raiders' leading receiver this season with 80 catches for 1,180 yards, a 14.8 average, and seven touchdowns. "If it slows us down, it's going to slow them down. You may put on an extra T-shirt, you may put on a pair of tights, it's still football. As long as the field is not icy, we're going to be fine.

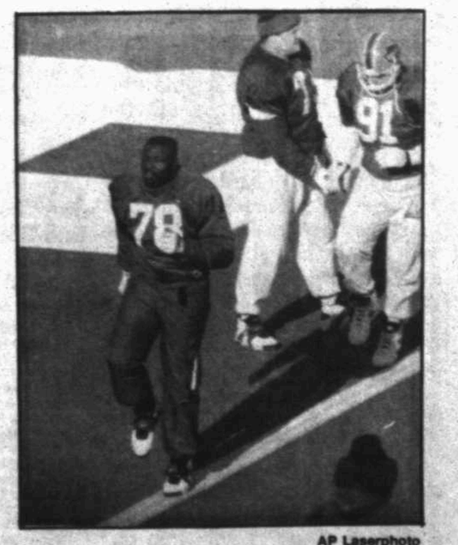

"As far as we're concerned, the cold weather doesn't do anything. The wind could be a concern. We're going to go deep, that's always been a Raider trademark. We feel no one can stop us if we play the kind of football we can play."

■ TV: Raiders vs. Bills, 11:30 a.m., NBC.

Denver couldn't stop them the past two weeks, especially in last week's playoff game, a 42-24 Raiders victory in which James Jett averaged 37 yards per catch and scored twice, while Brown had a 28.7 average.

Jett, an Olympic gold medalist in the 400-meter relay at Barcelona, is the fastest of the receiving corps that also includes Alexander Wright — winner of the NFL's Fastest Man competition — Rocket Ismail and Willie Gault, a member of the 1980 U.S. Olympic track team. Brown admits to being slower than each of them, but he's still a burner.

Sean Low hits 36 in overtime win

ODESSA — It took until the late hours Friday for the Midland Lee Rebels to pull out a District 4-5A basketball victory, but it finally came against Odessa Permian just after 11 p.m. in overtime, 73-70.

The game started over one hour late due to the fact that officials failed to show up for the 6:15 p.m. start of the preceeding girls game.

But Sean Low must be used to staying up late because he had a season and career high 35 points to aid the victory. Caesar Brannon added 15 points. Lee outscored Permian 9-6 in the overtime period.

The victory keeps Lee in sole possession of second place in the 4-5A chase at 4-1, one-half game ahead of Midland High.

Sheldon Bass had 26 points for the Panthers, who fell to 1-3 in the league chase.

Free throws cost Lee girls

ODESSA — Free throws proved to be the difference as the Midland Lee girls fell to Odessa Permian 66-52 here Friday.

Lee drops to 0-6 in District 4-5A games and 7-13 overall while Permian improves to 2-4 in league play and 11-12 overall.

The game was delayed by 90 minutes because officials were not aware of the unusual starting time of 6:15 p.m. The cities of Midland and Odessa have played boy-girl double headers in this year's matchups instead of the usual separate sites for the games.

Lee was balanced offensively with Krissy Woodard, Deborah York and Susan Seay scoring 12 points apiece. However, free throws cost the Lady Rebels the game as they only shot 19 times from the charity stripe to Permian's 34 attempts.

Lee pulled within two points at the end of the third quarter but could never get any closer. Permian's 6-foot-3 post Angie Braziel cut through Lee's zone defense for 24 points to lead the Lady Panthers.

In the junior varsity play Permian defeated Lee 67-51. Sam Sailler and Jamie Welch scored 12 points each to lead Lee. Colleen McCarty added 10 points.

GIRLS: Cornelius steps up for MHS

(From 1B)

will not get his team very far if Odessa makes the playoffs.

"I'm not content to just get into the playoffs," Masch said. "I want to win in the playoffs and you can't win without a halfcourt defensive and offensive game."

With the exception of their three non-district losses, the Lady Bulldogs have been winning all year long with a transition game. But with very little fastbreak action and without starter Julie Chancellor for eight minutes in the second half after she picked up her fourth foul, Midland had to find a new way to win.

Cornelius and leading scorer Amy Alcala were the clutch players down the stretch. Cornelius, a 5-foot-6 point guard who averages just three points a game, hit six of her season-high 12 points in the fourth quarter and two of those buckets were in the Lady Bulldogs 9-1 run in which they broke away from Odessa for the win.

"She did a great job tonight," Midland coach Jim Raughton said. "Everybody says Karie is too small and too slow to play. But she comes out every night and plays hard. She made some big shots for us tonight."

Cornelius also grabbed a phenominal nine rebounds despite being one of the shortest players on the court.

"(Odessa) kind of overloaded to one side a lot and that left one girl on the other side and I was able to block her out," Cornelius said. "I just wanted to step it up a lot since everyone wasn't shooting the ball very well."

Alcala also hit six in the fourth, including 4-of-4 from the free throw line and a clutch steal which she converted to a layup with 6:35 left to break a 34-all tie. Chancellor also hit two clutch free throws in the 9-1 run.

Raughton said the Odessa game plan stymied his team for most of the game.

"I'm going to have to go back and rethink this thing," Raughton said. "I did a poor job of preparing the girls. We never got into the offensive flow and we're very fortunate to get out of here with a win.

"Their defense looked good and they didn't have to adjust," Raughton continued. "We didn't make them adjust."

The Midland junior varsity also kept its unbeaten district record intact with a 35-33 win over Odessa. Laura Childress, Kendra Kendrick and Ogonna Merritt each had eight points for the Lady Bulldogs while Dana Gouard had 12 for Odessa.

three in the game. Luke Mattorano and Tannis Perkins each hit a three off the bench.

And this was a bench game as Stephenson played all 14 players and 10 scored. Sean Sipko led the reserves in the fourth quarter with four points, one basket coming on a nice drive to the basket through traffic.

OHS had its problems at the free throw line, hitting only four of 19 charity tosses. And the Bronchos couldn't pick up the slack from the field, hitting only 28 of 66 shots for 42 percent, which isn't bad, but not good enough to keep up with the 59 percent by MHS.

Odessa's Freddy Vasquez scored 10 of his 16 points in the first half and Kenny Lowe had eight of his 12 in the second half, but no other Bronchos finished in double figures.

The victory keeps Midland High in the thick of the playoff race with a road game against San Angelo coming up Tuesday.

"We're excited about the chance of being 5-1 after the first half," Stephenson said.

MHS is now 14-8 on the season after that 2-5 start. Odessa High drops below the .500 mark for the first time this season at 10-11.

Mookie leads Hawks past defenseless Mavericks

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins and former Midland College standout Mookie Blaylock each scored eight points in a 21-4 third-quarter run that put Atlanta in control as the Hawks won their seventh in a row, 113-96 over the Dallas Mavericks on Friday night.

■ NBA Roundup

The Hawks were leading 56-52 when Blaylock began the six-minute burst with a 3-pointer with 8:52 left in the quarter. Wilkins ended it on a dunk with 2:57 to play, giving the Hawks a 77-56 lead.

Kevin Willis, who had the other five points in the decisive run, led the Hawks with 26 points. Wilkins and Stacey Augmon each scored 19 and Blaylock added 15 points and 13 assists.

Tim Legler led the Mavs with 21 points, 16 in the final quarter when both teams used their reserves extensively. Sean Rooks had 18 for Dallas, all in the first three quarters, as the Mavs lost their eighth in a row.

Timberwolves 96, Magic 92

MINNEAPOLIS — Chuck Person made a 15-footer with 52 seconds to play and Shaquille O'Neal capped a tough night by missing two inside shots down the stretch as Minnesota defeated Orlando.

Isaiah Rider had 19 points and Person 17 off the bench for the Timberwolves, who are 4-2 in 1994 after ending 1993 with a seven-game losing streak. Minnesota had lost six straight to Orlando since last beating the Magic on Jan. 9, 1991.

O'Neal scored 25 points and had nine rebounds but missed half of his 22 shots and sat out almost the entire third quarter with foul trouble.

O'Neal scored 16 points and Jeff Turner 13 on 6-for-6 outside shooting as the Magic took a 35-27 first-quarter lead.

Person scored eight points in the second as the Timberwolves went up 59-51 at halftime. Orlando went from 64 percent shooting in the first quarter to 32 percent in the second, when O'Neal managed only two points.

