Allies Offer Newest Plan To Cypriots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Undersecretary of State George Ball and British envoy Cyril Pickard called on President Makarios today to present the latest U.S.-British plan to land an international peace-keeping force on Cyprus.

Ball hurried to the meeting shortly after he arrived from Turkey on his flying peace mission.

The conference took place as fighting between Greek and Turkish communities flared anew in the south coastal city of Limassol, 38 miles southwest of Nicosia. At least one Greek Cypriot policeman was killed, a palace spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Greek Cypriot president said the talks will decide whether Makarios will take the case to the United Nations. If they are considered unsatisfactory, a special Greek Cypriot delegation probably will be sent to U.N. headquarters in New York later this week.

He refused to comment on a newsman's query as to when American troops would land on Cyprus as part of a U.S.-British plan for a peace-making force. There were no signs of anti-American demonstrations in Nicosia and Greek Cypriot officials insisted they expected none.

NEW FLAREUP

Nicosia rumbled with threats of a new flareup of Greek Cypriot violence. Two bomb explosions at the U.S. Embassy last week sent women and children of American personnel fleeing from the Mediterranean island.

Clashes between Greek police and students marked Ball's stopover at Athens Monday as demonstrators demanding union between Cyprus and Greece tried to march on the U.S. and British embassies.

Britain was one target because its troops now police an uneasy truce between the warring Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities. The United States was the other because it has offered to help with the police work.

As President Johnson's troubleshooter, Ball is expected to outline the latest U.S.-British proposal for an international peace force for Cyprus.

NO VOTE

British officials in London said the revised plan gives the United Nations a voice but no vote on peacekeeping operations and abandons a previous condition that the force be raised from partners in the North Atlantic alliance.

Makarios turned down the original plan because of the dominant role it gave the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and insisted that any international force on Cyprus be under control of the U.N. Security Council.

The United States and Britain have sought to keep the Security Council out of the dispute since it would then come under the threat of a Soviet veto. Moscow has assailed the proposed use of NATO forces in Cyprus.

Whooper Count Stands At 33

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fish and Wildlife Service has given up hope that more wild whooping cranes will show up so it has put the official total for the wintering flock at 33.

The Interior Department announced today that the 33 whoopers wintering at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf coast are believed to comprise the entire wild population of North America's largest wading bird.

The total includes seven young of 1963, but the apparent loss of six adult birds from the 32 that reached Aransas in the fall of 1962 indicates a net gain of only one bird for the year, Interior said.

Mrs. Oswald Talking Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a brief flareup of disputed testimony and confusion over her legal counsel, Mrs. Marguerite Oswald resumed today her testimony to the presidential commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

It is the third and possibly final day of the story of her son, Lee Harvey Oswald, from his birth until his arrest in Dallas last Nov. 22. Oswald, charged with the sniper killing of Kennedy, was shot to death Nov. 24.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, chairman of the commission, declined to comment on any of her specific statements — including a reported contradiction of vital testimony given by Oswald's young widow, Marina. But he told questioners that it includes hearsay, opinions and conjecture along with some relevant material.

Although the 56-year-old practical nurse from Fort Worth had asked the commission to obtain a lawyer for her because her own counsel was busy "on other matters," she turned up Tuesday with both lawyers.

One was the designated counsel, former Asst. U.S. Atty. John F. Doyle, of Washington. The other was Mark Lane of New York City, who said he was retained without fee by Mrs. Oswald four weeks ago to represent her son.

Lane asked and was refused permission to join Doyle as Mrs. Oswald's counsel in the closed hearing room. Told that she must pick one attorney, she settled on Doyle.

Trustees Whack Athletic Items From School Plans

Nearly two-thirds of a million dollars were hacked from the cost of proposed building at the Big Spring High School during a discussion at Tuesday's regular meeting of trustees of the district.

Suffering most from the economy axe were gymnasium expansion, physical education facilities, vocational areas and, to a lesser degree, classrooms. The slicing Tuesday, however, brought the total estimated cost of work at that plant to some $3,450,000, which is within the $3-3½ million figure requested by trustees a week ago.

FRINGE ITEMS

There are no more fringe items remaining in the plans, S. M. Anderson, superintendent, told trustees, and any cuts in space requirements from now on will seriously affect the ability of the school to properly educate its pupils.

In the cut of space requirements for both the old plant from an original figure of 390,000 square feet to 301,000, the first addition to be deleted was a second gymnasium at the site of the present gym. Physical education facilities also were pulled down in size. The previous plan would have allowed each student to participate in physical education every day. In making the cut, trustees voted to remain on the present schedule of physical education every other day.

WOOD POLES

Classrooms originally planned adjacent to the vocational education building were deleted and economies were made in site development, such as substituting wood poles for steel posts to light the baseball field.

The only area to be expanded on the latest look is cafeteria facilities. That area will be enlarged to feed 900 pupils at a time. Not nearly so much space is needed at present, but within the next few years it will become a necessity, Anderson said. He pointed out that with a larger student body on the campus, it will become necessary to cut the lunch periods to 30 minutes or to have a closed lunch hour. Both would have the effect of forcing students to use the school cafeteria facilities, many of whom are now eating off campus.

Also, trustees decided to stay with the original proposal that the entire plant be air conditioned, with the exception of vocational and physical education facilities. Trustees also voted to keep in the drawings a planetarium at a cost of $25,000 and a television room costing another $15,000. These rooms will not be used for these purposes immediately, but will be furnished for such use later.

BRICK EXTERIOR

Building materials will be decided later, according to availability, cost and other considerations for economy. However, in general, trustees agreed that the additions should have a face brick exterior to conform with the present 1½ million plant, all safety features required by law and to get a minimum insurance rate, acoustical treatment for rooms where it is desirable, air conditioning and fluorescent lighting.

Atmar Atkinson, school architect, will meet with the group again at the regular March meeting. At that time he will have more definitive drawings of space allotted each room, room arrangement, etc.

Spelling Bee Booklets

Copies of the official "Words of Champions" spelling book and the rules for the Second Annual Howard County Spelling Bee are now available at the office of the Daily Herald.

All boys and girls who plan to enter the Bee should have a copy of the practice book and the official rules. The price is just 15 cents.

A Valentine For Caroline

First grade students at St. Thomas Aquinas School in Dallas held the giant Valentine they prepared for Caroline Kennedy. The four-foot-tall card is too large to go in the mail so a picture of the greeting and a letter from each of the students will be mailed to the daughter of the late President Kennedy.

Sister Rosaline, the class teacher, said the children wanted to do something at Christmas time to express their feelings but thought it best to wait and came up with the idea for the giant greeting. (AP WIRE-PHOTO)

City Rejects All Bids On Beal Sewage Line

City commissioners Tuesday rejected bids received on the proposed Beal's Creek sewage line and delayed consideration of bids on flood control dams and roadway base for Eleventh Place Extended.

The commission looked at two plans for spending a minimum of $725,000, checked the available money, and decided to proceed with caution.

Carl Shimek and Ross Jacobs, of Forrest and Cotton, consulting engineering firm for the city, recommended the city reject the bids and consider asking for bids on an alternate proposal.

LIFT STATIONS

They suggested a considerable reduction in cost would result if the lines were provided with two lift stations. The stations would be located in the downtown area and near Birdwell where the presence of water boosted the figure of prior bids.

Other advantages, according to the consulting engineers, would be higher grades for the line with a low depth of 12 feet and an average depth of eight feet.

The apparent lowest bid, received last month, was $570,561 from Clyde Construction Company, Odessa, providing for higher depths than were called for in the base proposal. The firm's base bid was $588,578.

HIGHER DEPTHS

City commissioners, hoping to reduce costs, had called for alternate bids at the higher depths. The apparent low bid on the base proposal over a year ago was about $452,000 or $125,000 more than the Master Plan funds approved for the project.

The bid from the Odessa firm on the alternate proposal was more than $100,000 higher than the first apparent low bid and over $200,000 higher than approved bond funds of $327,000.

Commissioners, in turning down the bids, appeared to agree with Mayor George J. Zachariah, who said, "We don't have the money." No new bids were called for on the line.

$4 A YARD

Commissioner Paul Kasch questioned the engineers in detail on costs for the line, observing that it would cost over $4 to dig each cubic yard of line.

Ross, the consulting engineer, said use of other materials for the line, such as asbestos and cast iron, would not result in significant savings. Other commissioners had questioned him about costs of other materials.

"The problem is obtaining a stable ditch and a stable foundation," said Ross. Sandy water, found in the soil here, complicates the job, he said.

Action on bids received for the Eleventh Place Extended project was delayed upon the recommendation of the city manager, who said easement rights should be cleared first.

CALDWELL LOW

The apparent low bid on 64-foot widths for roadway base is $154,995—submitted by W. D. Caldwell, local contractor. Bond funds approved for this project total only $85,000.

City Manager Larry Crow recommended combining roadway base with flood control as a means of saving on future paving. Under this plan, a road would run along the tops of the retention dams used for flood control.

Commissioners, at their last meeting, favored the 64-footing width for roadway base. Bids received on the project were outlined by Clifton N. Bellamy, local consulting engineer.

Jet Falls, But Webb Pilots Safe

Two Webb Air Force Base pilots bailed out of their T-38 Falcon trainer aircraft at 12:03 p.m. today and parachuted safely to the ground some 15 miles southeast of Garden City.

In the aircraft were Capt. Donald G. Weidman, a student pilot, and instructor Lt. William E. Holcomb. Lt. Holcomb possibly has suffered minor shock. The men parachuted from the plane and then walked to a nearby ranch house to call Webb. The plane plummeted to the ground about three-fourths mile south of Highway 158.

A helicopter was dispatched from Webb to pick up the pilots and a convoy of investigators departed for the crash scene to determine the cause of the crash.

LBJ Rambles Far In Talk To Taxers

WASHINGTON (AP)—For 25 minutes and 3,500 chosen words, President Johnson held forth on such a sweep of subjects as bellyachers and bathrooms, peace and poverty.

Since he was talking to field officers of the Internal Revenue Service, he also mentioned taxpayers and tax collectors. But that was just a starting point for a ramble through domestic and foreign fields.

Along the way there were cracks at critics of his handling of foreign policy, and assurances that "we are a much beloved people throughout the world"—that we are respected and appreciated "regardless of what some of the bellyachers say."

