New York Judge Sets a Style in Jury Service; Men of Fashion; The Prince and Marriages

FEDERAL JUDGE MACK, who is trying the Harry M. Daugherty case in New York, has shown a consideration for the jurors summoned to a long and arduous duty which ought to be emulated by courts everywhere and should result in obtaining higher class men for jury service. The jury in the Daugherty case is a splendid appearing one. It was realized this trial called for mentalities far above the average and every effort was made to obtain a jury which would be intelligent as well as fair.

Judge Mack has permitted the jurors to fix the daily court hours and also allow them to say whether discussions should be held on Saturday or not. The jury promptly voted against the Saturday session. This release from duty, they said, would give them some relaxation and also an opportunity to keep a finger on their business affairs.

Even when opposing counsel ask for a brief recess during morning or afternoon sessions, Judge Mack refers the question to the jurors and if they don't assent the recess is granted. If they show any hesitation, the request is denied.

All too often juries in criminal cases are treated little if any better than the defendants. They are given to understand that jury duty is a stern service and that once you are "snared" your rights are few and far between. Judge Mack has taken an exactly opposite course. The effect of his example may be far reaching.

WOMEN have often been chided by mere man as being the slaves of fashion. It has been said that a woman would follow the latest style even if it led her out of a fifth story window. Without regard to personal becomingness women have been charged with wearing big hats and small hats, skirts long and skirts short. All of which may have been, and maybe still be, more or less true. Yet woman has been asserting her individuality of late. She has been modifying the fashions to suit her own likes and dislikes. In the same window you can see small and large hats right alongside each other. Woman may choose. The style experts from time to time during the past five years have tried their best to lower women's skirts. They have met with no success. Woman has rebelled. Once accustomed to the freedom of the short skirt, she will not permit herself to be led back into the long ones. Of course, there are extremes to which some women will not forego. The skirts that actually disclose the knees as the wearer walks along probably never will be in the majority.

But what is to be said of mere man? Is he a fashion slave or is he not? He is. It was only necessary to be in New York on September 15 to watch mere man, manacled to a custom, display his serfdom as women never do. There is an old decree of fashion, or of the hat makers, that straw hats shall not be worn by men on or after Sept. 15 in the effete east. On Sept. 16 there were millions straw hats on the sidewalks of New York. On Sept. 15 it was just as easy to find a needle in a hay stack.

It is the same way in the spring Men hesitate and hesitate to don the straw headgear regardless of the weather. Each man has a harror of being the first to appear in a summer bonnet. All are waiting to see what the other fellow will do. This is where they differ completely from woman. Every woman has the ambition to be the first to wear something new. Every man has the ambition to avovid just that thing. They are peculiar folk, these humans.

EDWARD, Princec of Wales, has just returned to his home in St. James Palace, London, after a holiday on the continent, and those disturbed souls who are alarmed at the future of the empire, will set to work once more to try to get the attractcivev young heir to the throne to settle down and choose for himself a bride and for Merrie old England and a future queen. Apparently that is just about the last thing the versatile and life loving young prince wants to do—or intends to do. He does not see in the mere fact that he is well past thirty any reason for hurrying to the altar. He is free now to roam as he pleases and the more he roams the best he

Heavy Damage Reported As Result of Second Big Blow in Two Weeks

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 18.(AP)—The battered hulk of a schooner, the "Carson of Nassau, N. P." was found tonight beached on Talbot Island, two and one-half miles off Mayport. There were no signs of life aboard.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 18. AP)—Attaining in some instances a velocity of 100 miles an hour and hiding its damage behind wrecked lines of communications the West Indian hurricane which last night crossed from Nassau in the Bahamas to the lower east coast of Florida swept tonight over the Everglades and the lower peninsula into the Gulf of Mexico.

Miami and Palm Beach for the second time within two months were isolated from the outside world. Partial communication with the stricken area was maintained during the afternoon. The Western Union Telegraph company received reports of the storm at Miami Beach through a single cable and Avon Park obtained meager advices from West Palm Beach over a railway telephone line. This failed late today and West Palm Beach was cut off except for train service.

Worst in History.

Storm passengers who reached Avon Park late today from West Palm Beach on the first train to emerge from the hurricane district described the storms the worst in the history of the Palm Beaches. The train left West Palm Beach early today and passengers could give little details of the damage there but united in saying it was a "terrible" blow. They confirmed telephone reports that the wind reached a velocity of 100 mile an hour and said that the weather bureau at West Palm Beach expected the hurricane to swing inland between there and Miami.

Latest reports from Miami beach which is separated from Miami by a causeway said it was inundated to the depth of three feet, and that windows in the telegraph office had been shattered by the gale.

Six feet of water surged over the causeway connecting the city and the telegraph company's employes marooned in their building had no wire communications with Miami. They reported the wind reached a velocity of between 10 and 100 miles an hour.

Iowa Joins List Of Cloudburst Victims

CHICAGO, Sept. 18. (AP)—clouds which have ridden September's skies pelting the central west with floods and disaster from Ohio to Nebraska left a gaping wound today in Northwestern Iowa.

A torrential blast of rain, hail, wind and lightning ravished a wide area last night and today, taking at least two lives inundating thirty thousand acres of crop laden farm lands, uprooting lines of traffic and communication and visiting its havoc of four counties north of Sioux City near the Iowa-Nebraska line.

$2,000,000 Loss

Property damage was estimated about two million dollars, with Hawarden, Lemars, Hull, Akron, Sheldon and Cherokee counting the loss. Rain of almost unprecedented severity sent the Sioux river up 18 feet in eleven hours, and flooded the valley of the Floyd river.

Railroads suffered heavily. A freight train of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha line was wrecked when it ran into a washout near Hospers, Ia. More than four thousand feet of Illinois Central track between Sheldon and Matlock and near Merill, were washed out. Railroad service northward from Sioux City was stopped. Five miles of Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul track was reported washed away under water south of Hawarden.

In The Garden

A specially designed Brunswick Panatrope and Radiola, housed in a cabinet of genuine walnut, arrived in Wichita Falls Saturday and is now on display in the Freear Furniture company windows along with other furnishings that are to be placed soon in El Jardine de Los Suenos, the Garden of Dreams now being completed in Westmoreland addition.

The handsome new machine, procured through the furniture shop, will provide the music for the new home. It is of a type and design that harmonizes fully with the beauty of the building itself and other furnishings.

MILK AND ICE FUND CLOSES 1926 SERVICE

Report of Trustee Shows A Year of Worth While Work Accomplished

Six summers ago the Record News conceived the idea of establishing an annual milk and ice fund in the long, hot months with the aim of providing relief for such of the city's citizenry who might need it. Such things had been done elsewhere, the Record News knew, and it thought perhaps it would do the same here.

It did.

The idea struck a responsive chord in the hearts of liberal Wichitans. They contributed cheerfully, the Record News acted as trustee for the funds and they were turned over to the Salvation Army, which used them to advantage in buying ice and milk for suffering youngsters to whom these commodities smacked more of the luxury than of the necessity.

In succeeding summers the same plan has been worked with growing success until, in the months just past, the work reached the heights.

Change Made This Year

A change was made this year, in that instead of administering the fund through the Salvation Army, it has been handled by Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, secretary of the Municipal Welfare board. In conjunction with the Salvation Army, the Red Cross and other charitable and welfare agencies of the city, Mrs. Gorsline has gone into the highways and the byways, along the fringes of the city and into all those sections where human suffering, little known to the masses, exists none the less in all its poignance. It is in these sectors that the money—some $600 of it—has been expended.

In a report made last week, Mrs. Gorsline revealed that 5,612 quarts

75 Die in Storm

BULLETIN, 1 A. M.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 19. (AP)—Seventy-five known dead, property loss of $100,000,000 in the city and every boat in the harbor sunk was the toll of the hurricane which struck Miami today according to fragmentary messages picked up by the Tropical Radio Telegraph company station here tonight.

The station is working with the American steamship Siboney which has established communication with a make shift transmitting plant at Hialeah.

Every vestige of the city docks system was swept away and 2,000 buildings ruined, said the messages which added that troops, food and medical supplies are needed urgently.

ORMISTON AND AIME LINKED

Angelus Temple Leader And Former Radio Operator Charged.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.(AP) Direct charges linking the names of Aimee Semple McPherson, evagelist, and her former radio operator, Kenneth G. Ormiston, were made here today by S. S. Hahn, attorney in demanding immunity for Ormiston if he comes forward with the facts in connection with the evangelist's recent mysterious disappearance.

Hahn declared that "action between herself (Mrs. McPherson) and Ormiston take it out of the class of private delinquency."

The attorney gave out a statement apparently containing an admission that Ormiston was ready to testify that the evangelist occupied the cottage at Carmel by the sea which Ormiston rented a few days before her disappearance and which has figured so much in the case.

The public, Hahn asserted, was entitled to know the truth concerning the activities of the evangelist and the radio operator while the two were away from Los Angeles for more than a month early this summer.

ARREST COMING MONDAY

Aimee Not To Be Jailed Until Condition Improves

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, who disappeared while swimming in the Pacific ocean and appeared in Arizona saying she had been kidnaped will be arrested Monday on charges of criminal conspiracy and preparing false evidence, if she continues to improve physically. The warrant is ready as soon as the evangelist is pronounced well enough to make the trip to the municipal court. Her mother and doctor said today the evangelist probably will conduct services tomorrow night in the Angelus temple.

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—A national chiropractric body will take a hand in defense of Dr. F. Lee Lemly, president of the Dallas county chiropractors society, who is to face trial in county court here Tuesday on charges of violation of the state medical practice act.

Frank Winters of LaCrosse, Wis., senior counsel of the Universal Chiropractors Association's legal staff will be here to assist R. B. Johnson in Lemly's defense, it was announced Saturday.

HUNT MISSING MAN

Cisco Mail Carrier Object of Wide Search

CISCO, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP) — Search was instituted today for A. L. Bradley, former Cisco lawyer, under contract to operate the United States mail Star route to Pioneer, who has been missing since August 7.

On that date, Bradley left Cisco for Sonora with three or four thousand dollars with which to buy land. Fear that he has met with violence was expressed by postmaster J. W. Triplitt in asking Eastland county officers to start a search.

PICK UP THE MARBLES

He Gets a Contract to Erect All Signs at North Pole

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 18.(AP) —Exclusive contracts to erect signs at the north pole has been given to E. R. Davis a Tacoma man representing a national advertising agency by Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd naval aviator who conquered the pole. The contract reads that the consideration shall be $1,000 payable immediately after the first signs are erected.

Davis wrote out the form of contract and mailed it to Byrd on May 15, the letter having followed the aviator over the United States and just recently coming to his attention. He signed the contract and returned it.

ROOT ROT CAUSING DAMAGE

Tremendous Loss Being Inflicted On Texas Cotton

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—Cotton root rot is inflicting a loss of approximately $50,000,000 on Texas cotton growers, says a story in Sunday's Dallas News by Victor H. Schoffelmayer, agricultural editor.

Conservative estimates after a survey by scientists, Mr. Schoffelmayer said, show that about 2,800,000 acres out of a total cotton acreage of 19,000,000 in Texas are infested with the disease at present. Never in the history of Texas has root rot been so widely prevalent or destructive, the article continues.

ALICE IN POLITICS

Longworth's Wife Seeks Committee Woman's Post

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18. (AP)— Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth of Cincinnati wife of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, is the foremost among half a dozen candidates for republican national committee women from Ohio to succeed the late Mrs. John Gordon Battelle of Columbus.

The candidacy of several prominent women republicans has kindled a scrap in the party ranks which has caused the state chairman, Fred Warner to decline any appointment until after the November election in the hope that the situation will clear.

AMERICANS STARVING

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18. (AP)— Starvation threatens 21 Americans and five Europeans sealed up with the Chinese populace of Wu Chang by the besieging armies of the Red Cantonese government.

Two weeks bombardment and assault having failed to wrest the city from its northern army defenders the Contones have completely blockaded it and settled down to starve it into submission.

APPROPRIATION NEEDED

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP)—Needw for a supplementary appropriation to the available school fund was again called to the attention of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson by J. M. Bledsoe, president of the Texas state teachers association in a letter Saturday night. At least $15 per capita is needed, Bledsoe said.

University Regents Stand Up For Morals of Girls in State School

BY S. RAYMOND BROOKS
Record News Staff

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 18.—Texas co-eds morality is sound, is the answer of the University of Texas regents in the national controversy which was aroused by the charges of Wilfred O. Cross Episcopal theological student, that women college students were responsible for much undergraduate drinking and frivolity.

Texas university students, both men and women, are able to take care of themselves against immoral tendencies and influences without spiritual guardianship by the educational institution, the University of Texas administration and regents indicated in their answer to a recent written criticism sent to the school by a man who had become aroused at what he considered an endangering situation.

The Arm Of Restriction

The Texas school also gave notice by its action that the system of rules and supervision restricting activities of the students is aimed as a part of education—to keep the students' interest centered in learning—rather than to protect the boys and girls from moral hazards.

A former Austin newspaper man became concerned when he rode in a Pullman car to Austin along with a large group of students who were returning after a holiday. Late-hour hilarity, an occasional naughty word, teasing of girls who had retired to their berths, an apparent care-free abandon of the joyous students, irked the older man to the extent that he wrote to the university about it, and asked the regents to consider the situation.

The Texas institution hasn't joined in the nation-wide protest against the written criticism by the Chicago minister-to-be, but their action in disposing of the local complaint was equivalent to an answear to the new controversy.

The protest was courteously acknowledged, filed away, and ignored by the university regents.

Don't Need Guardian

The man's name is not given for the reason he has since left Austin, and his permission was not secured to use it.

ST. EDS TO DEBATE

Will Meet Famous Oxford Team From England

AUSTIN, Sept. 18. (AP)—St. Edward's University here has accepted an invitation to have its debating team meet the team representing Oxford University of England. The debate will be held in November and probably take place in San Antonio in order to avoid all interference with the proposed debate between Oxford and the University of Texas. The question for debate will concern the value of the league of nations to the world, with Oxford speaking in favor of the league, and St. Edwards in opposition.

DYNAMITE CAUSES BLAST

Some Explosive Other Than Black Powder Used

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 18.(AP) Some explosive other than black powder caused the blast Thursday morning which wrecked the Houston home and store of fire Capt. Luke Cash, according to a report made by David M. Duller, consulting engineer, to Allie L. Anderson fire commissioner Saturday.

Mr. Duller believes a fire preceded the blast, as testified by Cash, according to the report, but the expert says this must have been caused by a slow burning fuse attached to explosive, probably dynamite, he said, hidden behind or under flour and other groceries in the rear of the store room.

Revolt of Yaqui Tribes a Threat To U. S. As Well

Torture Fire Impends As Federals and Savage Indians Throw Fear to Winds And Launch Terrorist Campaigns.

(Turbulent Mexico apparently is on the verge of another bloody struggle, as the Calles government prepares for a campaign against the fierce Yaqui tribes in Durango and Sonora. John Cosby, long a resident of Mexico, gives a graphic picture in the following dispatch of what the Calles troops will be up against in this campaign and points out how the struggle may react indirectly against the safety of Americans who venture into the bandit-infested country below the Rio Grande.)

War to the knife and the torture fire is imminent in Mexico. And one of its concurrent phases may be the greatly reightened danger for Americans who, like Jacob Rosenthal, of Woodmore, L. I., murdered this week by kidnapers—venture into the bandit-infested country south of the Rio Grande.

If the subjugation of the revolting Yaqui tribesmen in Durango and Sonora is undertaken in earnest by the Mexican government, it will involve the use of a large part of the Mexican army. Transfer of these troops to the west coast would leave both Mexicans and foreigners in other sections at the mercy of bandit hands.

Quarter will not be asked nor given in any struggle between Mexican troops and the Yaquis, who, according to latest reports, have slain General Alvaro Obregon, captured several days ago.

The Yaquis wage war in the same way as the hordes of Ghengi Khan, the Tartar chieftan from whose soldiers anthropologists believe they are descendents. They are distinct from the Mayas and the other Mexican tribes and their high cheek bones and other physical characteristics are distinctively Mongolian. They have a language all their own and it is notable that the Chinese in Mexico are able to understand it. Since Cortez' time efforts have been made to subjugate this race without success. President Porfirio Diaz, in the height of his power, when the Mexican army and his rurales were at a high point of efficiency, was unable to accomplish it. Mexican officers in his day, the last time an attempt was made to overcome the tribes, feared capture far more than death in battle for they knew capure meant torture and horrible mutilation.

In Dread of Capture

The captured Yaquis, on the other hand, are equally in dread of capture. In the last campaign prisoners were deported in many instances to the Hennequin plantations of Yucatan hundreds of miles from their homes and families and forced to work under conditions and in a climate which they feared worse than death.

Life is not held very dearly either in the Mexican army or among the Yaquis. Each side is composed of fatalists and mercy is not a predominant Yaqui characteristic. The writer personally has seen the bodies of Yaqui victims, the soles of their feet had been sliced off, and who was then turned loose to wander through the burning sands of the Durango deserts.

The approaches to the Yaqui strongholds in the Sierra mountains of Durango and Sonora are almost impregnable. The range is impassable for hundreds of miles to any vehicle. The traverses are made on foot or mule back and require days of marching. Much of the country is still marked "Tierra incognito"—unknown land—on the Mexican government maps.

In those fastnesses the Yaquis have lived under almost the same conditions as in the days of Cortez. When Comingo and Mariano Arrieta, subordinates of Pancho Villa, captured Durango in 1913, their Yaqui followers were armed with bows and arrows and wore a little blanket and a breech cloth. The first articles taken as loot by the Indians were the morning coats, striped trousers and top hats of the German consul and his aides—and those who saw the five savages who secured them parading around the Cathedral plaza in this formal regalia with bows and arrows and tomtom will never forget the sight.

To Fight Is Nature

To fight is natural to the Yaquis as to breathe. It is always their custom when starting on an expedition to fire a salvo in the air. At Vera Cruz in 1914, 250 Yaquis were loaded inside and on top of three freight cars bound for Guadalajara at midnight. Those inside fired their salvo but fired it through the roofs and a pitched battle was waged for 40 minutes, until General Candido Aguilar succeeded in calling a halt. Over 100 were killed and wounded.

General Obregon, whom the Yaquis are said now to regard as an enemy, depended on them for much of his success in the field and for his safety at home. He was always guarded by Yaqui troops. Obregon, although a Mexican by birth, is as Irish as Paddy's pig. He speaks Yaqui perfectly and has the Celtic ability of gaining the confidence of savage races.

With modern arms and ammunition the tribesmen can be counted on to offer a desperate resistence to the government troops and the conflict bids fair to be not only bloody but long drawn out.

Asks Punishment of Mexican Brigands.

WASHINGTGON, Sept. 18. (AP) —While Mexican troops are scouring the country about Curnavaca for the bandits who murdered Jacob Rosenthal, New York banker, the Mexican government today formally requested the American government to punish those it says broke into the jail at Raymondsville, Texas, several months ago and killed Thomas Nunez and his two sons, Mexican citizens.

Ambassador Telles was instructed to make the representations in the case before Rosenthal's occurred and the fact that he made them at a time when the American government was pressing for punishment of the Mexican bandits was not considered in official circles as significant as a counter move by Mexico.

Following the usual course the state department is expected to ask the governor of Texas for information on th ecase complained of. It has been asserted by those seeking redress that a mob tortured and shot the Mexicans and beheaded the elder Nunez.

SHUBERT TUNE AT TEXAS FAIR

Two Broadway Favorites To Appear in Elaborate Musical Play

Howard Marsh and Evelyn Herbert, Broadway favorites, are to head the company of 200 which the Messrs. Shubert will send from New York by special train to present their most imposing operetta, Princess Flavia," at the State Fair of Texas, Dallas, Oct. 9-24.

A musical dramatization of Anthony Hope's "Prisoner of Zenda," the most popular romantic novel of all ages, "Princess Flavia," will be given in the auditorium each evening throughout the state fair at 8:15, with matinees at 2:30 on Sundays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Hope's swashbuckling tale of love and intrigue in the mythical kingdom of "Ruritania," has been rendered into entrancing operetta by Harry B. Smith, and the glorious music by Sigmund Romberg, composer of the never-dying "Student Prince" scores. Romberg will personally direct the opening performance. Saturday night, Oct. 9, and his presence will mean the outstanding event in the theatrical and musical history of the southwest.

Howard Marsh, of commanding height and stalwart form, sang the part of "The Prince" in the original "Student Prince" company, in which he made a distinct and lasting impression. He is endowed with a pleasing personality, marked histrionic ability and a most appealing voice.

Miss Herbert created the part of "The Princess" in the original Broadway offering of "Princess Flavia." She is highly attractive, with a most winning stage presence; possesses a melodious, well-trained and distinctive voice, and has a particular gift for personable appearance in the gorgeous costumes she is called upon to wear.

Physician Slain As He Sits In Car

McCENVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 18. (AP)—Dr. A. B. Ramsey, a physician, was shot and killed today as he sat in his automobile in front of a garage and Mrs. A. J. Overall was seriously injured by being struck on the head by a shotgun. Overall an insurance agent surrendered to police who announced that he declared he killed the physician because of attentions to Mrs. Overall then went home to kill her and himself but his shotgun failed to fire when pointed at Mrs. Overall. The husband was placed in jail on charge of slaying the physician.

MOSLEY SAYS NOTHING

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—Hal Moseley, chairman of the state highway commission was here for the week-end today. He refused to comment about the matter of confirmation of his appointment to the commission now pending before state legislature and about the condition of state highway commission.

"I am going to keep my mouth shut," he said.

Mr. Moseley planned to return to Austin Sunday night.

seems inclined to the settling down process for which all Britain is waiting.

The non-marrying attitude of the prince is having a serious effect in other directions than a mere threat at the reigning dyasty. His younger brothers seem to be doing their bit nicely in that direction. But teh prnice if setting a fashion in remaining single which the eligible young men of the United Kingdom are taking up with an enthusiasm that sends cold chills down the spines of mothers and fathers of England's budding young womanhood.

It is said in England that the eligible bachelors seem to prefer to spend their time with the married set, showering their attention upon wives rather than upon sweethearts. The prince is blamed for this, too, because he always selects his dancing partners from among the attractive married set. He doesn't dare dance with an eligible girl—certainly not more than once, for fear of starting a new marriage rumor.

England is not alone in its worries about its bachelors. The young men are said to be doing the same thing in this country. Social life is witnessing many changes.

of University of Texas files, his letter silently chirps of decadent manners if not of declining moral standards.

The man readily admitted that he saw no misconduct which, if pinned upon any student would likely result in expulsion. He saw no drinking; and so far as the dimly-lighted sleeping car was concerned, there was no petting or necking or hand holding. None of the sophmoric swear-words were used by or to girl students, but were said where it was thought they were easily overheard. What to an older generation might have sounded like highly-spiced conversation more or less giggling of the girls concealed behind the thick-green draperies of the berths, and the far from mushy banter of the boys, was what struck the observant newspaperman as worth reporting to the regents.

No Pajama Dances

None of the pink-pajama dancing in the Pullman corridor, which seemed to be one of the most serious indictments of the theological student in Chicago took place on this trip, according to the newspaperman's letter.

One of the things which may have influenced the Texas regents to ignore the matter altogether, was that the group of students all were from the same town, most of them having gone up through high school together, and knew each other as well as the small-town gossips of a country village.

If the effervescent, ebullient spirits of the youthful expressed itself in play, the regents appeared to think, then there was no cause for worry that the sane, and perhaps sophisticated co-eds could and would take care of themselves both on and off the campus.

FACULTY DINES AT ELECTRA

Te...hers Are Guests of Rotary Club At Big Affair Friday

ELECTRA, Sept. 18.—The best arranged affair of the week was given Friday evening at the Electra Country club by the Rotary club when they complimented the faculty of the Electra school district with a dinner and entertainment. A short half-hour before the dinner was spent in getting acquainted, while at 8 o'clock the guests were seated in the banquet hall of the Country club, which was decorated with cut flowers, and gay festoons in the Rotary colors of purple and gold.

The dinner, a three-course affair, was served by the Ladies Missionary society of the First Methodist church to approximately 160 guests. The guests included the entire school faculty, the school board and the Rotarians and their wives.

The program was as follows: Opening of the club, by President W. P. Slayton, who welcomed the teachers in proper style, after which invocation was pronounced by Rev. L. D. Grafton of the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Grafton, a member of the Fellowship committee, introduced the guests and Rotarians and their wifes by asking each to stand. Club singing, with three songs especially selected, were used, lead by E. W. Barr, with Mrs. W. L. Underwood, club musician, at the piano. The most striking address of the evening was by E. R. Brown, who took as his subject, "Our Guests." Bruce Frazier, immediate past president of the Rotary international; spoke on "What Is Rotary," stressing the benefit of the club not only in the city, but in the state and United States and even other countries. After Mr. Frazier's address, the school faculty rose to occasion and sang "What's the Matter with Rotary?"

Water Well On Texas Farm Gives Up Gas Output

LUFKIN, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP)—The shallow water well on the premises of P. D. Kimmey, near Huntington, eight miles south of Lufkin, is still attracting much attention. It continues to produce a small quantity of gasoline each day.

Frequently oil is pumped out and within a few hours several gallons have run in. It is thought by those who have observed the well that it is producing at least ten gallons a day of high gravity oil. When the oil is poured on the ground it evaporates rapidly and burns readily when a match is applied.

LIGHTS SHOT OUT

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—Ornamental street lights around the public square of Garland, 16 miles east of here, were made targets by htree men in an automobile early today. The shots were used by residents of the town, who thought a fight between officers and robbers might be in progress. Then the three in the automobile sped out of Garland toward Dallas as shots were fired at them.

The ornamental lights suffered the most damage from the shooting.

Columbus Never Took That Ride and Who Ever Heard of the Revolution? Believe It? Well, Go to Sebenico

It May Seem Like Colossal Ignorance, But Then, What Do We Care About Dalmatia, So Why Should We Care What Dalmatia May Happen to Think About Us?

BY JESSIE HENDERSON,
Special Correspondent of the Record News
Copyright, 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association.

SEBENICO, Dalmatian Coast, Sept. 18.—Pride goeth before a nasty wallop, as the copy books used to say and perhaps still do. But any wallop you ever had in the course of your career as an American citizen is as a canary-peck to a Dempsey right swing, compared with what you get in this little, Grimy, Starey-eyed village slouched down on its tireless harbor edge.

By the large the United States is rather a prominent country. Washington—George—is pretty well known, and—Washington, D. C.—has more than once been mentioned in the public prints. The dollas—has attracted more than local attention.

All right, Sebenico never heard of 'em. It never heard of Calvin Coolidge, or Mayor Walker, or Billy Sunday, or the Rev. John Roach Straton. It never heard of the East Side or the West Coast. It never heard of the American doughnut, the American doughboy, or the American drought. It never heard of the I. R. T., the I. W. W., or the K. K. K. It doesn't know who won the Civil war, nor whether there was an American revolution.

'English—Wow!"

If you doubt this colossal lack of interest and information take a walk through Sebenico. Walk fast, however, for Sebenicans don't care for strangers. They will follow you in unfriendly groups, entirely ready to speed the parting guest and among themselves they will point at you and murmur: "English!" So far as they're concerned, Columbus never took that boat ride.

It is humiliating, chastening, and rather refreshing to have these Slavs—now joined to Italy—look at you with suspicion because you are so different. You begin to have a vague remembrance that there are plenty of Americans, yourself included, who cast the same sort of glance at Slavs. Having looked down the world from the top of, say, the Woolworth building, it's a dizzy change of perspective to find yourself looked down upon. But before the idea gets too much time to percolate, the sub-nosed cargo boat which is carrying you hither and yon utters its customary strangled shriek and you rush back to the wharf. As Sebenico recedes you reflect that after all the U. S. A. doesn't give a hoot what Sebenico thinks of it, nor whether.

You can't spend too much time worrying over this, however, when the stub-nosed galleon is shuffling down this coast of incredible farms. Running back from the shore as far as the eye could reach were infinitessimal squares of ground surrounded by little stone walls. Hundreds and hundreds of squares; miles upon miles of walls. They are probably the smallest farms in the world—walled to keep in the rain!

Little Stone Walls.

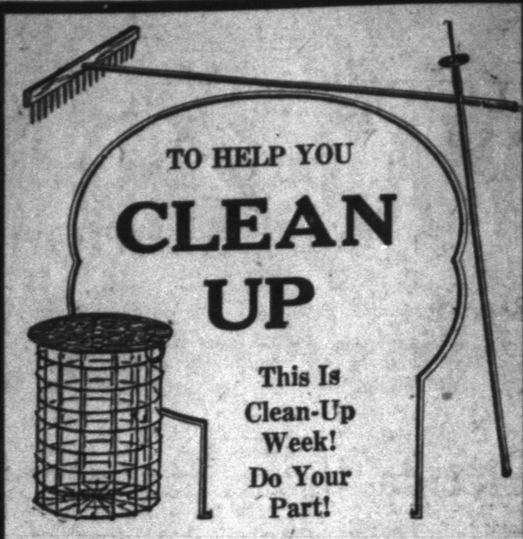

Since most of them were deserted and the flinty countryside was sparsely populated, you began to wonder what had become of all the patient hands that had piled up these little walls to keep the tiny rainfalls on the scanty acreage.

And then you discover that the farmers have been doing this over and over, for 2000 years. There is something appalling about three silent, deserted patches of walled ground in their revelation of the hard, cramped existence entailed, generation after generation; farmers tortured by niggardly rains, pushed by foreign wars nearer and nearer to the sea, but never ceasing to make little stone walls and stubbornly to wrest a starvation to existence. It's as sad, as depressing, and as inspiring a bit of country to be found on the planet.

MINISTER IS FREED

NACOGDOCHES, Sept. 18. (AP) The grand jury, reporting a no-bill against Rev. L. T. Shelton, 63, preacher-blacksmith, not only freed him, but also granted amnesty to Herbern Cook, 21, whose courtship difficulties led to the minister-smith's incarceration for nine hours after he had married the Cook boy and a 13-year-old girl at the jail.

Rev. Mr. Shelton was charged in a bill of complaint with being an accessory after the fact in the case of Cook, who was held for statutory assault.

When and Where Did All This Fair Business Start?

It Began When Man Saw Need For Education

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

Fairs are as old as civilization. Expositions, another name for fairs, are as old as civilization. Bazaars another name for expositions, are as ancient as the earliest civilization of Asiatic peoples. This is known to all readers as well as students of history. Fairs and expositions and bazaars, call them what you will are the greatest of civilizers. This is the verdict and the truth of history.

Texas is not a very old state, as years count, and yet the Angelo-Saxon civilization of Texas, with its fringe of Teutonic-Seltic civilization, witnessed the birth and the growth of the most marvelous fair and expositions on the continent of North America. This statement may be challenged, but it cannot be successfully controverted. The writer has reference to the state fair of Texas.

More than 50 years ago, there was a young man in the city of Austin selling sewing machines. He was the son of the life-long private physician of George Randolph Hearst of California, the father of William Randolph Hearst and his chain of newspapers and magazines. This young man was a citizens of Austin. Sewing machines were in demand. He traveled out of Austin. He made money playing the game or selling the machine.

Then he moved elsewhere. He established a weekly newspaper devoted to the farming interest and the livestock industry of Texas, but primarily to the farming interest when farming consisted largely of growing cotton and the livestock industry was the basic money industry of a virgin commonwealth. He moved to Dallas. This more than 40 years ago. In his brain, or creative workshop, was born the idea of an agricultural fair and exposition, which in time would become a rival to the bazaars and expositions of earlier times under the skies of Asia and eastern European countries.

He Uses Publicity

He gave publicity to his idea. He planted the seed. It germinated. Men of vision, and they were not scarce at Dallas in its infantile years, caught on. Who was the man who sold sewing machines in Austin and surrounding country and then became the apostle of a new gospel for the people of the state. Frank P. Holland Sr., publisher of Texas Farm and Ranch and Holland's Magazine. In the first or second year of the undertaking, two factions developed. A split came and two fairs were given where one was more than sufficient.

Then the weak one died and the Holland enterprise took root and is known today as the State Fair of Texas. Those who know the history of the enterprise know that it had more to do with the building of Dallas than any other agency. They know that it made Dallas a jobbing center, a wholesale center, a financial center, a department store center, an insurance center, the distributing center of farm implements and farm machinery and the mecca of farmers for the vast black land country.

From its incepiency to this hour, the business men of Dallas, regardless of wealth and regardless of private responsibility, have been actively identified with the fair association and its building program. Business men have filled the place of chief executive. Business men have been on the directory. Business men have served in every capacity and every office, major or minor. In earlier years business men in the list were included the great bankers of Dallas, advanced the money to carry the enterprise and its countless attractions until the gate receipts and concession sales came in.

In lean years or fat years, they were ever in evidence. They made the fair and the newspapers of Dallas furnished the publicity and sounded the praises of the enterprise as an educator and builder and civilizer within the territorial boundaries of their circulation. There were many obstacles to overcome. There were many barriers to break down.

Failures and Losses.

There were many failures and many losses but the pluck of the business men of Dallas and their pocket books mad. the state fair of Texas which became the greatest agricultural fair and exposition on the continent of North America. There were rivals in other states. They have passed away. There was a great annual Toronto fair and exposiiton. And the government of Canda, or rather the parliament of Canada voted large appropriations for building purposes and gave substantial aid otherwise. There never was a day in the history of the Toronto exposition that as many people passed through the turnstiles as passed through the turnstiles of the state fair of Dallas on a given day in the year gone by, and when total attendance is figured, this Texas enterprise was ever far in the lead of the Canadian exposition.

In other states legislative appropriations have been made for state buildings. Not a dollar was ever appropriated for the state fair of Texas by the legislature of the city or county governments of Dallas. Its history is a part of the history of Texas. Its grounds and its buildings having a value of millions of dollars, are the property of the people of Dallas. It has been a great money maker, and its earnings have gone into improvements on the state fair grounds. Indeed, nearly every year a mammoth building is constructed to house some one of the great industries of the Lone Star state.

And yet a citizen of Austin in the long ago should be given the praise of having started the fair and exposition enterprises in Texas. He is in the land of the living. He has been president several times, he has been an active director year in and year out and he is as proud of the mammoth enterprise which has been a builder of Texas as he is of the success which has attained the publications which he launched and made prosper under Texas skies.

The Fat Stock Show.

This Dallas institution was the forerunner of a host of fairs, expositions, livestock shows and rodeos. Fort Worth gave to the people of the southwest the fat stock show as a rival of the state fair of Texas. It became one of the greatest livestock shows in America. It had the backing of the packing houses; it had the backing of the cattle kings of Texas of other days; it had the backing of the business men of Fort Worth; it had the backing of all the men of Fort Worth in the race for supremacy which began when Dallas was a village at the head waters of Trinity river and Fort Worth was a cowtown where the cowmen and the cowboys made the place look like the last outpost of a frontier civilization.

There are county fairs galore, all splendid builders in the Texas of today; there are district fairs, which are equal if not superior to those found in the northern and western states; there are livestock shows and rodeos and race tracks or meetings which annually draw vast crowds to city and town. There are no greater builders of commerce and finance and manufacture than fairs and expositions. There are no greater trade getters to be found under the shining sun of civilized lands. There are no greater educators in the land of the living.

But back to the story. More than 50 years ago a young man, a resident of Austin, was selling sewing machines in the capital city and contiguous territory. There were race meetings in those days. There were no agricultural fairs or livestock shows worthy of the name in this empire which stretch from the Gulf of Mexico to the Rocky mountains and from Mexico to Arkansas and the Indian Territory.

