Saudis Arabia Claims...

Israel Invades Air Space

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia accused the Israeli air force of invading its air space, and a U.S. military source said the Israelis do it frequently.

A Saudi communique said "aircraft of the Israeli enemy violated our airspace in the kingdom's northwestern regions. Our fighter jets intercepted them and as a result the enemy planes returned to occupied Arab lands," meaning Israel.

Israel refused to comment. But U.S. officials in Washington said Israeli reconnaissance planes made two flights Monday in the vicinity of Saudi Arabia's Tabuk air base, 130 miles southeast of the southernmost tip of Israel.

"They operate there lots of times," said one American official. "It is common knowledge that the Israelis fly across the border to check things out."

The reports received in Washington made no mention of interception by Saudi planes or of any firing.

"Overflights are not new," said an Arab diplomat in Riyadh who declined to be identified. "The only thing that is new is the Saudi announcement. It means the Saudi government is concerned and is telling the world about it."

Israel's military chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, said in a newspaper interview last month that Israeli planes were flying over Saudi Arabia "for intelligence purposes." Israeli planes also flew over northern Saudi Arabia going to and from the attack that destroyed Iraq's nuclear reactor last June 7.

The Washington Post said a high Saudi intelligence official told it this vulnerability to Israeli penetration was one of the chief reasons his government was so insistent on buying AWACS radar planes from the United States. The deal squeaked through the U.S. Congress last month, but the advanced electronic warning and control planes won't be delivered until 1985.

Western diplomats in Riyadh said it was most unlikely that the Israeli intruders were detected by any of the four U.S. AWACS planes stationed in Saudi Arabia since the Iraqi invasion of Iran.

They are based at Riyadh's international airport 700 miles southeast of Tabuk and patrol in the eastern and southern parts of the country to monitor air traffic along the Persian Gulf. From there, the northwestern part of the country is well outside their radar range of about 250 miles.

Meanwhile, the Israeli government kept up its clamor against U.S. arms sales to Saudi Arabia and the Reagan administration's encouragement for the Saudi peace plan to create a Palestinian state with East Jerusalem as its capital.

Defense Minister Ariel Sharon accused the United States of wavering in its support of the Camp David peace process and of endangering the Israeli-Egyptian-U.S. negotiations for Palestinian autonomy in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Morgan Named To County Tax Post

Eloise Morgan was appointed Monday to serve as Scurry County Tax Collector, beginning Jan. 1.

Mrs. Morgan was appointed by the Scurry County Commissioners Court to fill the upcoming vacancy created by the resignation of Clarence Minton.

ELOISE MORGAN

Minton submitted his resignation six weeks ago, effective Dec. 31, at which time he will have held the office five years.

Mrs. Morgan will serve by appointment until voters fill the position in the 1982 general election.

She has been employed in the county tax office since 1956 and has served as chief deputy tax assessor-collector for the past 15 years.

The county tax office now serves as the collector for all taxing entities in the county.

In other business Monday, county commissioners turned in their ballot for members of the county appraisal district to the county clerk. Taxing entities are required to cast their ballots for appraisal board members by Nov. 15, and they are to be counted by the county clerk and results announced by Dec. 1. Nominees for the five-member board are Ross Blanchard, Pat Falls, Mike Graves, Harold (Pete) Hester, Billy Huddleston and Kenneth Wilson.

Largest Loan Set For India

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5.8 billion loan to India is the largest ever granted by the International Monetary Fund, a 143-nation financial institution.

The loan will be allocated over a three-year period, and India then will have four years to begin repayment. IMF officials said the cost of the loan cannot be determined, because about half the money will be lent at a floating interest rate close to the rates charged on world markets. That rate is now about 14 percent.

WTC Regents To Seek Other Insurance Bids

College board members instructed the Western Texas College administration to seek alternate bids for employee health insurance in an effort to offset a proposed 33 percent increase in premiums.

The decision to seek alternate solutions came at the end of the board's regular meeting Monday night. Meeting with the trustees were Dick Lancaster and Jim Palmer, members of the faculty's welfare committee.

The college last week was notified by the carrier, John Hancock, that premiums would be increased approximately 33 percent effective Dec. 1.

The college presently pays all of the employee's premium and one half of the family coverage. In revealing the increase, the college was told that benefits paid were 104 percent of premiums.

Board president Bill Wilson assured the faculty and staff that coverage would remain intact while the alternate sources of coverage are being explored. The board will again discuss the insurance problem at a special breakfast meeting Nov. 24.

The increase in premiums will cost approximately $40,000 more than the amount in the current budget.

In board action Monday, trustees accepted one resignation, revised the holiday policy, approved the 1982-83 school calendar and okayed a number of bids.

The policy revision approved calls for four holidays at Christmas and four at New Years. WTC President Dr. Don Newbury said the policy will bring the college in line with practice of the last two years of closing the campus to conserve energy. The former policy called for two holidays each.

This year, the campus

American football is known to be strange to foreigners and any other persons who do not keep up with it, but we decided Sunday that the thoroughly initiated could become confused if they listened closely to some of the commentators on television.

We watched parts of three games on two networks Sunday afternoon. Since the Cowboys were not playing, we were not as attentive as usual. But gradually the words of the announcers began to soak in and we listened more carefully.

Here is how it went during one game.

Color commentator, commenting on why the defense of one team was so successful: "Their linebackers take good drops. They don't hang up there close and give them a crease to complete the easy passes."

Play-by-play announcer: "What they would like to do now, is make some first downs." (Who wouldn't?)

A few moments later, another pair on another network, produced this dialogue.

Color commentator: "Their linebackers are taking away those short passes underneath by playing up close and refusing to take the big drop. It is really effective."

Play-by-play announcer: "What they would like to do now is get another touchdown. (who wouldn't?)

We have noted before that there seem to be more committee meetings between officials before decisions are made on the field than ever before, and this includes all of the games, from the high schools through the professionals.

We also note that the officals in the pros are consistently inconsistent in calling the new rule on pass completions. This year, the professionals claim that a pass is complete if a receiver has both hands on the ball when his feet touch the ground, regardles of whether he is able to hang onto the ball after he is hit by a tackler, or loses control when he takes a step or falls to the ground. But there is a big variety of interpretations.

And, speaking of football, did you notice that Johnny Boren of Snyder had a hand in the invention of the wing-T formation? A piece in the Sunday issue of the Abilene Reporter-News says Boren inspired Coach Warren B. Woodson to devise the wing-T when Boren complained that, as the man-in-motion, he was becoming so weak from running that he would not be able to do anything with the ball if they gave it to him. Woodson, who used "motion" on virtually every play while winning 272 football games at Hardin-Simmons, Arizona University, New Mexico State and several other places, thought it over. He decided Boren had a point and moved his motion man in behind the end, shortening the distance he had to run on every play. Thus, the wing-T, a formation used by scores of colleges and high schools, was born.

United Way At 72% Of Goal

The Scurry County United Way campaign pulled near the three-quarter mark this morning as another division reached its goal and several others reported good progress in their drives.

Contributions and pledges reported so far total $43,780.45, or approximately 72 percent of the $60,900 goal.

The professional division went "over the top" at this morning's report session, with a total of $2,498. Its goal was $2,200. Heading the professional division of the campaign this year are Frances Wiman and Jerry Vestal.

