MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

BY H. N. F.

They call themselves God's chosen people. They are found in every land under the skies. They were an ancient family before the Redmen inhabited America. They may be "the lost tribe of Israel." They were a mighty people in the days of the Old Testament. They may have been a mighty people before it was written. Throughout the ages they have been the victims of wars, pogroms and famine. Throughout history they have been prosecuted and persecuted. They have been a part of every civilization the world has ever known. They have had their champions and they have had their critics. There are three million of the family in America and America has a population of 110 million. There are millions of the family in the war-ridden nations of Europe. They were the victims of fire and sword and famine and ferocity. Now what did the 3 million human atoms of the ancient family do in America when told of the misery and poverty and perseeution of their co-religionists under European skies? They organized a national committee. They sent relief workers to every community. Their leaders and their rabbis appealed to the heart and the soul and the pocket of the 3 million. They were asked to subscribe 14 million dollars to provide food and shelter and clothing and medicine for the victims of war in unhappy Europe. They over-subscribed the 14 million. Indeed it is said the sum will reach $17,300,000 by April. More than one million was given by persons of other races but more than 16 million was given by the 3 million members of this lost tribe of Israel who love America and make it their home. It is marvelous indeed the showing that these people have made. In the early months of the year 1922 with conditions as harsh as they have been the 3 million Jews of the United States have contributed nearly $6 each as compared with $3.30 and $4, respectively, in their two previous relief campaigns—those of 1917-18 and 1919-20. Flowers for the living. Flowers for those who speak in deeds. Flowers for those whose ears are never deaf and whose hearts are never stony when there is relief work to be done or the call comes from those who are shelterless, sick, in rags and face to face with the gaunt wolf of famine. H. N. F. has no brief to defend the Jew from the biting criticism of those who dislike the Jew. He has no brief to criticise any nationality or creed. He leaves that to others who love to play the part of the defamer. But the human interest story outlined in the above shows why the ancient family has never been broken, why the ideals of ancient Israel have never vanished, why the Jew is a power in every land and under all flags; THEY HELP ONE ANOTHER. Moreover they do not confine their giving or their benefactions to their own people.

This is the motor car age. More than 83 per cent of the 12,588,949 motor vehicles in use in the world are in the United States. With 10,505,660 in this country and 961,030 in the other English speaking countries there are left only 1,122,030 for the rest of the world. Canada has 463,448 motor vehicles and the province of Ontario with 200,900 has nearly half the total for Canada while the Prairie province of Saskatchewan

SUPPORTERS OF TREATY IGNORE NEW ASSAULTS

Administration Leaders Maintain Agreement for Final Vote March 24 Assures Ratification.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The campaign of the irreconcilables against the four-power Pacific treaty continued without abatement in the senate today despite the disposition of the leaders to regard ratification of the pact as certain.

For more than three hours in a senate chamber which most of the time was all but deserted, Senator Reed, Missouri, assailed both the four-power and naval treaties, which he said, would fit together to put the United States in a position of helplessness in the Pacific. He charged that the fact underlying the five-five-three naval settlement had been misrepresented and put into the record figures of his own designed to show that superiority of speed, armament and auxiliary craft would greatly increase the relative strength of the British and Japanese navies.

The Missouri senator was interrupted a half dozen times by senators who questioned him on minor points regarding the naval establishments he submitted, and when he had finished, the debate drifted to other subjects. The administration leaders made no efforts to reply to the attack, maintaining that yesterday's agreement to vote finally on the treaty on March 24 had crushed all possibilities of an adverse vote.

ARGUMENTS IN DEFENSE MRS. OBENCHAIN END

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Jud R. Bush, senior counsel for Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, closed his argument and the defense in her trial for the alleged murder of J. Belton Kennedy, here today.

"This is a story without a villain," said Rush, summing up the points whereby he endeavored to show that the state's theory that Arthur Burch hid and lay in wait to kill Kennedy as the result of a conspiracy whereby Mrs. Obenchain led Kennedy to the place where he was shot down was not proved.

Asa Keyes, of the district attorney's office, began the final argument after recess.

Rush told the jury today that the defendant's story that Kennedy was slain by two roughly dressed men, who fled at once, was never successfully controverted. He insisted that Burch, who, according to the state, conspired with Mrs. Obenchain and did the actual shooting, had never been shown to have any motive sufficient to cause him to shoot a man he hardly knew. He asked why Kennedy carried a revolver, took numerous precautions, and plainly showed that he feared attack.

Keyes answering the argument of Rush said:

"This is a story not only with a villain, but with a villainess."

Concerning the "love" of Mrs. Obenchain, he said that she threw down Kennedy "like a dirty deuce, from a deck of cards," upon the arrival of Ralph Obenchain, "like a bolt of lightning" in 1918.

Attacking the arguments of the defense that the case presented an "old fashioned" love story, Keyes declared that the defendant was "more like Circe of Greek mythology than she was like Ruth of the scriptures."

He told the jury that the divorce from Ralph Obenchain was a frameup and in obtaining it she had done him a grave injustice.

JUDGE ENDS FIGHT OF TWO WOMEN FOR "MUTUAL" HUSBAND

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 16.—The fight here of two women for their "mutual" husband, ended when Common Pleas Judge Manuel Levine ruled that Russell McFarland, Washington writer, is legally married to Bessie Leusch McFarland, his second wife, and legally divorced from Rose Tura McFarland, his first.

McFarland married in 1916, was divorced in 1920 and remarried three months later. Meanwhile the first wife had gained an annulment of the decree on the ground she had not been notified of his suit.

Judge Levine's ruling re-established the divorce decree.

CITY FIREMAN BADLY INJURED RESULT CRASH

John Jenkins, fireman at the central station, was severely injured Monday at 7 p. m. when the chemical truck with which he was responding to a call was turned over in avoiding a collision with a truck at the corner of Ninth and Travis streets. To avoid collision Jenkins, driving up Ninth street, was forced to drive into the curve, causing the truck to turn over on the curb pinioning him underneath.

Jenkins was rushed to Cali Field hospital where it was said that several ribs were fractured. It is feared also that he suffered internal injuries.

Jenkins, driving alone, was reporting to a call at the corner of Holliday and Twenty-fifth streets. The truck, which belonged to the Red Ball Transfer company, and which was driven by W. T. Cooley, was going south on Travis street.

According to a statement made by Cooley he did not hear the siren signal of the fire truck and did not see Jenkins until it was too late to stop. Jenkins, in order to avoid a head-on collision with the truck, swerved to the left, the front of the truck striking the rear of the fire truck. In attempting to avoid hitting the curb the fire truck skidded into the curb, turning over. The tires of the truck were torn off with other damage totaling several hundred dollars.

The accident is the third which has occurred to the fire department at the corner of Travis and Ninth streets within the last few weeks. Former Assistant Chief Smith and another fireman narrowly escaped injury in a similar accident. More recently one of the large trucks was badly damaged when in an early morning run it collided with a concrete traffic sign stationed in the middle of the street.

SAYS PEOPLE WRONGLY VIEW FORD'S OFFER

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The $88,000,000 nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals stands as a "monumental failure of governmental effort in a private enterprise," John T. F. E. Therston, former vice president of the air nitrates corporation, declared tonight at New York University.

Mr. Fetherston was in charge of construction and operation of Muscle Shoals plant No. 2, built for the government in 1918 for the manufacturer of munitions.

He declared that congress would have difficulty in preventing the American people from handing Muscle Shoals over to Henry Ford, "on a silver platter plus a bonus" because they vision the plant as a source of cheap automobiles, a model industrial city seventy-five miles long, with every workman receiving high wages and owning his own bungalow; as an inexhaustible source of cheap fertilizer for the farmer, and of revenue for the government.

Mr. Fetherston asserted that the possibilities of water power development at Muscle Shoals "are greater than any undeveloped powers east of the Mississippi river, approximating the horse power on the American side of Niagara Falls."

SENATOR ASHURST ANSWERS ATTACK ON IRISH PEOPLE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—On the eve of St. Patrick's day, Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, in the senate today paid a tribute to the Irish race. Replying to criticisms of Irish-Americans by Senator Williams, democrat, of Mississippi, Mr. Ashurst said that the Irish had a high civilization established 1,000 years before "the slant headed Welch ancestors of the senator from Mississippi and the slant headed ancestors of mine in Lancashire" had stopped eating raw meat.

Senator Ashurst deplored that Senator Williams "on the day before the first St. Patrick's day since establishment of Irish peace" had seen fit to insult the Irish.

Parrish's Condition Is Showing Improvement; Brought to Wichita Falls

Not Now Believed That His Skull Was Fractured; Has Restful Night and Continually Conscious.

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, March 16.—Injuries sustained by Congressman Lucian W. Parrish near Roby yesterday afternoon were decided, after a re-examination of attending surgeons, not to be as serious as at first feared. Mr. Parrish sustained a compound fracture of the jaw, but the morning examination lead physicians to believe that the skull was not fractured as at first feared, and as announced after an X-ray examination Wednesday night.

In order that this may be definitely decided, he left Stamford Thursday night to be taken to a Wilhita Falls hospital, where he will be subjected to examination by a roentgenologist at that place, and the extent of the injury definitely decided.

At the morning consultation, at which local surgeons were joined by Dr. Q. B. Lee of Wichita Falls, belief was expressed that the bleeding from the ear, which was one of the symptoms taken into consideration in the belief that the skull had been fractured, was due to the ear having been injured by a foreign substance.

Mr. Parrish, who was conscious throughout the examinations and practically all the time since the accident, passed a restful night and this morning showed more improvement than the most hopeful of his physicians had expected.

His most painful injury is the fracture of the jaw, which will be the longest in healing.

Although his recovery, unless other complications arise, the accident will put a halt to Mr. Parrish's campaign plans for several weeks.

Congressman Parrish had planned to leave Texas tomorrow for his post in Washington but his accident will of course delay that trip for a few days. Today telegrams have come to Mr. Parrish from all over Texas expressing sympathy and extending hopes for his speedy recovery. He asked that his appreciation of these telegrams be acknowledged through the press and as soon as he recovers a little more strength, he will answer them personally.

Mr. Parrish was due to arrive in Wichita Falls at 2:20 this morning on the night train of the Wichita Valley. He will be taken to the Jones, Lee, Kiel hospital—the nurses' home of the general hospital being used for emergency hospital while the addition is being built to the general hospital.

Advices from Dr. Lee to his professional associates indicated a particularly hopeful condition. In fact Mr. Parrish's condition was considered so much better that Dr. Lee drove over to visit relatives near Stamford during the afternoon, coming to Wichita Falls with Mr. Parrish last night. Dr. A. B. Edwards, Mr. Parrish's father-in-law; Frank Parrish, his brother, and King Edwards, his brother-in-law, accompanied him to Wichita Falls.

LUCAS ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT OF CATTLEMEN

El Paso Wins 1923 Convention of Association by an Overwhelming Vote at Closing Session.

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, March 16.—C. B. Lucas of Berclair, Texas, was elected president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association at the closing session today, succeeding W. W. Turney of El Paso, who declined to stand for re-election. J. L. Johnson of Arizona was elected first vice-president. Neither had any opposition.

Richard Gleberg of Kingsville, Texas, was elected second vice-president, E. B. Spiller, secretary-manager and S. B. Burnett, treasurer. The convention adjourned at 1 p. m.

FORT WORTH, March 16.—By an overwhelming vote, El Paso won the 1923 convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' convention at the closing session this afternoon. All other cities withdrew and made the vote unanimous.

Eigene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, addressing the stockmen this morning, declared congress was in sympathy with the corporation's work for the ranchmen and that means would be found either for extending the corporation's life or for a proper substitute.

This announcement followed passage of a resolution by the cattlemen, calling upon congress to continue the corporation's existence. Meyer told the ranchmen he was sent into the cattle country by President Harding to report on conditions. He added that the general business and money situation is improving and praised the stockmen for persevering under their recent trials and especially praised Texans for organizing the subsidiary loan agency to the war finance body.

TWO GHOSTS IN CANADA SEEM TO HAVE BEEN "LAID"

By Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 16.—Canada's two ghosts today apparently had been "laid."

Not a peep was reported from of the ephemeral, last night issued Antigonish county after Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, New York stalker of the ephemeral, last night issued his 7,000-word report, expressing belief that mysterious fires in the house of Alex MacDonald could be attributed to Mary Ellen MacDonald, the farmer's foster daughter, subject to "altered states of consciousness." His ghost hunt over, Dr. Prince was preparing to return home tomorrow.

Dispatches from Windsor, Ont., which yesterday reported the spirit of Leo Leonard of Jackson, Mich., walking abroad, stated that no further uncanny incidents had occurred overnight at the home of his son-in-law, Franklin Crandall, who charged the ghost with having hurled him across the room.

Indeed, a ghost would have had a hard time squeezing into the small house, which was thronged all day with the curious. Two clergymen were invited by the family to visit the house to lay the spirit by the power of prayer.

Rev. H. M. Paulin, one of the clergymen, said after his visit that there was no doubt that the family was in a state bordering on panic.

"My opinion of the whole matter is that these visits of spiritualist mediums have so excited the minds of all of them that their imagination is running riot," he added.

Dodge, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, was sentenced to five days in the house of correction and fined $100 by Judge Charles L. WEEKS' HORSES WIN FIVE BLUES AT FORT WORTH

Horses owned by H. F. Weeks, Wichita Falls attorney, continued Tuesday and Wednesday to take honors at the horse show being held in connection with the exposition and fat stock show in Fort Worth.

On Tuesday, Gretta Times, a gray mare from the Speedway farm, received blue ribbons in two classes, winning in the fine harness class and also in the walk-trot-and-canter division. Yesterday two more of Weeks' horses were honored, the judges pinning a blue ribbon on the mare Susan Francis and giving a second prize to Silver Dare.

