General rain dumps up to 4.5 inches in county

The first significant cold front of the fall provided needed rainfall over all of Scurry County — amounts ranging from 2 to 4.5 inches.

Showers which began around noon Tuesday continued through the afternoon and night. By Wednesday morning, the falling moisture was reduced to a drizzle, however.

Along with the rain, temperatures here dipped to 44 degrees overnight and remained chilly Wednesday morning.

Lake J.B. Thomas was expected to benefit somewhat from the Tuesday rain, but the immediate prediction was the lake level would not go up substantially.

Officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District said Wednesday morning that the river leading into the lake was running "about a foot deep." There guess was the lake level would not rise beyond 1 ft. from the rains.

The lake's level is now set at 2,216 ft. — the third lowest in the more than 30-year history of the lake.

The rain total at the lake was 2.75 inches.

In Snyder, the official total was 2.05 inches, upping the year's total to 9.48 inches. The outlook for the Snyder area was for 30 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms Wednesday night.

The highest rain amounts Tuesday night were recorded north of the city. Some 8 miles out, a rain gauge total of 4.5 inches was reported.

Fluvanna weather watchers also noted some 3.4 inches of moisture. Rain amounts appeared to dwindle the further south from Snyder.

Select rain totals from around the county include:

—Eight miles north of Snyder: 4.5 inches.

—Polar (Kent County): 3.4 inches.

—1½ miles west of Snyder: 3 inches.

—Lake Thomas Lodge: 2.75 inches.

—Hermleigh, 2.50 inches.

—Ira: 2.50 inches.

—Nine miles east of Snyder: 2.25 inches.

—One half mile west of Dunn: 2 inches.

Defense budget at hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sparked by President Reagan's retreat on MX missile production, Congress appears ready to enact a compromise defense budget of $292.9 billion, more than $21 billion under his original request.

House and Senate negotiators, after working nearly round the clock, settled Tuesday on a defense authorization bill that resolved 1,200 disputes between the chambers, ranging from weapons systems to education benefits and pay. A companion appropriations bill is now being readied to complete the package.

The spending total amounts to a 5 percent "real" — or inflation-adjusted — increase for the Pentagon. Reagan, at first, sought 13 percent, then came down to 7.5 percent before retreating yet again under terms of a preliminary settlement worked out last week by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

House Armed Services Chairman Melvin Price, D-Ill., said the final product, which yet must be approved on the floors of the House and Senate, reflects a consensus "that national security imperatives require real growth in the defense budget, but that the size of the deficit does not permit ... the degree requested" by the president.

Price's counterpart in the Senate, Republican John Tower of Texas, said "budget constraints forced adjustments to be made on a number of programs, but overall, the momentum of the strategic modernization program was sustained."

Reagan's biggest concession was on the MX. The compromise legislation will bar any further production of the 10-warhead weapon, the centerpiece of Reagan's strategic buildup, pending two go-ahead votes by each chamber next April. Failure to win any of those four votes would doom the missile, and opponents in both chambers, who demanded the complicated parliamentary procedure, say it's all but dead now.

KICK-OFF AND COUNTING — United Way workers are hoping for a quick completion of their drive this year, an effort which officially kicked-off at a noon luncheon Tuesday. More than one-third of the $75,830 effort has already been reached, thanks in part to the Pacesetter Division headed by Dr. Don Newbury. During the luncheon, the WTC president was presented a plaque honoring his effort by Drive Chairman Roy McQueen (left). United Way workers will be distributing campaign donor packets all this week. Drive kicks-off Tuesday...

United Way seeks quick completion

Backed by sufficent drive dollars to make this year's effort more than one-third complete, United Way workers Tuesday were urged to quickly push the 1984 goal "over the top."

Dr. Don Newbury, keynote speaker and the United Way volunteer credited with the success of the drive's opening Pacesetter division, likened the campaign to the slogan for this year's Snyder Tiger football team, "Loyal to Effort."

As another incentive to drive workers, he pointed to the main recipients of United Way dollars, calling them "the special interest group we all agree on — our kids."

Of the $75,830 total campaign goal, some $65,000 goes to aid the young. This includes such agencies as the Boy's Club, Boy Scouts, Snyder Child Day Care Center, Girl Scouts and the Oil Patch Foster Parents Association.

Other United Way agencies include the Salvation Army, Red Cross and the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Representatives from the various agencies were special guests at Tuesday's kickoff luncheon, attended by approximately 120 individuals.

The event at the Snyder Country Club began at approximately the same time as a cold front moved through the area accompanied by rain showers.

Refering to the rainfall, Newbury said, "I can't think of a better way to start the drive."

During his portion of the program, he recognized the 18 local businesses and industries which contributed more than $25,000 toward the Pacesetter division. These included First Federal Savings, Snyder Savings & Loan, Snyder National Bank, West Texas State Bank, Weaver Services Inc., Calley and Fowler Production, Patterson Petroleum Inc., Mobil Producing, Consolidated Tool and Supply, Sun Exploration and Production,

"The feller on Deep Creek says, "The person who can't figure out what to do with a Sunday afternoon is often the same one who can't wait for retirement."

We loved the story and we wrestled with the problem of how to repeat it in a family newspaper.

If you don't think school teachers earn their money, consider a young man who doesn't want to be at school but is forced to be there. This was the case last week, and the junior high youngster has had his share of adjustment problems.

Class was underway when the youngster rose from his desk and bolted out the door. The astonished teacher followed to see what was going on.

"What are you doing?" the teacher asked that or a similar question.

The youngster's crude answer was shocking. He explained that he had to expel gas, but his description was in a much more common and slang manner.

The teacher pointed him back to the classroom with the instructions that in the future he should raise his hand and asked to be excused.

A little later, the same youth raised his hand and caught the teacher's attention. His request, however, used the same slang four-letter word that describes relief.

Now the class is aware and giggling, so the teacher excused the student. Instead of going to the wash room, he stepped just outside the door. His action disrupted the class so that the teacher sent him to the principal's office.

Later in the day, the same disinterested youngster was observed with his head on his desk.

"What's wrong now?" one of the staffers asked.

"He's run out of gas!"

Bill Emerson, local barber, tells this one on himself.

He says a customer with only one arm came in recently for a shave. During the process, Emerson knicked him a couple of times.

When the shave was finished, Emerson apologized and attempted to strike up a conversation with the man.

"Have you been in my shop before?" Emerson inquired.

"Naw," said the customer, "I lost my arm in an oilfield accident."

SCAT shuffles channels

Officials for SCAT cable TV reported Tuesday a recent shuffling of channels on the system, to include moving one channel previously located on the "premium" side into the base service.

Subscribers for the base service now have the Atlanta "Super Station" WTBS on Channel 4 — a channel which previously carried a UPI wire service readout.

The premium service — which subscribers pay an additional monthly fee for — will now add the USA Network in place of the WTBS slot. It features a substantial library of old and recent movies plus sports and children's programing.

The wire service channel is to be returned to the cable also.

Q. — Why wasn't the Hugh Taylor Award announced with the rest of the Scurry County Fair results?

A. — Points which contribute to the award could not be totaled until all the fair results were first finalized. The tabulations were complete as of Wednesday morning, but officials were still trying to contact the winner.

In Brief

Bomb blast

NEW YORK (AP) — Two bombs exploded early Wednesday at an office building in mid-Manhattan that houses the South African Consulate among other tenants, police said.

The blast occurred at 12:23 a.m. Wednesday, according to police Sgt. Eddie LeSchack. He said one bomb exploded in the basement of the building and one on the 12th floor. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

LeSchack said it was believed the South African Consulate was housed on the 12th floor.

