Donald T. Regan is willing to testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's chief of staff, Donald T. Regan, is willing to testify before Congress in open hearings on what he knew about the secret sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to Contra rebels in Nicaragua, the White House said today.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes also gave new emphasis to the administration's recommendation that former White House aides tell Congress what they knew. Several officials, including former national security adviser John Poindexter and his fired aide, Oliver North, have refused to answer any questions, invoking the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination.

"We do reiterate, underscore and publicly proclaim that we would like for them to testify; we would like for them to work out a means to testify; we would like for them to tell the entire story; we would like for them to tell it in open session, and we would like for them to do it as quickly as possible," Speakes said.

Regan has said he supported the sale of arms to Iran but did not know profits were being diverted to the Contras. It had been uncertain whether Regan would be willing to testify before Congress or whether the White House would invoke executive privelege and refuse to let him appear.

"Don Regan is willing to testify if the committee thinks he can add anything to their investigation," Speakes said.

"He'd be glad to do so; he'd be glad to do so in open session," Speakes said.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said his committee expects to call Regan and Attorney General Edwin Meese III to testify at closed-door hearings this week.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas quoted Regan as saying to him Saturday evening: "I'll tell you one thing. I'm not leaving the White House."

Some lawmakers in both parties have suggested Regan step down or be dismissed, but Dole said he believes the chief of staff "has done a pretty good job."

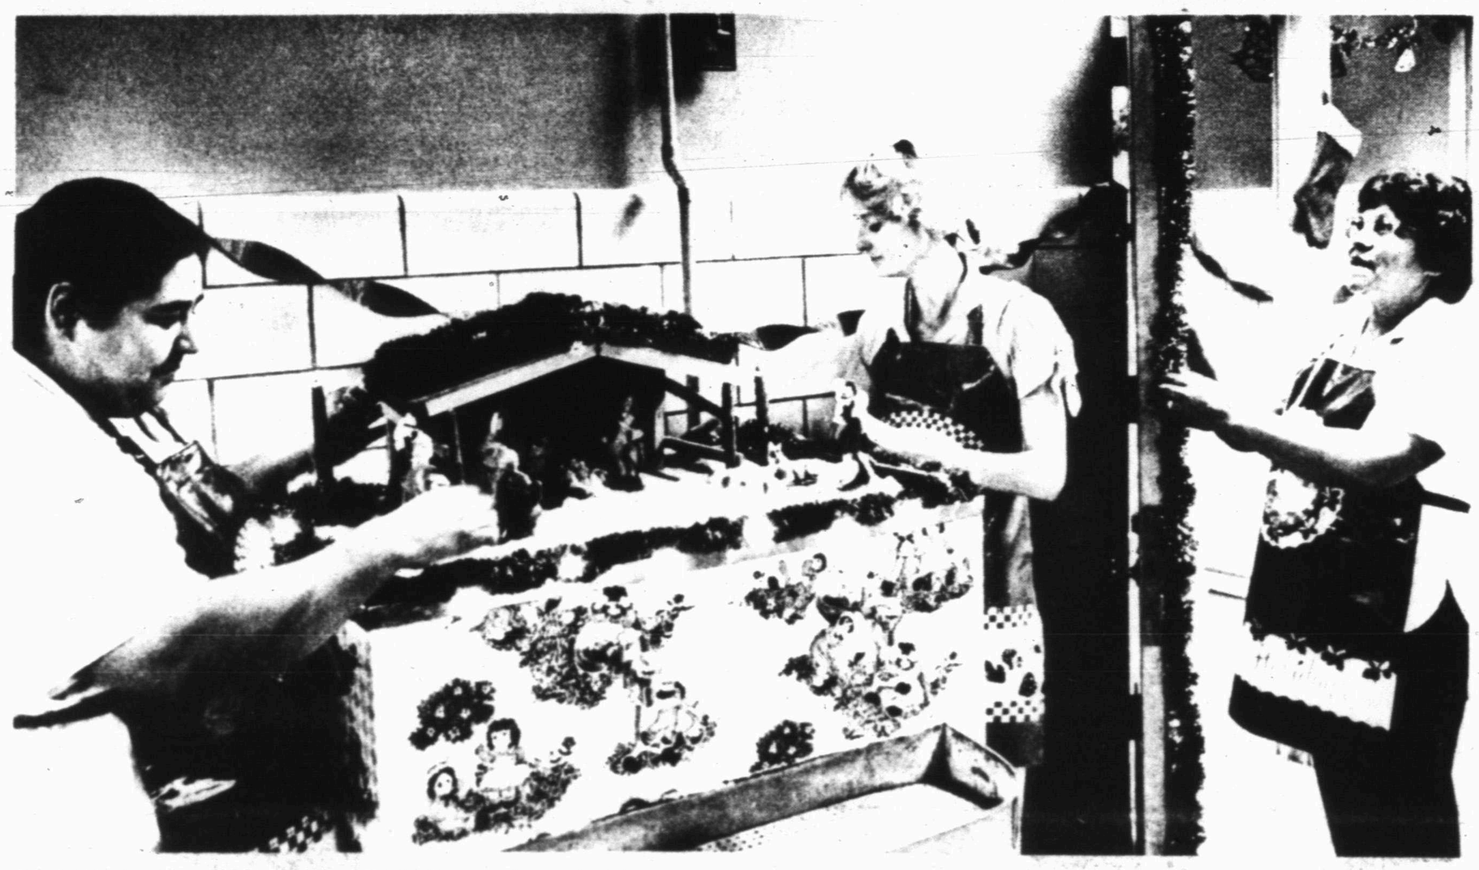

As for whether the president, himself, would be willing to testify, Speakes said he did not anticipate a request from any committee for Reagan's testimony. "Generally they don't do that," Speakes said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., speaking on the "CBS Morning News" today, said the president would be welcome to testify before a congressional committee.

In another development, Vice President George Bush was calling his top national security aide to account for all contacts with a former CIA employee who has been described as a coordinator of supply flights for rebels.

Standoff linked to local

The robbery of a Colorado City drug store last Wednesday--a crime linked at the time to a Scurry County man--was apparently repeated in the small community of Clyde Saturday, this time resulting in a police chase and a 2½ hour hostage situation involving a Clyde man and the local suspect.

Suspect Gary Don Parks, 35, was hospitalized immediately following the incident, apparently as a result of drugs taken during the course of the day.

The man taken hostage was not harmed in the incident and the "weapon" said used by Parks turned out to be a plastic toy pistol.

The hostage, Jerry Howle of Clyde, brother of Larry Howle, owner of Howle's Discount Pharmacy, walked unharmed from the business around 2:30 p.m. Saturday. He said he left after realizing the weapon brandished by Parks was a toy.

Reports indicate the suspect set the gun aside in order to use drugs provided him during the incident. It was the effect of drugs said taken during the day which reportedly hospitalized Parks Saturday afternoon.

He was treated during the weekend in the Critical Care Unit at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene. A sheriff's office spokesman in Callahan County said he was to be transferred out of CCU later Monday.

Monday morning, Callahan County law officials were preparing charges of aggravated robbery and kidnapping against Parks.

In addition, he faces charges of armed robbery in connection with the Colorado City incident. It involved a man fitting Parks' description who held up Perkin's' Apothecary and Merchantile.

During that holdup, the suspect reportedly kept a gun tucked inside the waistband of his trousers.

Taken during the incident was the narcotic Dialaudid plus several syringes and approximately $30 in cash.

Area law enforcement officials had been searching for Parks since that time. In addition, a Scurry County arrest warrant was issued for him Nov. 24 after a felony probation term for posses-

Panel to decide about Contra probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee, confounded in its efforts to find critical pieces of the Iran-Contra puzzle, will be trying to decide this week whether to keep its investigation going or suspend it until next year.

"I think we've pretty much resolved what happened during the transfer of arms to Iran, how it came about, who initiated it," said Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the panel. "Those kinds of questions, I think, we have a pretty clear picture of."

But committee has been stymied in answering the question of what happened to the profits from those sales.

"We haven't received a shred of testimony concerning the dispostion of that money," Cohen said.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III, after a preliminary inquiry made at President Reagan's request, said on Nov. 25 that profits from the arms sales went to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The committee was holding a business meeting late today to assess the status of the investigation. On Tuesday, the panel plans to hear from several witnesses, including CIA Director William Casey.

The committee then will decide whether it wants to call a series of top Cabinet-level witnesses, including Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan.

So far, though, the Senate Intelligence Committee, which has been pursuing the most detailed examination of the financial aspects of the deal of several Capitol Hill probes, has been unable to unravel the mystery.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., the committee chairman, said Sunday, "It's like a jigsaw puzzle" and the committee has 95 of 100 pieces.

Appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley," Durenberger said that with the testimony of Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter and Marine Lt. Col Oliver L. North, the committee would have the remaining pieces of the puzzle.

"There are two people in America who can solve this problem today: John Poindexter and Oliver North. Those two people know the facts," Durenberger said.

However, Poindexter, Reagan's former national security adviser, and North, fired as a key National Security Council aide, have declined to testify, citing their Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Called session slated by councilmen today

A called meeting of the Snyder city council was slated for 1 p.m. Monday to consider a four item agenda.

The session was called primarily to allow council members to complete a second reading of an updated service credit related to the city's participation in the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

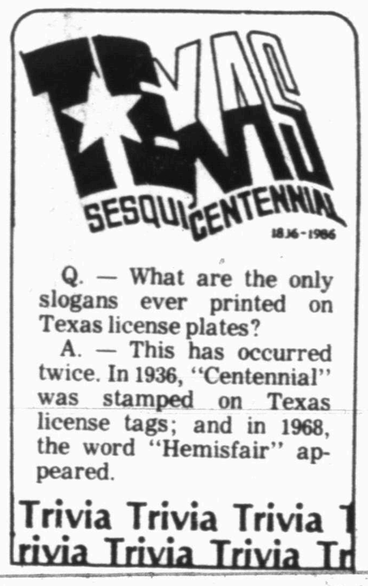

The action was required before the first of the year.

Other agenda items scheduled include:

—Second reading of a zone change request involving two lots located at 1701 18th St. Benny Bollinger has sought to change the zoning from M-1 (light manufacturing) to R-3 (general residential).

—Allowing staff members to seek bids for used city equipment.

—Considering a utility easement request submitted by Texas Electric Service Company. The land involved is the city-owned alfalfa field located just south of east 37th St.

Q. — What are the only slogans ever printed on Texas license plates?

A. — This has occurred twice. In 1936, "Centennial" was stamped on Texas license tags; and in 1968, the word "Hemisfair" appeared.

New telephone books now being distributed

Beginning Monday, Southwestern Bell Telephone had begun distributing the 1986-87 Snyder directory.

The new book includes 53 pages with some 8,217 listings and 96 yellow pages. More than 10,000 books will be delivered to customers in the Snyder and Hermleigh exchanges.

Each residential customer will receive one directory, but additional copies are available by calling the Bell business office.

"Distribution of the books should be completed by Dec. 22, so we ask customers to be patient if their friend across town receives a book before they do," said Jim West, manager-community relations.

Emergency phone numbers have been placed on the inside front cover of the new directory. In the "Customer Guide" at the front, information on how to do business with Southwestern Bell is provided.

The directory contains listings for Snyder and Hermleigh calling areas.

The year's cover art features Texan Ross Edwards' "Telecommunications Possibilities" with Texas as the center of a "universe" which includes knowledge, technology and Five Snyder High School bandsmen were named to the TMEA All-Region Band for 1986-87 following auditions in Haskell Saturday.

Zalman and Pylant were also chosen to advance to area auditions in Lubbock Jan. 10.

They will be competing for places in the All-State Band at that contest. The events are sponsored through the Texas Music Educators Association.

Lower speed limits likely for two parks

Commissioners approved a motion Monday asking the city council to pass an ordinance establishing a 20 mph speed limit in both Towle Park and Northeast Park.

DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

City Engineer Don Osborn noted that three signs in Towle Park and two signs in Northeast Park post the speed at 25 mph.

Commissioners will make the request to the city since city police will provide primary enforcement of the speed zone. The court added that the county will purchase the signs and city employees will erect them.

Court members agreed to adopt Towle Park Road South as the name of the major street through the park from College Avenue to the west end of the facility. The road through the northern portion of the park will

Coelho assumes No. 3 post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Tony Coelho, applying the zeal of a would-be priest to the rebuilding of his party's campaign prowess, has climbed to the No. 3 spot in the House Democratic leadership in only four terms in Congress.

Now, the 44-year-old Californian and new majority whip, instead of winning votes for his colleagues, will have to be winning his colleagues' votes. And he also will need to start winning over the Republicans he's been trying to defeat.

The whip leads a team of vote-counters and arm-twisters charged with keeping the House productive, putting together the blocks of votes that get bills passed. It's a job that requires diligence and organization, two skills prominent in the fastidious and hard-working Coelho.

Supporters have no doubt he'll also be able to reach across the aisle to the Republicans. Those votes will be needed especially in cases where Congress is confronting the president, since the 258-177 Democratic majority is not enough to override a presidential veto.

Within the Democratic organization there was opposition to Coelho becoming the whip, largely from supporters of Charles Rangel of New York who said the leadership needed some regional balance.

With the departure of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., all the top leadership posts have fallen to members from west of the Mississippi. The Democrats have nominated Jim Wright of Texas to become speaker next month and have elected Thomas Foley of Washington as majority leader.

"Jim Wright will take care of the Northeast," says Coelho, who also notes that many of the chairman of House committees are Easterners. Besides, Coelho and his supporters contend, his tireless traveling and fund-raising as chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee have made him "a national Democrat."

Coelho won the whip election with 167 votes. Rangel was his closest rival with 78.

The election was a way for Democrats to repay Coelho for his extraordinary work on their behalf.

Coelho took over the campaign committee after the 1980 elections, when the party was in shock after the Reagan landslide resulted in a Republican takeover of the Senate and a 37-seat GOP gain in the House.

Two years later, the Democrats bounced back with a 26-seat gain and they lost only 15 seats in 1984, when Reagan demolished the party in the presidential race. Last month, only one Democratic House incumbent lost for re-election and the party picked up five seats.

Coelho is a native of Los Banos, Calif., where he was raised on a dairy farm and became the first member of his family to graduate from college. He was student body president at Loyola University in Los Angeles, where he received his degree in 1964.

Coelho was 22 years old, planning to enter a Roman Catholic seminary to study for the priesthood, when he was diagnosed as having epilepsy. Church law at the time barred him from becoming a priest, a crushing personal blow.

During his period of despair, Coelho was introduced to comedian Bob Hope and his wife, Dolores, and they suggested he work for his local congressman, B.F. Sisk.

Coelho spent 15 years working for Sisk, learning the craft of a master campaigner and lawmaker. In 1978, when Sisk retired, Coelho won his seat.

Pollution threatens No. 1 foreign car port in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Airborne acid is eating away at the paint on new cars as they pass through this city, endangering Jacksonville's status as the nation's No. 1 port for foreign automobiles.

"Everybody agrees there is a problem and we need to solve the problem," Mayor Jake Godbold said Thursday.

"It's sulfuric acid and it's coming from somewhere," said Vic McNair, executive vice president and general manager of World Cars Inc., an auto processing firm. "It's eating the paint right down to the bare metal."

McNair said the problem was forcing him to wash, wax and repaint hundreds of new cars, just off the boat, before turning them over to dealers.

BMW has decided no longer to ship its cars through Jacksonville, and other automakers have threatened to make the same move.

"We have had nightmares in what we've been going through," said Margie Foster, port representative for BMW. "We need to find a solution to it."

The acid is not a health hazard because the particles are too large to be inhaled, said Patricia Cowdery, director of the Jacksonville Department of Health, Welfare and Bio-Environmental Services.

"It is not the kind of particles that can cause cardio-respiratory kinds of problems," she said, but added that the pollution might cause minor nasal and skin irritation for brief periods of time.

The problem has been around since the late 1970s, but seemed to worsen this year, said C. Cliff Mendoza of the Jacksonville Port Authority.

An estimated 6 percent to 8 percent of the 520,000 vehicles entering the port each year are affected, forcing auto companies to spend $4 million over the past 10 years washing, polishing and repainting cars, said Godbold, who has appointed a special committee to look in to the situation.

City officials say nearby industrial plants, generating stations and ships are responsible for some of the pollution, but that some may also come from as far away as the Ohio Valley.

If ships are responsible for much of the acid, the city must be careful in trying to control the pollution, Mendoza said. "Autos are 30 percent of (the port's) total business. They are critical to us. It is important to keep them here."

But if the city cracks down on emissions from ships "we also stand the chance of losing that portion of the trade," he added. "We want to be able to have our cake and eat it too. We want to keep the cars here, but we don't want to run off the ships."

Dear Abby

Cary Grant's Trademark Was His Inimitable Style

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A few years ago, Carrie Dolan, a bright young reporter for The Wall Street Journal, was assigned to interview Cary Grant, who was in the San Francisco area for one of his rare lecture appearances. She began her article this way:

"Recently, I was alone in an elegant hotel suite with Cary Grant. My life has not been wasted.

