Interest rate reduction fuels money markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks added to record highs this morning after a government report of healthy job gains, combined with the Fed's move to cut interest rates, supported hopes that the economy can avoid a recession.

By late morning on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was 26.97 points higher at 4,690.97. The climb came after a 48-point increase Thursday that was inspired by the Federal Reserve's quarter-point cut in its target for a key short-term lending rate.

Stocks roared forward to record peaks Thursday as Wall Street gave a bullish reception to the Federal Reserve's interest rate reduction.

The Dow Jones industrial average easily notched another new high by rising 48.77 points past the prior session's record to 4,664.00.

Other popular market barometers joined the Dow in closing at unprecedented levels.

Gainers outdistanced losers by a large margin and a late New York Stock Exchange tally showed 1,686 issues up, 676 down and 650 unchanged.

Volume swelled as investors flocked to equities after the Federal Reserve disclosed that its policy panel decided to trim the federal funds rate by one-quarter of a percentage point. Thursday afternoon, 420.48 million shares had changed hands on the Big Board's floor compared to 357.82 million Wednesday.

Advancing issues bested decliners on the New York Stock Exchange this morning by nearly 5 to 3 with 1,228 issues up, 740 down and 839 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 151.09 million shares by 11 a.m.

This morning's unemployment numbers could have been seen as bearish for the market because the strong job growth might lessen the likelihood of another Fed rate cut soon. But the market instead chose to see the numbers as a sign that recession is less likely.

"Everybody's so bullish and desperate to perform, they just keep piling into the market," said Michael Metz, vice president at Oppenheimer & Co.

The Labor Department said this morning that the June unemployment rate fell to 5.6 percent when many economists were expecting a rise. Payroll employment rose by 215,000 last month, far outstripping predictions of a 125,000 increase.

The reduction in the fed funds rate, which is the interest charged on loans banks make to one another to meet reserve requirements, was to 5.75 percent from 6 percent.

Optimists suggested that the Fed might follow Thursday's limited cut with a gradual easing in credit conditions, to spur spending. Hopes for lower rates have been one of the main fuels behind the stock market's advance this year.

Kmart auction planned for vacant stores

Despite rumors that Kmart may reconsider and reopen some of its closed stores, the giant retailer is moving ahead with plans to liquidate leasehold interests in some 205 closed stores.

Kmart Corporation has engaged LaSalle Partners of Chicago to conduct a mass-marketed sealed bid auction of Kmart store leases in conjunction with National Real Estate Clearinghouse, a firm specializing in the accelerated sale of real estate.

LaSalle confirmed today that Snyder's 40,000-square foot store is among those which Kmart hopes to liquidate. The store, which closed March 13, is owned by the Ohio State Teachers Retirement System.

The store operated in Snyder for some 14 years, and Kmart reportedly has some 11 years remaining on the lease with the teachers retirement group.

Maria Seyrig, a corporate affairs staffer in Kmart's corporate headquarters in Troy, Mich., said there are no plans to reopen any of the closed stores. "We wouldn't do that," she said.

A spokesman with LaSalle said he did not know what would happen to locations should a bid not be made or accepted on a particular location.

The closed facilities are located throughout the United States with 49 in the southwest, 73 in the midwest, 47 in the southeast and nine in the northeast.

The auction of leaseholds will be preceded by bid seminars to be conducted in Dallas, Orlando, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Colin Murphy, senior vice president of LaSalle, said specific lease information will be announced later. A catalog, including information of each of the stores, is expected to be available later this month. The bid deadline is Oct. 18.

Sales information, including a complete list of stores, can be obtained by calling the NRC sales center at 1-800-474-3342, ext. 562, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., weekdays.

Two Snyder churches to buy buildings

Two vacant structures in downtown Snyder will have new purposes after sales are finalized to two separate church congregations.

The former Ben Wilson Supply building, which is located just off the square south of Thompson's Shoes, is being purchased by the First Baptist Church.

The structure is adjacent to other church-owned property in that block and has been utilized by various retail establishments over the years.

The structure is expected to be razed and the area to be used to expand the parking lot of the church.

The First Baptist Church had previously purchased the former Furr's Food Store building in the 1600 block of 26th Street and converted it into an activities building.

The First United Methodist Church has signed a contract to purchase the former Lone Star Gas building located at the corner of 27th Street and Avenue R.

Present plans call for using the building for the church-sponsored Boy Scout Troop and for parking and storage for the church.

Astronaut returns to planet earth

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After nearly four months in orbit, American astronaut Norman Thagard joyfully returned to Earth today with seven others who took part in the first U.S.-Russian space linkup in 20 years.

It was the end of a long, tiring journey for Thagard, who rocketed away from central Asia last March.

His new spaceship, NASA's shuttle Atlantis, landed at Kennedy Space Center at 10:54 a.m.

President Clinton called the astronauts and cosmonauts before they left Atlantis to congratulate them on their docking mission with Russia's space station. He offered special praise for Thagard, saying "we're all very proud."

"The Russians took good care of me," Thagard told the president. "We're great friends so I think if what we did on a personal level is any indication, there won't be any problem with this on an inter-governmental level as well."

Replied Clinton: "The next time we have any problem between American and Russian officials I'm going to send them into space. I think I now know how to solve all international

Through county library...

Internet is coming

If things go as planned, Scurry County Library will be on the "Superhighway of Information" by this time next year, said Scurry County Library Director, Noreen Taylor.

The local library is one of 33 libraries in a wide area that is planning to participate in the Big Country Library System's Dedicated Internet Access Program.

"This would give the users of the Scurry County Library almost unlimited access to any subject that they may want to inquire about," said Taylor.

Taylor said the program would involve the installation of two personal computers at the library that would be available to anyone who had a library card and there would be no cost to the user unless they wanted to access some expanded services on the Internet.

"And it won't cost local taxpayers anything," said Mrs. Taylor.

Funding is to be provided through state, public and private grants and a one-time fund-raising project conducted by the library.

Public meetings in the communities whose libraries wish to participate in the program are scheduled throughout July with the meeting in Snyder scheduled for July 13 in the county court room.

Other meetings scheduled are in San Angelo, Stamford, Sonora, Brownwood and Abilene.

Taylor said the Internet would be available during regular library hours and probably in 30-minute time slots.

"A person would call the library and reserve a time and it would be available when he or she got here," said the librarian.

She added that the Internet would probably become one of the most highly used features of the library.

"From the youngsters in the lower grades doing their homework to WTC students - this would be a great source of information for their projects and research papers," said Taylor.

Citizens could use the Internet in a number of ways including making interlibrary loans with any other library on-line or to check on weather advisories, make travel plans, study genealogy, check the stock market and read out-of-town newspapers.

State limits seniors' free park access

DALLAS (AP) — State park visitors who turn 65 before Sept. 1 will continue to get free admission. Everyone else better be ready to start paying at least part of the access fee.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission voted Thursday to begin charging a small state park access fee for other seniors who hit that milestone birthday after Sept. 1.

A "grandfather" clause spares other senior citizens from the fee.

TP&W executive director Andy Sansom cited growing numbers of active senior citizens as the catalyst for the discounted fees.

Although state park entry fee ranges from $2 to $6, the agency is working toward raising most of its park and license fees. New proposed fees are expected to be announced in August.

Indecency ruling aids FCC regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent court decision buttresses government efforts to impose a wide range of new requirements on TV broadcasters, including rules designed to benefit children, the nation's top communications regulator says.

The landmark federal appeals court decision, which restricted adult-oriented programming on television and radio, should make it easier to toughen broadcasting regulations to protect children in other ways, Federal Communications Commission Chairman Reed Hundt said Thursday.

Among new rules Hundt would like to see established are those requiring TV broadcasters to:

—Air a minimal amount of educational shows for children per week.

