As one of the television commentators commented Thursday evening, millions of Americans got a good lesson in civics, or government, during the past week.

In fact, the lesson has been going on for many months, although it had reached the point that many were not paying attention until a sudden upsurge of interest occurred a few days ago.

Now that the climactic moment has passed, Congress and the American people can hope that President Gerald Ford was correct when he said that the "nightmare" is over.

Watergate, the basis for the turmoil that gripped the country for these long months, repeatedly stimulated a variety of reactions. It will remain for historians, of course, to put it in its proper place. But with the passing of the Watergate affair, Americans ranging in age from youngish middle-agers upward can lay claim to witnessing some of the most spectacular moments of this nation's history. Within a space of thirty years, three vice presidents have ascended to the presidency when the office became vacant, all under different conditions.

Thursday night's resignation by Richard M. Nixon made history, of course, because he is the first to vacate the presidency by resignation.

The months of Watergate have been agonizing for all—Nixon's critics as well as his supporters. Many tended to hunt reasons outside of Washington for the entire affair. The press in particular came in for harsh criticism by Nixon backers, yet from time to time as information revealed by the so-called media evoked strong denials and cries of persecution, the reports would be ultimately confirmed with almost monotonous regularity. And there were no unanimous alliances. There were elements of the press who staunchly stuck with Richard M. Nixon until the bitter end, such as the Dallas Morning News which rationalized and re-rationalized time and again in a valiant effort of explain away the events that were unfolding in the nation's capital.

There were those who felt that the entire country attached too much significance to Watergate. Yet, if the president and those around him had not made it so important that they felt it required unusual and even unlawful actions to conceal it from the public, it might well have been minimized. Early in the game, Sen. Barry Goldwater observed that if Watergate had been aired promptly and with appropriate apology, with those directly responsible taking their medicine, so to speak, it would have been forgotten within weeks.

But, as President Gerald Ford said, "our Constitution works," and "Our great republic is a government of laws and not men."

Also, it is a time when the country must look ahead. Gerald Ford has assumed the presidency under different circumstances than any other man in history, but there is one similarity that hopefully could be an omen. The nation faces a grave situation today as a former lawmaker begins his duties as its chief executive without much formal preparation. A similar situation existed in 1945 for another former lawmaker who took over the post quite suddenly and without much formal preparation. Could it be that Gerald Ford will evolve as a Republican Harry Truman? There probably are millions of Americans who think the country could stand some of that. We do.—WACIL McNAIR.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Aug. 11, the 223rd day of 1974. There are 142 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, a formal peace announcement in Indochina ended more than seven years of fighting between the French and the Vietnamese.

On this date:

In 1857, the first Atlantic cable broke after 335 miles had been laid. Work was halted until the next year.

In 1900, Victor Emmanuel became King of Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover accepted the Republican nomination for president.

In 1935, Nazi storm troopers staged mass demonstrations against Jews in Germany.

In 1945, as the Pacific war was nearing an end, the Allies informed Japan that its surrender offer was acceptable.

In 1965, rioting and looting began in the Watts section of Los Angeles.

Ten years ago: Chile broke diplomatic relations with Cuba, leaving only three Latin American countries recognizing the Castro regime—Mexico, Bolivia and Uruguay.

Five years ago: The U.S. Senate unanimously approved tough new controls over deployment of gas and germ warfare weapons.

One year ago: In Argentina, Juan Peron and his wife, Isabel, accepted the Peronist party's nomination to run for president and vice president.

INHERITED WITH PRESIDENCY

Ford Will 'Adopt' Staffs

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford held separate meetings today with his inherited Cabinet and National Security Council, asking the members of each to stay on the job at least for the present.

It was the new President's first meeting with each group.

Ford sat midway down the long table between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. Directly across him was an empty chair, symbolizing the vacant vice presidency.

Making small talk before launching the formal session, Ford inquired of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz whether the rains that hit the Washington area Friday had been nationwide and might have helped ease the Midwestern drought.

Butz told him that the rains were regional.

Ford, acting to steady the ship of state a day after his elevation to the helm, requested the National Security Council to meet with him immediately following the Cabinet session.

He already had asked the government's top officials to stay at his side during the transition period, and was ready to enunciate again that request today as he resumed a whirlwind personal pace of conferences and meetings that began even before he took the oath of office.

In that ceremony on Friday, Ford formally became the only president never to have faced a national election, succeeding the only president ever to resign — a man driven from office by scandals that shattered his Republican administration.

After pronouncing an end to "our long national nightmare," Ford set about in accomplishing a transition that his aides said he wanted to be positive, swift and sure.

Between the time he was sworn in and his late evening return to his suburban Virginia home — the Fords won't move into the White House until some time next week — there were these developments:

—The President said through a spokesman that he considers the selection of a new vice president to succeed himself to be of top priority, with the goal of announcing his choice within a week or ten days.

—Ford met with ambassadors from 57 nations whom he called to the White House to assure them that U.S. foreign policy remains basically unchanged. With Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at his side, he told one group of ambassadors, "I'll rely on Henry for all the tough international negotiations."

—The new chief executive told his economic advisers that controlling inflation would be the "high and first priority" on his administration's domestic agenda.

Tapes May Still Be Nixon's

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate tapes and documents still locked in a government vault may belong to Richard M. Nixon even though he resigned the presidency.

The materials could be demanded for trials and civil suits stemming from the Watergate break-in, the Ellsberg break-in, wiretapping in the Nixon administration and related scandals.

White House and Justice Department officials say there is no clear rule of law establishing the ownership of those materials, but tradition would give them to Nixon.

"The precedent is there for a president taking his papers. There's no law, but we assume they are his," a source in the White House counsel's office said on Friday.

White House Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst said the Watergate materials for the time being remain in the custody of James D. St. Clair, the Boston attorney who headed Nixon's defense team.

St. Clair, who has the title said Friday night he expects to remain on the job for about two weeks to wrap up some details of pending litigation over the tapes. During that time, he will be working for President Ford.

St. Clair said his association with Nixon has ended.

A spokesman for White House lawyers, Larry Speaks, said the tapes and documents remain under Secret Service Guard in a locked vault in the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House.

Speaks said that to his knowledge, none of the material was removed when Nixon departed the White House and Washington.

As for the ultimate ownership, Speaks said, "The question of whether they're in the custody of the former president or the White House, we don't know."

But the weight of tradition appeared to give Nixon the better claim.

Justice Department spokesman John W. Hushen said, "In the past, presidential papers, which would include sound recordings, are in the custody of the outgoing president."

Department lawyers said they know of no legal precedent which would deprive Nixon of the materials if he wants them.

Tension Tightens In Middle East

By The Associated Press

Arab newspapers spoke today of the possibility of renewed war in the Middle East, Israel said President Ford may face a challenge from Russia, and the Tel Aviv command said it sank an Arab guerrilla boat preparing to raid the northern Israeli coast.

The Lebanese newspaper An Nahar reported from Cairo that the Egyptian army on the west bank of the Suez Canal has been placed on alert, leaves have been canceled and Egyptian reservists called up.

Several Beirut newspapers and the Syrian government newspaper claimed Israel has massed troops and armor along its borders with Egypt and Syria to launch a fifth Middle East war.

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said President Ford may face a challenge from Moscow "to test his mettle," but the United States will continue supporting Israel while seeking peace in the Middle East.

"With the appointment of each new President of the United States the Soviet Union would pose some test, some challenge, to test his mettle, his stability, his power of decision," Rabin said in a radio interview.

But he said, "I do not believe the change of presidents will significantly change American policy ... including the stance on the Middle East ...

"I believe the United States will continue its policy of supplying arms to Israel ... I suppose the U.S. objective will be to maintain the process of dialogue etween the Jewish state and the Arabs."

The Tel Aviv command said one of its naval vessels patrolling the coast of Lebanon spotted a rubber dinghy heading south in the Mediterranean and blew it out of the water after those aboard opened fire.

A military source said the dinghy was obviously carrying explosives.

Arab guerrilas used a rubber dinghy June 24 to attack the Israeli coastal resort of Nahariya, killing four Israelis before they were shot.

Saturday's attack was the first reported Israeli naval action since July 8 when missile ships sank several alleged Arab terrorist launches tied up in three coastal harbors in Lebanon.

Area Dampened By Heavy Rains

And suddenly there was a wet spell.

This was true Saturday in the south half of Scurry County, and particularly the area south and southeast of Snyder as booming thunderstorms brought heavy showers Friday afternoon and night.

There was little or no rain to the north and northwest on Friday, however.

The official gauge in Snyder measured 1.70 inches following the Friday evening rains, which were accompanied by brilliant lightening bolts and some small, mushy hail. A series of showers produced over an inch of moisture around Ira and at Hermleigh there was an inch, with up to 2.90 inches some three to five miles south of Hermleigh and two inches to the west and northwest.

However, the heaviest rains reported Friday evening were at Dunn where the measurement was 3.10 inches. This brought the total for the week there up to 4.40 inches.

"Our creek is running higher than at any any other time in the past two years," said Mrs. L.A. Scott, who reported the Dunn rainfall Saturday morning.

Fluvanna got no rain at all Friday evening, as the clouds appeared mostly to hang over the immediate Snyder region and move south and southeastward.

Only .20 inch fell at the Lake J. B. Thomas dam.

However, forecasts indicated a good chance for more rains late Saturday and possibly into Sunday.

Unsettled weather continued to plague the Texas Panhandle area Friday night as high winds, large hail and heavy rains continued into Saturday. The Weather Service said harsh weather would continue Saturday.

Thunderstorm warnings were in effect until 3 a.m. in several Panhandle counties.

Amarillo reported hailstones a half-inch in diameter at midnight and winds up to 60 miles per hour.

Marble size hail and 60 m.p.h. winds were reported in eight Panhandle counties.

Elsewhere in the state, southeasterly winds continued to keep the humidities higher than normal. Predawn temperatures varied from 63 degrees at Amarillo to the low 80s along the coast.

The thundershowers in the Panhandle and parts of West Texas were triggered late Friday by a low pressure trough. Most of the severe weather ended by midnight in West Texas, however.

Friday's maximum temperatures ranged from 100 degrees at Dallas and Midland to the mid 80s over parts of the Panhandle.

Turks Walk Out Over Name Plates

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes and Turkish-Cypriot Rauf Denktash, the vice-president of Cyprus, left the Geneva conference hall today in a dispute over name plates for peace conference delegates.

A Turkish delegation spokesman said: "It is not a walkout." Gunes said he left Geneva's Palace of Nations to await resolution of a dispute involving official designation of the Greek-Cypriot and Turkish-Cypriot representatives.

