OLNEY MARSHAL LOSES LEG IN AWNING CRASH

Caught Beneath Collapsing Shelter on Indiana Avenue, Visitor Crushed Under Debris.

Local Contractor May Be Compelled to Undergo Operation to Save Life as Result of Injuries.

Caught and pinned under a falling awning, extending nearly half of the block on Indiana, from Seventh to Sixth, S. J. Dinsmore, city marshal and tax collector of Olney, and William B. Harris, drilling contractor, residing at 219 Seymour street, Saturday afternoon sustained fractures of both legs, the former to such an extent that amputation of his right leg was necessary, in the estimation of physicians, for the saving of his life, and the latter to such an extent that it is believed that amputation of the right leg also will be necessary in his case.

The condition of Mr. Dinsmore, whose age is given as 54, is pronounced as critical by physicians. His right leg from the knee down was crushed and splintered to such an extent that the amputation was necessary just above the knee. He sustained a fracture of his left leg just above the ankle, and his left ankle was dislocated.

The right leg of Mr. Harr's was broken just above the knee joint, and the broken bone driven each way through the flesh and against the bones so as to seriously injure the knee joint. Attending physicians state that it probably will be necessary to amputate this leg later. His left leg was fractured about six inches below the hip joint, and the bone was split into the hip joint.

Several other people were more or less injured, none seriously, it is thought, when the awning, stretching over the sidewalk, and spanning the front of several stores, gave way suddenly, presumably from the weight of the snow upon it. The accident occurred about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at a time with a good-sized crowd upon the streets. A crowd quickly collected following the accident, and remained for a space of about half an hour after the injured men had been removed to the hospital. The men were taken to the Wichita General hospital by the Merkle & Lunn ambulance.

ADOPTION OF BILL IN SENATE PUTS AN END TO ENTRY OF FARM LABOR

Failure to Provide Measure Permitting Suspension of Head Tax and Literacy Test Ends Tide

BY B. N. TIMMONS,
Record News Staff Bureau.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—Passage of the pro-rata immigration bill by the senate today, and apparent certainty of its acceptance by the house, means that the practice of allowing Mexicans to enter the United States for ostensible farm labor is soon to end, congressional leaders said today. The senate failed to put on a provision specifically providing that Mexicans may be admitted without a head tax, literacy test or coming under the contract labor law. A delegation of Mexican employes from Southwest Texas attempted to have such a provision inserted in the bill.

As the matter now stands, the admission of Mexicans will cease with the passage of the Knox resolution, declaring a state of peace with Germany, which is scheduled for early in the Harding administration.

Secretary of Labor Wilson has held that Mexicans might be admitted as long as the technical state of war with Germany exists, but not afterwards. Congressman Johnson of Washington, chairman of the house immigration committee, and Congressman Box of Texas, most ardent of the restrictionists, conferred today on house action on the senate ibll.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Box said that it was probable that the house will accept the senate bill without change, in order to avoid a parliamentary tangle that might result in the failure of all immigration legislation.

"The measure will be in effect only ten months," Box said. "The senate bill will act as a stop-gap while permanent immigration legislation is being worked out."

Howat Defies Allen to Dig Coal Himself

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Feb. 19.—Alexander M. Howatt, replying today to a statement made at Salina yesterday by Governor Allen, in which the state executive said that the president of the Kansas Miners' union might soon "be doing some useful work for the state—in the coal mines at Lansing," challenged the governor to a test of ability to dig coal.

"I'll dig four tons of coal to his one, and the one who backs out first must agree to leave the state," said Howat.

"I am getting tired of having Governor Allen go around the state telling the people what a wonderful thing his industrial court is and what a soft job I have and how I sponge off the workmen. Now is his chance to prove I am useless. If he does not accept this challenge, he might as well shut up. He can't accept any too quick to suit me. I'll go to Topeka today and sign articles today if he says the word."

LIGHT VOTE IS FAVORABLE TO HOSPITAL ISSUE

Voters Authorize Issuance of $75,000 in Bonds to Build Addition to County Infirmary.

With an extremely light vote, and with many boxes not open for the election, the $75,000 county bond issue for the expansion of the Wichita General (city-county) hospital carried by an estimated ratio of a little better than three to two. The vote was 327 to 187 in the four principle places in the county, Wichita Falls, Electra, Burkburnett and Iowa Park. The margin was a great deal closer than has been the case with a bond issue in a number of years.

Electra was the only box reported going against the bonds, the issue being swamped in this box at the ratio of about 8 to 1—the count being 13 in favor of the issue and 100 against.

Only two boxes were open for the election in Wichita Falls, boxes 12 and 13, both at the courthouse. Box 12 showed 55 in favor of the bonds and 19 against, while 13 gave a favorable majority of 198 to 41.

Burkburnett gave a majority in favor of the issue of nearly 2 to 1—41 to 23 being the count. Iowa Park went decidedly for the issue, the vote being unofficially reported as 20 to 4.

The total vote from these places, whose normal vote is more than 10 times as large, was 417.

Work on the addition to the hospital is expected to begin with a minimum of delay. The city's share of the cost of the improvement, $75,000, voted recently, is available now for the work.

The county $75,000 bond issue will be purchased at par and accrued interest by one of the county sinking funds, according to present plans.

This amount of money will serve to more than double the present capacity of the hospital. The present buildings were designed as a single unit in a plant capable of expansion to the proportions of a great hospital.

HEY, FELLAS, GIRLS ARE FOOLING YOU WITH SILKEN HOSE

The secret has been discovered and modern Spartan girlies are not so hardy as mere man has been led to believe. Man has long wondered how, for the sake of fashion, young and tender members of the weaker sex could expose a not inconsiderable length of limb to the rude, chill breezes on below zero days with no more protection than that afforded by a few threads of lace or silk. This picture tells the tale and gives the secret away. Beneath the dainty silk and lace are humble and entirely utilitarian cotton stockings.

