Dallas Prepares To Welcome French Fliers Today Hurricane Threatens Cuba, Florida And Gulf Coast

Uneasiness on Increase with Storm Reports

Ominous Silence Aftermath to Stories of Devastation in Santo Domingo; All Communications Torn Down

Power Lines Down

Roofs Torn from Buildings by Tropical Gale Blowing 150 Miles an Hour; Charts Studied by Observers

CUBA, Florida, and the Gulf coast looked with uneasiness toward the southeast tonight as an ominous silence followed unbroken reports of devastation in Santo Domingo by a tropical hurricane.

Communication with the city ceased shortly after 3:30 p. m. E. S. T. when a report was received in HAVANA, Sept. 3. (AP)—The national observatory at 9:42 p. m. (E. S. T.) reported it had received definite information that the hurricane which is now raging in the Caribbean sea had turned in its track and was heading toward Haiti after having traversed and devastated large sections of Santo Domingo.

The observatory said the hurricane had done terrific damage, but it had no reports of loss of life.

Porto Rico that a wind of 150 miles or more was lifting the roofs from houses and that all communications and power lines were rapidly going down. About this time communication by way of all American cables ceased leading color to the report.

Uneasiness increased as reports through the day indicated a wind of tremendous velocity. The last radio message received by Pan-American airways in Miami from its station in Santo Domingo said the wind was blowing 135 miles an hour and the barometer had dropped 23 in 42 minutes.

Richard W. Gray, government meteorologist in Miami, said he first

Nationalists Attack Rebels

Resume Struggle for Control of China's Government in Honan, Szechwan Provinces; Drive to Begin Soon

SHANGHAI, Sept. 3. (AP)—Nationalist army attacked rebel forces in Honan and Szechwan provinces today, renewing the struggle for control of China's government.

Telegraphing from field headquarters in northern Kiangsu, President Chiang Kai-shek said his troops, which drove northwestern out of Tientsin, Shanghai capital, August 13, clashed with insurgents from the Yellow River. The drive toward Tientsin, chief port of north China, will be begun soon, Chiang said.

Sharp fighting in Honan, with rebels pushed back slightly, was reported by Chiang. A great drive by 400,000 nationalists will start Friday, he said, to hurl rebels led by General Feng Yu-hsiang out of the province where they have been entrenched since May.

Resumption of fighting followed a lull of 10 days during which Chiang Kai-shek failed to receive a reply to his offer of amnesty and pay to rebels to desert the government ranks, forsaking their "traitorous" leaders Pan Yu-hsiang and Yen Hui-shan governor of Shansi province.

Van Lear Black Adjudged Dead With Disposition of Estate of $3,000,000

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Van Lear Black, publisher, capitalist and world flier, who disappeared into the night from his yacht August 18, was legally adjudged to be dead today after a hearing and his will, disposing of an estate of more than $3,000,000, was admitted to probate.

The presence in court of an attorney for Van Lear Black, Jr., the eldest son, and two minor children of the publisher, who asked for a delay in recognizing the instrument, indicated an attempt to break the will might be made.

Death Established
Captain John N. Kelly, of the yacht Sabalo, a steward and Mr. Black's valet, Percy Sellers, testified they believed he had fallen overboard accidentally while sitting on the rail of the yacht, but the three judges of the orphan's court, who conducted the hearing, ruled only the fact of death had been established and that the will should be admitted.

Van Lear Black, Jr., was made the beneficiary of a lifetime trust fund of $50,000 by the will, made in London in January of this year, shortly before Mr. Black started a flight to Tokyo.

A daughter, Mrs. T. Buchanan Blackiston, was bequeathed $250,000 and a share in the residuary estate, and her husband $100,000, but Van Lear, Jr., was

Final address by Dr. Lyman was delivered at the Wednesday afternoon assembly. The subject was "Teaching Life's Values."

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—Named by an address by United States Senator Tom Connally, the election of Hal Brennan of Laredo as state commander and the selection of El Paso as the 1931 convention city, the 12th annual convention of the Texas department of the American Legion was brought to a close here tonight.

Approve Plans Of Government Building Here

Final Plans Are Drawn for Federal Structure to Be Erected Here on Courthouse Square, Jones Wires

Action Requested

Request of Local Chamber of Commerce for Action Answered by Congressman; Working Drawings Made

TENTATIVE plans for the federal building to be erected east of the courthouse on the square here have been approved, final plans have been drawn and working drawings will be made immediately after approval of the final plans by supervising architects and the treasury, postoffice, justice and agriculture departments.

That information was contained in a telegram received Wednesday afternoon by the chamber of commerce from Congressman Marvin Jones in response to one sent to him by the Lubbock chamber Wednesday morning.

A request that work begin on the federal building as soon as possible as a relief for unemployment was contained in telegrams sent Wednesday morning by the chamber of commerce to President Hoover, Congressman Jones, Senator Tom Connally, John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general, and the supervising architect of the treasury department.

The communications sent from Lubbock referred to reports of a conference, August 29, at which officials of the postoffice and treasury department would be afforded the opportunity of discussing the possibility of starting construction of federal buildings for which appropriations had been made to decrease unemployment in drought stricken areas.

Need for a federal building here and relief which would be afforded the unemployment situation if erection of the federal structure got under way soon were pointed out in the telegrams.

Additional answers were expected here soon, chamber of commerce officials indicated.

Expectation of preliminary procedure had been urged to relieve unemployment in this area, Congressman Jones said.

The Texas oil magnate has been making a brief visit to Dublin, from which city his great-grandmother emigrated to the United States.

The men were fixing a flat tire when the car driven by the woman crashed into their car, overturning it. The woman stopped but failed to give aid. The injured men were brought to a hospital here by Val Lichnovsky of Floresville.

Given was in a weakened condition from loss of blood but physicians said he would recover. Dr. Paolo was able to leave the hospital after treatment.

Disappearance of Justice Deepens

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (AP)—Mystery concerning whereabouts of Supreme Court Justice Joseph P. Carter, reported missing since Aug. 6, deepened today.

While the New York Evening Post was informed by telephone from the justice's summer home at Belgrade Lake, Me., that he is not missing, it was stated at the office of United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, the justice's former law associate, that Mrs. Carter had been there several times to confer about her husband's disappearance.