Denktash told newsmen he was going to his mission in Geneva but would remain "on call."

The Turks, who seek a federation of separate communities on Cyprus, demanded that the name plates read "Turkish-Cypriot Community" and "Greek-Cypriot Community."

The Greek choice was to designate the two sides as the president and vice-president of Cyprus.

Foreign Ministers James Callaghan of Britain, George Mavros of Greece and Gunec had invited Denktash and Glafcos Clerides, the Greek-Cypriot president of the island, to join today's meeting on the political future of Cyprus.

In Ankara, a high government official said Turkey is determined to press for acceptance of its plan for a Cyprus solution even at the cost of renewed fighting on the island.

"There will not be a third round of Geneva talks," he said.

First Family Said 'Ordinary', Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — And now a new First Family. Six of them, described by the lady of the house as "ordinary," all of them now in an extraordinary place.

Although President Ford has spent more than a quarter of a century in the public's eye, his family's life has been a private one.

Friends describe the Fords as unusually close. The four children talk things out with their parents. Ford and his wife, Betty, often ask them for advice.

The night before former President Nixon announced he would resign, the Fords had a family dinner. The White House, said Steven, 18, was not discussed.

Improbable as that seems on a night when most of the capital was buzzing with rumors that Ford's ascendency to the presidency was imminent, the Ford's friends say the family simply isn't all that wrapped up in politics.

Elizabeth Bloomer Ford, at 55, is a tall, slim woman with high cheek bones and reddish hair, which she wears in a bouffant. She is described by friends as rather tense and nervous, but the years of political campaigning, pressures and raising four children virtually alone have left only a few wrinkles around her gray-blue eyes.

A pinched nerve in her neck, the result of trying to open a window in the house 10 years ago, keeps her from the golf and skiing she loves.

But that doesn't keep the Fords from taking an annual ski vacation at their condominium at Vail, Colo., each Christmas. It's the only really free time the family has with Ford, who has spent much of his time over the years on the lecture circuit and campaigning.

The responsibility of bringing up four children and the tumbling world of politics proved difficult for Mrs. Ford and at one point, she started seeing a psychiatrist. "He was a sounding board for me when Jerry was away," Mrs. Ford has said. "And it was a great help to me."

The Ford children have never shown much interest in politics. And they're not yet used to reporters who want to know their every opinion and search answers for clues as to what their father thinks.

When several months ago, Jack, 22, told a reporter he was disillusioned with Nixon and thought his father was, too, the remark prompted a long-distance telephone call from Ford Senior.

Father, reportedly, was upset that he might offend his son by telling him what he could and couldn't say — and Jack was upset that he had compromised his father. A Ford insider said that after much mumbling on each end, Ford suggested only that his son not give interviews for awhile.

Michael, 24, is a second year divinity student at the Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in South Hamilton, Mass., described by a friend as "totally wrapped up in his religion." A month ago, he married 22-year-old Gayle Ann Brumbaugh in her hometown of Catonsville, Md. They had met at Wake Forest University where both attended college.

Jack Ford, 22, will be a senior at Utah State University where he is majoring in forestry. He plans to get a master's degree in watershed management. Eventually, he may go to law school and work on the environmental aspects of land use.

Jack is described as the humorous one in the family. "He really knows how to have a good time," said a friend. Last winter when Jack grew a beard, he met his father at a campaign stop and, at first, Ford didn't recognize his son. Jack shaved his beard a few months later.

He is spending the summer working as a forest ranger in Yellowstone National Park.

Steven, 18, just graduated from public high school and plans to take a year off before starting college. Although he was accepted at Duke University in Durham, N.C., he expects to be a cowboy on a cattle ranch in Utah.

Asked if he wouldn't rather live in the White House, the handsome blond youth said with a smile: "I prefer the outdoors."

Susan, 17, is an attractive blonde who will be a senior at a private boarding school in Maryland. She plans to live with her parents at the White House.

The day Nixon announced he would resign, there was much excitement at the Ford house, but a dungaree-clad Susan ran in and out, never stopping to talk with reporters or neighbors eager for any new tidbit of news. One Ford observer said she's sometimes arrogant. Another said she's shy.

She has taken ballet lessons since she was 8 and now studies modern dance. She tends to a large collection of plants, loves needlepoint and takes care of the family cat, Chan.

All four children have said they feel unusually close to their father. "He never tried to mold us or direct us," said Jack. "He allowed us room to explore for ourselves, to be ourselves."

Minister has right to veto love songs

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town and have always belonged to the Presbyterian church.

Our daughter is going to be married and wants a church wedding, so we went to our minister to discuss the wedding plans with him.

When our daughter told the minister that she wanted two special love songs sung at her wedding, he said: "I will not allow love songs to be sung in MY church!" (Get that, Abby: "HIS" church.)

Does he have the right to dictate what kind of songs will be sung at our daughter's wedding? Rush your reply, please. UPSET

DEAR UPSET: To quote from the rules of all United Presbyterian Churches in the U.S.A.: "The Christian marriage ceremony is a service of worship before God, normally conducted within the house of God. Reverence shall be expected on the part of all present, and the service shall be under the sole direction of the minister. Such music as accompanies the ceremony should direct attention to God, Who sanctifies marriage, and special care should be taken to assure that it is suitable and reverent."

Even though some ministers will bend the rules a little in order to accommodate some parishioners, not all will, so if your minister chooses to go strictly by the book, he is within his rights.

DEAR ABBY: The incident was as follows: I recently attended a lounge show. (The entertainers were friends of mine.) Since I had seen the show before, I decided to read a book and listen to the performance at the same time. (I have extraordinary powers of concentration, and am capable of doing many things at once. Frequently, I will watch TV, listen to the radio, and read.)

My friends who were performing interpreted my reading during their show as an act of rudeness. I meant no offense, but I have been severely criticized for this.

What are your thoughts? VEGAS

DEAR VEGAS: I agree with your friends. Even though you may be able to read and listen at the same time (and had already seen the show), the others in the audience, and the performers, might get the impression that you were bored.

In the future, demonstrate your "extraordinary powers of concentration" at home, and give live entertainers the courtesy of your undivided attention.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man while on my vacation and we hit it off beautifully together. (I'm divorced and so is he, and we have a lot in common.)

The last time we were together, he made a remark about women who wear wigs. (He didn't like them.)

Abby, I was wearing a wig (and had worn one every time we were together), but he didn't know it.

He is coming to visit me, and I don't know whether I should let him see me without my wig or not. My wigs do a lot for me so I very seldom go without one.

I don't want to spoil my chances with this man, but I can't fool him forever. MY SECRET

DEAR MY: Maybe he's subtly trying to tell you that he's flipped his wig for you, and he wishes you'd flip yours back into the wig box. You'd be wise to let him see you without it. That way, if your relationship ever develops into something more serious, he can't say you deceived him.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Letter To Editor

To the Daily News:

I recently returned to Snyder from Austin where I was employed for the past seven months by the Constitutional Convention. I worked for the Secretary of the Convention which meant I was there every day from start to finish. It was an unique opportunity which very few people my age will ever be able to experience. I was proud to have been a part of it all regardless of the heaps of criticism it is now collecting.

It is not my intention to debate the Convention in this letter, but rather to draw attention to something which impressed me while in Austin, and which few Snyderites have probably ever known. Renal B. Rosson is retiring from public service as a state legislator this year. One of his final duties of that office was to serve as your delgate to the Constitutional Convention. Let me remind you, too, that this district overwhelmingly defeated the proposal for constitutional revision at the polls. So, Renal went to Austin to serve in a Convention that his constituents did not approve of. (The proposal did gain statewide approval.) He was a member of the Education Committee that drafted the education article of the proposed new document. I was fortunate enough to sit in on many of the committee's initial meetings. Since I was present then, I was able to observe Mr. Rosson in committee. Another part of my job was to be present on the floor of the convention during any debate. When the convention was in session, I was there. My Austin experience has made me realize how well Renal Rosson represented Scurry County and all of West Texas. He was continually there to oppose any threats upon the rural areas of the state by large urban centers. Always foremost in his mind were the ever-increasing problems of farmers and ranchers of our area. He worked hard to preserve the integrity that our school system currently claims. He was quiet about his work at home and in Austin. Seldom did one ever read any headlines about Renal, and one probably never heard his name on the radio or TV.

It is rare to hear people using the word "respect" in relation to politicians, but in this case, it is the perfect word. I have never gained so much respect for anyone in such a short time as I have for Renal Rosson. If it were within my financial power to give a reception in his honor, I would have already begun the plans. The people in this county and, indeed the entire district, owe him a debt of gratitude for outstanding service.

Networks Reject Watergate Play

LONDON (AP) — A British television play based on the Watergate tape transcripts has been rejected by American television networks, the Daily Mail said today.

It said NBC and ABC networks in New York refused to look at it, and while executives of CBS saw it twice, they too turned down the play called "I Know What I Meant," the Mail said.

The Mail said the U.S. educational network also showed no interest.

"Perhaps Nixon has some friends after all," the Mail observed.

Personal Belongings MovedEarly

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "very personal belongings" of Richard M. Nixon and his family were removed from the White House even before Gerald R. Ford was sworn in as the nation's 38th President.

A member of Mrs. Nixon's staff said the personal items were packed by members of the family before they departed at mid-morning Friday for their San Clemente, Calif., home.

The aide would not specify what she meant by "very personal" belongings," but presumably they included mementoes and memorabilia of Nixon's 2,027-day presidency and his nearly three decades in public life.

In the White House Oval Office, Nixon's private collection of porcelain birds and family pictures had been removed from bookshelves and end tables.

Within three hours after the former president flew to his California home, nearly 25 color photographs which traced his diplomatic achievements in foreign lands were gone from the hideaway office in the Executive Office Building, as were momentoes ranging from a collection of toy elephants to an assortment of gavels and political cartoons.

The Nixon family furniture in the White House remains, at least for the time being. So does much of the Nixon family wardrobe, the aide to Mrs. Nixon said.

Daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower and her husband David remained behind Friday to supervise the packing and shipping of belongings, although the aide said they weren't doing any of the packing themselves.

Nixon's presidential files — thousands upon thousand of pages of documents — were being packed in boxes Friday, although their destination was uncertain. Prior to his Watergate troubles, his spokesmen reported the files would be transferred to a Richard M. Nixon presidential library.

Whether his resignation will change those plans is unclear.

Phone Numbers Similar

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — Hundreds of callers to the White House have misdialed and reached instead the white telephone in Roland and Mona Booker's kitchen.

The Bookers' phone number is the same as the White House number except for the area code, which is different by one digit. Connecticut's area code is 203, Washington's 202.