Minnesota went up 65-54 early in the third but Orlando — with O'Neal on the bench — finished the period with a 24-10 run for a 78-75 lead. Skiles had 11 points in the quarter.

Nets 103, Nuggets 96

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Armon Gilliam, subbing for the injured Derrick Coleman, scored 24 points and grabbed 11 rebounds as New Jersey beat Denver.

Kevin Edwards added 20 points, including seven straight in a fourth period surge that gave the Nets the victory. The Nets led 90-88 with 6:27 to play before Edwards made a jumper, a three-point play and another jumper to give New Jersey a 97-88 lead with 5:15 remaining.

LaPhonso Ellis went after Benjamin and was called for a technical foul. Kenny Anderson hit the subsequent free throw, giving New Jersey a 98-88 lead. The Nuggets, who have lost 14 of 19 on the road, were never able to get back in the game after that.

Anderson finished with 21 points and 10 assists for the Nets while Morris also scored 21.

Ellis, Reggie Williams and Mutombo each tallied 15 for the Nuggets while Mutombo grabbed a game-high 20 rebounds.

Bulls 107, Jazz 91

CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen scored 23 points and Steve Kerr a season-high 20 as Chicago pulled away in the second half to beat Utah, the Bulls' 12th straight home victory.

Horace Grant added 18 points and 14 rebounds as the Bulls got their 14th victory in 17 games overall. Karl Malone led the Jazz with 26 points and Jeff Malone had 21, but only five in the second half.

John Stockton scored 12 points and had 16 assists for Utah, which has lost four of five.

The Bulls trailed by five at the half but used runs at the beginning and end of the third quarter to take a seven-point lead, outscoring the Jazz 33-21 in the period.

Clippers 102, Celtics 95

BOSTON — Boston set a team record with their seventh straight home loss, falling to the Los Angeles Clippers on Danny Manning's 34 points.

The Celtics broke the club mark of six in a row set in 1948-49. Overall, Boston has lost 13 of its last 15 games.

Harold Ellis scored a career-high 29 points as the Clippers stopped a seven-game losing streak. Six of those defeats were on the road.

Robert Parish led the Celtics with 21 points and became only the 12th player in NBA history to score 22,000 career points. He now has 22,004.

Ron Harper had 19 points and 10 rebounds for the Clippers. Sherman Douglas scored 20 points, Xavier McDaniel had 17 and Dino Radja had 16 points and 14 rebounds for the Celtics.

Warriors 121 SuperSonics 100

OAKLAND, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell scored 25 points and the Golden State Warriors led the entire way in beating Seattle.

It was the second straight loss for Seattle, which still has the league's best record at 26-5.

Sprewell cemented the win with an uncontested 3-pointer after stealing the rebound of a missed free throw by Chris Mullin, who got only the second triple-double of his career. The 3-pointer made it 106-90 with 5:02 to go.

Mullin, making only his fifth start of the season after returning from a hand injury, had 18 points.

With Seattle down 84-74 after three quarters, Ricky Pierce scored 10 of his 18 points to open the final period, but the SuperSonics got no closer than nine points down the stretch as they dropped consecutive games for the first time this season.

BOYCOTT: Coaches delay walkout

coaches walking off the floor and leaving their teams to assistants, won't occur this weekend.

"We have agreed to delay the boycott, and I emphasize the word delay," Drake coach Rudy Washington, executive director of the Black Coaches Association, said after meeting for an hour with key lawmakers.

Rep. Kweisi Mfume, chairman of the 40-member Congressional Black Caucus, said he had phoned the White House shortly after noon Friday and asked the Clinton administration to provide an independent third party to "arbitrate the differences that currently exist."

Within two hours, Mfume, D-Md., said he received a call from the Justice Department offering its Community Relations Service to mediate the dispute over reduced scholarships in Division I men's basketball programs and high academic entrance requirements for scholarship athletes.

"Apparently, they already had started looking into it," Mfume said of the Justice agency, which was set up under civil rights laws in the 1960s to mediate disputes involving matters of race, color and national origin.

'We have agreed to delay the boycott, and I emphasize the word delay,'

— Drake coach Rudy Washington
executive director, Black Coaches Association

Myron Martin, a spokesman for the department, said the Community Relations Service, which has no enforcement authority, had already offered itself as a mediator but had not heard back yet from either the black coaches or the NCAA.

Washington cited "interest from the White House" as a reason for putting off the boycott but he, Mfume and Georgetown coach John Thompson said they weren't willing to delay forever. However, they also said they had no timetable.

The White House said it had no role in the dispute other than fielding Mfume's call. And officials said Rep. Cardis Collins, D-Ill., had earlier made the request to the Justice Department on her own to offer their services.

Collins, who chairs both the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee that claims oversight of the NCAA and the Black Caucus' task force on intercollegiate athletics, had earlier asked the black coaches to delay the boycott.

"I want to strongly urge you and your members to postpone making a decision of such critical importance ... in hopes of avoiding the disruption of the season," she said in a letter to Washington earlier this week.

With support from some members of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, the black coaches began formulating plans for a boycott or other activities to disrupt this weekend's games after the NCAA on Monday rejected a proposal to return a 14th scholarship to men's Division I programs.

"The 14th scholarships is not the issue," Washington said Friday. "It's just the straw that broke the camel's back. We've had 11 years of constant reductions."

Minnesota coach Clem Haskins said the real issue was over proposed new standards that would require athletes with lower scores on the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT) or American College Test (ACT) to have a 2.5 grade point average in core subjects instead of the 2.0 average now required.

During its convention at San Antonio earlier this week, the NCAA agreed to again study the freshman eligibility standards, which are to take effect in August 1995.

Cedrick Dempsey, the NCAA's executive director, said neither he nor NCAA president Joseph Crowley had heard from the Justice Department on its offer to be a mediator. Dempsey called the postponement of the boycott a sound decision.

"We all benefit by examining the issues of access, fairness and academic integrity," he said. "As Congressman Mfume points out, the issues are much more complex and important than a 14th grant in Division I men's basketball."

Mfume said he would also like the Justice Department to mediate disputes between the black coaches and the NCAA on the number of contacts coaches can have with potential recruits in inner-city neighborhoods.

Sabo signs deal with Baltimore

■ Baseball Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Sabo decided to sign with the Baltimore Orioles instead of the New York Mets on Friday, and Greg Hibbard agreed to a $6.75 million, three-year contract with the Seattle Mariners.

Eighty-nine players filed for salary arbitration on Friday, the last day to file. It was the fewest since 80 filed in 1984. Four arbitration-eligible players agreed to new contracts.

Sabo, a three-time All-Star and the 1988 National League Rookie of the Year, was let go by the Cincinnati Reds as a cost-cutting move. He made $3.1 million last season, when he hit .259 with 21 homers and 82 RBIs.

He spurned an offer from the Mets that could have been worth up to $7 million over two years, according to his agent, Jim Bronner. Instead, he accepted a $2 million, one-year deal that would get him $400,000 more if he plays in 150 games or has 525 plate appearances. He also can become a free agent again after the 1994 World Series.

Hibbard, a 29-year-old left-hander, was a career-best 15-11 with a 3.96 ERA for the Cubs last season but became a free agent last month when Chicago cut him loose to save money. Hibbard, who made $1,425,000 in 1993, gets a $750,000 signing bonus, $1 million in 1994, $2.4 million in 1995 and $2.6 million in 1996.

The four players eligible for arbitration who settled were California pitcher Joe Grahe, Cleveland infielder Alvaro Espinoza, New York Mets pitcher Pete Smith and San Francisco shortstop Mike Benjamin.

Smith, obtained from Atlanta on Nov. 24 for outfielder Dave Gallagher, was 4-8 with a 4.37 ERA last season and made $1,025,000. He gets a $75,000 raise to $1.1 million.

Grahe, 4-1 last season with 11 saves and a 2.86 ERA, got a four-fold increase to $925,000 from $230,000.

Benjamin, who hit .199 in 63 games for the Giants last year, got a $525,000, two-year deal that calls for $225,000 this season and $300,000 in 1995. He made $142,500 last season.

Among the players filing for arbitration were Baltimore outfielder Mike Devereaux, Chicago White Sox pitcher Jack McDowell, Atlanta outfielder Ron Gant. Players and clubs will exchange figures on Tuesday. Hearings will be scheduled for Feb. 1-18.