The New York police have not been asked to look for the justice, but the office of the attorney general reported efforts to locate him in the past three weeks have been unsuccessful.

The Evening Post's informant, who identified himself as "Mr. Carter," said, "we are not making any search for Justice Carter because he has not disappeared." Inquiry at Senator Wagner's office disclosed the justice has no children and the only "Mr. Carter" would be the jurist's father, who was in Florida at the last report.

Despite the lack of national and state issues seventy-five per cent of the registered voters of both parties voted.

Bellonte and Coste to Take Off from N.Y.

Trans-Atlantic Aviators to Leave at 5 O'Clock This Morning to Collect Prize of $25,000 in Texas City

Reception Planned

George Smith Named Personal Representative of Colonel Easterwood; Lubbock Man on Reception Committee

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte announced through their manager tonight they will take off at 5 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow on their non-stop flight to Dallas, Texas, instead of at 8 a. m. (E. S. T.) as previously announced. They said the plane was in excellent condition.

DALLAS, Sept. 3. (AP)—Texas had out her best bib and tucker tonight preparatory to a call tomorrow from Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, premier French fliers who negotiated the Atlantic without stop from Paris.

The east-to-west pioneers were to drop in to collect $25,000 prize money from one of Dallas' millionaires—Colonel William E. Easterwood, Jr., chewing gum manufacturer—who has been offering up awards for aviation feats for a number of years without ever having to pay one, until now—provided the boys from across the Atlantic can glide down the 1,400 miles or so from New York without the necessity of a forced landing.

Easterwood still was in Europe, where he made the trade with Coste to pay the award if he should fly from Paris to New York without stop and after a rest not to exceed 72 hours add Dallas to the project by hopping here.

He had appointed George Smith, newspaperman of Snyder, to act as his personal representative at the reception accorded the Frenchmen, and Smith was cooperating with Mike Powell of the aviation department of the chamber of commerce in formulating plans for entertaining the friendly invaders.

Smith came here late today from his home in a plane sent there for him by Dallas citizens.

May Be Late
Should the air heroes leave New York tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock Eastern Standard Time and should they negotiate the distance in 19 hours, as Coste expressed confidence he could, they would come to a stop at Love Field, where they will be received, at 5 o'clock Central Standard Time tomorrow afternoon. Dallas aviation experts expressed belief that a non-stop flight from New York to Dallas will require 18 hours. If that should prove true, Dallas and Texas will be late getting to bed tomorrow night.

While detailed plans for the reception and entertainment of the pair who braved the elements and discouraging odds to mark a trail from the other side to this side to match the brilliant track drawn by Colonel Charles Lindbergh three years ago, had not been completed.

THE WOMAN'S ANGLE

BY BLANCH E. BEAN
Avance Woman's Editor

SOME of the "musie" for the college girls' wardrobe have been published by a New York service and the list includes, among other things, five coats, not to mention various suits and suit type with jackets. There is a fastidious coat for the football season, the long coat with matching skirt, a tweed coat with black flat fur, the black and white coat, a muskrat and lapin coat full length of jacket silhouette.

This is all very well, but the "musie" part will bring a laugh to the average college girl who probably hasn't five coats of this type during her entire college career. And this doesn't mean that she is not decently and attractively clad, either, for it is surprising how many frocks and coats some girls can manage to buy with a limited amount of money, and the larger universities of the country are filled with young girls and boys who are attending school with limited finances.

IT ISN'T NECESSARY OCASIONALLY a girl is denied a college education because she or her parents read such things as this and think that one must have hundreds of dollars to spend on clothes every season in order to be able to get an education. Some girls do have this money and do enjoy having new frocks for every occasion, and money to spend on the activities connected with university life, but alongside these girls there are hundreds more who are struggling through on meager wardrobes, but who receive their educations, nevertheless.

The moral of this is not that a girl should be denied clothes or other things which give her pleasure, but that all of these things are not absolutely necessary.

IT ISN'T MONEY MAKING THE visit to Lubbock of Mrs. John F. Lyons, of Fort Worth, brought to this city a woman who has probably done more for her city than any other in bringing good music there and she has at least a portion of recognition for her work. She is the only Southerner who has ever served as president of the National Federation of Music and her outstanding work brought her to this office. Since then, she has been devoting much of her time to bringing good artists into Texas.

She doesn't do this for the money she makes, for more often than not, one loses money on this sort of thing. "The richest even financially," however," she explained yesterday, "for I have made almost as much money on other things as I have lost on these musicians." She uses good music and is willing to give of her money and time in order that others may share her pleasures.

THEY ALL LOSE MONEY IN virtually every city and town there is some one individual who backs the good music who loses money on the proposition. Practically every musician in the country has a deficit except the Chicago Symphony, which owns and rents a symphony hall and is therefore self supporting.

Leaders in the South Plains Music Teachers association, which includes in its membership some of the outstanding Lubbock people who are musically inclined, and the Lubbock Music club fall in the class of money-losers for this season. Outside musicians of note have been brought to Lubbock for the spring festivals of music and at other seasons and if money has ever been made on one of these occasions, the experience has not been repeated.

However, this will not mean an end to bringing good music here. Lubbock is growing in music appreciation and plenty of people whomos thought that good music was always a bore, are finding that good music is actually the most pleasant to hear. This city is not unique in this respect. The experience is practically universal.

Many times people will thoroughly enjoy some musical selection if they have not been told beforehand that it is educational and classical or if they have not been told that they must wear evening clothes in order to hear the artist. Good music is intrinsically democratic and it is good because of its lasting popularity.

Newly Created Place Given to Young Woman Who Has Record of Achievement in Panhandle

Miss Izora Clark of Vernon, has been selected to fill the newly created position of district supervisor of home economics education for the Panhandle and South Plains district, according to an announcement made this week at the Canyon and Lubbock teachers institutes by Miss Lillian Peek, director of home economics in the state department of education.

Miss Clark will work in direct cooperation with the home economics division of the state board for vocational education at Austin, the announcement said.

As vocational home economics teacher for several years, Miss Clark has done outstanding work in this line in the Vernon High school and for the past three years she has made a noteworthy record in home demonstration work in Potter county, according to Miss Peek, who says that Miss Clark has splendid personal and professional qualifications for the work as shown by her keen interest in and appreciation of the home economics teachers' problems and her successful experience in conducting home project work as a direct outgrowth of class work. She has organized and conducted classes for adult home-makers with unusual success, also.