"Sure, it was a Sunday morning, and we only had coffee. And actually we were alone for only a few minutes while his wife went downstairs to mail a letter. It doesn't matter. There are only two good reasons to become a reporter: to help change the world or to meet Cary Grant.

"Mr. Grant is perhaps the only living man who can inspire lust in any red-blooded American girl — and her mother and her grandmother. He was the one Mae West invited to come up and see her sometime. Mr. Grant is 80 years old. I am 24. It doesn't matter."

Cary Grant, who was every bit as good as he looked, deserved to live a long and rewarding life, and when it ended, to exit peacefully, swiftly and mercifully. And he did — on Nov. 29, just seven weeks before what would have been his 83rd birthday. Not a bad score. He couldn't have written a better ending himself. And the timing was just about perfect.

Over the last half-century, Cary Grant had probably more imitators than any other star of the stage or screen. Not only was he devastatingly handsome, he had a style all his own. The way he walked and talked and moved was unmistakably Cary Grant. Both on the screen and off, he was charming, witty and debonair.

Cary Grant was a superstar in every sense of the word. He wore his stardom with grace and dignity, and for all his fame and adoration, he remained miraculously unspoiled.

He quit making movies more than 20 years ago by choice, but in recent years he made occasional appearances in theaters around the country, billed simply as "A Conversation With Cary Grant." He didn't need much advertising. One small ad would appear in the local newspaper, and the house was immediately sold out. Everywhere he played, he received a standing ovation for simply walking out on the stage. He had no routine; he just sat perched on a long-legged stool in the middle of a bare stage with the spotlight beamed on his famous face, and for an hour and a half he would answer questions from the audience. They loved it. And so did he.

Cary Grant closed his "conversation" with a piece he called "A Meditation," clearly stating that he did not know who wrote it, but it expressed his own sentiments about growing older. And here it is:

"Now Lord, you've known me a long time. You know me better than I know myself. You know that each day I am growing older and someday may even be very old, so meanwhile please keep me from the habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion.

"Release me from trying to straighten out everyone's affairs. Make me thoughtful, but not moody, helpful but not overbearing. I've a certain amount of knowledge to share; still it would be very nice to have a few friends who, at the end, recognized and forgave the knowledge I lacked.

"Keep my tongue free from the recital of endless details. Seal my lips on my aches and pains: They increase daily and the need to speak of them becomes almost a compulsion. I ask for grace enough to listen to the retelling of others' afflictions, and to be helped to endure them with patience.

"I would like to have improved memory, but I'll settle for growing humility and an ability to capitulate when my memory clashes with the memory of others. Teach me the glorious lesson that on some occasions I may be mistaken.

"Keep me reasonably kind; I've never aspired to be a saint ... saints must be rather difficult to live with ... yet on the other hand, an embittered old person is a constant burden.

"Please give me the ability to see good in unlikely places and talents in unexpected people. And give me the grace to tell them so, dear Lord."

Chairman of Communist Party USA dies in Moscow

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Winston, the longtime chairman of the Communist Party USA who lost his eyesight while imprisoned during the 1950s, has died in Moscow following a brief illness, the party announced Sunday. He was 75.

Winston died Friday after going to the Soviet Union to seek medical treatment about the time of the November mid-term elections in the United States, the party said.

The death was announced in Moscow during a meeting of party activists Sunday, according to party officials in New York.

A son of Mississippi sharecroppers, Winston became active in the Unemployed Councils during the Depression and later in the Southern Negro Youth Congress before joining the Communist Party. He served in the U.S. Army in the European theater during World War II.

He was sentenced to eight years in prison in the 1950s under the Smith Act, which called for the jailing of those who taught or advocated the violent overthrow of the government. He became the party's chairman in 1963.

During his time in prison, the party said, he was not treated properly for his failing eyesight and went blind after receiving delayed medical attention.

He was the author of pamphlets and books about the conditions of black people in the United States and South Africa, including "Strategy for a Black Agenda" and "Class, Race and Black Liberation."

Ten years ago, scientists found a previously unknown species of shark with an enormous, glowing mouth that apparently lures krill, says National Geographic.

Military aid plan rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — Many Americans do not know which side the United States supports in Nicaragua, but six in 10 Americans oppose military aid to the Contras, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll taken before the White House disclosed that profits from arms sales to Iran were funneled to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Fifty-eight percent of the 1,251 adult Americans in the nationwide telephone poll knew the U.S. supports the Contras, the forces who are fighting the Nicaraguan government, but 42 percent did not know.

And while those who knew which side the U.S. backs were more likely to support military aid than those who did not know, majorities of both groups opposed aid.

In August, Congress approved a $100 million aid package for the Contras that would provide $70 million for arms and other military supplies.

Overall, 60 percent of the respondents in the Media General-AP poll opposed military aid, 19 percent supported it, and 21 percent were unsure.

Among those who opposed aid, 37 percent said the money should be used for solving domestic problems and 20 percent said the Nicaraguan conflict was not the business of the United States. The rest cited other reasons.

Among those who supported aid to the Contras, 44 percent said it was necessary to fight communism and 17 percent said it was needed to stop a threat to the United States.

The poll was conducted in mid-November, before disclosures by President Reagan and Attorney General Edwin Meese III on Nov. 25 that millions of dollars in profits from weapon sales to Iran had been diverted to the Contras by administration officials.

While most people opposed aid to the Contras, a 58 percent majority believed the security of the United States was threatened by communist governments in Latin America. And 49 percent of those who held that belief said the United States should try to overthrow communist governments, while 37 percent opposed such efforts. Fourteen percent were unsure.

CHRISTMAS EVERY DAY based on a story by William Dean Howells

People like to know what the 'biggies' make yearly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Call it voyeurism. Or envy. Or just plain curiosity.

Whatever the case, editors at several publications say detailed, dollar-for-dollar surveys of how much money people make — particularly those pulling in six- and seven-figure salaries — are among their most popular stories.

The current issue of Washingtonian magazine, for example, features a salary rundown of the capital's 50 top earners, led by Washington Bullets basketball player Moses Malone at $2,145,000 a year.

The rest of the high-roller list includes professional athletes, corporate executives, television personalities and stockbrokers — but no politicians or government officials.

"It's one of the more popular stories we do. We get a lot of interest in it," said senior editor Robert Pack, who was in charge of compiling the salary data over a two-month period.

He added, "I guess it's a sense of voyeurism — everyone likes to know what other people make."

Business Week magazine also publishes an "Executive Compensation Scoreboard" surveying pay of top-earning corporate executives.

Leading the effort to publicize big-bucks salaries, however, is USA Today, which during recent months has devoted major play to painstakingly detailed surveys of pay among college football and basketball coaches, athletic directors, college presidents and pro baseball players.

The newspaper's survey of 101 large public universities found college presidents paid an average of nearly $95,000 a year and ranking as the top-paid public official in 47 of 50 states.

Along with salaries of the educators, USA Today also disclosed perks ranging from a $3.5 million mansion provided for University of Illinois President Stanley Ikenberry to a $46 annual allotment of produce from the university farm for President F. Jay Taylor at Louisiana Tech.

At the same time, the survey found that football coaches are being paid more than their institution's president at Alabama's Auburn University, Michigan State and the University of Washington.

For example, coach Don James at the University of Washington in Seattle receives a base salary of $103,344 plus benefits, including use of a summer camp and a dealer-provided Mercedes 380SAL automobile. The university's president, William Gerberding, has a state salary of $95,052.

King among the college football coaches is Texas A&M's Jackie Sherrill, with a base salary of $114,190 and total pay package — including income from TV and radio shows, product endorsements and board memberships — estimated at $267,000 a year.

USA Today senior editor Bob Dubill said the salary surveys were part of an effort by the newspaper, headquartered in Rosslyn, Va., just across the Potomac from Washington, to make greater use of freedom of information laws in states across the country.

Auto salesman tries to stop foreclosure

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — An auto salesman was so moved by the plight of a 68-year-old woman about to lose her ranch to foreclosure that he has started a door-to-door fund drive to help her.

May Hess bought the ranch near the Northeast Texas community of Talco in the 1950s, but she could lose it unless she raises $5,400 by Jan. 2 to pay a loan she took out to help a sick brother who has since died.

"This lady is as helpless as anybody can be," Bill Stewart says. "I was born and raised on a farm in Petersburg, Texas, and I've known hard times. But not near as hard as what she's gone through."

Mrs. Hess, who is unable to walk without using an aluminum walker or wheelchair, has only her monthly Social Security check of more than $400 and her 30 cows, which have been quarantined until May, she said.

"I'm just counting the days now until January. They aren't many," she said, adding that if she loses the ranch, "I don't care what happens to me."

