Scientists 'Scratch' Launching Attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—Scientists early today came within three minutes of blasting a possible fourth and "most advanced" U.S. satellite into the sky with the Vanguard rocket, but had to call off the attempt because of technical troubles.

Another try at putting the 20-inch, gold-plated artificial moon into orbit around the earth was expected soon, but officials did not say when.

After the launching effort was given up for the night and weary engineers and technicians headed home for some sleep, lights still twinkled throughout the red and white Vanguard service tower, indicating some crewmen were still at work on the rocket.

"Minor technical difficulties" was the only reason given for the long delays in the launching countdown which brought postponement of the firing a minute or two after 1 a.m. e.s.t. This was the deadline for the attempt.

During the effort to get the Vanguard aloft, great white searchlight beams criss-crossed on the silver and dark green rocket and its red and white gantry tower. There were scores of people on nearby beaches who obviously "had the word" a launching was due, but by midnight the number had dwindled.

One group, however, sang songs to pass the time and stuck out the "birdwatch" until radio broadcast that the attempt had been scrubbed.

Car Dealers Floorboard Promotions

NEW YORK (UP)—The nation's 40,000 car dealers are jamming the promotional gas pedal to the floor to put the so-called "auto recession" back on the road to prosperity.

These dealers in approximately 207 cities across the country have or plan to launch a sales drive keyed to the theme "You Auto Buy Now" in line with President Eisenhower's recent prescription for an early end to the economic slump.

The anti-recession program, which has the backing of the President as well as the auto manufacturers, is reportedly the brainchild of two car dealers in Cleveland. The promotion campaign in that city between Feb. 24 and March 1 is credited with boosting car sales above the like period a year ago.

However, the sales offensive will be put to its real test today when dealers in this area kick off their drive at a rally in Madison Square Garden.

The rally, which will be attended by thousands of car dealers, businessmen, bankers and business executives, is being sponsored by the Automobile Merchants Assn. of New York, Inc. The "grass-roots" drive will run from April 25 through May 30.

Auto sales currently are running about 36 per cent behind the pace a year ago, in the New York metropolitan area.

"Much more is at stake in this program than bolstering local sales," Kenneth Wellner, president of the AMA, said. "One out of seven workers in the U.S. is dependent upon the automotive business for all or part of his income."

Newspaper editors at the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. convention here reported that newspaper advertising in many sections of the country has been stepped up in support of the concerted assault on the recession.

"Clean Up Is Not Just 'Spruce-Up'"

Spring Clean-Up is more important than just sprucing up for appearance' sake, County Extension Agent Ralph Thomas commented today in connection with the Pampa and Gray County observance of the campaign.

"Clean Up and Live" means just what it says," he declared. "We can sharply reduce the tragic loss of lives and property as well as if we all practice the clean-up habit on our farms and homes. It's a sure way to keep fire away."

Thomas challenged every resident in the area to do a complete job on these pointers for eliminating fire hazards.

(1) Get rid of stacks of old magazines and newspapers, discarded clothing, rags, mattresses, old furniture, and other junk—all the clutter that gathers in attics, basements and closets in homes;

(2) check barns and out-buildings for similar trash, clean up winter rubbish in the farmyard, get rid of dead grass and brush around buildings, along fences, and in fields;

(3) clean up your machine shop—get rid of shavings, scraps, oily rags, old paints;

(4) clean up, oil and repair all electrical equipment and power machinery—and home appliances too;

(5) inspect stoves, brooders and heaters of all types.

"None of these may seem critically important," said Thomas, "but records compiled by the National Fire Protection Association for more than 40 years prove these are all serious danger spots."

"If every farm and home will act on these pointers during Spring Clean-Up—and the rest of the year—our area can set an enviable record in fire safety."

Man Receives Ticket For Ride On Rails

RICHMOND, Tex. (UP)—Driving his car "80 to 90 miles an hour" down the railroad tracks didn't get Edward B. Rook a ticket for speeding—but he does face charges of obstructing railroad property.

Two deputy sheriffs had to commandeer a railroad motor car to catch Rook Wednesday night after receiving a report that a motorist was driving his automobile down the tracks of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad.

They caught him, but not until he proved what he said he had read in a book—that an automobile could be driven down railroad tracks by partially deflating the tires and centering them on the rails.

"He came through nearby Alvin between 80 and 90 miles an hour," Rosenberg, radio newsmen Morgan Jefferys said.

Officers said Rook's car traveled 44 miles on the tracks, coming and going, before the tires slipped off the tracks and the car overturned.

They found the 42-year-old unemployed maintenance foreman, unemployed and asleep, in the back seat of his automobile.

"The committee arranged for radio and newspaper advertising and Red Wedgworth, Chamber manager, arranged for a Value Days banner to be strung across Cuyler."

Pampa Value Days To Close

Saturday will be the last day of Pampa Value Days and the last day that 45 Pampa retail merchants will offer the exceptional values that they have featured since Thursday.

The promotion is the work of the Merchants' Activities Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and its chairman, Bunny Behrman.

The committee arranged for radio and newspaper advertising and Red Wedgworth, Chamber manager, arranged for a Value Days banner to be strung across Cuyler.

The merchants under Behrman's direction are giving nothing away but rather are offering engine values in the Pampa stores.

Lana Denied Custody Of Daughter

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Lana Turner hoped today to regain custody of her daughter, Cheryl, the 14-year-old who killed her mother's lover.

Cheryl was released from police custody Thursday, cleared of any crime in the stabbing of handsome Johnny Stompanato. But her glamorous, movie star mother was denied custody of her only child temporarily.

Santa Monica Judge Allen T. Lynch ruled Cheryl a ward of the Juvenile Court and put her in her grandmother's care for two months pending final disposition of the case on June 26.

Lynch's decision meant that Cheryl can never be tried for murder. She plunged a butcher knife into Stompanato's stomach April 4 after she heard him threaten her mother with mutilation.

The girl today was with the grandmother, Mrs. Mildred Turner. They were secluded in a home rented by Miss Turner and Stephen Crane, Cheryl's father and second of Lana's four husbands.

Jury Gleason, Miss Turner's lawyer, said there was a good chance the actress would be awarded custody of Cheryl at the June hearing.

Woman Stopped Rushing Up To The President

WASHINGTON (UP)—A woman who fought her way to within six feet of President Eisenhower before Secret Service agents dragged her away was under observation today at District of Columbia Hospital.

Secret Service agents identified the woman as Mrs. Edith Finch of Brookline, Mass. She approached the startled President and Mrs. Eisenhower Thursday as they left the Smithsonian Institution.

"I have to get to him," she screamed when agents stopped her.

The President, looking dumbfounded, commented "I'm sorry" as agents hustled Mrs. Finch into a car and took the small, red-haired woman to a field office.

Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman said the same woman tried to get in the White House gate a week ago. She gave her age as 42 then and 27 Thursday.

In Dorchester, Mass., her brother Louis Di Cicco, told newsmen Mrs. Finch had toured the nation as a nightclub dancer for 15 or 20 years under the name of "Ginger Carroll."

Nixon Sees No Need For More Measures To Curb Recession

NEW YORK (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Thursday night there are "substantial indications" that measures taken by the Eisenhower administration so far "will be all that will be required to give the economy the help it needs."

He said that if further government help is needed to boost the economy out of the present slump, it should be a tax cut "designed to put money in the hands of investors and job creators, as well as consumers."

But Nixon placed the primary responsibility for the recovery with "business and labor and the other vital forces which make up the private sector of the American economy."

The Vice President spoke at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

"There will be no depression in the United States," Nixon told the publishers. "The American economy is sound."

Nixon said the government would not "stand by and allow a recession to be prolonged or to deepen into depression without decisive government action."

He warned against "a spending binge" that "can only lead to a hangover of debt and inflation later."

"The use of massive spending for new federal activities to combat the current recession should be flatly rejected by the American people and our government," he said.

Tornado In Mississippi Rips Homes

A tornado ripped through a tiny Mississippi hamlet Thursday night, destroying at least five homes.

In other places, the twister dragged new Plymouths for the Roadeo.

Plane Stolen From Airport At Miami

MIAMI (UP)—Lanica Airlines reported today that someone stole one of its cargo planes and took off from Miami International Airport at 1:25 a.m.

Albert Rodex, Miami manager of the Nicaraguan Airlines, said the C46A two-engine plane was loaded with "normal" cargo that had been scheduled to leave for Managua, Nicaragua, at 5:30 a.m.

Rodex said he had asked local authorities and the FBI to investigate.

Rodex said he could not speculate who might have taken the plane on the unauthorized flight. He said he had no indication that it might have been Cuban rebels grabbing the plane for Fidel Castro forces in Oriente province of Cuba.

Several Cuban rebels have been arrested and thousands of rounds of ammunition and weapons seized here during the past two years before they could be smuggled to the Castro forces.

Rodex said he had checked Managua and the plane had not arrived there. It's about a 5½ hour flight from Miami to Managua.

He said the load of cargo did not include anything "very valuable."

W.T. Norton of the airport police said the plane hijackers forged the regular Lanica crew's names with the dispatchers at the airport and took off with no one suspecting anything was wrong until the regular crew showed up.

