Rebel broadcast vows 'fight to the finish'

Afghans admit heavy casualties

By the Associated Press

Moslem rebels in Afghanistan admitted Soviet troops inflicted heavy losses on them, but diplomats in neighboring Pakistan reported the rebels and anti-Soviet troops of the Afghan army were continuing to battle the Russians in at least four areas of the country.

On the diplomatic front, five non-aligned members of the U.N. Security Council circulated a draft resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan, and the United States urged the council to denounce the Soviet military intervention. The council's debate on the Soviet action was continuing today for the third day.

A rebel radio broadcast Sunday said the guerrillas battling communist rule for nearly 20 months suffered heavy casualties in fighting near the eastern town of Jalalabad, which Soviet troops occupied last week. Jalalabad is 75 miles east of Kabul, the Afghan capital, and 50 miles northwest of the Pakistani border and the Khyber Pass.

The rebel broadcast vowed a "fight to the finish" to drive the Russians out of Afghanistan and bring down the communist government in Kabul. It claimed the insurgents had been reinforced by "considerable" numbers of Afghan army troops who deserted during fighting elsewhere in the country following the coup in Kabul Dec. 27.

Diplomatic sources in Islamabad, fighting was continuing in the northeastern province of Badakshan; in Paktia and Jalalabad, between Kabul and the Pakistani border, and in Parwan, 50 miles northwest of the capital; in Kandahar, 270 miles southwest of Kabul, and in Herat, the chief city in western Afghanistan 75 miles from the Iranian border.

Refugees from Herat who fled to Iran reported a general uprising in their city last Friday. They said men and women fought Soviet tanks with sticks and stones in the streets, and many Afghans were killed.

"Hundreds of my own people were attacking them even though there was much shooting and the tanks were just rolling over those who fell in front of them," said one of the refugees, a farmer named Abdullah Jan.

Meanwhile, Radio Kabul, the Afghan government station, charged that President Hafizullah Amin had 2,600 political prisoners executed en masse before he was overthrown in the coup 11 days ago. Amin was prime minister in the first communist regime that took over in April 1978 and then became president in a coup last September. He was executed after his replacement by Babrak Karmal, an exile the Russians brought back from Czechoslovakia.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, 18 more nations spoke Sunday on the second day of the Security Council's debate on the crisis caused by the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Only three — all communists — defended the Russians.

THE SERIOUS SIDE — In the top photo, Rep. Philip Crane, and Sen. Howard Baker await their turn to speak as Rep. John Anderson expresses his views at the debate by six candidates for the Republican presidential nomination. In the lower photo, former Texas Gov. John Connally fails to sway Sen. Robert Dole, or former U.N. ambassador, George Bush to his viewpoint. The Saturday night debate was sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

For movie production

Extras get invitation

The Golden Fleet of Sunn Classic Pictures has begun to arrive in Big Spring for the filming of "HANGER 18."

Distinctively painted production vehicles, trucks and vans rolled in from their Park City, Utah headquarters Saturday afternoon carrying art department, construction and wardrobe personnel.

Set construction began today with actual filming scheduled to start Feb. 19.

Producer Charles E. Sellier, Jr. visited the base facility with his assistant, Jerry Fleck and Production Manager Daxson Thomas, Business Coordinator and Rochelle Durrant, Art Director Chip Radaelli, and Production Designer Paul Staheli.

With offices nearing completion, Sellier announced that for individuals interested in applying as extras, the Sunn's office hours would be from 1-4 p.m. daily beginning Jan. 14.

Denis Stewart will act as extras coordinator for this production, with offices in Building 64.

The film will be completely photographed in the general Big Spring area and is currently budgeted to cost over $3 million to produce.

Sunn's location scouting personnel ended an extended search throughout several states for the "right" filming location by choosing Big Spring in early December, 1978.

Since that time, increasing numbers of Sunn employees and equipment have been migrating to the Big Spring Airport and Industrial Park complex to begin construction of the many large movie sets to be used in filming on the now extinct Webb Air Force Base, the primary filming location.

Sunn will gradually increase its personnel from about 25 pre-production or preparation people in early January to a polished film production crew of over 100 employees by Feb. 19.

Several pieces of large production equipment, 35 to 40 vehicles, and a sophisticated radio communications system will also be in place by that time.

"Hanger 18" will be a big movie to produce with extremely detailed and complicated sets design and special effects," stated Sellier. "We have increased the production budget by $1 million in the last three weeks to insure that we get an excellent look to the picture."

Sunn has also set aside months for activity in Big Spring for completion of the picture. Six weeks are planned for the pre-production phase, another six weeks for completion of principal photography and finally, three weeks will be devoted to wrapping and clean-up.

In summing up Sunn's expectations for success of the upcoming filming, Sellier stated that, "Large on-location production efforts are always difficult, but we have several extras going for us with 'Hanger 18' — a great air base location; co-operative, helpful Big Spring people; a superb filming crew; and, a great story."

Grand jury will consider 13 cases in meeting here

District Attorney Rick Hamby will present cases against Richard Carraker and Lee Randal Tuesday to the Howard County Grand Jury. The two are accused of the stabbing and robbery of James L. Hart, Dec. 3.

A stab wound to Hart's neck will probably result in quadriplegia, according to a doctor's report. Hart picked up two hitchhikers who he said stabbed him inside his pickup, then again when he fell from the truck before leaving him on the IS 20 north access road.

Other cases are being presented to the grand jury against:

—Robert Wilson Chambers, DWI felony, arrested Nov. 9.

—Albert Chavarria, failure to stop and render aid.

—William Gatlin, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle belonging to Bill Crane on Dec. 25.

—Danny Graham, hindering secured creditors on Oct. 15, victim:

Bill Crane.

—James Lee Greenhill and Joseph Nicolas Siciliano, hindering apprehension of Donald E. Myrick on Nov. 21.

—Milton Lozano, delivery of marijuana, Nov. 1.

—Patrick Richard Rodriguez, automobile burglary on Dec. 2.

—Antonio Torres, aggravated assault on Nov. 17. Torres is accused of shooting two men in a bar on Main St. One of the victims is Joe Adam Torres.

—Rafaela Torres, unlawfully carrying a weapon on licensed premises. A pistol was allegedly found in the purse of Rafaela Torres, wife of Antonio Torres, after the shooting.

—Simon Zubiate, theft by appropriation from the G.C. Knowlton Gun Shop, Sept. 19.

—Jo G. Davis, theft by check on Aug. 23.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Services costly

Q. Why is the city in the 'red' financially, when all the present city councilmen are so successful in business? Why can't the councilmen run the city as successfully as they do their own businesses?

A. As businessmen, the councilmen don't have to worry about such things as fire and police protection, sewer systems and the upkeep of parks and streets. Most such services are non-revenue producers and are costly to maintain. The councilmen are to be commended for devoting much of their free time toward promoting the interests of the municipality, a true labor of love.

Calendar: County Demos to meet

TODAY

VFW Post 2013 and Auxiliary will meet at the Post Home on Driver Rd. at 7:30 p.m.

TUESDAY

The Kentwood Center will hold its annual chili supper from 5-7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Sign-up for Gra-Y cheerleading continues through today at the YMCA. A women's volleyball managers meeting at 8 p.m. at YMCA.

"Change the World School of Prayer" will be held at Hillcrest Baptist Church Jan. 7-9-9.

Howard County Democratic Executive Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the County Courtroom to elect a county chairman.

Registration for University of Texas of the Permian Basin classes, 7 to 9 p.m., Howard College Library.

Tops on TV: Comedy special

A PBS program, entitled "A Mark Russell Comedy Special," scheduled to start at 8 p.m., may be the best thing on television this evening. Russell offers a half hour of political satire and sarcasm. Russell will be remembered for his appearances on the "Real People" show, which is carried by NBC. The "Lou Grant Show," which starts at 9 p.m., on CBS, will bear watching. It concerns a brush fire raging out of control in the Los Angeles hills, pressure placed on Charley Hume's marriage and the on-the-scene reporting job done by Mrs. Pynchon, publisher of the newspaper.

Inside: Park sniper dies

A DALLAS PARK SNIPER who died in a hail of police gunfire as he drove toward a roadblock may have killed himself, and medical examiners will perform an autopsy today to answer the question. See page 8A.

THE NEW BOSS of the Texas Department of Public Safety says drugs and highway deaths will be his major concerns. See page 3A.

Nobody wanted to play the heavy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sometimes, debater Bob Dole observed, politicians say things in the heat of battle and live to regret their words.

The senator from Kansas learned that from experience. His rivals for the Republican presidential nomination got the message.

It is a message of caution, and that is why their six-way debate was relatively restrained, with more agreement than argument.

Nobody wanted to play the heavy, and nobody wanted to make a damaging mistake.

As a result, the statements of the debating candidates sometimes were more tempered than those they have made as solo campaigners.

Ronald Reagan, the pollsters' favorite in Iowa's Republican precinct caucuses two weeks from today, skipped the debate on grounds it would be divisive.

It wasn't. Because Reagan is the leader, his strategists figured he had nothing to gain by sharing a platform with the rest of the field. The other candidates said, predictably, that he would suffer politically for staying away.

He may, but the Iowa competition, in which Republicans will assemble to vote their preferences in neighborhood meetings, is primarily a test of organizational strength and old loyalties, and so is not likely to be markedly altered by Reagan's no-show at the debate.

The organizing efforts of the others, particularly former U.N. Ambassador George Bush, probably represent a more serious threat to Reagan than does any voter resentment at his limited personal campaign in Iowa. He is appearing in Davenport tonight, in Waterloo on Thursday, and in Des Moines on Jan. 19, and that apparently will be it.

The protests of the six candidates who debated Saturday night in a forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune reflect the frustration of the men who are trying to overtake Reagan and can't get at him.

Gold boom again grips world markets today

LONDON (AP) — The gold boom again gripped world markets today as bullion hit a new high of $673.16 an ounce in Hong Kong. But it slipped back to close at $653.61 while in Europe the price dropped from $645 to $635.

Trading was volatile with prices swinging up and down. Some analysts predicted a major shakeout after the doubling of the price in the past four months.

The U.S. dollar was mostly lower. The record Hong Kong price came just before noon in the Asian trading center. Despite the fall of nearly $20 during the afternoon, the closing price was still nearly $21 above Saturday's closing price of $631.86.

The opening price in London and Zurich, Europe's two biggest gold markets, was a median $645 an ounce, matching the previous European record set in Zurich on Jan. 3. By midmorning, the price in both cities slipped back to $635, but that was $40 and $50 above Friday's closing prices.

Profit-taking and rumors of a big U.S. Treasury gold sale halted the gold boom in Europe last Friday, and the metal closed then at $595.50 in London and $585 in Zurich.

Silver was quoted in London today at $35.50 an ounce, up from $32.35 Friday but below the Jan. 2 record high of $40.

The dollar fell nearly four yen in Tokyo, from 237.45 Friday to 233.90 at the close of trading today. Dealers predicted it might drop further because of the continuing U.S.-Iranian crisis and developments in Afghanistan.