GOLDEN RULE

The President held forth in the East Room of the White House Tuesday on home, election day, wife, mother, the Golden Rule (three times), national defense, the budget, waste, poverty, civil rights, turning out lights, public service and his regard for his Treasury secretary.

Also: Cuba, Laos, Vienna, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Red China, Panama, the U.S. plane shot down over East Germany, Viet Nam, changes in 50 of the world's 113 governments, Dwight D. Eisenhower, foreign aid, disarmament.

And a conclusion that: "We can't be satisfied with yesterday. Tomorrow is going to be a better world for all of our people."

CARD NOTES

The President started out using notes typed on cards, ran out of those, then kept going in chat, off-hand fashion.

Some things he said: "Taxpayers are people." Taxes must be collected efficiently, courteously and honestly.

"Every man is king in the ballot box."

"It took us 40 days and nights to pare and prune" the budget. "My mother always had some pin money hid under the pillow."

Put yourselves in the place of the other fellow in considering poverty — and discrimination. "One of the great ladies that I have known is kind of chief of staff of our house. She has been with us 29 years, she is a college graduate, but when she comes from Texas to Washington she never knows where she can get a cup of coffee. She never knows when she can go to a bathroom."

LIGHT BILL DOWN

The White House light bill is down from $5,000 to $3,000 a month. "You go back home and see how much electricity you can save in the building in which you work."

"We have problems in the world" but "I have seen times when the skies were grayer."

"We cannot expect to mash a button and have our wishes carried out all over this globe."

"Even in our own country we do not see everything alike. If we did, we would all want the same wife—and that would be a problem, wouldn't it?"

Sinatra Due To Testify On Abduction

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Frank Sinatra Jr. may get his day in court today to answer defense accusations that he helped stage his own kidnapping so he "could make the girls swoon as his papa once did."

The 19-year-old singer's name was on a list of potential witnesses handed defense attorneys by the government. Others on the list included Milton Rudin, lawyer for the elder Sinatra, and Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, divorced wife of the famed star.

A number of employees of Harrah's Club at Lake Tahoe, Nev., also are on the list, along with trumpeter John Foss and Tino Barzi, manager of the re-vamped Tommy Dorsey band.

Foss was found bound and gagged when two gunmen invaded the Lake Tahoe motel room and took Sinatra Jr. away last Dec. 8. Some 34 hours later, he was released unhurt after his father had paid $240,000 in small bills following a series of phone calls.

Barry Keenan, 23, Joseph Amsler, 23, and John Irwin, 42, are charged in U.S. District Court with the kidnapping of young Sinatra.

Mrs. Gladys Towles Root, counsel for Irwin, said: "An apple doesn't fall far from its tree, and Frankie Jr. just wanted to make the girls swoon as his father once did."

The government followed the defense's opening statements with a parade of witnesses who identified Keenan as the buyer of a gun which the government said was used in the abduction; the renter of a suburban Canoga Park house which the government contends was the hide-out used by the trio to keep Sinatra prisoner, and the man who ordered a telephone installed in the house, a phone which the prosecution holds was used for ransom demands.

Hoffa said his attorneys will ask the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati to compel Dist. Judge Frank Wilson to listen to his charges.

Wilson's refusal to interrupt the trial, now in its 18th day, for a special hearing to consider the matter means "we are being denied our constitutional rights," Hoffa said at a news conference Tuesday.

Chief Prosecutor James F. Nease of Washington flatly denied government agents were watching Hoffa, his five co-defendants or their lawyers.

The defense has charged nearly every day since the trial began Jan. 29 that its activities were being observed. But Hoffa injected something new—an affidavit from a self-styled professional wiretapper, Bernard B. Spindel of New York.

Hoffa, who will be 51 on Valentine's Day, and the other five are being tried for allegedly attempting to fix the jury in his 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville. That trial ended with a hung jury.

In his affidavit, Spindel said he was hired by Hoffa "to detect whether or not there is or has been surveillance of the defendants."

The affidavit and Spindel's transcript were made part of the court record.

'Denied Our Rights,' Says Labor Chief

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa, charging the FBI is spying on his every move and the judge in his jury-tampering trial won't do anything about it, says he will ask a higher court for help.

The Teamsters' President's charge overshadowed the wind-up today of cross-examination of the government's chief witness, Edward G. Partin of Baton Rouge, La. Partin began his testimony eight days ago.

The defense sought to link Partin with what it said were shipments of arms to Fidel Castro's Cuba, but the defense move was blocked by the judge.

"This man has committed treason by trafficking in arms with Fidel Castro," asserted defense lawyer Jacques Schiffer of New York. With the jury absent, the attorney contended the government granted him immunity from prosecution; thus "all his testimony was bought and paid for by the government."

INFLAME JURY

The judge said such questioning would only inflame the jury with unsubstantiated charges. Partin has testified his only dealings with Castro came when the Cuban leader was a popular American hero seeking to unseat dictator Juan Batista.

Hoffa said his attorneys will ask the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati to compel Dist. Judge Frank Wilson to listen to his charges.

Wilson's refusal to interrupt the trial, now in its 18th day, for a special hearing to consider the matter means "we are being denied our constitutional rights," Hoffa said at a news conference Tuesday.

Ruby's Lawyers Slam 'Oligarchy'

DALLAS (AP)—Defense attorney Melvin Belli charged today that a public relations firm is "part of the conspiracy of the oligarchy that exists in Dallas to deprive Jack Ruby of a fair trial."

Sam R. Bloom, head of the agency, said he had volunteered as a public service to help Dist. Judge Joe Brown with press accommodations for the Ruby trial.

Bloom testified as the first witness in the third day of a hearing on a defense motion to transfer Ruby's trial on a murder charge in the shooting of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

The defense contends Ruby cannot obtain a fair trial here because Dallas' leaders are so anxious to brighten the city's image before the world.

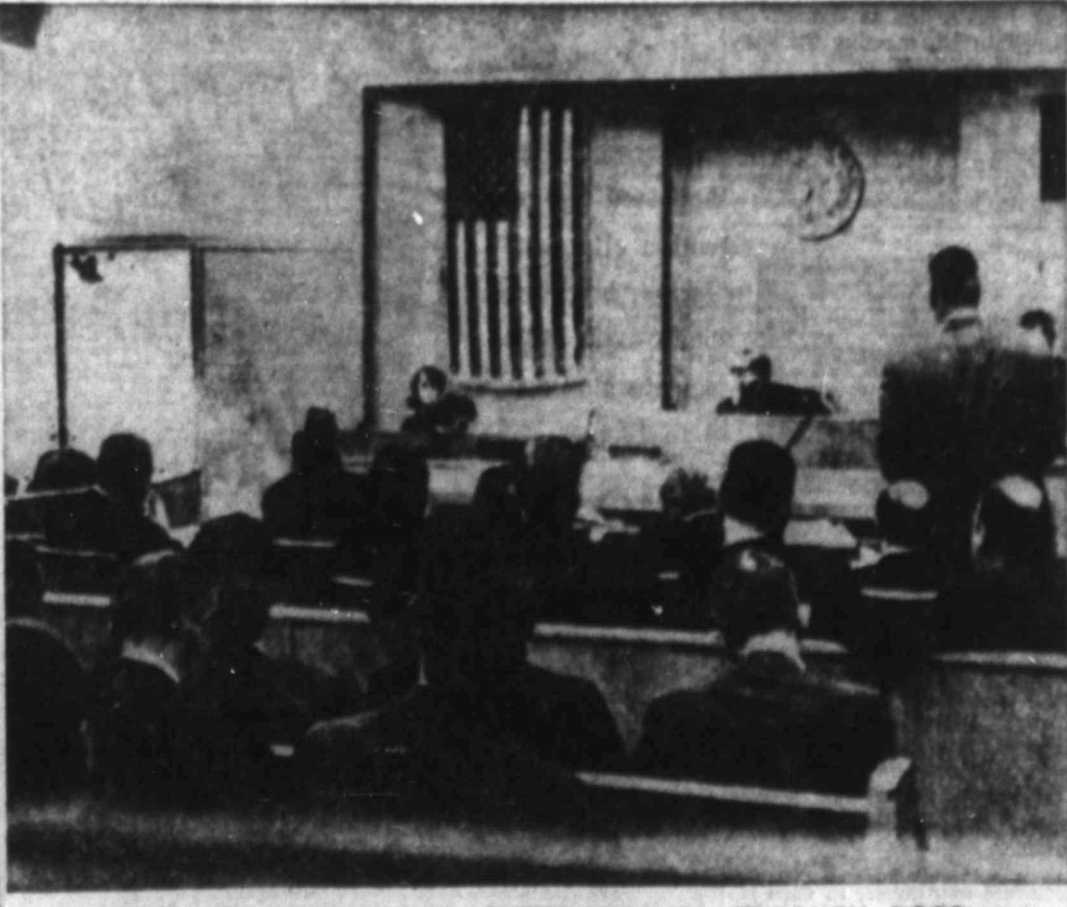

Stanley Marcus, president of Neiman-Marcus, and a number of other leading citizens, including James R. Hoffa, charging the FBI is spying on his every move and the judge in his jury-tampering trial won't do anything about it, says he will ask a higher court for help.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Heffley, 801 W. 14th Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Camille, to L. E. Newman Jr. He is the son of Mrs. Lyman E. Newman of Amarillo and the late Mr. Newman. Both are graduates of Texas Technological College where she was an Alpha Phi and he was a member of Delta Sigma Pi. The couple plan to be married March 23.

NCO Wives Club Plans Floor Show At Base

A floor show will be presented March 21 at the NCO Club at Webb Air Force Base. The show will begin at 10:30 p.m., following the regular Saturday evening dance, and will feature members of the NCO Wives Club.

Plans for the show were discussed Tuesday evening when the club held its regular meeting with Mrs. Harry Schonearts presiding during the business session.

Mrs. Willis Parker is chairman in charge of the show and is being assisted with the musical numbers by Mrs. Dick Wilson.

An Easter egg hunt for members' children will be held at 2 p.m. Easter Sunday on the club grounds.

Introduced as a guest was Mrs. John Botka, and welcomed as new members were Mrs. Lora Kenitzer, Mrs. J. C. Davis, Mrs. Kenneth Campbell and Mrs. Noel Daily.

Door prizes were won by Mrs.