Cuban Troops Kill 15 Rebels

HAVANA (UP)—Loyal troops killed 15 rebels Thursday in two clashes in Oriente Province, the army announced during the night. The announcement made no mention of government casualties.

At the same time, it was reported here that Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Cuban Bar Association, fled Friday to the Mexican Embassy to seek asylum as a political refugee.

Nearly 100 foes of President Fulgencio Batista have sought shelter in embassies here since rebel attempts to organize a general strike fizzled two weeks ago.

Reds Establish Missile Bases

OSLO, Norway (UP)—Foreign Minister Halvard M. Lange told Parliament early today Russia is believed to have established bases for intermediate range rocket missiles in Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

Lange said in a foreign affairs debate that Western military experts believed these reports to be correct.

"The money and need are still here," said General Campaign Director Johnny Campbell and with that called for reports from the Advance Gifts, Special Gifts and Business Employees Division in the Pampa Youth and Community Center Fund-Raising Campaign.

The directors voted unanimously to hold a ground-breaking ceremony soon on the Center site, located between Kentucky and Harvester west of Hobart.

Campbell announced a community Campaign banquet for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Palm Room. "No one is going to be asked to give one penny," said Campbell. "We will have a special speaker for the occasion."

The banquet will be the biggest event since the General Campaign Kickoff, held at the High School. Campaign Headquarters has mailed invitations to community leaders, Campaign officials and workers. The program will be brief and inspirational.

Auto Firm To Build New Economy Car

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—Studebaker-Packard Corp. President Harold E. Churchill announced Thursday S-P will build a new 1959 model economy car—but neither Churchill nor any one else would say how the money for such a project could be raised.

Studebaker-Packard has lost about $5 million dollars and sold valuable assets for working capital since its formation in 1955 from the two separate pioneer auto companies. Its working capital of cash and marketable securities at the end of 1957 was about $20 million dollars.

The Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—spend more than 50 million dollars per car line when they bring out all-new models and sometimes that much on a major face lift.

In his announcement at the annual stockholders meeting, Churchill said S-P will build the kind of car Americans want now—"lower cost, yet well made transportation that retains the elements of full-size passenger space... economical operating costs, permanence of design, higher resale value and consequent lower depreciation rates."

He conceded the possibility of Studebaker-Packard marketing the German DKW small cars, which recently came under control of Daimler-Benz of Germany. S-P has a marketing agreement with Daimler-Benz. But he said the DKW was still "rumor at the moment."

Chorus To Perform Here

The A Capella Chorus from Abilene Christian College will present a concert in the Pampa High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Selections from "Oklahoma!" and "Brigadoon" will be one aspect of the program.

The chorus will feature religious and secular music. Two choruses will form a special vocal background for a reading from Reporter Jim Bishop's journalistic account, "The Day Christ Died."

Dr. Leonard Burford directs the A Capella Chorus with Vernon Moody as assistant conductor. Dr. Burford, heading the Abilene Christian College Music Department, is the blind founder of the chorus. Moody is an instructor of music in the Department.

The religious presentations will include Randall Thompson's contemporary choral work, "The Peacable Kingdom" and the Brahms' motet "Wherefore Hath the Light Been Granted."

The Pampa appearance is the third stop in a tour that will take the group through five Northwest Texas cities.

There will be no admission charge for this public concert.

Two Amendments Are Discussed By Senate

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate met in early session for the second day in a row today to try to consider conflicting amendments to its labor reform bill.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said he expected a vote today on at least one of his 13 proposed amendments to a pending bill to regulate employee health, welfare and pension funds.

But the administration clouded the picture Thursday by proposing a list of amendments of its own reforms considered milder than those put forth by Knowland.

The senator said the move was "very fine" and would aid prospects for getting some labor-abuse curbs attached to the welfare fund measure.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), chairman of the labor subcommittee which drafted the bill, claimed he had enough votes lined up to turn back both Knowland's and the administration's amendments, which Democrats contend cover broader issues than the bill before the Senate.

Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy went back for a final day of testimony before the House Armed Services Committee apparently willing to yield some ground to opponents of President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plans.

In three other appearances this week, the Pentagon chief stood firm for major points in the program, such as taking the secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force out of the chain of military command.

However, he made some small concessions and hinted he was prepared to give some more.

Thursday he told hostile committee members he wasn't "wedded" to the wording of the proposed legislation and "our approach is flexible."

He added that opponents of the plan had given "the impression that a great deal more" in the way of sweeping changes had been proposed than was actually the case.

The House was in recess today. Other congressional news:

Unemployment: The House Rules Committee put off action on a Democratic-sponsored bill that would extend and expand jobless pay benefits. Republican foes of the plan will testify Monday, according to Chairman Howard W. Smith (D-Va.). Debate was scheduled for next Tuesday.

Constitutional Amendment: Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) introduced a proposed Constitutional amendment to provide for recall by the states of their senators and congressmen. It would authorize each state to provide appropriate recall legislation.

Five Children Die In Fire In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Five children burned to death and their mother was critically burned today when fire spread from a overheated coal stove and destroyed the home.

All of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Lee Washington died in the flames. They were tentatively identified as Paul, 8, Willie Ann, 7, Martha Fay, 5, Fred Lee, 3, and Jane Rebecca, 9 months.

The mother told St. Louis County Hospital authorities that the blaze apparently spread from a coal stove in which the father had built a wood fire. She said he left for work about 6 a.m.

She said she had the two youngest children with her when she was awakened by smoke. Clutching the youngsters, she made her way into the living room in an attempt to reach the others but fire blocked the way.

Victim Of Plane Crash Rescued

DAYVILLE, Ore. (UP)—Mrs. Patricia Davis, 35, who lay with a fractured pelvis in a rugged mountain wilderness for three days while her husband trudged through snowdrifts to seek help, was recovering from her ordeal today "in fighting spirit."

Mrs. Davis and her husband, Bruce, 36, a Fresno, Calif., orchestra leader, were injured late Monday when their light plane crashed 11 miles south of here in Malheur National Forest.

They were flying from Fresno to Spokane, Wash.

A helicopter crew landed on a frozen lake a quarter of a mile from the crash scene Thursday and rescued Mrs. Davis, 11 hours after her husband staggered to a ranch house and asked for help.

Davis wanted to join in the search for his wife, but collapsed from exhaustion. However, he gave a description of the scene and shortly after a state Aeronautical Department plane spotted the wreckage from the air.

Noon Lions Hear Address By Massa

Jimmy Massa, speaking at the Noon Lions meeting Thursday, recounted his experiences as chairman of the Pampa Council of Social Agencies. "But this is the past," concluded Massa. "The future is sitting right over here."

Massa introduced Herschel Wilks as new chairman of the Council. Joe Rogers, Scoutmaster of the Lions-sponsored Troop 18, set up a Court of Honor in which five boys received awards of merit. The boys were Gene Davis, Gary Price, Garry Graves, Jessie Valdesques and Jim Arthur. The boys had completed their second class requirements, consisting of camping, cooking, tenting and hiking skills.

Patrol Leader Jerry Newman made the awards.

The Lions honored Melvin Jayroe for his work in leadership training with the Boy Scouts. Lion Monroe Moore rose to make an announcement regarding the Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up campaign, coming in Pampa. Moore announced that the City would put all available trucks and crews at the task of cleaning up the back alleys as the Campaign commences Monday in Ward 4. "Everything goes," said Moore. "Everything that's not tied down."

Calvin Whitley, as chairman of the Convention Committee, called for five more Lions for the Lions District 2T-1 Convention, closing Saturday in Dalhart. Said Lion Whitley, "We have a quota of 13 and it would be a shame not to take that many."

Miss Olivia Ann Swain, better known as Miss Pampa Youth and Community Center, will appear in the Convention Queens' contest tonight under the Pampa Noon Lions' sponsorship.

Massa, on the subject of the Pampa Council of Social Agencies, said that he came in at the start two years ago and from what he had learned since then there is a very definite need in Pampa for such a council. "Needs have been taken care of in the past," said Massa, "by organizations pitching in and doing something. But as Pampa grows such hit or miss planning is impossible." Massa added that certain public funds are available through the Council that will not be available through the service clubs of Pampa.

Massa announced that the Council will conduct three surveys in the fields of public health, youth recreation and activities and family and child welfare to determine what facilities are needed for the future.

Evening Lions Hear Talk By W. C. Epperson

At the Evening Lions Club meeting Thursday, Conservation Farmer W. C. Epperson summarized the farming operations that led to a $100 prize in a five-region program sponsored by the Fort Worth Press for 1958.

Jim Smathers, from the Gray County Conservation District, presented Epperson to the club and explained that his office had submitted Epperson's name along with those of other qualified individuals to the Fort Worth Press and that in Region 7, Epperson was the first place winner.

Epperson will receive his award in company with winning farmers, ranchers and businessmen at a Littlefield banquet May 8.

The Lions set May 22 as the date for their annual Installation Banquet and Ladies Night program with outgoing President D. V. Biggers setting the pace for the "best ever."