The dollar was mostly lower on European foreign exchanges also. Mid-morning rates were:

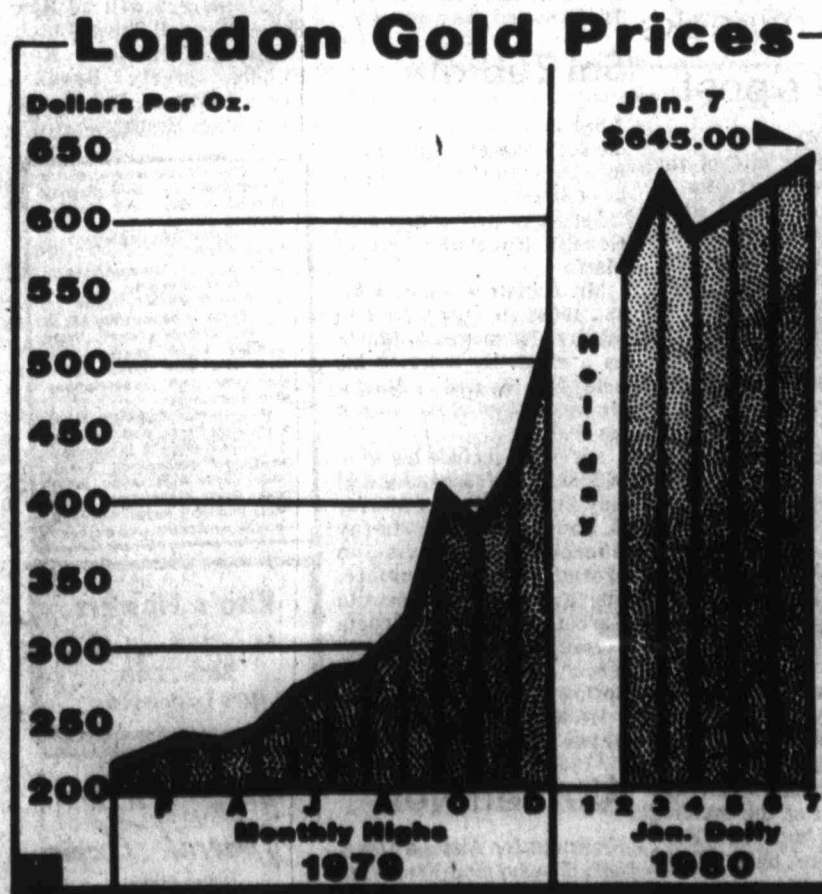

Stenholm planning to visit in area

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, who will formally announce Tuesday that he will offer for re-election, has notified the Herald that he plans to spend the first few weeks in January traveling throughout the 17th Congressional District.

Stenholm said he planned to meet with as many individuals and groups as possible to discuss matters of mutual concern, will invite comment on his performance as a freshman congressman, his voting record and issues the country faces in the months ahead.

Until Stenholm returns to Washington for the second session of the 96th Congress, his congressional column will be discontinued. The column will be resumed Jan. 23.

GOLD RISES AGAIN — The opening price of gold in London and Zurich, Europe's biggest gold markets, was a median $645 an ounce today, matching the previous record set Jan. 3.

Police beat Robber leaves empty-handed

Two persons were undergoing questioning at the police department today in connection with an attempted armed robbery that occurred at Furr's Supermarket Sunday.

An unknown male approached an employee of the supermarket at about 9:40 p.m. and pulled out a blue steel revolver, believed to have been a .38 caliber. The bandit demanded all of the money from the cash register.

When another employee appeared, the man fled the store without taking any money.

Police officers arrested a man, 30, and a woman, 23, of Roswell, N.M. at Birdwell Park, several blocks from Furr's, at 10:30 p.m. on a suspicious persons ordinance and suspicion of armed robbery. Detective Lt. Claude Morris said this morning that the pair were being questioned, but it had not been determined whether they were involved in the attempted robbery.

Police are investigating what appears to be a confirmed case of child abuse, involving an infant, in Big Spring. Officers were called to a local address Sunday night, 8:05 p.m., on the second complaint in a two-week period regarding abuse of the child.

This time, there was medical evidence of abuse. The infant was rushed to Malone-Hogan Hospital's emergency room where it was reportedly treated for fractures.

The case has been turned over to the county welfare department. No other information was available.

Missing persons reports have been filed with the police department on two local children. The brothers, ages 7 and 6, were reported missing by their mother, 3:45 p.m. Saturday, who told police they were last seen at 8 p.m. Friday. She also said that they could be in the company of their babysitter.

According to the police report, the woman had a black eye and did not want to discuss what had happened to her.

A 36-year-old local man was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital's emergency room Saturday night, 10:10 p.m., after he was reportedly assaulted by his wife. According to the police report, the man and woman had gotten into an argument and some pushing and shoving resulted. He was released from the hospital after being treated for minor injuries.

Margarito Flores, 1605 Cardinal, was reportedly awakened from sleep by a noise in his living room about 11 p.m. Saturday. Investigating the noise, he observed a female juvenile exiting the home through the front door.

He then heard glass breaking from a back bedroom. Investigating that noise, he discovered that someone had jumped through the window, resulting in $30 damages to the window and screen. Nothing was reported missing from the residence.

M.C. Prevo, 1408 Mesquite, reported the disappearance of a pickup truck from behind his residence, taken sometime between 6 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. today. The 1977 truck had been left unlocked with the keys in it. Value was set at $2,000.

Sometime between 1 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. today, the front windshield of a police car was broken by unknown means at the police station, 400 E. 4th. Amount of damage was not determined. Dolores Gonzales, 1209 Utah, reported that a known man came to her mobile home about 8 p.m. Sunday and vandalized two windows, a window screen and a toy motorcycle. Damages were set at $170.

The 7-11 Store, 700 and Birdwell, reported that a man, about 20, left the store at 3:40 a.m. Sunday with a package of hot dogs he failed to pay for. Value, $2.15.

A wheel chair, valued at $100, was reportedly stolen from the V.A. Medical Center by a known person 5:20 p.m. Saturday.

Bob Lee, P.O. Box 1527, reported that his residence was burglarized sometime between noon and 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Stolen were a velvet portrait of a woman, 75 8-track tapes and a tape case, and currency and coins from England, Germany and Africa. Total loss was set at $530.

Two minor accidents were reported Saturday night and one was reported Sunday.

An unknown motorist backed into a vehicle owned by Burt Lloyd Brown, 107 W. 21st, while it was parked at Skateland, 2600 Wasson, about 9:20 p.m. Saturday.

Ben Mancha, P.O. Box 323, was reportedly attempting to pass a vehicle on the 1700 block of Wasson Rd., when he lost control of his vehicle and struck a Mesquite tree some 75 feet from the road on a vacant lot, 9:40 p.m. Saturday.

Vehicles driven by Julian Chavez, 2207 Runnels, and Paul Robison, 801 Marcy, collided at Runnels and 22nd, 1:10 p.m. Sunday.

'ON THE OTHER HAND' — David Wayne O'Brien, 4½ months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy O'Brien of Big Spring, could be quite literate on the situation in Iran and Afghanistan. At least, he seems to be volunteering his opinions in the above picture. Or could the tot be asking "Where are all the reporters?" David Wayne lets everyone know which side he's on with the emblem on the shirt he's wearing.

Laureate Ensemble in concert

Musical treat in store

One of the most unusual and musically satisfying events to take place in Big Spring this season will be a concert by the Laureate Ensemble.

The group, sponsored by the Big Spring Concert Association, will begin their performance in the Municipal Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Thursday.

Music lovers will hear a varied program representing early and later eras of music as performed by six brilliant young instrumentalists: Timothy Malosh, flute; Steven D. Hartman, clarinet; Mark Hill, oboe; Russell Risner, horn; Charles McCracken, bassoon; and James Gemmell, piano.

These six young men comprise a welcome addition to the American concert scene. The ensemble brings to life an important segment of musical literature, a rich repertory not constantly performed and delightful in many aspects.

Laurels go to those who deserve them. In ancient times the laurel wreath as a crown to victors of the Pythia games. This ensemble is aptly named, for each artist might justly wear the Greek symbol of excellence in achievement.

Timothy Malosh (flute) attended Wayne State University in Detroit where he studied with Clement Barone and Albert Tipton, and completed his bachelor and masters degrees at the Juilliard School. He was a scholarship student of Julius Baker and principal flutist of the Juilliard Orchestra. Mr. Malosh has performed with many orchestras including the New York Philharmonic, the Detroit Symphony, the Caramoor Festival, Musica Aeterna and the New York City Ballet.

Steven D. Hartman (clarinet) holds a Bachelor of Music degree from the Juilliard School, where he studied with Augustin Duques. Since graduating he has studied privately with Kalmen Opperman. For three seasons Principal Clarinetist of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, his other orchestral credits include the Spoleto, Lake George, and Caramoor Festivals, as well as the Bolshoi Ballet and the Colonial Symphony.

Mark Hill (oboe), a native of Idaho, received his undergraduate training at the University of New Mexico and the North Carolina School of the Arts. He earned his Masters Degree at the State University of New York, where he studied with Ronald Roseman. He has been Principal Oboist of the Spoleto and Waterloo Festival Orchestras, as well as the Contemporary Chamber Ensemble, the Philharmonia Virtuosi and Musica Sacra in New York City, and has toured with the New York City Opera Theater.

Russell Risner (horn), studied with Myron Bloom at the Cleveland Institute and was a recipient of the Rockefeller Foundation Scholarship at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore. He has performed with the Detroit Symphony, the American Symphony, and spent four years with the National Ballet of Canada Orchestra. His varied activities include solo recitals, recordings and Broadway shows, as well as the American Ballet Theater. He is presently a member of the Apple Brass Quintet and principal horn of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Philharmonic.

Charles McCracken (bassoon), was a scholarship student of Mark Popkin at the North Carolina School of the Arts and later he studied with Donald MacCourt and Loren Glickman. His varied playing experiences have been as soloist with the N.C.S.A. Orchestra and as a member of such ensembles as the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra, the New York String Orchestra with Alexander Schneider, the Caramoor Festival, New York City Opera, Joffrey Ballet, American Ballet Theater, Nationale Chorale, New Jersey Symphony, New York City Ballet, American Symphony and the Royal Danish Ballet Orchestra.

James Gemmell (piano) attended Wayne State University in Detroit where he studied with Clement Barone and Albert Tipton, and completed his bachelor and masters degrees at the Juilliard School. He was a scholarship student of Julius Baker and principal flutist of the Juilliard Orchestra. Mr. Malosh has performed with many orchestras including the New York Philharmonic, the Detroit Symphony, the Caramoor Festival, Musica Aeterna and the New York City Ballet.

Disasters cut into tourism

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The state of Texas plans to pump almost a million dollars into tourism to help overcome a series of disasters that cut into the industry last year and may hurt in 1980.

Frank Hildebrand, executive director of the Texas Tourist Development Agency, said icy roads, spring floods, tight gasoline supplies and the world's worst oil spill conspired to cut attendance at Texas attractions by 4 percent in 1979.

"It was not a particularly bright year for the Texas travel industry or the nation as a whole," Hildebrand said, during an energy and tourism conference.

Hildebrand said Six Flags over Texas here and Aquarena Springs in San Marcos came through 1979 in good shape only because of extensive promotion and advertising.