Earlier, the educational division had exceeded its goal of $4,400, and today, that division, headed by Dr. Don Newbury, had reached $5,726.50.

Reports from other divisions through this morning's session included the advance division with $14,110; oil and industrial, $1,825; commercial, $10,562.80; utilities $4,316; rural, $1,966; royalty owners, $1,125; public employees, $1,751.15; and branch house, $2,867.

The drive has been extended for another week and another report session has been set for next Tuesday. All workers are being urged to complete their work and turn in their packets as rapidly as possible.

Scannicchio Wins Contest

Dan Scannicchio, Box 338 of Snyder, is this week's Football Contest winner with a score of 18 right of 22 predictions.

Scannicchio, who missed Minnesota's upset of Ohio State and Green Bay's win over the Giants in addition to the two tie ballgames, receives $12.50.

Second-place money is not awarded this week because four tied with five misses apiece. They were Erwin Pavlik, Teri Henry, Debbie Early and Mike Boles.

All four top "pickers" missed the Texas-Houston and Tech-TCU games, which ended in ties.

Ask Us

Q.—Why is Veterans Day being observed in the middle of the week intead of on Monday as it used to be?

A.—It has simply returned to its original date. Nov. 11 is the date the Armistice was signed ending World War I and for years it was observed as Armistice Day. This was changed to Veterans Day after World war II. Congress then decided to make it a Monday holiday, thus creating a long weekend, but changed it back in response to widespread complaints by veterans organizations and others.

Supreme Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that national political parties can assume some of the fund-raising and spending power that Congress placed in the hands of the state party organizations.

By a 9-0 vote, the high court reversed a ruling that the transfer of such authority to the national parties is barred under federal campaign financing laws.

The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 established separate spending authorities for national and state political organizations.

For example, each organization is allowed to spend at least $200,000 in a Senate race, with maximum allowable amounts based on the size of state populations.

Today's ruling means that state party organizations, which frequently are unable to raise as much money as they are legally entitled to spend, can "assign" their spending authority to the national organizations.

Countdown Clock Ticking

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Countdown H for Launch II of the shuttle Columbia began right on time today, aiming for a liftoff at 7:30 a.m. EST Thursday.

NASA officials hope the abbreviated, 47½-hour countdown will last 31 seconds longer than last week.

"The countdown is now in progress," test conductor Darrell New announced at 8 a.m.

Moments earlier launch director George Page issued the "call to stations" that summoned more than 200 engineers and technicians to their posts on pad 39A and in the launch control center 3½ miles away.

At the first tick of the clock, liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen began flowing into the ship's electricity-generating fuel cells.

Graham Won't Retire

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham, who just celebrated his 63rd birthday, says he has no plans to slow down or retire any time soon. But the directors of his evangelistic organization have started looking for his replacement.

The board of directors of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association met in Dallas last month to discuss the future of the worldwide ministry after Graham has stepped aside.

Veterans Day Observance Wednesday

Veterans Day will be celebrated tomorrow, Nov. 11. Although the day is not observed as a general business holiday here, a number of government offices will be closed, as will banks and savings and loan firms.

There will be no mail delivery, as the postal service observes the holiday, and the drivers license office of the Department of Public Safety will be closed for the day.

The Layne-Kite Post of the American Legion will have its annual breakfast for all veterans at the post home, located at 1800 Ave. R. Veterans are invited to have breakfast on a come-and-go schedule.

Board To Name TextbookPanel

Snyder School Trustees are scheduled to name a local textbook committee at their regular meeting tonight. The meeting is set for 7:30 p. m. in the board room of the school administration building.

The board also is due to cast its votes for members of the Scurry County Appraisal District board and to consider some policy revisions. Policies concerning personnel contracts will be presented to put the local policies in compliance with state regulations.

John Gary, athletic director for the school system is scheduled to discuss the seventh grade athletic program with the board.

Also on the agenda are requests for physical education aides in elementary schools and replacement of a television set in the high school student center.

Reports to the board will include an evaluation of student progress after one year for Project Excel, the school system's program for gifted and talented students.

Scourge Of Middle Ages...

Bubonic Plague Is Still Around

EVERGREEN, Colo. (AP) — When veterinarian Robert Winters was stricken with bubonic plague, many of his clients were shocked to find the scourge of medieval Europe in this affluent mountain community.

"Gee, that's a Middle Ages disease, isn't it," one pet owner told Winters. "Did they treat you with leeches?"

Winters contracted the disease from a cat bite, although more common carriers are chipmunks and prairie dogs.

Today plague is accepted by health officials as a fact of life in 14 Western states, where scientists acknowledge it is impossible to stamp out.

In the United States, the incidence of human cases still is relatively rare, but it has increased significantly in the last 15 years. Plague-carrying fleas have affected wild rodents in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Oklahoma, Montana, Washington, Texas and Kansas, with human cases reported in the first 10 states on the list.

"It is a dynamic disease, and the potential for human cases is always present," says Dr. John Emerson of the Colorado Department of Health.

Before 1965, plague was limited to an average of one human case per year in the U.S. That figure has increased to between 15 and 16 human cases each year, according to Allan Barnes, plague specialist with the National Centers for Disease Control laboratory in Fort Collins.

Barnes said there have been 147 cases between 1965 and 1980, 23 of them fatal. More than half of them have been in New Mexico.

"It's kind of like dropping a handful of wheat on the floor," Barnes explained. "Most of it hit New Mexico, but a few kernels spread as far east as Brownsville, Texas."

The modern version of plague takes four forms — bubonic plague, the most common form of the disease, affects the lymph glands; septicemic plague enters the bloodstream, while primary and secondary pneumonic plague, the most contagious and life-threatening forms, enter the lungs.

The Black Death of the 14th century, named for the black patches and boils — or "bubos" — that appeared on the victim, was a combination of pneumonic and bubonic plague.

"In their bones they bore so virulent a disease that anyone who only spoke to them was seized by a mortal illness and in no manner could evade death," Michael Platiensis, a Franciscan friar wrote in 1348 about the infection that wiped out half of Europe.

If a man with secondary pneumonic plague passes it on to another individual, the disease becomes primary bubonic plague. In 1980, primary pneumonic plague had its first American victim in more than 50 years, Barnes said.

Today plague, if diagnosed in time, is curable with simple antibiotics. But it is still a lethal disease, with a mortality rate running as high as 60 percent if untreated, according to Barnes.

It can kill within days, and health specialists say they are concerned that many doctors would not be able to diagnose it. In Winters' case, a 12-day delay in diagnosis was not fatal because he took tetracycline to combat the symptoms.

Other plague victims have not been as fortunate. Emerson said a girl from Wichita Falls, Texas was infected with plague in Colorado's Boulder County. Only after she returned home and died did doctors discover she had bubonic plague.

The disease, once concentrated in rat-infested urban slums, increasingly threatens man as he moves into wilderness areas.

Barnes attributed much of its increase to changing lifestyles. Popular pastimes like hiking and camping bring people in contact with fleas from wild animals. Woodpiles and rock walls near opulent country houses also attract rodents, Barnes said.

One plague victim was bitten by fleas at his mountain campsite, while a baby in Norwood, Colo. was infected when a family dog, fond of chasing prairie dogs, brought the disease right into the house.