Stewart said he got involved after reading of her plight and calling the Farm Crisis Hotline to see how much money she needed. Then he went up and down Main Street in this Dallas suburb asking fellow business owners and friends for donations.

That effort brought in about $2,800 in contributions ranging from $1 to $100. The Omaha, Texas, bank that lent Mrs. Hess $25,500 to help her brother accepted the amount and gave her until Jan. 2 to come up with the additional $5,400 due to date on the loan.

"Now I've been trying to collect the additional $5,400, but I'm very discouraged" said Stewart, who's only raised another $1,000.

"She's a victim of circumstance," he said. "She's a very strong person considering what she's gone through. A lot of us would have thrown our hands up and given up."

Texans have trouble getting aid to Contras

DALLAS (AP) — The contra aid movement appears to be drying up because of the controversy surrounding the U.S.-Iran arms deal, according to Texans who have been involved in efforts to raise money for the contras.

The Freedom's Friends organization, headed by evangelist William Murray, has gathered 10,000 Christmas presents at an Addison warehouse for contra families, but he said he is having trouble getting them shipped.

The Texans for a Free Nicaragua organization has 30,000 pounds of medical supplies and clothing for the rebels stored in Grand Prairie. One of its leaders, Gary Bennett, said the group doesn't have the money to ship the supplies.

Officials of civilian rebel support groups say they've had difficulty raising contributions and have faced myriad financial woes since reports that up to $30 million from the U.S.-Iran arms deal was diverted to Nicaraguan contras.

They say the controversy has damaged public confidence in the private organizations and created a climate of paranoia among government officials who once made themselves available to help civilian groups direct humanitarian aid to the rebels.

In the Dallas-Fort Worth region, traditionally a leading outpost for civilian aid to the anti-Sandinista forces, some rebel-assistance groups say contributions have plummeted, stalling shipments of food, clothing and medical supplies.

Murray's organization, which has raised more than $250,000 to ship $1 million in items ranging from antibiotics to crutches, reports that donations are down by almost 40 percent this month.

Murray said he is asking the Agency for International Development to ship 2,000 presents he received from Japan and hundreds more from across the United States on a military cargo plane bound for the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa. The material then would be trucked to rebel base camps.

Previously, private contra support groups were able to ship nonlethal supplies by including them in shipments transported through a special State Department Nicaraguan Office of Humanitarian Assistance, created when Congress approved $27 million in humanitarian aid in 1985.

Now the Nicaraguan humanitarian assistance office is being phased out.

Officials of rebel support groups also say they're hard-pressed to get any help from Washington since reports that Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, the fired National Security Council aide, diverted millions of dollars to the contras.

Murray and Bennett said that before the Iran arms controversy they appeared separately at Washington receptions in which North, a leading spokesman for the contra cause, appealed to their organizations to continue private efforts on behalf of the contras.

But the controversy is eating away at conservative groups that have sought to help the contras.

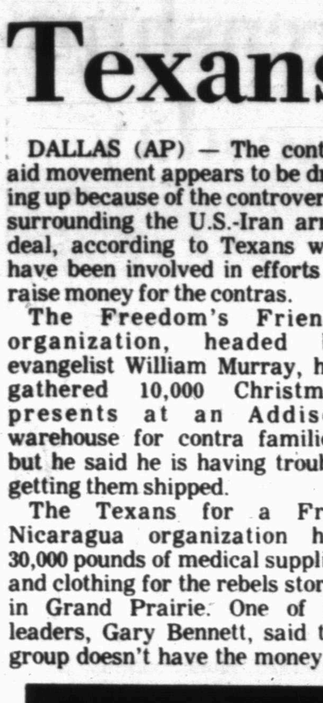

"I'm not trying to bash anybody," said ret. Army Capt. D.L. "Pappy" Hicks, until recently the Head of the Civilian Military Assistance organization in Texas. "But I wouldn't have messed with Iran as long as Khomeini is alive."

Hicks, a veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, has journeyed several times into the Honduran jungle, delivering food, clothing and medical supplies for displaced Nicaraguan Indians battling the Sandinistas on the eastern coast of Nicaragua. He's transported several wounded soldiers and ill children to the United States for treatment.

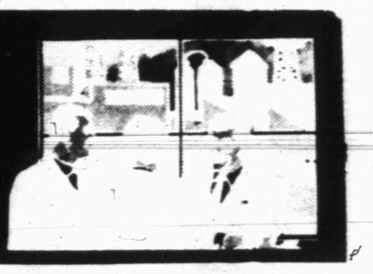

During previous visits to deliver supplies, both Hicks and Bennett acknowledged they also advised rebels on jungle fighting tactics and the care and maintenance of firearms. Now they've stopped offering training services because of changes in U.S. law governing such actions and concern that it could give a negative image to their cause.

"There's two things that started drying up money in Texas," Hicks said.

SHS Tigers defeat Frenship; open district play Tuesday

DENVER CITY -- Snyder's Tigers won their second straight ballgame here Saturday evening, defeating Frenship 65-45 to take consolation honors in the Denver City Basketball Tournament.

The victory gives Snyder a 6-6 season record as the Tigers prepare to open District 2-4A play Tuesday night in Fort Stockton.

"We're pleased," said Coach Larry Scott. "We felt like we should have won the Seminole game. Mistakes cost us there," he said, referring to the 73-68 four-overtime loss to Seminole of Thursday. "We are real pleased with the last two games. We feel like we are in pretty good shape going into district, coming off of two wins."

Snyder jumped out to a 21-2 advantage over Frenship, then battled even with the opponent the rest of the way. The Tigers hit 27 of 56 shots from the field, 48 percent, while Frenship managed only 18 of 51 shots for 35 percent.

"We hit our first four shots and that got us off to a good start. Their two points in the first half came off of free throws," he added. "Our defense was good. The Shields kid scored 27 against us the first time. We thought if we could hold him to 20 and not let their other three leading scorers pick up his slack we'd be okay."

Clint Shields scored 21 but the Tigers held Blake Buchanan to just 12. The post, Marvin Hood, scored only 2 points.

Snyder's effort was paced inside by Chris Garrett, who scored 20 points and pulled down 14 rebounds. Terry Garza scored 16 points, and also had 8 boards.

Tip-off for Tuesday's game with the Panthers will be 7:30 p.m. A junior varsity tilt is slated for 6 p.m.

ROAD RACING

DALLAS (AP) - Ed Swiatocha of Irving, Texas outdueled Jeff Roth of Dallas Sunday to win his second straight Dallas White Rock Marathon.

Swiatocha overcame a fading Roth in the final mile to win in the time of two hours, 22 minutes, 40 seconds.

Slumping Mavericks tripped up by Trail Blazers, 134-100

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks are having their Christmas party back in Dallas today and Coach Dick Motta says the team needs the rest after a stop in Portland.

The Mavericks fell to the Trail Blazers 134-100 Sunday night, the fourth outing for Dallas in five nights.

"Portland could have beaten anybody," Motta said, hoping his players will catch their breath before continuing with the NBA schedule. "When you're on the road and a little tired ... you've got to catch a team down. Portland certainly wasn't down."

The Blazers, opening a 41-22 lead in the first quarter, had seven players in double figures, with Jerome Kersey coming off the bench for 21 points, Steve Johnson adding 19 and Terry Porter 18.

Clyde Drexler topped the Portland effort with 22 points, while Kenny Carr had a career high in rebounding with 21.

"This was a very good basketball game by our team," Portland Coach Mike Schuler said. "Jerome had a nice game. He had the type of game that can inspire us. Carr did a great job. He's had a great year."

The victory, in the only NBA game Sunday night, was the seventh in eight games for the Blazers, boosting their record in the Pacific Division to 14-10, good for third place behind the Los Angeles Lakers and Golden State, respectively. Dallas, 14-8, fell out of first place in the Midwest, percentage points behind Utah.

Dallas forward Mark Aguirre led all scorers with 23 points.

Richardson's daughter stable

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The teenaged daughter of University of Arkansas basketball coach Nolan Richardson was in serious but stable condition after leukemia-related surgery, according to a spokeswoman for the University of Minnesota Hospital.

Yvonne Richardson, 15, who has leukemia, underwent the unspecified surgery Sunday after her temperature rose dramatically, a friend of the UA coach told the Arkansas Gazette.

Miss Richardson has been undergoing bone-marrow transplants. Members of Richardson's family were unavailable at the Minneapolis hospital Sunday night.

The hospital spokeswoman, who asked that her name not be used, said she was not authorized to release other information.

Richardson left Fayetteville, Ark., minutes after the Razorbacks' 106-57 defeat of Morgan State Saturday night to fly to Minneapolis.

Andy Stoglin, Richardson's top assistant, is to direct the basketball team until Richardson returns, said UA Athletic Director Frank Broyles.