Rumors of President Nixon's resignation brought such a flood of wrong numbers at the Booker home in this small eastern Connecticut city that the family took the phone off the hook Wednesday night, Mrs. Booker said.

Thursday, 66 persons called to support Nixon before he announced he planned to resign and 26 telephoned on Friday, said 14-year-old Ivy Booker.

"They wanted to give the President confidence. They usually are on his side," she said Friday night. "People who don't like him don't want to spend the money to call."

She said the calls dropped off after the Nixon family left Washington for California on Friday morning.

"We haven't had any calls tonight," she said, adding that the phone soon would start ringing for President Gerald R. Ford.

"It doesn't make any difference who's the President," she said. "The number's the same."

Urge To Conduct, Dream Of Musicians

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

LONDON (AP) — The urge to conduct a great orchestra — reputedly the secret but frustrated dream of a lot of ordinary men — seems to have overpowered a handful of the world's leading violinists, pianists and opera singers.

In London alone during the coming fall and winter concert season, at least five renowned musicians will forsake their usual role as soloists to wave a baton before major symphony orchestras.

Among them will be such virtuosos as violinists David Oistrakh and Yehudi Menuhin, pianists Sviatoslav Richter and Daniel Barenboim, and singer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau.

All of these, among others, will conduct leading British orchestras at concerts from October to January. They will all appear, at different times, under the same roof — the Royal Festival Hall on the south bank of the River Thames.

Of these soloists-turned-conductors, the lead-off man this fall will be Richter, the noted Russian pianist who will conduct the London Philharmonic orchestra in two concerts of Mozart music in late October.

Richter will be followed in November by David Oistrakh, his countryman, who will set aside his violin to conduct the London symphony orchestra November 10 in a concert of Mozart and Shostakovich.

Then comes Fischer-Dieskau, the great German baritone who is also generally regarded as the world's leading lieder singer. He will conduct the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of Wagner, Strauss and Schumann December 1. (Fischer-Dieskau will also return in February to conduct the London Philharmonic orchestra).

The youthful pianist, Daniel Barenboim, will follow Fischer-Dieskau in mid-December, conducting the London Philharmonic in two concerts of music by Mozart, Bruckner and Mahler.

In January, Yehudi Menuhin, the onetime child prodigy who for years has been one of the world's greatest violinists, will conduct two concerts of the Royal Philharmonic. In one of them, Menuhin will play a Mozart violin concerto as well as conduct the orchestra in both the concerto and Beethoven's Symphony No. 3.

For both Barenboim and Menuhin, conducting is nothing especially new. Lately Barenboim has been devoting almost as much time to conducting as to the piano. Menuhin has made frequent appearances in recent years as both soloist and conductor, sometimes doing both in the same concert.

The British Penny Black, the world's first adhesive postage stamp, was first issued in 1840.

Displaying Works Of Art

COLLEGE STATION—The way a work of art is prepared for display can enhance its appearance, according to Anna Marie Gottschalk, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Works of art should be enjoyed and used to create more pleasing surroundings—never display anything which you do not care to view," the specialist said.

Watercolor paintings, drawings and prints are usually framed with a mat and glass, she noted.

Oil paintings do not need glass and usually the mat is omitted and only a wide frame use.

Textile hangings can hang from a rod to allow the textile to drape at its own will.

Sculpture is usually mounted on a base.

"Methods of finishing artwork become a part of the piece. They should be pleasing and harmonizing with it, but never become so important that they distract from the work itself," she said.

Some suggestions for displaying works of art are:

—Allow plenty of space around important art objects so they keep their importance.

—Be careful to allow sculpture to be seen from all sides.

—Smaller art objects can be grouped together and even grouped with personal mementoes or interesting shapes, colors and textures.

—Objects or groups of objects hung on the wall should have their horizontal centers approximately aligned around the room.

The level should be at the eye level from which the works will be seen most frequently—in a hall, eye level standing; around a conversation area, eye level seated.

—Shapes of artwork should harmonize with other shapes in their presence and should be arranged in relation to the other shapes.

Try Track Lighting For Particular Area

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Lighting always has baffled home decorators. No matter where lamps and ceiling lights are placed, somehow the desired effect isn't attained.

This frustration is likely to be experienced when one wants to light up a particular area — an art wall, a piano, a game table, an entranceway, a work table. To do so properly often has required major wall and ceiling installations which can be expensive.

With track lighting — the kind formerly seen mainly at museums, galleries, commercial showrooms and the like — now available for residential use, the task may be made easier, especially for do-it-yourselfers.

Lamp holders can be placed [illegible] along a power track [illegible] change the lighting in an area at whim. Then, too, the lamps are likely to use only 30, 40 or 50 watts instead of the higher 60 to 150 watts likely to be used in lamps or ceiling light.

Installation of these lighting systems is touted as a simple, do-it-yourself experience, advises one manufacturer. The track is placed against the area one chooses, and the locations of mounting holes are marked. Holes are drilled at the markings, and the track is fastened to the surface. After that, the lampholders — spheres, cylinders, squares — are inserted.

Light should hit the object at about a 30-to 45-degree angle. In a room with a nine-foot ceiling, the track is set 3' to 3½ feet away from the wall. If it is an eight-foot ceiling, the distance should be two to two and a half feet from the wall. If there is an outlet nearby, the installation might take only one-half hour. The track comes in 2 foot, 4 foot and 8 foot kits with outlet boxes and mounting cover.

A good deal of fall decorating will concentrate on entranceways, interior designers predict. People are spending more time at home and the entranceway is their welcome mat.

Many entranceways are being livened up with shiny wall vinyls and other smashing wall coverings.

Quotable Women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"Now I can't speak any more about my little self. It's unbearable. The Greek people come first, then the former prisoners. We, the exiles, are the third priority. We must speak of the people who really suffered and of what these people want." Melina Mercouri, discussing future plans for her work in Greece under its new civilian government.

"I always liked to sleep. I was never an athletic girl, but I do take a cold wash every morning. I never used cream or cosmetics when not on the stage. Just washed with household soap. As for lipstick, my mother would never have allowed me to use it." Ruzena Brozova, 82, named Queen of Beauty in Paris in 1910, in an interview in Prague.

"We will not use complicated systems which, in the long run, break down. Instead, we will base our joint action, by the people and the government, on a saying of Gen. Peron: 'Only the people will save the people.'" President Isabel Peron of Argentina outlining a nationwide campaign to improve the economy.

Two research doctors, studying the effect of smoking on body reflexes found the reflexes reduced by as much as two-thirds within four minutes after healthy young men began smoking high-nicotine cigarettes. The reflexes usually were not back to normal until 20 minutes after smoking ceased. The obvious conclusion from these U of Michigan tests is that mental and physical reactions are hampered by cigarette smoking. It is good to note that teenage smoking has greatly reduced during recent years.

Inflation Has Developed New Investment Patterns

EDITOR'S NOTE — Inflation has become a severe problem for Americans, not only as consumers but as investors trying to plan for the future. This article examines some of the new investment patterns that have developed.

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Commercial paper. Treasury bills. Floating interest rate long-term notes.

A few years ago they were obscure concepts in specialized corners of the financial world. Today they are as likely to come up in cocktail party conversation as Watergate or "The Exorcist."

What has made the difference is inflation, and one of inflation's key by-products, high interest rates.

Indeed, the surge in the cost of living — 8.8 per cent last year, an even higher rate this year — is changing the approach Americans take toward investing as profoundly as it is altering their spending habits.

Record high interest rates have lured many newcomers into the short term money markets, where banks, industrial corporations and the government borrow from each other through such instruments as Treasury bills, commercial paper and certificates of deposit.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, part of the nation's central banking system, reports receiving more than one thousand phone queries a week this summer for information about Treasury bills and other interest-bearing government securities. This is double the number of queries received last summer.

Treasury bills, with interest rates this year ranging from 7 to 9 per cent, start at $10,000 and go up in increments of $5,000. They are the instruments the Federal government uses to borrow money for short periods, normally three months to a year.

Certificates of deposit, which banks issue to acquire money, and commercial paper, through which big business borrows, generally require a minimum investment of $100,000. But small investors, attracted by the 10-per-cent-plus yields this year, have found ways to buy.

Some have simply pooled their money, the way members of stock market investment clubs do, appointing an individual or committee to manage the money.

Others have gone to the half-dozen or so new mutual funds that specialize in the currently lucrative money markets. These funds invest the money they receive in securities and pass interest payments along to individual shareholders, in the same way that many other funds operate in the stock market.

The Reserve Fund, the largest of the new money-market funds, has acquired assets of over $250 million from investors in the less than two years it's been operating, according to Lipper Analytical Services, which keeps track of mutual fund performance.

Michael Lipper, president of Lipper Analytical Services, says the new money-market funds are drawing a considerable amount of "indecisive money" — the capital of people who can't figure out, in the present inflation-clouded climate, any better place to put it at the moment.

For the investment community itself, the shifting attitudes and flows of money create uncertainty and upheaval.

The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, representing 482 savings banks in 17 states and Puerto Rico, reported that deposits in savings accounts declined by $480 million in the first six months of 1974. During the same 1973 period, there was a $1.5 billion net increase in deposits. A similar decline in deposits has been reported by savings and loan associations and other savings institutions whose deposits pay less than 6 per cent interest.

Last year the New York Stock Exchange reported the first drop in decades in the number of investors in stocks. By contrast, the Chicago Board of Trade — the nation's largest commodity futures market — listed a 36.5 per cent jump in contracts traded during 1973 compared with 1972. The trend continues this year.

Some of the money flowing out of the stock market and out of savings bank deposits is being invested in a new, controversial security: long-term notes with floating interest rates. They are notes that pay interest after the first 10 months and then semi-annually. The interest rate fluctuates one percentage point above an average interest rate for Treasury bills.

Citicorp, parent company of First National City Bank, issued the first of these floating interest rate notes on July 24 — a $650 million, 20-year issue in denominations of $5,000 initially and $1,000 later. The opening interest rate was 9.7 per cent. The notes can't be redeemed for two years. After that they can be cashed in every six months, or held the full 20 years.

The New York Bank for Savings, the nation's fourth largest savings bank, followed City Bank with an announced issue of $50 million in floating interest rate notes. They are to go on sale Wednesday (Aug. 14).

Other banks and financial institutions are planning similar issues.

A depreciating dollar, meanwhile, has drawn other investors toward such "tangibles" as art, wine, silver coins and commodity futures — contracts for the future delivery of such things as soybeans or copper.

Many young people "are ready even to overspend a bit to get into things — things that they see as likely to be worth more tomorrow, unlike money," said James D. Farley, executive vice president in charge of retail banking at New York's First National City Bank.

