"The increase is shown through the sale of stamps, envelopes and parcel post," Wade Arnold, postmaster, said. "Other divisions of the office showed a decrease."

An increase of $212.54 was seen in stamps, envelopes and parcel post alone, with $2,923.36 having been taken here for the first three months on this year and only $2,710.82 having been taken for the parallel quarter of 1932.

Court Holds Two Day Session For Routine Business

Approve Quarterly Report Of Clerks And Treasurer At Meeting

Prison Labor

Method Of Working Prisoners Tends To Cut Out Large Numbers

Completing routine work members of the Commissioners Court extended their regular meeting Monday, April 10, through Tuesday and the major part of the work consisted chiefly in handling routine business.

One of the most important reports offered the court was that concerning the prison labor method adopted last month. J. D. Hill, commissioner Precinct 1, has been using prison labor on his roads due to the location of that precinct and reports that he started with fourteen prisoners. At the time he made his report, the number had fallen to two prisoners and Wednesday he said that the entire group of prisoners held on misdemeanor crimes had worked their way out, despite the fact that more fines were paid during the month of March than any other month in the past two years.

"I think that the system is undoubtedly a success," Mr. Hill said. "It not only tends to lessen the cost, but it also tends to lessen the number of prisoners. It seems that when the boys are held in jail that they do not mind the action so much as they do when they are continually working the roads and may be seen by the public. The past few days we have had only negroes—and the prisoners do make good road workers."

The remainder of the court session was given to the payment of bills and similar routine matter. Luther Gribble, county judge, said. The court also approved the county trustee election and the quarterly report of the county clerk and county treasurer.

Reports also indicated that the recent drive against hog cholera, which seemed to have gained a foothold several weeks ago, was successful and that the disease had seemingly been wiped out of the county.

Revival Meeting Is Well Attended

Rev. J. H. Sharp of Knox City Sunday night started a seven-day revival meeting at the Methodist Church and for the past four days has delivered two sermons daily to exceptionally good crowds.

Rev. Sharp has designated the meeting as the "Poor Man's Revival" and other than expenses incurred by lights and minor details, the meeting has been conducted without expenses to the local church. During the summer months Rev. T. M. Johnston, local pastor, will hold a similar meeting at Knox City.

Rev. Johnston expressed himself as well pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the congregation and extends a special invitation for the public to attend the meeting during the three remaining days. The meeting will close April 16.

Two Announce For Alderman; New Officers Take Places On April 25

Clerks for the election will include J. M. Strong, presiding officer, J. E. Mattox, Mrs. L. J. Campbell and Mrs. Harris Royal, clerks.

New city officials will officially take office on Tuesday, April 25, one week following the special election.

NEWSPAPER FACTS

Some interesting facts concerning newspapers and advertising are contained in a new book by Fred J. Haskin, veteran syndicator of information, from which the following are condensed:

Egyptians used advertising 4,000 years ago. Most early advertising was pictured in character. The first newspaper advertising is said to have appeared in Germany in 1591.

It is estimated that about a billion and a half dollars are spent annually for all kinds of advertising in the United States. More than 360 American daily papers are equipped to print advertisements in color.

The fastest modern newspaper presses can turn out about 34,000 24-page papers an hour, and a somewhat larger number of 12-page or 16-page papers.

The first news agency in the modern sense is believed to have been that organized by Charles Havas of Paris in 1835. In 1840 he established a news service between Paris, London and Brussels, using carrier pigeons.

James Gordon Bennett began the publication of the first review of financial news in the New York Herald in 1835.

America's two most famous publications are getting along in years. Adolph S. Ochs of the New York Times was 75 on March 12, and William Randolph Hearst will be 70 on April 29.

Newspaper editorials were originated by John Dillingham, an English journalist and one of them got him into jail in 1645 Sometimes justly and sometimes unjustly, other editors have met a similar fate many times since.

SOME FAMOUS DIAMONDS

The diamond is the birthstone of those born in April, according to modern usage, although the ancients assigned the sapphire to this month. The fact is that diamonds, cut and polished as we know them, were unknown prior to about 1476, when this method of bringing out their beauty was discovered.

