Two Fires Downtown Damage Building Here

Friday Blazes At Moser Co., Ben Franklin

Two fires in two hours in downtown Colorado City threatened the business district Friday afternoon.

First fire was discovered on the roof of the Ben Franklin Store, 195 East 2nd St., at 3:02 p. m. by Harold Maniss, owner of an office and photograph supply business across the street.

Building housing the Ben Franklin store was in the process of getting a new topping on the roof. Roofing contractors were busy spreading roofing tar, heated to about 300 degrees, when the fire erupted.

Volunteer Fire Department answered the alarm with two fire trucks. Flames were extinguished with water from one pumper truck.

Charles Freeman, owner of Ben Franklin Store, said Saturday that the major damage to his store was complete loss of an air-conditioning unit on the roof of the building. There was minor damage to some store stock when sparks were sucked through air-conditioning system ducts, he said.

"All in all, I guess around $1,000 will cover my loss," Freeman said. "But if the fire boys hadn't got on it so quick it could have been a sad story."

At 5:06 p. m. Ewell Henderson, owner of Henderson Ice Co., turned in the alarm for a spectacular blaze in Moser Wholesale Produce Co., owned and operated by Joe Moser, 140 Oak St.

Scene of the second fire is one block down and half a block south of the first blaze. Billows of dark smoke coming from the south wall of Moser's building were spotted by Henderson. In the matter of seconds smoke filled the alley adjoining Palace Theater on Walnut St.

Fire Chief J. A. Sadler Jr. and Volunteer Firemen sped to the Moser fire and fought it with both units of fire fighting equipment.

Flames apparently started in a south corner near an office desk. Before the blaze was brought under control all three motors which cool the wholesale firm's cold vaults were lost. Vaults were not damaged, Moser said.

Insurance adjusters were still figuring damages Saturday at noon and no estimate of damage in dollars and cents was available. However, Moser said, a complete new roof will be necessary. Building itself, of concrete and steel, was less extensively damaged. Interior received heavy damage from flames, smoke and water.

Perishable fruits and vegetables, stored in the cold vaults, were not hurt, Moser said. Quick action by Volunteer Fire Department, both Freeman and Moser reported, can be credited with confining both fires and preventing spread of flames to other downtown buildings.

Curry Rites Pending Here

Mrs. M. H. Curry, 83, resident of Buford since 1906, died at 5 a. m. Saturday at the home of her daughter Mrs. Glenn Harris.

She was a member of Northside Church of Christ. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Kiker & Son Funeral Home.

Survivors are her daughter Mrs. Harris and two other daughters, Mrs. Opal Spell of Ft. Worth and Mrs. Alva Bruce.

DRAWS 100 RIDERS

Western Arena's Rodeo Action Fast

Saturday night's Western Riding Club Amateur Rodeo performance was expected to draw the top crowd of the three-night event here.

The Colorado City Amateur Rodeo, second annual show, opened with speedy contests Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Scurry County Sheriff's posse rode in the opening night grand entry to set the pace.

First performance saw Bobby Northcutt rope and tie his dog in 14.9 seconds competing in the Mitchell County roping contest with a hand-tied saddle at stake as first prize in the event. Bubba Swann came in second with a roping time of 16.2 seconds.

Open calf roping event, Thursday evening, put Leroy Hodges of Tuscola out in front with a fancy time of 13 seconds flat. Royce Kitchens of Cisco was second with 29.6

seconds. Doyle Sanders San Angelo, third with 36.5.

Only two cowboys completed their bareback rides the first night. They were Jerry Watts of Wichita Falls and Jack Chapman of Abilene. Saddle broncs proved equally rough. Royce Roderick and Jodie Reid, of Dean, managed to stay in the saddle and qualify.