He evolved an idea from his busy brain and the idea in its last analysis was responsible for the greatest fair and exposition on the continent of North America and all this too, "away down here in Texas."

Harrold Farmer Is Buried Friday

ELECTRA, Sept. 18.—A large group of Electra citizens, with the majority of the community surrounding Harrold, payed last tribute to J. N. King, six miles south of Harrold and who was buried from the residence at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. S. H. Holmes, pastor of the Christian church of this city conducted the services.

Mr. King is survived by four sons, George King of Harrold, R. A. King of the Barwise community north of Electra; Mosey King of Frankston, and Logan King of Kinnard, all of whom were present for the services.

He was a pioneer of Frankston but came to this section of the country in 1921, where he has made his home since, and has been in ill health most of the time. He was born in Louisville, Ky., and spent his young manhood in that state.

Electra Man Is Killed on Coast

ELECTRA, Sept. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Elleston, grocery store proprietors of this city, received a message Tuesday stating that their son, Burl Elleston, age 29, of Lone Pine, Calif., had been killed as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident in that city. The message did not give the funeral arrangements, but will probably be in that city. The deceased was well known in Electra, and is survived by three sisters, and two brothers, part of whom live in Electra.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR QUANAH

Voelchker and Dixon To Draw Plans for Institution

Announcement was made yesterday that Voelcker and Dixon, local architects, have been awarded the contract for the new Quanah Hospital Clinic, and are now drawing the plans for the structure. The plans will be finished at an early date and construction work will start about October 1, according to M. T. Clemenis, member of the firm.

The hospital will be 36x108 feet and provide office suites for five doctors and will have full X-ray equipment, and a large waiting room. This unit when complete will cost approximately $25,000. It is so constructed that two other stories may be added to the one story and basement.

The doctors interested in the new hospital are: J. J. Hanna, R. R. McDaniel, J. W. Conley and C. B. Jones.

COTTON SLOW NEAR ELECTRA

Leaf Worm And Late Development Delays Four Gins

ELECTRA, Sept. 18.—Only 70 bales of cotton have been ginned at the four Electra gins, two of which are located in town and two in the country. The cotton situation remains serious, from two viewpoints. First the leaf worm has practically cleared the cotton leaves of the top crop, and in the last ten days, it appears there will be no late cotton, although the cotton is opening slowly, but there is now a call for cotton pickers at the local gins.

The Electra Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture has issued a call to the agricultural bureau department of the chamber of commerce at San Antonio for a number of cotton pickers to be sent to this section of the country.

The cotton crop is below normal but the oil boom at Sunshine Hill and the laying of two large pipe lines from Panhandle to Wichita Falls through Electra together with the large feed crop now being harvested make labor problems serious. However a large number of cotton pickers are seen on the highways going through Electra, but farmers and business men who have interviewed them find them going farther west.

GRANTS 3 PARDONS

ORDER NEEDED AT HOME

FOR some days vague, veiled reports have been filtering out of Russia concerning the imminence of momentous happenings there. These reports have been accompanied by stories of changes in the administration of the affairs of that country. Some of the recognized leaders of the soviet republic are mentioned as having been retired while others are reported as having been changed to other activities. Surrounding states have sent out word that an iron clad censorship has been clamped down and this accounts for the lack of definite information about what, if anything, is transpiring. But there has been so many cries of "wolf" from that part of the world that the people elsewhere will withhold judgment until there is some evidence of lupine activity.

However, these rumors will continue to be of no less engaging interest. Sigrid Schultz, Berlin correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, sends word that there is an increasing exodus of former soviet officials from Russia. He says that these officials are leaving the country hurriedly so that they can remove therefrom all of the transportable property that has come into their possession. It might be all right to deny the right of private property to the original owners of that property, but it is a different question when it comes to denying the same right to those who have been the beneficiaries of the deprivation of that right.

The Tribune correspondent quotes one unnamed refugee from Russia as asserting that momentous events are in course of formation in Russia because even the workers are becoming discontented with the policies being pursued by Moscow. He pictures one phase of the workers' dissatisfaction in this way:

> The Russian worker sees hundreds of millions leave the country for propaganda abroad. Every strike in the world receives funds through the communistic internationale, but those funds are deducted from the wages of the workers.

One of the most difficult obstacles that has faced Russian communism is the refusal of other countries to accept or countenance that disordered system of economics. The idea of the elimination of capital and of the denial of the right to possess private property has failed to penetrate the other countries peacefully. So that the activities of the Russian leaders have been directed towards the fomenting and perpetuation of world wide disorders. But this process had meant the extraction of money from the working classes for the work of creating disorder. While the lack of order at home has been a depressing factor in the amount of workers' funds subject to extraction.

It would seem, therefore, as if the expenditure of some of the funds being used to create disorder abroad in the establishment of order at home is the best use to which such funds can be put. It has happened frequently before that conspiracies and conspirators have done more harm to themselves than anyone else. And it may be that the disorders Russian leaders have preached abroad may be practiced at home. The possibilities involved in the Russian situation are sufficient to keep the interest of the world aroused over the coming actualities.

A WATER HAUL

THE best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley. And bandits, of course, are no exception to the rule. The other day three of them held up a man carrying a satchel in an eastern city. It was a well planned and staged robbery. Everything was done in approved style. A confederate in the proverbial high powered motor car lurked in the offing to speed his companions and their swag to safety. But lo! When they came to the division of spoils there must have been volleys of anathemas more formidable than shrapnel. They had taken $90,000 worth of cancelled checks away from a bank messenger.

In these days of bold daylight robberies, however, such a mistake is liable to happen occasionally. The fact that the bandits knew that the bank messenger was a bank messenger is proof that they weren't novices at the game. Their successful swoop and subsequent getaway further stamps them as desperadoes of the first order. They had timed and schemed and planne dthe staging of their hold-up. They had studied the actions of their man, and knew his route. From some mysterious source they had no doubt learned that he was due to be carrying a large sum of money. Where their information failed was in their not learning the exact nature of the contents of his satchel. But even bandits cannot be expected to know everything.

Every large city has its bandit problem. Despite numerous robbings of bank messengers, they are still used in many places to carry money through city streets. It is a dangerous and risky business. Armored cars and trucks have in many instances been substituted for them. But men and boys lugging black bags loaded with treasure still go about here and there. Not only robbery but murder frequently is the result of this practice. And even when one of them is relieved of a small fortune in cancelled checks it is a reminder that they are or should be, an obsolete institution.

As for the bandits who went to so much trouble to secure $90,000 worth of non-negotiable paper, it is not likely that they were much worried. Certainly they were not if they had a sense of humor. After the first little outburst of temper at their luck they probably sat down and figured out another victim upon whom to even up the score.

MUSSOLINI NERVOUS

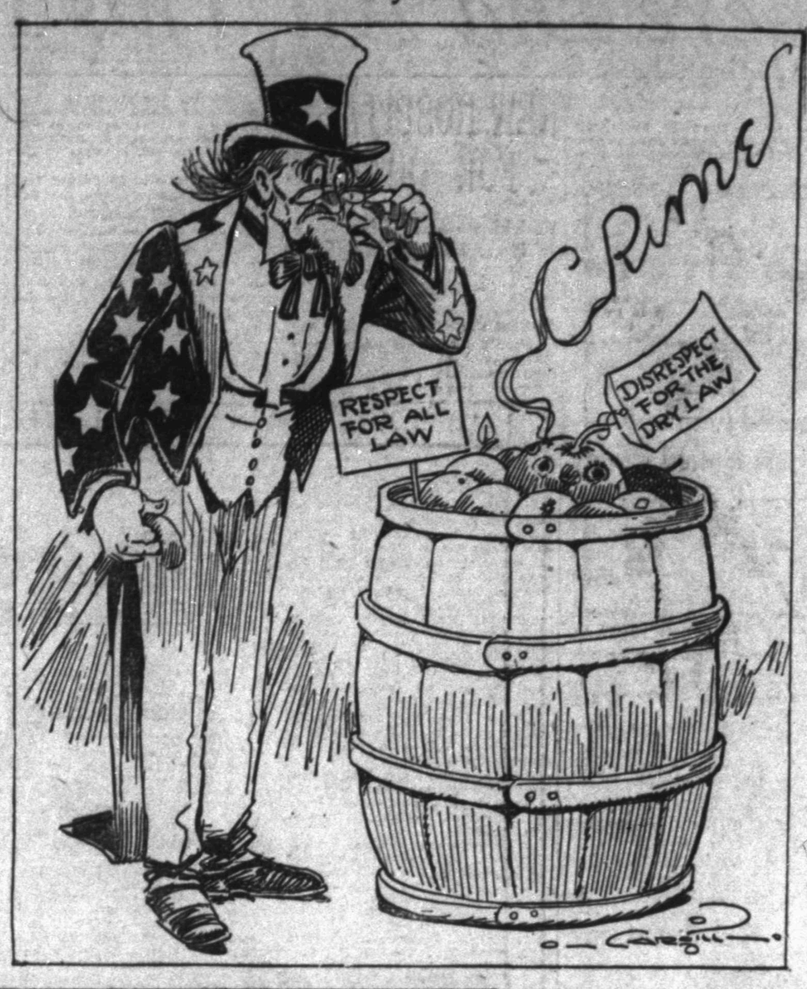

THERE must be a limit even to the iron fortitude of a Mussolini. Three attempts of assassination within a year's time are enough to excuse in the Italian dictator more than a small degree of nervousness, especially since in each case the criminal attempt might just as easily succeeded as failed. It is well enough to assume a protecting star watching over the arch Facist, but a man of cool judgment such as the Duce is not likely to depend too far on a supernaal intervention's showing infinite persistence. In fact the three attacks must have proved to the remarkable Italian that such prominence cannot have been won without the building of a counterforce of enmity that will stop at no sacrifice to accomplish his death.

Therefore, as we have said, the Duce's nervousness is justified, but the proof that it is nervousness that now affects him in his wild remarks about placing the blame upon foreign countries. Apparently he holds France in a sense responsible because Italian nationals escaping thither from facism's domination at home, may have plotted there against the existing Italian authority. Such Juntas functioning on foreign territory have existed since the beginning of history and it is virtually impossible for the foreign lands where such revolutionary coteries have established themselves to suppress their activities. Fellow nationals in any foreign city flock together through a centripetal force of language and race, and if every such friendship of two, three or a dozen were declared dangerous and to be suppressed, the nations affected and Italy as soon as any other would object. When, if two or more should talk home politics and excite some hair-brained fellow to sneak back to Rome and hurl a bomb, we do not see how France, Switzerland or any other country could logically be held to blame. Indeed, in the last analysis it seems to us that Great Britain is more blameworthy for permitting a woman, recognizedly out of her head and prominent enough not to escape notice, to run at large in foreign lands, than France could possibly be through having become the jumping off place for misguided antifacists. The trouble we forsee is that Mussolini's nervous intimations of having means of reprisal will raise new international issues at the very hour when conditions seemed more favorable for prolonged peace than at any time since the World war.

WE MIGHT AT THAT

IF WE only like whale steak we might lower the cost of living. So declares Vice-Consul R. M. Newcomb, stationed at Victoria, B. C. There would be available an annual supply of 100,000 pounds of the dainty, a pound of a piece for every youth and adult in our nation, at a price estimated at 12 1-2 cents per pound. The offcial goes the length of declaring whale meat as "not unpalatable," which though in a sense "damning the diet with faint praise" offers a temptation to those who refuse to be dictated to by their own stomachs and who may be willing to profit by the cheapness of a food that though a bit tough is heavily nourishing. Nor is Mr. Newcomb merely making a wild stab at a dietetic possibility. He assures us that Japan, Norway and Sweden are quite ready to dine on whale meat, and adds that tons of it are shipped to both Siberia and the Congo region of Africa. So if we will only train our taste, we can have planked whale steak as a substitute for our occasional and highly costly sirloin of western beef.

ED WYNN'S QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN

"THE PERFECT FOOL"

He Knows All—He Sees All

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
I don't know what to do, so am asking you to help me. I hate to see my husband intoxicated. I sit up for him every night and he always comes home drunk. Gee, how I hate to see him when he comes home! What can I do?
Sincerely
POLLY ANNAH

Answer:—Don't sit up for him any more.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
My grand father is an old sea captain and he tells me all sorts of tales about the ocean, but when ever he mentions the ocean he calls it the "angry ocean." Why does he call it the angry ocean?
Yours truly,
ANN GLOE SAXON

Answer:—He thinks the ocean is angry because it has been crossed so often.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
A friend of mine is in the hospital with a fractured skull. The doctor says that all my friend keeps saying is: "I was hit with a sandwich." Do you think it is possible for him to get a fractured skull from being hit with a sandwich?
Truly yours,
P. KNUTT BUTTER.

Answer:—It must have been a "club" sandwich.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
I have just left school and have a position. I am very ambitious and am going to start to save money. I may want money, some time, in a hurry, so what I want to know is can I draw my money out of the bank the same day I put it in, if I put it in a Saving Bank?
Sincerely
IKE EEPBOOKS.

Answer:—You sure can as long as you give the bank two weeks notice.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
I saw a policeman stop an automobile and arrest the driver. The man wanted to know why he was arrested and the policeman said because he had only one eye. What charge can they place against a man driving a car just because the man only has one eye?
Yours truly,
D. SEMBER.

Answer:—He was probably arrested for driving because he had one lamp out.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
A girl friend of mine took a position in a photograph studio. When she took the job she only weighed 124 pounds. She has only been working there for three and a half months and she now weighs 162 pounds. How do you account for that?
Yours truly
I. HUGH MERHER

Answer:—She, most likely, is working in the "developing" room.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
I am engaged to be married and my intended husband gave me an engagement ring with a diamond in it. My father says it is an imitation diamond and I say it is genuine. Will you please tell me how to find out if it is imitation or genuine?
Truly yours,
PEARL NECLASS.

Answer:—Try and soak it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
The other day I saw a filthy looking man walk up to another man and pick the man's pocket. Can't you suggest something to the Government that will prevent these pickpockets from putting their dirty hands in other peoples' pockets?
Sincerely
O. U. MUST

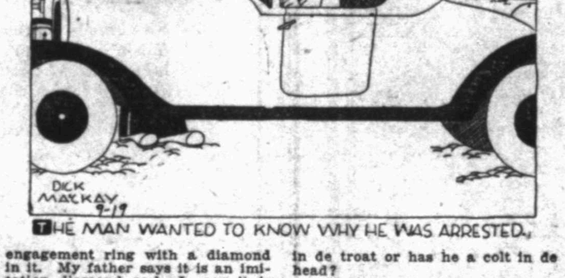

Answer:—I have given your letter lots of thought and have come to the conclusion the only thing the Government can do to keep pick-pockets from putting their dirty hands in other people's pockets, is for the Government to pass a law conpelling the pick-pockets to wash their hands first.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
I am a boy 10 years old and go to public school. My English teacher gave me this question: "The liquor, what the man bought was soon drunk." She told me the sentence is wrong and wants me to correct it. Will you correct it for me?
Yours truly
G. WHIZITS HARDE.

Answer:—Instead of "The liquor what the man bought, was soon drunk," it should be "The man, what bought the liquor, was soon drunk."

Dear Mr. Wynn:—
If a chentleman has trouble wit his voice und can't talk goot what is wrong mit him. Has he a horse in de troat or has he a colt in de head?
Yours
A. WEENER SCHNITZEL.

Answer next week.

THE MAN WANTED TO KNOW WHY HE WAS ARRESTED.

HELD FOR MURDER

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 17.(AP)—Reagan Harden, 26, of Texico, N. M., is held in jail here on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Severa Encinias, 33, at a pool room here Wednesday. The shooting followed an argument over cards.

MAKE A LAW COMPELLING PICK-POCKETS TO WASH THEIR HANDS.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

A corn field. Wheat. A barnyard. Children wading in a brook. Nearing the city now. Cat-tail marshes. Desecrating billboards. Tobacco. Tires. Stove polish. "Fifty Miles to the Cosmopolis hotel."

Dear Kitten,

Everything here O. K. Had a card from Nora—back next week. But I'm all right without her. Some hotel for breakfast. Dine at the club. Rather like the change.

So you needn't hurry back. Stay as long as you like. Wire if you need money. As ever,
W.

Warren always chary of words. His letters telegraphic.

Again gazing out at the purpling fields.

After that don't-need-you note, she should have stayed longer. At least a few days. Her pride—but three weeks all she could stand.

Homesick! Wretchedly homesick. And now her home-coming spoiled by this don't-car-how-long you-stay letter.

Almost there now. The straggling outskirts of the city. Factories. Tumbling shanties. A shabby approach.

Grand Central at last.

Yet it was home. She loved the verve and roar.

Taxis—buses—trucks. The never ending stream.

Swarming sidewalks. Straw hats. Summer gowns. The shuffle and hum. Traffic whistles. The oder of gasoline. A distant hand-organ.

Up the avenue. Crawling. Her smoldering impatience.

If Warren should be there! No—no chance of that. Only half-past nine.

"Yes, Mis' Curtis, been hot all week. Yesterday the worst."

Home at last! Eagerly she switched on the lights. Only three weeks! It seemed more like months.

"Why, Pussy Purr-Mew! You been neglected, too? Have you had enough to eat?"

Apparently she had. Her tummy—reassuringly plump. Yes, whatever Warren's delinquencies—anything left to his care would be well fed.

Food! To him always of paramount importance.

Cigar ashes. The ash trays full. Envelopes and magazines had served as extras.

Window open! Awnings up. Dust pouring in day and night. If only he had closed up in the morning!

To the pantry for water! How the dry soil drank it up! The poor leaves like parched tongues.

To Helen plants seemed almost human. He might have watered them! Cruel to let them die of thirst.

The kitchen. How awful!

All those milk bottles. Half full. Soured, curdled. A daily half bottle for Pussy Purr-Mew—the rest he hadn't troubled to throw away. Hadn't even put out the bottles. The whole place reeked with sour milk.

Food for Pussy Purr-Mew! The one thing not neglected.

A stack of soiled, milk-dried saucers in the sink. Every saucer in the place—and he had started on the soup plates. Not one had been washed!

Where to begin? She would send for Mrs. O'Grady in the morning.

Leave the sink for her? Always Helen shrank from dish-washing. And that sickening odor of sour milk! But no—she could not leave those saucers.

Now out of her traveling things, into a crisp, cool housedress.

"Yes, you ought to purr! You hate dirty things, too. You would not drink from a soiled saucer—had to give you a clean one every day."

The sink cleared, salmon thrown out, icebox opened to air, bones gathered up. The rest of the cleaning left for Mrs. O'Grady.

After ten now. To get the place in order before he came!

"At least you're glad to see me back! You were lonely, weren't you?"

A general straightening and dusting.

Ten of eleven! Even if he had gone to the theater, he wouldn't be much later.

Working—no time to worry. But now, as she dropped on the window seat, Pussy Purr-Mew in her lap, again that morbid depression.

He hadn't missed her! He hadn't needed her. Stabbing phrases from his letter, "Stay as long as you like," "Everything here O.K."

Even with all this disorder, he could say that. He hadn't cared! He had merely slept here. Breakfast at a hotel—dinner at the club.

Plainly he welcomed the change—the freedom.

But her dependence upon him! For companionship, happiness—everything! Not a day of those three weeks enjoyed—because he wasn't with her.

She clung to him too much! Was that what irked him? Why he welcomed a few weeks alone? Even without Nora—in such discomfort.

She started up. Those thoughts intolerable. Better keep on working.

That waste-basket! Overflowing.

"..... ou'll cut short your visit—we'll....."

"....time without you. Haven't been sleeping w....."

"....sweltering here. Rotten t... ...ou'll cut short your visit—we'll .....time without you. Haven't been sleeping w..... the place. Not here any more than I can he .....every night. Feel rocky.... wire when you're com[666"

The joy of it! Reaction. Leaping exultancy.

And dated day before yesterday. The date of the letter sent!

Too proud to admit his need of her.

Carefully she bundled up the contents of the waste-basket. Tomorrow she would look for the remaining fragments. She wanted it all—to keep always. His one demonstrative letter since their marriage.

But he must never know that she knew!

Back in the library. Slipping the fragments into an envelope—

The door! Warren!

"Hello, Kitten! What in blazes—What're you doin' here?"

"Clearing up this mess," kissing him with well-feigned nonchalance. "Thought with Nora gone I'd better get back. Good thing I did. How could you live in this place?"

"Wasn't here much. Just to sleep," glancing about the transformed apartment with ill-concealed relief.

"And I suppose you didn't miss me at all?"

"Not so much. We managed all right, didn't we, Pussums?" winking at Pussy Purr-Mew.

"You wouldn't think so from the looks of things. Yes, you fed her—that's all you did do! You might've watered my flowers."

"By George, Kitten, didn't once think of the darn things! Well, never mind, I'll blow you to some more. I'll send the florist up tomorrow."

"No, not yet. Maybe I can save the ivy."

"Well, how're the Slaters? Have a good time?"

"Oh, yes, glorious! They were wonderful to me. I couldn't realize I'd been there three weeks. I loved it," gloating over his masculine inability to conceal his chagrin.

"Oh, you did? Then why the deuce d'you come back?"

"To look after things. If I'd stayed away much longer—the health officers would've been here. All that sour milk! And those saucers in that sink—"

"Huh, don't flatter yourself you're the whole works 'round this dump. If I'd gone in for heavy housekeepin'—I could've slicked up, too."

Then opening his tobacco pouch. "Here, this pipe's no good—get busy and find me that English briar. Been lookin' for it for the last two weeks. What're you grinnin' about? Think I missed you, eh? Well, I didn't send you any S. O. S.'s, did I? Got along great, didn't we, Pussums? All we needed was a few more saucers!"

Next Week—"An Absent Hostess"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Virgo.

Today's planetary aspects are none too favorable, although they are not definitely adverse, they are overcast and dull. It is not a day when you will experience any sense of exhileration as there will be an entire absence of stimulating vibrations. You will, of course, engage in your customary Sunday observances or recreations. These, however will not yield that amount of satisfaction that they usually afford. There will prevail influences that do not make for peace of mind or happiness, and behooves you to fight this tendency to become dissatisfied, and to rise superior to it, by the exercise of will-power and a resoluteness to be cheerful, in spite of an untoward atmosphere.

Children born today will, during babyhood, flourish in a physical sense, "like the green bay tree." This encouraging condition will, unfortunately, not continue, and, just as soon as they discard their "swaddling clothes," their troubles will begin. Given, however, proper care and skillful treatment, they will "win out," and, thereafter develop along normal lines, and attain a healthy adulthood. In disposition, they will be erratic and undependable. They will be highly nervous, and nearly always dissatisfied with surrounding conditions. They will not want what they have, but will never know, for a certainty, what they do want. Age and experience will ameliorate this condition, they will, even in later life show a disposition "to cry for the moon."

If today is your birthday, you are an indefatigable worker, fired by worthy ambition, and animated by dauntless energy. If your mental processes were always sound, there is an altitude, in a material way that you could not climb. It is, however, unfortunate that your dynamic efforts are so often sterile, as a result of impracticable dreams. In treating with your fellow creatures, you are discreet. In your work you are painstaking. In actual execution, you are accurate. In your tastes you are fatidious. You show a "strong penchant" for good literature, and, in conversation, you are not only earnest, but convincing.

Your disposition is loving and kind-hearted, and, if your home life is not brimful of happiness, it is because your mate sets more store on the practical side of life than on virtues that charm, but do not accumulate material reward.

Successful people born this date are: William Gaston, jurist of North Carolina; William B. Astor, merchant and capitalist; James De Koven, clergyman and author; Ethan Allen Hitchcock, statesman, John S. Crosby, soldier and politician; Marshall P. Wilder, humorist.

BURKBURNETT

HOSTESS TO CLASS

Mrs. W. A. McClellen was hostess to a delightful little party in honor of her Sunday school class of girls in the Presbyterian church.

The class held a brief business session and organized under the name of the "Glad Game Class" with the motto: "I Am Glad." Its aim is "To play the Clad Game and to help others to play it." Class colors are purple and yellow; purple signifying loyalty, "We are loyal daughters of the king;" yellow signifying light, "We will let our light shine by playing the glad game." Class flower, yellow and purple for pansies, for thought of others.

Following the organization a lawn party program was enjoyed in which gymnastic tag, puss in the corner and other jolly games were played. A contest of racing, hopping and other fun making races were reported.

CHURCH TO IMPROVE.

Among the church improvements of the city the officers and members of the Presbyterian church are launching a campaign to secure pews, paint the building and add class rooms. The Ladies' Missionary society of the church are taking an active part in this work and the several class organizations are painting and beautifying their respective class rooms.

CLUB HOLDS MEET.

The Burkburnett University Study club held its first meeting of the new club year at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. M. L. Urban, the newly elected president, in the chair.

Following a business session relative to the year books and other matters of the year's study, plans, Mrs. R. D. Cunningham gave the introductory lesson on South America, beginning with its earliest historical origin.

The social hour at the close of the study period, was featured by a delicious salad treat.

Those attending this meeting were: Mesdames Gillchrist, Adams, M. L. Urban, W. R. Hill, R. D. Cunningham, W. P. Martin, Robt. Texis, Joe Davis, Glenn Kincaid, Harry Lamb, W. D. Utts, Chamberlain, and Mrs. Harry Egle of Fort Worth, special guest of the entertaining hostess.

The following changes were made in the official staff of organization: Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Lamb; recording secretary, Mrs. Russell D. Cunningham; second vice president, Mrs. W. R. Hill.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, September 22 in the home of Mrs. Cunningham at the Magnolia cottage on West College street..

ALATHEAN CLASS MEETS

The Alathean class of the Baptist church met this week with Mrs. Hattie Buchanan, the other hostess being Mrs. Hazel Lilly and Mrs. Clow Stalling.

Following the devotional and business program in which Mrs. M. T. White and Mrs. J. M. Hayworth took part, a general discussion on hospitality was conducted and featured this part of the program. Social hour followed.

RETURN FROM CONVENTION

J. B. Crissy as delegate from the Oscar Frye post and Mrs. J. M. Gill as delegate from the American Legion auxiliary returned from the state convention in Amarillo, and both report a splendid session full of good work in the interest of the ex-soldier.

Burkburnett made a good showing with the many others represented. This was especially true of the auxiliary which was listed as the "Baby Unit"—just three months old, but thriving and promising.

RINGWORMS ON FACE AND ARMS

Itched Badly. Suffered 2 Years. Cuticura Heals.

"I was bothered with ringworms that affected my face and arms. They formed little blisters and my face looked terrible. The ringworms itched badly and when I scratched it caused eruptions. Sometimes my clothing aggravated the blisters on my arms causing them to be awfully sore. I suffered with them for two years.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they relieved me in three days. I continued using them and in four weeks was healed, after using two cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment." (Signed) Miss Lillie C. Ford, R. 1, Box 26, Rentiesville, Okla.

Use Cuticura for all toilet purposes.

Dangelmyer and Sunshine Hill Lead In Week's Completions

PROVEN AREA HOLD UP WELL

Proven Areas on The Wane But May Break Out, Is Operators' Belief

The completion of the Dangelmyer well in northeast Cooke county by Lynch, Stahl and Burrell o fArdmore furnished the one high spot in a week of rather smooth sledding in the oil industry of the Wichita district. Wildcatting appears to be on the wane although the optimists believe it will break out with renewed life at almost any time. The proven territory continues to hold up in both the number of operations and in new production.

The Dangelmyer well which topped the sand about the middle of the previous week was the most popular topic of conversation among oil men until it was finally drilled in on Friday. At that time an immense crowd was present to see with its own eyes that there really was an oil well in that territory. Those who came, say, believed and went away, some to their homes and businesses but many others to the scramble for royalty and acreage. There is no doubt about this wildcat being an oil well because it bailed between 30 and 40 barrels through a badly mudded hole from the sand at 792 to 808 feet. It is the opinion of many experts who were on the scene of activity that the new strike is good for a hundred barrels daily when the hole is cleaned out. Being twelve miles from proven territory this producer opens up a wide stretch of territory for drilling. A hundred barrel well at 800 feet is no bad thing and the play is expected to be lively for some time.

Completions in Sunshine.

Sunshine Hill contributed its usual quota of good completions, among them being the largest well to date for the new sand in that territory. R. R. Clarks No. 8 Ward and Todd on the Sanders estate fee, east of the discovery, was drilled in about the middle of the week the sand topped at 1846 feet and from 13 feet of the pay it began flowing at the rate of about 70 barrels an hour. The flow later settled somewhat and the well is now making about 1250 barrels daily. The joint test of Bridwell and Heydrick and the United Producers company was completed in the sand at 1836 to 1870 feet with a flush production of approximately 500 barrels. These operators have two other operations under way in the field. There are 15 or 20 rigs in this field going towards the new deep pay level and Sunshine Hill will hold its prominence in the oil news for some time.

The 1-A Farmer well of the Tidal Oil company has made an oil well apparently as it is estimated to be good for 25 barrels from one foot of sand topped at 1475 feet and is going deeper. This well is in the W. C. Winters survey and about a mile and a half southwest of the Comac pool in Archer county.

Turbeville Finishes.

Several operations were finished in the Turbeville pool during the week. The Texas company No. 7 Turbeville was making 1200 barrels swabbing at the end of the week, and No. 8 was benig drilled in. Marland's No. 6 Turbeville made a water well. The joint test of the Consolidated and Simms companies was completed for 60 barrels. The American Refining company No. 1 Turbeville was a dry hole at 1499 feet.

Southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county, Harry Jaffe's No. 9 Mitchell was completed for 250 barrels initial in the new deep pay at 1875 feet and since being put on the pump has increased to 300 barrels.

The news from Montague county indicates that the Nocona pool is spreading to an enormous size and there have been a dozen good wells brought in there in the past week.

Pipeline runs registered the first decrease in many weeks due to a the many rigs that are now run- lack of new production but with ning in the proven and semi-wild- soon be again on the upward cat areas the daily averages should march.

Roxana Completes 120 Bbl. Producer

Perhaps the most important extension that has been made in many months to the Texas Panhandle field has just been efefcted by the Roxana Petroleum corporation. In completing its No. 1 Bryan, in the northeast corner of section 92, block 4, I. & G. N. surve/, Carson county, for a 1200-barrel well in the granite wash from 3148 to 3176 feet, the last two feet being pay, it has proven up a vast area of undeveloped acreage lying between the main pool in Hutchinson county in a southeasterly direction towards the Gray county pool.

The Roxana's well is also making 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas, which is helping to flow the oil production.

The No. 1 Bryan is 10 miles due east of the original Burnett pool of the Gulf Production company, and also in Carson county. Among the operators whose acreage is benefitted by the Roxana completion is the Skelly Oil company, that has 22 sections of land in a solid block, south and southeast and east of the new well. This land comprises the 12,000-acre Shaffer ranch, that is situated in both Carson and Gray counties.

In the Gray county pool, the Magnolia Petroleum company No. 6 Mortens, in the northeast of the south half of section 82, block 3, it had granite wash from 3034 to 3036 feet, but it tested dry. This is the most easterly failure. It condemns some land in the northeastern area of the Gray county pool, the southeast territory having been proven production by the recent completions of the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company on its Worley-Reynolds ranch.

Tonkawa Pool Has Another Big Well

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 18. — The Tonkawa northwest extension has another big well in its most northerly producer.

It is Barnsdall Oil company No. 1 Liegerot, in the southeast corner of the northwest of 28-25-1w, Kay county, that had the Wilcox sand from 4,277 to 4,281 feet for 1,415 barrels of oil and not a trace of water.

Skelly Oil company and Manahan in No. 4 Becker, in the northwest of the southeast of the southwest of 28-25-1w, gauged 80 barrels in a seven period from the sand, just scratched at 4,292 feet.

Gypsy Oil company No. 4 Gardner, in the southwest of the northeast of the southwest of 28-25-1w, that made 1,400 barrels initial and declined, was deepened from 4,300 to 4,321 feet, and it caused the well to stop flowing and put 2,800 feet of water in the hole. The Wilcox sand discovery well there, No. 1, Gardner, made 2,017 barrels of oil and 1,087 barrels of water. Its initial was 9,000 barrels initial from 4,270 to 4,292 feet.

Blackwell Oil and Gas company No. 1 Liegerot, in the southeast corner of the northeast of 29-25-1w the most northwesterly well, did 1,438 barrels of oil and 800 barrels of water.

Tulsa Concern In Panhandle Deal

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 18.—Floyd O. Howarth and associates of Tulsa, have purchased the east 80 acres in the north half of the northwest quarter of section 92, block 4, I. & G. N. survey, Carson county for $50,000 in cash and $37,500 in oil.

R. Ware and others of Amarillo have sold to the Roxana Petroleum corporation an 80 acres in section 106, block 92, and another 80 acres is being negotiated for near the Roxana's No. 1 Bryan, in section 92, block 4, now gauging 54 barrels an hour steadily in granite wash at 3143 feet.

New Field Gets Derricks Started

ABILENE, Sept. 18.—Each day ses the new "Noodle Creek" field in southwest Jones county take on more of the appearance of an oil field. Materials are being hauled to the locations which are being staked out daily around the Phillips discovery well on the Joe Winter farm.

The Marland Oil company has the materials on the ground for a test on its lease, a west offset. The Midwest company is preparing to build a rig southwest of the discovery. The Phillips has rig material on its Walling lease.

J. R. Walling received the top price paid so far for royalty when he sold one-fourth of his one-eighth on 80 acres of his 320-acre tract for $40,000. The name of the purchaser was not made public.

RATES REDUCED

AUSTNI, Tex., Sept. 18.(AP)—The state fire insurance commission announced Saturday specific schedule for Giddings, reduced from 80 to 69 cents. Rates for Smithville, 55 cents, Damon $1, Eldorado 98 cents and Overton $1, were announced as unchanged.

GULF COAST

Humble Oil and Refining company No. 1 Beavers, in the Hull field, of the Texas Gulf Coast, is making 1,000 barrels a day and showing four per cent water. Empire Gas and Fuel company No. 20 Brangrover, in the same field, is good for 1,000 barrels daily.

At Spindletop, the Gulf Oil corporation No. 4 Wood, increased its flow from 4,200 to 15,000 barrels a day, increasing the field's peak to 101,000 barrels a day.

SINS OF THE FATHER

CHICAGO.—Arrested for theft and accused of three previous convictions, George Morgan proved that it was his father who had previously been convicted.

AGES OF WOMEN

LONDON.—Justice Barres defined in court the three important ages of women as those "of the teething ring, engagement ring and wedding ring."

Shaw and Rathke Buy Archer Blocks

Shaw and Rathke (Security Drilling Co.) announced Saturday the purchase of two blocks of producing acreage in Archer county during the past week.

One of the blocks was a forty acre lease with three weeks making about 50 barrels of oil daily, purchased from C. H. Clark and W. M. Baldridge for a consideration of about $40,000. This property is is on the S. H. Bishop land in section 162 of the T. E. & L. survey.

A seventy acre lease on the Andrews land in the Wm. Spavin survey, southeast of Anarene was the other block. This propety has three producing wells making about 75 barrels. This purchase was from Jeffers and Jeffers. The price was not announced.

SEMINOLE POOL GAINS IN YIELD

Geologists Puzzled As To Trend of Fault Zone There

TULSA, Okla., 18.—The Seminole City field of Seminole county continues to keep the Mid-Continent oil fraternity interested and on its toes for the newest development there.