Lydia Class Has Evening Session

A Valentine theme was used for decorations by Mrs. Otis Grafa who entertained the Lydia Sunday School Class of First Baptist Church in her home Monday evening. She was assisted by Mrs. J. C. Cravens.

Mrs. D. Dyer opened the monthly meeting with a prayer. Mrs. J. H. Eastham presided and made special note of visitation work done by the group. The program was given by Mrs. G. G. Morehead, and slides were shown of her trip to New York and the Holy Land.

Mrs. G. B. Pittman presented the devotion, and Mrs. T. K. Price gave the closing prayer.

The hostess table was decorated with red and white chrysanthemums. Eighteen guests were served.

Beta Omicron Group Makes Donations

Ten dollars was donated for a chapel at Denton State School when Beta Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday evening in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Truett Vines and Mrs. Shirley Berry.

Mrs. Jim Newsom presided as $10 was donated also to the sorority's individual project, and a YMCA membership purchased for a child.

Mrs. Bob McCarty, project committee chairman, said that a Valentine party will be held Friday for students at the Special Education School. Sorority members will direct games and serve refreshments.

Mrs. Tom Enloe told of the Sweetheart Ball which she attended in San Angelo last week as a representative of the chapter.

"Our Own Home" was the program presented by Mrs. John Fort and Mrs. Bill McDonald. They told how to make a home more comfortable and attractive, emphasizing the use of bright colors as accents. Posters were used to illustrate furniture styles of different periods.

Jack Watkins, of Goodhousekeeping Shop, was a guest speaker. He, too, stressed that this is a day of color in home decorating. Watkins showed

Spoudazio Fora Has Party

The annual guest night Valentine party of Spoudazio Fora Study Club was held Tuesday evening in the Community Room of First Federal Savings and Loan Association building.

Co-hostesses for the affair were Mrs. J. M. Hill, Mrs. Merry Jo Bright and Mrs. Ennis Cochran. Refreshments were served at two tables accented with Valentine motifs. A red punch bowl centered the beverage table.

Mrs. Bill Coleman, president, presented the officer slate to be voted on at the next meeting. It will be Feb. 25 in the home of Mrs. H. O. Hudgins, 1008 Donley.

Games were conducted by Mrs. James C. Jones and Mrs. Bright. Guests included Mrs. Rosa Rihard, Mrs. James Calmes, Mrs. Grady Harland and Mrs. Howard Sherrill.

Mu Kappas Make Bid

A business meeting was held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. J. W. Dickens by Mu Kappa Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha.

The group discussed making a bid for the 1965 state convention to be held in Big Spring. Plans for helping a needy family were presented by the project committee.

Mrs. Bob Newton, president, conducted the meeting. The guest dinner for husbands will be held later in the month with the date to be announced.

Mrs. Dickens gave the program on "Exercises" as a part of the general program theme on "The Phases of Charm." Eight members were present, and Mrs. David Glasser was a guest.

Two Honored At Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patton, Forsan, honored their children, Jeffrey Scott, 6, and Cynthia Ann, 8, with a birthday party in their home Saturday.

The theme used in decorations was the Flintstone cartoon. A Pebbles Flintstone doll surrounded by balloons was suspended from the ceiling, and the tablecloth and paper serving pieces were printed with the characters.

Refreshments were served to 30 guests including Karen and Rita Kitts, Tye, and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patton Sr., grandparents of the children, also of Tye.

93 YEARS OLD

J. R. Roper Honored At Birthday Dinner

Friends and relatives honored pioneer rancher J. R. Roper with a dinner at his home in Gail Sunday.

Roper has been a resident of Borden County and Gail for the past 63 years and was a participant in the land rush of the early 1900's. His wife, who died in 1954, was a member of a pioneer family of that area.

Dinner was furnished by the family group. The table was decorated with two cakes, one commemorating his birth date and the other topped with a 93, his age.

Those attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Engle, Coahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson and Miss Oleita Mitchell, Snyder; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Coates, Esther and David, Mrs. Buford Hull, Viki and Mike, Bobby Lyons and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hull, all of Big Spring.

Canasta Players Awarded Prizes

Ceramic figurines were presented to Mrs. Phillip Stovall and Mrs. Roland Fryar for winning high score at the Hi Lo Canasta Club meeting Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Donnie Long, hostess, served refreshments to six players who met in her home. Mrs. Roland Fryar, 1412 Stadium, will be hostess next Tuesday.

ONE CHURCH

"There is one body" (Eph. 4:4), "but one body" (I Cor. 12:20); and the body is the church. "And he is the head of the body, the church..." (Col. 1:18). Hence, there is one church. All denom admit this. Yet men try to justify the existence of many churches in the world today. Efforts are made to harmonize the many churches, with the Bible teaching of one church.

Some say the one church of the Bible is composed of the sum of the various churches of today. They say the denominations are branches of the Bible church. But we read, "there is one body," and a body is an

Week Of Prayer Set At Kentwood Church

February 14th the women of Big Spring will unite with others throughout the world in observance of the 78th World Day of Prayer.

All persons interested in joining this worldwide prayer fellowship are invited to assemble with the local council of United Church Women, Kentwood Methodist Church at 10 a.m.

The theme for the 1964 service is "Let Us Pray" and the service was prepared by Dr. Madeleine Barot, executive secretary of the Department on the Cooperation of Men and Women in Church, Family and Society of the World Council of Churches, Geneva, Switzerland.

In continuation of past efforts in the mission of the Church, the gifts collected as an essential part of the observance will go toward sustaining 12 Christian colleges for women in Asia and Africa.

The gifts will make possible the translation, printing, and distribution of Christian literature to women and children in many parts of the world. They will lend assistance to the present program among Indian-Americans and the support of the migrant ministry, providing day care centers, recreational centers, and programs of assistance toward responsible citizenship.

A special gift will also be used in the United States, making possible the continuation of the new program of ministry among newcomers in communities.

The Women's Society of Christian Service group of Kentwood Methodist Church will serve as hostesses. Rev. Henry Salley will present the meditation.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Pretty Bath Salts Are Easily Made

Dear Heloise:

How do you make bath salts?

... E. R.

Dear E.R.:

Buy some inexpensive epsom salts at the drugstore.

Take three or four fruit jars and put a few drops of food coloring into each, using a different color in each jar. Add some cologne, toilet water or perfume to each.

Fill the jars about half full of the epsom salts. The empty space left allows for a good shaking! Shake the jars hard to distribute the color and toilet water among the crystals.

Cap the jars tightly and let set for about 10 days. Every few days give them another good shake.

The epsom salts will absorb the food coloring and perfume aroma.

Two or three colors may be mixed AFTER the salts are seasoned and beautiful. Please use delicate colors. This is what makes them so pretty. If your food coloring is too strong, add a little water to it before putting in the salts. This allows more even distribution of the color.

The bath salts may then be put into pretty little bottles for gifts. ... Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am the mother of eight-year-old twin girls.

Here is a use I have found for petticoats that have become too short and the tops worn out: I just remove the old tops and sew the bottom part of the slips to their favorite blouses.

No more trouble with "untucked" blouses. The girls love them. ... Mrs. D. W. Watson

Dear Heloise:

Sometimes my boxes of soap powder get wet on the bottom, and what a mess. ...

I have tried scooping the soap into a jar, taping the boxes on the bottom, etc.

Both practices help, but I solved the problem completely by placing the box in a plastic bag and rolling the bag down about half way round the box. It may be held on with a rubber band if necessary.

So? Let the bottom fall out and who cares? The plastic bag saves the soap powder. ... Aline Kagawa

Dear Heloise:

Cleaning mops is one chore I could do without and probably many other women feel the same way.

I found the simplest way to clean a mop is to soak it in a detergent solution over night. Suds solutions used for soaking clothes and even the dishwasher will do the trick. I add pine oil to the solution for deodorizing and disinfecting purposes.

Several rinsings with cold water the next morning will remove the dust and grime. Dry the mops in direct sunlight.

By keeping my mops clean and dry, I find that they last longer. ... Pauline Magano

Guild Has Meeting

Conny Wade was guest speaker at the Monday evening meeting of St. Anne's Guild, St. Mary's Episcopal Church. He spoke in the Parish Hall on the vestry and its duties and work in the diocese.

A pot luck supper was included in the evening's activities with Mrs. George Dawson and Mrs. Marjorie C. Jordan serving as cohostesses.

Mrs. Kelley Lawrence presided at the business meeting. Reports were given by Mrs. John D. Cowser and Mrs. Steve Baker who outlined the investigations being made on the establishment of a home for needy children.

Guests included Wade and Miss Catherine Ann Jordan. Eighteen attended.

Panel Program Heard By Circle

A panel discussion on the program theme, "The Church—Beginning Where We Live," was presented to the Fanny Hodges Circle of the First Methodist Church Tuesday morning.

Mrs. L. B. Maulden, 1741 Purdue, was hostess to the group. Mrs. Rex Baggett conducted the panel, assisted by Mrs. V. E. Baldrige and Mrs. Maulden.

An arrangement of pink and red roses centered the refreshment table.

Miss Peacock Is Married

Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Eugenia Ann Peacock and Jerry Roger Arick at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, in the First Methodist Church Chapel. Dr. H. Clyde Smith, pastor, officiated at the double ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George E. Peacock, 529 Hillside Drive, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Harrison Arick, 1210 E. 18th St.

Centering the altar was a large sunburst arrangement of white chrysanthemums and stock. Completing the background were emerald ferns and candelabra holding cathedral tapers. Family pews were marked with satin bows.

Mrs. Champ Rainwater, at the organ, played traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of baroque scrolled Chantilly lace over tulle, Sabrina neckline and long sleeves. Her headband was a white silk bow. She wore pearls that belong to her mother and in her shoe a sixpence that was brought from India by her father. Something borrowed was a handkerchief, and she wore a blue garter.

The bride carried atop her white Bible, a nosegay of white fringed carnations centered with pink sweetheart roses and tied with picot satin.

DEAR ABBY

Advice For A Mother

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and, after three years of marriage, am proudly awaiting the birth of my first child in June. My mother is expecting around the same time. The problem is Mom. She is 40, unmarried and mad at the world. In her case there's no chance of marriage. She gets angry with me when I show any signs of happiness over the baby. I feel guilty even mentioning it because she is so miserable about her condition. I'm so happy about mine. Mom has lived with us since our marriage. She's been self-supporting but will have to quit work soon. My friends and relatives have given my baby showers, but they treat Mom like an outcast. She feels so bitter and left out. I told her she ought to go to a Home For Unwed Mothers, but she says, at her age, she'd feel foolish with all those young girls. What should Mom do?