Jim Roberts of Lubbock led the bulldogging event with 9 seconds needed to down his steer. Bull riding contest ended, first show, with Roderick in first, Reid in second spot. Barrel races for girls, a new event this season, wound up with Barbara Jackson, Colorado City, doing 19.8; Susan Martin of Aspermont, 20 flat; Linda Byrne and Lynn Wilson, both of Sweetwater, tying for third with 20.1 seconds.

Friday night events were heated contests, weather-wise.

Temperatures were ranging well over 100 degrees as the second night show went on. Clay Smith Jr. pranced off the second night honors for

Forgery Suspect Captured

A man wanted in Colorado City on charges of burglary and theft of guns from the Jim Maddox ranch home is still at large.

In a Record account published in the Thursday issue it was erroneously reported that Charles A. Nagle, charged with burglary here, had been arrested in Louisiana.

The man who was picked up in Louisiana is Randle Meredith. Meredith was charged July 1 with forgery by tricked Less Fuller, owner of credit cards after he allegedly Truck Town, out of $23.19 worth of Diesel oil.

Sheriff Lewis Claxton said Saturday that the gun-burglar has not been apprehended to date and is still at large.

Hot, Hotter, Hottest Days Here in July

July in C-City is hot and growing hotter by degrees. Degrees over the 100 mark have been registered at official weather station every day except one since July 1 and Friday found the official reading 104 degrees with lows of 79 and 75. The local radio station's reading was 106 both days. Sprinkling system on the courthouse lawn sometime make a difference of several degrees, said Virgil Eaton.

Readings for the first 10 days of the month are: July 1, 101; July 2, 102; July 3, 101; July 4, 99; July 5, 100; July 6, 100; July 7, 100; July 8, 102; July 9 & 10, 104. Low readings have ranged from 69 to 79 during the period. To date it has rained exactly .13 inch in July here.

W. S. Rhodes Attend Rites

Mrs. M. A. Childers, mother of Mrs. William S. Rhodes, died in San Antonio Wednesday morning.

Funeral was held at 10 a. m. Friday in Travis Park Methodist Church of which she had long been an active member. Burial was in San Antonio.

In addition to people who like to act, Colorado City Playhouse will have a place for stage hands, electricians, wardrobe and properties workers, makeup artists, ushers and ticket takers.

First production of the infant local acting group is planned for late summer. Reading for parts will decide selections for the cast with non-competing members of Colorado City Playhouse as judges or reading talents.

Country Club Sets '64 Golf Tourney

Colorado City Country Club's 16th annual invitation golf tourney is set to start Friday and will run through July 19.

Tournament will be limited to the first 96 paid entries this season. More than 40 entries have already been received, said Luther Coffman, chairman of the tourney for '64.

Working with Coffman as golf tourney committee are Bill Craig, Ray Mize, Ben Sparks, Grady Furlow, Clem Myers, Jinks Powell, Horace Hendricks, and Jim Maddox.

Friday July 17 is the day set for qualifying in the championship flight. Players in all other flights may qualify or turn in a score that day, also. Eighteen holes on Friday are required for all golfers intending to qualify for the championship flight.

Barbecue at the Country Club will be served to golfers, guests and members Friday evening. Powell and Hendricks are in charge of barbecue party plans.

Saturday will see the start of match play with 18 holes scheduled for the morning, another 18 holes in the afternoon.

The annual tourney dance is planned for Saturday night in the club ballroom with a professional dance band from Snyder as musicians. Maddox is chairman of arrangements for the dance.

Sunday morning there will be 18 holes of competition golf. Finals will be played Sunday afternoon to decide the champions.

Champions will be awarded six sets of Hogan golf clubs along with the trophies for various flights. Tourney awards will be presented immediately after the finals, Sunday.

REMODELING PROJECT

County Hires New Architect for Plans

Howard Allen, architect with the firm of Allen and Allen in Lamesa, was employed Wednesday by Mitchell County Commissioners Court as architect for courthouse remodeling.

Allen will submit plans for the complete modernization, renovation and remodeling of first and second floors of Mitchell courthouse.