Red Wings' Coffey too strong for Stars in 9-3 win

DETROIT (AP) — Defenseman Paul Coffey had four assists, including the milestone 900th of his career, and Sergei Fedorov and Vyacheslav Kozlov had two goals and two assists each to lead the Detroit Red Wings to a 9-3 rout of the Dallas Stars on Friday night.

Coffey, who played with Edmonton, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles before coming to Detroit, became just the sixth player in NHL history and the first defenseman to reach the 900-assist level.

The Red Wings are now 12-2-2 in their last 16 games, and 9-1-1 in their last 11 at home.

The teams alternated goals through the first period, before Detroit took control in the second.

Dino Ciccarelli opened the scoring with his 18th at 7:44, but Paul Cavallini tied the game at 9:42 with his seventh. The tie lasted just 16 seconds, as Nicklas Lidstrom picked up a loose puck and beat Andy Moog with a wrist shot for his seventh.

Brent Gilchrist retied the game at 11:15, one-timing Shane Churla's pass past Chris Osgood for his 10th goal.

The next seven goals all belonged to the Red Wings.

Aussie shares early lead at Hawaiian Open

■ Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (AP) — Brett Ogle overpowered the long holes and gained a share of the lead Friday, halfway through the second round of the Hawaiian Open.

The Australian played the par-5 holes in 5-under. In the first two rounds, he was under par on each of the four long holes.

"That's where my game thrives, on the par-5's," said Ogle, who seemed to be in a mood for rhymes.

"Clickity click, sixty six," he said after a second consecutive 6-under-par effort at the Waialae Country Club course.

He capped that score with an eagle-3 on his 18th hole of the day and tied first-round leader Robin Freeman for the lead at 132.

Freeman, who opened the tournament with a 63, slipped to a 69 Friday.

They are seeking the winner's share of a $1.2 million purse in the event sponsored by United Airlines.

With half the field of 144 still out, Morris Hatalsky and Tom Lehman were the only other early finishers within five shots of Ogle and Freeman.

Hatalsky, who had to return to the tour's qualifying school last year to regain his playing rights, had a second round 66 and was at 133.

Lehman had a 135 total after a 67.

The winds, unusually calm, actually caused a problem for Freeman.

"It's always windy here," he said. "With no wind, I really didn't know how to play the course.

"I was kind of guessing off the tees. I got a little tentative with the driver and that's not something that you want to do."

The long-hitting Ogle was anything but tentative.

He blew his drives over the doglegs on the par-4 14th and 16th, giving him wedges to the green, and reached three of the four par-5's in two.

"I've played eight par-5's, birdied seven and eagled one and have been putting for eagle on six of them," Ogle said.

He saved the best until last.

Ogle was two strokes off the lead playing the par-5 ninth hole, his 18th of the day, and ripped a 3-iron second shot to about 7 feet before using an overly long, 56-inch putter for the eagle that gave him a share of the lead.

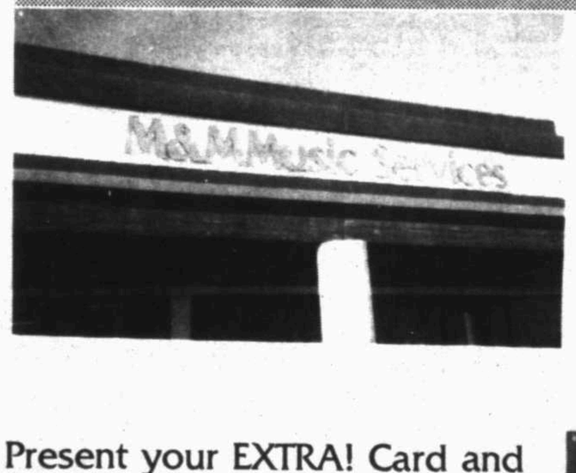

It was a second consecutive 66 but not as good, Ogle said, as his opening effort.

"That could have been a 61 or 62," he said.

Chiefs hope to 'Cash' in on UT-ex in playoffs

By David Flores
Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — Kansas City Chiefs tight end Keith Cash was 12 years old when quarterback Joe Montana led the San Francisco 49ers to their first Super Bowl victory in 1982.

Two years later, Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders rushed for a then-Super Bowl record 191 yards in a 38-9 triumph over the Washington Redskins.

On Sunday, Cash will be in the same huddle with those two NFL stars when the Chiefs play the Houston Oilers in the AFC divisional playoffs at the Astrodome.

"It's really something playing with Joe and Marcus," said Cash, who starred at Holmes High School and the University of Texas, in a telephone interview. "It definitely is a big plus having two guys with so much playoff experience. They've been in Super Bowls and won them.

"With Joe, you just know he's going to play and do whatever it takes to win. Marcus leads by example. He goes out there every day and does his job and everybody follows him."

The Chiefs didn't have Montana on the field the last time they faced the Oilers. They also didn't have a healthy Cash, who has developed into a steady force for the Chiefs since recovering from a preseason shoulder injury.

Cash, completing his second season in Kansas City, splits time with starter Jonathan Hayes. Cash caught 24 passes, the same number as Hayes, for 242 yards and four touchdowns in 15 regular-season games.

With Montana nursing a sore right wrist and Cash limited to playing mostly on the special teams, the Oilers rolled to a 30-0 victory over the Chiefs on Sept. 12 at the Astrodome.

Four months later, the Chiefs are coming off a stirring 27-24 overtime victory over Pittsburgh in the AFC wild-card playoffs and looking forward to the rematch against Houston.

A victory over the Oilers would mark the first time since the 1969 season that Kansas City has won two playoff games. The Chiefs won their last Super Bowl that season.

"We're feeling confident," Cash, 24, told the San Antonio Express-News. "Everybody's a little tired but we'll be ready. The Oilers are playing well now, probably better than the first time, and they shut us out then. But we're a different team as well.

"We have Joe back. What we have to do is give him the time to do what he does best move the team down the field."

Cash had his best game as a pro against the Steelers, catching seven passes for 56 yards and blocking a punt that set up the tying touchdown in regulation. He also caught an 18-yard pass from Montana two plays before Nick Lowery kicked his game- winning 32-yard field goal.

Pittsburgh led 24-17 when Cash blocked the punt by Mark Royals. Kansas City wide receiver Fred Jones caught the ball in the air and returned it 31 yards to the 9 with 2:29 left.

"I was lined up on the left side, between the wing and the tackle," Cash said. "Albert Lewis was over the tackle and he always attracts a lot of attention because he's blocked so many punts (11 in his career). The tackle and guard took him. As soon as I saw that, I took off and had a clear path. I knew I was going to block it."

Montana hit Tim Barnett with a 7-yard TD pass on fourth and goal with 1:43 remaining and Lowery kicked the extra point to send the game into overtime.

Cash was named NFL special teams player of the week for the block.

The Oilers won 11 consecutive games after a 1-4 start to win the AFC Central Division title with a 12-4 mark and earn a bye in the first round of the NFL playoffs.

Kansas City committed five turnovers in the lopsided loss to the Oilers in the second week of the regular season. Pressured by Houston's swarming 46 defense, backup quarterback Dave Krieg was sacked four times, had two passes intercepted and lost two fumbled snaps.

"The Oilers have the toughest defense we've played all year," Cash said. "It's going to be a big challenge for us."

Houston had only 41 more yards of offense than the Chiefs, but the Oilers scored 17 points off the five turnovers.

"You can't turn the ball over against Houston," Cash said. "We have to play four quarters. We haven't put a complete game together yet and I don't think we've played that well on the road.