The extent of damage was not immediately known, the sergeant said.

Stab inmate

ROSHARON, Texas (AP) — A 27-year-old inmate at the Texas Department of Corrections Ramsey II unit is in good condition today after he was cut with a piece of glass during an argument with another prisoner, a prison spokesman said.

David Summerville, serving a lifetime sentence for rape, received cuts above the right ear, on the left and right sides of his chest and in the left forearm during the attack, which occurred about 11:20 p.m. Tuesday, said TDC spokesman Charles Brown.

Summerville was taken to Angleton-Danbury Hospital, Brown said, and later transferred back to the unit where he was listed in good condition today.

Brown said he did not know how the suspect obtained the piece of glass.

Boy found

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Game warden Dale Evans said 4-year-old Michael Jones was covered with mud and wearing only his underwear when he spotted the boy, unharmed, beside a creek about five miles from his parents' ranch house in rural Taylor County.

"He was mud from head-to-foot when we carried him out, and so was I," Evans told the Abilene Reporter-News Tuesday night.

The boy, son of David Jones, president of Pride Refining Co, wandered away about 2 p.m. Tuesday from the Jones' ranch house on Farm Road 89, about 1½ mile from Buffalo Gap, a community about 10 miles south of Abilene.

Congressman questions farm credit motive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A skeptical House panel, reacting to President Reagan's farm credit relief announcement, says farmers could have had help a year ago — if the administration had not turned down congressional initiatives.

"That the administration chose to announce a new credit program weeks before an election strikes me as a bit cynical," said Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., chairman of the Agriculture credit subcommittee.

"I have been particularly displeased with the administration's opposition to emergency credit legislation ... passed by the previous Congress and the current one by overwhelming bipartisan margins."

Jones referred to two bills that would have provided for rescheduling of government farm loans to producers in financial difficulty, similar to a provision in the credit relief package Reagan offered last week.

"Had either of these bills been enacted in a timely fashion, thousands of farmers would still be in business who have now been liquidated," Jones told Agriculture Undersecretary Frank Naylor and Farmers Home Administration chief Charles Shuman.

Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., questioned Naylor about how many farmers actually would get help under the announced program, which also includes $630 million to help guarantee existing commercial farm loans. Naylor said it will be a small fraction of the 20,000 or so farmers now in serious financial trouble, but said he could not be more specific.

"How do we know, Mr. Naylor, that this isn't symbolic or token?" he asked, reflecting the skepticism of the Democrats who dominate the panel.

Naylor replied that the credit package was "the most extensively developed program I've ever participated in" and was drafted by the best minds in the banking and farm sectors.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., called the package similar to "a lot of things this committee tried to plead and cajole you to do these past couple of years. It looks like you've done a 360-degree turnaround."

But Naylor defended the timing of Reagan's announcement, saying credit help was only recently made necessary because of drought conditions this summer that will deal a blow to heavily leveraged farmers.

Ceremony ends rule by British

PEKING (AP) — China and Britain today initialed a historic agreement that will put Hong Kong, the world's third largest financial center and Asia's busiest port, under Communist China's control on July 1, 1997.

The end of a century and a half of British colonial rule of the thriving capitalist port of 5.5 million people was signaled by a formal half-hour ceremony in the Great Hall of the People at Peking's Tiananmen Square.

Britain's chief negotiator termed it a "solemn" event, while his Chinese counterpart said it was "worth celebrating."

The agreement follows two years of hard bargaining in which Britain at first refused to concede sovereignty, and then sought a residual administrative role after the expiration of its 99-year lease on the so-called New Territories — 92 percent of the colony.

After 22 rounds of negotiations in Peking, Britain agreed to hand over all of the colony to China, including Hong Kong Island and Kowloon peninsula, which were ceded to Britain under the Opium War treaties of 1842 and 1860.

In exchange, Britain obtained assurances that Hong Kong would remain largely self-governing and retain its traditional freedoms and socio-economic system for 50 years after 1997.

Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping has boasted that no nation in history has so generously adopted a "one country, two systems" policy within its borders, a plan it also offers the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan.

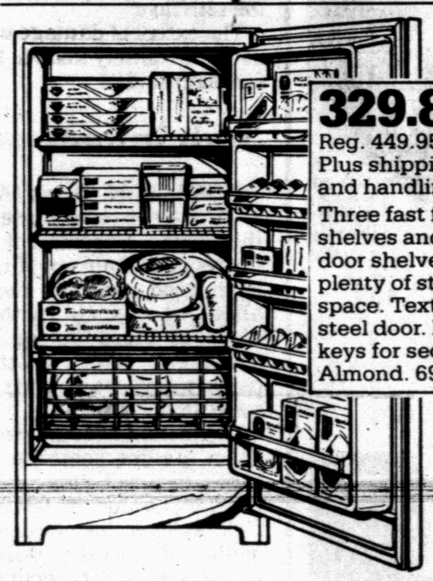

In Taiwan, the Foreign Ministry said the Nationalist government would refuse to recognize the draft agreement.The Nationalists, who retreated to Taiwan from the Chinese mainland in 1949 after their defeat by the Communists, maintain that they are China's legitimate government and that Hong Kong's future should have been negotiated between them and Britain.

Book Review

20th CENTURY JOURNEY, A MEMOIR OF A LIFE & TIMES: The Nightmare Years, 1930-1940. By William L. Shirer. Little & Brown. 654 Pages. $22.50.

William Shirer, now 80 and with 14 books to his credit, is one of the eminent chroniclers of our times. As a foreign correspondent in Europe in the 1930s, Shirer provided firsthand coverage of Hitler's consolidation of power. His works, notably "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," are among the most read and the most readable.

Shirer has published the second volume of his memoirs, drawing extensively from his previous works on the period, especially "Berlin Diary," which came out in 1941. The first volume of his memoirs, leading up to his hiring on the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune at the age of 21 in 1925, was published eight years ago.

"The Nightmare Years" is interesting on two levels. First, it introduces to a new generation of readers the rise of Fascism in vivid detail. Second, it provides a heretofore unseen accounting of how Shirer gathered the news for Universal News Service and then for CBS radio. Along with Edward R. Murrow, Shirer was a pioneer in broadcast journalism.

If there is any disappointing aspect to the book, it is its occasional repetitiveness. Often Shirer has to retrace his steps to cover historical figures who were prominent in the '30s and '40s, but who are forgotten now.

But the book remains a fascinating account of that dark period in history, filled with the lives of famous and notorious men.

Well-reasoned defense play

By James Jacoby

A characteristic of great defenders is their willingness to make unusual plays when their judgment tells them it is right. Look how Houston expert Eddie Wold saved the day on the diagramed deal.

Against the contract of three spades, Wold led a low club. Declarer won the club queen with the ace and promptly played the ace, king and a small spade. Eddie was in with the queen. He felt that declarer certainly held the club king, since otherwise it did not seem likely he would have bid again over North's two-spade preference. That being the case, declarer probably held only one of the red queens, since with both of them he would surely have bid two or three no-trump over two spades. If South held the heart queen, it might cost a trick to lead a low heart, but the contract would still be set eventually. But if South held the diamond queen and no heart queen, it was absolutely necessary to lead a low heart at this point.

And that is what Eddie did. A low heart lead to his partner's queen enabled him to take four heart tricks and set the contract. What if he had been wrong? You'd be reading about a different bridge hand.