Colby Asserts Americans Must Learn Spanish

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—Secretary of State Colby, speaking before the American academy of political science here tonight on his recent trip to South America, said he saw enough to realize that one of the first duties of the people of the United States is to re-examine every postulate with which they approach the contemplation or the study of great republics of Latin-America.

"We never can bring our relations to the people of Latin-America to the point of intimacy, confidence and respect," Mr. Colby said, "until we realize that we must find the right physchological approach to Latin-America. That means the correction of most of our assumptions and the studious and open minded appreciation of life in South America intelligently considered.

"The great barrier to American barter abroad is language" he added "the people of the United States are linguists. You can hold no conversation with a man except in the terms of a common vocabulary. Until the utterly unfounded fallacy that English will carry you around the world is exploded, and until the men whom we sent as representatives, either diplomatic or commercial, to the countries of Latin-American speak the beautiful tongue of the Spaniard or the Portuguese, our progress will be halting and disappointing."

Johnson Warns Oil Men Against Production Tax

Representative Declares Measure Not Yet Dead in Texas Legislature.

Oil men are warned that the proposal for the increase of the gross production tax from one and a half to three percent is far from dead yet, by B. F. Johnson, legislative representative in this district, who arrived Saturday afternoon for a brief visit to his home here.

In giving this warning, however, Mr. Johnson indicated that he wished not so much to alarm the oil men, as to impress upon them the necessity for putting the full facts of the case before the legislature and making an aggressive fight against what is considered an inequitable tax and one laying a particularly severe burden upon the oil industry.

Nor does Mr. Johnson wish to give the impression that the measure is sure of passage, in fact he says that he believes that the chances are now about even up, either way.

Get Data On Industry

Mr. Johnson has obtained an impressive array of statistics of the oil industry of Texas to use in opposing this measure, these figures coming from Judge S. P. Sadler, chief oil and gas supervisor for the railroad commission.

Of these statistics, one set of more than passing interest to operators in this district is that showing the comparative cost of drilling wells in various parts of the state, wherein it is shown that the average in this district is materially less per well than the average for the entire state, and that the average cost of drilling in the Ranger, Eastland and Breckenridge districts is two and a half times what it is here. The Wichita county acreage is given at $20,000, state average $27,000 and Ranger-Breckenridge, $50,000.

Judge Sadler's figures show that the state's entire production last year was 103,161,022 barrels, with a gross value of $206,322,044. The allowance for errata in the gross production is two million barrels.

Taxes High Now.

The yield of the 1½ per cent gross production tax last year is given at $3,018,432.73. The regulatory tax on pipe lines yielded $100,614.40; the 2 per cent pipe line tax, $63,360.01; the tank car tax $10,276.07; delivery tax, $150,000. The figures, totalling some three and a half millions, does not represent the total paid in by the oil industry, excluding various taxes paid by refineries and allied institutions.

Added to this are the taxes on lands and equipment paid by oil companies and operators, which, obtained, will swell the contribution toward state expenses paid by the oil industry to a large part of the total state revenue.

According to these figures, the number of companies and individuals filing production reports since the institution of the gross production tax in June 18, 1918, as, 7,000. Those who have given notification of intention to drill number 5,194, in the year 1920. Those who have reported completion number 4,180. Wells reported producers number 3,249; dry holes, 931, and wells which ceased producing during the year numbered 835. On December 31 the producing wells in the state numbered 2,414. Gas wells numbered 190. Aproximately 1,716 dry holes were plugged during the year. Wells shot numbered 2,365.

Oil wasted from leaks and breaks in pipe lines is estimated at 113,520 barrels, with a value of nearly a million dollars. Fire took a toll of approximately a million and a half during the year, the figures given by the supervisor being $1,465,468.

SEAMEN KICK AGAINST "PRO" LAWS IN U. S.

Near-Beer Declared Poor Substitute for Their "Dago Red."

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—America's alcoholic aridity caused a terrible storm in mid-ocean today.

Torrents of Italian idioms and thundering comments on near-beer drenched the ether with such a wireless message as no one ever received before. It made the well-known tempest in a teapot look trifling.

The radio disturbance emanated from the steamer Vindobona, which recently left this port, and it ended in the offices of the ship's agents here. These agents, when the Italian crew complained that its wine ration had become exhausted, provided the best available substitute before the vessel sailed.

"Never again," crackled over the wireless today before the sailors progressed 600 miles with nothing but near-beer and no water to quench their thirst. "We pledge ourselves never to return to America while its laws against good wine remain in force. We will see that no crew ever brings the Vindobona back to meet the horrors of this voyage."

UNIQUE LANDLORD FOUND IN CHICAGO, TENANTS ASSERT

Last spring, much to Mr. Brown's dismay, it is said, one of his tenants advanced her rent $5 a month over that amount because, she said, it was worth it.

NOTED OUTLAW WILL SUCCUMB DOCTORS SAY

Little Hope Held for Recovery of Notorious Bank Robber, Henry Starr, Shot in Attempted Hold-up.

Leader of Famous Bandit Gang, Long Ago Forsook Path of Crime When Paroled From Penitentiary.

HARRISON, Ark., Feb. 19.—Physicians attending Henry Starr, Oklahoma outlaw who yesterday was wounded while attempting with three companions to rob the Peoples bank at Harrison, stated tonight that the bandit probably would not live until tomorrow night. Starr today was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of robbery. Three men arrested at Seligman, Mo., according to reports received here late today, will be brought to Harrison tomorrow. The men were arrested as suspects in connection with the robbery of the bank here. All of them declare they are innocent. Starr today was identified by Walter Stapleton cashier of the bank of Seligman, as one of the men who robbed that bank late in December of approximately $1,250.

Starr's wife and son are expected to arrive in Harrison tomorrow in answer to message sent them stating that the bandit was dying.

Planned Uplift Films.

