Water Main Repair

Jimmy Compton, a local plumber, is shown repairing a 10-inch water main at Ninth and Pine Streets, out about 18 hours. The broken main cut off water supply to about one-fourth of city residents Monday night.

School Board Okays Contract For Taxes

Colorado Independent School District stepped ahead of other local governmental agencies in the move to collect delinquent taxes.

City Council, Commissioners Courts as well as governmental agencies in Westbrook and Loraine have conferred with tax lawyers about back taxes.

But the school district is the first to take action.

City Council appeared ready to officially consider a contract with McCreary also Monday night but postponed action to allow City Attorney Dell Barber to submit a formal proposal for municipal delinquent taxes.

Council previously had stated readiness to hire Barber but had understood that the local lawyer wanted the collection job only if he had the assignment for three--city, schools and county.

When Mayor Mike Burt Monday night briefly explained two contract proposals relating to McCreary and then asked councilmen if they were ready to act, the city attorney expressed strong dissatisfaction.

If out of town lawyers were hired for the tax collection, Barber declared then let's "advertise for buying merchandise out of town. . .then it would be good business."

Burt pointed out that the city had written the school board concerning the hiring of Barber, expressing readiness of council to meet with school board and discuss the project.

When Barber said he would be interested in a contract only with one of the governmental agencies, council withheld immediate action and invited Barber to submit a contract proposal to council for consideration at a special meeting Monday, Feb. 15.

The city attorney told the council his son, attorney Dan Barber, was scheduled to appear before school board Monday night also in regard to delinquent tax collection.

An appearance by the younger Barber was included on the school agenda, but he did not appear during the meeting. After noting the absence of Barber school trustees then voted unanimously for the McCreary contract.

School officials are sorely pressed for school operating cash. They are paying off a short term loan that was negotiated during the summer, are pressed by an athletic budget that has been over-spent and also must make costly repairs on a cranky heating plant at Colorado High.

And, they had asked School Business Manager Jay Craddock to recommend a firm for the delinquent collection firm at the February meeting.

Craddock, who emphasized that he had contacted the Barbers concerning the contract and an appearance before the board, then recommended McCreary over another out-of-town firm, Floyd A. Hunter of Greenville.

The business manager reported McCreary was recognized as a tax authority throughout the state, had longer experience in the field and is recommended by numerous cities and school districts across the state.

Before the vote, board members also discussed the possibility of a conflict of interest when a local attorney may represent the school system on the tax matter but also represent the individual as an attorney. Board President Tom Rees also expressed confidence in "an attorney specializing in this field."

Group Urges Project

New Spark For Face-Lift Business

A definite coalition of business and municipal government may be shaping up to make proposed downtown face-lifting a reality.

There wasn't a sidestep by a single councilman, either, or by City Manager J. A. Sadler.

The council response was for even more action for the plan.

So, Monday night Feb. 15, council again will meet, in special session this time, to study additional data and ideas for the project.

The plan being advocated is an economical project mapped by City Manager Sadler as a self-help effort by city and business with a helping hand also from the county.

Primary target will be new uniform sidewalks and curbs with possible wider streets, beauty marks such as corner designs and planters, shopping center atmosphere with sidewalk coverings.

It can be carried out block at a time or by area, depending upon financial capabilities of the city and business interests.

"We are here to tell you what we want. . .and to show interest in the project," Billings said.

With him were Mrs. Dwain Williams of Wards, Mrs. Bill Stinson of Sears, Mrs. Bill Carter of Mode O'Day, Charles Henderson of Marshall's Downtown, Bobby Sparks of Sparks Hardware, Rick Perkin of Corner Drug and also Chamber of Commerce board of director, Rev. Weems Dykes of Operation Pride Committee.

Willie Landau of Landau's could not attend because of illness but had informed the group that he was in support of going ahead with the rennovation.

An additional meeting was decided upon to allow time for City Manager Sadler to obtain more specific cost estimates for all phases of the project, to obtain data on various types of overhead coverings for sidewalks and to allow time for a more in-depth survey of business firms and property owners.

Sadler didn't hesitate to explain that to carry out the project at minimum cost, a helping hand in equipment and workers must be obtained from the county.

The manager also emphasized that property owners or business must pay its share.

City Councilman Frank Brownfield, who leases buildings to four of the delegation, posed the problem of obtaining necessary financing shares from owners of vacant property.

He also reminded the group that improvements attached to a building will go to the building owner and that merchants probably would not want to pay for improvements.

"These are problems on which council needs to have more information," he emphasized.

