'Lean' favorites continue to please show judges

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

Judge Carl Wilson of Albany continued a trend of passing over heavier animals in favor of those displaying the least amount of fat Thursday night in selecting champions for the lamb show portion of the 41st Annual Scurry County Junior Livestock Show.

Like the swine show Wednesday — in which many previous project show champions finished "out of the money" — neither the Grand nor Reserve Champion lambs selected Thursday had finished at the top of project show judging last week.

After more then five hours of judging, Wilson tapped a medium-lightweight mediumwool lamb shown by Cotton Merritt — son of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Merritt — as Grand Champion of 1985. The youngster represented the Scurry County 4-H.

Merritt's smaller, more muscular lambs had not placed at the top in last Saturday's 4-H project show. They served him well Thursday night, however.

Wilson placed three of these animals high enough in their classes to make Saturday's sale. They also earned Merritt the mediumwool breed champion's prize and the finewool reserve champion's rosette in addition to the Grand Championship.

Ben Smith of Hermleigh — son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith — continued his winning ways Thursday — capturing the Reserve Championship of the show for the second straight year.

Like Merritt, Smith won the reserve champion's trophy with a heavyweight mediumwool lamb which had been passed over in the Hermleigh FFA Chapter Show Monday night.

His reserve champion lamb also copped the reserve breed championship of Thursday's mediumwool division and his entry in the heavyweight crossbred category earned him the breed champion's rosette for that division.

Barry Ezra of the Ira FFA — son of Martha Ezra — took home the Lamb Division Showmanship trophy for his work in the show ring Thursday.

Other breed champions named Thursday night were Lesile Ward of the 4-H in the finewool category and Eric Nachlinger, reserve champion of the crossbred group.

In all, 213 lambs were exhibited by county youth Thursday evening.

The winner of the 1985 Breeder's trophy for the Lamb Division will not be announced until Saturday, according to show officials.

Friday at 7:30 p.m., the stock show judging will conclude with the steer competition in the ag annex of the Scurry County Coliseum. Show judge will be Hank Kimbriel of Mason.

The annex will be the scene also for Saturday's sale of the top 118 animals from three-days worth of judging. The sale will begin at 1 p.m.

Complete results of the Lamb show were as follows:

Brainstorms...

High-tech fair open house set

"Brainstorms," a high-tech fair sponsored by the Snyder High School computer classes, will be open to the public from 2 until 8 p.m. Saturday at the high school.

The series of competitions was designed to encourage all students to improve their mathematical, scientific, artistic, and writing skills as well as allowing them to be creative and "to have fun."

There were 518 entries in all, according to Wynola Early, high school computer instructor. The mathematics category drew the largest number of entries — 200. Next was the throwaway robots category with 127 entries.

Admission Saturday is free. In addition to all entries being on display, several special exhibits are also planned, Early said. These include the history of the computer and robots, an industrial arts robot display, computer laser art and a walk through computer.

A space age gypsy will be on hand to tell fortunes. Refreshments will also be for sale.

There were six divisions in all for students to enter: primary (grades 1-3); elementary (grades 4-6); junior (grades 7-8); senior (grades 9-10); and advanced (grades 11-12).

Students entered a variety of categories including computer, science, mathematics, science fiction, arts, and "sir plus," the throwaway robot model competition.

Awards will be presented to the best in each division.

HOPEFUL FACES — Lamb show judge Carl Wilson of Albany faced these hopeful faces Thursday night as Scurry County youth presented a total of 213 lambs for judging. The 41st Annual Scurry County Junior Livestock Show continues Friday night with steer judging and will conclude Saturday with the annual auction sale. (SDN Staff Photo)

Court action revokes probations, two plea

Two defendants have entered pleas and two men have had felony probation terms revoked in 132nd District Court here.

Rocky Roscoe Farmer of 601 35th St. — who was indicted by the Scurry County grand jury Feb. 4 for felony criminal mischief — entered a plea of nolo contendre to that charge.

Such a plea indicates he does not "contest" the allegation. Under the law, it is not considered an admittance of guilt, however.

In exchange for the plea, Farmer was placed on felony probation for two years and fined $500. He had been charged with making an illegal tap on a Lone Star Gas line at his residence.

Israel Thomas Torres of Snyder was given a 120 day term in the Scurry County Jail after entering a guilty plea to a charge of felony driving while intoxicated.

Torres was indicted at the December session of the Scurry County grand jury after being arrested Nov. 8, 1984.

In addition, the court revoked a previously granted probationary term for Mavrick Josh Dawson, who now faces three years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "We cannot control the tragic things that happen to us, but we can control the way we face up to them."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, told the story about a salesman who covered a large western territory. He was driving through an Indian reservation when he saw a general store at the side of the road. He decided to stop and stretch his legs, and see whether he could get a cold soda.

While he was inside the store, the store owner struck up a conversation with him.

"Did you see that old Indian sitting outside on the porch?" he asked. "He's really a wonder. He has an amazing memory. On your way out, why don't you ask him a question about something in the past and see if he can answer it."

Curious, the salesman approached the Indian. "I understand you have an amazing memory. Tell me, what did you have for breakfast last March 15?"

"Eggs," the Indian said.

"That was pretty silly," the salesman thought to himself. "How would I know whether that's true or not?"

Feeling slightly foolish, he went back to his car and drove away. Shortly thereafter, the salesman was transferred to a new territory, and it wasn't until five years later that he returned to the area on vacation.

Driving on the same road, the salesman recognized the general store where he had stopped long ago. To his surprise, the old Indian was still sitting on the porch.

"On a whim, the salesman stopped the car and walked over the Indian. Holding up his hand in greeting, he said, "How!"

"Scrambled," the Indian replied.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, beginning the year on an encouraging note, held flat in January, the government said today. Energy prices posted their steepest drop in almost two years while food costs also declined sharply.

Auto arrests

Police Thursday night linked four individuals to Monday's theft of a 1983 Ford Mustang — an incident which ended with the auto later found abandoned in a rural field.

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong said Friday morning he had filed felony charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle against one of the suspects, a 16-year-old female juvenile.

Formal charges are also expected to be filed later Friday against at least one of three remaining suspects.

According to investigators, these three include two men ages 18 and 20 and one 17-year-old woman.

The four are suspected of taking a 1983 Ford Mustang owned by William Scott of 2906 Denison Ave. sometime Monday evening. The car was found abandoned on a farm west of Snyder Tuesday afternoon and returned to its owner.

Temple gunman irrational

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — A 28-year-old man who went on a shooting spree at Temple Junior College, wounding two instructors and holding one inside a building for about three hours, exhibited wild personality shifts before he fatally shot himself, authorities say.

