Be In Lamesa On Next First Monday

Lots of people are talking about "next First Monday" when Old Powder River will be back in Lamesa and looking for a rider.

Lots more people are wondering what kind of "Dog Show, T. A. Harris is going to put on" next first Monday. One thing required—the owner will have to accompany his dog or else have him in charge of some responsible person. No one will be responsible for the loss or injury to any dog in this show. But the show promises to be great and to create lots of excitement.

THEN merchants are planning to "let down the bars" so far as bargains are concerned. So get primed for Trades Day Next First Monday.

Did you know that the circulation files of the DAWSON COUNTY COURIER are open for inspection at all times to advertisers?

Don't you think that you should know exactly what you are buying when you place an ad in a newspaper?

If a customer makes the purchase of an article in your store he is at least entitled to make an inspection, he would surely be interested in the quality, size, style and other features of articles purchased in your store.

The merchants of Lamesa are invited to question their customers in regard to the COURIER. You will be surprised at the number of people in this trade territory that read our paper. We do not claim that the COURIER goes into every home in Dawson county, but we believe that a majority receive the COURIER. Visit our office and find out for yourself these facts.

BEWARE OF LOCKJAW SAYS HEALTH OFFICIAL

Austin, Texas, March 21.—Every year there are about one hundred and fifty deaths in Texas from lockjaw, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health officer. Most of these deaths have resulted from the most trivial or minor wounds or injury. Only recently a small child died from a small wound caused by a splinter being stuck in the toe.

Lockjaw or tetanus patients die an agonizing death following frequent convulsions, which are set forth by the slightest stimulation to the central nervous system. The slamming of a door or the slightest noise may cause a patient to have violent convulsions. Stiffening of the muscles in the jaw is one of the first symptoms, and it is from this fact that the disease gets its name of lockjaw.

Puncture wounds, such as those resulting from sticking a nail or thorn in the foot or hand are the most dangerous. The reason for this is that the tetanus germs can thrive only in a wound that is closed or in the presence of other germs that use up the air present. Tetanus germs do not thrive in the open air.

The prevention of lockjaw depends upon the proper care of all minor injuries. Closed wounds should be made open wounds and kept thoroughly clean. Anti-tetanus serum should be given after a puncture wound; gun powder wounds are also frequently followed by lockjaw. The period of time for this disease to develop in man is usually from six to fourteen days, depending on the amount of infection. In men, with a short period of incubation, six days or less, the disease is almost always fatal. With a longer period, the disease is usually milder and the chances for recovery greater.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Treadway of Lorraine spent Sunday here visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Collins and Mrs. and Mrs. W. K. Crawley and sons visited in Brownfield Sunday.

FOR BIBLE STUDY
A Series of Twelve Brief Lessons
By Eugene H. Surface

Lesson 1
Said Chrysostom (A. D. 347-407): "Ignorance of the Scriptures is the source of all our evils in the church." Said Erasmus (1457-1536): "The one hope of regenerating Christianity lies in a fresh story of the New Testament." Bertrand Russell, a non-Christian philosopher, recently wrote: "Western civilization is derived from three sources: the Bible, the Greeks, and Science." The Bible is placed first.

When Jesus left the earth in the flesh, the brotherhood of apostles and disciples carried on His Work. This is the Church. They met together in worship, with the Lord's Supper as the central act. Their Bible was the same Bible that Jesus Himself used; the Old Testament. It was Crucifixion that the first New Testament until some twenty years after the ment writing appeared; it was Paul's First Epistle to the Thessalonians. During the next fifteen years, Paul wrote many letters, many of which have long ago perished. The first of the Four Gospels to be written was Mark, written about A. D. 65 in Rome, just after Simon Peter's death there. Then came Matthew, written in Antioch about A. D. 85, and Luke written in either Corinth or Rome about the same time. John was written in Ephesus about A. D. 100. Most New Testament students believe that probably the last book in the New Testament to be written was Second Peter, about A. D. 150.

There is a development of thought in the New Testament; knowing when each book was written helps greatly in tracing this development from simple to complex.

Farm Notes

By Joe C. Williams
County Agent

Farmers who read this column during the next few weeks will be given information on the different rulings of the Secretary of Agriculture on the different parts of the cotton contracts.

Tenant and Landlord Problems:
According to the conference held at Atlanta, Georgia, of all states represented, the following plan was reached:

A. That no contract should be sent to Washington or accepted if there was any evidence that a side agreement had been made in favor of the landlord, which would offset public policy as stated in the contract and administrative rulings.