Conservative group coached protests, Democrat claims

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A campaign worker for an Iowa Democratic congressional candidate says Republican strategists at a seminar in Washington last month coached young conservatives on how to disrupt Democratic campaign events.

His allegations follow Democratic charges that Walter F. Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro have been victimized by organized protests in recent campaign appearances — charges denied by conservative groups and Reagan campaign officials.

David Schauer, 24, a field organizer in Iowa for Democratic U.S. House candidate Joe Welsh, said he attended a seminar Aug. 4-5 in Washington where officials of a private group called the Leadership Institute taught campaign tactics to conservatives.

Schauer said conferees were taught techniques of organizing young conservatives — particularly on college campuses — to attend Democratic events carrying signs attacking Democratic policies. In addition, he said, they were told methods of placing themselves within crowds to draw the attention of television crews and were given model chants to shout in order to disrupt speeches.

The chants, "Four More Years" and "No More Carter," the later designed to link Mondale to former President Carter, are similar to those used by protesters this fall.

Told of the allegations, the institute's head, Morton Blackwell said in an interview, "I've never heard any such thing taught or said."

Blackwell said the institute conducts seminars on such campaign subjects as designing literature, recruiting workers and preparing press releases.

Blackwell left the White House last January after a stint as Reagan's special liaison to conservative groups, "to go out and increase the level of grass roots activism around the country," he said.

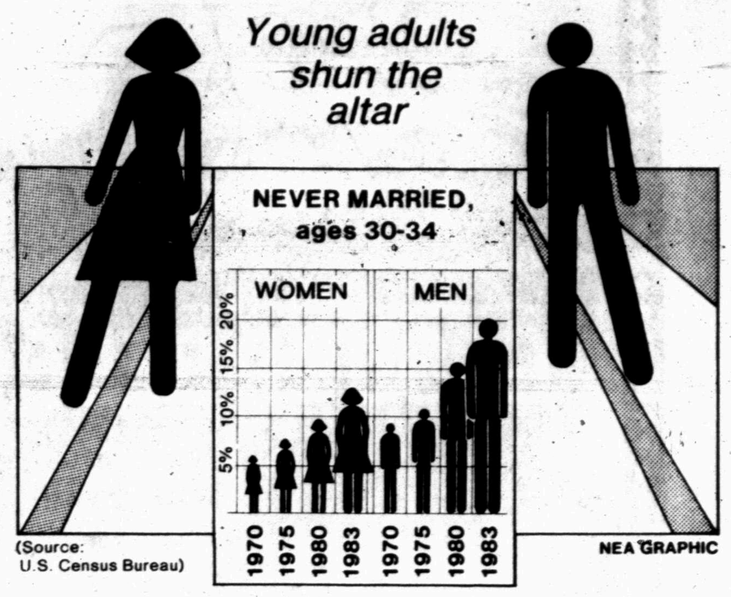

The New York Times reported today that Reagan campaign officials said they suspected seminars conducted by the Leadership Institute might have stimulated the heckling of the Democratic ticket on college campuses.

The Times said that the officials, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, said that they had no role in originating the protests and that they consider them potentially damaging to Reagan. They said they were not suggesting that Blackwell was directly involved in these activities, but that some activists trained in his seminars appeared to have been involved in the campus protests against Mondale and Ferraro.

Blackwell told The Associated Press that he couldn't state categorically that instructions such as those Schauer described were never given, since he does not attend all sessions himself.

But he added: "I can assure you that what is going on nationwide could not be from people we've trained. Everybody from our schools is counseled in the strongest terms not to do anything stupid or embarrassing."

THE SINGLES BOOM

To people in their early 30s, marriage is becoming less popular. The percentage of never-married Americans in that age group has more than doubled since 1970. It has risen from 9.4 to 20 percent for women, and from 6.2 to 13 percent for men.

Estrogen slows dissolving bones

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my doctor found that I have osteoporosis. He has prescribed calcium and conjugated estrogen, which I am concerned about since I read its accompanying pamphlet. Is this the best medicine for osteoporosis? Is there an alternative medicine? How likely am I to develop cancer if I take estrogen? I am 67 and lost a sister to breast cancer. I did not take estrogen shots when I went through the menopause.

DEAR READER — The general opinion of a recent national conference was that estrogen is the best treatment for dissolving bones, known as osteoporosis. You might not have as much bone loss as you do now if you had taken estrogen in the first three to seven years immediately after your menopause. Estrogen will prevent osteoporosis, and it will arrest bone loss if you start taking it later.

The fear of cancer from estrogens has been overdone. The amount used today for the menopause or to treat osteoporosis is far less than was commonly prescribed when the cancer scare began. The important point is to have a regular evaluation while you are taking estrogen. The big concern is still cancer of the uterus, but that doesn't apply if you don't have a uterus; in addition, it is a fairly slow-growing cancer that can be detected and cured if you are being carefully monitored at regular intervals.

Calcium intake is the other important measure. Most women in the United States are calcium-deficient because they don't consume enough milk. I have discussed both calcium and estrogen in a new issue of The Health Letter, Special Report 24, Osteoporosis: Porous Bones, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You can take a small-dose trade-off between calcium and estrogen. A woman who has lost her ovaries, or is through the menopause and not taking estrogen, should have 1,500 mg. of calcium a day to help prevent or control osteoporosis. Fortified skim milk is a good choice, as it contains 1,400 mg. of calcium per quart and will provide about 400 calories. That leaves plenty of calories to complete your daily balanced diet. Exercise is also useful, but if done improperly after you already have bone loss, it can cause a vertebra to crumble.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You have often mentioned fortified skim milk. We drink pasturized skim milk with vitamin A and vitamin D-3 added. Is this fortified skim milk?

DEAR READER — All milk products now contain a required amount of vitamin A and D. Fortified, as I use it, refers to adding nonfat milk solids to the milk. Some brands call this "protein fortified." The U.S. Department of Agriculture food-value publications refer to "2 percent nonfat milk solids added." These milk products fortified with 2 percent nonfat milk solids are usually low-fat milk or skim milk. The nonfat milk solids increase the calcium and protein in the milk without adding fat or cholesterol. One of the best food sources of calcium and complete protein for a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet is skim milk fortified with 2 percent nonfat milk solids. You can get your calcium this way without being concerned about increasing your saturated fat or cholesterol consumption.

GM accord has no strict curbs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The tentative contract between the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. contains no explicit guarantees that union jobs won't be farmed out overseas or to non-union shops, according to a copy obtained by The Associated Press.

However, the three-year pact would provide for wage increases amounting to $8,730 for the average worker over the life of the contract, assuming a constant inflation rate of 5 percent.

"There's good things and bad things in this agreement," said Fred Meyers, a UAW delegate to the union's 300-member GM Council, which will review the contract here today and decide whether to recommend it to 350,000 UAW members for ratification.

"We are going to have many, many questions," said Meyers, president of a local in the Grand Rapids, Mich., area.

UAW President Owen Bieber, who will preside at the closed meeting, has called the pact "historic," saying it provides "good innovations" that will protect jobs and give UAW members a fair wage increase.

But Meyers and fellow delegate Don Douglas, president of Local 594 in Pontiac, Mich., said they would take the floor to ask Bieber many pointed questions, particularly those on job protection.

The union made job security its No. 1 issue in the negotiations with GM.

Meyers, emerging from a meeting of 60 dissatisfied union leaders Tuesday night, said the group would make no attempt to persuade the council to turn down the contract, which would have been a difficult task.

"We're not looking for a fight on the floor," Meyers said. But he said a fight could be made at the local level during the ratification votes if members aren't satisfied with the pact.