One of the most valuable diamonds in the world is the Regent or Pitt stone, found in India by a slave and sold to an English ship captain for a small sum in 1701. The following year it was bought by Mr. Pitt, governor of Madras, for about $100,000. Fifteen years later Pitt sold it to the regent duke of Orleans for Louis IV of France for $648,000. It subsequently adorned the hilt of the sword of state worn by Napoleon I, and is now preserved among the national jewels of France. Its present value is estimated at more than $2,000,000.

Among other diamonds of great value and interesting history are the Orloff, which was set in the scepter of the Czar of Russia, having been purchased by Count Orloff for the Empress Catherine in 1772; the Koh-i-noor, which an East Indian legend declared was worn by a native hero 5,000 years ago, and which now belongs to the British crown; and many lesser stones.

The largest diamond ever found was the Culinan, discovered in South Africa in 1905, weighing 3,024 carats, or more than a pound and a quarter. It was presented to King Edward and cut up, being now among the crown jewels in the Tower of London.

It may be mentioned that the South African diamond fields, which supply more than 95 per cent of the world's output, were discovered in 1866, when a child picked up a stone weighing 21 carats, which was sold in the rough for $2,500.

WANTS KISSING TAUGHT

As is more or less generally known, kissing has never been developed to any great extent, either as a science or as an art, among the Japanese.

Some time ago, Judd Mortimer Lewis, famed columnist of the Houston Post-Dispatch, visited the flowery kingdom, and noting the neglect of this delectable practice, humorously suggested the establishment of a chair of osculation at a Japanese university going so far as to offer his services as instructor.

A forward-looking native, who perhaps had visited the Occident, eagerly expressed approval of the idea, in the following letter to Mr. Lewis:

"I am the only investigator on kissing in Japan. Kissing must be known of the Japanese, but they does not care for it. The Japanese governor does not permit to teach them openly even if it is so important a thing in social etiquette. I wrote five times an essay on kissing, but the Japanese metropolitan police look them as the demoralization. You say you will be able to be the lecturer on kissing. The day will come, I am wishing, I myself will teach. The Japanese government are cutting the scene of kissing in the film without the knowledge of it."

Chancellor Chamberlain says Britain's credit is now so good as to be "almost embarassing." Well, the way some of us used our credit in the past is embarassing us now.

The advent of 3.2 per cent beer may be pleasing to many, but it will hardly satisfy those who have acquired the taste for 5 per cent home brew at less cost.

Japan wants Uncle Sam to take his fleet out of the Pacific, and would doubtless appreciate his blowing it up also.

Americanism: Worrying about one's health one minute and passing another car on a curve at 60 the next.

Judging from the manner of its citizens who hold the title of Sir, England is the most beknighted nation.

Wellington, Texas

WELLINGTON
People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

The best story of this week is a rather heroic deed and concerns Miss Margaret Goforth, who has discovered a new method of disposing with bath water after one finishes bathing.

Best Story Of the Week

Several mornings ago Margaret was taking a bath—and she kept on smelling smoke. Finally she saw a wisp of smoke drifting through the manhole leading to the attic over the bathroom Margaret jumped out of the bath tub, put on some pajamas and yelled for her mother to turn in the fire alarm. While the alarm was being turned in Margaret went right through the hole and found the ceiling was in flames, having caught from the water heater. Assisted by her mother and the neighbors, who dipped up buckets of water from the bathtub, she easily put the fire out before the fire boys arrived.

Furthermore, Margaret allows that if she were a man she would belong to the fire department—and she hasn't missed a fire in Wellington in a number of years.

Of the Common Garden Variety

Wellington at the present time has more than 100 persons working daily through this federal relief money. Sometimes it seems, they are having a little trouble in finding something really constructive for the men to work on around town. Here is a solution that sounds pretty good. Why not secure a plot of ground on the outskirts of town and let these men plant and cultivate a huge community garden. As soon as the stuff is all gathered, the women could hold a week's canning program—and all of the work could be paid from the funds. Then when the funds play out, leaders could continue right on hiring the people and paying them off in stuff that has been preserved from the garden instead of with money. Through this method, it seems that Wellington might continue to have work for their unemployed long after the money runs out or quits coming.

Some of the merchants might think that this will work a hardship on them in lost trade, but wouldn't that be better than giving donations and paying more axes to cover charity?

Is It All That Easy?