Biggers called for more volunteers to help out with the Pampa Optimist Club's Little League Baseball program, reminding them that work nights at the Boys' Club were Tuesdays from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The Evening Lions have been helping hand out equipment and helping to get the diamonds in shape. Biggers accepted volunteers for another two weeks.

Bob Hamilton stated that he would go to Dalhart to the Lions District 2T-1 Convention now in progress. Hamilton's special responsibility as chairman of the group's Queen Committee is seeing that arrangements are followed through for the entry of Miss Carol Roundtree in the District Queen's Contest, representing the Pampa Evening Lions.

LIGHT WORK—Two policemen are erecting a plug-in traffic light at an intersection in Oldenburg, West Germany. Currently being tested in the city, the signal is held upright and supplied with power through the small opening in the street. Plugs at important intersections permit rapid installation of the portable lights when needed, as during rush hours.

Time Zones To Take On Annual Checkerboard Look

By UNITED PRESS

Time zones of the nation take on their annual checkerboard look Sunday as more than half of the states, along with the District of Columbia, go on daylight savings time or "fast time" for the summer months.

A major factor which has influenced many areas to adopt daylight savings time is its use by the federal government. Military posts throughout the nation as well as federal offices officially switch to daylight savings time at 2 a.m. local time April 27.

Federal observance of DST ends at 2 a.m. local time Oct. 26. Most areas follow the federal time pattern.

A few states, part of Pennsylvania, Nevada, California, and Illinois have announced Sept. 28 as the switch-back date. Ohio, operating under local option, has 18 counties committed to the time change Sunday but must wait until the May primary elections to see if any of them will extend the DST period past the last Sunday in September.

Still Some Confusion

Minnesota, which goes on fast time at 2 a.m. Sunday will return to standard time Sept. 2. North Dakota, torn by confusion last year, appears headed for another mixed up summer trying to get along with her eastern neighbor.

Although the state of North Dakota does not observe daylight time officially the eastern half of the state led by Wahpeton and Fargo adopted the fast time last year to bring business houses into line with sister cities across the state line.

Fargo, this year, voted to go on fast time May 31, five weeks after Minnesota and the other North Dakota border areas. A Fargo ordinance calls for daylight time to end Sept. 1. Wahpeton will follow Minnesota and return to standard time Sept. 2. Grand Forks has voted this year to remain on standard time even though its sister city across the Red River will be observing DST.

The situation in other fringe areas is similar. Missouri will be split, the eastern half on daylight time to conform with Illinois, the western half remaining on standard time to conform with Kansas and other border states.

To compound the situation along the Mississippi, Iowa will remain on standard time, but some border areas will change work hours to avoid conflicts.

New Indiana Law

Television viewers across the nation will not be affected as much by the time change this year. Most shows are controlled by New York time which becomes daylight savings time Sunday. At least one major network, National Broadcasting Co., has arranged for taped versions of the shows to be used in the areas this year to avoid some of the time confusion. The other major networks are expected to take similar action.

Two states have taken legislative steps to iron out time confusion during the past year. Although the Kentucky Legislature had passed a law forbidding DST several years ago it provided no penalty and Louisville, Lexington and many other communities continued to observe the fast time. A new law, which goes into effect June 19, provides fines of from $25 to $500 for communities or businesses adopting daylight time. The law is expected to put an end to "voluntary" observance of the fast time.

Horseback Ride To Freedom

PARCHMAN, Miss. (UP)—Authorities searched today for a prisoner who galloped to freedom on a horse.

Trusty Clifton Palmer, 50, a convicted murderer, was missing at Thursday morning's cell check in the state prison here.

A horse was missing from the prison barn.

Later, the horse was located about five miles from the prison, where Palmer had apparently switched to faster means of transportation.

Prison Superintendent Bill Harple said Palmer probably persuaded guards at the gate that he and the horse had duties to perform outside the walls.

AROUND THE WORLD

HIGH JUMP—New York University's Cal Ramsey (50) is outreaching Notre Dame's Tom Hawkins (21, center) as they go up for a rebound during a game in New York. Clustering around them are NYU's Bob Brown (32) and Tom Sanders (43), and three Notre Dame players. Notre Dame won, 93-77.

WHAT GOES UP—Down comes the bar, the pole and Rolando Cruz after he failed to clear 14 feet in the pole vault at the National AAU Championships in Madison Square Garden. Cruz was competing for the Mercersburg, Pa., Academy. Bob Gutowski and Don Bragg tied for honors at 15 feet.

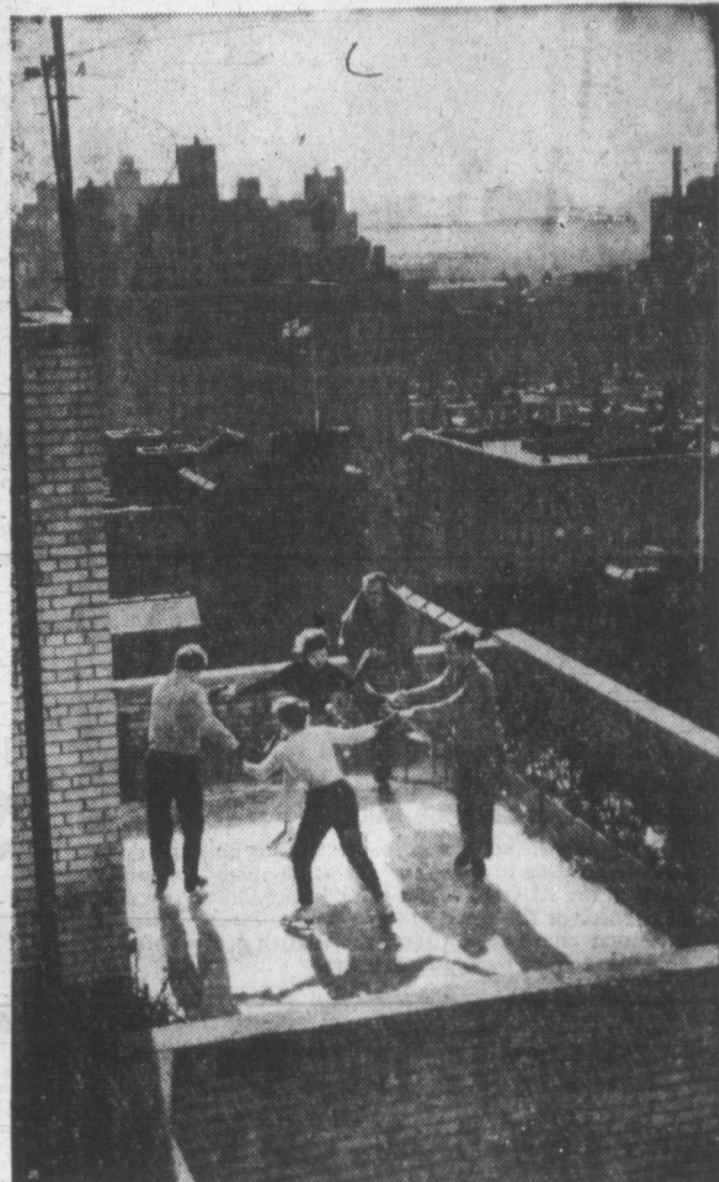

IN OVER HIS HEAD—Well, almost. While wading the St. John's River in Florida, angler Charles F. Waterman, of Deland, accidentally stepped into a deep pocket in the stream bed. That he responded with undampened aplomb is shown in the photograph taken by his wife, and which appears in the current Fisherman magazine.

BEEHIVE OF SKIERS—Poles, skis and skiers crowd the slope of the Denver-owned ski resort of Winter Park, Colo., now at the height of the winter fun season. With two new lifts added, more skiers than ever before are thronging the park. Finding a parking place for the skis is almost as tough as negotiating the hill—and a lot less fun.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE—Colleen Farrington, 21, a pretty brunette from Texas, arrived at a New York airport with Cowboy. The 300-pound bull, who earned his monicker because he was born during the shooting of the movie "Cowboy" in New Mexico, and Colleen were in Manhattan to make some personal appearances with the film. The little animal isn't in the movie, but he was named for it. He apparently enjoyed his flight east.

SKY SKATERS—As the sun shines brightly on the towers of Manhattan, TV set designer Howard Barker, right, held a skating party for some friends on the terrace of his penthouse apartment. Barker designed a 300-square-foot rink 17 floors above the street, and it's just large enough to perform figure eights. Could be it's the highest skating rink in the world.

ROLLING ALONG—Insurance man Bill Fitch, 36, bowls with a real handicap as he sends one down the alley from his wheel chair in Springfield, Ore. Stricken with polio in 1955, Fitch recently bowled a 166 game in a tournament. He uses a regulation ball, but has switched to his left hand when he plays this game.

ARMED GAL—A curvy square-shooter, model Pat Lee was really loaded in Chicago, where she was decorating a sporting goods show. With plenty of other hardware spread out in front of her, she holds a new pistol. It's a nine-shot, .22-caliber target model and maybe Pat even knows how to use it.