R. Bynum is to retire

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum said he plans to retire soon because he is convinced the new state Board of Education will be dominated by Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot.

His retirement could come as early as the end of October or as late as next summer, depending on how quickly the new board grasps its duties, Bynum told the Austin American-Statesman on Tuesday.

"Some school officials and legislative types have asked me to stay aboard until the new board gets its feet on the ground," Bynum said.

Bynum acknowledged that his role will be strictly as a transitional leader because Perot, who spearheaded the move for education reform, will influence "two-thirds of the board." Referring to Perot's criticism of the old school board, Bynum said, "If the mindset is that the old board was horrible, then I was horrible."

Bynum said he will decide on the timing of his retirement after briefing board members on the issues that confront them.

"I will read from that orientation how quickly they are going to get a total grasp of the issues," he said. "Frankly, I don't care whether they like me or not. I'll make my decision based on what's good for the schoolchildren."

Your Birthday

Sept. 27, 1984

A sideline venture that you are working on with a friend could be rather profitable for both of you this coming year, provided all the pieces are carefully put together.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless your pockets are lined with asbestos, money may burn a hole through them today. Don't be tempted to buy merchandise where you won't get value received. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you attempt to use high-pressure tactics in order to advance your personal interests today, they could have a boomerang effect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Should you be the victim of a frustrating incident today, erase it from your memory. Harping on the matter could blow it out of proportion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be helpful to your friends today but don't let a pal who takes advantage of others use your strong back to do his physical chores.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not attempt to draw persons you know socially into your commercial or financial affairs today. It's not apt to work out advantageously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your ideas will be good today but you may lack the drive to push them through. Do not allow too much time to elapse or you may completely lose the urge.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not a particularly good day to ask the boss for a raise. Instead of giving you what you want, he may find fault with the way you've been doing things.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unless handled very tactfully, testy developments could occur in valued relationships. Do or say nothing that could light the fuse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today it's important you concentrate on one task, rather than attempting too many. Clutter and confusion will result from poor planning.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be a bit on the restless side today. You may rush to get to your destination and once you get there desire to flee someplace else.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make it a point today not to lend any of your fragile or prized possessions to persons you feel won't take care of them as well as you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although well-intentioned, there's a possibility today that, instead of finding solutions, you may create more problems for those you're trying to help.

Tests for AIDS will begin soon at centers

DALLAS (AP) — Clinical tests to determine the presence of viruses that may cause AIDS are now ready for human trials through blood and plasma centers in New York, Washington and Los Angeles, the director of the National Institutes of Health says.

The tests will begin within three weeks, Dr. James Wyngaarden said Tuesday.

The capacity to test for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome will improve the safety of blood transfusions and enable earlier detection of the disease, Wyngaarden said.

"Destruction of the immune system by an infectious agent strikes at the heart of very important biomedical concerns," Wyngaarden told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, defending the $50 million that the Institute has committed this year to AIDS research.

Five firms have been licensed to produce tests to detect AIDS, he said, and some of the tests are now ready to be tried out. Trials at the major blood centers are expected to involve about 30,000 samples and determine a safe, quick and reliable means to test for AIDS, he said.

Wyngaarden was in Dallas for dedication of a new outpatient services facility at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

Embassy has security woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration proposals to protect American personnel abroad are moving quickly through Congress, with a high-ranking administration official conceding that security arrangements at the bombed U.S. Embassy annex in Lebanon are open to hindsight criticism.

Ronald I. Spiers, undersecretary of state for management, told a reporter Tuesday embassy officials probably should have used cement trucks or other temporary barriers to block the road in the front of the annex, which was hit by a fatal car bomb blast last week.

Noting that a project to upgrade security at the annex was only 75 percent finished, Spiers said, "I guess you could say in hindsight that they should have put in temporary measures until the work was done."

But Spiers said, "I can't fault the judgment that the embassy made" concerning security arrangements.

"People can criticize in hindsight things that were not done. But I myself can't find criticism with the omissions and commissions of the security procedures that were used," the official said.

Meanwhile opposition Democrats in Congress predicted quick approval of the administration's request for $366 million to improve security in embassies throughout the world, but charged that the administration had not taken adequate steps with the money already granted.

"Congress has provided the funds; the administration has failed to carry out its duty," Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., told reporters after a House appropriations sucommittee was briefed privately by Spiers on the blast, which killed at least nine people including two American servicemen.

In a similar vein, Sen. Joseph Biden Jr., D-Del., told the Senate, "They had all the money they needed. If they need more, we'll give it to them. They could and should have done more."

Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, promised swift action at a meeting today on the administration's request. Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill said the request deserved to be approved and Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said it "almost assuredly" would be.

Congress previously has appropriated $184.3 million for a five-year program to improve security at U.S. embassies worldwide, plus $30 million for Beirut after the first embassy bombing there in October 1983.

"Why yes — it IS an albatross and I AM a Republican."

Jordan ends Arab ties

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The kingdom of Jordan has ended five years of alienation from Egypt by announcing it will resume diplomatic relations that were broken when Egypt signed a peace treaty with Israel.

Jordan was one of 17 Arab countries that severed relations with Egypt after the late President Anwar Sadat and former Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin signed the treaty on March 26, 1979.

None of the other Arab countries have restored formal ties with Egypt, and one of them — Syria — denounced Jordan's action Tuesday as "dangerous."

Jordan's Foreign Ministry said the decision was made at a Cabinet meeting and was based on Egypt's "current role, and the support it gives to the Palestinian, Iraqi and Lebanese causes."

The decision was seen as a diplomatic triumph for Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who had insisted he would not give up the peace with Israel as the price for a return to Arab diplomatic ranks.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat arrived in Amman today for talks with senior Jordanian officials, the state-run radio announced. There was no word on whether Arafat would meet with King Hussein, but Jordan radio said Arafat and Jordanian officials would discuss "the latest developments in the Middle East."

Arafat has been trying to convene a meeting of the Palestine National Council, but Syrian-backed factions of the PLO have threatened to boycott such a meeting if Arafat does not first step down as PLO chairman.

The Syrian-backed faction was angered by 1983 talks between Arafat and Hussein about a Middle East peace settlement based in part on President Reagan's proposals. Reagan called for creation of a Palestinian homeland, in association with Jordan, on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 war.

Cairo television interrupted its regular program to announce the resumption of ties between Egypt, a country of 47 million people, and Missouri-sized Jordan with 3 million.

Butros Ghali, Egyptian minister of state for foreign affairs, hailed Jordan's move as "a positive step which reflects the real mettle of Arab solidarity. We hope this step will achieve the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

In Syria, an official source who spoke on condition he not be identified said Jordan "has violated Arab summit resolutions and went out of Arab unanimous consensus. This will create a new situation in the Arab scene that will make it more complicated and more dangerous."

OSHA issues citations

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The manager of the Tri-State Fair has asked for an "informal conference" with Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials who issued two citations for major safety violations at the fair, where three men were fatally shocked last month.

Fair mananger Lynn Griffin on Tuesday received the letter, which detailed the citations and recommended a $700 fine, said Jerry Bailey, area OSHA director in Lubbock.

Griffin immediately requested an "informal conference" to discuss the charges, Bailey told the Amarillo Globe-News.

Griffin confirmed the request Tuesday, but declined further comment.

Three Tri-State Fair employees were electrocuted in two separate incidents while trying to work with a scaffold near an exposed electrical wire.

