Resolution passed...

Local prison plan adds TML support to 'serve this area'

A second "outside endorsement" of local efforts to secure a state prison facility in Scurry County has been received.

Thursday night, Region 3 members of the Texas Municipal League adopted a resolution supporting the plan to locate a state detention facility here.

The document reads, "The TML Region 3 would now encourage the state...to seriously consider an opportunity to serve this area of the state by location of a state detention center in...Scurry County."

It is signed by Barbara Dorman, president of this region's TML chapter.

The Texas Municipal League membership is comprised of city officials from all Texas cities. It serves as a support group for its members, conducting studies of legislation and programs which will affect cities, and serves also as a lobby group in Austin.

The resolution was passed at a Region 3 meeting conducted in Lubbock Thursday night. Mayor Troy Williamson now serves as second vice president of TML for Region 3, and he attended the meeting along with councilman Fred Castillo.

The TML resolution joins similar support shown April 22 by the West Central Texas Council of Governments based in Abilene.

A resolution was passed by the executive committee of that group which also voices support for the local prison plan.

These two outside resolutions will now become part of 71 local group resolutions which have been obtained. In addition, 141 business and employee groups have responded with resolutions of

Reagan maintained fiction, senator says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration maintained a "fiction" that it was not soliciting money for Nicaragua's Contra rebels when in fact officials had teamed up with a fund-raiser for a "one-two punch" on wealthy sympathizers, a senator said at Congress' Iran-Contra hearings.

Three private donors to the Contra cause testified Thursday that they had given money because they were convinced President Reagan wanted them to do so. In two cases, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North briefed the donors before conservative fund-raiser Carl R. "Spitz" Channell asked them for contributions. Channell has pleaded guilty to a tax fraud conspiracy charge stemming from the Contra fund raising.

"Where I come from, we call that the old one-two punch," said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., a member of the Senate investigating committee. "To me it's a fiction for anyone to assume that's not a solicitation."

The three donors — Ellen Garwood, a wealthy widow from Austin, Texas; Joseph Coors, a Colorado brewery owner; and William O'Boyle, an oil and gas investor from New York — gave a total of $2.4 million for weapons and aircraft for the Contras during a time when Congress had prohibited U.S. military aid, "directly or indirectly."

In other Iran-Contra developments:

—Investigators said they had discovered in the safe at North's former office in the White House complex a private proposal outlining a plan for transferring U.S. high-technology goods to Israel, which in turn would transfer military equipment to a third country. The third country, apparently China, then would deliver arms through a trading company to the Contras and other "freedom fighters" in Afghanistan, Angola and Cambodia. The plan, although never specifically carried out, could have been a model for the Iran-Contra scheme, investigators said.

—Testimony seemed to cast growing doubt on the sworn statements of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord, who had been the hearings' opening witness. Witnesses told of markups on weapons sold to the Contras by Secord, who has insisted he made no profit on the deals. Investigators noted Secord has decided to dig in his heels on release of Swiss bank records rather than cooperate, as he had told the committees he would. Secord's business partner, Albert Hakim, was scheduled to testify when hearings resume Wednesday.

—Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair, has subpoenaed David Kimche, the former director of Israel's foreign ministry, to testify about his role in the affair, an Israeli official said Thursday. Asher Naim, Israeli embassy information director, accused Walsh of "going off on his own and violating agreements reached between Israel and the United States."

The three Contra donors testified that they would not have made their contributions without assurances that the Reagan administration wanted them to give. Coors said he approached then-CIA Director William J. Casey, who told him, "Ollie North's the guy to see." Garwood and O'Boyle were introduced to North by Channell.

6-year-old in hospital after bicycle accident

A 6-year-old Snyder youth was listed in stable condition in the pediatric intensive care unit of Lubbock's St. Mary's Hospital Friday morning following a car-bicycle accident Thursday afternoon.

According to police reports, Raymond Scott Floyd was riding a bicycle in the 3300 Block of Ave. U at 5:02 p.m. when he was struck by a 1984 Cadillac driven by Jeanette Lollar Clements of 3005 Ave. U.

She was driving down 33rd St., which is a deadend into Ave. U, when the accident occurred. The youth apparently rode in front of her on his bicycle.

Floyd, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Floyd of Snyder and a first grader at West Elementary, was taken from Snyder to Lubbock by St. Mary's helicopter ambulance around 7 p.m. for examination for possible head injuries.

Friday morning, a hospital spokesmen in Lubbock said he was doing well and was being held in the ICU for observation only.

50-year reunion slate opens with tour today

Activities were to begin Friday related to the 50-year class reunion of the Snyder High School Class of 1937.

Headquarters for the reunion is to be Willow Park Inn, and friends of class members are invited there for visits throughout the weekend.

Returning class members were to tour Snyder High School at 3 p.m. Friday, then gather for an evening social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Renal B. Rosson.

On Saturday, a noon buffet luncheon at The Shack and tours of the Diamond M Museum and the Scurry County Museum were slated.

Organizers for the event have included Rosson, L.A. and Hazel Jones Berry, Don Adams, J.R. Huckabee and Johnnie Greene Herod.

Banking franchise tax benefits local entities

Checks totaling more than $104,000 have been sent to three Snyder-based taxing entities as this year's first allocation of the state's franchise tax on banks.

Receiving the largest amount is Snyder ISD, a total of $63,833. Also receiving checks were the City of Snyder, $22,155, and Scurry County, $18,608, for a total of $104,596.

In 1984, the legislature brought banks under the state franchise tax for the first time and allocated money from the tax to the taxing entities where the banks are located.

Banks are taxed at the same rate as other Texas corporations. Previously, bank stocks were subject to local property taxes.