"He'd be just normal and say, 'Well, I'll release her and come out if you promise me this and this,'" said Police Chief Thomas Vannoy after the shootings Thursday.

Moments later, the man would say things like "If I hear a noise, I'm gonna shoot her and kill myself,'" Vannoy said.

Steven Parsons, who had addresses in Austin and Longview, died about 10:15 p.m. Thursday during surgery at Scott & White Hospital for a gunshot wound to his mid-sternum, said Dolores Gautier, assistant director of nursing. Police said an autopsy has been ordered.

The woman he was holding, management instructor Laurelyn Carlisle, 33, of Salado, remained in critical condition early today following surgery for a gunshot wound to her stomach, said hospital spokeswoman Carol Trono.

Speech instructor Debbie Foster, 30, of Little River, Texas, was treated for a gunshot wound to her hip and released from the same hospital, said Susan Frederick, assistant director of nursing.

Police said the two women discovered the gunman rifling through their purses inside their offices at the campus Fine Arts Building and challenged him. Ms. Foster was shot as she fled from the building, said Sgt. Steve Klempa.

Marvin Felder, the college's president, said Ms. Carlisle was held after the shooting began, about 10 minutes before a meeting he had called with faculty members in the building about 3 p.m.

Felder said Ms. Foster "really felt Laurelyn was in imminent danger — that the man was not at all stable."

The gunman, brandishing a .22-caliber handgun, also fired at an another unidentified faculty member who was not hit, said Felder. The suspect kept as many as 30 police officers at bay, authorities said.

" ... I can't help but think of Laurelyn in there for three hours with a man threatening to kill her or himself. I can't imagine the torture on the human mind," Felder said.

Klempa said police had summoned a psychiatrist from the nearby Veterans Administration Hospital, the gunman's brother and Mrs. Carlisle's husband, Rex, to aid in negotiations by telephone when the suspect became upset.

"He told us he was going to shoot himself," Vannoy said at a news conference in which he described negotiations with the gunman. "There was a pause. He set the phone down. Silence. And there was a shot.

"And at that time, we decided that we better make entry and make sure he hadn't shot the woman," Vannoy said.

Shootout might have ended eight-state caravan of crime

COLBY, Kan. (AP) — Four suspects in a crime spree that left four dead and four wounded in northwest Kansas may have been on a two-week rampage through eight states that resulted in several robberies and at least one other killing, authorities said.

There are "strong indications" the four were involved in armed robberies and shootings over the last two weeks in Michigan, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma, police Chief Mark Spray said Thursday.

A three-county chase Wednesday that started with an apparent robbery at a restaurant in Granfield, Kan., 40 miles southeast of Colby, culminated in a shootout that left one suspect dead, authorities said.

Also killed Wednesday were a restaurant manager and two hostages who were taken at a grain elevator and shot "execution style." The four people who were wounded included two suspects and a Thomas County deputy who was shot after stopping the suspect's car.

Authorities spent Thursday trying to determine if the four suspects committed other crimes as they traveled south and west from Michigan before reaching Kansas on Tuesday.

Law enforcement officials from Arkansas and Texas said they planned trips today to Kansas to interview the three surviving suspects about robberies in which one woman was killed and another was shot seven times.

Meanwhile, local authorities planned to file charges today against James C. Hunter, 33, of Amoret, Mo., and Daniel E. Remeta, 27, and Lisa J. Dunn, 18, both of Traverse City, Mich., according to Thomas County Attorney Perry Murray.

Murray said he planned to charge each with two first-degree murder counts, two aggravated assault counts, two aggravated kidnapping counts and one aggravated robbery charge.

The fourth suspect, 18-year-old Mark Walter, of Suttons Bay, Mich., was killed during the shootout Wednesday.

Authorities said they believe the crime wave began Jan. 27 in Copemish, Mich., with the robbery of a gas station. Copemish is 25 miles southwest of the homes of three of the suspects, and the robbery occurred within 48 hours of the day family members say the suspects left home, Spray said.

Michigan authorities described Remeta as a long-time criminal who served three years at the Michigan State Prison at Marquette. Grand Traverse County Magistrate Stewart Soule said that Remeta appeared in his court at age 14 and said "what he wanted to do was kill a policeman, go out West and become a hit man for the Mafia."

Stormie's mom marries again

DALLAS (AP) — One year to the day after Stormie Jones underwent the world's first simultaneous heart-liver transplant, her mother helped make sure Stormie will never forget the anniversary of starting a new life.

Lois "Susie" Jones, 28, wed telephone salesman Greg Browning on Thursday, Valentine's Day.

Browning, 25, insisted afterwards that he didn't realize Stormie's historic operation was on Valentine's Day 1984 when he asked Mrs. Jones to marry him on Thursday.

"But it's for sure that I won't forget our anniversary now," he said. "It's a triple decker."

Dear Abby

Woman Can't Confess Sin To the Man on Her Mind

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I loved this boy (now a man) with all my heart all through school. "John" loved me, too, but we never went all the way. I would have, but John was stronger than I was, and he never let it happen.

He was an altar boy and dedicated to his religion. I'm also Catholic and thought that one day we would marry. Instead, John went to the seminary to become a priest. He was ordained and assigned to a parish out of town. In the meantime, I got married and had a family.

Sixteen years later, John moved back to town, and now he is my parish priest!

I still have strong feelings for him and I think he feels the same about me, too, although he hardly ever looks me in the eye. He took my confession twice, but I never confessed the sin that was really in my heart (my desire for him).

The temptation is terrible, and the guilt about my feelings is weighing heavily on my conscience. I cannot deny my feelings. I don't want to hurt John, myself or my family. Please help me.

A SINNER IN MY HEART

DEAR SINNER: Reduce the temptation by changing to another parish. It would be a kindness to John, and a favor to yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend, "Denny," was engaged to be married three months ago, so I threw a stag party for him that turned out to be a big mistake.

I hired "Salome," an exotic dancer, to entertain at this party the night before the wedding, and Denny ended up in bed with her. To make a long story short, Denny's fiancee heard about it and called off the wedding.

Now Denny is making plans to marry Salome. My question: Should I give Denny another stag party?

LESTER

DEAR LESTER: I vote no, but if you do, don't hire another exotic dancer. Ask Salome to dance—and retain the seventh veil for her wedding.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice that could save a lot of people a lot of heartbreak. Recently my father died. He was an attorney and most people would consider him a wealthy man. I have one sister who has a history of emotional problems and is marginally employed. My father left her enough money to buy a house and be assured that she would never have to "worry." He left my mother the rest.