J.W. Combs, 57, was killed Aug. 8 while painting atop a scaffold near the the coliseum. He came into contact with an electrical wire.

Singles organization uses stickers for matchmaking

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In San Antonio love matches are no longer being made in heaven. They're being made on the freeway.

All it takes is a car and a bumper sticker from "Moving Singles" or "Bumper Connections," two new dating services that have started operations in San Antonio.

"This is a really informal way to meet people," said Sheryl Wood, one of two women who began "Moving Singles" two months ago after hearing of similar clubs in other cities. "They don't have to wait until after 7 p.m. to do it."

"It's a fantastic concept," said Cleve Scarborough, who helps operate the two-week-old "Bumper Connections." "It beats anything that's available on the market. You can actually see the person and the car they're driving."

The "Want to Meet Me?" bumper sticker is the primary ingredient used by both services.

Clients pay an annual fee — $25 for "Moving Singles" and $29.95 for "Bumper Connections." They fill out forms stating likes and dislikes and are given a bumper sticker with a membership number.

When a member spots one of the stickers, he notes the number and phones it in. He then gets a biography of the other member. Members' identities are protected until both parties agree to meet.

A big plus to the idea is the safety factor, Ms. Wood said.

Members are screened through their application forms, but potential matches get a chance to view them on the freeway before making contact.

"I used to be in sales and 80 percent of my time was in the car," she said. "The only people I'd meet were business associates. This way, the opportunities to meet people are endless. It doesn't have to be at a happy hour."

At first, Ms. Wood, who is single, said she had some hesitation about displaying a bumper sticker that advertised her single status.

But she said her stickers are "discreetly designed. It speaks of a singles club rather than 'I'm a pickup,'" she said.

Scarborough said his organization urges clients not to expect immediate true love.

"We tell them not to put any pressure on each other as far as expectations. A lot of people feel the need to be Ms. or Mr. Wonderful," he said.

It's all in fun and not to be taken too seriously, he said.

"This is another way of meeting people. It's an idea whose time has come. And it's far, far better than video (dating services.)"

Mosquitoes are major problem after flood

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Mosquitoes have invaded South Texas in the wake of last week's torrential rainstorms, but public health officials say the insects present more of a nuisance than a health hazard.

"The kind of mosquitoes that breed after a rain like we had, eat the disease-carrying variety of mosquito," said Dr. David Flory, director of the Cameron County Health Department. "So they are a pest, but an ally as well."

Three days of heavy rains last week left an estimated 75 percent of eastern Cameron County under water. Cameron County Judge Moises Vela estimated the floods caused $50 million damage to the area.

Pools of water left standing in low-lying areas is partly to blame for the mosquito influx, officials said.

Health departments in Cameron and Willacy counties have begun spraying and Red Cross volunteers are helping families mop water from their flooded homes.

On Friday, a team from the governor's office toured the area in far South Texas to evaluate the extent of the damage.

H. Perot purchases document

DALLAS (AP) — A 13th century Magna Charta — the first to become British law — has been purchased by Dallas businessman H. Ross Perot and will be brought to the United States, a professor who arranged the acquisition said.

The document is to be placed on permanent display in the Rotunda of the National Archives in Washington, D.C. It joins the U.S. Constitution, Declaration of Independence and Bill of Rights also displayed there.

The newly-purchased Magna Charta was issued by Edward I in 1297 and, unlike its predecessors, became English law, Dr. Decherd Turner, a University of Texas professor and director of the Humanities Research Center, said Tuesday. It is written on vellum (animal skin).

"This is the first major edition of the Magna Charta ever entered into British law. There are only four copies of it, and this is one," Turner said. The only other Magna Charta outside Great Britain reportedly is in Australia.

"This version of the Magna Charta evolved from that signed by King John at Runnymede in 1215," Turner said. "Kings renewed it to ensure people of their concern for the rights of individuals. But this was the first summation of human rights that became established English law."

Perot, head of Electronic Data Systems Corp., acquired the document — the only privately-owned Magna Charta — from the distinguished Brudenell family of Great Britain, Turner said. The family has been keeper of the document since the 14th century.

TIGERS WHIP SWEETWATER – Snyder's varsity volleyball team extended its District 2-4A record to 4-1 here Tuesday, defeating Sweetwater 16-14 and 15-4. The girls will play in Monahans on Saturday. Try Monahans Saturday...

Lady Tigers triumph

Coach Penny Bane's Tigers struggled early but came roaring back to earn their fourth District 2-4A volleyball match of the season here Tuesday.

The Tigers were down in the first game 8-14 to a visiting Sweetwater squad. They rattled off eight straight points behind the steady serving of Donna Anderson to win 16-14, then romped the Lady Mustangs 15-4 to claim the match.

Snyder is now 4-1 in loop play with a possible forfeit by Fort Stockton still pending. The Tigers go against district strength Monahans on Saturday. The match has been tentatively scheduled for 2 p.m.

"It took a long time for the girls to get started but when they did, they played well," said Coach Bane. "Everybody played well the second game. Karlene Thompson and Gina Vaughn hit well. And so did Donna. Hope (Hernandez), Kima (McLarty) and Allison (Adams) played well defensively and Sabrina (Sullivan) did a good job setting."

She added, "We're glad to get back on the winning side (after losing to Pecos last Saturday). We're getting prepared for Monahans now."

Snyder junior varsity also won over Sweetwater by scores of 15-11 and 15-4. The Cats will play Monahans at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Crane Tournament.

Ditka tough, hard-nosed; so are Bears, says Landry

DALLAS (AP) - Tom Landry says Mike Ditka isn't the old hot head he used to be.

Not that Ditka, now in his third year as the head coach of the Chicago Bears, doesn't still throw a tantrum or two.

"His temper has been one of his failing," said Landry, who coached Ditka as a player and had him on his staff as an assistant for years.

"When he first came to me, he had a hard time just controlling his temper as an assistant coach," Landry said. "Now he doesn't break as many tennis racquets as he used to. He's done a great job at Chicago. He's a good football coach and he has matured as a person."

Dallas travels to Chicago for the first time since 1973 in a National Football League game and Sunday it will be professor Landry versus pupil Ditka.

"Chicago reflects Mike's personality. It's a tough, hard-nosed team," Landry says. "When you go against the Bears, you'd better tighten your helmet."

Ditka says he learned a lot under Landry.

"I've used a lot of his philosophy," says Ditka. "I'll have mixed feelings going against the Cowboys. It'll be interesting."

Ditka admits his personality sometimes gets out of hand.

"There are a lot of things about my personality I wouldn't want to rub off," says Ditka. "But I do have a lot of pride."

Both teams are 3-1 but struggling offensively.

"Chicago just has an excellent defense," Landry said. "They are really tough for us to go against at our stage."

The Cowboy offense has sputtered under the direction of quarterback Gary Hogeboom.

"Gary is improving each week but he keeps facing a new set of circumstances each week and sometimes that can cause you to become hesitant," Landry said. "Sometimes he doesn't know when to deliver the ball."

However, Landry praised Hogeboom as "doing a fine competitive job."

He says Hogeboom could have a rough day against Chicago.

"It will be tough for Gary to setup. We're going to need a simple game plan so the Bears can't confuse him. They are radically different than most teams on defense."

Ditka likes Hogeboom because of his competitive fire.

"Gary is a great competitor," said Ditka. "Gary has great leadership qualities. That's why some guys are corporals and some guys are generals. Gary brings that dimension to his teammates."

Oddsmakers installed the Cowboys two point favorites over the Bears, who are 3-7 all-time against the Cowboys.