Following the release of Henry Starr from the Oklahoma prison to which he had been sentenced to serve 25 years for robbing two banks at Stroud, Oklahoma, he announced he had forsaken the path of crime and intended to devote the balance of his life in uplift. One of his plans was the filming of a motion picture reproducing crimes of the Starr band of outlaws as an object lesson for young boys. Starr was paroled by Governor Robertson of Oklahoma after serving four years of his term.

Starr's career of crime has been one rivaling those of the popular "dime novel" desperadoes. It has been only a few years since the newspapers were full of the crimes of the Starr gang, of which Henry was the recognized leader. The reign of the bandit gang came to a climax following the daring robbery of the Stroud, Oklahoma banks in which Starr was

BOMB UNABLE TO HURT SHIP BELOW WATER

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—In the course of another argument today before the senate naval committee as to the relative worth of capital ships and flying machines, high naval officers disclosed that a bomb, weighing 16,000 pounds and loaded with T N T, had been exploded recently aboard the old battleship Indiana without destroying any part of the vessel below its protective deck.

The explosion, the officers said, would not have sunk the ship, and did not damage her below the water line, despite the fact that her hull was not nearly so strong as those of modern super-dreadnaughts.

The officers were called before the committee after Rear Admiral William F. Fullam, retired former superintendent of the Naval academy, had urged suspension of part of the 1916 building program to determine the future value of capital ships, in view of the development of aircraft and submarines.

The admiral told the committee that the American navy, as now constituted, was "a one-plane affair," with surface ships only, was disorganized and unprepared for war. He urged that the money saved by suspending work on the ships be given to the immediate development of the air forces and submarines so that the navy might speedily be converted into a "three-plane fight machine."

Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operations, called by Senator Poindexter (republican), Washington, who prepared the committee's recent report favoring capital ships, strongly opposed any suspension of work on the super-dreadnaughts and battle cruisers building or authorized. He said the naval general board believed in naval submarines and also in aviation and pointed out that it had asked congress to provide for two speedy airplane carriers to serve with the fleet.

Similar views were expressed by Rear Admiral McVay, chief naval ordnance officer.

High Students Plan Program To Raise Fund

Plans for a theatrical program to be given by high school students, assisted by the best amateur talent of the city ,to raise money to liquidate the indebtedness and buy supplies for high school athletic clubs, were evolved at a meeting of a joint committee from the board of directors of the University club and the high school faculty Saturday.

Details of the program were not announced. Members of the committee declared that the program, as planned, will be "a scream" and that the announcements will be made later. The sponsors report that plenty of native talent has been found among students, and that with a little coaching from older and more experienced men and with the backing of the University club, this is to be made the premier event of all home talent plays held in Wichita Falls.

The high school athletic clubs have been hampered in the past seasons by lack of equipment, according to reports, and at present do not have enough money to buy baseball tats for the team.

Members of the University club, declaring that they considered good athletic teams from the local schools essential, both to the city and to the welfare of the students, announce that they will assist the pupils in raising money and that the theatrical program is to be the first step.

ENJOIN TELEPHONE COMPANY FROM REMOVING INSTRUMENT PENDING SETTLEMENT OF SUIT

A writ of injunction was issued late Saturday by Judge Ed Napier in Seventy-eighth district court in the case of W. E. Fitzgerald against Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in which a permanent injunction and $1,900 damages are sought.

Mr .Fitzgerald represents in the petition that he has a phone in his law office and one at his residence, upon which he pays a monthly rental of $8 and $3 respectively. He says that he has occasion to make numerous long-distance calls and that in all cases, these calls are charged to his office phone unless they are made collect.

Plaintiff charges that the defendant company omitted the name and number of his residence phone in their last directory and that this has been the means of seriously injuring his business because he receives many communications after office hours at his home. When parties call information for his residence number, he alleges, information tells them that he has no residence phone.

The petition sets out that plaintiff, on February 11, endeavored to call a party at Burkburnett by long distance but that he was informed by agents of the defendant company that his phone had been restricted and that he could not talk over long distance.

After meeting with the same advice on February 14, when he attempted to call Tulsa, the petition represents, he asked the reason restriction of his phone and was told that he could not call over long distance until a bill of $7.40 for calls to Houston in December had been settled.

After talking the matter over, plaintiff says, defendant company agreed to deduct the Houston call charges from his bill upon being informed that the calls were put in collect. The balance of the bill, it is claimed, was settled.

On February 15, plaintiff represents, he received notice that his phone would be discontinued if the Houston call bill was not paid in five days.

Charges that the defendant company were "negligent and inattentive to business" and that they were grossly negligent and guilty of want of proper care in placing his calls to Houston," are made in the petition.

Allegations are also made that action of the defendant company in threatening to discontinue his phone service is a "malicious effort by them to coerce the plaintiff into paying bills of others."

The injunction is sought to restrain the telephone company from carrying out their threat to discontinue his telephone service, $1,000 damages for alleged injury and handicap to business, and $900 exemplary damages are asked.

MAKE MOVE TO PREVENT FEVER ENTRY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A move in the efforts to check entry of typhus into this country through the port of New York was the arrival today of Surgeon General Cumming of the United States public health service, to inspect the quarantine station, now under state control, which soon is to be taken over by the federal authorities.

Another development was the announcement that a force of extra men, including many skilled in handling typhus and other contagious diseases in Cuba and Mexico, were now on their way to New York.

A third preventive step was supplementing disinfecting equipment at the Hoffman Island detention station with material used by the army in delousing world war veterans returning from overseas.

A fourth innovation was the action of the health department in disinfecting foreign mail on incoming steamers, and in providing for disinfection of cars used by various railroads in transporting immigrants' belongings.

City health inspectors detained nearly seventy-five immigrants arriving in this city and those landing in Boston and Philadelphia.

Girl's Death Baffles Police Of Topeka, Kan.

By Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 19.—Authorities here tonight were apparently still far from a solution of the mysterious death of Miss Kathleen Foley last night, although a verbal request had been made that the Wichita officers detain George W. Cruze.