"If you will bear with us until the next meeting," said Council J. C. Britton, who also has a downtown business, "then we can have the city manager's figures. . .and you can get merchants and property owners up here.

"Then we can decide what we can do.

"This is what everyone on the council has wanted--someone to show some interest."

"The next 5 weeks we will be studying a new city budget," added Mayor Burt. "We could not have included this in the last budget. But now we can get a definite idea for requirements for our new budget."

Billings asked if the city was looking toward a cost share plan of about 30 per cent business, 70 per cent city.

"I don't think the council ever figured on assuming the cost of the awning," Councilman Trevlyn Kelley responded.

"We need to know those property owners who will pay their share and those who won't."

All-Faith Event

Race Relations Service Sunday

Guest speaker for the 3 p.m. event will be Rev. F. K. Williams, pastor of Mount Rose Baptist Church in Sweetwater.

Race Relations Sunday is a nation-wide observance for the Sunday nearest Abraham Lincoln's birthday. It is sponsored and observed by many churches and organizations throughout the U.S. annually for better understanding among races and persons of various ethnic backgrounds.

Special music Sunday afternoon will be under direction of Frank Prewitt of First Baptist Church.

Refreshments will be served at a visiting and get-acquainted period in the church's Fellowship Hall following the worship service.

Rev. Williams, who has written a book and received honorary degrees and awards in recognition of his ministerial service, has been a Sweetwater minister for 30 years.

He has theology degree from Calmon College in Gibsland, La., a Bible philosophy degree from Moody Institute in Chicago, Ill, and has been awarded an honorary doctorate of divinity by Union Theological Seminary, Birmingham, Ala.

Rev. Williams, who will speak on "Love Comes In All Colors," is listed in Who's Who in Texas Today and has been named a "life partner" by Cal Farley's Boys Ranch for "Giving A Boy A Shirt Tail To Hang On To."

His book, "A Charge To Keep Fit," was published in 1968.

TCU Signs Wolves' Vest

Texas Christian's new coach Jim Pittman, aiming to lead the Frogs back to national football prominence in the Southwest Conference, was here a week earlier to make certain Vest would become a Frog.

TCU won out in Vest's final consideration over Baylor University and San Angelo State. And soon after Lassister had left town with the quarterback's signature, a coach from University of Texas, El Paso, rode into town hopeful but too late.

Vest, about 6 feet even at 175 pounds, has been a target for Pittman and his staff since the new Frog coach returned

Schools Bow To Pant Suit

School board bowed to pant suits Monday night and approved 1971-72 salary scheduled for seven administrators and three supervisors.

Upon recommendation of Supt. Lloyd McKee, the board included coordinated pant suits in the Colorado City public schools dress policy for teachers as well as girl students.

There was not a dissenting vote on pant suit policy.

Here's the full statement of policy on the matter:

"Appropriate dress for school will be dresses, skirts and blouses and pantsuits for girls. These should be neat, simple and inexpensive. The coordinated pant suits, including gaucho pants, and pants and overblouse combination should fit properly, not sloppy or not too tight. Low cut sun dresses, slacks or similiar wearing apparel are not acceptable. Shorts or similar garments are not accepted as school dress for either boys or girls."

The exception is that all elementary children may be permitted to wear knee length pants.

Contracts extended by the board for '71-72 school year are for these principals: Wally Price, high school, $13,477; Don Dulin, junior high, $13,032; Jerry Reynolds, Hutchinson and Wallace Elementary, $12,791; Eston Blackmon, Kelley Elementary, $12,791.

Also, Assistant Supt. Gary Gardner, $13,288 (moving up from 11 to 12 months work and salary); Mike Burt, assistant high school principal, $10,210; Business Manager J. S. (Jay) Craddock, $9,437 with $60 per month expense added.

2 Trustees On School Ballot

Two out of three Colorado Independent School District trustees whose terms expire in April have filed for re-election.

They signed ballot applications Monday night immediately after the school board officially set an April 3 election date.

Four city councilmen whose terms expire the same month aren't so quick on the trigger. Not a one had formally filed his candidacy Wednesday.

Dr. Dub Waldrip and Jeff Taylor are the two school board candidates who will seek re-election. O. B. Trulock Jr., who has the longest tenure of all trustees, definitely said "no" when asked Monday night if he would seek another term.

Council positions up for decision in the April 6 municipal voting are now held by Mayor Mike Burt, Mayor Pro Tem J. C. Brown, Eddie Piland, and Frank Brownfield, who was appointed when Councilman Paul B. Hunter became a county commissioner.