The geologists are somewhat "up in the air" as to whether a fault runs from the northwest in a southwest direction through the field .

The Gypsy Oil company No. 2 Fixico, in the southeast corner of the northwest of the northeast of 26-9-6, appears to have topped what its own men term the Hunton lime at 4,000 feet, for approximately 250 barrels a day. This is 102 feet lower than where the Independent Oil and Gas company and R. F. Garland's No. 1 Fixico, in the northeast corner of the southwest of the northeast of 26-9-6, had the Hunton lime at 3,904 feet .

The apparent difference in depths where the Hunton lime was topped, and their seeming similarity in surface elevations, has caused the geologists of Mid-Continent firms operating there to hold frequent check meetings, to look over logs, cuttings, elevation records and to otherwise talk about the development.

Some oil executives are inclined to think that the difference in where the Hunton lime and Wilcox sands have been found is due to the condition of the holes, drilled to 3,500 and 3,600 feet with rotary tools. They say that very few Mid-Continent rotary drilled holes are straight and that only in a standard tool hole can a perfectly straight hole be drilled.

Geologists who are watching the discussions, but offering no opinions, say that the next two to three weeks will definitely tell the story as to whether Seminole City becomes as large as Cushing. Some now think that it will exceed the 100,000-barrel a day mark in output.

Two problems now confront the operators in the Seminole City field. First and most important is the matter of disposal of the increasing production. The pipelines in the area are hard pressed to serve the wells but assistance is at hand from many other purchasers and transporters of petroleum.

The present pipeline capacity of the field is 28,000 barrels a day, and this will be increased at once to 40,000 barrels a day, with other lines ready to come in if the field keeps growing. Field officials have recommended that they come in, but their executives are watchfully waiting.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

This is a simple method that makes blackheads go as if by magic. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub briskly over the affected parts, and in two minutes you will find every blackhead dissolved away entirely.—Adv.

News Of The Field

MAER ET AL, MITCHELL

Maer and Staniforth and Cochran No. 1 Mitchell located 150 feet each way from the southeast corner of the J. Mitchell 68 acres in the Thos. Leftwich survey, Cooke county, has gone one foot into a sand at 1,944 feet, which shows plenty of "kick" according to reports. This sand will be given a test.

EMPIRE, PARKEY

The Empire Gas and Fuel company No. 8 Parkey in section 1, SPRR survey, Archer county, has set and cemented casing on the sand at 1,532 feet. No 4 Parkey has cemented casing at 1,482 feet. The Empire and Moran No. 2-A Parkey is cementing at 1,472 feet.

SHASTA, MEADOR

The Shasta Oil company will drill a test on the Meador land northwest of Munster in Cooke county and located in the northwest quarter of the west 736 acres of the Henry Dixon survey, three miles east of Saint Jo.

SHAW ET AL, ANDREWS

Shaw and Rathke's No. 4 Andrews (Jeffers and Jeffers) is dry and abandoned at 1,030 feet having missed the pay at 975 feet. This well is in the Wm. Spavin survey survey southeast of Anarene, Archer county, and on a lease recently purchased from Jeffers and Jeffers.

TEXHOMA, BURNETT

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company has what appears to be the best well in its vicinity in the No. 0-1 Burnett in the S&MG survey, south of Fowlkes station in Wichita county. The well looks like a 100 barreler at 1,580 feet.

SEABOARD CULLERS

The Seabord Oil and Gas company and L. E. Trout have made location for No. 3 Cullers 1,160 feet west and 250 feet south of the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of the Chairs survey in southwest Jack county.

JAFFE MITCHELL

Harry Jaffe will spud in Monday on No. 9 Mitchell—second well in new deep sand—300 feet west of No. 4 which is located in block 5, Patience Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county. No 4 Mitchell is making 300 barrels daily on the pump.

TEXHOMA, M'DOWELL

The Texhoma Oil ahd Refining company will start a test on the McDowell land and in the southwest quarter of section 107, H&GN survey, Collinsworth county on the former holdings of Burton and Grisham, which the Texhoma recently purchased.

CHENAULT ET AL, RA'

Chenault and Les No. 8 Rachuig in the BBB&CR survey, northwest of Olney in Young county, bailed a sand at 1,162 to 1,172 feet which showed no oil and the well is going deeper.

GULF, K-KEMPER

TEXAS, RIDDLE

The Texas company No. 1 Riddle on that company's one-ache tract in the Votaw survey in Montague county and offsetting the Gulf lease, swabbed 210 barrels of oil in 24 hours in sand at 917-26 feet.

MATHEWS, LOVING

Mathews and Terrel No. 1 A. Loving, in the center of the northeast quarter of section 3,345 TE&L survey and three miles east of Germyn in Jack county, is drilling below 2,360 feet.

PETROLEUM, TURB

The Petroleum Producers company and the United Producers company No. 1 Turbeville in the southwest corner of the lease on the J. H. Turbeville lands, block 171, has set casing on the sand at 1,459 feet and the well is showing up for another good producer for that pool.

TEXAS TURB

The Texas company drilled in its Nos. 7 and 8 Turbeville Saturday in the usual sand found in block 172 of the aCrson survey, Archer county. No. 7 swabbed 900 barrels in 18 hours and No. 8 is reported approximately a thousand barrel well.

PIPELINE RUNS IN SMALL LOSS

Slump Attributed to Lack Of Wildcatting; Proven Areas

The daily average pipeline runs in the Wichita district for the past week were slightly less than those of the preceding week with 96,420 barrels as compared to 96,955 barrels daily for the previous seven days. No one territory registered a great loss although a number had lower figures. The slump may be attributed to the comparative laxity in wildcat play, the proven fields with the exception of Archer county holding their own. Montague county made another increase and now has a daily average near the 7500-barrel mark. The fields of Electra, Clay, Young and Cooke counties made a better average.

Field	Last Week	Prev. Week
Electra	16,830	16,695
Burkburnett	11,110	11,925
Iowa Park	4,220	4,275
Archer	30,675	31,405
Clay	600	580
Wilbarger	14,195	14,420
Montague	7,480	7,280
Young	8,520	8,225
Jack	230	240
Throckmorton	1,455	1,480
Baylor	130	150
Cooke	375	270
Totals	96,420	96,695

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: IN THIS CORNER---

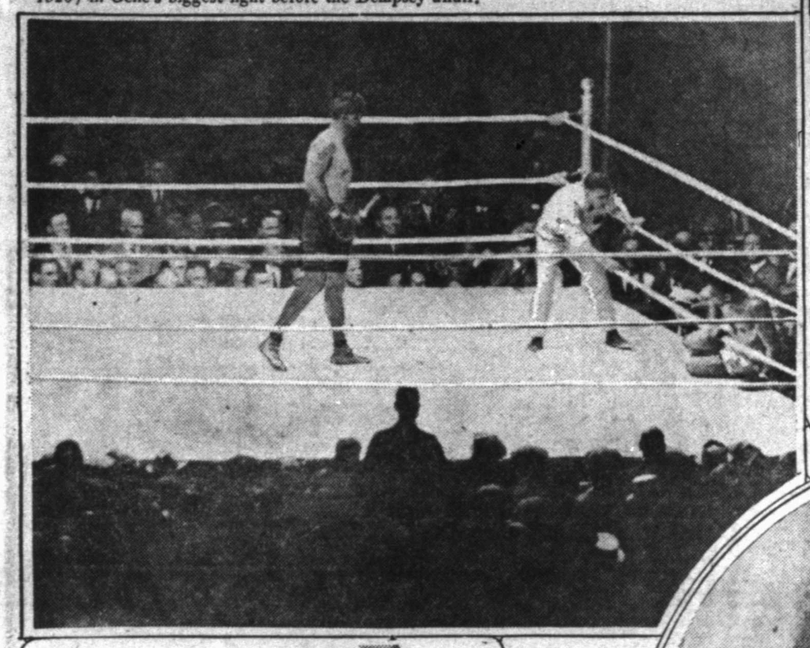

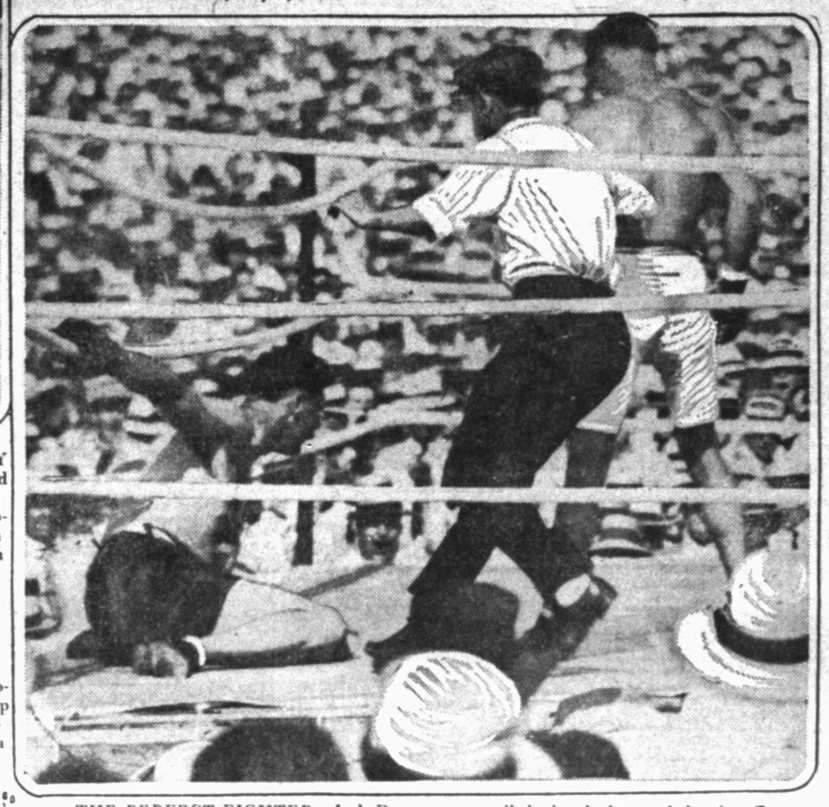

WE HAVE—Gene Tunney, who won out in the scramble for a chance at Jack Dempsey's title. Tunney stands impatiently against the ropes waiting to finish Tommy Gibbons (June 5, 1925) in Gene's biggest fight before the Dempsey affair.

WE HAVE—Jack Dempsey, with the light of a killer in his eyes, waiting in his corner for Georges Carpentier to rise in their battle of the century, which ended with Carpentier knocked out in the fourth round, July 2, 1921.

DEMPSEY IN TRAINING—Hardest task of all to champions is long training grind. Here's Dempsey hard at it.

GENE TUNNEY—Decided he could lick Dempsey when Gene won A. E. F. light heavyweight title in France after helping to whip the Germans as a marine.

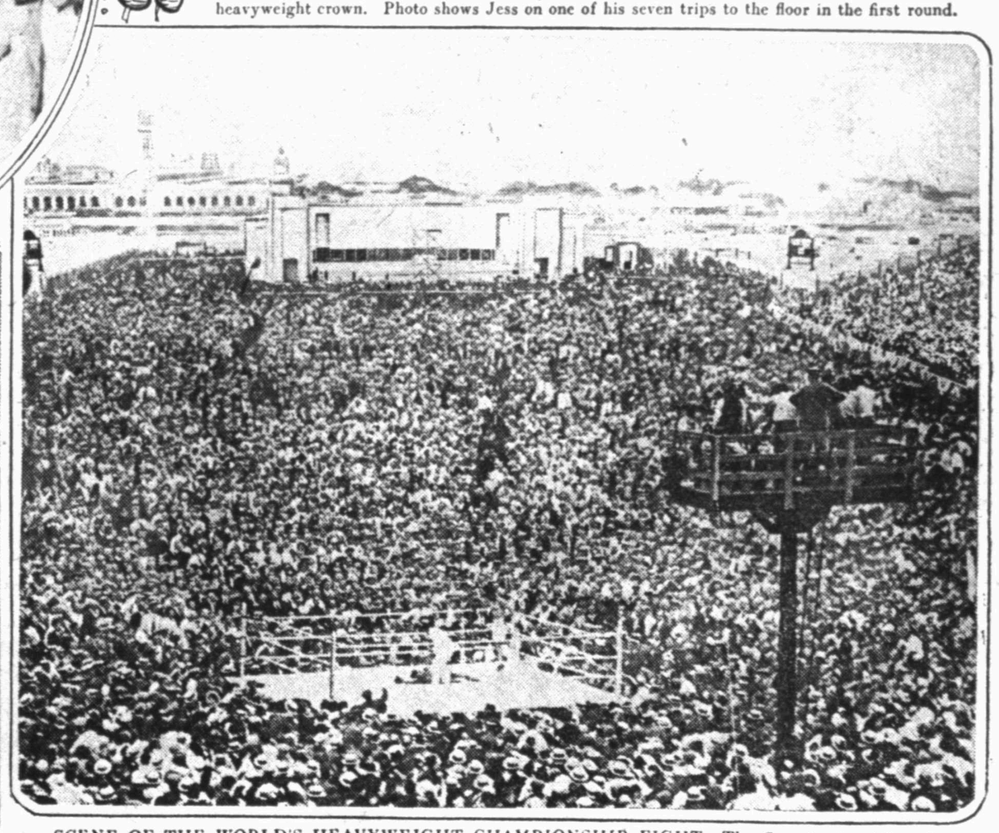

MOST UNPLEASANT MEMORY—For Demsey is this scene, wherein he is being pushed back into the ring after being knocked out of it and almost out of his title by Luis Firpo, "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Sept. 14. 1923.

TUNNEY IN TRAINING—Skipping the rope, first aid to increasing speed, footwork and strengthening the leg muscles.

PROMOTER—Of the heavyweight battle, Tex Rickard, master promoter of the game, who has made millions staging the big fights.

Giants Bowl Reds Over In Sixth-Round Flare-Up That Brings 5-4 Victory

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.(AP)—Cincinnati dropped another game to New York today, putting the Reds a game and a half behind St. Louis, the league leaders. The Giants broke a one to one tie in the sixth, hitting Donohue and Lucas for four hits and four runs. The Giant onslaught began when Mueller singled and Ford missed Lindstrom's bounder, giving the runners their bases. Mueller scored on Frisch's single while Lindstrom went to third. Kelly also singled scoring Lindstrom and putting Frisch on third. Donohue was then replaced with Lucas. Terry forced Kelly, Frisch scoring. Tyson forced Terry and came in when Jackson's drive went for two bases while Christensen was juggling it for an error, Cincinnati added two in the seventh on Roush's single and Pipp's homer into right field. A final Red tally in the eighth came when Greenfield weakened. Ford walked, Christensen singled, Ford resting at second. Walker singled to center filling the bases. Virgil Barnes then rushed in to head off a rally but Ford scored when Roush forced Walker at second. Carl Mays was on the program for Cincinnati's battery today but reported ill this morning and Donohue volunteered to substitute. He had worked as relief pitcher yesterday and pitched a shut-out the day before and the strain told on him. The game ended the season's meeting of the Giants and the Reds with the New Yorkers having won 15 and the Reds 7.

CUBS, BRAVES DIVIDE

BOSTON, Sept. 18. (AP)—Boston and Chicago divided honors in a double header today the Braves won the first game 5 to 2, scoring the winning run in the ninth with two out on High's single to right. The second game was a Chicago victory 6 to 0. Blake held the Braves to five hits, made three hits himself and fielded his position well. Manager Bancroft and Catcher Taylor of Boston were put out of the first game for disputing a decision by Umpire McLaughlin at third base. The Cubs made three double plays in the second game and claimed that their total of 178 to date set a new National League team record for double plays.

Waco And Baylor On Grid This Week

WACO, Sept. 18. (AP)—The intercollegiate and interscholastic footballs eason begins in Waco next week. Friday afternoon the Waco high Tigers, the most famed high school organization in the southland, coached by Paul L. Tyson, will meet the Belton high Tigers. Saturday afternoon the new Baylor team, under the direction of its new coach, Morley Jennings, will clash with the Southwestern University Pirates, championship team of the T. I. A. in 1925. There have been times in the past when Belton has given the Tigers considerable opposition.

Baylor and Southwestern have not met on the gridiron since 1920. Southwestern won that game by a score of 6 to 0, and Southwestern is coming to Waco for victory this time. It may be a practice game for Baylor, but will not be practice game for the Pirates. It is apt to prove the stellar conflict of the week.

Steers Nose Out Canibals, 2 to 1

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—A brilliant pitchers' battle between Love and Shuman for the Steers and Bowman for the Longview Cannibals ended in a 2 to 1 victory for Dallas here Saturday.

The Cannibals ace had allowed the Steers only four hits, two by Brainard. Love gave up three hits in six innings and Shuman two hits. Dutch Boyd drove in the Cannibals' sole tally in the seventh with a clean hit to left field after Lowrance got abroad by forcing Moore, who had walked.

Wilson Defeats Tigers, 13 to 0

Fumbles Prove Costly To Reese's Gridders In Opener

ELECTRA, Sept. 18.—Electra played its first football game of the season Saturday and lost to Wilson, Okla., 13-0, here.

Electra received the kick-off and on the first down Gillum circled left end for ten yards. On the next play Smith went over end for seven yards. After that Electra was unable to gain and the teams played in mid-field the rest of the quarter. Electra fumbled in the second quarter and Wilson recovered. Wilson completed a pass over the goal line but failed to kick goal. During the third quarter both teams were about evenly matched and neither team threatened seriously in that period.

A fumble also cost Electra the second touchdown. In the fourth period Gillum and Lebus tried a double pass and Lebus fumbled, Wilson scooped up the ball and ran for a touchdown and kicked goal.

The Tigers launched a passing attack in the closing minutes of the game and they completed two passes which netted 25 yards but Wilson began to push them back.

Reese sent in most of his second string men in the last few minutes but they did not do so well. Preston fumbled and recovered the ball over Electra's goal line but the final whistle kept Wilson from adding two more points to their total.

Wanted:—Captain For Pirate Ship

GEORGETOWN, Sept. 18. (AP) A peculiar situation faces the Southwestern Pirates at the opening of their grid season. They have no captain. The famous Carl Reynolds, four-letter man, considered by many to be one of the outstanding athletes of Texas, was to have been at the head of the eleven but he was persuaded during the summer to become coach at Lon Morris college at Jacksonville.

Coach C. M. "Lefty" Edens has not yet stater when the vacancy will be filled. Bruce "Ham" Duncan, the big guard who led the team to so spectacular a victory last season, is again with the squad, and other veterans are holding the new man to the job.

It is probable that a captain will be elected the opening of college, which will be next Tuesday. Just who is in line for the position is not nown.

Galveston Captures Title Series Opener

GALVESTON, Sept. 18. (AP)—The McFadden Compress team of Galveston took the opening game of the amateur championship series from the Victory Wilson team today by a score of 7 to 4. The locals bunched their hits in the seventh inning to put over four runs and inch the game.

The Dallas club jumped into the lead in the second frame when they scored three runs, while the locals could not touch Brecht's offerings until the fourth frame when they managed to put over one run. They added two more in the fifth, while the game was put on ice in the seventh.

The two teams will meet in a double header tomorrow.

Flowers to Meet Mike in Tiajauna

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept .18. (AP)—Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion, will meet Mike McTigue in a 15-round non-championship bout at Tiajuana, Mexica, October 15. In announcing this today Walk Miller, Flowers' manager, said he had accepted an offer of $25,000 guarantee with a substantial percenage privilege and expenses from Jim Crofton, matchmaker of the Foreign club of Tiajuana.

Miller said the Chicago match billed for September 24 had been called off on failure of the promoters to deposit the required guarantee.

Flowers will go to Tiajuana September 27 and establish a training camp.

Miller said that if Flowers wins from McTigue he will accept an offer from a Boston, Mass., promoter for a Delaney-Flowers world title match at Braves Field next May.

REDS WALLOP .295 AVERAGE TO TOP LOOP

Four of Hendrick's Clan In League's First Ten Hitters

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds are bidding for their second pennant in the half-century of the National league with hitting that has excepting brief slumps, led the league during the length of the 1926 season.

At present it is of .295 calibre, a little above the average for the year, nine points better than that of the Pirates and 12 points better than the hitting of the St. Louis Cardinals as the three clubs pound down the stretch.

Four of the Hendricks clan place among the National's 10 leading regular batsmen, although one of the quartet is the idle Bressler. Another factor in the Reds' lead is the work of the veteran pitchers, Donohus and Luque, whose occasional hitting has been, respectively, of .323 and .366 variety.

Cuyler of Pittsburgh has dropped out of the leading 10 regulars but he ranks as the league's best run getter. Averages including Wednesday's games and released today show he has been responsible for 101, his team-mate, Waner, rating next, with 98.

Wilson Lofts 21 Over.

Among the long distance hitters, Hack Wilson of the Cubs is outstanding with 21 circuit clouts that have helped Chicago scoring. Waner of Pittsburgh leeds in triples with 21, and Jimmy Bottomley of the Cards is the ranking doubles slugger.

Cuyler has the additional distinction of being the major's leading base stealer, although the nearing end of the season finds him well away from all-time records.

Two pitchers are doing much for the Pirates in their pennant drive, Kremer leading the league regulars with 19 games won and five lost. His teammate Meadows, has pitched 19 winning games and suffered seven defeats, a season's record duplicated by Rhem of the battling Cardinals.

Manush Leads American.

A month ago Manush of Detroit began hitting, and today he is leading the American league's batsmen and still climbing.

Ten hits in six games were responsible for a two-point average climb which gives the Tiger outfielder a .382 percentage and further marks him as successor to the batting crown won by his teammate, Heilmann, last season.

Otherwise, the hitting in the American has been slumping a little as the Yankees move on their unperturbed way toward the pennant.

Johnny Mostil of Chicago, has found time while hitting .361 to pass the 1925 league total of stolen bases, averages released today and including Wednesday's games, shows him with 30, four more than anybody in the circuit could pilfer last year.

Ruth Far Short.

Babe Ruth is far short of his record total of home runs but ranks as the major's leading run getter of the year. His teammate, Gehrig is close behind, but one tally separates his total from the circuit drive king's 127.

The Yankees generally lead the circuit in hitting, their .294 club average being three points better than that of both Detroit and Cleveland. Washington ranks next with .290 hitting.

Uhle of Cleveland is bidding to be the season's best moundsman in the American, today's figures crediting him with 24 winning starts and 10 charged defeats. Pennock of the Yanks had 10 defeats also, but only 21 victories, while Shocker of New York had a 19-9 record.

BUCS SLUFF ANOTHER

BROOKLYN, Sept. 18.(AP)—Dick Cox' triple in the fourth and Pittsburgh errors Accounted for two Brooklyn runs and a 2 to 1 victory for the Robins today. It was their thihd straight win over the faltering world's champions. Emil Yde was hit only four times but faulty defensive work by the Buccaneers let victory by. Paul Waner got three of Pittsburgh's six hits off McWeeny but it was Traynor's triple augmented by a single by Grantham and five Pirates and their lonesome tally. Announcement of the loss of two players was made by the Pirates today. Glenn Wright, shortstop was called to his home in Archie, Mo., by the serious illness of his father. Stuffy McInvis who was hit in the face during fielding practice Friday probably would leave the club it was said.

Two Reasons Why Indians Threaten Lead of Yanks in League Scramble

GEORGE BURNS GEORGE UHLE

George Uhle, with over 20 victories, and George Burns, with a new world's record in hitting two-baggers, have played a big part in the climb of the Cleveland club to a threatening position in the league scramble. This after the team was picked for second division by most critics,

Jenkins Closes Season With Swat Leadership, Pete Counts Most Runs

Spudders Second in Team Batting With .306 Average—Miller Heads Home-Run Hitters.

Fifty-six Texas league players participating in enough games to appear on the final official averages of 1926 finished the season hitting .300 or better with Tom Jenkins of Wichita Falls .374 as the real batting leader of the circuit. Hansen, the Beaumont handy man with the remarkable average of .459 led players in less than 100 games. Only two players made over 200 hits this year, Connolly of Beaumont, 211, and Riley of Dallas, 206. The leading run-getter was Turgeon of Wichita Falls with 133 tallies. Charles Miller of Dallas headed the home run hettors with a count of 30, and Flaskamper of San Antonio finally pushed his season total of stolen bases to 30.

Schuman, Dallas, finished with the best winning pitching percentage .733, heading a record number of hurlers winning half or better of their games. Love, Dallas, was the strike-out king with 216. Walkup, Fort Worth, and Owens, San Antonio, were the only pitchers to win 22 games. Owens participated in 57 contests and worked in the greatest number of innings.

Two clubs, led by Beaumont, 311, finished batting over .300. Wichita Falls led in runs and home runs, Beaumont in hits, and San Antonio in stolen bases.

Kearns Ties Up Jack's Property

Champ Temporarily Thrown Into the Hands Of Receiver

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 18. (AP)—Jack Dempsey was thrown temporarily in the hands of a receiver late today as the result of a suit filed by Jack Kearns, his former manager demanding an accounting of all funds earned by the world's heavyweight champion from August 3, 1923, to August 3, 1926, the period of their three-year contract.

Dempsey was ordered to appear before Vice Chancellor Robert H. Ingersoll at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning for a hearing.

Vice Chancellor Ingersoll issued a writ restraining Dempsey from leaving the state pending disposition of the suit and also enjoined him from assigning or transferring or disposing of any of his property. A supplementary agreement attached to the decree however, permits Dempsey to appear through counsel provided the champion posts a $100,000 bond.

This action will not prevent Dempsey from going to Philadelphia to fulfill his engagement in defense of his world's heavyweight championship against Gene Tunney next Thursday night.

Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic City a state senator was appointed temporary receiver of all of Dempsey's property pending disposition of the suit.

Munday Football Prospects Bright

MUNDAY, Sept. 18.—Football prospects for Munday high school are very flattering for 1926. Coaches Rhodes and Stanley are training the team, and express themselves as being favorably impressed with the material at hand. In addition to old members of the squad much new material is available this year. Tillinghast of Knox City, Brewer of Sherman and Coffman of Goree are strong additions to the squad. The first game of a nine game schedule will be played on the local grounds September 24 with Knox City high.

UHLE KNOCKS YANKS UNDER IN 5TH GAME

George Gives Up Four Hits As Cleveland Wins, 3 to 1

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18. (AP)—Before 27,000 fans the Cleveland Indians took the fifth and crucial game of the series with the Yankees here today, 3 to 1, and rose to within two games and a half of the league leaders. They play their final game tomorrow. George Uhle held the pace makers to four hits which were scattered through as many innings. As on Wednesday, Uhle was wild but he was able to bear down in the pinches and kept the Yankees away from the registering station in all except the fourth inning, when Meusel walked, stole second and came home on Lazzeri's double. The Indians scored in the first on Spurgeon's single, Speaker's roller to Gehrig, which the latter threw into left field trying to double Spurgeon at second and Burns' single. Spurgeon's second single, Speaker's double and Dugan's error of Burns' bounder in the third gave them another.

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

Indian Squad Green And Untried Aggregation But Ludgate Quite Optimistic

Ludgate's Maroon and Gold jerseyed Junior College crew looked pretty promising at the end of the first week of training and should give the soldiers from Fort Sill a good battle next Saturday. In fact, the boys have looked good enough for the coach to predict a victory for the local team in the contest with the older and more experienced military outfit.

Although Stephenson and Burks finally proved the only letter men of the pioneer conference squad of '25 to return, enough men with experience in other schools have reported to present a pretty well balanced aggregation. Some disappointment was expressed in the discovery that two of the most promising men were probably not eligible to play on account of dropping out of school before the end of the term last year. Watson, a strong man from Archer City, still in high school but over-age for high school play, and Skinny Crites, great kicker and skilful passer and runner of last year's Maroon and Gold eleven, whose return made fans feel satisfied over the kicking problem, both dropped out of school before the end of the term last year and hence probably will be ineligible to participate in athletics before the winter semister under junior college association rules. Reed Pace, another strong out-of-town player on whom much was banked, especially in punting, has failed to appear for several days and has left his return in doubt.

20 Men Out.

Twenty men have been reporting regularly for the work-outs on the college field. Letter men from last year's squad that defeated Weatherford college's fast Coyotes and the north Texas Aggies in the first conference competition for the school are Doyle Stephenson, captain, halfback, who, besides winning his letter with the Maroon and Gold last year, lettered with the strongly heralded Quanah high school team of 1924, and Roscoe Burks, first-call tackel on last year's Indian squad.

Other men reporting regularly are as follows: George Wright, who lettered one year as left tackle on an Iowa high school; B. F. Gilchrist, guard, who lettered with Burkburnett high school for two years; Roy McAninch, two years on the Coyote squad; L. M. Ford, who lettered as left end on the Lake Charles, La., high school squad and went out for the Texas freshman team last year until eliminated by injury; Olin Harvey, a new man but fast and capable of handling himself well; Bill Thompson, scrubbed one year and played on the first Lake Charles, La., eleven another year; Otho Dixon, who played with Kemper Military Academy part of a season; John Wolf, tall and rangy but new to the game; James Williams, with some experience in junior high school; Morell Trevathan, well-sized but new; Harrell McConnell, with one year on the high school squad; Baxter Scoggin, who went out one year with the Coyotes; Howard Shepherd, tall and capable looking but new to the game; Ralph King, who lettered one year at Pringhar, Ia., as right end; Hugh Ricks, one year high school experience but no letter; Edmund Coffey, brother of Gerald of the famous Coyote teams with Baldwin, high school experience but not lettering; Tom Peery, who lettered one year with Long Beach, Calif., high school as halfback, and who played with Kemper one year; Loyd Bland, a good looking football appearance, although new to the game except for some sand lot experience in the city.

More Coming.

It is expected that several more good men will report by next week before the registration period is closed. In spite of the relative smallness of the squad, which by the way is the largest ever reporting for Junior college this early in the season, the coach and captain are optimistic over the spirited way in which activities are going and expect the team to have something to say about football honors in this section before the season is far gone.

District Grid Schedule

C. E. Davis of Quanah was elected executive committee chairman of this district in the University of Texas interscholastic league class A yesterday at a meeting of school representatives in Quanah and a schedule for the football teams of the southern half of the district was arranged.

The district is composed of Wichita Falls, Electra, Vernon and Quanah, the latter admitted to class A company yesterday. In the southern half and Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock in the northern half.

The southern half schedule:

October 23

Wichita Falls at Electra.
Quanah at Vernon.

October 30

Electra at Vernon.
Wichita Falls at Quanah.

November 6

Electra at Quanah.
Vernon versus Wichita Falls, location undecided.

S. H. Rider, principal of Wichita Falls high school, was present at the meeting. He said that under interscholastic league ruling Wichita Falls is due to play at Vernon this year but that it is quite possible Vernon will allow the game to be shifted to Wichita Falls.

COYOTES

netted another down and five to spare. After a number of line tries another pass, Ray to Francis netted 16 yards and brought another score near. Good tries by Sisk and Ray and an eight-yard dash around left end by Lynch brought the second touchdown, making the count stand at a dozen. A fumble lost the chance for extra point.

Wichita's kick to Walters was fumbled and the Coyotes recovered. Gains by Ray and Fly, together with a 15-yard penalty against Walters for talking with the sidelines, brought the Red and Black threat again. A pass, Ray to Francis for seven yards proved a short rally to be lost in a fumble by Mills 16 yards from the goal. It was Walters' ball but a big scrambling fumble found Pete Powell on top, 18 yards to go for goal. A gain by McKinney and another pass, Ray to Francis gained first down. Several tries by Ray ended in a pass Ray to Watson for the touchdown. Ray to Francis brought a deceptive pass over the goal for extra point and score 19.

Walters' fight was gone, the old gains flashing only occasionally as the constrant stream of substitutes kept up by McCallum wore down the Oklahoman's strength, a 15 yard return from Francis' kick being the only offensive stunt of the Sooners in the quarter.

In the fourth quarter, amid a large number of rather ineffective attempts by both teams, a kick by Hunkie Ray that went good for 60 yards was the only interesting point. Near the end of the game Mc sent in his starting line and business picked up again but not enough to get far, Perk Ray's efforts standing out in the backfield and Hunkie Ray's good kicking, frequently good for more than 40 yards kept the ball well in Walters territory inspite of a strong rally attempted by the Sooner lads at the last.

The line-up:

Vernon Mentor's Worry Increases With Each Practice

VERNON, Sept. 18.—With the second week of practice a matter of history, little change has been noted in the Lion squad, although Coach E. A. Baggett sent his charges through a strenuous workout Friday afternoon. Several new men showed up well, but Friday also brought the announcement that R. Key, veteran line man of last season, would not be eligible for competition this season.

Castleberry, strong reserve back of last year, sustained an injury to his shoulder in the early part of the week, and may not be in condition to play during the remainder of the year. T. Key, veteran end of last year, has not reported, and is not expected, and Baggett is faced with the problem of developing a team around six letter men, Koontz, Parker, Gelhausen, C. Key, Luttrell and Hutto.

Early season practice indicates that the Lion mentor will not be able to develop anything other than a running attack this season, having no one in the back field to toss consistently, and there is little likelihood of a Lion toe counting for much this year.

Tunney Developed, Not Natural Fighter — By Edgren

At Stroudsburg everyone believes that Gene Tunney is going to knock Jack Dempsey out.

And it's easy to picture the Greenwich Village boy slipping that crashing right hand of his over to Dempsey's chin. He has such a tremendous lot of snap in every movement, so much life and quick co-ordination of mind and muscle, and such complete confidence in himself.

In many ways Tunney will remind some of the old timers of Jim Corbett, when Jim was young and at his best. I don't mean the Corbett who fought and lost to Fitzsimmons at Carson, for at that time Corbett had already slipped back from his best form and had lost some of the rounded strength he had when he knocked out Sullivan and whipped Charlie Mitchell in a few punches. Tunney looks a little like Corbett, especially from the back. He is of about the same height, and he has the same broad back and large head and thick strong neck. Like Corbett he is what Piper Donovan calls "rop-heavy." He has the built-up body of an acrobat or any athlete who spends years developing his strength and skill in gymnasiums. Corbett was a gymnasium-developed fighter. He was a bank clerk, and had no experience with pick and shovel or axe such as is supposed to make the "natural fighter" dangerous. Corbett used his brain to make himself a perfect boxer, and directed his training to development of speed and skill rather than socking and taking socks. Tunney has brought himself up in the same way. He is a student, a good boxer who figures every combination of movements and practices day after day and month after month until his action in emergency is almost instinctive, yet is built on a network of study-perfected plans. Corbett did that, and he was the most brilliant boxer of his day. Corbett lost to some corking good fighters, like Fitzsimmons and Sharkey and Jeffries, who could weather his rapid fire and get in the wallops that won, but that was when he had passed the youthful condition that was like Tunney's today. No one knows what the Corbett of Sullivan's time might have done. Tunney says that he prefers the Corbett style of fighting, and of training for fights, with the addition of a natural inclination to step in at every chance and try for a knockout punch.

"I used to get into a fighting rage—lost my head — in early bouts," he says. "I saw the result of that and determined to keep my head and use it to win."

LaCoste Captures U. S. Tennis Title

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 18.(AP)—Jean Rene LaCoste, 22 year-old son of France today took the sceptre of American tennis lost by "Big Bill" Tilden after a six-year reign.

A crowd of 12,000 spectators in the big west side stadium saw the cool and calculating galic stylist, mow down his country man, Jean Borotra, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4, in the first all foreign final in 45 years of competition for the national men's singles championship. It was an astonishing if not an exciting spectacle for it came as an anti-climax to the previous route of America's "big four."