Investigation today by the police, sheriff and coroner served only to clear up details. No outstanding advance toward a solution was made.

Miss Katherin Longaker, chum of Miss Foley, who died last night in less than an hour after she had rushed screaming to her mother, saying that a man and woman had forced poison down her throat, said that the girl had made two strange remarks a short time before. One was "I'll meet you in the happy land," and the other, "How would you like my job of checking sand?" Miss Foley was employed in a sand company office.

A letter was recently received from a former sweetheart in Massachusetts, the parents said today.

Miss Foley, who had been friendly with Cruze more than a year, had just been summoned to appear in Wichita Monday to testify at the preliminary hearing of Cruze now out on bond on a charge of having murdered his wife there.

He expects to renew investigations in this section some time next week.

BULLARD FLAYS PROPONENTS OF DISARMAMENT

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Major-General Robert Lee Bullard, commander of the second corps area, vigorously opposed disarmament in an address today before the National Republican club, which he punctuated with frequent rebukes for the proponents of the proposal.

"A proposition of disarmament or any limitation of armament is a trick," he said "either to gain or maintain advantage. Coming from different nations, the discussion always consists of two parts; First, a nice diplomatic expression of profound benevolence and friendship toward all other nations; Second, truthful, but to them undeniable, that that they are forced by the other nations to arm and keep armed. To hear them is to laugh."

Discussing the subject from "a purely American standpoint," General Bullard declared that "disarmament for us would mean the abandonment of our financial superiority over the other nations of the earth.

"We have it" he added, "are we willing to abandon it—to put ourselves on a level with others? This would be a sinful kindness. The monkeys, who in the past struggled for existence, who had sense enough to pick up a stick for an armament became men, the others remained monkeys."

Tariff Bureau Ready to Fight For Recognition

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. — The Southern Tariff association has opened headquarters here with a view to demanding recognition for all southern industries in the tariff law to be framed by the new congress.

Vance Muse of Texas, is in charge of headquarters and he announced today that when the new congress convened John H. Kirby, chairman of the association, and J. A. Arnold, chairman of the tariff schedule committee, were expected to arrive and remain until the proposed tariff bill finally is enacted.

"Our organization is non-partisan," Mr. Muse said today, "and in our membership are many southern business men, bankers and farmers, who are prominent in their respective political parties, but who think alike on the tariff matters."

The purposes of the tariff association as set forth in its declaration approved by the governors, industrial leaders and Chambers of Commerce all over the south, is as follows:

"To recommend to the United States tariff commission and to congress such tariff schedules on southern products as will equalize the cost of productions of this country with that of foreign countries, so far as may be consistent with the public welfare. Such schedule to be so placed as to fairly distribute the burdens and benefit among all industries without discrimination against any section, class of products, to the end that there may be maintained American standards of living in every line of effort."

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Waiving farewell amid a shower of carnations and orchids thrown by hundreds of admirers, Archbishop Dennis J. Dougherty of Philadelphia, sailed for Rome today to receive from Pope Benedict the red hat of a Cardinal.

The flower-strewn Nieuw Amsterdam was delayed more than an hour, while prelates and laymen offered the Archbishop their felicitations.

RUTHERFORD AND HALL GET GAS PRODUCER

The Hall and Rutherford, on the Stovall plantation, between the town of South Bend, and the McCluskey producers, was drilled into the gas sand at 2180 feet Friday afternoon and is a five million foot gasser, according to reports from the field.

This well is across the river from the other producers, and is about a mile from South Bend, and two miles from the McCluskey tract.

The sand formation at this depth is different from the other producers drilled in this section, it is stated, the gas sand being much thicker. Fifteen feet has already been drilled, it is reported, with no indications of its getting into the oil sand.

BETA DELPHIAN CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEET

A report of the club work so far accomplished by the City Federation of Women's clubs, given by the City Federation President Mrs. Fred C. Barron and a talk by Mrs. A. H. Britain, chairman of the committee on extension work, who was a club guest, on how the club might extend the scope of its work by sponsoring the formation of other study clubs, were interesting features of the business meeting preceeding the study program of the Beta Delphian club at the regular meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. A. Lincoln.

The lesson for the afternoon was delightfully varied by the introduction of musical numbers illustrative of the schools of Italian and French opera, the study topics for the year.

Mrs. Charles William Wallace opened the program with a discussion of the works of Ambrose Thomas, George Bizet and Jules Massenet.

The most famous opera of each composer was dwelt upon and personal reminiscences of noted London performers added interest to the discussion.

These composers concluded the study of the French opera and music illustrative of both the schools were given as follows, Mrs. Barron sang, "Oh, Fors's Lin" and "Che L'aninia" from "La Traviata" by Verdi, and "My Art at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens.

Mrs. R. A. Lincoln played a piano arrangement of several of the well known arias from "Il Trovatore" by Verdi.

Following the above program, the club took up the study of the early German opera, in which Mrs. S. L. Conn discussed the early development of this opera, Mrs. Ross Corlett discussed Mozart's operas, Mrs. John Davenport, Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba" and Mrs. Charles Crowell, Humperdinck's "Hansel und Gretel."

In connection with these operas, Mrs. John C. Kay rendered Beethoven's "Sonata Pathatique," Miss Haxelle Dean sang "Vissi D'Amore" from "Tosca" by Puccini, Miss Martha Roper gave a rendition of the "Jewel Song" from "Faust" by Gounod. The soloists were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. A. H. Britain, who later played two selections.

At the conclusion of the program, the hostess served a dainty refreshment plate with small hatchet plate favors to Mesdames A. H. Britain, Walker, Foster and Crowell and Misses Roper and Dean, guests. Members present were, Mesdames John C. Kay, S. L. Conn, Charles Crowell, Ross Corlett, Thornberry, E. T. Barker, F. C. Barron, John Duvenport, Charles William Wallace, Bernard Martin, George Thorburn, W. B. Chauncey, and J. D. Meredith.