Trend Reports Awaited On Unleaded Gasoline

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil refiners and marketers anxiously await trend reports on motorist reaction to the unleaded gasolines now available at about one-half of the nation's service stations.

The Environmental Protection Agency's requirement for widespread distribution of an unleaded grade is now in its second month.

One refiner suspects that unleaded supplies will be well above demand in the months ahead.

"There probably will be a significant 'overkill' of unleaded gasoline available in comparison to the very small percentage of 1975 model cars on the road," said Wyatt L. Walker, Continental Oil Co. refining vice president.

About 111,000 service stations were affected by the EPA regulation that stations selling more than 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year have at least one pump for unleaded gasoline by July 1.

Most 1975 model cars have antipollution devices that require unleaded gasoline but the EPA has estimated it will be September, 1976, before 10 per cent of the nation's automobiles will require lead free motor fuel.

Walker is chairman of the American Petroleum Institute's refining division general committee.

Walker said that as the industry moved toward the July 1 deadline sales reports indicated consumer demand for unleaded amounted to less than two per cent and indicated the average motorist had no particular preference for the grade.

He said Continental prepared for the deadline by switching less than five per cent of its refining capacity to unleaded gasoline. He added that Continental, because of the higher costs and unsatisfactory performance in many older cars, would expect consumer resistance if the company converted entirely to refining unleaded.

"If the entire industry were forced to convert, motorists would have no other choice, but those who experienced poorer performance and increased maintenance would resent such action," he said.

For such reasons, he said, Continental would not consider at this time converting exclusively to unleaded.

"There are too many cars on the road that need leaded gasoline for valve lubrication, or have high-compression engines requiring higher octane," he said. "Even without this factor, the cost of total conversion to unleaded gasoline would be prohibitive and the volume of gasoline produced would go down."

In addition to extra costs to consumers, Walker said one of the problems involved in refining unleaded gasoline is the need to produce a special fuel at a time when domestic refining capacity and crude oil supplies are both limited.

"The refiner's problem is to produce octane quality through processing changes rather than by adding lead," he said.

"Process octanes are expensive, leaded octanes are inexpensive. It's that simple. Also, unleaded gasoline requires five per cent more crude oil than an equal amount of leaded gasoline, and this increases its costs."

The Institute has estimated the industry spent more than $1 billion on refining, distribution, and marketing facilities needed for meeting the July 1 deadline.

Ford has suggested the EPA consider requiring refiners to reserve a specific portion of capacity for processing unleaded gasoline but Walker thinks this is unnecessary.

"It is unnecessary because the competition among so many companies engaged in gasoline marketing is assurance that no significant segment of the motoring public will be ignored," he said.

"Refiners can and will adjust the ratio of unleaded to leaded gasoline as the need arises in the markets they serve."

Sees "Mannix"

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The American detective serial "Mannix," shown on Romania television in this Communist nation, had its effect.

A cartoon in the government paper showed a housewife saying her bedside prayers and asking that "no harm come to Mannix."

The Communist party paper reported on a 13-year-old student, alone at home in the town of Brailita, when a burglar entered his house. When the burglar left the student trailed him to his lair and noted the address.

Junior Editors' Quiz on ROBIN HOOD

QUESTION: Who was Robin Hood?

* * *

ANSWER: Robin Hood was a legendary English hero of the Middle Ages. In early folklore, he was portrayed as a benevolent robber or outlaw who lived in Sherwood Forest and was supposed to have robbed the rich and given to the poor. Robin Hood had many followers, including Maid Marian, Friar Tuck, Little John and others. He and his jolly band excelled in archery, and they were admired for their chivalry.

As in the case of the Arthurian legends, it is hard to separate fact from fiction. A vast collection of literature concerning Robin Hood has appeared since the 1300s. If he really lived, historians place him in the 12th Century. Poems, stories, operas and dramas have been built around his deeds. Robin Hood was the hero of at least 30 Middle English ballads and many later stories and plays.

Everts Win 3rd Match

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Young Chris Evert, as cool a tennis player as ever crossed the Atlantic to nab a Wimbledon title for the United States, says she likes to see fans get excited — even if it's for her opponents.

Chris and her younger sister, Jeanne, seeded No. 2 in women's doubles at the $130,000 U.S. Clay Court Tennis Championships, all but lost their third-round match Friday night and the fans were really getting with it in behalf of their opponents.

"I think it's great," Chris said about the rooting after the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., combo overcame a 5-2 third-set deficit and defeated Jenny Walker of England and Christine O'Neil of Australia 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Chris, who says she prefers grass and hard courts to clay, has been beseiged by autograph hounds along with her fiance Jimmy Connors throughout the week's action at the Indianapolis Racquet Club.

Earlier in the day, Chris moved another step closer to her third consecutive U.S. Clay Court singles title by easily defeating No. 6 seed Virginia Ruzic of Romania 6-0, 6-1.

Meanwhile, Connors, who won the men's singles at Wimbledon and is seeded first here, advanced to the quarter-finals by clobbering Germany's Hans Phomann 6-2, 6-1.

Connors doubles partner, No. 2-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, also moved into the quarters by clowning his way through a match with Dick Crealy of Australia 6-0, 6-4.

Nastase fell behind 2-1 in the second set, but tied it up at 4-4 before taking the final two games.

The Connors-Nastase top-seeded doubles team advanced to the quarter-finals with a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Sydney Ball and Ray Keldie, both of Australia.

Either today or Sunday, Connors will meet No. 8 Onny Parun of Chile in the quarters and Nastase will take on No. 5 Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Ramirez outlasted unseeded Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., in Friday's toughest singles match 7-6, 3-6, 7-6.

In other third-round men's singles Friday, No. 7-seeded Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., beat Eric Van Dillen of Aptos, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, and sixth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina downed Paul Kronk of Australia, 6-2, 6-2.

Vilas meets defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, and Gottfried will play Swedish teen-ager Bjorn Borg in the quarters.

The tourney's surprise star — 18-year-old Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis — meets Chris Evert in the semifinals. Miss Meyer won over Belgium'e Michele Gurdal 7-5, 6-3 in Friday's round.

Second-seeded Julie Heldman of Houston, Tex., was upset by 1969 Clay Court champion Gail Chanfreau of France 6-3, 7-5. And Diane Fromholtz of Australia, seeded eighth, ended No. 3 Jeanne Evert's chances for the title 6-3, 6-0.

Court Upholds Dismissal Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the dismissal of an antitrust suit against the Dallas Cowboys.

But the three-judge federal panel also left the door open Friday to further legal action against the National Football League team.

The suit filed by Richard E. Driskill claimed the Cowboys were violating antitrust laws because they required season ticket holders to buy low-interest stadium bonds and tickets to preseason games.

U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor Jr. of Dallas had dismissed the suit.

The appeals judges upheld Taylor's decision, but also noted that Driskill failed to show specifically in his suit how tying stadium bonds to season ticket purchases coerced potential buyers into buying bonds. The ruling implied that Driskill's suit could be brought up again if he were able to make a specific showing.

The court ruled that tying season tickets to preseason game tickets was not an anti-trust violation.

The court noted that about half the total regular season game tickets still were available to those not holding season tickets. It also said the two products involved in the anti-trust question, season tickets and preseason tickets, were the same.

It said the bonds were not an indentical product to tickets, and might be considered in an antitrust situation, but the court noted Driskill failed to prove his case, "by failing to assert specific facts tending to show either exploitation of their monopoly by the Cowboys to coerce the purchase of the bonds or any anticompetitive effect in the tied market for long-term bonds."

Similar suits against other NFL teams including the New England Patriots, Minnesota Vikings, Buffalo Bills, Detroit Lions and Miami Dolphins all have been dismissed.

Women Golfers Donate Tee Combination

The Snyder Women's Golf Association has donated a portable tee combination to the Snyder Country Club. It is a "professional ball washer, Tee Data Sign, Spike cleaner and litter caddie", all rolled into one. The tripod stand has three-inch spikes which securely anchors the console upright, yet makes it easy to move.

The donated tee combination is on the tee area of the first hole and contains the information concerning the hole number, par strokes and length. Fastened to the bottom of the tee-data sign is a plaque with the inscription "Women's Golf Assn. 1974".

The Golf Association hopes that eventually there will be similar tee combinations for all of the holes at the Country Club golf course. Anyone interested in donating one should contact Bill Keys, the Golf Pro, at 573-7101.

Country Club Has New Pro

Bill Keys has begun his duties as the Golf Pro at the Snyder Country Club. He came to Snyder from Abilene where he was the Assistant Golf Pro at the Abilene Country Club.

Keys is a graduate of the College of Artesia (N.M.), where he played golf. He worked at the Artesia Country Club from 1965 to 1970. He went from there to Tulsa where he worked at the Tulsa Country Club until he was drafted. Later he moved to Abilene where he stayed until he came to snyder.

As of August 1 he has been rated as a Class A member of the Professional Golfer's Association.

Bill and his wife, Lynne, have a daughter, Cindy, who is two and a half years old.

Football Workouts To Start Monday

Two-aday workouts for Snyder High School football players will begin Monday, according to Maurice Hodges, athletic director. The workouts are scheduled for 7 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. daily, except for Wednesday evening, which will be at 5.

The first four days will be non-contact, and the boys will work out in shorts and shoes. They will start working out in pads next Friday.

All-Stars Lose To Dallas 10-4

Snyder's Miss Softball America Major League All-Stars went down in defeat 10-4 Friday in the first round of the State Tournament being held in Abilene. They were defeated by a team from Castleview district of Dallas. The defeat sent the Snyder team into the consolation bracket, where they were to meet Breckinridge at 9 .m. Saturday.

Fielding errors were costly to Snyder, as both teams collected the same number of hits. Dallas took the lead with 4 runs in the 3rd, followed by 4 more in the 5th and 2 in the 7th. Snyder scored all four runs in the 6th inning.

Scoring runs for Snyder were Carol Byrd, Esmeraldo Romero, Jo Ann Alarcon and Ann McClain. Carol Byrd led the hitting parade with two singles, while Jo Ann Alarcon doubled. Others who singled were Holly Green, Tammy Ashworth and Josie Rios.

Opening Of New Arena Is Scheduled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association will play their first game in the new 18,000-seat Market Square Arena Sept. 28 against the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Pacers also confirmed Thursday the signing of Jerry Oliver, a former Indiana University assistant, as an assistant to Coach Bobby Leonard.

Boys Still Have Derby Dreams

EDITOR'S NOTE — The All-American Soapbox Derby, is in trouble. Scandal has reduced the 40-year-old derby to a shadow of its former self. Now an effort is underway to revive the derby as a wholesome race for youngsters in cars they make themselves.