These awards, coupled with the prizes won by Easter Cloud, another Speedway farm entry, on Monday, have brought Weeks five blue ribbons in the five classes in which his horses were entered—a clean sweep for the thoroughbred animals owned by the local horseman.

By Associated Press.

BONUS BILL IS RE-INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE

Majority Report Submitted by Chairman Fordney, Claiming Six Advantages of New Measure.

Petition Is Circulated Calling for Conference on Bonus of Republican House Members.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The compromise soldiers' bonus bill, as finally revised, was re-introduced today in the house by Chairman Fordney who submitted a majority report from the ways and means claiming these "advantages of plan of the bill:

"First. No new taxation, no issuance of new securities is at present required.

"Second. It provides for the veteran in need a method of obtaining aid.

"Third—The amounts required each year after July 1, 1923 are small compared to those which have heretofore been met and can be provided without any difficulties or derangement of our financial situation.

"Fourth. The plan tends to promote saving habits among the veterans.

"Fifth. It protects the veteran himself and his family from misfortune in the future.

"Sixth. It will create a class of homebuilders who will greatly increase the mass of property in the country."

"While perfect unanimity could not be expected as to all details of the bill," the report said, "the majority of the committee believes that the plan in general meets the approval of the soldiers and of all of those who are in favor of granting them additional compensation in any form whatever."

ESTIMATE BONUS WILL COST $4,098,719,350

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—There were just two developments today in the soldier's bonus muddle. One was the filing by Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee, of the majority report on the compromise bill, which was estimated to cost the government $4,098,719,350. The other was the circulation of a petition by Representative Lineberger of California, a former service man, for a conference of house republicans for next Tuesday evening to discuss the bonus legislation.

Mr. Lineberger announced tonight that there were sixty signatures to the petition, or ten more than the number required under the rules for a conference call. Its presentation, he added, would depend upon the outcome of the conference between the house leaders and Speaker Gillett regarding procedure for the calling up of the bill on the floor.

If there is a decision at that conference to consider the bill under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Lineberger said, the petition would be presented. There was some speculation as to whether a formal conference call would delay consideration of the legislation. Chairman Fordney declared emphatically he was still determined to bring the bill up Monday under a suspension of the rules, if that could be done, and if not to call it up Tuesday under a special rule, if such a rule could be obtained.

Speaker Gillett is due to arrive here tomorrow from Florida and at that time the question of whether the bill will be taken up Monday probably will be settled. Mr. Fordney said the conference with the speaker would be in "perfect harmony" and that if Mr. Gillett held against a suspension of the rules he would proceed with plans to bring the measure up under a special rule.

The majority report on the bill was approved by all of the republicans of the ways and means commitee except two, Representatives Treadway of Massachusetts and Tilson of Connecticut, who voted against the measure in committee and who were not present at he session of the majority today when the report was finally revised.

The estimate in the report that the total cost of the bonus would be $4,008,719,350 was based upon the assumption that 70 per cent of the 4,458,199 veterans eligible for compensation would accept adjusted service certificates; 21-2 per cent vocational training aid; 10 per cent farm and home aid and 7 1-2 per cent land settlement aid. The remaining 10 per cent would be paid in cash after passage of the bill under a provision requiring veterans whose adjusted compensation would not exceed $50 to accept cash.

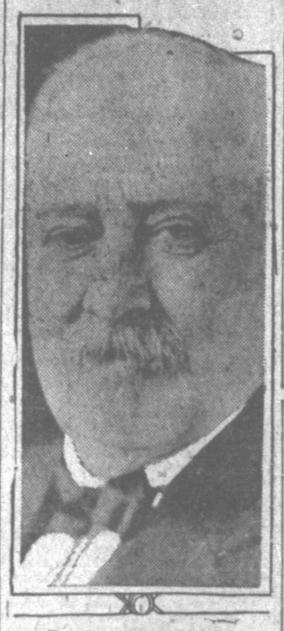

Total costs under the various options of the bill were estimated as follows: Cash payments $16,000,000; certificates on account of deaths, $377,571,000 and on account of maturity $3,154,822,350; vocational training $52,325,000; farm and home aid $106,000,000 and land settlement $112,000,000.

FORDNEY PRAISES NEW BONUS BILL

Rep. Joseph W. Fordney.

MEN HELD IN CONTEMPT OF AUSTIN COURT

Police Commissioner and Companion, Who Refused to Answer Questions on Klan, Allowed Bond.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 16.—Police Commissioner K. D. Copeland and F. G. Reynolds, clerk of a local fraternal organization were today adjourned to be in contempt of court by Judge J. B. Hamilton of the criminal district court for refusal to answer questions asked them by the Travis county grand jury.

Judge Hamilton then imposed a fine of $100 on each of the defendants and ordered them remanded to jail and to be held there until they should purge themselves of the contempt charges by answering the questions of the grand jury.

Attorneys for the defense then announced that they would sue out a writ of habeas corpus in the court of criminal appeals, seeking to have the judgment of the lower court set aside and the men released. After some trouble in locating a member of the court, Judge W. C. Morrow, presiding judge, granted a temporary writ of habeas courpus and allowed the two defendants bond of $500 each. This was quickly made. They are to appear before the court of criminal appeals next Thursday that the "cause of his restraint and confinement may be inquired into."

Judge Hamilton's decision is the climax of an affair which has been hanging fire since last Tuesday when Copeland and Reynolds refused to answer questions of the grand jury pertaining to the Ku Klux Klan. These questions as recited by Judge Hamilton in his decision are "are you a member of the Ku Klux Klan of Travis county? Who are the officers of said Ku Klux Klan? Name those whom you have seen at meetings of said Ku Klux Klan."

The deefndants claimed that their constitutional rights privileged them to refuse to answer, that to do so would incriminate themselves. District Attorney J. B. Robertson, promised the men immunity from punishment but still they refused to answer.

Mr. Robertson then sought judgment of Judge Hamilton, declaring at the time and repeating it today, that the grand jury must have this information if it is to continue its investigation. It is understood that the jury has been for the past week investigating the killing of Peeler Clayton, taxicab driver, last December in an alley bordering the "Ku Klux Klan hall."

Judge Hamilton deferred decision yesterday, anouncing that he preferred to consult additional counsel. When he called the defendants to court today, he ordered that they again be taken before the grand jury and again asked the questions regarding the klan. Their attorneys, however, asked that that order be waived and that the judge pronounce his decision which he did.

In arguing the case before Judge Hamilton, Mr. Robertson pointed out that it was now simply a question of whether a citizen could refuse immunity when promised him by the state court.

OFFICIAL ASKS BUCKET SHOP PROSECUTION

Officials of Cotton Exchange and Number of Traders Alleged Involved in Illegal Practices.

Chief City Magistrate Requests Prosecution Following "John Doe" Investigation of Exchange.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Chief City Magistrate McAdoo, who conducted a "John Doe" investigation of the American Cotton Exchange, tonight requested the district attorney either to draft warrants for the arrest of certain officials and members of the exchange, or immediately to lay before the grand jury evidence of bucketshopping.

Besides officers of the exchange, Magistrate McAdoo said, the following persons had been involved so far in testimony taken at the "John Doe" hearings:

Martin Goulke, trading under the name of Martin & Company.

A. T. Jennings and Leonard C. Cocheu, trading under the name of A. T. Jennings & Company.

Edward L. Patten, trading under the name of Edward L. Palmer & Company.

Rodolpho Rose Sr. and Rodolpho Rose Jr. trading under the name of Rose & Son.

A. W. Graham, formerly of Oxford, North Carolina, president of the American Cotton Exchange, and author of the cotton futures act, and George W. Pratt, secretary, are included among the officers involved in the testimony, Magistrate McAdoo said.

The written request for warrants or a grand jury investigation goes into a detailed explanation of the law defining bucket shops, prohibited under the penal law. The law "is clear and explicit," the magistrate said, in establishing legislation to prevent "fictitious and make believe sales" and defines as a bucket shop any building or place "where any contract prohibited by this article is made or offered to be made."

Magistrate McAdoo criticised the exchange for lowering the unit upon which "wagers" were made from 100 to 10 bales and added that it "was a serious misfortune for the large number of foolish dupes who indulged in this form of gambling, and their aggregate losses must have been great." If would have been better, he said, if the unit had been higher than 100 bales. Even when the speculating is carried on within the law it calls for a large means in order to meet large losses," the magistrate declared, "but imagine the chances they are to the so called customer when the game is often reduced to a wager with dishonest and irresponsible persons, and when most of those speculating live far away from the exchange, in the cotton belt of the Southern States.

The evidence shows that the largest part of the transactions on this exchange were simply wagers made on the fluctuations of the cotton market obtained by telephonic communication as to the activities and actions of other exchanges, following which false representations were made those who had risked their money in these illegal transactions.

"I am of opinion that the evidence given warrants presentation directly to the grand jury, or the taking of a complaint against the officers and persons in charge of the American Cotton Exchange for conducting a bucket shop under the terms of this act."

Regarding witnesse who testified at the "John Doe" investigation, Magistrate McAdoo advised that "where they have frankly and fully and without reserve given evidence material for the prosecution and for the public benefit, it would advise that immunity be extended to them.

"PRAYER" SUBJECT OF BISHOP MOUZON'S FIRST SERMON HERE

Floral Heights Methodist Church Filled to Overflowing for Distinguished Preacher's First Sermon.

Bishop E. D. Mouzon, arriving Thursday from his home in Tulsa, preached his first sermon of the ten-day revival services he will conduct at the Floral Heights Methodist church, Thursday evening to an audience that filled the auditorium, and overflowed into the balcony and lecture room. Practically every other church in the city was represented in the large congregation, and Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, assisted in the opening services, delivering that invocation, following the song service conducted by W. H. Richardson.

Dr. Groseclose, the pastor of the Floral Heights church, who has been conducting the services since the revival opened Sunday, turned his pulpit over to the distinguished churchman who is to lead the meetings for the remaining ten days, with the announcement that the church and its congregation was at the bishop's entire disposal.

Bishop Mouzon prefaced his sermon with a few remarks of greeting, expressing his pleasure at being able to be of service to the Wichita Falls church. The presence of members of other Methodist and other denominational congregations at the service was remarked by the bishop as a source of gratification and pleasure, and the invitation expressed that all these churches and particularly the ministers, participate in the services to the fullest possible extent.

The bishop's first sermon was on the subject of "Prayer," taking as the text, Matthew, seventh chapter, seventh and eighth verses, "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened to you."

He spoke in part as follows:

"My friends, I am going to preach to you tonight on the subject of 'Prayer.' The text that I have chosen uses in the Greek present tense and it really means 'ask and keep asking, seek and keep seeking, knock and keep knocking.'

"When I was in Europe last summer I spent a good deal of time in London. While there I visited many interesting places but the most interesting of all was John Wesley's house. In that house which he has built was prepared in his plans a 'prayer room,' a small room especially for his private praying. I wonder if the great trouble with the church today is not that we have no prayer rooms in our houses.

"A certain great minister is quoted as having said, 'I have not failed to study, I have not failed to visit, I have not failed to write and meditate, but I have failed to pray.'

"The man John Wesley prayed and the Methodists gathered in London last summer represented a constituency of not less than thirty millions of followers of Wesley.

"Now let me raise some questions about prayer. What is prayer? I am answered, "It is a child's communion with its father.' When I had been away from home on a long trip and returned I went to my study and asked my wife not to let me be disturbed, as I had very heavy business to attend to in my study. After a while she called me and asked me to look out. I saw my little three year old who had brought his toys and books and had placed his back against my door, trying to get just as close to his father as possible. Prayer is a child trying to get close to his father.

"Prayer is more than this. Prayer is the effort and struggle of the soul to relate itself to God and the Divine Will. Prayer is more than mystic meditation. The parables of the friend at midnight, and the importunate widow are Christ's teaching to show us we must really be in earnest with our requests. It is not that God is asleep and must be awakened, but that we ourselves are asleep and must awaken ourselves.

"The story about Abraham Lincoln relates that some one said to him, 'I hope the Lord is on our side.' Lincoln replied, 'I am not caring about that, I hope we are on God's side.' Prayer is not pulling God onto our side, but pulling ourselves to God's side."

At the close of the sermon the bishop called for those who had family prayers at least once a day to stand, a number standing. A number of others were added when he asked for promises of prayers with families in the future, and practically the entire congregation stood when he asked for those who would pray for the success of the revival.

Tonight will be "high school night," the bishop announced and a special invitation is extended to all high school students. The subject will be "The Ministry of Manhood." An invitation has been extended to the high school orchestra to play at this time, and this will probably be arranged, it is stated.

Services will be held this morning at 10:00 o'clock, Bishop Mouzon to preach at this time on "The Coming of the Kingdom."

An automobile committee, with Mrs. B. M. Bullard chairman, will see that transportation is provided for all who do not have a means of getting to the services, it was announced. Those desiring the services of this committee are asked to call Mrs. Bullard at 6418 before 9:00 a. M. or 4:00 p. m.

A nursery, with a trained attendant, has been opened at the church for the mothers who find it necessary to bring their young children with them. It is urged that no mother remain away from the services because they have not one at home, with whom to leave their children.

At the close of Thursday night's services the desire of the audience to meet and speak with Bishop Mouzon personally led to something like an informal reception. There were a large number of friends and former parishioners who were especially pleased to greet the bishop, and express their appreciation of his first sermon, and their interest in the services.

They tell us there are more gypsies now than there ever were, and we guess most every one who has been house hunting in the last few years has developed a mighty strong desire to turn gypsy.

A mother usually is very fussy about the man daughter picks out to lead to the altar, but all father asks is for her to pick out one he won't have to support.