The club will meet next with Mrs. T. L. McGe

ROTARIANS TO CELEBRATE 16TH ANNIVERSARY

Wichita Falls Rotarians will celebrate the sixteenth anniversary of the founding of Rotary Thursday, Dr. N. F. Grafton, the chairman of the program committee announcing the program's order on Saturday.

Dr. Charles E. Hartsook, a past president of the local organization, will deliver an address on 'History of Rotary's Progress." Alfred Burnside will talk on "A Visit to International Headquarters," and E. S. Goodner will have as his subject "How Rotary Appeals to Me as a New Member."

A. E. Murdock will have charge of the musical program, and has arranged a quartet, among other features.

The occasion is the celebration of the sixteenth anniversary of the beginning of Rotary, for it was on the 23rd of February, 1905, in Chicago, that the first meeting took place, which proved to be the beginning of a world-wide movement, which is destined to play a wonderful part in bringing together the men of all nations through the simple medium of acquaintanceship.

During the period of the existence of the Wichita Falls club, the people of this city have had many reasons to know that the club is composed of men who are willing to assume places of leadership and co-operation in the real constructive undertakings for the good of the community. But a great many who may regard the Rotary organization very highly, judging only from the nature of its activities, are not at all acquainted with the history of the organization as a world movement and they know but little concerning the creed which appears to be just the kind of a bond to hold together a bunch of livewires such us have taken such an active interest in things here since the organization of the local club in 1915.

In order that everybody may know just what a Rotary club is, what its teachings are, why it has such a small restricted membership, why the wives of its members are such enthusiastic supporters of its activities, the club men have decided to devote one entire meeting to a discussion and consideration of the several phases of the club's organization, ideals, activities and growth. Not only will the local phases of the subject be discussed, but there will be given the story of the development of the organization from a group of only four men, in the original Chicago group, 16 years ago, to a total of over 800 clubs today with a total membership of 65,000.

Falling Awning May Hasten City Council Action

Action on the part of the council to compel the removal of awnings and all overhanging signs, considered on many occasions in the past, may be hastened through the falling of the awning on Seventh street Saturday afternoon and the serious injury of two men, with minor injuries to others, it was indicated by members of that body Saturday.

Heretofore the considerable opposition evidenced on every occasion on which such a proposal was considered has prevented definite action, but the proof, regarded as conclusive in the minds of several of the council, afforded by Saturday's accident of the danger to the public from such structures, is expected to result in definite action.

The elimination of awnings and signs overhanging the sidewalk is advocated in the city plan submitted by George A. Kessler.

NOTED OUTLAW WILL SUCCUMB DOCTORS SAY

wounded, captured and later sent to prison.

Arrested As Bootlegger.

Starr was born in Fort Gibson, Oklahoma, December 2, 1873. His father, George Starr, was a respectful full blood Cherokee Indian. His mother, Mary Scott, was a quarter blood Cherokee. Of the three children Henry was the youngest.

In 1891 Starr began work on a ranch near his home. A horse was stolen. Starr was arrested, taken to Fort Smith and placed in jail. In two days he was acquitted.

Later while on his way through Nowata, the Indian payment grounds, Starr was asked by a stranger to carry a grip to the grounds. Starr put the grip in his buggy and drove on. United States marshals stopped him and found it contained whiskey.

"They took me to jail at Muskogee," said Starr. "I was only a kid. They chained me to bed that time. That was a bad thing to do to a kid. I was innocent. I came out with blood in my eye."

Holds Up "Katy" for Diamonds

Starr, with a companion, committed his first robbery in July 1892, holding up the express office at Nowata. Starr was arrested and jumped his bond. He returned to Nowata and killed Floyd Wilson, a deputy marshal when Wilson attempted to arrest him.

With others, Starr in January, 1893 shot up the town of Choteau, Oklahoma, robbing two stores and the depot.

He and Frank Chaney rode into Caney, Kansas, March 25, 1893, and robbed the Caney Valley National Bank of $4,900. This was his first bank robbery. The notoriety he got out of it brought scores of men flocking to his standard. By April he was the recognized leader of a desperate gang of outlaws.

May 5, 1893, they held up a Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train at Pryor Creek getting $6,000 and a consignment of cut diamonds. Their next exploit was to ride into Arkansas and rob a Bentonville bank of $11,500, June 6, 1893. Soon after the Bentonville robbery the gang disbanded.

Sentenced to Hang.

Starr went at once to Osage county where he met his sweetheart. In a covered wagon with a body guard they started for Emporia, Kansas where they were to catch a train for California. At Colorado Springs they were overtaken by detectives.

Starr was taken back to Fort Smith and convicted of the murder of Deputy Wilson, of the Pryor Creek train robbery and the Nowata depot robbery.

He was sentenced to hang. The United States supreme court reversed the case. On his second trial he was convicted and again appealed. On the second remanding of his case back to the Fort Smith federal court he was given a combined sentence of thirteen years for the three crimes.

Promised Roosevelt to Behave

While in the Fort Smith jail awaiting transfer to federal prison Starr quelled an outbreak led by "Cherokee Bill" a notorious outlaw, by wresting a revolver from the outlaw. This act later won a pardon from President Roosevelt.

"I promised President Roosevelt I would be good," said Starr, recently. "I meant it. Why, I named my boy after Roosevelt—Roosevelt Starr."

After his pardon in 1902 Starr married, went to Tulsa and engaged in the real estate business.

But Arkansas had not forgotten the Bentonville bank robbery. It had an indictment hanging over Starr and when Oklahoma came into the union the Arkansas authorities got a requisition for Starr and asked Governor Haskell to honor it.

"I didn't know what the governor might do, so I hid out" Starr said. In 1908 he robbed the bank at Amity, Colorado. He was arrested and sentenced to from seven to twenty-five years in the Colorado state prison. Good conduct won a parole.