The disease is not only spreading among wild animals, but the number of people who expose themselves to possible infection increases with each passing year.

"Like it or not," said Emerson, "We're stuck with it."

Nat'nl Debt Falls Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national debt, which passed the trillion-dollar mark on Oct. 22, has fallen below that historic level to just under $999 billion — but Treasury Department officials say it won't stay that low for long.

The government finances the national debt by issuing Treasury bills, notes, bonds and other debt instruments, with various interest rates and maturity dates.

It sometimes happens that on a given day the Treasury will pay off more maturing debt than it borrows, which officials said on Monday explains the current situation.

Last Thursday, the most recent day for which figures were available, a large amount of maturing debt took more than $5 billion off the "debt subject to congressional limit" — reducing it from $1.004 trillion to $998.8 billion.

But officials agree that the debt will surpass $1 trillion again very soon, and Reagan administration officials are forecasting an increase nearly up to the debt limit of $1.080 trillion by the end of the 1982 fiscal year next Sept. 30.

Grave Markers Probed At Meeting

Texas Law Enforcement Officers Grave Markers was the topic of the program for a meeting of the Snyder Writers' Guild in the West Texas State Bank Community Room.

Drew Bullard and Dorothy Cox read articles they had written on T. J. Faught, sheriff, and O. P. (Pack) Wolf, marshal, who were early-day peace officers here.

Members of the guild are writing historical articles for the Scurry County Historical Commission to be included in a book the organization is compiling on the history of Snyder and Scurry County.

The assignment for the next meeting is church organizations and site markers of Snyder churches, including First Methodist, First Christian, First Baptist and First Presbyterian.

Guild members congratulated Dorothy Cox on the publication of her book, Paths of Life. The book contains a serees of inspirational messages.

Fake Brinks Guard Takes All The Money

BOSTON (AP) — He looked like a Brink's guard, he said he was making a pickup and he did what Brink's guards do: He walked away with a lot of money.

But a few minutes later a real Brink's guard showed up and officials of the Parker House hotel realized they had been duped.

Police said the thief wearing a guard's uniform Monday got away with an estimated $55,000 in weekend receipts. The Boston manager for Brink's, Frank Mahan, said his office was not missing any uniforms.

Blue Cross Says System Solvent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although acknowledging a loss in 1981 of more than $200 million, officials of Blue Cross and Blue Shield are denying reports that the health insurer's program for government workers is threatened with bankruptcy.

"Despite a loss in excess of $200 million in 1981, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield federal employee program is financially sound," said a statement issued by James Gillman, vice president of Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association's federal employee program.

Patrick Korten, spokesman for the federal Office of Personnel Management, also denied reports on Monday that the program, which covers about 5 million workers, is bordering on insolvency.

Gillman said that on Oct. 31, a contract was signed between the Office of Personnel Management and Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations for federal employee health coverage in 1982.

He also said that some published accounts "erroneously stated" that government workers covered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield would find themselves without health insurance protection beginning Jan. 1 unless a financial recovery program is worked out with Congress.

Gillman said officials of Blue Cross and Blue Shield do, however, feel that continuation of the coverage for federal employees "... depends upon a correction which must be made by the government in the program to improve it (the plan's) financial stability."

Last Friday, the OPM had postponed an "open season" period, during which federal workers may opt for health insurance coverage under rival insurance plans. The window period for employees to opt out of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield plan then was to begin Monday, but that was postponed indefinitely.

But Korten said the reports of financial problems involving the Blue Cross and Blue Shield's health care program had nothing to do with suspension of the open season on insurance subscriptions.

Berry's World

"It's nice to be able to take a walk through the park without having to worry about being mugged."

at wits end

by erma bombeck

After years of scientific research, marketing and testing, it has finally been revealed that children can open child-proof caps on medicine bottles faster than adults.

In a significant number of cases, it was confirmed that the child-proof caps could not be opened at all by adults and caused headaches for which there is no known cure.

The message to me is quite clear. "Child-proof" is a fantasy word that was invented to give mothers hope...like "wrinkle-free" and "one-size-fits-all." They're catchy, but they don't mean anything.

The way I figured it out, it's God's way of propagating the species. We need kids. We cannot function in this world without them. As long as there are hermetically sealed combs in packages, children will always be with us.

To them, there is no place in this world that is "out of reach" and no package made that cannot be ripped open by them in, 35 seconds.

They can take the bell out of a ball when they're three months, find the end of the toilet tissue roll at six months, and scale the top of the refrigerator by age one.

By age three they can operate a lipstick tube, by age four they can find the beginning of the thread that is pasted under the label, and by five can disconnect the TV and install video games.

The way the world is going, I don't think it's too unrealistic to consider rent-a-kids for people with arthritis who ever went to get sliced bacon out of a package in their lifetime. Or how about a woman with long fingernails who has never been able to use a shopping cart because they are welded together and can only be separated by a pre-schooler? Women climbing the corporate ladder would do well to rent a kid to take along on business trips if only to open the bag of airline smoked almonds.

Sometimes I feel package manufacturers don't know children at all. If you want to keep children out of someting, what do you do? You put a cute little duck on the side of the package and the words, "vitamin enriched." Them the mother puts the bottle or jar within reach of the child with the lid off and says, "there is not a day goes by that I don't want you to have one of these. Help yourself."

Trust me, the bottle will never be touched.

'Coin Toss' Ends Career

WOODS CROSS, Utah (AP) — Ralph Argyle's political career was staked on the toss of a coin, and when it came up heads, he lost.

Argyle challenged incumbent Lawrence Urry in the Nov. 3 mayoral election in this northern Utah town and he got 305 votes, which was exactly what Urry got.

Officials counted the results six times, but that didn't change the vote.

So on Monday, Urry and Argyle met in Davis County Courthouse, where they were handed envelopes — one contained the word "heads" and the other, "tails." Second District judges Duffy Palmer and Douglas Cornaby tossed a coin.

Argyle, who had tails, said his political career was over because he'll be too old to run for mayor again.

Cookie Craze Sweeps Country

By Cecily Brownstone
SP Food Editor

Judging from the number of shops in New York City selling nothing but cookies, there's a cookie craze going on in this land. In the 1896 first edition of Fannie Farmer's cookbook there were only about a dozen recipes for them. But gradually their number grew. When, in 1931, Irma Rombauer wrote her first edition of "The Joy of Cooking," she included dozens of cookie recipes.

By now, on my own shelves, there are at least twenty-four cookbooks devoted to nothing but these specialties. And interestingly enough, each book includes recipes for cookies made with coconut.

Fannie Farmer had her rolled Coconut Creams. Mrs. Rombauer her Coconut Drop Cakes. What I have to offer is a brand new recipe for Coconut Squares. Between this bar cookie's layer of a pastry-like base and a coconut meringue you spread raspberry preserves or ginger marmalade. My preference is for the latter, but some of my tasters prefer the preserves. Take your choice. If you bake these squares for Thanksgiving, coconut fanciers are bound to give thanks for them.