The legislature exempted the stocks from property taxes, substituting the bank franchise tax. Collections are pro-rated among local taxing units based on their tax rate.

The next bank franchise allocation will be in August. The funds are returned to local entities by the state comptroller of public accounts.

Across the state, checks totaling $55.5 million were sent to 2,069 taxing jurisdictions in Texas as part of the first allocation.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some folks worry about resisting temptation because it may never come around again."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

James Roberts, editor of the Andrews County News, said the famous newspaper editor William Allen White of Kansas may have been slightly ahead of his time.

White once said that the only fit subjects for editorials were religion, politics and sex. In 1987, all three subjects have been getting media attention. Wrote Roberts:

"We doubt that White believed it was necessary to have all three intermingled at the same time in the daily newspapers of the nation.

"But with Gary Hart stepping down from the presidential campaign because of reported dalliances, the church defrocking Jim Bakker and Richard Dortch, it calls to mind an old story.

"The elementary school teacher had asked her pupils to write an essay involving the subjects of religion, royalty and sex.

"While the rest of the class was struggling over their papers, little Johnny quickly scribbled a few short words and handed his essay to the teacher.

"The teacher objected, saying Johnny couldn't have possibly written on three such sensitive subjects as religion, royalty and sex in such a short time.

"Johnny contended that he had followed instructions to the letter and begged the teacher to read what he had written:

"'My God, the queen said, I'm pregnant!'"

A fellow in the Atlanta Journal asked a soul-searching question: "How is Tammy Faye Bakker's face like a ski slope?"

"Five inches of base and six inches of powder."

Our advice for folks like Bakker and Hart:

NASA says...

AF should build space station

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The heavy demands of "Star Wars" testing may make it necessary for the Air Force to build and orbit its own space station instead of depending on the civilian laboratory being built by NASA, a space agency official says.

Speaking at an Air Force Association national symposium in Colorado Springs, Colo., NASA deputy administrator Dale Myers urged Thursday that the Department of Defense study the possibility of building an all-military space station.

"I would like to suggest that now is the time for a serious, sustained, long-term look at DOD's future manned requirements in space and I believe that such a study will disclose the need for DOD's own facility (space station)," Myers said.

The Air Force need for such a station "will continue to grow with the development and testing of SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly called "Star Wars") and its massive infrastructure," said Myers.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is planning to build a $10.9 billion space station, with Canada, Japan and the European Space Agency contributing an additional $5 billion in hardware.

International partners in the project have objected to any proposal that space weapons tests be conducted aboard the space station, and a congressional proposal would restrict use of the station to civilian activities.

But Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said in a May 8 letter to Congress that forbidding military use of the station would be harmful to U.S. national security.

Weinberger said the Soviet space effort, including the Mir space station, is dedicated to military use.

Myers said in his speech that NASA and the Reagan administration have established guidelines to negotiate with the foreign participants in the station "which will allay the concerns of the DOD and, at the same time, meet all our international agreements on the peaceful uses of space."

But the NASA official said the DOD "may well want to begin thinking seriously about a dedicated space station of its own, possibly in polar orbit."

He said if the DOD does decide to build its own space station, contractors who manufacture the NASA station should be able to produce a second one "at a very attractive discount."

NASA's plans call for launch of the first space station element in January 1994, and for the station to be permanently occupied by the end of 1995.

First Interstate to buy Texas bank

HOUSTON (AP) — Troubled Allied Bancshares Inc. of Houston will be acquired by Los Angeles-based First Interstate Bancorp in a transaction that gives the nation's ninth-largest banking company an entree into the Texas market.

First Interstate's acquisition of Allied, announced Thursday, involves a complex deal valued at between $415 million and $450 million.

The deal also provides expansion-hungry J.J. Pinola, chairman and chief executive of First Interstate, the chance to be in position to profit when Texas' depressed economy turns around.

Allied, the sixth-largest bank holding company in Texas and the 53rd largest in the United States, also announced it plans to make a $112 million provision for loan loss reserves in the second quarter. The move results in an operating loss for the three months of slightly over $100 million.

In the previous five quarters, the company had operating losses of $94.2 million, but gains on the sale of securities lowered its net deficit to $38.1 million.

In 1985, before its energy and real estate loans went bad in droves, it posted a profit of $122 million.

Thursday's announced deal came after months of rumors that First Interstate had been hunting for an acquisition in Texas, where lenders have been battered for years by a severe slump in the energy and real estate industries.

First Interstate and Allied confirmed a week ago that preliminary merger talks were under way.

Clements' letter angers advocates

AUSTIN (AP) — A letter which angered advocates for the mentally ill was a simple mistake, Gov. Bill Clements' staff says.

Members of the Texas Alliance for the Mentally Ill said Thursday they were upset by a letter which they allege indicates that the governor's office doesn't know the difference between mental illness and mental retardation.

Members of the alliance recently wrote Clements about the need for services for the mentally ill, and the governor replied with promises to keep open the 13 state schools for the mentally retarded.

His letters made no mention of mental illness or the eight state mental hospitals.

Poetry Society meets

The Scurry County Poetry Society met May 18 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Killgo. Garnet Quiett, president, presided and Christine Killgo, chaplain, gave the invocation.

Garnet presented the program entitled, "Words Not to Use in Poems." She pointed out that the use of the right words in a poem is essential. Obsolete words and poeticisms such as ne'er, o'er, tis, thee, thou, unto, twas, fain, lo, methinks and betwixt should never be used in poems.

Janelle Burk defined epic and narrative poems, explaining that an epic poem is a long poem about heroes and heroines such as "Odyssey" and "Iliad." A narrative poem tells a story and may or may not be a lyric poem.