WEEKS VIEWS PROPOSED CUT AS ILL-ADVISED

By Associated Press.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 16.—Secretary Weeks said he planned to inform the senate military affairs committee that "it is impossible with a small force to man the 290 posts throughout the United States," in discussing today the action of the house appropriations committee in reporting a bill carrying considerably reduced figures for the military estimate and providing for an army of 115,000 men and 11,000 officers if the house committee figures stand, he added, it will mean that the forces at the army posts will consist merely of guards for the properties.

"Reduction in the personnel," the secretary asserted, "is especially unwise unless the overhead expense of the army is cut at lieast the same ratio. It now costs about $2,000 per man per year as against about $1,000 before the war.

"The present bill so far as I am informed, does nothing in reducing overhead expenses such as maintenance and repair requirements at many posts which may well be abandoned." Mr. Weeks said constant requests came to Washington from renewal of equipment and buildings at the army posts, but no expenditure of $500 or more is allowed unless personally approved by him.

"If congress wishes to reduce army expenditures," the secretary continued, "it should abolish everything that is nto necessary for the military defense of the country." He said he asked congress nine months ago for authority to dispose of about 100 pieces of real estate. There are, in addition, he asserted, a number of military posts now valueless, many of them scattered throughout the West constructed originally for defense against the Indians and still others which contribute in no way to the valuation of defense. Reduction of the army to 115,000 men will necessitate abandonment of many posts, he said.

"We shall have to take troops out of them," he said. "It requires about 45,000 men on the border and in foreign possessions, which would leave 70,000 to garrison the remaining 250 posts. The 70,000 includes aviation, quartermaster corps, medical corps, etc., so that the remainder is only about 50,000 combat troops. This is only enough to act as guards of government property if they are to be divided over the posts.

Special to the Record News.

IOWA PARK, March 16.—At the regular meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce it was discussed and adopted that the business man meet on Monday of each week at a luncheon to be held at the two leading hotels of the town alternately, thereby assuring a common understanding on all matters of interest to the community and encourage friendly relations between themselves for the good of all.

We can't say whether or not a girl closes her eyes when she is being kissed, but if the kiss is being delivered on the lips that, at least, is one time when she has to shut her mouth.

The reason why this back-to-the-farm movement makes so little headway is because they don't have the right kind of chickens on the farm.

A London paper says a woman does not want a man to take her out for meals, but wants to feel the onus of getting his meals rests upon her shoulders. It is very evident the writer got this idea after talking with an old maid and not with a flapper.

STRIKE VIOLENCE GROWS IN SOUTH AFRICA

The Rand, which saw some of the bitter fighting in the Boer war, is now the scene of bloody struggles between strikers and police and soldiery. Nearby in Johannesburg excitement is intense and crowds gather daily in the market square to hear the latest reports on the struggle now being waged. Gen. Jan Smuts, former Boer leader, present premier of South Africa and an outstanding figure in the Versailles peace conference, narrowly escaped death in a battle between strikers and police when his machine was riddled with bullets while he was on his way from Johannesburg to Booysens in the strike district.

REPORT SHOWS LAWYERS HAVE NO EASY PICKINGS IN JUSTICE COURTS HERE

Nothing like the ease with which prisoners represented by attorneys were shown to have escaped fines in the police court was indicated in the records of the two Wichita Falls justice courts as reported to its executive committee of the Wichita County Citizens' association by its special investigator, for the report shows that of the many "called" in these courts, almost as many were "chosen." As a matter of fact, the report on Justice Court No. 1 shows 942 convictions to 75 acquittals, with or without attorneys. In Justice Court No. 2 there were 851 convictions to 53 acquittals. On the vagrancy cases, which in the police court were seen to have resulted in acquittals or dismissals in over 81 per cent of the cases where attorneys were retained, the two courts showed 790 convictions and only 72 acquittals and dismissals between them.

Like the police court, the report on which was released for publication Thursday, the investigator finds complaint to make of the keeping of records in these courts—as he does in fact in all the courts, including the district courts, the report on which is to be given for Sunday publication. A total of 20 cases are shown in the two courts where fines have been assessed with no charges being shown against the defendants. In one court he finds records of costs assessed, with no fine assessed against the defendant. He reports that 258 cases stand undisposed of on the docket, a situation which he says brings up the honored pastime of "passing the buck," the justices charging this to failure of the officers to make returns on the warrants issued.

The one other criticism that is indicated is based on the low fines assessed in the court, the usual fine being found to be $1, of which only 80 cents goes to the state, while $10, the amount of the fine and costs, is divided among the various officers. So, he reports that the total fines and costs assessed by the two courts were $8,532.00, of which only $700 went into the treasury of the state, the rest being divided among the various officers.

The statistics of cases in the two courts follow:

INVESTIGATION OF KU KLUX KLAN AT LAREDO ORDERED

By Associated Press.

LAREDO, March 16.—Complete investigation into the organization of the Ku Klux Klan in Laredo was ordered today by District Judge Mullally in instructing the grand jury. He told the jury to summon every city, county and federal officer and question them as to membership in the Klan—which he characterized as an "unlawful organization gotten up for the purpose of violating the laws of the state."

Each individual, the court said, has a constitutional right to decline to answer questions as to his membership in the organization, but must tell what he may know concerning other members. Those refusing to tell are subject to jail sentence for contempt of court, Judge Mullally declared.

GARRETSON'S ASHES TO BE SCATTERED OVER LAKE WATERS

By Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., March 16.—The funeral of Ellis Lewis Garretson, former imperial potentate of the Shrine, was held today, but the hour and place were kept secret in order that his wishes for strict privacy might be observed. Bishop Lemuel R. Wells of the Episcopal church conducted the services, which were followed by cremation. In compliance with the will of Mr. Garretson, friends will scatter his ashes over Gravelly lake, on the shores of which he lived.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY PERMITS OF GAIETY IN LENT

A fancy dress costume and table decorations for a St. Patrick's day party.

St. Patrick's day permits of a bit of gaiety in the matter of entertainment. Dinners, parties for cards or dancing and various little social affairs may be planned for that day with all properists, particularly if one is a Colt and loves the patron saint. Decorations for this day are among the best offered for any festive day. The green shamrocks, miniature clay pipes, harps and other Irish symbols can be bought for a very small amount from any stationer. Favors, paper tablecloths, napkins, crepe paper for a hanging decoration, as shown in the illustration, are but a hint of what can be used to brighten up a table for a St. Patrick's day

WILL SUPPLY PUBLIC WITH STRIKE DATA

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—A plan which the government is working out to supply the public with disinterested information when strikes threaten industry, was described here today by Secretary of Labor Davis.

It consists of maintaining specialists trained in each of thirty-two "key" industries in the nation, he said thus enabling the government to have on hand a complete file of accurate information and data concerning conditions in any given line.

"As it is now," he concluded, "no one can tell which side to believe. Under the proposed plan, the government, at the beginning of a labor difficulty, could give out an official statement which would form the basis for an accurate and just opinion. The specialists would live with an industry, year in and year out, and would be familiar with every one of its phases and its details."

Secretary Davis said that the government is now conducting an investigation in thirty cities in coal mine areas to determine cost of living and other conditions to obtain definite data affecting questions of miners' wages.

"At the present time," he continued "there are some fifty million to sixty-five million tons of bituminous coal above ground. This quantity of coal, with the non-union mines operating, should be sufficient to supply the country's needs for from three to four months."

The miners officials were in his office two days ago, he said, and agreed to meet with the operators.

"But you know this is a dark industry," he added.

"They work in the dark mines and their product is dark. There are many dark secrets in this industry on both sides. The public, however, is entitled to know the facts about all industries, and it is a great satisfaction to know that we are to get the money from congress to develop this information service."

OPEN LETTER NO. 3

J. P. Jones, county judge, County Commissioners and J. M. Isbell, county engineer:

It seems to us that it any person or corporation had made the statements that we have made publicly regarding the way you gentlemen have handled the affairs of this county, that you would be glad, and would lose no time in contradicting the same, if you could do so. We want to say here, that if the county has become so economical that it cannot spend any money to place you gentlemen in the clear (if such can be done) or if you are not willing to spend your own money to do so, then this company will pay at the regular advertising rates for any statement you wish to make in answer to our letters Nos. 1, 2 and 3, provided you do not use more space than we have. This company is not organized for the purpose of dispensing charity, but we are so anxious to have you answer our letters that we will be glad to incur this expense, if there is any answer you can make.

We are glad that the taxpayers and citizens of this county are becoming sufficiently aroused that they are demanding an explanation of the manner in which you are buying materials for your concrete roads and we are very anxious that they should have this explanation. In other words, the statements that have been made by us in our open letters Nos. 1 and 2 have not been refuted by you and are likely to cause the finger of scorn and suspicion to be pointed at you and it would grieve us very much if any of the officials of this county should commit any act that would justify any censure from his constituents.

We notice in the Record News of March 12, page 15, the following headlines: "Isbell makes report of prices paid for sand." The article, however, itself does not say anything about the price paid for sand and merely gives the number of cars actually received for road work. We would like for the taxpayers to know that if these 1,004 cars had been purchased at the price you can now purchase first class specification sand for from us, it would have cost the taxpayers approximately $75,000.00 less than what it has cost them. We, however, do not intend, or want to convey the impression that we could have furnished this quantity of sand at the time it was used. But we do not want the taxpayers to forget that you can now purchase and have been able to do so for some time the same, or better quality of sand than you have been using, at a saving of approximately $1,000.00 per month, based on the rate you claimed you were using sand.

We also want to call your attention to another article published in the Daily Times of March 13, with the following headlines: "County refuses to pay for sand in controversy." We want the taxpayers to know that this identical car of sand is the one that Mr. Isbell, representing the county, and Mr. Julian Montgomery, representing us, who with a third man selected by the above mentioned gentlemen, secured samples of sand from this car and sent same to Austin to be tested by the highway department, under whose specifications our roads are being built, and who reported that the sand was satisfactory for concrete work.

In other words it has been tested by three competent men. First, Mr. Julian Montgomery of this city, who is a consulting engineer of far more than average ability and has the distinction of having been the highest salaried city engineer of the state, and has probably had more experience in building concrete highways than our county engineer will ever have.

Second. It was tested by Dr. Thomas, testing engineer of the University of Texas, who reported that "This is excellent sand that should make first class concrete."

Third. The State Highway Department reports on the sample taken from this car by Mr. Isbell himself as follows: "This sample of material consists of well graded sand. This sand contains a small amount of clay which no doubt adds to its value for use in cement mortars. The 1 to 3 mortar tests herewith are high for 7 day test and should be considered as very satisfactory."

We are not mentioning this particular news item because we think the taxpayers are especially interested in our controversy on the one car of sand, but simply to show that the sand which your engineer rejects as unsatisfactory is considered by unprejudiced and competent engineers as entirely satisfactory and tends to show that the County Engineer of this county is prejudiced against us and is not inclined to give us a square deal and thereby save the county many thousands of dollars of expense in building the concrete roads yet to be built.

One of these newspaper articles also intimated that samples of the sand now being used in the construction of the roads and also a sample of our sand could be found in Judge Jones' office by anyone interested in same. We might also add that samples can also be seen and secured from the various cars received by the county to be unloaded at their unloading rack and that what we had reference to in our letter No. 2 wherein we stated that we were not willing for our product to be judged by samples secured by prejudiced parties, as it is entirely too easy for same to become unaccountably mixed with Wichita County dirt, but that we are willing to submit at any time to any test made by unprejudiced, competent engineers as to the quality and cleanliness of our product.

We sincerely hope, gentlemen, that some of you will see fit to answer our letters in the public press and give the taxpayers of this county an opportunity of judging whether or not we have misinformed them, or misrepresented to them in any way in regard to your treatment of us at the expense of the taxpayers.

In the meantime we stand ready, willing and anxious to supply this county with first class concrete sand at 10c per ton less than you are now paying. Now isn't it a fact that if you purchased all your sand from us at the price we quote that you would save the taxpayers of Wichita County approximately $1,000 per month.

(Pardon us if we repeat this occasionally, as this is what we want to impress on the minds of the taxpayers of Wichita County.)

Don't Overlook Any Diamonds

KIMBERLEY was going back. The farmers were disgruntled. They said they couldn't eke out a living from the rocky soil.

REPORT SHOWS DOGS TO HAVE HYDROPHOBIA

Reports received yesterday from the state health department stated that examination of the heads of two dogs that attacked Dr. J. R. E. Richardson and Homer Humphries of this city, had produced evidence that the animals had been suffering from hydrophobia. Humphries has gone to Austin for treatment, while Dr. Richardson is treating himself here.

Police Commissioner Fitts stated yesterday that he will ask the city council at its meeting next Monday night to pass as an emergency measure a recent ordinance providing for the muzzling of all dogs that are given street freedom by their owners. The ordinance already has passed on its first reading.

Annullment of the marriage of Francis Rutledge to F. W. Baker which occurred in October of last year is asked in a suit filed Wednesday in the 89th district court by the mother of the girl. According to the petition the girl never intended to marry the defendant and after the marriage did not live with him. The petition asks that the maiden name be restored to the plaintiff.

THIEF VICTIMIZES GUESTS HOTEL HERE

City Detective Jack Miller and W. S. Johnson, house detective of the Kemp hotel, reported failure yesterday to find any fresh clue that might lead to identification of the thief who ransacked several rooms in the hotel Wednesday night. A negro bellboy, who is said to have had access to all the rooms, was booked by the police for investigation, but it was stated later the evidence against him is slight.

Four rooms were visited by the thief or thieves, who stole jewelry and cash from each. In one room they "picked up" a diamond ring valued by the owner at $1,500.