COCONUT SQUARES

1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup butter
3 tablespoons (about) cold water
2 large eggs
1/2 cup sugar
7-ounce package or can flaked coconut
1-3rd cup raspberry preserves or ginger marmalade

In a medium bowl with a pastry blender cut the butter into the flour until the butter is the size of large peas. Sprinkle with a small amount of the water at a time, mixing lightly until all particles are moistened and cling together when pressed into a ball. Press into an ungreased 9 by 9 by 1 3/4-inch pan. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until lightly browned — 20 minutes. Turn oven control to 375 degrees.

Meanwhile beat the eggs until thickened and lemon color; gradually beat in the sugar and continue beating until thick and ivory color. Fold in coconut.

Spread preserves over the baked pastry, leaving a 1/4-inch space around the edges. Carefully spread coconut mixture over preserves. Bake in the 375-degree oven until golden — 25 minutes. Cool on a wire rack and cut into squares.

Williamsburg Restoration Area Looking A Lot Like Christmas

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas at the Colonial Williamsburg Restoration in Virginia — not as we know the holiday today, but as it might have been celebrated by 18thcentury Virginians.

The restoration, a recreation of that era of the 18th century when Williamsburg was the capital of Virginia, has had seasonal decorations since 1939. Today, it is well-known for its arrangements of natural materials and live greens which adorn its 18th-century homes, shops and public buildings, and its 19th-century Carter's Grove plantation, just outside the historic area.

Libbey Hodges Oliver, supervisor of the flower section at Colonial Williamsburg, said she and five assistants had been knee-deep in natural materials for the decorations all fall. Anyone who would like to create similar decorations at home should also start early to collect and arrange the dried and natural materials, she added.

"Except for some styrofoam and floral wire (which do not show), the decorations make use of nothing that might not have been available locally during the 18th century," according to Ms. Oliver.

The restoration does not claim the decorations are authentic since "there is really no firm historical record of precisely how Williamsburg families did decorate their homes for the holiday," despite considerable research on the subject, added Ms. Oliver.

Nevertheless, some information about past Christmas customs of the area may be inferred from what is known about past celebrations.

"From contemporary accounts we can say that celebrations were usually marked by a more liberal use of candles. There was considerable visiting, and dances, fox hunts and gunpowder salutes were typical in wealthy Virginia cities," explained Ms. Oliver. It seems certain that colonists collected native materials, making use of the typical architectural ornamentation of the day — swags, garlands, plaques and wreaths — to celebrate the season, she added.

Today, arrangers prepare numerous large wreaths of fresh greens and locally-occurring fruit such as apples and pomegranates (which were grown in Virginia in the 18th century). They also use oranges and lemons which were imported in those days.

"Here at Williamsburg, pine cones, cotton bolls, okra pods and lotus pods as well as American holly, boxwood and Southern magnolia leaves are common, so we also use these materials in our decorations," she said.

There are, however, no bows on the wreaths.

"Ribbon was imported and probably too rare and expensive to use in this way, although we do have some ribbon on a wreath at the milliner's shop," she said.

Colonial table decorations did not include flowers, according to Ms. Oliver. Instead, tables were laid in a rigidly symmetrical fashion with containers of fruits and nuts brought in as both the dessert course and table decoration at the same time.

The liberal use of pineapples in the decorations seemed surprising since pineapples were hardly likely to be a crop in the Virginia area. Ms. Oliver explained that pineapples — the sumbol of hospitality — were being grown in hothouses in England and could have been imported into Virginia.

Accounts of the day indicate there was considerable trading back and forth of plant material and seeds. "We know the Virginians sent goldenrod and dogwood back to England and received herbs, pea and cabbage seeds and bulbs of all kinds from the old country," she said.

According to Ms. Oliver, visitors asked so many questions about how to duplicate the decorations they saw that there are now several day-long workshops in the fall where about 40 participants at a time learn how to recreate them. This year, Ms. Oliver and her helpers have also authored a book, "Colonial Williamsburg Decorates for Christmas," describing and illustrating how to make the decorations.

(For information on the workshops or book, write Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, P.O. Box CH, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.)

North was bitter about the whole thing. He complained that he should have never raised his partner's heart opening bid with 4-3-3-3 distribution and stoppers in all suits.

North was right from a result standpoint. Playing in no-trump, he would have made four or five odd. Playing in hearts South fell short of his game contract.

We do sympathize with North but can assure him that year in and year out it is far better to raise hearts with his hand than to try to find a magic no-trump.

It took a lot of bad luck plus some fine defense for East and West to beat four hearts.

Actually, the fine defense wasn't difficult. West opened his deuce of spades. East took his ace and returned the 10. This was a suit preference signal to ask for a diamond return. So West ruffed and dutifully led back a diamond.

South's goose was cooked to a frazzle. He could do no better than take and lose the finesse. West got another spade ruff and his ace of trumps for down two.

After a heart attack

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mom had a heart attack. Her doctor told her to take walks on nice days. She was wondering if she could do more exercise than just walking. If you could give any information it would be quite nice for her. Her doctor has told her to take it easy. She has had angina in the past. Is that related to her heart attack?

DEAR READER — Both are commonly related to fatty-cholesterol blockage in the arteries to the heart. Angina is usually a short pain, lasting less than 15 minutes, while the pain of a heart attack is longer.

With angina there is no significant heart-muscle damage but with a standard heart attack the blockage of the artery results in death of heart muscle, called an infarction, hence the term myocardial infarction.

Your mother should be careful to do exactly what her doctor tells her in the healing phase after her attack. That damaged heart muscle has to be replaced with scar tissue, and small arteries that make important detours around the blocked artery must have time to open. It sometimes takes six months to achieve the maximum benefits of recovery. Too much exercise too early can be just as harmful as not enough exercise. Let her doctor be the judge.

How you can use your heart rate to judge walking and other exercise after a heart attack is discussed in The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If a person has shown good recovery, it is common today to start some walking in the halls of the hospital before discharge. The amount of daily walking is increased in accordance with how well the patient is doing. It is also a good time to lose excess body fat and adjust living habits, including diet and not smoking for the best results.

Some patients, as they progress, can be started on more vigorous exercise programs, but exercise, like medicines, must be individualized. What is good for one patient can be harmful for another, depending on how much damage exists.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does the liquid one takes with a medicine affect it — like coffee with aspirin, or milk to soothe if a medicine may be harsh to the stomach, or fruit juice? Or is water the one and only best liquid to take with everything?

DEAR READER — It depends upon the medicine and the liquid. Milk often decreases the effectiveness of antibiotics taken by mouth. So do antacids. Coffee should not be used with aspirin as it may stimulate an increased production of acid digestive juices, which may increase the precipitation of aspirin against the stomach lining, increasing the chances of erosion of the lining.

Other than water, many of the liquids may slow the absorption of medicines because of their effects in delaying the emptying of the stomach. Many medicines are absorbed not from the stomach but from the small intestine into the circulation. In some instances the doctor wants a medicine absorbed slowly and may recommend that it be taken after meals.

In general, water is the best liquid to take with medicine but there are exceptions. Vitamin C, as found in a glass of orange juice, may enhance the absorption of iron.

Biggest Jump Since Spring...

Inflation Boosted By Car Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising new car prices boosted inflation at the wholesale level to an annual rate of 6.8 percent last month, the biggest jump since the spring, the government said today.

Prices for food and energy dropped last month, said the Labor Department.