He left me not so much as a bubble gum wrapper! If people knew this, I'm sure they would be shocked because I had always been the "apple of his eye."

I am so hurt and humiliated, I can't see straight. My husband has a decent job, but we're far from rich. Every other paycheck goes to the house—you know what mortgage rates are these days—and our car has 80,000 miles on it. Frankly, we could have used a little something.

Anyway, please tell your readers this: If you're planning to exclude one of your children from your will on the grounds that he or she is apparently self-sufficient, at least say something nice about the person in your will—not that "so-and-so is already well-provided for." And please leave that child something—even if it's only something of sentimental value. It will make a lot of difference in the way you are remembered.

SHUT OUT

DEAR SHUT OUT: Good advice. Thanks for a valuable item.

Novelist has...

Winning way with short stories

COLLECTED STORIES: By Gabriel Garcia Marquez. Harper & Row. 311 Pages. $16.95.

Gabriel Garcia Marquez, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1982, is best known for his novels.

But he also has a winning way with the short story, and he demonstrates his facility with the form in the 26 stories gathered together in this collection.

The stories appear in "the chronological order of their original publication in Spanish" — 1947 to 1972 — a nice arrangement which gives the reader a chance to see the writer's growing mastery of the form as the years progress.

The first story, "The Third Resignation," is surrealistic in form. But it contains enough elements of irony and, oddly enough, humor so that the reader feels comfortable as he travels through an alien land in which a young man "dies" at the age of 7 but continues to "live" for many more years while housed in a coffin.

A similar, successful blend of the real and the unreal is seen in "Eyes of a Blue Dog." Here a man and a woman meet in their dreams but are unable to find each other in actual life because the man "doesn't remember anything of what he's dreamed after he wakes up."

Garcia Marquez turns to straight realism in "Tuesday Siesta" and "There Are No Thieves in This Town." The first is a touching story of a woman who goes to visit the grave of her son in a distant town. The young man had been shot and killed while trying to break into a house although his mother insists "he was a very good man."

The unusual theme of today's deal is preventing the defenders from shortening dummy's trump holding when the last trump may be needed as an entry.

Since five diamonds would have been down only one, it was right for North to bid on to five spades. In fact, six spades would make if trumps were divided 2-2. Today's declarer might have done better had he remembered that he was in five spades, not six.

East won the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy and played the A-K of spades. When West showed out, South realized that the contract was in danger. He cashed his A-K of hearts. Had East ruffed the second heart, declarer's problems would have been over, but East simply discarded a diamond. South picked up the last trump and led a club to the queen, hoping that West had the king. No such luck. He had to go down a trick.

Declarer has a simple play to allow the contract to make. When East plays the second high diamond, South should simply play a low club from dummy. Whatever happens next, he will be able to play A-K-Q of spades and the A-K of hearts, and be able to reach dummy by overtaking his spade five with dummy's seven to make the contract.

Rental cars used for business

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — American corporations are currently spending more than $75 billion a year on business travel, according to National Car Rental System.

It says the amount is twice as much as 10 years ago.

National estimates that less than 20 percent of its rentals are to leisure or vacation travelers. It says about 80 percent of its customers these days are traveling on business and estimates the percentage is also high for the nation's other car rental firms as well.

"WERE YOU PRETTY WHEN YOU WERE A LITTLE GIRL, OR DID YOU JUST GET THAT WAY WHEN YOU GOT OLD?"

Westerners edge Dogs in extra period, 94-86

CLARENDON -- Western Texas College's Westerners didn't have to make it an especially close game but when they did, they took care of business, defeating Clarendon 94-86 in overtime here Thursday night.

"We needed to win a close one. We've lost so many close games this season that winning this one was real important, especially at this time of the season," said Westerner Coach Phil Spradling. "The kids were really determined to win. That's what it takes. They showed a lot of character in overtime."

Western led by as many as 15 points at in the first half, but was up only 42-38 at intermission. Clarendon canned the first two buckets of the second half, and the teams traded the lead most of the final 20 minutes of the game.

Western pulled out ahead near the end of regulation and "should have won then," said Spradling, "but we missed some crucial freethrows."

"I knew they weren't going to die. We had them down by 15 in the first half and they came back. It was their homecoming and they wanted a win bad," added the coach.

Once the game reached overtime, Western took control again and kept it. Lamesa sophomore Victor Spencer led the way with 8 overtime points. James Dawn added four others.

While Dawn and Spencer keyed the overtime period, it was San Angelo sophomore Lorand White who continued to stand out after missing much of the season with a knee injury. White had 20 points, 10 rebounds and 4 steals for the Westerners, complimenting Dawn's 22 points, 7 rebounds and 5 assists.

Floyd Singleton scored 18 points in another well-balanced game for the Westerners, while Alvin Hicks scored 13, Spencer 12 and Ed Teal 7.

Western, which retained a share of fifth place in the conference with the win, shot a fine .578 from the field; 37 of 64. The Westerners were 20 of 29 from the line.

Clarendon, now 6-20 overall and 1-13 in conference play, was 37 of 76 from the floor, .486, and 12 of 19 from the stripe.

The Bulldogs were led by Carl Curry's 20 points. Fabian Wells scored 14, Andre Harris 13 and Keith Kubicek and Virgil Reagins, 10 each.

The win puts the Westerners at 17-10 on the season and 7-7 in WJCAC play. The Westerners entertain New Mexico Junior College in a game for outright possession of fifth place at 8 p.m. Monday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Cushing takes 176th as Dusters defeat CC

CLARENDON -- Western Texas College Duster Coach Joe Cushing smashed the 175-win barrier here Thursday night, taking a two-point victory in the process.

The Dusters' 66-64 win was Cushing's 176th at Western Texas College and wraps up second place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

Cushing has never finished below second in the conference.

The coach said however, that Clarendon certainly tried to spoil Western's evening.

"They really played us tough in the second half. Our girls did a good job of holding their composure. I tell you, that little gym they've got just echos and in a place like that the crowd can really get you rattled," said the coach, whose Dusters vault to 26-5 on the season and 9-2 in conference play.

Western had led 38-26 at halftime, but an inspired Clarendon squad rallied to tie at 54-54. The Dusters never relinquished the lead, but it was nip and tuck at the wire.

"They missed a shot that would have tied the game up at 66-66, but we rebounded and held the ball until the clock ran out. I thought we played a good game," noted Cushing. "We didn't take them lightly. I thought the girls respsonded well considering the emotional loss earlier in the week," he said, referring to WTC's 58-54 loss to No. 1 ranked Odessa College.