THUGS BIND 6 IN MANSION, HOLD REVEL, GET $25,000 IN BOOZE

A sextet of hooch bandits invaded the home of Julien Hart, wealthy silk merchant, at Manlo Park, near San Francisco, while Miss Mary Conway was his guest. The thugs proceeded to bind the servants and forced Hart and his fair guest to remain seated on a davenport in the drawing room while they blew the steel door to the concrete vault in which he kept his liquor supply. For seventeen hours they reveled in bacchanalian debauch while their helpless victims looked on. The bandits mixed courtesy with brutality toward their unwilling hosts. When Miss Conway complained of being cold the bandits' leader ordered one of his men to build a fire in the grate. When one of the bandits approached Miss Conway in a threatening manner he was beaten by his brother bandits. After the revel the bandits escaped with $25,000 worth of liquor. Miss Conway is an aviatrix, an art student at Stanford University and a daughter of Bob Fowler, pioneer aviator.

PAT CARRIGAN POST PREPARING FOR EX-SERVICE MEN EMPLOYMENT DRIVE

Officials of the Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, are preparing a list of needy former service men who are without work as a preliminary to "Unemployed Ex-Service Men's Day" on March 20, when the Legion will begin a strenuous drive to secure employment for every ex-service man not employed. The day has been proclaimed by the president, governor and by the municipal authorities, and plans to bring it to the attention of the public are being made by the local post.

"Forget about the nation—solve your local problem and the national situation will be automatically taken care of—" that is the gist of the plan on which national leaders of the Legion are working for the solution of this problem.

Local Operators Have Four Wells In Mexia Pool

Four wells with a total production of approximately 10,000 barrels daily have been completed in the Mexia field by the Danciger interests according to reports received at the local office of the Danciger Oil and Refining company. Joe and M. O. Danciger, active heads of the Danciger operations who have been here for a few days on legal business have left for Mexia to be present when two additional wells are completed.

In addition to their completions the operators have six tests drilling on leases off-setting the No. 1 Sherer of the Humble Oil and Refining company which was brought in Wednesday a 3,500-barrel well, making a quarter mile extension to the north of the producing area of the Mexia field. Three additional tests will be added to the total by the end of the week. The tests drilling are the Nos. 5, 6, 8, 12, 13 and 14 of the Danciger Oil and Refining company.

The four recent completions of the Danciger interests are the Nos. 2 and 3 Koenig of the Danciger Development Syndicate and the Nos. 2 and 3 of the Danciger Oil and Refining located on the Scherer lease. All four completions are showing an initial production around 2,500 barrels each. The production was obtained at 3,000 feet.

Photograph of plans for "Stevens" hotel.

Plans for the world's largest hotel have been announced by the Hotel La Salle Company in Chicago. It is to be erected on Michigan avenue. It will contain 3,000 rooms and will cost between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000. The Pennsylvania hotel in New York now is the largest hotel in the world. It contains approximately 2,200 rooms.

CHIEF M'CLURE IS TESTING CHILDRESS TRUCK

Fire Marshal J. L. McClure went to Childress yesterday afternoon at that city's request, to test out a new Seagrave combination hose wagon, chemical truck and pump recently purchased. Official tests of the fire-fighting appartus will be made before the members of the Childress city council, with "Mac" as judge.

Chief McClure will also take up with the Childress fire department the matter of standarizing hose and plug connections. He is district chairman of a state committee appointed to study this problem. Standardization of hose and plug equipment is being urged by state fire marshals so that outside help can be more readily available when needed.

Talk, Singing And Snapshot—Rotary Features

A brief talk by Bishop Mouzon who arrived Thursday to begin revival services at the Floral Heights Methodist church, a visit by the whole club to the newly completed "Knot Hole" grand stand at the baseball park where a picture was taken, and the announcement that next week's luncheon would be taken in the newly completed community house on the North Side—together with a particularly strenuous vocal workout under the leadership of R. E. Shepherd proved the features of the Rotary luncheon Thursday noon.

The organization meeting of those who have access t othe Rotary grandstand, the "Knot Hole Gang" will be held at Scout headquarters this evening at 7:15, it was announced. The stand was erected for boys under 16 years of age, with proper conduct and school records, who will attend Texas league baseball games as joint guests of the Rotary club and baseball association this summer.

MAKE ATTEMPT TO CRACK SAFE HERE

M. G. Catter reported to the police yesterday that amateur cracksmen had attempted Wednesday night to break into the safe in his place of business at 304 Ohio avenue. The attempt was abandoned after the bungling burglars had "busted" the knob and combination with a chisel and hammer.

The safe contained only a few papers of little value.

with 63,370 leads the old province of Quebec by 4,000. Total registration of 497,582 for Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, shows one motor vehicle for every 96 persons. Mexico is the only country which imported more automobiles in 1921 than in 1920 and careful estimates show that its automotive registration increased nearly 50 per cent last year. Porto Rico is using motor vehicles to supply transportations not furnished by railroads. Development of bus lines in the island has reached large proportions. China is a slow traveler. China has a population of 400 million and a motor vehicle registration of only 8,150. In comparison with the other countries of the world the density of the motor population in the United States is startling. Final revised registration figures show one for every 10.2 persons. Iowa has one for every 5.28; South Dakota one for every 5.38; Nebraska one for every 5.49; Colorado one for every 5.78, and Kansas one for every 6.14. New York still leads in total registrations with 812,031. The other leading States in order are: Ohio, 720,632; Pennsylvania, 689,589; California, 673,830; Illinois, 670,434; Michigan, 477,037; Texas, 467,616, and Iowa, 460,528. The only other State to exceed the 400,000 mark was Indiana with 400,342. There was an actual registration gain of 1,573,202 in the United States in 1921 over 1920, or 17.6 per cent. The largest percentage gain was in Florida. Five States gained more than 100,000 in registrations last year. They were New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California and Illinois. Now the reader knows where the gas goes.

It was a slump in the price of products and not a light foreign demand that played havoc with the Southern cotton farmer in 1921. Cotton exports in 1921 totaled 6,678,000 bales with a declared value of $534,242,000. Now take the figures for 1920. Cotton exports for that year totaled 6,359,000 bales, or half the American crop, valued at $1,136,409,000. To be exact the cotton farmer received more than twice as much for his cotton in 1920 than he received in 1921. Deflation hit him with a vengeance. Exports of corn in 1921 were larger than any year since 1900. In 1921 corn products totaled 132,000,000 bushels valued at $96,566,000. Now take the figures for 1920. In that year corn products totaled only 1,230,000 bushels and yet it had a value of $33,932,000. Speaking of rice the exports of 600,050,000 pounds in 1921 was more than 23 times the average annual rice exports in the five-year period 1910 to 1914. In 1921 more wheat was exported than in any preceeding year and for the first time the export value of wheat and wheat flour exceeded the value of cotton exports and yet the slump in prices tell their own story. Exports of wheat in 1920 had a value of $224,472,000 and exports in the banner year 1921 had a declared value of only $117,696,000.

According to the Oil Trade Journal the Standard does a business of about 2,200,000 gallons daily in the metropolitan or New York district and others engaged in the gasoline business do about 500,000 gallons daily. Gothamites are gas users. That noble animal, the horse, has gone to join the dodo.

A survey of the political situation in 15 states made by the national committee of the Republican party indicates Republicans probably will retain control of congress in the election next fall. These leaders say with only one-third of the senators to be elected the Republicans are in no danger of losing the senate, in which they now hold a majority of 22. They admit that there is wide-spread dissatisfaction among farmers, among laboring men and among business men, but they say that popular discontent is beginning to be dissipated. In the house now there are 307 Republicans and 127 Democrats, a Republican majority of 180. In the last house the Republicans had a house majority of 46. Harding's landslide netted them a gain of 70 seats. They say they can lose 89 seats in the coming election and still have a majority. Republican leaders concede the probability of the loss of nearly all the seats they gained in 1920. Democratic leaders in the city of Washington profess confidence they can regain 100 or more seats, thereby wresting control from the Republicans. Democrats are confident of holding all the senate seats and gaining in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Indiana, and one or two elsewhere. Harry New is expected to go down in defeat in Indiana and Pennsylvania may show some startling surprises. Republican leaders would welcome a loss of 50 seats they now hold in the lower house as their majority is huge, cannot be handled, is leaderless and split up into blocs or divisions. Gone are the days of the bosses who bossed.

Dr. Atticus Webb, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas and editor of Home and State, is on the road again and promises to make it interesting during the campaign. This is his advice to the readers of the Home and State leaguers and all prohibitionists: "There is little or no liquor to be had in Texas today except bootleg liquor. The officer who drinks bootlegger liquor will never make an honest attempt to suppress bootlegging business. Therefore, vote for no man who drinks." How about the man who smokes? Is he on the suspect list? Dr. Atticus warns District Attorney Maury Hughes of Dallas county and District Attorney Jesse Brown of Tarrant county "that there is no need of whipping the devil around the stump. Things have been going wrong in Dallas and in Fort Worth and the responsibility is going to be laid at the door of the proper parties and they had just as well get busy." Dr. Atticus has a grievance. He says bootleggers are arrested in these counties and handed over to the federal authorities when they should be sent to trial in the state courts and given the limit, as provided by the Dean law. Dr. Atticus has another grievance. He has discovered that discipline (or authority) has broken down in the home, in the school and in the church. This is his indictment of the church: "The church, too, has suffered. Authority here will not be tolerated any longer. Church discipline is largely a thing of the past. The result is dancers sing in the choir, gamblers sit in the pew and heartless, ungodly capitalists dictate its policy. Understand that we do not mean to say that all who sit in the choirs are dancers, all who sit in pews are gamblers and all who direct the affairs of the church are heartless, ungodly capitalists. What we mean to say is that when you find such there it is the result of discarding the discipline of the church under the modern teaching that 'the word "MUST" must go.'" Spring is almost here. Spring flowers are almost here. Spring's feathered songsters are coming. Spring rains are coming. Spring time in Grand Old Texas is ever worthwhile. Dr. Atticus may be happy yet.

RED TAIL, THE HAWK, FOOLS THE COYOTE

Redtail the Hawk sat straight and still on a branch of a big pine tree on his side of the pile of brush, under which Peter Rabbit was hiding. Because he was high up and his eyes are sharp, he could see Old Man Coyote and Reddy and Granny Fox hiding where each could watch a different side of the pile of brush. It had been Old Man Coyote's plan, and when he had suggested it, it had seemed very good plan to Redtail. Peter Rabbit couldn't stay forever under that brush, and when he did come out one of them would be sure to get him. A fat rabbit was worth being patient and waiting a long time for. In fact, Redtail wouldn't have minded the long wait at all, but for Blacky the Crow and Sammy Jay. For a while they screamed themselves hoarse. You know, whenever they screamed themselves hoarse. You know, whenever they see Old Man Coyote or Granny or Reddy Fox or Redtail the Hawk they delight in telling everybody within hearing, and in that way often give warning to other little people. But never before had they had a chance like this to make trouble for all four at once, and they made the most of it.

Blacky knew what it all meant. He had seen Reddy Fox chase Peter under the pile of brush, and he knew just why Reddy and the others were hiding now. Of course, he told Peter all about it, and kept screaming to Peter to stay where he was. He didn't do it to help Peter, but to torment the others. Sammy Jay did the same thing. But Blacky and Sammy haven't a great deal of patience, and after a while they grew tired of staying in one place, so away they flew to see what other mischief they could get into. They felt sure that Peter was so badly frightened that he would not try to come out for a long time, and when they grew tired of other sport they would come back. Redtail watched them go and sighed a great sigh of relief. They were very disturbing, those two fellows, and he wished he was smart enough to catch them.

With these two noise makers out of the way, the Green Forest grew very still. Redtail sat so still that he looked almost like a part of the tree itself. He wasn't asleep. Oh, my, no! His keen eyes were wide open, watching that brush pile for some sign of Peter Rabbit. And as he watched he began to think.

"It may be that Peter will stay there all the rest of the afternoon," thought he. "If he stays until after dark I can't catch him, for my eyes are for seeing only in the daytime. I will have to go home, and that will mean that Granny and Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote will get him. If I can't have him myself, I don't want any of them to. They have hunted so much on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest that it is getting hard work for an honest Hawk to find enough to eat. Ha, I have an idea! I will tell Hooty the Owl, and he can take my place. He can see as well at night as I can in the daytime."

So just before jolly, round, red Mr. Sun went to bed behind the Purple Hills Redtail flew away. Old Man Coyote watched him go and grinned. Old Man Coyote is very sly and clever. He had known all the time that Redtail would have to go when it grew dark, and he had planned to let Peter Rabbit know that he was watching from that side, and then very softly creep around to the side Redtail had left. He thought Peter would think that side unwatched, and so would try to get out that way.

So Old Man Coyote grinned as he watched Redtail fly away. He waited a little while to be sure that he was not coming back. Then he made a little noise so that Peter would hear him. After that he prepared to steal softly around to the side Redtail had left unguarded. Just as he started he looked over at the tree Redtail had left. Then he stopped, rubbed his eyes, and looked again. Some one was on guard there. It was—yes, it was Hooty the Owl! Old Man Coyote ground his teeth. He had given himself away to Peter Rabbit, and now some one else was watching where he had meant to watch. He had been fooled by Redtail the Hawk.

NEXT STORY—BUSTER BEAR TAKES A HAND.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

My old man says his grandfather used to own a crow. And his grandfather's father when he was young had split the tongue of that crow.

"He could talk just like a human being," my old man reports with awe. "Used to say some of the funniest things."

My old man, you'll understand, never actually saw or heard this crow. The maltreated bird had died long before my old man came to bless this earth with his fair but somewhat hairy presence. His belief in the crow's talking ability rests entirely on hearsay. I'm willing to take his belief as a foundation for my belief, but what I want to know is:

"Why did they do it?"

There are too many talking animals in this world now, it seems to me. What is needed is a process for reducing the present surplusage of talkative creatures. I've said before and I'll repeat that the most dangerous function of mankind is talk. If it hadn't been for talk there would have been no need for gunpowder and polson gas and submarines. This world has talked itself into most of its wars. Every time you hear of a neighborhood feud you'll find a split tongue is at the bottom of it.