In 1980, the tourism agency will use $925,000 in state funds for advertising — a 123 percent increase over last year's budget.

The money will be used to highlight Texas and its four adjacent states in an attempt to offset energy shortages and inflation, Hildebrand said.

There will be a "substantial falloff in the number of motorists using cars for pleasure purposes," Hildebrand said, predicting gasoline prices would jump to $1.50 a gallon by the end of the year.

In addition, he predicted inflation will drive air fares up. In 1979, fares increased an average of 23 percent, and the travel price index rose about 14 percent, Hildebrand said.

Finally, he said, the black oil that slogged onto Texas beaches will return after Gulf currents reverse in about 60 days.

Despite the gloomy forecast, Hildebrand said he expects tourism in Texas to fare better than in other states.

JUBILANT INDIRA — A delighted Indira Gandhi greets a supporter at her New Delhi residence as election returns in India's national balloting showed her party forging a commanding lead over other opponents on Monday.

Indira Gandhi's party heads for big victory

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her branch of the Congress Party headed for a smashing national election triumph today, less than 34 months after Indian voters dumped her from office to protest her abandonment of democracy for 19 months.

Results from 108 of the 324 election districts represented in the lower house of Parliament gave 84 seats to Mrs. Gandhi's Indira Congress Party and its allies. These first results were from a cross-section of districts across the country and suggested a landslide for the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's 62-year-old daughter, who headed the government from 1966 until her defeat in the last election in March 1977.

Others elected included seven candidates from the Janata Party headed by Jagjivan Ram, unofficial leader of the Untouchables; two each from the old Congress Party, caretaker Prime Minister Charan Singh's Lok Dal and the two Communist parties, and nine candidates from other minor parties and independents.

More than half of the 362 eligible voters stamped paper ballots in the voting Thursday and Sunday, and final results were expected later today.

Mrs. Gandhi was rebuked by the voters in the last parliamentary election after she turned the world's biggest democracy into a dictatorship for 19 months of emergency rule in which she suspended civil liberties, jailed thousands of her opponents and allowed her son Sanjay to carry out a birth control program of forced sterilization.

The voters turned to the Janata Party headed by Morarji Desai, a coalition united largely by opposition to Mrs. Gandhi without a program for coping with India's huge economic and social problems. With the octogenarian Desai at the helm, the government was ineffective and the alliance broke down into squabbling factions, with the leader of each maneuvering for power.

Desai was forced out in July, and Mrs. Gandhi threw her support to Finance Minister Charan Singh to keep Ram from becoming prime minister. Then she withdrew her support from Singh, forcing the calling of the election and leaving Singh as caretaker prime minister.

In a vigorous comeback campaign that sometimes included appearances at 20 rallies a day, Mrs. Gandhi defended the emergency as a period of economic progress and stability which she said the Janata government squandered. Her comeback was fueled by public dissatisfaction with inflation, now nearly 20 percent, and the soaring crime rate.

'Agribusiness' reeling

WASHINGTON (AP) — American "agribusiness" is reeling under President Carter's decision to cut back grain sales to the Soviet Union, but the domestic market has two days to brace for the impact of 17 million unexpected tons of grain.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission has closed for today and Tuesday the boards of trade in Chicago, Kansas City and Minneapolis as well as the Mid-America Grain Exchange in Chicago to all dealing in wheat, corn, oats, soybeans, and soybean oil and meal.

'Terrible miscalculation'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Five non-aligned Security Council members circulated a draft resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan as the United States called the Soviet intervention a "dangerous breach of peace and security" and a "terrible miscalculation."

Sponsored by Bangladesh, Jamaica, Niger, Zambia and the Philippines, the resolution did not mention the Soviet Union by name but "deeply deplored" the armed intervention in Afghanistan.

Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky told reporters he would veto the resolution if it came to a vote. A majority of the council or of the U.N. membership then could get the General Assembly to take the matter up in an emergency session, which would prolong the publicized international condemnation of the Russians.

McGuire seeks sheriff's post

COLORADO CITY — Bill McGuire, still one of the youngest peace officers in the state, has announced he will be a candidate for the office of Mitchell County sheriff. McGuire is completing his second term as sheriff.

McGuire is 33 years of age. He was born in Mitchell County.

Mattress burns in apartment

A report of a fire from Northeast Apartments Sunday night turned out to be a burning mattress, according to the Big Spring Fire Department.

Police were called at 11:06 p.m. and by 11:12 p.m. the fire department was on its way. All damage was limited to the mattress which was dragged out of the building and left to burn out. Firefighters were back at the station by 11:27 p.m.

According to the report, the mattress was in a vacant apartment. Cause of fire is unknown.

PINTO INSPECTION — An accident reconstructionist, John Habberstad (right) records data from the charred wreckage of the 1973 Ford Pinto that burst into flames Aug. 10, 1978, killing three teenage girls after it was rammed from the rear by a van on U.S. 33 in northern Indiana. Habberstad was a Ford Motor Co. expert allowed to examine the car last October. Jury selection begins today in Winamac, Ind., in a case charging Ford with reckless homicide in the deaths.

New DPS chief takes aim at drug traffic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Col. Jim Adams, new chief of the Texas Department of Public Safety, says his two most immediate concerns are curbing organized drug traffic and reducing highway deaths.

Adams, 53, the first lawyer to head the DPS, said in an interview his plans also include stepped-up legal training for troopers and investigators.

"I hate to see a good case built up and then lost because of a faulty search warrant.... One of my freaky buttons is to make sure our people know the law," he said.

Adams, former No. 2 man in the FBI, became chief of the DPS on Jan. 1, the day after former director Wilson Speir retired.

His office decor includes autographed pictures of former President Gerald Ford, GOP presidential hopeful George Bush and former Attorney General Griffin Bell. Hanging on the paneled wall is his license to practice law before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Adams said he still is working out detailed priorities for his administration but drugs and traffic deaths are the top two problems on his mind at the moment.

Drugs can't be considered apart from organized crime, and Adams said that can involve outwardly respectable businessmen as well as the rank-and-file pushers and smugglers.

Mentioning the seizure of the "Mister Jake" off the Texas coast near Galveston, Adams said, "It takes money to buy 60 tons of marijuana. Those high-level financiers are the ones we are going after."

"We have to look at the fact that we do not have only the traditional criminal types involved in the drug traffic. You can have businessmen and bankers," Adams said.

He said he expects DPS officers to be scrupulous in following legal requirements laid down by federal courts — "I don't believe in cutting corners."

Adams said the DPS "can do the job within existing laws, subject to minor modifications by the Legislature."

One such "minor modification" would be Gov. Bill Clements' wiretap bill, which he plans to submit as an issue for a special legislative session this year. The bill would allow only the DPS to intercept telephone conversations, only in drug cases and only with permission of a state district judge.

Weather

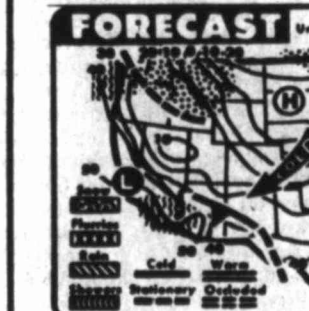

Cold front drops temperatures to 11

An arctic cold front knifed deep into Texas today, dropping temperatures to as low as 11 degrees.

The front blew into the Panhandle Sunday afternoon, and by 4 a.m. it had reached a line from Longview to College Station, San Antonio and Del Rio. Along the front, northerly winds were gusting to 30 miles an hour, but well behind the frontal line, winds died down to 10 to 15 mph. The front brought no precipitation, but forecasters said it could touch off light and scattered showers in South and Southeast Texas later in the day.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from 11 at Dalhart to the 60s along the southern coast. At 4 a.m., it was 40 in Tyler, 33 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, 29 at Abilene, and 27 in Wichita Falls.

WEATHER FORECAST — Colder weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Tuesday morning, for all of the nation. Snow is forecast for the Northwest. Showers are expected for the Southwest. Snow flurries are expected for Oklahoma, Arkansas and southern Illinois. Rain is forecast for the Southeast.

WHAT EMOTIONAL STAGES ARE THERE FOR THE SURVIVORS?

In her widely-read books on death-and-dying, noted psychiatrist Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross discusses many perplexing aspects of coping with terminal illness...from the point of view of the patient, the medical professionals and the families involved.

Her studies indicate that the stages of denial, anger, bargaining, depression, and acceptance of death are common to most terminally ill patients.

Some of these stages are common, too, with the survivors of the deceased. Survivors, too, may experience a denial of the death of a loved one. They may also experience anger, depression, and, finally, acceptance...and then begin rebuilding the pieces of family life without the deceased.

Relatives and friends all interact and find strength in communicating and sharing each other's strong points, thus making the adjustment less difficult and prolonged.

Texas can't do much about it, but we can do something about 4,000 deaths," he said.

He indicated one thing he will ask the 1981 Legislature to do is enlarge the highway patrol, currently limited to 1,494 troopers.

America's growing trade deficit

Bentsen visiting the Far East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The itinerary for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's trip to the Far East called for stops in the Philippines, Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea to examine ways to counteract America's growing trade deficit with those nations.

Bentsen, D-Texas, is chairman of the Joint Economic Committee.

The plane left Thursday for the Philippines via Hawaii and Guam.

Arrival in Manila, capital of the Philippines, was scheduled Saturday.

The congressional delegation was to leave Tuesday for Hong Kong. Arrival in Taiwan is planned for Jan. 12, and the final stop in Seoul, South Korea, is scheduled as Jan. 13.

The group is due to return to Washington on Jan. 16.

Two congressmen — Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, and John Rousselot, R-Calif. — were accompanying Bentsen for the entire trip.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Rep. Marvin Leath, a Democrat from Marlin, are included in a 12-member House delegation visiting nations on three continents during the winter recess.

The itinerary called for departure Saturday for the Ivory Coast in Africa as the first stop on the 12-day trip.

The group was scheduled to leave Monday for Nigeria, continuing Tuesday to South Africa. Arrival in Rhodesia is planned for Friday.

Jan. 12-14 are the dates for a visit to Saudi Arabia, followed by Jan. 15-16 in Ireland. Their return to Washington is scheduled Jan. 17.

Energy was listed as the prime topic for discussions on the trip. Saudi Arabia and Nigeria are among the leading oil producers, and the only commercial synthetic fuel plant in the world will be visited in South Africa.

"We will attempt to convince the nations we visit of the danger to the entire world's economy of unjustified rises in crude oil prices, and we intend to convince those nations that we are deeply serious in our efforts to reduce American dependence on foreign imports," Wright said in a statement.

The delegation will meet with British governor Lord Soames in Salisbury, Rhodesia, to talk about the transition of power.

Craig Raupe, executive assistant to Wright in the majority leader's office, has returned to Texas where he will teach political science at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Wright has replaced the 25-year veteran of Capitol Hill with two staffers, each with the title of "executive floor assistant."

The two are John Mack, who was working in Wright's district office, and Barbara Sadoff, formerly Raupe's secretary.

Wright has two offices — the majority leader's office in the Capitol itself and the district office in the Rayburn Building.