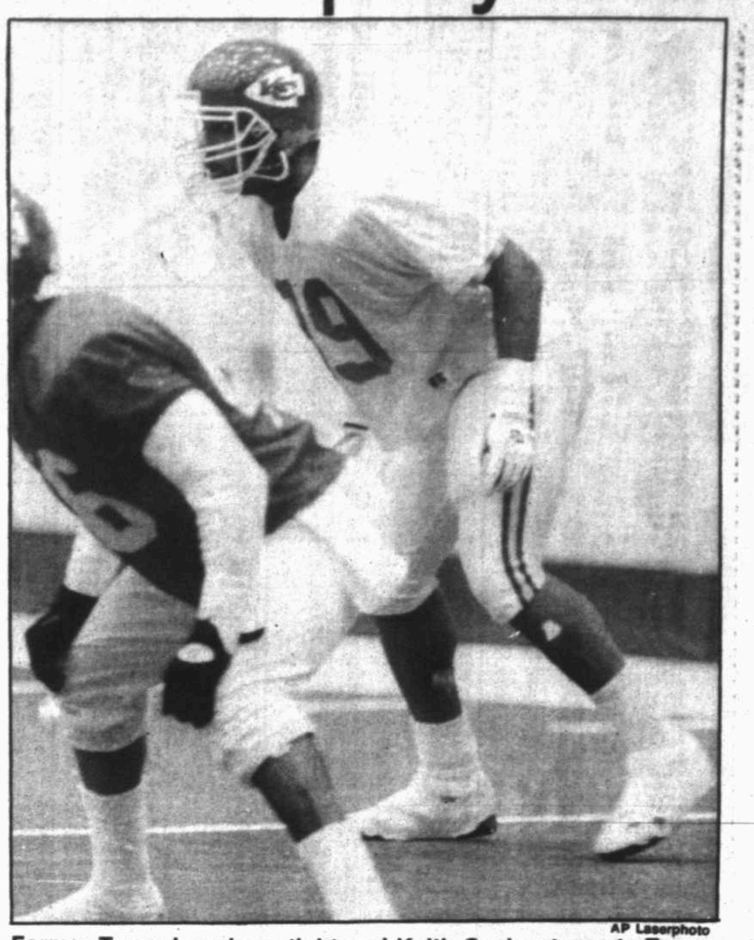

"You definitely have to prepare for this defense because it's something nobody else in the league runs. We just have to identify the defenses they throw at us and handle the pressure."

Kansas City gained 401 yards against Pittsburgh, 125 rushing and 276 passing, but allowed four sacks.

Cash, 6-foot-4, 245 pounds, will line up across outside linebacker Wilber Marshall most of the time. But, as Kansas City opponents have learned this season, first-year offensive coordinator Paul Hackett has utilized Cash in a variety of formations this season.

Hackett worked with Montana as the 49ers' offensive coordinator from 1983-85.

Cash joined the Chiefs as a free agent in 1992, catching 12 passes for 113 yards and two TDs in 15 games.

GIANTS: Running games to test defenses

From 1B

"We can run the ball and we might have to," San Francisco offensive line coach Bobb McKittrick said.

"I'm all for it," said 49ers quarterback Steve Young, the league's leading passer. "I don't want to throw the ball 15 times in a row. I think we can run if we have to. Ricky has had two weeks to get better. He says he's ready. He's great at full speed."

A successful running game could take some of the pressure off Young and open up passing lanes for wideouts Jerry Rice and John Taylor, both of whom will face double coverage in the Giants' standard two-deep zone alignment.

"They have always had an awesome offense, but we have been playing good defense all year," Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor said. "We don't give up a lot of points.

"We have a lot of young guys. You can't tell them that the 49ers are better than we are. These guys believe they can do anything that they want. They will back it up on Saturday."

Recent history supports Taylor.

The Giants' disciplined defensive approach, embraced by first-year coach Dan Reeves, also was in evidence when Bill Parcells coached the team. And it has worked in the past against San Francisco's offense, which has one touchdown in its last three postseason meetings against New York, all losses.

Rice, the biggest playmaker for San Francisco (10-6) this season, has not been a big factor against the Giants in the postseason, with 12 catches for 147 yards and no touchdowns in those three games.

Still, the Giants (12-5) would prefer to keep the ball away from San Francisco's offense as much as possible, and that's exactly what New York quarterback Phil Simms has in mind.

"Surely, we don't want to get into a scoring contest with the 49ers," he said.

There will be times, maybe more than expected, when Simms takes to the air but the Giants probably won't stray far from the running formula that has keyed their success. Besides, the 49ers have had problems stopping the run all season, giving up a league-worst average of 4.53 yards per carry.

San Francisco's 15th-ranked defense has been getting plenty of reminders about that, too.

"We have made a lot of mistakes in the past against the running game and it's not because we've been out-physicaled or a team was just better than us," 49ers safety Tim McDonald said. "It was just a lot of technique problems that we need to tighten up.

"We have to be smart ... We have to attack. If we can slow them down running the ball and get the ball to our offense, we will have a great chance of winning.

RAIDERS: Weather factors into game plan

From 1C

Had Brown ever seen a faster group of receivers?

"Oh, no, I don't think it's even possible to have a faster group, unless you have an Olympic team playing somewhere," he said. "I'd be an alternate on the sprint team. But on game day, I'll give anybody a run for their money."

All of them need to be roadrunners Saturday for the Raiders to upset the Bills. Ice-cold weather and brisk wind might negate that weapon if Jeff Hostetler can't get the ball to them.

"All the way across the board, we have an awesome amount of speed that people have to respect," Hostetler said. "We have a deep passing game at times and, at times, we throw underneath. If the weather (Saturday) is real bad, if it's windy, it's going to be tough to go deep."

The Bills, who are used to such conditions, know how to deal with it. The Raiders, who won at Rich Stadium 25-24 Dec. 5 in 37-degree temperatures, are not.

"Wind is more of a factor than cold," Bills offensive coordinator Tom Bresnahan said. "The amount of wind in your face going in a particular direction in a particular quarter is where you have to concern yourself with how much passing you do and what kind of passing you do."

Still, the Bills expect the Raiders to come out throwing, to at least attempt to establish their deep threats.

Is that scary if it works?

"You've got a world-class track team sitting on one side and the Sisters of the Poor and the Slow on the other side," Buffalo linebacker Darryl Talley said.

"They've got tremendous speed and they're football players to top it off. That makes them especially difficult. All of them at one time or another were punt returners. which tells you they can move in open space by themselves."

So the Bills must deny the open space, which could be difficult. They ranked only 24th in passing defense this season.

But they also led the NFL with 47 turnovers, 23 of them interceptions. They're still a big-play team, especially on defense, making for an intriguing matchup.

"They're professionals," Bills nose tackle Jeff Wright said of the Raiders. "They've done it before. Heck, they played at Green Bay (in December)."

The Raiders lost that game 28-0.

"Right," said Wright. "That's what I like."

Emmitt vows to play through pain

IRVING — Emmitt Smith won't take pain killers for his injured shoulder on Sunday in the Dallas Cowboys NFC divisional playoff game with the Green Bay Packers. If it hurts, it hurts.

"There might be some pain, but I'll live with it," Smith said. "I'm not going to let anybody deaden it."

Smith's slightly separated right shoulder is the big question mark for the defending Super Bowl champion Cowboys, who are two-touchdown favorites over the wildcard Packers.

"No matter how much it hurts, deep down in my heart I know I'll find a way to get the job done," said Smith, who gained 79 yards against the Giants after he was hurt.

Trainer Kevin O'Neill and equipment manager Buck Buchanan have worked late trying to figure out a way to protect the NFL's MVP. He injured his shoulder in the Cowboys 16-13 overtime victory against the New York Giants.

O'Neill has invented a plastic wrap molded to Smith's tender right shoulder. It will go on under the pads. On top of that, Buchanan will place a shock absorber that looks like a doughnut. That will provide about an inch of cushion between the pads and the plastic.

"Emmitt shouldn't look lopsided, although his right shoulder pad will be a little bit higher," said Buchanan.

"I think it's going to work pretty good," Smith said. "It's going to take some force. How much remains to be seen. The shoulder isn't 100 percent, but it's getting close."

As Smith goes, so go the Cowboys. That much was made clear when Smith missed the first two games of the season in a holdout. Dallas lost to Washington and Buffalo without him.

"I imagine the Packers will be coming after me and the shoulder," Smith said. "There will be 11 hit men out there. I just hope and pray the shoulder lasts. There's no way my shoulder can be as good as it was going into the Giants game. But it's healthy enough to play in a game."

Smith's ability as a receiver could be hampered. Smith caught 10 passes against the Giants, who were taking away the Cowboys outside receivers.

"I can get my hands a little higher in the air every day," Smith said. "I've been catching the ball pretty good in practice. It hasn't been that big of a problem. I've got to be able to block, too, and I'll get that job done the best I can."

Dallas defeated Green Bay 36-14 in the fourth game of the season as Smith started his first game of the year.

"It looks like the Packers have made a big improvement to me," Smith said. "They'll be playing the run tough. It wouldn't surprise me if they have eight guys on the line of scrimmage.

"The whole day is going to be 1985.

Fox to focus on product not Simpsons for NFL

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Fox Broadcasting Co.'s newly won NFC broadcasts will include expanded pregame shows, new technology and more promotion — but Homer Simpson won't be doing color commentary.