Among other features planned is the installation of an elevator to serve all three floors. County courtroom will be completely done over. Larger quarters for the offices of the county clerk and the tax assessor-collector are planned. Third floor of the courthouse, first to be redone, is one of the most modern in this area. District courtroom, dormitories for jurors on duty, a deliberation room, offices for the district clerk, district judge and district attorney are located on third floor.

County court is located on second floor, at present, with other offices, occupied by the sheriff, the justice of peace, county superintendent, veter-

VEAL VS. LONE STAR

State Court Upholds Damage Suit Verdict

State Supreme Court of Texas has upheld a 32nd Judicial District Court decision awarding H. G. Veal $46,904 a damage suit against Lone Star Gas Co.

Lone Star's appeal of the judgement on a writ of error plea was passed over in favor of Veal, 836 East 6th St., Colorado City.

The suit was first heard here. Veal asked a total of $82,730 for physical injuries and damages to his property resulting from an explosion April 4, 1961, of gas which had escaped from his yard line. The explosion rocked the shoe repair shop owned and operated by Veal.

Records of the case showed that Veal laid the main, city workmen inspected it and Lone Star connected it to the company's system in 1953.

Testimony also showed that Veal had complained about a gas odor as early as 1957.

Lone Star inspectors told him the smell probably came from materials. Veal used in his shoe repair business, court records show.

At the Colorado City trial in Sept. 1963, gas company spokesmen argued that Lone Star had no duty to maintain inspection of Veal's yard line.

District Judge Eldon Mahon held that Lone Star Workmen were experts and that Veal was not. The company was ordered to pay Veal a $42,904 judgement.

Lone Star appealed. The 11th Court of Civil Appeals in Eastland upheld the 32nd District Court decision. This week the State Supreme Court also upheld the judgement.

Veal, 61 at the time of the blast, was burned extensively on face, hands and chest. He suffered painful second degree burns.

Owner of the City Boot Shop, he was in the basement of the building when the explosion happened at about 10 a. m. April 4, 1961. He had just flipped a light switch in the basement, his statement said.

Force of the blast blew out front windows and broke a plate glass window in a service station next door. Veal was trapped by debris on the basement stairs. A passer-by freed him after hearing his cries for help. The building was completely wrecked.

Veal is now retired and suffers an arthritic condition in his hands.

The law firm of Ratliff McCloud represented him during the trial in Mitchell County. After Austin McCloud's appointment and later election to the post of district judge, Veal was represented by Warren Brock of Houston.

Daughter of Former Mitchell Countians Weds

Miss Drubette Elizabeth Cook, daughter of Mrs. Ross Cook of Memphis, Tex. and the late Mr. Cook, long-time Mitchell County farmer, will be married to David Ray Howell of Breckenridge Saturday night, July 11, in a formal ceremony in the Memphis Church of Christ.

The bride, Miss Cook, is a niece of J. C. Cook, Mrs. Farris Lipps and Mrs. Juanita Johnson, all of Colorado City, and a granddaughter of the late Mrs. D. W. Cook, pioneer Mitchell County resident.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Howell of Breckenridge.

Double-ring vows were read before a white altar flanked with greenery and white gladioli. Wedding music was sung by an A Capella chorus from Abilene Christian College.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Williams of Dallas and matron of honor was Mrs. David Rose of Abilene. Bridesmaids were Misses Mary Ann Lipps, cousin of the bride from Colorado City, Nancy Thompson, Abilene, Carolyn Montgomery, Memphis, and Jeanne Bond, Kansas City, Kan.

Bride attendants' matching floor-length gowns of blue silk taffeta were fashioned with scoop neckline, tiny sleeves and slightly raised waistline. They wore elbow-length mantillas of imported Belgium lace draped over tall combs from Spain.

Tracy McClothlin of Abilene served as flower girl and her sister Kelly was ring bearer. Tracy scattered rose petals from a white lace basket and Kelly carried the wedding rings in the heart of a rose.