Miss Clark's headquarters are at the Amarillo High school, through the courtesy of the superintendent, W. A. McIntosh, and the Amarillo board of education, Miss Peek said.

Is Mother of Eight

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."

Drouth Report In Dawson Is Claimed False

Stories Concerning "Drouth-Ridden" Crops Resented by Citizens; Claim County Not in Sub-Normal Condition

Reports which have been circulated relating to the "drouth-ridden" condition of Dawson county are resented by citizens of that county as being untrue and not at all according to facts, stated William A. Wilson, manager of the Lamessa Chamber of Commerce, who was a visitor in Lubbock Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Wilson was accompanied by V. Z. Rogers, superintendent of Lamessa schools.

"Dawson county is not in a sub-normal condition, as reports which have been circulated would have people believe," Mr. Wilson said. "Our crops are fair and we will be able to handle the situation satisfactorily. It is possible that we will need some Red Cross money for aid of transients, however."

Rain is Needed
"With a little more rain our feed crops will be better than last year while our cotton crop will easily equal that of last year without additional moisture."

"There is some unemployment in the county but as a whole this condition does not exist seriously and with the harvest season approaching we expect to meet any situation which might arise."

The chamber of commerce official further stated that building projects are going forward in Lamessa with a site being selected and option secured for a new federal structure which has been approved by the treasury department. Enthusiasm also is evident throughout the county over the proposed new line of the Texas & Pacific railroad from Big Spring north. Production at the new milk plant in Lamessa is holding up and customers are increasing, he declared. Forty days ago there were only 93 customers and yesterday the number had increased to 268. The greatest production in any one day has been 10,019 pounds of milk.

"We do not wish to be too enthusiastic for Dawson county, yet we do not want to be classed with any of the counties in West Texas which really are in dire condition," he explained.

Hawks Says Ocean Flight Is Foolish

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 3.—(P)—The Kansas City Star says that Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental flier, informed that Capt. Deodonne Coile and Maurice Beland had succeeded in their transatlantic hop, credited the Frenchmen with "a great display of nerve" but added that "it was a foolish thing to do."

Hawks, holder of both east and west transcontinental speed records, was quoted by the newspaper as saying:

"I can't see that he contributed a thing to aviation. It was foolhardy to attempt the flight in a land ship even though it was magnificently constructed."

"Flights across the ocean in land ships prove nothing except nerve and luck. When one is made in a seaplane, then something will have been accomplished."

Hawks was here en route to Wichita, Kansas.

The present pilots took off from the North Sea on Aug. 18, and proceeded in short hops by way of Iceland, Greenland and Labrador.

Tech Cows Set Milk Records

Butterfat Production Marks Hung Up by Dairy Herd in Official Records, Stangel Announces Wednesday

Two Holstein-Friesian dairy cows of the herd of Texas Technological college have just hung up advanced records for milk and butterfat production. W. L. Stangel, head of the college department of animal husbandry, announced late yesterday.

Six-year-old Flowerdale Payne Alcarria scored a production total of 18,972.9 pounds of milk and 922.3 pounds of butterfat during the 12 months just completed, topping her five year record of 16,682 for milk and 874 for butterfat.

Five year old Flowerdale Echo Margolyn, half sister to the first named cow, produced 19,974.4 pounds of milk and 690.3 pounds of butterfat this year, as compared with 14,381 pounds of milk and 449 pounds of butterfat last year.

The records, kept by Texas A. & M. college, are good ones, Professor Stangel said, but added that "we have another cow out here that'll beat them both when she's a little older."

The third animal is also a Holstein-Friesian, named Flowerdale Echo Cynthia. She is four years old.

Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Scheduled for Presentation Here on September 16th

A circus is coming to Lubbock. Combined forces of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey shows will give two performances here September 16, in the afternoon and again that night, advance agents announced Wednesday.

That youngsters and grownups alike may know of the return of the big top, the sawdust trail, the tanbark and the midway, with wild animal acts, aerial feats and the rest, a crew of advertising men now is engaged in placing bright posters and lithographs throughout the South Plains.

Coming of the circus will mark the first appearance here of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey contingent, described as "the daddy of the amusement world" and generally rated as the largest circus on the North American continent. Report Offset To U.S. Slump

Business Depression Marked by Effort to Keep Workers Fully Employed without Cut in Wages, Davis Says

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 3.—(P)—The present depression is the first business slackness in the United States in which it was deliberately sought to offset its effects by keeping workers as fully employed as possible and without the old time policy of general reduction of wages, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis said today at the Clearfield county fair and home coming.

"On this Labor Day," he said, "we may congratulate ourselves because of the spirit of cooperation that generally prevails between American employers and workers during one of the trying times in our economic history."

Layoffs Not Common
"The old sweeping layoffs and wage slashes have not been resorted to in this period of depression."

"The leading employers and the leaders of labor called into conference by President Hoover agreed to maintain employment and to institute no new wage demands. It was a mighty effort at stabilization and while it did not stave off some measure of the depression, it did prevent the country from hitting the bottom, as in every instance before. In due time, this application of wisdom and effort must bring a return to normal conditions. But until that occurs, we must exercise patience, we must share each others burdens and we must pull together for the common end."

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Withhold not good from them to whom it is due when it is in the power of thine hand to do it. Say not unto thy neighbor, Go, and come again, and tomorrow I will give; when thou hast it by thee.—Proverbs, III, 27, 28.

CHILD AUTO FATALITIES

THE public will never fail to be shocked by traffic accident statistics until such accidents become as rare as railroad wrecks resulting in loss of life. But this does not make the public incapable of appreciating reports showing a decreasing death toll from the automobile, especially when they relate to children. There was general satisfaction over recent statistics showing that fewer children are being killed under the wheels of motor vehicles.

Analyzed carefully, the steady decrease over the past five years becomes a remarkable achievement in promotion of safety, because in that time the number of motor cars has increased faster than the increase in population. During the years the hazards have multiplied tremendously, but intelligent direction has safeguarded the lives of children.

Of all the panaceas suggested from time to time to diminish the toll taken by the automobile, intelligent direction of children is the one most likely to work. Drivers must be made to obey certain regulations, of course, and must be taught to drive with regard for the fundamental rules of safety, but in the final analysis it is necessary that the individual learn how to take care of himself in traffic.