By KEN DAVIS
Associated press Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Twelve-year-old Dave Tippel measures 4-foot-9 but dreams 9-foot-4.

Visions of winning the All-American Soapbox Derby dance in his tousled head. He can see himself flashing down the slope at Derby Downs while thousands roar for the champion of the world of gravity racing.

His dream collides with reality. The annual derby next Saturday (Aug. 17) is haunted by scandal and strapped for money.

That doesn't matter to Dave. He has more important problems. There's the matter of balancing his steering gear dead-center inside his tiny plywood car.

And Dave has no over-zealous father or doting uncle to advise him, or do the job for him. Dave lives at the Summit County Children's Home.

"Boy, it's hard," he said. He peered into the body of his treasured car. "That was the hardest thing." He pointed to the drag brake assembly bolted at the rear of the car floor.

You could see the dreams in his eyes when he clambered into the rough shell. "I don't know if I can fit in here," he said. "It's little." He bent over in racing position.

Kids have been dreaming the way Dave Tippel dreams since 1934 when the first soapbox derby was held in Dayton, Ohio.

Chevrolet Division of General Motors sponsored the contest through 1972, spending lavishly on the coasting specatacle — as much as $800,000 a year so thousands could watch the youngsters coast 975 feet down a course originally built as a municipal ski slope. At stake for the winners were college scholarships worth $30,000.

"I don't want to be quoted on this, but it became a monster," said one derby official. "It was a monster for years and Chevrolet and a lot of us knew it. Chevrolet got out just in time."

The Akron Chamber of Commerce took over sponsorship for the 1973 derby and that's when cheating surfaced.

"I think it has been blown way out of proportion," said Jack Moran, chief of inspection for the 1974 derby. "Sooner or later it was going to happen because of permissiveness on officials' part."

The 1973 race almost blew the All-American Soapbox Derby, already on shaky financial legs without Chevrolet money, out of existence.

James Gronen, 14, of Boulder, Colo, won the race from among 156 local champions. Then derby officials spotted the electro-magnet in the boy's car, a clear violation of the rules.

A photograph of the race start actually pinned down the magnet.

"You know, when the starting gates drop there is an instant where the cars are sitting there, then they start down the slope," said Ron Baker, general manager of the national Derby.

"Well, the photo showed Gronen's car glued to the starting gate as it dropped. It was pulling Gronen's car ahead like it had a motor."

Jimmy was disqualified and Bret A. Yarborough, 11, of Elk Grove, Calif., second place finisher, was declared the 1973 champion.

Robert Lange Sr., Jimmy Gronen's uncle, took responsibility for installation of the electromagnet device. In a letter to the Boulder Jaycees, sponsor of his local pageant, on Aug. 28, 1973, Lange said it was common knowlege that 11-year-olds could not build winning racers.

"Anyone participating in derby races with eyes and ears open would soon learn, as I did, that ... the Derby rules have been consistently and notoriously violated by some participants without censure or disqualifications," Lange said.

Derby officials with hardly an exception blame adults for cheating, not the boys and girls who compete.

Lange has a different point of view:

"After seeing my nephew work hundreds of hours to build his own car, knowing that he would be competing against professionaly built cars and against cars that would be in violation of the official rules, and having heard and believing that some fast cars in Akron would be equipped with a magnetic nose, I determined that he should build and install a magnetic nose so as to be competitive. I knew that this was a violation of the official Derby rules and consider it now to be a serious mistake in judgment."

Lange said he began to realize a lot of derby cars weren't built by kids when he met some professional builders who "live and die derby."

One derby officials agrees that this has been the case in the past.

"I've looked at car after car and said to myself, 'There's no way I could build that car. There's no way the boy built that car,'" said Ray Miller, for many years director of the Greater Cleveland Soapbox Derby.

There will be less incentive for greedy parents this year. The college scholarship money has shrunk from $30,000 to $3,500 — $2,000 for first place, $1,000 for second and $500 for third.

The All-American Soapbox Derby, shunned by the big commercial money, is on an austerity budget of $97,000 and now under sponsorship of the Akron Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The expensive awards banquet has been dropped and the local champions' stay at derby camp has been cut from ten to three days. It's back to basics, back to a concept that boys and girls reap benefits from just building a car and meeting competition honorably, derby officials say. And local officials from the various state derbies now have a say in the national event.

Back at the Summit County Children's Home, 13-year-old William Flaite, one of nine boys who built racers along with Dave Tippel in the cramped basement workroom, summed up what to him was the single most important thing in the soapbox derby.

It wasn't winning, or honesty is the best policy, or going to college.

"The most important thing," said young Flaitz, who finished out of the money in the Akron contest this year, "is, well, you see — you put the nose of your racer right on the yellow line in the middle and you just keep it there all the way."

Little Dave Tippel, who also failed to qualify for this year' national derby, looked with some awe at the 13-year-old veteran. He wasn't dreaming at the moment, and he didn't look so confident.

Then the dreams came back to rescue him from fear. His eyes lit up.

"You know," he said, "I'd like to put fins on the back like real racers have."

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers of the National Hockey League announced today the appointment of John Halligan as business manager of the team.

Halligan will continue as the club's public relations director, a post he has held since the 1963-64 season.

Fans May Have Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners and players in the 41-day-old National Football League strike resumed negotiations Sat. under the spectre of dwindling exhibition-game attendance that has raised more than one eyebrow.

Parties in the dispute met for 13 hours Friday with chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr., who said: "We had our ups and downs, but we had a good day."

None of the negotiating parties would comment on the talks, however Usery added: "We wouldn't be coming back if we weren't doing anything. If we had reached an impasse, we wouldn't be here at 10 a.m."

While negotiations were going on, two exhibition games were being played, one at neighboring RFK Stadium between the Washington Redskins and the Houston Oilers, and another at Memorial Stadium between the Baltimore Colts and the Detroit Lions.

The Colts game drew a dismal 6,792 spectators, and 14,768 watched the Redskins.

Terry Bledsoe, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, which represents the owners, said: "When you're as far apart on money issues as we are, the differences are far greater than one crowd or two. We're not happy about the small crowds, but I suspect it's a problem that will tend to resolve itself as the kids get experience and the vets report to camp."

"You don't want to talk about it when it sounds like we're making excuses," he said, "and we don't want to do that. But Baltimore never did well in the preseason."

Bill Curry, president of the players union, said the dismal attendance figures were "depressing, and it's a shame."

But he said people who "characterize these things as wins and defeats are wrong. The point is we have to make an agreement. We're carrying out a successful strike. The pressure is on both the owners and the players. We're going to meet until we get an agreement."

There appeared to be two major stumbling blocks to reaching that agreement Friday.

There were reports that some of the owners who had a substantial number of veterans in camp just were not as interested in getting down to serious talks as owners who had fielded a club of rookies and free agents.

There also was an apparent deadlock over the role of Commissioner Pete Rozelle. The commissioner's authority in dealing with player grievances and several other so-called freedom issues still appear to be the major roadblocks to settlement, sources say.

Order Of Arrow Elects Officers

The Order of the Arrow, an honor camping organization of Boy Scouts of America, elected officers at a meeting held Thursday night in the Snyder Savings and Loan Association community room.

The officers are Terry Groseclose, chapter chief; David Webb, chapter vice chief; Chris Chamblee, chapter secretary; and Matt Givens, chapter treasurer.

Other boys present included Stan Pavlik, Robert Turk, Stan Stricklin and Tony Whittenburg.

Advisors attending the meeting were Burt Runnels, Ervin Pavlik, Bill Overhulser, Tony Turk, Don Butler and Fred Armijo.

The members made plans to remodel the Scout hut at Stanfield Elementary School to be used as a storage and meeting place for the chapter. Plans also were made to attend a work-weekend at the Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch in September. Several of the local members hope to achieve Brotherhood membership at the next work weekend so that they may participate in Brotherhood activities.

Efforts also are being made to contact former members in this area to increase the number of active Arrowmen in the chapter.

Cotton Prices Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of active cotton futures in the domestic market backed and filled this week, but ended slightly lower.

The market was sustained by advances in the Chicago grain markets sparked by an unsatisfactory grain outlook for the Texas high plains, indicating a tight supply situation this season in Western markets.

At the close of trading Friday, No. 2 contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were off 20 to 80 points, following losses of 275 to 445 points the previous week.

Trading volume was estimated at 747,100 bails at a daily average of 149,400, compared with last week's 972,200 and 194,400 respectively. The open interest was reported at the New York Cotton Exchange at Thursday at 1,385,400 bails, a decrease of 8,400 from the previous Friday.

Old Farm Families Certified

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sixty Texas families who have worked the same land for 100 years or more have been certified as Land Heritage Families, says Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

The families will be recognized in a special ceremony at the State Fair of Texas. The deadline for families qualifying is Aug. 31, White said.

"The interest in the program has been more than we originally expected," White said, "and the information we have received from families who have qualified has been fascinating."

Hite Will Fly Flag Half Staff

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — "In distress and mourning that the President should be forced to resign," Kim Hite says he will fly the flag in front of his home and business at half staff until the next presidential election.

The city councilman said Thursday night to blame President Nixon for Watergate is actually "a conspiracy trying to break down the morals of America. I wish he could stay in there," said Hite, a Republican.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

INTERVIEW: BOB CRANE

Bob Crane has been to radio in Southern California what Colonel Hogan, the part he played for six years on the "Hogan's Heroes" series, has been to television. Bob always had the innate sense of comedy, but never thought of it as a possible career, as drumming was much more to his liking, for he had been handling sticks since he was eleven. He has played with dance bands and beat out the bump and grind rhythms in burlesque. Radio announcing and disc jockeying offered him steadier work than drumming. Breaking into films and TV as an actor took a little doing as he was considered to be strictly a radio personality by producers. Eventually he got a few bit parts which led to more important acting assignments. Among his credits are "Tunnel of Love," "Who Was That Lady?," "The Cactus Flower" and "Send Me No Flowers." His movie roles include such films as "Return to Peyton Place," "The Wicked Dreams of Paula Schultz" and "Mantrap." He's returning on NBC next fall in a series, "Second Start," about a successful insurance man who chucks everything and goes to medical school.

MAURICE: I understand you were playing bumps and grinds at a very early age?

CRANE: I played for strippers but I was only 14 years old so I wasn't allowed to watch. When you get your training in that area you never really get out of that area. I still occasionally go into topless bars with a live band and I'll sit in and play for strippers.

MAURICE: Do you think people have a certain image of you ?

CRANE: My image of "Hogan's Heroes" or my radio days or whatever people have as an image of me, when they find out that I am a drummer and occasionally go to a topless bar find it difficult to believe. People want to pigeon-hole you. They don't want you to be a lot of things. They want you to be one particular thing.