Most of the talk is innocent enough, understand me, but needless. Mrs. Pilgrim meant no harm when she casually told Mrs. Fisher that Mr. John Martin said that Alabaster James, the well-known expressman, ought to feed his horse an oat or two now and then. Martin was only kidding. Mrs. Pilgrim thought it was funny. Mrs. Fisher's mental processes being break the law by buying whiskey somewhat different, she passed stealing his horse. Innocent, mind you. That was the way the original statement sounded to Mrs. Fisher. She will never believe that she gave it the slightest twist.

"Anyhow," was Alabaster James's grim retort, "I don't on the word that Martin said that James should be arrested for by the case."

So that John Martin became a bootlegger to the public and a fool officer burst into his cellar and searched it and Mrs. Martin had hysterics and Martin got a black eye and his boss said that he did not believe that Martin was a bootlegger, but that he did not want any one around him who engaged in low brawls and if it happened again——

And Martin told him what he was justified in telling him and lost his job and had to sell his house before he got another and so on and so on. Yet there wasn't a speck of malice in all the talk that caused all that trouble.

There was just too much talk. And that's enough.

The Once Over

BARRING ALL FILM STARS TOUCHED BY SCANDAL.
(Apropos of the action of some communities in barring pictures of Mary Miles Minter and Mabel Normand.)

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Feb. 20.—All Pathe Weekly views of skiing parties in the Swiss Alps have been barred by Jed Prune, proprietor of the Arcadia Nicolet here, following the news that Ludwig Schmalz, prominent Alpine guide, beats his wife.

"We've gotta protect our customers," said Mr. Prune, after a long conference with the local censors. "I understand this Swiss person hit his wife with a sled last week, wrecking both the wife and the sled. We can't stand for sleds being treated that way. Until these Swiss guides behave themselves there'll be no news reels of ski-ing parties shown in my theater."

DANBURY, Conn., Feb. 21.—Plutus Jupe, chairman of the local Board of Moving Picture Censors, announced today that no more pictures showing mayors opening flower, food, or cattle shows would be allowed in the news pictures here. "A mayor in a well-known city got drunk last week and went to bed in a furniture store window. A few days later the mayor of another city threw an empty beer bottle at his wife's mother, but missed her. What will our young people think if we continue to show mayors on our screens when they act that way?"

Arguments to the effect that for every mayor who throws a bottle at his mother-in-law and misses there are ten who throw one and hit her were unavailing.

BAYONNE, N. J., Feb. 22.—No more news pictures showing firemen fighting fires in the axle factory will be tolerated until there has been a housecleaning in all American fire departments. Last week Jerry McFadden, hoseman of Fire House No. 7, Pebbletown, R. I., was stabbed with a hatpin by Magnolia Brande, a cabaret singer in the firemen's colony there. When he was being carried to a first aid hospital a code letter dropped out of his fireman's shirt. It read as follows:

My Own Dear Hoseman:
XX...df..grt..nb..mhj..klo.prq.:
rst. MAGNOLIA.

Which, translated, means:

I love you, noblest of firemen. Oh, you great big wonderful fire-fighter. Every time I hear an alarm sounded I think of you. Thank goodness, there has only been one alarm in this town in over five weeks. Come to me, my own, and bring a ladder.
X X X X X X
This is the third scandal among American firemen in the past four years, and movie exhibitors are up in arms.

"Not a fireman should be thrown on the screen in this country until they clean up conditions," said the local censor today.

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 24.—A sensation was caused here today when the local moving picture exhibitors held a meeting and decided to bar from their theaters all pictures of the New Orleans Mardi Gras and the Philadelphia Mummers Parade. The action follows the discovery that two members of the Mardi Gras committee telephoned their wives they were detained at business and then spent the evening joyriding with two chorus girls. Also the disclosure that the driver of the second largest float in the Mummers Parade deserted his wife two years ago.

The slogan of the exhibitors is: "The movies must be made respectable."

DENVER, Col.—The Denver movie censors have barred from the screens all Weekly News Review pictures showing ice boat races on the Shrewsbury river and Great Lakes. Since Horace Whoosiss, winner of the national ice boating championship, was found shot in his iceboat garage last week by an unknown woman there has been a feeling among movie fans that morals in ice boating circles are not what they should be. A pink nightgown was found sewed to the sail of Mr. Whoosiss's iceboat, and a number of letters were found stuffed in the toe of an old boot.

"The iceboat men must reform or we will have none of them on our screens," declared the chairman of the board of censors today.

Our Dreams

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

The scientific study of dreams, as is pretty generally known, has progressed remarkably of recent years. It has progressed so remarkably that one might be tempted to assume that little remains to be learned regarding the workings of the mind during sleep.

Would such an assumption really be justified? Or are the discoveries that have already been effected only a forerunner of perhaps even more astonishing discoveries that may result from further exploration of the dream state?

These questions are suggested to me at this particular time by the reading of an unusual work of fiction that has recently come into my hands, Mr. Perriton Maxwell's oddly yet most appropriately named "A Third of Life."

It is a novel giving expression to some bold and interesting speculations regarding the dream life and its possibilities. These it presents in the form of actual achievements by the chief figure in the story, a physician who has turned to dream study and dream experiment because:

"I marvelled over the fact that humanity, polished or in the rough, spending a good third of its existence in more or less conscious and intimate contact with dreams, knows little more about them than it knows of the distant stars * * *

"There exists a reason for everything in life; to understand some of these reasons should mean a better return on an investment of years. Dreams should yield us dividends of understanding, appreciation, even when they leave in their wake, as too often happens, only a recollection of weird cosmorama."

Accordingly, pressing study and experiment, Mr. Maxwell's imaginary physician got merely verifies the findings of Freud, Prince, and other dream analysts, but makes most surprising findings of his own.

He discovers that it is possible to acquire a subtle control over one's dreams, so that one can have special dreams as desired. He discovers that dreams can be made aids to the winning of success and happiness in life.

Lovers can be reunited through them, the bereaved comforted, crimes solved, wrongs of all sorts righted. It is even possible to pass from a state of mere dreaming to one of spiritual exaltation wherein journeys are literally made from place to place by the one who dreams.

At least so avers Mr. Maxwell's "dream doctor," narrating in rapid succession his own curious dream adventures and those of other characters in "A Third of Life." The reader of this fantastic and vividly written novel will react to it according to his temperamental or acquired attitude toward the occult.

Whatever the reader's reaction, however, there can be no denying that the story with reason stresses the desirability of more searching study of dreams than even the psycho-analysts have made. It would, indeed, be presumptuous to declare that the researches of a few short years have revealed all that is to be ascertained as regards our life in sleep.

This it is that gives a peculiar interest to Mr. Maxwell's fictional contribution to dream literature.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

AGE OF AUTOS.

We built our towns in olden days, when horses hauled our surreys; we calmly jogged along our ways, and had few traffic worries. Oh, now and then a sporty gent would speed his sorrel trotter, and he was to the hoosgow sent, and fed on bread and water. But there was room for gig and cart, the wide streets safely held 'em; pedestrians were torn apart by wagons very seldom. We built our towns and had no thought of surging horseless wagons, of monster vans, of metal-wrought, that go like flaming dragons. We built our towns, and thought our steeds would evermore go cruising, we boasted of their trotting speeds, which now seem most amusing. And now our cities we survey, all choked with honking motors; there is no path, no right of way, for inoffensive voters. The crowding motors knock us flat when in the streets we sally, it takes a circus acrobat to cross a street or alley. And every day the crush grows worse, new cars come, sleek and chuggy; each hour some fellow strips his purse to buy a buzzing buggy. Oh, when we built our busy grade we had no dream prophetic; we thought the customs of our dads would last—a view pathetic! And now we wonder what we'll do; the outlook causes sorrow; for where today one car's in view, there will be two tomorrow. — (Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

TWO COMFORTERS

The clang of the front doorbell made Kate Norwood shudder. She had heard it so often during the few days that had just passed and it always meant the same thing—pity, pity, whether disguised as a dish of apple jelly, a fresh turnover, or a bunch of flowers. She wondered what form it would take now and she hesitated. Then she took off her apron brushed back her ruffled gray-hair and went to the door.

The door stuck and she had to give it a tremendous jerk to get it open. So she came with startling suddenness face to face with her visitor, a woman who looked as if she had traveled far.

"Why, Annie Tremper!" Kate was genuinely surprised. She held out both hands. "I'm so glad to see you! Come in. Why, Annie!" Her warmed face touched Annie's veil. She kept her arm about Annie as she led her into the sitting room, where there was a fire. "You'll find me all at sixes and sevens. I'm packing up fast as I can. But I guess there's a chair you can sit on. Take off your things Annie."

Annie removed her hat, coat, and veil. She looked trim, almost stylish, but her thin dark face had the expression Kate had grown so used to seeing of late on the countenances of her friends and neighbors. When she had seated herself and glanced around the cluttered little room she said with a sigh: "I came just as soon as I heard what had happened. Why didn't you send for me, Kate?"

"Laws, what was the use? And then it all happened so quick. Of course, I'd been looking for it—we both had. He said to me just the day before, Kate, you needn't be surprised at anything.' And I wasn't." She paused. She had lived with Jacob Norwood for forty years, and she knew him like a book. But it was not for her to tell what she knew—how her girlish romance had quickly faded, of all the years after when she had had to bear with Jacob's temper and crotchety ways, and of how, at the last, she found that he had kept his affairs secret from her because he had nothing to leave her. At sixty she must leave her home and go out to find a living for herself. Just that morning she had decided to sell off her household goods and go as a companion to old Mrs. Kellogg.

"I'm so sorry for you," sighed Mrs. Tremper. "It's a hard thing, I know, to have to break up one's home at your age. Kate, is it true that he—that you haven't anything?"

"I've got two hands and my wits. I'm going to companion Mrs. Kellogg. But I expect she'll be dreadful trying. Still, $15 a week is $15 a week. And then some one's got to look after the poor old lady. She's lucky that, having no folks of her own, she can hire."

"It's too bad," said Mrs. Tremper. "Too bad, Kate, I've come prepared to do for you what I can." She fumbled in her handbag, brought out something and pressed it into Kate's hand. "There's $300 in that roll," she said. "You're welcome to it."

Kate looked down at the money. She colored. "Laws, I don't need this!" she cried. "I'll have enough to pay up everything from my sale. And I'm going right to my job. You take it back, Annie. I'm much obliged, but I wouldn't know what to do with it."

Annie Tremper received back the money with an offended air. "Well, if you won't take it, you won't. I can't make you. But I wanted to show my good will," she remarked coldly.

A shadow had fallen which Kate could not dispel. Even the tea failed to warm Annie at the lunch she hastily got together. And as the afternoon wore on they seemed, with every action and every word, to grow farther apart.

When at last twilight brought the cab which was to take Annie to her train—she would not stay all night—Kate accompanied her to the door with a sense of relief. Yet, afterward, as she sat down to rest, after the trying day, she blamed herself roundly. Annie had come out of kindness. It was only that her kindness had taken the wrong form.

"I couldn't stand for the money," Kate said. "That isn't what I wanted." And her tired, plain face showed tears.

In the distance she heard the whistle of the receding train. Annie was gone. It was too bad that she had come; so disappointed must she be in Kate, and Kate in her. "But I couldn't take the money," Kate reiterated. "Jell, now, or a pie, I don't draw the line on, but money—— She heard a sound and looked toward the door that opened into the little entry. A woman stood there.

This was a rosy, full-bosomed, jolly-looking woman in dark blue, who carried a small handbag and a white box. "Well, hello!" she said. "I pretty nearly pounded my knuckles off knocking on your side door, and then I walked right in. How are you, Kate? I saw Annie Tremper down at the station. She went on the same train I came in on." She kissed Kate soundly and handed her the box. "There's some pears off our old Bartlett tree. There, now, I guess I'll sit down. I stepped right along from the station, and it's quite a ways." She took off her hat and laid it on the table, pulled off her coat and flung it on a chair. She brightened the dingy room like a bunch of big, red roses. "I'm going to stay all night," she said. "I told my folks that I was coming over to see what you were up to," she laughed.

"I'm going to sell off just about everything, Helen," Kate explained. She had recovered from her depression and weariness.

"That's right. Everybody ought to have a fire or an auction just about so often, and start in all over again."

"Did Annie tell you I had just about decided to go as a companion to old Mrs. Kellogg? I'm to let her know in the morning."

"No!" Mrs. Tappan looked startled. "No, she didn't tell me. Well, you'd get along with her all right." She waited a moment, evidently delving for some thought. "I was going to say," she went on, "that if you hadn't made up your mind for good to go there I know of a place you could have. It's at Willy Barber's, Kate, his wife's awful poorly, and they need some one to look after the house and the baby. Willy was asking me about you last night. He said he'd never forgotten how good you were to him when he was a kid and he knew you'd be just the same to Molly and little Elinor."

"I would so." Kate's eyes filled with tears. "Oh, ain't it a shame? My heart pulls me toward Willy, but there's old Mrs. Kellogg. I half promised her. I wish I'd know of this before, Helen, but that's always the way, isn't it? The good things come too late."

Helen Tappan leaned over and patted Kate's arm. "I wasn't going to tell you, Kate, but now I see you'd be willing to go to Willy's I might as well. There was a woman come down on the train from Sherman with me tonight. Seems like Mrs. Kellogg got hold of her over the telephone some way. She was going there to—stay. So that lets you out."