Dallas has won five consecutive games against Chicago.

Kansas City leading by 1½ but Howser still can't sleep

by The Associated Press

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser isn't expecting his sleep to improve, even though the Royals now lead the American League West by 1½ games over Minnesota.

"If you look at it realistically, we have a one-game lead," says Howser, whose team is one game ahead in the loss column with four to play. "We're planning on having to win every game. We'd like to get some help from somebody, but you can't count on it.

"Some funny things happen in this game."

The Royals defeated California 6-5 in 12 innings Tuesday night, making it three in a row over the Angels and five straight overall. That gave the Royals an additional game over Minnesota, which lost 8-4 in Chicago, and dropped the Angels 4½ back.

"I'll sleep tonight just like I did last night," Howser said, "fitfully."

Dan Quisenberry, 6-3, pitched four innings in his longest outing of the season for the victory. The Angels scored all five of their runs in the fifth inning.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit defeated Milwaukee 9-1, New York beat Baltimore 6-5, Boston clobbered Toronto 14-6, Oakland defeated Texas 17-5 and Cleveland beat Seattle 13-5.

White Sox 8, Twins 4

Harold Baines hit a two-run homer in Chicago's seven-run second inning, and Tom Seaver, 15-10, worked 8 2-3 innings for his 288th career victory. The White Sox's big inning was at the expense of John Butcher.

"Anytime you give Seaver seven runs, he's going to be tough to beat," Butcher said. "But we got 10 hits and four runs off him."

Randy Bush's homer in the fourth inning cut Chicago's lead to 7-4, but Marc Hill homered for the White Sox in the fifth inning. Baines' homer was his 29th of the season.

Tigers 9, Brewers 1

Howard Johnson hit a grand slam homer as Detroit dealt Milwaukee the loss that clinched last place in the AL East for the Brewers. The Tigers, who already had clinched first place in the division, won their 102nd game behind the pitching of Randy O'Neal, who combined with four relievers on a six-hitter.

The Brewers had not finished last in the division since 1976.

Houk announces his retirement as manager of Boston Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) - Haywood Sullivan says it was "the best decision I made since I've been here" when he hired Ralph Houk to manage Boston. Now the Red Sox' co-owner is faced with another big decision: choosing a replacement for Houk.

Houk, baseball's oldest manager at age 65, announced Tuesday he will retire at the end of this season "to try to enjoy myself and have my wife enjoy herself a little bit while you're still able to do it."

Houk, who began his baseball career 45 years ago as a catcher in the New York Yankees' organization and has managed the Yankees and Detroit Tigers, said that he enjoyed his four years in Boston and that it was very difficult for him to retire.

The Red Sox are locked in a battle with New York and Baltimore for third place in the American League East and the temptation to stay with a team that figures to be a pennant contender next season was great, he said. But, he added, it didn't outweigh family considerations.

Sullivan, a Red Sox owner since 1978, said he tried "every way possible" to change Houk's mind but "you have to respect him and frankly, at times, just give up."

Now Sullivan must try to find the 36th manager in the history of one of the American League's original franchises.

Speculation has included such names as managers John McNamara of California and Bobby Cox of Toronto, former Baltimore manager Earl Weaver and Carl Yastrzemski, who retired from the Red Sox after last season. McNamara is a friend of Sullivan's. Cox's contract expires at the end of the season but said before Tuesday night's game with Boston that he hoped to re-sign soon with the Blue Jays.

Westerners entering SHSU intercollegiate

HUNTSVILLE -- Western Texas College meets a strong field of junior and senior college teams in the Sam Houston State University Intercollegiate Tournament, held near here Thursday and Friday.

The 36-hole tournament is to be played at Waterwood Country Club.

Among the junior college teams entered are WTC, New Mexico Military Institute, Odessa, McLennan Community College, Paris JC, Tyler JC, and Sam Houston and the University of Texas freshmen.

Playing for Western Texas will be Pat Fitzpatrick, Bob Stangby, Jack Fallin, Ron Nedry, Bo Kay and Ryan Heller.

Coach of the Westerners is Dave Foster.

Mitchell resigns; assistant accepts

BIG SPRING – Ed Sparling, former coach at Southeastern Iowa College, has replaced Mike Mitchell as head basketball coach for Howard College's Hawks.

Sparling had been hired as an assistant coach last week, then took the head post when Mitchell resigned to accept a job in sales with Fiberflex.

Under Mitchell, former Western Texas College coach, the Hawks were 28-4 in 1983-84 and won the WJCAC championship.

Sparling, 45, served as athletic coordinator at a Texas Department of Corrections unit in Palestine the past two years and coached five years at Southeastern Iowa. He led Southeastern to the National Tournament three times.

He also served as an assistant at UTEP from 1969-72. Other positions have been at Mary Help of Christians High School in Tampa, Fla., College of Stubenville in Stubenville, Oh., Cannon College in Erie, Pa. and Chadron State College in Chadron, Neb.

Sparling's overall record is 417-160.

Gamblers could merge

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League could merge with the Pittsburgh Maulers or one of four other USFL teams under a deal designed to consolidate the league's weaker clubs with stronger ones, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

'Mr. Miniver' is mourned

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Walter Pidgeon, the dignified romantic actor whose films included the classics "Mrs. Miniver" and "How Green Was My Valley," was mourned by his leading lady Greer Garson as a perfect partner who loved a funny story just before a serious scene.

Pidgeon, who made more than 100 films, died Tuesday, two days after his 87th birthday, said St. John's Hospital and Health Center spokeswoman Terri DeLange. The actor had been in the hospital since Sept. 19.

His attending physician, William Skinner, said a series of strokes before and after Pidgeon entered the hospital caused his death.

Pidgeon's stage, screen and television career spanned six decades and was highlighted by two Academy Award nominations in films opposite Miss Garson — "Mrs. Miniver" in 1942 and "Madam Curie" in 1943.

"I've beaten all the odds," he said in an interview six years ago. "I escaped from a bank career, a brokerage career, some roles that would have poisoned a Borgia ... and from regret. How many men can say as much?"

The Canadian-born Pidgeon started out doing musical comedy in the 1920s and made his first film in 1926. But he didn't achieve stardom until the late 1930s when he was cast opposite the British-born Miss Garson in eight films.

"It's a sad, sad thing," Miss Garson said of Pidgeon's death from her home in Dallas. "What can I say — that we had a most wonderful, happy friendship and a perfect partnership.

"We got along so well," she added. "Somebody said we were like ham and eggs. I sent him a telegram asking him what to make of it, and signed it 'Eggs.'"

Actor James Stewart remembered Pidgeon as "a wonderful man" who was "the same sort of guy off-screen as on — a gentleman ... and no meanness in him at all."

Although his screen image was serious and polished, Pidgeon enjoyed needling other performers and was an insatiable collector of limericks.

"He had a great sense of humor," Miss Garson recalled. "Nothing amused him more than to tell me a funny story just before a serious scene."

Pidgeon's performance in "Mrs. Miniver" as Miss Garson's rock-steady husband who joins the rescue of British soldiers at Dunkirk so impressed the public that years later he was still addressed as "Mr. Miniver" on Paris and London streets. "Mrs. Miniver" won the best actress Oscar for Miss Garson and was also named best picture in 1942.

Actress recalls late actor

DALLAS (AP) — Greer Garson, the Oscar-winning actress who starred with the late Walter Pidgeon in eight motion pictures, said Pidgeon's good looks and personality made him popular.