Best man Philip Basham of Breckenridge was assisted by groomsmen B. H. Cook, Memphis, Randy Howell, David Rose, Lee Thompson and Don Tharp of Abilene.

Given in marriage by her

MRS. DAVID RAY HOWELL
nee Drubette Elizabeth Cook

uncle, Farris Lipps of Colorado City, the bride's father, was organist and her father-in-law, David Rose of Abilene, assisted in serving the reception. The bride's chosen colors of antique ivory and turquoise were reflected in the bride's gown. She wore a full-length chapel train and a full-length chapel length mantilla of imported Belgium lace, attached to a headpiece of lace and pearls.

She carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis bound to a white satin ribbon inscribed with the insignia of her sorority, Kappa Chi.

A reception, following the ceremony was in the new Christian College.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Mrs. Mathews Speaks at WMU

Mrs. Caddo Matthews, wife of the Plainview Baptist Church pastor, spoke before a meeting of the Women's Missionary Union of First Baptist Church Tuesday morning.

Having recently returned from a 3-week tour with her family of the Northwest, Mrs. Matthews told the WMU of Southern Baptist work being done in that area. The Matthews made the trip to Portland, Ore. and other points in the Northwest in connection with the Interstate Baptist Association, a Southern Baptist organization.

In Portland, headquarters of the Association, her husband renewed acquaintances with a friend of 27 years, Dr. Roy Johnson, I. B. A. missionary. At another stop on the trip, Rev. Matthews preached a revival in White Salmon, Washington.

Mrs. Matthews and her family also visited a number of missions and their pastors. She was able to relate to the WMU of Southern Baptist accomplishments she had witnessed firsthand in the Northwest.

During the business session, Mrs. H. B. Graves was elected new WMU president succeeding Mrs. J. Wells Slater. Voters also selected

Mrs. L. B. Gibson as first vice-president and Mrs. Chester Hart as recording secretary. Mrs. John Winkler was chosen the new YWA director and Mrs. Earline Sellers is the new GA director.

Twenty members were present at the meeting conducted in the parlor of the church's educational building.

Pfc. John Stewart Assigned To Korea

Army PFC John T. Stewart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Silver, was recently assigned to the 1st Artillery in Korea.

Stewart, a 1968 graduate of Colorado High School, attended Texas Technological College in Lubbock and was employed by Beetle & Womack Construction Co. before entering the Army in June 1962.

He completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and is a missile crewman in Battery A of the 1st Artillery's 8th Missile Battalion.

SUNDAY NIGHT

Methodist Summer Seminar Beginning

First Methodist Church Summer Seminar for high school and college-age youth begins tonight (Sunday) at 6:30.

Supervised by summer youth director Rev. John Kahl, the week-long seminar's theme is "Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

Each night's seminar activities begins with a work project at 5:00 followed by supper at 6:30. Monday night will feature a watermelon "bust" at the supper hour. Recreation, which is as varied as the nightly programs, comes after supper.

Opening program, presented by Rev. Kahl, is entitled "Who Am I?" an example of a motif that will each night suggest a different aspect of man's responsibility to others. Other program highlights during the week include: a discussion on the nature and purpose of the Church called, "Am I the Church?" and the showing of a full length color film.

The film, "Freedom," is produced and directed by Africans and depicts the struggles and hopes of a young African nation. It will be shown Wednesday.

On Thursday night, Joyce Godwin, Clay Strange and Chris Cooper will act in a play entitled "Armageddon," a dialogue between God and Satan on the nature of God's actual reality.

All youth of high school age and above are invited to attend the First Methodist summer seminar.

Congratulations!

Monterrey Musician To Sing Sunday

First Baptist Church congregation will have a guest musician, Dr. Luden Gutierrez on Monterrey, Mexico, Sunday.