WORRIED DAUGHTER
DEAR WORRIED: She should go to a Home For Unwed Mothers. If misery loves company, she'll have plenty of company her own age — and even older. I will send her a list of Homes in her area immediately on request. She may use her correct name without fear of embarrassment. All inquiries are strictly confidential. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that mailman's wife, who is afraid she'll lose her husband to one of those awful women who come to the door in their bathrobes, something for me. Yes, I do have a passionate love for my mailman. He brought my children home when they followed the garbage truck down the street and got lost. He pulled a little boy out from the path of an oncoming car right in front of my house one day. He caught our runaway dog and held him until the boys got there with the leash. He's paid my postage due mail out of his own pocket when I had no change. (I repaid him.) He has walked through sprinklers to get to my mailbox. Sure I love him. Who wouldn't? But a great affair we would never have. He has four children and I have seven. Besides, he doesn't have time for it, and neither do I.

MRS. P.
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something we hope you will settle for us. When Christmas cards come trailing in a day or two AFTER Christmas (and some of them are "airmail"), don't you think it proves that the senders really didn't intend to send you one, but after getting one from you they felt cheap and tried to make up for it? I do. And I think those people should be dropped from our Christmas card list next year. My husband says that some people are just "behind" with their cards, and it shouldn't matter when their cards get there, as long as they do. Well?

MR. AND MRS. DEAR MR. AND MRS.: I agree with your husband. Better late than to be ignored. And who counts?

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHY LENT?

For hundreds of years the Christian Church has set aside the six weeks before Easter and has designated them "the Lenten season."

The purpose of this special season is to give Christians an opportunity to recall the consequences of sin and the assurance of redemption. It provides Christian churches with an opportunity to tell the unchurched residents of their communities of the central fact of the Christian faith—the death of the Son of God to atone for the sins of the world.

The message of Lent is to Christianity what a spring is to a watch, what a motor is to a car. Take the message of Christ's life and death out of the Christian religion and you have only a worthless shell.

The message of Lent is still the message of Paul: "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures."

During these weeks thousands of churches throughout the nation are bringing this fundamental Bible fact into sharp focus. If you have not yet found forgiveness for your sins through faith in Christ, we extend a hearty invitation to you to attend our Lenten services.

You Are Invited to the Midweek Lenten Services

Legal Sparring Highlights Opening Of Rice Lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP)—Jurors paraded in and out of the jury box a dozen times Tuesday as attorneys slogged through legal arguments in a lawsuit to open Rice University to Negroes and charge tuition.

Dr. Andrew F. Muir, associate professor of history at Rice, was still testifying as the trial's first witness when Dist. Judge William M. Holland dismissed the jury for the day.

Documents and letters that Dr. Muir had found in his study of the life of William Marsh Rice, founder of the university, brought repeated objections from Joe H. Reynolds, attorney for two intervenors who oppose any change in the university's administration policies.

Reynolds claimed the documents and letters were not material as evidence because the 1891 indenture by which Rice started a fund for creation of the university specified that it should be for white students, and that it should be tuition-free.

Tom Martin Davis, attorney for Rice trustees who ask court authority to interpret the indenture in the light of modern conditions, introduced evidence that the university—originally known as Rice Institute—had students from 75 towns and 13 states in 1912, its first year of operation.

Time and again the jurors were marched from the jury box and locked in a jury room while Martin and Reynolds argued the admissibility of evidence before Judge Holland.

Reynolds, who represented John B. Coffee and Val T. Billups as the intervenors, said his clients had never objected to the university's policy of admitting students from other states or countries.

Four Men, Girl Held For Oklahoma Bank Stickup

DALLAS (AP)—Four Dallas residents and a Tyler man are in custody here today charged with the $17,000 robbery of the Red Oak, Okla., bank last Thursday.

Charges against the five were filed by U.S. Atty. Edwin Langley at Muskogee, Okla.

J. Gordon Shanklin, agent in charge here for the FBI, identified the five as Joe Gerald Crocker, Bob Nabors, Billy Ray Mabry, and Patricia Eloise Ramsey, all of Dallas, and Donald Wayne Sumarall of Tyler. All are said to be about 20.

In the holdup Thursday three men armed with sawed off shotguns forced the president of Red Oak Bank into a vault, and took the cash.

They later took a 1956 model car near Summerfield, Okla., leaving two passengers in the car bound in a garage.

Tuesday, Dallas police stopped a car with a faulty tail light, Shanklin said, and jailed all the prisoners but Mabry. Officers later picked him up on a Texas warrant charging he issued worthless checks in Grayson County.

U.S. Commissioner Forest Brewster at Muskogee set bond at $25,000 each for the five suspects.

A Devotional For The Day

Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungered. (Matthew 4:1-2.)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, by whose hand we are led into the light, although sometimes through fearsome ways, bind us close to Thee in loyal love. Grant us the spiritual victory that lights with glorious meaning the dark hours of temptation. May Thy strength be our confidence. Through Christ our Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

(From the "Upper Room")

The Men Who Weren't There

Voters and taxpayers are due, it seems to us, an easy, accurate check on how well their representatives in Congress are sticking to their principal business, which is law-making.

The only record now is afforded by roll-call votes, which are avoided in both the House and the Senate when absenteeism is obviously high. Record votes, or any serious items of business for that matter, are customarily avoided on Mondays and Fridays to accommodate the long week-ends taken by members of Congress from states near the nation's capital.

Roll-call votes also are discouraged as much as possible by representatives and senators who figure that a vote on the record either way may cost them some support among their constituents. Consequently, the report by Congressional Quarterly news service that the average congressman voted on 84 per cent of all roll calls in 1963, as against 82 per cent in 1962, is not a reliable indication of attendance records, which were actually worse in last year's extraordinarily long session.

Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, has calculated that 954 measures were passed last session by the House, though only 119 roll-calls were taken. And that does not take into account bills or amendments rejected by voice vote or other important floor action taken without a roll call.

Of course, a perfect attendance record would not mean perfect representation, and there are numerous justifications for absences. But a representative's or senator's record of attendance, and the extent of his absenteeism, should be available to voters who must judge his total phenomenal improvement in attendance in both houses.

How About Guidance Around?

One effect of the increasing size of motor transports is the room required for loading or unloading. Modern terminals are alert to this problem and have designed facilities to accommodate long vans.

But many places are not so designed, and the transports frequently block or all but block adjoining streets. In the case of the movers, this is so infrequent and isolated, and it occurs in residential areas so that it is of little consequence.

Not so the large merchandise units. The blockage is habitually at the same points, and almost invariably at a busy street. The need for large amounts of goods is evidence of a busy situation, hence a dependable tip that traffic will be brisk in the area.

Ordinances prohibit the blocking of traffic, except for emergency reasons. As a measure of cooperation, however, this practice is permitted. It should be noted that the poor motorist has some rights in the matter, and if the blocking is to be permitted, then there is an obligation for safe traffic guidance around this block while it is in existence.

Time To Show Our Strength

WASHINGTON — There is a growing feeling among many members of Congress that the United States is being pushed around in the world and that the self-restraint and forbearance in American foreign policy which have been exercised in the last few years have been misinterpreted abroad as a sign of weakness and irresolution.

The mere fact that Fidel Castro thought he could taunt the United States by denying water to the Guantanamo naval base is a sign of the belligerency that has been developing. It results perhaps from a feeling that under no circumstances will this country invade Cuba.

THE UNITED STATES naval base in Cuba—granted by a treaty which even the Castro government has not dared to abrogate—can obtain a supply of water from sources other than Cuba itself, but this doesn't erase the significance of Castro's action, bolstered as he is by the knowledge that he has an ally in Moscow.

The United States under the Kennedy administration took a firm position in demanding the removal of the Soviet missiles, but did not follow it up by insisting upon a fulfillment of the conditions originally laid down. There never has been any opportunity given for absolute verification to see whether weapons of various kinds hidden in Cuba could be used against the people of the United States.

THE UNITED STATES has not considered severing diplomatic relations with Moscow, nor has it insisted upon a cessation of Soviet activities in this hemisphere. There have been denunciations of Communist subversion and of Castro's activity in various Latin-American countries, but the United States has not shown any willingness to use its own strength to solve the problem.

But gradually respect for the United States government itself diminishes when it fails to stand up for its own rights. Even in Latin-American countries there were prominent persons who felt last year that the United States had not handled the Cuban problem effectively when it did not achieve the right of inspection, even by the United Nations, to determine whether the missiles had actually been removed.

LBJ Peeved At Foreign Policy 'Bellyaching'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has a thin skin and some of his critics are getting under it already. He hit back. He called them "belly-achers," although he didn't identify them.

This evidence that Johnson can be irritated so early in a presidential campaign year will probably just encourage Republicans, who have been criticizing his handling of foreign policy, to do more of the same.

The degree of Johnson's irritation can be glimpsed from a part of a talk he made Tuesday to agents of the Internal Revenue Service.

"When I became (Democratic) majority leader in the Senate) when President Eisenhower was president, I took the position politics stopped at the water's edge," Johnson said.

"We had but one president and one commander in chief. I would support his policies and give him strength and comfort, and I would not be aligning myself with any enemies of the United States in criticizing him."

That's pretty hard to digest in a country like this where the political football game traditionally has the out-party spending a lot of time criticizing a president and, in a campaign year like this, even more time.

HE SAID critics of an administration in office can be "almost as much of a problem as some of our other enemies."

His talk at least had the effect of raising a pertinent question about himself. If he can get this hot this soon, what's his temperature going to be when the presidential campaign really gets rolling?

In the 1960 presidential campaign year—before he got the Democratic vice presidential nomination on the ticket with John F. Kennedy—Johnson was critical of Eisenhower's handling of foreign policy.

And he was critical before that during those years of his majority leadership, which he mentioned Tuesday.

IF JOHNSON runs for election this year, as expected, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon once again is the Republican presidential candidate, as he was in 1960, this will be the 1960 campaign in reverse.

Among Republicans Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, in particular, have been Johnson critics.

Although Goldwater is openly seeking the nomination, Nixon insists he is not a candidate while, at the same time, sounding more and more like one in his trips and speeches. He does say he'd accept a draft.