STARTING THE WORK—The construction work necessary to make the huge 103,000 seat Los Angeles Coliseum the home of the Dodgers is in full swing. Construction Superintendent Bert Broadhurst, left, and Ed Davies, right, confer with Del Webb, co-owner of the Yankees.

SHAPE AHOY!—Ship-shape skipper Marti Freitas is all set to welcome outdoor enthusiasts to the San Francisco National Sports and Boat Show. It will feature equipment for fishing, boating and camping and Marti's there for those just looking.

EASY RIDING—Getting a close look are some winter sports fans who are watching a bobsled zoom around a tricky curve and head for the finish line at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. In the background is the 5,900-foot-high Wank Mountain.

Ass'n Lodges To Meet Tomorrow

Representatives from 26 Panhandle counties will attend the 55th annual session of the Panhandle Association of Oddfellows and Rebekahs to be held in Shamrock on Saturday and Sunday.

Officers to preside during the association meeting are John Killian, Pampa, president of the Oddfellows; L. L. See, Shamrock, Oddfellow vice president; Mrs. Bonnie Erman, Canadian, Rebekah vice president; Mrs. Ruth Lawley, Pampa, association secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Hays Howell, Dalhart, chaplain; Mrs. Rena Glasscock, Shamrock, historian.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday in the North Ward School. Both the Oddfellow and Rebekah Lodges of Pampa are to enter degree teams in competitive degree work.

Members planning to attend from Pampa as delegates to represent their lodge are Mmes. Mary Dell McNeil, Ola Isbell, Babe Mastin, Pearl Castka, Lucille Kessinger, Bernice Ladd, Helen Lamberson, Virginia Beard, Eula Killian, Ona Gray and Ellen Kreizmeier.