Rep. Charles Wilson, a Democrat from Lufkin, has sent out Texas-shaped invitations to his Jan. 27 fundraiser at Elan, the Washington night spot he once partly owned.

The invitations say, "You're invited to a Texas good time by Charlie Wilson and other Famous Texans."

At least two of the famous Texans listed won't be able to make the affair. Washington Redskins football players Kenny Houston and Mark Mosley made the squad for the National Football League's all-pro game, scheduled about the same time.

Both are from Wilson's district — Houston from Lufkin and Mosley from Livingston.

The Christmas holidays were not kind to Rep. Jim Mattox, whose home in southwest Washington was burglarized to the tune of about a $10,000 loss.

The day after Christmas, a neighbor noticed that the door to Mattox's three-story townhouse was open and some socks were strewn in the yard.

thermostat should cut your fuel bill by 3 percent.

—Don't forget to turn the thermostat way down when you will be away from home.

Contrary to popular opinion, warming your house back up does not use more fuel than you have saved," says the Wisconsin consumer office.

—Do consider storm windows or inexpensive plastic taped over regular windows. The air pocket created by the extra layer of glass or plastic sure that windows can be opened quickly if they are needed as an emergency exit.

—Do plug leaks. Cloth or newspaper can be used to seal attic doors and to fill cracks around windows on a temporary basis. If cold air still seeps through, get some tubular gasket weatherstripping at the hardware store and apply it around the edges of windows and doors.

—Do take steps to keep pipes from freezing. Wrap them in specially designed insulation tape or in layers of old newspaper, overlapping the ends. Cover the newspaper with plastic film to keep out moisture. When it is very cold, let the faucets drip a little. You'll waste water, but you may prevent freezing damage. If the pipes do freeze, open faucets wide, remove any newspapers, rewrap the pipes with rags and pour hot water over them until they have thawed.

—Do turn down the setting on the thermostat if you haven't already done so. Temperatures of 65 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and 55 degrees at night are comfortable for most people, although the elderly should check with their doctors before lowering temperatures.

The U.S. Department of Energy says even infants can cope with temperatures in the range of 60 to 70 degrees if they are dressed warmly and the humidity is relatively high. Each degree you lower your

Former prison guard charged

Mattox, a Democrat from Dallas, was in Texas for the holidays.

He had sent out some information about rising crime to constituents several days before the burglary.

The Nature Conservancy, a non-profit organization, officially has turned over 41,682 acres on the Texas Gulf Coast to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for use as a national wildlife refuge.

About $8.25 million in federal funds were used to purchase the area, known as the McFaddin Ranch.

The tract is located about 20 miles southwest of Port Arthur.

The transaction was completed Wednesday.

WAVERLY, Tenn. (AP) — A former prison guard faces a preliminary hearing on Jan. 28 in the beating death of a 21-month-old girl, who died last week of extensive head injuries.

The toddler, Stephanie Johnson, was buried Sunday. She died after clinging to life for six days with the help of a respirator.

James Henry Jr., 27, a boyfriend of the girl's mother, has been charged with first-degree murder. He is being held without bond in the Humphreys County Jail.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. ADV.

Shed a tear for people in Chicago

No one argues that the City of Big Spring doesn't have problems. We've been in a financial bind for some time now, with no immediate solution in sight. We get blamed for the taste of the water we buy from a water district, which itself can't do much about it. The sewer system doesn't meet state standards and some of our streets have deteriorated rather alarmingly.

Compared to the problems of some of our great cities, Big Spring's problems are minimal, however. Cleveland, New York, Philadelphia — you name one that isn't working to free itself from a Gordian knot.

CHICAGO IS A case in point. Chicago is identified as the "city of big shoulders" but few of us would trade our problems for theirs.

In recent weeks, the 11,000 employees of the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) went out on strike. When the elevated trains and the buses of the CTA don't run, thousands of workers in the Windy City must seek other means of transportation. When the weather gets bad in Chicago, as it frequently does in Chicago this time of year, that can become a trying problem — one that stretches one's nerves to the limit.

Later, the strike was ruled illegal and the CTA employees went back to work. Until then, people were forced to walk, hitch-hike or drive their cars on freeways that were already overcrowded.

CHICAGO'S PROBLEMS weren't confined to the transportation systems, however. The city's school system has been on the verge of bankruptcy for some time now. It obtained a refund from the Internal Revenue System, a factor that helped bail it out for the time being, but it still faces monumental problems.

Chicagoans were too preoccupied with their transportation problems to worry about the schools, however. Traffic jam-ups occur everywhere.

The city blamed the union and met with some guarded success by running the elevated train service with inexperienced personnel. The union, in turn, laid the fault at the doorstep of the city, particularly its woman mayor, Jane Byrne.

The injunction which forced the CTA workers back on the job may have eased the crisis, but the solution was only temporary.

In case you're not familiar with Chicago, it's cold there this time of year. The heavy snow season is just ahead. Try covering 40 blocks without a dog team. Snow in abundance looks better on postcards.

Creative revenge

Around the rim

First it was creative cooking. Then it went to creative marriages, creative psychotherapy and creative divorces. Now there is a new one. Creative revenge.

That's right. Creative revenge. We've gone from the "me" decade of the 70's to the "me" decade of the 80's. A recent magazine article tells us the reasons we should get it and why we should.

NOW they tell me, after years of learning revenge was immature, no good and accomplishes nothing. "Two wrongs never made a right," I was always taught. "Don't give the other person the satisfaction."

WELL, NOW WE CAN do it. But we must apply revenge correctly, with class and taste. And it must be constructive.

Let's use an example. Today you've had a hard day at the office and you have had it with your boss. All you want to do is come home, flop down in a chair and wait for your husband to serve the steaks.

But something is wrong the minute you walk in the door. All the furniture is gone and your spouse has left a note on the now-empty refrigerator. "Honey, I'm leaving you," the note begins. "It's not you. A Cowboys' cheerleader has fallen in love with me. It's not everyday that happens so I've gone off with her. She doesn't mind my dirty socks and she, unlike you, likes it when I do my Liberatee imitations. We've moved to Miami. Love, Macho Man."

The first reaction is to track them down, scratch his eyes out, steal her eye make-up and put a mouse in her lingerie drawer.

Only a few months ago this would have been considered childish and stupid. Now it can be done, if it's done correctly.

Step one, according to the article is "deciphering your motivation, your inner drives deep down."

What that means is, you are supposed to look deep down and look for the reasons you want the revenge. Think back. Didn't this same cheerleader take off with your son this time last year? Obviously it won't do any good to scratch his eyes out. It's the cheerleader you have to work on. Is it worth the flight to Miami to see her lose her cool when the mouse jumps out on her? Just make sure she even wears lingerie before you do it. But stealing her eye make-up will definitely do the trick.

STEP TWO, SAYS the article, is "deciphering the purpose. What do you really want the revenge to achieve: do you have to witness it to feel satisfaction? Will this revenge really make you look better, in fact, or actually, later on, much worse?"

Now, the purpose of all this is to see her lose her cool when she finds the mouse and doesn't find the eye make-up. Remember, you are not out to hurt anybody. After all, are either of them worth going to jail over? And it is no fun having a mouse jump out on her unless you and your ex are there to see it. Make sure your no good spouse is in the room and make sure he doesn't see you or you've blown everything. If you happen to be popular among your peers, chances are you'll look great. If your personality resembles that of a witch to begin with, you're in trouble.

Step three is effects, and the possibility of counter-retaliation.

For instance, let's say the mouse does jump out on her, she screams and makes a fool out of herself. Let's say she had to go out on that football field without her eye make-up. That can be devastating when your career depends on your looks. Now let's say she has a pretty good, sneaking suspicion it was you all along. (She heard through a mutual friend that you bought a new bathing suit two days before the mouse disappeared, and it's snowing where you live.) How would you feel about a mouse in your lingerie drawer? After all, you used a little innocent white mouse. She decided to be nasty and use a Canadian rat, which had just been fed saccharin. Also, how would you feel if she decided to steal your girdle? That could be as devastating to you as the eye make-up is to her. The whole thing can backfire. What we want here, is to make the revenge constructive. So that takes us to the last step.

"The nitty gritty, what works in the art of revenge." What this means is, your revenge better be classy and make her, not you, look like an idiot.

So what the article is saying, is to put a little thought into it. Find out who her past lovers have been. It'll take a little work on your part, but it's worth it. Then call her up and in your sweetest voice, invite her over to your place. After all, you've been a dear and laundered all the socks the slob left behind. You just want to give them to her.

When she walks in, make sure all her formers are there to greet her. I guarantee you, her eye make-up won't help her a bit.

Education of Carter

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The imperatives of the parable of the prodigal son are not lost on this sinner, but so help me nowhere is it written in the Bible that the prodigal son, having come home and repented, should be put in charge of foreign policy. It is both consoling to read the words of President Carter in his interview with Frank Reynolds — and dismaying.

ONE IS REMINDED of the remark made in 1945 by Britain's freshly appointed foreign minister, Ernest Bevin, at Potsdam. Having spent one entire day with Stalin and Molotov, Bevin left the negotiating chamber in a pensive mood, and finally confided to an aide: "I've got those blokes' number! They're just like the Communists!" Mr. Bevin — who went on to become a first rate foreign minister — had struggled throughout his lifetime as a trade unionist with the British Communists within the union movement: had got use to their treacheries, hypocrisies, dissimulations. One day with Stalin and Molotov and he recognized that they too were Communists.

President Carter advised Frank Reynolds that during the past week he has learned more about "the Russians" (it would have been diplomatic to have said "the Soviet government") "than even the previous two and a half years before that." Perhaps President Carter will request an invitation from Notre Dame to go back there this spring and recant the speech in 1977 in which he spoke so scornfully about our "inordinate fear of communism."

President Carter is visibly stunned. He picks up the hotline and has a conversation with the same leader whose cheeks he kissed in a fraternal embrace at the conclusion of the SALT treaty as recently as last June. "What's going on with this Afghanistan business?" the president evidently asked him.

"DON'T WORRY ABOUT a thing, Mr. President — we're just sending some Russian troops down there at the request of President Amin, to guard the security of Afghanistan."

The next thing Carter knew the Russians overwhelmed President Amin's quarters and executed him. They then squatted down with 50,000 Soviet troops.

Well, said the interviewer, what are you going to do about it?

Perhaps it was a New Year's gift from the president to the American people that at least he didn't say that unless the Soviet Union withdrew from Afghanistan, he would report Brezhnev to UNESCO. On the other hand, he didn't say what we would do about it. In the course of not saying what we plan to do about it, the president came through with yet another geyser of ignorance. He said that the invasion of Afghanistan "is now causing even former close friends and allies of the Soviet Union to re-examine their opinion of what the Soviets might have in mind."

The mind reels. Dear Mr. President: 1) The Soviet Union does not have "close friends." It has a) satellite states (e.g. Poland); and b) client states (e.g. Finland). Any leader of any state that is a "close friend" of the Soviet Union who re-examines his position on the Soviet Union tends to be replaced, or shot. Like Amin. What the Soviets have in mind as in Afghanistan is what they have had in mind since sometime before you were born. They have in mind, with their salient in Afghanistan, one more step toward the domination of the Persian Gulf.