—Channel violent TV shows to times when children are unlikely to make up the bulk of the audience.

—Extend the period when TV and radio broadcasters are not permitted to air sexually explicit and other "indecent" shows to 18 hours a day — from 6 a.m. to midnight.

The court's June 30 decision clearly makes these proposals "constitutionally permissible" Hundt told reporters.

Broadcast attorneys and free-speech advocates disagreed.

"We think he is wrong," said Steve Bookshester, associate general counsel of the National Association of Broadcasters. "Just because the court said a certain kind of regulation is permissible for restricting indecency doesn't mean it would stand in the same place for violence or for mandating children's programs."

"Reed Hundt already has all the ammunition he needs to increase educational shows available to kids — the 1934 Communications Act," said children's television advocate Peggy Charren. "It requires broadcasters to serve the public interest."

Charren wants the FCC to adopt program quotas for children. Her group, Action for Children's Television, led the court fight against the FCC's indecency regulations.

Hundt contended that the court's decision gives the government broader powers to protect children as long as it makes a compelling case. "I can make a stronger case" for requiring broadcasters to air a minimal amount of educational programs for children than the government made for restricting children's access to indecent programs, he said.

The decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the government's right to require broadcasters to air potentially indecent programs during certain hours. It does not apply to cable.

Specifically, the court told the FCC to revise existing regulations to permit broadcasters to air potentially indecent programs only between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

However, the court said a broad ban on indecent broadcasts — from 6 a.m. to midnight — would be constitutional. The ban, written by Congress, was stayed and never took effect.

The FCC's current policy permits broadcasters to air potentially indecent shows between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The court decision also means the FCC will be able to move forward on resolving 84 pending cases involving allegedly indecent broadcasts. Fifty-two of them involve radio and 32 involve television.

No shows currently on television have been deemed indecent by the FCC. The FCC has ruled some radio shows indecent and some broadcasts by radio personality Howard Stern — as potentially indecent.

The legal definition of indecency was not changed by the court's ruling. It says indecent material describes in terms patently offensive, as measured by contemporary community standards, sexual or excretory activities or organs.

Decades of testing show boys dominate top, bottom of scale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boys dominate both the best and the worst scores in academic testing, while girls tend to score in the middle, according to an analysis of 30 years of testing published today.

A study in the journal Science says that boys dominate girls by a 7-1 ratio at the highest levels of math and science testing but are a 2-1 majority in the bottom ranks in reading and writing.

Larry Hedges, a professor of education at the University of Chicago and a co-author of the study, said the research combined results of six national studies of education performance among American school children dating back to the 1960s.

Hedges said that although boys tended to crowd the ends of the scale, the average scores for the genders were about the same. He said the findings suggest that little progress has been made to equalize the educational achievements of boys and girls.

"We haven't seen the gender differences going away," he said.

Hedges said that by combining results of the six major studies — involving thousands of children — the researcher can draw statistically powerful conclusions about gender differences in mental test scores.

Among the results:

—For reading comprehension, perceptual speed and word association memory, boys outnumbered girls at the bottom of the scale by a 2-1 ratio, and fewer boys than girls scored in the top 5 percent to 10 percent.

—In math and science, boys outnumbered girls by about 3-to-1 in the top 10 percent and by 7-to-1 in the top 1 percent.

—In some science and vocational aptitude tests, no girls scored in the top 1 percent to 3 percent.

—Large differences between the sexes, favoring girls, were found for writing. "The data imply that males are, on average, at a rather profound disadvantage in the performance of this basic skill," the study found.

Michael Timpane, vice president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching at Princeton University, said the study was "a powerful analysis," but the results "are not totally different from earlier findings of lesser studies."

However, Timpane said he believes it is too early to draw any conclusions about the effects of efforts to close the gender gap in education.

"It doesn't surprise me that we haven't made more progress because until recent years we really haven't tried very hard," he said.

Timpane and Hedges agreed there is no credible evidence suggesting a basic, organic intellectual difference between the sexes that would explain the gender distribution of the test scores.

"If differences like this turn up, you have to suppose that culture has something to do with it," said Timpane.

Though his study did not specifically address race, Hedges said the data did show that the differences in scores among blacks, Hispanics and whites have "improved very dramatically over the last 20 years. That's something we can be proud of."

Kasparov will defend his title

LONDON (AP) — World chess champion Garry Kasparov will defend his title from the top of the World Trade Center in New York instead of in Cologne, Germany, because of the stunning views, officials said today.

Kasparov will take on Indian challenger Vishy Anand for the title and a $1.5 million prize on the observation deck of the center beginning Sept. 10.

The Professional Chess Association said New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani unexpectedly offered the World Trade Center last month.

"The views over Manhattan are stunning," chess association Chairman Bob Rice said in a statement released in London.

Sons' Shaved Heads Could Bring Unforeseen Close Calls

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We have two sons. One is 14, and the other is 11. They recently asked us if they could get their heads shaved. They tell us that all their friends are doing it, and it is the "in" thing right now.

Both sets of grandparents say this is part of growing up. When we were their age, fellows wore their hair down to their shoulders.

Should we allow our sons to shave their heads?

CONCERNED PARENTS

DEAR CONCERNED: Shaving the head may be the "in" thing, but in some areas, it is also the "gang" thing.

If children adopt gang styles, even if they are not involved in gang activities, they can put themselves at risk. Gangs don't take kindly to non-members who "copy" them, and rival gangs attack members of other gangs.

The principal of your children's school, or your local police department, can tell you if shaved heads are dangerous in your community.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I came home to find that my uncle had hanged himself in my garage following a long period of depression. He left no note, no apologies or explanations — only hundreds of unanswered questions.

This selfish act has affected our family so deeply, I cannot describe the pain we are enduring.

Of course, the news of his death was in the local newspapers, but most people have been reluctant to offer words of sympathy because they don't know what to say — or even if they should mention it. Suicide is such an unsympathetic death, the family is left to grieve alone.

Perhaps if you print this, people will think before they take their own lives. To those who consider suicide, I say, "Please seek help before you do something that will affect the lives of those around you."

You may sign this with my real name.

TRACY DAVIS,
DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

DEAR TRACY: Please accept my sympathy for your recent tragedy. People who take their own lives are often deeply depressed and unable to think clearly. They are so focused on their own pain, they don't realize the effect the suicide will have on others. Fortunately, these periods of deep depression are usually only temporary. I urge people who have frequent thoughts about suicide to consult their physician — depression can be successfully treated.

DEAR ABBY: Our son was all set to get married in August of 1994, but two weeks before the wedding, he and his fiancee agreed to call the wedding off.

A month before their wedding date, the parents of the bride had a bridal shower for their daughter, which my wife and I attended. We presented the bride with a check for $500.

When the wedding was canceled, all communication between the bride's family and us stopped. Since then, the bride has made no effort to return the $500 check we gave her. (It was never cashed.)

We did not think it proper to put a "stop payment" on it — so we just let it go. So far, the check remains uncashed.

Is it proper etiquette for her to keep the check inasmuch as the marriage never materialized?

PARENTS OF THE GROOM

DEAR PARENTS: No, the bride should have returned all gifts — including your $500 check. I doubt that she'll ever cash it, but on the outside chance that she may, call your bank and instruct it to stop payment on that check.

Incidentally, the bride's parents committed a faux pas — parents and close relatives, according to etiquette, should not host showers. Friends should.

Selena can't be considered for star for at least 5 years

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Tejano music star Selena may not be honored with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame for several years despite efforts by a Corpus Christi native who works in Los Angeles.

Robert Alaniz, vice president of the public relations firm Hill and Knowlton, Inc. says he's been told by Walk of Fame officials that they will not bend the 5-year waiting period for Selena.

But Alaniz, who was born and raised in Corpus Christi, isn't giving up. He said Thursday he is conducting a letter writing campaign to urge officials to bypass or change the rule.