Come to Church

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

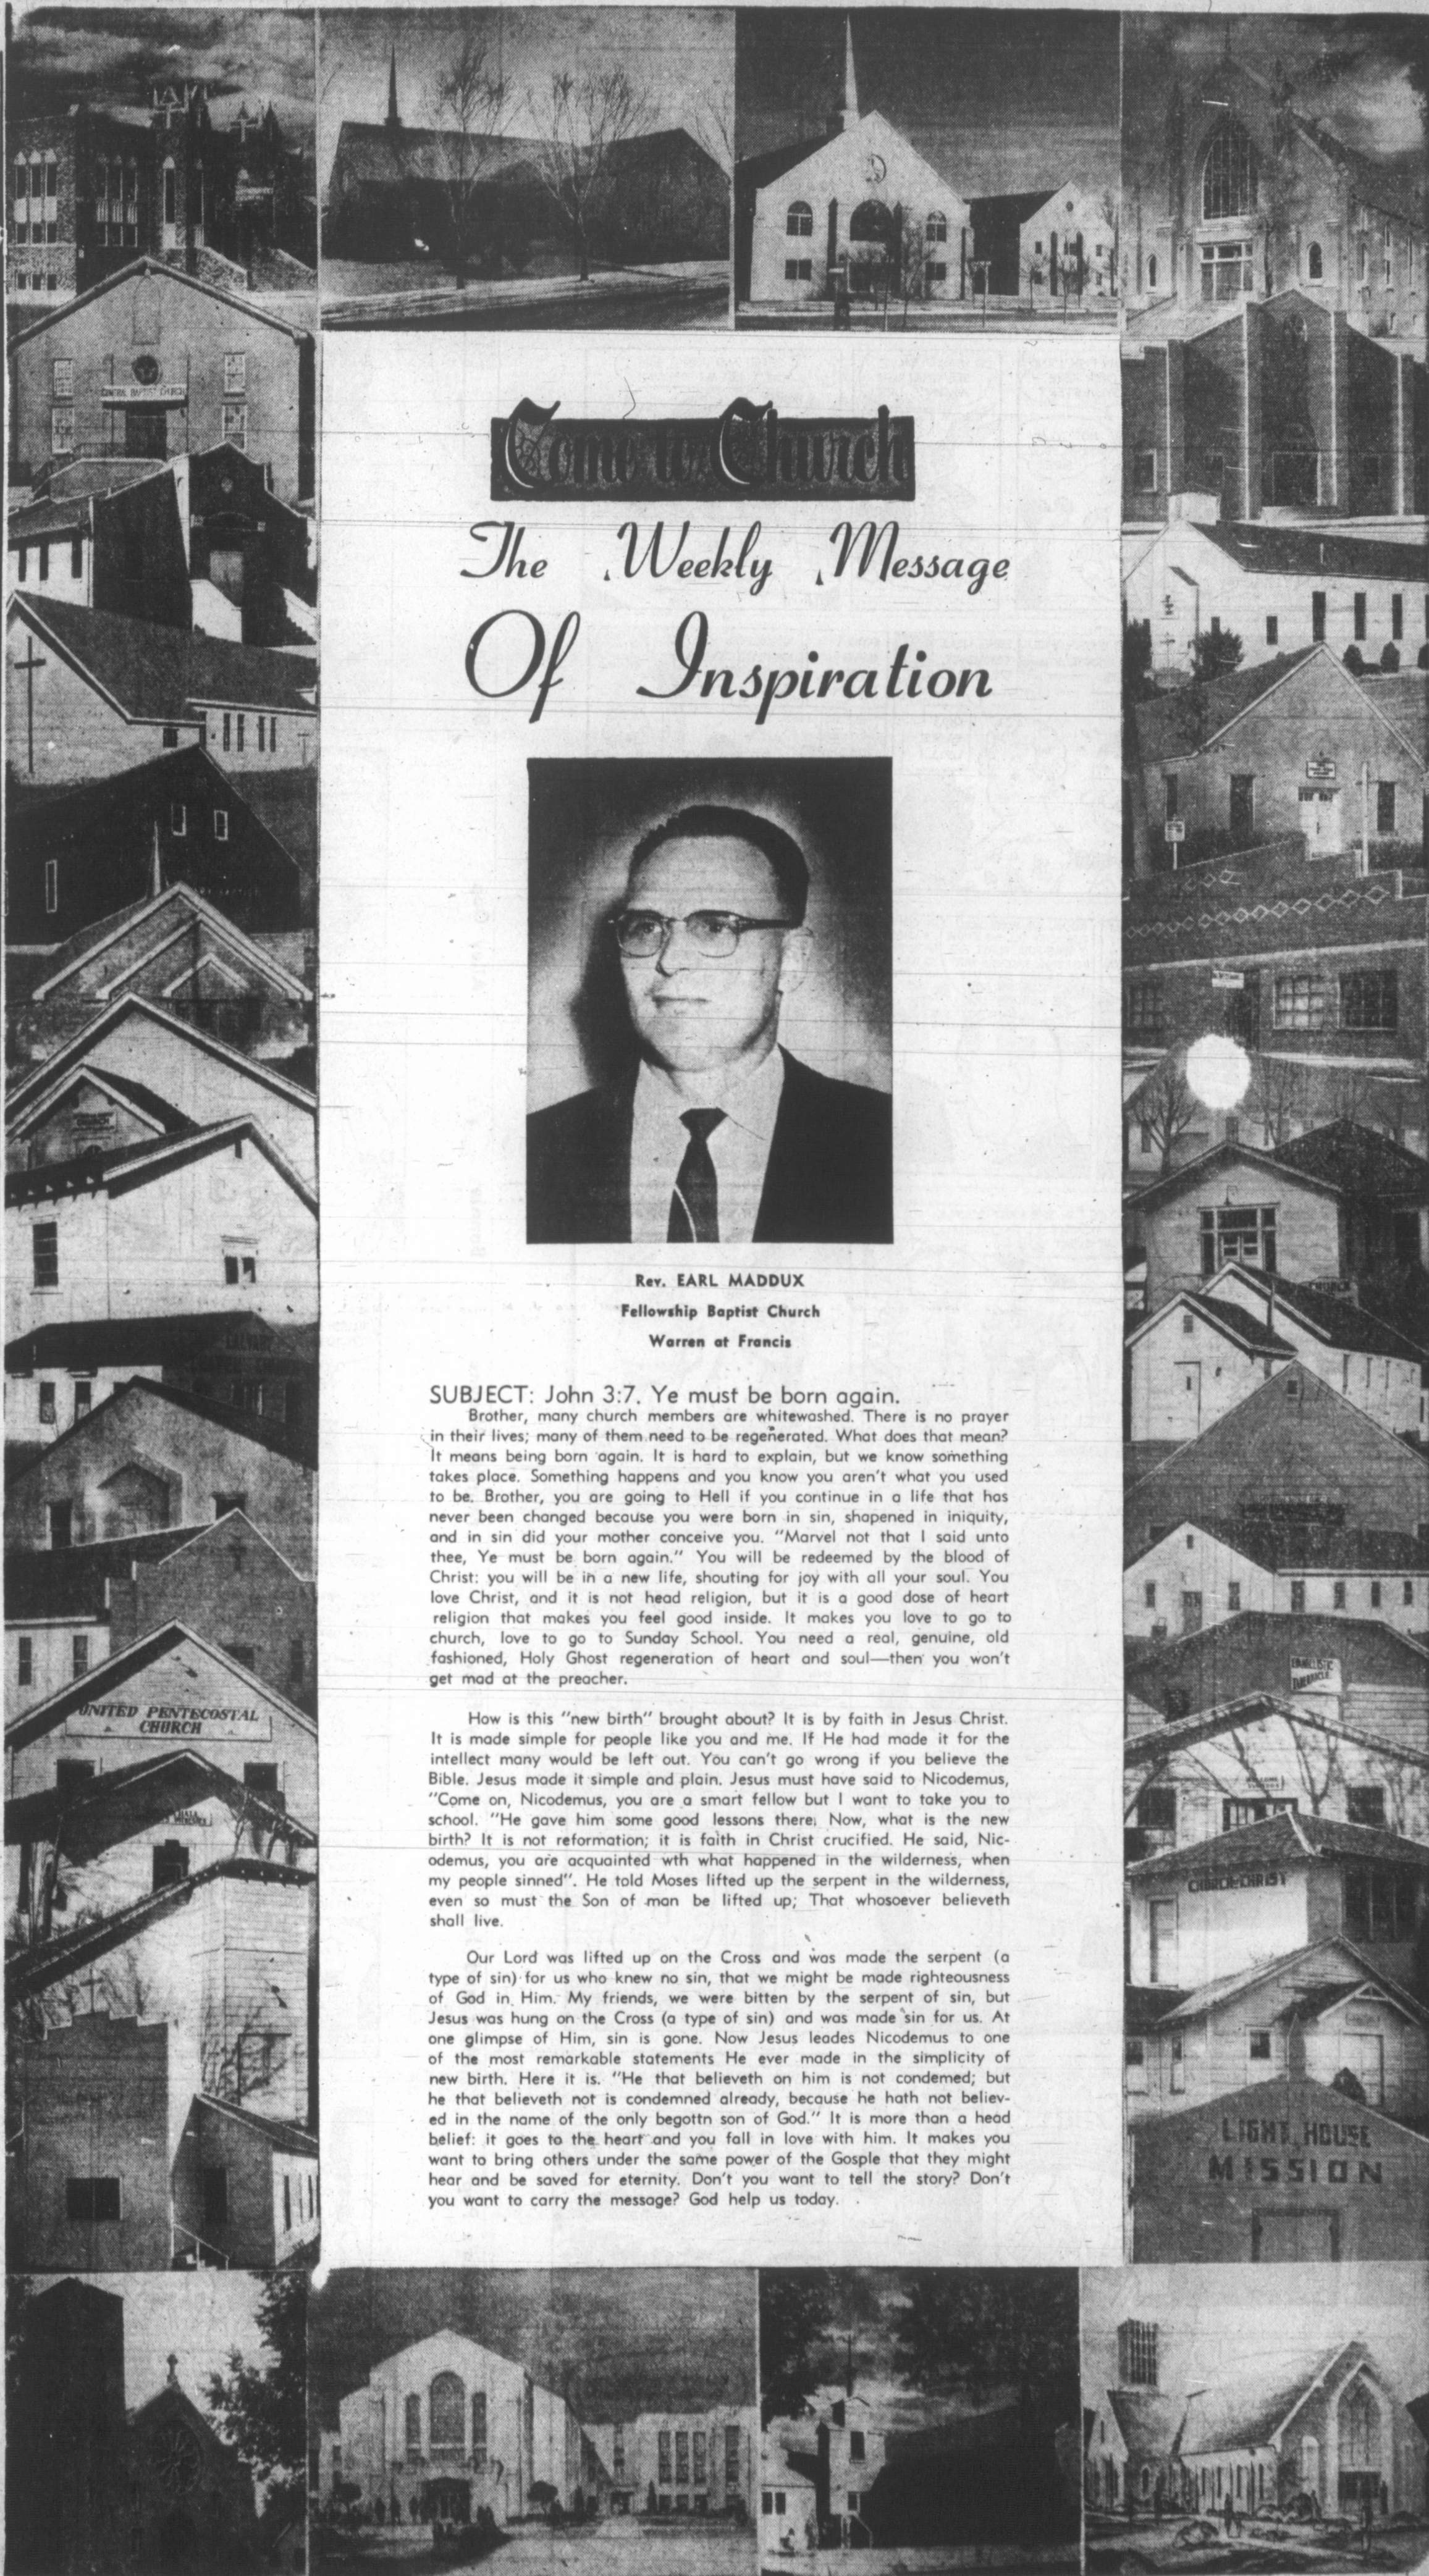

Rev. EARL MADDUX
Fellowship Baptist Church
Warren at Francis

SUBJECT: John 3:7. Ye must be born again.

Brother, many church members are whitewashed. There is no prayer in their lives; many of them need to be regenerated. What does that mean? It means being born again. It is hard to explain, but we know something takes place. Something happens and you know you aren't what you used to be. Brother, you are going to Hell if you continue in a life that has never been changed because you were born in sin, shapened in iniquity, and in sin did your mother conceive you. "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." You will be redeemed by the blood of Christ; you will be in a new life, shouting for joy with all your soul. You love Christ, and it is not head religion, but it is a good dose of heart religion that makes you feel good inside. It makes you love to go to church, love to go to Sunday School. You need a real, genuine, old fashioned, Holy Ghost regeneration of heart and soul—then you won't get mad at the preacher.

How is this "new birth" brought about? It is by faith in Jesus Christ. It is made simple for people like you and me. If He had made it for the intellect many would be left out. You can't go wrong if you believe the Bible. Jesus made it simple and plain. Jesus must have said to Nicodemus, "Come on, Nicodemus, you are a smart fellow but I want to take you to school." "He gave him some good lessons there; Now, what is the new birth? It is not reformation; it is faith in Christ crucified. He said, Nicodemus, you are acquainted with what happened in the wilderness, when my people sinned." He told Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; That whosoever believeth shall live.

Our Lord was lifted up on the Cross and was made the serpent (a type of sin) for us who knew no sin, that we might be made righteousness of God in Him. My friends, we were bitten by the serpent of sin, but Jesus was hung on the Cross (a type of sin) and was made sin for us. At one glimpse of Him, sin is gone. Now Jesus leads Nicodemus to one of the most remarkable statements He ever made in the simplicity of new birth. Here it is. "He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten son of God." It is more than a head belief; it goes to the heart and you fall in love with him. It makes you want to bring others under the same power of the Gospel that they might hear and be saved for eternity. Don't you want to tell the story? Don't you want to carry the message? God help us today.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

This group of 97 boys represents the Harvester football squad for the 1958 season. The boys started spring training April 23, and are holding drills starting at 7 a.m. and ending at 8:30 a.m. each day. Head Coach Babe Curfman said he would like to see twice as many boys out.

Harvesters To Test Plainview

The Pampa Harvesters, with Mike Conway on the mound, tangled with the Plainview Bulldogs in a District 3-4A baseball game this afternoon at 4 at Harvester park. Pampa will be trying to bring their District 3-4A record to 4-1 and keep pace with the league leading Amarillo Sandies who stand 3-0 in district play. The Harvesters suffered their first district loss of the year Tuesday, when they were clubbed by Borger, 16-8.

This will be the second meeting this year between Pampa and Plainview. Pampa gained a hard-earned 5-4 victory over the Bulldogs in their first district game. After this win, the Harvesters gained wins over Palo Duro, 9-0;

Harvesters Meet Childress Here On Saturday

The Harvesters and Childress are scheduled to meet tomorrow at Harvester park, with game time set at 2 p.m., in a double-header.

This will be the third and fourth games this season between the two clubs. The two clubs played a double header on March 22, with Pampa winning the first game, 5-4, and Childress taking the second, 7-4.

This will not be district game for the Harvesters, a strong contender for the District 3-4 title. Harvester park is located at 11 ball should see the two teams playing to see a good brand of baseball. Harvester St. and anyone wish-

Pampa has a 9-3 season record and two of the three losses have been at the hands of the Bulldogs from Borger, the other a 7-4 loss to Childress.

Pampa has eight games left. They meet Childress, Amarillo twice, Lubbock, Palo Duro, Borger and Monterey, all District 3-4A games except the Childress game. The Harvesters seem to improve with every game and are a strong contender for the district title.

'Lousy Golfer' Tees Off On Dodgers

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press Sports Writer
Lee Walls, a "lousy golfer," used the Los Angeles driving range to hit three perfect "nine-iron shots" that had the Dodgers plenty teed off today and the surprising Cubs sitting pretty atop the National League.

As a golfer, Walls shoots in the 100's, and as a hitter he totaled only six home runs and 23 runs batted in last season.

But the Cub outfielder really takes to that Coliseum "course," especially the friendly left-field screen which is only 85 yards from home plate — an easy nine-iron shot for any pro. He liked it so much Thursday that he blasted three home runs over it and drove in eight runs in a runaway 15-2 victory over the Dodgers.

Walls didn't play any favorites, either. He socked his first homer off loser Don Drysdale with one on in the first inning, his second off Roger Craig with two on in the fifth, and his third off Ron Negray with one on in the seventh. Bobby Thomson also homered for the Cubs.