"We're not going to trivialize it," David Hill, president of the new Fox Sports, said Friday. "We're determined to hire the best people possible. ... We realize what we've got."

Fox will try to revitalize the NFC broadcasts, network executives said, contending they have lost a significant portion of the key male 18-34 audience. The 7-year-old network is known for its youth-oriented programming.

Fox stunned CBS last month with its winning $1.6 billion, four-year bid for the NFC games in a package that includes the 1997 Super Bowl. The deal sent Fox scrambling to establish a sports division and to hire Hill, who launched Britain's first sports channel.

Asked about planned changes, Hill said the pregame show would be expanded from a half-hour to an hour and would be a livelier program akin, he said, to a combined "NFL Today," "60 Minutes" and "Entertainment Tonight."

Fox will stick with a two-person broadcast team of a color announcer from the player ranks and a broadcaster, Hill said. He declined to comment on negotiations with any individuals, including CBS analyst John Madden.

"We're looking to strike a ratio of old graybeards like myself and hot young kids," Hill said of the future team.

The number of cameras will remain the same in the featured game, but more cameras will be in use during regional games, Hill said.

He said technicians were trying to improve the sound, although he offered no details. Promotion and advertising will be more aggressive, Hill added.

Fox chairman Lucie Salhaney the network was adding new affiliates and would reach 98 percent of TV households by the time the 1994 NFL season begins. In some markets, non-Fox affiliates would contract to air the games, she said.

Asked about CBS president Howard Stringer's remark that the network would have lost up to $800 million on the contract negotiated by Fox, Salhaney said there's more at stake than money.

"We're just 7 years old and this will really put us on the map" as a network, she said.

"All of our resources will go toward making the NFC a success on Fox."

She declined to discuss what Fox's economic losses might be, and Hill wouldn't talk about start-up costs for the sports division.

Kerrigan incident leaves tension entering Olympiad

By Larry Siddons
AP Sports Writer

Picture this: Nancy Kerrigan, her right knee healed and her psyche fully recovered from the attack at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships, checks into the Olympic Village next month and finds her next-door neighbor is ...

Tonya Harding!

The scene is unlikely, but it illustrates the tense situation, if the figure skating rivals and focal points in one of the most bizarre stories in sports both make it to the Winter Games.

The U.S. Figure Skating Association has nominated Harding and Kerrigan to its two spots in the Olympic women's skating event, with rosters to be finalized by Jan. 31.

Police have charged Harding's bodyguard and two other men with hiring a hitman to disable Kerrigan, who was struck on the right knee with a metal club after a practice at Detroit last week.

Harding, who won the competition as the sidelined Kerrigan watched from a skybox at Joe Louis Arena, has not been implicated in the crime, police said.

Asked at a news conference outside her Stoneham, Mass., home how she felt about being on the Olympic team with Harding, Kerrigan replied: "I have nothing to say to her."

The U.S. Olympic Committee said that, unless Harding was linked by police to the attack, she retained her right to be on the team. The U.S. Figure Skating Association said it would take no action unless dictated by facts, "including credible evidence from law enforcement officials" suggesting Harding's involvement in the case.

That means the two women, never known to be friends, would be placed in close quarters — not roommates, since the village for the skaters in the town of Hamar, Norway, has only single rooms — but certainly in the same neighborhood.

"You live by yourself in the village this time, and I'm sure our people won't put them in close proximity," said Kathy Casey, a figure skating coach based in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The security and relative privacy of the village could be a blessing for both athletes, a USOC official said.

"In the village, they will be able to participate fully. It's a protected environment," said Paul George, a committee vice president who will be in charge of U.S. athletes at Hamar. "Whether they will be able to walk down the Storgatta (the main shopping street) in Lillehammer, I don't know."

As for the two skaters living close to each other, George said: "I'm certain our team leaders will deal with that."

Just as certainly, Harding and Kerrigan would have to cross paths from time to time. Practice sessions and the team picture were two instances cited by officials. There's also the parade of nations at the opening ceremonies Feb. 12, although women's figures come late in the Winter Games and either skater could delay her arrival.

"Obviously, it's different than if it was just a stranger," Evy Scotvold, Kerrigan's coach, said.

In an interview with the Chicago Tribune, Scotvold was more blunt.

"Who could get any real sleep next door to someone whose associates had allegedly been trying to do you in?" he said. "It would be very disconcerting to Nancy, I think."

College seniors try to make lasting impression in East-West Shrine

■ Texas Tech senior Lloyd Hill will play for West Squad.

■ TV: East-West Shrine, 3 p.m., ESPN.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — For players like Florida's Errict Rhett, Idaho's Doug Nussmeier and Texas A&M's Aaron Glenn, who are expected to be first-round draft picks, Saturday's East-West Shrine game is a nice tuneup before the NFL combine begins.

For players like San Jose State quarterback Jeff Garcia, the game is make-or-break, their final shot at impressing the scouts. For every Shrine game player like Rhett, there's one like Garcia, a standout college player whose chances for an NFL career are slim.

Although he passed for 6,545 yards and 48 touchdowns and ran for 15 TDs, he's only 6-foot, 191 pounds. So this was a pressure-packed week leading up to an important game for Garcia.

"It's difficult not to get excited or not to feel nervous when there are pro scouts watching everything you do, writing things down and taking notes," Garcia said. "I don't feel the comfort level of some of these other players."

Garcia, who looks small behind the West team's huge offensive line, spent the week familiarizing himself with his receivers and hoping that when he made a mistake in practice, the scouts were not looking.

"On film, they may not think I have the strongest of arms," Garcia said. "Out here, they see I can put it on the numbers. Hopefully it will open some doors."

"Any time you don't have all the credentials size-wise, you have to do it as a performer," said John Ralston, Garcia's coach at San Jose State and a West team assistant. "This game is ideal for him."

West head coach LaVell Edwards of Brigham Young has enough confidence in Garcia to pencil him in for the second and fourth quarters, possibly putting the game's outcome in his hands. The West has won three of the last four Shrine games.

"I want to do something for myself and for my school to make us stand out a little," Garcia said. "To have these scouts around, it feels good to be acknowledged. Hopefully I can just open some of their eyes and of some other people out there to let them know that I can play football."

By participating in the game, Garcia is following in the footsteps of his grandfather, Kansas State running back Maurice Elder, who played in the 1937 Shrine game.

The game, which benefits Shriners hospitals for crippled and burned children, was the unfortunate victim of NFL scheduling this year. The San Francisco 49ers' playoff game against the New York Giants will began at the same time about 30 miles north.

Astros don new look for 1994 season

HOUSTON (AP) — The star remains, but the multicolored sleeves of the rainbow era are gone. Traditional baseball tailoring and blue and gold colors accent the new Houston Astros uniform to be unveiled next month.

And in Arlington, the Texas Rangers this spring will be ditching "Dodger Blue" in favor of "Ranger Red."

Of the two redesigns, the Astros new look appears to be the most radical change.

The uniforms are like nothing like the rainbow jerseys the Astros shocked baseball purists with in the mid-1970s. The look was toned down in 1988, but the multicolored sleeves remained through the 1993 season.

Caps will bear a blue background with a gold star open at the lower left. The familiar "H," dominating caps since the team changed its name from the Colt 45s to Astros in 1965, has been junked.

Home uniform jerseys will be white with six buttons. "Astros" in blue letters slanted to the right and an accent added to the "A" to simulate a sense of sideways motion. The gold star, elongated to the left, dominates the "o" in "Astros."

Road jerseys will be gray with six buttons. The word "Houston" will stand on the chest in blue letters in the same slanted style as on the home jersey. The gold star is in the second "o" in "Houston."

The Astros' new club seal is in the shape of the Astrodome, with the word "Houston" in white letters fitting into an open-sided star and the word "Astros" in gold underneath.

The redesign has been developed under tight security, but copies of the new caps have popped up around Houston in recent weeks. The new team logo even showed up on the Philadelphia Phillies' team calendar two weeks ago.

BUY THE BASINS ASKS:

Why shop at local stores?

Customer Mark Singh, left, with Christopher Neill, manager of Permian House of Music.

Here's Why...

Your local merchant adds value to the products you buy.

Local resident Mark Singh explains why he recently purchased an instrument from the Permain House of Music, a locally owned and operated retail music store, as opposed to buying from a large outside-the-Basin warehouse supplier.