The Dusters got big-gun action from two players, sophomores Clara Campbell and Patti Hayes. Campbell scored 25 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and blocked three shots while Hayes notched 20 points and had 9 rebounds.

Rhonda Hoelting scored 8 points and had 4 steals while Lyndy French scored 5 points and Renvy Evans scored 4 and grabbed 8 boards.

The Dusters hit only 12 of 26 freethrows but were a respectable 27 of 57 from the field, while holding Clarendon to just 29 of 70 shots.

WTC also won the board game, 37 rebounds to 23.

Clarendon, now 15-6 on the season and 6-5 in conference play, was led by Pam Walker's 19 points. Sharon Birkenfeld scored 17; Tia Stewart 10.

The Dusters will return home to host New Mexico Junior College at 6 p.m. Monday in Scurry County Coliseum. The Dusters boast a 7-1 home record this season.

Hogs punish Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -- Arkansas basketball coach Eddie Sutton suffered through a Texas comeback attempt but finally relaxed in the wake of a 60-51 victory that kept his Razorbacks in the thick of the Southwest Conference race.

"I told my squad that if they can't win tonight, they can forget about those championship rings," Sutton said Thursday night.

"When we look at our schedule we see we have three games at home and travel to Rice," Sutton said. "If we can win out and SMU could stub its toe, we would share the conference championship."

The tough win in Austin raised Arkansas' record to 8-4, one game behind Southern Methodist's 9-3 mark and a half game ahead of Texas A&M and Texas Tech, who are 7-4. For the season, Arkansas is 17-9. Texas fell to 5-7 and 12-10.

Sutton said freshman Kenny Hutchinson, who hit 6-of-6 from the field against Texas, "came of age tonight. I've been saying all along the night would come when he would hit his shots and might bust loose."

Texas Coach Bob Weltlich was high on praise for Arkansas center Joe Kleine, whom he called "the most competitive player in this league, by far.

"I mean it's not even close. I wouldn't want to even try to name a player who would be second, he would be so far back. He just out-competes your entire team, and he has the equipment to do it," Weltlich said.

"They made a lot of big defensive plays when they had to and we just made some not so intelligent decisions," Weltlich added.

Kleine scored 22 points and held Texas center John Brownlee to just 6 points.

Carlton Cooper scored 11 early points as Texas built a 19-16 lead with 7:11 left in the first half, while Kleine was trying but failing to fight his way clear of the traffic under the basket.

But Texas lost the lead after forward Mike Wacker picked up two quick fouls with about 6:30 left before intermission. He sat out the rest of the half, and without him the Longhorns was unable to score.

Eight straight points gave Arkansas a 24-19 halftime lead, and the Razorbacks built it to 36-23 in the opening minutes of the second half.

Wacker led Texas with 16 points, followed by Cooper with 15. Hutchinson finished with 15 for Arkansas.

Tigers entertain Eagles at 7, 8:30

Snyder's boys play their final basketball game of the season here tonight, taking on Pecos at 8:30 in the local coliseum.

A junior varsity contest tips off at 7. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Snyder can grab third place in the 2-4A standings and play a spoiler's role with a win tonight. The Tigers are 11-16 on the season, 7-5 in district play.

Starters for Snyder tonight are expected to be Trey Tippens, Chris Garrett, Mike McWilliams, Bobby Scott and Wade Forga.

Pecos comes in with a 9-4 record - 19-10 overall - and has hopes of making the playoffs. For that to happen, the Eagles must defeat Snyder and Andrews must lose to Sweetwater in Sweetwater.

Those outcomes would give both Pecos and Andrews 10-4 records, and necessitate a playoff to determine the 2-4A runnerup.

Lamesa has already locked up the district crown. The undefeated Tornadoes are at Fort Stockton tonight. In the league's only other game, Lake View is at Monahans.

The 2-4A runnerup, either Andrews or Pecos, will be paired against No. 3 ranked Borger, 1-4A champ, in playoff action next week. Lamesa will be scheduled against 1-4A runnerup Lubbock Dunbar.

Girls 2-4A representatives play this weekend. Champion Andrews, 26-3, is scheduled against 1-4A runnerup Canyon (16-11) tonight at 7:30 in the Lubbock Coronado Gym. And runnerup Sweetwater (24-3) will play 1-4A title holder Levelland (24-3) here at 7 p.m. Saturday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Borden wins at bi-district

LAMESA -- Borden County girls, District 10-A runnersup, defeated Meadow in bi-district playoff action here Thursday, 43-33.

The Coyotes, now 24-3, got 16 points from Kelli Williams and 12 from Teri Billington.

Borden will play the winner of tonight's Roscoe-Motley County game, to be held at 7 in Rotan. Coach Bill May and Borden County officials will confer with the winner following the game. The second-round playoff game should take place next Monday or Tuesday.

The Rt. Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, Bishop of Northwest Texas, will make his annual visitation to St. John's Episcopal Church this Sunday. Holy Communion services will begin at 11 a.m., with Bishop Hulsey as celebrant, assisted by Dr. Harold Miller as lay reader. A covered dish luncheon will follow in the parish hall.

Dr. Miller and Hall were also elected by the committee to serve as Senior Warden and Junior Warden, respectively. Mrs. Hart will also serve as secretary and Mrs. Marge Line was selected to serve as treasurer.

Special Ash Wednesday Communion services will be conducted at 5:30 p.m. this Wednesday at St. John's and at 7:30 p.m. at All Saints in Colorado City. Officiating will be the Rev. Malcolm Slayter.

1st Christian Church slates Randy Mark Miles concert

Contemporary Christian singer/songwriter Randy Mark Miles will perform his original Gospel concert, "The Storyteller," at 7 p.m. Monday at First Christian Church. The public is invited.

Tickets are now on sale for $4 per adult or $12 per family. They can be puchased at First Christian Church, 2701 37th Street, or at the door of the concert. For additional ticket information, call 573-6115.

The concert includes 11 songs, complemented with storytelling of legends and tales of Christian faith. It is billed as a "Gospel celebration in song and drama" for all ages. The concert has been performed in more than 70 churches all over the U. S.

Miles describes his music as "middle of the road storysongs with religious value." His style has been compared to popular artists Harry Chapin and Paul Simon.

His debut album, also titled "The Storyteller," was released in September, 1984 through Seeker Records. He resides in El Paso where he also serves as president of his own production company.

The concert is being sponsored by First Christian Church in conjunction with Light on Productions of El Paso.