President Carter, in revealing the pace at which he learns what most people have known from time immemorial, reminds us that at the earliest opportunity he should take time off to catch up.

Family boils: A stubborn problem

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our family has a problem that may seem small to others but to my three children and my husband it is a big one — boils!

My husband has had four bad ones the last year and my 13-year-old and the two smaller ones all had them recently. One had them in both knees under the kneecap. Lancing had to be done in all cases they were so bad.

They just keep coming back. All four of them have been tested for diabetes and they have no signs of that. I have been careful about hygiene, etc. I wonder if you have any recommendations for us? — P.G.

Recurrent boils are not a small problem. They are a big one.

The first step to take is to make sure that there is no disease process causing the boils, like diabetes. You have wisely done that. All clothing and towels used by the family must be kept separate until washed. The family members, INFANTS EXCLUDED, should wash hands and face several times a day with hexachlorophene, povidone-iodine or chlorhexidine-containing liquid soaps. I REPEAT, infants should not be subject to this routine. All family members should take a daily shower and moist areas of the skin must be kept dry (behind the knees, for example). An alcohol-containing drying lotion helps.

The staph germ (the boil culprit) often lurks in a hidden body recess, such as the inner nose. A light application of an ointment with neomycin or bacitracin is sometimes necessary to eliminate the germ from that site.

You really have to have your hygiene act together to rid your family of this boil problem.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 75-year-old male, in good health. I have a luxuriant growth of hair on my head, but it has turned gradually white. I might say "snow white." Now my question. Why? What is it the body lacks or needs to keep the hair as before — dark? With modern medicine as it is, isn't there an answer? Millions of us would like to know. Come on, Dr. Donohue, give us "white heads" an encouraging answer. — M.L.

I can give you an answer, but I'm afraid it's not going to be encouraging. I wish there were some way to restore natural color to your hair — if that's what you want. I know of no way, however. Hair color comes from the pigment cells (called melanocytes) located in the bulb of the hair. White hairs have no active melanocytes. This is the process of becoming "distinguished." It is an irreversible process. No diets, drugs or vitamin helps. The cosmetic industry is based on such unalterable facts of life.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would like your opinion on a matter of deep concern. I went on a trip and started having bowel movements more often than usual. I noticed a small amount of blood and a mucous discharge in the stool. I saw an out-of-town doctor, who took stool specimens. He said the lab tests showed all of them contained blood. He said to be sure to take the results to my family doctor at home. I did, and took blood tests, which he said were OK. He said it probably was nerves.

Now after two weeks, the same thing is happening. Why was one doctor concerned and the other so casual? Should I see another doctor? — R.M.

Before seeing another doctor go back to the last one you saw and tell him you are still having the blood and mucus in your stool. He may want to have a sigmoidoscopic examination and a lower G.I. done. In the sigmoidoscopic examination the last 10 inches of the colon (large bowel) are viewed through a telescope-like instrument. It is not painful and is very revealing.

True, a spastic colon can be brought on by stressful situations, but all efforts must be made to rule out more serious causes of fecal blood and mucus.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would cutting down on fatty foods help a person who has a flatulence problem? — N.G.

It might. It is not because fatty foods of themselves are especially gas-producers. Fats do take longer to digest and taken in excess they might slow down the digestion of other foods. The undigested food might get into the lower digestive tract to produce the flatulence.

Cutting down would not only be a reasonable experiment to try, but it would also eliminate a lot of undesirable cholesterol in your diet.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I notice that when I want to make urine there are big bubbles on the water. What causes this? I never had this before. The bubbles make me nervous. — R.A.S.

They are gas bubbles and they occur in a strange way. The gas enters the urinary bladder by way of an abnormal opening from the intestines (a fistula). You should bring this to the attention of your doctor. Such fistulas may develop as a complication of bowel wall disturbances such as diverticulosis.

This of course should not be confused with the normal bubbling that is noted on normal urination. That is just the effect of the splashing. The gas-produced bubbling would be quite pronounced and can easily be distinguished by your doctor from the normal phenomenon.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our heart is breaking over our daughter, who has rejected our Christian faith and is living like the prodigal son. Is there anything we can do to bring her to her senses? — Mrs. L.D.

DEAR MRS. L.D.: It should give you hope that the prodigal son (whose story is told by Jesus in Luke 15:11-32) finally did return to his father. It did not happen until he had reached the bottom and had found out that his selfish life would only bring him unhappiness and grief, but he eventually "came to his senses" (Luke 15:17).

There is no easy answer to your question, because in some situations a parent may be able to do very little directly to help a child who has rebelled. The Bible does not tell us if the father of the prodigal son ever tried to reach his son or do anything to bring him back; in fact, it seems likely that he was unable to do very much once the son had left home. However, in other situations a parent may be able to keep the lines of communication open and seek to help the young person.

What can you do? For one thing, you can pray — and that is very important. You may not be able to do very much, but God can. Commit this whole situation to God. If there are things you have done wrong in raising your child, confess it to God and seek His cleansing. But, most of all, pray for your daughter — not just that she will be reconciled to you, but that she will come back to God.

Then you should keep lines of communication open if at all possible, no matter how fragile they are. Rather than lecture your daughter, do all you can to let her know that you love her and always will love her, even if you cannot approve of all she is doing. She needs to know that you always are ready to welcome her back, and want to help her.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 8, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to think of ways to please your associates more. Make arrangements now for future contacts and trend relationships, especially important ones, in such directions. You can make your surroundings more artistic, charming as well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Forget self for now and be more thoughtful of the needs of others, especially close ties. Get rid of any grudges you may have against others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to handle chores more efficiently and gain greater benefits from them. Come to a finer understanding with partners, co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Making plans for more pleasure in the future can be good for you, lighten your spirits. Think constructively, though you are under pressure, and then you win out.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good time to express a wish at home and get good response, results. Get into a new enterprise that looks promising.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Have the talks with partners that can bring more success, understanding in the future. Visit with others and get good ideas that are helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take advantage of every opportunity to improve your financial status. Get together with one who can give you good money advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Give as much personal attention to your affairs as you can and get good results. Don't let anyone lead you around by the nose.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to be more thoughtful of allies and less of yourself for best results with them. A good time for solving problems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to get the confidential information you need from good friends. Avoid one who is jealous of you and could do you harm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study just where you are going in regular activities and get support from bigwigs. Get that chip off your shoulder and be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into promising enterprises and cooperate with contacts made. Make arrangements now for a trip you want to take later on.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study every phase of your operations and make an overall plan that brings greater efficiency, profit. Go along with plans of loved ones.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will literally have the uncanny ability of reading people's minds and can go far in life if it is used properly. One who will marry later in life and pick out the ideal mate.

Angel Dust— Devil's Brew

DEAR ABBY: I will be straight with you. I am 13 and smoke pot, but I am no pothead. A dude has been telling me about angel dust. He says it gives you a super-cool high. Some kids I hang out with who do drugs say angel dust can mess up your head worse than acid. What is the story? Please don't use my name.

CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: I have just completed some extensive research on drugs for my new booklet, "WHAT EVERY TEENAGER OUGHT TO KNOW," and I can tell you that angel dust is one of the most dangerous drugs on the street today. The following is a quote from my booklet:

PCP (OR ANGEL DUST)

"The boy woke up with a badly gashed hand. He found his mother in another room, stabbed to death. He had no memory of what had happened. But police said he had written on a wall with a red marking pen: 'I love my mother and didn't mean to kill her.'"

That is from the files of the New York police. They said the boy had smoked two 'nickel bags' of angel dust—phencyclidine, or PCP, also known as peace pills, white powder, superjoint, busy bee, hog, elephant tranquilizer, crystal and green tea.

By any name, it's a mind-destroyer, one of the deadliest drugs on the street. And, alarmingly, the most widely used among teenagers, who mistakenly think it's just another form of pot. It's not!

"That's the tragedy of the drug," says Dr. Mitchell Rosenthal, head of the Phoenix House drug rehabilitation program. "The country has gone soft on drugs, so kids think angel dust is not dangerous, that it's just a kind of super-joint. It's readily available and cheap. Many who sell it aren't aware of how dangerous it is."

Angel dust brings on hallucinations, paranoia and violence. There is evidence that those who use it might suffer long-term brain damage.

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for the woman whose husband had a habit of getting a little drunk on Saturday night and inviting everyone within earshot to come to his home on Sunday morning for Bloody Marys and brunch:

I ran into the same situation a number of years ago in Annapolis, Md.

We were at a club when Mr. B. started issuing invitations. Mrs. B. simply went to all within earshot and quietly inquired, "Have you seen my husband's calling card?" Then she handed us each one, upon which his name was in the usual place, but on the back it read: "Don't believe anything I say tonight unless you hear it from me in the morning!" We all had a quiet chuckle. No one's feelings were hurt, and Mrs. B. was off the hook!

Nuclear power abandonment leaves U.S. energy poor

Shutting down the nuclear plants that we have today would cause great economic trauma.

First of all, the 72 nuclear plants that are operating are saving the consumer about $4 billion every year—cash left in their pockets—because of the contribution being made by those plants. The consumers would have a problem if we shut down those plants.

Second of all, if we shut down that much of the nation's generating capacity, we may have great difficulty keeping the lights on and certainly there would be rotating blackouts in some parts of the nation. That would adversely impact your ability to have a job because it takes electricity to turn the wheels of industry.

And third, other sources of energy, such as solar, aren't here yet in massive quantities needed to fuel our economy. I hope it will come one day but it's not here yet and we can't burn our bridges until we learn a new way across the river.

We need massive efforts not only on solar energy, but on other alternative energy forms such as synthetic fuels, such as the breeder reactor, such as geothermal energy. We don't have the luxury of not pursuing any form of energy simply because we do not like it. We must pursue any of these forms that may have some practical application in the future.

Someday we may have a substantial contribution from solar energy. It would be a cruel hoax, however, on the public to stop developing energy sources we now know how to use in the hope that we could develop solar energy in time to provide substantial supply.

I think that society needs to grapple with whether or not we should build nuclear plants because there is some risk. In that grappling, I think that society will find that there is greater risk in other forms of energy than in nuclear and even greater risk in doing nothing, in having no energy.

There is some risk in everything that mankind does. There's a great risk in mining and transporting and burning coal. There's risk in oil. We have to import oil and there's risk in the pollutants that come from oil firing. There is a greater risk if we don't have enough energy. We must have more energy. The lowest risk there is, in my opinion, is nuclear energy.

I think nuclear plants offer society the minimum risk, certainly to bridge us into the next century when, hopefully, massive amounts of energy will be available from more exotic forms.

Mrs. Rhodes gives pecan program

Mrs. Zula Rhodes presented a program on storing shelled pecans to the Elbow Extension Homemakers Club at the Jan. 3 meeting in the home of Mrs. Joyce Soles.

"Pecans become rancid in two or three months unless properly frozen or canned," said Mrs. Rhodes. Freezing is the easiest way, but pecans may be canned in order to save space.