Von Elm Grabs Amateur Crown

Bobby Loses Championship Is Stunning Links Upset.

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Sept. 18. (AP)—The monarch of golf was toppled from his amateur throne today by flaxon haired George Von Elm of Los Angeles in one of the most stunning upsets of links history.

Bobby Jones beaten—the words flashed out over rolling Baltusrol late this afternoon to an almost unbelieving sport world. Defeat for the master shot maker from Atlanta at the hands of a player he had twice overwhelmed in previous matches seemed too incredible to believe. But Von Elm had come to the slopes of the picturesque New Jersey course to prove that the age of golfing miracles had not yet passed and in two of the most dazzling rounds ever played he finally conquered the young Georgian on the 35th green 2 and 1.

Set Dizzy Pace.

Playing at a dizzy pace which had the champion one down at the end of the morning round. Von Elm completed his conquest with a card which showed one stroke under even fours. This was enough in itself to overthrow a great champion. But the story of Bobby's defeat began long before they stepped to the first tee before a record breaking throng of 10,000 this morning.

It began on Wednesday with a terrific battle between two Jones—Bobby and Dick—the first of three nerve wracking matches through which the champion was compelled to pass in his defense of the crown. Then came a bitter duel with Chick Evans, won by the title holder at 3 and 2, and finally his five and three match against Ouimet yesterday.

Jones Game.

Bobby hung on gamely today to make an uphill fight in the face of flawless golf but he did it almost on sheer nerve. He was great in defeat, yet the fine edge had been taken from his approaching game during the days in which Von Elm was riding easily to preliminary victories over Watts Gunn, Bobbys Atlanta chum and George Dawson of Chicago.

The men from beyond the Rockies, playing with a borrowed set of clubs because he failed to make his own respond in the qualifying rounds early this week, wielded an unerring putter today. But he was even more marvelous with his approaches. Out driven from the tee on almost every hole, he laid his second shots so well up under the flag that Jones could win only six holes against him.

CRUDE PRODUCTION UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP) — Crude oil production in domestic fields from January 1, to September 11, is estimated at 521,774,000 barrels by the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter, compared with 545,912,000 barrels in the same period last year. Daily production is now at the rate of 2,121,100 barrels against 2,125,400 last year.

Cards Split Pair With Phils, Gain Half Game In Torrid League Race

Pinch Single in Last Gives Phillies Second Battle 3 to 2 After Hornsby's Men Grab First in Easy Fashion by 7 to 3 Score.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.(AP)—Denny Southern, pinch hitting in the ninth, lined out a solid single that scored Al Nixon from second base and enabled Philadelphia at last to check the rush of the Cardinals. The Phillies won 3 to 2 in a hot battle after losing the first half of the twin bill, 7 to 3. Despite dropping the second contest, the Cards gained a half game on Cincinnati as the Reds lost again to New York. St. Louis now leads the National league race by a game and a half. Hal Carlson, right handed ace of the Phillies made his seventeenth victory of the season a fine one by holding the Cards to seven scattered hits and making them fight hard for the two runs they got. Carlson also helped with a single and a double and scored one of the runs in the tight battle. His defeated opponents were Alexander, who was lifted for a pinch hitter and Reinhart, a left hander. The latter pitched the last two innings and was charged with the defeat. The Phillies jumped in front in the sixth inning. The Cards scored a run in the eighth to even it up. With one out in the ninth, Nixon punched a single into center field. Henline batted for Wrightstone and flied to Hafey. Nixon then made a clean steal of second. Jimmy Wilson was purposely passed but the young acting manager, called Denny Sothern from the bench before going to first base. Sothern then responded with a hit that broke up the game. Home runs accounted for all three of the Phillies' runs in the first game. Cy Williams hit his seventeenth homer of the season and Mokan planted one in the bleachers with Williams on base. The cards were in front however, from the first inning and increased their lead as the game progressed. Rhem's victory in the first game was his twentieth of the season.

CHEERS FOR NETSTERS

AUSTIN, Sept. 18.(AP)—Three nationally known tennis stars, Lewis White and Berkeley Bell of Austin, and Louis Thalheimer of Dallas will be tendered a reception here Sunday by local business men and sport fans. The Austin high school band will meet White and Thalheimer at the train. Bell is already here.

AGGIE OFFENSE LOOKS STRONG

New Material Exceptionally Versatile, Few Vets Return

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 18. (AP)—Although only two letter men have returned for bacfield positions, the A. and M. college team is assured of having a capable offense this year with good punters, passers and broken field runners.

Z. W. Bartlett of Marlin has shown so much ability as a punter that he has been shifted from center to tackle. J. A. Simmons of Denton from last year's freshman team is the backfield find of the week, and he has shown that he is a first class punter also. Jule Hunt of Waco and W. D. Willis of Dallas also are showing promise of punters.

The great 1925 backfield combination of Berry, Hunt, Wilson and McGuire finds only Joel Hunt eligible for this fall's team. V. W. Woodmanfi bacfield player who earned a letter last year, will be a regular this season. Happy Colgin, regular rabbit for speed, being fast and shifty, will make a strong bid for a backfield place. Young Simmons is another youngster almost assured of a place in the backfield.

The Aggies have three quarterbacks in addition to Joel Hunt. C. M. Flory of Smithville, W. E. Davis of Stephenville and F. H. Weston of San Antonio have shown some ability at quarter. Among the other backfield players who have chances of making the first string eleven are D. X. Arnold of Del Rio, H. E. Burgess of Hale Center, W. D. Willis of Dallas, J. A. Pyland of Marlin, C. M. Miller of West Columbia, and S. Utay of Dallas.

C. W. Watts of Austin is virtually assured of the center position, with A. C. Sprott of Livingston and J. F. Criswell of Forney. For guards, Coach Rothgeb has J. A. Rektorik of Violet, H. P. Wylie of Dallas, C. P. Maufrais of Austin, R. W. Bodine of Temple. For tackles there are Capt. Ox Dieterich of Dallas, Z. W. Bartlett of Marlin, W. S. Lister of Livingston, W. L. Crawford of Palestine, E. E. Figari of Galveston, E. J. Mosher of Dallas and G. A. Morris of Kerrville. For wing positions there are S. J. Petty of Decatur, A. C. Bryant of Mexia J. A. Deffenbach of Fort Worth and others.

EKHART HAS GOOD SQUAD

CANYON, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP) Sixty-one Buffaloes of the west Texas state teachers college rounded out a week of stiff workouts Saturday under Coach Oscar Ekhardt. Coach Ekhardt said he expected to pick a strong eleven out of the plaints football players to meet the Clarendon Bulldogs Sept. 25 at the Ararillo-Tri-State exjosition.

Mantell Fights Yaqui Joe Again

Dutch Mantell returns Thursday for another fling at his feud with Yaqui Joe in the Wichita Falls wrestling association arena, it was announced Saturday.

The Columbus Dutchman was wired at Amarillo by Promoter A. B. Ross who received a quick answer from Mantell agreeing to the match and declaring "I'll kick that savage's blankety-blanked head off!"

Redskin and Dutchman have hooked up on several occasions with blood flying and all bouts ending unsatisfactorily. Here several weeks ago the Indian was getting the better of Mantell, in fact, had one fall on him when he lost his head, turned to the referee to protest interference when he, Yaqui Joe, had been strangling Mantell, and straightaway was caught from behind and put down for a fall, making the match even up with a fall apiece. Both county and city police interferred at this point and ordered cessation of hostilities.

The Indian performed in such surprisingly better manner the past week with Romonoff than he ever has before that he immediately became imbued with confidence that he can beat Mantell in straight falls, too. He won in two falls over Romonoff who, incidently, pinned Mantell the week before in straight falls. Romonoff's victory, however, was more or less flukey.

Joe Kopecky, who speedily is becoming a local favorite, takes on Jack Vincent, Oklahoma light heavy, in a finish match preliminary to the Mantell-Yaqui mill. Vincent will be recalled by local fans as the blonde giant who wrestled here several times last winter.

Coyote Pups Tackle Archer City Friday In Season Opener

Wichita Falls Junior high school will open the practice season with Archer City next Friday afternoon, when the archer eleven will journey to the local gridiron for the match. Archer City, it will be remembered, had a strong team last year and with the powerful Jot Hodges in the backfield again this year should be a match for any high school in this territory.

Junior high school this year will compete for district honors in the Junior or class B circuit in the Univeristy of Texas Interscholastic league. The Junior Coyotes will play their first conference game with Archer City on October 2, hence the coming week's practice match should give a good line on the respective possibilities of the two schools.

Coaches Golden and Lewis have added more work rapidly to the conditioning exercises of the early week and instruction in the fundamentals of line and backfields activity have been drilled into the youngsters at an earnest rate. There is evidence to observers a good spirit of work among the thirty-odd candidates and sunset often finds them still hard at work.

Black Spudders In Title Game Today

Herman Neckalberry, the Black Spudders' right-handed pitching ace, hurls this afternoon against the Brownwood Black Tigers at Athletic orchard in what stacks up as the most important contest of the year for the local club. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock. A special section will be reserved for white fans.

The black championship of West Texas is at stake, both teams having won 27 games and lost three this year.

AUSTIN, Sept. 18. (AP)—Stuart Wright of Dallas, captain of the 1925 Texas university Longhorn football team, will assist Kit Carson in coaching the Austin high eleven of '26. Carson is a former T. C. U. performer.

Wright played quarterback, and bore the brunt of the punting when playing for Texas university. He also lettered in basketball and track, and holds the southwest conference records for the low and high hurdlers.

KNIGHT AUTO GRACES HOME

New Willys "70" Will Be Used for Garden Of Dreams

When the "Garden of Dreams" is officially opened in the near future the Willys-Knight "70" will grace its garage. This popular car was chosen in keeping with so fine a house and is certain to attract hosts of admirers of beautiful automobiles.

L. M. Roseberry manager of the Overland Motors company said yesterday that he would probably show at least three of the latest models Willys-Knights so that visitors might see just what car is best suited to their taste.

In speaking of these motor cars, Mr. Roseberry said "the development of the automobile is the outstanding romance of the mechanical area in which we live. From its inception in the obscure discovery of the principle of internal combustion, the principle governing the rapid burning of a highly combustible gas in enclosed cylinder to obtain power, to its present highly developed stage has covered but a few scant years over a quarter century.

A Big Factor

"Accepted first as a fad which would soon pass away, it has become one of the greatest single factors contributing to modern methods of living and doing business.

"In its progress it has enlisted the unstinted labors of men of colossal mechanical and financial genius. Its records are replete with Herculean effort, with successes and failures, the unquenchable sparks of genius persisting until their voices should be understood.

"In its early years it flourished on the unstable food, "novelty." A thing so new, so different, found recognition largely among the venturesome. That it would actually run was sufficient. The wiseheads set back and watched. The history of other transportation methods told them that, if it were to prove practical, the day would come when the early drawbacks of noise, unreliability, waste and rapid deterioration must be eliminated.

"Today, many of the familiar names of fifteen years ago are never heard. Yet the prophetic truth of those who watched and waited is shown in the fact that those names which have endured are of manufacturers who developed for quality rather than for quantity.

"As the early-one-cylinder grew into engines with two cylinders, and these changed to fours and sixes, one far-visioned mechanical genius labored with a principle as old as steam, realizing that with the growth of cylinders and power development must come changes in the very essentials of the power plants which were being created. His earliest experiments proved to his own satisfaction that he had succeeded in bringing about a new order of things in the field in which he was working. The engine which he had developed ran with a degree of silence which had never ben dreamed of before except as he had visioned it in his mind.

Too Much Vibration

"As his experiments grew, he found that the vibration and wear to which the average engine of his day yielded in a short space of time, had been reduced, through his inventive genius, to a point where almost unlimited service might be expected.

"With these facts proved to his own satisfaction, he went into the world of manufacturers to place his invention before them.

"He found little encouragement. His engine was looked upon as a freak by some. Others objected because to build it would require a complete change in the manufacturing equipment. And still others found too scant reason to adopt something which, even while it might be better, was not being asked for in a field of buyers who were crowding factories to the last inch of productive ability.

"Undiscouraged, this man went to Europe. There he found new conditions awaiting him. The European public, slower to buy, were equally more insistent that qualities should be presented to them which were not possessed in cars of then current design.

"The English Daimler company, one of the greatest and most progressive of all European builders, was the first to listen. The Daimler-Knight engine was the result.

"From the first experimental engines, this product revolutionized all previous standards of accomplishment. Seventeen years ago, two of these power plants, different in size, were placed upon a "block" and operated for 12 hours, an entirely unprecedented test. They pulled 33 per cent in excess of their rated horspower. Mounted in touring cars, they were driven 2000 miles over the Brooklands track at an average speed of 42 miles an hour a performance which astounded the motor-car world. Brake tests at the conclusion of these runs showed both engines to be more powerful than at the beginning—showed quite the reverse of the usual experience with the poppet-valve type. The results showed an actual gain in horsepower for both engines.

"A power plant which would actually improve with use had been discovered and this combined a degree of silence and economy with its other accomplishments which was almost inconceivable.

"The result was that the inventor spent several years with the European manufacturers before he returned to America with the findings of his European work to enter into negotiations with builders on this side."

Thus, the growth of the Willys-Knight sleeve valve motor, which has steadily improved during the last quarter century, has reached a point that is truly remarkable in the world of mechanical science and genius.

MAKES SURVEY

SA NANTONIO, Sept. 18.(AP) A complete economic survey of Mexico, which may influence Germany in the investment of capital and of which report will be made to the faculty of the University of Heidelberg by Dr. Walter Wolff, authority on political economy, has just been completed, he announced Saturday.

Astonishing figures, revealing that Mexico is only 2 per cent cultivated, and that American capital far exceeds that of any other nation in oil investments, were quoted by Dr. Wolff.

MARION BACK IN OLD HOME

Budding Opera Star Will Use Her Funds to Aid Young Singers

BY J. P. WRIGHT.

Special Correspondent of the Record News
Copyright, 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 18.—Successfully started on a $150,000 a year career as a grand opera singer, Marion Talley, 19-year-old daughter of a $150 a month telegraph operator is coming back to her Kansas City home with a double aim.

She plans, first to go to the back yard of the Talley home on a modest Kansas City street and dig up a little box in which lies buried one of three canaries she brought to this country from Europe.

The canary is to have a better burial, one that will express fittingly the love the song-bird mistress held for her feathered song bird. There is to be a handsome box and marker.

Fund for Students.

The other main undertaking of the young opera star is to establish a fund to aid young persons of talent just as she was aided when Kansas City citizens began to recognize in her a future opera star.

Marion Talley will give one concert the night of September 20, to carry out a contract. Two nights later she will give one under her own auspices and the proceeds, expected to be more than $10,000, will go into a fund to help young people study voice, music or art.

For gratitude fills the heart of the Kansas City girl, who last May became world famous overnight with a successful premiere with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York.

Three years ago Miss Talley, then a high school girl and church choir singer, was beneficiary of a concert in which she appeared in the Kansas City convention hall. Ten thousand dollars was raised by that concert and she went to Europe for two years of study that enabled her to attain success as a singer.

The $10,000 cannot be paid back to those who bought tickets to that concert. No one wants the money back. But Marion Talley considers it a debt just the same. So into the fund for young musicians and artists she will pour the $10,000 next week.

The girl's thoughts of her canary are characteristic of the simplicity of her life. For more public acclaim has not turned the head of a young person.

Wants No Luxury.

Plans for her concert gowns and most of her dresses are left to an older sister. Motor cars, furs and other luxuries hold no attraction for her. Her hair is not bobbed and she likes riding on a street car better than in a taxicab.

As to food, she likes best of all the simple dishes her mother makes.

"Mother is the best cook of all," she said recently. "Her food is so much better than that prepared by high salaried chefs."

Begging letters are scanned closely by members of the Talley family. No announcements are made but it is known that liberal contributions are being made by the girl to charity.

"I don't want to hoard money," the singer said. "I get more pleasure out of helping others."

C. M. Talley, father of the star continues to work every day at his old job as telegraph operator in Kansas City. He has been quoted he has not spent a dollar of the money his daughter has earned.

BOTTLES IT ANYHOW

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18.(AP)—Prohibition agents Saturday arrested a 63-year-old man, who, though blind, could bottle beer.

The officers making a raid o na house, found the man working a capping machine. Near him were 200 bottle of beer.

"Did you fill and cap those bottles?" the agents asked.

"Sure, I can't see, but I sure can feel. Let me show you."

FARMERS HOLD COTTON MEET

Make Plans to Organize Protective Association In Wichita Falls

A number of farmers of Wichita county met Saturday afternoon at the Labor temple to discuss questions concerning the marketing and gathering of the season's cotton crop. Since it was believed a representative body was not present, no organization was perfected for making plans toward helping the farmers. Another meeting, however will be held Saturday, September 25, at the Labor temple at 2 o'clock for the purpose of organization.

J. L. Powell, well known landowner and farmer of the county, was selected temporary chairman of the meeting.

"The conditions which the farmers now face are such that if there is not concerted action among them and among the laboring class, the farmers will become the peons of Texas just as there are peons in Mexico," Mr. Powell said in speaking of the low price which cotton and other farm products bring on the market.

Gives Examples.

"Every class of people is organized but the farmers." He gave examples of the profits made on the farmer's products and giving a specific case, he said that green blackeyed peas were selling for 15 cents per pound to the consumer. Some fresh ones were taken to market, and the retail merchant offered 6 cents for them; later another basket of fresh peas were taken to market, and the farmer was offered 3 cents per pound for them. "Can the farmer live on prices like that?"

In speaking of the prices given the farmer for his cotton and wheat, he called attention to the fact that wheat always drops in price at the time of harvest, and products made from the wheat do not decrease in price.

"What's the cause?" he asked, answernig his own question, he said, "It is the organization which utilizes the products and brings them back to us at four or five times the price of what we sell them for."

J. D. Cooper, one of the organizers of the Farmers' union here, and one who helped build the first union gin and warehouse, spoke briefly. "There's something about the farmer that when he goes into an organization for the benefit of the class, he won't stay, and it is detrimental to us. Every time we fall, we go just a little lower down."

Mr. Cooper has been interested in the Farm bureau, and told how he had profited by it on his cotton crop for the last two years. "I believe if we had not had the Farm bureau last year we would have taken one-third less for our cotton." He expressed favorable opinion for the organization of some kind to benefit the farmer, including landlords and tenants. "I don't favor a plan of making much more, but getting more for what we make."

Iowa Park Man Talks.

W. R. Davis, wheat farmer of Iowa Park, said that since 1919 he has not made 2 per cent on his investment. "Show me another business that can operate on returns like that. The farmer can't do it much longer, and when he fails the world will see where the living is coming from." He cited an example of what organization can do for farmers, when the price of threshing wheat and oats was lessened when a group of farmers made the demand.

"The trouble is that 75 per cent of the farming people eat up the crop before it is harvested. The bank has a mortgage, and gets the money." The farmer must have help, and he can't do it by himself, and he said the resort was to take the problem to the legislature.

"The farmers work from 5 a. m. to 9 p. m., and we allow the other class to act and think for us," he said as he told how organized labor works eight hours per day.

W. K. Bundy urged the buying of a farm and having a cow, sow and hen to help the farmer.

Dr. L. D. Tyson, landowner, called attention to the irrigation question. A short talk was also made by C. V. Shelton and by a tenant farmer on the question of irrigation and farming.

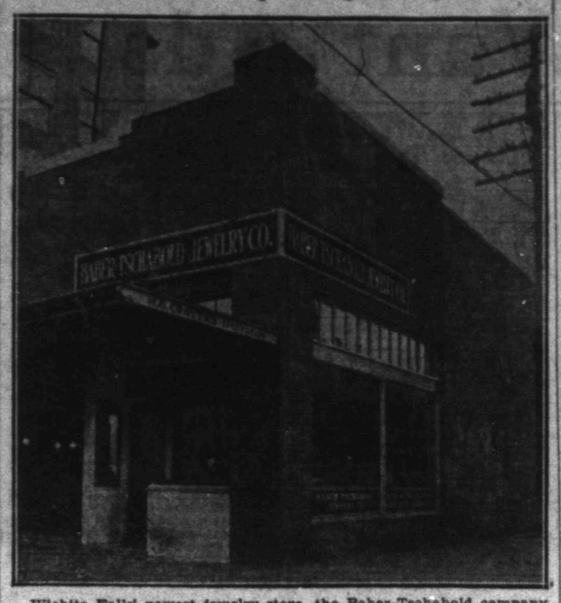

DIES FROM INJURIES

Irving Woman Fatally Injured In Auto Accident

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Valentine, 18, of Irving, died late today at a Dallas hospital as the result of injuries sustained earlier in the day when she was thrown from an automobile near her home.

It was said that with her husband, Mrs. Valentine was riding on a motor truck moving household goods, and that the machine swerved at a corner, hurling her to the ground.

New Firm Operating in City

Wichita Falls' newest jewelry store, the Baber-Tschabold company, has been accorded a warm reception by the business trade of the community during its first week in operation here. The company, located on Eighth street just behind the First National bank, has a modern and fully stocked line of quality jewelry.

BIG GAIN IN NEW BUILDING

Permits For Week Reach Total of $54,900, One By One

Building in Wichita Falls showed a decided gain the past week over the previous week, but is still under the heavy rate maintained throughout the spring and summer. Building permits issued during the week totaled $54,900 which was about $10,000 more than the previous week. As usual residence property represented most of the items there being only three permits issued during the week for business property.

The largest single permit was for the erection of a one-story brick building at 812 Tenth street next to the new Marchman hotel and is being constructed at a cost of $10,000.

The past week's permits runs the total for the year up to $7,614,696, and with expected impulse to building in the fall will run the total for the year near to the ten million mark.

Permits for the week were:

S. R. Seals, 1913 Tilden, duplex residence and garage, $3,650.

L. E. Cowling and company, 2208 Brown, duplex residence and garage, $3,000.

Mr. Guinn, 2906 Avenue N, residence and garage, $3,000.

LEGISLATURE BACK MONDAY

Will Continue Validation Of bonds and Inquiry Into Departments

AUSTIN, Sept. 18.(AP)—Validation of district road bonds, investigation of state departments, and confirmation of two highway commissioners were major executive topics this week, and promises to continue in the spotlight after the thirty-ninth legislature reconvenes Monday in call session.

Both branches marched rapidly toward the primary objective of the special session * * * validation of $100,000,000 of district road bonds. The house engrossed 177, and finally passed five of approximately 240 validating bills, while the senate finally passed 48 of 220 validating bills.

556 Bills to Pass.

There are 556 validating bills to be passed, and all indications are they will be finally passed by Thursday or Friday of next week and sent to Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for signature. The first batch is slated to go to the governor Tuesday.

Interest of members of the house here Saturday revolved about the effect on investigation plans of the announcement that articles 5517 through 5524, enacted in 1907, and outlining procedure of legislature investigating committees, were omitted from the 1925 revised civil statutes. Announcement of the omission was made by Representative E. L. Covey of Goree, who said he feared a house investigating committee, acting after adjournment, would be powerless, as it would be without the authority of statutes to organize, summon witnesses, punish them for contempt, or otherwise compel them to testify. The articles were omitted because the court of criminal appeals in passing on the Youngblood case, held them unconstitutional. The court decided a man could not be held in jail for contempt after the legislature had adjourned.

Wants Whole Body.

Covey, who voted Thursday for for the King-Puri resolution, appearing before a committee of nine, sitting after adjournment, to center an inquiry on the highway commission, textbook commission, and pardon board, said he believed the way out of the dilema was for the house to sit as an investigating committee of the whole as there was no question whatever of the right of the legislature itself to investigate, and compel witnesses to testify.

Corry T. Sheats of Franklin, who also voted for the resolution, said he thought ommission of the articles raised an involved legal point, and that he would not be surprised should an effort be made on the floor to have the investigation begin immediately. It is understood, however, that the matter could be reopened only by unanimous consent, because Thursday a motion to reconsider was tabled.

Authors of the investigation resolution, A. H. King of Throckmorton and George Purl of Dallas were not perturbed by the fact that the chapter setting forth powers of a legislative investigating committee were omitted.

MATTRESS SALE OPENS

Following an annual custom, the North Texas Furniture company opens its fall sale on Sealy mattresses Monday, and the cut prices will continue through Saturday of this week, according to John W. Bradley, manager. A carload of Sealy mattresses have been unloaded and are on display in the company's windows facing Scott and Ninth.

The North Texas Furniture company has been the exclusive representative of these mattresses in Wichita Falls for the last 15 years, it was said. Mr. Bradley has found that the city is large enough that he can dispose of a carload during the sale week.

The Holt hotel and the William-Mary have been supplied by the company, and the order for the Marchman hotel to supply with Sealy mattresses have been placed with Mr. Bradley, it was said yesterday.

MEXICAN WOUNDED

Is Short By Officers After Crossing Rio Grande

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP)—Jose Esparza, a citizen of Mexico, suffered possibly fatal wounds, as a result of a gun battle with two Cameron county deputy constables late Saturday. They surprised him and two other persons, both unknown, just after they had crossed the Rio Grande with loads of liquor.

The other two persons, a man and a boy, escaped during the fight leaving hats and sacks of liquor behind in their flight.

THRIFT SEAT SALE CLOSING

Present Week Last One In Which Fair Tickets May Be Brought

This week is the final one in which visitors to the Texas-Oklahoma fair may take advantage of the saving offered by the Fair association in the way of thrift tickets. The sale of these will close Saturday of this week, Manager R. E. Shepherd announced yesterday. The tickets offer a saving of twenty per cent, as they are sold at 40 cents each and are good for the regular 50 cent admission price or as 50 cents on seats at the grand stand.

Thrift tickets were placed on sale several weeks ago and up to date several thousand have been sold from the secretary's office alone, while reports from individuals selling them have not been received. The sale to date represents more than $5,000 and it is probable that double that amount will be sold before the sale closes.

This saving is of much value to those who have large families and for those who intend to take parties to the fair, as it amounts to considerable money on the purchase of large amounts of tickets.

TWO FIRE ALARMS

The chemical truck from the central fire station made two emergency calls within an hour last night, the first one coming from the corner of Brook and McGregor streets where a grass fire was in progress, and the second one coming from the corner of Tenth and Buchanan where an automobile was afire.

Very little damage was done in either case as the truck made short work of the blazes.

It Takes a Fish To Extract The Puff Sometimes

"Jonah got puffed up and the Lord had to have a fish swallow him, and he had to put a sea weed poultice on his head to bring him down. There are people nowadays who get puffed up like Jonah, and a fish has to swallow them. You say you are not close to the sea, but there are dryland fish, too," said Evangelist A. E. Davis of Wilmoth, Ky., Saturday night to the congregation that gathered to hear him talk at the interdenominational revival and gospel of healing meeting at Eighteenth and Holliday.

The sermon was in the nature of a lesson when the evangelist taught the people to shout and praise the Lord. "Any one can praise God after he is healed, but it takes a real Christian to praise Him before. If you present yourself for the prayer of faith saying you will praise Him after you are healed, the healing will never come," he said.

Great plans are being made for the healing meeting which is to take place at the tent Sunday night beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Seats for a thousand persons have been arranged, but in addition to that, chairs have been placed for the huge throng that is expected.

A number of conversions have been announced during the revival and a session of prayer was held last night for two who presented themselves at the altar.

Evangelist Davis will speak at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the Evangelical church on Fifteenth and Broad, services will be held at the tent at 2:30 o'clock and at 7:30 p. m. today.

Woman Killed And Husband Hurt In Railway Collision

Mrs. Walter B. Grant of this city was instantly killed and her husband was critically injured at 8 o'clock Saturday morning when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an east bound Katy passenger train at Ringgold in Montague county. The accident happened on the main grade crossing of the town and was caused, apparently, when Mr. Grant who was driving failed to notice the approaching train.

The Grants had left Wichita Falls early morning to drive to Nocono, it was said, to visit relatives.

Mrs. Grant's body was taken to a Nocona undertaking establishment, while Mr. Grant was also taken there for medical treatment.

HOME SEEKERS

We are inviting you to look over Scotland Addition, the only close-in addition now on the market. It is the most economical location in this city, having all modern conveniences, including street car line and paved highway, and all streets soon to be paved.
This close-in addition begins within eight blocks of the court house, yet we are selling our lots cheaper with all modern conveniences, cheaper than lots three and four miles out in other directions.
We can make it possible for you to own your own home in this modern addition at a great saving over other home sites. Drive out and look at the many new cottages that are being erected. Let us explain how you can own your own home.

19 DEALERS IN MOTOR SHOW

Will Have Biggest Exhibit Of Autos Even Seen In City

Nineteen local automobile dealers, headed by W. S. Langford, chairman of the Automobile Dealers Association, will be represented at the automobile show during the Texas-Oklahoma Fair in what is predicted to be the greatest showing of automobiles ever exhibited in northwest Texas.

A number of improvements, which has run into hundreds of dollars in expense, have been made to the automobile building at the fair ground, including a considerable enlargement of the building. The structure now has approximately 24,200 square feet of floor space which will make ample room for the display of 152 automobiles.

19 Dealers Involved

The nineteen dealers compose the local agencies for all makes of automobiles in the city, and there will be a grand display of the very latest models from the Ford plant. The improvements on the fair building were made by the automobile association, because the fair association was unable to stand the expense at this time.

"The Automobile Show," says Secretary-Manager R. E. Shepherd, "will be the biggest we have ever had. It is due to the fact that the automobile dealers have cooperated with the fair association in every way possible. They have enlarged the building themselves, because the Fair Association was not financially able to do so, and they have erected a building that the fair association is proud of. The officials are indebted to these men for their whole hearted co-operation. It has been admirable in every way and everybody ought to take an opportunity of seeing the new automobile models at the Fair."

The Real Reason He Wants To Fight

It is generally agreed that his desire to increase the family fortune, the natural desire of any ambitious husband, caused Jack Dempsey to re-enter the ring to meet Gene Tunney. And the main reason why he is determined to win is to retain the prestige his title has won him and prove Mrs. Dempsey's faith in his ability to manage his own affairs justified. Mrs. Dempsey, known in the film world as Estelle Taylor, is watching the family affairs in Los Angeles while Dempsey tunes up for the battle.

AUTO SPEEDS SLOW DOWN

Saturday Passes Without An Accident After Police Issue Warning

Reckless motorists and speed demons of Wichita Falls must have heeded the warning given Friday in a statement issued by Police Chief George Hodgins, for during an unusually busy day Saturday the department was not called out on a single car wreck accident, a rare occurance in this city at any time and especially on Saturday.

"I have had the boys on the streets all day looking for speed and traffic violations," Chief Hodgins stated last night, "and to this minute not a single arrest has been made for speeding during the whole day. I hope that reckless and speedy drivers will continue to heed the warning given, for we have decided that speeding must stop within the city limits."

Chief Hodgins announced in the article that he would instruct his men to make an unusual watch for speedsters and that when found guilty in police court the maximum fine of $200 would be sought in every case.

"One of the most successful new institutions is that of the Boy Scouts who are detailed to watch for motorists violating the ordinance requiring a slow down while passing schools," Chief Hodgins stated.

MILK AND ICE

of milk have been distributed during the latter part of June and in July, August and the early days of September. The entire city only uses about 18,000 quarts of milk, the city health department says, so this amount given away without cost has been sufficient to supply a third of the needs of all Wichita Falls for a day. It is estimated that 20,000 persons were benefited by the donations of milk alone.

Then there was ice.

The two local ice companies, the Wichita and the Peoples, gave without cost all the ice required by Mrs. Gorsline. Their figures show that during the summer they gave away through the fund approximately 50,000 pounds, and in most cases, made deliveries of it. The liberality of the two companies made possible the expenditure of the entire fund for milk, which was bought at reduced rate from the Producers Creamery.

That the fund has caused an amazing amount of good in the city is attested by the numerous tales Mrs. Gorsline could tell of help being supplied a family where it was needed and needed badly. In many a humble shack, she says, fresh milk and cooling ice was sent as a lease on life to some tattered youngster whose summer drink was the tepid draught he could dip from a shallow cistern. The aged and infirm, too, profited in many cases.

Wichita Falls accomplished much when it subscribed liberally to the fund, and on behalf of those who found a mite of joy in the refreshment the fund made possible, the Record News extends a hearty 'thank-you."

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.(AP)—An early decline in the cotton market today was followed by rallies on apprehensions that the tropical storm approaching Florida would cause rains in south Atlantic states over Sunday, but the market broke again in late trading. December sold off from 16.42 to 16.25, new low ground for the movement and closed at that figure, the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of nine to 17 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of two points. Buying developed on the storm news and relatively steady Liverpool cables, but southern hedging was renewed while there was further commission house liquidating.

Prices soon showed net losses of ten to 16 points, but then rallied on reports that the storm approaching the coast of Florida was gaining in intensity and that it was likely to cause rains in east gulf and south Atlantic states.

For a time the market showed considerable firmness, selling up to about yesterday's closing quotations but at 16.24 for October and 16.52 for January, the advance was checked by renewed liquidation combined with southern and local selling. On the whole it seemed as if the storm threat was more than offset by the trend toward increased estimates of the crop and there were rumors of some large private crop figures in the late trading.

One of these estimates was between 15,300,000 and 15,400,000 bales while another was above 16,000,000 and while these rumors were not confirmed, they appeared to have a sentimental effect on the market. October sold off to 16.05 and January to 16.24 in late trading and the close was at the lowest figures of the day.

The amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 79,000 bales against 87,000 last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Tae cotton market was very active for a short Saturday session and prices developed another sharp break to the lowest points of the movement, October breaking below the 16-cent line to 15.90 and the other active months reaching within easy distance of that level. The weakness of the market was due mainly to bigger crop views helped by an estimate of a leading spot house of 15,342,000 bales and later by a rumored estimate by a well known authority of 14,815,000 bales. After the session closed it was claimed that this big figure was an error and should have been 15,635,000 bales. The correction was made too late to undo the harm done.

After a slight gain of three to five points at the start the market turned easier and kept on the downgrade all through the session with only slight rallies caused by storm news. The close was barely steady showing net losses for the day of 34 to 42 points.

At the start Liverpool was a shade better than due tand first trades here were unchanged to four points up. Right after the call October traded at 16.31, December at 16.47 and January at 16.50, or unchanged to five points above the previous close. These proved to be the highs of the day.

The market promptly turned easier and except for slight rallies due to the storm bulletin reporting that the hurricane had reached the vicinity of Miami, Fla., and that storm signals had been extended to the west coast of Florida and the Alabama coast, the market continued to decline all through the session reaching 15.90 for October, 16.09 for December and 16.14 for January, or 36 to 41 points down near the end. The close was practically at the lowest. Exports for the day totaled 13,391 bales.

CHARGES FILED

Charges of theft of over $50 were filed by District Attorney Allred yesterday against Ernest Jackson, a negro living in this city.

It is alleged that Jackkson stole some automobile tools from a car belonging to the Lloyd Weaver Motor Company while it was parked in the garage of J. M. Ries, an employee of the motor company.

Jackson was arrested by city police officers and turned over to the county authorities.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Bonds, irregular; French issues resume advance.
Foreign exchanges, steady; trade light.
Cotton, lower; southern selling.
Sugar and coffee, holiday.
CHICAGO.—Wheat, lower; better weather Canada.
Corn, weak; absence frost.
Cattle, steady.
Hogs, lower.

Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.(AP)—All grain averaged lower in price today. Heavy selling of wheat, induced by more favorable weather conditions in the Canadian northwest and a forecast of generally fair over the three provinces, revealed a lack of buying power in the pits and values broke sharply. Corn and oats followed in the wake of wheat. At the finish wheat showed a net loss of ⅝ to 1¼c, corn was down 1⅝ to 1⅞, oats were off ⅛@⅜ to ½0 and provisions 10 to 35c lower.

There was little treneral demand for corn, aside from week-end profit taking by shorts. Much long corn was unloaded on the decline. Warmer weather of the past few days has ripened corn rapidly in many sections.

Oats averaged somewhat lower with other grains but failed to reflect the full decline scored in corn.

Provisions were lower in line with hog values and the weakness in grains.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.(AP)—Abruptly changing its course after yesterday's drastic decline the stock market rallied in spirited fashion today under the leadership of the Van Sweringen railroad issues and a handfull of prominent industrial shares.

With the market's technical position greatly improved by the latest shake out confidence was speedily restored by the flood of buying orders which poured in for the railroad stocks. This support was powerful enough to counteract the influence of forced liquidation at the opening which resulted from the first resort to margin calls in many months.

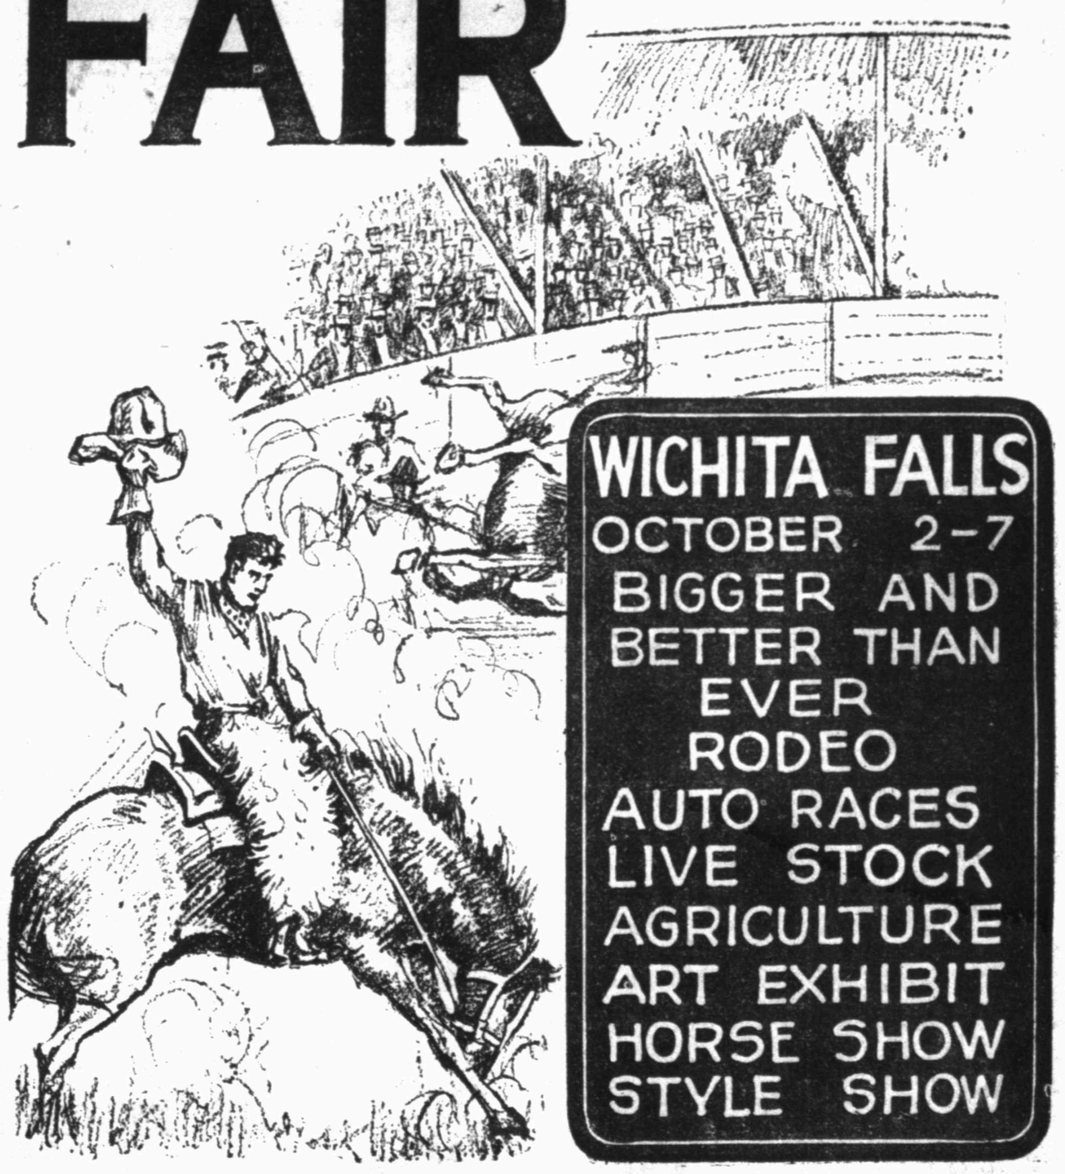

Word that the Van Sweringen interests had promised another revision of the Nickel Plate merger terms favorable to minority stockholders of the constituent roads started th especiaclar buying movement in the shares of these companies. Prospects that the Chesapeake and Ohio opposition would be overcome by doubling the annual dividend guaranty sent this road's common stock soaring more than 12 points to a new high record above 171 and it closed only a fraction below the top. The same factors accounted for a gain of nearly six points in Nickel Plate and advances of one to 2¾ in the Erie and Perre Marquette issues.

Other railroad shares made a belated response to the favorable nwa development of the week which previously had failed to arouse interest. Atchison, Illinois Central, Norfolk and Western, New York Central and Louisville and Nashville were strong while Southern railroad shoo up three points on the announcement that preferred stockholders had lost their suit to compel an equal division of dividends above 5 per cent.

The recovery of the industrial shares was less pronounced but it was sufficient to give the market an appearance of solid strength. General Motors crossed 155 to the highest price under its present form of capitalization and U. S. Steel after dipping under yesterday's low level of 144, closed a fraction of a point higher at 144¾. Bethlehem matched its year's peak price of 59¾ closing only slightly below this figure for a gain of more than two points. Equipment shares including American Locomotive, Baldwin and Pullman were bolstered up by predictions of increased railroad buying and substantial improvement took place in Granby Mining, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, DuPont, White Sewing Machine preferred, Owens Bottle and American Smelting. Mack Trucks and Warner Pictures "A" continued under selling pressure.

With trading in the foreign exchanges extremely light, there was little change of consequence in the principal rates. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 and French francs showed a loss of but one point at 3.89 cents. Japanese yen continued their advance being quoted at 48 11-16 cents.

A. A. A. Club to be Formed This Week Among Wichita Falls Motorists

MEMBERS TO BE SOLICITED

Elaborate Programs Mapped Out for Impending Organization

A membership drive for the Wichita Falls Automobile club will begin Monday morning and it is expected that at least 400 members will be secured the first week, it was announced Saturday.

Automobile dealers have been in session several times during the last week at the chamber of commerce and plans relative to the organization to be affiliated with the American Automobile association have been laid. Representatives of the A. A. A., W. Looney and S. A. Price will be in Wichita Falls this week to assist in perfecting the organization.

$10 Charge

Membership to the A. A. A. is $10, but the first 200 charter members will receive membership for $7, it was announced.

The Texas State Automobile association is composed of 31 A. A. A. clubs. The American A. A. A. is 26 years old and there are 841 clubs in the United States with 850,000 members. They oppose unfair legislation levied against the car owner and sponsor and assist in securing good roads wherever possible.

Committee members will call for memberships, but if there are those who are not called upon, they may telephone their memberships to the automobile dealers or to the chamber of commerce. Some of the aims of the club, as outlined by officials, are as follows:

ROAD SERVICE

Should a member's car run out of gas, have tire trouble, get stuck in the mud, break an axle, become wrecked or get stranded on the road any place in Wichita county, day or night the member can notify the club headquarters and a truck and mechanic will be sent to the car and the car will be either started or towed to the member's home, garage or office without charge. This same free service will be rendered the member by any of the 841 clubs in the U. S., it is said.

LEGAL SERVICE

The club will make a contract with a local attorney who will give free legal advice to any member on anything pertaining to automobiles, traffic rules and regulations or title or registration of cars. This same service is extended to a member free in any of the A. A. A. clubs. Should a member be in any town having an A. A. A. club and disobey some traffic rule through ignorance of the local laws it will be the duty of the attorney to advise and defend the member. The club will not defend a member who will intentionally break the law.

ROAD INFORMATION

The club will maintain a touring bureau that will be affiliated with all the other A. A. A. clubs and will receive daily reports from all over the U. S. pertaining to the roads. The touring bureau will have as reliable road information as can be obtained any place in the southwest. Free maps, road logs and road information will be furnished to all members. This same courtesy is extended to all tourists driving through Wichita Falls.

CIVIC WORK

Traffic and parking problems affecting the auto owner are watched very closely. Ordinances passed by the city given careful attention. Reports will be made to the proper authorities regarding glass or holes in streets. A constant effort will be made to reduce the number of accidents by auto.

LEGISLATIVE WORK

Among the outstanding achievements of the A. A. A. during the past few years may be mentioned the following:

The enactment of the Dyer anti-theft law, which makes it a federal offense to transport a stolen automobile across the state line.

Securing congressional action authorizing the distribution to the various state of about $250,000,000 worth of surplus war property for road building purposes.

Opening of the Yellowstone and other national parks to the tourists.

Securing national legislation by which several thousand dangerous railroad grade-crossings have been eliminated.

During the past session of congress the A. A. A. led the fight which resulted in a reduction of $25,000,000 in the excise tax on automobiles, trucks, tires accesories and parts.

Elaborate Program To Be Given At Realtor Meet In City Sept. 28 to Oct. 1

An elaborate program for the annual state convention of Texas Realtors which is to convene here Tuesday, September 28, has just been completed by the local supervisors of the program, and a full four-day session of both business and entertainment is provided for. The local board is expecting upwards to four hundred visiting realtors for the convention and is making great plans to give them a royal welcome. The chamber of commerce has voted to stand one-fourth of the expenses of the entertainment and the local realty board will take care of the rest of the expenses.

One of the most interesting features of the entertainment program will be the golf tournament which will be open only to bonafide clubs. The San Antonio club has offered a silver cup to the winner, and the club which wins the cup three times will be permitted to keep it for all time. Other entertainment features are the grand reception, home town speaking contest and banquet.

Following is the program:

Tuesday afternoon, reception, Country club; Tuesday night, dance, Kemp hotel; Wednesday noon, luncheon, Wichita club (ladies); Wednesday night, home town speaking contest, Hubert M. U. CLUB IN INITIAL MEET

Interesting Session Held Saturday At The Kemp Hotel

An enthusiastic meeting of the University club was held Saturday at noon at the Kemp hotel in the first meeting of the fall following the closing of the meetings in May for the summer months. J. H. Allison, president, was in charge.

Discussion arose concerning the meeting time of the University club, some of the members wishing to have meetings once weekly as is the present custom; others wishing to hold the meetings monthly or bi-monthly, while others favored one evening meeting each month. A discussion of the problem will be taken up at the next meeting, Saturday, September 25, at the Kemp hotel at 12 o'clock. Judge B. D. Sartin will lead the faction in discussion of changing the meeting date, and Solon R. Featherston will direct the discussions for the others.

Committee Named.

A nominating committee was appointed as follows to present two complete tickets at the Saturday meeting: Dr. J. W. Cantwell, Mrs. Hermoine Stewart Vaughn, S. R. Featherston.

Plans and activities for the club for the year are to be presented as suggestions from a committee composed of E. E. Fisher, J. S. Pitman, Miss Mary Bingham, C. J. Coffey and J. C. Hunt. Discussion of a welcome to the teaching staff of the public schools is also to be consolidated by the committee, it was said.

Among those who made short talks yesterday included E. E. Fisher, J. C. Hunt, Mrs. Hermoine Stewart Vaughn, Judge B. D. Sartin, S. R. Featherston, W. R. Hyer, C. J. Coffey, John Marrs, secretary.

Ground Is Broken For Cline's Home

Ground was broken during the week for the new home of Walter D. Cline in the Country Club Estates. The home, when finished, is expected to be one of the most beautiful in the south and is being constructed at a cost of $150,000. It is to be a Southern Colonial type faced with Bedford stone and the house and garage are to be fireproof throughout. The building will be located on a level plat of five acres of land.

Voelcker and Dixon are the architects, and the general contractor is A. J. Rife of Dallas. The heating and plumbing contract was let to Charles D. Hughes, it was said yesterday.

Young People Of Church In Meeting

As a forerunner to rally day today at the First Christian church, the young people's classes were represented in a get-to-gether at the church Friday evening. William J. Spreen, educational director, talked on the play that is to be given, and he said that the people who were really successful and happy had thought of play and recreation. The church had its place, then in sponsoring and keeping the play instinct alive.

Games were played, and it was decided that Friday night would be set as the week day night for a rally twice each month, the dates to be posted on the bulletin board.

Plans for a Hallowe'en party were discussed by the 35 young people present.

TEACHER STRICKEN

Miss Ina Wolfenberger of Weatherford, teacher of Spanish in the high school at Breckenridge, who has been at the bedside of her sister, Miss Tena Lee Wolfenberger, at the Clinic hospital, leaves today for Breckenridge. Miss Tena Lee is a teacher at the Thrift school near Burkburnett and was stricken with appendicitis the day school was to open. She expects to return soon to Weatherford to recuperate and then go to Thrift to assume her duties as teacher of third grade.

STUDENTS SET FOR BIG WEEK

Activities of Clubs In Various Schools Will Get Under Way

Activities in schools of the city have been limited the past week to preparation of schedules and enrollment of large number of students now registered in the schools, but now, with everyone settled into the regular routine and programs definitely arranged, this week will see the organization of clubs in all of the schools and the beginning of social activities for students.

Girl Reserve organizations will be started in practically all of the schools next week. Programs have already been held for the Girl Reserves in the Junior high annex and the high school and Junior college and the ward schools will have their first meetings some time soon.

Camp Fire organizations will also be started in most of the schools, several having had such groups last year. Boy scout traffic councils will be organized in order to assist younger children in crossing at dangerous corners. Sam Houston, San Jacinto, and Fannin have already secured their corps of boys for that purpose, and the same council will be started in Alamo Monday, and in Austin in the near future.

Reserves Are Organized.

The Girl Reserve club, the only one in the Junior college building to organize thus far, held its first meeting Friday morning with 200 in attendance. Other clubs which will probably begin activities shortly are: Junior college; El Circulo Espanol, French club, Writers' club, Blue Curtain, Hiking club, Commercial club, Home Economics club and others. High school: Latin club, Spanish club, Social Science club, Speakers' club and many others.

Organizations which encourage more study in the various subjects taught will be featured at the Junior high school this year. Latin club, Spanish club, Art club, Music club, Boys' and Girls' Glee club, Debate club, and several others are planning to re-organize, with the possibility of some new organizations this year. The sponsors and a few older members of the Girl Reserves met Friday afternoon for a short business session, in which it was decided to have regular weekly meetings at 8:45 a. m. Thursdays and to elect officers at the next meeting.

Want All in Club.

To have every pupil in a club is the aim of Miss Bess Stewart and other officials of the Austin school. Girl Reserves, Camp Fire Girls, Boy scout safety organizations, reading clubs, art clubs will be organized next week, with every teacher a sponsor of one club and every child a member. All clubs will meet on Friday afternoons after school.

Girl Reserve, Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts will also be found at the Alamo school, as in most of the others, with the new auditorium and grand piano, many programs can be given by the club members for the student body.

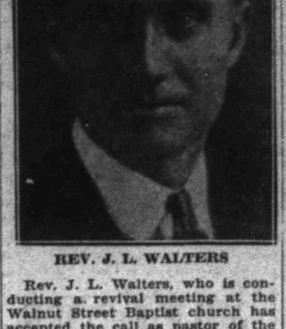

The Girl Reserve and Camp Fire Girls will be organized in the Barwise school on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons respectively, with Miss Vaughn the sponsor of the Girl Reserves and Mrs. Roberts the Camp Fire guardian. A reading club is contemplated by Miss Betty Dilworth, principal, and other officials for the encouragement of reading, and this will be started in the near future.

Although most ward schools have not so many social activities as the high school and college, several entertainments and small parties have been planned, and it seems that the social side of education is being stressed more than heretofore in all schools.

MRS. SOUTH GOES EAST

Mrs. August South of the Parisian left Friday for New York on her second buying trip of the season. Fall styles have been popular to such an extent with Wichita Falls shoppers that an entire new selection was necessitated, Mrs. South reported. The latest decrees of Paris fashions will be chosen from the New York shops—the smartest of individual gowns and coats, millinery and accessories for Milady—all will be included in this buying trip.

Walters Accepts Call as Pastor Of Local Church

REV. J. L. WALTERS

Rev. J. L. Walters, who is conducting a revival meeting at the Walnut Street Baptist church has accepted the call as pastor of the church for the coming year, it was announced yesterday.

The evangelistic campaign which has been going on several weeks will close today. The final services will be held at the church on Henrietta street at the south end of Lamar avenue.

Rev. Walters is being assisted by Mrs. Walters, T. F. Closup, soloist, Miss Sylvia Smith, pianist; Miss Thelma Wilson, chalk talker. Announcement was made yesterday that already 20 conversions and additions to the church have been made, and others are expected today. The public is invited to attend the services.

BISHOP QUITS ATTY. OFFICE

Goes to Amarillo To Practice Law; Fruechte Succeeds Him

Announcement was made yesterday of the resignation of Harry D. Bishop, assistant district attorney to become effective in October, after a year's service in that office. Mr. Bishop has formed a law partnership in with Lloyd Fletcher, district attorney at Amarillo and will leave for that city to take up the practice of law there.

Mr. Bishop had lived in Wichita Falls for about eight years and was for a number of years a special agent for the United States department of justice, working out of the Dallas office but residing in Wichita Falls. At the time of his resignation to become assistant district attorney of Wichita county he was agent in charge at the Dallas office for the department of justice.

Wishes Him Success

In making announcement of the resignation, District Attorney Ben P. Allred stated that he regretted very much to see Mr. Bishop leave the office and leave the city, but that he believed Mr. Bishop had made good connection in Amarillo and had every wish for his future success.

Mr. Allred also announced E. F. Fruechte as successor to Mr. Bishop. Fruechte will assume the duties of his office immediately following the resignation of Mr. Bishop. He is a native of Fort Wayne, Ind., but has resided in Wichita Falls for a number of years and has been a member of the local bar for a short time. He has been on the editorial staff of the Wichita Daily Times for six years.

CREIGHTON TO CONFERENCE

Frank B. Greighton, Boy Scout Eexecutive, will leave today for Mena, Arkansas, where he will attend the convention of the Ninth Regional Executives Monday and Tuesday.

From there he will go to Hot Springs to attend an eight-day conference of the 765 Scout executives from all parts of the United States.

LOCAL DEBITS GAIN IN WEEK

Wichita Falls Shows Good Increase Along With Other Cities

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Debits to individual accounts of banks in the eleventh reserve district, reporting to the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas for the week ending with September 16, showed a gain of more than $9,000,000 over the same week a year ago. Fort Worth showed the heaviest increase among the larger cities, with Dallas and San Antonio runners-up in ratio of gain, Beaumont led the smaller centers with a heavy increase in debits.

Langford Motor Employes Meet

Eighty-five members of the Langford Motor company, headed by T. E. Edwards, general manager, presented an enthusiastic program Thursday night when general problems of the organization were taken up and discussed.

M. R. Wilson, representing the Ford Motor company, was one of the principal speakers of the evening and gave an interesting talk on the Ford industry. He revealed that the Langford Motor company was the largest in the state of Texas and ranked as one of the largest and most efficient in the entire United States.

W. S. Langford, owner of the company, gave a personal resume of some of his business activities, after which short talks were made by various department heads.

Plans for the Ford and Fordson exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair were discussed and a decision reached to make the Langford display this year the largest and most pretentious it has ever been.

City Parks Close Big Year of Recreational Service To The Public

Every one of the 60,000 persons of Wichita Falls enjoyed use of the parks of the city at least five times during the summer, or at least, statistics would go to prove that. C. C. Frazee, recreation director of the parks and playgrounds, in his report shows that a grand total of 326,741 persons were entertained in some way in the parks this summer.

He has listed the number present in the following record:

Movies, 56,117.
Sing-songs, 12,186.
Miscellaneous activities, 14,187.
Swimming estimated, 27,000.
September estimated, 2,921.
Total attendance at organized activities, 158,931.
Two band concerts, 6,000.
Seven Union church services, 28,000.
Informal use of parks and playgrounds, 147,750.

Health Charts Kept

Of the work carried on during the summer, Mr. Frazee's report showed that a health program had been inaugurated where 70 per cent of the children kept health charts and kept a record of items listed; hand craft, tie-dying, pattern cut outs, flower making, water coloring, sand molding, model making expression and dramatics were the leading subjects.

Volunteer workers assisted in promoting the work, including twenty-five girls over sixteen years of age and six women ,and each one paid three dollars for the privilege of helping the children enjoy the activities.

Lack of space for ball games and suitable accommodations for carrying on the work broke into the plans, Mr. Frazee said. "The attendance at our various public programs proves the interest the people have taken in this activity. The purpose of playgrounds have not been filled until every man, woman and child has been taken care of," he said.

"Children are naturally good," Mr. Frazee said, "and bad habits are acquired. Supervised play and the teaching of the many arts of handicraft prevent to a large measure the acquiring of bad habits. Wichita Falls should meet this need at once with a progressive year-round program."

REPORT FOR KIWANIANS

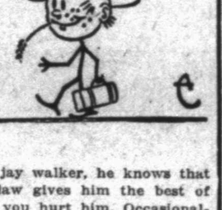

Kiwanians will hear the delayed reports of the delegates to the district convention recently held at Muskogee, Okla., according to the bulletin Saturday. The reports were scheduled for last Monday at the regular meeting, but the program was given over to the educational chairman in observance of constitutional day. The meeting will be at noon Monday, at the Kemp.

Social Circles of Wichita Falls Have Busy Week

Peggy Piedmont

—Out-Of-Town Guests
—Blondes Preferred
—The Theatre Busy
—The Tourists Back
—Ring Out, Wild Bells
—And Finally —

DEAR KITTY:

September is an unusually eventful month. First comes Labor day. Then September means the end of summer. Whether it be hot or cool, we know that summer clothes must be packed away. September means fall and winter shopping. September means school. September means homecoming and every train is bringing in Wichita Falls' travelers. September means planning for the winter's social season and the beginning of club life which this season promises to be a long and busy one.

The most interesting social affairs of the month so far have undoubtedly centered around a bevy of attractive visitors, and have for the most part been small and informal. An unusually popular hostess has been Icy V. Larkin, who has for her guests Kitty West Schriener and Lucile Gaines of San Antonio. The latter stayed one week here and then went to Mineral Wells where she spent a week with her mother who is sojourning at the resort, after which she returned to Wichita Falls and she and her hostess accompanied by others went to Norman, Okla., Friday to remain over the week-end and attend the university dances.

Not a day passed while either of these two charming girls were here, but that a delightful luncheon, buffet supper or some other affair was given. Probably the most interesting event planned for them though, was the treasure hunt, which has become a popular form of social diversion the past summer. Fourteen of the younger crowd participated in this, and all declared it to be more fun and more exciting than any thing they had ever attended.

ANOTHER visitor receiving attention the past week, was the house guest of Mrs. W. R. Duke, Lady Jane Ferrel from Quanah. Also Elizabeth Baldock from Lynchburg, Va., who is spending a month with her sister, Mrs. Luther Hedrick. Lady Jane has returned home after captivating the hearts of all she met, while the latter visitor has only been here about a week, and has occupied a central place on the social stage during that time, with the end not yet in sight. One pretty affair given in her honor when she met a bevy of Wichita Falls fairest maidens, was luncheon at the Wichita Club with Mrs. John Harris, hostess, Mary Shiver from Los Angeles, who is the guest of Virginia Miller, is still another attrative visitor who is being much feted, her days being filled with delightful affairs.

I was getting a shampoo the other day when I eavesdropped on a conversation in an adjoining booth. It seems as though the medium-brunette client was asking the hairdresser her opinion of certain hair bleaches. "Your hair is a beautiful shade now, why experiment with it?" answered the frank and honest hairdresser. "Well, you know blonde hair is all the fashion now. They say that it has been proven beyond a doubt that gentlemen prefer blondes. Why, someone even sent me a book with that title, but I haven't had time to read it."

Which reminds me—have you read the book by Anita Loos? It is really quite clever and refreshing on a hot summer's day. Anita Loos is now in London with her less famous husband. Miss Loos was immediately interviewed on the subject as to man's preference between blondes and brunettes, and this is what she had to say:

"GENTLEMEN really do prefer blondes. Very few men like to be contradicted. They hate pet views and theories to be questioned by women. And as dark women invariably hold stronger opinions than fair women, gentlemen prefer blondes. Fair women are often more frivolous than dark women, and so are better company for men than serious brunettes. So you find in America a type of mercenary girl who is, I should say, most common in England. Yet gentlemen are not the only ones who prefer blondes. Mosquitoes also show a predilection in this direction. This fact emerges from correspondence which has been received by Mr. A. Moore Hogarth, chairman of the London College of Pestology, who also says that the fondness of mosquitoes for certain people has been attributed, by some research workers, to the presence of glucose in the blood—a fact which may be related to my claim that blondes are less argumentative than brunettes

"Mosquitoes would seem to prefer fair people to their darker brethern. Since I wrote my little book, 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes,' I have had to answer so many questions about why gentlemen prefer blondes that now when anybody asks it I am quite dumb. Instead I prefer to answer the question why blondes prefer gentlemen. Blondes are light and delicate, so they like to be treated very gently, and a real gentleman is always gentle and kind, so that is why blondes prefer them. Mr. Erving Berlin has written a song which explains what I mean. Part of it goes:

'Since the world began
Every gentle-man

"Ever since we were in our cradles we were taught to look up to gentlemen and to admire blondes. Little boys always think that the desirable ladies of the world are blondes. The angels are always blondes and so are the faries. I mean how awful it would be if we saw the picture of an angel or fairy with black hair! So when we are born to prefer blondes, some of it must stick when we grow up. All bad people are dark in the pictures and on the stage. I mean he wouldn't be much of a villian if he wore a fair mustache, would he now? I am often twitted because I am a brunette and my husband did not prefer a blonde. But he has explained that himself by saying that he had no say in the matter; also that he is not a gentleman; only a working man who works hard. So that is why he preferred a brunette."

WELL Kitty, I see by the papers that New York is witnessing a successful theatrical season, several record-breakers having already been established. I would like to see Alice Brady in "Sour Grapes," since a Vincent Lawrence comedy with such favorites as the fashionable Alice and Frank Conroy, John Halliday and Flora Shiffield is not to be resisted. Another play that would tempt me is "The Adorable Liar," with Dorothy Burgess, whose success the critics say has been most spectacular. I see where they are dramatizing Margaret Kennedy's "The Constant Nymph,' 'and are having quiet a time casting it. As yet no one has been discovered who can fill the role of Tessa. Well, I always said Tessa was different. One of my English friends wrote me a most enthusiastic account of the reception. "Is zat so?" is having in London. The English theatregoers are just eating it up. They say that never since the days of "Potash and Perlmutter" has an American comedy gone over so big in England. I read where Henry Tyler succeeded Gleason as Hap when Gleason became ill in July. Henry Tyler, by the way, is responsible for the following bon mot: "The English can understand our slang, for was not Sir Walter Raleigh himself the first one to say, "Step on it, Lizzie?"

Returning tourists who have a most interesting trip are the Silk family, Mr. and Mrs. Silk and son, Edward, with two young men friends, Lewis Williams and Minor Simms of Panhandle, Texas. The party made the trip in the comfortable special built car, "The Bungalow," which is a veritable house on wheels and visited 13 states, and interesting points in Canada. They also enjoyed fishing on the lovely Minnesota lakes and toured the entire middle states. Every form of outdoor recreation was indulged in, the party only staying in a hotel one night during the entire six weeks. This is the second big trip the Silks have made this year in the car, the first being a complete tour of Texas in the spring. In their program of "See American First" they have already covered so much territory that the title of "the most American traveled woman in Wichita Falls" has already been conferred upon Mrs. Silk.

Oh tempora oh mores in right. I saw by the papers the other day where they had a curfew law in Cook county, Illinois, whereby all flappers and drug store bandits are required to turn in at 9:30. What do you know about that? Why, the fun just begins at that hour. Policemen are detailed to see that the law is observed.

Being beyond the flapper age, curfew laws mean little in my happy life. However, I believe that there is a limit to all things, and since the little mahogny timepiece (which you gave me for Christmas) on my adorable secretary is striking the half hour after midnight, I believe it's time for me to turn off the current.

And so to bed, where I rightly belong, will go——

Special Music Will Feature Services

Special musical numbers feature the morning and evening services to be given at the First Methodist church, south, Sunday. Among them will be a short organ concert by Miss Agnes Weeks of Ardmore, Okla., in the evening. Miss Weeks recently returned from Germany where she studied under well-known masters. Miss Josephine Fisy will also sing a soprano solo, "Abide With Me," at the evening service.

The program follows:

Morning: Organ prelude "Largo From New Symphony," (Dvorak); anthem, "Make a Joyful Noise" (Petrie), H. W. Gray and choir; offertory, organ, "Morninglude" (Grieg); tenor solo, "The Living God" (O'Hara), Robert Brown; organ postlude, "Postlude B Flat" (Reed).

The above organ numbers will be played by Miss Cloe Stripling, assistant organist. Joel H. MacGregor, director of the choir.

Evening: Soprano solo, "Abide With Me" (Spence), Miss Josephine Fisy.

Offertory, "Trombone, Con Amore" (Beaumont); hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour," congregation.

Mrs. I. R. Sheldon and children, who spent the summer in Rhode Island, as guests of Mrs. Sheldon's parents, have returned home.

MRS. EARL STATTON. (Story Photo)

The Ansil Lynn league of the First Methodist church will entertain with a party on the lawn at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Johnson Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Miss Judy Sherrod and Alice Downing have gone to Fayetteville Ark., where they enter the state university. Miss Sherrod is a senior this year and a pledge of the Ti Beta Phi sorority.

LETITIA ROSE.

In The Pictures

Little Miss Kate Early Parker is the 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lois Parker, popular Wichita Falls vocalist, who is already showing signs herself of becoming an artist in musical circles. She was a violin pupil of Stanley Raub last year and also plays the piano well. This summer the young artist broadcasted from the Adolphus hotel, WRR, in several numbers, and at an early age sang in the art studio at Hollywood. Little Miss Parker is also not only a most unusual child musician, but has also had experience on the screen where at the age of two and one-half years, she took parts in pictures in which Mary Pickford, Milton Sills and Fanny Ward, starred. She is a student of the Presbyterian Woman's college at Milford this season.

Little Rose Keith, is the two and one-half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keith, Jr., who has lived in Dallas until recently when with her parents she has moved to Wichita Falls. Mr. Keith is with the Wichita Produce company, and the small miss is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vic E. Stamfli and of Mr. and Mrs. George Keith, Sr.

Mrs. Earl Statton was before her marriage recently, Miss Billy Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tucker and furnished inspiration for several pretty affairs preceding the nuptials. Mr. and Mrs. Statton have returned from their wedding tour, and are now at home here where Mr. Statton is connected with the Texas company.

Engagement of Virginia Parks Is Announced

Wichita Falls friends of Miss Virginia Parks, daughter of Mrs. J. R. Parks, will be interested in announcements received of the engagement and approaching wedding of Miss Parks to Vance Morton of Chicago which takes place October 13, at the home of the bride-elect in Houston. The romance is the culmination of a romance which begun during the world war when Mr. Morton was stationed in camp at Houston.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Morton will make their home in Chicago where the latter is director of the University theatre and professor of dramatic literature at Northwestern university. Miss Parks is a niece of T. P. Adams of this city and with her mother, formerly lived here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reagan have as their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davidson of Toledo, O.

Ladies Bible Class Retain Old Officers

With Mesdames R. E. Humphrey, Hurley and Isler, hostesses, members of the Ladies' Bible class of the First Methodist church met at the church and during a business session elected and retained all the former officers of the class as follows: Mrs. J. B. Stokes, president; Mrs. W. A. Stuckey, first vice president; Mrs. K. B. Dodge, second vice president; Mrs. J. W. Downing, third vice president; Mrs. Anna Barnhill, class secretary; Mrs. R. V. Guinn, social secretary; Mrs. A. B. Lipscomb, treasurer; Mrs. Julia Buckholt, chairman of birthday offering; Mrs. T. A. Baggett, chairman of flowers and Mrs. Mary White, reporter. Mrs. Shepherd is teacher of the class.

During the social hour, refreshments were served to Mesdames Stokes, Shepherd, Stuckey, Lipscomb, Downing, Bradley, Brown, Barnhill, Fellows, Crites, Humphrey, Guinn, Rahl, Isler, Heffner, Buckholt, Myers, Nolen, Hurley, Taylor, Mann, Lowery, Reed, Dodge, Baggett, Stokes, White and Misses Helen Fellows and Faye Baggett.

Miss Elizabeth Wood left Friday for Denton where she is enrolling at C. I. A.

"I AND GEORGE"—By
NINA WILCOX PUTNAM
America's Only Woman Humorist

As P. T. Barnum, the man who invented the automatic pocketbook opener, once said, "Money may be the root of all evil, but what I could do with a thousand dollars is nobody's business!"

And the truth of that has always struck me on a real sensitive spot. For a long time now I have fully realized what a shame it is for me not to have money. Why, when I look at some of the folks who do have it, well it just don't seme reasonable, that's all. I got to talking this over with Mabel Bush, the other day, the one that's married to that Joe Bush of the Hawthorne Club, and for once in a lifetime, I and she had a real congenial time. We was speaking of the Goofnahs and what a pity it was that people like them should have so much money when anybody could see that they didn't know how to spend it.

Well, my dear, I says to Mabel, the way that Goofnah woman dresses! Expensive of course, but did you ever see such terrible hats? I don't know where she finds them. Yes ,says Mabel, and her dresses! Of course she uses the most expensive goods, but they never look like anything, why, if I do say so myself, I look twice as smart and I don't begin to pay what she does.

Mabel Says A Mouthful

Well, Mabel said a mouthful there, on account everybody knows them Bushes don't begin to pay for anything, much less finish doing so, unless they absolutely have to. But I agreed with her about Mrs. Goofnah. Why, if Mabel thinks she is well dressed besides that woman, can yermagine what I could do to a specialty shop with Mrs. Goofnah's income!

I tell you, dear, says Mabel, her clothes ain't all that's wrong with that woman. Why, she has the worst ideas on furnishing a house, the place isn't even comfortable, I couldn't live in a big barn like that, could you? And I says no indeed, now if I had money, I'd have a nice house, of course, with say twelve or fourteen bedroom's so's I could entertain my friends.