"I don't know if we want to wait five years," Alaniz said. "I don't want to start a campaign five years from now. I think now is the time to start it."

Alaniz says he felt compelled to see that Selena Quintanilla-Perez receive recognition for her accomplishments.

"I just saw it fitting to nominate Selena for a star in the Hollywood Walk of Fame," Alaniz said.

Selena was shot to death March 31 at a motel in Corpus Christi. Yolanda Saldivar, founder of the 23-year-old singer's fan club, has been charged with murder in connection with the shooting.

Johnny Grant, chairman of the Hollywood Walk of Fame committee, selects celebrities for the famous sidewalk, said the waiting period helps the committee assess the deceased star's qualifications.

"People get very emotional immediately following the loss of a favorite person," Grant said. "It's something all walks or halls of fame go by."

Grant said that in considering prospective inductees, the committee looks at professional achievement, longevity of five years in the star's respective profession and contributions back to the community.

Grant said the letter-writing campaign would be a waste of time.

"It will not change a thing," Grant said. "It's just too bad because people waste time and postage.

Do not walk on the trumps

By Phillip Alder

Whenever you are playing in a trump contract, usually your top priority is that the opponents do not score more trump tricks than is absolutely necessary. This, of course, normally means drawing their trumps fast or faster or fastest. Yet there are deals in which it is wrong to pull trumps. The obvious examples are when you are planning either to crossruff or to ruff losers. Today's deal looks like a struggle for South to retain trump control, but it isn't at all. It is a matter of raking in tricks with losing trumps.

West's opening bid was a weak no-trump, showing 12-14 points. North's two clubs was Landy, promising a major two-suiter. North's spade raise was aggressive, but it pays to bid thin games, especially when vulnerable. And East's silence suggested that South had some values.

West found the unfortunate lead of the club ace. (The diamond king would work much better, but who would select that?) At trick two, West switched to a low heart.

After winning with dummy's heart queen, the declarer, Walid El-Ahmady from Egypt, cashed dummy's diamond ace, played a club to his king and cashed the club queen, discarding dummy's remaining diamond. Now came a diamond ruff, the heart ace, the heart seven ruffed in hand, a diamond ruff in the dummy and the heart king ruffed by the spade king.

The defenders were welcome to a pair of spade tricks to go with the club ace scored at trick one, but that was all.

U.S. said willing to give up some privacy

By LAURIE ASSEO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Metal detectors in public buildings and mandatory drug tests reflect life in the 1990s. But if stringent measures to fight crime and drugs threaten privacy, many Americans are not taking it personally.

"A frightened people — and we are a frightened people — that feels out of control will pay very little attention to privacy," says American University law professor Herman Schwartz.

Michigan Law School professor Yale Kamisar adds, "The more we invade people's privacy the more they get ready for the next step."

The latest step came last week when the Supreme Court ruled that public schools can require athletes to undergo drug tests even if they are not individually suspected of using drugs.

High school athletes' privacy sometimes must yield to the war on drugs, the court said.

The generally positive reaction to the decision shows once again that Americans are willing to give up at least some privacy rights when they think their safety is at risk.

People got used to going through metal detectors at airports two decades ago following a rash of airliner hijackings. Now there are metal detectors in government buildings and even in some big-city schools.

Drug testing has become commonplace among private employers, where constitutional protections against unreasonable searches do not apply.

And spurred by the World Trade Center and Oklahoma City bombings, Congress is considering anti-terrorism legislation that would give the government more authority to conduct wiretaps, check credit cards and otherwise monitor suspected terrorists.

Civil libertarians say an anti-terrorism bill in Congress would threaten privacy rights. But an Associated Press poll this spring found that 54 percent of those surveyed would put public security ahead of people's civil rights.

Mark A. de Bernardo of the Institute for a Drug-Free Workplace, a nonprofit business coalition, said most Americans also see a "greater good" in combating drug use through testing.

"Is it intrusive? Yes," de Bernardo said. "But we have an enormous drug problem in the United States."

Among public employees, drug testing has been confined to those with safety- or security-sensitive jobs. In 1989, the Supreme Court upheld drug testing of railroad workers involved in train accidents and federal customs officers who carry arms or are involved in drug enforcement.

Elaine Kaplan, an attorney for the National Treasury Employees' Union, which unsuccessfully challenged drug tests for customs agents, said intrusions on privacy are "a trend that's been going on for a number of years."

But, she said, "It's a big jump from armed customs agents to seventh-graders on the swim team."

The American Civil Liberties Union criticized the ruling on student drug testing as an attack on personal privacy. In the case, it represented an Oregon youth who was barred from his school football team for refusing to take a drug test.

But President Clinton hailed the decision as sending "exactly the right message" that drug use will not be tolerated at school.

And although some students expressed concerns about privacy in interviews, many said they were willing to go along with drug testing.

The Supreme Court based its decision on several factors: public schools' role as custodians of children; the lack of privacy in school locker rooms; the risk of injury to athletes on drugs and the fact that athletes often are role models to other students.

Even Schwartz of American University, generally a liberal, said he was not troubled by the ruling.

"To me it was an issue of safety" among student athletes, he said. But he said he would be shocked if the court later decided drug tests could be required for students in other activities — say, the band or chess club.

De Bernardo of the anti-drug coalition termed the decision a "significant legal endorsement of random drug testing" that will help employers defend their own programs. Most private employers' drug-testing programs include more security safeguards than did the Oregon school plan upheld by the court, he said.

But drug testing of student athletes is one more intrusion on Americans' privacy, even if many think it's one worth bearing.

"We're going to wind up with TV surveillance in every shopping mall," Michigan's Kamisar said. "Thirty or 40 years ago if you did it in one fell swoop people would protest, but it just happens gradually."

Costly meals do not indicate Clinton is for sale, aides say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says it's OK to solicit up to $100,000 from wealthy Democrats to dine with President Clinton or socialize with his wife or Vice President Al Gore, suggesting it's a time-honored fund-raising tool.

No matter that Clinton criticized "cliques of $100,000 donors" in his 1992 campaign and shook hands with House Speaker Newt Gingrich just last month on forming a commission on lobbying and campaign-finance reform.

"We're not going to disarm ourselves unilaterally," White House spokeswoman Mary Ellen Glynn said Thursday.

But public-interest groups cried foul, suggesting Democrats have put White House access on the auction block.

"There is no defense for this," Common Cause President Ann McBride said of the Democratic National Committee's latest fund-raising effort. "It is not enough to say that past administrations have engaged in similar sales of access to the presidency."

Some examples from the DNC catalogue:

—An annual $100,000 contribution brings two meals with President Clinton, two with Gore, a spot on a foreign trade mission with DNC and business leaders, "impromptu meetings" with administration officials and a daily fax "briefing" report.

—A $100,000 gift also gives donors the designation of "managing trustee," entitled to preferential treatment at the 1996 Democratic convention and a DNC staff member "specifically assigned ... to assist them in their personal requests."

—A $50,000 donor gets a presidential reception, a dinner with Gore and special policy briefings, plus other privileges.

—A $10,000 contributor gets a presidential reception and a dinner with Gore and "preferred" status at the convention.

—A $1,000 donor can get invited to events featuring first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and Gore's wife, Tipper. A special package designed for women contributors also includes social events with female political appointees.

The various categories were first detailed by the Chicago Sun-Times. The DNC released some of the material itself on Thursday. Party chairman Donald Fowler defended the practice as corresponding "in significant detail to every donor program used by both political parties since Dwight Eisenhower was president."

Marlin Fitzwater, who was press secretary to Presidents Reagan and Bush, said the DNC effort "sounds like the same general approach, maybe a little crasser type of promotion" as used then by the Republican National Committee.