Election judges for the city will be Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Baker and Mrs. O. B. Trulock.

Judge for the school election will be J. W. (Bill) Randle.

Right now, only Brownfield is considered almost a certainty to be a candidate for the council. He told friends he accepted the unanimous appointment replacing Hunter with intention of being a candidate for a full term.

Guild Begins New Mission Study

Mrs. Jewell Richter was leader Monday night for a new mission study for Wesleyan Service Guild of First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Richter discussed man, media and message of gospel being spread through "the maze of modern communications, highlighting at once the complexity and simplicity of spreading the Word in 20th Century."

Radio, television, records, newspapers and magazines were mentioned by Mrs. Richter as "medias that transmit much of the culture of a society including it's religion."

Group discussion noted television as first and foremost "an education. From it we learn to apprehend our world in great gulps, so that a new word, allatonce, has entered our vocabulary."

Devotion for the study, "How The Word Gets Around," was presented by Mrs. Ethel Hardegree, Mrs. Della Fox and Mrs. Tom Glover. Prayer was spoken by Mrs. Fox.

Mrs. Mayme Dozier, Guild president, presided in a brief business session during the meeting in church Fellowship Hall.

Second study will be March 8.

CONVERSATION CORNER

WHAT a person talks about most is a fair index to the kind of person he (or she) happens to be.

A person who talks about possessions most--what he's got, used to have, or is gonna have--you can know for sure is a shade materialistic.

People who spend most of their conversation allotment talking about other people in a way that tends to downgrade, belittle, either have a big inferiority complex or a streak of jealousy.

A person who exploits his illustrious ancestry usually does not have much of what he can boast in the present tense.

Any person who talks about himself exclusively is nearly always either neurotic or a peculiar kind of egotist.

ANYBODY who begins every sentence with the pronoun "I" and ends every sentence with "me" or "mine" can also be something of a bore even to family and friends. The "I, I, I, I" guy or gal therefore, can sometimes be very lonely.

Happened to have one of those TV quiz programs turned on while doing the dusting and picked up an interested bit of information. A listener can pick up all kinds of knowledge both useful and absolutely useless, that way.

Anyhow, this particular quiz show answer revealed that of three former heads of government , Mussolini, Hitler, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, one used the pronoun "I" most often.

His name was Adolph Hitler who averaged using "I" at least once in every 50 words. Mussolini's "I" average was once in about 85 words when he spoke. FDR confined his use of "I" to once in 125 words, said the quiz show.

Now that's worth some pondering if you have time to ponder about the "I, me, my, mine, myself" type of talker.

SAFEST topic on earth is, of course , the weather. Talking about the weather may not win friends and influence people. But it doesn't lose friends and alieniate people either. Or give away that inner self's secrets.

Everybody is talking about the weather this week. That inch and one-half of wet snow all over Mitchell County Sunday and the seven degree reading of Monday morning has attracted more comment than the three astronauts.

That proves, maybe, that most of us here on this globe are earth-bound at heart-which might shock NASA but suits many of us earth-creatures just fine.

There is something peaceful about watching snow blowing across the window and covering the brittle grass.

WEST TEXAS weather has got to be feminine gender. There is nothing masculine or "unisex" about West Texas weather.

Like a woman it can be warm and tender. . .cold and distant as a smoke-blue hill. . .strong and strange on occasion. . .angry but never too long. . .and always, always changeable.

Like a woman, too, West Texas weather can create talk in town and country when she really goes on a tear.

Rain is like a woman crying, sometimes a tear drop or two and sometimes all over the place for days. Snow is a woman fluffing up downy pillows and blankets. When the wind blows. . .well, come to think of it, all that blowing is not too much like a little woman.

Even if the thought does away with the whole theory of weather is a woman, am inclined to admit right here that men are more "windy" than women. So maybe when the wind blows it is a woman making war for equal rights.

SEEN LATELYS are fewer than usual. People watching has been changed since Sunday to weather watching.

RED THE ROSE— BLUE THE VIOLET

"Roses are red; violets are blue . . ." These words from one of the oldest and most cherished rhymes of our time have probably been spoken more often by more people, than any other.

Red roses are still popular with most everyone, but in recent years other colors of roses have been coming to the top of the wanted lists. White roses. Dellcate pink. The combination of white, red and yellow to bring forth the "circus" or whatever name you may have for it, has become a popular rose with fanciers.

Whatever rose color you prefer . . . we usually have it. A lovely bouquet of roses can be prepared for you in minutes at our shop. Just call (728-5254) for the loveliest, freshest flowers in town.