'Governor-for-a-day ceremony date picked

AUSTIN–Senator Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls has announced that May 4 has been set as the date for the traditional "Governor-for-a-Day" celebration in Austin, at which he will be sworn in as the acting governor of Texas.

"The celebration is an occasion for the President Pro Tempore's constituents to come and celebrate "their day" in Austin. We will hold the swearing-in ceremony in the Senate Chamber and have a barbecue on the Capitol grounds. This will be a good time for all those living in the 30th District to come to Austin and enjoy the district's elevated status for a day," Farabee explained.

Each session the Senate chooses a member to serve as Senate President Pro Tempore. That member is third in line to govern the state, following the governor and lieutenant governor. The President Pro Tempore traditionally serves one day as governor while the governor and lieutenant governor leave the state. Farabee was elected to the Pro Tempore position last month at the beginning of the 69th Legislative session.

"More specific plans will be announced in about a month. In the meantime, I hope that everyone in the 30th District will keep May 4 open on their calendars," Farabee said.

New applications for ERS told to advisory council

Three new applications for Emergency Response System units have been received by the Senior Center, members of the center's advisory council were told at their meeting Wednesday.

The ERS units enable senior citizens with health problems to summon aid at the touch of a button. Additional units are available for use in Snyder and persons interested in information about them are invited to contact the senior center. The new units are expected to be installed next week.

Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, gave a brief report on the progress at the Senior Center housing project, Golden Terrace Village. Snyder Senior Citizens, Inc., which is the sponsoring organization for the housing project, is currently raising funds to supplement money allocated for it and will use the funds to pay for desirable features which had to be eliminated because of the cost. Donations to the project can be mailed to the Senior Center at 2603 Avenue M. Checks should be made payable to Snyder Senior Citizens, Inc.

The council approved the purchase of a 35 mm camera to be used in the center to record special events and keep the slide program about the center up to date.

Mrs. Shaw told the group that the annual recognition banquet is being planned for April 11.

Although the destruction of forests in Nepal has been stemmed, more than 2.5 million acres must be reforested by the year 2000 to meet fuel wood needs alone.

Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have been walking a 4-mile course every night for the past four years. We walk briskly and complete our route in an hour or less. We have found the exercise beneficial. It gives us a chance to unwind from the pressures of work and also lets us talk to each other and share the events of the day.

However, my husband complains that his tailbone is stiff after these walks. What could the cause be? How a person could get relief from this condition?

DEAR READER — I would need to know exactly what you mean by tailbone. I suspect that he needs to do some stretching exercises. Stretching is one of the most neglected aspects of maintaining fitness and health. Anyone who is going to do vigorous exercise should stretch before exercising. It is important to do some light exercises to warm up, and then to stretch. It is equally or more important to stretch after exercising.

Your husband might try a stretching routine and see if that helps. For moderate walking, you can bypass stretching before you walk, but stretch when you finish. The walk will have warmed your muscles and tissues so they are in the ideal state to be stretched.

Stretch slowly and hold the stretched position about 30 seconds each time. The slow stretch and hold is the most effective. I recommend that you both do this.

To give you a program to follow, I am sending you The Health Letter 19-10 Stretching and Flexibility. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If the stretching doesn't produce the desired results, your husband should see a specialist in physical medicine. The specialist can examine him and find the cause for his complaint and then design a program for his particular problem. He could have some arthritic changes affecting a nerve to that area. However, everyone should stretch. As you get older, this becomes more important in maintaining normal flexibility.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been taking medicine for my blood pressure for years. Suddenly, there is a slushing sound at my elbow when I take my blood pressure, and the pressure fluctuates from 170 over 20 to 130 over 0. What does the zero diastolic blood pressure mean? What causes the slushing sound? Occasionally I am short of breath.

I am a licensed practical nurse, but have not found satisfactory answers to these questions. My ankles are swollen by evening.

DEAR READER — You could have a problem in taking your blood pressure. When a lot of venous blood is trapped in the arm it can give false readings. You could have a severe anemia, but the most likely cause is that you have a leaky aortic valve in your heart. This valve closes at the outlet of the heart to prevent blood from running back into the heart.

When such a leak occurs, the heart ejects an increased amount of blood to compensate for the blood that is going to leak back into the heart. That causes the systolic (top) pressure to rise. As the blood rushes back into the heart, the pressure falls rapidly to a low, or even zero, diastolic (low reading) pressure, and produces a "slushing" sound.

The rest of your description sounds like possible congestive heart failure caused by this basic problem. If you are not already seeing a heart specialist, you should do so immediately.

INS postpones fate of illegal family

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Saying they wanted to more extensively review the case, immigration officials have postponed deporting the illegal alien parents of a 4-year-old American citizen with a heart defect.

Raul and Guadalupe Tena and their 6-year-old daughter, Daniella, were first to be deported Wednesday and then again Thursday.

The family has been living in Las Cruces, N.M., about 45 miles north of El Paso, since 1979, officials said.

They are fighting deportation because their 4-year-old son, Victor, has a congenital heart defect, which doctors say would not be treated properly if they were returned to Mexico.

Victor is an American citizen. Although he does not face deportation, the Tenas have said they would not return to Mexico without him.

After reporting to immigration officials Wednesday, the family was taken to the U.S.-Mexico border for deportation, but abruptly halted about half-way across the international bridge.

The Tenas said they were told to return to Las Cruces Wednesday night, but to report to the INS again on Thursday afternoon.

However, shortly before noon Thursday, the INS informed the family through an intermediary not to report.

"The ... family has been told not to report today," Henry McGehee, Immigration and Naturalization Service deputy district director in El Paso, said Thursday. "We're still in the midst of studying over the case."

McGehee said, "We don't think any further decision will be made today."

Gov. White says flat tax proposal hurts oil

AUSTIN (AP) — The Reagan administration's proposed flat tax plan would seriously damage the Texas oil industry and endanger the nation's security, Gov. Mark White says.

Calling the plan "near-sighted," White on Thursday wrote the White House asking Reagan to meet with him and Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma to discuss proposals to abolish many oil-related tax exemptions.

"World War II was won on a sea of Texas oil. A president who has devoted so much of the nation's resources to protection of national security ... cannot turn his back blindly on the obvious need to protect our oil and gas resources."

White said the oil-related exemptions in the current law are legitimate and underwrite many of the risks associated with energy exploration.

Without the oil depletion allowance that allows independent producers to recover capital expenses and deducations for intangible drilling costs, many investors would choose safer places for their money, White said.

While he supports the idea of simplifying federal income taxes, White said, "There's no sense in running off the cliff committing national suicide in an effort to be simple."