Last Robbery For Son

After his release he went to Wyoming and later returned to Oklahoma. It was for his son that the bandit held up the Stroud bank.

"I wanted to make a stake for him" said Starr. "I wanted to make a big haul, fix the boy out and go off somewhere and be forgotten."

The robbery of the banks at Stroud was the most daring in the history of Oklahoma.

BOY SCOUTS WILL PLANT SHADE TREES

The local boy scout organization Saturday received 150 small shade trees from the boy scouts of Lawton, Oklahoma. The trees will be planted in a public park according to Scout Executive Taylor as soon as city officials designate the park in which the trees are to be planted. The trees are a year old and were raised from the seed by the scouts of Lawton.

Local scouts will also raise trees from the seed, Mr. Taylor said Saturday. Black walnuts and locust seeds have been ordered and the seed will be planted as soon as they are received here.

The bad weather Friday night kept down the attendance at the regular scout meetings. Only three of the group held meetings and only 50 percent of the members of those troops were present.

Scouts will aid in the anti-rat campaign to be waged during the coming week. They are asked by Scout Executive Taylor to offer their services to the organizations that are being perfected in all sections of the city for the all-day campaign on Tuesday.

The scouts have been carrying on a campaign against the rats since December and have killed several hundred since that time.

Twenty-six registrations for the scout troop recently organized at Burkburnett have been forwarded from here to national hedaquarters. The first troop to be organized in that city is a live organiztion and it is expected that it will have a membership of 50 within the next month.

The new troop on the north side is making remarkable progress. Scout master White is in charge of the troop which was organized at the Fannin school.

All scouts are requested to get their news items in for the "Pep" before Monday at 5 p. m. The paper will be issued to all scouts this week.

MAGNOLIA TO ACCEPT FULL OIL OFFERS

Removal of the restrictions on the purchasing of crude from leases having connection with the lines of the Magnolia Petroleum company was announced here by local officials of the company Saturday morning, effective on the same date.

This is the first of the larger pipe line companies to fall in line with the movement inaugurated Monday by the Gulf Pipe Line company, and announced in The Record News of Monday.

The order affects only properties now running to the Magnolia, and does not change the status of oil already stored with the company under the 50 per cent order of December 27.

This announcement by the Magnolia makes four large companies here paying for their entire runs, the Gulf being a second, and the Prairie, which neither pro-rated its runs nor restricted purchases, a third. The Prairie, however, made no new connections during this period, and its line was running only part capacity when the restrictions were announced in other pools, according to local operators.

Practically from its entry into this field nearly two years ago the Sinclair company has operated under contracts for running the capacity of the leases, so this company's curtailment had no effect here.

With these four companies running without restricted purchases, it is not believed that it will be long until the other companies fall in line.

Taylor Resigns Texas District Attorney Post

DALLAS, Feb. 19.—R. E. Taylor, United States district attorney for the northern district of Texas, announced today he had wired his resignation to President-elect Harding to be considered immediately after March 4.

Mr. Taylor made the following statement in regard to his resignation:

"There has been a disagreement between myself and the department of justice at Washington with reference to the prosecution for profiteering in ice and as to who should be prosecuted for profiteering in sugar, and some indictments for profiteering in sugar were dismissed upon motion of the district attorney because of instructions from the attorney general's department to abate prosecutions as to certain sugar concerns."

The disagreements, however, did not result in a breach suit such as would cause any friction between the district attorney and the attorney general's department.

Toussaint Says Brother Insane

Henry J. Toussaint, under indictment for first degree murder in connection with the killing of his father, O. H. Toussaint, two weeks ago, was insane at the time he committed the crime and has been mentally unbalanced for some time, according to the statements made to officers by Rudolph Toussaint, a brother, who arrived here several days ago from his home in McKinney, Pa. Mr. Toussaint arrived here the first of the week, registering at the Kemp.

According to the officers who have talked with the brother, the latter has joined with the accused man's wife and will aid in every way possible to save the brother and husband who has confessed that he killed the father on the night of February 6 on a dark street in the residential section.

Efforts on the part of newspaper men to see and secure a statement from the brother since his arrival here have proved futile. Mr. Toussaint will be in the city several days.

FARES CUT TO SIX CENTS, CAR RIDES AT COST

BY W. J. HUSKE.
Record News Staff Bureau.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Feb. 19.—Ultimate municipal ownership of the city car lines and rolling stock is the aim of the experiment now being conducted by Toledo and which is being watched with interest by other cities all over the United States.

Under the Toledo plan, which has borrowed many of its features from the so-called "Tayler" grant, under which Cleveland car lines are operated, car riders receive service at cost. The point at which the two plans differ most vitally, however, is the provision whereby ultimate ownership of the lines is vested in the city under the Toledo plan, through the establishment of a fund consisting of one-twentieth of every cent paid in car fares, which is used for the extinguishment of the bonds.

The Community Traction company, a city controlled corporation, has taken over all the interest of the Toledo Rail-Light company in the car lines, issuing in payment therefore its bonds, which are guaranteed, principal and interest, by the city. The price at which the lines were purchased was fixed by a board of arbitration.

Reduce Car Fares.

The first act of the new company, which began operation of the lines the first of the month, was to reduce the rate of fare charged from seven cents to six cents and to reduce the charge for transfers from two cents to one cent. W. E. Cann, newly appointed traction commissioner for the city, estimates that the reduction in fares saves car riders $2,000 daily, besides paying $600 each and every day toward ultimate ownership of the lines by the people themselves.

There has been, officials say, a marked increase in traffic since the change in ownership. Under the old regime, with fares at 7 cents, with a 2-cent charge for transfers, "jitney" lines to many parts of the city thrived, but with the advent of lower fares and the feeling of ownership that the new plan has inspired in Toledoans a marked reduction in this diversion of traffic is reported.