B. To cause or obligate either the tenant or landlord to pay over to the other his share of any benefit payment to be paid to him under acreage reduction contracts.

C. To change the status of a tenant for 1934 different to what it was in previous years to prevent such tenant from getting the usual share that he would have been entitled to receive.

D. To reduce the tenants share of the crops raised upon that portion of the farm not rented to the secretary in contemplation of the signing of reduction contracts.

E. The contract for 1934-35 shall be subject to cancellation if the landlord and tenant or tenants of the farm covered by contract, have entered into any such lease, contract, agreement or understanding either before or after the signing of such acreage reduction contract. Any payment made under such lease, contract agreement or understanding out of the proceeds of any payments arising out of the reduction contract, shall be subject to trust in favor of the Secretary and shall be repaid to the secretary by that person receiving same together with all cost of collection thereof. The Secretary shall have the right to collect such amounts should he deem it necessary to effect the purpose of the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Use of Leased Acres

A. May be used for producing food and feed crops for tenant and land lord and their families only.

B. Land planted to small grains in 1933 for harvest in 1934 may not be counted as rented acres.

C. Intercropping in ordinary wide rows is classed as one crop.

D. Orchards and berries in excess of those needed for home use may not be planted on rented acres.

E. Producer agrees not to increase the acreage in basic commodity crops over the 1932 or 1933 acreage. Namely CORN and WHEAT.

The little limit on hogs has been removed and any farmers who have sold hogs or pigs produced on farm in 1932 and 1933 can qualify.

America - here they are!

To fill the record-breaking nationwide demand, Chevrolets are being produced at a record-breaking rate of 4000 units a day!

Chevrolet
Drive it only 5 miles and you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car

CHEVROLET factories are breaking records, trying to give America all the cars it wants. 4000 units a day are rolling off the assembly lines. February output was twice that of January. March output, according to present indications, will be three times that of January. More Chevrolets are now being produced than any other make of automobile in the world. And today, Chevrolet is happy to report that all its dealers will soon be in a position to make immediate deliveries.

When you consider how short a time the new Chevrolet has been in production—when you consider, also, that the 1934 car is not last year's model improved, but a basically new automobile, with sweeping changes in design—this production record becomes somewhat of an accomplishment. But, a still greater accomplishment, in our opinion, is the way that these cars have all been produced!

Despite continued nationwide pressure for more and more volume, every car that has left the factories has been built and tested to meet Chevrolet's highest standards of care, precision and quality. The result: When you place your order for a new Chevrolet, you'll not only get a big, rugged "Knee-Action" car—you're also assured of getting a typical Chevrolet car in economy, dependability and long life.

VETERANS TO BE ENROLLED IN CONSERVATION CORPS

The following letter from Davis H. Orand, Veteran's Placement Representative for Texas, was received by the NRS office here Tuesday of this week.

"During the next thirty days, possibly about April 1st or April 15th, additional veterans will be enrolled for the Emergency Conservation Corps. Definite information is not available at this time as to the exact number, but we are of the opinion that approximately 300 will be selected from Texas.

"It is suggested that you get in touch with all veterans who are desirous of enlisting in this corps and have them get in touch with the Regional office of the Veterans Administration having jurisdiction over your county.

"This should be done without delay as the Veterans Administration will begin in a short time to make its selection."

Anyone desiring information about the above, see Jack Pionizy, local NRS Veteran representative.

Third Annual "Swift Day" at Lubbock

Thousands of farm folks in the Lubbock territory are making their plans to attend the third annual "Swift Day" meetings which will be held March 26 and 27 in the Palace and Lindsey theatres. Speakers with fees of interest, Lubbock county 4-H club teams and motion pictures are on the two day program. Both sessions will be opened at 9:30 in the morning by H. R. Doughtie, manager of the Swift & Company produce plant.

"Producing Quality Cream" will be discussed by Prof. K. M. Renner, department of dairy manufacturing, Texas Technological College. Dr. Ben Knapp, president, Texas Technological College, has as the title of his address, "A Planned Agriculture Under the New Deal." The importance of matching supply with demand and how Swift & Company meets this demand will be told to the meeting by F. M. Simpson of the agricultural research division, Chicago. In his talk on "What Consumers Tell Us" other speakers are F. A. Briggs, editor, Farm & Ranch, and R. E. Tarksbury, whose subject is "Poultry."