Singh said, "Price is always a major consideration, but value is more important. The local retailer adds value to the product by providing his time and expertise to help me identify my needs and make my selection as well as possibly setting up the equipment and helping me to learn to use it. In addition, I am predisposed to buying locally because circulating the money here benefits the whole community."

Other considerations Singh lists are:

* The convenience of a place nearby where products can be viewed and obtained in a timely manner.
* The assurance of prompt, dependable service and support.

Christopher Neill, manager of Permian House of Music, explains that many times instruments require tuning and repair which is a service he provides to his customers.

He said, "Repair on all of our instruments is done locally. Unfortunately, when residents purchase instruments out of town and there is a problem, the instrument must be returned to that supplier and the 'downtime' can be several weeks. Not to mention extra shipping and handling charges which must usually be paid by the customer.

"I think when pricing anything you have to take into consideration all the factors in that price such as the value of the service after the sell. Many shoppers don't consider the hidden costs such as travel time and expense or the inconveniences with repair and return of merchandise purchased out of town."

The next time you're pricing merchandise, remember you can't beat the convenience, service and reliability of your local merchants. The value a local merchant adds to a product is priceless.

Buy the Basin encourages you to think of each dollar you spend as an investment. Shopping locally guarantees a return which ensures merchandise selection, employment opportunities, and continued support for public works and charitable projects.

'Philadelphia'

AIDS film opens locally amid quiet

Denzel Washington co-stars as personal injury lawyer Joe Miller.

Midland, known for being a hotbed of conservative politics in the middle of the Bible belt, will keep pace with the rest of the country when the North Park Mall Cinema opens "Philadelphia," Hollywood's first head-on dealing with gay-related AIDS.

"Philadelphia" co-stars Tom Hanks, as a lawyer fired from his firm after revealing he has contracted the AIDS virus through homosexual contact, and Denzel Washington, a homophobic attorney Hanks' character hires to defend him in a discrimination lawsuit against his firm.

Joyce Hollowell, assistant manager of the North Park Cinema, said there have been "a lot of people ask about it."

'AIDS is about a very uncomfortable subject, which is sex, and sex is a fact of life.'
— Cathryn Jackson, director, Permian Basin AIDS Coalition

Hollowell said posters promoting the film posted in North Park's lobby — which avoid mention of AIDS — have also drawn a variety of comments from people attending other movies at the theater.

"People are drawn to that one for some reason," Hollowell said. "I think the comments are more because Tom Hanks and Denzel Washington are in it."

The "Philadelphia" poster shows the two stars' pictures and includes the slogan, "No one would take on his case until one man was willing to take on the system."

Televised pomotional announcements of the movie reveal that the subject matter deals with AIDS.

Hanks breaks free from romantic-comedy roles

By Esquire
A Hearst Magazine

Tom Hanks, the king of romantic comedy, has dropped his usual good-natured grin in order to play the lead in Hollywood's first big-budget movie about AIDS and homosexuality in America.

In the new film, "Philadelphia," Jennet Conant wrote in an article in the current issue of Esquire, Hanks plays a successful lawyer who sues his firm after he is fired for being gay and having AIDS.

Hanks, anxious to break out of the romantic comedies he has been doing since "Splash" made him a star almost 10 years ago, eagerly pursued the role.

"I have spent voluminous amounts of time," he said, "discussing the philosophical aspects of where I am, what I want to do, the nature of being a power in the industry, being a commodity, having momentum, having cachet."

He said when he was in repertory theater in the late '70s, he played a variety of roles and reveled in it.

The actor figures he once was probably as much of a closet homophobe as the next guy and he cautions that it would be a mistake to make

NARAS doles out usual mish-mash

All right, let's try to make some sense out of the Grammy nominees:

■ Sting and Billy Joel combined for 10 nominations in the male pop vocal categories? Some good news.

Patterson

■ Whitney Houston leads female nominees with her "Bodyguard" soundtrack? I suppose, if we must.

■ Boy George really didn't fit into any category, so the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences put him into the pop male division. Think of the outrage if Boy (Is that what we call him? Boy?) had actually won had he been placed in the female category.

■ In the Duo or Rock Group with Vocal category, there are four sappy love songs — "A Whole New World," by Peabo Bryson and Regina Belle; "When I Fall in Love," by Celine Dion and Cive Griffin; "The Music of the Night," Barbra Streisand and Michael Crawford, and "Love Is," by Vanessa Williams and Brian McNight. The fifth nominee in this category? R.E.M.'s "Man on the Moon." Go figure.

■ "A Whole New World" is also up for Record of the Year and Song of the Year. Its competition in both of those categories is stiffer than in the Vocal Duo or Group category. Again, though, a strange nominee in the Record of the Year category: Neil Young's "Harvest Moon." By far the best song in the group, but it will never win. Give this one either to Aladdin's theme or Billy Joel's "River of Dreams."

■ Song of the Year could easily go to "Whole New World" as well, or it could go to "River of Dreams." But why in the world was the ridiculously overproduced, completely unnecessary, "I Would Do Anything for Love," by Meat Loaf, nominated?

■ Best Country Vocal Performance, Female: Either "Passionate Kisses," by Mary-Chapin Carpenter, or Emmylou Harris' "High Powered Love." It's hard to go wrong when you pick Emmylou to win anything.

■ Best Country Vocal Performance, Male: They'll give it to either Alan Jackson, for "Chattahoochee," or George Jones' for "I Don't Need your Rockin' Chair." They should give it to Dwight Yoakum for "Ain't that Lonely Yet," although Aaron Neville's "The Grand Tour" is a personal favorite and is just as deserving.

■ Nominees for The Biggest Joke of the Year (also known as Best Country Performance by a Duo or Group with Vocal): "Hard Workin' Man," by Brooks & Dunn; "Trashy Women," by Confederate Railroad; "In A Week or Two," by Diamond Rio; "God Blessed Texas," Little Texas; "All These Years," Sawyer Brown. REVIEW: Film reaches for mainstream America

(From 1C)

"Philadelphia" was made to reach out to mainstream middle-class audiences. This is a movie designed to work for those who have never known anyone who died of AIDS.

Director Demme's idea of a "mainstream" audience is inclusive, rather than exclusive, and so we find in "Philadelphia" more-or-less colorblind casting. For Demme and screenwriter Ron Nyswaner, a character's humanity carries more weight than ethnicity or sexual orientation.

Tom Hanks delivers a knockout performance as Andrew Beckett, a hotshot lawyer whose private life begins to collapse just as his professional momentum starts building. No sooner has he gained a promotion and a big case than the guy begins experiencing the first signs of AIDS. He is fired unceremoniously on a trumped-up charge, but he knows the true reason for his dismissal: his disease.

Intent on fighting back, Beckett consults a flashier, somewhat less dignified colleague (Denzel Washington) who recoils in prejudice at first but at length reasons that a discrimination case is a discrimination case and agrees to represent Beckett.

If the trial business begins prematurely, about a third of the way through, at least it is staged compellingly. Demme treats Washington as a focus of identification, reasoning that most people in the intended mass audience will share this character's lack of awareness of, if not his bigotry toward, homosexuality.

This attention is perhaps necessary, but it does lessen the concentration upon Beckett's home life. Too little is made of dealings between Beckett and his confrere (played by Antonio Banderas), except for an overplayed scene in which Hanks attempts to explain his appreciation of the finer things in life.

But in its avoidance of schmaltz, its vivid delineation of battle lines between ordinarily decent folks and powerful scoundrels, and its ultimate confrontation with harsher realities, "Philadelphia" registers powerfully.

HANKS: Actor lost 30 pounds too much out of the fact that he comes from Oakland, in the San Francisco Bay area.

"When I was growing up outside San Francisco, I was probably at my most naive," he said. "I was shocked, eventually, to find out that one of my high school teachers was gay."

From the beginning, the filmmakers and studio executives knew it would be hard to sell an AIDS movie to a country with large and sometimes boisterous pockets of homophobia. The movie's central focus now is the odd coupling of the gay client, Hanks, and his straight lawyer, played by Denzel Washington.

"I didn't want to scare off moviegoers, I wanted to pull them in," said director Jonathan Demme. He said he was open to any suggestion that would help broaden the appeal of the movie.

"In America, men are taught to be afraid of being sensitive or open to other males who are gay," he said. "It's hard for us to go to the box office with our girlfriends to see a movie about two men being affectionate."