Safety seats available through joint efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delighted to announce that 200,000 child safety seats will be made available to needy parents across the country, the government called on a giant Dr. Bear, a diminutive child actor and a police helicopter to join in the event.

Transportation Secretary Federico Pena and a cast of dozens assembled at the 11th floor helipad of Children's Hospital National Medical Center on Thursday for the event. First, the facts.

Who: The Transportation Department and a coalition of consumer and safety organizations.

What: Distribution of 200,000 child safety seats to needy parents.

When: All to be handed out over four years, 40,000 over the next few weeks.

Where: All 50 states and the District of Columbia.

How: Using $8 million from the $51 million being paid by General Motors Corp. to settle complaints over the safety of its pickup trucks with side-saddle fuel tanks.

Dr. Ricardo Martinez, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, opened the briefing extolling the value of safety seats in saving lives and preventing injuries.

Then Transportation Secretary Pena and his wife, Ellen, told of leaving a Denver hospital after the birth of their first daughter, only to discover their safety seat was installed wrong. They corrected it in the glare of television cameras. He was Denver's mayor at the time.

"We're going to save lives today," Pena said of the safety-seat distribution.

The symbolic first seat arrived via a Maryland State Police helicopter. Dr. Martin Eichelberger said he was delighted to see a helicopter arrive for once without an injured or sick child.

Also aboard was Chris Castile, young star of the ABC television show "Step by Step." He and Dr. Bear, the hospital's giant furry mascot (really a human in a bear suit), joined in the presentation of safety seats to a half-dozen parents and youngsters.

Distribution of the seats will be handled by the National Safe Kids Campaign, National Safety Council, International Association of Chiefs of Police, State and Territorial Injury Prevention Directors Association, National Easter Seal Society and Safe America Foundation-Operation Baby Buckle.

Pena said studies show that 95 percent of parents who have safety seats use them for their children and he estimated that the program will save 50 lives and prevent 6,000 injuries.

The Center for Auto Safety, a consumer group that has been sharply critical of the settlement with GM, challenged that estimate. It said it had obtained internal Transportation Department documents estimating the program would save just three lives and prevent 315 injuries of children.

Local athletes slated to compete in 6-man all-star competitions

Bobbie Armstrong and Kurt Hess of Borden County, Chris Roemisch of Hermleigh and Michael Moore of Loraine will be competing in the Six-Man All-Star games in Wichita Falls July 10-16.

The Wichita Falls Convention and Visitors Bureau and Midwestern State University will host the Texas Six-Man Coaches Clinic and All-Star Games for the fourth consecutive year in Wichita Falls.

Armstrong will be competing on the West team of the girls' basketball game. Hess and Roemisch will compete on the West team of the 6-man football game. Moore will be on the West team for boys' basketball.

Trey Richey and Bobby Avery of Borden County will coach the West boys basketball team.

The Texas Six-Man Coaches Association has been in existence since 1976 and has a membership of over 200 coaches from more than 100 member schools.

This week-long sporting event begins with 96 all-stars, plus the all-star coaches and trainers, arriving at Midwestern State University from all over the state of Texas on Monday. A special Media and All-Star Mixer will take place on Monday evening at MSU's Clark Student Center Ballroom.

These all-stars will train during the day and attend a planned function each evening which will include an evening at Sikes Senter Mall and bowling at Falls Bowl, Sponsor Recognition Dinner and Western Night and an evening at the Flex Family Entertainment Center.

The Texas Six-Man Coaches Clinic kicks into high gear on Tuesday at the Sheraton Hotel. The executive board of the Texas Six-Man Coaches Association meets on Tuesday morning and Six-Man Coaches Association members and their families continue to arrive and register throughout the day.

Wednesday morning begins with the first general session where Mayor Michael Lam will give the official welcome. Special activities are planned each day for the coaches, spouses and children.

Boys basketball game time is July 14 at 8 p.m. at D.L. Ligon Coliseum. Girls basketball will compete July 15 at 3 p.m. at the coliseum also. Six-Man football will be held July 15 at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium. Ticket prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students and military. Children under six get in free.

Rangers have 5-2 win over Yankees

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers may have been tired after finishing a road trip with a rain-delayed game that lasted more than 5 hours, but they didn't play like a tired team.

The Rangers didn't get home until about 5 a.m. Thursday after the rain-delayed 2-0 loss to the Cleveland Indians at the end of a weeklong road trip. The New York Yankees had been resting in Texas.

But the Rangers weren't dragging in the first inning Thursday night, getting back-to-back homers from Juan Gonzalez and Mickey Tettleton on the way to a 5-2 decision over the Yankees.

"Everybody's bodies were tired but everybody's minds were ready," Gonzalez said. "Everybody on the team is working hard inside the lines."

The Rangers continue to excel at The Ballpark in Arlington. Their 22 home victories are second in the majors to the Cleveland Indians' 24. Since a 2-6 start, the Rangers are 20-7 at home.

"We always feel much more comfortable at home," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said. "But I don't think teams are more intimidated coming into here as teams are going into Cleveland."

The recipient of the early support was Rangers starter Roger Pavlik. Pavlik retired the side in order in the first inning for only the fifth time in 15 starts this season, then his teammates rewarded him with the three-run bottom of the first.

Yankees starter Sterling Hitchcock (3-5) had gone 1-0 with a 3.15 ERA in his previous five starts, but Hitchcock gave up all three Ranger homers. Hitchcock allowed seven hits, struck out four and walked five over 5 1-3 innings.

66th All-Star game Tuesday

ARLINGTON (AP) — Although major league baseball is often criticized for poorly marketing itself and distancing the game from its fans, it sure knows how to put on an All-Star Game.

The first sport to gather its top players celebrates its 66th midsummer classic at The Ballpark in Arlington on Tuesday. The game itself will be the grand finale for more than a week's worth of events.

The Texas Rangers began last weekend with an "All-Star Riverfest" on the narrow waterway outside The Ballpark and Pinnacle Trading Cards kept it going since Friday with the "All-Star FanFest" that will run through Tuesday at the Dallas Convention Center. Not to be left out, Fort Worth held an "All-Star Street Fest" Saturday and Sunday.

The popular All-Star Workout that includes an old-timers game (although its now has the more politically correct name of "All-Star Classic") followed by a home run hitting contest will be Monday.

First pitch for the All-Star Game will be 7:30 p.m. CDT Tuesday. It will be televised nationally by ABC.

Pete Sampras, Steffi Graf move to finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pete Sampras survived a barrage of aces from Goran Ivanisevic today and moved into his third straight Wimbledon final with a five-set victory.

In a matchup between last year's finalists, the second-seeded Sampras took charge in the final set to win 7-6 (9-7), 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, in 2 hours, 34 minutes.

Sampras, seeking to become the first man since Bjorn Borg to win the title in three consecutive years, will face the winner of the second semifinal between top-seeded Andre Agassi and No. 3 Boris Becker.

The fourth-seeded Ivanisevic slammed 38 aces, four short of the Wimbledon record, while Sampras had 21 aces of his own. In the second set, Ivanisevic didn't lose a single point on serve as he held at love five times.

Sampras won the biggest points, breaking Ivanisevic three times while losing his own serve only twice.

The decisive break came in the second game of the fifth set. After Sampras hit a stretch forehand volley to reach break point, Ivanisevic gave the game away when he pushed an easy forehand volley wide.

The women's final is set for Saturday, with top-seeded Steffi Graf seeking her sixth Wimbledon title against No. 2 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

Graf reached her seventh Wimbledon final with a hard-fought 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 victory Thursday over Jana Novotna.

Sanchez Vicario made it to her first Wimbledon singles title match by ousting defending champion and fellow Spaniard Conchita Martinez 6-3, 6-7 (7-5), 6-1.