With only two months to go, inflation for the year was almost certain to come in under the 11.8 percent wholesale average for 1980.

For the first 10 months of this year, inflation at the wholesale level was running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.5 percent, department officials said.

The department's new report said its measure of wholesale prices for finished goods — the Producer Price Index — was up 0.6 percent last month after seasonal adjustment.

If October's rate held for 12 straight months, the increase would be 6.8 percent, the department said.

The October increase was ahead of the previous five months figures and the largest since the 0.8 percent of April.

In September, the monthly increase was 0.2 percent and, in August, 0.3 percent.

Revised figures put the July gain at 0.2 percent, down from the 0.4 percent originally reported, the department said.

The acceleration in October was attributed to higher prices automakers are charging for the newly introduced 1982 cars. Passenger car prices, on the average, rose a sharp 4.2 percent.

The report also said food prices fell 0.2 percent in October, after no change in September.

Beef and veal prices fell last month after advancing in September. Pork prices were off more than in the previous month, the report said. Prices declines were also recorded for fresh and dried vegetables, peanut butter and rice. But prices were up for fresh fruits, eggs, soft drinks, fish, coffee and sugar.

Energy prices dropped 0.4 percent last month, compared with a 0.6 percent rise in September, the department said.

Home heating oil prices were off 1.4 percent, the fourth straight month of decline. But gasoline prices were up 0.4 percent after dropping for the previous five months.

Capital equipment prices rose 0.9 percent, largely due to a rise in motor vehicle costs, the report said.

All the increases are adjusted for seasonal variations.

In all the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 274.0 in October, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $27.40 last month.

Inflation at the retail level, as measured by the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, soared to a 14.8 percent annual rate in September, the most recent figure available. CPI figures for October won't be out until later in the month.

Ponders Parental Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a constitutional showdown over parental rights, the Supreme Court is being asked to decide what evidence a state needs to permanently take children from their parents.

The Ulster County, N.Y., case, scheduled to be argued today in an hour-long session, gives the court its second chance in a year to study the constitutional protection given parent-child relationships.

The court ruled by a 5-4 vote last May that penniless parents facing termination of parental rights have no right to free legal help, as have penniless persons facing imprisonment.

Ulster County welfare officials in 1979 won a court order terminating the parental rights of John and Annie Santosky, proving by a "preponderance of evidence" that their three children — Tina, now 10; John, now 8; and Jed, now 7 — were permanently neglected.

That standard of proof, used in most non-criminal cases, essentially determines a winner by deciding whether it is more probable than not that certain facts exist. Essentially, evidence is weighed and 51 percent or more wins.

Aside from New York, the standard is used in such parent-child cases by Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Idaho, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Oregon and South Carolina.

Most states impose on officials seeking to end the parent-child relationship the more stringent standard of "clear and convincing evidence." Two states, New Hampshire and Louisiana, require proof of neglect or abuse "beyond a reasonable doubt" — the standard usually reserved for criminal cases.

While the differences in standards can be subtle or even arcane, they often determine final outcomes.

The Santoskis are challenging the loss of their parental rights by arguing that the standard must be "clear and convincing evidence."

The couple's three oldest children have spent most of their lives in foster homes.

Tina, born when both her parents were 16, has lived in their home only sporadically since 1973. Health officials found that she had suffered, among other injuries, severe bruises on her arms and forehead, cuts on her legs and a broken leg.

John was first taken from his parents' home in 1974. He suffered from malnutrition and had to be hospitalized. Welfare officials took temporary custody of Jed three days later on grounds that his immediate removal was necessary to avoid imminent danger.

The Santoskis reside with their two youngest children, 5-year-old James and 3-year-old Jeremy. Legal briefs filed with the court said "no report of suspected neglect or abuse as to these children has ever been made."

Gearhart Speaker For SPE Session

Marvin Gearhart, chairman of the board and president of Gearhart Industries, Inc., will address a meeting of the Snyder Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Snyder Country Club.

Gearhart is an SPE Distinguished Lecturer for 1981-82. He earned the bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering with a petroleum option from Kansas State University in 1949. He serves on the board of trustees of Texas Christian University, on the board of directors of the Fort Worth National Bank, and on the board of directors of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce.

He also is a member of the Fort Worth Club, the Exchange Club, SPE, the American Petroleum Institute, and the Society of Professional Well Log Analysts.

Gearhart will discuss measurements-while-drilling in his address here. During recent years, considerable effort has been directed toward developing measurements-while-drilling (MWD). The objective of these efforts is not to replece conventional well logs, but instead to improve drilling efficiency and safety. Industry demand indicates the greatest need for directional drilling MWD sensor, followed closely by "kick" detection sensors.

No Misconduct Found During Probe By CIA

NEW YORK (AP) — The CIA has denied any involvement in alleged illegal acts by former agents Frank Terpil and Edwin Wilson, although it says some agency employees gave them unsanctioned support.

Terpil and Wilson were interviewed in Beirut, Lebanon, for Sunday's CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program. Terpil is a fugitive convicted in absentia in New York state for conspiring to sell weapons to terrorists, and is also under federal indictment.

Wilson and Terpil have been accused of helping Moammar Khadafy's Libyan government obtain men and explosives. Terpil refused to discuss with CBS any dealings with Libya.

He did say he knows current CIA employees who are moonlighting by using classified information to produce "situation reports" on countries for commercial firms.

The CIA said in a statement Monday that it had investigated all allegations of misconduct by agency employees and found none, but had referred the allegations to the FBI and U.S. attorney's office.

CIA spokesman Dale Peterson said: "The CIA categorically denies all allegations involving it in illegal acts allegedly committed by former employees Edwin Wilson and Frank Terpil and their associates."

The statement said that in 1976, then-CIA director George Bush launched an inquiry of all known contacts with Wilson since his resignation in 1971. The CIA found some employees "provided support to Wilson and Terpil without official agency sanction and action was taken against them." Sources have said two workers were fired.

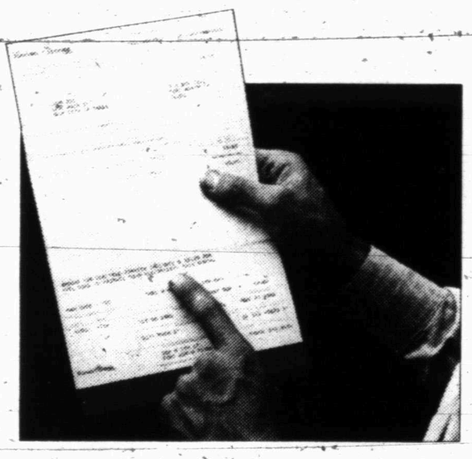
The cost of fuel.
And why it affects your electric bill now more than ever.



When we say "fuel" at Texas Electric, we mean the fuel that we use to make your electricity—primarily natural gas and lignite coal.

The cost of fuel is a necessary part of the cost of making electricity. Next year all the fuels we use will cost more, especially natural gas. This is partly because an old contract for low-cost natural gas expires at the end of this year. The gas provided by that contract will have to be replaced with gas selling at the "going rate," which is about 15 times as much as we now pay under the contract.

We buy all our fuels at the lowest price available.* We charge our customers exactly what we have to pay for fuel. And we show the amount for "fuel" on your bill each month.