Many communities are learning that the result of safety training in the public schools is that it is possible to diminish the toll taken by the automobile by intelligent direction of children on the streets. Such direction should be assumed by teachers in every schoolhouse in the United States, Lubbock included.

CARICATURE TYPES

The "comic alien" on the screen is remembered by this generation but the screen is remembered by the comic alien. He is seen no longer. Closed is the door to the form of theatrical caricature. No more is seen the orange-haired Irishman, with a face like an Albatross, offering beer to an excess of French. Short-skirted, high-heeled, snobbish, who demands champagne in scornful tones.

Come from the screen is the haw-haw Englishman with his monocle, mustache and exaggerated manner of speech. Laugh provokers of the modern stage are not German jesters in eky-bey pantaloons, Italian organ-grinders, or Chinese laundries. As us bell-ringers, Spanish bull-fighters or Scotch highlanders. Burlesques on native types have supplanted the comic alien on the American stage. The comedians and comedienne of the present-day stage are caricatures of American types. Travelers report that in London, Paris and Berlin an actor, bespectacled, in American attire, chewing gum and taking long strides about the stage, will rock the house from pit to gallery before even one nasal word escapes him.

There is only one explanation for this anomalous situation and that is that the American people discovered the foreign types before the mirth-provoking possibilities of the native types dawned upon them. Just another illustration of the theme of the famous "Acres of Diamonds" address of the late Dr. Russell Conwell.

STOPPING THE SHOOTING

Colonel Woodcock, the new director of prohibition enforcement under the department of justice, is not confining his reform activities to the confining. After issuing his widely advertised appeal to the drinking public to obey the law for his sake he set about putting his own house in order.

By discharging one federal enforcement agent and suspending two others he has served notice on the entire enforcement personnel that its official function gives it no rights or privileges not enjoyed by the public. This disciplinary action is further evidence of his determination not to have any obstacles to enforcement created by the conduct of his employees justifying public resentment against the law.

The public has taken favorable notice of the declarations of the new director as to the principles on which he intends enforcement shall be carried out. It will feel increasing confidence that he means to back his words by deeds in enforcing disciplinary action when his orders are violated.

Government agents and agencies having neither respect for law nor regard for personal rights hardly create respect for law among the people. The cause of enforcement has not been advanced by agents who shoot first and investigate afterward and who violate every other law in their zeal to enforce one law.

In being law-abiding it is the government, not the governed, that should set the example.

Parts of a dictionary inscribed in Semitic on sun-baker bricks have been unearthed in a Syrian coast town. It is understood that reporters in those days found it easy to build up a story on the most meager data.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SENATOR McMASTER AND PINE, CONSIDERED G. O. P. INSURGENTS, HAVE HARD ELECTION BATTLES
By Charles P. Stewart
(Central Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Senator William H. McMaster of South Dakota and Senator W. B. Pine of Oklahoma are a couple of Republican candidates who will have a not uneventful re-election this year, according to accounts from the west front.

Senator McMaster's rival, Gov. W. J. Bulow, will be recalled as the Democratic state executive who made himself so agreeable to the Coolidges during their Black Hills vacation in 1927, when the Northamptonian gave his celebrated "do not choose" message to the country. The governor shone with considerable reflected light for a few weeks that summer, while revolving around the then presidential luminary. Otherwise, though his political shiftness has no doubt been state-wide, it has not been particularly noticeable thus far to national astronomers.

Senator Pine's Democratic opponent, the blind ex-Senator Thomas P. Gore, has had a wide enough reputation in his time, however.

Coming to the senate when Oklahoma was admitted he served 13 years, one of Washington's most vivid personalities. Too vivid, finally, for Oklahoma Democrats. They refused him a renomination in 1920, because of the persistent hostile criticism of President Wilson's wartime and immediate post-war policies.

After his decade in eclipse, the younger voters may not know much about ex-Senator Gore, but it is not likely the older ones have forgotten him.

Or, forgiven him, either? Well, he was nominated the other day—out of a field of nine candidates.

People's war time ideas wear off, gradually. As for the younger generation of voters, Thomas P. Gore is not a bit backward in introducing himself.

Just before the United States entered the world conflict, Gore sponsored a resolution warning Americans not to travel on munition-laden ships. It was taken and its introduction cost its author President Wilson's undying enmity. Nevertheless the Oklahoma man believed in it and fought to the last ditch for its adoption.

As chairman of the senate committee on agriculture he refused to take legislative charge of the bill making Herbert Hoover food dictator.

He was lukewarm toward the League of Nations. Today he is campaigning as a wet in a state claimed by prohibitionists as one of the driest in the nation.

A blind man with this much nerve obviously is dangerous.

Senator Pine is an exceedingly likable lawmaker. His nerve is good, too.

At any rate, the White House can't frighten him. He got along fairly well with the Coolidge administration, but has been decidedly out of harmony with many of the Hoover regime's ideas—in fact, so much so that he has come to be known as a near-progressive, although he began his senatorial career quite regularly.

But Pine is an oil man. Right in the midst of the primaries, dispatches from Oklahoma reported that one of his properties had just developed a magnificent gusher. Financially speaking, of course the senator is to be congratulated, but maybe not politically. Any candidate who has a fight on with Thomas P. Gore needs every mile of his attention for campaign purposes; he can't afford to have it distracted for an instant, capping a new oil well.

Oklahoma normally is rather more of a Democratic than a Republican state, anyway. Besides, politicians have a hunch that this is a Democratic year.

It does not overstrain the imagination to believe that Senator Pine will have to hustle like everything to hang onto his toga.

Your Health

REDUCTION OF EXCESS WEIGHT IS OFTEN CHIEFLY A MATTER OF USING THE WILL POWER
By Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

A man may be large and still not have a double chin, a pendulous abdomen, enormous buttocks and hips. Collections of fat in these parts of the body may be taken as definite evidence of obesity.

The attempt to control overweight is obviously dependent on the ability of the physician to convince the patient that he ought to eat less, and on the ability of the patient to eat less when he knows it. A prominent German investigator has said that education of the will is the first step in the treatment of obesity.