Not so terribly long ago little Ansel McDowell, Jr. almost put his father in an embarassing position. The youngster was in a crowd of people—and since it happened to be about the time that an extensive effort was being made to call in all of the gold, the conversation turned to money and someone happened to mention $100 bills.

"Huh, that's alright," Ansel Jr. said, "I will go down and get my daddy to give me one."

Ansel says he sure is glad that babies don't remember things for long at a time.

Jack Knight says that Deck has been omitting his column from the paper the past few weeks because it was so rotten. Jack also suggested that this column be omitted as well and said the only reason it wasn't could be attributed to the fact that I am not as smart as Deck. That's philosophy.

A Really Easy Task

Herschel Anderson says that we should have a weather forecast in the paper every week. Herschel thought he was asking for something almost next to impossible, but was finally convinced that it was about the easiest thing yet. All we would have to do would be to write out the days of the week and attach the word, "Sandstorm," after each day. Last week I saw Hazel Owens, who once lived in Memphis and went through the recent earthquake in California. Right after the quake she left California and came to Texas. She said, however, she was going back to California because out there you never could tell when there would be an earthquake—but here you could always be sure that there would be a sandstorm.

Sometime I am going to get some fly paper and hold it up during one of these sandstorms. The result certainly should be sand paper—and Texas may have been overlooking a great natural industry.

Old Timers Say Year Of 1816 Was One Without Summer In U. S. And Europe

The year 1816 was known throughout the United States and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by any person then living. There are persons in New York who have been in the habit of keeping diaries for years, and it is from the pages of an old diary begun in 1810 and kept unbroken until 1840 that the following information regarding this year without a summer has been taken:

January was so mild that most persons allowed their fires to go out and did not burn wood except for cooking. There were a few cold days but they were very few. Most of the time the air was warm and spring-like. February was not cold. Some days were colder than in January, but the weather was about the same. March from the first to the sixth, was inclined to be windy. It came in like a small lion and went out like a very innocent sheep.

April came in warm, but as the days grew longer the air became colder and by the first of May there was a temperature like that of winter with plenty of snow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead, ice formed an inch thick on ponds and rivers, corn was killed and the corn fields were planted again and again, until it became too late to raise a crop. By the last of May in this climate the trees are usually in leaf and birds and flowers are plentiful. When the last of May arrived in 1816 everything had been killed by the cold.

June was the coldest month roses ever experienced in this latitude. Frost and ice were as common as buttercups usually are. Almost everything green was killed; all fruit was destroyed. Snow fell 10 inches deep in Vermont. There was a seven-inch fall in the interior of New York state and the same in Massachusetts. There were only a few moderately warm days. Everybody looked, longed and waited for warm weather, but warm weather did not come.

It was also dry; very little rain fell. All summer long the wind blew steadily from the north in blasts laden with snow and ice. Mothers knitted socks of double thickness for their children and made thick mittens also. Planting and shivering were done together and the farmers who worked out their taxes on the county roads wore overcoats and mittens.

A farmer near Tewksbury, Vt., owned a very large field of corn. He built fires, and nearly every night he and his men took turns keeping up the fires and watching that the corn did not freeze. The farmer was rewarded for his tireless efforts by having the only crop of corn in the region.

July came in with snow and ice. On the Fourth of July ice as thick as window glass formed throughout New England, New York and in some parts of Pennsylvania. Indian corn which in some parts of the East had struggled through May and June, gave up, froze and died.

To the surprise of everybody, August proved the worst month of all. Almost every green thing in this country and Europe was blasted with frost. Snow fell at Barnet, 30 miles from London, England, on August 30. Newspapers received from England stated that 1816 would be remembered by the existing generation as the year in which there was no summer. There was great privation and thousands of persons would have perished in this country had it not been for the abundance of fish and wild game.

Hardy Drug Closes Twenty-One Year Service To People Of This County

Pioneer Druggist Opened Store Morning After Bank Burns Here

Hundreds and hundreds of drugs have been used in the filling of nearly 200,000 prescriptions dispensed to the people of Collingsworth County over the counters of the Joe Hardy Drug Company, the oldest drug store in Wellington operating under one man management. But this item while being extremely important as far as the health of the community is concerned, represents only a part of the bulk of merchandise that has passed through the doors of this firm during the time that it has served this community.

On April 15, exactly 21 years ago, Joe Hardy established his store on the west side of the square in the location now housing the Stone Department Store. One year later, the drug store was moved to its present location, where it has continued to operate for the past twenty-one years.