If you'd like more information about the fuels it takes to make your electricity, give us a call. At Texas Electric, we want you to understand what you're paying for.

*With completion of our Comanche Peak plant, the use of nuclear fuel will help hold down the increasing cost of our fuels.

Teenager Arrested For Rape, Murder Of Nun

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager who was to be charged with capital murder today in the death of a 76-year-old Catholic nun lives just three blocks from the convent where the victim was found raped, beaten, stabbed and strangled, authorities say.

Police held a news conference Monday night to announce the arrest of the 17-year-old suspect in the slaying that had stunned and saddened this Texas Panhandle city.

Sister Tadea Benz was found dead in her convent room on Oct. 31. Other nuns had presumed she had died of natural causes, and had sent her body to a funeral home before evidence of a break-in was discovered.

Amarillo police said the teen-age suspect gave no resistance when he was arrested about 5:30 p.m. at his home three blocks from St. Francis Convent.

District Attorney Danny Hill said prosecutors would ask that the suspect, who was linked to the crime by fingerprints found at the convent, be held without bond. He was jailed overnight.

Hill said the teen-ager was not a suspect until Monday when a policeman checking fingerprints in a number of area burglaries matched the teen-ager's prints with those taken from the convent.

"We're quite excited that a crime of this type was solved this quickly," Hill said.

Police had been concerned that their investigation would be hampered because the others nuns washed Sister Tadea's face, wrapped her in blankets and sent her to a funeral home for embalming.

"A body that had been washed, evidence that had gone down the drain — in fact ... had another 12 or 15 hours gone by, the body may have been in the ground and nobody ever known there was a murder," Hill said.

Police were summoned to the convent when the nuns found a broken pane of glass in the convent's community room and thought a burglary might have occurred. Investigating officers found nothing missing but learned of the nun's death and ordered a halt to the embalming.

Hill said a police detective who "knew this suspect and had known some of his habits found out he was in town and we had discovered other information about him, which led to the investigation and which led us to the evidence that linked him with the crime."

Amarillo police have said an argon laser fingerprint device their department had acquired recently had detected a partial print on a wood-handled knife found in the nun's room.

Authorities said Monday night that the teen-ager arrested Monday wasn't a suspect in the July 9 death of Narnie C. Bryson, a 77-year-old Amarillo woman who also was raped and strangled. Officials have said that slaying and the nun's deaths had "marked similarities."

Texas A&M Cadet Is Suspended

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A Texas A&M cadet who brandished his sabre to chase Southern Methodist University cheerleaders from a football field says it may turn out for the best that he was suspended for the rest of the semester for his actions.

"It is a big deal for sure getting suspended from a major university," 21-year-old senior Greg Hood of Dallas said Monday after learning of the suspension.

But he added, "All in all I guess it will turn out best for the university and maybe even for myself."

Hood said he is leaning against appealing the ruling by university hearing officer William Kibler but does plan to seek readmission to the university and the Corps of Cadets next semester. In the meantime, he said, "I'll try to use the time wisely and apply around for jobs when I do graduate."

A&M has a longstanding policy of not allowing opposing cheerleaders on Kyle Field. When SMU cheerleaders went on the field during the Oct. 31 Southwest Conference football game between the two schoools, Hood pulled out his sabre to chase them from the field.

"The way I handled the situation was definitely wrong," he told reporters Monday before learning of his suspension. He added that he was just doing his duty in trying to get the cheerleaders off the field.

"I never had any intent to use a ceremonial tool as a weapon," he said.

Two closed-door hearings were held Monday, a two-hour session in the morning and a 1½-hour meeting in the afternoon. Hood appeared at them wearing his dress uniform and his sabre. He said the sabre was for use in demonstrations in making his case.

Dear Abby

Jailbird's Supper Song Is Mostly Off-Key

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our 19-year-old son got into trouble with the law — drinking and stealing. He served some time, but I think the judge let him off easy, considering he cussed out a cop and broke probation, and now he's back again. Serves him right. Let him pay for running his smart mouth.

Every day he calls up his daddy and puts in his order. It's always two cartons of cigarettes a week. Yesterday he asked for Tang breakfast drink, a big bag of chocolate-chip cookies, a quart of milk, 2 Big Macs and a large order of fries. Today he asked for a bucket of Kentucky Fried Chicken, a bag of Doritos, some beef jerky and some more cookies.

His daddy takes him whatever he asks for and I keep on fighting him about it. All I'd buy the boy is cigarettes. I say, "He put himself in jail — let him live on what they feed him there."

Am I wrong to feel the way I do, Abby? Please send me your advice.

FED-UP MAMA

DEAR FED-UP: I'm on your side. It's a big mistake to pamper him in prison. Most folks don't have it that good on the outside.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you as a last resort. Briefly, I have a fetish about my wife's hair, which she refuses to understand. I have begged and pleaded with her during our three-year marriage to let her hair grow somewhat longer because I absolutely adore long hair, but lately she's been cutting her hair, and I am going crazy. She insists that she is going to wear her hair short no matter what.

She says I am "sick" — that I have to help myself to get over this fetish. I say if she really loves me she will understand my feelings and let her hair grow longer.

I have tried professional help but to no avail. Because of my wife's refusal to cooperate, the problem is getting worse. Abby, please explain to my wife the tremendous pressure I am under. If she doesn't help me, our marriage is doomed.

SICK AND SCARED

DEAR SICK: Some wives will forgo their own preferences in order to accommodate their husbands, but unfortunately for you, your wife isn't one of them.

Having had professional help, you know that fetishism is a pathological displacement of erotic interest and satisfaction. Obviously you are still unwilling to give up this fetish and your wife refuses to give in. Unless you both get to the root of this hairy problem, your marriage is indeed doomed.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please advise brides to sign their thank-you notes properly.

I am a grandmother and send many wedding presents to unknown children and grandchildren of relatives and old friends. Months later I receive a sweet little note signed "Betty" — and I haven't the faintest idea who Betty is!

Please advise brides to sign their notes with their maiden names, plus their married names. Betty Brown, who married Tom Green, should sign her name "Betty Brown Green" to all but her most intimate friends.

TIRED OF GUESSING

DEAR TIRED: Done! And while we're on the subject, when acknowledging a gift, not only should the writer clearly identify himself, he should identify the gift. ("Thank you for the lovely ice bucket, backscratcher, or Crock Pot.")

Nudo Photos Trial Resumes

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooke Shields has suffered "the utmost humiliation" because she posed for nude photographs at age 10, but the pictures are "nothing to be ashamed of," her mother says.

"I know that I'm a good mother," Teri Shields testified Monday in state Supreme Court in Manhattan. "I have her interests at heart. I know I've made mistakes."

The 16-year-old actress is suing photographer Harry Gross in an effort to block him from further commercial use of the 1975 photos, originally taken for a Playboy Press book, "Sugar and Spice."

The teen-ager has tesfified at the trial that the photographs now "embarrass" her. She and her mother claim further use of the pictures will cause her irreparable harm, by damaging her professional image and therefore her career.

Mrs. Shields, weeping, told Justice Edward Greenfield that her daughter had called her from school Monday, "very upset" about the publicity the case has generated.

"Weren't you aware when you brought the lawsuit that all this was going to be publicly aired?" Greenfield asked. Mrs. Shields did not respond directly.