In doing it now he sounds, in a way, like Johnson of 1960, which is one of those oddities in American politics which must make a foreigner wonder how Americans are ever able to choose between their politicians.

RECENTLY NIXON said some areas of U.S. foreign policy need a "new direction." He mentioned Latin America, especially Panama, and Southeast Asia.

In 1960 Johnson said "we need a new, vigorous and different foreign policy," and he especially called for a "positive and dynamic" policy for Latin America. He was also critical of American Asian policy.

The relationship between Johnson and Nixon, judging from what they have said about each other, could hardly be called clubby.

NIXON RECENTLY called Johnson a "past master of a political shell game" with "something for everybody—liberal to the liberals, conservative to the conservatives."

In 1960 Johnson called Nixon "dangerous" and "deceptive" and accused him of resorting in the campaign that year "to the kind of language little boys write on fences."

Essentials Of Choosing Enemies

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plator:

One of the important things in living is to pick the right kind of enemies. Few people take the trouble.

Personal enmity, as a matter of fact, has fallen upon evil times in our day, and has become almost as flabby as international amity.

The great feuds of the American past largely have degenerated into political name-calling or waspish grudges in office and factory life. We retain the ability to dislike, but seem to have lost the strength to hate.

YET ENMITY, while not as strong a force in life as love, still is an energizing factor we can't afford to overlook. It adds a perspective to the landscape, and helps round out our mortal being. It saves us from the penalty of too much milkop togetherness—boredom.

As most of our friendships are made accidentally or by chance, so are most of our enemies. Propinquity influences us chiefly. We tend to take as enemies the fellow who beats us out for a place on the football team, the fellow who weds the girl we thought we couldn't live without, or one who gets the job we sought.

SUCH BASES for enmity are puerile and ephemeral. After all, who cares about football after school days are gone? The job you so-called enemy won may well become a dead end, too, and the girl he took from you may turn into a frowzy fishwife.

You can learn more from a good enemy than from a bad friend. That is why the selection of proper enemies is so important, and should never be haphazard.

It is an error, for example, to pick as an enemy anyone who is a bum, a weakling or who suffers from a striking defect of character that will ruin him early. Enemies of this kind tend to evaporate in pity.

ENEMIES SHOULD test your mettle, and compel you to improve yourself in order to compete with or excel them.

Just as old friends are best, so are old enemies. You should make them while young so you can enjoy them longer.

The danger, of course, in having an enemy over a long period of years is that you get to know him pretty well, and when you come to understand anyone you usually wind up developing a fondness for him.

THUS YOU RUN the risk of discovering, that in a strange and mystic way, your lifelong enemy has become almost as necessary to you as your nearest friend. If anything should happen to him, his loss would leave an empty space in your life, a space very hard to fill.

But he has been of deep service to you. He has added zest to your living, spurred you on to achieve your own goals.

And what more can you ask of a good enemy than that he help make a better man of you? Has your best friend done more?

To Your Good Health

How The Body Battles Infections

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a chronic infection? My doctor says it could be one of a hundred things. My blood count shows more white than red cells. — E. S. S.

One of a hundred things? I think your doctor is conservative.

Some infections come to a head quickly — an infected finger, or a cold, or a boil, or any number of others. Your body does battle with the invading germs. The number of white cells in the blood increases, because these are needed to kill and consume the germs.

"Infection" means that microscopic armies of germs and white cells are at war.

Not all infections reach such a decisive climax, though. There can be a pocket of infection which smolders along. Perhaps we could compare it to what we once thought, in 1939, was a "phony war" in Europe: Armies facing each other but doing very little fighting.

The white cells may be mobilized in the blood. There can be some subtle elevation of temperature; fatigue and lassitude; a change in sedimentation rate of the blood; anemia. There may be vague aches and pains — and yet a "hot war" does not break out to the extent that the point of infection becomes obvious.

If it is a bacterial infection, the use of an appropriate antibiotic may, in the end, give you a quick and easy solution. But even then it is necessary to know which kind of bacteria.

In other instances surgical removal of the infected area may be preferable — extraction of a tooth, drainage of an infected sinus, removal of a gall bladder, drainage or other treatment for an abscess, healing of an ulcer.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Around The Rim

My Scoutmaster

My scoutmaster was a tall, angular man whose loose frame almost bobbed when he walked. He was chiseled somewhat in the Lincoln mould, like being hewn out of a pine knot. His dark eyes had a sparkle, and his broad mouth could always manage a smile.

HE CAME HERE as secretary for the railroad YMCA in the day when it had just passed its zenith, and he arrived at the time when the town's only Boy Scout troop was in urgent need of a leader. He took the job, with not much thanks from anyone, and for the next half dozen years proceeded to leave his mark on scores of young lives.

I don't know how much J. M. Manuel knew about Scouting when he took over, but he knew a lot about boys and about psychology, or human nature as it was called in those days.

YOU HAD TO be 12 years old then in order to join, and he wouldn't fudge a day. Consequently, I could hardly wait. Nor did I get to blossom out immediately in my uniform; indeed, he made it plain that we first had to pass all the tenderfoot requirements and receive our membership card. I had a suspicion that had I gone to J.W. Fisher's Scout wear department without that card in hand, I could have been shipped off to Fort Leavenworth. No one, therefore, was half as proud as I the day I got my uniform complete with its campaign hat, and with the Scout insignia discreetly stamped inside the garments. It was official, all right, and it made me feel like something special.

RECRUITING WAS not the easiest thing in those days, because the Scout uniform fit into the propaganda that boys becoming Scouts were in reality being signed into the U. S. Army. Mr. Manuel studiously avoided anything which would add to this impression, but he recognized the importance of discipline. One way he got it was by some brisk drills. And every patrol leader had to stand its boys up straight as a ramrod and report that the patrol was all present and accounted for. They had to salute smartly, too, and there was no talking in the ranks when he had called us to attention.

THAT WAS about the extent of the rigid hand, though, for he recognized that boys were like pop corn. He gave private pep talks to his patrol leaders, how he expected them to out-do a certain other patrol. Of course, he had given precisely this same talk to another patrol leader, and the net result was that each of us worked like the dickens to have the best patrol. I knew it was the Bull patrol, but I secretly suspected the Wolf and Beaver patrols had the edge because we were so jealous of their successes. The Eagles we could tolerate on account of they were about our equal.

SOME OF US had a notion that perhaps our scoutmaster wasn't the most energetic man in the world, because he would bark orders, when we arrived—via foot—at the site for our camp, then sat back to see things take shape. We mumbled when we had to drag up the brush or ditch the tents, or lay the council fire. It was years before it dawned on me what a genius he was, and that was when I realized one day that half of the scoutmasters in town had come out of his old troop. Mr. Manuel, God rest his soul, trained his boys for leadership; he never undertook to do it for them. He was a wonderful man. —JOE PICKLE

Inez Robb

Let's Hear From Bobby

For at least a fortnight I have been tempted to write a "Dear Virginia" letter, asking, "Is there a Bobby Baker?" Or perhaps the question should be: "Whatever became of Bobby Bobby, the Senate sibling?"

Oh, there are plenty of stories about Bobby on the front pages and on the air, stories of financial wizardry that put to shame the legendary other-generation doings of "The Boy Wizard of Wall Street." There is no dearth of news about Bobby. But that's the basis of my complaint. The stories are ABOUT him.

IN NONE of the stories is Bobby ever seen or heard or directly quoted. For all the public knows, Bobby can be a myth or good, gray ectoplasm. The weeks go by and the U.S. Senate investigation of Bobby and his big, black bag go on and on, but always within the corporeal presence of the Senate's own financial wonder.

To most Americans, Bobby was unknown, unsung and unknown until the Senate began spreading on the record Bobby's stunning victory in his own private war on poverty while he, Bobby, was secretary to the majority (the Democrats, that is) in the United States Senate.

I HAVE BEEN waiting eagerly for the Senate investigators to summon Bobby for a firsthand account of his success saga. I feel that approximately 180,000,000 other Americans are in the same boat, christened "Impatience," with me. If the Senate sleuths are listening, they can plainly hear us chanting, "We want Bobby; we want Bobby."

Sooner or later the Senators are going to have to call Bobby, let the blue chips fall where they may. They are going to have to delve into the ways and means by which he parlayed $11,025, as of May, 1954, into either $2,166,866 or $1,791,186 as of Feb. 1, 1963. Bobby himself estimated his worth at the first figure; the lesser estimate is that of Lorin H. Drennan, investigator for the government's General Accounting Office.

BUT GIVE or take that disputed $375,680, Bobby has proved that any poor American boy can become a millionaire as easily as President. Here is the gilded embodiment of the American dream, played against the august background of the United States Senate.

One would think that Senators would be eager for Bobby to share his rags-to-riches saga with the voters, who made all this possible for the youth who began public life as a Senate page. But Senators seem reluctant to let Bobby tell in person how they helped him, or vice versa.

IF THE SENATE continues reluctant to let Bobby tell his get-rich-quick secrets, there is a legitimate means by which to let the hungry public in on a good thing. The impressive McGraw-Hill publishing house has just signed up all book rights to the defense version of the Jack Ruby trial, with an advance payment of $20,000.

If the rights to that trial are worth a $20,000 advance, surely other up-and-coming publishing houses would find it advantageous to sign up Bobby for a book on high finance made easy. The title possibilities are endless: for instance "From Rags to Riches in the U.S. Senate" or "From Page to Plutocrat" or "Government Business Is My Business."

Holmes Alexander

Robert Kennedy—And Lyndon Johnson

WASHINGTON — "For 13 years," says a close friend and devoted admirer of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, "Bob never thought of his own future—now he does."

The statement is tantamount to a frank declaration, by an intimate authority, that Bob Kennedy would very much like to be elected Vice President in November. The horror with which this prospect is regarded in some quarters can be typified by a conversation I had with a Foreign Service officer. He resigned early last year and entered private business rather than serve further under "the Kennedys."

"THE MEMORY I have," this ex-State Department functionary told me, "is of a meeting I attended with the little man shaking his fist and shouting. To me, it was the dictator image."

How well Bob Kennedy deserves such obloquy, I do not know, but it is widespread. My own impression of the Attorney General, based on long observation, pleasant acquaintanceship, but not intimacy, is very different. Intense, opinionated, inclined to the creed that Nice Guys Finish Last, obsessed with a Lord Bountiful egalitarianism, Bob Kennedy might not be my candidate, but he would never be my villain either.