"This is a day-to-day matter," Broyles said Saturday night.

Richardson told the Arkansas Democrat on Saturday that he did not know when he would return to Fayetteville. He said he may miss the 5-1 Razorbacks' game Thursday night in Fayetteville against Mississippi Valley State.

Richardson was head coach at Tulsa before taking the Arkansas job last year.

NFC apparently much clearer...

AFC playoff picture really scrambled

by The Associated Press

Not every team in the AFC has a shot at the playoffs heading into the last week of the NFL season. It only seems that way.

While the NFC has made things simple, the AFC playoff picture is one big jigsaw puzzle with a few pieces missing. Not only are the identities of three of the six conference playoff teams a mystery but the methods by which they can earn positions in the chase for the Super Bowl are equally mystifying.

The Cleveland Browns won the AFC Central title on Sunday with a 34-3 rout of the Cincinnati Bengals. If the 11-4 Browns beat San Diego next week, they will have the home-field advantage for all of their conference playoff contests.

The Denver Broncos already have the AFC West title and they clinched the NFC East championship for the New York Giants by beating Washington 31-30 on Saturday.

The New York Jets, mired in a four-game slide that has taken them from the top of the NFL to a 10-5 record and a tie with New England for first place in the AFC East, were handed a wild-card slot when Kansas City beat the Los Angeles Raiders 20-17 on Sunday. The day before, the Jets were beaten by Pittsburgh 45-24.

The defending AFC champion Patriots fell to San Francisco 29-24 and must beat Miami next Monday night to win the East. If they lose, the Jets get the division title no matter what they do in Cincinnati on Sunday.

Kansas City can nail down a wild-card berth by winning at Pittsburgh next weekend. Cincinnati must beat the Jets to have a chance at a wild card. Seattle, which took San Diego 34-24 on Sunday, needs a win over Denver next Saturday to stay alive for a wild card.

The tiebreaker combinations are such that they could result in almost anyone getting in, including Miami and the Raiders, both 8-7. If the Raiders win against Indianapolis and Seattle, Cincinnati and Kansas City lose, they make the playoffs. And if the Raiders and those other teams are beaten and Miami downs New England, the Dolphins get in.

The NFC avoided all of that wildness when Minnesota lost to Houston 23-10 and Dallas was upset 23-21 by Philadelphia. Combined with the 49ers' victory, the five postseason berths were secured.

The Giants, 27-7 winners over St. Louis, reign in the East, with Washington the host wild-card team. Chicago, which is in Detroit tonight, owns the Central crown. The 49ers are a half-game behind the Rams, who lost 37-31 to Miami in overtime, in the West, and they meet Friday night. The winner avoids the wild-card game, the loser travels to Washington.

Also on Sunday, it was Indianapolis 24, Buffalo 14; Green Bay 21, Tampa Bay 7; and New Orleans 14, Atlanta 9.

Browns 34, Bengals 3

From the opening play of the game, Cleveland's plan was obvious - throw bombs, force the action and try to outdo the NFL's hottest attack.

The Browns did just that, beginning with Bernie Kosar's 66-yard pass to Reggie Langhorne at the outset.

Cincinnati, which had five straight 400-yard games in which it had averaged 29 points, was held to 283 yards after gaining 584 a week ago against the Patriots.

49ers 29, Patriots 24

San Francisco used another big-play method to subdue the Patriots - turnovers. The 49ers, who lead the league in takeaways, scored their final 10 points after a fumble recovery and an interception. Ray Wersching's 20-yard field goal followed Tory Nixon's recovery of Tony Collins' fumble. Joe Cribbs' 10-yard touchdown run, which gave the 49ers a 29-17 edge with 7:28 to go, came after Keena Turner intercepted Tony Eason's pass and returned it to the New England 25.

Chiefs 20, Raiders 17

Turnovers also cost the Raiders, who lost the ball seven times. Two of those turnovers came in the final period, when a fumble by Napoleon McCallum was recovered by Tim Cofield and Kevin Ross intercepted a Jim Plunkett pass.

Oilers 23, Vikings 10

Three field goals by Tony Zendejas and five Minnesota turnovers were the difference. Warren Moon hit Ernest Givins with a 10-yard touchdown pass and Allen Pinkett scored on a 1-yard run for Houston.

Eagles end playoff hopes...

Cowboys home for Christmas

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Philadelphia Eagles finally lived up to the preseason brags of their coach Sunday just in time to apply a mercy killing to the death-spiraling Dallas Cowboys.

The Eagles gave a 23-21 coup de grace to the Cowboys, who saw professional sports' longest active victory streak of 20 consecutive seasons go down the drain.

It's only the third time in the past 20 years Dallas' won't be in the NFL playoffs. Last year's NFC East champions have lost six of their last seven games.

"We never thought about knocking the Cowboys out of the playoffs," said quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, who had two touchdown passes. "We were out to play for ourselves, not just hurt the Cowboys."

Eagles Coach Buddy Ryan made a brash preseason prediction of an NFC East title and a clean sweep of division foes. However, his first division scalp didn't come until Sunday to give the Eagles a 5-9-1 record.

"We didn't play that well I think, but all wins are good wins," Ryan said.

Ryan gave a game ball to Cavanaugh, who started only his second game this season. Cavanaugh threw two touchdown passes to Kenny Jackson, including the 31-yard, game-winner with 3:57 left.

"Cavanaugh did a good job filling in for Randall Cunningham," Ryan said. "He deserved a ball. Our offense did a heckuva job."

Cunningham sat out the game with a bruised thumb.

"Kenny kept saying he could go deep and he did," Cavanaugh said. "He's got a lot of confidence."

The Eagles won although they couldn't stop Herschel Walker, who compiled a club record 292 yards passing and receiving.

Walker ran 84 yards for a score and caught a pass for an 84-yard touchdown. He caught 9 passes for 170 yards and rushed for 122 yards on only six carries.

"We couldn't tackle Walker," Ryan said. "We missed tackles and he ran 100 yards. We had him double covered and he catches a pass for a touchdown. What can you do?"

Walker said he was 100 per cent healthy for the first time in more than a month.

"My injured ankle had been a very big problem," Walker said. "The loss was very tough. But you have to give Philadelphia credit."

Dallas led 21-16 after Walker's 84-yard scoring reception with 5:01 to go.

The Eagles charged back 57 yards, scoring on two plays.

"That's incredible," Walker said. "We scored, then looked up and they scored."

"It's disappointing to end up this way," said defensive tackle Randy White. "We have a lot of pride and tradition. Now all we can try to do is beat Chicago. I'm not folding up my tent."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry was philosophical about the season.

"You don't worry about losing seasons after being up for 20 years," Landry said. "But who knows. Maybe we'll bounce back and beat the Bears."

Landry hinted there could be a new quarterback against Chicago next week.

"Reggie Collier will play," Landry said. "I don't know if he will start, but he will play. It's the last game, and it certainly can't hurt you."

Steve Pelluer suffered two interceptions and was roundly booed although he had two touchdown passes.

"Steve's had a rough season, and that's what happens to young quarterbacks in the NFL," Landry added. "We're disappointed about the playoffs, but sometimes you have to drop down and bounce back."

Murdock, Townsend named to All-South Plains Team

LUBBOCK – Snyder standouts Dewayne Murdock and Randy Townsend have been named to the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's Class 4A - All-South Plains Team.

Murdock, a 6-3, 250-pounds, is a repeat choice as offensive tackle. The senior is also a two-time District 2-4A selection.

Townsend was the 2-4A placekicker of the year. The senior booted 11 of 11 extra point kicks and hit nine of 11 field goal tries.

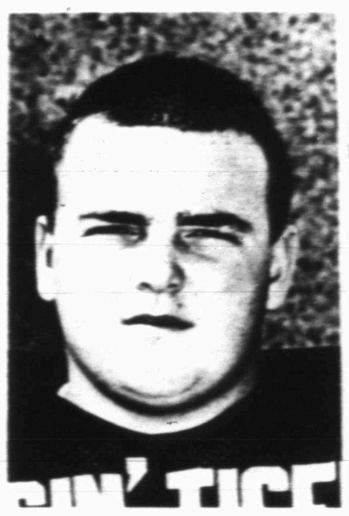

Leading the running back corps were Monahans' Charles Thompson and Dana Amos, along with Borger's Jerry Don Sweatt. Thompson paced the Loboes and District 2-4A with 1,634 yards and 28 touchdowns. Ironically, Amos - also a 1,000-yard plus rusher - made second team in 2-4A ball.

Thompson was the All-South Plains Player of the Year. Big Spring's Quinn Eudy was Coach of the Year.