Scientists and historians have often marvelled that points destroyed by common disasters are followed by even more lasting structures. Such is the case of the Hardy Drug. The store opened the morning after the First National Bank and theatre burned. At that time the entire community was astonished over the catastrophe, and may have even failed to realize the possibilities offered by the new business due to the fact that most of the population was concentrating on the fire.

But the drug store was destined to play an even greater role than the most optimistic of the residents dared hope. Just to what extent the store has played in the development of the community will never be known—but it is a settled fact that through its services and wares the lives of more than one Old Timer and the lives of his family were saved.

Shortly after Mr. Hardy opened his store here W. H. Mims secured a franchise to start the first light plant that Wellington ever had. Nor did the town have an adequate water system. For four years after he established his store Mr. Hardy can remember getting water from the public well, which was at that time located on the southeast corner of the courthouse lawn.

As one of Wellington's old time merchants, Mr. Hardy came to this county in 1912 and since that time has been active in political and community welfare.

Ritz Attractions For Week Offers Much In Humor And Thrills

Entertainment offered at the Ritz throughout the week will tend to take that heavy feeling off your chest. Starting out with "Fast Life," featuring William Haines, supported by such a cast as Madge Evans, Conrad Nagel, Arthur Byron and Cliff Edwards, the feature attraction for Thursday and Friday of this week, movie patrons are urged to get set for plenty of thrills and plenty of laughs. It is claimed by the producers that "Fast Life" is the best William Haines picture since talking pictures came into existence. This rousing two-mile-a-minute picture is based on E. J. Rath's novel, "Let's Go." According to press reports of the picture, the cold type of that thrilling story would melt if it could see the action of this spectacular laugh-thriller. A Universal News Reel and Fatty Arbuckle in his latest comedy release put the finishing touches on the program.

Zan Grey's Story for Saturday Starring George O'Brien

The world's greatest writer of Western stories furnishes the material for Saturday patrons at the Ritz. The picture is "Smoke Lightening." The star is George O'Brien. It has been picturized from Zane Grey's "Canyon Walls" novel. Little Betsy King Ross, nine year old riding prodigy, nearly steals the picture once or twice, so critics say. She's the juvenile rodeo champion, and destined to be the idyl of millions of movie fans. Aside from the genuine thrills, there's plenty of heart warming romance to interest the age that thrives most on romance.

Flagg and Quirt Are At It Again Successor to "Cock Eyed World"

Not a single movie fan who saw "The Cockeyed World' fails to remember it. And now comes the only real successor to that famous comedy triumph, according to all advance reports. It is "Hot Pepper" with the original Flagg and Quirt in the leading roles, Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, Lupe Valez and El Brendel are prominent in supporting roles. As the story runs these two famous Devil Dogs become speak easy hounds and finally wind up in the Chinese army. Their adventures, their fights and their make-ups offer a new series of laughs and thrills for picture patrons that will bring back memories of old. After all its just entertainment, but according to the code its Red Hot Entertainment. It is scheduled Saturday Night Preview and Sunday and Monday.

Excelent Cast for Feature On Tuesday and Wednesday

William Warren, recently famous as the "Match King," Loretta Young and Alice White, either of them a star in their own right, are co-starred in the Ritz offering for Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, "Employes Entrance." It is a picture of personalities and realities so vivid and fresh that its departure from the ordinary run of film fare will be heartily appreciated, as well as its tremendous entertainment value.

21st. ANNIVERSARY

FOR 21 YEARS . . .

The Hardy Drug Company has continued to operate here in Wellington under the same management that it started on April 15, 1912. As the pioneer drug store in this town we have furnished medicines and prescriptions for thousands of persons who were seriously ill. At times, we feel sure, the presence of this store has saved the life of individuals—and that, among other reasons, gives us pleasure in feeling that we have served the commnuity.

. . . As taxpayers in this community we have done our part for 21 years. As citizens of this community, we have re-invested our income, and as a drug store we have done our best to render a high class service . . . selling only reliable, safe and dependable products.

we are not seeking business upon our past merits; what we have done, we can do again—so, we still carry a complete line of reliable, safe and dependable products. We maintain a force of efficient helpers to insure your safety and behind us stands a record of 21 years community service.