To can, heat well-cured shelled pecans in a shallow pan in a 250-300 degree oven for ten minutes. Pack into hot sterilized dry jars and seal. Process in pressure cooker at five pounds of pressure for ten minutes. Open pot cock and let steam out. Remove jars from cooker and allow to cool. Pecans may also be prepared as for freezing and pressure canning and water bathed. Covered with boiling water for 15 minutes, remove jars and cool.

Committee recommendations were read and approved for 1980 and year books were distributed.

The next business meeting will be Jan. 17 in the home of Mrs. Ross Hill.

Teen girls spend bundle

Boy, do girls spend money!

When teen-age girls went Christmas shopping last season, they spent an all-time high of $2 billion on gifts for family members and friends, says a recently released survey. This figure represents an almost 75 percent increase in Christmas spending from just five years ago. In 1974 it was reported that teen girls spent a more "modest" $1.15 billion on Christmas gifts.

Most of the money spent last holiday season was spent on the girls' families. Almost every teen girl gave a Christmas present to her mother and an average of $30 was spent on the gift. The three most popular presents for Mom last year were perfume, sweaters and blouses respectively.

Sport shirts, dress shirts and men's cologne topped the teen girls' Christmas list for Dad. The average amount spent for Dad's gift was a little less than for Mom's — $25.

Over 90 percent of the girls followed Santa Claus to their girlfriends last season with gifts valued at a quarter of a billion dollars. Teens wrapped more necklaces, chokers and chains than any other gift, followed by earrings and perfume. She spent an average of $17 for her girlfriend's gift.

Boyfriends certainly didn't go unnoticed last Christmas either, as girls dipped into their savings for "that special guy." In fact, the girls spent an average of $41 on their boyfriends' gifts ($30 on Mom and $25 on Dad). What did most of the lucky guys open on Christmas morn? Sweaters topped the list followed by sports shirts and men's cologne.

When teen girls opened their gifts over 10.5 million of them found sweaters. This was by far the most popular gift for a teen girl. Next popular was good old cash. Three out of every four girls received an average of $60 from family and friends.

Girls, if you haven't done your Christmas shopping yet at this late date, I hope this little essay will make choosing a gift easier, but realistically, I know it won't.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Microwave cooking helps food retain nutrients

Experts predict one out of every two U.S. households will hold a microwave oven within the next six years. These sophisticated machines can save you time, energy and trouble, and someday may even be able to "read" preparation codes on the food packages and turn themselves on and off. Many people wonder, however, about the nutritional value of the food these machines prepare.

There's good news in the answer to that. According to a report in a recent issue of The Professional Nutritionist magazine, published by Foremost-McKesson Foods Group, microwave cooking actually affects nutrients less than ordinary cooking methods.

Many vitamins dissolve in the water in which they're cooked. With a microwave, vegetables and other foods can be prepared with little or no water added, and so there's little or no leaching of nutrients.

The longer the preparation time, the greater the nutrient losses, and microwave cooking saves time. For retail-size packages of frozen foods, the microwave heating method is often better than the conventional method in terms of nutrients retained.

While there are many factors that affect microwave cooking and heating (size, shape, and quantity of the food product, and composition of the item as well as the initial and final temperature), the future of the device in the home and away from home, the Foremost magazine says, will certainly involve precise cooking control, and, with it, the optimizing of nutrient content in the foods served. Such cooking control can result in a greater percentage of available nutrients ingested — and presumably, a general improvement in nutritional well-being.

Steelers and Rams to meet in Super Bowl XIV

Pastorini: 'This WAS the Super Bowl as far as I'm concerned'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The controversial call stands, the gutsy Houston Oilers have fallen, and maybe the Pittsburgh Steelers should just list the Super Bowl on their schedule.

"This WAS the Super Bowl as far as I'm concerned. Pittsburgh is going and they're going to win," Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini said Sunday after he had a potential touchdown pass erased by the officials and Pittsburgh won the American Football Conference title game, 27-13.

The actual Super Bowl comes Jan. 20 in Pasadena, Calif., when first-time finalist Los Angeles meets a Pittsburgh team aiming for its fourth title in six years.

Can the Rams beat Pittsburgh? "Who knows? We haven't beaten them yet," said Terry Bradshaw, aware the Steelers are 0-3 against Los Angeles in the past decade.

Meanwhile, the question of whether Houston is the second best team in the game is a matter for debate — just like one of Pastorini's passes was until the referee settled things by way of the back judge, side judge and field judge.

"One thing for sure, the score stands," Steeler cornerback Ron Johnson said after the ruling that receiver Mike Renfro did not have control of the ball while inbounds on an apparent scoring pass.

The play came with Pittsburgh leading 17-10 in the third quarter of the title rematch between the two Central Division rivals.

"A TD would have changed the whole complexion of the game," said Renfro.

"There was clearly a lot of pressure on us at that point. They had gained the momentum," said Pittsburgh's Joe Greene.

Earlier, Bradshaw had a first-quarter pass stolen and returned 75 yards for a touchdown by safety Vernon Perry, who worked defensive magic in the Oilers' semifinal upset of San Diego.

Bradshaw countered with touchdown tosses to John Stallworth and Bennie Cunningham to give Pittsburgh a 17-10 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Houston had first down at the Steeler six and a chance to tie.

Pastorini lofted the ball to Renfro in the corner of the endzone. "We had you on that one," Pastorini later told Johnson.

Renfro leaped and grabbed. He had the ball as he tumbled beyond the endline. "I thought right away that he was out of bounds," said Johnson.

"I knew I was very close," said Renfro.

Line judge Donald Orr did not signal touchdown. Renfro jumped up to appeal. Orr signalled an incompletion.

After a conference among the officials, referee Jim Tunney upheld the ruling. He cited Orr's claim that Renfro was juggling the ball as he went out. Replays showed Renfro touched both feet inbounds, but they did not reveal whether he juggled the ball.

"He did not have possession," said Tunney.

The Oilers settled for a field goal, and Pittsburgh put the game away with a 10-point fourth quarter.

Bradshaw watched the Renfro play from the sideline.

"When I first saw it, I thought it was a touchdown," Bradshaw said. "But I didn't care. If they scored, we were gonna score again. They had to stop us — and they didn't."

On their first drive of the fourth quarter, the Steelers moved 55 yards before Matt Bahr kicked a 39-yard field goal. After Guido Merkens fumbled on the next Oiler series, Pittsburgh went 45 yards for a touchdown that came on a 4-yard run by Rocky Bleier with 54 seconds left.

The Oilers never threatened after the Renfro call.

"That was the key play right there," said Pastorini. "A touchdown there might have turned things around."

But Oiler Coach Bum Phillips didn't complain, just as he didn't here last year when Houston lost 34-5 to Pittsburgh in the same title game played in freezing rain.

"Even after I look at the films, I'm not going to blame the officials," he said. "They're human. We had 59 other minutes in the game to beat Pittsburgh and we didn't."

Pittsburgh held NFL-rushing leader Earl Campbell to 15 net yards on 17 rushes. He had just two net yards in the first half.

"I think the two best teams in the National Football League went at it today, no doubt about that," said Campbell, who sat out the previous week with a groin pull.

The Rams will have something to say about that.

"A lot of people have a tendency to say the Super Bowl was today," said Bleier. "That means there will be added pressure on the Steelers because we go in with a no-win situation. We're supposed to win."

Greene's view: "Getting there is not our goal ... if we're not successful in the Super Bowl — it was all for nothing."

Meanwhile, Greene admitted the taste of victory had been tainted by the controversial call.

"I was hoping it was a correct call, but I asked after the game and I was told ..."

Greene said, his voice trailing off.

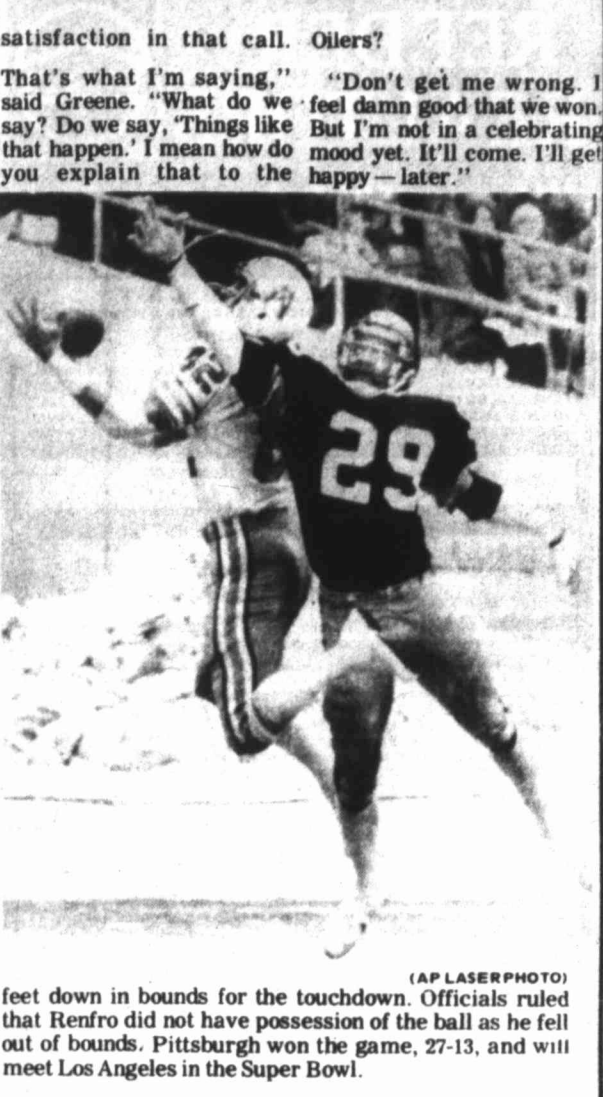

He didn't say who he asked but the inference was that he had been told the decision was in error.

"I can't take any satisfaction in that call. Oiler?

"That's what I'm saying," said Greene. "What do we say? Do we say 'Things like that happen.' I mean how do you explain that to the

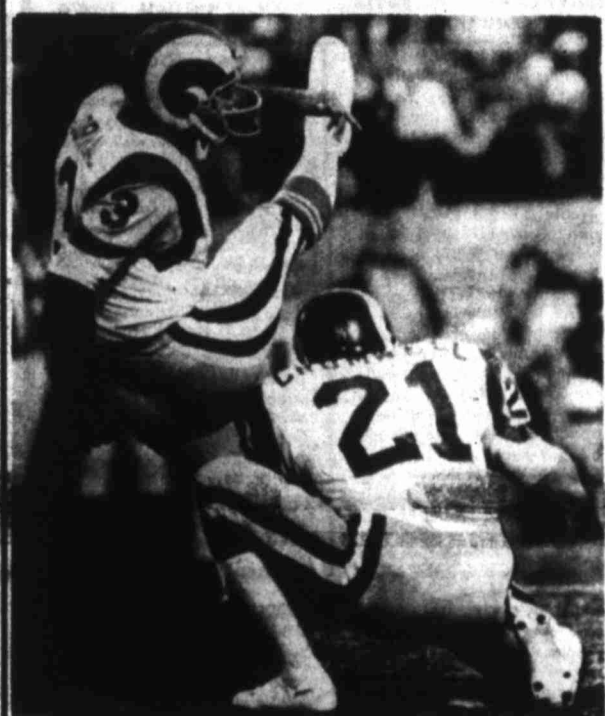

"Don't get me wrong. I feel damn good that we won. But I'm not in a celebrating mood yet. It'll come. I'll get happy — later."

feet down in bounds for the touchdown. Officials ruled that Renfro did not have possession of the ball as he fell out of bounds. Pittsburgh won the game, 27-13, and will meet Los Angeles in the Super Bowl.