Kate stared at her in astonishment. Then she gasped. "Well, if that isn't just like old Mrs. Kellogg! 'Twould have been a pretty note for me to go there tomorrow morning ready to take up my job and find another woman in my place. I'm awful glad you told me, Helen. Now, I can go to Willy's." Suddenly her face broke into a smile which was all hope, expectation and fresh courage for the future. "You've brought me better than money, Helen; you've brought me a job I'll like. That baby girl of Willy's! If she's anything like what Willy was when he was a kid! Why, my hands just itch to get hold of her!"

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

A COUGH IN THE NIGHT

Teddy had coughed for an hour when the clock struck 12. His mother, to Teddy's great discomfort, had rushed up and down stairs all evening offering suggestions, which with the firmness of 18 years, he had persistently declined to accept. He had no desire to be sympathized with. If his mother would please to go out and shut the door his cough would stop. That was all that was necessary—that she should go out and shut the door and leave him entirely alone.

A little hurt, at last, when offers of honey and lemon juice, a baked onion bandaged around his throat and peremptorily refused, Teddy's mother went off to bed.

And Teddy continued to cough.

Teddy's Troubles Only Grow

The cold night air fluttered the crisp muslin curtains at his window and the room was full of sharp frostiness Teddy snapped his light on and off to look at his watch. Searched in his bathrobe pocket for throat pastilles, which failed utterly to "Stop That Tickle," as promised on the lid of the box. Tossed and twisted and lurched about in his bed till the clock struck two. And continued to cough.

His mother, in the room down the hall, got up at last and girded herself about with firmness as she tied her old red dressing gown cord. She was thinking that after all Teddy was her child, eighteen or no eighteen. And he was coughing and losing his night's rest. And she would not endure it another minute. She would remind him of his duties to her in the matter of filial obedience, and she would STOP that cough. Mother-like, she discounted the fact that she, too, was losing her night's rest and that, unlike Teddy, she could not stay in bed the next morning to make up for lost sleep. For Teddy's college lectures began at eleven on Tuesdays.

A limp, tousleheaded lad, shaken with paroxysmal coughing, regarded her silently when she opened his bedroom door.

"It's the cold air, Teddy. There are times when nothing but warm moist heat will soothe a bronchial irritation like that." And Teddy's mother lowered the window firmly.

Then to the bathroom she went, rummaging for a steam kettle which had not been used for many a long year. Not since the baby, who was twelve had been wont to wake choking in the night with croup.

Setting the spirit lamp attachment on a metal tray, Mrs. Smith boiled water, dropped some tincture of benzoin into it, and carried the tray to the bedroom, where she directed the soothing, medicated steam into the lad's face.

"I'll choke," he sputtered, as his mother made a funnel of thick paper and pinned it around the spout of the steam kettle.

"Nonsense," said his mother, firmly.

Meekly Teddy inhaled the steam—and stopped coughing. Meanwhile, his mother, down in the kitchen was preparing hot milk. She thought of hot lemonade but decided upon milk because of its usefulness as a mild sedative.

Meekly, Teddy swallowed the hot milk—inhaled more steam, suffered his mother to put warm compresses, covered with flannel, around his throat. And presently went to sleep—all pinkly moist and drowsy—and singularly child-like, in spite of his eighteen years.

For it WAS the extreme cold of the night air streaming into his bedroom that had aggravated the cough that was entirely bronchial. And for such coughs warm, moist air is the remedy.

Women and Medicine

In Europe, years ago, a woman named Hildegarde wrote a notable book on medicinal plants. In those days the men were too busy bothering about dogmas of religion and medicine, and the study of herbs was thought beneath their notice.

It was the women, however, who mostly conducted the hospitals and cared for the sick; and thus they learned much of great value. They let the men fight out the questions of theories.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared almost fifty years ago by a woman, Lydia E. Pinkham, did then, and does now, relieve the ailments peculiar to women. It is a vegetable compound and of great value for this purpose. This is proven day after day, and in your own neighborhood, by grateful women who have used it.—Adv.

A Wife or a Profession?

CHAPTER XXVI.

The suddenness of her forcible removal from the room, the surprise, left Annette for a moment almost stunned. Then she turned the knob. The door was locked. She heard indistinctly the doctor's low voice, evidently quieting the girl, for gradually her sobs ceased. Then, while Annette stood quivering with anger, Howard came out, took her by the arm, led her to the reception room and with a curt "Stay here," he left her. She was sitting near the door and heard him scold the nurse for leaving her patient, heard him give orders never to admit any one without his permission. Then he came for her:

"Come!"

Annette followed him out, shaking, so that she could scarcely walk. He saw this and helped her down the steps, his hand under her elbow. She glanced up at him and his set stern face frightened her.

"Why did you do this?" he asked after they started home in the runabout.

"What? I took her some jelly."

"The nurse said you insisted upon going in despite her objections. That you gave her to understand that I knew you were coming."

"I didn't say so." Then, after a nervous pause:

"Well, what if I did! You are willing enough for me to sit with that Pelletti young one. What's the difference? I know you are in love with that yellow-haired girl. That's why you spend so much time away from me."

Howard Blake groaned. He was hurt in his professional pride, mortified before the nurses, who he knew would talk. He was hurt in his love and his trust in Annette. Never would he have believed her capable of such an act. It wasn't like her to embarrass him before people, make herself conspicuous.

"What made you do it? You must have been crazy!"

"I was crazy! You neglect me for every one. I asked you to tell me about that girl—and you refused. I determined to see for myself. You have no one but yourself to thank if you don't like it. If you made a confidant of me as other men do it wouldn't have happened." Annette commenced to cry, slow tears falling unheeded down her cheeks.

Her tears affected the doctor strangely. They had been married more than a year and he never had seen her cry but once. Perhaps she was ill. He took out a clean handkerchief and wiped her cheeks. Her head fell over on his shoulder, but she ceased to cry.

When they reached home he insisted upon giving her a quieting powder. He had yet to make his visit to the country. He had forgotten something, returned to the hospital for it, and the nurse had told him of Annette's presence and that she was with his patient.

"Lie down until I return, we can talk then," he said, and after cautioning Elsie not to allow any one to disturb his wife he went out.

Howard Blake realized as he drove thoughtfully along the quiet country road that Annette had changed. That she had grown more and morse suspicious, shorter of temper when he refused to answer, and that she had not been as loving as freely affectionate of late.

"Poor girl—but how could she?" To him what she had done seemed so terrible. Against all ethics of the profession.

It was a pale but quiet Annette who sat opposite him at dinner that night. Neither ate much, and as soon as they had finished and were seated in the living room Howard, after lighting his cigar, said:

"Now let's have it out, Annette. What made you do such a thing?"

"I told you this afternoon that if you had told me things—things about her when I asked you—I should not have gone to the hospital."

"You mean that you intend to ruin me. Is that it?"

"I don't mean anything. I only know you married me and that you leave me alone, tell me nothing about your work, then expect me to sit down here and pretend to be happy. I'm not. I'm perfectly miserable." Her cold, quiet tone made twice as effective what she said as if she had wept. Perhaps she knew it, for she glanced keenly from out her lowered eyes at Howard, then dropped her lids as he turned toward her again.

"Well, Annette, whatever your motive, I forbid you ever to go near any of my patients again. That my asking you to take some broth to that poor little bambino should have such results is beyond belief. If for any reason you visit the hospital take your place in the reception room with the other callers." He was keeping a tight rein upon himself. "Never again, as long as you are my wife, attempt to enter the room of one of my patients without my permission. I shall expect you to obey me in this. Now run along to bed. I have to go out." She looked so white he feared she would be really ill.

She made no answer, neither did she return the kiss he dropped lightly upon her cheek. He was going back to that girl.

After the door closed upon him she gave way to a perfect storm of anger. She walked the floor, declaring over and over that he should not see that girl again, that she would find some way to prevent it. Yet when he came in an hour later she was in bed and pretended to be asleep, while he, as he sometimes did, remained in the living room studying. So she thought.

Fashions for Americans

Length of line is the thing sought by designers of apparel for the "stout" figure. Regardless of the fact that a casual glance at the feminine passer-by on any smart thoroughfare would lead one to conclude that the woman with a developed figure was decidedly a thing of the past, it has been claimed by firms specializing in clothes for "stouts" that actual statistics prove more than 50 per cent of the feminine population belong in the "stout" class.

Time was when a woman of larger than normal size dared not select any sort of a plaid frock or even separate skirt, when materials printed in large designs or patterns were as carefully avoided, and the poor unfortunate was advised to always adhere to dark colors, so that she might be as inconspicuous as possible.

Style designing has reached such a stage of perfection that these things are no longer necessary, and the large woman may now be just as smart in appearance as hoer sister with the stringbean figure.

The frock shown in the sketch is an indication of the style possibilities in a dress for the woman who is larger than normal. This particular dress was made up in a navy and lighter blue Canton crepe, the lighter colored fabric being let into the frock in the form of panels running practically its entire length, and touches of embroidery in the same shade also helped to trim it. The girdle was of black jet nail heads of cabochons.

The same style idea might be carried out effectively in a printed foulard or crepe de chine, with a plain color material forming the panels.

The whole idea in designing clothes for the stout figure is to secure length of line and to avoid a nipped-in appearance at the waist, thus accentuating hips and bust.

This Graceful Dress Is Designed for a Stout Figure.

CHARGES MADE BY MILLER NOT SUBSTANTIATED

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 16.—Victor Miller, president of the board of police commissioners, and eight witnesses appeared before the executive session of the parents' commission of Soldan High school last night, but only evidence of a "hearsay" nature was adduced in support of Mr. Miller's charges that vice clubs exist at the school, it was announced today.

No personal first-hand information and substantiation have been presented so far, the announcement added. Some of the witnesses, however, said they hoped to be able to produce other witnesses to furnish first hand information.

Mr. Miller's summary of evidence, presented to the committee Monday and which the committee said was "hearsay" or "hearsay upon hearsay," was made public this afternoon.

The summary gives testimony by military students at the Soldan, a school teacher employed at another school, and a number of other men and women.

All said they "understood" or had been "informed" that immoral societies exist at the institution, and some stated they had heard of parties given by the students at which girls smoke cigarettes, drank intoxicants, and at which boys conducted themselves improperly.

Mr. Miller, who has been the target of criticism, both adverse and otherwise, since making the charges, today stated "I am sitting on top of the world."

A number of ministers have come to his defense, and several have extolled him from the pulpit.

PROF. F. KITCHENS WILL BRING PITCHING PUPILS BACK HOME SATURDAY

When Kitch comes marching home again,

By "NICK" CARTER

Frank Kitchens, senior member of the 1921 law firm of Kitchens & Works, Pullman car attorneys, will be the speaker of the day at the weekly meeting Saturday noon of the Three Hundred Percent or Bust Club to be held in the beautiful club rooms across the railroad tracks at the east end of Seventh street. Honorary President Walter Salm will introduce the speaker, who in turn will present to the club members his four pupils, Abe and Babe, Jumbo and Rabbit. On account of the large attendance expected, all members are urged to make reservations with Secretary Fred Beck and send checks or cash, preferably cash, to Treasurer Jake Miller.

Mr. Kitchens is well and favorably known in this section, having spent both the summer and $2.50 in Wichita Falls last year. He has already announced the subject of his address, namely: "You Buy 'Em, I'll Teach 'Em, And If They Can't Make Good After That, They're Hopeless." Many of the older members of the club have heard this stirring lecture delivered before, but President Salm is especially anxious that he more youthful club members should hear it. Mr. Kitchens is a powerful speaker. In fact, on one occasion last fall when he was struck in the thumb by a spitball hurled by George Knadler, Prof. Kitchens delivered one of the most forceful orations, according to Cresi[illegible] that the club members ever had the pleasure of hearing.

There is a possibility that Prof. Kitchens four pupils from the Texas College of Curvology also will be present to address the club. Only a natural bashfulness will prevent this, as President Salm already has given to the local press the program for the club meeting with the speaking subjects assigned as follows:

Speaker Abe Bowman; Subject: "My God, I Hope I don't Have To Do All the Relief Work This Summer."

Speaker Rabbit Darough; Subject: "A Little Guy With a Big Curve Is Better Than a Big Guy With No Curve at All."

Speaker Jumbo Ramsey; Subject; "You're All Wrong, Buddy, I Never Got Them Gold Teeth From Stopping Line Drives."

Speaker Babe Ruth; Subject: "Curves and Speed Ruined Me Last Year, But They'll Be the Making Of Me Yet."

Tomorrow afternoon in honor of the arrival of Prof. Kitchens and his pupils, President Salm has invited the Oklahoma City clubmen to become better acquainted with the members of the local club. The invitation has been accepted by President Jack [illegible], and the entertainment will start promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

It was a tired bunch of ball players that [illegible] into the clubhouse last evening, after two of the stiffest workouts Pitcher Kahn has sent them through to date. And it wasn't thought that had 'em tired, despite the fact that "Cherry" Johnson says "Thought is the hardest and most exhausting thing in the world"—it was hard work, brothers; batting and batting and batting, until every wise club weighed a ton; fielding and fielding and fielding, until every leg hollered for help and every arm pleaded for mercy—that was the stuff that had 'em tired.

But it was a good healthy, tired feeling, and the boys are rapidly getting into shape to stand the hard work—and the way they were smacking that horsehide yesterday bodes ill for Jack Holland's Oklahoma City hurlers tomorrow and Sunday. Oklahoma City had a number of twirlers last season who won more than half their games; I hope they've got the same crew now and that they are all in as good condition as Holland says they are—just to get a real line on what these Sluggin' Scudders can do when they really are forced to extend themselves.

Carmen took a whirl at outfielding yesterday afternoon, and the little southpaw picked 'em out of the ozone in a manner that delighted the big crowd of fans. Hall and Wright took turns about at third base, and I rise to remark that with a couple of summers of seasoning this boy Hall is going to make a sweet ball player.