The 4-H Club of Lubbock county will make two appearances on the program in demonstrations during the course of the day. A film "Producing and Marketing Poultry and Eggs," will be shown and those in attendance will be the guests of Swift & Company at luncheon. A tour of inspection of the Lubbock produce plant is planned at the conclusion of the program on each day.

Bankhead Cotton Bill Passes House Monday

Associated Press dispatches Tuesday carried the vitally interesting news that the Bankhead cotton reduction bill passed the House Monday by a vote of 251 to 114 and the bill has now been sent to the Senate, where advocates say they expect an early and favorable action.

A rigid limitation of ten million bales for this year's cotton crop was set by the House as it passed the bill imposing a tax of fifty per cent of its value upon all additional lint ginned.

The bill, which has attracted much interest throughout the south, has the approval of both the administration and of the senate agriculture committee.

A decided rise in the price of cotton followed the announcement of the vote, Tuesday's market opening several points higher than Monday's.

March 31 Last Day To Register Cars

Owners of motor vehicles are warned not to forget that March 31 is the last day on which said cars or trucks may be registered without payment of the 20 per cent penalty. Tax Collector A. M. Cade asks that every effort be made to attend to this matter before the last few minutes of that day.

Should it be impossible for anyone to visit the tax collector's office at Tahoka or the Lynn County Motor Company here, the penalty may be avoided by mailing the 1933 registration receipts and the money to the offices.

South Plains Fruit Said To Be Ruined

Saturday's high winds and freezing temperature probably cut short the fruit crop over the entire South Plains. A raging sandstorm struck O'Donnell at about eight o'clock Saturday morning, and old-time residents said that the sand ruined the open blossoms while the freezing temperatures later in the day is believed to have ruined the buds.

Light frosts of snow fell during the evening, but the 48-mile wind effectively prevented it all over the ground.

JOURNALISM CONGRESS TO MEET AT LUBBOCK

Lubbock, Texas, March 22.—Sixty students comprising 12 committees met in a luncheon at a downtown hotel this week and organized work for the seventh annual meeting of the Southwestern Journalism Congress which meets in Lubbock at Texas Technological College, April 20 and 21. A partial list of the speakers on the two-day program was announced at the luncheon by Prof. Cecil Home, director of journalism and publicity at Tech.

Among those to appear on the program are: Dean Frank I. Martin of the school of Journalism, University of Missouri; Prof. Ralph L. Crossman, head of the department of journalism, University of Colorado; John M. McGinnis, editor of the Dallas News book page; Harry Montgomery, Associated Press feature service; Dr. Chas. D. Johnson, founder of the Journalism Congress; Sam P. Harben, secretary of the Texas Press Association; Lowry Martin, ex-president of the Texas Press Association. Other speakers will be announced soon.

Among entertainment features will be a student luncheon, a faculty luncheon, tea for visitors, chuck wagon barbecue, and a Mexican fiesta the last night.

TEXAS TECH SENDS SEED TO GREECE

Lubbock, Texas, Mar. 21.—As a result of samples of seed sent last spring by the Texas Technological College department of agronomy to W. W. Adams, supervisor of agricultural economics with the Near East Foundation in Salonica, Greece, an order has been received by Prof. H. M. Bell of Tech for 100 pounds of Hegari seed to be shipped in time for this year's planting. These seed were found to be well suited for Grecian soil and climate for the production of a large yield.

The order, in being handled by the college, is being supplied by one of the members of the Pure Sorghum Seed Growers Association.

GASOLINE TAX EVADERS COUGH UP $3,000,000

Austin, March 21.—Gasoline tax evaders "coughed up" more than $3,000,000 in extra revenues to the state during the first nine months of the new enforcement law now in operation, the Texas Good Roads Association estimated today from Comptroller George H. Shoppard's complete report for 1933.

Three hard-pressed state departments—schools, bond-refunding and highways—share in the captured bounty, the first two at the rate of $750,000 each and the last-named at $1,500,000.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Robin Kershaw, descendant of a pioneering family, rode with Fremont to California, made half a million in the gold fields and sought a suitable location for a cattle ranch. With his bride, who had walked beside a covered wagon in the '49 trek, Kershaw rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for ranching and cattle raising. His bride christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley, which they intend to stock with cattle, and where they plan to build their home, is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife christens Fortuna Valley.