Bucs' bubble bursts, Rams end six years of frustration

THREE MORE POINTS COMING UP — Frank Corral (3) of the Los Angeles Rams, kicks his third and final field goal Sunday in Tampa against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The battered Los Angeles Rams praised the Lord, passed the gauze and didn't stop until they had ended six years of frustration, leaving the Tampa Bay Buccaneers tending to their wounds at the end of a Cinderella season.

The upstart Bucs, who made it to their first National Football Conference title game with the same starting lineup that opened the season, lost all-Pro defensive end Lee Roy Selmon and linebacker Cecil Johnson to ankle injuries, quarterback Doug Williams with a torn knee and defensive end Wally Chambers with a knee injury during a 9-0 loss to the Rams Sunday.

Severe injuries weren't enough to stop the inspired Rams.

"It's hard to conceive what we've accomplished here today," said end Jack Youngblood, who played despite a hairline fracture in his left leg.

"That's the most injuries we've had all year, but I would just say the Rams out-hit us," Bucs' Coach John McKay said. "We tried to knock a couple of them out, but they'd limp out and limp back in."

Placekicker Frank Corral booted second-quarter field goals of 19 and 21 yards and a fourth-quarter clincher of 23 yards — despite a hamstring pull suffered in his kicking leg last week. Halfback Wendell Tyler, who gained 86 yards rushing on 28 carries, played despite twisting a knee that underwent surgery last year.

"All year, everybody's been playing injured on this team. We've got a lot of guys who are going to need operations when this is over," said linebacker Rich Saul, who climbed out of a hospital bed with a raging fever the previous week to play in the Rams' 21-19 upset of Dallas.

The Rams, shedding themselves of a hard-luck chokers' image that dogged them through playoff losses the last six seasons, were subdued after the game.

"We've had so much frustration," Saul said. "We've had great teams who couldn't do it. Nobody thought this team had a chance, but we kept the faith in the Lord, and we feel he showed us what we should have realized before — that we couldn't do it on our own."

"The Lord wanted us to win," said wide receiver Preston Dennard. "In all those past years, he was just testing us. Today, he gave us our reward."

Youngblood sucked in breath sharply as he maneuvered through the locker room. Grimacing with pain, he said: "I think it's the type of thing where if you're strong enough you can block it out. I honestly believe the good Lord blessed me with some kind of healing power that let me play today."

"When you see Jack Youngblood making those big plays, it helps us. He just plays as long and as hard as he could," defensive tackle

Larry Brooks said as he watched Youngblood hobbling.

With 72,033 Buc fans chanting and roaring against them, the Rams put together offensive drive after drive, only to fall short.

Third-year quarterback Vince Ferragamo, displaying veteran poise, hit Dennard for a 35-yard gain to the Tampa Bay 4 to set up a first-and-goal late in the first quarter, but the Rams settled for Corral's 19-yard field goal.

Late in the second quarter, Ferragamo hit four straight passes to move to first down at the Bucs' 13, but again settled for a Corral field goal.

But while their offense struggled, the Rams defense bottled up the running of hard-charging Bucs' fullback Ricky Bell and kept up the pressure on Williams, who completed only two of 13 passes before leaving the game in the third quarter with his arm injury.

"We said, 'They are not going to run on us,'" said linebacker Jim Youngblood. "And you couldn't have a better exhibition of pass coverage."

"We just kept turning the screws, turning the screws, bearing down, stopping the one play at a time," said Jack Youngblood.

Early in the third quarter, an apparent 20-yard touchdown pass from Ferragamo to Dennard was wiped out by an official's ruling that Dennard was out of bounds, and Corral missed a 37-yard field goal attempt on the next play.

On the Bucs' next series, Williams was injured when tackle Mike Panning hit him as he threw, and he joined Selmon, Chambers and Johnson on the Bucs' sideline.

Reserve quarterback Mike Rae completed just one of his first five passes and was sacked by Fanning on the next two series. Gains of 13 yards by Tyler and 12 by Cullen Bryant around a 15-yard Ferragamo completion to tight end Terry Nelson set up Corral's clinching 23-yard field goal with 8:09 left in the game.

McKay continued to defend Williams, who was under fire at several times during an up-and-down season.

"I don't think he was so ineffective," McKay said.

Sands beats Eula

Both Sands Boys' and Girls' Varsity Basketball Teams topped Eula during competition in Ackerly, Saturday.

The girls stomped their foes, 62-34, with Penny Grantham leading the scoring with 21 points. She was followed by Karla Nichols with 10.

Jo Ray was top scorer for Eula with 10. This gives the Sands girls a 15-4 record for the season, while Eula dropped to 8-8.

The boys won their match, 72-60, with David Long leading the scoring drive with 23 points. Bill Wington and Frank Garfias followed with 11 apiece.

Jimmy Davis was high man for Eula with 17 points. This game gives the Sands boys a 16-2 record for the year, while Eula dropped to 14-4.

Sands will enter district play with a 5 o'clock game Tuesday night at Wellman.

Head coach named

MIDLAND — Pat Culpepper, former All-American linebacker for the University of Texas at Austin, has been named head football coach at Midland High School.

Culpepper has been head coach at Northern Illinois University since 1976. He has been a coach for 17 years.

Culpepper's four-year record at Northern Illinois was 14-29 but showed improvement every year since the first, when NIU won only one of 11 starts.

Bill Mallory, former head coach of the University of Colorado, was named to succeed Culpepper at Northern Illinois. Culpepper was relieved of his duties in December.

Culpepper will succeed Dennis Hays as head coach at Midland High. Culpepper's starting salary will be $30,000 annually.

Gilbert Bartosh, the head coach at Midland Lee last year, and now director of athletics of the Midland schools, said his successor at Lee would be named sometime this week.

Weekend NBA action

By The Associated Press

The New Jersey Nets got Mike Newlin for a second-round draft pick and $25,000. Boy, what a steal.

Since moving from Houston this year, Newlin has become the heart of the Nets' offense, once scoring 52 points and six times going over 30.

It was another one of his high-powered games Sunday night, when Newlin scored 34 points to pace the Nets to a 108-100 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"I always know I can do it in the fourth quarter," said Newlin after putting in eight of his points in the last period to hold off a Cleveland surge. "I can be missing the whole game and still feel confident I can make the shots in the fourth quarter."

The key to the game was obvious to Cleveland Coach Stan Albeck.

"It was out inability to control Mike Newlin," said Albeck. "He's a great basketball player and the key to their team. If he gets off and cooking, he gets the whole team going. He got off tonight and then made the clutch baskets. We had our chances and couldn't get over the hump."

In other NBA games, Milwaukee defeated Los Angeles 113-103; San Diego edged Seattle 105-103; Kansas City turned back Denver 120-101 and Portland stopped Detroit 119-102.

Bucks 113, Lakers 103

Trailing by 19 points less than two minutes before halftime, Milwaukee stormed back behind Brian Winters, Dave Meyers and Marques Johnson to beat Los Angeles.

Meyers put in 21 of his 28 points in the second half, Winters 11 of his 25 and Johnson 19 of his 25 as the Bucks broke the Lakers' four-game winning streak.

Clippers 105, Sonics 103

Brian Taylor's short jump shot with 2:54 remaining put San Diego ahead and the Clippers went on to a tight victory over Seattle.

Taylor's shot broke a 101-101 tie and Lloyd Free gave San Diego a four-point advantage 21 seconds later with a layup. The Clippers didn't score after that, but Seattle could manage only a pair of free throws by Dennis Johnson with 59 seconds to go.

Kings 120, Nuggets 101

Bill Robinson came off the bench to score 14 points and grab 12 rebounds, leading Kansas City over Denver. The Nuggets, losing a road game for the 11th straight time, were playing without two of their normal starters, George McGinnis and Charles Scott.

"You just can't wish Scott or McGinnis is here or that Kim Hughes' back is going to get better," said Denver Coach Donnie Walsh, not wishing to feel sorry for himself. "Everybody should be ready to play. You can't talk about hardships."

Blazers 119, Pistons 102

Ron Brewer and Maurice Lucas led a third-quarter surge to help Portland beat Detroit. Brewer, who led Portland's scoring with 28 points, contributed 10 points as the Trail Blazers outscored the Pistons 37-16 in the third quarter.

Lucas totaled 17 points for Portland, seven of them in the third period, as the Trail Blazers took their third victory in four games.

Baseball war beginning

BOSTON (AP) — Spring training is only eight weeks away, but major league owners and the Players Association are locked in a cold war over a new basic agreement.

A memo outlining initial demands by the owners and the players, and made available to The Associated Press, indicates the two sides are about as far apart as the United States and Russia.

Imagine a player such as Claudell Washington earning the same pay as sluggers Jim Rice and Fred Lynn for their first five years in the major leagues?

That's one of the owners' proposals.

Imagine players with the right to demand to be traded after just three years with a club?

That's one of the players' demands.

Initial demands in labor negotiations often are exaggerated, but some by both club owners and the players this time around appear preposterous.

The owners have built a war chest, reportedly about $1.5 million. And the association, led by hard-nosed negotiator Marvin Miller, is showing no fear, determined to add to the many concessions obtained at the bargaining table in the 1970s.

No one in baseball wants to talk about a strike, such as in 1972, or a lockout, but more than a few club executives are worried about a possible shutdown of spring training camps unless progress is made in negotiations.

Miller told The AP in a telephone interview that the 12-page memo he sent to the union's members, generally is a report on a meeting of the association's executive board Dec. 4-5 in New York while baseball held its annual winter meeting in Toronto.

"The minutes were mailed to about 1,000 association members," Miller said.

Snyder Gold in the second round, 47-41. Johnson led the scoring list with 16, followed by Wrightsil, 14; Williams, 10; Brown, 4; and Ford, 3.

Bollinger was high-pointer for Snyder with 18.

In the consolation match, the Reds trounced Snyder Black, 32-12. High-pointers included: Williams, 10; Johnson, 8; Wright, 5; Brown, 4; Aldridge, 4; Ford, 2; Tal Logback, 2; Roddy Fair, 1.

This gives Runnels a 5-3 record for the season. They will go up against Snyder Black here, 5:30 p.m. today.

Red vs. Black today

The Runnels Junior High Red Basketball Team took home the consolation trophy from the weekend tourney in Lamesa.

The Red team fell to Levelland, 41-28, in first-round action. Leading scorers in that game were Jerry Wrightsil and Juan Williams with eight apiece.

They were followed by Mark Johnson and Jimmy Brown with four apiece, and Blake Ford and Elighat Aldridge each with a pair.

Bailey was top point-getter for Levelland with 13.

The Reds went on to top

Snyder Gold in the second round, 47-41. Johnson led the scoring list with 16, followed by Wrightsil, 14; Williams, 10; Brown, 4; and Ford, 3.

