Austin. — Deadline for payment of the poll tax — the "ticket to vote" in 1966 elections — is closing in.

Democrats, Republicans, liberals and conservatives are emphasizing this in the wind-up of their voter registration drives this week.

All sides apparently are concerned that some of their supporters may fail to qualify. This because of confusion over the federal suit to ban the poll tax.

Suit has not been decided.

Att. Gen. Waggoner Carr and State Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Will D. Davis issued reminders that federal judges who will rule on that federal suit, since they will reach no decision before January 31.

Carr noted these requirements for voter eligibility in 1966:

Those who want to vote in all primary, general or special elections for nomination of candidates (including state and local), or on bond issues, constitutional amendments and other propositions — must pay the $1.75 poll tax no later than the end of the month.

Persons over 60 must obtain exemption certificates by Jan. 31.

Those turning 21 years of age can secure exemption certificates up to 30 days prior to an election, as can new residents just completing their residential eligibility by election date.

Free poll tax receipts are available through Jan. 31 to qualify voters to cast ballots for federal officers (U. S. senator and congressman only this year).

Apparently, 1966 will see lots of political action — and the voter without a poll tax will be on the outside looking in.

GOP'S TO RUN SLATE — Texas Republicans will field virtually a full slate of candidates for state-wide offices, according to National Committeeman Albert B. Fay. But they have pledged the bulk of their finances to the re-election of Sen. John Tower.

Republican executive committee members recently adopted a 1966 budget of more than $1,500,000. They earmarked 40 per cent for Tower's campaign.

Fay said the GOP will stick to its strategy of "selective" filing in local and district races and will invest its money where there's best chance of victory. Republicans see chances to capture Houston, Dallas and Panhandle congressional places and to pick up several state legislative posts.

SUITS FILED — Two would-be candidates for attorney general had to file mandamus suits with the State Supreme Court in an effort to get their names on the May 7 Democratic primary ballot.

SDEC Chairman Davis rejected applications of State Sens. Franklin Spears of San Antonio and Galloway Calhoun of Tyler, maintaining there is a question as to their eligibility.

He cited a constitutional provision that legislators are ineligible to hold offices they created or raised salaries of during elected legislative terms. Pay of the attorney general was raised by Legislature last year from $20,000 to $22,000 annually.

Both claim their senate terms expire before Jan. 1, 1967, when new attorney general's term begins. Davis says the Senators' terms extend until January 10, when next Legislature convenes. Supreme Court set arguments in the Spears case Wednesday (Jan. 19). Spears was elected in 1962. Some feel his case is "easier" than that of Calhoun who was elected to a four-year term in 1964—although reapportionment of Legislature cut all Senate terms short.

BATTLE FRONT INSPECTION — William H. Crook, Southwest Region director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, is making a tour of the state to inspect the success of the War on Poverty.

He is accompanied by Walter Richter, state OEO director appointed by Governor Connally to act as liaison between the federal officer and the state in the poverty war.

AG OPINIONS — Attorney Gen. Waggoner Carr has held that:

A court may, without jury intervention, and upon finding a defendant guilty of a misdemeanor, place the defendant on probation if all other requirements of the misdemeanor probation law are met.

Where a commissioner court changes the boundaries of the precincts, to become effective Jan. 1, 1967, the precinct residence requirement for running for county commissioner in the 1966 elections is to be determined with reference to the boundaries as they will exist.

In another opinion, Carr clarified requirements for paying witness fees under the new code of criminal procedure. Legislature has appropriated funds for payment only in felony cases.

FEDERAL PROJECTS APPROVED — Six new Operation Head Start projects and four program development grants under the Community Action Program of Economic Opportunity Act received the governor's approval.

Among Head Start projects approved was Detroit School District, $29,744.

SHORT SNORTS

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler and Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert announced for re-election.

Governor Connally proclaimed January 21 as Arbor Day in Texas and urged all citizens, especially the public schools, to appropriately observe the occasion.

Alcorn Not Much In Favor Speeding Up Congress' Method Of Voting

Editor's note: Achin Alcorn, philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sulphur has found out Congress is back in session, his letter this week indicates.

Dear Editor: Congress hadn't anymore than gotten underway last week when I found a copy of the Dallas News with an article in it — if you're wondering where I found it, it was spread out by the wind against the back screen door and when I went out I didn't even have to bend over to get it, just sort of wipe it off my face—which already was complaining about the slowness of Congressmen.

According to it, Congressmen spend too much time answering to their name on votes and quorum calls.

"In an age when electronics allows us to take pictures of Mars and transmit them over 134 million miles of space," the article said, "the House spent five entire workweeks in less than ten months last year answering, in turn, to 435 names deliberately intoned by two clerks—a total of over 240,000 times."

This horse-and-buggy process of passing laws is outrageous in this modern day, the article went on, arguing that electric voting machines and such things are long over-due in Congress.

Well now I'll tell you. There's no doubt about it, there is a faster way to vote than having 435 members of Congress answer yea or nay when a clerk calls their names, but the way I look at it, Congress is already passing more laws than we can handle, and it's possible what this country needs is not faster voting but slower clerks. No telling how many laws we could have missed last year alone if the House Clerk had been a little tongue-tied.

Speed isn't everything. There are people who are dreaming now of the day when airplanes will be so fast you can get from New York to Los Angeles in 30 or 40 minutes. Leave New York after breakfast, they say, fly to Los Angeles, and be back home for lunch. I guess this is all right, but for years now I've had breakfast and gotten hungry again in time for lunch without ever having to leave this farm. Any time I have to travel across the United States and back to eat lunch, I'm going to see a doctor. Yours faithfully, A. A.