Rookie Gene Fodge shut out the Dodgers until Charley Neal hit a homer in the seventh. Don Zimmer also connected in the eighth. What burns the Dodgers so much about that (censored) screen is that some joker told them it would work out to their advantage. It certainly hasn't so far. Opposing clubs have hit 14 homers at the Coliseum while the Dodgers have hit only nine. Three of those enemy clouts were off Drysdale, who dropped his third straight game Thursday.

Snider Plays Six

The only consolation the Dodgers had was that Duke Snider played six innings and got one hit in three trips. Snider had been fined a day's pay for spraining a tendon Wednesday night while trying to toss a baseball over the rim of the Coliseum.

In other National League games, Warren Spahn and Hank Aaron combined to lead the Braves to a 6-2 triumph over the Redlegs; the Giants came up with two runs in the ninth to beat the Cardinals, 6-5, and the Pirates defeated the Phillies, 7-4.

The Red Sox climbed out of the American League cellar with a 4-3 victory over the Orioles in 10 innings; Kansas City retained second place with a 7-2 decision over Detroit, and the Indians dumped the White Sox into the basement by beating them, 6-4. Rain postponed the Yankees - Senators game.

Spahn, who beat the Redlegs six games out of seven last year and holds a 46-15 lifetime edge over them, held Cincinnati to seven hits while Aaron connected for his third and fourth homers of the campaign. Brooks Lawrence yielded Milwaukee's first three runs and was charged with the loss.

The Giants won their game from the Cards when Daryl Spencer beat out an infield hit with the bases loaded in the ninth. Ex-Giant Ray Katt had put St. Louis ahead with a homer off winner Ray Crone in the top of the ninth but Katt's error allowed San Francisco to score the tying run in the bottom of the frame. Hank Sauer hit his fourth and fifth homers of the year off starter Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell but reliever Billy Muffett was the loser.

'Greatest Driver' Is Not Given A 'Chance' In Memorial Day Race

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Juan Fangio is the greatest road racing driver in the world but he doesn't have a chance of winning the Indianapolis 500 in his May 30 debut over the classic bricks, former champion Lee Wallard predicted today.

Wallard, the 1951 winner, has no doubt but what Fangio can pass his driver's test and even qualify among the 33 cars which will start the grind on Memorial Day. But he figures the Argentine master is a cinch to trail such veterans as Jimmy Bryan, Pat O'Connor, Roger Ward and Jimmy Reese.

"No rookie has ever won this in his first Indianapolis start and I don't see even the great Fangio doing it the first time around," Wallard insists. "He'll find sitting on that dish a lot different than riding the roads."

Must Pass Test

Fangio, although he is a five-time world champion of the road racers, must pass a driver's test just like any other Indianapolis rookie. This means completing 10 laps at 115 miles per hour, and 10 laps each at 120, 125 and 130 miles per hour in which his speed cannot vary more than one mile per hour either way. Without a speedometer, this means learning to drive by the gauges.

Then, on his last time out, eight veterans of two or more years experience at Indianapolis check his driving tactics in "traffic" from the observation tower. They compose the final jury on whether he can compete. Some of racing's best drivers, both American and foreign, have been told to come back next year.

"I don't imagine that Fangio would fail his driver's test because he is the greatest race driver in the world when it comes to road racing," Wallard lauds. "But the varying conditions, as he proved in 1951, but he showed his class and his courage to an even greater extent just five days after his Indianapolis triumph."

He was driving down the stretch in a race at Reading, Pa., when his machine burst into flames. Lee could have jumped but the car would have plowed into the crowded grandstand or served into the pits. Lee stayed with the blazing car until he passed completely through the stretch and could wheel it safely into the infield.

Career Ended

The burns he suffered ended his racing career. But today he is teaching that same sportsmanship as the senior member of the champion highway safety program team which includes Ward, Reese, Johnny Parsons, Fred Agabashian, Jimmy Daywalt and Bob Velti.

Another factor, he hints, which probably will weigh against Fangio is the unwillingness of the foreign driver to believe the sportsmanship of the American race driver.

"Alberto Ascari, who came here in 1952, was one of the best drivers of all time," Lee explains. "He used wire wheels and all our fellows tried to tell him they wouldn't take the Indianapolis strain. He wouldn't believe us. So after 30 laps his wheels collapsed and he was out of the race."

It seems incredible that a man of Fangio's talents wouldn't be given a chance at Indianapolis. But Wallard is adamant in his stand.

Nothing Learned

Individually, we tend to learn from experience. Collectively, if mankind can be viewed as a collective, we tend to repeat the same old mistakes.

The difference between the governments of Julius Caesar and of Dwight Eisenhower are minor and of academic interest. The parallels are startling and numerous.

Today, in this world of scientific advancement, we live under the shadow of political reaction. Let something new come to the attention of the politicians and steps are immediately taken to control it, to limit it, or to repeal it. If none of these things is feasible, the politicians then then devise a program whereby they can own it outright.

It is said that Tiberius Caesar cut off the head of a Phoenician glass blower who had developed a formula for flexible glass. Such a glass, according to Caesar, would have upset the economy and might have become more valuable than gold.

Currently, the Eisenhower administration has blanketed pay television, put a crimp in railroad operations, tied the hands of businessmen by means of taxes and laws which compel union deals and various types of controls, arrested farmers who produce in excess of quotas and so forth. The list is nearly endless.

To illustrate just how the same old fallacies repeat year after year, we reproduce here a special report by a Joint Congressional Committee on the subject of the horseless carriage. This report was made as a result by the "emergency" occasioned by the development of the internal combustion engine, in the year 1875.

"A new source of power, which burns a distillate of kerosene called gasoline, has been produced by a Boston engineer. Instead of burning the fuel under the boiler, it is exploded inside the cylinder of the engine. This so-called internal combustion engine may be used under certain conditions to supplement steam engines. Experiments are underway to use such an engine to propel a vehicle.

"This discovery begins a new era in the history of civilization. It may some day prove to be more revolutionary in the development of human society than the invention of the wheel, the use of metals, or the steam engine. Never in history has society been confronted with a power so full of potential danger and at the same time so full of promise for the future of man and for the peace of the world.

"The dangers are obvious. Stores of gasoline in the hands of people interested primarily in the profit, would constitute a fire and explosive hazard of the first rank. Horseless carriages propelled by gasoline engines might attain speeds of 15 or even 20 miles per hour. The menace to our people of vehicles of this type hurtling through our streets and along our roads and poisoning the atmosphere would call for prompt legislative action even if the military and economic implications were not so overwhelming. The Secretary of War has testified before us and has pointed out the destructive effects of the use of such vehicles in battle. A few of them, with small cannon mounted behind a steel shield, could destroy infantry, break up a cavalry charge, and even seriously threaten field artillery by lightning-like flank attacks. Furthermore, our supplies of petroleum, from which gasoline can be extracted only in limited quantities, make it imperative that the defense forces should have first call on the limited supply. Furthermore the cost of producing it is far beyond the financial capacity of private industry, yet the safety of the nation demands that an adequate supply should be produced. In addition, the development of this new power may displace the use of horses, which would wreck our agriculture. We therefore earnestly recommend that Congress set up a Horseless Carriage Commission which shall have complete control of all sources of gasoline and similar explosive elements and all activities connected with their development and use in the United States.

"These measures may seem drastic and far-reaching, but the discovery with which we are dealing involves forces of a nature too dangerous to fit into any of our usual concepts."

As a precise modern parallel, today's government controls ALL atomic power. Until such time as our nations' businessmen can get their hands on this tremendous source of energy without government regulation, ownership or control, this power will be used principally for destructive purposes. Only individual free men can and will convert energy into useful channels. Governments are political and war-making entities and as such will inevitably follow the same old collectivist road.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
Experiences in Getting Signers
To Right-To-Work Petitions

Since I got 225 signatures to right-to-work petitions, I think it might be interesting to relate some of the statements made by those who did not want to sign. I do not believe I saw more than 200 people and got 225 signatures out of that number. I, of course, do not believe that is the general average, because the people I talked to were, as a whole, persons who could see that there was more than one result to an act. They saw the successive results to forcing men to join labor unions and thus were glad to sign.

One individual who did not sign said right to work was all right for the rich but no good for the poor. If it is no good for the poor, it is no good for the rich. The fact of the matter is, it seems to me, that right to work without paying tribute to anyone is more important to the working man who has to work at a job than it is to the man of means. That man who is having a hard time to get along and has so many more unsatisfied wants than the man who has money to buy these material wants, is the very person who needs the right-to-work laws.

He needs them because labor unions which strike and demand a closed shop greatly reduce production. They do this by getting wages so high that other workers cannot buy their product. They do it by strikes, by seniority, by featherbedding, by taking from management his right to select his help and reward in proportion to a free market. So the man who is working and has a lot of unfilled material needs needs laws that permit production and wages to go up more than the wealthy man needs them.

Another individual said he believed in the right-to-work laws but he did not like the low wages that existed in the 18 states where they had these laws. He didn't explain whether he meant low hourly wages or low total wages for the year or low total wages for all the workers in the state.