I TAKE HIM to have the moral character, the intelligence, the experience and the proven administrative ability that are at least equal to those that the Democratic party finds acceptable.

But since Lyndon Johnson will name his running mate, Kennedy must win LBJ's approval before he wins the nomination, the election and the mortal succession to the White House. The Johnson-Kennedy relationship hinges on past grievances and Kennedy's coming helpfulness to the Administration over the next few months. Both men are much matured since their squabbles just before and after the 1960 Democratic Convention, and both are capable of forgive-and-forget.

A MUCH MORE recent canker in the pre-assassination Dump Lyndon Movement which was not unrelated to the Bobby Baker scandals. The Justice Department had a good deal of information on Baker, but, not enough for an indictment. A number of newsmen went to the Attorney General to learn if the Baker case, though not indictable, carried enough implication to make Johnson a drag on the contemplated Johnson-Kennedy ticket. President Kennedy, in public, and the Attorney General, in private, said that Johnson was a fixture on the Democratic slate.

BUT SOMEHOW several newsmen were steered to other sources of Johnsonia. If, as circumstantial evidence indicates, persons at the Justice Department directed some of this traffic to caches of defamatory material, the President will have a very recent grievance to forgive.

Aside from what's past, Bob Kennedy's friends feel that he still has to win his way into the President's confidence as a loyal and able lieutenant. Kennedy is well-regarded in the Cabinet and other high echelons.

THERE REMAIN a good many Democrats, and a good many Americans, who will never be reconciled to a Johnson-Kennedy ticket. But Lyndon Johnson, the Democrat, the American, who counts most in Bob Kennedy's immediate future, still has to be cajoled, coerced or persuaded—and, perhaps, a little of each.

Clinic Opens On Fine Art Of Inhalation

NEW YORK (AP) — A new kind of smokers' clinic—for people who enjoy and want to continue cigarettes—was suggested today by a chest specialist.

The clinics would teach how to smoke safely, without inhaling, said Dr. Alvan L. Barach of New York City.

He said one method is to take a puff of smoke into your mouth. Close your lips firmly. Then inhale air deeply through the nose. Then exhale — of course.

NO EVIDENCE
Dr. Barach told the New York State Medical Society, "There is no scientific evidence that non-inhaling smoking causes cancer of the lung" and other diseases.

"As physicians, we must be careful not to indict the non-inhaling just because excessive inhaling smoking is harmful, nor to support a war against enjoyment unless harm can be demonstrated in each individual case," he said.

Dr. Barach commented on a speech presented by Dr. Richard H. Overholt of Boston on "The Physician's Obligation to the Public Regarding Cigarette Smoking."

MEDICAL LEADER
Dr. Overholt, of Tufts University and the Overholt Clinic, in his text declared the medical profession must be the leader in dissuading people from smoking because "the government cannot and will not be the emancipator."

Dr. Overholt said doctors should "convincingly advise relatives, friends and patients of the immediate and long-term ill effects of smoking" while avoiding "any Carrie Nation type of prohibition."

Dr. Overholt declared the "devastation" from smoking "is far greater than smallpox or the plague ever was."

Acapulco Airport Widening Asked

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Airline pilots are asking that the Acapulco Airport runways be widened.

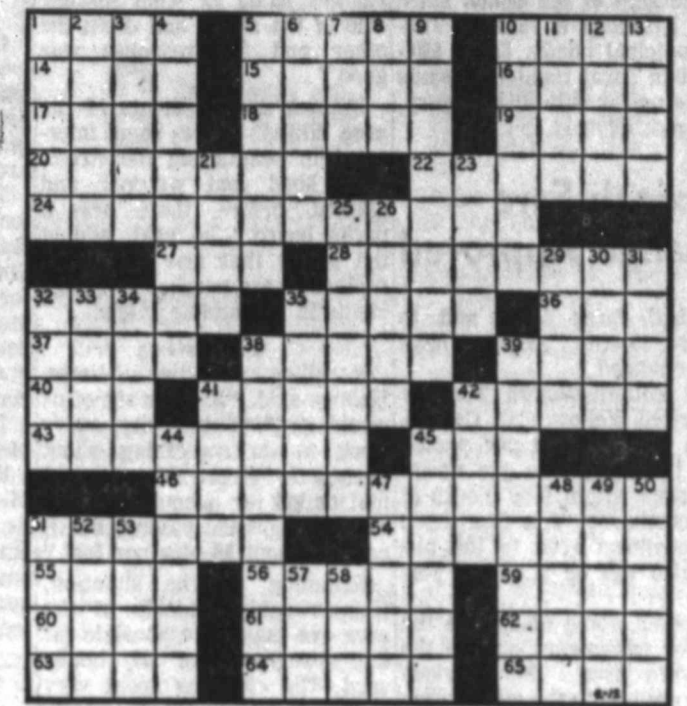

The pilots union says the runways are too narrow, and asks that they be widened from 45 meters to 60 meters. They said this complies with international regulations.

Puzzle of Tuesday, February 11 Solved

Oil Production Shows Increase

TULSA (AP)—A higher February allowable in Texas helped increase U.S. oil production last week, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Output last week averaged 7,593,850 barrels a day up 13,820 a day from the previous week. Texas production rose 27,300 barrels a day to an average of 2,652,600 as the higher allowable took effect.

New Mexico production was up 3,700 to 303,200. Oklahoma output dropped 7,200 to 554,800. Arkansas produced 75,500, Colorado 99,800, and Louisiana 1,525,700.

Johnson Begins Early, Never Stops Working In Presidency

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a boy, Lyndon B. Johnson was often awakened at 4:30 a.m. by having one bare foot twisted by his father's impatient hands.

"Gilt up, Lyndon!" the father's words were as sharp as the sudden twinge of the ankle. "Every other boy in town already has a half-hour's head start on you!"

Few men in Washington get a half-hour's head start on the President, and few work later.

The key fact about Johnson's work pattern is that he seldom stops working—even when he's socializing. Work and relaxation go hand in hand.

On an average morning, Johnson is awake by 4:30 a.m. A lifetime of habit makes it difficult for him to sleep later. By 6:45, the President's aide and official shadow, Jack Valenti, is at the White House, prepared to give over the day's schedule and give Johnson a briefing on secret intelligence from around the globe.

SCHEDULE
After the intelligence briefing, the first order of business is a look at the day's schedule. How should the President handle each visitor or visiting delegation? What does he want to tell them? What does he want to learn from them? Johnson and Valenti, shuffling through folders of neatly filed memos on each appointment, decide the day's strategy.

Then comes the "reading hour," which may stretch to nearly two hours. There are special studies, intelligence reports, diplomatic cables and memoranda from various agencies.

Like the late President John F. Kennedy, Johnson is a fast reader. His assistants say he has "a blotting paper memory" for key facts.

Newspapers are a major part of the President's morning reading. He thumbs through seven or eight of them, including the Washington Post, Baltimore Sun, New York Times, New York Herald Tribune, New York Daily News, Chicago Tribune and Philadelphia Inquirer. The list is limited only by the number available at dawn.

PRIME NEWS
The President skims the paper, looking in particular for prime news or for dispatches, columns and editorials concerning his own activities.

Like many a president, Johnson attaches great importance to the things that reporters and pundits write about him. If an article strikes him as favorable — "objective," he would say — Johnson is delighted. He has been known to venture into the White House lobby, where newsmen congregate, to bestow personal congratulations on a startled reporter. If the printed word is displeasing, the writer may get a personal phone call from the President, who does not hesitate to suggest amendments.

His reading completed, Johnson is ready for breakfast: a half melon and a cup of tea. The menu seldom varies.

Sometimes Johnson remains in the White House living quarters for an hour or two after breakfast, seeing top officials or calling them on the telephone.

TELEPHONE
Johnson lives with the telephone, using it to quiz department heads, cajole members of Congress, or surprise casual acquaintances.

On a usual morning, Johnson is in his oval office about 9:30 a.m., ready for appointments.

With many presidents, the appointments schedule has been semisacred. Visitors have moved in and out according to the timetable.

For Johnson, a schedule is something to exercise the imagination. Some appointments will be delayed, postponed or canceled. Others will be added.

While one man waits 30 minutes to see Johnson another may find a 10-minute appointment stretching into an hour. If Johnson wants to make a point, or engage in a thorough discussion of a topic he judges important, he will take whatever time is necessary.

There is another point, too, about the President's many meetings: he tends to observe the chain of command, dealing with top people in a department or agency.

SEVERAL CONTACTS
Both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara see more of Johnson than they did of Kennedy. Several contacts a day are not uncommon.

Outside the official family, Johnson maintains an impressive array of contacts: with businessmen, labor leaders, civil rights partisans, local political leaders and the press. Many come for lunch and, to their surprise, are invited to first take a dip in the White House pool.

Johnson is an ardent wooer of all groups that influence public opinion. He sees them, phones them, dines them.

All this consultation takes time, and Johnson may leave his office any time between 7 p.m. and midnight—occasionally later. After dining with his family, or with guests, he may go to his bedroom about 10 or 10:30 p.m. to do some more reading. Or he may summon a medical corpsman from the White House staff to give him a rubdown.

Thus ends the longest day in Washington.

Trustees Okay Most Contracts

The contracts of administrative personnel of the Big Spring Independent School District came up for discussion at a regular meeting of trustees Tuesday night and with a pair of exceptions, all were approved for extension.

S. M. Anderson, superintendent, was granted a one-year extension to June 30, 1967, with continuance of the present annual increment of $1,000. He is currently receiving $16,000 a year, with the $1,000 increment to be added each June 30. This pegs his salary at $19,000 for the last year of his contract.

Donald Robbins, athletic director and head football coach, was given a one-year extension and an increase of $250 for the added year. His contract now carries through Feb. 15, 1966. A first motion by Wendell Parks that Robbins be given a $500 increase for the added year was voted down 4-3. This brings Robbins' salary to $10,250 for the 1965-66 year.

EXCEPT ONE

Also receiving a $250 increment and a year's extension was John F. Smith, principal at the Senior High School. Contracts of all other principals were extended one year to June 30, 1965, with the normal state

Accident Victims Reported Improved

The condition of four accident victims, injured in two separate mishaps Monday night and Tuesday morning, is improved, according to hospital attendants.