The proceedings were to resume today.

Proposal Turned Down

LONDON (AP) — London's municipal Labor government, the Greater London Council, proposed putting signs on the roads leading into the city saying "You are entering a nuclear-free zone," but the Conservative national government disapproved.

"Traffic signs should not be used for political slogans," said Transportation Undersecretary Kenneth Clarke in a message to the House of Commons.

The Laborites' recent party congress voted in favor of unilateral nuclear disarmament; the Conservatives oppose it.

Cougars Picked As Next Champs In SWC Basketball

DALLAS (AP) - Houston's Rob Williams was predicted to be player of the year and his team was chosen mostly likely for first place by broadcasters and writers participating in the Southwest Conference pre-season basketball poll.

The 31 media prognosticators split between Houston and Arkansas for first place and by a slim margin picked Rice to escape the cellar over SMU.

First-place ballots were worth nine points, second place eight, and so on.

Houston got the nod over Arkansas for first place, 259 points to 258.

Besides Willams' player-of-the-year vote, the Cougars' Akeem Abdul Olajuwon won a close race as newcomer of the year.

The SWC opens basketball play Tuesday, with Texas Tech hosting Athletes in Action in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m. Intercollegiate action starts Friday, Nov. 27, after five pre-season games.

The balloting results, with first-place votes in parentheses, are: Houston (15½) 259; Arkansas (14½) 258; Texas (1) 212; Texas A&M 168; Baylor 158½; Texas Tech 131½; TCU 86; Rice 62; SMU 60.

Dusters Defense Drops As Weatherford Prevails

WEATHERFORD -- Western Texas' Dusters left their defense at home for their first road trip of the season, and fell to Weatherford Junior College 78-68 here last evening.

The Dusters, now 2-1 for the season, continue on the highway as they take part in the Cisco Classic beginning Thursday.

"I'm afraid we concentrated on our outside shooting so much in practice that we forgot our defense," said WTC Coach Joe Cushing of Monday's loss. "We did not play well at all on defense. We stood around and let Weatherford do just about what it wanted to. We weren't moving our feet. We were just hacking and reaching all night long."

Weatherford's Kay Cole took advantage of the poor defensive effort and some red hot outside shooting to bomb the visitors for 37 points. Teammate Patty Phillips had 17, to account for 54 of Weatherford's 78 points.

"I don't want to take anything from Weatherford. They've got a good ballclub. Kay Cole is an outstanding forward. She was filling the bucket from way out there. We're talking about left field."

Cushing added, "I hope we had some freshmen learn a valuable lesson last night. They still haven't adjusted to college ball yet. We've got some still thinking of high school homecoming and mother's home cooking on the weekends. We've got to have every individual work towards putting it all together towards the same end."

Vicki Teal and Dorcas Perkins again led in overall statistics for the Dusters. Teal had 17 points, 11 rebounds, three steals and a blocked shot. Dorcas Perkins had 14 points, 10 rebounds, six blocks and two steals.

A couple of sophomore guards did most of the rest of the work, including high-point scorer Cindy Maddox with 18. She also had six assists, four steals and a blocked shot. Cindy Goltl had 10 points, three rebounds, three assists and two steals.

Western Texas hopes to improve its road record Thursday, when the Dusters open Cisco Classic action against Henderson Junior College at 5:30 Thursday in Cisco. In the second game, Cisco tests St. Gregory of Oklahoma at 7:30. Friday's schedule has WTC versus St. Gregory at 5:30 and CJC versus HJC at 7:30. Saturday, HJC takes on St. Gregory at 4 and WTC and CJC meet at 6.

"We're expecting a tough tournament," said Cushing. "Henderson is last year's Region 14 champion and Cisco recently won the Amarillo College Tournament."

WTC has played Cisco already this season, winning 67-61 in Snyder.

Wheatley Stable's Dark Secret won the 1934 Jockey Club Gold Cup by a head, finishing the race with a fractured leg.

Cowboys Blitz Bills On Quick TDs

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Buffalo Bills were sailing along toward a National Football League victory Monday night then disappeared in three minutes in a stadium fast becoming the "Bermuda Triangle" of the National Football League.

The Dallas Cowboys, who have won 15 consecutive regular season games in Texas Stadium, took out the Bills 27-14 in a game vital to the eastern divisions of the American and National Conferences.

Dallas is 8-2, tied with Philadelphia in the NFC East and Buffalo is 6-4, a game and a half behind Miami in the AFC East.

Buffalo was ahead 14-7 with less than 30 seconds left on the clock in the first half when rookie Mike Downs intercepted quarterback Joe Ferguson at the Dallas 12.

On the first play of the second half, quarterback Danny White flipped a short pass to tailback Tony Dorsett, who turned it into a 73-yard pass-and-run touchdown.

With the game tied, rookie cornerback Everson Walls intercepted Ferguson at the Buffalo 44. Two plays later, the Cowboys hoodwinked the Bills on a 37-yard White to Tony Hill flea flicker.

Turn out the lights. In less than three minutes the party was over.

"Dorsett's play got us back in the game," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "If I'd been Buffalo I would have come out in the second half pretty confident.

"Dorsett's touchdown shook them up. When things started going our way, their confidence broke down."

Dorsett said of the game-tying touchdown: "It's one of our standard plays. We ran it earlier and the linebacker came over and knocked the heck out of me. So the next time we ran it I saw him coming and hooked inside of him. Danny dumped it off and I just started running."

Dorsett, who rushed for 117 yards on 28 carries and joined the 1,000 yard rushing club for the fifth consecutive year, had a big hand on the flea-flicker to Hill.

Dorsett took a handoff from White then turned around and flipped the ball back to him. Hill was wide open for the touchdown pass to give Dallas a 21-14 lead.

Rafael Septien field goals of 47 and 31 yards completed a 20-point outburst in the third quarter.

Ferguson, who threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler in the first quarter, was intercepted four times by the young Dallas secondary, twice by Everson Walls, who leads the NFL with 10.

Buffalo also got a first half touchdown from halfback Joe Cribbs, who passed nine yards to Curtis Brown.

White hit tight end Doug Cosbie with a 12-yard scoring pass in the first period.

The victory gave the Cowboys a 28-9 edge over AFC teams and dropped Buffalo's record to 14-19-1 against the NFC. Buffalo has failed to defeat the Cowboys in the three games in their brief series.

Biles To Decide...

A New QB For Houston?

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oiler Coach Ed Biles is going to have a fun week keeping his quarterbacks in perspective.

"John Reaves did a great job for the Houston Oilers, you've got to keep that in perspective," Biles said Monday, discussing his dilemma of choosing a starting quarterback for Sunday's game at Kansas City.

Should Biles go with Reaves, who stepped into a must-win situation and led the Oilers to a 17-16 victory over Oakland Sunday, snapping a three-game skid?

Or should he return to Stabler, who injured his left wrist two weeks ago, but led the Oilers to an 11-5 record and a playoff berth last season?

Battle lines are forming on both sides and Biles smiled devilishly Monday at the prospects of a week of speculation.

"You guys can have fun guessing all week because I won't make a decision until game time," Biles said. "I'm not saying now who it will be."

The key apparently will be Stabler's health.