Far too often it is not necessary for the person who is reducing to go hungry. If he will eat bulky, coarse foods, he will feel the sense of fullness which will overcome the sensation of hunger. A small amount of something sweet taken at the end of a meal increases his sense of satisfaction of the appetite. Eating slowly and chewing the food for a long time help to limit the amount of food. Sometimes the feeling of emptiness can be relieved by wearing a tight belt around the abdomen.

Lose Weight Slowly

The best authorities are convinced that one should not lose more than two pounds a week, the average safe loss being from three to six pounds a month, and by the safe method one who is greatly overweight can take off from 20 to 25 pounds over a period of four or five months, and then maintain this weight for three or four months before any further reduction is attempted.

Intensive reduction of weight should be undertaken only when the person is able to remain in bed constantly during the period of intensive reduction. Certainly nothing intensive should be attempted without having the constant attention of a physician who will watch for the presence of any dangerous reactions. He will examine the excretions for the presence of sugar or albumen; he will study regularly the ability of the heart to carry on its work and in this way make the process safe.

It is now generally known that the taking of thyroid extract speeds up the chemical interchange that goes on in the body. However, the taking of thyroid extract is not without danger. Some of the patented products sold in drug stores for the reduction of weight contain liberal quantities of thyroid and serious results have been reported from the taking of such preparations. Never should thyroid extract be taken without careful supervision by some one trained in observing the changes that go on in the human body.