I tell you, Mabel, I says, I can't understand people like the Goofnahs, they are so inhospital! Lookit that big house they got down to the Lake. And how many times do they ask a person out there? Now, if that was my house, I'd have it simply full of friends all the

Charm a Matter of The Mind and Soul, While Beauty Is But Physical

In The Glow —Of— The Camp Fire

The Cantipi Camp Fire Girls met at the home of their guardian, Mrs. W. D. Cook, Friday afternoon where after singing Camp Fire songs, a discussion of the seven laws was held. The group decided to see how completely they can live up to the seven laws—"seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify and be happy" for the next week and report at next meeting just how they have done this.

Members of this camp made and filled five of the cretonne bags for the Red Cross to send to the government hospitals.

A hike is planned for Saturday, September 25. Those attending were: Mattie Cook, Ruth Neilson, Loretta Angell, Minnie Mansell, Mrs. Flora Cook, Elizabeth and Thelma James, Eula Gilbreth.

Cantawayua Group

The Cantawayua Group met at the home of their guardian, Mrs Frank W. Jones, Friday afternoon and during the business session a report of the receipts from the candy sale, was given, and another sale for following Saturday was planned.

The parts for the ceremonial meeting to be held next Friday were assigned and Camp Fire Songs rehearsed.

Those attending were Lee Ellen Boardman, Edith Brown, Laura Mae Costly. Mary Hyatt, Mildred Johnson, Mildred Murrell, Beatrice Short, Dorthy Sommerville, Bernice Trevathen, Mary Katherine Ward, and Winnelle Ward.

Temskatawa Group

The Temskatawa Camp Fire Girls met at Camp Fire headquarters, Friday afternoon with Marjorie Dalton, president, presiding at the short business session.

A discussion of a new guardian, for the group, to succeed Mrs. T. N. Colligan, who has had to give the work up, was held but no one definitely decided upon.

After the business session, the process of making sepia prints was explained by Miss Mary McIlheran, and each girl made a print of a leaf. Ink splatter prints were group made smoke prints of leaves at a former meeting.

Those attending were Marjorie Dalton, Nell and Maxine Duffy. Nadine Loofbourrow, Mildred Kent and Emagene Kroeger.

Alibi Group

The Alahi Camp Fire Girls met at the church hall Friday afternoon when a discussion of window exhibits for Camp Fire and plans for membership campaign was held.

Some of the girls worked out their names and symbols, and other requirements for rank.

Those attending were: Charlott Kennedy, Frances Hyland, Angenia Edgar, Mary and Millie pastusek, Margaret Davis, Margaret Ossenbeck, Louise Thomas, Edna Mae Stegall, Vera Shelton, Laura Linn Hathaway, Mrs. J. F. Hyland assistant guardian and Mrs. A. W. Ayres, guardian.

Guardians to Meet

The Camp Fire Guardians association will meet at headquarters Tuesday evening at 7:45. Every guardian, assistant guardian, and older girls are urged to attend. A special program is being planned.

Organization of Groups

Camp Fire groups are to be organiezd in the different schools in the next week or so. A meeting of all girls interested will be called at Austin school on Tuesday afternoon of this week, and at Barwise on Wednesday afternoon. Miss MmIlheran will explain the Camp Fire program, and have an exhibit of Camp Fire work. Other schools will have meetings this week, including Crockett and Bowie. Window displays of Camp Fire work will be seen in the following stores sometime during the week: McClurkan, the Phonograph Shop, the Army Store, P. B. M. and Central Drug store.

Council to Open Work With Luncheon

Opening the new fiscal year, members of the Council of Jewish Women will have a luncheon at Temple Israel September 28, according to an announcement made Friday.

New officers for the council include, Mrs. Louis Pink, president; Mrs. J. Cohen, first vice president; Mrs. H. L. Goldstucker, second vice president; Mrs. M. S. Kaufman, recording secretary; Mrs. L. Goldstucker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Max, treasurer; Mrs. S. Brettler, auditor; Mesdames P. Kleinman, S. Riesenberg, B. Kaufman, B. Brettler, H. Schack, H. Jaffee and A. Marcus, directors. Chairman of standing committees include Mrs. B. Kaufman, religious; Mrs. Abe Marcus, educational; Mrs. J. Cohen, membership; Mrs. L. Loevy, finance; Mrs. S. Lebenson, personal service; Mrs. S. Quicksilver, junior auxiliary; Mrs. H. L. Goldstucker, entertainment; Mrs. H. Schack, sewing; Mrs. Phillip Pink, telephone; Mrs. S. H. Smith, memorial fund, and Mrs. Ben Newman, press and publicity.

American Legion Auxiliary to Meet

Members of the American Legion Woman's Auxiliary will hold their first meeting of the fall and winter season which will be in the nature of a luncheon at Kemp Kort dining room Tuesday at 1 p. m. At this time, Mrs. James P. Bowen, delegate to the recent state convention held at Amarillo, will give her report. Reservations may be made by calling 6207.

By MADAME IDA CHERNOFF

It was in the office of one's great lawyer. A woman entered, a stranger, colorless of feature and neutral as to dress. To her halting request, the secretary said, "Did you have an appointment?" and, "He is very busy," and "If you'll have a seat, I'll see if he can see you."

Entered another stranger, a woman dressed in simple assurance, her features accented by careful grooming, a woman who looked her best and was therefore without apology. "Tell Mr. Brown that Mrs. Evans would like to see him." "Right away, madame," nodded the secretary.

Self-consciousness interferes with the projection of one's personality, and it is through the expression of personality that most of the good things in life are won. How to banish self-consciousness? Simply make the most of your natural advantages, and then forget self.

Charm May Be Sure

Charm is to be had without beauty of feature or figures. Beauty is physical; charm is largely of the mind and the soul. It means more to call a woman charming than to classify her as beautiful. How many women take a poor picture; the photograph shows only the line of the features and the surface of the face. It cannot show the dancing light of friendly eyes; the winsome play of expression about a mobile mouth; the warmth of coloring; the grace of an easy carriage, and over all, the allure of abounding health.

Few women who take a really good photograph are really charming and winsome. Often, the lineaments that the camera portrays in all their perfection are without the lustre of intelligence or human sympathy; in other words, without mind or soul. A woman may be charming. Here are the requisites, boiled down to their simplest form.

1. Daily exercise of some kind to bring to the body a warm glow and thus burn up superfluous food.

2. A daily bath, hot, tepid or cold, as best suits the individual.

3. Wholesome food at regular hours, and much less than the average person eats.

4. Sufficient sleep for the nerves and rest for the body.

5. Half an hour a day invested in making the most of the face and hair.

6. A costume that is a fitting frame for the personality.

Sally forth of an afternoon with the knowledge that you look your best; and with complete forgetfulness of the things that cannot be helped. Suppose your nose is too big; give people a smile to look at and they'll forget the nose. Suppose you are overly plump or a bit too slender; people don't care how much you weigh if you are graciously yourself.

If you pity yourself for some physical shortcoming, real or fancied, people will pity you, too. If you glorify such charm and attractiveness as you have, people will see only that.

An Aid to Business

Charm will aid a business woman to secure the position she wants, and to hold it. Charm is the foundation upon which a social success is based. Charm is the flame which warms the home, which inspires the devotion of the husband and the adoration of the children. To the one who cultivates charm, the passing years will be but a benediction. They may bring character lines, but never a wrinkle of nervousness, or worry, of discontent.

Make the most of what you have, wisely using the many scientific aids with which the drug stores of today are stocked. Beauty is but skin deep; but charm is as deep as the mind and the heart. And charm is the outward expression of a happy heart, and an alert mind, and a healthy body, and contentment.

Division Leader Is Presented Picture

Members of Mrs. J. M. Isbell's division of the First Christian Woman's Council, surprised their leader at her new home Friday afternoon when they came in a group bringing with them a lovely landscape picture as a gift from the crowd and token of appreciation. A second surprise picture was also presented by Mrs. Isbell's "love friend." The presentation of the division picture was made by the Rev. Charles Bash in an appropriate address, after which refreshments were served.

West Texas C-C President Carries Equalization Plea To State

Special to The Record News.

LITTLEFIELD, Texas, Sept. 18. Arthur P Dugan, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has returned to his home from his second major speaking campaign in behalf of equalization of taxes in Texas, and in the interest of diversified farming. Mr. Duggan on this campaign spoke in the principle points of central West Texas, opening his tour at Eastland, going as far south as Corpus Christi and San Antonio. Enthusiastic crowds heard President Duggan at all points, and his addresses were well received. A number of civic organizations throughout the state have officially endorsed the West Texas Chamber of Commerce stand for tax equalization in a large number of cities and counties; local movements are already underway re-enforcing the work of the regional organization. Homer D. Wade accompanied Mr. Dugan on his central trip and did a great amount of work in perfecting an organization to put over a state-wide tax survey at the next session of the Texas legislature.

Mr. Duggan evinced great enthusiasm over results that have greeted his efforts this far. He had covered the extreme western and southern parts of the territory served by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and is now planning future campaigns which will take him into the heart of the region. He is more convinced than ever that the best interests of Texas demand re-adjustment of our system of taxation, and that this re-adjustment must come.

Francis Grice Chapter D. A. R. Hold Meeting

The Francis Grice chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Martin Rowe on Buchanan street. The meeting will be in the nature of a social, and any member of the D. A. R. in the city is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burnside and Misses Winnie Mae Giddings and Lois Fitzgerald, are spending the week-end in Dallas.

Personals

Mrs. J. Truman Stevens has returned from Mineral Wells where she has been for several weeks.

Little Miss Ruth Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Thomas, is reported improving after a three weeks' serious illness.

Mrs. T. E. Patterson and small daughter, Patsy Lou of Abilene, are guests of Mrs. Patterson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Thomas.

Announcement is made of the arrival of a five-pound baby daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Carroll at 1607 Elizabeth street.

Mrs. McAltin and her niece, Miss Estelle Rounds of Des Moines, Ia., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Stone.

Word received by friends of Mrs. W. W. Priddy who is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis at the hospital at Charlotte, N. C., states that she is improving nicely. Mrs. Priddy and children spent the summer there with Mrs. Priddy's mother when she became ill with acute appendicitis before starting home. Mr. Priddy returned with the children.

DALLAS WANTS CONVENTION

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Dallas is making a strong invitation for the 1927 meeting of the Loyal Knights of the Round Table, O. D. Brundidge, president of the Dallas organization announced. The current year's convention now is in session in Toledo.

ACCEPTS PASTORATE

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Doctor Brooks I. Dickey, who has been executive secretary-treasurer of synod causes and of schools and colleges of the Synod of Texas of the Presbyterian church, U. S., left yesterday for McAllen where he will become pastor of the Presbyterian church. Dr. Dickey resigned his synodical positions recently.

Pilot Saved Three Times by 'Chutes

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18. (AP) Parachutes have three times saved the life of Charles A. Lindbergh, who Friday was forced to jump from a mail plane he was piloting near Wedron, Ill.

Lindbergh was graduated from the advanced flying class at Kelly field on March 14, 1925. Nine days before his graduation he collided at 5,000 feet with the machine piloted by Lieutenant C. E. McAllister, both men piloting S. E. 5's. After the crash both men "went over the side," after their planes crashed in flames.

Two months later, Lindbergh, who was doing stunt flying at a commercial field at St. Louis, put the plane he was piloting into a tail spin. The rudder stuck, and Lindbergh, unable to pull the ship out of the spin, having stuck with it as it dropped from an altitude of 2,500 feet to 500 feet, again went "over the side" his parachute barely opening in time to save his life.

Lindbergh's mail plane Friday night ran out of gas in a fog, and he was forced to make his third parachute jump.

White House Social Whirl Begins To Twist as President and Other Bigwigs Start Their Fall Return

Grand To-Do Begins to Make Itself Felt in Washington; Fond Mamas and Pert Flappers Look Ahead to Gay and Blithesome Parties of the Coming Season

BY JEAN JARVIS.
Special Correspondent of the Record News
Copyright, 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—There's a grand to-do on at the White House today where after a ten weeks' holiday at White Pine camp, the president and Mrs. Coolidge are expected back "any time between midnight and breakfast time"—so goes the good news.

As a matter of fact things began to hum merrily early this week. The secretary to the president and Mrs. Everett Sanders arrived first upon the scene, the secretary showing up very fit after a summer's seige of sickness, Mrs. Sanders looking just as chic and jaunty as ever. She has some very smart bits of head gear and wisely enough she seems to stick pretty close to the becoming small hat. Whether she looks best in her shrewd little effect in biege felt of a snappy little model in black is a matter of personal taste.

Moffett Shows Up

Just about the time Secretary and Mrs. Sanders got to town, J. H. Dupont Moffett "master of White House cermonials" showed up, so by that same token work got going simultaneously at the executive offices and in the "social bureau." With the imminent arrival of Miss Randolph, secretary to the White House, the staff will be complete.

Inasmuch as all signs point to a very active social season, intensive work will start at once on the formal White House calendar, a document which nowadays forms the basis of all calculations as to days and dates, ranging from debts to dinners.

In anticipation of the gay little whirl which everybody falls into before the formal programs get under way, the mothers of this year's very impressive group of debutantes have been in friendly collaboration for several weeks.

Nowadays nothing is left to chance in the social game, so Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner who has a very well organized social bureau, has on her social "good books" most of the women who are bringing out their girls this winter. The tea which she has dated for November 12 will shine forth gloriously as a rendezvous for the girls of 1926-27.

Debut parties will have the field almost uninterruptedly from October until the advent of congress in December.

Back come the cabinet ministers and in their wake, the various envoys and ministers from almost every country under the sun. The retiring ambassador of Spain and Senora De Riano arrived this week, and everybody is on the qui vive to hear whether they have decided to settle down in the U. S. A.—meantime everybody's hoping that instead of the rumored New York residence, Washington will draw the lucky number.

The Flags Break Out

A grand flurry of flags made a colorful demonstration on Wednesday at the Pan-American building, the showing of the National colors included Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and San Salvador, celebrating their national independence day.

Meantime following closely their wake, the minister of Mexico, Senor Don Manuel Tellez, held the ambassador's enfete in celebration of the 116th anniversary of the independence of Mexico.

And then by way of getting "down to business" comes the news that Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson is about to start a shop—in Connecticut avenue of course.

Mrs. Davidson's shop is going in for all that is alluring in lingerie and other items which "eat up good money," and it is not such a far cry from Mrs. "Joe" Leiter's very successful enterprise— Mrs. Leiter stocks millinery and frocks. It does look as though the social register was turning into a business directory.

Mrs. Davidson who has a very good looking husband and an adorable baby daughter was Elizabeth Hanna. Betty Hanna is a granddaughter of the famous president-maker, Mark Hanna and a niece of Mrs. Medill McCormick (who by the way is maybe prouder of her prize winning herd of cattle than she is of her social prowess). So she's not in trade so much for the money as for the experience.

FAMED MOSS FOUND

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18.(AP) Spanish moss, plucked from the oak tree under which General Sam Houston lay after the battle of San Jacinto in 1836, was placed on display Saturday in the Alamo museum. It was the gift of Rev. L. B. Own, pastor of the Poteet Baptist church.

Man Hunt Starts, Ends in a Hurry

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—A man hunt near Mesquite, organized hurriedly and prosecuted speedily, ended even more quickly than started about daynght today. A party of Palestine tourists, reported having seen two negroes dragging a white woman across the highway toward a woods. Officers from Mesquite and Dallas with nearby residents formed posses immediately. In addition to searching fields and woods some visited houses in the vicinity. The hunt ended for the farmer explained that he, his sister and a negro hired man went after some stock in a field. As they crossed the highway an automobile approached rapidly and in scrambling across the road the two men helped the woman escape the machine.

TEXANS INCLUDED

NASHIILLE, Tenn., Sept. 18. (AP)—Three Texas women are listed among the 23 women missionaries recently accepted for service under the Methodist Episcopal church, south, at the meeting of the candidates committee of the M. E. church, south, here. They are:

Miss Dolores Ruth Diaz, San Antonio, who will serve in the United States; Miss Marie Ella Crone, Lindale, Texas, selected for service in Latin-America, and Miss Lenora Anders, Center Point, who will serve in Mexico.

All of the candidates are students at Scarritt college for Christian workers at Louisville and will take up their work at the end of the studies.

TO CONTINUE DEFENSE

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18. (AP)—Further efforts of the defense to gain a continuance probably will open the trial Monday in New Braufels of A. V. Millikin charged by indictment with the slaying of Mrs. Virginia Petty, San Antonio business woman. This was learned Saturday when J. W. Conger, chief defense counsel announced that he was preparing several motions to present to Judge M. C. Jeffrey of the twenty-second district court when the trial opens Monday.

FIGHT RADIO WAR BLOOMING

Rickard Issues Ultimatum Barring Papers From Broadcasting

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP) George L. (Tex) Rickard intends to utilize the radio to add to his profits from the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship bout in Philadelphia, Sept. 23.

He told the Associated Press today that any contract he signed with a radio broadcasting station would bar newspapers from broadcasting wire reports of the bout. Asked about reports that a broadcasting station had paid $25,000 for the contract, Rickard denied that any deal had been made.

Editors and publishers, however, received a telegram bearing his name, which said:

"The broadcasting rights have been contracted for and it will be an infringment on these rights for newspapers to use wire reports of the contest." The publication had sent Rickard a telegram asking him about reports concerning the broadcasting contract.

Rickard later said, when called by telephone in Philadelphia that he had not sent any telegrams to the publication.

"This is a private show," said Rickard, "and I have a perfect right to say who can and who can't broadcast."

He Urges Water Route to North

HOUSTON, Sept. 18.(AP)—Construction of a canal to connect Lake Michigan with the Mississippi river and the Gulf of Mexico would mean more to Houston as a port than her ship channel which brings deep water and ocean traffic to her door from the Gulf of Mexico 54 miles away, Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria, Ill., ranking member of the rivers and harbors committee declared in a statement while visiting here today.

Congressman Hull introduced the Illinois river waterway bill in congress, proposing a canal to connect Lake Michigan with the Mississippi river. Such a canal, he said, would make possible transportation by inland waterways between Houston, St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago and all Great Lake cities.

SEA GREEN STYLES

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Sea green seems to be in style. At least there is the authority of artists of the dramatic and concert stage for it. Olga Netzersole and Geraldine Farrar arrived from Europe the same day with the same kind of costume. Geraldine's hair now might be described by the song beginning "Silver Threads." Olga, who was arrested in the Victorian days when "Sapho" was considered risque, is visiting us after 12 years to help in the fight against tuberculosis by attending a convention. The greatest thirll in life Gerry has had was a recent flight from Munich to Berlin. "Not even my marriage and divorce can eclipse it," she said.

Far Away Places Use Machines Of Burk Factories

BURKBURNETT, Sept. 18—The American Iron Works of Burkburnett, Charles J. Johnson, proprietor, has within the last few weeks developed into a considerable portion in the field of export. The product manufactured and shipped by this shop is a hydraulic press, called a pipe straightening and bending machine, for use about oil fields or wherever pipe of any kind, angle iron, rails, or shafts may be employed. This machine is an invention of and patented by Mr. Johnson, who in his long association with oil fields and acquaintance with the needs thereof saw the need of some such portable straightening and bending machine.

Since the first of April the "Pipe Strightener" has been sold by the W-K-M company as exclusive oil field specialty company at Houston which, through an extensive advertising program by way of the various industrial journals, has shipped these machines to many parts of the world. Among a recent list of shipments are the names of Tampico and Puerto, in Mexico; Honduras, in Central America; Cartagena and San Fernando, near Cadiz, in Spain; Maracaibo in Venezuela; the Island of Trinidad in the West Indies; and Miri in Tibet, by way of Singapore, besides many other places, including most of the oil producing districts of the United States, with a matter of a dozen machines sent to Torrance, Cal., alone.

Farmers Slay 1, Hurt Others In Attack on 'Thieves'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A seven months old baby is dead, her mother's arm is torn by a load of buckshot and two men are suffering slighter wounds as the result of a gun attack last night by two farmers, who mistook an automobile party for watermelon thieves.

The party stopped on a road beside the farm of Oscar and Morgan Swann when trouble with headlights developed. The farmers opened fire with shotguns.

One of the charges struck Mrs. E. B. Carey, a member of the party, and part of a load entered her baby's head. The child died today. Rex Nicholson and John Page suffered slight wounds, while Mrs. Page, another occupant of the machine, was unhurt.

The Swann brothers were arrested on a charge of malicious shooting.

"Slewfoot" and "Sweet Papa," Being Crude But Effective Philosophers, Have Some Pertinent Remarks To Make About the Annual Incursions of the Cotton Sacks

BY E. L. PIERCE
Record News Staff

FREDERICK, Sept. 18.—"Slewfoot" Slim and "Sweet Papa" Charley stood on the front porch of Ned Nabor's cafe and restaurant, across the tracks, in Frederick's "nigger town" watching the Vikings.

True, "Slewfoot" and "Sweet Papa" didn't recognize them for what they were. To this negro pair the arrivals in the dusty and battered "Fode" were just some "mo' cullud folks come to pick cotton," and it is probably not exaggerated to say that the newcomers were eyed appraisingly by the "home guards" with a view to sizing up the possibilities of pickings."

Vikings they are though—at heart, this almost endless horde of transient labor that is pouring into the southwestern portion of Oklahoma and the northwest section of Texas for the cotton picking season.

The same spirit that animated the hardy Norse to leave their homes once a year and fare forth over the ocean to pillage "furriners" is, in a more subdued form, in the breasts of these south Texas negroes who make the pilgrimage once yearly to the north for the cotton harvest.

"Dunno a heap about the what an, the why,
Can't say's I ever knowed.
Heaven to me's a fair blue stretch of sky,
Earth's jest a dusty road."

In battered Fords, decrepit Cadillacs and more decrepit and awful Chandlers, Dorts and other monstrosities of vehicular conveyance whole families, "the sisters and the cousins and the aunts," pile in with their belongings strapped into and onto the cars and hit northward when the first chill winds of fall begin to blow.

Like the vikings these people will profit from pillage. They will ravage the cotton stalks on thousands of acres of the product of seven months' of growth and will profit thereby.

Like the Vikings some of them will not return. Many will meet sudden and terrible death at the hands of another of their race or the hands of some white man. History repeats itself, consequently judging the future from the past, it is hardly possible that the cotton picking season in this county will pass without its chapter of violence.

They Return Again.

But the majority of them will return about Christmas-time. They, in this action, again show a trait of the Viking, who, wheresoever he roamed generally landed back in his own little inlet on his own particular barren shores. Many the Fode that will be swapped for a "limerine" and many the "limerine" owner who will return the box car route, for while these negroes frequently make from $8 to $10 a day, very few of them are much richer when they leave than when they arrive.

What do they care? Property as property means little or anything in their lives—some of them not such young lives at that. A week at work; a trip to Frederick on Saturday afternoon, a few absolutely necessary purchases made, their debts paid to the farmer who has "staked" them and the picker is ready for one of his "festivals." Generally starting with a dance, progressing sometimes to a "party" ending with a call for the sheriff's force to find the "nigger who dun the cuttin'." Monday morning finds those who can muster sufficient courage to pull aching heads up and down cotton rows, back on the job again, ready to repeat the performance the next week.

"Dunno the names o'things, nor what they are,
Can't say's I ever will.
Dunno about God—he's jest the noddin' star
Atop the windy hill."

Hundreds of these dusky "Vikings" have arrived in Tillman county already for the cotton harvest and other hundreds will be in the town within the next week. While the crop is later than usual the sunshiny weather is causing the cotton to open fast now and it is probable that the picking season will open in earnest the coming week, the week following seeing it in full blast.

BURK PLANS IMPROVEMENT

Mass Meeting Sunday Will Discuss Plans For Betterment

HURKBURNETT, Sept. 18.—The community interest of the week in Burkburnett is the mass meeting Sunday afternoon by the members of the Cemetery association and other co-operating organizations for the purpose of improving and beautifying the Burkburnett cemetery.

A good entertaining program, as given below, will be rendered at 3:30 p. m., in the First Baptist church when it is hoped that the local citizens and those out of town friends who formerly lived here and are interested in the cemetery, will be present in person or by word of greeting. Special letters to these former citizens have been sent out by the committee and they will be special guests of the gathering Sunday afternoon.

The ministers of the several churches in this city and on the lease communities at Clara, Texhoma, Thrift and others are requested to announce this meeting Sunday morning in their respective pulpits.

The cemetery at Burkburnett is an index of our community pride, our departed loved ones. Let every respect to the sacred memory of our departed oved ones. Let every person in and about Burkburnett be in attendance at the mass meeting in the interest of the cemetery association Sunday afternoon.

Storms In Path of S-35 Result In Postponement

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.(AP) Storms in the S-35's pathway to Paris again have postponed the hop-off of the giant Sikorsky plane.

Captain Rene Fonck, in command of the proposed non-stop, New York to Paris flight this afternoon abandoned any hope of starting tomorrow it was announced by Igor Sikorsky. Today's advices from the weather bureau in Washington showed a storm center of hurricane force moving northeast from a point about 180 miles southeast of Nantucket light ship.

IN THE PAGES OF BOOKS

—BY C. HARTLEY GRATTON—

One of the many superstitions that encumber modern education is the superstition that Latin in some mysterious way sharpens, elevates, and sophisticates the intellect. Of course it does nothing of the kind, but its proponents like to think so, and they incline to lord it over anyone who cannot translate stupid handbook sentences into Latin or out of Latin into English. This superstitious reverence for Latin originated during the Renaissance when things Latin and Greek were venerated rather indiscriminately. It became deeply embedded in the educational system of western Europe and consequently of the United States. When modern science began to push its way into the schools, the partisans of the classics were its chief opponents, and even today they fight tooth and nail every effort to place science on an equal footing with their venerable but tiresome subject. Taken by and large teachers and professors of Latin are a sorry lot and very poor advertisements for their subject

I have frequently wondered just what conception the average Latin teacher had of the Roman mind. I entertained the vague and unconfirmed suspicion that if the Romans were as my Latin teachers indicated they were they could never have conquered the world or performed the marvelous engineering feats that they did. They must have been confirmed and egregious asses. When I got to college I had a brief and humorously disastrous passage with a Latin teacher to whom I owe thanks for one service. He made it clear that Romans were quite second-rate as compared to the Greeks. Everything Roman, he said, with what I now know to be pardonable exaggeration, goes back to Greece. His generalization is largely confirmed by "The Roman Spirit," by Albert Grenier (Knopf, $6), a volume in "The History of Civilization" series.

Study of the Roman Mind.

It is not a history of Rome, but an attempt to show what the Roman mind was like. The roots of Rome were in Etruria chiefly and other contiguous Italian countries. The art and thought of the Etruscans dominated Rome during its early years. Whether one turn to architecture, painting, pottery, religion or what-not, the Etruscan strain predominates. Therefore at the foundation of the Roman mind was the Etruscan strain, chiefly, but in any case strains natively Italian. Also it is to be noted that the Romans were not a "pure" people, anthropologically or culturally. Nor were the Greeks for that matter, or the Jews or any other people There is no "pure" people known to anthropology.

But as Rome grew she came in contact with non-Italian people. At first her contacts were limited to peoples on the Italian peninsula, and the non-Italian peoples were Greeks, who long before had established colonies. The earliest relations were commercial, but culture was exchanged also, and the contacts brought to Rome ideas, philosophic and artistic, quite different from the Italian which she then cultivated. This tendency to import ideas is indicative of a very powerful trait in the Roman mind, its eclecticism. The Romans borrowed and adapted endlessly. They originated little. When Rome conquered the peninsula she more completely absorbed the culture of the Greek cities.

Domination of Hellenism.

This conquest and subsequent absorption, already prepared for by the seepage incident to commercial relations, led to the domination of the Roman mind by Hellenism. Rome became a part of the Mediterranean culture, which was Hellenic, and the Italian strain became submerged. It disappeared from the intellectual life of the cultivated classes and the newly wealthy who patronized the arts, altogether, and survived among the peasantry. This was the period of the republic when Rome was rapidly expanding, absorbing in its eclectic fashion, traits from every people it conquered. But in spite of its endless capacity for absorption, the Roman mind was always able to touch off its products in a slightly distinctive way It cultivated a Romanized Hellenism.

Not only do these generalizations hold for architecture, painting, sculpture and pottery, but they also hold for literature as well. A whole series of well-know figures fall into this period, and are anlyzed by Professor Grenier as typical representatives of Roman Hellenism. They are: Plautus, Terence, Lucretius, Catullus and Cicero. The last of the line was Ovid who was exiled by Augustus Caesar as a corrupter of morals. These writers had typically Roman traits, but they were predominantly Hellenic in tone.

Under the Empire.

The Italian traits in the Roman mind began to be emphasized again at the beginning of the empire, in the reign of Augustus. The period of absorption was pretty much at an end for a while. Augustus made a policy of returning to to the practices of the early times; in other words, to the Italian traits in Roman culture. There grew up a school of artists with the same purpose. The poets and the historians were animated by the same motive. So a truly Roman culture found its inspiration in a sort of patriotism, a patriotism designed not to encourage expansion and conquest, but to celebrate and nationalize the enormous conquests already achieved, and the prodigious imperial system of which the Romans found themselves masters

So the highest achievements of the Roman artists had a patriotic basis. The 'Aeneid" of Virgil says Professor Grenier, "is the epic of the predestination of Rome." It is not an exercise in grammar or aesthetics. This histories of Livy crystalized the Roman tradition. The sculptors returned to the Italian traditions. So did the designers of commemorative monuments. The distinctive trait of all of these patriotic artists is their realism. Even when they were deeply imbued with Hellenic idealism they gave it a Roman tone by their realism.

Such then was the history of the Roman mind from the beginning to its finest flowering in the early years of the empire. After that period of effloresence it slowly decayed until shortly before the triumph of Christianity Rome was the center of as weird an assortment of impossible philosophies and religions as one can well imagine. Under the empire, even under Augustus, Oriental ideas began to permeate Rome. They were extremely disintegrating and presaged decay. The break-up of the Roman empire seemingly produced a universal katzenjammer. By an accident of circumstance Christianity triumphed over its innumerable competitors.

Four Distinctive Traits

After tracing the course of Roman intellectual history Professor Grenier selects four traits as typical of the Roman mind. The first he calls "The Gods." Early Rome was dominated by its gods, which were innumerable. In addition to other cultural borrowings, the Romans freely borrowed gods. As might be expected, except in the earliest years, Roman religion was a formal, rather empty matter. It was regarded as a bulwark of the state and nothing else. Its political aspect was the one cherished by the rulers. The people sought consolation, when they needed it, in other cults. But when Augustus sought to revive the truly Roman religion he found it still flourishing among the peasantry—the worship of Lates and Penates, and he incorporated it into his system, which culminated in the worship of the emperor, an Oriental idea by the way, not Roman or even Hellenistic, who was defied after death, (Later the Caesars were deified before death.) To the Roman religion was an arm of politics, and it means little else to him.

A far more galvanic ideal was the city—Rome. It was Rome that dominated the true Roman's thoughts. "The Roman people was an army in which the efforts of each were constantly bent on the safety of all and the glory of the city.... The ever-present thought of the state was one of the essential features of the Roman spirit, in religion and in life, in art and in literature.

Roman Mind Political.

So the Roman mind was dominated by a political ideal It bent all its efforts to bring that ideal to the highest expression. Naturally it developed a serious, practical bias. The Roman is usually pictured as a soldier, and a soldier in ancient times was a man of action interested in immediate results. In fact the Roman had to learn how to w[illegible] and the third characteristic trait of his mind, Profesor Greiner finds to be "play," which he, got from the Greeks. By play is meant art, literature, the drama the amenities of life. But if the Roman was able to learn to play, there were many things he did not learn. He contributed nothing to speculative philosophy. He contributed nothing to pure science. (He simply applied Greek results.) In spite of his wide travels he had not sufficient curiosity to contribute anything of importance to geography. But he did have an abiding interest in man; an interest which is sufficiently prominent to be classed as a trait. Professor Grenier observes: "The study of man, in general, was regarded in Rome as the essential purpose of intellectual activity; the knowledge of characters, sentiments and passions was held to be the highest degree of mental culture." But, it should be pointed out, this was done in a literary and not in a scientific way.

What then did the Roman mind contribute to intellectual history? Very little, evidently. Its chief service was to gather up, systematize, and summarize, Hellenistic cultures Otherwise its contribution was in the field of political organization and law. It would be interesting to know just how far these have influence in the modern world.

"The Roman Spirit" is a volume for everyone who ever took or endured a course in Latin. It will dissipate any superstitious admiration one may have for the Romans, and it will also enable one intelligently to know just what the Roman mind really was like.

"Her Son's Wife," by Dorothy Canfield (Harcourt, Brace & company) is surprisingly fine. It is not at all the stupid mother-in-law story one might expect from the title. To be sure it is a mother-in-law story, but it is such a sincere study in character that one quickly forgets that the situation is as old as the hills and becomes fascinated by the unfolding of this particular instance.

The mother in this case lost her husband soon after the birth of her only son. For years she has been a school teacher, and prides herself on the careful, thoughtful upbringing she has given her boy. Just because she has seen so many boys pass through her grade she has thus gained and applied to her son will result in his being a quite exceptional man. She believes that she is thoroughly in his confidence.

It is a severe blow, then, when she receives a letter saying that he is married. He still has some months to go before finishing his college course, and he will be unable to study law as they had planned. It completely upsets both their lives And to put the final touch to it, "her son's wife" turns out to be cheap. From this point on, the story is concerned with the efforts of the mother to keep the household together and in order. The son's wife has no idea of housekeeping, or cleanliness. The young folks have a baby five months after marriage, which complicates matters and makes the wife more unendurable than ever. She develops a passion for complaint. She flirts with other men.

Eventually the mother shunts the wife off to bed, convincing her (easily of course) with the aid of a quack doctor, that she is a chronic invalid. Then set in years of attention to the invalid. The son recovers some of his interest in life and makes a success in journalism. The mother has full control over the baby, a daughter, and brings her up to be a delightful child. The mother even discovers that "her son's wife" is not such a bad sort. She is astonished to find that far from being a sensual woman who tricked her son into marriage, the unfortunate wife is an undersexed woman who regards herself as a victim of men. She flirted for diversion, but fundamentally she was a prude.

"Her Son's Wife" is a careful study of an extraordinarily difficult character. I really didn't think Dorothy Canfield capable of writing so fine a novel

A Hamilton Gibb's second novel is called "Labels," (Little, Brown & company), and it also suffers from the disability of a stale theme. Once again we are treated with a story of men and women who have returned from the war to find themselves in an alien world where "labels," stupidly applied mean everything, and understanding means nothing. This story has been told over and over again. Mr. Gibb's version is interesting to be sure. He knows how to write a novel. He is an extremely neat and competent workman, but he cannot make so stale a theme seem important.

Perhaps some day a student of the times will tell us why it is that so many novels nowadays are competently written, excellent pieces of workmanship and so few are really important. It is certainly amazing to read good substantial novels week after week, novels that are far from disgraceful, least of all to their authors, and so infrequently happen on one worth getting excited about. There must be some dark secret behind this outburst of technical competence. I'd like to know the secret, but I'd rather read a novel once in a while worth getting excited about.

* * *

"She Shall Have Music," by Alyse Gregory (Harcourt, Brace & company), is disappointing, but lovely. I mean that the subject is so trite and stale and the situations so hackneyed that one is disappointed. The loveliness is in the writing. The book is really exquisitely written

* * *

The subject is the sexual awakening of a brilliant girl immersed in a stupid family, and her search for beauty and freedom. The situations need not be gone into here but they seem to me very stagey, even dime-novelish. For instance a stupid gardener's brilliant son turns out to be the son of a brilliant neighbor long resident abroad.