The offensive team has Estacado's O.T. Thomas at quarterback, followed by Thompson, Amos and Sweatt at the running backs. Split end is Borger's Bobby Baker. The tight end is Jim Horton of Lamesa. Linemen are Murdock, Bruce Bentle of Sweetwater, Greg Cook of Canyon and Tim Escue of Levelland. Monahans' Ned Pate is the center and Townsend is the kicker.

Defensively, Johnny McLean of Canyon and Rone Reed of Sweetwater at the ends. Mike Smith of Estacado and Jay Burcham of Big Spring are down linemen while the linebackers are Michael Phibbs of Hereford, Mike Nix of Fort Stockton and Waylon Ward of Dumas.

Defensive backs include Sweetwater sophomore Kenneth Norman, Estacado's Jimmy Doss, Levelland's Ron Arrington and Borger's Charles Walker. The punter is Brian Mayfield of Big Spring.

QB Long pegged as starter for Detroit's Lions tonight

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The future arrives tonight for the Detroit Lions, when rookie quarterback Chuck Long makes his first NFL start in a game against the defending Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears.

"The Bears are definitely the best defensive team in the NFL," Long said. "It's going to be a real challenge. Being from the Chicago area (Long is a native of Wheaton), it's nice to start against the Bears. It's going to be awful tough, though.

"It's going to be interesting and it's going to be a lot of fun, hopefully."

Long's debut comes five years after the man he will replace, Eric Hipple, made an auspicious Monday night start against the Bears to move into the starting job.

This game will match two of college football's recent stars - Long, an All-American at Iowa who was second to Auburn's Bo Jackson in the voting for the 1985 Heisman Trophy, and the Bears' Doug Flutie, the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College. Although Mike Tomczak is listed as the probable starter at quarterback for the Bears, Flutie likely will see a lot of action as Chicago, which has clinched the NFC Central title, prepares for the playoffs.

The Bears, 12-2, need one more victory to lock up the home-field advantage in their first NFC playoff game the first weekend in January.

Long missed all of training camp because of a contract dispute. Because he was so far behind, Coach Darryl Rogers was reluctant to use him.

The rookie has taken only four snaps from center. Against Tampa Bay, he handed off three times and then, on his first NFL pass, threw a 34-yard touchdown to Leonard Thompson.

"The pressure's off," Long said. "We have everything to win by winning this game. We're not going to the playoffs, so we can't lose. It will be good experience for next season."

Long got a sympathy vote from Bears Coach Mike Ditka.

"There'll be some pressure on him," Ditka said. "But, knowing him and his family as I do, he'll respond. There's not a better pure passer in the game."

Feild all-around Cowboy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Utah cowboy Lewis Feild, who admits he "eased into rodeo kind of slowly," was named all-around world champion Saturday night at the finale of the National Finals Rodeo.

Feild, 30, of Elk Ridge, Utah, won a total of $166,000 during the regular rodeo season and the 10 rounds of the Las Vegas competition, dubbed "The Super Bowl of Rodeos."

Only the second cowboy to repeat as world champion since Tom Ferguson accomplished the feat in 1979, Feild said, "When I turned professional, I was prepared for it. I had a pretty good idea of how to do it before I ever got my professional card."

The 5-foot-8, 155-pound bareback and saddle bronc rider was the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association bareback rookie of the year in 1980. Now his career earnings now are approaching one-half million dollars.

He was one of more than 100 cowboys who shared in $1.9 million in prize money this time, a record purse for the event that began in Dallas in 1959 with total prizes of $50,000.

Chris Lybbert, 32, of Argyle, Texas, finished second in the money standings with $127,267 for the year.

Tuff Hedeman, 23, of Gainesville, Texas, was third with $123,049.

The rodeo is the culmination of a season that begins in January and winds up in Las Vegas in December - with 630 rodeo events scattered in between at cities ranging from Cowtown, N.J., to San Francisco.

The top 15 cowboys in each of seven events make it to the national finals, which moved to Las Vegas last year after promoters doubled the prize money to $1.6 million.

Jimmie Cooper, 30, of Monument, N.M., finished fourth in the money winnings with $116,077. Paul Tierney, 34, of Rapid City, S. Dakota, was fifth with $112,782.

Rounding out the top nine money winners were Dave Appleton, 26, Arlington, Texas, with $112,335; Clay O'Brien Cooper, 25, Gilbert, Ariz., with $111,211; Roy Cooper, 31, Durant, Okla., with $102,411; and Dee Pickett, 31, Caldwell, Idaho, with $94,284.

New Mexico teen-ager Charmayne James finished the season with $151,969, as the 16-year-old from Clayton became the first woman rodeo performer to break the $100,000 barrier.

Charles Sampson, 29, Los Angeles, failed in his bid to take top honors in the NFR bull riding championships when he was thrown from his bull in Saturday night's 10th and final round.

Sampson, the 1982 world bull riding champion who has undergone 30 hours of facial reconstruction surgery in recent years, was leading his event going into Saturday night's final round. He was beaten out for the finals championship by Jim Sharp of Kermit, Texas.

Other winners in Saturday night's final round were Marvin Garrett, Aladdin, Wyo., in the bareback riding; Ote Berry, Gordon, Neb., in the steer wrestling; Walt Woodard, Stockton, Calif.; and Jay Ellerman of Greeley, Colo., in the team roping. Mel Coleman, Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, in saddle bronc riding; Dan Webb, Midway, Texas, in calf roping; and Tamara Hammons, Lekin, Kan., in barrel racing.

HAS THIS EVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

Auto Accident?

Even a minor fender-bender can cause whiplash, spinal misalignment, pinched nerves and muscle spasms, which, if undetected and uncorrected, can make your body susceptible to arthritis, joint degeneration, disc degeneration or other serious problems.

Most Insurance Plans Cover Chiropractic.

Following any auto accident, no matter how minor, it is important — and makes good common sense — to get a chiropractic checkup.

We offer free consultation and spinal function test. If x-rays and treatments are indicated, automobile, liability, no-fault, and/or group health insurance usually cover the costs in full.

Rioters battle in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Rioters battled in back streets and set fire to hundreds of homes and shops in Karachi today, pushing the three-day toll from ethnic violence to 95 dead and at least 480 wounded.

It was the worst rioting in Karachi since Pakistan gained independence in 1947. The violence erupted late Saturday following drug and weapons raids by police on ethnic Pathan neighborhoods.

Rioters looted shops, banks and homes and set them afire throughout the city, witnesses said.

The army had orders to shoot rioters on sight, and the navy also was called in. However, the military stayed in their vehicles, and much of the rioting took place on alleys and streets too narrow for military vehicles, witnesses said.

Schools, businesses and factories shut down, and the city's port and docks were idle.

sion of a controlled substance was revoked.

The robbery at Clyde--located east of Abilene on I-20--began around 11 a.m. Saturday. Reports indicate the suspect demanded drugs from store owner Larry Howle, who reportedly gave him six painkillers and some syringes. Only two of these painkillers were later found.

After the holdup, the suspect left the store, reportedly headed toward Abilene. Meanwhile, Howle had copied his license tag number and reported the incident to authorities.

The vehicle driven by Parks was spotted by law enforcement officers, who then gave chase. The suspect then headed back toward Clyde and the Howle drugstore.

Clyde police were at the scene and reportedly shot out one of the tires of the pickup driven by Parks, who then jumped out of the still-moving vehicle and ran into the business.

Four individuals inside managed to flee, reports indicate. Left inside, however, were Jerry Howle and his 77-year-old father, Joe.

This occurred around noon, according to Callahan County Chief Deputy Mack West. The resulting standoff, which reportedly attracted hundreds of onlookers, lasted approximately 2½ hours, he said.

During this time, the elder Howle was released after his son explained the older man suffered from a heart condition.

After Jerry Howle managed to exit the business around 2:30 p.m., West said Parks surrendered to law officials without a struggle.

Rep. Barnes calls for investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman is calling for an investigation of allegations that money siphoned from U.S. arms sales to Iran went to conservative groups boosting supporters of President Reagan's pro-Contra policy and targeted opponents with TV ads. But the White House says it knows nothing of such a diversion.

Rep. Mike Barnes, D-Md., said Sunday he would formally request today that the congressional committees being set up to investigate the Iran-Contra matter look into whether conservative U.S. groups got some of the weapons-sale proceeds, as was reported Sunday in The Sun newspaper of Lowell, Mass.

The newspaper did not identify the sources for its story.

At the White House, meanwhile, spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We found nothing here in the White House in our investigation," which he said was limited and not yet complete, "to indicate anything in the files which points to political campaigns being funded with money from the Iranian arms sale.

"Our position is, if public funds were utilized in political campaigns illegally, it would be morally wrong, it would be legally wrong, and the White House would condemn it in the strongest terms and would ask those responsible be brought to justice at the earliest possible date."