MAURICE: You were a salesman in Connecticut at what time? What were you selling?

CRANE: When I got out of high school, I was a salesman in a jewelry store. I basically went to work for them only to earn money during the day because I couldn't make enough money doing what I really wanted to do and that was drumming. Not being from wealthy parents and also being self sufficient-I'm not the kind who likes to live off somebody else-I went to work for the YMCA when I was only 16 and after that I worked in a record store. These are all the things that are way in my past but it was the beginning of what became my way of doing things I've got to do it myself.

MAURICE: When you were a salesman, were you soft-sell or hard-sell?

CRANE: I was trying to be soft-sell. I was trying to be totally honest and by the way that's something that probably gets me into trouble. At one time I had a piece done on me because I was on radio and was an interviewer and had filled in for Carson, and Merv Griffin. I was asked what I thought of the talk-show hosts. I was totally honest. I told her what I thought of Dick Cavett, what I thought of Mike Douglas, Johnny Carson, what I thought of Merv Griffin. I no longer do the Merv Griffin Show, I no longer do the Tonight Show, I no longer do the Mike Douglas Show. I closed all the doors. Now I wonder to get ahead in life if there shouldn't be that element of questionable honesty.

MAURICE: Talk about being totally honest, your hair is always so neat. Do you wear a hair piece?

CRANE: No, this is my own hair and many times people will say it must be a hair piece because it doesn't look mussed.

MAURICE: How would you feel about doing a centerfold since so many stars seem to be doing them?

CRANE: The guy who started it all was Burt Reynolds who held his hands in a very important position. I would hold my hands over my eyes because I'm proud.

MAURICE: What do you think about women's lib?

CRANE: I think that some women are trying to show that women are equal to men and thus should be able to be allowed to do the same things. I draw the line at a certain point. I think that human nature, the way the human being is designed, women were made to bear children. We can't bear them. And I think also in that same vein came the decision from up above the Lord or whatever that women should also take care of their brood. There's a responsibility when you have children. I think it's up to the woman to decide whether she wants to have children. I think a woman should be able to control her own body. I think birth control should be given to men, not women. They shouldn't play around with women's periods because it louses a lot of women up, It changes them psychologically when they take the pill. I know both my wives, my first wife and now my second wife cannot take the pill. My second wife doesn't have to now anyway because I went and had a vasectomy. I did it because we have five children and enough's enough.

MAURICE: What do you think about amnesty?

CRANE: I don't think it should be a totally free amnesty. I don't mean that they should be sent to jail. But I sure don't think that we should say all is forgiven, come home, we love you all. I don't think it's totally honest with the people who had to go. I don't think those guys who went wanted to go any more than-nobody was looking to be a hero-those guys didn't want to go anymore than those who went to Canada.

MAURICE: If you had one wish, what would you wish for?

CRANE: Everybody goes through the usual things like peace in the world and thus everybody stands back and says 'isn't he a wonderful person for saying that'. If I had my one wish, I'd like to play with Stan Kenton's band.

Texas Traffic Deaths Down 20%

Date Set In Love Field Trial

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge William Taylor Jr. has set Nov. 18 as the trial date for two consolidated cases in the Love Field controversy.

Taylor set the date Friday when parties to the dispute failed to agree after lengthy talks, but he did not rule out a pre-trial solution.

In dispute is whether Love Field can be used for commercial flights when most such flights transferred last January to the new Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

"We're still talking," Taylor said after an hour-long closed meeting with representatives of Dallas and Fort Worth and airlines involved.

Taylor initiated the talks last spring in an effort to work out the complex situation. Friday's meeting was the third.

The cases set for non-jury trial are:

—A suit by Southwest Airlines asking the court to stop the City of Dallas from enforcing an ordinance assessing a $200 fine for each takeoff and landing from Love Field. Braniff International, Tricon, Apollo and Jetstream have joined the suit.

—A suit by American and Delta airlines to make Dallas and Fort Worth enforce an agreement halting competitive flights from Love Field.

Taylor extended a restraining order May 17 which prevents Dallas from enforcing its ordinance.

Texas International is continuing its Love Field flights under protection of a state court order.

Text Of President Ford's Address

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of President Ford's address following his swearing-in on Friday:

Mr. Chief Justice, my dear friends, my fellow Americans.

The oath I have taken is the same oath that was taken by George Washington and by every president under the Constitution. But I assume the presidency under extraordinary circumstances, never before experienced by Americans. This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts.

Therefore, I feel it is my first duty to make an unprecedented compact with my countrymen. Not an inaugural speech, not a fireside chat, not a campaign speech. Just a little straight talk among friends. And I intend it to be the first of many.

I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots. So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers. And I hope that such prayers will also be the first of many.

If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by any secret promises. I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform, I am indebted to no men and only to one woman — my dear wife — as I begin this very difficult job.

I have not sought this enormous responsibility, but I will not shirk it. Those who nominated and confirmed me as vice president were my friends and are my friends. They were of both parties, elected by all the people, and acting under the Constitution in their name. It is only fitting then, that I should pledge to them and to you that I will be the President of all the people.

Thomas Jefferson said the people are the only sure reliance for the preservation of our liberty. And down the years Abraham Lincoln renewed this American article of faith, asking: "Is there any better way or equal hope in the world?"

I intend, on next Monday, to request of the speaker of the House of Representatives and the president pro tempore of the Senate the privilege of appearing before the Congress to share with my former colleagues and with you, the American people, my views on the priority business of the nation, and to solicit your views and their views. And may I say to the speaker and the others if I could meet with you right after this, these remarks, I would appreciate it.

Even though this is late in an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together, and no way anybody can win except by serving the people's urgent needs. We cannot stand still or slip backwards. We must go forward, now, together.

To the peoples and the governments of all friendly nations, and I hope that could encompass the whole world, I pledge an uninterrupted and sincere search for peace. America will remain strong and united, but its strength will remain dedicated to the safety and sanity of the entire family of man as well as to our own precious freedom.

I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together, not only our government, but civilization itself. That bond, though strained, is unbroken at home and abroad. In all my public and private acts as your President, I expect to follow my instincts of openness and candor with full confidence that honesty is always the best policy in the end.

My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over.

Our Constitution works; our great republic is a government of laws and not of men. Here the people rule. But there is a higher power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and of hate.

In the beginning I asked you to pray for me. Before closing I again ask your prayers for Richard Nixon and for his family.

May our former President, who brought peace to millions, find it for himself. May God bless and comfort his wonderful wife and daughters whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House.

I can only guess at those burdens, although I have witnessed at close hand the tragedies that befell three Presidents and the lesser trials of others.

With all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence of my family and friends and dedicated staff impart to me, and with the goodwill of the countless Americans I have encountered in recent visits to 40 states, I now solemnly reaffirm my promise I made to you last December 6: to uphold the Constitution, to do what is right as God gives me to see the right, and to do the very best I can for America.

God helping me, I will not let you down.

Thank you.

TEXAS-SIZED ONIONS—Charles Cain, who lives east of Snyder on the Roby Highway, holds three giant onions he grew on his place. The largest weighs 3½ pounds and the three total 8½ pounds. Cain irrigated the sweet onions, along with other garden items such as cantaloups, tomatoes, peas, okra and corn, they responded with tremendous growth.

Discussion Is Scheduled On Water Modification

A meeting to explain the projected water modification research efforts of the Bureau of Reclamation in this area has been set for Thursday evening in Big Spring.

Representatives from the Bureau of Reclamation, joined by the Texas Water Development Board will be at the meeting at the Texas Electric Service Company's Reddy Room at Fifth and Runnels at 7:30 o'clock. This is an open meeting and anyone interested is welcome to attend. Special invitations have been sent to chairmen of Chamber of Commerce agriculture committees in tha area.

This is not a public hearing, but an explanatory session. Questions and comments will be welcomed, said O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, which is coordinating plans for the meeting.

Big Spring is one of three sites designed by the Bureau of Reclamation for weather modification research extending through 1978 under the current program. Others are at Colby, Kans. and Miles City, Mont. The bureau is not due to move into the Big Spring area until the Spring of 1975.

Efforts will be directed at either or both of super-cooled clouds (such as cumulus or summer thunderheads) or warm clouds (lower moving formations). Different chemical applications and techniques are employed for each of these types.

While the bureau will have some of its own evaluative equipment and personnel on the field, part of the work will be contracted through an arrangement with the Texas Water Development Board, which will be a coordinator of all studies. Any further efforts by the CRMWD will be coordinated with the Bureau and the TWDB.

The target area may be approximately the same as that which the water district has covered during the past four years, with some expansions. The bureau also may give consideration to the effect, if any, of cloud seeding on downwind area. For this sector, that would be to the east to southeast.

The research program which will stretch from West Texas to the Canadian border will be known as HIPLEX, or High Plains Cooperative Weather Modification Evaluation.

Due for the Big Spring meeting are Pat Hurley, Denver, Colo. assistant to Dr. Archie Kahon, chief of the division of atmospheric water resources management, Bureau of Reclamation, and Lloyd Steubinger, Denver, meteorologist; John Carr, Austin, director of water modification and Technology division, Texas Water Water Development Board; Ward Goesslin, from the governor's office, and Bill Jenkins, from the lieutenant governor's office. There may be other representatives from the TWDB.

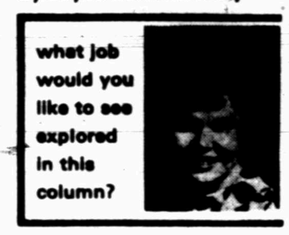
Assessment In Career

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy



We've been discussing career choice mainly from your viewpoint — what means most to you, and what do you really want to do? Let's continue our self-assessment and self-exploration from the eyes of the other half of a hiring action, the employer.

MAXIMIZE EXPERIENCE. Earlier you analyzed your personal characteristics, now turn a mental microscope on your experience and education. There are many techniques – such as writing a "diary" of your life and sifting through for pertinent points. Here's another, based on the Catalyst (nonprofit organization for women returning to work) publication, "Planning For Work".

For each item, complete a sentence, such as "Worked with ideas . . . in my last job" or "Worked with ideas . . . in community service support for natural history museum." Also, for each item, ask yourself: how often, how well, how recently, how much enjoyed.

EXPERIENCE: (I have) Worked with people in committees or teams . . . Worked with people in a leadership capacity . . . Supervised others . . . Helped others . . . Delegated responsibilities . . . Worked with people on a one-to-one basis . . . Worked alone at – . . . Worked with ideas . . . Worked with abstract concepts . . . Worked with mechanical things . . . Worked with the sick or elderly . . . Worked with budgets and financial matters . . . Organized a program or project . . . Spoken to large public groups . . . Spoken to small, intimate groups . . . Written for publication . . . Worked with my hands . . . Handled matters requiring attention to detail.

Done analytic work in – . . . Taken major responsibilities . . . Been able to set priorities . . . Done creative work in – Done research in – . . . Trained or taught others . . . Made big decisions . . . Made minor decisions . . . Solved important problems in – . . . Taken major responsibilities in the community . . . Sold material goods . . . Sold ideas . . . Handled money.

That's the idea. Now add any items of your own to construct a package of what you have to offer.

EDUCATION. Another series of questions from the Catalyst publication is useful: What aspects of my formal education might now be of value to me on a job? What education or training have I had that I could build on now? What parts of my education have I kept up to date by reading, or practice, or professional association? What informal or self-education have I acquired that I can use or build on? What life experience have I had that might make me valuable in a given career or job assignment? What aspects of my education still interest me, even though I have not kept up with them completely? Would I like to pursue further education? If so, in what field? Is there anything else about my education that is important?

SOMEONE once said (referring to adults) that if you're really interested in a particular career, chances are that at some time you will have studied it, read about it, worked at it or played at it. Not infallible, of course, because there could be many occupations that are unknown to you, but it's not a bad rule of thumb.

Texas Building Declines

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas homebuilding industry is having its worst year since 1970, the Texas Bureau of Business Research said.

Dr. Stanley A. Arbingast, director of the bureau, said figures for the first half of 1974 showed a decline of multifamily housing of 8,500 units compared to January-June, 1973, and a decrease of 4,000 single family homes for the same period.

"The total represented the lower half-year record since 1970," Arbingast said. "Nor is any recovery in homebuilding foreseen for the last half of the year."

Arbingast said "unless there is a turn for the better in Texas residential building soon, local manufacturers which supply products such as glass, furniture and fixtures, gypsum and plaster, and brick and tile to the home building industry will be forced to curtail operations."

Total construction for June was $307,594,000, down 27 per cent over May, but up 6 per cent for the six months. Residential building was down 16 per cent for the month and non-residential building down 12.

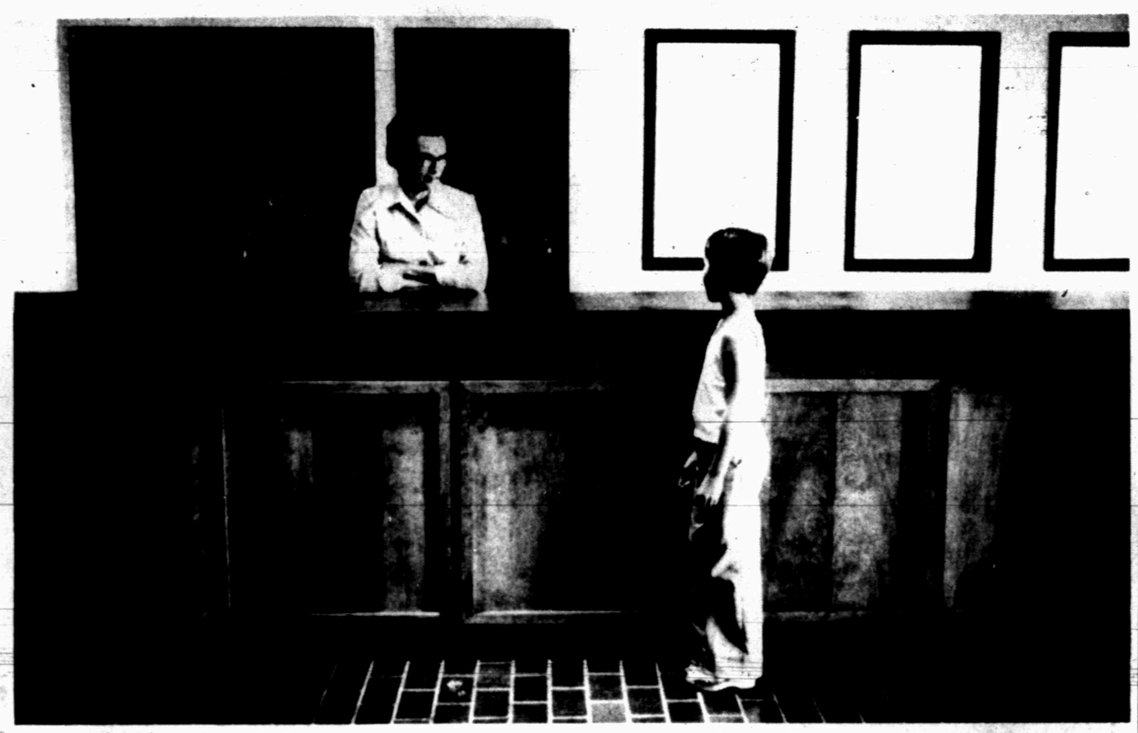
PERMANENT DISPLAY—The selection of carpet for the permanent display gallery is one of the tasks remaining before displays can be moved into the new museum building. Looking at carpet samples in the picture above are, left to right, Dr. Robert Clinton, Mickey Schmidt, Michelle Redwine, Mrs. Nelda Bills, Mrs. Danny Lunsford, Harriet Redwine, Harold Bennett and Mrs. Katherine Redwine. This gallery is 42 by 72 feet and will be divided into multiple display areas as exhibits are installed.



INFORMATION CENTER—Visitors to the new museum building on the WTC campus will be greeted inside the east entrance at the information center. Here, Mrs. Katherine Redwine is shown with her granddaughter, Michelle Redwine of Irving. A gift shop will eventually be housed here, and plans are being made to offer a variety of items made by craftsmen of the West Texas area.

Open house for the new museum building on the Western Texas College campus in Snyder is scheduled from 2-5 p.m. on Aug. 25.

The building is located on the south side of the college campus adjoining the parking lots. Its architecture matches that of other buildings on the campus, but reflection pools beside the entrance make it distinctive in appearance.

Mickey Schmidt, who has served as director of the WTC planetarium since it was opened in the fall of 1974, will be be museum director. Working closely with Schmidt in planning museum displays and activities is the Scurry County Museum Association. Ernest Sears is president of the Association, with Bentley Baize vice president. Others serving on the Association's board of directors are Mrs. Nelda Bills, acquisition chairman; Mrs. W.D. Sims, membership chairman; Mrs. Katherine Redwine, secretary; H.F. Clark, treasurer; Gene Dulaney, legal advisor, and Harold Bennett and Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna.

The new museum building is one of the few in West Texas built especially for use as a museum. The Texas Historical Commission has extended its congratulations to the people of Scurry County for authorizing the construction of the building, and visitors have been enthusiastic about the possibilities offered by its facilities.

No exhibits will be in place when open house is held on Aug. 25, but work is to begin shortly on moving existing exhibits from the museum room in the Learning Resource Center into the new building. Area residents who would like to work as volunteers in preparing exhibits are invited to contact Schmidt to discuss times convenient for them and the work which they can do. A training program for museum guides or docents is also being planned.

Just inside the entrance to the museum building is a large foyer where visitors may register and obtain information about the museum and Western Texas College. A multi-purpose room adjoining the lobby has comfortable portable seating for 120 persons and a maximum seating capacity of about 150 persons. With the seats removed, the room can be used as a temporary display gallery. A folding partition can be used to divide the single room, 23 by 50 feet, into two rooms for smaller gatherings.

The permanent display gallery, located at the west end of the building, is 42 by 72 feet. Exhibits there will depict the history of Scurry County from the days of Indians and buffalo hunters to the present. A large work area, permanent storage, darkroom are located on the lower level. An anthropology class scheduled for the fall semester will be the first class to be taught in the new facility, and registration for the fall semester will be held on the main floor on Sept. 3 and 4.

Sul Ross Courses At WTC

Sul Ross State University will offer undergraduate and graduate classes at Western Texas College during the fall semester beginning Sept. 5.

Sul Ross began offering courses at Western Texas College last spring, and continued the program through the summer.

Prospective students may contact Mrs. Mavis Brumbelow at the college by calling 573-7640 during regular office hours.

A minimum of 15 students is required for undergraduate classes, with a minimum of 10 students required in graduate level classes.

A variety of courses is available through Sul Ross and the final selection of courses to be offered will be determined by the number of students who enroll for each course.

Gurney Seeks Dismissal Of Indictment

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., has filed a second motion asking dismissal of a federal indictment charging him with conspiracy, bribery and perjury.

Gurney, the first senator in 50 years to be indicted while in office, contended in a motion filed Friday that the indictment is vague and ambiguous and fails to allege an offense against the United States.

In a previous motion for dismissal, Gurney said the grand jury that indicted him on July 10 was illegally constituted.

Gurney also has moved for separate trials on each of the various charges.

DARKROOM—Photographs for use in the museum will be processed in this darkroom in the basement of the museum building. Mrs. Nelda Bills and Mickey Schmidt are pictured in the darkroom. Equipment here will enable the museum to reproduce valuable photographs and documents for use in displays so that the originals may be returned to their owners or placed in permanent storage.

MULTI-PURPOSE ROOM—Mrs. Nelda Bills and Mickey Schmidt are shown above in the multi-purpose room on the south side of the new museum building on the WTC campus. This room will be available for use as a meeting room and will also be used for temporary museum displays. It is equipped with a retractable screen and projection room so that films may be shown, and can be divided into two rooms by the use of a folding partition.

Pre-Registration Set Aug. 19 At WTC

Pre-registration for fall students at Western Texas College will open Aug. 19 and continue through Aug. 29 from 1-4 p.m. daily.

Students who wish to pre-register are asked to go first to the offices of Dr. Mary Hood or Jerry Baird, college counselors, in rooms 102 or 103 in the Student Center. Class schedules will be worked out with the counselors and cleared through the registrar's office and fees will be paid at the business office. Students who pre-register will report on regular registration days only to pick up parking permits and to have pictures made for identification cards and for the annual.

Prospective students who would like pre-enrollment conferences with the counselors are also invited to visit the campus during the pre-registration period. Students who do not complete pre-registration by paying fees must follow the regular registration procedures on Sept. 3 or 4.

"We encourage students to pre-register whenever possible," Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services and Registrar, said. "Pre-registration will save the student time and give him the best opportunity to work out a schedule which will be the best for him. Evening students may also pre-register."

Persons wishing additional information about courses to be offered by Western Texas College may contact Dr. Duane Hood.

Teachers Beat The System

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Two married teachers found a way to improve their financial situation. One of them, alternating each month, becomes "sick" for about 10 days and the other replaces him or her in addition to his regular work, getting paid for extra work, the Belgrade "Vecernje Novosti" (Evening News) reported.

Most Vetoed Violence

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — In a recently published survey conducted by the Opinion Research Corp., 86 per cent of the union members surveyed said that violence at construction sites was never justified. Of the total public, 86 per cent agreed that violence was not justified.

The survey was sponsored by the Business Roundtable, an organization of business executives that seeks to bolster efforts to curb inflation, improve labor-management relations and assist in promoting sound economic growth.

The nationwide survey, which is based on a national probability sample of 2,076 personal interviews, is the ninth in a series designed to explore and monitor thinking on a wide range of issues related to labor unions, the collective bargaining process and public readiness for reform in the country's labor laws.

Mother-In-Law Evens Odds

ISTANBUL (AP) — Mothers-in-law can be hard to take, said Istanbul restaurateur Ismail Arduc found his especially difficult. When she finally persuaded her daughter to leave him after only nine months of marriage, Arduc thought up a revenge.

He had 1,000 handbills printed advertising the opening of a new brothel — at his mother-in-law's address — and distributed them on the streets of Istanbul.

The good lady, appalled by her stream of unwelcome callers, informed the police and Arduc has been arrested on a charge of defamation of character.

WTC Planetarium Opens New Season

The Western Texas College planetarium will begin its second year of operation with a series of programs open to the public on Tuesday nights, Mickey Schmidt, planetarium director, has announced.

"Virgo the Harvest Queen" is the title of the program planned for August and September. The program will be presented for the first time on Aug. 13 and will be shown on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. through August and September. Sunday afternoon shows are expected to be resumed in September.

This first program will emphasize information about constellations which can be seen at this time of year and a review of the seasons. Schmidt will describe the traditions which have made sky watchers call the moon at this season a "harvest moon" and a "hunter's moon" later on.

Tickets for the planetarium shows may be purchased at the planetarium ½hour in advance of the show. Admission prices will be the same as last year, $1 for adults, 50 cents for students, or $2 for family groups.

The WTC planetarium is located in Academic-Science Building C on the northeast corner of the campus. Visitors are to park in the parking areas on the south side of the campus and walk down the main concourse to the Learning Resource Center and then follow the signs to the planetarium entrance.

More than 3,600 people visited the WTC planetarium during the 1973-73 school year. Several area schools brought groups of students for special shows, and special shows will be arranged for student or adult groups again this year. Arrangements for group visits may be made by contacting Dr. James Tully, Director of Learning Resources, at WTC.

Ducks Face New Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harassed for many a long year by dried up breeding areas, by hunters and by the march of civilization generally, American wild ducks now face a new hazard: DVE.

That's an acronym for the disease called duck virus enteritis or duck plague. Present among domestic fowl in Europe for about 50 years, it was first reported on farms in this country six years ago. Then in the winter of 1972-1973 it killed 43,000 wild ducks and geese at the Lake Andes National Wildlife Refuge in South Dakota.

Biologists fear that the virus, known to be present now in some domestic flocks and probably in wild flocks, may spread. Stricken birds die within a week after being seized first with lethargy and then with convulsions. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is marshaling its laboratories, scientists and managers to try and deal with the threat.

The world's longest stairs are reputedly at the Mar power station, Overland, Western Norway, rising in 3,875 steps.

China To Keep Policy

HONG KONG (AP) — Three Chinese-language Communist newspapers said today that the Ford administration is expected to continue the policy of opening relations with China.

They expressed confidence that former President Richard Nixon's resignation will not mean a change in U.S. policy toward China.

The newspapers — Ta Kung Pao, Wen Wei Pao and Sheung Pao — often accurately reflect Peking's thinking.

All pointed to President Ford's retention of Henry Kissinger as secretary of state and to bipartisan support in Congress for Nixon's China position as evidence the policies will continue.

So far, the only resignation news reaching the Chinese people through Peking's official Hsinhua news agency was a brief item citing "a report from Washington."

In the Soviet Union, Nixon's resignation was given extensive coverage in the government newspaper Izvestia.

The newspaper devoted one-third of its front page to Nixon's resignation speech, biographical material on Ford and his statement on Thursday and the chronology of events leading to the resignation.

Reports in the Soviet media stressed statements by Ford indicating he would continue the policies of U.S.-Soviet detente pursued by Nixon.

Miss Duckworth To Join Faculty

Carol Kay Duckworth has been named assistant professor of secretarial science at Western Texas College, Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president, has announced.

Miss Duckworth holds the bachelor of arts degree in business education and secondary administration from Oklahoma Baptist University. She received the master of science in education from Arkansas State University, with a major in counseling and guidance.

During the 1973-74 school year, Miss Duckworth was employed by the high school in Green Forest, Ark., where she worked as a counselor and in the business cooperative work program. She previously taught at high schools in Potosi, Mo., and Denton, Kan., and served as a graduate assistant while working on her master's degree at Arkansas State University. She is also a graduate of the American School of Banking in Wichita, Kan., and a former Miss Duckworth is a member of the American Association of Univeristy Women, the National Education Association, the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, the American Vocational Association, the Arkansas Vocational Association, the Missouri State Teachers Association and the Arkansas State Teachers Association. She has been accepted for doctoral study at the graduate school of the University of Mississippi and plans to work toward a doctorate there at some future time.

George Raft Denied Entry

LONDON (AP) — Actor George Raft has lost another bid to enter Britain on grounds "his presence in the country still would not be conducive to the public good."

The announcement came from the office of Home Secretary Roy Jenkins on Friday. Jenkins also was home secretary when Raft was ordered out of Britain in 1967.

The Home Office declined to say why Raft, 78, was denied entry permission. But Jenkins said in 1967 that eight American citizens had been declared "prohibited immigrants" during the previous 12 months because of their alleged connection with organized crime and gambling.

At the time he was ordered out in 1967, Raft was host of the Colony Club Casino in London.

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — A disgruntled taxpayer left the Richmond Common Council literally holding the bag on a pollution problem.

"One of my constituents brought this to me," Merchanthouse said. "He thinks it needs the board's attention.

HERMLEIGH—All teachers in the Hermleigh Independent School District will attend a teacher's workshop at Ira on Tuesday, Aug. 13, and one at Highland on Wednesday, Aug. 14. Teachers will continue their workdays at Ira on Aug. 19 and 20.

Registration for students planning to attend Hermleigh High School will be held Aug. 16, 19, 20 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Classes will start Wednesday, Aug. 21 at 9 a.m. This schedule will be maintained all year unless the time is changed to Standard, then the classes will begin at 8:30 a.m.

Hermleigh schools have adopted a free lunch policy for children in the district unable to pay the full price for lunches in the school cafeteria.

Families are urged to apply for free lunches for their children. They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home by students to parents. Additional copies are available at the superintendent's office. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

The form itself is simple to complete and requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school lunches. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

Under provisions of the policy, the Hermleigh Independent School District will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the local official, he may make request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision.

The policy also provides that there will be no identification or discrimination against any student unable to pay the full cost of a lunch. A complete copy of the policy is on file in the superintendent's office where it may be reviewed by any interested person.

The following family size and income scale has been adopted to assist in determining eligibility for free lunches:

Family Size	Fam. Annual Income
1	$0 to $2,910
2	0 to 3,830
3	0 to 4,740
4	0 to 5,640
5	0 to 6,480
6	0 to 7,310
7	0 to 8,060
8	0 to 8,810
9	0 to 9,510
10	0 to 10,190
11	0 to 10,860
12	0 to 11,530

Above 12, the scale goes up $640 for each additional family member.

NEW PROJECT AT LAMAR—Framework for a covered walkway leading to the new band hall at Lamar Junior High School has been erected. Construction projects at Lamar will continue well into the upcoming school term.

Transition Set By County Supt.

Plans for the operation of the Scurry County School Superintendent's office were made at a recent meeting. Buford Browning, who will retire from the office at the end of December, and Roy Carter met with the county school board to discuss and make plans for this transitional period. Carter, in his effort to be elected to the office, announced plans to close the office at the earliest possible date according to the laws regulating such closings.

However, budgeting for the office must be done in August each year to provide for the school year, September through August. Since an election to close the office cannot be called and held until after Jan. 1, 1975, it was agreed that the office would continue to provide bookkeeping services for the Fluvanna, Hermleigh, and Ira school districts through August, 1975. This will be carried out after Jan 1 by the office secretary working from 1-5 p.m. each day. If the voters give formal approval in the election, the office will be closed beginning Sept. 1, 1975.

The county superintendent must be provided a minimum salary according to state regulations. Carter will accept his salary to pay his election expenses, other necessary expenses, and expenses for providing information to the citizens before the planned election. After these expenses are paid and the election held and approved by the voters, all money budgeted for the operation of the office, except the secretary's salary and necessary office expenses, will be distributed to the proper agencies in accordance with state regulations.

The few remaining responsibilities of the office will be transferred to each independent school district or to the county judge and the commissioners court in compliance with state laws. All records will be turned over to the proper offices.

The approved budget for 1974-75 totals approximately $15,000. The 1973-74 budget was approximately $24,000.

Copper Strike Continues

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — More than 20,000 copper miners remain idled nationwide by a strike against a half-dozen firms, now in its 28th day.

Talks were underway again, however, between striking union miners and Phelps Dodge Corp., and a federal judge continued until Thursday a hearing on Anamax Mining Co.'s request for a permanent injunction against a strike.

Pat Scanlon, chief spokesman for Phelps Dodge, said the company offered some "major changes" from its previous bargaining position in talks Friday in Phoenix.

No talks were held this week with American Smelting and Refining Co. in San Francisco, but ASARCO spokesman Douglas Soutar said a meeting may be scheduled this weekend.

Negotiations with Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. and Cities Service Corp., both of Miami, Ariz., and Magma Copper Co., in Tucson, remained stalemated. There was no report of progress in a strike at Copperange Corp., White Plaines, Mich.

Kennecott Copper Corp. also was struck July 15, but reached agreement on a basic three-year contract within 24 hours. Company employes returned to work July 21, after a week of negotiations on local issues.

The Anaconda Co. settled with the unions June 30 and avoided the strike. Money value of the Anaconda contract, providing an hourly wage increase of 88.5 cents over three years, was used as a basis for union bargaining with the other firms.

The Fluvanna Independent School District has announced a free lunch policy for children in the district unable to pay the full price of 40 cents per lunch in elementary school and 45 cents per lunch in the senior high school. Families are urged to apply for free lunches for their children. They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home by students to parents. Additional copies of the forms are available at the superintendent's office. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. The form is simple to complete and requests information needed to determine the economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school lunches. Sam Bruner has been designated as the hearing official.