The Denzel Washington character begins by asserting he doesn't know any homosexuals and wouldn't like them if he did — and he does not emerge a changed man.

"He's not going to be the grand marshal of any gay-pride parade," Washington said. "We didn't want a rah-rah, everything-is-wonderful ending because that ain't the way it is."

Hanks prepared for his role by losing 30 pounds, getting his hair thinned and reading a lot of gay literature. He pointed out that in many respects, his character, a young, urban professional, is much closer to his experience than that of, say, Jimmy Dugan, the failed, alcoholic, tobacco-spitting coach Hanks portrayed in "A League of Their Own."

"One of the things I talked about with Jonathan is that we were not dealing with people's understanding of AIDS from the first days," said. "My character has not been to three memorial services for friends of his who have died; he's been to 300. What happens is not a shock."

ladelphia," which runs about 60 minutes and features clips and interviews with the movie's stars.

Jackson said what she has seen and read of "Philadelphia" is very positive, but said the film would no doubt suffer from some sort of backlash.

"There will be some negative response," Jackson said. "It's just like any other prejudice. There was tension when 'Malcolm X' came out, and there was controversy over Martin Luther King. It just gets down to old-fashioned prejudice.

"AIDS is about a very uncomfortable subject, which is sex, and sex is a fact of life. A natural part of life. It should not be any more difficult for us to talk about sex than any other bodily function. And this disease should not be any more difficult to treat, but it is because of the stigma. We're not having the problem we used to have in the medical treatment because we're excelling in treatment, but we're still moving slowly with the fear."

Midland County reported 58 new AIDS cases and 31 deaths in 1993. Jackson said PBAC takes in 2-4 new clients every week and "loses 2-4 every two weeks."

While the Midland-Odessa area reported five AIDS-related deaths in a seven-day period to begin 1994, it is not uncommon for larger cities like Houston to report triple that number each day. Harris County reported 5,458 AIDS deaths in 1993, which averages out to 104 per week.

Unfortunately, Jackson said, she feels "Philadelphia" will not alter anyone's perceptions of the disease. The stigma, she says, will still persist long after the movie has found its way to the video stores.

"It won't help change the perception," she said. "In this area, it's not about AIDS education not being there, it's about people not wanting the education in this area. I hate to say that. I'm not attacking the area, it's just the truth. I wish it weren't. It hurts me to see the lack of compassion for these people who are suffering."

Although no such incidents have occurred of yet, Jackson said people should not have the right to try and prevent theaters from screening "Philadelphia."

"It's called Freedom of Speech, Freedom of the Press," she said. "I never felt like the government or any area should be able to boycott this movie. If people don't like it, don't go see it. Don't let your kids go see it. But do not speak out of turn if you have not seen the movie."

Show times for "Philadelphia" are 2 p.m., 4:45 p.m., 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

'L.A. Law' could be 'Homicide' victim

By John Engstrom
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Take a look at the NBC lineup Thursday night. You could be seeing next season's prime-time schedule for Thursdays, with "L.A. Law" noticeably absent.

The reason: Last week, in "Law's" usual time slot, there was a high-profile "Homicide" on NBC.

The reintroduction of the exceptional cop drama "Homicide: Life on the Street" earned huge viewer numbers for the network.

"L.A. Law," once the network's flagship drama, may not die from the resulting wounds. But it could suffer a forced change of address, moving to another night next season to make room for this high-quality interloper.

The episode of "Homicide," which is borrowing the "L.A. Law" hour while McKenzie, Brackman takes a monthlong rest, was seen in 28 percent of all homes watching TV, due in part to a guest appearance by Robin Williams.

That was NBC's highest figure for a 10 p.m. drama in more than two years.

"We led with Robin because we felt that's how we could get them into the tent," Warren Littlefield, president of NBC Entertainment, told a gathering of TV critics. "And we think it will ensure bringing them back."

The four-episode January run is all we'll see of "Homicide" this season, but Littlefield said the critically praised show likely will return in the fall as part of the regular 1994-95 schedule.

Both Littlefield and Don Ohlmeyer, NBC West Coast president, suggested "Homicide" will take "L.A. Law's" coveted Thursday time slot while the latter searches for a new home on the schedule.

"The 'Homicide' (ratings) numbers would be a substantial improvement and we certainly have other time slots where 'L.A. Law' could be of service," Ohlmeyer said, then hedged, "but the jury's still out on that."

Littlefield was less specific but spoke of "L.A. Law" as the weaker show, one that will come under close scrutiny.

PATTERSON: 'Romeo' nomination a bad joke recognition unless they shape up; "Trashy Women"? Get real. "God Blessed Texas," is just more uninspired country dance music. Sawyer Brown wins by default, although the academy will give it to the over-rated Brooks & Dunn.

(From 1C)

■ Nominee for the Next Biggest Joke of the Year (Best Country Vocal Collaboration): "Romeo," by Dolly Parton, Tanya Tucker, Billy Ray Cyrus, Kathy Mattea, Pam Tillis and Mary-Chapin Carpenter. What an embarrassment. Five decent female country singers who for some reason lowered their standards to crank out one of the most horrible, most forgettable "country" songs ever recorded.

■ It really doesn't look like much of anyone will run away with an armload of awards, with the only exception perhaps being "A Whole New World" ... Billy Joel's nominations are well deserved but far from a surprise. ... It's hard to imagine there being a better choice for winner of Contemporary Folk Album than "Other Voices-Other Rooms," by the sensational Nanci Griffith. ... The nominees for the Best New Artist: Belly, Blind Melon, Digable Planets, SWV. Are these musicians or body parts we're talking about here? Toni Braxton, the only nominee with a regular name, should win anyway. ... Neil Young's "Harvest Moon" is up for Song and Record of the Year. The entire album "Harvest Moon" would be a runaway deserving winner, had it been entered. ... And I don't understand why the academy chose not to recognize "The Music of the Night," Andrew Lloyd Webber's masterpiece from "Phantom of the Opera" until Barbra Streisand nearly destroyed it. ... One thing the Grammy's lack this year is a truly memorable song. One that will be remembered for ages, like last year's big winner, "Tears in Heaven," or Harry Chapin's "Cat's in the Cradle."

'Iron Will' hokey, but still irresistibly sweet, upbeat

By Patricia Bibby
Associated Press Writer

Say what you like about "Iron Will" — that it's corny and predictable — it's still an irresistibly sweet and upbeat adventure and if it doesn't make your heart pound a little faster, call a cardiologist.

This is a Disney film through and through: A story of a young man facing impossible odds, his loving mother, a few nefarious types, and the requisite adorable animals, in this case sled dogs. But despite the formula, the old Disney magic works.

The outcome is apparent from practically the first five minutes but that doesn't diminish the fun of watching it unfold. Set in 1917 and based on a true story, it's the tale of Will Stoneman (Mackenzie Astin), a teen-ager who sets out to win a cross-country sled dog race from Winnipeg, Canada to St. Paul, Minn.

With a $10,000 prize, Will has more than pride riding on the outcome of the race. He desperately needs the cash after his father dies in a sledding accident, leaving the fate of the family farm in jeopardy. Will also needs the money for college. The last straw is when his mother decides to sell off the beloved family sled dogs to make ends meet.

When Will's father somberly intones in the beginning, "Don't let fear stand in the way of your dreams, son," we know that this will become the young man's mantra throughout the race. And indeed it does.

So off to Winnipeg he goes with his trusty pack of huskies in tow, including the lead dog, the exquisitely adorable snow-white Gus. Part of Will's mission is to win over Gus and to get the dog to respect him like the pooch once behaved for his father. Only Disney could give its lead character an ongoing, meaningful relationship with a dog and make it work.

But before the race even begins there are obstacles. First, there's a registration glitch and Will almost doesn't get to enter. He's saved by enterprising newspaper reporter Harry Kingsley (Kevin Spacey), who decides to sponsor him. Kingsley, bitter, jaded and cynical, sniffs a good human-interest story for his American readership with the fresh-faced idealistic musher.

Then there are the race's other competitors, a towering lot of brawny men who make football players look anemic.

In fact, it seems everything eventually conspires against Will — the harsh bitter cold, the evil maneuvers of another competitor, his own inner fear — during the arduous 522-mile marathon trip.

Despite a few down-to-the-finish-line thrills and spills, there's little mystery as to how this film ends. Still, perhaps as testimony to how much fun this romp is, you'll no doubt find yourself cheering and enjoying a delicious case of goosebumps.