It makes little difference how high the hourly wage is if a man can work only a small part of the year. Of course the real reason why wages are lower in these states is that there are less tools per worker in these states and thus less demand for workers to operate these tools. It is the lack of demand that keeps wages down and not a free market for labor that keeps wages down.

In fact, wages throughout the nation would be a lot higher if there were no labor unions, that set wages arbitrarily under duress. And, of course, when some workers get wages under duress, more than they actually produce on a free market, then others must have lower wages. If all people belonged to the union and set wages arbitrarily, there would be no group of workers who would be able to get more than a free market for long unless those who were supplying necessities like water and transportation could exploit those who were supplying more or less luxuries.

Another man said that he would vote for it but he wouldn't sign the petition. I explained to him that that was a strange position to take, because if the signers of the Declaration of Independence had refused to sign that document and no one else would, we would never have had our form of government.

Later that gentleman thought the matter over and telephoned me that he wanted to sign. He explained when he had the opportunity that he had thought the matter over and it was time for everybody to stand up and be counted on these social and economic questions.

The individuals who were working for the government, the judges and those working for the district attorney's office, were the ones who did not want to sign. It would seem that these persons are paying a terrible price in happiness and enjoyment of life to put their material wants and jobs before their principles.

As one boy remarked when he was about to die, he had just learned what life was; he had gotten to the point where he was not afraid to think out loud and tell those people who were advocating collectivism that he believed in individual responsibility.

Then there were a few who thought wages would be a lot lower if it was not for labor unions. Of course, they never explained what labor unions added to the wealth of the world. Nor would they explain where more increased wages would come from if they did not come from higher prices that other workers would have to pay for their product or from lower profits that could be invested in tools to furnish more jobs at better wages.

Most of them had been told so often that labor unions are responsible for the higher wages that they actually believe it. But it is simply a mathematical impossibility for total wages to be increased by any belief or act that reduces production.

It is a good thing to have these right-to-work petitions circulating, because it has a tendency to get the subject before the public, and to the degree that we get people to think will we all be better off.

It seems to me that labor unions are the primary cause of unemployment, because they refuse to let wages be adjusted rapidly enough to make it so other workers can buy their product. It is undoubtedly a race between getting people to understand what

Robert Allen Reports

2 Far-Reaching Elements
In Defense Plan Struggle

WASHINGTON — Two far-reaching factors are increasingly evident in the maneuvering in Congress over President Eisenhower's embattled plan to reorganize the Pentagon.

(1) Toughest hurdle facing his proposal is the House Armed Services Committee.

(2) The President already has lost the first round in this potent Committee. This setback could be crucial in the final outcome of this momentous battle. Because what this key Committee does on this legislation will largely determine how the full House votes on it; and that, in turn, could decisively affect Senate action.

Reasons why the President has already lost the first important round in the Armed Services Committee are the following:

The two bipartisan leaders of this powerful Committee are strongly opposed to the President's Pentagon reorganization plan, and are working closely together against it. These influential leaders are: Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), long-time chairman, who also carries much weight with House members generally; and Representative Leslie Arends, III, senior Republican Committeeman, who is also his party's Whip in the House.

As a result of this high-voltage alliance, 27 of the 37 voting members of the Committee are claimed as hostile to the President's proposal.

Arends has personally informed the White House that a secret poll produced these results: Democratic Committeemen — all 20 of them lined up squarely with Vinson; Republicans — 7 for the President, 7 backing Arends, 3 undecided.

"This overwhelming majority against you means only one thing," Arends bluntly told White House assistants. "Our Committee is going to write its own bill, and it will be very different from what the President has recommended."

Foremost among these differences, Arends indicated, are two leading provisions of the legislation that he and Vinson have co-authored.

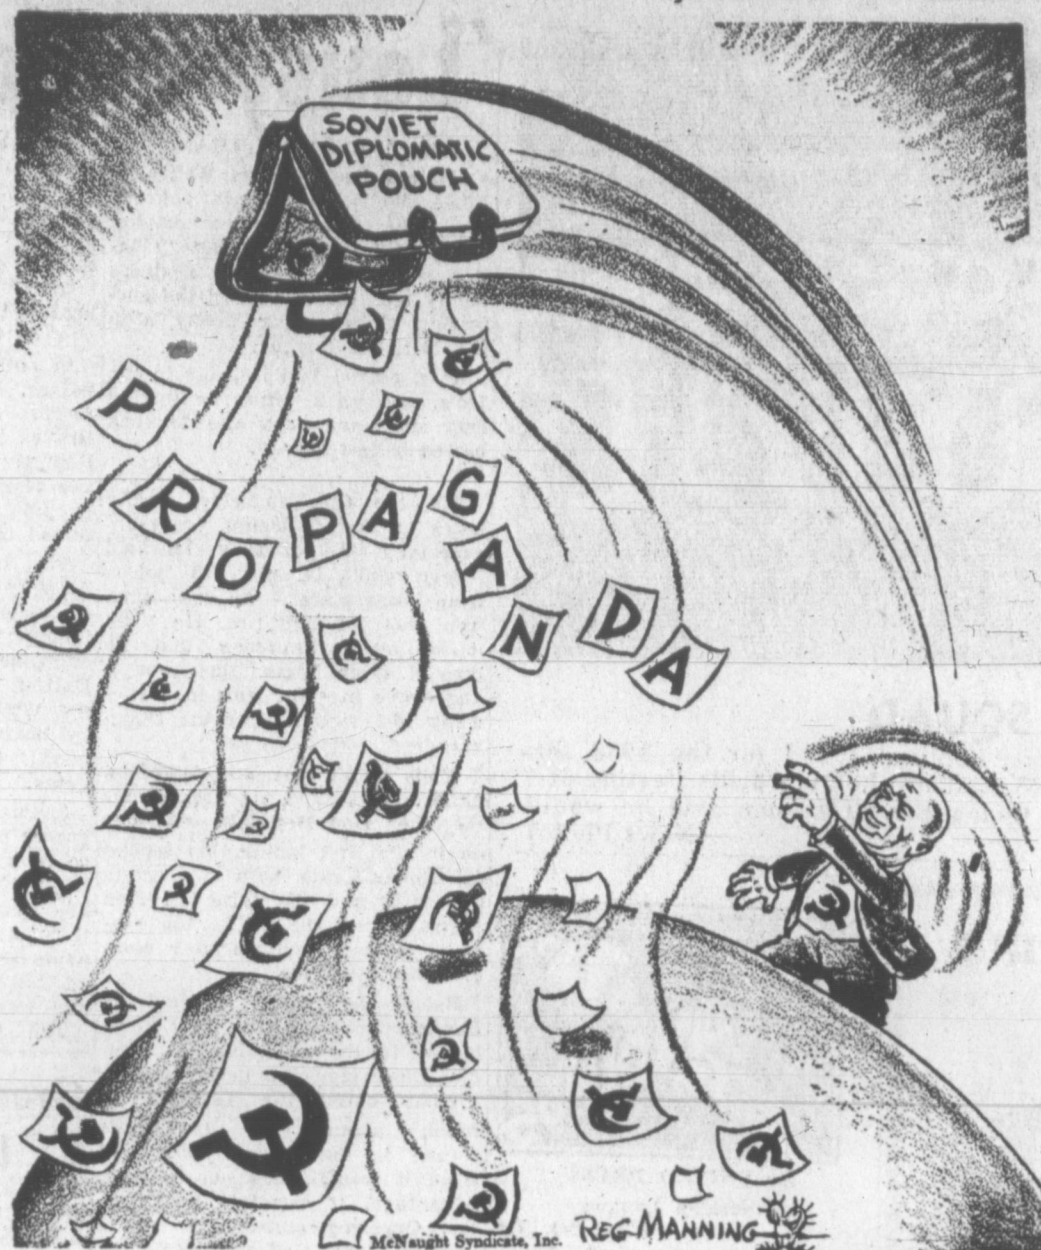

One of its proposals would abolish 14 of the Pentagon's top civilian officials — undersecretaries, deputy secretaries and assistant secretaries. The other provision would strip the Comptroller of the Defense Department (Assistant Secretary W. J. McNeil) of his power to impound and juggle military funds voted by Congress.

Explains Representative Vinson, "I'm in favor of giving the Secretary of Defense some leeway in the administering of military appropriations. I consider a degree of flexibility in that regard very desirable. But I am emphatically opposed to allowing such authority to be exercised by a subordinate causes unemployment and a belief that labor unions can increase total wages without causing unemployment.

If we are unsuccessful in getting people to understand what causes unemployment, we'll drift further and further into socialism and communism and labor unionism and our standard of living will go down and down because production will go down and down.

Another Kind Of "Dirty Fallout"

The Doctor
Says:

I am frequently astonished by the number of people who write asking whether there is any way to stimulate growth of children — or to delay or halt it if a youngster is growing too tall.

Most questions on stimulating growth come from the parents of boys around 8 to 12 years old. Perhaps they do not realize that at about these ages boys are often shorter than girls. Generally, however, the boys shoot up and pass the girls later.

Most of the questions on delaying growth come from the parents of girls in their teens or from the girls themselves.