Mrs. Marguerite Smith, 46, Box 202, apparently was the most seriously injured of the four. She was injured Tuesday morning while driving to work at the Cosden plant. Investigating officers said her car crashed into an exit sign on IS 20 at Midway Road.

Taken to Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital, Mrs. Smith remained in the operating room four hours. Hospital authorities

R. H. McNew Dies Tuesday

R. H. (Homer) McNew, 70, former Big Spring resident and a retired department store executive, died of a heart seizure Tuesday afternoon at his home in New Orleans, La.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon in Denton at the Floyd, Hamlett and Schmitt Funeral Home, but the time has not been fixed.

Mr. McNew was reared in Big Spring and for many years made his home here. He became district administrator for the Works Progress Administration here in the early 1930's and later was promoted to a regional post. For many years he served as an economist for the D. H. Holmes department store firm in New Orleans.

About a year ago he had a severe heart attack but recovered from it. Tuesday he had gone into his yard to work among his flowers and Mrs. McNew found him dead a short time later.

Surviving are his widow and one son, R. H. (Bobby) McNew Jr., Wilmington, Del.; and four grandchildren. Mrs. L.B. Coffee, San Angelo, and Mrs. Florence McNew, Big Spring, will attend services in Denton.

Torres Loses Appeal Bid

Joe Torres, found guilty of murder and his punishment assessed at 15 years in the state penitentiary, has lost his last effort to escape going to prison. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday overruled Torres' motion for a rehearing.

In substance, this upheld the opinion of the court handed down earlier in which the findings of the 118th District Court were sustained. At a still earlier hearing, the appeals court had reversed the lower court.

Torres, who is at liberty on bond, was found guilty in the murder of Andrew Garcia Perez, shot to death April 18, 1962. After his conviction in 118th District Court, Torres appealed, alleging he was not permitted to show the quarrelsome nature of the victim. The Court of Criminal Appeals sustained the appeal and ordered a retrial of the case.

Gil Jones, district attorney, then filed motion for a state hearing on behalf of the state and after this was granted, the appeals court reversed its first opinion and upheld the findings of the local court. Roger Brown and George Thomas, defense attorneys, then filed a new motion for a rehearing.

This motion, denied Wednesday, terminates the case. Torres will be taken to the penitentiary as soon as the mandate is received here.

CAR CONTRACT

Trustees accepted a proposal from Pollard Chevrolet Co. for use of a car for driver education. Like the contract under which cars are being obtained from Shasta Ford Sales, it calls for a maximum expenditure each year on trade-in of $175. However, it calls for the school to provide insurance on glass breakage, in addition to fire, windstorm and accident insurance carried on the other vehicles. McEwen Motor Co. formerly provided the car Pollard will furnish. The company had asked to withdraw from the program for this year.

The county clerk's office was designated as the polling place for absentee voting in the April 4 school election, and a committee appointed by the county commissioner's court will poll the voters. Absentee voting begins March 15 and ends the evening of March 31. Two positions on the school board will come up for decision at the election—presently held by O. S. Womack and James E. Felts. Neither has filed for re-election at this time.

The tax assessor-collector for the Big Spring Independent School District will take over the responsibility of collecting and assessing taxes in the Gay Hill and Center Point areas during the coming year. This work was done by the Howard County tax assessor-collector for the present year because of the lateness in receiving a decision on the annexation issue.

BE-ELECTED

J. O. Hagood was re-elected tax assessor-collector for one year effective July 1, at his present salary of $7,000.

Three trustees—Mrs. R. B. G. Cowper, Bennett Brooke and Joe A. Moss—indicated that they will attend the 24th annual convention of the National School Boards Association to be held in Houston April 25-28. This weekend, S. M. Anderson, superintendent, will attend the national convention of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City, N. J. Since Anderson heads the state association, his functions will include planting the Texas flag on New Jersey soil, receiving other Texas delegates and performing other host duties, as well as attending conferences on education.

He pointed out the bid specifications also would provide for the replacement of a base station on South Mountain. Application for matching funds from the government, under a Civil Defense program, would not obligate the city to purchase all of the equipment, according to City Manager Larry Crow.

The vehicles would be replacements for two 1962 model and one 1963 model police patrol cars that have respective mileage totals of 78,000, 63,000 and 47,000 miles.

Crow said the city tries to trade in patrol cars after they have been driven about 60,000 miles. Bids on the vehicles also will include alternates for air conditioners. The city may trade in for one, two or three air-conditioned cars, Crow explained.

Salesmen were to demonstrate the sewer cleaning equipment Wednesday morning, according to Ernest Lillard, director of public works, who said a rodder is needed for cleaning sewage lines. Cleaning of a line is complicated by a shortage of manholes in some areas, he said.

Residents Save Beauty Of Washington Blvd.

By BUCK SITTON

A group of Big Spring residents have shown how an appreciation for beauty can preserve the appearance of a suburban boulevard.

The group—36 residents of Washington Boulevard—gave the city a check for $705 Tuesday morning. Tuesday night, they received assurance from city commissioners the city will maintain shrubbery planted along the boulevard.

The money will pay for the two types of plants—Italian cypress and Pfitzer juniper—which will cover the islands separating the boulevard. Residents were told the city would plant and maintain the bushes if the property owners would pay for them.

ALTERNATIVE

The unhappy alternative was to see old plants in the islands replaced with white crushed rock and the ground made sterile. This would cut maintenance costs for the city.

"I kind of opened my mouth and put my foot in it," said Justin Holmes, Washington Boulevard home owner, who spearheaded the campaign to replace the old bushes with new growth.

"We didn't know what was up," he explained, "until we saw city workers dumping rock in one of the blocks (west of Birdwell Lane)."

This block has been sterilized, and it will be three years before it can be planted again.

Holmes said home owners also felt it would be a temptation to children looking for something to use in pitching skills. Drag racers could spin pebbles at unprotected windows or pedestrians, residents felt.

Seven of the eight blocks on the boulevard still could be planted with new shrubbery.

Holmes said A. A. Marchant, a neighbor, asked him to protest to the parks and recreation board since the string of islands is a city park (Washington Boulevard Park).

The parks and recreation board, mindful of increased maintenance Master Plan bond program improvements will bring, had approved the plan to spread rock in the islands. It would take too much time to weed, hose and water the plants.

Confronted with the objections, the board countered with its proposal, requesting residents to pay for the plants. The board also requested bushes be planted which would cover the ground. Solid shrubbery has to be trimmed only once or twice a year.

Further, the board appointed Holmes, Marchant and Don Bohannon a committee of three to secure funds for the plants. The three men are residents of Washington Boulevard.

"Everyone was gracious," Holmes said, "I went up one side of the street and down the other and the response was good."

Holmes said residents of the area always have been interested in beautifying the street. "We hoed and watered and planted before there was a parks board," he said, adding the plants that now are being replaced were purchased by residents in the middle 1940's.

PAVING

Recalling earlier times, Holmes said, "Five or six of us would petition the city every week to do something about paving the street. The original plat called for a boulevard. Finally, we got the paving, but it cost us about $6 plus per foot."

Summing up the situation, Holmes said residents of the area are mainly responsible for the appearance of the boulevard. The city has spent very little money, he said, adding Texas Electric Company gave the lights.

City crews already have begun digging holes for the new shrubbery. The junipers and cypress plants will be put into the ground sometime this week.

Valentine Lunch

Big Spring Kiwanis Club will have its annual "Valentine" luncheon Thursday noon at the Hotel Settles. All members were urged by V. Ward Jackson, president of the club, to have their wives as guests. Bob Travis, program chairman, has arranged a special program to fit the occasion, Jackson said.

Two Accidents

James Lancaster was involved in a motor vehicle accident at Eighteenth and Tuesday, according to police. Driver of the other car was Mattie Clay, 1602 Runnels.

One other accident previously reported occurred about 5 p.m. at the Eleventh Place shopping center. Involved were Sallie Wasson, Box 546, and Barbara Davidson, 1602 Baylor.

Scouters Plan Thursday Meets

Two meetings for Scout leaders have been set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday. One meeting—for members of the Explorer's Club—will be held at the Chamber of Commerce with James Beckham, chairman, presiding. The other meeting, a Cub Leaders Roundtable, will be held in the old student union building at Howard County Junior College. It will be led by W. D. (Slim) Broughton. A representative from each pack is urged to attend.

Father Ill

Margaret Bennett and Mrs. Barrie Fletcher are in Baton Rouge, La., where they were called last Friday due to the critical illness of their father, James R. Bennett. He is a patient at the Baton Rouge General Hospital. At latest reports, his condition was unchanged. Miss Bennett advised friends here.

New Delinquent Tax Plan Approved By Trustees

A new contract for collection of delinquent taxes owed the Big Spring Independent School District was negotiated with John A. Burgess, school tax attorney, and approved at a meeting of trustees Tuesday night.

Although the new contract calls for a lower rate of pay for delinquent accounts paid down from 15 per cent to eight per cent, it will be more lucrative for Burgess than the old procedure since delinquent accounts for recent years have been added. Under the former contract, Burgess could collect on accounts which owed taxes for 1958 or prior years.

At the same time, the contract puts teeth into measures to clamp down on these delinquent accounts, since it spells out the exact procedure to be followed. The contract is of one-year duration, with automatic renewal each year unless written notice of termination is given by either Burgess or the school district not less than 60 days prior to the anniversary date of March 1.

Each Sept. 1, Burgess will be provided a statement of delinquent accounts from the previous year. He will then mail statements to the property owners within 15 days. This procedure will be followed again in March of each year. Each September, Burgess will provide a report on the status of each delinquent account.

When accounts are three years past due, court proceedings will be instituted within 30 days and if they are not cleared up within 150 days, judgment will be secured and the property sold at sheriff's sale unless other action is authorized by the school board.

A representative of the school will be on hand to bid in the property for the amount of the tax lien held by the school.

Weather Forecast

It will be colder in the upper Great Lakes region southwestward through the upper and middle Mississippi valley, the northern and central Plains, the southern Plateau and part of the Pacific coast. It will be warmer over the eastern half of the nation. (AP WIRE-PHOTO MAP)

Occasional snow is forecast tonight for portions of the lower Great Lakes westward through the northern parts of the middle Mississippi valley and into the central Plains. Rain is predicted for some parts of the Mississippi valley southward through the southern Plains and for the Pacific northwest.