The flat tax "constitutes a near-sighted attempt to eliminate these incentives at a time when the administration should be taking a leadership role to achieve more national energy independence and to encourage domestic energy production," he said.

White noted that 12 years ago, in the depths of the Arab oil embargo, the nation was reminded of the dangers of depending on foreign oil.

In a 1949 State of the Union address, President Harry S. Truman labeled his administration as the "Fair Deal."

McDade called as first to testify

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox made "an offer you can't refuse" to a Houston law firm that was trying to question his sister, the jury hearing Mattox's commercial bribery casse was told today.

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, prosecuting the case himself, told jurors Mattox threatened to hold up the bond business of the Fulbright & Jaworski law firm unless it dropped efforts to question his sister, Janice, in another case.

In a series of telephone calls between the attorney general's office and the law firm, numerous bonds which needed the attorney general's approval were threatened with delay or disapproval, Earle said.

But should Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer Thomas McDade stop seeking a deposition from Dallas lawyer Janice Mattox, Earle said bond approval would follow.

"That is an offer coupled with a threat, and that's what makes it an offer you can't refuse," Earle told the jury.

In his opening arguments, Earle explained to the jury that under Texas law, the attorney general must approve public bond issues.

Fulbright & Jaworski was representing Mobil Oil Corp. in a lawsuit involving the state and South Texas rancher Clinton Manges.

Earle said Manges "is a big contributor to various politicians, including Mr. Mattox."

Earle said the case was "long and complicated" but its end result was simple.

"What he (Mattox) used to bribe them was the power of his office," Earle said.

McDade was the prosecution's first witness.

Mattox pleaded innocent to the felony charge on the first day of the trial Monday. On Wednesday a jury of eight women and four men was picked. The trial was in recess Thursday.

Mattox was named in a felony indictment Sept. 13, 1983, accused of threatening in a phone call to put Fulbright & Jaworski out of the municipal bond business unless McDade stopped trying to question Janice Mattox in connection with the Mobil-Manges lawsuit.

The suit was settled last year, and Mattox denies threatening McDade.

In an open court hearing last November to take depositions for Mattox's trial, McDade testified that when another partner of the law firm, Wiley Caldwell, told him of receiving a June 17 call from Mattox he thought Mattox was "kidding."

He said Caldwell described Mattox as being "mad, angry, upset, fuming."

McDade said the firm was given until 3 p.m. June 17 to "back off" from taking depositions relating to getting Laredo Judge Ruben Garcia taken off the Mobil case.

Rates increase Sunday...

Local post office stocks 'D'stamps

An adequate supply of "D" stamps and other non-denominated items are available at the Snyder Post Office to help customers make a smooth transition after the postal rate changes take effect this Sunday.

Postmaster Wendell Thomas says the non-denominated "D" stamps in sheet, coil and booklet forms represent the new 22-cent first-class rate. There are also non-denominated postal cards and plenty of two-cent stamps that, when added to 20-cent stamps, make up the new first-class letter rate.

"Nobody likes to see higher postal rates, but the increase is moderate and justified," Thomas said. "Since the last increase in November, 1981, the cost of living in the United States, as measured by the consumer price index, has gone up almost 13 percent. The 22-cent stamp is only a 10 percent rise.

"The non-denominated items are available because we estimate that stamp inventories in post offices at present will fall short of public demand and, we want to avoid customer inconvenience," he said.

Commemorative stamps, beginning with the Jerome Kern stamp, and other 22-cent stamps, are expected to replace the "D" stamps by the end of March, Thomas said.

Medal ceremony surprises some

COLLEYVILLE, Texas (AP) — Six congressmen are scheduled to give commemorative medals Saturday to some families of Texans still missing in action in Southeast Asia.

Family members said they were surprised when ceremonies at Carswell Air Force Base honoring the servicemen were announced. Officials said families of at least 10 of the 164 missing Texas servicemen would be present.

"I think we're surprised that someone is still interested," said Sharon Tucci of Fort Worth, whose husband, Air Force Maj. Robert Tucci, has been missing since his F-4 fighter was shot down over Laos in 1969.

But memories for the families are still sharp.

"Every night when I go sleep, I pray that he's all right. And every morning when I wake up, I wonder what kind of night he had," Wilma Vanden Eykel said.

Satellite photos reveal power supply for earth's auroras

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists for the first time have located a huge, egg-shaped power supply in space that helps create the Northern and Southern Lights, the mysterious curtains of green light that shimmer around Earth's poles.

The power source is an invisible zone 20 to 30 times the size of Earth, and is located about 400,000 miles distant, always on the side of the Earth away from the sun, University of Iowa physicist Lou Frank said Thursday.

It uses magnetic forces to trap electrically charged particles from the solar wind, a hot, particle-laden gas that speeds from the sun at nearly 1 million mph, Frank said.

"It (the power supply zone) really dances around out there," said Frank, who presented his findings at Jet Propulsion Laboratory during an international conference on solar wind interaction with Earth's magnetic field.

Frank said the most detailed ultraviolet and visible light satellite photos ever made of the Northern and Southern Lights allowed researchers to calculate the location of the power source in the Earth's magnetic "tail." The tail is the 4-million-mile-long part of Earth's magnetic field blown away from the planet by solar wind.

From the ground, the Northern and Southern Lights — also called the aurora borealis and aurora australis — usually are visible from high latitudes as "a series of (60- to 70-mile-tall) green curtains marching and waving across the sky," Frank said, although they also may appear as a red glow.

The Northern and Southern Lights occur because solar wind pushes the magnetic field around the Earth to create an electric voltage, or power supply, in the magnetic tail, he said. Through a complex series of reactions, the voltage accelerates the particles into Earth's polar regions, where they funnel into the atmosphere and are illuminated to create the lights.

Just as a television picture is produced by electrically charged particles shot onto a TV screen, the auroras are basically pictures produced on "Mother Nature's TV set" when the electric particles in space are accelerated into the atmosphere, Frank said.

Locating the power source was made possible by recent analysis of some photographs.

Dawson had originally been placed on three years probation in August 1984 after pleading guilty to burglary of a residence.

Probation officers cited his failure to make his regular reports to them in their petition for revocation.

Also having a probationary term revoked was Juan Ramon Cardenas, who had been placed on three years probation for burglary of an auto in June of 1982.

Probation officers cited Cardenas' arrest for DWI last July 7 in requesting the revocation of probation.

He will also now be required to serve the full three years in prison specified with the original sentence.

Ban open alcohol containers?

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Banning open alcohol containers from automobiles may be the best way to control drunken drivers on Texas highways, according to a Sam Houston State University study.