The spokesman said that Reagan's chief political adviser, Mitchell Daniels, had been queried about the matter, and that "he isn't aware of any funding of this type in political campaigns."

Deputy White House press secretary Albert R. Brashear said, meanwhile, that under the terms of the Hatch Act, North was prohibited from participating "in any political activities."

The spokesman said North would have been barred both by his status as an active-duty military officer and as a member of the National Security Council staff.

Barnes, an outspoken opponent of Contra aid and one of the key targets of a pro-Contra television ad campaign last spring, said, "There are now rampant allegations that the moneys spent against me and other opponents of the president on Nicaragua by these ... groups may have come from the money we have now heard about (as being diverted) from the Iran arms sale."

Barnes, who was defeated in a bid to move to the Senate, said in a telephone interview that he had no independent information about the matter.

Possible injuries examined following Saturday accident

Four traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Saturday with a driver in one taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for examination of possible injuries.

According to police reports, Mae Davis Kerby of 1507 22nd St. was taken to the hospital by private vehicle following a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of 35th St. and College Ave. at 11:17 a.m.

Kerby was driving a 1978 Ford which was in collision with a 1979 Mercury driven by Zella Langley of 3311 Ave. G.

Saturday's second mishap was reported at 1:59 p.m. by Virginia Goodloe Jacobs of Dallas.

She reported that her 1980 Dodge had apparently been struck by a hit-and-run driver while parked in the 4100 Block of Eastridge Dr.

That hit-and-run report was cleared Sunday afternoon when a 24-year-old suspect was issued citations for failure to comply with rules for striking an unattended vehicle.

A third accident was reported in the 2500 Block of 27th St. at 3:35 p.m. Saturday.

Involved in it were a 1983 Chevrolet driven by Terrye Wellborn McDorman of 2308 41st St. and a 1978 Mercury driven by Joyce Buchanan Pierce of 2507 27th St.

The day's final accident occurred in the 400 Block of East 37th St. at 7:14 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1977 Ford driven by Anthony Stuart McCoy of 214 34th St. and a 1981 Plymouth driven by Vicki Brown of 323 30th St.

No injuries resulted from any of the three afternoon mishaps.

'Adopt a Highway' program is called very successful

ATLANTA, Texas (AP) — Texas' "adopt a highway" program has been almost too successful in Northeast Texas, officials say.

The program might be out of business soon except for the fact that Northeast Texas has so many highways.

The state program, which allows area civic groups to "adopt" a specific section of roadway and help keep the road litter-free, has signed up six times more civic groups this year than in 1985.

The number is still growing, according to Orville Ball, vegetation manager of Atlanta's District 19 office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Ball said only 12 organizations had signed up in December of 1985, only three months after the program began. But the idea has mushroomed, and 76 organizations now participate in the program throughout the region.

About 20 more organizations are in the process of entering the program, Ball said, and new inquiries come in continually.

He said he believes the adoption program will continue to gain momentum in 1987 because "I don't think interest has peaked out yet."

The program has room to grow because there are a lot of highways to adopt within the huge district that includes Bowie, Camp, Cass, Harrison, Marion, Morris, Panola, Upshur and Titus counties, Ball noted.

Ball said the adoptions are "pretty well spread around the district," but organizations in some counties, such as Harrison and Bowie counties, have responded especially well to the program.

be designated Towle Park Road North. The street around the southern end of Logan Field will be named Logan Road.

Also during Monday's session, commissioners signed a two-year contract with the law firm Gates Steen for delinquent tax collections for the county, the college and the city. Western Texas College trustees agreed to the proposal on Dec. 8 with the city council accepting the terms on Dec. 1.

Snyder man said missing

Area law enforcement agencies were searching for 80-year-old Joe Parks of Snyder Monday morning. The elderly Parks was last seen at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene around 5 p.m. Sunday.

He had driven from Snyder to Abilene Sunday and was last seen by officials with the hospital, who said they gave him directions on how to get back on Interstate 20 to return to Snyder.

Vandalism charge filed

Police are investigating a criminal mischief complaint filed Sunday morning involving damage said caused to a vehicle parked in the 500 Block of 16th St.

Eldon Kirkpatrick filed that report at 10:36 a.m.

He told investigators that a 1978 Ford owned by his mother — Goldie Walker — had been damaged sometime between Thursday and Sunday morning.

The driver's side window had been broken out of the car and the trunk pried open while it was parked at the Walker residence at 505 16th St.

In other weekend action, police logged two misdemeanor arrests, including one man jailed for public intoxciation and one arrested for being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol.

Stolen auto found here

Police impounded a stolen car Sunday night.

A routine check of registration on a 1971 Oldsmobile parked in the 400 Block of 26th St. showed the vehicle to be stolen from Saginaw, Tx. It was discovered shortly after 11 p.m.

Law officials in Saginaw were contacted and they confirmed it as missing. The vehicle was then impounded here.

Police say they have no suspects in the case.

Electronic house arrest said wave of the future

By The Associated Press

Some prisoners under house arrest are constantly reminded of their restricted lifestyles, not by traditional bars but a more advanced electronic device used to monitor movement, officials say.

The device reduces prison populations and also helps some criminals by giving them a chance to work and support their families, officials said.

Volunteers allowed to participate in the program are strapped to small electronic devices that record their distance from a phone monitor and transmit the message to a computer that keeps track of them 24 hours a day.

If the person leaves the house without authority or cuts the straps, which are inspected regularly, he returns to jail.

Experts say the electronic shackles are working well in Texas and other states. Current programs are active in Denton, Plano and Arlington areas, officials said.

But some experts say long terms under house arrest can be burdensome.

Bob, 31, is confined to his Dallas-area home because he has AIDS-related complex, or ARC. Some convicts with AIDS or ARC are being recommended for house arrest to remove them from jail and prison populations.

Bob, who asked the Houston Post not to publish his last name, wears a small transmitter strapped to his ankle.

Letter raises serious questions

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Valium, the No. 1 prescribed drug, what does it cure? What does it help? Nothing! So, UP YOURS, you drug pusher. UP YOURS! See you in court! Fool!

DEAR READERS — These unprofessional comments on the stationery of the Dopps Chiropractic Health Clinic in Wichita, Kans., seemed to represent the views of crackpots. Therefore, I wrote a personal letter to the organization requesting clarification. I asked whether their opinions fairly represented the Dopps Chiropractic staff and the chiropractors of Wichita. Their written response was not surprising and, once again, consisted of, "UP YOURS, drug pusher!"

To begin with, Valium is useful in alleviating anxiety. Although, in my opinion, it has been prescribed too freely by health professionals, it is an effective medicine when taken according to the manufacturer's directions for short-term treatment of many conditions, including alcohol withdrawal, painful muscle contractions, spasticity (from cerebral palsy), acute convulsions and anxiety disorders. It is also used to reduce tension in patients undergoing surgery. Valium is helpful in preventing the discomfort of cardioversion, when electrical shocks are delivered to regulate a failing heart. So, like most medicines, Valium is not meant to cure, but to control troublesome symptoms. It can be extremely effective when used under close medical supervision.

Second, I — like other practicing doctors — am licensed to prescribe a wide variety of drugs. We are not "drug pushers." In fact, my responsible colleagues and I take great pains to tailor our prescribing to each patient and explain the reasonable effects, complications and hazards of the prescription and non-prescription medications we recommend. We do not deal with, prescribe or sell illicit substances.

Finally, the Dopps reaction seems particularly crude and childish. I hope that the Dopps staff does not treat patients in a similarly unprofessional manner. I want my patients to receive appropriate and courteous care. I daresay that most chiropractors, if asked, would express the same wish for their own patients. I believe that vulgarity and name-calling do not reflect well on the motivations and competency of the Dopps clinic. I am reminded that, unfortunately, there is a lunatic fringe in every profession.

Perhaps other chiropractors, some of whom have been kind enough to write me their support, would be embarrassed by the Dopps display — one that certainly does not help the image of the chiropractic profession as a whole.

I've decided to address the Dopps comments in the hope that I can educate patients into being cautious about using health services that are provided by apparently unstable practitioners. I don't choose to be intimidated by chiropractors — or M.D.s, for that matter. I hope that my consumer-oriented column will help patients resist intimidation, too.

DEAR DR. GOTT — This problem started when my son was a toddler. He started rubbing women's legs and, at the same time, always managed to get his pelvis on a hard surface. Now, at age 5, he goes after legs of any kind: male, female, clothed, bare, children, adults, even dolls and dogs. My husband and I are at a loss about how to handle the situation. We've tried talking to him and punishing him, but it's getting worse. I'm afraid to let him out of my sight when other kids are around for fear that he will ask to "play with their legs." He's adopted — could this be something he inherited? We know something's wrong, but don't know what to do next. I'm embarrassed to discuss this with his pediatrician.