New Car Agency Here To Offer Renault Line

Those well-known French-made Renaults, Renault-Dauphines, Caravelles and Peugeots have come to Big Spring, Nixon and Madewell Motors have opened the new agency and service department at 911 W. 4th, and will hold a formal opening Thursday through Saturday.

Arthur Madewell, operator of the City Body Shop, 308 Young, for 17 years, and Joe Nixon, new and used car dealer and restaurant operator at Coahoma, are owners of the new agency. John Walling, native West Texan and Big Spring resident for 16 years, will be general manager.

Lines to be featured at Madewell and Nixon Motors will be: Renault Dauphine, 4-speed transmission; Dauphine automatic; Renault 4-speed automatic; Caravelle hardtop; and Caravelle convertible and hardtop; Peugeot 404 sedan and station wagon.

Not all models will be on the floor when the formal opening is held, Madison said, but they will be on display as soon as possible.

All the French-made cars for the Southwest enter the United States through the port of Houston and are then transported to their destinations.

"We will operate a complete service department, with all parts in stock," Walling said.

The service department will be managed by Bill Ausmus.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served to adults coming to the new location for the formal opening, and something special will be available for youngsters, the owners said.

The new firm invites the public to attend the opening, and to come by and look over their cars at any time.

Zone Changes Given Okays

City commissioners passed two requests for zone changes on third and final reading Tuesday night and approved another request on second reading.

J. Y. (Ike) Robb had requested a change from IF-2 (single-family residential) to R (retail) for a 32.57-acre tract of land south of Marcy Drive and east of US 87 south. An agent for South Mountain Land Company, Robb said a shopping center will be developed in the area. The request was approved on third reading.

Robb's request for a similar zone change for property on Wasson Road to be used as a drive-in theater was approved on second reading.

The other approval was the third reading of an ordinance for a zone change from GR (general residential) to NS (neighborhood service). It was requested by W. A. Moore, agent for S. A. Wilson, L. D. Rockwell and G. F. Smith, so that a service station may be constructed on a .72-acre tract at the southeast corner of IS 20 and North Goliad.

In other action, commissioners formally accepted the resignation of Johnny Johnson from the parks and recreation board. He has moved to Dallas.

Eagle Scout Speaks At Club

Eagle Scout William Head, son of Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Head Jr., Webb AFB, told Rotarians Tuesday of his Scout experiences in a National Scout Week program. He said he began his first Scouting as a Cub and then went into Boy Scouts as soon as he reached the age.

"I have shared experiences with Scout troops all over the country," he said, "since my father is an Air Force officer and is required to change posts at times. This has taught me to know other boys and to learn the differences in various areas. It has opened new fields to me, and I feel that the knowledge gained will serve to make me a better person and citizen."

Bill was one of 44 Eagle Scouts recognized at the banquet held Saturday night at Howard County Junior College. Bill McRee, Scout executive, who introduced Head, said the young Scout was numbered among the upper five per cent in the senior class at Big Spring High School. "He will be a candidate for the Air Force Academy when he has completed his high school work," McRee said.

Returns Home

Elvis Knowlton of Ackery is back home with his family after two months in the hospital. During this time he twice underwent brain surgery. He was in Cowper Hospital here for a week before being transferred to Midland for the neurological surgery.

WIDE CHOICE County Auditor

Political Announcements

The Herald is authorized to announce the following candidates for Public Office subject to the Democratic Primary of May 12, 1964.

George Thiburn, certified public accountant employed by the county to make an audit of county records for 1962, has completed his work.

He said he would go over his report with the county commissioners court Thursday morning. He handed one copy of the report to County Judge Lee Porter, Tuesday afternoon.

The audit is general in nature and covers all funds and all offices in the county governmental structure.

County Audit Report Slated

City commissioners Tuesday authorized the payment of $800 to Mrs. Jean Lawrence Graham for property on Michler Street that had been condemned.

The $800 figure was set by a special board last week. Attorney John Burgess and Ernest Lillard, director of public works, said the property is needed for paving. The plot is 21 feet wide and 200 feet long, Burgess said.

Construction Permits Show Rally In January

Construction activity in the first month of the new year rallied after dropping sharply the final four months of 1963, but it did not equal the values for the same month a year ago.

The value of construction in January jumped to $220,654 for all categories, compared with an overall figure of $88,405 for December. However, the drop for the corresponding month last year was $68,661.

The biggest rise over the preceding month was in residential construction — $84,700 to $214,917 with new residences ($181,000) accounting for most of the total. The value of new residences last month was only $66,000.

More buildings were demolished this month than in the prior month with values of $3,000 for January comparing with no values for December. All other categories of residential construction were either the same as the preceding month or were down.

Business construction was up from a paltry $3,705 in December to a still small $5,737. New business construction and remodeling jobs were worth more, but additions to businesses and business signs were down. Other business categories were the same.

The small total for business in January, even though it showed a rise over the preceding month, indicates 1964 business construction may not be as good as it was last year.

For instance, a year ago business construction values totaled $60,450 or $54,713 more than the $5,737 total for January.

Residential construction also fell off compared with the same month last year, from $228,865 to $214,917. The drop was $13,948.

Total construction values also declined in the same period from $289,315 for January of 1963 to $220,654 for January of 1964 for a drop of $68,661.

All categories of residential construction were up the first month of 1964 compared with January, 1963, except new residences. The 1963 figure of $222,000 is $26,000 more than the 1964 figure of $196,000.

Each category of business construction was off except remodeling and business signs. Respective increases were $337 and $1,000, though new businesses decreased from $17,000 in January, 1963 to $1,200 in January, 1964.

The greatest decrease in business construction was in the category of additions to businesses. There was no work in that category last month while the figures for a year ago were $39,950.

There were a total of 38 building permits issued in January, 1964 and in January, 1963, although there were only 27 permits issued in December.

BAKER ISSUE

Pollsters Wrong, We'll Win—GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican National Chairman William E. Miller predicted today the "pollsters notwithstanding" the GOP has the organization, the candidates and the issues to win in November.

"That doesn't mean I welcome it," he told the National Press Club. "I think the whole business is pretty sickening, and I wish we could campaign on issues which do not strike at the personal integrity of officials in high places."

Miller, in his prepared remarks, accused the White House of a clumsy effort to frustrate the Senate Rules Committee investigation of Baker, who resigned under heat as secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

REYNOLDS

Miller said information had been made available to several newsmen impugning the character of Don Reynolds, the insurance man who told the committee he gave then-Sen. Johnson a stereo set after selling a $100,000 insurance policy on his life.

The GOP chairman said there can be no doubt the dossiers "reportedly obtained from files in the possession of the Air Force, the State Department and the FBI" were leaked by persons "high in the present administration."

In addition to the issues, Miller said, the party had a stronger organization than in 1960 and "we will have a candidate chosen from the long list of people any one of whom can run this government better than any known Democrat."

Among those on "the long list" —

Sen. Barry Goldwater opens his California campaign today, declaring that the winner of that state's primary "will be the Republican nominee." He set his own chances for the nomination at 50-50 "but I'm not betting yet."

NEW HAMPSHIRE

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller opens a three-day round of speeches, hand-shaking, coffee hours and teas as he presses his candidacy in New Hampshire's presidential preference primary, March 10.

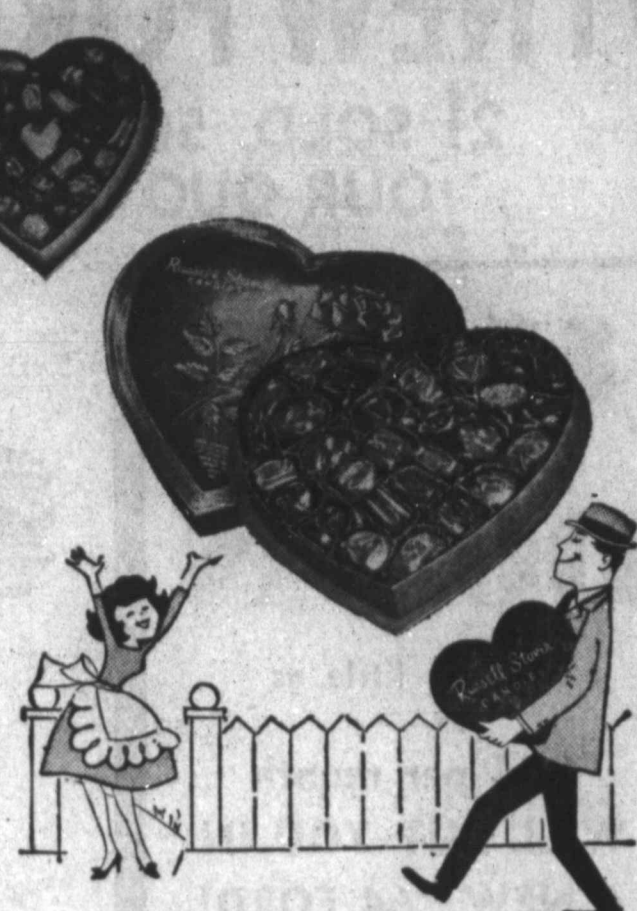

"As to contentions that the primary will be meaningless because of the large number of entrants, Rockefeller said "to those who lose, that probably will be the conclusion. But to the ones who win, it is going to be a very significant primary."

Also on the vote trail in New Hampshire, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine said she has received a large number of contributions for her campaign, but "I don't know what to do with it because I don't usually take any campaign contributions."

Sterling City Ram Triumphs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two cattle sales and a heavy judging scheduled claimed the attention of visitors at the San Antonio Livestock Exposition today, as the show moved into its second half.

The day's judging will include Brangus, Santa Gertrudis, and junior shorthorn cattle, as well as Shropshire, Hampshire, Dorset, Cheviot, Corriedale and Columbia sheep.

Tuesday Cotulla entrants made a clean sweep of top awards in the Paza Zebu cattle division, as Martin Bros. Showed the champion bull. Coquat ranches had the reserve champion bull and the champion female, with Mrs. L. Otis Cox showing the reserve champion female.

West Texans took all of the awards in the open rambouillet and junior rambouillet shows. Clinton Hodges of Sterling City was the exhibitor of the champion ram in the open show and Ovey Taliaferro of Eden showed the reserve champion ram, the champion ewe and reserve champion ewe.