The report said forbidding open containers will be more effective than increasing penalties for drunken driving or raising the minimum drinking age.

All three options are now being considered by the state Legislature.

"At the very least, if they don't have that drink in the car with them they are not getting increasingly drunk while they are driving," said Dr. Frank Williams, a Sam Houston State researcher who wrote the report.

The report, delivered this week to state Sen. Kent Caperton's Criminal Justice Committee, said that raising the drinking age to 19 and increased DWI penalties passed by the Legislature in 1983 had little immediate impact on ridding Texas highways of drunken drivers.

"Any deterrent impact will probably be short-lived," Williams said Thursday. "The key thing is rise of public notice usually generated by the media.

"As people hear more about (the dangers of) drunk driving through the media, the more they are inclined to change their behavior," he said.

Once public discussion moves to other subjects, drivers normally return to their familiar habits, Williams said.

Research in other states shows that increasing the penalties does not decrease the number of drunken drivers because most drunken drivers believe they will not be caught, according to the report.

The report also said there is little research on whether raising the drinking age reduces the number of drunken drivers.

Defer tax on profit from home sale

By Robert Metz

(11th of 14 articles)

Rules that allow taxpayers to defer the capital gain on sale of a home generally work to the taxpayer's advantage. But there are pitfalls.

It was one such pitfall that snagged Vice President George Bush.

The Internal Revenue Service has insisted that he pay tax on the gain from the sale of his former home in Houston, even though the proceeds were invested in a costlier house he purchased in Maine.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES AND SAVE

As a rule, capital-gains taxes on such sales are deferred so long as the new residence is bought and occupied within two years of the sale of the old residence. But there's a catch: The new home must be the taxpayer's principal residence.

Bush moved into the vice president's official residence during the critical period for establishing the Maine home as his principal residence. He was forced to pay the tax but has done so under protest.

The IRS likes highly publicized cases like this because it reminds taxpayers to watch their p's and q's.

But if you're cautious, the tax deferral rules will usually work to your benefit.

Item: If you sold your principal residence in 1984 and replace it by the same date in 1986 with a residence costing as much or more, the tax on the gain is deferred, though not forgiven.

You can keep deferring taxes on gains by buying ever costlier homes. If you sell out and move to an apartment after you reach age 55, you may permanently avoid capital-gains taxes on profits of up to $125,000. That sum will go a long way to pay for retirement. In broad outline, that is how the tax deferral works.

Remember that the initial investment plus improvements and fix-up expenses immediately prior to selling are the "cost basis" of the home and reduce the accumulating capital gain. But be sure to make a distinction between improvements and repairs. Repairs simply maintain a home. Improvements, on the other hand, add to a home's value, prolong its life or adapt it to new use.

Painting your home and repairing leaks and cracked plaster are repairs. Adding a finished recreation room, a new bedroom or bathroom are all improvements.

Because you can recapture such investments at the time of a sale, it is important to keep all receipts and records. For how long? As long as you own your home, whether it be five years or 20 years, and then for an additional three years to protect you in the event of an audit by the IRS.

Tax trap: This can be a lifelong chore. Each house in the capital-gains cycle may be improved and, thus will affect cost basis.

There are also offsets from the selling price. Selling expenses typically include the realtor's commission, advertising and legal expenses, escrow fees and charges. Deduct the total of the charges from the selling price, and you have the adjusted sales price, which is the important consideration for tax purposes.

If you buy a more expensive replacement home, the cost of the new home, minus your deferred gain from your previous home, equals the adjusted cost basis of your new home. It is this figure that will be considered the base line for your gain when you sell this home in the future.

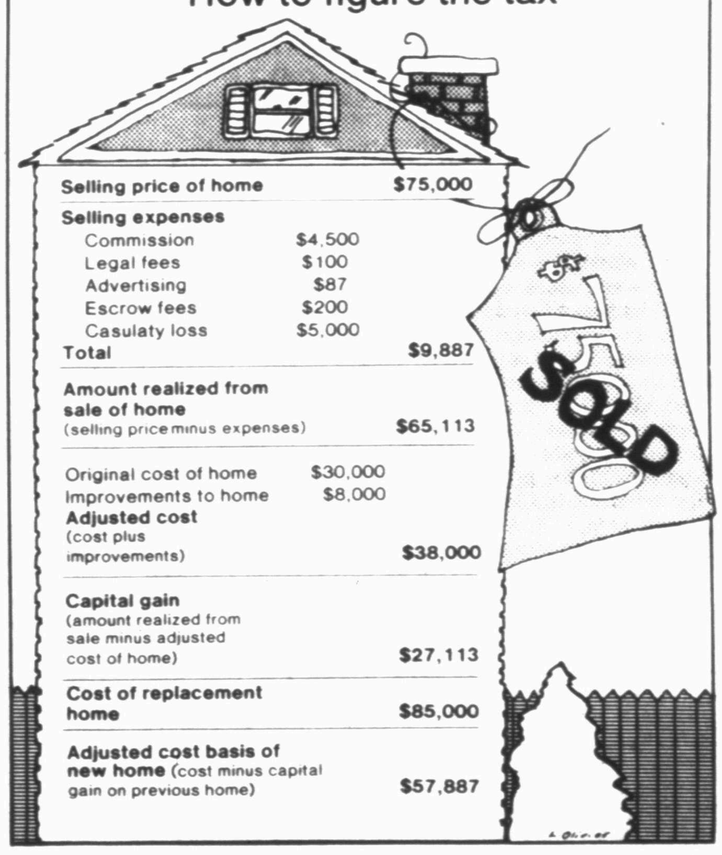

In the future, if you sell your new home for more than its adjusted cost basis, you'll have a capital gain. But the tax on that gain could be deferred again.

SELLING A HOME

How to figure the tax

Selling price of home		$75,000
Selling expenses
Commission	$4,500
Legal fees	$100
Advertising	$87
Escrow fees	$200
Casulaty loss	$5,000
Total		$9,887
Amount realized from sale of home (selling price minus expenses)		$65,113
Original cost of home	$30,000
Improvements to home	$8,000
Adjusted cost (cost plus improvements)		$38,000
Capital gain (amount realized from sale minus adjusted cost of home)		$27,113
Cost of replacement home		$85,000
Adjusted cost basis of new home (cost minus capital gain on previous home)		$57,887

If and when the replacement home is sold, $57,887 plus any improvements will provide the cost basis. The gain on the sale of that home can be deferred again if a still more expensive replacement house is purchased.

New book designed to aid kids

HOUSTON (AP) — A Spider-Man comic book portraying sexual abuse and how children should handle it has helped authorities in two southeast Texas counties in making a number of arrests and launching investigations, officials say.