Dr. Gutierrez, a professor in a dental school and also in the medical school in Monterrey, is son of Rev. and Mrs. Aurelio Gutierrez of Emanuel Baptist Mission church in Colorado City. He is visiting here while enroute to Glorietta to attend a Music Leadership Conference, July 16-22.

In Mexico, in addition to his college teaching duties, Dr.

Gutierrez directs two church choirs. He is music director for Union Church, which is American, and of Main Baptist Church, a Spanish-speaking congregation.

His Spanish choir is to be featured in a tour of the State of Texas promoting the Latin American Crusade. Dr. Gutierrez will direct the singers in appearances at Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston and Corpus Christi.

The doctor, graduate of Wayland Baptist College and of Texas University medical schools, spends his spare time translating lyrics of American hymns into the Spanish language for his Spanish-speaking choir in Monterrey.

Mitchell County Library Abounds In Cookbooks

Mitchell County Federation Library may not keep its shelves well-stocked with the latest best-sellers, but one thing is for certain—it is definitely up-to-par in the cookbook department.

There are close to 20 cookbooks in the library—of every size, type, and description possible—written especially for children, old-timers, teenagers, young brides, middle-aged wives, calorie-counters, people who love to cook and people who would rather do anything but cook.

In fact, Mrs. Boyd Dozier, librarian, reports that the most popular cookbook among library users in one titled "The I Hate To Cook Book," by Peg Bracken. Not only is it a very funny book, but according to Mrs. Dozier, the recipes tested by C.C. City readers have turned out deliciously.

The "I Hate To Cook" blurb reads: "This is such a clever book that no one need ever know how much you hate to cook. The more than 180 recipes are quick, easy, and tested by other housewives. . . not only are the recipes simple as ABC but they're imaginative as well. Easy meals don't have to be dull and Peg Bracken proves it."

In addition to the recipes, there is lots of sound—and very amusing—advice about kitchen problems. She discusses leftovers ("when in doubt, throw it out"); things to do with vegetables, salads and salads dressings; last-minute meals, children's parties and dinners to impress people.

There is a bonus chapter of indispensable household hints, about burns (even the best cooks get them), how to get juice from a dried-up lemon (heat in boiling water), how to feed a sick and irritable child, and many other vital bits of information.

For the modern home maker, there are also cookbooks in the library devoted to recipes which are made with an electric blender. One of these is "The Blender Cookbook", by food experts Ann Seranne and Eileen Gaden. It offers more than 500 recipes covering all courses, with suggested menus based on recipes in the book.

It reminds the reader that blenders can be used to make such diversified dishes as orange marmalade, hot breads, pickles, meat loaf and mayonnaise, to name a few of hundreds. "The Blender Cookbook" is illustrated and includes 9 "how-to" sequences for special blender operations.

Another partial cookbook is edited by the food editors of Farm Journal. Not only homemakers on ranches and farms, but in town, too, will find that the "Freezing and Canning Cookbook" comes in mighty handy.

It provides complete directions for preserving food and putting it away for future use. "How-to-do" sections gives up-to-date information on all methods of home freezing, canning, and curing of meat, based on the latest research by the Department of Agriculture and University Agricultural Experiment Stations. Other sections contain more than 1000-recipes (using home-preserved food) submitted by Farm Journal readers from all over the U. S., thoroughly kitchen-tested by the magazine's home economists.

The reader will learn how to prepare casseroles, breads, cakes, pies, and even complete meals that can be frozen, then quickly heated and served later. Attractively illustrated, it is not only a complete guide to freezing and canning but a useful year-round cookbook.

Helen Corbitt, director of restaurants at Neiman-Marcus, is internationally known for creative, delicious meals such as those served in Neiman's famous Zodiac Room. She has put her knowledge to use in writing several cookbooks, all of which are on the library's shelves.

"Helen Corbitt's Cookbook" is her major work and the best-selling, but her two newest books are also worth mentioning. One is "Potluck", a collection of easily served "feasts" that can be prepared with a minimum of time and ingredients. "Potluck", she writes, "is what you decide to cook today, from what's on hand."