"If Ken Stabler is 100 per cent, he's our No. 1 quarterback," Biles said. "You don't make changes on the basis of one game. Stabler has taken us to a number of victories in the past two years.

"That's like saying (rookie wide receiver) Mike Holston caught three passes Sunday so do you say he's the starter and Mike Renfro goes to the bench? (rookie cornerback) Bill Kay went 1½ quarters and didn't get burned. Is he the starter instead of J.C. Wilson?"

Reaves, a nine-year veteran who spent last season recovering from drug and alcohol addiction, knows who should start.

"I don't see how they can keep me out of the lineup," Reaves said. "I believe I will be the starting quarterback this week."

Stabler, nonchalantly explained his feelings "I have no idea what I'll be doing next week. I may be selling sporting goods or driving the bus."

Brewer Will Start For Texas Saturday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Junior Robert Brewer - described by Coach Fred Akers as "not all that big, not all that fast, not all that anything" - will start at quarterback when No. 10 Texas plays Texas Christian on Saturday.

Akers said Monday, however, that starting fullback Carl Robinson would remain suspended from the team and his loss, plus injuries, may force Texas to start fourth-teamer Darryl Clark at that position.

Brewer, a Richardson walk-on who earned a scholarship after his freshman year, led Texas to what Akers called a 14-14 "win" over Houston last Saturday after starter Rick McIvor got hurt.

"He (Brewer) went after it like a kid going after a piece of cake. He really enjoyed it," Akers told his weekly news conference.

Brewer, who directed Texas to 177 yards in total offense after the Longhorns had been held to 90 yards in the first half, was selected by Texas coaches as the most valuable player on offense. He had 93 yards passing on eight completions in 20 throws and ran for 16 yards.

Akers suspended Robinson for the Houston game and said he would also miss the TCU contest but declined to specify why he was being punished.

Snyder Defeats C-City; Prepares For Regionals

Coach Joyce Elrod's Tigers prepared for their upcoming Region I appearance by clouting Colorado City here last night, 15-8 and 15-5.

The Tigers, 31-5, are slated for a sixth straight appearance in the regional volleyball tournament Saturday at Lubbock High Gym. Colorado City, the District 7-AAA champion, will also compete at regionals, though in a different class.

"Colorado City is much improved over the last couple of years," said Elrod. "We hadn't played them in a couple of years and they are a lot strong now," she noted. "They stayed right with us for the first seven or eight points of the first game and gave us a lot of trouble.

"We hadn't worked out since we played (Monahans) Thursday and we were pretty cold. Our defense was good but we weren't hitting like we should," she noted.

Kathy Northcott was a key to the victory. She served 11 points of the first game, including several aces, to help Snyder break away from the visitors. C-City went ahead 3-0 in the second game, but Northcott came up with nine straight points on serves to change the direction of the match again.

Her 21 points led the Tigers while Sherri Rich and Shana Koonsman had 3 each, Becky Harrell had 2 and Toni Elrod had 1.

Region I Tournament officials had been expected to draw (pair the teams) today, to determine opponents for Saturday's tournament. However, it was learned this morning that the draw has been changed to Wednesday. Directors were also unable to provide the list of 4A schools qualifying, although it is known Snyder will represent 2-4A, Graham will represent 3-4A and Everman will represent 4-4A. Phone calls would not reveal the 1-4A champion, but it was expected to be Lubbock Estacado.

First-round matches Saturday will be held at 10:15 and 11:30 a.m. The championship match will be at 3:15. Tickets will be $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Reggie May Reconsider And Check Out 1st Base

NEW YORK (AP) - With an outfield of Dave Winfield, Jerry Mumphrey and Ken Griffey, it doesn't take a genius to figure that Reggie Jackson is the odd man out of the New York Yankees defensive alignment for next season.

Or is he?

Jackson, a free agent, seemed resigned to finishing out his career as a designated hitter until his agent, Gary Walker, raised the possibility Monday that his client is willing to give first base a shot. Walker said he discussed the possible move with other clubs and will talk about it soon with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

The Yankees still could sign Jackson before Thursday at midnight, the deadline for a team to sign any of its players who has declared for eligibility in Friday's free agent reentry draft.

"I think Reggie would be reasonably comfortable as the designated hitter, but first he would like to experiment with first base," Walker said from his office at Tempe, Ariz. "He'd like to try first base with a great deal of gusto, give it a go. I've discussed the idea with Reggie in the last few days."

The American League champions could have as many as five of its players drafted by other clubs with the addition Monday of outfielder Lou Piniella to the list of those who have declared, joining Jackson, Bobby Murcer and pitchers Ron Guidry and Dave LaRoche.

3 Persons Convicted In Milk Fraud Trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Federal and state officials will try to recover $486,000 in school lunch overpayments to Mission schools, says the prosecutor who won three jury convictions in the fraud case.

"Quite a few school districts have been lax in this program," Assistant U.S. Attorney Eddie Medrano said. "'I think they see and know now that the United States will actively prosecute."

After a four-week trial, a federal court jury found two present Mission school employees and a former employee guilty Monday of conspiring to bilk the federal school lunch program of the money over a five-year period.

Those convicted and subject to a possible 10-year prison term and $10,000 fine are Michael Jon McCarthy, school food services director; Jane Alice Cook, former school secretary; and Gerardo Cortez, head cook supervisor.

Miss Cook was acquitted on a separate count of fraud. Cortez and McCarthy were acquitted of 13 and 27 counts, respectively, of fraud and mail fraud.

They will be sentenced Dec. 16.

The jury deadlocked on a fourth defendant, Assistant Superintendent Robert Harold Wicks. He and McCarthy had been charged with misprision, a felony charge of knowing about wrongdoing but failing to report it.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda declared a mistrial on the misprision count for both Wicks and McCarthy and set a Dec. 2 jury selection.

"I don't feel real good, because the others got convicted," said Wicks after the verdict was returned at 3:35 p.m. Friday. "We wanted to get the school district out of it and we're tickled it's out of it."

Criminal charges against the school district were dismissed earlier.

The other defendants left the courtroom with their lawyers and a probation officer and declined comment on the outcome.

Jurors deliberated nine hours, including four hours on Friday before taking a weekend recess. As jurors entered the courtroom to announce the verdict, they looked straight ahead without glancing at the defendants.

The defendants sat calmly in the courtroom as the court clerk read the verdicts. DeAnda had cautioned defendants and spectators against any emotional outbursts.

The trial culminated a year-long investigation by the FBI and the U.S. Department of Agriculture inspector general's office. On July 14, a federal grand jury indicted 13 people, the school district and the Golden Jersey Creamery of Edinburg.

The indictments said that school workers would ask dairy employees to make up false milk delivery invoices. The fake tickets would be used to falsely document that the school district had purchased enough milk to qualify 762,655 meals for reimbursement, according to the indictment.

Under federal rules, each breakfast or lunch claimed for federal payment must include a half-pint of milk or the entire meal is ineligible. The value of the milk allegedly not served was $70,000.

The Edinburg dairy, four of its employees and the former school food services director pleaded guilty in the case. Charges were dismissed against a fifth dairy worker.

Of the seven people who went on trial, charges were dropped against one, another pleaded guilty and a third was allowed to go on probation without pleading guilty.