A "barometer" has been established which will automatically determine the rate of fare to be charged. This "barometer" is a "stabilizing fund" of $400,000 with which the Community Traction company began business. When the "barometer" falls below $300,000 fares will automatically be raised and if the fund should at any time exceed $500,000 the people immediately receive the benefit in the way of a decreased rate of fare.

The Community Traction company is a temporary expedient only and the aim of the city and company officials is complete and undisputed municipal ownership of the lines, paid for gradually by the car riders themselves.

Much Friction in Past.

Toledo has for many years been the storm center of battles over rates of fare and service given by the traction company. Starting back in the days of "Golden Rule" Jones, who served as mayor of Toledo until his death, some 15 years ago, one administration after another has tackled the problem, only to get the city and traction officials further apart.

A little over a year ago the officials of the Toledo Rail-Light company, failing to secure what they thought was an advantageous agreement with the city, ran all their city cars to a point in Michigan and for weeks every one was compelled to walk or use some other conveyance to reach factory, workshop or office.

Under the succeeding administration of Brand Whitlock, later minister and now ambassador to Belgium, and his successor, Cornell Schrieber, the present mayor, relations between the city and its principal public service corporation, went from bad to worse. Traction officials refused to extend service to points where the immense growth of the city indicated the need, asserting that regulatory acts upon the part of the city and constant interference with its service made such action impossible.

The present plan, which thus far has worked satisfactorily, has the support of all factions. Owners of Rail-Light stock express themselves as well satisfied to be rid of the burden and the reduction in fares, as well as improvements in service, have secured general public support.

Boys and Girls At High School Will Entertain

A joint program, to which the public is cordially invited, to be given by the Boys and Girls clubs at the senior high school auditorium, was announced Saturday by teachers.

The entertainment is to be the first public program offered by the senior high school students, and an enjoyable evening is promised everyone interested in the progress of the pupils.

No admittance fee will be charged. Members of the club announce that a box to receive contributions to the fund for starving European children will be placed in the auditorium.

The program for the evening, as announced, will be Welcoming address, by Jewell Whatley; piano solo, by Miss Ella Everton; reading, by Miss Marguerite Fisher; story, by Edward Kadane; song revue, by group from Boys and Girls clubs; "Random Remarks," by Phillip Pink; "Those Old Sweethearts of Mine," by Carl Sparks.

Revenue Agents To Visit Towns To Help Filing

Internal revenue experts, assigned to the Wichita Falls office to assist taxpayers in preparing their income, corporation and partnership returns, may be sent out to the smaller towns at an early date, unless more of the taxpayers begin filing their returns, it was announced Saturday by deputy collectors.

Officials declared that the payments were coming in slower at this date than last year, and that it is expected that the rush will be too great at the end of the drive for the limited number of officials allowed for the office to assist citizens then.

Officials said that the office has sufficient help to handle all applicants, if they take advantage of their opportunity and come early.

NEGRO BROUGHT HERE FROM DUNCAN ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Leo Moore and Ernest Alexander, a negro, were brought to the county jail here Saturday by Deputy Sheriff W. W. Belcher from Duncan, Okla., where they were arrested recently and held on information from this county.

Moore is being held for investigation in connection with the robbery here several months ago of a private residence. No charges have as yet been filed against him. The negro was being held in the county jail pending trial on two charges of burglary prior to his escape on January 15, while acting as a trusty.

M'CORMICK GETS PLACE AS RANGER IN COMPANY "B"

J. W. McCormick, deputy sheriff, has been appointed by the adjutant general as a sergeant in Company B, state Ranger forces, he announced here upon his return Saturday from Austin. His resignation from the sheriff's department was accepted by Sheriff Fred Smith.

During his residence in this county for more than a year McCormick has served as peace officer in several different capacities. For several months he was connected with the Lone Star Oil and Refining company as special agent for its interests in the Northwest oil field.

Later he was employed by the government for investigating work in the disputed territory of the Red river bottom lands. He served as a Ranger under temporary appointment with Ranger Captain Tom Hickman in the oil field sections and soon after was for the second time appointed temporarily for service with Ranger Captain R. W. Aldrich in Wichita county oil fields.

Since his temporary commission was recalled he has been serving as deputy under Sheriff Smith in the Northwest field.

The headquarters of Company B, will be at Ranger. Captain Hickman, now in command of the company, has ordered McCormick to duty in this section. Two other members of Company B, Rangers Gonzaullas and Robinson, are at present stationed here.

Sound Silencer To Bring About Snoozer Heaven

BY J. G. L. BRICKLER.
Record News Staff Bureau.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 19.—Imagine a slumberer's paradise where infants could wail, the people upstairs could jump and dance, where roosters could crow at daybreak and the alarm clock jingle forever, and one could sleep peacefully on, immune to all disturbances!

The whole world will be such a snoozer's heaven when Hiram P. Maxim, inventor of the Maxim silencer for firearms, completes an invention on which he said he is now working. Maxim, while here recently attending a convention of the American Radio Relay League, made known that he was working on this boon for wooers of Morpheus.

No longer will the clink of the milkman's bottles disturb late sleeping flat dwellers, nor will the clatter of chips in the late "penny ante" game next door interfere with those who believe in "early to bed," said Maxim, once his invention is perfected. And the poor traveling man will be able to snooze away without even a sound of the grind of Pullman wheels.

Is Perfect Sound Screen.

Maxim refused to give out any of the mechanical details of his proposed sound silencer, but declared in appearance it would somewhat resemble an ordinary electric table lamp. It will be so simple, he said, that a person would need only attach it to the electric socket to put it in operation. The instrument on a table near the sleeper would then cast an impregnable sound screen around the slumberer.

Maxim said he obtained his ideas for the noise silencer largely from his experience in working with radio apparatus to silence interferences with wireless communication.

He predicted great improvements in wireless communication, declaring that the time may soon come when a person may talk to perhaps a million or so people from his own home over a wireless telephone.