Graf is the world's top-ranked player; Sanchez Vicario is No. 2. And unlike their meeting in the French Open final, when Graf took over the No. 1 ranking by winning, the German will remain in the top spot, win or lose Saturday.

Texas Tech completes investigation

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Tech University has completed an investigation into the academic record of a former Red Raiders basketball player but a school official says he can't comment on the findings.

Tech initiated the probe after the Houston Chronicle reported last weekend that Nate Jackson had gained eligibility in the summer of 1991 by receiving correspondence-course credit from a West Texas junior college that typically does not offer such credit.

Robert Sweazy, Tech's athletic faculty representative, said Thursday he had finished interviews with individuals involved in the matter and was preparing a report for university president Robert Lawless.

Tech could face sanctions if it is determined that coaches or school representatives helped Jackson receive a special academic arrangement generally not available to others.

Astros get 5-4 win over Padres in 12th

HOUSTON (AP) — Just when Houston Astros manager Terry Collins was wondering what else could go wrong with his team something went right.

Rookie sensation Brian Hunter went on the disabled list with a broken right hand. Catcher Rick Wilkins, obtained from the Chicago Cubs last week in a trade, also went on the disabled list. Then starting catcher Tony Eusebio bruised his left hand.

Then Collins watched as the Astros fell behind 4-0 in the eighth inning against the San Diego Padres Thursday night after shortstop Orlando Miller failed to field what should have been a routine ground ball for an inning-ending out.

"At least it worked out OK for us," said Collins after catcher Terry Goff, recalled from Class AAA Tucson Wednesday to fill in for Wilkins, drove in the winning run with one out in the bottom of the 12th inning to lift Houston to a 5-4 victory.

Goff's fielder's choice to center scored Jeff Bagwell, who had three hits, to give the victory to Todd Jones (5-1). Former Astro Brian Williams (1-6) took the loss.

"With all the guys we've lost lately, to come back from four runs down in the eighth is a lift for this team," Collins said.

Shane Reynolds' hard luck continued. The Astros righthander pitched eight superb innings, allowing only five hits and no earned runs while striking out a career-high 12. He walked only one but did not get the decision. In two starts against San Diego this season Reynolds has yet to allow an earned run but he has no victories to show for his efforts.

Serb tank targets U.N. convoy

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A couple and their 6-year-old daughter were killed as they waited in line for water in Sarajevo, victims of a fierce Serb attack targeting government-held cities across Bosnia.

Shelling and sniper fire in Sarajevo killed 13 civilians Thursday and today, including three children, the Health Ministry and the Bosnian Serb news agency said. Twenty-two people were wounded.

Like others in the besieged city of Sarajevo, Hana and Bozo Djorem faced the choice of hiding in their cellar or risking their lives to venture out for water and ever scarcer food.

They were standing in line Thursday with their daughter Magdalena to fill containers with water from a tanker truck. As the truck turned on its motor to start the water pump, an incoming shell killed Magdalena. Her parents died later at a hospital.

A Bosnian Serb tank fired repeatedly at a U.N. military convoy on the only available road from Sarajevo at the same time European Union peace envoy Carl Bildt was leaving the city this morning.

"It might well have been" an attempt to target Bildt, said a U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

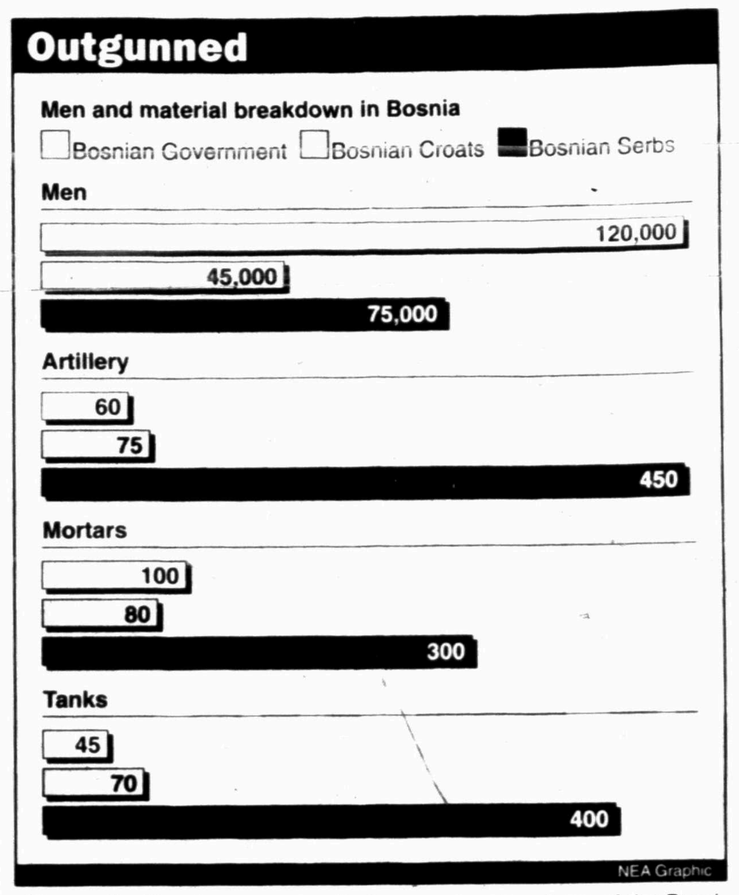

At least six shells landed near the U.N. convoy as Bildt was leaving Sarajevo over the Mount Igman Road. No one was injured, said U.N. spokesman Jim Landale.

Another U.N. convoy was targeted today on the Mount Igman road by Serb anti-aircraft guns. No one was injured there, either, said another U.N. spokesman, Maj. Guy Vinet.

Bildt, the former Swedish prime minister, did not mention the shelling when he arrived in Split, Croatia, and told reporters that the Bosnian government supports deployment of a U.N. rapid reaction force of more than 12,500 troops.

In eastern Bosnia, shelling in the enclave of Srebrenica was the fiercest since it was declared a U.N. "safe area" two years ago. Six civilians were killed and 21 were wounded in attacks Thursday and today, Bosnian radio reported.

The state-run radio said five civilians were wounded Thursday and early today in a Serb attack on another eastern enclave, Zepa, and that 105 explosions were recorded overnight in an area north of Bihac.

Although the Bosnian government's forces outnumber those of the Bosnian Serbs by nearly five to three, the international arms embargo has left them woefully outgunned on the battlefield.

Unemployment rate in U.S. edged down 5.6% in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged down to 5.6 percent in June as a rebound in hiring for temporary summer jobs and construction helped lessen fears that the economy was sliding into a recession.

The Labor Department report, which showed unexpected strength in June and a less bleak performance in the two previous months, came just a day after the Federal Reserve cut a key interest rate by 0.25 percentage point in an effort to give the economy a boost.

The central bank might have delayed its interest rate cut had it had the benefit of the new jobless statistics, analysts said. They insisted that the Fed would have still have moved to begin cutting interest rates because of continued job loss in the key manufacturing sector.

"This report shows the economy isn't collapsing, but it is still struggling," said Robert Dederick, an economist at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "The real question is whether the weakness in manufacturing will spread to the rest of the economy."

The Clinton administration breathed a sigh of relief at the better job figures. Labor Secretary Robert Reich said with the latest gains, the economy has now created 7 million jobs since President Clinton took office in January 1993.

The United States and Japan staged a surprise joint intervention in currency markets today in an effort to make sure that the Fed's rate cut does not put downward pressure on the dollar. Lower rates in the United States can make dollar-denominated investments less attractive to foreign investors.

The intervention had modestly positive effect, lifting the dollar to 86.88 yen in late morning trading.

"There wasn't a compelling need to intervene because the dollar wasn't under downward pressure," said Robert Hormats of Goldman Sachs in New York. "They probably wanted to remind the markets that the United States and Japan are working together to support the dollar if the need arises."