Steve Mokan is still on the crippled list, although he reported "feeling better" yesterday. Steve received a letter from his brother, in which Johnny declared his belief that he had landed a regular berth in right field with the Pittsburgh Pirates—"and just watch me go this summer, Steve," Brother Johnny's letter ended.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 16.—Babe Ruth made a homerun here today, when with the bases full in the fifth inning he drove a terrific liner over deep right field fence, contributing largely to the Yankee 9 to 3 victory over the New Orleans Southern Association team.

TROOP 6 WINS SCOUT TITLE AT CAGE GAME

Troop Six holds the Boy Scout basketball championship of Wichita Falls. In the final game of the Scout season, the quintet representing that troop defeated the boys of Troop Four in a hard-fought game, 19 to 14. Mackechney, center for Troop Six, led the attack for his team, while the accurate foul line tossing of Thurmon also was a factor in the victory.

CARP'S FIGHTING DAYS ARE OVER, THINK DOCTORS

Is Declared to Be "Very Sick Man" and Weight Is Given Out as Less Than 150 Pounds.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, March 16.—Georges Carpentier, world's light weight champion pugilist may never fight again. This was the opinion expressed by medical men in close touch with Carpentier as he left today for Taguerche, his country home southeast of Rennes, where he proposes to recuperate for a few weeks and then go into training for a bout with Ted "Kid" Lewis, at Olympia, London, in May.

"The boy does not realize the shape he is in," said one of the doctors who examined Carpentier prior to his departure. "His great courage and confidence in himself is responsible for his plucky attitude, but he is a very sick man."

The actual weight of Carpentier after the recent operation he underwent was given out as 156 pounds, but close friends of the champion say he was below 150 pounds.

Phillippe Roth, promoter of the Lebou's-Criqui fight here, who is an intimate friend of Carpentier, said to the Associated Press today:

"It would be cruelty to match Georges in his present condition Dempsey, but God forbid that he should be defeated by Lewis."

The terrific pounding Carpentier received from Dempsey in the fight in the Jersey City arena last summer caused Mrs. Carpentier, who saw the motion pictures of the battle, to request her husband to forsake the squared circle. It is understood that she has emphatically renewed this request during his present illness.

Contrary to printed reports that income taxes had taken away all of Carpentier's available cash, it is said he still has sufficient money to keep the wolf away from his door for many years to come.

Medical men trace Carpentier's ill health to defeats he suffered at the hands of Billy Papke and Frank Klaus when he was only 18 years old, but said it was aggravated by the punishment he received in the fight with Dempsey.

DEMPSEY AND LEWIS MATCH IS IMPROBABLE

By Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 16.—Basing his action on his belief that wrestling is superior to boxing as a means of self-defense, Ed (Stranger) Lewis, world's champion heavyweight champion, today challenged Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion boxer for a mixed match. The challenge was made public through an announcement by Billy Sandow, Lewis' manager, that he had deposited $5,000 with a local sports editor, as a guarantee to meet Dempsey, "anywhere in the United States at a date that may be selected later."

Upon hearing that Dempsey's manager had said he would agree to such a match, Lewis invited him to send his $5,000 as a guarantee.

Sandow also indicated his confidence in the outcome of the proposed match by offering to wager $5,000 personally that Lewis would defeat Dempsey before a qualified referee within 20 minutes. Some doubt was expressed in local sport circles tonight, however, as to whether any state would permit a mixed match of boxing and wrestling to be held within its borders.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Al Weiner, 14 year old Philadelphia boy, will be partner to William T. Tilden II, world's indoor tennis champion, in the men's national indoor tennis championship tournament starting here on March 25. Mr. Tilden announced his selection of the boy today. He recently announced that Weiner was to be his protege, saying he believed the youngster to be a future Vincent Richard.

Although entries do not close until next Wednesday, 16 nationally known players have already sent in their names for the singles and three teams for the doubles.

READ THIS, KIDS—'KNOTHOLE STAND' MEETING TONIGHT

By C. F. C.

Listen, all you boys of Wichita Falls under 16 years old.

Tonight at 7:15 o'clock there will be a meeting at Boy Scout headquarters, at the American Legion hall on the west side of Ohio avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets.

This meeting is your meeting; a meeting to organize the "Knothole Gang" of 1922, every member of which will be entitled to a free grand stand seat at Texas league baseball games in Wichita Falls this summer.

The Rotary club of this city has built a fine grandstand at Athletic park especially for you kids. Every week-day afternoon when the Spudders are at home that grandstand is yours; on Sundays and holidays only, the grown-ups will have the use of it.

Lots of you boys have already heard about the "Knothole Grandstand," and many of you, I have heard, are feeling a little bit blue because you don't think you will be permitted to sit in it.

You think you have to be a Boy Scout, or have to belong to the Newsboys Athletic club—but you don't have to belong to either, fellers.

You just have to be a regular guy, that's all. There are a few simple rules you'll have to obey, but they are not hard, as you'll find out if you go to this meeting tonight.

And if there are any of you kids who don't go to school, who don't belong to the Boy Scouts or the Newsboys Athletic club, but who have to hustle like the deuce to help your mothers or your dads earn a living, and if you can't think of any grown-up friend who might tell the Rotary club men that you're all right—any fellers in a fix like that are invited to come to the Record News and look me up—just ask for "Nick" Carter—and I'll do my best if you're a good, square kid to help you get a ticket to that grandstand.

But the first thing to do is to go to that meeting tonight. There'll be men there, men who like boys, to look you over. Just look those men squarely in the eyes and tell 'em the truth about yourselves.

The Rotary club has a "Knothole Grandstand" at Houston, and the boys have cheer leaders during the game to start the rooting for the home team—and they all sure have one swell time. That's what we're going to have in Wichita Falls, thanks to the splendid interest taken in boys by the local Rotary club.

It's up to you, fellers. The big meeting is tonight. Don't miss it.

DALLAS March 16—The "Giants" will be the official monicker of the Dallas baseball club under its new ownership, according to decision of Mayor Aldredge and other members of a committee appointed to choose a name following a popular vote staged by a local newspaper. The "Giants" was submitted by more than 3,000 fans voting, [illegible] Sablosky and Walter Morris, owners of the club, said they would accept the new name.

MINE OPERATORS FRAMING ANSWER TO WAGE DEMANDS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Operators of 74 anthracite coal mines went into secret session here tonight to frame their answer to the 19 wage demands submitted yesterday by leaders of organized labor in the coal fields.

Whether they will accept reject or counter the demands of the miners, will not be known until tomorrow, when owners and workers will hold a joint session.

Regardless of the outcome of this conference, it is generally predicted by both sides, and by official observers of the United States department of labor, that the anthracite mines will suspend operations after April 1. Tomorrow's session is to determine whether a protracted suspension or strike may be averted by an offer to compromise the wage question.

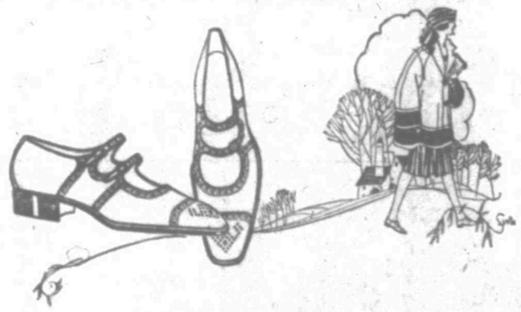

Secretary of Labor Davis here today, banished all probability of government intervention in the present negotiations.

"The government will maintain a hands-off policy and will give the owners and miners every opportunity to settle their difficulties peacefully," he said. "Unless a protracted suspension or lengthy strike results, reaching a climax which will result in direct injury to the consuming public, we shall not intervene.

"What policy the government shall adopt in such an event will be decided when the emergency actually arises."

The auctioneer was offering a handsome old cabinet, but there was only one bidder—a dealer who kept on increasing his bids.

"How is it," asked the auctioneer, "that you continue bidding against yourself?"

"Well you see," replied the broker, "that is a matter of business. I have a commission from two different parties to buy the cabinet at any cost, and I don't know yet which of them is to have it."

"You remember that handsome watch I lost five years ago"

"Yes, I remember."

You remember how I looked and could not find it?"

"Yes, I remember."

"Well, yesterday I put on an old waistcoat that I had not worn for years and what do you think I found in one of the pockets?"

"Your watch! Let me congrat——"

"No. I found the hole I must have lost it through."

"All the world loves a lover."

"It's not true. The other evening there were two of them in a picture theater. He was pleading and she sulked, just to draw him on.

He kept whispering "Be my darling again—oh, be my darling again."

After half an hour of this somebody shouted out: "For heaven's sake, be his confounded darling."

It was the recruit's first day in camp, and, not knowing the rules of saluting, he swaggered past an officer with hands deep in his pockets.

The officer happened to be the C. O., but little did the recruit know until he was called back with a sharp command.

"Don't you know who I am?" demanded the C. O.

"Can't say I do," drawled the private.

The C. O. went red.

"I'm the colonel!" he roared.

"By gum," said the recruit, "you're lucky. I'm only a private."

"That? Why, that represents the passage of the Jews through the Red Sea."

"Beg pardon, but where is the sea?"

"It has been driven back."

"And where are the Jews."

"They have crossed over."

"And the Egyptians?"

"Will be here directly. That's the sort of painting I like—simple and unpretentious."

MARKET REPORTS

Cotton

NEW YORK, March 16.—Some further liquidation of March and May contracts was absorbed on a slight early decline in the cotton market today and prices rallied sharply during the afternoon. March contracts sold from 17.?9 to 17.95 and closed at 17.93 with the general market closing very steady at a net advance of 21 to 30 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points and soon showed net losses of about 8 to 13 points under renewed near month liquidation promoted by the circulation of thirteen March notices and slightly disappointing Liverpool cables. There also was scattered selling on the better weather reported in the belt, but the pressure against March and May was much less active than recently, and the market soon turned steadier on covering, trade buying for Liverpool account.

The latter was accompanied by reiterated reports of improving trade in Lancashire, and it looked as though some of the interests which had been long of March and May against shorts in July, had liquidated their March and May contracts earlier in the week and were covering their July shorts today. At any rate, near month sellers were active buyers of July on the afternoon advance and covering by a more general foreign report of overflows in the central belt.

March contracts advanced from 17.74 to 18.10 and July sold up from 17.01 to 17.36 with active months showing net advances of 23 to 27 points late in the afternoon. The close was at nearly the best prices of the day. Local brokers noted little or no change in the news from the domestic goods trade, or the New England mill situation, but evidently considered the better Lancashire reports and offset to unfavorable futures in that respect. Liverpool was a buyer here nearly all day but much of the demand was attributed to covering following the subsidence of near months pressure and the reactions of the past several days. Exports for the day were 3,963 bales, making 3,-952,804 so far this season.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, March 16.—Cotton spot in good demand, business moderate; prices barely steady. Good middling 11.18; fully middling 10.83; middling 10.58; low middling 9.68; good ordinary 8.83; ordinary 8.33. Sales 10,000 bales, including 6,500 American.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—Covering the short interest put the price of cotton strongly higher today following moderate losses in the early trading. Highest levels came late in the session when the list stood at net gains of 21 to 28 points, with May up to 16.68. The close was 21 to 24 points net higher with May at 16.66.

Around the opening the tone was unsettled, the issuance of notices for 1,700 bales to go against March causing hesitation. Reports to brokers here of a large failure in Manchester increased selling and more or less selling was also caused by the dry weather over the belt with prospects of more dry weather to come. Prices soon fell to a level of 9 to 14 points under the close of yesterday to 16.27 for March and 16.33 for May.

Shorts covered freely on the eagerness with which March notice were snapped up and this sort of buying increased in volume as the day grew older.

In the afternoon the demand became stronger following the advances in the stock market and the fall of call money in New York to three per cent. During the greater part of the session the play of floating contracts appeared to be much smaller than usual.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Cotton goods continued quiet in the gray goods division with slightly lower prices quoted on a few numbers. Yarns were quiet. Wash goods sales showed a little improvement in secondary channels. Wools were quiet and worsteds dull. Raw silk was unchanged. Heavyweight burlaps were slightly higher.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, March 16.—Cottonseed oil was firm and higher on covering of shorts in advance of the census report and local buying on the better action in lard and grains. Closing bids were 14 to 2? points net higher. Sales 18,000 barrels; prime crude, 10.00; prime summer yellow spot 11.50; May 11.75; July 11.78; September 11.90 all bid.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, March 16.—The raw sugar market was firmer and spot prices were advance 1-16c while April shipment was unchanged. Cubas now are quoted a 2 3-8c cost and freight for spot and April equal to 398 for centrifugal with Porto Ricos at 3.90 for spot. There were sales of 85,000 bags of Cubas for March and April shipment and 5,000 bags of Porto Ricos prompt shipment at quoted prices and 6,000 bags of San Domingoes afloat at 2 1-4c.

The raw sugar futures market was firm and active, closing at net advances of 3 to 5 points. Trade interests and commission houses were the principal buyers, influenced by the strength in the spot market. May 2.57; July 2.75; September 2.91; December 2.95.

The market for refined sugar was firm and unchanged at 5.30 for fine granulated. The demand was more active for both domestic and export account.

Refined futures were without transactions, closing: May 5.85; July 5.90; September 6.00.

COFFEE

NEW YORK, March 16.—The market for coffee future was very quiet today, but yesterday advance was followed by some scattered selling and realizing and after opening 3 points to one point lower, prices sagged off slightly. May contracts sold off to 8.87 or 4 points net lower and closed at 8.90 with the ground market closing at a net decline of 1 to 3 points. Sales were estimated at about 10,000 bags. March 8.82; May 8.90; July 8.94; September 8.96; October 8.98; December 9.00.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7's 9 3-8; Santos 4's 19 1-4 to 13 1-2.

Stocks

NEW YORK, March 16.—Accompanied by another large and varied turnover, sales approximating 1,150,-000 shares, the stock market today continued its upward course. In a few instances, however, the list manifested signs of a top heavy or overbought condition.