CHAPTER II.—The Kershaws prosper. Robin Kershaw acquires the most valuable lands in Eden Valley. Trouble impends when Joel Hensley, a Texan, and as belligerent and obstinate a man as Robin Kershaw, settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. The men fight it out in smoke. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. Hensley's sons swearing vengeance.

CHAPTER III.—By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. Owen is killed in the World War. Nate Tichenor returns after an absence of nine years. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease.

CHAPTER IV.—Silas Babson, from the Middle West, unscrupulous and grasping, controls the Fortuna Valley settlement through his bank. He schemes to build a dam and control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. He first aims to secure the heavily encumbered lands of Rance Kershaw's daughter, Lorry. Babson finds surveyors already on Eden Valley lands owned by Nate Tichenor. The banker proposes to play Nate against Lorry, assuming that they are carrying on the old feud in this way getting control of the key lands necessary to the project.

THE STORY

should sell him at a reasonable price that four thousand acres with which he planned to embarrass Nate Tichenor!

He realized he must keep such a deal in advance until he could organize the Fortuna Valley Irrigation district, for, with the district formed before Nate Tichenor could complete his deal with the power company, the district could enter a condemnation suit against Tichenor, and thus block the aspirations of the power company.

He distrusted the local legal talent in a crisis loaded with potential legal dynamite, so that night he went to San Francisco to engage the services of a legal firm noted throughout the state for its knowledge of water law. Indeed, Babson was rather in a hurry to get out of town, for he considered it good strategy to be absent when old Rance Kershaw should come into the bank to argue and plead. Leave a frightened, worried man alone for four days and he's much easier to handle on the fifth. So Babson departed, unconscious of the fact that his bluff, complicated with the sudden return of Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley, was to kill Rance Kershaw and turn the current of the Kershaw hatred upon Silas Babson and all his works and pimps.

CHAPTER V

Nate Tichenor, from early boyhood, had had more than his share of experience with sudden death and tragedy, and it had developed in him a certain stolidity and philosophy in such emergencies. For ten minutes he held Lorry Kershaw's head against his shoulder and neither spoke nor moved. "Now, then, Miss Kershaw," he soothed presently, "this is no time for weakness. You're a Kershaw and none of your clan ever needed time out for that. You said you wanted to take your father home?"

She nodded dreadingly. The Kershaws, like the Hensleys, always buried their own dead.

"And I wouldn't, if I were you, permit my mind to dwell on the thought of your absolute aloneness in the world," he coaxed. "That way madness lies. I know. I've been through all that. After two years in the A. E. F. where it seemed to me, I lost every comrade I managed to achieve an affection for; after losing my mother and aunts while I was in France and realizing I hadn't a single friend in the community where I was born and raised, I found myself, when the war ended, the loneliest human being imaginable. Often I wanted to come back to Eden Valley and know you better but—"

"Yes, I understand. Father was what he was, poor dear."
"Well, be that as it may, you're not nearly so badly off as you think you are, and one of these days, when you have time to think about it, I'll tell you why." He was almost abrupt. "I suppose we'd better get along."
"Yes, I suppose so," she agreed and started her motor. Nate Tichenor followed in his car. Arrived at the Circle K headquarters no men came out to meet them.

"Where are your riders?" he queried.

"They started with the cattle drive up into the forest reserve this morning." He lifted Rance Kershaw's body out of the car, carried it into the house and disposed it on Kershaw's bed.

He drew a sheet over the corpse and rejoined the girl in the living room. "I reckon," he said, in the homely mountain idiom, "You Kershaws never have any truck with undertakers. Seems to me the Kershaws don't use preachers, either."

He Lifted Rance Kershaw's Body Out of the Car.

"No, we just read the service ourselves."
"The Hensleys always did, too. Lock the house up and drive in to Valley Center with me in my car. Have you in mind some woman friend you can bring back with you to keep you company?"

"I have no friends, Nate Tichenor." He frowned, then smiled faintly. "I forgot we're the last survivors of two clans that were beyond the pale. Well, we'll hire somebody. There must be a practical nurse in Valley Center. When we get there I'll telegraph my old superintendent, Rube Tenney, to come up here with his wife and two children."

She yielded without argument to his suggestions—commands, rather. Doctor Donaldson made no comment when, in his office an hour later, Lorry Kershaw informed him of her father's death. He was a gruff old fellow and not in the least politic, as Tichenor realized when Donaldson growled: "So you two have buried the hatchet, eh?"