The Labor Department report showed payroll employment rose by an unexpectedly large 215,000 last month.

Law officers have quiet period; no arrests made

No one was booked into the Scurry County Jail Thursday but law enforcement agencies responded to various complaints.

A report for disorderly conduct was submitted at 8:35 a.m. in reference to a woman having problems with another subject.

An offense report for theft was submitted after a person requested a deputy at 10:37 a.m. at the Palomar Motel in reference to a theft.

A person reported at 11 a.m. that she had found a billfold. The owner was notified and the item was returned.

A person notified the police department at 1:38 p.m. that two juveniles were throwing water balloons at vehicles in the 2500 block of 30th Street.

A minor accident was reported at 4:21 p.m. in the 1700 block of 30th Street.

Involved were a 1989 Chevrolet driven by Leon Mireles of 2901 Ave. Q. and a 1985 Ford pickup driven by Todd Pulis of 9563 FM 1609.

An accident was reported at 5:08 p.m. at 2900 Ave. E.

Involved were a 1994 Ford driven by Leanne Mitchell of 13596 CR 132, Roscoe, and a 1989 Chevrolet pickup driven by Louise Martinez, Route 2, Rotan.

The fire department responded to a minor grass fire in the 2000 block of 21st Street at 8:55 p.m.

A minor accident was reported at 10:37 p.m. in the Pizza Hut parking lot.

Involved were a 1986 Chevrolet pickup driven by Deven Black of 700 E. 37th St. and a 1990 Chevrolet driven by Christopher Lee of 308 36th St.

Police officers reponded to a call about a possible rabid raccoon at 4:15 this morning in the 100 block of Canyon.

In Chechnya...

Yeltsin gives softer degree on troops

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin today ordered that the outcome of peace talks with Chechen rebels be taken into account in deciding how many Russian troops will be stationed in the breakaway region and for how long.

The new order could end the uproar over Yeltsin's directive Tuesday that troops be stationed in Chechnya permanently "to ensure political and military stability, and protection of Russia's territorial integrity."

That order outraged Russian negotiators, who said it could wreck negotiations with Chechen rebels.

Yeltsin's new, softer decree says the deployment of army, Interior Ministry and border guards in Chechnya must take into account "the settlement of the crisis in the Chechen Republic and presidential directives on that issue."

The Interfax news agency, quoting a source in the Kremlin, reported that Russia plans to station about 15,000 servicemen in Chechnya.

In the Chechen capital Grozny, Russian and Chechen negotiators today tackled military and political questions still dividing the two sides. Since the talks began last month, they have reached tentative agreements on the withdrawal of most Russian troops, disarmament of rebel fighters and elections monitored by international observers.

VBS slated at 'Trinity'

Trinity United Methodist Church will sponsor its Vacation Bible School, "Sontown: Family Celebration," next week.

Classes will begin on Monday and conclude next Friday. Activities such as games, crafts, singing and Bible stories, will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will conclude at noon each day.

Refreshments will also be served.

Children, ages three years old to the sixth grade, are eligible.

problems."

For the first time, a U.S. spaceship brought back more people than it carried at launch. Atlantis blasted off June 27 with seven crew members, including two Russians dropped off at the Mir space station last week.

Thagard and Russian cosmonauts Vladimir Dezhurov and Gennady Strekalov, launched aboard a Russian Soyuz rocket 115 days ago, caught a ride home on Atlantis after it docked with Mir. Though brief by Russian standards, the space flight was the longest ever for an American.

"Congratulations on your perfect end to your historic mission," Mission Control said after Atlantis rolled to a stop. "A new era in human space flight has begun."

"We couldn't have said it better," replied Atlantis' commander Robert "Hoot" Gibson.

The wives and children of Thagard and his Mir companions gathered near the runway. NASA arranged for Thagard's wife, Kirby, and their three sons to possibly have a few minutes with the astronaut in the crew transport vehicle before he's whisked into a medical lab.

Thagard said repeatedly during his record-long stay in space that he missed his family more than anything and appreciated them more than ever.

Also on hand for landing were NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin and Russian Space Agency chief Yuri Koptev.

Gibson completed a major milestone June 29 in the budding cooperation between the U.S. and Russian space agencies, flawlessly docking his sleek spaceship with the gangly Mir outpost 245 miles over central Asia.

Goldin considered the Atlantis-Mir docking the most challenging task in space since landing men on the moon. The only previous meeting of Russian and American spaceships was the Apollo-Soyuz docking 20 years ago this month.

Joined by a shiny aluminum docking ring 5 feet across, the 100-ton shuttle and 123-ton station formed the single largest spacecraft ever to orbit Earth. The ships flew together for five days as six astronauts and four cosmonauts exchanged gifts and equipment and conducted medical experiments.

The shuttle covered 4.1 million miles during its 10-day journey to Mir and back.

Atlantis is to visit Mir again in late October with another shuttle crew. Altogether, six more dockings are planned through 1997 as the United States, Russia and other nations prepare to build an international space station.

Obituaries

Tollie Ramsey

1909-1995

Funeral service is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home for former longtime Scurry County resident Tollie Ramsey, 85, of San Angelo.

The Rev. Jesse Dea, pastor of the Quanah First United Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will follow in Snyder Cemetery.

Mrs. Ramsey died at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at Shannon Hospital in San Angelo.

Born on Nov. 2, 1909, in Emory, she married C.A. (Jack) Ramsey on Oct. 21, 1926 in Snyder. He died on July 30, 1978. She and her husband had farmed many years near Union. Mrs. Ramsey moved to San Angelo nine years ago. She was a member of the Union United Methodist Church.

Survivors include a son, Don L. Ramsey of Seattle, Wash.; one daughter, Patsy Stowe of San Angelo; one brother, James Martin of Marietta, Tex.; one sister, Lucy Shows of Norwalk, Calif.; three grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Glenda Agnew

1941-1995

PALO PINTO LAKE — Funeral service is set for 10 a.m. Saturday at White's Funeral Home for Glenda Jean Agnew, 53, who died Wendesday in Fort Worth. Burial will follow in Moran Cemetery in Moran.

She was the sister of Paul Reynolds of Snyder.

Mrs. Agnew was born in Longview. She was registered nurse at Eastland Memorial Hospital from 1968 to 1988, moving to Palo Pinto General Hospital in Mineral Wells. She was a Baptist.

Other survivors include her husband, James R. Agnew of Palo Pinto Lake; a son, Randy Agnew of Fort Worth; a daughter, Leanne Anderson of Arlington; her mother and father, Olee and Dary Edwards of Moran; and five grandchildren.

Study questions benefit of green leafy vegetables

LONDON (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, eating lots of green, leafy vegetables does not boost vitamin A levels, a new study says.

The findings, which sparked an uproar at a medical meeting, could have profound implications on health promotion campaigns.

The World Health Organization and UNICEF recommend that people in developing countries eat lots of dark green, leafy vegetables — such as spinach — to combat rampant vitamin A deficiencies.

People who lack vitamin A are more likely to get very sick and even die from ordinary infections.

"Our findings do not support the longstanding assumption that vitamin A deficiency can be combated by increasing the intake of dark-green, leafy vegetables," concluded Saskia de Pee, the leading investigator at Wageningen Agricultural University in The Netherlands.

"Other food approaches to overcoming vitamin A deficiency, such as eggs, whole fish and liver, should be developed further," wrote de Pee.

Liver, eggs, and milk contain a form of vitamin A that seeps into the blood more easily than the form that is in vegetables.

The study is to be published in this Saturday's issue of The Lancet. It was presented in October at a conference on Vitamin A in Thailand.

Interest cut fuels market

The broader The Standard & Poor's 500 list is more heavily tilted toward growth stocks and non-cyclical issues wasn't up as much as the Dow. The S&P was up 0.84 point at 554.83.