And it's refreshing to have a coming-of-age film that offers a hopeful message — to go after your dreams, no matter how remote or impossible they may seem.

The Problem: Small red blood vessels on the nose & cheeks
The Solution: Laser Surgery

Laser surgery can be an effective way to remove small varicosities (veins) on the nose & cheeks. These veins occur as a result of sun damage and other factors. Laser surgery offers a superior way to remove these with little to no evidence of surgery. No down time, fast healing, and excellent results are common.

TAXES CAN BE A PAIN!

Don't make it worse by letting another year slip by without filing. If you missed filing for a year or so and you should have filed, the people at the IRS have a cure. Just give them a call and explain what happened. They'll help you find a way to make things better... maybe set up a payment plan or talk about an offer to settle what you owe. They'll even see that you get your refund if you've got one coming. Call the people at the IRS any time of year. It's good medicine.

ONE MORE APPOINTMENT

That's right. You know what's coming..."Are you caught in the same old grind?" Granted, the phrase is a bit trite, yet that "trapped sensation" affects so many of us each day that it is worthy of note.

Why not make one more appointment? "One more appointment?," you say. "I have too many now. That's my problem!"

There is an appointment available that can change your life. A regular visit to God's house each Sabbath will sustain you with the strength and the fresh focus to ease those daily pressures...to function most effectively and efficiently. It will be the most positive commitment of a lifetime!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You are able to turn around a troubling situation and get a young person back on the right track. Business zooms ahead in late spring. A friend could become your lover next summer. Bring your leadership skills to higher-ups' attention next fall. A promotion is possible. When uncertain where you are headed, trust your intuition.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Nobel Prize-winning civil rights leader the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., entertainer Charo, singer Chuck Berry, legendary drummer Gene Krupa, French playwright Moliere, actor Lloyd Bridges, journalist Rod MacLeish, actress Margaret O'Brien, actor Chad Lowe, actor Mario Van Peebles, physicist Dr. Edward Teller.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a good look at your attitude and make certain it is constructive. Money comes in from a successful lawsuit. Try to get along with your mate or partner's friends. Emphasize common interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emotions can run high when money is discussed. Do not let your temper get the best of you. Let critical comments roll off your back. Stay in touch with close friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take the lead in getting your friends into a party mood. Your social plans have an excellent chance for success. Devote more time to reflecting on long-term career goals. Investigate night classes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try not to think in the "I" mode; instead, think about "us." Be willing to compromise when it makes good sense. Remain calm and patient, not only with others but with yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Smarten up and spend some time alone. You enjoy your privacy and can use it to good advantage now. Seek a second opinion on whatever is bothering you. A romance intensifies.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your imagination may be working overtime. Put your natural talents to work to earn extra income. A home-based business could be the answer. Your evening plans may be exciting but costly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A real estate transaction may not work out as expected. Do not get burned! Stick with practical pursuits. Do someone a good turn; it will be repaid many times over. Tackle household chores.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Security and money are worthy goals if they are not taken to extremes. Be generous to those less fortunate than you. Your romantic desires could lead you astray tonight. Proceed with caution.

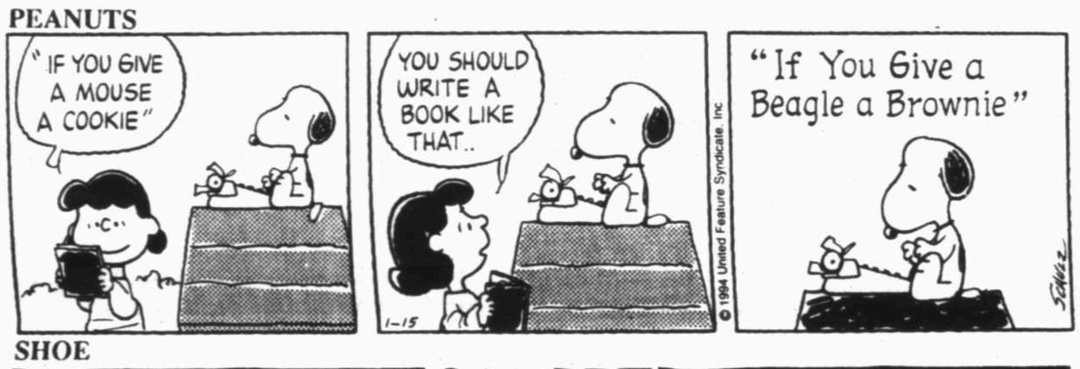

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek an expert's advice before plunging feet-first into a new project. Your evening could take an interesting turn if a member of the opposite sex is involved. Make your preferences known.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your bold, new look or spontaneous behavior makes romance sparkle. Friends may cancel out but your impromptu entertainment plans could turn out even better. Mixing guests from several generations promotes better understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Social activities could be less exciting than anticipated. Do not try to spend your way out of "the blahs." Dedicate the day to rest and relaxation. A family member deserves more support.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Group activities bring joy along with outstanding results. Success beckons. Everyone is on the same team and bound for glory! Romance takes on deeper meaning. Go ahead and wear your heart on your sleeve.

Limbaugh may go prime time with news magazine

PASADENA, Calif. — Rush Limbaugh and his acid tongue may be going prime time.

CBS is talking with the conservative broadcaster about doing commentary for a news magazine, possibly one being developed for spring 1994, said Joe Peyronnin, a CBS News vice president.

Conservative broadcaster Rush Limbaugh may go prime time.

A liberal commentator would be part of the equation, Peyronnin told the Television Critics Association at its winter press tour Thursday.

"That doesn't necessarily mean that this would be a point-counterpoint," he said. The commentators might appear on alternate weeks and argue different issues, avoiding an "artificial box that doesn't satisfy anybody."

Deborah Norville and Dana King will help launch the magazine, Peyronnin said. Limbaugh has a late-night syndicated television program.

NEW YORK — Curtis and Lisa Sliwa, once the first couple of crimefighting, have been busted for insufficient ratings.

WABC radio is canceling their morning talk show, effective Jan. 21, said program director John Mainelli, who surprised the two with the news Thursday.

"I'm devastated," Curtis said. "This was just out of the clear blue sky, like someone just dropped the big one."

Lisa was more forgiving. "This is the way the business is. At least we had the time we did."

The Sliwas' ratings topped out after three years on the air and a change was needed to compete against WFAN's Imus and shock jock Howard Stern, Mainelli said. The acerbic Lionel will move from late mornings to succeed them.

But neither of the beret-wearing Guardian Angels will be left out in the cold. Curtis started an evening show on WABC a few weeks ago and Lisa was given the go-ahead to do a weekly show on WQHT-FM.

The Sliwas split off the air, too, after 10 years of marriage.

TOLEDO, Ohio — Hope isn't enough for underprivileged young people, retired Gen. Colin Powell said.

"We can't just say there is hope. You've got to make sure that you have programs in the community that will educate these youngsters and then once you've got them on the road to being educated young people, you've got to have jobs for them," he said Thursday at a $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

"The answer is education and jobs. If they have education, then they can see hope — hope that there is a job at the other end," Powell said.

The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff visited Scott High School before attending the dinner sponsored by the Junior League of Toledo.

LOS ANGELES — Marion Ross, the wholesome Mrs. Cunningham on "Happy Days," likes to rebel against her snow-white image.

She stars this weekend as a woman falling apart in A.R. Gurney's "Love Letters" at Pierce College in Woodland Hills.

"I like this role because a woman disintegrates. I'm so uphill all the time that I love to play someone going downhill," said Ross, who lives in Woodland Hills.

The play traces years of correspondence between two lovers. Ross co-stars with Paul Michael.

Ross said she's had it with television. She played a family matriarch in the critically acclaimed "Brooklyn Bridge" and the show was canceled after poor ratings.

"If people didn't like 'Brooklyn Bridge,' what will they like?" she said. "We were all really burned by it."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country singer Hal Ketchum will be the 10th person to join the Grand Ole Opry in the 1990s.

He joins on Jan. 22. Ketchum, 40, has performed on the Opry six times since 1991.

"It's a great forum, a place to play as an acoustic trio, or a solo artist, or to do Mark Twain readings," Ketchum said. "It's a fine old theater sort of environment."

Ketchum's hits include "Small Town Saturday Night," "Sure Love" and "Hearts Are Gonna Roll."

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you do not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekened mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family members, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

An initial $100 refundable deposit is required.