There is no question about Miss Gregory's understanding her theme but there is equally little doubt that she has failed adequately to realize it in fiction. It is perhaps folly to generalize, but one is inclined to believe that the essay is her true medium. She did some excellent work in criticism, it will be recalled, when she was managing editor of "The Dial."

"DON'T WANT TO GO"

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Weeping, moaning and sobbing, "I don't want to go," a pretty young woman known as "Ponjola" was taken today from Dallas to serve two years in the state penitentiary at Huntsville. She had pleaded guilty to forgery. In recent months she has gained much notoriety through frequent appearances in police court.

Leaves Bride At Altar; Ends His Life With a Gun

ADAMS, Nebr., Sept. 18.(AP) Leaving his bride-to-be waiting at the altar because he said he was an illegitimate child and could not marry in honor, Frank Thomas, 23, committed suicide by shooting, police believe. His body was found in a motion picture theatre which is used but twice weekly. Indications were that he had been dead several days.

His fiance, Miss Ethel White, said Thomas had confided his asserted illegitimacy to her, saying he did not feel he could marry her under such conditions, but that she told him not to worry about it. When he did not appear for the wedding ceremony she broke the engagement.

A note found by Thomas' body read:

"Good bye everybody. I guess no one understands. I could not expect sympathy. I'll take my secret with me. Sure hope I am doing what is best for all concerned. Don't try to solve. God knows."

Thomas lost track of his father in Wyoming nine years ago. He worked his way through high school and was prominent in dramatics and athletics.

New Plains Railroad Brings Fulfillment of An Age Old Dream

MANY HAVE A HAND IN BIG NEW PROJECT

Vernon Men Give Facts Of Interest on L. V. & A. Construction Job

"Who started this railroad question, anyhow?"

Such, among others, is a question being asked these days as definite steps are being taken for launching of the proposed new Lubbock, Vernon and Ardmore railroad.

This line, scheduled to run for more than 200 miles through a section of the rich Texas Panhandle and southern Oklahoma, has already progressed to a point where it is more than a dream. Surveys have been made, charters obtained and an application for a certificate of necessity and convenience filed with the the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

A study of the past history of the road reveals a number of contributing factors which have now been moulded into a concrete plan for the whole. The Vernon Record recently undertook to compile some data on the matter and unearthed some interesting facts in connection with it.

Quanah newspapers, it seems, has championed the claims of an anonymous Quanah citizen who, it said, had considerable to do with the proposition. But these claims, while not disputed, are at least not endorsed in full by R. M. Fielder, Lee K. Johnson, Harry Mason and R. H. Coffee, four Vernon men who have been active in the project. As a matter of fact, they make no claims to designating the original founder of the idea because, they say, it has been a long standing dream in which many different entities have had a part.

L. S. Hawkins Active

L. G. Hawkins, however, seems to be the real god-father of the present project. Mr. Hawkins, able banker, business man and civic leader, is credited by Fielder, Johnson and others with having inspired them to active pushing of the matter and years ago took an active interest in plans for a road that, with some modifications, now promises to develop into the L. V. & A.

But to quote from the Record, Mr. Howkins doesn't know who first started the movement to build a railroad from Vernon to the plains.

In 1909 a movement to construct the road was sponsored by a number of Vernon citizens, who spent several thousand dollars in support of the plan, but Mr. Hawkins doesn't know whom could be called the "father" of the idea. He modestly admits that he spent thousands of dollars in the project served as president of the Vernon, Oklahoma and Pacific Railroad company which was organized to build the line, went to the expense of making business visits to the presidents of several railroads for personal conferences, and otherwise gave his time and money in an effort to have the road built, but he doesn't know who can be named "father" of the idea.

Nevertheless, the four Vernon men who are taking the lead in the movement now, and who are apparently pushing it to a successful completion, admit that the idea had its origin in other minds than theirs. They admit that, as they dream of direct rail connections with Lubbock, of seeing man-made monsters of steel speed rapidly through the breaks southwest of Vernon and up the great Cap Rock, carrying modern railroad facilities to a rich and rapidly developing territory now untapped by a railroad, they are dreaming dreams after others.

Route was Surveyed

The route of the proposed Vernon, Oklahoma and Pacific railroad was completely surveyed to a point on the plains in the direction of Lubbock according to Mr. Hawkins.

Proof that the idea originated in Vernon is given in the fact that Vernon is first in the official name of the railroad company. "We wanted Vernon to be first," declared Mr. Hawkins. Several Vernon men who were leaders in the project are well-known here now. Among them are Mr. Hawkins, W. O. Onderson and L. J. Massie. Adam J. Robinson, now familiarly known as "Uncle Jack," engineer for the city of Veronn, acted as engineer for the company and had charge of the surveying.

He was at that time engineer for the Frisco railroad, and it was planned to have the railroad leading southwest from Vernon to connect with the Frisco here for the time being.

The route surveyed at that time is almost identical with that planned by the present railroad company, and as engineers and surveyors hew their way through the breaks of the Wichita river near Crowell they will doubtless find marks left by the crew headed by the Vernon surveyors years ago. They will doubtless survey their line to climb the Cap Rock at the place where Mr. Robinson surveyed the route years ago, as that was the only place which was found by the surveyors which could be utilized by a railroad with success. The road will have only a one per cent grade to climb if it goes up near Afton, where it was surveyed then.

Not New Idea

So, the movement to build a railroad which will connect Vernon with some point on the plains is no new thing but like other big movements, has been years in the making, and was thought out years ago. Citizens of Vernon had vision enough to realize the potentialities of the railroad.

Opposition stopped the road then, although the president of the Santa Fe System admitted to Mr Hawkins in a personal interview that the route of the road would carry it through a territory which needed more rail facilities. Now the movement is being pushed again and an application is before the interstate commerce commission for a permit to build the road.

Although those who once made a great effort to build the road have been inactive on the project for several years they have cherished the dream through the years and recently when the Santa Fe was granted the right to purchase a road from Ardmore to Ringling, Okla., Mr. Hawkins remembered the plans of the Vernon, Oklahoma and Pacific railroad and he urged the business men of Vernon to take action on a proposal to connect the Ringling road with Lubbock. He is confident that this time the effort will result in success.

Practice Soon To Be Started By New Boy's Band Formed In City

The Lions club 60-piece boys' band will hold their first rehearsal Tuesday, September 21 at the court house at 7:30 o'clock according to the Ripley-Jones Music company who have announced the arrival of the large Sousaphone bass horn. Arrangements have been held up pending the shipment of this bass horn which will make the instrumental personnel of the band complete.

Paul Seeds, who has been engaged to instruct and direct the band, reports that enrollment of Wichita Falls boys has been unusually satisfactory but that about sixteen places are still vacant. These may be filled only by those who are willing to take up the instrument needed. Boys wishing to join the band should enroll at once, since joining later in the season will necessitate efficiency equal that of the point already attained by the band.

Sponsored by the Lions club, it is the desire of that organization to make this band the largest and best boys' band in the state. Plans have been made to not only see that the boys have a chance to become real bandmen, but that those who study hard and become proficient be aided in their progressiveness. It is believed that all Wichita Falls will be proud of its Boys' band in the years to come as it can not do less than achieve with the talent and ambition evidenced by the young musicians of the city.

time—you know, people who would appreciate it. I'd ask the ones who didn't have much themselves the folks it would be a treat to.

The Soul of Generosity

So would I, says Mabel, no rich society people, eh? And I says certainly not, dear, I personally myself would keep my grand house just full of poor relations and people from the slums. It would be such a treat to them not to wash the dishes or make their beds, or anything. And I would buy them clothes, too, real nice things, just what they wanted.

I tell you another thing about that Mrs. Goofnah, says Mabel. She's as stingy as can be! Why, do you know that when she was taking up the subscriptions for the home for blind, crippled, bull-frogs all she give was twenty dollars! No! I says, meaning yes. You don't say! Well, I simply can't understand that kinda thing, that's all.

Now if I had money, I hope to tell you I certainly would be generous with it. There's a lot of things I've just been crazy to do in this world, and if I was suddenly to get money, they would be the first things I would attend to. I always wanted to give Aunt Etta a nice income, say twenty thousand a year, and a closed car. If I had money, I'd rush right out and buy it for her. Then there is that poor family of Whoosis, down the street. I'd like to send all them kids to college, hire a girl to help that poor woman and fix up their house for them, while they kissed my hands in gratitude, and etc.

Remembering The Girl Friends

I'd give all my friends a hunk of money, and I certainly wouldn't forget you, dear, I'd ask you out on my yacht, and everything. I do think it would be grand to be able to do things for your girl friends.

Now that Goofnah woman never does, I says. Take for a sample how I and she went shopping the other afternoon. She bought some things for herself in pretty near every dept. of the Emporium, while all I could afford was one ice pick. And she knew that perfectly well, but did she say to me, go ahead dearie, and buy yourself anything you want and charge it on my bill? No! She did not!

Now if I had money and took a girl friend shopping, I would want them to have everything I had; in fact, I would insist on them taking it, not that I would of done so my own personally self no matter how hard Mrs. Goofnah had insisted, if she had insisted, but you know what I mean, dear, it's the spirit that matters, don't you agree with me?

I certainly do, says Mabel with a long sigh. It's a wonder to me, she says, how people who have money can be so mean. It isn't as though they didn't have it, she went on. Of course if a person hasn't got it, why that's a different matter. But what I mean is, when they have plenty, well, I can't understand people being like that, that's all!

Points On Using Wealth

Well, neither can I, dear, I says, and take another question. Now with all those cars of theirs—wouldn't you think they would offer to lend a person a car onct in a while? But do they? You know! Why, Mrs. Goofnah would see a neighbor walk the legs off herself and never so much as even dream of offering her a car, you know that as good as I do!

Now, if I had money, and a big flock of auto's like that, I mean I'd see that my friends got the use of them anytinme they wanted. I'd tell them, now just whenever you want to go anywheres, or park a car outside your house or run down street for a bucket of coal or something, why all you have to do is ask, and I will be delighted to send around the Rolls-Easy, or the Banana Straight Ate, or whichever you prefer. That certainly is my idea of the way to enjoy a car, but then some people such as the Goofnahs certainly don't know how to use their wealth.

Well, I'll tell you, my dear, says Mabel, I have always telt it to be a great pity that somebody—a intelligent woman like myself—couldn't go right to Mrs. Goofnah and say, see here, dear, now take it in the right spirit in which it is meant, but I do wish you would let me show you how to spend your money! I know just exactly what you had ough tto be doing with it, and my showing you won't cost you a nickel only what you pay out. Honest, Jennie, it would be doing that woman a kindness, only she probably wouldn't appreciate it.

Why Millionaires Go Wrong

No, I says with a sigh, that's just it, people seldom appreciate interference with their money, it's a peculiar fact, but true. Now if I had money I would be far different I would be only too glad to have my friends give me helpful suggestions about my loose change, not that I believe a person should be a sucker or throw their kale away on a bunch of grafters. But money is a lot of responsibility, even when you haven't got it, Mabel, and I sure have often noticed rich people making terrible mistakes, especially where their children is concerned.

I must say that if I had money, I certainly would not want to leave Junior too much. I think it spoils a child, especially a boy. I wouldn't want to leave him over a million and a half, just enough to give him a good start in life and make him earn the rest!

That's right, says Mabel, you can see that in the families of a lot of these society millionaires, look at how them young people go getting into trouble, the girls marrying a lot of cheap foreign titles, and the boys going out with chorus girls, it's a shame! And I says yes, take Rockefeller, for a sample, why if he'd listen to me . . . .

A Visit From Santa

Well, just as I says that what would ring only the doorbell, and it was the postman with a letter. Well, it was quite a important looking letter in a big white envelope with a red seal on the back of it, and very few of the letters we get generally have seals—usually the flap is merely stuck on the inside the envelope so's the circular won't fall out so easily, all except the ones from George's mother! I was dying to see what was inside of it, so I says to Mabel, will you excuse me, please, this looks to be quite a important letter, pardon me while I see it is important or not.

Well, I opened the letter, see, and Hot Bozo! The first lines nearly put me out for the count. I couldn't believe my eyes, but there it read, plain as day.

"By your Uncle's will, you have been left two million dollars."

Well, that was all the further I got, on account I did not want to read such a important letter with that Mabel Bush looking at me. So, while nearly suffocating from excitement, I merely folded the letter up with trembling hands, and said nothing, so Mabel says not bad news, I hope dear? And I says oh no, ha! ha! not, not so bad!

Our Lady Bountiful

So Mabel says well, I can see you want to be alone to read your letter, I do hope it isn't bad news, well, I must be runing along. Then she felt in her pocket book for her compact, and then she says, by the way, dear, would you mind lending me a quarter? I come out with only the carfare to get over here. I dunno how, but I forgot to put any money in my purse, I was lucky I had the dime.

And I says well, er, let me see, I don't know have I got that much money. So I looked in my purse and commenced to take out a quarter, then I remembered how rich I was, and what a great responsibility money was, a person really had ought to be very careful of it. And so I put the quarter back and took out a dime and give it to Mabel. Sorry dear, I says, I only seem to have a dime, but that's all you really need isn't it? And she says why thanks dear, I'll give it back to you. Then she went off and I had a chance to read the rest of my letter and this was all the rest there was to it:

"By your Uncle's will you have been left two million dollars." Suppose you received a letter beginning as above. How would you invest the funds?

TOO MANY CLOSE-UPS

Mabel Assailed by Bridal Kisses In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Lew Cody, nee Mabel Normand, screen tomboy, was reported on the verge of a "kiss collapse" here last night following the anouncement of her romantic marriage to the film idol which took place at Ventura shortly before dawn. The news of her wedding had preceded her when she slipped into the studio where she is working and she was besieged by a host of friends who insisted upon kissing the bride. A studio official who clicked off the number of osculations, including his own, said that Mabel had registered more real close-ups than could possibly be portrayed in 10 reels of clinching.

Americans Starve As Chinese City Stormed by Troops

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18. (AP)—Twenty-one Americans, held virtually as prisoners, are threatened with starvation as a result of the siege of the city of Wuchang by the red Cantonese forces.

Failing to capture the city the southerners have settled down to a program of starving out the inhabitants and the northern forces which have been holding it against attack. A complete blockade of the city has been effected and every communication with the outside closed.

Wuchang has a week's food supply. After that the only alternative to famine is surrender. Besides the 21 Americans within the walls, there are five othe foreigners of whom two are Italians, two Germans and one Irish. The foreigners have been forbidden to leave and must share the fate of the Chinese.

Wuchang is one of the largest cities of China. It has a population of 500,000 to 600,000 and is the capital of Hupeh province. It is located several hundred miles inland on the great Yangtze river. It is opposite another large city, Hankow, which was recently captured by the southerners. Possession of these two cities would be of immense value to an army because of their control of the Yangtze, the great water highway bisecting China, and because of their importance as trade and industrial centers. Wuchang is a walled city.

STEAMER SINKING

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A wireless message received here today from the steamship Baracoa said the schooner Saint Pierre-Minqueton was afire and slowly sinking. The message said the crew had been taken aboard the steamer Westerwald at latitude 25.00, longitude 17.37 west.

Available marine register fail to list a schooner by the name given in the wireless message.

Now Strong, Well

"FOR two years I was in very poor health," says Mrs. T. G. Harris, of Clarksburg, Mo., whose picture is printed above. "Some of the time I was almost past going. I was very weak and run-down. I tried to make the most of what little strength I had by taking frequent rests, but I could find nothing which would start me on the road to health again, until one day I decided to try Cardui.

"I had heard about other women who had been benefited after taking it, so I made up my mind to see what it would do for me. I took Cardui for several months and was very much gratified with the results.

"I began to do my own work again, which I had not been able to do for a long time past. My color, which had been pale and sallow, became natural, and my complexion cleared up. I gained in weight and was pleased to have an improved appetite.

"When I finished my last bottle of Cardui I was feeling better than I had in years. Now I am strong and well."

ZANE GREY AT OLYMPIC

"Forlone River" Will Be Cinema Attraction Here Sunday

Zane Grey's genius for story telling and Paramount's superlative skill in picturizing his colorful tales of the old west in all their gripping realism and celluloid expression in a new melodramatic thriller with the usual title of "Forlorn River."

This is the very latest of Mr. Grey's adventurous tales and recently appeared serially in the Ladise Home Journal. The picture opens at the Olympic theatre next Sunday for a three days run.

"Forlorn River" deals with a band of cattle rustlers who were the terror of the northwest cattle country when that section of the west was America's last frontier. Around this exciting clash between the desperadoes and the honest ranchers, the author has woven a dramatic romance that has an unexpected twist.

The principals involved are an outlaw, who is a fugitive from justice; a cattle rancher's daughter; and her boyhood sweetheart. Jack Holt has the picturesque role of "Nevada," the mysterious outlaw, Arlette Marchal, noted French beauty, is the appealing heroine; and Edmund Burns is the third angle in the three-cornered love affair. Raymond Hatton, whose comedy characterizations have made him a favorite with picture-goers, plays the part of a tramp cowpuncher in his inimitably humourous style.

The story was adapted by George C. Hull, and directed by John Waters, who wielded the megaphone on another of Mr. Grey's stories, "Born to the West." Particular interest attaches to the remarkable scenic background, inasmuch as the entire production was filmed in Zion National Park, Utah, a primitive and majestic setting of great natural beauty.

Film fans, who have come to expect certain things in a Zane Grey photoplay, will find them in overflowing measure in this new opus. There is an abundance of hair-trigger action, stunt riding, gun fighting, in addition to an assortment of typical western thrills. The picture shows at the Olympic Sunday.

Gem Offering "Prairie Pirate"

This thrilling screen production was taken from the story by W. C. Tuttle and published recently in Liberty magazine under the title "The Yellow Seal."

It is a tale of a daring young ranger who turned bandit to avenge the death of his sister. As "The Yellow Seal," played by Harry Carey, he became a dreaded scourge on the plains and in the foothills of that wild and uncivilized stretch of country where the United States and Mexico meet.

The only clue he had; a broken cigarette stub which he picked from the sand beside his sister's dead body, led him over narrow and adventurous trails. He became a bandit and adventurer of the sums were upon his head.

Wherever he passed he left a mark, that of a Yellow Seal, by which he came to be known and either feared or loved; for to the poor he brought gold and to the rich he brought death and disaster. He fell in love, in his wanderings with the beautiful daughter of an old Spanish rancher.

And at last, face to face with the man he sought—the end of his trail. All these superb and thrilling climaxes piling one on the other, twisting and turning unexpectedly along some new angle make this Producers Distributing Corporation release one of the thrill pictures of the year.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN

Fort Worth Friends Hunt for Missing Matron.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 18.(AP) A 12-hour search by neighbors and police for Mrs. W. P. Williams, reported missing from her home at 2:30 a. m. Saturday, was fruitless, it was stated at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Emergency officers searched in the vicinity of a swimming pool in a public park here, but without result. Mrs. Williams had been ill, her husband said. She took only the clothes she wore.

Olympic Feature For Four Days

Jack Holt, Arlette Marchal and Edmund Burns in a scene from Zane Grey's "Forlorn River" A Paramount Picture

Youngster Storm Center in Court

FORT WORTH, Sept. 18. (AP)—Byron B. Luck, Jr., aged 3, became the storm center Saturday of a suit over property reported worth $100,000, title to which depends on the child, which Mrs. Marie Tallery widow of Dr. Byron B. Luck of Breckenridge, says is a waif.

Mrs. Tillery, through her witnesses, developed a story of the child's adoption from Hope Cottage, Dallas, in July 1923, and of her two weeks' sojourn in bed in order that the world might not know that baby Byron was not her child and eventually break his illusions concerning his parents. After her marriage to J. L. Tillery she adopted the child. Dr. Luck's will left his estate wholly to his widow.

G. O. P. BOOM LAUNCHED

Republicans Get Busy In Son Antonio Area.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18. (AP) The 1926 Texas republican "boom" with the first complete, state, congressional and county tickets in history, and with aspirations of electing republican senators from Texas in 1926 was launched here Saturday.

R. B. Creager of Brownsville, republican committeeman from Texas, was here to lay plans for the republican revival and in conference with Leonard Worthington, organization secretary, expressed optimism in regard to the political situation, both state and national.

HE'S NOT SO BAD

Officer Laughs At Claim of Hard Boiled Gun Man

TEXARKANA, Texas, Sept. 18. (AP)—Steve Miller's boasts of being a "bad-man" and "gun-man" which landed him in jail Friday night at Mineral Wells in connection with the murder of Hence Giles, Texarkana policeman here July 16, were scoffed at Saturday by Chief of Police Crowell, who said his department would take no action against Miller.

Miller was arrested by Mineral Wells authorities after Allie East former clerk of a hotel here, had told police in Mineral Wells that Miller had bosated of his powess with a gun the day Giles was shot and killed by the driver of a whiskey-laden automobile, which the officer had attempted to search.

SECOND VICTIM OF FUED

PAULS VALLEY, Okla., Sept. 18, (AP)—A family fued claimed a second victim here today when George Carlton, 34, was shot to death on the street by his brohter-in-law, Henry Martin. Carlton killed Martin's father, James Martin, last May.

Carlton was klled on the same street upon which he shot his 60-year-old father in law last spring.

MOFFETT STILL ILL

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—Condition of Will R. Moffett, captain of Dallas detectives, critically ill in a hospital remained unchanged today. A blood transfusion operation was performed last night and for a time he was considered to have rallied a little.

Spain Approves Rivera Regime

MADRID, Sept. 18. (AP)—Official figures were given out today on the results of the recent plebiscite to determine the popularity of the Primo de Rivera regime. The total population of the country is given as 21,389,842 of which 13,195,888 persons are over 18, the qualified voting age in the plebiscite. The number of votes cast was 6,959,043.

The above figure indicates that about half the eligible voters expressed approval of the Primo de Rivera government. The price condition of the plebiscite was that all cast favored the government; disapproval was to be shown by remaining away from the polls.

DALLAS NEEDS FUNDS

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—Dallas city officials are considering submitting at the April election question of a bond issue of $250,000 to $500,000, for sanitary sewer funds, John C. Harris, mayor protem, said today.

MISSION HAS PEGGY JOYCE

Famous Leading Men to Appear in Support Of Big Film

Two of the screen's most famous leading men will play at the Strand theatre in Peggy Hopkins Joyce's first starring vehicle "The Skyrocket," opening Monday.

Owen Moore and Earle Williams both pioneers of motion pictures have never before appeared in a picture together, and would not have been appearing in this one, if director Marshall Neilan had not used his personal influence and friendship for both.

There is a certain rivalry among leading men of the screen which will not allow them to appear with one another, but these two stars recognizing the importance of Peggy Hopkins Joyce's debut, consented to appear together.

The story is a screen adaptation of the Adela Rogers St. Johns' Cosmopolitan magazine story and concerns Hollywood.

Vanderbilt Estate Dwindles Lower

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 18.(AP) The personal estate of the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt was insufficient to pay his debts, meet expenses of the funeral, support the family or pay for the settlement of the estate the executor of the estate has revealed.

The condition of the Vanderbilt estate was disclosed in the filing of a routine petition by James R. Deering of New York, executor under in the will, with the probate court at Portsmouth.

Reginald Vanderbilt died last September. When his will was probated later in the month estimates of his wealth ranged from five to twenty million dollars. Mr. Deering's petition revealed, however, that he left little more than the five million dollar trust fund, the principal of which he could not use under the provisions of the will of his father, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. The trust fund has gone in equal shares to his two daughters, Mrs. Harry C. Cushing, Third, and his infant daughter, Gloria Vanderbilt.

Bank Officials Watch Robbers Loot Their Vault

Officials of a southern California bank stood by and laughed as a famous criminal raided the institution. The bankers not only watched the midnight robbery without interfering, but helped the plotters.

It was all part of filming "The Bat," probably the best known of modern mystery melodramas. Roland West, who wrote "The Monster" and "The Unknown Purple," brings the Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood stage success to the screen.

West rented a bank in a small city near Los Angeles and staged the "robbery" while most of the townspeople were asleep. At this "party" the heads of the financial institution were guests of the producer, Police officers, who had been "tipped off" on the "robbery" so they would not think it was real, also were spectators.

No one, however, discovered either the real life or reel life identity of the master crook, because he was masked when he arrived on location and remained so until after he entered a closed motor car and returned to Hollywood alone.

West is the only one who knew "The Bat's" identity at any time during production. Although the general plot of the play is followed in the screen version, so many complications have been added by Julien Josephson, scenarist, that the producer feels sure the picture will baffle even the hundreds of thousands who saw the stage thriller, as well as those who will first see it at the Olympic theatre soon.

PATROLMAN CHARGED

Fort Worth Cop Held on Theft Complaint.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 18.(AP) M. P. Ball, city patrolman suspended Friday night, was charged in justice court Saturday with two cases of burglary, bond being set at $2,500 in each case. The stores were broken into, one on August 4 and the other Wednesday night.

Ball, highly recommended, had been on the forse for five months and had made a grade of 96 on his civil service examination. He is married. Shirts and socks were the principal articles missed.

INVESTMENTS CENTERED ON SMALL TRADE

BY BYRON SELLER.
Special Correspondent of the Record News.

(Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Investment activity this week has been confined for the most part to foreign obligations. Domestic fixed interest rate bearing securities have maintained practically a dead level in prices.

There has been a slight shading of quotations in response to indications of higher money but it was very slight, not enough to show a trend. There seems to be no doubt that for the present, demand for funds for business purposes is going to increase and that money rates will work moderately higher.

The fact, then, that bonds have been so stable has a significance as yet not generally recognized. The inference is that no disturbance of current values in high grade securities is to be looked for and that investors are convinced that once the seasonal demand for funds is past, money will become easier again and bonds resume the slow upward movement which has been in effect since the world war.

Long Look Ahead

Of course this is a long look ahead. Traders are not interested in what will happen next January or next year. They are concerned with the short time fluctuations. Such bond buyers are holding off and this makes for the current dullness in transactions. On the other hand, genuine investors, those whose chief aim is to keep their funds employed, are not willing to sacrifice their holdings and so from the offering as well as from the buying side business is slow. The probability is that the bond holder who looks to the longer range of prices is perfectly correct in not troubling himself about the curent minor price changes.

All this refers to seasoned bonds. The case with new issues is a litth different. Here the market has begun to discriminate rather sharply. There is no longer the eager demand of the late spring and early summer for the lowest yielding of these new offerings. Unless it is an unusual instance, any new investment priced to return the buyer less than 5 per cent is not easy to sell.

The price of one utility issue in this class brought out on a lower than 5 per cent basis was actually dropped a point by the bankers themselves when they discovered the situation. Doubtless this is a temporary condition and eventually utilities will be able to finance themselves on just as favorable terms as the railroads of equal strength, but for the present investment sentiment has not been educated quite up to that point.

Foreign Loans Active

While domestic bonds have been hesitating between these opposing forces, foreign dollar loans have been active and strong and many of them have been making new high prices for the year and a few the best prices since they were put upon the market. This has been the real feature of the day today transactions. Two causes have been operating to bring this about. One of them was the high yields all these foreign bonds offer, returns which are no longer possible in the domestic list. The other is the growing belief that affairs abroad are on the mend. This belief may not be well founded but that is not the point. The investor is mort confident about the outlook even for those countries the depreciated currencies of which have been the great financial problem of Europe.

French bonds, for instance, have sold this week higher than at any other time this year. There has ment in French finances nor in the French franc. It is more a change in the state of mind of the investor.

Take another example, that of Japanese bonds. For months these have dragged along the market with a minimum price range. This week, however, they too, were bid up to a new high price. In the case of Japan the factor that held the market for the bonds back was doubt, not about financial stability, but about political relations. That, too, has been put in the background, giving another illustration of a changed mental attitude on the part of the investor.

Coming to German bonds, the best illustration of the favor with which these obligations are now received is in the reception accorded to the new state of Prussia issue offered this week. The price at which this latest German obligation was marketed was on a basis to return the buyer less than on any other new German offering since the war. Of course the German government 7's, the international loan designed to put the Dawes plan into operation, sell now to return the investor less than he is allowed on these new Prussian bonds but the German 7's have advanced from 92 to 105, which is the prevailing quotation, a gain of 13 points. They probably would sell higher were is not for the fact that the call price is also 105.

All this does not alter the fact that it is easier to distribute a German bond in the American market today than at any time since financing for German governmental divisions was resumed here after the war.

Haskell City Hall Work Will Start

HASKELL, Sept. 18.—Construction of a new city hall and fire station combined will begin here early in October when a two story brick structure, 50x40 feet will be erected. Offices for city officials and jail with living quarters for fire chief and family will on the first floor and two rooms above will be used for the members of the volunteer fire department. A large club room adjoining the upstairs suite will be provided. A small auditorium gor city council and citizen's committee meetings is also furnished in the building, which will be completed at an approximate cost of $20,000.

SEARCH FOR YOUTH

DALLAS, Sept. 18.(AP)—An appeal for a state-wide search for Truett Pitts, 11-year-old son of Arthur L. Pitts of Northeast Dallas has been made by his parents. The lad has been missing several days. Glenn McDaniel, 13, living a few doors from the Pitts residence also is missing. The Pitts lad is average size for his age. The McDaniel boy is large.

Begin Work On New Knox Hospital

KNOX CITY, Sept. 18.—Excavation work on the Knox County hospital was begun in this city this week. The building is being erected by funds from a bond issue of $60,000.

Architects for the building are Voelcker and Dixon of Wichita Falls, and the general contract was awarded to Charles Bialkowsky, also of Wichita Falls. The building is to be two stories with basement for a heating plant and storage plant.

TIME IS EXTENDED

DALLAS, Sept. 18. (AP)—An indefinite extension of time in which Dallas school children must be vaccinted before they may attend the public schools was announced by N. R. Crozier, city superintendent. The original order provided that all children must be vaccinated before starting to school Monday.

Thousands of children have been inoculated, but parents of many entered protests. Suggestions that efforts be made to hold a school election of school board members were made at a meeting of the public school protective league Wednesday.

MAY AMEND CONSTITUTION

Judge Moore of Archer City Drawing Change in Law Of State

AUSTIN, Sept. 18. (AP)—An amendment to the Texas constitution which is expected to correct the issue ruled unconstitutional in the Archer county bond case by the U. S. Supreme court, is being drawn up here, Judge John R. Moore of Archer county, attorney who fought the Archer county case from beginning to end, announced Saturday.

A memorial will be presented to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson asking her to submit it to the 39th legislature in special session. This would eliminate further trouble, by having the legislature delegate to the county commissioners' court the power to create a road district, instead of authorizing petitioners to describe the district without granting a hearing to property owners in the district. It was on these two questions that the supreme court based its decision, Judge Moore said.

W. P. Dumas of Dallas, bond attorney and former assistant attorney general, who has led the fight for the validation of $100,000,000 in district road bonds, affected by the decision, and Assistant Attorney General C. A. Wheeler and Judge Moore are drafting the proposed amendment. It will be the final step in correcting the legislation under which 558 road districts were created and for which bond issues valued at $100,000,000 were sold.

STEALS PLANE; JAILED

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 18. (AP) A man alleged to have stolen an airplane at Iola, Kan., was arrested last night at Corpus Christi by a San Antonio deputy sheriff as he was painting over identifying numbers on the ship's wings. The man is being held in jail at Corpus Christi awaiting arrival of a deputy fro Iola.

SECOND FRISCO TRAIN WRECKS

Memphis Flyer Derailed When Switch Is Opened Purposely

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18. (AP)—The second deliberate wrecking of a St. Louis bound railroad passenger train within a week occurred at 11:40 o'clock last night when train No. 808 of the Frisco, known as the Memphisan, ran into an open switch at Harvard, Ark.

Two trainmen were injured.

Investigation disclosed, it was announced from the office of President Kurn of the railroad here, that a switching crew passed over the switch only 12 minutes before the passenger train and found the switch properly set. This led to the railroad's conclusion that the switch was tampered with.

Special Is Wrecked

The Sunshine Special of the Missouri Pacific was wrecked last Monday night at McGehee, Ark., killing the engineer and injuring 21 others. Investigation disclosed that angle bars had been removed.

The locomotive of the Memphian turned over, side swiping cars standing on an adjacent track. The baggage car, mail car and one coach were derailed. Engineer Curtis was bruised and Fireman Davenport scalded. Miss Marion Talley of Kansas City, Metropolitan opera star, and other passengers were shaken up.

PORT CAUSE IMPROVED

Houston Gains By Visit of Northern Men

HOUSTON, Sept. 18.(AP)—That the cause of Port Houston kas substantially advanced by the visit of the congressional rivers and harbors committee Friday was evidenced by addresses at the chamber of commerce banquet given at a hotel here Friday night.

Congressman J. J. Mansfield, who was introduced as the ranking democrat member of the rivers and harbors committee, said the city of Houston and the navigation district had played the part of the Texas cowboy in roping the ocean and tieing it to the stake at Houston with a rope that is fifty miles long.

"Houston was the pioneer," he said, "in moving the ocean around to suit its convenience."

NASH BREAKS SALES MARKS

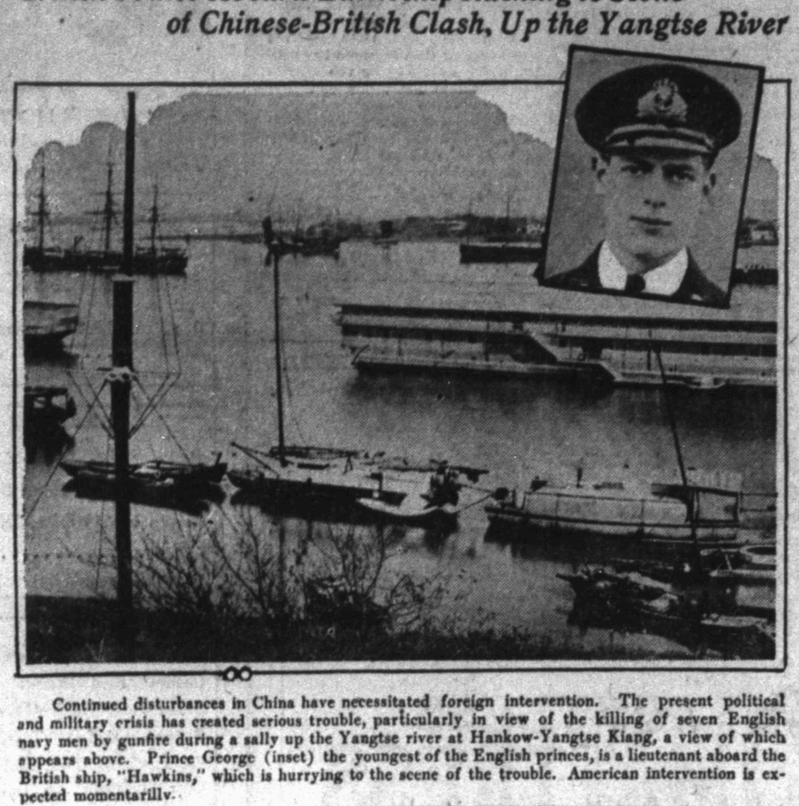

August Shatters All Other Records From Point of Production

The month of August, according to E. H. McCarty, Nash general sales manager, swept total Nash sales and production for the first eight months of 1926 to a figure considerably in excess of the total sales and production achieved by the entire year of 1925, which was the banner Nash year in point of business heretofore. "All of the Nash plants," states McCarty, "are now in big production on the recently announced new models and some idea of the speed at which Nash sales are traveling upward may be gathered from the fact that all conservative estimates indicate that September Nash sales and production will break all past records for September business. Futhermore, September will again take up the continuous stream of record-breaking Nash sales months which were interrupted in November, 1925 due to arbitrary retardation of production to bring new models into manufacture, and again in July and August of this year in order to allow us to introduce the new Light Six Series, new Special Six Series and new Advanced Six Series. In fact, September will be the 25th consecutive month—with the three exceptions noted above—that Nash sales have surpassed the high mark set by the same month of the previous year. With all three new series now powered with the 7-bearing crankshaft motor Nash today occupies the unique position of being the only large scale manufacturer i nthe world with all models powered by a 7-bearing crankshaft motor which engineers regard as the ultra modern six-cylinder motor design because of the vastly superior smoothness and quietness of its performance. At the time of our recent new model announcements stocks in our dealers' hands were at an extremely low point and this in conjunction with the great recention accorded the new cars makes it certain that Nash will be hard-pressed to meet the rising demand even though production is being advanced as fast as possible."