He flushed as Tichenor's bleak blue eyes rebuked him.

"It's none of my business, of course," Donaldson apologized. "I merely hoped for Miss Lorry's sake—"

Nate Tichenor smiled at him. "I understand, doctor. No offense if your intentions were kindly." "Thank you, they were. When will the funeral take place?" "Tomorrow, at two o'clock," Lorry answered him.

"I'll telephone the coroner," Donaldson went on. "He'll take my word for it that an inquest isn't necessary, and issue the burial permit."
While Lorry Kershaw waited in the car, Nate Tichenor scouted around town and succeeded in engaging the services of a Miss Lizzie Bachman, who in her youth had almost graduated from a nurse's training school in San Francisco.

Not for considerable would Miss Bachman have missed this assignment. It was too meaty with gossip. Nate Tichenor dancing attendance on Lorry Kershaw!

Tichenor's next action was to call upon the editor of the local weekly paper, the Valley Center Register. "I am Nathan Tichenor, of Eden Valley," he announced. "I do not seem to remember you. Apparently you came to Valley Center after I left Eden Valley." The editor said his name was Joe Brainerd and that he was pleased to meet Mr. Tichenor.

"Mr. Ranceford Kershaw died about three hours ago, very suddenly, Mr. Brainerd," Nate told him. "No, I didn't kill him. He perished of heart disease and will be buried in the Kershaw family cemetery in Eden Valley at two p. m. tomorrow. Friends and neighbors are invited to attend. And may I ask, Mr. Brainerd, as a special favor to Miss Lorry Kershaw and myself, that you do not take this opportunity to print a couple of columns of ancient history? Although you do not know it, the Hensley-Kershaw feud ended in 1917. Both Miss Kershaw and I would like to think that the matter is by way of being forgotten and we'll both be very grateful for your co-operation."

"My dear sir," Brainerd replied with dignity, "you mustn't presume to formulate my editorial policy."

Nate Tichenor looked Brainerd over bleakly. "Very well, run it. Next week there'll be another newspaper in this town, with a real newspaper man in charge, and you'll have a taste of active competition. And now that we understand each other, I want you to run off a hundred black-bordered death notices and send a man to paste them up in various conspicuous places around the town. That used to be the custom in this country. A few people might like to know of Rance Kershaw's death, so they can come to his funeral as advertised."

He wrote out the copy for the job-printer, paid his bill and departed without further conversation. The editor put on his hat and walked over to the local hotel upon the veranda of which sat Mr. William Rooney, the deputy sheriff of the Valley Center district.

"Bill," he queried, "what do you know about Nathan Tichenor?" "Nothing bad, why?"

"Would you say that a threat of his should be taken seriously?"

The deputy sheriff rolled a comical eye at the editor. "I haven't seen the boy since he was in high school here, but from what little I know of his tribe I should say none of that breed ever made a threat. They made promises—an' kept 'em."

"I sized him up that way," the editor replied. After eliciting from Brainerd all the news the latter had, Mr. Rooney strolled away to distribute his tidbit of gossip around Valley Center. Almost the first place he went was to the Bank of Valley Center. Henry Rookby, in charge during Babson's absence, received him.

"I see young Nate Tichenor's back in the country. An' Rance Kershaw's kicked the bucket. Died o' heart disease right smack in front of the Bar H gate, an' Nate Tichenor an' Lorry Kershaw 've been in town together an' thicker'n thieves."

"When the cuts away the mice'll play, I suppose. Who told you all this?" "Brainerd. Tichenor was in an' gave him the story."

"That Nate Tichenor's a bad lot," Mr. Rookby murmured darkly. "I never liked him. I've mean to tell me he's around with Lorry Kershaw now, helping her out in her trouble?"

Mr. Rooney nodded. "The hypocrite! He's back here to smash the Kershaw outfit. Not another reason in life, Bill. Rance Kershaw's estate must owe Tichenor more'n three hundred thousand dollars an' for the past three years old Rance has been using clam shells and woodpecker's heads for money. Interesting situation. Very interesting."

When he turned to wait on a customer Mr. Rooney continued on to the Valley Center garage to discharge another load of his interesting information.

Arrived back at the Circle K headquarters with Lorry Kershaw, and Miss Lizzie Bachman, Nate Tichenor, after the fashion of a rural neighbor, did the chores. He realized that, with the men all away, Lorry would have had to do them.