Three men charged with indecency

Kiddie porn ring uncovered

HOUSTON (AP) — The parents of half a dozen young boys were surprised to discover the three men who gave their children candy and took them to ballgames also paid them to pose for nude photographs, according to police.

"There could be another 100 kids involved as far as we know," said juvenile officer John Freeman, after officers questioned six boys aged 9 to 14.

Charges of indecency with a child were filed Saturday against Golden Preston Hatcher, 54; Frederick Keller, 34; and Jon J. Johansen, 64.

Bond for Hatcher and Keller was set at $35,000 apiece. Johansen, whose bond was set at $30,000, was still being sought late Sunday.

Officers said they arrested Hatcher early Saturday in his apartment, where they found photographic equipment and pictures of nude children, plus jars filled with candy, cookies and "anything a kid would like to have," according to Sgt. R.R. Benestante.

Keller was arrested about 30 minutes later as he drove into Hatcher's driveway with three boys he had taken to a wrestling match.

Benestante said the men would approach disadvantaged children, offering them entertainment their parents often could not afford, such as trips to the movies and to sporting events.

The men often received parents' permission to keep the boys overnight after taking them out, police said. The investigation began, officers said, after a woman called police when she became worried after talking to her son.

Benestante said the parents of the children were "very surprised" that a man they had known for three years had been accused of abusing children.

Police said the boys were paid from $5 to $15 for posing for the photographs. "Psychologically, the kids liked this guy (Hatcher)," Benestante said. "He is a likable fellow. But they didn't know what was going on."

'Battle for Britain' raging among airlines

MIAMI (AP) — A new "Battle for Britain" is raging among 10 U.S. airlines. To the victor will go the lucrative air route between Miami and London, now served by National Airlines.

National, however, is merging with Pan American World Airways, effective today, and a condition for approval of the merger was that it surrender its busy Miami-London flight.

Air Florida, American, Braniff, Delta, Eastern, Republic, Trans World Airlines, Western and World Airways have jumped into the fray, claiming they could best serve the route.

But Pan Am and National — which when merged will be known simply as Pan Am — say they won't give up the route without a fight.

Pan Am formally applied to take it over, saying the National route was one of the reasons it sought the merger. National employees pooled resources to buy full page newspaper advertisements and went to Washington to lobby for their cause.

Air Florida, meanwhile, launched its own campaign for the route and says it will undersell all competitors. As part of its effort, Air Florida has introduced bumper stickers, buttons and other paraphernalia exhorting Floridians to join the "Battle for Britain."

Air Florida's effort got a boost Friday when a staff bureau within the Civil Aeronautics Board — the Bureau of International Aviation — filed a brief in Washington favoring that airline for the route.

The brief, which makes the bureau a party to the case, said four carriers — Air Florida, Delta, Eastern, Western and World — each would provide "substantial benefits" to consumers if given the route. But it gave preference to Air Florida, with Eastern ranked second.

CAB spokesman Alan Pollock said the brief would play a minor role in deciding the route case, because other bureaus are expected to file recommendations as well.

Air Florida chairman C. Edward Acker said his company would offer "unrestricted, low cost air transportation" if it wins the route. The proposed Air Florida "unrestricted one-way fare" is $184.

National's current standard economy class fare between Miami and London is $365 one way. Its round-trip "super APEX" fare is $452.

Eastern says it will offer economy one-way fares ranging from as low as $99 up to $199, depending on the day of the week and the season. But Eastern officials say rising fuel prices may force these prices up by the time any fares are formally approved.

Daily, early evening flights to London are now flown by National and British Airways; an international treaty limits service on such routes to one airline from each country. But recent deregulation of American air service has allowed smaller carriers to expand, to grow richer and — now that the U.S. slot is up for grabs — to think big.

"Before deregulation, companies like Air Florida wouldn't even consider getting into such a big case," said Ted Lopatkiewicz, a CAB spokesman. "Now the board is more liberal in spreading international awards around."

Specific figures on the Miami-London route's profitability are not available. But National and Pan Am officials say overseas operations account for 22 percent of National's total profit — and Miami-London provides a large share of it.

"Miami-London is a major contributor to National's overall profitability and our commitments have been based on the benefits expected from the entire merger, including this route," says Pan Am Chairman William Seawell.

"We've done a good job in developing Miami-London and we deserve to keep it," said J. Dan Brock, National's international vice president. "And morally, it's part of the (National) property. . . . Pan Am went into the purchase in good faith and the route was part of National and should go with the company."

Eastern disagrees.

"The CAB said very strongly, when they approved the merger, that if the Miami-London route was left intact, the CAB would turn down the merger," said Morton Ehrlich, Eastern's senior vice president for planning.

Names in the news

PRINCESS MARGARET ALI MCGRAW

Princess returns home

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret has returned home to Kensington Palace after a six-day stay at the exclusive London Clinic for surgical removal of a skin lesion.

Royal sources said the surgery probably was largely cosmetic as the lesion, which could have been a wart, cyst, mole or abscess, was not malignant.

The 49-year-old, divorced sister of Queen Elizabeth II canceled her official engagements for the rest of January.

Tito consults specialist

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavian President Josip Broz Tito has consulted American heart specialist Dr. Michael De Bakey and a high-ranking Soviet physician about treatment of a vascular problem in his legs, the state news agency Tanjug said.

Tito, 87, met Sunday with De Bakey and Dr. Marat Knyazhev after two days of examinations at a hospital, Tanjug said.

The condition has never been officially described, but Tito's eight-member panel of doctors said it would require "intensive treatment."

Knyazhev is one of the Soviet Union's leading specialists on cardiac and circulatory medicine and works for Prof. Boris Petrovsky, a top Soviet cardiac expert, Moscow sources said.

De Bakey, 71, is a leading U.S. heart surgeon and a professor at Baylor University Medical School in Houston. He once performed open heart surgery live on Yugoslav television. He holds a decoration presented by Tito for help in developing cardiovascular surgery here.

De Bakey, who operated on the Duke of Windsor in 1964 to remove an aneurysm, has had close ties with foreign medical establishments since the late 1950s and is an honorary member of the Soviet Academy of Medicine.

'Workout' for Era

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — It was caelesthenics, champagne and contributions for actresses Kate Jackson, Tina Louise, Ali McGraw and 40 other supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment at Jane Fonda's posh exercise salon, "Workout."

The hour's worth of caelesthenics were for health and beauty, the champagne was served with brunch and all attending were asked to cough up $100 donations to the ERA coffers of the National Organization for Women and the National Women's Political Caucus.

Spokeswoman Mary Kushner said Ms. Fonda, who regularly leads a 6 a.m. class on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and an 8 a.m. Saturday class, led the star-studded group through its paces before a crowd of reporters, photographers and cameramen.

Attorneys selecting witches' trial panel

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Two years of tension have ended for Loy Dean and Louise Stone, self-proclaimed witches accused of the Halloween 1977 slaying of a Dimmitt teen-age girl.

Attorneys for both sides began the grueling process today of selecting a panel to hear the case from more than 200 persons subpoenaed as possible jurors.

The trial was moved to Plainview, 43 miles away, after 15 of 16 witnesses told a state district judge the Stones would not get a fair trial in Dimmitt, a sleepy Panhandle town that has been shrouded in tension since the fatal Oct. 31, 1977 night when 15-year-old Roxanne Casas was slain.

Sheriff Granville Martin said some of the witnesses "got scared" and left the area. But after two delays, prosecutors managed to round up most of them, including Arthur Herrera, the driver of the pickup in which Miss Casas was killed.

Nearly 50 persons have been subpoenaed to testify, and defense attorneys James Doores and Travis Shelton predicted the trial would last at least two weeks.

Herrera, Miss Casas and the three other teen-agers in the car cruised past the Stones' house on Easter Road, a few miles outside town.

Two weeks before Halloween, the Stones appeared on an Amarillo television station to announce a witchcraft seminar. On that Halloween night, traffic on Easter Road was thick with horn-bonking, yelling teenagers.

The sheriff already had been called to the Stones' house once that night to chase away carloads of teenagers.

But Martin already had left when Herrera and his passengers drove into the Stones' gravel driveway, past a concrete block wellhouse.

The pickup was turning around in the driveway when two shotgun blasts hit the bed of the truck and the passenger window, striking Roxanne, Maria Trevino, 15, and Carlos Garza, 18.

Herrera and 15-year-old Andriana Rangel, another passenger in the vehicle, were not injured.

About an hour later,

Two men being sought for slaying in Hale

HALE CENTER — Two people are being sought for questioning in connection with the shooting death of a Plainview woman, whose body was found lying by the side of a dirt road about five miles north of here the past weekend.

The victim was identified as Faye Hawkins, 40, of Plainview. Two hunters from Lubbock discovered the body about 10:30 a.m., Sunday. Hale County authorities believe the woman was kidnapped, possibly raped and then killed sometime around 3:30 a.m., Sunday.

An autopsy was to be performed on the body at a Lubbock hospital sometime today. The suspects are described as being Mexican-American men, possibly armed with a .410 pump shotgun and driving a 1972 Green Chevrolet Impala.

Hale County officers believed the woman's death is connected with the shooting of Donald Ray Malone, 32, of Hale Center, which occurred about 3 a.m., Sunday about 13 miles northwest of Plainview. The woman reportedly was with Malone when he was shot. Malone suffered superficial wounds. Mrs. Hawkins is survived by three sons, her mother, three brothers and two sisters.

'Born Free' author murdered?

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Kenyan police announced today they believe Joy Adamson, the conservationist-author of "Born Free," was murdered and are questioning three persons about her death last week.

Commissioner of Police Bengethi said in a statement that the death of Mrs. Adamson is being treated as a murder case following new information on the circumstances surrounding the death. He gave no details.

The 69-year-old Austrian naturalist, a longtime resident of Kenya, was killed Thursday night in the Shaba Game Reserve about 175 miles north of Nairobi. She was taking a walk outside her tent camp, where she was conducting experiments on leopard behavior.

First reports from police and her co-workers indicated she was mauled and killed by a lion. But the Sunday Standard newspaper reported the police reopened their investigation after receiving reports that there was little blood at the site where Mrs. Adamson was reported killed, that there were no claw marks on her body and that her car had been stolen.

President Daniel Arap Moi ordered a full investigation into the death, and police officials returned to the isolated camp Saturday.

The body was brought to Nairobi, and a post-mortem examination was made on Saturday. The results were to be made public later today.

Mrs. Adamson and her husband George, a retired game warden, were best known for their work in the rehabilitation of wild animals by taking a tame female, gradually returning it to the wild, breeding it to produce a litter and observing the animal's relations with them and with wild animals.

Boston bans vehicles carrying explosives

BOSTON (AP) — A new city ordinance has banned vehicles carrying many explosive and poisonous cargoes from traveling through the city, unless they have local business.

Mayor Kevin H. White signed the ordinance Saturday. The new law bans loads including liquefied natural gas, propane gas, dynamite and some poisonous gases.

But Robert Nash, vice president of the Massachusetts Motor Truck Association said he would appeal the ban to the federal Department of Transportation. "It's a horrendous law," he said.