IN HERRINGTON HOME

Self Culture Club Hears County Judge Bill Carter

County Judge Bill Carter last Friday was guest speaker for Self Culture Club hosted in home of Mrs. A. A. Herrington.

"It takes a many-sided attack to lick the problem," he explained, "and most of us will have to get into the act, no matter what our profession.'

"The important thing is to have a variety of work and training opportunities which will keep kids off the street and busy at something that they like and believe has a future."

Judge Carter said that illiteracy and delinquency are tied together.

"Many of our delinquents are recruited from non-learners or the bored," Self Culture members heard.

Three areas of traditional family life in which there has been little erosion, according to Carter, are reproduction, child care and affection.

"If you want to turn a society around, its around children that you have the hope of doing it," the county judge advised.

In closing remarks, Carter told of a father, wishing to test his son's knowledge in geography tore a map into several pieces and told his son to put it together.

"In a few seconds the son had the map together," the speaker related. "The father asked how he could do it so fast and was told, 'Well, Dad, there was a picture of a boy on the back side of the map. I knew that if I put the boy together alright, the world would be alright'."

Following the program refreshments were served to 15 club members, Judge Carter and Mrs. Tom Rees.

Crop Data Available

Report At County Agent's Office

A report of results of field demonstrations and research on cotton, grain, sorghum and soybeans on the South Plains is now available to area producers.

Titled "Field Crop Demonstration and Research Summary", the report contains information on demonstration and research results conducted during the last three to four years, according to Bobby Lemons, Mitchell County Extension Agent.

The data was compiled from crop demonstrations conducted by the 20 county agricultural agents in Extension District 2 as well as from research conducted by personnel at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock.

The performance of 22 cotton varieties is summarized in the report, points out Metzer. Data on each variety include yield, staple length, fiber strength and micronaire. The comparative performance of these old and new varieties should serve as a guideline in variety selection, adds the agronomist.

With regard to fertilizer response on irrigated cotton, 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre produced a two-bale yield on both sandy and clay loam soils where phosphorus and potassium were adequately supplied. Eighty pounds of phosphate per acre gave excellent response where soil tests indicated a low level of phosphorus. No real response was observed from phosphorus where soil tests showed a medium or above level of the nutrient.

The need for sulfur was also studied over a four-year period. Cotton on Amarillo loam soil in Lubbock County showed no yield response nor was significant soil pH change evident.

Dryland cotton also gave excellent response to both nitrogen and phosphorus where the two nutrients were at a low level. A yield average of 492 pounds of lint per acre was obtained with 40-40-0. Metzer points out that soil moisture is a limiting factor in obtaining yield response from fertilizer. In years of above average rainfall, slightly higher rates of nitrogen may be profitable.

Turning to grain sorghum, the agronomist explains that under favorable conditions of moisture and high fertility, later maturity hybrids normally produced the highest yields. Under limited irrigation or dryland production, medium or medium late maturing hybrids often produce higher yields since they require less water.

Twenty-seven grain sorghum hybrids were evaluated in demonstrations throught the South Plains. In addition to yield, the number of days required by each hybrid to reach 50 percent bloom was also recorded.

Regarding fertilizer response on irrigated grain sorghum on clay loam soil, phosphorus gave significant yield increases with higher nitrogen rates. However, at lower nitrogen rates, phosphorus deficiency did not appear to limit yields.

In fine sandy loam soils, a different response was obtained, adds Metzer. Phosphorus gave a significant yield increase at all nitrogen rates, but again the greatest response occurred at the higher nitrogen rates. In fact, yields were increased 50 percent with the addition of phosphorus over higher rates of nitrogen used alone. Potassium did not increase yields on either soil type or at any treatment rate.

On clay loam, 160-80-0 produced 7,400 pounds of grain per acre while on fine sandy loam, the same treatment produced 5,216 pounds, the top yield.

In dryland tests, 20-20-0 produced the top yield of 2,117 pounds of grain per acre. According to Metzer, fertilizer is likely to be profitable only in the sandy soils where plant nutrients are low. He recommends applying all the nitrogen and phosphorus preplant for a normal dryland yield. If additional moisture becomes available, extra nitrogen can be sidedressed.

In a three-year summary of soybean variety demonstrations in Hale, Floyd and Swisher counties, 10 varieties were evaluated. Maximum yields depend on the proper planting time and available moisture during critical stages of growth. Yield is reduced one-half bushel per acre for each day of delay in planting after May 20.