Sherry Bryant reported that the New York Poetry Foundation Inc. accepted her poem entitled "Hands" for their "National Poetry Anthology" and their annual poetry contest. Also, The American Poetry Association accepted her poem entitled, "Where the Rubber Meets the Road" to be published in the "American Poetry Anthology."

In the poetry reading session, members read original poems as follows: Burk, "Washday" and "Aftermath;" Gwen Mather, "Captive Blessings" and "The Journey;" Dorothy Cox, "I Believe;" Bryant, "Breakfast on the Ground" and "He Gave Me a New Song;" Quiett, "Heaven in My Garden" and "I Saw It Snow on the Fourth of July."

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served.

The next society meeting is set for June 15 with the location to be announced. Visitors and poets are welcome to attend the meetings.

4-H COMPETITION — Tammy Ritchey, member of the Canyon Reef 4-H Club, will be competing at Texas A&M University during the second week of June. At the state level competition, Ritchey will present a speech entitled, "How to Do a Demonstration." (SDN Staff Photo)

HOMEMAKERS MEET — Area extension homemakers gathered May 15 at the Union Community Center for a craft day and potluck dinner. Programs included were as follows: window treatments, Kathryn Roberts, county extension agent; tin punch, Honey Do's Club by Patsy Burleson and Gina Fogle; rag coasters, Patchwork Squares Club by Joyce McCoy; cathedral window quilting, Knapp Club by Velere Dunn and Erika Blankenship; glass etching, Stargazers Club by Lori Withers; embroidery hoops, Plainview Club by Jimmie Cummings. Shirley Bullard was chairman of the day with 28 members and guests attending. Pictured are some of the members working on coasters. (SDN Staff Photo)

Sweets, comfort food

NEW YORK (AP) — Sweet foods can have powerful psychological overtones that are closely connected to feeling happy, secure and loved, says Dr. Johanna Dwyer, director of Boston's Frances Stern Nutrition Center.

It also is true, she explains in Family Circle magazine, that adults who grew up in homes where sweets were dangled as rewards (no ice cream until you eat your vegetables) may revert to their childhood when they are feeling upset or deprived.

There are certainly enough times at the bridge table when you have to be optimistic, hoping that suits split nicely and finesses work. The mark of an expert declarer is that he is naturally pessimistic. Assuming the worst, he plays to overcome bad breaks. Of course it is easy to make four hearts today if both red suits divide normally, but it requires a little care to make 10 tricks if either suit fails to split. In today's hand, both hearts and diamonds misbehaved, but our pessimistic expert took the proper precautions.

West played three high spades, declarer ruffing the third one. South now played the 10 of diamonds to dummy's ace and played a heart back to his hand. Next came the nine of diamonds to another high honor in dummy. East decided to discard a club. Because he had made all the right plays, declarer was now able to play back to his hand with a heart and lead a diamond to dummy, finessing the eight. That left East helpless. He actually ruffed and returned a club, but South rose with the ace and drew East's remaining trump with a heart lead to dummy's ace. Declarer then made the contract by throwing his two remaining clubs on dummy's good diamonds.

Lesson: When suits may be splitting badly, take proper precautions by judicious unblocking. Remember also to retain a high trump entry early in dummy when it may be necessary.

'Horns narrowly escape upset, 6-5; but Sooners fall victim to Bearkats

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Longhorns are a perennial college baseball power, but how about those Lamar Cardinals?

It took Todd Haney's run scoring single in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift top-ranked Texas over fiesty Lamar 6-5 in the first round of the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament Thursday.

The Longhorns, 55-9, face Oklahoma in the second round of the tournament today. The Sooners were upset by Sam Houston State 5-1 Thursday.

Lamar, 40-18, plays Indiana State today.

Brian Cisarik beat out a bunt to open the 10th and after Scott Coolbaugh sacrificed him to second and the Cardinals intentionally walked Lenny Bell, Haney hit a 1-1 pitch to the left field wall to score Cisarik for the victory.

Haney was one of three Longhorns to collect two hits.

John Morton was the winner for Texas in relief of starter Curt Krippner. Krippner had his string of eight straight complete games, dating back to March 17, snapped when he was pulled in the ninth inning with one out. The junior righthander came into the game with a 12-0 record.

Earlier, Sam Houston State, the fifth seed in the six-team NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament, pulled off the first surprise of the weekend by defeating second-seeded Oklahoma 5-1 Thursday afternoon.

The Bearkats, 43-16, move into the second round and play Houston, which defeated Indiana State 10-5 earlier in the day. The teams will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The Sooners, 42-19, take on Texas at 4:30 p.m.

Sooner starter Sherman Collins breezed through the first four innings with a perfect game and looked to be headed for a fifth flawless inning with two strikeouts until his defense crumbled around him.

After striking out Andy Deen for what should have been the second out of the inning, Oklahoma catcher Darren Cox could not handle the pitch and Deen reached on a wild pitch.

Collins then threw four straight balls to Kerry Brandl, Rusty Hoke and Mitchell Moon reached on consecutive infield errors and Bryan McDonald and Chris Burton had back-to-back singles to put the Bearkats on top 3-1.

Deen made it 5-1 in the sixth inning after blasting a two-run home run over the centerfield fence with Brad Kelley on base.

Both pitchers went the distance, with Steve Sparks recording the win and raising his record to 11-0. Collins, falls to 8-6, despite giving up just five hits and striking out nine.

Jody Supak pitched 5 1-3 innings to pick up the win for Houston and improve his record to 12-2 on the season. Mike Gardnier, who was attempting to set a school record for career wins, was the loser for Indiana State and fell to 13-4.