He ate his dinner in silence, for both he and Lorry were acutely aware of the presence of Miss Bachman and distrusted her. After dinner he kindled a log fire in the living room fireplace. He was a straight, well-set-up young man, not overly thick but muscular; he had a little crescent out of his left ear and a faint white scar about three inches long across his left temple and disappeared into his hair. His teeth were strong, even, white and well cared for. His nose, thin and high and a fraction too long, tended to spoil what would otherwise have been a handsome face, but lent to him an air of distinction. It was the nose of a thoroughbred, a thinker. His eyebrows, heavy and almost black, were a bit overhanging, thus giving to his glance an expression of alertness and directness, particularly when he asked one a question.

Lorry had already observed that he moved with quick, precise motions, like one very sure of himself and in the pink of physical condition.

About eight-thirty the nurse retired; as her bedroom door closed behind her Nate Tichenor arose, shoved an easy chair toward the fire and waved Lorry into it. He remained standing until she had seated herself.

"Too bad your father wasn't here when I called this morning. I might have preserved his life for many years," Tichenor snapped his fingers. "Kismet!" he murmured.

"We thought you were waiting until we got in so deep we couldn't swim out, then you could smash us more easily."

"I don't seem to remember you. Apparently you came to

"Had I chosen to smash you a long time ago there was nothing to stop me. You were helpless."
"Then why didn't you?"
"I didn't need the money and I knew I could always protect myself. I could have gotten the ranch at 25 per cent of its value. As a matter of fact,

"Had I Chosen to Smash You a Long Time Ago There Was Nothing to Stop Me."

I did plan to buy your mortgage. Surely you do not think I am so careless as not to have kept a close watch on the Kershaws."

"Your people always wanted all of Eden Valley, of course. So you planned to buy the mortgage and foreclose."

"No, I planned to buy it and hold it, because only in that way could I be assured the Kershaws wouldn't be annoyed. I planned to give you time to work out of the jam you are in; then, if you couldn't make the grade, I planned to buy your outfit, lock, stock and barrel, at a fair price. Owen was dead, your father was a cripple and you couldn't operate the business—"

"Of course I could operate it," she challenged. "And I shall. The cattle business is bound to recover. It's getting better every day. Within two years beef will be selling at ten cents on the ranch."

"I do not doubt that. Who is your father's foreman?"

"I am. Since graduating from the university in 1921 I have operated this business. I do a man's work. I know cattle and I know my job. I can ride, rope, and brand and I bust my own saddle stock. I hire and I fire. I've had to do it."

"And you want to keep on doing it?" The girl nodded.

"Well, carry on."
"I cannot unless you buy the ranch mortgage to protect me—and yourself, otherwise it will be foreclosed."

"In a few days," he suggested, "go to see Babson and say that I am inclined to grant you additional time provided he will do the same."

"I can't understand why you are so kind."

"It's a fault I inherited from my father." A tiny smile lit around his firm mouth. "Your grandfather tried hard to be neighborly to my grandfather but my grandfather was hard-bodded and mean and stupid and wouldn't play the game; as a result he spoiled all subsequent opportunities for his clan. It's my chance now and I have a curious yearning to make good, particularly since it will not cost me anything," he added bluntly, as if ashamed of his chivalry.

"I thank you more than I can say. We've been paying the bank in Valley Center 12 per cent on our unsecured loans."

"Well, 12 per cent is legal in this state, Miss Kershaw. However, strike Babson for a reduction to 7. Give him an argument. You may win. Babson's probably as hard as a picnic egg, but he may have an unsuspected soft spot."

"I wish I could agree with you, but I find that impossible. Our ranch was mortgaged to a San Francisco bank, but recently Babson bought it from them—"

"He has a hen on," said Nate Tichenor, "and I'll have to find out whether it's a Bantam or a Plymouth Rock. A coward and a potential crook. Money-mad. A schemer. Miss Lorry, he wants the Circle K ranch. When he ascertained from my attorney that the Bar H was not for sale, he decided to acquire the Circle K, so immediately he purchased your mortgage."

"But why has he developed this sudden interest in Eden Valley?" "I do not know, but I intend to find out. However, he'll never own the Circle K. Whenever you find yourself unable to hang on to it, I'm the rightful heir to it. Understand?"

"Perfectly. You're sure you will not permit him to crowd me? Sure this isn't a generous impulse because you find me in such a sad case today? An impulse you may, with reason, regret next week?"