"He was the kind of character on screen and off screen that everybody admired — pleasant, handsome, gentle, funny, a great sense of humor," Miss Garson, a Dallas resident, said. "All these things made him good."

Pidgeon, 87, died Tuesday morning in Santa Monica, Calif., after suffering a series of strokes before and after entering the hospital last Wednesday.

Miss Garson, who won an Oscar for best actress opposite Pidgeon in "Miss Miniver" in 1942, said she lost a good friend.

"We never had a single insecure thought about each other," Miss Garson told the Associated Press in a telephone interview from her other home outside of Pecos, N.M.

"Someone once called him the 'Solid Gold Gentleman,' and I concur," said Miss Garson, who is married to Dallas oilman E.E. "Buddy" Fogelson.

Pidgeon, who made more than 100 films, was an Academy Award nominee for two of the films he made with Miss Garson — "Miss Miniver" and "Madame Curie" in 1943.

Some of Pidgeon's best-known movies included "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "Design for Scandal," "Flight Command," "How Green Was My Valley," "Weekend at the Waldorf," "Holiday in Mexico," "Command Decision" and "Million Dollar Mermaid."

But the Oscar eluded Pidgeon.

"It was a perfectly wonderful working relationship," Miss Garson said of her work with Pidgeon. "It was always a happy set when we worked together."

The two first made "Blossoms in the Dust" in 1939. Then came "Mrs. Miniver," "Madame Curie," "Mrs. Parkington," "Julie Misbehaves," "That Forsythe Woman," "The Miniver Story" and "Scandal at Scourie."

"We came to be known as partners and everyone expected to see us together," said Miss Garson, who was born in Northern Ireland, reared in England and was graduated with honors from the University of London.

Miss Garson also starred opposite Laurence Olivier in "Golden Arrow."

Street people boarding bus for trip to 'heaven'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Told they were on the way to the most perfect place on Earth, 22 Austin street people boarded a chartered bus Tuesday night for a 2,000-mile journey to an Oregon community started by an Indian guru.

"They told me they were taking us to heaven," said a tattered and bearded Stephen Aiken as he placed his worldly goods on a bus to Rajneeshpuram, Ore., a city inhabited mainly by followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. "I'm going to see whether they're false prophets. I drink, and I smoke dope. I'm going there to try to quit."

The Austin stop by the guru's followers was the latest in a cross-country effort to bring the "poor and homeless" to the community founded 3½ years ago by Rajneesh, said Swami Deva Ullas, who headed the recruitment drive in Austin. So far, about 3,000 street people have made the trip to Oregon, and Ullas said "waves of others want to."

"We have a lot of love, and we have a lot of money," Ullas told a group of people in front of the Austin Salvation Army. "We want to share both with you.

"When the Bhagwan used to visit inmates in prison he told them that society put them in a position to create crime. He said that when he formed a community of his own, the poor would be the first people he would take care of, because they have rare hearts."

The bus should arrive in Oregon Thursday night, Ullas said. Several people who could not fit on the bus, which already carried about 20 people from Houston, were told another group would leave tonight.

Officials in Oregon have charged that the Rajneeshees, as his followers are known, are bringing in people to influence a county election. They live near a town formerly known as Antelope, but have renamed it Rajneeshpuram, or "The City of Rajneesh."

However, Ullas said the purpose of the trip did not have anything to do with politics.

"We have created a city where people can live together with one another and with the environment," said Ullas, 41. "We started out with 100 square miles of mud, and we've turned it into a large and thriving farming community. We are a fruit that has blossomed. Now we want to share the eating."

Once in Oregon, Ullas said everyone will be examined by doctors and given a place to live in "comfortable, warm, and colorful" houses. If they want, they can help build houses or work in one of the 60 businesses in Rajneeshpuram, he said.

Ullas went from person to person and spent about five minutes describing life in Rajneeshpuram, a place he called a "model city, a crime-free, violence- free and drug-free" community. The only things that would be denied them in Rajneeshpuram would be meat and all drugs except "a couple of beers with the meals."

His message sounded good to a number of people who said they were tired of life on the streets.

"I've been on the streets for 11 years," said Bob Burge, a New Jersey native who said he had been in Austin 4½ months. "I want to do something constructive with my life."

Burge said he first met members of the religious sect Tuesday morning and was impressed with the "honest" way they answered all his questions.

"I've heard that their leader drives around in a Rolls Royce," Burge said. "As long as his people aren't starving, I guess it's okay for him to drive around in a Rolls Royce."

Dave Herron, 24, a native of Dayton, Ohio, said he decided to go to Oregon because he was "tired of being treated like a dog."

"I don't have anything here. I'm not leaving anything behind," Herrons said. "I hope to get cleaned up a little and meet some people who are interested in me. They said everyone works for a common cause, and everyone gets their share."

Promotions barred

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Civil Service Commission signed an order barring promotions for two Fire Department captains who allegedly tried to ensure promotions for themselves by enticing district chiefs to retire.

The Commission said in an order signed Tuesday that Capts. Richard C. Silence and Alan D. Maass "have seriously tainted the concept of an impartial merit promotional system."

The Commission issued the order in the wake of an investigation into an alleged scheme in which some fire officers tried to guarantee their promotions by paying higher-ranking officers to retire or remove their names from a promotion list.

"This commission cannot condone practices which permit certain members of the fire department to receive money or other favors as an inducement for their retirement or permits certain members to obtain promotion based upon their ability and willingness to make such payments," the order said.

Silence and Masss were in line for two vacant district chiefs' positions before the order was issued, but Mayor Kathy Whitmire told The Houston Post she will eliminate the posts as part of a plan to streamline the department's management.

"I believe eliminating the positions is a better approach because we don't need any more district chiefs in the Fire Department," Mrs. Whitmire said in a Post article published today.

Rainfall contributes in Tuesday accident

As rain fell in the city Tuesday afternoon, three minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder.

The first mishap was reported at 3:30 p.m. at the intersection of 33rd St. and Ave. T. Involved vehicles were a 1979 Pontiac driven by Sherman Craig Gailet of Rt. 1, Snyder and a 1974 Pontiac driven by Linda Proctor of the Arah Rt.

The day's second mishap occurred at the intersection of 37th St. and Ave. A, also at 3:30 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Prentis Edwards Glass of Snyder and a 1983 Chevrolet driven by Paul Estrada of Rt. 2, Snyder.

The 4700 Block of College Ave. was the scene of the day's final accident at 6:45 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1982 Oldsmobile driven by Eddie Peterson of 4709 El Paso Ave. and a 1976 GMC driven by Donald P. Yorks of 3300 ½ Ave. U.

Only minor to moderate damage and no injuries were reported after all three mishaps.

Dear Abby

In Reader's Name Game, Jack Has to Be Jack-of-All-Trades

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Poor Chuck wrote to bemoan the abuse of his name—chuck-a-luck, woodchuck, upchuck, etc.

How would he like to be a "Jack"? We have mountains, rivers, valleys, trees, fish, and even a cheese named after us. What does a person use to elevate a deflated tire? A jack. There's also the jackknife, the jackrabbit and the jackass. And how about the pumpkin with the grinning face carved in it? (It's not a "chuck-o'-lantern.")

What do they call stealing an airplane? Hijacking, of course. They even put jacks in the box. And after all that, we're expected to be nimble and quick enough to jump over a candlestick.

Then we end up with broken crowns at the bottom of a hill with a Jill who comes tumbling after.

JACK SHEEHAN,
MINDEN, NEV.