Beat Detroit to lead series, 2-0...

Experience pays for Celtics

BOSTON (AP) - The playoff-tested Boston Celtics knew what to do when they got in trouble. The Detroit Pistons are learning the hard way.

When Isiah Thomas and Adrian Dantley were piling up points, the Celtics changed their defense to focus on them. When the game was on the line in the fourth quarter, the Celtics dominated.

When the Eastern Conference final moves to Pontiac, Mich., for games Saturday and Sunday, the outlook might not improve much for the Pistons.

"The Celtics are a proud team," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said after Boston's 110-101 victory Thursday night gave it a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-seven series. "I'm sure they feel they can win in our building."

Boston, the NBA's defending champion, is seeking its 17th title. Detroit is in the third round of the playoffs for the first time in its history.

"The Celtics did a good job adjusting to things we tried," Daly said. "We're learning in this series."

"They made the shots when they had to and kept their composure," Detroit guard Joe Dumars said. "We should have taken our time and come down and executed."

Dumars' layup with 9:58 left in the third quarter gave the Pistons their biggest lead, 65-56, after they led 59-54 at halftime. Thomas had 25 of those 65 points and Dantley had 22. They would combine for just three field goals the rest of the way.

"When we got down (by nine) we came back with a vengeance," Boston forward Kevin McHale said. "They were running away with it. They were playing great, dribbling between their legs, having a good time. We said, 'hey, we can't let this happen.'"

So the Celtics took off on an 18-6 run that gave them a 74-71 lead with 4:26 left in the third quarter.

"We had good control of the game early in the third period," said Thomas, who led all scorers with 36 points. "Then we took some bad shots on the next four possessions and the Celtics got back."

Larry Bird led Boston with 31 points, but was scoreless in the fourth quarter.

Mavs won't discuss prospects Bucks' Nelson top candidate

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Mavericks officials say they won't discuss any candidates for the team's vacant coaching position until next week, but Milwaukee Bucks coach Don Nelson and former Phoenix Suns coach John McCleod likely will be considered.

Dick Motta stunned the team Wednesday when he announced his resignation from the NBA club he has coached since its the franchise began in 1980.

Both team owner Donald Carter and general manager Norm Sonju said they won't start thinking about replacements now.

"That's how we left it last night," Sonju said in a prepared statement.

The June 22 NBA draft and the team's mini-camp in July are only "artificial deadlines" for filling the head coach spot, Sonju said.

Published reports Thursday named Nelson and MacLeod as likely candidates to succeed Motta. Also mentioned were San Antonio Spurs coach Bob Weiss, a former Mavericks assistant, and Richie Adubato, who succeeded Weiss as Motta's assistant.

Both the Bucks and the Spurs said Mavericks management has not contacted them seeking permission to talk to Nelson and Weiss.

"Our official position has been that we will give permission to talk with him to anyone who asks," said Bill King, spokesman for the Bucks.

Nelson has three years remaining in his contract, which includes a clause prohibiting him from taking a job as head coach or player personnel manager with another league franchise for two years.

The Spurs said they won't decide whether to allow Weiss to negotiate with Dallas until approached.

"Frankly, we're not even considering that we will be asked," said Spurs spokesman Wayne Witt. "He (Weiss) has a contract here."

Motta, 55, had an 808-750 regular-season record in 19 seasons in the NBA with Chicago, Washington and Dallas. He was named NBA Coach of the Year with the Bulls in 1970-71 and won the NBA title with Washington in 1977-78.

Motta had helped build the Mavericks into an elite team, but his tenure in Dallas had bit a rocky period during the last month.

Deaf kicker gets chance but competition strong

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - Mike Monastra was one of thousands of youngsters who grew up playing football in Stark County and dreamed of playing in the National Football League.

On Saturday, nearly five years after he last played in an organized game, Monastra will get a chance to perform before Dallas Cowboys scouts at a free-agent tryout camp in Dallas.

Monastra will be one of about 700 players at the tryout. But he is different from the rest of hopefuls - he's been deaf since birth.

"I don't think my handicap has hurt me in kicking. In fact, I think it's a big advantage," said the 23-year-old Canton Timken High School graduate.

"I take my hearing aid out whenever I'm going to kick and I don't hear anything," said Monstra, who has an 80 percent hearing loss. "That enables me to concentrate totally on the task of kicking the ball."

Monastra said he is accurate up to 53 yards on field goals, and is confident of his ability to kick off. He converted nine out of 10 field goal attempts, including seven from 35 yards and longer, in 1982 for Timken.

But to get a shot with an NFL team, Monastra had to wait until this year to gain special permission from the league to try out.

"Mike couldn't play his senior year at Timken because of his age and he didn't graduate until 1984," said his mother, Nancy Monastra.

"He had to wait two years after his class graduated to gain a special eligibility slip from the NFL for handicapped people to be able to be drafted or even try out," Mrs. Monastra said.

"But Mike never stopped kicking or lifting weights. We finally got that paper the middle of April and now we're ready to help Mike live his dream," she said.

His parents aren't discouraged by the comments of John Wooten, the Cowboys' assistant director of player personnel.

"We'll have about 700 or 800 kids trying out, and about 300 of those will be kickers," Wooten said. "And out of those 800, two or maybe three players will make it to camp - and they still aren't guaranteed a spot on the team."

Timken Coach Ken Herstich thinks that small opening may be big enough for the 5-foot 8-inch, 160-pound Monastra to slip through.

"I'm really glad he's getting a shot and if he's improved his leg strength as much as I've heard, he may have a good chance," Herstich said.

Banks...