Not All Solved Yet

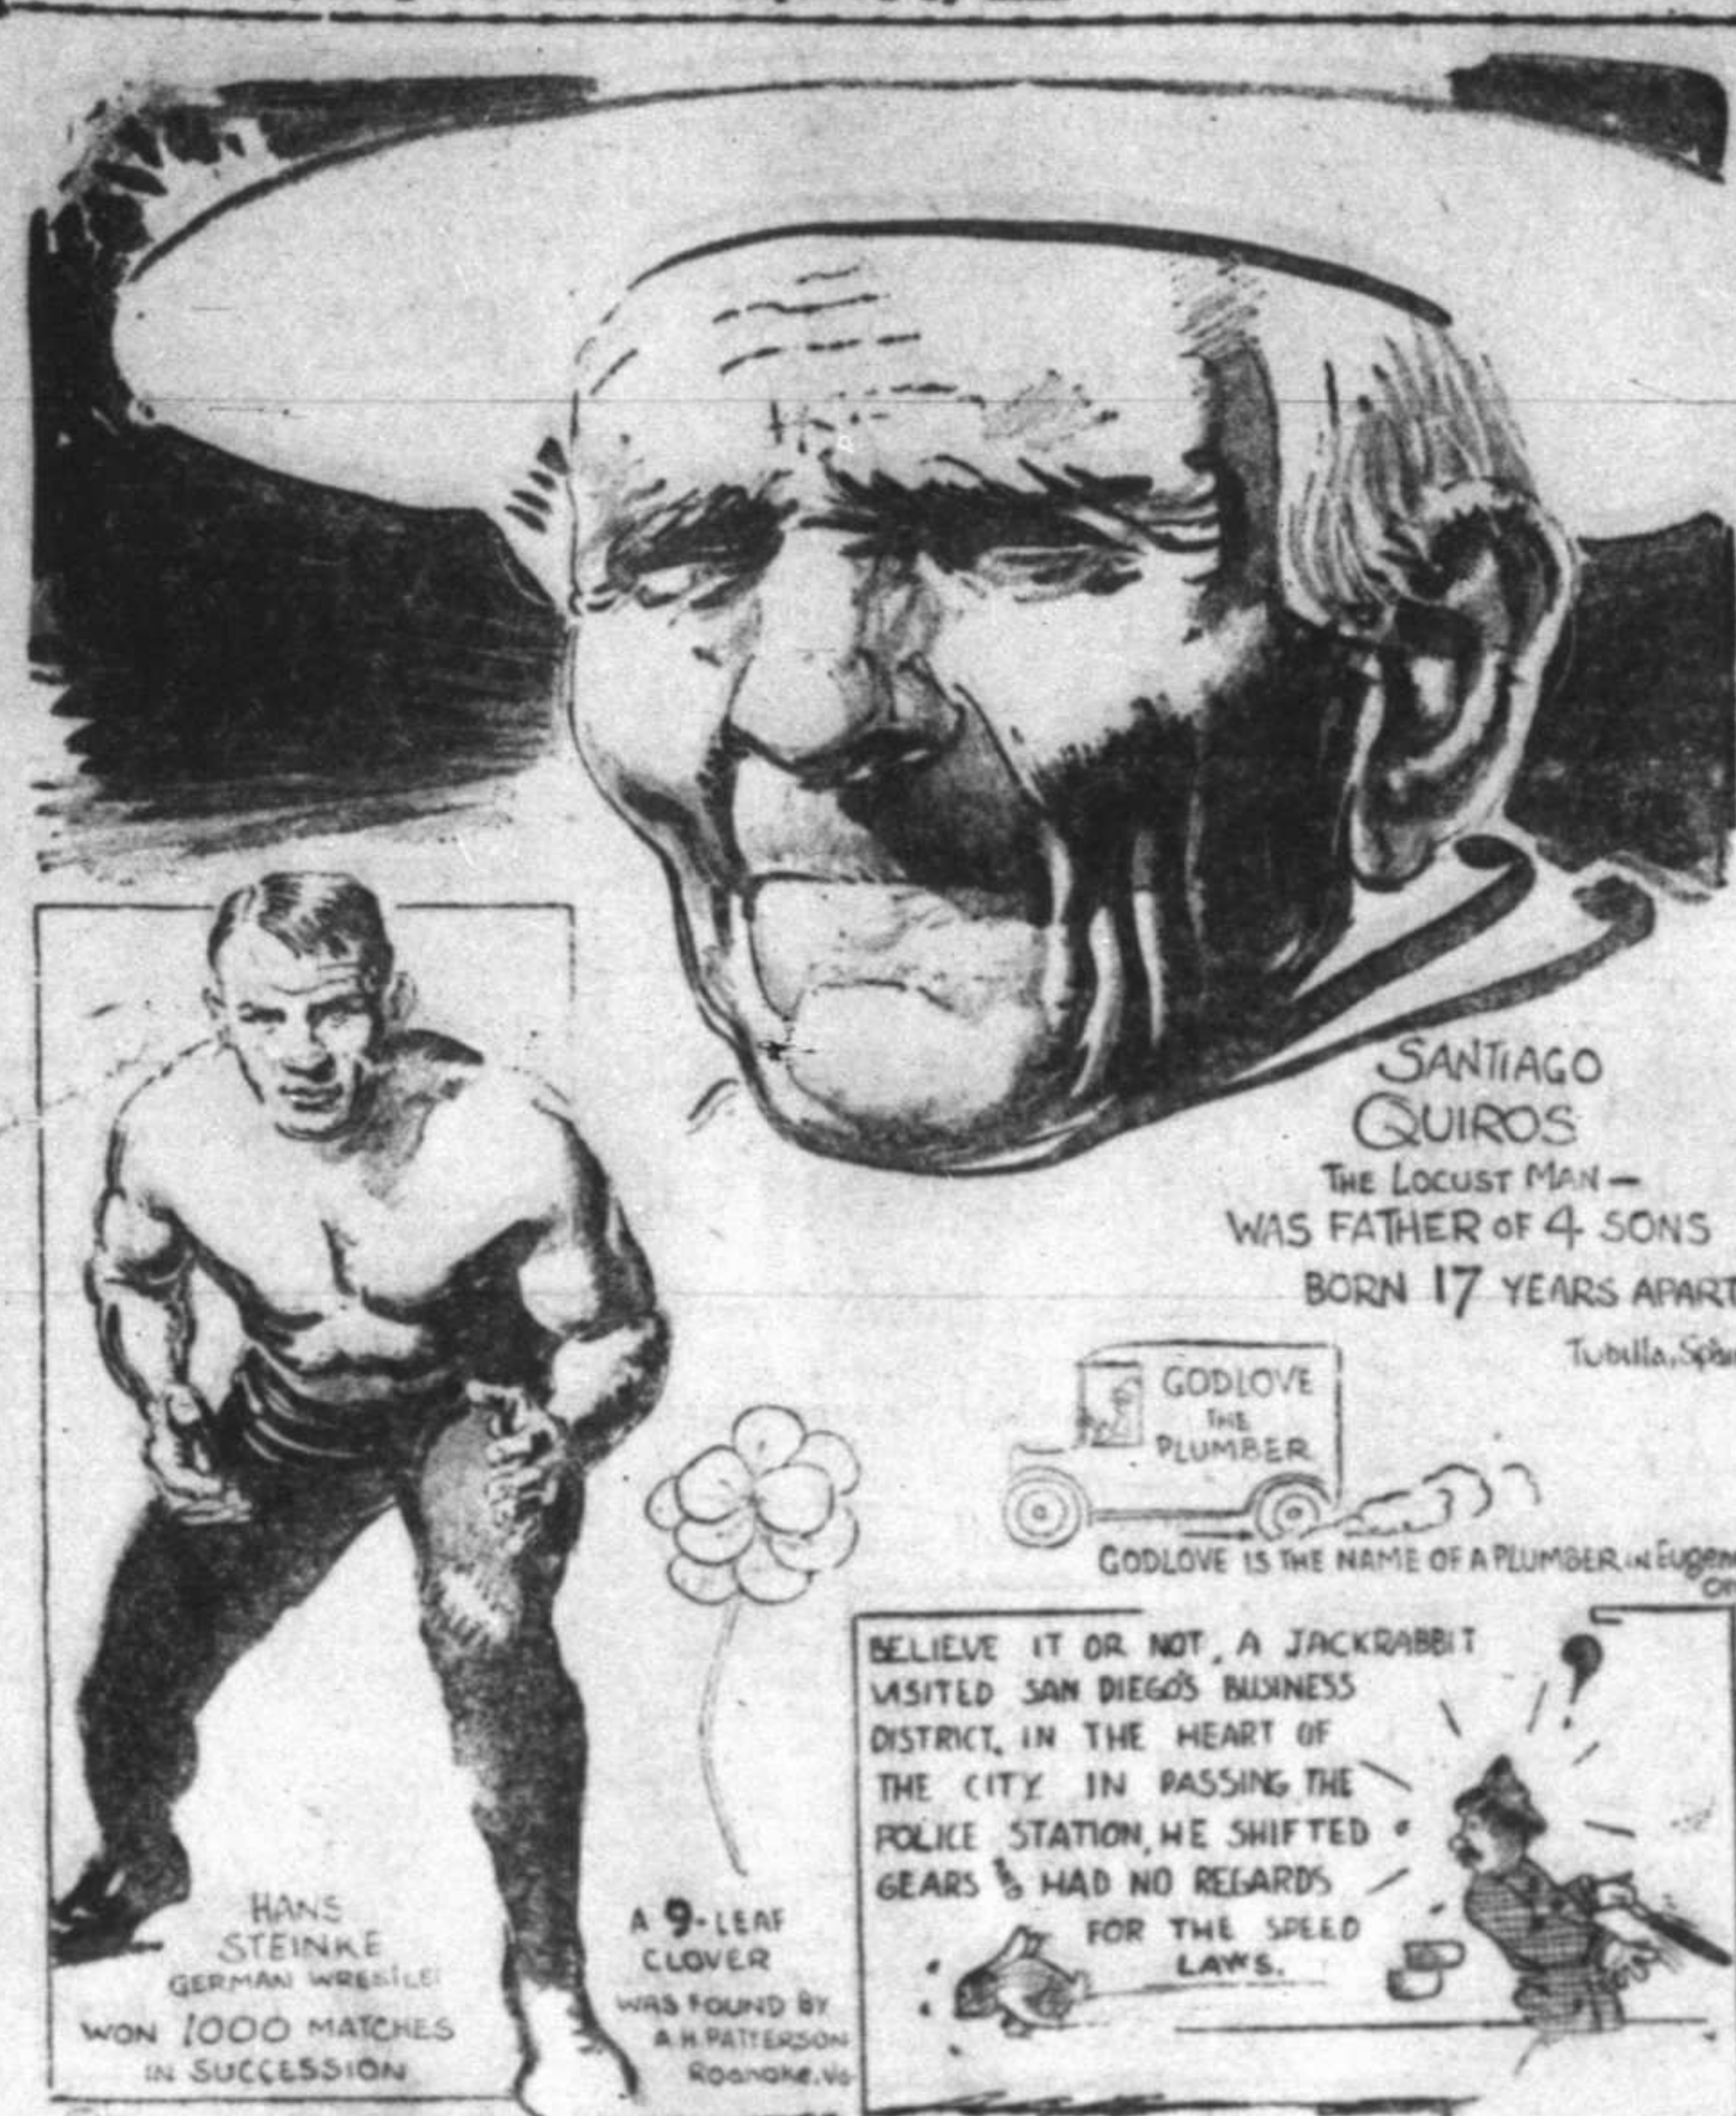

As can be seen from these considerations, the problems of weight are not yet fully understood. Because of the nation-wide attempt at reduction, such as occurred in recent years, more attention has been given to problems of weight during the past five years than at any previous period in medical science. Thus much information has been acquired and a beginning has been made in establishing the ideal weight for health. Several methods are available for securing and maintaining this weight.