No soybean yield increases were observed from any of the various fertilizer rates, points out the agronomist. However, the highest yields have been produced on soils known to be highly fertile. Since the crop is a legume, it has the ability to assimilate nitrogen from the atmosphere. Its extensive root system is also capable of efficient phosphorus absorption.

Metzer adds that the demonstration and research data in this report is in support of "3,76 in '76", the state wide Extension program designed to increase the total agricultural income in Texas by $1 billion by 1976. The South Plains area is expected to contribute an increase of $146,463,000 toward this goal.

Copies of the report are available at Mitchell County Extension office or from the A&M Center at Lubbock.

MORE FROM C-CITY

Another major contribution by a Colorado City citizen.

This time it is by Lee Jones Jr., the authority on oil and gas law, who now has returned to his hometown after a distinguished law career in San Antonio.

He may be easing up from his legal practice, but not in work and contribution to his state.

His friends have known for a long time of his reputation in writing and his dedication to preserving the history of Permian Basin oil development. Now, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame in Midland informs us his collection of writings on oil and gas law have been published and will be preserved as a feature of the museum.

That's quite an accomplishment for our heritage. . .a lasting, valuable contribution to generations yet to come.

Rites For Miss Lee Wednesday

Funeral for Miss Mable Lee was conducted Wednesday afternoon in Kiker and Son Chapel.

Miss Lee, who lived at 831 Chestnut Street, died Tuesday morning in local hospital after a brief illness.

Rev. Don Timberlake, pastor of Oak Street Baptist Church, officiated in final rites. He was assisted by Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt, minister of First Baptist Church.

Burial was in Colorado City Cemetery under direction of Kiker and Son.

Miss Lee was born May 30, 1898, in Rising Star. She came to Mitchell County with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lee, in 1913. They moved into Colorado City in 1938. She was a member of Oak Street Baptist Church.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Frank Dearen, of 213 East 13th Street, several nieces and nephews.

VEST

He is one of the truly multi-talented quarterbacks on the Texas schoolboy scene with a powerful arm for passing, a good kicking record, an ability to run plus defensive know-how.

He was named all-district for 3-AAA both his junior and senior years. The honor came his last season despite a drouth year for his Wolf team with only 2 wins.

Vest was hampered by a bad ankle for a major part of the season and absorbed heavy punishment at times from opponents' pass rush. But his rugged resistance became another attribute in his athletic ability.

He made an impressive splash on the schoolboy football scene as a junior when he passed for more than 1,700 yards with 49 per cent completions. That brought him all-area recognition, too.

"I looked seriously at Baylor and Angelo State," Vest said after signing with TCU, "and I probably would have signed with one of them if TCU had been out of the picture.

"But I liked TCU the first day I went there. I knew I liked the head coach (Pittman) . . .that I liked the attitude of all of 'em there."

Vest journeyed into Fort Worth twice to visit the Frog campus. Pittman and Lassiter flew to Colorado City once before Tuesday's opening sign-up day.

"He told me to throw, throw, throw and throw," the youth said. "That's what I'm doing now. . .and weight lifting."

Pittman uses a variety of offenses - including the I, power and pro set, a moving pocket.

"His teams also use the option and none of those will be really new to me," Vest added.

When he goes to Frogland next fall, Vest expects to have his weight up to 180 or 185 pounds.

"I can carry it," he assured.

Four other backfield standouts were signed by TCU opening day with Vest--All-State Mike Luttrell, Fort Worth Western Hill's 6-2, 205-pound running back; Quarterback Terry Drennan, 5-11, 175, a teammate of Luttrell at Western Hills; Bob Farris, North Dallas, and Danny Scott, Richardson.

Graham Funeral In Loraine

Mrs. Della Graham of Loraine died shortly after noon Tuesday in local hospital following a brief illness.

Final rites will be conducted Thursday, 2 p.m., in Loraine's First Baptist Church.

Rev. Clarence Minton, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Loraine Cemetery under direction of Kiker and Son.

Grandsons will be pallbearers.

Born Nov. 2, 1886, in Comanche County Mrs. Graham lived in Mitchell County for the past 41 years. She was a member of First Baptist Church in Loraine.

She was married to J. F. Graham in Eastland Jan. 29, 1908. He died in September, 1946. A son, Stanley Graham, also preceeded her in death.

Surviving Mrs. Graham are seven sons - Tom Graham, Joe Graham, Ellwood Graham, Lawrence Graham, Clay Graham, and Donald Graham, all of Loraine; Bob Graham of Colorado City; two daughters-Mrs. Earl Browning and Mrs. Leroy Lucas of Loraine.

Twenty-nine grandchildren and eight great-grand-children also survive.