Texas ties its failure record

DALLAS (AP) — Banks are failing faster in Texas than in any other state in the union, and officials say the clip may accelerate as the oil-busted state struggles to get back on its feet.

The Lone Star State Thursday tied the national record it set last year for bank failures in a calendar year when two more collapses brought the 1987 total to 26, state and federal officials said.

Texas had already held the dubious distinction of having more banks fail in one year than any other state when 12 collapsed in 1985. That compares to just three in 1984.

So far, 81 banking institutions have failed across the country this year, and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Bill Olcheski predicted that number could soar as high as 200 by year's end.

Nearly 140 failed in 1986 nationally, the most since the FDIC was founded in 1933. There were 120 failures in 1985 and 79 the year before, FDIC spokesman Stephen Katsanos said. The previous record was in 1937 with 77 failures.

"Up through 1986, 90 percent of failures were primarily the result of poor management, but at least half of the failures now are no longer caused just by poor management," State Banking Commission spokesman Richard Nun said.

"It's the hanging-on of poor economic conditions," he said. "Even the strong bank — if he's got two or three tackles hanging on him — sooner or later he's going to come down. It's getting to be a matter of how long they can hold on."

Frank Anderson, a Dallas banking analyst with Ferguson & Co., said he wasn't surprised at the high number of Texas bank failures this year.

"The banking system is more or less reflective of the economy as a whole," he said. "As the market in Texas has deteriorated, we've seen a lag effect in bank failures."

But Anderson said he wasn't overly distressed at the record number of banking failures.

"Texas has 14 percent of the total number of banks in the country, more than 2,000," he said. "We've had less than 1.5 percent of that number fail. It's not something you want to see, but it's still a small part of the whole picture."

The analyst said he expected the bank failure trend to continue through 1987.

The Stamp Act went into effect in the British colonies in 1765.

Dear Abby

Some Teachers Guilty of Not Practicing What They Preach

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Appalled in Sacramento" wrote: "My son is in the eighth grade, and I was horrified by the following comment his English instructor wrote on his assignment: 'Is this original? What does this got to do with insects taking over?'

"I wrote a note on the back and corrected her blatant grammatical error, but my son refused to give it to her."

Abby, you excused the teacher's use of incorrect grammar, saying, "I think you overreacted. The teacher obviously made a careless mistake."

I do not agree that the mother "overreacted." I have had seven children go through the public school system — my youngest is now in the ninth grade. I've had similar complaints for years. My son recently brought home a list of class rules from one of his teachers. It contained at least a half-dozen misspelled words. I wanted to circle those words and send it back, but my son asked me not to.

I received a better education in a country school in North Dakota with teachers fresh out of high school than my kids have received in big cities with college-educated teachers. Most teachers today leave a lot to be desired.

APPALLED IN TACOMA

DEAR APPALLED: Read on for a view from Amarillo, Texas:

DEAR ABBY: I believe that you and "Appalled in Sacramento" were both off the mark. You should have been outraged by her first comment — "Was this original?"

As a bashful, timid child, I expressed my dreams in stories. When I was in the fifth grade, my teacher, whom I idolized, wrote across a short story I had written, "Where did you copy this?" I was devastated that she would think I might have cheated. It was 40 years before I ever tried to write again.

Abby, teachers who scorn and deride children's creative efforts are bullies. Now, 45 years later, I wrote a sonnet about this experience to alleviate this pain. If you think it merits publication, you have my permission to use it.

UNWRITTEN WORDS IN LIMBO
My writing suffered deep withdrawal pains in one-room schoolhouse on Midwestern plains,
when 5th grade teacher scrawled across my page,
"Where did you copy this?" The shocking stains of caustic phrase stunned writer's urge. No rage, for I was quiet gentle child at stage
when fragile dreams were crushed to dust, my pride in stirring plots defiled by worshiped sage.

With wistful dreams of future goal denied,
I turned the pain to fester deep inside and 40 years were lost, creatively, until five years ago; dam opened wide.

At last, the doors to writing welcomed me — a dream restored through gift of poetry.

Controversy to cost AEC as much as $601,000 sum

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) — The American Educational Complex will remove its Fort Hood campus' adult vocational classes from the state funding approval list in the wake of a controversy concerning three defensive driving courses taught at the Army post, officials say.

As a result, the institution will lose between $541,524 to $601,694 in state funds, they said Thursday.

Fort Hood officials, meanwhile, denied reports that post officials might investigate a contract with Central Texas College, a unit of the AEC, for the defensive driving courses.

AEC President Phillip R. Swartz said the three courses were erroneously reported to the coordinating board as state-funded courses.

The Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System, which approves state funding of classes, questioned whether AEC was receiving full funding from both the state and federal governments for the three courses and if the courses met the board's criteria for state funding.

The courses are funded through the contract with Fort Hood, which pays the AEC about $3,900 monthly for a basic defensive driving course, an extended defensive driving course and a motorcycle safety course.

In the AEC's reporting of all of its course hours for state funding for the next biennium, the hours for the three Fort Hood defensive driving courses erroneously were added to those reported from other AEC campuses, Swartz said.

The error resulted in an over-reporting of 53,544 contact class hours, he told the Killeen Daily Herald.

Minister passes lie detector test; 2nd one inconclusive

DALLAS (AP) — The Rev. Walker Railey has taken two polygraph tests in which he was asked bluntly whether he had choked his wife or had conspired in the attack that left her in a coma, the minister's attorney says.

One test, administered by former Dallas police polygraph operator Bill Parker at the request of attorney Doug Mulder, showed Railey was "clearly truthful" when he answered "no" to six questions asking whether he had attacked his wife or had arranged to have her harmed, Parker said Thursday.