TOMORROW—THE DEAD WHO NEVER LIVED

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC. BY ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN ROBINER, temperamental young man of Hollywood, can't get along with the studio manager at Continental Pictures and tears up his contract as scenario writer and asks to be fired. But he isn't. Dan has become keenly interested in ANNE WINTER, a young girl from Tulsa, Okla., who is working as an extra. She has had stage experience, and she knows enough to warrant a screen test at Grand Union studios.

Robiner, former newspaper man from New York, lives with PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers. Anne lives with MONA MORRISON and EVA HARLEY, two extra girls. Eva is a rather bitter. She does not get enough work to make a living, and Dan suspects that there may be some sort of a tragedy in her life.

GARRY SLOAN, famous Hollywood director, has shown some interest in Anne Winter, although hardly enough for her to warrant any high hopes. Dan does not care much for Sloan; he is an admirer, however, of MARTIN COLLINS, formerly of Continental, now with Apogamated. Collins invites him and Anne to a housewarming at his home. Dan and Collier take Eva and Mona out one evening. They go to a public dance hall. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

The dance floor was a vast place. Paul Collier had described it as being "a couple of acres" in area, and Dan told him he had only mildly exaggerated. There was a sprinkling of sailors, dancing or lounging in chairs near the soda fountain. "The fleet's not in," Collier explained to Mona and Eva, "or you'd see enough of them to man a battleship."

They remained there for a couple of hours of dancing and watching others dance. The orchestra played with unwearied frequency and there were the inevitable few couples trying to show off. Their exaggerated grotesque maneuvers were vastly entertaining to Collier. He laughed a great deal and declared that it was more fun than a show.

"It won't be so funny," Dan Robiner told him, "if one of those shiks gets wise to you."

But Paul ignored him. "I like that couple over there," he told Mona. "The ones keeping time with their chewing gum. . . I told you it would be good clean fun, didn't I? Was I right or not?"

Dan said, "At that, it's got it all over some of those nightclub gyp joints where they sock you a dollar a bottle for ginger ale and expect you to dance on a floor about the size of a postage stamp."

Mona said it reminded her of some of the places she had been to in Chicago. "You know, where the dance tickets sell for ten cents apiece. I was just a kid then. Gee, it makes me homesick."

Collier laughed at her. "Just a kid, did you say?" and Mona made a face.

It was after midnight when they got back to the bungalow, and Anne was waiting up. Robiner knew a queer feeling of guilt, as though he had been spying on her, when she informed him she had been out to dinner with Mr. Hurley.

"We went to the Montmartre," she said.

Dan managed to get her aside and tell her of the invitation to Martin Collins' party. "He's a real person, Anne; you'd better come."

Drouth Views Are Expressed

Governor Moody, Commissioner of Agriculture George B. Terrell Dissatisfied with Government's Plans

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—(P)—Two state officials expressed their views today of federal aid for drouth-hit farmers of Texas.

Governor Dan Moody expressed dissatisfaction with the indifference of the government's plans. George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, whose illness has prevented him participating in the activities for drouth relief, was more outspoken in his criticism.

"The government," he said, "is not going to donate anything to anybody, and those who have had so much to say about federal aid have found this out by now. Good and sufficient security must be put up to secure aid from the government, and aid can be secured from local sources upon the same security."

COMPARE FINGERPRINTS

All Doubt of Jack Diamond's Identification Removed

AIX-LE-CHAPPELLE, Germany, Sept. 3.—(P)—Police late tonight announced that a comparison of Jack (Legs) Diamond's fingerprints with those in the Berlin criminal files removed all doubt of his identity.

Previously they were convinced the man they were holding was Diamond, but were anxious for confirmation by fingerprints because the well-dressed young man whom they took off a train from Antwerp last night insisted he was Jack Nolan, an American tourist, and not the New York gangster.

But with his identity definitely established, the problems of the police were not over. Their next question is what to do with him, for he is not wanted by American authorities and cannot be held in Germany indefinitely without charges.

Advancement Seen For Agriculture

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(P)—A distinct step forward has been made by agriculture, said Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, in an address here today, in securing recognition of the fact that agriculture as an industry is entitled to the same consideration at the government's hands as other industries have received.

"Perhaps the soundest advice we can give to agriculture is contained in the one word 'organize,'" he said speaking at the New York State Farm Bureau meeting at the state fair. "Properly organized I cannot see any reason why agriculture might not go farther than industry, inasmuch as most of our products are consumed every day and the consumption must be fairly continuous if we are to live."

HOOVER VIEWS PARADE

Fifteen Thousand War Vets March Before President

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(P)—For the second time in a year, President Hoover came to Baltimore today to review a military parade and for two hours watched 15,000 or more veterans of the nation's wars, augmented by regular forces, tramp before him.

Under a sultry sky, the parade, the feature of the thirty-first annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, wound its way past the stand in which the president and civil military dignitaries sat.

Just as the last few marchers filed past, a shower sent him back from the front of the stand to escape a wetting, and the start of the return trip to Washington by automobile was in the rain.

Signing Up of Contracts in Texas Cotton Cooperative

on Thursday Night

LITTLEFIELD, Sept. 3. (Special)
—Cotton farmers of the Hart Camp community 18 miles northeast of Littlefield, will meet Thursday night, Sept. 3, at the new school house to complete the signing up of farmers for the Texas Cotton
Cooperative association contract, W.
O. Gray, local chairman, announced today.

Last Thursday night a most enthusiastic meeting was held in the school house, when some 24 contracts, representing probably 70 per cent of the cotton growers, were signed. The contracts, Chairman
Gray estimated, averaged over 100 acres each.