The question of tallness is most interesting. Undoubtedly there are many factors which enter into the rate of growth and the height achieved. There are possibly racial differences. There are almost certainly family differences.

AS ONE statement said several years ago: "It is ridiculous for parents who are, say, 5 feet, 3 inches tall and whose ancestors before them were of comparable size to expect sons 6 feet tall. It is ridiculous for parents who are more than 6 feet tall to decry the fact that their 18-year-old daughters are 5 feet, 10 inches tall. It is certainly true that sex is a factor, in height. Boys, on the average, are taller and heavier than girls except around 10 or 12 years old.

Food and diet also play a part and climatic may be involved as well.

In this connection I was greatly interested in a recent report comparing the stature of American-born Japanese children in California with children of the same sex and age in Japan.

It was found that at every age from 6 to 19, the American-born Japanese boys were taller on the average than boys of the same age in Japan. This was true also of American-born Japanese girls, but

ONE OF THE conclusions of this study was that caution should be used in concluding that the relatively retarded growth and development of children in less favored parts of the world (as compared with California) is the sign of some racial or genetic difference between them and our own.

Mac's Experiences
At The Auction

Either I'm madly in love or crazy — or both.

Otherwise why would I volunteer to attend an auction in a falling down barn, and sit on a rickety funeral parlor chair, half-freezing, for a chance to bid on an old and worn pine hutch that Mary wanted for the dining room? I hadn't been to an auction since those long-ago days when I first went to New York seeking fame and fortune and used to kill time (and keep warm) by crowding into one of those Broadway gyp joints while a high-binder peddled bric-a-brac and gew-gaws to the suckers. Of which I was one, incidentally, because I left one night with a "railroad watch," so called, I suppose, because it ran as if it had run over it.

I took a seat in the barn just after noon, and it was dark when I came out, for the hutch was No. 481 in the bidding and lot No. 96 was just going under the hammer when I got there.

There's no use keeping you in suspense. I didn't get the hutch. A pale, delicate young man got it, and after hearing him bid for it I couldn't help wondering why we would ever want the same thing. I'll say one thing for the young man — despite his wanness, he was persistent. Twice I thought I had the hutch, only to have him go up a notch.

With the hutch gone, I was determined to take something away from the auction. I was sort of mad at having been outbid. Before I knew it I found myself in the race for a bust of John Milton. Now if there's one thing on earth I have no use for it is a bust of the blind poet, but it had reached $17.50 before I came to my senses.

I stayed coiled off for six or seven lots, and then I got back in the bidding, this time for what the auctioneer described as a "1760 knock-about chest." Maybe it was, but to me it looked like nothing so much as a high-class coffin for a dog about the size of a boxer.

I could have used it for firewood, but when the bidding passed $3.50 I got out.

It looked as if I were going to come away empty-handed. Then the auctioneer held up an item in the cup of his hands and said it was the last of the day.

It was now or never, even if I couldn't see what it was. "Who'll give me four dollars for this English End-of-the-Day jar?" he asked.

"I will," I said, and before I could ask him what an End-of-the-Day jar was, he whacked his hammer and said, "Sold!"

I am not going to tell you what an End-of-the-Day jar is because I don't know. I can tell you one thing, though — it isn't anything like a hutch, which is what I was sent for.

Mary was nice about it.

Apparently every child shows a more or less normal pattern of growth. There are several methods used to chart this pattern, and if the child is not growing as he should, changes in diet or tests for illness are sometimes indicated.

In general, at the present time, one has to say that there are no special exercises, foods or injections which increase the height or hold it back.

Some interesting studies are being made on this subject, however, and it seems possible that sometime in the not too distant future something may be developed which will either speed or delay the growth of children.

Knowland May Remodel Strategy

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. William F. Knowland is well started on a venture some experiment which could remodel Republican Party political strategy.
Knowland is a candidate for this year's Republican gubernatorial nomination in California. There and in the Senate where he is GOP leader, Knowland is tramping noisily in a dangerous area where most of his Republican associates fear to tread.
That is the area of organized labor. Pending now in the Senate is Knowland's proposed legislation to enforce democratic practices in labor unions. Before California's voters as part of his campaign platform is Knowland's similar proposal for state legislation.
At the state level, however, Knowland goes further than in proposed federal legislation. Knowland favors state right-to-work legislation and opposes compulsory unionism. Knowland's luck in California will not be known until election day. In the U.S. Senate, however, Knowland will be licked when his "labor bill of rights" comes to a vote. Some Senate Republicans will help him.

Spring Clean Is Drudgery Even In Outer Space Age

GAY FAULEY

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Let's face it, girls. Spring cleaning is still drudgery even in the outer space age.
American ingenuity can build a H-bomb, launch a rocket into orbit and make a synthetic. But to date, it hasn't found a way to eliminate the annual foray against the winter's collection of dirt from attic to cellar.
All it's done is give us some new and improved tools for doing the same old back-breaking job.
"It would be nice if someday a housewife could just turn a hose on the whole interior," said A. C. Fuller, the original Fuller Brush man. "But I doubt if we'll ever have what you would call whole-house cleaning. It's too individual a thing, individual as each of the 45 million women running homes in America."
Fuller, chairman of the board of the company bearing his name, came to New York from his Hartford, Conn. headquarters on business and to discuss the "then" and "now" of house cleaning.
The man, whose door-to-door salesmen have been the subject of numerous jokes, cartoons, and even movies, started his career in a sister's home in Somerville, Mass. He recalled that he invested $30 in a supply of horsehair brushes, wire and handles, and $15 in a machine of his own design.

He worked by gaslight at night and sold brushes the next day.
Today, at 73, Fuller has more than 7,000 dealers giving housewives the brush, a free sample in the United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Alaska, and as far away as Australia.
"We've even sold special igloo brushes to eskimos," he said. Fuller estimated the company gives away two million brushes each month.
Fuller said that when he started, half a century ago, housewives needed brushes to clean kerosene lamp chimneys, icebox drains, and cuspidors. The two best selling brushes then were those for cleaning a man's derby and for brushing the mud off long skirts of the ladies.
Today's best seller, Fuller said, is, of all things, the hairbrush. Fuller figured the modern household needs two to three dozen brushes, counting those for personal grooming and house cleaning.
"Housecleaning, if you count all sides of it, is the world's biggest business," he said. "I think it always will be."

Jacoby On Bridge

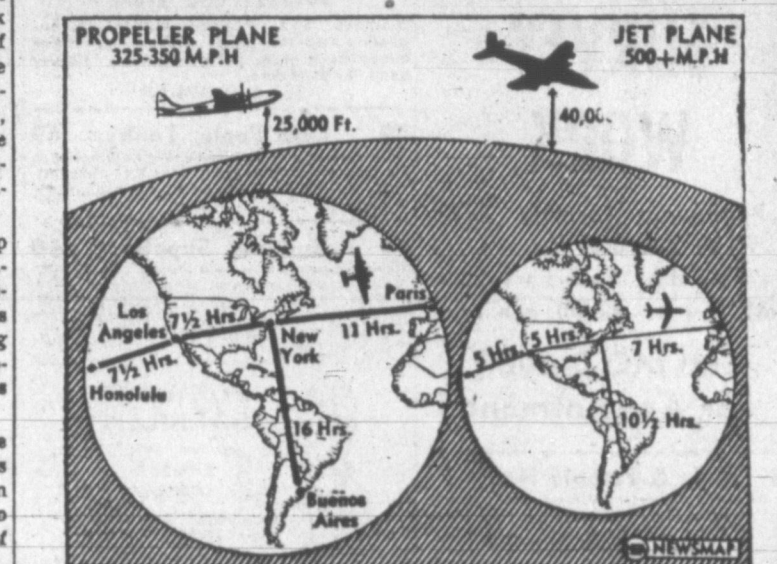

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service
I am indebted to Troy Green of Mandan, N.D., for today's hand. Mr. Green comments on the fact that the hand shows the value of tens, nines and eights and the folly of doubling a slam just because you hold a few high cards. It also illustrates the point that if one line of play is surely not going to work you should look for another one that may.
North might well have passed three no-trump. He had 16 points but South had certainly shown 15 or less and there did not appear to be a five-card suit anywhere. As for East's double, Mr. Green's comments are correct.
West opened the eight of hearts in response to the double. Mr. Green realized that the heart finesse was not going to work and that clubs were not likely to break. He won the heart trick, led a club to his hand and another back to dummy's king. East showed out and the club suit became hopeless.
This left one slight chance. East might have both the queen and a jack of diamonds. Dummy's eight was led and when East played low the eight was allowed to go through. West showed out and the party was over. Mr. Green made four diamonds, three clubs, three hearts (he had to lose a trick to the queen) and two spades.

It is possible that Mr. Green would have made the hand without the double. In fact I think it very likely that he would have, but the double certainly didn't do him any harm.

THIS SHRINKING WORLD—Man will take a big step forward when the commercial jet age gets under way late this year or early in 1959. Big airlines like the Boeing 707 and Douglas DC-8 will shrink the world by some 40 per cent (see Newschart above). CAA certification tests on the new jets are expected to start soon and airlines are ready to train flight crews. Big problem remaining: building longer runways.