The second test was given by a current Dallas police polygraph operator who found the results of his examination inconclusive, said Mulder, who was hired by Railey's friends to represent the First United Methodist Church minister.

Dallas police acknowledged the tests were given but declined to discuss the results, Sgt. Pat Herring said.

Polygraphs are not admissible in court and are used primarily as an investigative tool, police and Mulder said.

Railey's wife, Margaret, 32, remains in serious condition and in a coma at Presbyterian Hospital, where she has been since Railey said he found her unconscious at the couple's home early on the morning of April 22.

Railey, who moved into a private hospital suite so he could be near his wife after the attack, was found unconscious in the private quarters on May 1 when police went to question him about discrepancies in his account of his whereabouts on the night his wife was choked in the garage of their home.

Police later said evidence indicated Railey had attempted suicide with an overdose of drugs.

Railey, 40, spent about two weeks under care at Presbyterian Hospital before he admitted himself to Timberlawn Psychiatric Hospital, where the polygraph tests were given on May 14 and 15, Mulder said.

Mulder said he arranged the tests to clear up questions about whether Railey was involved in his wife's attack, although police never have labeled the minister a suspect in the case.

While declining to discuss the polygraphs, police said Mulder and Railey have been uncooperative in investigators' attempts to question the minister.

"We've attempted several times to interview Rev. Railey to clear up some issues related with this investigation," Herring said. "Obviously he's been advised by his attorney not to cooperate."

Mulder said, however, that it's the police who are being uncooperative.

"I would like to get this thing resolved," he said. "But I insist that he be given another (third) polygraph before he is questioned further. I want them (investigators) satisfied that he is telling the truth."

With Mulder and police at an impasse, investigators said Thursday they never may be able to resolve the attack on Mrs. Railey.

"The case is still being actively investigated," said Deputy Police Chief Marlin Price.

Friends greeted prisoner

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Friends greeted Roger Vikre after his release from a Mexican prison in a quiet airport reunion tempered by the visible toll that cancer has taken on his body.

"It's great to be back," Vikre said Thursday night at the McAllen airport to supporters happy about his release, but saddened by his physical condition.

Vikre, 49, who suffers from lung cancer that appears to have spread, spent more than two years in a Mexican prison on a conviction for smuggling tires and television sets into that country until friends concerned about his health finally obtained his release.

"This is cancer," the gaunt Vikre told fellow pilots gathered in a private hangar Thursday night, removing his hat to reveal a lump the size of a golf ball on the top of his head.

Vikre was flown from the Centro Medico Hospital in San Luis Potosi, 335 miles southwest of this border city, and accompanied by Mexican immigration officials on the flight.

"The reason they released me is because I've got cancer and my chances of getting cured are better here," Vikre said.

But his ordeal was temporarily prolonged just miles from the border. Mexican immigration officials detained him for more than five hours at the Matamoros, Mexico, airport before allowing him to fly on to McAllen and pass through U.S. customs.

Vikre said the delay occurred because Matamoros officials retyped the documents he was issued before leaving San Luis Potosi.

"I'm just relieved that it's drawn to a close," said Harold Atkins, Vikre's employer at the time he was arrested in San Luis Potosi Mexico.

Vikre worked for Atkins Aviation in McAllen before authorities in San Luis Potosi apprehended him on April 30, 1985.

TB test result needs attention

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My mother works at a hospital and must have a TB test every year. For the past two years hers have come back positive, but no further action has been taken. I don't see any sense in taking the test if they aren't concerned about a positive reading. Can you please explain what the test is and whether we should be concerned?

DEAR READER — The TB test is a skin test to determine whether a person has been exposed to tuberculosis. Exposure does not necessarily mean that there is an infection that must be treated. However, a prudent doctor would want to make sure by obtaining a chest X-ray to check for pulmonary TB.

People who work in hospitals are at greater risk for TB exposure than other people. Therefore, most hospitals require annual TB tests of their employees. The purpose of this screening program is to detect positive reactors who may require treatment.

If your mother was skin-test negative and turned positive two years ago, she should have annual chest X-rays to make sure that she did not contract a pulmonary infection. She should be concerned that no one followed up on her TB-test conversion from negative to positive. She should ask her personal doctor to investigate further — not only into her health, but also into the hospital policy that allows this sort of inadequate care of its employees.

Once a person changes from negative to positive, he or she will continue to react that way indefinitely. Therefore, your mother needs no more skin tests, since she is a positive reacton already. What she does need is close monitoring to make sure that her simple exposure does not turn into a more complicated and serious infection.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son, 6, is allergic to insect bites and will swell with welts the size of golf balls. I've tried everything from skin cream to one garlic tablet daily, with no results. Can you offer any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Insect bites usually release histamine from the cells of the skin. Histamine is a naturally occurring chemical, and when it seeps into tissues, it causes a reaction: swelling, itching and — sometimes — pain.

Your son appears to have a large release of histamine. Therefore, he could be helped by taking antihistamine medicines — drugs that neutralize or block the effects of histamine. These medicines, such as chlorpheniramine and diphenhydramine, are available in over-the-counter preparations.

In addition, an allergist might be able to counteract the histamine-effects by compounding desensitization injections, which, when administered at intervals, may reduce the violence of your son's allergic reactions.

— Be informed about prescription drugs. Send for Dr. Gott's new Health Report, CONSUMER TIPS ON MEDICINES. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Reagan calls sailors 'heroes' at memorial

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. (AP) — A consoling President Reagan today told the families of sailors killed on board the USS Stark that their loved ones "were ordinary men who did extraordinary things. Yes, they were heroes."