Although a revival was in progress last week, the meeting was postponed for the farmers. Chairman Gray presided and speakers included J. W. Hale, Littlefield
Chamber of Commerce secretary,
D. A. Adams, Amherst, county agent;
J. W. Hammack, Sudan and
R. N. Carpenter, Littlefield, county chairman.

"We have invited the cotton growers back again," Mr. Gray said.
"We want to make Hart Camp a 100 per cent contract place."

In speaking of the meeting County Chairman Carpenter declared,
"This is the best sign up in Lamb county. We have been told that we can make it 100 per cent."

Bridge Is Wrecked
By Nitroglycerine

GARLAND CITY, Ark., Sept. 3.
(P)—Three blasts caused by nitro-glycerine about 3:15 a. m. today wrecked the middle steel span of the new $500,000 state highway bridge under construction over Red River here and damaged other spans so that they must be rebuilt.
The blasts were heard for a radius of about 25 miles and shattered windows throughout Garland City.
No one was reported injured.

One charge was set off on the Lafayette county side and two on the Miller county end of the middle span causing it to crash into the river.

A ferry which has been used for years at this point also was damaged by the blasts, thus severing highway communication between Texarkana and El Dorado and the highway to Greenville and Bicksburg, Miss.

The bridge is on state highway number 2, about 25 miles due east of Texarkana.

"Dan said, 'You're bound to be the top. Anne, isn't that right?' he demanded, and he hung around toward Collier. Paul was sitting on the sofa between Mona and Eva, carrying on an animated argument with the blonde-haired Mona. 'Sure, that's right,' he said, looking up briefly. 'What did he say, Anne?' Anne laughed. 'He just said something very nice, Paul.' 'Nothing tough about that,' said Collier, and he picked up his hat and grabbed Dan by the arm. 'Come on, give the girls a break and let them have some sleep.' Driving homeward, Dan told Collier that he soon might have his opportunity to carry a story about him in his column. 'Hurley told me he's going to give her a song, and she'll probably have a dance with it. When it's all set you might see the little girl a big break.' Paul nodded. 'You bet your life.' Dan continued. 'She sure deserves it if anybody does. I'm tickled to death that she's made such a hit with Hurley.' 'Hurley's a bachelor, Dan. Aren't you jealous?' Collier grinned. 'Maybe I'd better look into that,' said Dan.

'You'd better.' More seriously, added that Hurley probably did do a lot for Anne Winter, and nobody gets a bigger kick out of pushing a girl along. He's a good egg—a real white man, Anne's daddy. Garry Sloan gives her a—' and—' He stopped. 'What a break if Sloan should really get interested in her!' he exclaimed. 'Sloan, the star maker, eh?' Collier laughed. 'Every time I turn around I hear Sloan, man! You'd think the man was god or something. There are her directors in Hollywood. I'd be willing to stack Martin Collins against him, for instance.' 'Collins is good, all right,' Paul agreed. 'But he's no Garry Sloan—yet. . . . What the devil,' he mumbled, turning on Collier, 'have you got against Sloan, anyway? You've never even met the man. I think, by God, that you're bound to get Anne Winter up to something. If he took a shine to her! Don't be a sap; that girl can take care of herself.'

Dan drove a short stretch in silence. He said, presently: 'Let's stop in Henry's for a cup of coffee.'

'And a piece of egg nog pie,' Collier agreed. 'Though I'll bet ten to one they sold the last piece at Henry's.'

Martin Collins, Dan learned, lived in the crest of one of the numerous 'winding uphills' drives in Beverly Hills. Collins had sent him an invitation with a map drawn on it, despite his explicit directions. 'Primer lost his way twice; and once he had to descend the hills the main road and take his bearings over.'

'This time,' he informed Anne, 'I'm going to keep my mind on where we're going, instead of on my passenger, and take a look at the signs.' And he began then to take use of his spotlight. 'Collins,' he said, 'doesn't live in California; he lives in Cretaceous. That's an easy road we were on; that was a labyrinth.'

Anne laughed. 'I half expected to see a Minotaur jump out at us on behind a tree. Weren't you afraid, Dan?' 'Not a bit. The Minotaur,' he said, 'was a lot of bull, anyway.'

Anne turned on him a swift, searching glance, saw that he preserved a solemn face. 'It's a good thing you didn't laugh at that one,' she said. 'I think it was terrible.'

'That's funny,' Dan said, pretending disappointment. 'I thought it was a pretty good crack. But that's the way it goes; you work and so put over a rifty, and what do you get? Do you get a hand? Do you get a lot of destructive criticism?' 'I believe,' Anne said, ignoring him, 'this is the place.'

'It must be,' said Dan. 'We've led every other one in Beverly Hills.'

He turned into the driveway behind a line of parked automobiles, and he jumped out and gave Anne a hand, and they walked through the shadows of palms and to the light that drifted across a lawn.

'You're beautiful tonight, Anne.'

he said, with an admiring look. Anne was wearing white silk organdy, with a short wrap of cherry color—except, he added with a grin, 'when you happen to be wearing pink or red or green or something.'

But white really was what he liked her best in, he thought, and he told her so. 'No fooling!'

He looked rather well himself, in his Tuxedo and his Panama. Paul Collier, who had watched his toilet with critical eye, had pronounced him acceptable, and Anne's eyes had approved him.

Collins' new house was Spanish in design. It was impressive. The Japanese built who admitted them took them toward the party, where the director and his wife were sitting with their guests, and Collins jumped up at once and came toward them, bringing his wife with him, holding her by the hand.

Rorimer had met her before, and she welcomed him cordially. 'I'm especially glad to see Dan Rorimer again!' she exclaimed, and her husband said shrewdly: 'I'm especially glad to see the lady.'

Dan laughed. 'Miss Winter,' he said, introducing her, and a moment later Mrs. Collins took Anne off with her.

Martin Collins took Dan by the arm and headed him toward the patio. 'Your friend,' he assured his guest, 'is not a bit hard on the eyes. Where have you been hiding her all this time? Is she in pictures? If she's not, she ought to be.'

'I thought I had told you about Anne Winter,' Dan said. 'She's new; she's over at Grand United.'

His tone was casual enough, but he knew for a brief second an intense pride in being able to say that Anne was 'over at Grand United.' It was infinitely more satisfactory than saying she was an extra.