The comic book was distribued with the Houston Chronicle on Jan. 27, just a few days after the television series "Different Strokes" featured a child abuse incident.

Edie Connelly, a detective with the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department, said the two presentations have influenced a number of children and resulted in the arrest in Montgomery County of four men and a woman on charges of sexual abuse.

In Houston, police department investigators said they have been swamped with reports of child sex abuse, including five cases where the comic book figured prominently.

"These cases resulted directly from kids reading the comic book and telling someone about what happened to them," officer R.W. Latch said. "I've never had as many cases of child sex abuse as I have on my desk right now."

Latch told of a 10-year-old girl who recently told a school counselor that she had been raped by her mother's boyfriend.

"I asked her why she told her counselor and she told me it was after reading the Chronicle Spider-Man Book," said Latch.

In other incidents, a 7-year-old boy reported an assault by a 9-year-old, a 13-year-old reported being raped by her stepfather, and a 4-year-old told of being touched by her father. In each case, the reading of the comic book encouraged the children to make their reports, according to the Chronicle.

Newsman can't wait to return home

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Jeremy Levin, the American journalist who gained freedom after 11 months of what he described as solitary confinement in Lebanon, was turned over to the U.S. ambassador today and declared: "I can't wait to be back on American soil."

"I feel wonderful. I've never been more thankful. I've never been more happy," he told reporters.

Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Al-Sharaa turned Levin over to Ambassador William Eagleton at the Syrian Foreign Ministry at 10:30 a.m.

Levin told reporters he escaped late Wednesday night by tying three blankets together, sliding down a wall and fleeing to a Syrian army position in east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

"The faces of the Syrian soldiers were the first faces I saw since March 7 of last year," he told reporters.

He said he believed there were four other people held in the same place he was, but said he did not know whether they were Americans because he was held in "solitary confinement" through his captivity.

Levin said he was "chained to a wall or radiator" most of the time.

Levin was shaking when he arrived at the Foreign Ministry and appeared not to know exactly where he was.

A journalist told him that he was about to be turned over to the American ambassador and that he was in Damascus at the Syrian Foreign Ministry.

"That is fantastic," he said, in tears.

"Lucille, where is Lucille," he said in a loud voice, asking about his wife.

When told by a journalist from Cable News Network, with whom he had worked in Beirut as bureau chief, that his wife was waiting for a rendezvous with him in Frankfurt, West Germany, he gasped and responded: "I can't wait to see her. Please tell her I missed her very much and I love her so deeply."

Levin was dressed in grey trousers and a blue sweatshirt.

One of his escorts said the clothes — including bright white tennis shoes he wore at the news conference — had been purchased in the east Lebanese town of Chtaura on Thursday because he had arrived at the Syrian army position early that morning barefooted and in pajamas.

Levin, who has grown a beard during his captivity and whose hair was grayer than before his capture, did not show any signs of physical torture. But Foreign Ministry officials ordered reporters out of the room before they could pursue how he had been treated by his captors.

Levin said he was held on the second floor of a multi-story apartment building on a hillside. He said he could not be specific about the site because: "They took my glasses away, and I am very nearsighted. I could not see."

He said the reason he believed there were others held in the same building was that he heard four knocks each morning from people signaling to their guards that they wanted to leave the bathroom, which was adjacent to his room.

"But the voices were muffled, and I could not tell whether they were speaking English," he said.

Four other Americans who disappeared or were kidnapped in the Moslem, western sector of west Beirut in the past year remain missing. They are William Buckley, a U.S. Embassy political officer; the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister; Peter Kilburn, a librarian at the American University of Beirut; and the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest.

Asked how he escaped, Levin gave this account:

"Wednesday night ... I had the best chance. They were careless about the chains, and I got the chain off.

"It's the usual cliche. I tied three blankets together and went down the blankets and I went as fast as I could, and then got to the main highway."

He said when he ran into Syrian soldiers it took several minutes to communicate his plight. He said he repeated, "Help me, help me" several times. "I could not speak Arabic and they could not speak English."

Woman sentenced in cruelty case

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman convicted of cruelty to animals after 31 sick and starving horses were seized by authorities has been sentenced to one-year probation and ordered to pay a $250 fine.

Johnnie Riley, 56, also was ordered by visiting Court-at-Law Judge Rya Montgomery to perform 50 hours of community service as part of her sentence.

The judge on Wednesday found Ms. Riley guilty of the misdemeanor charge, which was punishable by up to one year in jail and a maximum $2,000 fine.

Ms. Riley was accused of neglecting the horses she kept on a 37-acre lot in northwest Harris County.

5 people indicted in international scheme

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Five people have been accused of operating an international adoption scheme that bilked prospective parents across the country out of hundreds of thousands of dollars in what a U.S. attorney called an "invasion of the sanctity of family life."

Hundreds of prospective parents in 40 states were promised children from Mexico, when in most cases no child was available, federal authorities said.

Indictments were secretly handed up by grand juries in Boston and Salt Lake City Wednesday and more indictments could result, Brent Ward, U.S. attorney for Utah, said Thursday.

"In some cases, certain defendants told parents that a particular child had been found for them and identified the child by name, birth date, sex or photograph, when in fact no such child was available for adoption," Ward said in a written statement.

The 15-month nationwide investigation spearheaded by the FBI and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service found evidence that the victims — primarily from Utah and Massachussetts — paid between $300 and $6,000 each between 1978 and 1983 on the promise of getting Mexican children for adoption, the indictments allege.

In Boston, U.S. Attorney William Weld said investigators believe more than 350 prospective parents applied for children and paid an estimated $750,000 in fees for various adoption services.

Brackett D. Denniston III, chief of the major fraud unit in Weld's office, said it is believed that approximately two thirds of the 350 did not actually receive children.

Weld said 65 Massachusetts couples paid fees for children they never saw. Ward said 32 Utah couples, who paid a combined $160,000 in fees, adopted Mexican children provided by the defendants, but 40 others paid a total of $102,000 and never received a child.

The environment in predominantly-Mormon Utah that encourages large families made couples here particularly susceptible to misrepresentations, Ward said.

"Families who live in this environment have an incentive to adopt children," said Ward, who called the scheme an "invasion of the sanctity of family life in this state."

The Fort Worth (Texas) Star-Telegram, which had reported the indictments in its Thursday editions, said they capped the largest federal investigation ever into unlicensed adoption intermediaries.

Ward declined to confirm that statement, but said, "Adoption of Mexican children through this operation has come to an end."