Reagan, speaking at a memorial service for the 37 sailors killed in Sunday's missile attack in the Persian Gulf, also declared that "peace is at stake" in the troubled region.

"Were a hostile power ever to dominate this strategic region and its resources, it would become a chokepoint for freedom — that of our allies and our own," the president said in a speech prepared for delivery at a memorial service in a hangar at the frigate's home base.

Reagan lamented that "the burden of our time is so different" from that faced by earlier generations.

Recalling the casualties of World War II, he said, "while our sorrow was great in those days, I cannot help but tell you this morning that, in some ways, it was easier to bear then because it was easier to understand why we were there, why we were fighting."

The president's remarks came amid increasing controversy over the U.S. role in the troubled gulf, where the United States has agreed to have Kuwaiti tankers fly the American flag and come under the protection of U.S. warships.

On Thursday, the Senate voted overwhelmingly to require the administration to inform Congres before committing U.S. forces any more deeply in the gulf.

"Our aim is to prevent, not to provoke, wider conflict; to save the many lives that further conflict would cost us," Reagan said.

"The men of the USS Stark stood guard in the night," the president declared.

"And these fallen — whom we knew and loved but rarely thought of as great men or legends — can we now truly say they were heroes?" he asked.

Answering his own question, Reagan said, "They were great. And those that died did embody the best of us: they were ordinary men who did extraordinary things. Yes, they were heroes."

Reagan called the Persian Gulf "a crossroads for three continents and the starting place for the oil that is the lifeblood of much of the world economy."

"Even more important, this is a region critical to avoiding larger conflict in the tinderbox that is the Middle East; and our role there is essential to building the conditions for peace in that troubled, dangerous part of the world," he said.

This objective has guided the United States in seeking a negotiated end to the 6½-year-old war between Iran and Iraq, he said.

"Peace is at stake here; and so too is our own nation's security, and our freedom," the president said.

"The fallen sailors of the USS Stark understood their obligations — they knew the importance of their job," the he said.

"So, too, I believe that most Americans today know the price of freedom in this uneasy world," he added. "They know that to retreat or withdraw would only repeat the improvident mistakes of the past and hand final victory to those who seek war, who make war."

Higher education bill clears Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved a bill that could result in higher tuition rates for graduate students, but the senator sponsoring the proposal predicted any increase would be money well spent.

Senators Thursday approved three higher-education bills Thursday, one of which would allow state college boards to double tuition for graduate students, including those in law and medical schools.

"What we have done here is a significant step forward toward quality in higher education," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

"We are a long way from having an ideal system of higher education in Texas, but I think that today the Senate has gone a long way in committing this state to the principle of quality higher education," Parker said.

The original House-approved bill on tuition would have authorized doubling tuition for all state college students, but that provision was removed in Parker's committee. On Thursday, senators adopted the tuition proposal for graduate students.

Parker said Speaker Gib Lewis had assured him the House would accept the substitute tuition provision. Parker suggested the additional revenue would go for higher faculty salaries.

An amendment by Sen. Tati Santiesteban, however, might threaten an agreement with the House. The amendment would allow Mexican nationals to pay the same tuition as Texas residents at five Texas-Mexico border colleges.

Parker failed in his bid to kill the amendment, 11-17, and it was approved on voice vote.

Santiesteban, D-El Paso, said recent studies have shown that more than 7,000 south-of-the-border students each year have received complete five-year scholarships to Moscow, Cuba and China.

"They're going to come back to this country not only with a degree suitable for framing — no, but also with a philosophy of that country that naturally, in my opinion, is completely 'Hate America,'" Santiesteban said.

Lewis' bill also would require the College Coordinating Board, which would be renamed the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, to develop a five-year master plan for higher education. The plan would be updated annually.

The board would be authorized to prescribe maximum enrollment limits for each institution after consulting with the governing board of the institution and a public hearing.

Lewis' bill was returned to the House 29-1 with 14 amendments.

A bill that would require a basic skills test for freshmen was sent back to the House with two amendments on voice vote.

support, bringing the local response to a total of 212. Also, 842 individuals citizens have signed statements of support.

The Economic Development Committee formed locally through the Snyder Chamber of Commerce is seeking a 1,000-bed facility to be built here.

The estimated annual payroll for such a facility would be $6 million. In addition, it is estimated it would purchase $3.5 to $4 million per year locally in goods and services.

Also, leaders have projected that the proposed prison would interface as revenue producers for two existing institutions in Scurry County--Cogdell Memorial Hospital and Western Texas College.

Texas House...

Tort reform passes quickly

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House easily approved its own version of civil justice reform with a tort reform package designed to end the so-called crisis in the availability and price of liability insurance.

A final vote on several measures in the package was expected today.

The principal measure tentatively approved on voice vote Thursday night was an omnibus tort reform bill revising civil justice laws covering personal injury and damage suits.

Also tentatively approved on a non-record vote was a measure that would make numerous changes in state liability insurance laws, including the creation of a consumer protection division at the State Board of Insurance

More issues have been approved previously by the Senate, but House changes likely will send them to a 10-member conference committee to iron out the Senate-House differences.

Only two proposed amendments were debated in the 1½ hour consideration of the omnibus bill that included changes in law concerning comparative responsibility, punitive damages, governmental liability and frivolous lawsuits. Both proposals were defeated.

Gov. Bill Clements, who has threatened to call a special session on tort reform, praised the House for its support of tort and insurance reform. He did not say if he favored the House or Senate version.

"It will take an effort such as this to not only reform the state's tort laws, but also help bolster the state economy," Clements said.

The most crucial vote on an amendment by Rep. David Cain, D-Dallas, to make the House measure conform to the Senate bill was tabled 88-60.