British Prince Aboard Battleship Rushing to Scene of Chinese-British Clash, Up the Yangtse River

Ad Directors To Meet in Dallas

WACO, Sept. 18.—Directors of Advertise Texas Committee, Inc., will meet at Dallas next Tuesday, according to announcement made here today by W. V. Crawford, managing director. John W. Carpenter of Dallas, chairman of the advisory committee, will preside.

It will be the first meeting of the directors since incorporation papers were approved by the secretary of state and charter granted. Mr. Crawford, as managing director will report on the progress of the c. .paign since active work was begun early in September. A survey of the state's resources—agriculturally and industrially—is being made, on which to form the basis for the campaign to focus the attention of the world on the advantages Texas has to offer.

HUP TRAVELS AT LOW COST

Roadster Runs 25,160 Miles With $15 Repair Bill Only Expense

A distance of 25,160 miles in a Hupmobile Eight roadster with less than $15 in service expense is the mark of I. R. Goodwin, district manager at Columbus, Ohio, for the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Engineering Co. He bought the car slightly more than a year ago.

"I have driven this car over all kinds of roads and under all weather conditions at a high average rate of speed," says Mr. Goodwin, "generally traveling from 55 to 60 miles an hour, and several times have had the speedometer up to 75. I have covered 25,160 miles without any expense to me whatsoever save valve grinding and carbon removal. The crankcase has never been off the motor and the engine is as quiet and runs as smoothly as a new one. Cooling system is perfect—in fact I have not had a fan belt on the car since a year ago and have driven it this way through the hottest weather. Brakes have always given me 100 per cent service. I have just put two new tires on the rear—my first two— and from the appearance of the others I should receive at least another 10,000 miles from them."

A similar experience is recited by H. L. Scott, of Dayton, Ohio, representative for Weidenhoff Products, of Chicago, makers of testing equipment for automotive electric service stations and electrical indicating instruments. Mr. Scott covers five states for his company.

"I have owned a Hupmobile Eight coupe four months and have driven it nearly 10,000 miles without the slightest trouble," he says. "I have traversed the country from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes in it and might say that these 10,000 miles were driven at an average speed of 45 miles an hour. I have made several record runs to company conventions and at other times when my business demanded. Recently I drove from Chicago to St. Louis in six hours and fifteen minutes—10:15 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.—only 15 minutes behind the fastest train time."

Rickenbacker Is Only Name Big Hotel Will Have

So Smackover, Ark., Men Tack It On Hostlery Being Erected

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—Honors have not been uncommon in the short history of the Rickenbacker Motor Company," says B. F. Everitt, president and general manager of that company. "We sometimes feel that we have had almost the lion's share of them.

"But a new honor, and one that we feel is unique in motordom, is the one that has just been conferred upon us in Smackover, Ark.

"In this thriving western town, which sprang up almost over night to a boom population in excess of 25,000 and then settled down to a steady, substantial 8,000 population, a new three-story, 64-room hotel has just been completed.

"Even for a town as enterprising and ambitious as this youthful prodigy, a hotel of these proportions is a big project and the townsfolk are immensely proud of their new acquisition.

"Bob Elam, one of the owners of the hotel, is the proud possessor of a Rickenbacker automobile, and so friendly does he feel toward our company that he conferred upon our Smackover distributor the honor of naming the new hotel.

"It looks to us like a worthy institution, said Mr. Fagg, president of the Valley Motor Company, in announcing his selection. 'Therefore, there is only one name that can be applied to it—Rickenbacker. It is indeed a hotel worthy of the name.

"And Rickenbacker it was—and is.

"On the day that the cornerstone of the new hotel was laid, Captain Rickenbacker made a special trip from Detroit, making a short address to the citizens and praising them for their foresight and good business judgment in building a hotel of the magnitude of the new Rickenbacker."

FAIR IS OPENED

PADUCAH, Sept. 18.—Much interest is manifested in the Cottle county fair which is to begin Sept. 30. The various communities are perfecting plans for the best exhibits ever shown in this county. The ladies clubs are planning enthusiastically for the Fine Art exhibit.

WILLYS BIDS FOR BIG LEAD

Seeks to Advance To a Strong Position In Industry

Speculative interests inside the motor car industry, commenting on the price reductions made by Willys-Overland last week on both the Overland Six and the new Whippet, agree that it presages a move on the part of the Toledo manufacturer to step into second place among the four leading automobile builders in this country, excluding Ford in this consideration.

At the present time the bid is between Willys-Overland, Hudson-Essex, Dodge Brothers and General Motors, with no great difference separating the first three.

The Toledo company is in an exceptionally good position to make a strong bid for this important place. Production ranked fourth for 1925, excluding Ford. The capital structure of the Willys-Overland organization ranked second excluding Ford and General Motors and the Toledo company held the same position as it related to working capital. The plant investment is low which is an important advantage at the start of a strenuous sales campaign. Earnings for the first half of this year have been satisfactory despite the fact that, within the past 15 months the organization has put four entirely new models on the market. The entire development costs for the two new models introduced in 1925 were written off in that year.

All of the four new models have met with a highly satisfactory reception and the monthly sales volumes have held up in a strong manner.

NEW NASH MODELS

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

7 Great Bearings

The Smoothest Miles are NASH Miles

All new Nash models now have the great superiority of a 7-bearing crankshaft motor.

New Nash Attractions

'SAW HORSES' PUT OUT OLDS

First Production Line Used Crude By Effective Building Ideas

Wooden saw horses formed the first "uroduction line" of the automobile maker who introduced quantity production into the industry and changed the automobile from a rich man's toy to a commercial reality. Oldsmobile is credited by Mark Sullivan in the first volume of his historical book, "Our Times," with being the car which pioneered these vital achievements which have made possible the great growth of the industry.

Mr. Sullivan's book, which has just been published and is one of the "best sellers," is a real human-interest account of the march of the march of important events of the present century. In it Mr. Sullivan says:

Largest In Country

"In 1900 the Olds Motor Works erected in Detroit what was then the largest automobile factory in the country." (Oldsmobile also had a plant in Lansing at which all activities have been centered since 1902 after a disasterous fire in the Detroit factory.) "They concentrated their entire equipment and abilities on a single model— and that was a fundamental step in developing the theory and practice of quantity production. For the first time in automobile history, parts were ordered in thousand lots:—2,000 sets of transmission gears from Dodge Brothers; 2,000 motors from Leland and Faulkner.

First One Cost $600

"They sold the car for $600; then for $650. The first year they made 400 machines; the second, 1,600; the third, 4,000. The capitalization of the firm was $350,000, but $200,000 was all the cash that ever went into the company. The first two years they paid out 105 per cent in cash dividends. That was the indisputable demonstration that the automobile could be more than a rich man's toy. This event, in 1900, was the birth of the automobile as a commercial reality."

There are men still employed at the Olds Motor Works who recall when quantity production methods were first introduced, and when these large orders were given which assisted the two Dodge brothers and Henry M. Leland to later enter the field as automobile Oldsmobile employes have witnessed the development of quantity production from the first crude methods to the present rapid but highly accurate system.

Oakland Shatters Production Marks In Month of August

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 18.—All previous monthly production records were shattered by the Oakland Motor Car company during August when 17,977 Greater Oakland Sixes and Pontiac Sixes were produced. As factory output has not as yet caught up with sales on either car, these figures are synonymous to sales.

Not only were all previous monthly production records broken on total number of cars produced, but all previous monthly production figures on both the Greater Oakland Six and Pontiac Six were exceeded. The total production figures were close to 3,000 greater than July output, the previous record month.

During August the 50,000th Pontiac Six was produced and shipped out. This number of Pontiacs has been produced in less than eight months, starting in January with an initial production of but 60 cars a day. Also during August the largest single day's output in the history of the company was recorded when 906 cars were produced. And the first week in September saw this year's total production pass the 100,000 mark.

September production calls for approximately the same number of cars as were produced in August—the peak capacity of the factories until the completion of the $7,600,000 addition upon which 1,000 workmen are now engaged. Plans call for production to start in this new factory January 1st.

Munday Cotton Season in Swing

MUNDAY, Sept. 18.—Cotton is coming into Munday now at the rate of 20 bales per day, and with the continued fair weather in another week all five gins will be running full capacity. The leaf worms are still ravaging the plant, and all cotton planted during the last days of June is almost a complete failure, but the older cotton, although greatly damaged will make an average crop. Some difficulty is being experienced in securing pickers. Many farmers report they have from 15 to 30 bales open now, and only need sufficient pickers to gather the crop quickly.

Buick Ads New Cars To Extensive Line Ready For Demands of 1927

Buick has made several additions to the line for 1927 which lend themselves well to the shifting fancy of the automobile market.

Two entirely new models are included. The model 58 is a deluxe five passenger coupe on the 121 inch wheel base chasis. This coupe departs from the ordinary design by having a wide seat entirely across the rear. There is a comfortable driver's seat and a full sized folding seat in front for the fifth passenger. The long wheelbase of this model, combined with careful body design, makes this car very roomy and comfortable for five large people.

This car, including the upper molding and window insets, is finished in Colonial blue Duco. The top, fenders, tires and rims are black. The wheels are natural wood. Striping is cream. Like all other models on the 121 inch wheelbase chasis, the model 58 is custom designed throughout.

New Deluxe Coupe

Another new model destined for great popularity is the model 26S, a two passenger deluxe coupe with dickey seat on the 114½ inch chasis. This car is finished in special colors and has natural wood wheels. It carries the new Buick radiator cap emblem. It is finished exceptionally well throughout and will be especialy appreciated as a fine performing second car for the average family, or as a sport type closed car where large passenger capacity is not essential.

The popular model 48, a four passenger coupe, is continued at a saving of several hundred dollars on the 120 inch wheelbase chasis. The seating arrangement is the same as before. Refinements in the design of the body and rear deck retain the good looks which this model had when built on the 121 inch chasis. This car has been made one of a group of three models offered at attractive prices which make up the series 120 line. The others are a two and a four door sedan. The color of all three is Delaware green Duco on the body and in the window recesses, with gold striping.

The roadster and touring car on the 114½ inch wheelbase chasis have been changed to deluxe type sport cars, with compact, folding tops, natural wood wheels, a striking two tone paint combination in Duco, and many other attractive features. There is a dickey seat in the rear deck of the roadster.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day of two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Millions More to make Hupmobile Six the Finest Six under $2000

Hupmobile has spent many extra millions the last 18 years to build superior quality into Hupmobiles.

Hupmobile continues to spend extra millions today to make its Six the finest Six under $2000. Hupmobile has always built only one way—it has always kept faith with its own standards. That's why the name Hupmobile means as much as it does.

That is why you can buy this great Six in the absolute assurance that it gives you Hupmobile performance, value and economy.

Owners reap the benefit—and Hupmobile finds its six-cylinder car in growing demand month after month and year after year.

Those extra millions show in far finer workmanship, in far more thorough inspection, in better steels and in building to scrupulously close measurements.

Hupmobile could build its great Six to ordinary standards, and it would still be one of the foremost cars in America from the standpoint of acceleration, of comfort, of steering and riding ease, of roadability.

But it would not have that surpassing smoothness, that wonderful dependability, that ability to stay away from the repair shop months on end, which make the Hupmobile Six the great car it is.

Hupmobile Six a Leader, Also, in Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy, of course, on mere externals and non-essentials, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. To superiority in these fundamentals, however, the Hupmobile Six also joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car in its price class.

Oil filter, gasoline filter—low gasoline consumption, thermostatic heat control, snubbers, vision-ventilating windshield, dash gasoline gauge, clear vision bodies, color options—Mohair upholstery in latest mode, walnut grained panels on instrument board and window ledges, 4-wheel brakes, special vibration damper, headlights with tilting beam lenses and double filament bulbs.

Out Again, In Again —By James J. Montague

As I swam I shouted to the girl to put the Tiller over.

We all came up out of the water, originally. That is, our ancestors did. But after the lizards or efts, or algae or whatever those ancestors were, got out, they stayed out, except now and then when they returned voluntarily for a bath, or to swim the English channel. But the call of the mother element must be stronger in me than in other people. If I get within falling distance of the water, I return to it. I do not always intend to answer this call. In fact, I usually prefer to remain on ship board, or on dock board, or on whatever board I happen to be. But something down deep inside of me hears the summons from the depths, and I respond.

I began to yield to this inherent weakness early in life. At the age of four I was standing on a dock which made out into a little lake in the northern part of Iowa. I was calmly contemplating a school of minnows swimming below me when the boon of a small cat boat swung around in a puff of wind, brushed me off the dock as if I had been a fly and deposited me in some six or seven feet of water. I was not much of a swimmer when I was four years old, and if an older brother had not hooked a boat hook under my collar and fished me out, the sea would thereafter have called me in vain.

Three or four years later it occurred to me that being young and light of foot I could skate from one shore to another of a mill pond over ice whose limberness frightened away the older boys. I can still remember clearly how the ice became rubbery as I got out toward the middle, and how it undulated under my skates till at last they cut through its surface, and I felt myself surrounded by very cold water.

That time two other boys, bearing planks baffled the deep of its prey. My clothes were like shining steel armor when I got home and was thawed out by the fire. My parents were inclined to think that I was a foolishly venturesome child, and that the incident could have been avoided if I had exercised a little more intelligence. It struck me that they were unusually severe on me, considering that I had just been returned to them whole and sound, and considering further that it had not bene my fault at all. For by then I knew that when the water said "come" there was nothing for me to do but obey. I was the helpless child of an uncontrollable instinct.

Between the ages of seven and fourteen I acceded so readily to every request of the deep to return to it that the family arranged inland vacations, carefully ascertaining beforehand that there was no body of water deeper than a wash basin within the vicinity.

After that I learned to swim, and they stopped worrying about me, for a time. In fact, they never subsequently had any fear for my life, but my performances in the line o fduty to wasty depths became a source of serious embarrassment and annoyance to them.

If we went on a boating party I fell overboard either getting into the craft or getting out of it, or somewhere along the way. These incidents involved no peril, because it was the family practice to put a lanyard around my waist as soon as we got within seeing distance of the water, and to keep it there till we were well on our way back home. When the expected splash called attention to the fact that I had been summoned again, some one heaved in on the lanyard and I was assisted back to safety. But a dripping person dampened a pleasure party in more ways than one, and after every such performance my father, mother, brothers and sisters would beseech me to give up this irritating habit and behave like other people. All in vain.

It was not any particular addiction to the sport, but merely atavism which led me, on achieving my majority and my first job to purchase a small cat boat for use on the Williamette River in Oregon. Nature, not my trend of mind prompted the investment. For three weeks I sailed the little craft without incident, and then Neptune advised me one evening to take a girl out for a ride. I balked at the advice for several days, steeling my will against the inevitable, then I yielded, as of course I must.

The girl was very nattily attired for the occasion. She was one of those girls who value their personal appearance over highly, and who would almost faint with shame if she got a frock spotted or rumpled. I had tidied up the boat till it fairly shone, so that she would not turn up her nose when she saw it, and had highly resolved that this time at least I would stay on board, so that I would not need to clamber over the side and spray her with dirty river water as I shook myself, after the spaniel fashion which had become second nature to me.

I stowed the girl carefully in the stern sheets, cast off the painter, and coiled myself for a graceful leap to the deck as the boat slid away from the wharf. It was only by a quarter of an inch that I miscalculated the distance, but it was sufficient. My hands slipped as I attempted to clutch the rail, and down I went. The girl screamed, less I imagine on my account than her own, for she was alone in a boat whose sail had been caught by a puff of wind and which was bowling off down stream.

I could, of course have swum ashore, when I came up and removed the water from my system with a violent cough. But the boat and the girl did not understand each other, and steamboats were approaching in either directon. So I struck out after them.

As I swam I shouted to her to put the tiller over. She had never heard of a tiller, so she pulled on the main sheet, thus bringing the craft a little closer into the wind, and careening her over.

Not even Gertrude Ederle could overhaul a trim cat boat under full sail in a fifteen mile breeze. I looked at the oncoming steamboats, and gave up all hope. Presently however the wind hauled and waned, and my quarry came up in stayes. I was alongside of her and on board before the steamboats arrived, which was fortunate for the skippers as both appeared to think that the opportunity of their lives was at hand to rid the river of a pestiferous sail craft.

I got on board and shook myself, as usual. The girl got up, gave me a black look, and inquired if I thought I was funny.

When I got her ashore she promised me she would never speak to me again, a promise which she has rigorously kept unto the present day.

I am along in years now, but the habit still persists. Last week I was helping an artist friend to moor a motorboat to a spar in a little harbor in Maine. There was considerable sea running, and I was was stretched prone on the forward deck, armed with a boat hook and groping for the mooring line. I got it just as a swell set the boat back a few feet. I followed the boat hook overboard and disappeared—this time, I was convinced forever.

I managed however to reach the surface after a while, and assisted by my highly amused companion got back into the boat. In a few hours I was all right again. My recovery would have been more rapid save for the fact that Maine is a state which has had long experience in enforcing the dry laws.

I am still within the reach of the sea. It purrs to me at night, as a lion purrs to its prey. By the time this appears in print it will probably get me. If it fails, it certainly will not be for the lack of trying.

Estrado's Army Pleads Not Guilty

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 18.(AP)—The 121 members of General Enrique Estrada's "army" arrested here recently on charges of violating the neutrality laws by starting a revolutionary movement against Mexico were arraigned yesterday at the marine barracks where they have been held prisoners .Federal Judge Henning decided that it would be easier for him to move his court than to move all the prisoners to the federal building so the arraignment was in one of the large barrack rooms.

The "army" pleaded not guilty. No date was set for the trials.

General Estrada and others who are out on bail will be arraigned later. The men are to be transferred to Los Angeles for confinement.

CADILLAC MEN ASKED TO MEET

Maintenance Managers To Convene in Detroit On Sept., 20-21

What is expected to be the most important convention of maintenance managers from the entire American distributing organization of the Cadillac Motor Car company has been called by H. M. Stephens, the company's general sales manager, to take place in Detroit, September 20 and 21.

Meetings of the convention will be held in the convention hall of the company's new administration building and the afternoon of the second day will be spent in a study of testing methods at the General Motors Proving Ground.

Plans for the convention are in charge of Ernest C. Garland, the company's technical manager, and among the speakers will be Lawrence P. Fisher, president; Lynn McNaughton, vice-president; H. M. Stephens, general sales manager; Albert U. Widman, works manager; Ernest W. Seaholm, chief engineer; W. M. Warner, parts department manager; W. Arnold Houser and H. Fay Amos, of the technical department; and A. Danse, metallurgist.

Maintenance Enlarged

With the doubling of Cadallic sales during the past twelve months, the volume of maintenance operations required has increased in proportion and the maintenace facilities of distributors and dealers have necessarily been enlarged. Increases in the personnel, erection of additional buildings, and revision of methods for the purpose of expediting work have been essential at many points.

Contrary to the usual procedure, maintenance of Cadillac cars is an intergral part of the activities of the sales division. The company maintains that the Cadillac owner has not only purchased a car but is entitled to the most highly satisfactory transportation service at all times.

Field Men Busy

An outstanding feature of the Cadillac policy used to assure the highest type of maintenance methods is a force of thoroughly trained field men who visit all the distributors in the country at approximately 30-day intervals, advising with them on improvements in their shop precedure. They also make additional special visits to distributors upon request and are always available for advice on the installation of new methods.

The company's technical department also carries on at the factory a technical and repair school for advanced training. It was founded in 1910 by Ernest C. Garland, the company's technical manager, and is one of the oldest in the country.

Overland Sets A Colorado Record

Again the Overland Six standard sedan has proved its speed and power merits—factors embodied in this car which have been largely responsible for its unusual demand since its introduction to the automobile market and which have met the change in the trend of the automotive world.

This time, however, an Overland Six standard sedan established a new speed record between Denver and Cripple Creek, a course which is considered one of the most difficult in the country.

Driving a stock car, Ernest J. Dwyer of Colorado Springs set a round trip speed record between Denver and Cripple Creek, of 6 hours and 3 minutes on the morning of August 18.

He was accompanied on the trip by Demon S. Gall of the Rocky Mountain News and Lloyd L. Langworth of the Denver Post who acted as official observers of the trip. The run from Denver to Colorado Springs was made in one hour and 40 minutes, on the down trip and one hour and 45 minutes on the return. The out trip to Cripple Creek was made in one hour and 17 minutes over the winding and dangerous Ute Pass and Four Mile Hill while the in trip was made in one hour and 15 minutes.

The official start was from the office of the Western Union on Seventeenth street, Denver. The start was made at midnight of August 17 and the finish came at 6:03 a. m. on the 18. The total distance covered was 242 miles and the average speed was exactly 40 miles an hour.

The car used was a stock model demonstrator taken from the retail division of the Denver branch of Willys-Overland.

The maximum speed at any time on the run was 56 miles an hour which is important in its bearing on the consistent performance of the car. Ute Pass was chosen instead of the Corley Road in order that the car might be given a thorough test over the hardest kind of going.

Hup's August Sales Increase

Hupmobile's August sales were the largest for any corresponding month in its history. Factory shipments for the month exceeded those for the best previous August by 19 per cent, according to O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. Checking of retail sales indicates that they surpassed those for the largest preceding August by approximately 50 per cent.

August marked the eleventh consecutive month in which factory shipments have exceeded those of the corresponding month the previous year. Shipments for the eleventh-month period show a gain of 54 per cent, with retail sales larger by 57 per cent.

Export shipments gained 68 per cent over those for August 1925.

That continued record business is in prospect for the company and its dealers is shown in the fact the company carried over, on September 1, orders for more than $3,000,000 worth of cars. These include orders for more than $1,000,000 month of Hupmobile Eights and nearly $2,000,000 in Hupmobile Sixes.

"Prospects for an unusually good Autumn business are especially good in this section," said Mr. Hupmobile dealer commenting on the outlook. "We expect both September and October materially to exceed those months of last year. They will, as a matter of fact, probably more than double September and October, 1925."

Roaming The Air

By S .D. FOX.

Formation of the National Broadcasting company by the Radio corporation of America, which was revealed early this week, is the answer to the question, "What is the FCA going to do with station WEAF?" According to the announcement the new company will make WEAF the nucleus of a national broadcasting service. The new company will take control of the New York station, which was purchased from the American Telephone and Telegraph company for $1,000,000, on November 15, and it is the purpose of the new company to lease time from other stations. It is the declared intention of the directors to provide the best programs possible for its listeners and that the popular WEAF chain will likely be continued is evidenced by the following paragraph from the official announcement:

"It is hoped that arrangements may be made so that every event of national importance may be broadcast widely throughout the United States."

An open forum, to be conducted by the Broadcast Listeners' association of America, will be one of the leading features of the national radio exposition, which will introduce the 1927 radio season to fans of the middle west at Chicago, starting September 27. The forum will deal with such serious problems as the overcrowding of air lanes, the "blooper" nuisance and pirating stations. Because there now is no definite movement under way to check the conditions that may result from the freeing of broadcasters from governmental restrictions, the listeners believe that beneficial results may result from the forum.

Another feature of the show will be the popularity contest to determine which radio announcer or entertainer is the most popular with the fans. The winner will be decided by popular vote.

Loud speakers, principally of the cone type, are replacing the orchestras on boats plying the waters of the Great Lakes. The programs available from the best broadcasting stations of the country are found to be better received by the pleasure-seekers on the ships than orchestras, which are there "in person." Power amplifiers making it possible to operate several speakers from a single receiving set provide plenty of volume for the dancers.

Visitors to broadcasting studios are impressed with the rich velvet draperies always in evidence, but few of them know that the hangings are a neccssary part of broadcasting and not put up especially for decorative purposes. Echos resulting from bare walls in the studios provided one of the largest problems confronting the broadcasters in the early days and they soon found that covering the walls with heavy draperies eliminated these troubles. However, many prominent artists, appearing for the first time before the microphone, found that their voices sounded so dead that they were frightened for fear that they had lost all of their tonal character. Finding the happy medium, then, was another problem, but now the studios are partially draped, the hangings being placed scientifically so that the echoes that are allowed to pass into the microphone blend perfectly with ordinary room noises at the receiver.

Announcement has been made by the directors of the Eveready hour that Edna Forber's new novel, "Show Boat," is to be presented during one of the programs of the coming season. Miss Ferber and the program directors will begin work soon on the preparation of the script for the radio version of the novel, which deals with the story of an old Mississippi river showboat and its troupe and depicts an interesting period in early American history.

The world's largest vacuum tube transmitter, one which develops 80,000 watts of energy, is in use by the navy at its San Diego, Calif., base. This transmitter will not be employed for telephone work, but will transmit code at the rate of about 100 words a minute. It is the plan of naval radio engineers to replace all of the old arc transmitters with those of the vacuum tube type, and this will be especially interesting to those broadcasting listeners who live in the vicinity of a naval station.

The war department has announced that in the first six months of 1926 use of the radio net, perfected for wartime emergency, saved $74,313.74 in the transmission of messages. Transmission by radio cost only $27,598.63, while the same messages would have cost $101,912.37, if commercial land wires were used.

The Rawson-MacMillan sub-arctic expedition to Labrador, which is now on its way back to this country, is expected to bring back much interesting radio data. The expedition already has reported that a definite relation has been noticed between signal fading and the aurora borealis.

War correspondents from WLS are covering the country this fall to report the live stock contests at several expositions. Last week they "covered" the show at the sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia. From there they will go to Springfield, Mass.; Detroit and then Chicago, where they will report the international live stock exposition in November for the radio audience.

HOUSE DESTROYED

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 18.—The Fred Grant house, owned by Wilson & Roe, Frederick lawyers, nine miles southwest of Grandfield was destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. An oil stove caused the fire. Two diamond rings and household possessions of the Grant family were lost.

TUNE IN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Tune in October 4 on the station that registers best and meet Aunt Sammy. Uncle Sam's bureau of home economics is going to have Aunty tell through 30 stations all about the artistic points of housekeeping.

PIPE IS DELAYED

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 18.—Delay of factories in supplying needed pipe is delaying the construction of the gas pipe line from Vernon, Tex., to Frederick, and the piping of the city, according to F. L. Carmichael, Dallas, a representative of the Community Natural Gas company which was recently granted a franchise in Frederick. The work was to have been completed by October but there seems little probability that this will be done, Carmichael said.

Quality Beyond Comparison Results from CHRYSLER Standardized Quality

CHRYSLER "60"
The Finest Low Priced Six in the Industry

Compare the lighter, lower-priced six Chrysler "60" with any car near it in price.

In it you have, unit for unit, the same Chrysler standardized quality comprehended in the Chrysler "70" and Imperial "80"—in features, in materials, in craftsmanship, in rigid inspection and test, in characteristics of dependability and long life.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour; unprecedented get-away; gas economy of 22 miles and more per gallon; Chrysler's striking beauty; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

There isn't a low-priced six on the market that will begin to give you as much for your money.

See it for yourself; drive it; put it to any test. That is all we ask. We know the new Chrysler "60" will sell itself to you—that you'll be satisfied with nothing else.

There is scarcely a motor car of importance today that does not reflect in either design or practice the influence of Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers.

This is because in the past three years the organization of which Mr. Chrysler is the head has pioneered more improvements in the automobile than had been brought forth in the preceding decade.

The result has been quality beyond comparison and now Mr. Chrysler further emphasizes this quality—makes it more than ever outstanding in all price classes—by his plan of Standardized Quality.

Mr. Chrysler is the first and only large scale manufacturer building four cars under one name and one management in one group of unified plants on a standardized quality basis.

This standardization of quality is the result of an extraordinarily complete coordination of engineering and manufacturing facilities and resources.

It enables every motorist to buy in any of the four general price classifications, with complete assurance of receiving all the brilliancy and dependability of service for which Chrysler has established a reputation throughout the world.

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80"—Phaeton, $2495; Roadster (wire wheels standard equipment, wood wheels optional), $2595; Coupe, two-passenger, $2895; Coupe, four-passenger, $2895; Sedan, five-passenger, $3095; Sedan, seven-passenger, $3195; Cabriolet, $3495; Sedan-Limousine, $3595.

GRAND OLD MAN By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Copyright, 1926, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The grand old man of the town. Samuel Ward at seventy-six. He took pride in the title, took pride in the fact that he had not missed a day at business in forty-five years with the exception of two days when Mother Ward died and part of a day when Jerry Ward was brought home with a fractured skull.

WHEN Samuel Ward was seventy-six, he was the grand old man of the town. And he took pride in it. He liked to have his children crowd about him of an evening and pridefully ask a stranger, "How old do you think Father is?"

Almost invariably the answer came, "Oh, I should say about sixty-two or three." And quite sincerely, too. The old man looked not one day older, nor acted it.

He was still the active head of the large harness concern which bore his name and it was a family boast that he had not missed a day at business in forty-five years, with the exception, of course, of two days when Mother Ward died and the day that Jerry Ward was brought home from a baseball game in the school field with a fractured skull from a blow on the head.

It was Jerry's boast, long afterward, when his own children were the same age as he when he received the blow on the head, that he never knew how important he was in the old man's scheme of things until he actually succeeded in keeping him away from business two-thirds of a day.

Well, the old man gloried in it, and, as his children said of him, every man to his liking. It was impossible to conceive of him loitering his days at home in a sunny bow of windows, or just visiting about town or learning golf or visiting among his married children, as some of the older retired men of the town had worked it out.

The old man, even at seventy-six, was a born captain. Three of his unmarried children still lived at home, a solemn square red brick mansion on an erstwhile residential street that had long since been invaded by piano show-rooms, automobile displays, a Five-and-Ten and a moving-picture house. It was still a house of gas light, base burner, exposed plumbing in an electrical, steam-heated and all-modern-improvements age. But the old gentleman held out against the importunings of his children, continued to dress himself in an unheated bed chamber, strained his old eyes at reading by high chandelier gas light and had never set foot in an automobile, even though his very own family boasted at least six.

He walked to his business or rode in the street car. Ate his lunch of baked beans, pie and coffee in the Old Rock Bakery as he had done for the past many, many years and, even though he had three sons in the establishment to lift the load off his shoulders, personally supervised every department of a business that had grown by leaps and bounds.

His children, sometimes secretly aggravated almost beyond endurance by the reactionary old vagaries he displayed, nonetheless pointed with pride to his efficient-looking little office; his personally inspected rows of files and ledgers and accounts; his first-hand acquaintance with every stroke of business conducted by an organization that totalled hundreds of thousands during a year.

It was the family joke that you could lead the old man to a motion picture show, but you could not get him into it. He shied at them. It was the same with the radio. Howling hyenas, the old man called them, and forbade even his grandchildren the indulgence.

Just the same he was generous in other ways to a fault. Denied his youngest daughter, for instance, the gift of an automobile and in the very same breath made over to her the fifty-thousand-dollar deed to a warehouse in an important business section of the growing city.

He had never been out of his own town for more than a distance of sixty-five miles in all the years that he had dwelt in it; his children had all enjoyed the benefits of travel, of education, and, thanks to his bounty, the grandchildren were being reared in the same spirit of largesse.

And as the family kept reiterating among themselves and to friends, it was the old man's way of doing it. Every one to his own liking, and if he enjoyed the narrow, restricted kind of life he doled out to himself, why, bless his heart, who were they to interfere?

Fate interfered. At seventy-six, out of a clear sky, with absolutely no warning so far as the old man was aware, he collapsed one day in a street car of a heart stroke.

For the first time a doctor held a stethoscope to that valiant old heart and found it wanting, too. Seriously skipping in its beats. Then followed the incredible performance of a week under observation in the hospital. Seven days during which the old man squirmed and rebelled. X-rays. Blood tests and all the dreary rigmarole of fluoroscope and assorted examinations.

The business, long ago so automatically organized that its shock was purely an emotional one, recovered itself after a day and marched on with ingrained efficiency.

Every evening the sons put their heads together and prepared a report for the old man, which his physicians allowed him to read only on condition that it did not accelerate his pulse.

At the conclusion of the week, to the consternation of every one except the consulting physicians, the old man's state was pronounced one that would respond to treatment only under condition that he sever every responsibility of business-tie and give himself over entirely to a life of relaxation and complete leisure.

It was as if a clap of thunder had descended upon the family. Father inactive? Father at home during the day? Father twiddling his thumbs! Why, it was inconceivable. Either the doctors were poor psychologists or had conspired toward the surest and quickest way to terminate the old man's days. Father would have to be strapped to the chair. Lashed to the room. More doctors were called in. More consultations. Verdict: The old man had a severe heart murmur with impending complications. Rest, relaxation and recreation of a mild sort were corroborated as imperative.

And strangely enough, it was to be the old man, badly frightened by this collapse of his vitality, who was the first to co-operate. There were none of the dreaded scenes and imprecations. Two of the great bed rooms in the old house were quickly thrown into one, a chaise-longue was dragged down from the youngest daughter's gay chintz room which her father had never even seen, and between them the children managed to make the old man's homecoming quite gala.

It was a slow recuperation, but with the patient cowed and willing to lend himself to treatment, there came a day when his physicians decided that, with precautions, the old man might venture to his office for one hour each morning.

Twice the old man went down to his office, but with a peculiar lassitude for the importance of current business affairs that at first alarmed his sons and then was to rouse unprecedented hilarity among them.

Fact was the old gentleman, from the long hours he had sunned there, missed his side garden! The old man had two red-breasted robins who used to come strutting to visit him just about the time his business interfered with it. The old man had a whole bed full of phlox waiting to be watered by his own special hand and there was nothing on earth, the old man had come to learn, quite comparable to sitting in a sun-drenched garden with the sweet intimate things such as flowers and birds preening themselves about.

Why, the children fairly held their sides with laughter, which they would no more have let him in on! Time came when it was practically impossible, long after his health would have permitted it, to coax the old gentleman down to his office. There were long mornings, instead, motoring, mind you, around the countryside with his grandchildren. Afternoons with them at the movies.

And then one Sunday, the old gentleman announced to his youngest daughter and a widowed daughter and her two children that he was about to start with them on a tour of the world.

And he did. Five Wards, and a combination valet and chauffeur set out one June day for a tour that was to comprise five of the happiest months the old man was ever to know.

For seventy-six years he had lived in a world about which he knew—and worse still, cared—nothing.

The old man, even though it had cost him some of his superb health, never ceased to be grateful to the heart attack. It had taught him the lesson of the beauty of the world of growing things. Of the window upon the world one can make out of a well-earned leisure.

Sometimes, it is true, the old man's emancipation went pretty far. Once at the beautiful Villa D'Este hotel at Loke Como where they were breakfasting on a terrace, a cable came from one of his sons which read thus:
