Man arrested following aggravated assault

A man was arrested and charged with aggravated assault following an incident Wednesday night where a man was seriously injured after being struck by a vehicle.

Mario Gomez Jr., 23, of Big Spring, was listed in critical condition with head injuries and a broken leg after being transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by ambulance after the alleged assault on the 1500 block of Bluebird about 9:14 p.m.

Later that night, Gomez was airlifted to a Lubbock hospital.

"I know he had bad head injuries," said Big Spring Police Department spokesperson Pam Jordan.

Charged with aggravated assault was Ricky Escovedo, 19, 1502 Chickasaw.

Gomez had reportedly been visiting Escovedo's family when an argument ensued, Jordan said. "When the victim went to leave, he was struck by the vehicle."

Perot quits

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Ross Perot today abandoned his once-flourishing bid for the White House, saying he had concluded he "cannot win in November."

"I believe it would be disruptive for us to continue" the candidacy, he said. He cited the possibility that a Perot candidacy would throw the election to the House of Representatives.

At a nationally televised news conference, the Dallas billionaire said he wasn't offering an endorsement to President Bush or Democrat Bill Clinton.

Perot said he had spent about $10 million to finance his drive to place his name on all 50 ballots, but that money played no role in his decision not to run.

Instead, he said, the Democratic Party "has revitalized itself" under Clinton's direction, making an outsider's victory impossible.

"I don't have any drive to be president of the United States," he said.

As recently as a few weeks ago, Perot was riding high with his unconventional campaign leading both Bush and Clinton in the polls.

But a string of setbacks followed, culminating in the announcement Wednesday that Ed Rollins, a top Republican strategist recruited to help run the campaign, was leaving over differences in campaign strategy.

Perot's withdrawal instantly transforms the 1992 presidential race, leaving Clinton and Bush in a scrambler to pick up the support that flocked to the Texas billionaire who offered voters a pledge of change.

The Bush camp has sharply attacked Perot in recent days, with Vice President Dan Quayle terming him a "temperamental tycoon," and other GOP officials depicting him an authoritarian figure who might run roughshod over the Constitution.

Clinton, on the other hand, has been far gentler in his treatment — presumably in hopes of being able to receive the support of the Texan's supporters.

Perot qualified for 24 of the 50 state ballots, and claimed success for his almost-candidacy, in the manner of losing candidates everywhere.

He thanked his volunteers for doing a "brilliant job in re-establishing a government that comes from the people. Both political parties are now squarely focused on the issues that concern the American people."

In particular, he said, the Democrats had done a fine job of revitalizing their party.

He said at one point he had believed victory was possible. But given the Democratic resurgence, he said the likelihood was for the election to be thrown into the House. The House, he noted, is made up of Republicans and Democrats, making a Perot victory impossible.

"I believe it would be disruptive for us to continue our program since this program would obviously put it in the House of Representatives and be disruptive to the country. So therefore I will not become a candidate."

Perot said he had made his decision on Wednesday, but withheld his announcement until morning. The last news conference of the Perot campaign came less than 24 hours after Rollins announced he was resigning.

Rollins took 10 aides with him, leaving the campaign in turmoil.

Clinton revels in his hard-won victory

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A beaming Bill Clinton, reveling as he received the Democratic presidential nomination, paid a surprise visit to Madison Square Garden on Wednesday to bask in his triumph and extend "a simple thank you."

The hall erupted in cheers at Clinton's arrival, and delegates reached out to congratulate him and shake his hand. His wife, Hillary's, eyes were rimmed with tears as she and daughter, Chelsea, joined him on the convention podium.

In brief remarks, the Arkansas governor declared: "I want to thank you all for being here and loving your country and to tell you that tomorrow night I will be the Comeback Kid."

Clinton had first used the "Comeback kid" phrase after the New Hampshire primary.

"I got a hug, can you believe it?," Stephanie Powers of Keene, N.H., enthused after Clnton waded out onto the convention floor to greet delegates.

Earlier, Clinton joined a group of Arkansas supporters at a party in nearby Macy's department store to watch the convention roll call on television.

He told roaring conventioneers that party rules prevented him from accepting the nomination right away — that's scheduled for Thursday night.

"But, 32 years ago another young candidate who wanted to get this country moving again came to this convention to say a simple thank you," Clinton said, referring to President Kennedy.

He told reporters that he had been hard at work on his acceptance speech. "I think it will do the job. I hope it will," Clinton said.

Of the rocky road to the nomination, Clinton said:

"We just kept on going and it kind of worked out."

And, asked whether with the new turmoil in the camp of independent challenger Ross Perot he considered the contest a two-or three-way race, Clinton said:

"I think you have to assume it's a three-person race," he said.

Earlier, in the restaurant in Macy's, a jazz band played, "As the Saints Go Marching In" as Clinton and wife, Hillary, danced briefly.

When Ohio delivered the votes that put Clinton over the top, the Arkansas governor grinned broadly, raised his arm in triumph and then squeezed his wife and daughter.

Then the trio joined hands and walked through a section of the store and across the street for a brief visit to the convention hall.

As delegates made Clinton's nomination formal, the Arkansas governor picked up the endorsement of the Teamsters union, which pledged $4 million to help him beat President Bush. The powerful labor group has sided with Republicans in recent elections.

"People are fed up. They want change," Teamsters president Ron Carey said after meeting with the nominee-in-waiting.

Carey said his 1.6 million-member union, which has one of the richest political action committees, would spend at least $4 million on organization efforts for Clinton.

The union backed Bush in 1988 and President Reagan in 1984.

Clinton campaign manager David Wilhelm said the Teamsters' endorsement was particularly significant because many of its members were the so-called Reagan Democrats that Clinton needs to win back over to win.

Clinton spent much of the day closeted in his hotel suite polishing the acceptance speech he'll give on Thursday night.

The Arkansas governor said he wants to introduce himself to Americans and tell them what he wanted them to do to help solve the nation's problems.

"The people of America who are looking at me, many of them for the first time... need to know clearly when the speech is over, who I am, what I've done, what I want to do as president, and what I want them to do," Clinton said in an interview on public television.

"It's very important to me that they know what they have to do, and that the government and the president can't solve all the problems of this country alone."

Also Wednesday, Clinton met with African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, who was in New York seeking United Nations help to end the violence in South Africa.

"The Democratic Party has been one of the organizations which have strongly supported the democratic struggle in our country," Mandela said after the meeting. He declined to endorse Clinton, saying he did not want to interfere in U.S. domestic affairs.

Prison brings smiles to Fort Stockton residents

Residents also concerned about inmates

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT STOCKTON — A 500-bed prison opened has opened just east of Fort Stockton, and brought with it 100 new jobs and smiles on the faces of business people around this town of 8,500.

Some merchants say the prison is providing the first economic surge in the area since the decline in the oil industry a decade ago.

"The city is enjoying a growth in the short term that will probably continue for the next two to three years," said Clayton Alexander, owner of a real estate business in Fort Stockton.

The criminal justice board also announced plans to build another 1,000-bed prison southeast of Fort Stockton as part of its 25,300-bed expansion program statewide. Construction of the second state lockup is scheduled to begin in early January.

All of that means two things to merchants: more jobs and more money.

Seventy correctional officers, 52 of whom were hired locally, will work three shifts. There are 100 people on staff, including medical, clerical, laundry and food service workers, Foster said.

"It's hard to put into words what these prisons are doing for this community in terms of business and hope," Alexander said.

Alexander said rental property agents were the first to notice the growth.

"We have a real tight rental market anyway and with the new employees of the prison, it has gotten a lot tighter," he said. "Once construction starts for the second prison, there will be construction of residences for rent and purchasable properties."

Not everyone is delighted about inmates being kept nearby, despite the assurances of warden Terry Foster that Fort Stockton residents are in no danger.

The first 96 inmates from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice-Institutional Division arrived at the Fort Stockton unit Wednesday afternoon.

"The prisoners who are housed in this unit already have one foot out the door," said Foster, who has worked for the state's department of corrections for 16 years.

"The inmates already have been approved for parole and will spend an average 60 to 90 days here before being released," he said.

"These inmates are the cream of the crop. They likely were in outside trustee positions in the prison units where they come from. They lived and worked within the prison system, but with limited supervision and security."

No exception made for the mayor for random testing

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A random drug testing policy adopted by the Houston City Council that will include city employees from the mayor on down is a good idea, Mayor Bob Lanier says.

The program, approved Wednesday will screen about 7,600 police, fire and emergency workers, plus employees of private firms with safety-sensitive city contracts and City Council members.

The drug tests also will be required for all prospective city workers as a condition of employment.

"I think it is a good policy for everybody," said Mayor Bob Lanier after the unanimous decision. "It sends a good signal to the community. I would like to see it spread across the city."

The plan proposed by Lanier, who wanted a stricter policy than one established in 1989, could save almost $2 million a year in improved worker productivity, officials say.

The program will cost about $180,000 per year, according to Dave Walden, the mayor's chief of staff.

'I think it is a good policy for everybody. It sends a good signal to the community. I would like to see it spread across the city.'

Bob Lanier
Mayor of Houston

Lanier put no deadline on implementation of the policy but said he expected city attorneys to iron out any kinks "and get on with it."

The council's decision to extend testing to the city's top brass appealed to employee groups, who fought an earlier policy that they saw as discriminatory.

One of the first municipal drug testing policies in Texas was established here in 1989 and allowed examination of employees suspected of alcohol or drug abuse.

Later that year, then-Mayor Kathy Whitmire and then-Police Chief Lee P. Brown successfully lobbied the council to approve random drug testing for all peace officers in the police and fire departments and municipal courts.

The random testing was never carried out because of bitter opposition from the Houston Police Officers Association and the Houston Police Patrolmen's Union.

Lawyer wants paroled killer's trial moved

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WACO — A lawyer for paroled killer Kenneth Allen McDuff has asked a judge to move McDuff's capital murder trial out of Central Texas because of extensive news coverage of the case.

Dwight Goains filed the change of venue motion on Wednesday.

Judge George Allen of 54th State District Court has not scheduled a hearing to consider the motion, but he called several judges last week to see if they would be willing to accept the case should he decide to grant the motion.

McDuff pleaded not guilty last Friday to capital murder charges in the deaths of Melissa Ann Northrup and Valencia Kay Joshua.

He is being held in the McLennan County Jail without bond because his parole has been revoked.

In the change of venue motion, Goains included newspaper articles from around the state, along with an order signed by U.S. District Judge Walter S. Smith Jr. in which the judge wrote that it would be "difficult" to select an impartial jury in Central Texas. Smith said he would grant the change of venue.

Smith had been scheduled to preside over McDuff's trial on drug and weapons charges. The charges have been dismissed after the McLennan County grand jury indicted him in June on capital murder charges.

The case, particularly the details of McDuff's release on parole after his conviction in the deaths of three teen-agers in Fort Worth in 1966, have been highlighted by the state's largest newspapers and television stations, Goains said.

But he noted that if the case were moved to another city, court officials would have a larger jury pool from which to draw and that could lessen the effects of the publicity.

McLennan County District Attorney John Segrest said his office will oppose the motion. Approval is automatic if prosecutors do not, he said.

"The people of McLennan County are well able to follow the law and their oaths as jurors," Segrest said.

McDuff's death sentence in the Tarrant County killings was commuted to life in 1972 when the Supreme Court ruled that the death penalty was unconstitutional.

Storms rip through Midwest, Northwest

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fierce storms packing lightning, high winds and hail pounded the Northeast and Midwest, downing power lines and flooding local streets.

The National Weather Service said a tornado touched down Wednesday night in the Queens borough of New York City, about 12 miles east of where the Democratic National Convention was meeting in Manhattan. The were no reports of injuries of damage.

Crews today were working to restore electricity to tens of thousands of customers on Long Island, east of New York City, where power lines were downed and transformers damaged, Long Island Lighting Co. officials said.

"There are a lot of reports of heavy winds, hail, basically real heavy rain, some flooding," said Mike Wyllie, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service. "In parts of western New Jersey, they had an inch to 2 inches of rain in a 20-minute period."

There were severe thunderstorms Wednesday night from New York to North Carolina and over parts of Kansas, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska.

In Iowa, storms blew down a barn in Clinton County near the Illinois line, killing cattle inside a barn near Lost Nation. Five inches of rain fell in less than two hours in Union County in south-central Iowa.

"I'm wetter than a frog in a pond," said Union County Sheriff John Coulter.

Hail almost 2 inches in diameter damaged crops and gardens in Taylor County in southeast Iowa.

In Indiana, cleanup operations were underway after more than a week of rain left rivers at flood stage. Rain has fallen in Indiana all but three days in July, the weather service said.

The Indiana National Guard piled sandbags around the swollen St. Mary's River in Decatur in northeast Indiana on Wednesday.

But the river held steady just below flood stage and no evacuations were necessary, said Chat Sloane, director of preparedness for the State Emergency Management Agency.

Elsewhere in northeast Indiana, the waters of the Mississinewa River near Marion receded after cresting about 5 feet above flood stage Wednesday morning.

Just before midnight, the river had fallen to more than 2 feet below flood stage, said Dale Johnson of the Marion Wastewater Treatment Plant. "It's definitely on the way down," Johnson said. "I'm kind of surprised."

Water from a creek that empties into the Mississinewa had gone down enough by late Wednesday to allow residents of Stonecrest Manor to leave their trailer park. They had been stranded there since Tuesday morning because of waist-high water from the creek.

Davette Henson sits with her children as they stare out the front door of the home in Kendallville, Ind. after a tornado heavily damaged their home. No one was hurt but 25 people were treated for injuries and no deaths were reported.

Serbs extending reach of the war

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serb forces exchanged heavy fire with militiamen defending the war-torn capital today as other Serb units expanded their land grab and reportedly shot across the border into Croatia.

At least 12 Bosnian draft dodgers were killed late Wednesday in Slavonski Brod, a Croatian border town, when a Serb artillery shell hit a soccer stadium that was holding about 3,000 men who fled to Croatia rather than fight the Serbs, Croatian officials said. At least 31 people were seriously injured.

In London, leaders of Bosnia's three factions met separately with European Community mediator Lord Carrington for a second day. There was no immediate word on progress.

The Serbs have recently turned their offensive onto eastern and northern areas of Bosnia-Herzegovina, where more than 7,500 people have died in fighting since ethnic Croats and Muslims declared independence from Yugoslavia on Feb. 29. Bosnia's Serbs opposed independence.

The 10-day offensive has virtually wiped away resistance in the region along the Sava River separating Croatia and Bosnia.

The Belgrade-based Tanjug news agency said Serb forces reached the outskirts of Bosanski Brod, a Bosnian city on the Sava River across from Slavonski Brod. The cities are about 100 miles north of Sarajevo.

It was not immediately known whether Serb gunners fired more shells into Croatia, where ethnic Serbs began fighting after Croats declared independence in June 1991. At least 10,000 people died in that fighting, which died down earlier this year.

In Sarajevo, Serbs battled Muslim-led defenders in the Old Town area and around the heavily damaged central railway station. Both sides fired artillery, mortars and small arms.

Shelling set off fires in a western Sarajevo suburb, where Canadian U.N. peacekeepers were camped.

Election takes off in fits and starts

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Bill Clinton is celebrating his Democratic presidential nomination with a surprising double boost — Ross Perot is suddenly out of the running, and President Bush is out of sight.

With his independent campaign in enough disarray to be the undoing of any candidate, Perot quit today, insisting it wasn't because of that mess but because he'd concluded he couldn't win.

At a Dallas news conference, he said he'd decided "we could only be disruptive" by running and probably deadlocking a three-way race, which would have sent the decision to the House of Representatives. He said the Democrats had been revitalized, but he didn't make an endorsement.

That happened just as Clinton got the lift of the newly nominated, delivering his campaign sendoff address tonight at the finale of the Democratic National Convention.

The Arkansas governor, who had lagged behind Bush and Perot in the polls, surged to a dozen-point lead in one completed on Tuesday. The ABC News-Washington Post survey showed his support at 42 percent, Bush at 30 percent, the slumping Perot at 20 percent. The margin of error was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Gains of that magnitude are nothing unusual at convention time, and they can vanish quickly. Four years ago, Michael Dukakis vaulted 17 points ahead of Bush just after his Democratic nomination, and lost.

But that was a traditional contest, in good times. This is bizarre campaign, with the third man suddenly out, the economy still lagging, and the voters in a sour mood.

Perot's startling dropout is likely to add to Clinton's convention bonus in the next round of polls. The Democratic nominee is the name out front, on television and in the news, and that will be a factor when voters who had preferred Perot are asked in the next few days who they want now.

It won't necessarily last, but it will be another lift for the challenger.

"Americans are disillusioned, angry and fearful," New York Gov. Mario Cuomo said Wednesday night, nominating Clinton. He said it showed in "the quick embrace" the voters gave Perot for saying he'd change things without telling them what or how.

By then the Perot campaign was collapsing. A big name Republican manager, Ed Rollins, signed up to bring professional political know-how to the operation, was forced out and resigned Wednesday.

It turned out, a shaken Rollins said, that Perot preferred "to do it his way," and his ideas were not compatible with the kind of campaign Perot wants to run.

Rollins, who managed President Reagan's 1984 campaign, and Hamilton Jordan, top campaign and White House aide to Democrat Jimmy Carter, had joined Perot 45 days ago. Jordan was said to be frustrated, too.

City projects long overdue

The Big Spring City Council has authorized the issuance of bonds to replace the water supply system in the Capehart Addition and have also called for bond elections for the Beals Creek Flood Control Project and for street maintenance.

All three expenditures are necessary and all three are long overdue.

The water supply project for the Capehart Addition is being made possible through the efforts of the three local banks and will finally make it possible for truly potable water to be delivered to a number of our citizens.

The bond projects, which will be decided by voters on Oct. 10, are also necessary expenditures.

Just like a homeowner paints his home, replaces window screens when necessary and maintains the lawn, so must a city when it comes to projects such as Beals Creek and street work.

The Beals Creek project, long a subject of study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, will remove an eyesore from the heart of the city and replace it with a landscaped drainage area complete with hiking and jogging trails.

It will also help rid the city of the primary breeding grounds for mosquitoes, thus removing a dangerous health hazard.

The street project is one that was approved by voters in 1980, although the bonds were never issued.

Current council members feel it is fiscally responsible to go back to the voters to see if they still want to pay for street work, even though the issuance of bonds was approved over a decade ago.

We agree and applaud them for their concerns.

These projects will not be without cost, but what level of cost can you place on continued flooding, constant damage to property — both private and public — and what price can you place on safe streets over which to travel?

We believe the return on investment — which, in the case of the Beals Creek project is seven federal dollars for every one of ours — is one we cannot ignore.

We encourage you to join us in supporting these projects for the good and growth of our city.

The new Americans with Disabilities Act has been called the most far-reaching civil rights law in recent history. It is also one of the most needed. Those with disabilities should have — and now do have — a right to access to employment and a right of access to public accommodation. But not everyone has gotten the message . . .

The Americans with Disabilities Act is not the onerous burden some of its opponents alleged, though it is certainly not without cost. But it is high time a law put people first on the list of priorities. America is supposed to be all about inclusion, whether the people involved are defined by race, age sex — or disability. Now there's a law that will help ensure that artificial barriers to disabled Americans are removed.

Austin American-Statesman

From the following choose the correct definition for osprey: A) a large, black-and-white diving bird of prey; B) a new, experimental aircraft; C) an egregious example of late-20th-century pork-barrel politics.

While all three may be technically correct, answer C) is . . . perhaps the most relevant answer in 1992. The Osprey, a hybrid of airplanes and helicopters, is an unproven aircraft not wanted by the Pentagon. The push for multibillion-dollar funding comes from Congress, specifically those members of Congress whose home districts would directly benefit from the federal contracts to build the V-22 Osprey. . . .

These members serve voters who work for Bell Helicopter Textron in Fort Worth, Texas, and Boeing Helicopters outside of Philadelphia in Delaware County, Pa.

Such make-work projects for the constituents of powerful lawmakers are an outrage and, in a perfect world, would be eliminated from the federal budget. That isn't likely to happen, but Congress should at least be honest about its appropriations. The Osprey should go under a budget heading of "Incumbent Defense Fund." It clearly isn't a military expense that defends the nation.

McAllen Monitor

At first glance, Bill Clinton's choice of Tennessee Sen. Al Gore as his 1992 running mate may seem odd. Two white, Southern, reform-minded Democrats from neighboring states? What happened to the idea of a VP who complements the head of the ticket, who brings in other region? But this is 1992, and all conventional bets are off. Think of the three-way race for the White House as a sprint relay: Whoever gets to 35 percent first wins.

The significance for the Clinton campaign is that Mr. Gore would provide real acceleration to the Democratic ticket. The selection represents a return to the center for the Democrats. Sen. Gore has a solid personal reputation, foreign and military experience, and, yes, Washington exposure. Most notably, he has been on the defining edge of the issues of the future, displaying leadership particularly on the global environment.

Texans should note that Sen. Gore has a heightened appreciation for the role science and technology are to play in the nation's future. With funding for the Texas-based Superconducting Super Collider at stake, and the state's commitment to space and medical research of importance, it's key to have someone who has an ear to the ground on these issues. . . .

Talk shows plentiful in election year

Art Buchwald

I have been watching the talk shows on television this week -- particularly those that include experts on political affairs from the right and the left. The reason why we are seeing more of these shows is that talk is the only inexpensive thing you can put on TV during an election year.

Talk shows are engrossing because since everyone speaks at once, you can't understand a word that's being said.

The "Ayatollah" of the Babel shows is John McLaughlin, a former priest who left his order because his fellow priests complained that he talked too loud in his sleep. McLaughlin is so skilled at his trade that he can be heard over Robert Novak and Mort Kondracke at the same time.

The other show registering a high decibel rating is "Crossfire," with Michael Kinsley and John Sununu. The program features a liberal and a conservative discussing the great issues of the day. "Crossfire" prides itself on the fact that no guest has ever completed a full sentence on the show.

Kinsley's strength is that his questions are now 10 times longer than his guests' answers.

Sununu is much more polite but only remains quiet when a conservative replies to his questions.

Producers encourage noise on these kind of shows because it creates the impression that the participants are actually saying something. The truth is that as soon as the program is over the adversaries all go to the nearest bar and discuss raising their lecture fees.

If it was only the panelists who filibustered on television, no one would have anything to worry about.

But political consultants are now training their clients to keep talking to use up all the air time.

The great practitioner of political noise pollution was Jerry Brown, who was one of the first candidates, when given a sound bite, to bite back.

Nancy Simpson gives a course for candidates who wish to use Babel as a political weapon. I found her at Madison Square Garden handing out her business card.

"I train congressmen, senators and even those higher up whose names I cannot reveal. Civility no longer works in politics. When an interviewer shouts at one of my people, I want him or her to yell back."

"How do you instruct them?"

"The trick is for my clients not to hear what the opposition is saying so I equip all of them with wax ear plugs. I expect my participants to look into the camera and to keep talking until they go to the station break."

"Easier said than done," I remarked.

"A candidate's toughest job is to appear on the 'Today,' 'Good Morning America' and CBS 'This Morning' shows. If they have two candidates they allot four minutes for both of them. You can use that up just by saying hello to your host. I also advise my clients to start talking before they're on camera so that when the red light goes on they are in the middle of a sentence and their opponent cannot interrupt."

"I've seen that method leave Bryant Gumbel speechless," I told her.

Nancy said, "Political noise pollution is a dirty business, but someone has to do it. What makes America great is that the less people hear what you're saying, the more they will defend your right to say it."

Bush goes past majority on abortion

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

AN AP ANALYSIS

WASHINGTON — In his praise of the Supreme Court's decision that the right to abortion can be subject to limits, President Bush took a position most Americans apparently approve.

But Bush doesn't stop there — he wants the right itself overturned. And that goes beyond the majority view.

On the issue one dissenting justice said "has inflamed our national politics," the polls reflect opinion as divided as the court's, with a consensus in favor of the right to abortion but also in favor of limits and regulations.

Bush emphasized the latter, saying that he was pleased the court had upheld "reasonable restrictions" on abortion, including the requirement that a pregnant teen-age girl get parental consent to have an abortion.

Both Democrat Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot say they support a woman's right to choose abortion — but both also have favored parental involvement, if not consent, when a girl under 18 seeks an abortion.

Clinton signed a parental notification law in Arkansas in 1989, after vetoing one that would have required a girl to tell both her parents. He now says a pregnant teen-ager also should have the option of advising a counselor or clergyman.

Perot said in a May 29 television interview that parents should have a voice in the matter. ". . . I'm clearly on record that it's a woman's choice," Perot said Monday night after the court upheld the right to abortion and also upheld the power of the state's to limit it by law. "And in terms of the detailed maze that we have to go through to work that out, I'll have to carefully step across that mine field. . . ."

It is a mine field indeed. The same public opinion polls that show majorities in favor of the right to abortion also show overwhelming support for parental notification or consent, and for other limits.

The Pennsylvania law the court upheld requires the consent of one parent, or of a state judge, for an unmarried girl, under 18, who is not supporting herself, to get an abortion.

Even the bills Democratic congressional leaders are trying to push to approval — and a certain Bush veto — this summer hedge on the parental consent question. The Senate version, for example, would permit states to require a minor "to involve a parent, guardian or other responsible adult before terminating a pregnancy."

The bill would establish abortion as a legal right. Clinton says he'll work and campaign for it, and that Bush's veto power means it will not become law without a new president.

Clinton points to the prospect that one more conservative justice opposed to abortion rights could reverse the decision that affirmed that right 19 years ago. He said that as president, he would nominate only justices who support the right to abortion and are willing to say so.

Bush insists that he hasn't, and won't, make abortion a test for Supreme Court nominees, although he wants the Roe vs. Wade decision reversed. At this point, his campaign interests are served by muting the issue.

To that end, when it came up in his Rose Garden question and answer session on CBS Wednesday, Bush avoided the basic question, and said the split between the two justices he has sent to the court proved what he's been saying.

"I think people now know that when I said there is no litmus test, that I wanted people on the bench to interpret the Constitution rather than legislate, I think they now know that I was telling the truth," he said.

Justice Clarence Thomas voted to overturn the right to abortion; Justice David H. Souter voted with the bare majority that upheld it.

That's not what anti-abortion conservatives expected of a majority that also included two justices appointed by Ronald Reagan. But it does reflect public attitudes, and the decision said so, warning that to overrule the basic right to abortion would come "at the cost of profound and unnecessary damage to the court's legitimacy and to the nation's commitment to the rule of law."

Internationals headed to sectional play

By MIKE BUTTS
Staff Writer

MIDLAND — Big Spring's International Junior League All-Stars went into this month's District III Tournament knowing they had an excellent pitcher in Edward Aguilar.

But IL president Ramiro Perez believes the Internationals' number two pitcher, Gilbert Morales, was the decisive factor in his All-Stars' undefeated tournament run. And Wednesday in the team's 8-3 championship game win over the Midland Nationals, Morales showed why.

The Internationals' number two man tossed a five-hitter and did not allow an earned run in the last six innings of the game played at Hogan Park. He also got a crucial two-out, two-run single in the sixth inning that broke a 3-3 tie and sparked the Internationals' offense. The team will play in the section one tournament in Ablilene beginning July 24.

"Gilbert's coming through like he did was the key to our winning," Perez said. "We expected to do well but we didn't expect to go undefeated. We had one strong pitcher (in Aguilar) but Gilbert pitched better than we expected."

Aguilar threw for two wins earlier in the tournament, including a no-hitter against Lamesa July 6.

Morales, Gabriel Rubio and Joe Mata, each with two runs batted in, led the International 12-hit attack in the title game.

Eric Clark went the distance on the mound for Midland. All of the eight runs he allowed were earned.

Clark gave up one run in the first four frames and held a 3-1 lead going into the fifth. But he threw two wild pitches and surrendered two hits in that inning to let Big Spring get even at 3-3.

Morales' key hit in the fifth came after an error and two walks loaded the bases for the Internationals. With the count 0-2 and two down, the International hurler fouled off three straight pitches to the left side. He then lined a ball about a foot inside the left field stripe to keep his team in the inning and put it ahead 5-3.

Rubio followed with an RBI single to finish the three-run inning.

Perez wasn't concerned about his team's early 3-1 deficit.

"We knew we were in the game because we were hitting their pitcher," Perez said. "We knew we would break it open."

And break it open they did in the top of the seventh and final inning with a two-run single by Mata. Midland's Jason Rodgers doubled in the bottom of the frame, but it was the only hit for the Nationals in the last three innings.

Morales' bad start resulted in a 2-1 Midland lead. The Nationals' first two batters singled and later scored on a sacrifice fly by catcher Mike Hale and a walk. A throwing error on Big Spring catcher Rojelio Cervantes allowed a run in the third to give Midland its 3-1 advantage.

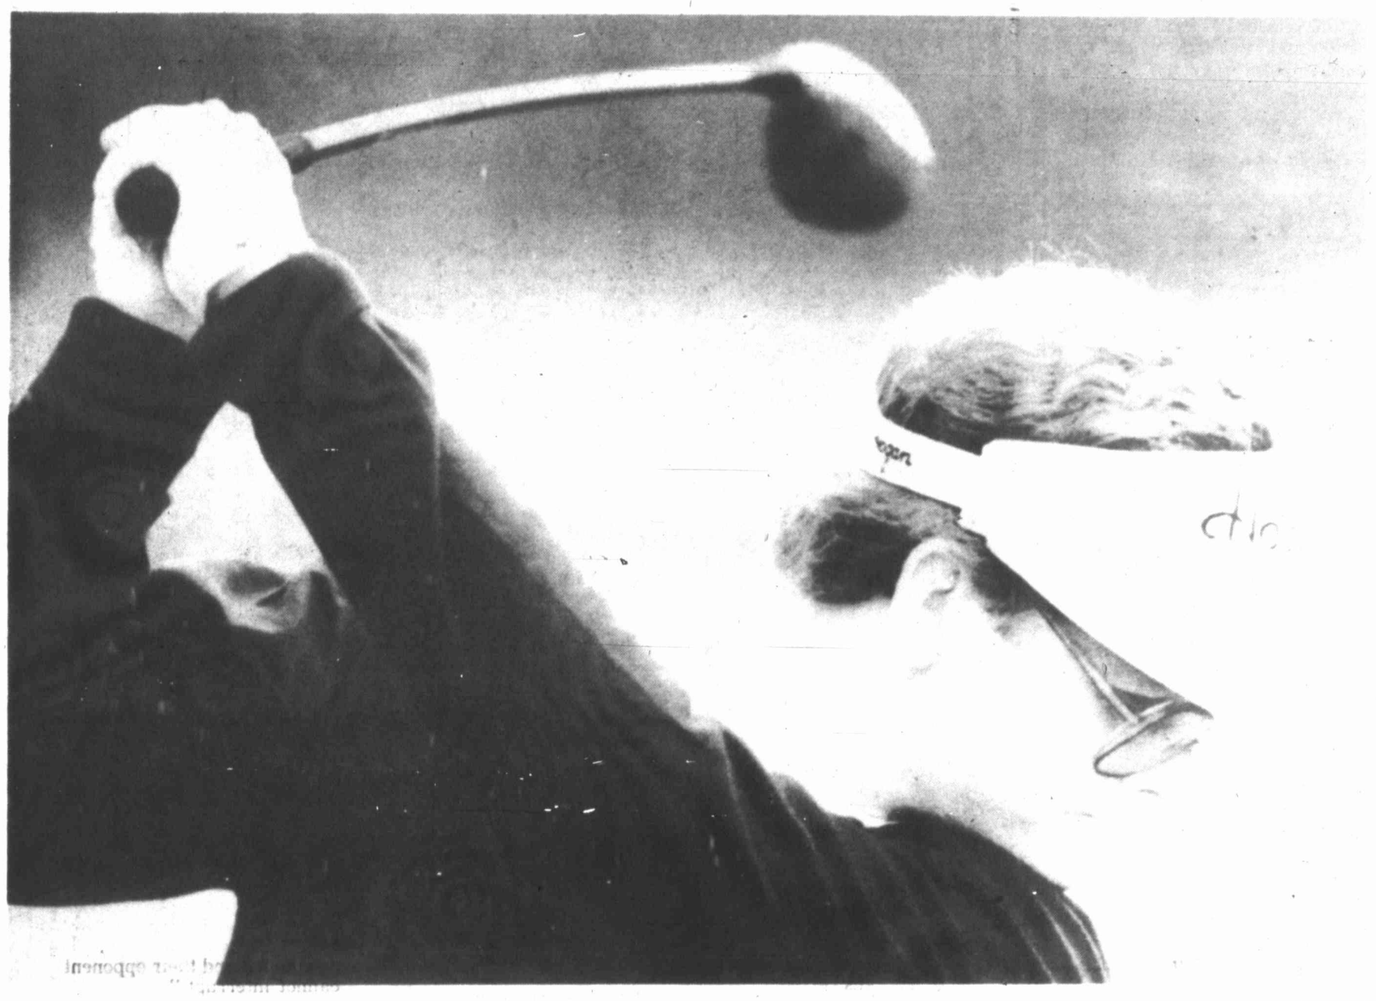

After the game Perez said the strength of the team is its members experience playing together.

"Most of them have played together since they were 11 or 12 and most of them have been on a (city Little League) championship team or played in a (city Little League) championship game," he said.

Pate early Open leader with 64

GULLANE, Scotland (AP) — Steve Pate, who saves some of his best golf for the majors but has yet to win one, marched over surprisingly tame Muirfield at 7-under 64 today to take the early first-round lead at the British Open.

Ian Woosnam, a Masters champion hoping to win a major closer to his Welsh home, stayed right with Pate at 7-under through 16 holes.

"Amazing what happens when you start putting good," Pate said as he walked off the course after a cool 10-foot putt saved par on the 18th following birdie putts on the 13th, 14th and 15th.

"I hit a long way from the hole and made it a lot," he said.

Nick Faldo, the 7-1 favorite, was only two strokes off with a 66 that tied him with Lee Janzen, who won his only tournament in Tucson, Ariz., in February.

Thousands of gawking golfers in the birthplace of the game got their first look at Long John Daly's giant drives as the 121st edition of this event began with nary a breeze nor a sprinkle to bedevil the field. Dark clouds threatened, but light showers at midday passed quickly and the air stayed relatively calm.

Daly, playing with defending champion Ian Baker-Finch, quickly brought oohs and ahhs from the gallery as he bogeyed the first hole and birdied the second and fifth. Daly's drive on 351-yard No. 2 was hole high just off the green, but for all his power he could manage no better than 1-over through 15 holes.

Rather unnoticed but only two strokes off Pate's pace were Andrew Magee and Costantino Rocca at 67.

Pate, who tied for third in the Masters last year and seventh in the PGA championship, has five PGA Tour victories — the latest in San Diego this year — and has risen to one of the better players in the game over the past few years. Pate also finished sixth at the Masters this year.

He made the Ryder Cup team last year, but suffered a deep hip bruise in a pile-up of three limousines as the team traveled from Kiawah Island, S.C. into Charleston for the opening banquet. He played one team match, but had to sit out the singles. That was the low point in an otherwise solid year that brought him nearly $728,000, sixth on the tour.

Jack Nicklaus made an ignominious return to the links where he won the first of his three British Opens and learned to love seaside golf.

Nicklaus double-bogeyed the par-4 first hole, but started to get the feel of the course again on No. 5, matching Woosnam's birdie. After 16 holes, though, Nicklaus was 3-over.

The Coahoma United Girls Softball Association Division I (ages 7-9) All-Stars captured the All-Star tournament crown by going undefeated.

Coahoma beat Jal, N.M. 9-6 to win the championship game. Amber Bingham and Kenni Kay Buchanan pitched a two-hitter. Coahoma took advantage of 13 walks. Bingham, Buchanan and Kortney Kemper were leading hitters for Coahoma.

Coahoma began the tournament by defeating Colorado City 16-3. Bingham and Buchanan pitched for Coahoma. Buchanan struckout the first six batters. Stephanie Sparks and Kara Jeffcoat hit inside-the-park home runs for Coahoma. Buchanan and Brittney Prater tripled and Bingham doubled.

In the second game of the tournament, Coahoma drummed Breckenridge 12-1. Bingham and Buchanan pitched. Leading hitters were Karen Sterling, Kemper, Erin Stovall. Stovall hit a grand slam inside-the-parker.

Playing good defense were Brittney Prater and Stovall.

Coahoma then beat Kermit 15-1 behind the pitching of Bingham and Buchanan. Getting two hits in the win were Prater, Stephanie Sparks, Kemper, Buchanan and Bingham.

Coahma then defeated Robert Lee 16-3 as Bingham and Buchanan pitched. Sparks paced the hitting attack with three singles. Prater added two base hits. Bingham capped it off with an grand slam.

Former Houston Cougars coach dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Willingham, who coached several All-America players at the University of Houston, died Wednesday after a lengthy illness. He was 64.

Willingham served as the Cougars offensive line coach for 20 seasons under former head coach Bill Yeoman. He arrived at Houston the same year Yeoman installed the veer offense.

His first three offensive lines helped the Cougars rank No.1 in the nation in total offense in 1966-68 and in rushing offense in 1967 and 1968.

Some of the top offensive lineman he produced were consensus All-Americans Rich Strotter and Bill Bridges, All-America tight end Riley Odoms, All-America center Chuck Brown and All-America tackle Melvin Jones.

Willingham's coaching career began in 1951 as the offensive line coach at Albany High School. He went on to coach at Sweetwater High from 1955 to 1959.

Willingham, a native of Stephenville, was a three-year (1948-50) letterman at offensive guard at Texas Christian University.

He is survived by his wife Carla and daughter Lisa.

Oiler rookies report to camp

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee issued his first order Wednesday before all rookies and free agent players reported to training camp at Trinity University,

Don't be late.

Because of the Oilers' five-game preseason schedule that includes an Aug. 1 game in Tokyo against Dallas and two other scrimmages with the Cowboys, the Oilers will have a less than traditional training camp.

That made it more important for the newcomers to get in as much work as possible, beginning Thursday, before the veterans report on Sunday and start taking their repetitions on Monday.

"We'll have the same number of working days but we'll have extra game and travel time so these first few workouts will be so important to the rookies," Pardee said. "It's more like a game-week schedule."

Bucky Richardson, who earlier agreed to terms of a two-year contract, heeded Pardee's message and signed his contract. Richardson, an eighth round pick who led Texas A&M to two Cotton Bowl appearances, likely will work at running back.

Fifth round choice Tony Brown, a cornerback from Fresno State, also agreed to terms.

Other Oiler draft choices had not signed their contracts late Wednesday, including second round pick Eddie Robinson, a linebacker from Alabama State. The Oilers did not have a first round pick in the 1992 draft.

Wide receivers Corey Harris (third round) of Vanderbilt and Mario Bailey (sixth round) of Washington also were unsigned, leaving a wider gap in the Oilers receiving corps.

Houston lost all-time leading receiver Drew Hill and speedy Tony Jones to the Atlanta Falcons. Both were on the Oilers Plan B unprotected list.

Defensive back Mike Dumas was a camp holdout in 1991 and he suffered throughout the season because of it, Pardee said.

"If they miss any of these workouts we can't go back in two weeks and practice for them again. Last year we had a lot of missed time. (Mike) Dumas missed so much he didn't get to play and he was one of the top choices of the defensive backs."

Despite the disruptive travel schedule, Pardee doesn't anticipate problems.

"You can't do anything about it so why worry?" Pardee said. "The players say all the travel will be tiring. I tell them 'would you rather be sitting on an airconditioned plane or working out two times a day?'"

While late-arriving rookies will suffer, backup players already indoctrinated in the Oiler system will benefit from more game-condition playing time, Pardee said.

"We'll have a lot of games and let them get some playing time," Pardee said. "That's all some of them need. They've been in camp and know the system, they just need to play."

Dumas fits into that category along with defensive linemen Jeff Alm and Willie Peguese and defensive back Steve Jackson.

The Oilers also have potential contract problems among the veterans. Six veterans are unsigned and quarterback Warren Moon may not report Sunday if terms of a bonus clause worth about $800,000 are not resolved.

Three Pro Bowl performers, guard Mike Munchak, cornerback Cris Dishman and defensive end William Fuller are unsigned along with starting receiver Curtis Duncan and free safety Bo Orlando and backup linebacker Scott Kozak.

Sean Jones ended a bitter contract battle in 1991 by signing a three-year contract but he announced last week he's quitting football. He also wants to be traded.

The Oilers have signed free agent offensive tackle Glenn Hunt of Louisiana Tech.

first Open and golf's first 72-hole tournament, at a time when the game has many brilliant young stars but no true superstars like Nicklaus, he's making perhaps his last, memory-filled march over a course that has meant so much to him and the sport.

He's back, at 52, a mere 100-1 longshot with the legal bookies, and even that might be generous, considering the inconsistency of his game on the Seniors Tour.

Faldo is the bettors' man. Colin Montgomerie is the Scots' favorite. Tom Kite, coming off a U.S. Open championship, may be the thinking man's choice on a course that demands a cerebral game.

Faldo began with a bogey, but eagled the fifth and birdied the eighth and ninth to go 3-under.

Daly had spectators gasping at his Killer Whale drives even in practice, which led the club to build up the fence by 18 feet on the driving range and move back the tee 25 yards.

And despite Daly's protestations that he's not a serious contender, that he's here really just to learn how to play the Scottish links, no less than Nicklaus and Lee Trevino warned that the 26-year-old with the long blond locks should be taken seriously.

Woosnam and Fred Couples, each capable of muscling drives over the fairway bunkers and playing with enough finesse and poise to win majors, are also among the elite given a good chance of winning by their peers. And no one can count out such familiar names as Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros, five-time winner Tom Watson, or Baker-Finch.

"I think that somebody who wants to win this golf tournament must play the golf course intelligently," said Nicklaus, who has played five of his 30 British Opens at Muirfield.

Volunteers guide pilot whales to sea at Seal Rocks, some 125 north of Sydney, Australia, Wednesday. Rescuers who spent an around-the-clock vigil caring for a group of stranded whales put 15 of the giant sea mammals out to sea and worked to save a dozen more. Rescuers used moist blankets and towels to keep the whales wet and help them breath. The efforts ended with 35 whales saved.

35 beached whales saved

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEAL ROCKS, Australia — The dramatic rescue of a pod of stranded false killer whales ended today with 35 whales back in deep water and the humane destruction of five mammals that were too weak to be freed into the ocean.

Fifteen of the giant mammals were released Wednesday and 20 more this morning. Rescuers cheered as the 20 headed out out into deep blue water.

It was not known if the second batch would be able to find the first group.

New South Wales state parks officer Ian Nowacki said the last five whales were given lethal injections after failing to respond to attempts remove them from a shallow beach pond and into deeper water.

Another nine of the pod of 49 died during the two-day rescue operation. But the rescue was hailed as a success because most of them were returned to the Pacific Ocean.

"We think everyone has done a fantastic job, under extremely hard conditions," said Nowacki. "It was sad that we had to put down the final five, but in the end it was the humane thing to do."

A team of veterinarians was conducting autopsies today of the nine dead whales to see if they can shed any light on why the whales beached themselves.

Volnteers worked for more than 48 hours to save the whales, some of which weighed more than 750 pounds and measured up to 15 feet long.

The pod washed up onto a sandy beach early Tuesday underneath the Sugar Loaf Lighthouse at Seal Rocks, 125 miles north of Sydney.

Hundreds of volunteers used wet towels, buckets of water and soothing words to keep the whales alive. Local fishermen joined surfers, amateur ecologists, even families with children on school vacation in a round-the-clock vigil.

Four volunteers were treated for hypothermia after spending too much time in the cold water.

Diving shops in the area provided volunteers with wetsuits and the Australian army sent in 60 soldiers to help with the operation.

During the drama, the whales were lifted by hand onto four-wheel drive vehicles and driven to calmer waters on the other side of a rocky headland a half-mile away.

Bush, Baker take time to fish

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON, Wyo. — On the outskirts of Boulder, Wyo., a sign declares that the town, at 7,016 feet elevation, has a population of 75.

Wrong.

Wrong in a number of respects. There are no outskirts to Boulder; from U.S. 191, it appears not to have any inskirts either. If there is a there, it doesn't show.

Neither is its population 75 today. For the time being, Boulder is the seat of American power, the White House transplanted to where the brook trout swim and the deer and the elk play. It is a White House complete with the president of the United States and the secretary of state.

The Secret Service population is a state secret, but a good guess would put it at 75.

The contrast could not be greater. While his fall opponent is certified in the cacophony of Madison Square Garden, George Bush is listening to the rustling of the wind and the spin of his reel. As his closest adviser and host, Secretary of State James A. Baker III is probably telling him what lure to use.

Where Madison Square Garden is awash in red, white and blue for Bill Clinton, Bush is contenting himself with a glorious Cinemascope view of land rolling toward spectacular mountains of blue-gray and purple, still crowned with snow.

They are talking politics in New York and it's not inconceivable that they are talking politics in Boulder — after all Bush and Baker were candidate and campaign manager, respectively, in 1980 and 1988 and there is speculation, heatedly denied, that they may yet be in 1992.

Few details of the two-day stay were available. The best the White House staff in Jackson could do on Wednesday was to issue a schedule for Friday, the first post-vacation day. From a picnic in Jackson, Bush plans to fly to meetings with Mormon Church and Utah Republican leaders in Salt Lake City.

Baker's ranch house has no television so Bush can't watch the Democratic convention. But he probably figured correctly that the majority party would denounce him so what's to watch. And if he really, really wanted to, the fabled White House Communications Agency probably could arrange it quicker than you can bait a hook.

The government went to great lengths to insure isolation by having the federal Bureau of Land Management close off public lands around Baker's 1,700-acre ranch.

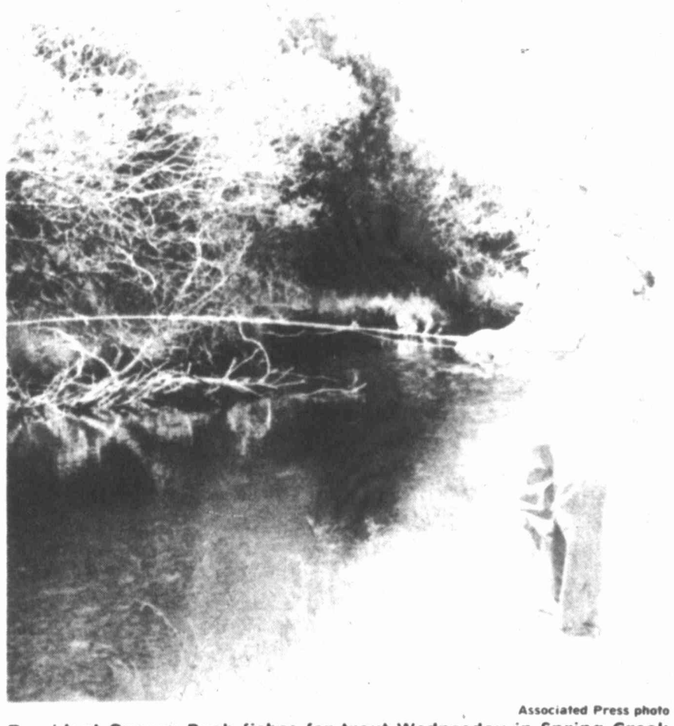

The Secret Service wanted "to provide a secure area where people can't look down on a hill and see the Baker ranch ... and shoot rockets or whatever," said Arlan Hiner, the BLM's area manager. The secure area is a mere 12 square miles.

So while Bill Clinton awoke this morning as the presidential nominee of the Democratic Party, George Bush was feasting on flapjacks made by Susan Baker.

From the road, you wouldn't know he's there. Well, almost. It's really hard to miss those two huge Marine helicopters, sporting the presidential seal. You don't see too many of those parked alongside U.S. 191.

ter salary and benefits.

Cunningham was the first administrator at SMMC after National Healthcare took over the facility, according to 1990 statements made by Louis Gatto, then executive director of assets management. Cunningham continued to work as a group director for several other hospitals after accepting the SMMC top position.

In 1988, Wiley was instrumental in settling a lawsuit filed against the hospital under the administration of Andy Gramlich, who was succeeded by Scott Taylor and later, Wiley.

The suit alleged the hospital was monopolizing surgical services by prohibiting local physicians not on staff from using the facility.

Wiley settled the suit, allowing all "qualified" physicians open access to all areas of the center including the surgical facilities.

Penny Phillips, administrator of Malone and Hogan Clinic said, "He did a very good job while he was here and we're looking forward to him coming back."

One of Wiley's first tasks will be the development of the hospital's new occupational medicine program, according to Cunningham. The new geriatric psychiatric facility, opened in May, will require guidance as well.

Two arrested after 70-mile chase

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

PECOS — Two state workers remained jailed Wednesday after leading authorities on a 70-mile chase across West Texas before being captured with a tire well packed with marijuana.

The chase ended early Tuesday near Balmorhea when a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper shot out a rear tire of the speeding vehicle. The vehicle was stopped about 55 miles from where it started, at the U.S. 67 Border Patrol checkpoint five miles south of Marfa.

Clifford Earl Gordon, 27, and William B. Washington, 26, both of Pecos, were being held in the Reeves County Jail on marijuana possession charges. Justice of the Peace Corina Brijalba set bond at $150,000.

A canine search revealed 18.4 pounds of suspected marijuana hidden in the tire well of the car, DPS reports said.

Washington and Gordon are employees of the Big Spring State Hospital's outreach program at the Reeves County MHMR center, a spokeswoman for the Austin MHMR office said Tuesday.

"Both have been placed on administrative leave pending personnel action. We are very disappointed and shocked at this situation," the spokesperson, who was not identified, said.

The Border Patrol stopped a car for inspection at the Marfa checkpoint shortly after midnight Tuesday. The driver sped off when he was asked to pull to the side of the road, authorities' reports said.

DPS Trooper Richard Jacobs fired one round, striking the car's left back tire and forcing the car to stop.

Sweeping up taxes

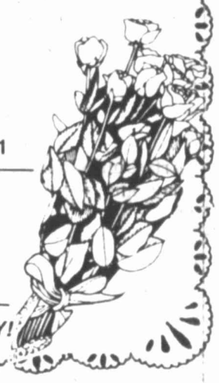

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Delinquent taxpayers, beware. A law firm is making a sweep of the Dallas area to collect back taxes or seize property worth 10 times the amount owed.

As part of its annual "summer seizure sweep," the law firm of Heard Goggan Blair & Williams on Wednesday made an example of those believed to owe back taxes.

The firm has written the taxpayers telling them they have 10 days to respond.

Miller takes ag post, youth work

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

ED MILLER

The Howard County Commissioner's Court on Monday approved Ed Miller to serve as Howard County extension agent-agriculture assistant.

Miller, 24, will assume the post Aug. 1. The same month, he will graduate from Angelo State University with a master's degree in animal science.

His duties will include supervision of livestock projects and other related programs, field crops and leadership training programs. Miller also will train livestock judging teams, keep records and teach method demonstrations.

"His primary responsibilities will be agricultural-related 4-H projects and related activities, plus certain areas of general agricultural work in the county with local ag producers," said Howard County Extension Agent-Agriculture Don Richardson.

Miller, who also will head the Howard County 4-H program, replaces Ricky Spencer who has assumed a 4-H position in Midland, Richardson said.

A native of New Holland, Ill., Miller attended South Plains College in Levelland and received a bachelor's degree in 1990 from ASU.

A former member of the National Collegiate Livestock Judging Team, Miller has extensive experience in showing, exhibiting and judging.

"He has a real strong background in livestock work," Richardson explained.

In 1989, Miller's team won the Dixie National Beef Judging Contest in Jackson, Miss.; the Mid-South Expostition in Memphis, Tenn. and, placed first at the Shreveport State Fair in Louisiana.

During the same year, Miller's team received reserve champion honors in Fort Worth.

Miller said he's excited about his new position and is eager to begin working with the residents of Howard County.

"I'm looking forward to getting to know and working with the people in the community," he said.

Sponsor a child for school clothes

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Northside Community Center is looking for local individuals, organizations or businesses that will sponsor a child for the coming school year.

There are several ways to participate in the program, which is designed to help local kids get needed clothing and supplies for school.

"You can take a child shopping," said Marianne Brown-Esquilin, director of the center.

"Or, if you are too busy, you can donate money and we'll do the shopping for you."

Most children can be outfitted for about $100, including a new pair of shoes.

"Businesses can get together, and each give just a little," Esquilin said. "Even only $10 will help with something."

Already, 50 children are signed up to be sponsored, although last year the program drew 157 kids.

"We want to get an early start this year," Esquilin said. "I think we're going to end up with even more children than last year."

Esquilin started the sponsorship program about four years ago after hearing the complaint from mothers that their children were embarrassed to go to school.

"They said the other kids would laugh at them, laugh at their clothes and such," said Esquilin. "We realized there was a real need to get these kids some things before they go back to school."

Lemmings for Nintendo

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everybody knows about lemmings, those furry little morons legend says will march by the thousands into the sea and drown, following some age-old evolutionary orders.

Well, science has pretty much discredited that fairy story. But Lemmings ($54.95 from Sunsoft for Super Nintendo) is based on that hoary tale, and it's a winner.

In Lemmings, you are given a Good Samaritan's dream job — save the dimwitted rodents from their suicidal urges.

In each of 125 levels, you are presented with a group of lemmings marching to certain disaster. Your job is to figure out how to get them past obstacles to an exit.

You get a certain length of time to complete each level. Use pause to stop the clock while you mull over the best way to proceed.

Lemmings requires a thoughtful approach. Because time is limited and once a lemming's gone, it's gone for good, you have to work out your moves in advance.

Who's who

Bonhoeffer's last days

ABILENE — German Protestant pastor Dietrich Bonhoeffer was hanged for high treason at Hitler's order just days before almost certain rescue by Allied forces.

Bonhoeffer's powerful story of faith in action will be retold by Abilene Christian University students and alumni in an upcoming dinner theatre production titled "The Cost: A Dramatic Tribute to Dietrich Bonhoeffer."

During the mid-1930s, when Hitler was rising to power and exerting more control over religion, Bonhoeffer was openly critical of the Third Reich and involved in an underground resistance movement. He was opposed to Hitler's concept of "German Christians," who made concessions to the Nazis such as displaying the swastika alongside the cross.

"The Cost" will be performed in ACU's Sewell Theatre July 17-18, 21, 24-25 and July 31-Aug. 1. Dinner tickets are $15, and dessert-only tickets are $8.

The July 21 performance is not a dinner theatre. The show begins at 8:15 p.m. and costs $5.

For more information or to reserve tickets for the Abilene performances, call the ACU Theatre box office at 915-674-2739.

Musicians at camp

ABILENE — One hundred and fifteen students from across Texas and New Mexico participated in Bi-State Honor Band and Choir sponsored by McMurry University this June.

Bi-State is a one-week intensive music camp for instrumentalists and vocalists selected by audition. Students participated in rehearsals and individual instruction leading to choir and band concerts presented for parents and the general public in the Amy Graves Ryan Fine Arts Center on the McMurry campus.

Included were: Whitney Fawks, daughter of Franny Fawks, a sophomore from Greenwood High School, percussion; and Brandon Haynes, son of Patti Haynes, a sophomore at Greenwood High School, percussion.

Miracle slides into band camp

Big Spring High School trombone player Thad Miracle was among 850 high school and junior high students from 98 cities from throughout Texas and New Mexico at the Angelo State University campus for band camp this week. It ends Saturday.

Harris Brinson, director of bands at Angelo State, is the camp director.

Professor of Music at Arkansas State University, Dr. Jared Spears is this year's Honor Band Conductor. Spears has taught theory, history, composition, percussion, and band on all educational levels.

He has composed over 200 original works for band, choir, orchestra, and chamber ensembles. A majority of his works are published by American and European companies.

The faculty and staff of the ASU Band Camp consists of 75 professional band directors and specialists for the different areas of instruction.

The final band concerts are scheduled for Saturday, July 18, starting at 12:30 p.m. in the University Auditorium. The public is invited and admission is free to the concerts.

Graduate hired

McMurry University has hired one of its 1992 graduates, Zackie Lynn Van Houten, as Manager of Publications, a newly-created position in the Office of University Relations.

As Manager of Publications, Van Houten's responsibilities will include publishing the alumni and friends magazine, the Chieftain, the student newspaper, The War Whoop; In-Touch, a church relations newsletter and other development-related publications; and special projects.

Hello, Barcelona

Barcelona is the second-largest city in Spain. It is in the part of Spain called Catalonia.

The 2 million people who live in the city are very proud of their past.

Most people who live in Barcelona speak Spanish as well as Catalan, the language of that area.

For more than 2,000 years, Barcelona has been a busy seaport on the Mediterranean Sea. Some visitors plan to stay in ships anchored in the harbor.

Barcelona has many museums and beautiful buildings. The unfinished Temple of the Holy Family was started more than 100 years ago. As yet, the huge cathedral has no roof. It was designed by an architect named Gaudi. It might take another 100 years to finish it.

Barcelona is famous for a statue of Columbus that overlooks its harbor. The explorer visited there several times.

The biggest sports event in the world and the biggest Olympics ever starts soon in Barcelona, Spain. Barcelona is expecting:

- 720,000 visitors;
- 15,000 athletes;
- 7,000 members of the press.

To be finally chosen as an Olympic site means so much to Barcelona. Its people have spent millions of dollars cleaning up, and building new roads, hotels and other buildings.

The Olympic Stadium has been remodeled to hold about 60,000 people. The stadium will be the site of the opening and closing ceremonies. It is on a hill overlooking the city.

There are many factories in and around Barcelona.

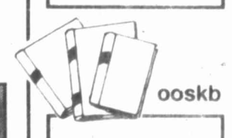

Can you unscramble and match these things produced by the factories?

The 'Old Soreheads,' playing to beat the band

The Old Soreheads Band is comprised of senior citizens who enjoy making music. They perform for various places and most recently at the Old Settlers Reunion.

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

A sign on Interstate 20 outside of Stanton welcomes visitors to the town, saying it is the home of 3,000 friendly people and a few old soreheads.

And some of those soreheads make up the Martin County Senior Citizen Old Sorehead Band.

Founding member Faye Rhodes said the band was formed in 1980 by a few senior citizens in Martin County. At first, the band only had a handful of people with a few instruments, she said. Throughout the years the number of band members grew as did the variety of instruments.

Today, band has more than 30 members. Instruments played include washboard, tub, guitars, piano, mandolin, harmonica, as well as many others.

"At the start, we only had a tub, washboard, kazoo, harmonica and a few others," Rhodes said. "We have four or five who play guitars, acoustic and electrical. We also have two piano players, a yodeler and drums."

The band plays a minumum three times a week practicing every Thursday. Area nursing homes are a regular venue. They also play church socials and meetings of all kinds, Rhodes said. Their last appearance was the end performance at the 59th annual Martin County Old Settlers Reunion this past weekend.

Dewitt Davis, a band member since he retired three years ago said, "I enjoy the music and the fellowship that we have." Davis plays the mandolin.

Like Davis, many of the band members join after they retire, Rhodes said.

"You don't have to know much, just have rhythm and a desire to play," she said.

Rhodes is the tub player in the band. The tub resembles a bass in sound. Before she played the tub, Rhodes played the kazoo for the band.

Recently the band purchased a trailer to transport their instruments when they traveled. "Some of us picked black-eyed peas and peaches and canned them to sell to raise money. We also had garage sales," Rhodes said.

Band members ages range from 60 to 87, she said.

Dam project on PBUWS agenda

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Martin County Commissioners Court members spent a portion of Monday's meeting gathering information about the dam project along Sulphur Draw, which will be discussed later today at a meeting of the Permian Basin Underground Water District.

Although no action was taken, the commissioners listened to citizen's concerns and discussed possible courses of action for the court, said Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport.

One of the commissioners raised concerns of possible ground water pollution from rising waters in the salt lakes behind the proposed dam project.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District is building the dam in order to protect downstream reservoirs and property that could be destroyed if the current dam overflowed. The lakes have been acting as evaporation basins for thousands of years and some are saltier than the ocean, according to CRMWD Manager Owen Ivie.

The proposed dam will also be a topic of concern at the meeting of the Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District beginning at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be at the

Petition presented opposing RV park

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A group of citizens on Tuesday asked the Stanton City Council to not include a recreational vehicle park in city park improvements that recently began.

No action was taken following a discussion that followed the presentation of a petition against the RV park that included 25 signatures, said City Administrator Danny Fryar. The issue may be considered again at the next regular meeting, Aug. 10.

"It was explained to them that if we did not put in the RV park in that we wouldn't get the grant," Fryar said. "It's done on a point system and the RV park got the most points."

Sandy Louder, who along with Margie Chandler presented the petitions, declined to comment when contacted Wednesday. Chandler could not be reached.

The Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife grant of $42,500, to be matched equally with city funds, was approved last year. Construction including the RV park, a walking trail, a pavillion, tennis court lights and handicapped accessible restrooms.

Other action Tuesday by the council:

Explaining cotton loan program

Nestor's notes

The Upland Cotton Loan and Loan Deficiency Payment Program is offered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, a department of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The LDP's are available from the date loan rates announced through May 31 after the calendar year in which the crop is planted. A LDP may be filed during this time but payments are available only during periods when the adjusted world price for upland cotton is less than the base loan rate for upland cotton.

For cotton to be eligible for a loan or an LDP, the cotton must have been produced by an eligible producer on a farm enrolled in the 1992 acreage reduction program (ARP) on acreage reported as cotton.

The farm must be in full compliance with the ARP and Highly Erodible Land and Wetland Conservation provisions. In addition, for cotton to be eligible for a loan or LDP, the eligible producer must have beneficial interest in the cotton.

A producer retains beneficial interest in the cotton if all the following remain with the producer: control of the cotton; risk of loss and title to the cotton.

For LDP's, the producer must retain beneficial interest in the cotton from the time of harvest through the date the LDP is requested.

For loans, the producer must retain beneficial interest in the cotton from the time of harvest through the date the loan is redeemed or Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) takes title to the cotton.

Once beneficial interest in the cotton is lost, the cotton remains ineligible for loan or LDP even if the producer regains control, risk of loss and title.

A producer is considered to have control of the cotton if the producer retains the ability to make all decisions affecting the cotton, including movement, sale and the request for a loan or LDP.

A producer is considered to have the risk of loss in cotton if the producer is responsible for loss of or damage to the cotton. If the cotton is insured, any indemnity must be payable to the producer.

A producer is considered to have transferred title to the cotton if the producer has sold or delivered the cotton or delivered warehouse receipts to the buyer. Title may be considered to be transferred before the producer receives payment for the cotton.

If the producer sells the equity in the cotton, such cotton is immediately ineligible for a loan and LDP. If a producer sells the equity in the cotton after it has been pledged as collateral for a loan, repayment of the loan principal and charges plus interest is required.

An option to purchase is an agreement allowing the buyer, at the buyer's option, to enter into a contract at a later date to buy the cotton. The option does not give the buyer any interest in the cotton and expires at a specified time.

If a producer has entered into an option to purchase, the producer may receive and retain beneficial interest if such option to purchase contains a provision written exactly as follows:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this option to purchase, title; risk of loss; and beneficial interest in the commodity, as specified in 7 CFR Part 1427, shall remain with the producer until the buyer exercises this option to purchase the commodity. This option to purchase shall expire, notwithstanding any action or inaction by either the producer or the buyer, at the earlier of: 1. the maturity of any Commodity Credit Corporation price support loan which is secured by such commodity; 2. the date the Commodity Credit Corporation claims title to such commodity; or 3. such other date as provided in this option."

Insertion of this language into a sales contract does not mean that the producer retains beneficial interest when a payment is made under such a contract.

A sales contract, including advance sales contracts, contracts to sell, price later contracts and contracts for future delivery, give the buyer an interest in the cotton at a time set forth in the contract or at a time implied by law.

If a producer has or will receive a payment in return for the sales contract, beneficial interest is lost when the payment is made.

A producer will lose beneficial interest upon signing any contract which contains clauses restricting the producer's decision to obtain price support from CCC, such as:

- The buyer may require the producer to obtain a loaN OR AN LDP.
- The producer may obtain a loan or an LDP, onlyu with prior approval obtained from the buyer.

An addendum to a contract to remove any restrictive clause must be executed and agreed upon by all parties before the ginning of such cotton in order for CCC to consider the addendum valid.

All cotton for which a loan or LDP is requested shall be subject to a determination by CCC of such producer's eligibility to receive a loan or an LDP, based on a review of any option to purchase or sales contract involving the cotton.

Nestor Hernandez is the county executive director for the Martin County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Needs fixing

Several unpaved and half-paved streets, like Beaugard Street, have been considered for paving, and Stanton city officials are preparing to submit a proposal for grant money for the project.

district offices at 207 North Texas Highway 137, directly across from the Wheeler Motor Company.

The possible effects of the dam project on underground water supplies is the major topic of the meeting.

"We are very concerned about the prospect of another salt water retention dam in Martin County," said Mark Hoelscher of the PBUWCD. There is further concern over the lack of information gathering on the part of the CRMWD regarding possible effects to groundwater in the district.

The six-member board of trustees of the PBUWCD hopes to gain citizen's input at the meeting and invites any interested people to attend the meeting.

Also on the agenda for the underground water district meeting is the upcoming visit of Texas Water Commission Chairman John Hall to the PBUWCD offices.

The county commissioners also discussed the recent storm damage in the county. Deavenport said the original estimate of $1.2 million worth of damages appears accurate. The American Red Cross is providing assistance to a number of families whose homes sustained damage, he said.

CPR: Vital to know

The ability to perform cardiopulmonary resusitation and basic first aid can sometimes mean the difference between death and survival, especially in the rural area of West Texas.

Recognizing the fact that many of its customers-members live in areas where medical assistance is more than mere moments away, Cap Rock Electric has offered extensive emergency training to employees, enabling them to help themselves, help each other and help members of rural communities in a medical emergency. All of Cap Rock's employees are Red Cross-certified in CPR and first aid.

Not only are all employees certified but Cap Rock has its own team of instructors. Made up of a technician, a customer service representative, two linemen and a personnel administrator, Cap Rock's emergency procedure instructors are dedicated to increasing the number of persons training in emergency procedure. High on their list are those persons whose jobs routinely take them to rural areas.

"It sometimes takes an ambulance more than just a few minutes to reach a rural residence," said Steve Hodges, certified Red Cross instructor and Cap Rock customer service representative. "The more people we have in these areas who are trained and qualified, the more lives we will be able to save."

The Cap Rock instructors recently trained and certified 19 members of the Martin County Road and Bridge Department.

"That means we have 19 more people out there who can offer assistance if needed," said Hodges.

Peggy Luxton is the communication advisor for Cap Rock Electric.

Wife regrets couple's many invitations

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I need a suggestion for a problem for which there seems to be no solution.

I've been acquainted with "Cecelia" for about five years. We met at college. She is very sweet, but we have nothing in common, and her husband and my husband have zero in common.

Cecelia continues to call me and invite us over for dinner. Twice I accepted her invitations, and reciprocated. Now she's calling me again, asking me to set a time for the four of us to do something together.

Abby, it is so stressful. My poor husband was bored to death in her husband's company, and frankly, Cecelia is also a bore. Now he absolutely refuses to go there again for dinner, and he doesn't care for the kinds of movies they enjoy (foreign films).

I've met her for lunch alone, but she keeps insisting that the four of us get together in the evening for dinner. Her husband doesn't care for sports, and my husband loves sports.

How can I get out of socializing with this couple without hurting her feelings? It's very difficult when she calls and asks which night is best for us. She is very persistent. Help! Maybe one of your readers has a workable solution. — TRAPPED IN THE SUBURBS

DEAR TRAPPED: Continue to be "busy" when she calls to set up a date with you and your husband. There is no way you can tell a woman that your husband is bored with her husband without hurting her feelings.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Baffled," who suggested that we just print enough money to pay off the national debt, calls to mind a kitchen debate I had with a neighbor back in 1956.

I attempted to illustrate, by means of a ludicrous example, the futility of endless price/wage increases without productivity increases.

I posed this hypothetical scenario: "Assume the population of the United States to be 250 million people. If each person were to give you 1 cent, you would have $2.5 million -- and not one donor would complain about the loss of a penny, right?"

She agreed. I then said, "Why not make a list of every person in the United States. Start with the name at the top of the list and have everybody give that person 1 cent. That person would then be a millionaire. Move to the next person on the list and do the same. When you have gone through the entire list, everyone is a millionaire, right?"

She pondered for a few minutes, then she said, "It sounds like a good idea, but there must be something wrong with it or someone else would have thought of it already."

I changed the subject. — JIM TILLOTSON, LOS ALTOS, CALIF.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: New financial gains will have you walking on air as fall approaches. Join forces with people who share your view of the future. Your patience with an inexperienced person will be richly rewarded early in 1993. See a romance as it really is, not the way you want it to be. Roll out the red carpet for a newcomer next May.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Diahann Carroll, comedian Phyllis Diller, actor David Hasselhoff, TV host Art Linkletter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Start the day right by distancing yourself from a negative situation. A good friend can help you find an innovative solution. Postpone signing any legal documents.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An older family member could be in a pickle. Offer advice only if it is requested. Money could be involved. A sibling's cooperation could alleviate a difficult situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could be mistaking admiration for love. Enjoy what you already have and let things develop naturally. A professor could make a decision that lets you off the hook.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The emphasis today is on creative endeavors and new experiences. A bargain hunt will prove successful. Ending a relationship is up to you. Why hang on to something that is no longer rewarding?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Persist a little longer with a career decision and you could win. Changing priorities now would not be wise. A lucky encounter leads to exciting romance. Help is near if you really need it.