"This reform is vitally needed to return predictability to our civil justice system which has contributed to the liability insurance crisis," said Rep. Mike Toomey, R-Houston, author of the House version of the Senate approved bill.

Drug probe nets over 40 arrests

By The Associated Press

More than 40 people have been arrested and charged in two separate drug investigations in Texas, authorities say.

Most of 33 suspects charged in organized crime indictments with shipping tons of marijuana into Texas and on to Michigan were arrested Thursday, Navarro County authorities said.

"These people have been involved in this operation for years," District Attorney Pat Batchelor said. "We're talking about tons of marijuana and lots of money."

In the other probe, 11 people in the Dallas area and the Rio Grande Valley were in custody and 49 pounds of cocaine were seized as a result of a six-month federal-organized crime drug enforcement task force investigation, authorities said.

U.S Attorney Marvin Collins said nine men charged with violation of federal narcotics concerning cocaine were arrested Wednesday in the Dallas area.

The suspects, who appeared before a federal magistrate and were ordered held without bail, also were charged with U.S. customs laws violations dealing with exportation of money, he said.

An 11th suspect remains at large, Collins said, noting that the arrests came after the first joint federal narcotics investigation of its kind in Dallas involving agents of the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Customs Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Two other men were arrested at the San Benito airport and charged with possession of about 26 pounds of cocaine, said Bobby R. Gillham, FBI special agent in charge in Dallas.

A federal arrest warrant executed in Brownsville resulted in the seizure of an additional 23 pounds of cocaine, Gillham said.

Arrests in the Navarro County case, which came after a grand jury handed down 38 sealed indictments Wednesday, were made across the state and in Pontiac, Mich., but at least three suspects remained at large Thursday night, Assistant District Attorney John Jackson said.

In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb with a force estimated at 58 megatons.

Citicorp's decision sends no immediate 'shock waves'

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Citicorp's decision to protect itself against bad foreign loans set off no immediate shock waves Thursday in Latin America, where governments and businesses already are braced to handle difficult debt situations.

"We think it's a good move for Citibank. We don't see anything harmful for us," said a key official at the central Bank of Mexico, who agreed to be interviewed only on condition of anonymity.

Citicorp, the biggest U.S. bank holding company, announced Tuesday it planned to set aside $3 billion to cover possible losses on foreign loans. The move will give it a $2.5 billion second quarter loss, the biggest in U.S. banking history.

The action has been well received by U.S. investors, who see it as a move to strengthen Citicorp against earnings shocks from shaky foreign loans. Citicorp shares, up $2.50 on Wednesday, rose another $2.75 to $55.87½ Thursday in active New York Stock Exchange trading.

The largest debtor nations in the Third World are Brazil, with a $108 billion foreign debt, Mexico, $107 billion, and Argentina, with a foreign debt of $52 billion.

Citicorp holds nearly $15 billion in loans to developing nations, including $4.58 billion to Brazil, $2.93 billion to Mexico and $1.52 billion to Argentina.

"It (the reserve) is simply facing up to reality," the Bank of Mexico official said. "European and Japanese banks have been recognizing reality faster than the American banks."

Indeed, a non-American foreign banker based here said he expected the biggest impact of Citicorp's move to be on other U.S. banks, which now must decide whether they should take similar positions.

"Personally, I think it's a wise move. It recognizes the real position in Latin America," the foreign banker said, also speaking on condition of anonymity.

The banker said his institution already had adopted measures to protect itself against the Third World debt situation and he did not expect Citicorp's move to make future debt negotiations any tenser than they were already.

"I can't think of many banks that are lending voluntarily to Latin American countries at the moment," he said.

The Bank of Mexico official said Citicorp sent advance word here of its decision. He said government officials don't expect that the amount of future available credit would drop because of it.

If Mexico comes up with a sound project and presents it to Citibank, the official predicted, "They will go for it."

In Argentina, local Citibank head Richard Handley said the bank had no intention of pulling out of that country. He noted the bank was involved in a new Mexican-Argentine project to build a natural gas line from Neuquen in southwestern Argentina to Buenos Aires.

U.S. discrimination surprises officials

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The mayor of a township in South Africa says he was shocked to learn some blacks, other minorities and women in the United States file anti-discrimination lawsuits.

Soweto Mayor Nelson Botile, who is part of delegation attending the International Institute of Municipal Clerks this week in Fort Worth, said the existence of racial discrimination in the United States surprised him.

"They keep telling us that America has no discrimination," said Botile, referring to white Americans who visit South Africa.

Soweto, with a population of 2.5 million, is South Africa's largest city. Most of the adults who live there work in businesses and factories in Johannesburg, a city of 1 million, where blacks cannot live. Botile is black.

But the town clerk, Nico Malan, who is white, said blacks attending the conference have told him about discrimination in America.

"I also know of South African blacks who have come here and gone back to South Africa because they could not stand the discrimination," Malan told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "My point is that you also are making mistakes in this country, and you shouldn't throw stones."

Three Johannesburg officials also are attending the conference.

Hermanus Venters, town clerk of Johannesburg, noted television reports of U.S. homeless people sleeping in parks. He commended the government for trying to find a place for the homeless, but added that divestment in South Africa will put many South Africans on the streets.

"I understand there was discrimination here 200 years ago," said R.J. Ngake, town clerk of all-black Thabong, 144 miles from Johannesburg. "Many whites tell me there is no discrimination here now."

The end of apartheid might take 20 years, Botile said, but negotiations must continue. He said living under apartheid is frustrating, but he is used to it and doesn't feel the pressure.

Nazi dictator Adolph Hitler committed suicide April 30, 1945.