Virtually all the day's happenings were helpful to the enhancement of quoted values. The money market was in its easiest position of the year and leading foreign exchanges made additional recoveries.

Railroads were reported as buyers of equipment, further price advances were said to be in contemplation by independent steel producers and the American railway association stressed a heavy gain in carloadings.

Extensive purchases of copper metal for export were said to be under consideration and trade authorities announced a distinct ex-cars, trucks and various accessories.

Great Northern and Northern Pacific were among the few conspicuously weak stocks in the early dealings. Both closed at material declines, despite assurances that no unfavorable inferences were to be drawn from the change in Great Northern's dividend period.

Crucible steel also was depressed for a time on rumors that the directors might take adverse dividend action at the meeting scheduled to take place after the close of the market, but the stock more than recovered its loss in the final dealings.

The initial quotation for call loans was four per cent but the rate fell to 3 1-2 before noon and to three in the afternoon,this equalling the lowest figure of the year. Time money offerings were more liberal and acceptance call rates also eased to three per cent.

Exchange on London was firmer, although markets at that center showed further irregularity. French and Belgian rates also improved. The Italian remittances reacted and German bills continued under the influence of the reparations tangle. The Dutch quotation was a trifle higher, although all of the Scandinavian rates were lover, five to ten points.

Grain

CHICAGO, March 16.—Speculative buying based largely on opinions that recent setbacks in the price of wheat had been too severe gave the wheat market today a decided upward swing. The close was strong, 2c to ¾c net higher, with May 1.35⅝ to 1.35½ and July 1.16⅝ to 1.16¾. Corn gained 1⅜ to 1⅞ and oats ⅜ to ¾c. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 30c higher.

At first, the wheat market here had a downward tendency owing to new declines in quotations at Liverpool. It soon became apparent, however, that selling orders in Chicago had lost their popularity for at least the time being. An active demand from commission houses developed, and the contention was made that notwithstanding reported weakness of British markets the difference between Chicago and Liverpool values of late had widened instead of narrowed. Then too, it was said that continental European countries were buying, and with dwindling receipts at Kansas City and Minneapolis, together with adverse crop reports from Ohio the market during the later dealings continued to gain impetus toward a higher level of prices. One of the bullish factors just before the close was a Philadelphia message saying dealers there were picking up all the cheap flour they could lay hands on.

Industrial demand for corn and falling off in the volume of arrivals here helped to lift values both of corn and oats. Receipts of corn here were the smallest in many weeks.

Despite heavy deliveries of lard March contracts, the provision market averaged higher in line with grain.

MEYER LONDON STARTS WORDY ROW IN HOUSE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Declaration by Representative Meyer London, socialist, New York, that, if he had the power, he would release all war prisoners convicted of violence because of sincere opposition to war, started a wordy row today before the house judiciary committee.

Appearing in support of his resolution which would recommend to President Harding the granting of amnesty to 113 political prisoners, Mr. London said several other witnesses were trying to speak at once when above the din he shoute his opinion. There was a ripple of applause from the crowd largely composed of women.

"By that you stand here and advocate violence," Representative Yates, republican, Illinois, declared, but Mr. London disclaimed such intention.

Alexander S. Lanier, a Washington lawyer, who was present in the interest of one of the 95 I. W. W. prisoners attacked war-time slackers who he asserted, had attempted to overthrow the selective draft and obstruct the government "through the cloak of religion."

The committee tried to find out if any representatives of the I. W. W. were present, but spokesmen insisted none was there.

Representative Montague, democrat, Virginia, insisted congress had no right to direct the president on questions of pardons, and Mr. London replied that congress could get around that by passing a bill to free everybody, which it had the power to do.

And if young folks could only be taught to look upon marriage more seriously studying its problems and counting the cost before they got into it there might be fewer marriages, but there certainly would be fewer divorces.

Calomel Good But Treacherous

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. —Adv.

OPTIMISM IS KEYNOTE OF EUGENE MEYER'S ADDRESS TO CATTLEMEN'S CONVENTION

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH Mar. 16.—Business conditions throughout the United States are more stable now than in the last eight years, Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, asserted Thursday afternoon while he paused for a short time to confer with a group of newspaper representatives.

"We had a lot of inflated business for a while," Meyer said. "Now that has passed. Conditions now are just as stable, if not more so than in 1914. Inflated business has collapsed. Hard work, saving and good management should keep any reputable business establishment going, whether it is herding goats, cattle or running an ordinary business."

At the morning session of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association convention, Mr. Meyer spoke and delivered an address of optimistic that swept the cattlemen off their feet.

"Business conditions have returned to normal, or will in a short time," he said. "Money is becoming easier. Very few farmers or stockmen are being forced to liquidate their business to meet obligations, as was the case last fall.

"I am hopeful of the outlook for the future and we believe that the war finance corporation has been successful in pleasing the people. All have co-operated to help. Our resources are unlimited and we certainly are in better condition than the countries of Europe."

Mr. Meyer said it was his intention to make a thorough survey of conditions in this section with the purpose of assembling data to be submitted to congress to be used by that body in its consideration of the advisability of continuing the war finance corporation.

Madame Matzenauer Announces Operatic Program That Closely Parallels Her Present Position

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. March 16—An operatic program which somewhat parallels her present position will be sung by Madame Margarete Matzenauer here tomorrow night, she announced to newspapermen today after her arrival from Joplin, in interviews relating to her separation from her husband, Floyd Glotzbach, who is reported as driving a sight-seeing autobus in Delmonte, California.

Mme. Matzenauer will sing "Zenta's Ballade" from "The Flying Dutchman" who was a sort of chauffeur himself—a ship's captain doomed to sail the seas through eternity, unless some maiden who would be faithful unto death should rescue him. Zenta's song is the song of adoration addressed to the sea-faring chauffeur who was "picked from the trough," as Mme. Matzenauer says she picked Glotzbach "from the gutter."

Other songs on her program are "Love's Death," in which the parallel is not destroyed and "Dreams" and "Sorrows."

Madame Matzenauer said the ejection of her husband from her New York apartment last January 26 was not only figurative, but literal, as she threw him out after reading a letter from "That woman in California" who she says is "fifty years of age."

The divorce says she and her husband now agree on only one point and that is their separation is "forever."

"I picked him up from the gutter, thinking my great love would remake him," she said. "I have lived the game and have given up, I want to get rid of him."

The divorce action mentioned by her earlier in the week is now in the hands of her New York attorneys, she said.

Referring to her letter to Glotzbach that she was to become a mother, Mme. Matzenauer said.

"Happily, that has turned out to be a false alarm." This statement, she said, is supported by that of a specialist of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Glotzbach was referred to as her "100 per cent" husband upon the return to New York of the couple from Carlsbad, Czecho-Slovakia, after their marriage, and today when asked what rating she now applied to her husband, she said she would rather not answer.

Mme. Matzenauer met her chauffeur husband on April 4, 1921, when she visited California and took several sight-seeing trips in the car driven by him. She said she always occupied the front seat then as it was "better to enjoy the scenery." They were married on June 18, 1921 at Carlsbad.

OFFICER SURVIVES BROKEN NECK AND REMAINS ON JOB

Harold L. Reama.

What's a little thing like a broken neck? Nothing more than a temporary affliction to Jailer Harold L. Reama. He was a motorcycle officer until he crashed into a curb while pursuing a speeder in San Diego, Cal., in 1917. He went on the inactive list and for months wore a plaster cast. Walking a beat proved too much of a jar for the mended neck, so Reama was given his new job as jailer.

With the striking of 5,000,000 feet of gas Sunday, the Gulf Production company's well No. 1, in section 118, Burkburnett tract, Carson county, goes on record as the biggest gas well in the world, with a known production of 140,000,000 feet and a possible 200,000,000, local oil men announced Monday morning. The Gulf No. 1 now surpasses the Masterson No. 4 with its 107,000,000 feet, it was declared. The additional gas in the Gulf No. 1 was found at 2,850 feet. The first gas strike in the well was made at 2,410 feet at which time 75,000,000 feet was encountered, and 60,000,000 feet more was drilled into at 2,650 feet. The gas has been muddied off for further drilling for oil. The H. T. McGee & company well, known as the Smith-Capers, about six miles northeast of the Gulf No. 1 went into considerable gas Sunday at 1,770 feet, establishing a new high level for the first showing encountered as the Gulf well made its first showing at 2,378.—Amarillo Tribune.

Hog fanciers in this section had better keep an eye on Henry Begeman, according to County Agent Guy R. Jones. Mr. Begeman lives in the Mount Carmel community. Although Mr. Begeman's herd is small, numbering only three sows, several gilts, a large boar, and perhaps a score of pigs, the county agent says a few breeders in North Texas can show nothing better. He is a grower of Big Type Poland China. Mr. Begeman believes in caring for his swine. They are given good quarters, carefully fed, watered and housed. As a result they look like show hogs practically all of the time, according to men who have seen the animals.—Electra News.

C. R. Taylor of Fort Worth, general agent of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient line was in the city Tuesday. He is positive that the Orient is not going to suspend operations although a story to that effect has appeared in nearly every newspaper of the southwest. While here, he received a wire from the agent of the Orient at Sweetwater saying that a half inch rainfall there had gladdened the hearts of farmers and stockmen, and gave promise of rich pasturage and a fair season for crops.

A. M. Harris, traveling freight agent of the Missouri Pacific Railway company with headquarters at Fort Worth, is in the city. Mr. Harris is optimistic concerning the future. He covers Texas and says wherever he travels there are unmistakable signs of business activity.

Marriage Not A Joke, Judge Tells Woman

Marriage is not a joke, a state to be entered lightly, according to Acting Judge Orus O. Ross of the 78th district court who, Thursday, took under consideration the petition of Mrs. R. V. Rutledge asking that the marriage of her daughter, Frances to F. W. Baker be annulled.

According to the testimony of the girl, who was a former cashier of a down town drug store, she married Baker in October of last year after meeting him a couple of times. She was unable to state in answer to the court's inquiry just why she had married Baker, although declaring that the time of the ceremony she had no intention of living with her husband. She and her mother both testified that shortly after her marriage late in the afternoon, she went to her home and had never lived with her husband. Evidence was introduced showing that Baker later rented a room at the home of Mrs. Rutledge for a short time.

The petition also alleges that the husband misrepresented the age of the girl in securing the marriage license. The girl who is of exceptionally attractive appearance, is under eighteen years, according to the testimony Thursday. The husband was present in the court room during the hearing. He is not contesting the suit.

SMALL RAILROADS SEEK PERMISSION TO REDUCE WAGES

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 16.—Two small Southern railroads, hit by business depression which caused them to operate at a deficit, brought pleas to the railroad labor board today for permission to reduce wages and the lower their operating expenses.

The Gulf and Ship Island railroad, with a mileage of 307 miles through Mississippi besought the board to reduce its rates to the scale recently authorized by the board for the New Orleans and Great Northern, which practically parallels the Ship Island line.

Inability to pay the present scale fixed by the board was also pleaded by the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient, which asked a 15 per cent reduction of wages. Frank C. Reilly represented the road which is in the hands of a receiver, W. T. Kemper of Kansas City, Mo. The road is operating on a loan at present and has asked the interstate commerce commission for an increase of its division on joint through rates. Representatives of the employes appeared in both cases citing living costs and other data in protest against pay reductions.

HARDING DECIDES TO ADD ANOTHER DAY TO VACATION

By Associated Press.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 16.—Decision of President Harding to add one more day to his vacation in Florida, was announced late today by Secretary Christian, who said the presidential party instead of ending their stay here tomorrow, now planned to leave Saturday and arrive in Washington Sunday. The president is obtaining as much rest as possible in the closing days of his holiday, going on the links for golf this morning and spending the afternoon in his hotel apartment.

There is nothing remarkable about an electrical wizard being able to raise a storm in his laboratory. Men have been doing that in the home ever since marriage was instituted.

ANNOUNCE PRICE CUT ON WICHITA MOTOR TRUCKS THURSDAY; RANGE FROM $400 TO $500 REDUCTION

"In line with the reduction in the prices of materials and with the increased volume of business, it is possible to make a substantial reduction in the prices of our products," J. G. Culbertson of the Wichita Motors company announced Thursday.

"The new prices of Wichita trucks are as follows: Model K, 1 ton chassis, $1875, a reduction of $425; model L, 1½ ton chassis, $2100, a reduction of $500; model M, 2 ton chassis, $2400, a reduction of $400; model RX Oil Field Special, $3200, a reduction of $400; Model O, 4 ton chassis, $3500, a reduction of $500.

"Notwithstanding these material price reductions, a number of very important improvements have been made in the various models.

"The export trade in motor trucks is showing a very rapid recovery. Many pessimists predicted that the United States would lose its volume of foreign trade. It was predicted that German competition would drive American goods out of the foreign market. These predictions have not materialized. Our export trade fell off, due largely to exchange rates and the premium on the American dollar. In spite of this high premium, we enjoy a good share of the world's trade, and with the constant improvement in exchange, we will find a corresponding increase in our overseas commerce.

"The discount on the English pound is less than 10 per cent today. Other continental exchanges have shown a very substantial recovery, and with the gradual working out of the economic problems confronting the leading nations, we will find a steady improvement in trade relations. It is my prediction that our volume of trade in 1922 will greatly exceed that of 1921.

Shaw Desmond.

"The 'war paint' of the American woman is her biggest menace," in the opinion of Shaw Desmond, Irish author. The noted novelist says that American women are literally cutting off their noses to spite their faces. "The beauties are painting beauty out," says Desmond. Desmond declares that when the American woman eschews paint and powder, when she creates and wears American instead of Parisian clothes, that day will reveal her to the world as the world's most beautiful woman.