He drew a checkbook from his inner breast pocket, went to her desk and signed a check in blank. "You fill that in for what your father's estate owes Babson and his bank," he ordered curtly, "and secure me with your promissory note."

She tossed the check in the fire. "What's your interest in me?" she demanded. "I can understand sympathy and gentlemanly kindness but not

A GAS WATER HEATER MUST PASS RIGID TESTS

To merit The Testing Laboratory Blue Seal!

In the photograph above a testing expert in A. G. A. testing laboratory is testing a new automatic water heater to see if it meets the Thermal Efficiency requirement.

The automatic gas water heater does its work so quietly and well that its very existence is forgotten days at a time by the entire family. Its principle is, of course, a regular cycle of water temperature. When the maximum temperature of the water is reached, the thermostat turns off the gas, and automatically turns it on again when the temperature drops to the correct minimum. The very fact that it is automatic, silent, and hidden makes it particularly important when you purchase a new one, that it meets the exacting requirements of the American Gas Association testing laboratories for construction, performance and safety.

These requirements, though, do not necessarily add to the manufacturing and selling cost of the water heater you buy; and hence you can find a wide selection of models possessing the BLUE SEAL, at popular prices. This is likewise true of all other gas appliances . . . so that you do not need to feel that because you are buying a low priced appliance, you cannot expect to have a model with the BLUE SEAL affixed to the side or back of it.

SUNSET

By M. Wilson

Well it seems as though we all survived the blizzard, but we are awful afraid our fruit didn't. Here's hoping it was a farewell blizzard and spring will come to stay this time.

Miss Hazel Brock spent the week with Mrs. Lon Holly. Mrs. Holly has been in ill health for some time and is not improving very fast. We all hope she will be better soon.

Several children who have moved to the Sunset district lately have started to school.

Mr. G. R. Wilson of Munger is moving to Mrs. Annie Bishop's place. Mr. Wilson is an old friend of ours, and we welcome him and his family to our town.

Mr. W. L. and Rand Lee were business visitors in Lamesa Saturday.

Bro. D. C. Lindley will preach at New Home church next Sunday. Every one come and try to get someone to come with you.

We are going to try to get the New Home church moved soon, and hope all will cooperate so that it won't be hard on any one. We feel that the church will grow and do better work at the new church site.

Mr. Holly is about to trade his filling station to Mr. W. C. Brock of Hagin so he may take Mrs. Holly to a better climate. We hate to see Mr. and Mrs. Holly go away, but if it will improve her health we will be glad.

Most farmers are going right along with their plowing, and are doing very good work too, for the season to be so dry. We are all in good heart and have high hopes of a fair crop and better times in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Holly visited Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brock of Hagin Sunday.

CASH PAID FOR SLOGAN

For the best slogan submitted by contestants entering the SLOGAN CONTEST advertising Lamesa and Dawson County, will go the grand prize of $20.00. For the second best, $5.00; and for the next five best, $1.00 each. In order to make the proposition clear to the people of this trade territory, we offer as an illustration: Lubbock is known as the "HUB OF THE PLAINS", Littlefield as "THE PULSE OF THE PLAINS", Stanton as "WHERE HEALTH, HAPPINESS AND PROSPERITY AWAIT THE HOMESEEKER," and many other towns are made familiar over the country by a well phrased slogan.

Three judges will be appointed by the DAWSON COUNTY COURIER to decide on the winning slogan. After a winning slogan has been selected it will appear on the front page of the DAWSON COUNTY COURIER each week thereafter. All slogans that have been mailed in and reach our office by Wednesday of each week will appear in that week's issue of the paper.

CONTEST NOW GOING ON

The SLOGAN CONTEST started Friday, February 23rd and has been extended by popular request until Saturday, March 31st. This will give every family in the Lamesa Trades Territory an opportunity to enter the contest. Come in today and secure entry blanks and enter the SLOGAN CONTEST.

RULES FOR ENTERING CONTEST

All slogans submitted must consist of not more than fifteen (15) words and not less than four (4) words. One subscription entitles each member of the family to enter a slogan, provided that they are living in the same house together as one family. There is no restriction on age limit. Every member of the family will be eligible from the youngest to the oldest.

25c BARGAIN RATE IN FORCE

The 25c bargain rate that is now in force in Dawson, Gaines, Borden and Martin counties will be continued until the contest ends. It is not necessary that you come to our office to enter the contest.