DEAR READER — Your son appears to be developing a fetish for legs — that is, an inappropriate sexually-oriented obsession. This condition can probably be helped by counseling. Ask the pediatrician to become actively involved in this problem. What you need now is professional help; don't be embarrassed to ask for it. The problem has progressed beyond the point where it can be managed by the family alone.

It's important that you find a doctor who suits your needs — and Dr. Gott tells how in his new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Texans contribute to cause

DALLAS (AP) — A key figure in the network to raise money for Nicaraguan contras estimates that half of all private donations have come from Texans.

Austin businessman Bert Hurlbut, a key player in the private aid network, said Texans have donated $5 million in aid to the insurgents over the last three years through myriad organizations and relief efforts, the Dallas Morning News reported.

The contra supporters range from hard-core Republicans such as Kay Tinner of Dallas to well-known moguls such as Nelson Bunker Hunt, the newspaper said.

Other prominent contra supporters in Texas include James Lyons, senior chairman of River Oaks Bancshares in Houston; Dallas oil executive Scott Parrott; McAllen businessman Wendell Hobbs; and Russell Perry, a Dallas insurance executive and lawyer, the News said.

Many involved in the movement have praised Lt. Col. Oliver L. North Jr., who was fired last month from his post as the National Security Council's deputy director after information surfaced about a U.S. sale of arms to Iran and subsequent diversion of profits to the contras.

North has been identified by Attorney General Edwin Meese as having handled the diversion of funds from the arms sales to the contras.

"I think the president was right when he called him a great American hero," said Perry, a conservative fund-raiser who has been briefed by North.

Perry has been to contra camps in Honduras twice in the last six months. He estimates that he has donated $100,000 in supplies, including medicine and an X-ray machine.

"We've got all these areas where we've got these commies in there," Perry said, citing Nicaragua as only one of his concerns. "We've got to do something. We ought to give them enough money to go in there and lick those guys."

"I would bet you 500 Texans knew Ollie North personally," said former Tennessee congressman Dan Kuykendall, who directs the Washington-based Gulf and Caribbean Foundation, founded in 1983 by a group of prominent Texans who wanted to influence Central American policy.

The group, which included the late construction baron H.B. Zachry, has sponsored fact-finding missions and speaking tours for scholars. Dallas lawyer David Witts is its treasurer and counsel, and Midland businessman William Blakemore serves as chairman.

North was born in San Antonio in 1943 when his father was stationed there in the Army. Although the family lived in Texas only until 1948, North calls the Lone Star State his home, friends and acquaintances said.

"North looked and acted like a Texan," said Kuykendall, himself a native of Texas. "I would love to see the guy come back to Texas and run for Congress. I've probably said that to him 50 times. I love the guy."

Perhaps North's closest link to Texas was Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot, whom North secretly persuaded to put up $2 million in ransom to win release of American hostages in Lebanon. The trade never occurred, but North spoke often with Perot by phone, according to a former NSC staff member.

Tom Shull, deputy executive secretary to the NSC from December 1983 to January 1985, recalls North trumpeting his Texas connections and his relationship with Perot.

Shull, a San Antonio native, said he was in the room on occasions when North spoke with Perot. He says the colonel spoke of getting Perot's assistance in the private effort to aid the contras.

Drought causes oyster shortage

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — Oysters will be in short supply in restaurants across the nation this holiday season because of recent bad weather and the toxic red tide on the Texas Gulf Coast, a seafood dealer says.

The oyster crop already was diminished because of a lengthy drought last summer that hit an area from Louisiana to Virginia, said Emery Waite, a Galveston Bay seafood dealer with 150 oyster boats under contract.

In addition, many prime oyster bays along the Texas Gulf Coast have been closed to commercial harvests because of heavy rainfall and a red tide, which consists of potentially toxic one-cell organisms that concentrate in shellfish.

Waite and owners of others boats along the Gulf Coast and Atlantic Seaboard say the shortages mean income losses for them. But the extent of the decline is unknown because the 1986-87 oyster harvest is still under way.

Richard Thompson, director of shellfish sanitation for the Texas Department of Health, said the oyster shortage in other areas would normally be a boom for Texas oyster fishermen.

"But nature dealt us a blow," he added.

The closing of Texas oyster beds is likely to affect the East Coast as well, Waite said.

"A lot of people who think they are eating Chesapeake Bay oysters are actually eating Texas oysters. Somehow, they change names when they cross the border. I ship lots of oysters up there," he said.

During the average six-month oyster season, oyster harvesters work about 18 days a month and earn $250 a day. But since the Texas season opened Nov. 1, most oyster boats have been idle or have had to compete for restricted oyster beds, Waite said.

Driver of stolen car killed at roadblock

RANKIN, Texas (AP) — A 33-year-old fugitive from California outraced West Texas law officers before being fatally wounded at a roadblock, authorities said.

As he was dying Sunday afternoon, the man told officers the 1986 Mustang he was driving had been stolen in connection with an armed robbery three days earlier in Oakland, Calif., investigators said.

Officials identified the man as O'Dell Turner, but released no information on his hometown. Turner was shot Sunday by a game warden and a constable after firing one shot at the officers from a .38 revolver, Upton County Sheriff Glenn Willeford said Sunday night.

"He jumped out of his car at the roadblock and fired a shot at a game warden and a constable" as he ran toward a mobile home, Willeford said. "They (the officers) returned fire with shotguns."

Rankin is 55 miles south of Odessa.

Turner died about 4:55 p.m., Willeford said.

"I read him his rights and he said the car was stolen in California three days ago," Willeford said. "He didn't say whether he was involved in the armed robbery."

Willeford said he ordered the roadblock after Turner drove at a high rate of speed through Iraan, 20 miles south of Rankin and about 10 miles north of Interstate 10. A computer check revealed the car had been stolen, he said.

"He was clocked at speeds up to 130 miles per hour," Willeford said. "While I gave no orders to shoot anyone, I can say without reservation that I did tell officers that the car must be stopped and the driver not allowed to get away."

He added, "I'm sorry that Turner was shot, but I back the officers 100 percent."

Chemical Pump Service Serves Many Oil Patch Needs

Chemical Pump Service, owned locally by Tom Machen, serves the needs of the oil patch, by carrying a full line of Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors. The 4100 Series Texsteam Injectors are positive displacement, plunger-type pumps which are gear driven and utilize electric motors, V-belts or other rotating drives as the power source. The unit's gear drive is housed in a precision-bored, heavy cast iron case with anti-friction bearings on the high speed shaft. The output gear, made of high strength alloy iron, is supported in a special bearing arrangement assuring extremely long life with maximum rigidity.

The entire worm-gear drive mechanism runs in a lubricant bath for longer operating life, even under the most adverse operating conditions.

The Texsteam 4100 Series can by used for chemical injection and for handling corrosive fluids.

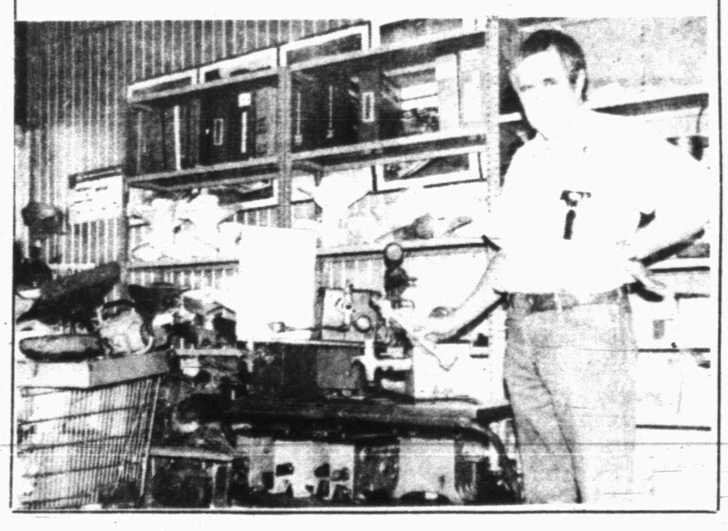

Because these units can be equipped with from one to eight heads, a wide range of additives may be accurately handled from one installation. This versatile pump has found wide acceptance for use in refineries, LACT units, salt water floods, tank batteries, process plants and in water treatment for boilers

The Texsteam 4100 Series Injectors are easy to install. No expensive foundation or piping is required. These pumps will give you many years of economical and trouble-free service.

In addition to Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors, they also carry Western, Calgon and Percision Pumps and Bendix, Wico, Fairbanks Morse and American Bosch Magnetos.