The other is "Mexico Through My Kitchen Window," actually a Mexican cookbook edited in English by Miss Corbitt. The editor has tested each of its recipes in her own kitchen. For those who love Mexican food but don't know quite how to prepare it, this book is perfect. There are recipes for every part of a meal, from tortillas to dessert, and a special chapter on the fiesta foods of Mexican holidays.

Perhaps the most interesting reading, at least to folks around these parts, is found in that old standby, "A Taste of Texas."

More than 300 favorite recipes with names as fascinating as the product itself (samples: Mince-meat Mother-in-Law, Pigeon Pie, Corset-maker's Despair) have been culled from some 2,000 sent in by Texans, each convinced of the worth of their own culinary abilities.

It took 3 full semesters for the home economics department of Texas Women's University to screen every recipe for preparation, flavor, texture and appearance. They were also considered in the light of origin, section of the country, and how good the stories were that accompanied the recipes.

An index of contributors is at the end of the book. Perhaps someone you know is among them. "A Taste of Texas" is unique because its recipes, like the people who made them, have a personality all their own.

Mitchell On Crusade Honor Roll

Mitchell County is one of 79 Texas counties on the 1964 Cancer Crusade honor roll citing Texas counties for "Bettering Their Best."

Cancer Crusade have this year, sponsored by the Mitchell County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, brought in a total of $3365 as compared to a total of $3266 in 1963.

Bob Carver served as Crusade chairman this year. The drive for funds was staged by team captains and volunteer-workers appointed by Carver.

Craddock Receives 50-Year Pin

J. S. (Jess) Craddock Sr. has been awarded his pin and certificate as a Master Mason for 50 years.

Craddock became a Master Mason March 9, 1914 in Haystack Lodge No. 606 AF and AM, in Robert Lee. He served Hayrick Lodge in two separate occasions as worshipful master and moved his membership to Mitchell Lodge in Oct., 1945.

Lewis B. Elliott was speaker for the formal program honoring Craddock. Elliott's subject was "Principle Tenants of Free Masonry." T. M. Wylie, Hayrick Lodge, was a guest. Wylie is son-in-law of Craddock.

CONVERSATION CORNER

EVER hear the parable about the Mountain of Burdens? It's a good one to remember when you have a heavy heart. It's supposed to have taken place in some long ago time, in some far away place where people lived together in a peaceful village.

The sun shone by day and the moon climbed high at night. Winds whispered and the birds called back. There was beauty to share. There were families. And friends. And honest work to do.

BUT the people were not happy with their world. They all had burdens to bear.

There were homes where death had come to separate the here from the hereafter. There were homes where tall young sons and daughters had gone away to the city to seek a thing called success.

There was pain in frail bodies. And some people had lots more money than some other people.

So, all in all, the people in the village were pretty dissatisfied. There were burdens, always burdens to bear.

EVERYBODY in the village decided one day the particular burden carried was the biggest, the worst, the most heart-breaking and the most hopeless of any burden in the village.

Everybody began to mouth about it. They even took to arguing. "My trouble and my burden is far, far heavier than any worry of yours," they said to each other. And every single grownup in the village believed himself when he spoke.

SO IT WAS that the wise man of the village, after much pondering, decided to let everybody swap burdens and choose one easier to carry.

"Bring your burdens to the foot of the mountain," he told all the people, "and you can exchange for one to your liking."

People smiled all that day. People sang in the bath and played with their children. People worked and went about the business of just living. Everybody kept thinking how fine it would be to swap burdens with the neighbors.

AT SUNSET, the hour set for the trip to the mountain, all the people walked along together laughing all the way.

The strong helped the weak, the brave took the hands of the afraid. Nobody went to the mountain crying. Were they not to leave their fearful burdens there?

So they piled all the burdens in a heap and started over. "You take this one I'll take that one," they said to each other. And then when everybody had a brand new burden instead of the one usually carried, they all went home again.