DEAR JACK: Let us not forget the most important Jack—since you live in Nevada, have you never hit a jackpot?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I was astonished to read in USA Today that the Dear Abby column is censored in a small daily newspaper in Atlantic, Iowa. I quote from USA Today's Aug. 29 article:

"'Frankly, we cut out whole sections of Dear Abby once in a while because it's a little too rough. Her advice to unwed mothers ... outside-the-home sexual relations and all that,' says F.H. Simpson, president and publisher of the Atlantic News-Telegraph in Atlantic, Iowa.

"Atlantic (pop. 7,800) 'has a lot of churches,' Simpson says. 'We cut out "dämn." I guess we leave "hell" in.'"

Dear Abby, whatever happened to the freedom of the press Americans were promised in the First Amendment?

And how do you feel about being censored?

ASTONISHED IN IOWA

DEAR ASTONISHED: Freedom of the press is still alive and well in America. However, all newspaper editors reserve the right to omit from their newspapers material that they consider unfit for their readers.

How do I feel about it? If a reader's letter and my reply are omitted, I have no objection. But if a reader's letter and/or my reply is altered, I protest vehemently.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write in response to "Half Pint," who is convinced that all her problems stem from her short stature.

My problem was the opposite. I've been 5 foot 10 since I was 15. Many adults told me I should be a model because I was very pretty and had long legs. But did I have dates? Not until I was 20.

Like "Half Pint," I blamed my lack of popularity on my height, until one day my eyes were opened. I had a friend in high school who never lacked for a date or a party to attend. People flocked around her like flies to honey. She was 5 foot 2, overweight and rather homely. Why was she popular? And why wasn't I? Then came the revelation: She always had a smile on her face. I rarely did. (People used to ask me who I was mad at.) She reached out to others and made them feel important. I expected others to make the first move. She laughed at herself. I never laughed—I was too busy picking up the "chip" that was knocked off my shoulder.

Needless to say, I needed an attitude change, not a physical one. After I changed my attitude I had a flood of friends and a bevy of beaus.

Incidentally, I'm happily married now to a man who's 5 foot 10. He was chosen for his height in character—not physique.

HEAD ISLAND, S.C.

Incident said cleared with suspect's arrest

Snyder police cleared a recent theft-criminal mischief complaint with the arrest of an 18-year-old man Tuesday afternoon.

The suspect has been charged with one count each of misdemeanor theft and criminal mischief in connection with an incident Sept. 16. According to reports, a pickup truck owned by David Autry of Western Texas College was damaged and several small items taken from it.

The case has been referred to county officials for prosecution.

City officers also report another criminal mischief case cleared Tuesday afternoon after a suspect in the case agreed to pay resitution for damages.

No charges are now expected in connection with the criminal mischief incident reported Monday at the Strayhorn Motel. A window had been broken out of a room.

In other action, local officers jailed two subjects on misdemeanor charges Tuesday evening.

One subject was arrested for public intoxication and the second was arrested on warrants issued for unpaid traffic citations.

Minor damage in pickup fire

Snyder firemen were called to extinguish a minor pickup fire at 1:35 p.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, a 1974 Chevrolet pickup owned by Guy Allen of Snyder sustained minor engine compartment damage from the blaze.

The truck caught on fire on the parking lot of Allen Motors at the intersection of Ave. E and East Highway.

Kiwanis here charters new morning club

A new men's service club has now organized and elected new officers here.

The Daybreak Kiwanis Club will meet each Thursday morning at 6:45 a.m. at the Las Palmas Restaurant.

Its newly elected president is Roy Rosson. Other officers include David Higgins, first vice president; Dean Williamson, second vice president; and Steve Allen, secretary-treasurer.

The club is affiliated with the noon Kiwanis Club here and is designed for men whose work schedule makes it difficult to attend a midday meeting.

Old-fashioned pump still fills vehicles up

GORDONVILLE, Texas (AP) — Standing defiantly among its successors outside a service station here is a symbol of one man's stand against progress.

T.J. Flowers, a longtime Gordonville resident, had owned his Gulf station for about two years in 1948 when a representative from the Pittsburgh, Pa.-based corporation informed him that the company was about to undergo a major change.

As part of a modernization plan for the Gulf Oil Corp., all of the old, hand-action gas pumps were being removed nationwide for the slick, modern electrical versions. And that included getting the old pumps "off-the-books" at Flowers' Gordonville station.

"I told them if they wanted to take the pump, then they could just take the whole damn station," Flowers recalls. "I didn't want to get rid of it, so finally they just decided to let me keep it."

And 38 years later, Flowers and the 9-foot gasoline pump are still together. At one time, Flowers had another such old-time pump that sold premium gasoline, but it was taken out when the company stopped selling the product.

The pump, in fact, has seen more action with the company than Flowers, outdating his affiliation with Gulf by several years.

"They put it in just before I got here," he said. "It wasn't a brand-new one either; they had been using it somewhere else before they brought it here."

The faded orange pump, with its old-fashioned Gulf globe on top, is pumping out gasoline just as it did the day it was put in — most of the time even better than the other pumps that have come and gone, Flowers said.

"I've never really had to fix it except for the tubes," Flowers said, adding that the pumps had been installed several years before he bought the station. "They have to keep coming out here and fix the new ones because something's always wrong with the computer or some such thing."

The inner workings of the pump are wonderful in their simplicity. With just a couple of pulls on a long handle located on the side of the pump, up to 10 gallons of regular leaded gasoline appear in a glass storage container at the top of the unit.

From there, the gas flows down through a more familiar black hose — similar to those seen on modern gas pumps — directly into the automobile.

The pump shows little wear from its more than 40 years of faithful service. Although there are rust spots here and there, the paint job has held up remarkably well. A small crack has appeared around the base of the glass container.

Flowers has had to make a few adaptations to the pump, including addition of several federal regulations signs. Also, he has had to equip the pump with a series of locks to guard against gasoline theft — things not deemed necessary in the era when it was built.

On a busy summer day, Flowers said the old pump gets a real workout, even if many of the younger people who come to the station have no idea what it is.

"On holidays, it gets like a bunch of ants through here, just one car after another," he said, "A lot of the young people who come through here stop and look at it, but just can't seem to figure out what it is. They look all confused because they just don't know what the hell it is."

During World War I, the Germans delivered their first air attack on London Nov. 28, 1916.

Texas begins project

AUSTIN (AP) — The first step has been taken in a project that state officials ultimately hope might lead to irrigation of dry West Texas land to make it agriculturally productive.

Texas Land Commissioner Gărry Mauro announced Tuesday that an Israeli firm, Tahal Consulting Engineers Ltd. of Tel Aviv, will be paid $14,000 to determine whether at least two tracts of state-owned land in the Trans-Pecos area would be suitable for such projects.

Mauro said further proposals, not yet implemented, call for experts to then prepare plans and cost estimates for possible large-scale demonstration farming projects using both sweetwater and brackish water.

Finally, actual demonstrations would be undertaken, hopefully paid for with private funds, Mauro said.

"This is not a lot of money being spent for a pie-in-the-sky project. We want something very practical that can be put into place very quickly," Mauro said.

Some state-owned land is leased for oil and gas exploration and production and some for agricultural purposes. But Mauro said considerable state land in West Texas is too dry to be agriculturally productive.

"The General Land Office manages more than 800,000 acres in West Texas, nearly 200,000 of which are virtually unproductive," he said. "The Israelis are acknoweledged world experts in farming dry lands, and we've asked them to take a look and see if we can do the same things here."

After visits to Israel this year, Mauro and Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said that nation has developed farming methods which could be useful in parts of Texas.