Broad-market indexes were also higher. The NYSE composite index was up 0.57 at 297.00 and the American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 1.91 points to 505.42.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index climbed 3.22 to 296.43, handily surpassing the high of 294.93 reached on June 22. Standard & Poor's 500 surged 6.73 to 553.99, also beating its June 22 mark of 551.07.

After Thursday's fed announcement,investors snapped up a broad range of equities and the Nasdaq Stock Market shattered the prior day's closing high by soaring 11.11 to 952.93.

The American Stock Exchange market value index rose 2.44 to 503.51, passing the high of 501.47 hit Monday.

The stunning rallies in stocks and bonds surprised some analysts who said investors must feel further rate cuts are coming in the near future.

"The reaction is far greater in the markets than I would have expected," said Hugh Johnson, chief investment officer of First Albany Corp. "The stock market is sending a message that more rate cuts will follow."

Johnson said the Fed seems to have given the markets a prescription for continuing health.

"You've got to take your hat off to the Fed," he said. "When it comes to the markets, they seem to be hitting one bull's eye after another."

Although the financial markets responded enthusiastically to the Federal Open Market Committee's action, some analysts cautioned that the rate cut was conservative and might not cause business and consumer lending charges to change immediately.

Fruits, veggies: juicing vs. eating

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A good friend indicates that the juice from vegetables extracted via blender is better for you and reacts quicker in the system. He squeezes carrots, asparagus, celery and almost everything, while I'm eating mine raw or sometimes cooked. My thinking is that it's better to bite down on a hard carrot than to drink the juice. Who is right here?

DEAR READER: As in most issues, each of you is correct — depending on your goals.

Vegetables and fruits are composed of packets of cellulose that envelope the nutritional contents of the plants. Unlike cows, humans cannot digest cellulose. Therefore, unless the cellulose fiber is mechanically broken down (by cooking, chewing or a blender), the very essence of the plant is not available for use in the human body. This is the reason why many experts recommend that, to enjoy the fullest benefit from eating fruits and vegetables, consumers should cook them or chew them thoroughly. The authorities add that mastication is also beneficial for strong teeth and healthy gums.

The electric blender has revolutionized this situation. Now, with a flick of the switch, people can break down the cellulose walls in plants, thereby releasing the full nutritional potential of the food.

In this sense, your friend is correct. Blender-extracted vegetable juice is certainly more digestible than the same foodstuffs that are merely chewed. (Vegetable juice is probably not more digestible than cooked vegetables.) I don't know whether such juice "reacts quicker in the system," but it is surely easier to consume.

On the other hand, by blending the vegetables in a machine, you are deprived of the benefits of chewing and savoring each individual taste.

Therefore, if you like to bite down on a raw carrot or piece of celery, you're going to miss out on one of the pleasures of eating. When you think about it, all food could be mechanically blended and made into a nutritional "soup."

However, I wouldn't want to drink every meal and be stuck with a potpourri of sameness. It's more pleasurable to enjoy each texture and flavor.

I suggest a compromise. Both you and your friend can strike a balance. Cook or chew your vegetables thoroughly during meals and use blender-extracted juice as a snack. "Chacun a son gout" (each to his own taste), as the French say.

CDC urges pregnant women to undergo testing for AIDS

ATLANTA (AP) — All pregnant women should be voluntarily tested for AIDS because dramatic evidence shows that mothers who are infected can protect their unborn children by taking the drug AZT, the government said Thursday.

Until now, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has recommended testing only for those pregnant women at high risk of infection, such as intravenous drug users, bisexuals and prostitutes.

This is the first time the agency has suggested voluntary testing for an entire group of people.

"Simply knowing a woman is infected will not prevent transmission of HIV to her baby," said Dr. Helene Gayle, who heads the CDC's AIDS efforts. "To reduce chances of transmission, we must provide ongoing treatment and care, including AZT therapy."

The CDC wants to make AIDS testing standard prenatal care for the 4 million women a year who become pregnant, even if they are at very low risk of infection.

Scientists determined that any inconvenience or expense would be offset by the number of babies whose lives would be saved if their mothers took AZT during pregnancy.

A federal study, published in the November issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, found that women who take AZT during pregnancy could reduce by two-thirds the risk of transmitting the virus to their babies.

Without the drug, as many as a third of the children born to HIV-infected women — about 2,000 infants a year — will be infected.

Proposals for widespread AIDS testing have been controversial because of fears that the test results won't be kept confidential and that infected people will have trouble getting insurance or face discrimination.

In New York, a bill that would have required telling mothers whether their newborns tested positive for the virus stalled in the Legislature this year after protests from women's groups and AIDS activists who said it amounted to a test of mothers without their consent. The state already tests infants but does it blindly.

The CDC is proposing that test results remain confidential between the woman and her doctor unless otherwise required by state law.

Troy Petenbrink of the National Association of People With AIDS said his group supports the CDC recommendation because it is voluntary and includes counseling by the woman's own doctor.

"It's important that the physician talk to the women about the issue ... and offer the test voluntarily. We know that that works," he said.

O.J. prosecution rests case; defense to begin on Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After five months, 58 witnesses and one final glimpse of grisly autopsy photos, O.J. Simpson's prosecutors rested Thursday in the trial that has transfixed the nation.

"The people rest," Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark said.

The defense opens its case Monday and is expected to take weeks, not months, before leaving Simpson's fate in the hands of a jury that already has lost 10 of the original 24 jurors and alternates and had a new scare as late as Thursday.

It still is uncertain whether Simpson will take the stand to defend himself against charges of slashing his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman to death in a jealous rage on June 12, 1994.

The prosecution built its case on blood and fibers and the mournful wailings of a barking dog but in the end still had no eyewitness, no murder weapon and no definite motive.

Just before resting, the prosecution changed its mind by dropping plans to call Ms. Simpson's mother, Juditha, as its final witness.

Simpson maintained his calm but bit his lip as Clark displayed once again the bloody pictures that were part of a gruesome display that sent two jurors fleeing from the courtroom earlier in the trial.

Defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr., and Simpson himself, made it clear outside the jury's presence they would put on a defense, planning to call their first witness Monday. The defendant acknowledged he had been told that he could rest on the evidence and present nothing, but he had rejected that option.

Asked by Judge Lance Ito if he understood his legal rights, Simpson replied: "That is correct."

Prosecutors called 58 witnesses and offered nearly 500 pieces of evidence, all of it circumstantial, to make a case with no eyewitness, no murder weapon and no killer's bloody clothes.

After 92 days of testimony designed to portray Simpson as a jealous wife-abuser driven to murder, the defense was expected to begin resurrecting his image as a charismatic national celebrity, with testimony from friends, family members and golfing buddies.

Instead of calling Mrs. Brown as the final witness, Clark read to jurors a stipulation about what her testimony would have been. The stipulation recounted Mrs. Brown's last dinner with her daughter and a search for lost eyeglasses that, in a twist of fate, led Goldman to Ms. Simpson's condominium — and to his death.

Goldman, a waiter at the restaurant where the family had dined that night, was returning the glasses when the killer attacked.

Cochran objected to Clark's display of the autopsy photos at the end of her case, but the judge ruled them relevant and allowed them to be flashed in front of jurors for five seconds.

The last witness for the prosecution was FBI hair and fiber expert Douglas Deedrick, who told jurors about the strong hair and fiber evidence collected in the case.

On another front, Cochran's associate, Carl Douglas, appeared in court in Chicago, where a judge approved California court subpoenas for six Chicago-area residents to appear as defense witnesses. Douglas said the six had contact with Simpson during his trip from Los Angeles to Chicago or the return trip, several hours after the bodies were found outside Ms. Simpson's condominium.

Douglas said five of the six have been contacted and won't fight subpoenas.

"Each of them recognize their obligation to an innocent man," Douglas said.