NIGHT CAME. But in all the village nobody slept that night. Their new burdens wouldn't let them. They were not used to the weight, the shape, the size, the feel of the new load.

People were still not happy. They wept. When morning came they met along the streets wringing their hands and saying, "Ah, how heavy this thing can be! How did you ever stand it?"

And so the wise man of the village called them all together again. He asked them all, "Shall we gather again at the Mountain of Burdens?"

JUST before sundown they all trudged to the foot of the mountain again. It had been a weary day.

People piled the burdens high again. This time they exchanged for their very own—the one they had often thought too heavy.

"Well, at least I'm used to this one," they smiled at each other. "I think I'll lift my head—just so—I can see the evening star tonight."

And everybody went home reasonably satisfied again. Everybody except the village wise man who shook his head.

"People are such children," he thought, watching the young help the old and the strong lead the weak ones down the path toward home. "People never know when they're well off," the wise man said to himself.

OF COURSE it never really happened. If people could really swap burdens there would be a knock-down-drag-out fight to see who'd get the lightest.

All the lonely would want a gay old time. The blind would have to see. The poor would take big bank accounts. The crippled would dance all night. The sat-at-homes would travel and the weary traveler rest.

IT WOULD wind up in confusion. Like the Tower of Babel. So the moral to the parable is evident: To each his own burden.

If you can't swap, learn to stand it. If you can't trade, take it. If you can't dump it, park it a while and it might get lost. Forget to water despair with tears and that can stunt its growth.

As a last resort you can set aside a special time for worrying about it. Lock yourself in a room with it for an hour a day, say. If you can't forget it, face it. If you can't ignore it you might as well enjoy it.

The bravest people on this earth
Are not necessarily lucky from birth.
Courageous hearts are those who tell
Some burden "You're mine. I must carry you well."

SEEN LATELY were Glenn Thomas who was saying he and his family spent the Fourth in San Angelo. . . . Nice young Glenn Nolte. . . . Jake Northcutt, commissioner of Precinct Three.

Saw Mary Rice Lloyd (Mrs. R. J.). . . Margaret Rothwell (Mrs. Ed). . . Elizabeth Kirkpatrick Jones (Mrs. J. L.). . . T. J. Goss. . . Gloria Erwin (Mrs. Bill).

J. LEE JONES, who recently retired as city judge, is back in C-City! The judge is living for now in Root Valley Fair Lodge. He is much improved after a recent illness.

Coming with him for a visit is his old hometown was J. Lee Jones Jr., San Antonio lawyer. Mr. Jones Sr. has been recuperating in San Antonio. Hear tell he's getting his old natural sparkle back.

HEAR TELL, too, that our Ruth Grantland (Mrs. E. V. Moen) tripped on the postoffice steps Sunday night and fractured a foot.

Ruth is recuperating from her fall injuries at home, said Marie Benson (Mrs. A.C.) who stopped in for a short office visit Thursday.

FAMILIAR FACES, various places, have been those of pretty blond Shirley Delaney (Mrs. Don). . . Luther Coffman, old Elektro boy, busy with Country Club golf tourney plans. . . Dorothy Morrison, vivacious home-making teacher, saying she's visiting her old hometown of Seminole this weekend.

Met for the first time slender and attractive Mrs. Tom Caldwell, wife of a Dowell man, who was lunching out with Martha Earnest.

Saw Wilson Hrbacek and Frank W. Wilson, too. . . . Kack Price McClellan (Mrs. Fred) strolling toward a coffee break. . . . and the F. P. (Favorite Policeman) whose name is Selma Dickson.

HERE from Houston for the Fourth were Ruth and Ross Glover and their son Ross T. who visited her mother, Mrs. U. G. Hardison and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Tom Glover.

The Ross Glover family vacation time included trout fishing in the high mountains of New Mexico. They were back in C-City Wednesday and planned to be back home in Houston this weekend.