Your Birthday

Saturday, July 8, 1995

New ambitions and desires could be awakened in you in the year ahead. Your chances for success look good because you'll know how to move things from alpha to omega.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Social involvements won't be frivolous or a waste of time today. In fact, you might trigger something beneficial while relaxing and having fun. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The important thing today is to do a good job first, then worry about what you're going to get for it. The yield will be proportionate to the effort you expend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This should be a good day for you. You might have even more bright ideas than usual. What is really important, though, is that you'll know how to use them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for material gains look promising for today and tomorrow. If there is more of something you want, use your ingenuity to acquire it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you could be luckier than usual in projects or endeavors you personally create or control. Let persons in key positions know what you're attempting to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to avoid situations today that could back you into a corner, but know you'll have the ability to wiggle out if pressed to the wall.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are fortunate in that you have several valuable contacts anxious to see you succeed. Go to them today if you need help gratifying your expectations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not be afraid to make snap decisions today because your first thoughts are apt to be your best ones. The secret to success is to believe in yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will function best today when you can express your originality. Assert yourself if you feel that your way of doing things is better than others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might start reaping returns today from a service you render which, up until now, has never been fully rewarded. An unexpected shift might bring this about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Romantic bonds can be strengthened today if you do things to let the one you love know how much you care for him/her. Be demonstrative and obvious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be industrious and productive today, but not in ways that serves only yourself. Good things will come if you go out of your way to show kindness.

Hugh Grant's first screen test this weekend in 'Nine Months'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hugh Grant faces one of his most significant screen tests this weekend, and the sneak previews of "Nine Months" may show whether the British star's appeal has dimmed or is as strong as ever.

Twentieth Century Fox plans to sneak the comedy into about 1,000 North American theaters Saturday night in advance of the film's nationwide opening Wednesday. Grant's other new movie, "An Awfully Big Adventure," debuts July 21 in selected cities.

"Nine Months," which stars Grant as a nervous expectant father, is the actor's first major studio film and his first release following his June 27 arrest with a prostitute. The incident prompted a flood of gossipy stories in the tabloid and mainstream media.

"We have our fingers crossed," said Tom Sherak, Fox's executive vice president. "There's no question that the press has made this a movie that has much more awareness than the amount of marketing dollars we've spent so far."

The movie, co-starring Julianne Moore and Tom Arnold, faces strong competition from "Apollo 13" and today's release of "First Knight," but Fox believes it will appeal strongly to women. It was directed by Christopher Columbus, whose blockbuster credits include "Home Alone" and "Mrs. Doubtfire."

Grant's two upcoming films will challenge the show business adage that any publicity is good publicity. Woody Allen's sexual relationship with adopted daughter Soon-Yi Previn disproved that maxim, but many think Grant will not be hurt by his admitted solicitation.

"He committed the oldest sin in the history of man," Sherak said. "It isn't something where you'll always have people saying, 'How dare he!' He didn't do anything that men haven't done before."

The final version of "Nine Months" does not include Grant in mug shot and jail scenes that have drawn snickers from audiences viewing previews of the film. Those scenes were cut from the movie before Grant's arrest, Fox says.

"An Awfully Big Adventure" is directed by Mike Newell, the same director of Grant's 1994 hit "Four Weddings and a Funeral." The movie stars Grant as the often churlish Meredith Potter, a manager and director in a Liverpool theater.

Although the film also stars "Die Hard" veteran Alan Rickman, it is more a complicated art film than a major crowd-pleaser and isn't expected to be a big commercial hit. It played at some of the top film festivals earlier this year.

The distributor, Fine Line Features, hopes audiences will judge Grant's performance, the story — and nothing else.

"There's probably a greater interest, although Hugh was doing a lot of press anyway for this and 'Nine Months,'" said Liz Manne, Fine Line's senior vice president for marketing.

"The good news is he's still doing 'The Tonight Show,' Letterman and Larry King. Maybe the viewership of those shows will be a little higher now," she said.

Canadian defendant in trial might take stand to testify

TORONTO (AP) — The defense lawyer in a sex-murder trial riveting Canada hinted for the first time Thursday that Paul Bernardo — accused of abducting, raping and killing two schoolgirls — may take the stand to testify.

"We'll hear from him ... at the appropriate time," said lawyer John Rosen during a third day of tough cross-examination of Bernardo's ex-wife, Karla Homolka.

Much of Thursday's questioning concerned Homolka's younger sister, Tammy, who choked to death on her own vomit in December 1990 after Bernardo and Homolka sexually assaulted her. They had given the 15-year-old girl alcohol, sleeping pills and an anesthetic.

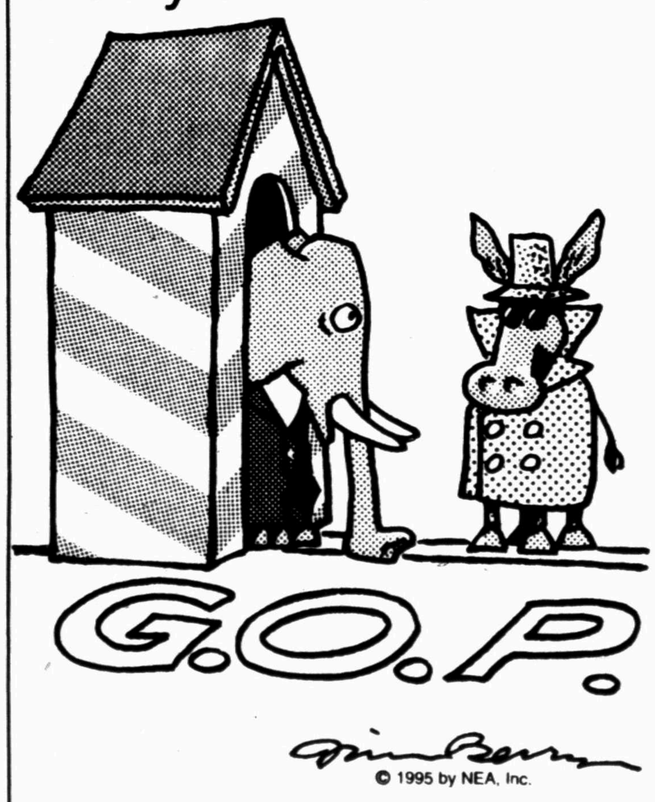

Homolka has said she took part in the assault because Bernardo wore her down with threats and beatings. She claims he later used the incident to blackmail her into helping him in the sex slayings of the two schoolgirls, Leslie Mahaffy, 14, and Kristen French, 15.

Homolka told the court Thursday she was afraid Bernardo would grab Tammy "on the street" and rape her if she didn't help him drug and sexually assault the girl.

But Homolka conceded she never warned Tammy to stay away from him.

Rosen suggested Homolka willingly took part in the assault and cared more about saving her own skin than keeping Tammy alive.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWBT) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to offer a new service called Prepaid Calling Card (PCC) Service. A PCC would offer the customer the ability to place local and long distance (intraLATA, interLATA and international) calls from any telephone without the use of coins, credit cards, conventional calling cards, or operator assistance. A PCC would have a pre-established value, paid for in advance, that would decrease in value as calls were completed. This service would be similar to SWBT's current Calling Card Service in that SWBT would carry the local and intraLATA calls originating in its region. InterLATA and international calls would be carried by the Interexchange Carrier selected by the customer. Prepaid Calling Cards would be sold in varying denominations, such as $10.00, $20.00 and $50.00. The rate for local and intraLATA calls would be $0.40 per minute for all times of day. The rates for interLATA and international calls would be determined by the Interexchange Carrier that handles the call. First year revenues from PCC are estimated to be approximately $11 million. SWBT proposes that this application become effective on August 7, 1995.

Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by July 28, 1995. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf. Questions regarding this service may be directed to SWBT at 1-800-836-7928.