He expressed belief that wireless telephony will some day be so perfect that political delegates will not need to travel miles to a party convention, but would be able to nominate presidential candidates sitting in their own homes in all parts of the country.

HELICOPTER PLANE CAPABLE OF MANY NEW AERIAL FEATS

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The new form of flying machine known as the helicopter, constructed at Barcelona, is capable, according to the inventor, an Argentinian named Pescara, of rising vertically from the ground, turning in any direction, remaining stationary in the air, descending vertically with its motor shut off and making an "armchair" landing.

It consists of five sets of biplanes superimposed radically. The lifting force is furnished by the biplane surfaces, rotating in inverse directions.

The French government is sending a special mission to Barcelona to report on the machine.

BITTER ANTI-FRENCH CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN ITALIAN PAPER

BY NEWTON C. PARKE.
Record News Staff Bureau.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Much concern is being displayed by the French press over a violent anti-French campaign recently launched in several Italian newspapers, led by the Tempo. The campaign first took form of charges that France was trying to get more than her just share of war reparations to the detriment of Italy. Then it swung to charges of militarism, including the allegation that France was trying to involve the allies in a new war by insisting upon strict application of the Versailles treaty.

NEWTON C PARKE

Recently certain Italian newspapers reproduced the charge that French colored troops in the German occupied zone had assaulted German women. They even printed cartoons depicting colored soldiers dragging white women by the hair. French weekly magazines retaliated by inquiring why the Tempo's Paris correspondent is allowed to remain in France.

The Giornale d'Italia, organ of Baron Sonnino, former foreign minister of Italy, tackles matters from another angle in an editorial urging France to "renounce the problematical aid of the United States and an alliance with England" on the ground that the United States will never aid France at all and that England's assistance will be dearly bought.

The Pris Journal des Debats, in a lengthy editorial dealing with the consequences of the Italian press campaign, comments as follows:

"So they want us to return to the old scheme of things whereby France and Italy, closely linked, should govern the world. What folly! France and Italy would be absolutely incapable of this task; they would go under in a great catastrophe. Furthermore, for her part, France has not the ambition that seems to haunt some Italian brains. She wants only to live and to play her part in the world by ideas and by intelligence. Italy can nourish the same legitimate ambition. But she must not require of us an alliance which endangers friendships with our common allies. Both Italy and France have identical interests in preserving the friendship of England and the United States."

Students Told Of Inspiration Given by Music

Citing the quickening of pulse felt by every one when a band starts playing, no matter how worn and fagged they may be from toil and worry, as an example of the power of music to influence and mold the minds and morals of human beings, Prof. Frank Loew addressed the students of Senior High school at the regular chapel exercises Friday morning, outlining the needs of Wichita Falls for a greater interest in musical activities.

Mr. Loew declared that the power of music, like the construction of electricity, baffles the investigation of the most learned of scientists and urged that pupils, who wish to grow and achieve greater things, never let their interest in better music go stale.

The development of a municipal chorus for the purpose of promoting open air concerts and other forms of songfest entertainments was urged by Mr. Loew as a form of entertainment and progress that can be made a factor in the civic and moral development of the city that will meet many needs now keenly felt. In this connection the speaker pointed out that people could gather at parks or public playgrounds on Sunday afternoons, at hours when no church services are being held, and hold song fests, in this manner providing entertainment and service to people, who are bewailing the lack of entertainment for those hours.

Following the lecture the following piano numbers were rendered:

"The Faust Waltz," from the opera Faust, by Lizst; "The Awakening of the Lion," by DeKomstki; "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Mendelssohn-Wegemen."

"Irish Stunt" Assigned for "Y" Pageant

The "Irish Stunt" has been assigned as the part for the Wichita Falls delegates to the Y. W. C. A. Girls' Clubs conference in a Fete of Nations tableau to be staged as a part of the program, according to announcements made Saturday. The conference meets in Dallas on Friday, Saturday and Sunday and is for the purpose of discussing methods of improving conditions surrounding girls and young business women.

The delegates designated to represent wichita Falls are: Misses Marguerite Fisher, Helen Snider, Elizabeth Smith, Pauline Taylor, Guendolin Walters, Marjorie Dulin, Jo Betsy Miller, Rosa Mae Scott, Frankie Addickes, Elizabeth Carrigan, Edna Kay and Fay Boyd. Chaperones will be: Miss Helen Hood, Mrs. Hicks and Miss Juanita Kinsey.

REMOVAL OF VARSITY TO BE DEBATED

Discussion of the proposed removal of Texas University from its present location will be the question at the annual reunion of ex-students of Texas University on March 2, according to announcements of prominent "Exes." The theme will be put before the body in the form of "where do we go from here," and interest is being evidenced by ex-students all over the state.

The day's program will be closed with a banquet at the Wichita club rooms, beginning at 7 o'clock, in accordance with the program recommended from alumnae headquarters advising that the banquets will begin at that hour in every city in the state.

L. R. Buchanan, president of the local organization of "Texas Exes" will be toastmaster, and the following program of toasts has been arranged:

JUDGE AWARDS DISPUTED AUTO TO R. E. WHITE

Civil action before Judge Ed Napier in Seventy-eighth district court by the owner of a Ford automobile, among five purchased by J. C. and E. A. Abbott, proprietors of the Oklahoma garage, involved in investigations by local and Fort Worth authorities into the theft of several cars there lately, ended Saturday by a verdict of the court giving judgment of the car to R. E. White.

The suit was styled Roy E. White against G. W. Mennis and J. C. and E. A. Abbott. A plea of Mennis, the co-defendant, that judgment be rendered against the Abbotts because he had purchased the car from them and was therefore not liable for it, was granted.

In replying to the request of Mennis, the Abbotts also claimed themselves immune from liability by denying that the car they sold Mennis was stolen property, although admitting that they had purchased it from Robert E. Hensley, manager of a Ford service shop in Fort Worth.

White, who was the first to take the stand, testified that his car purchased only three or four days prior, was stolen on the night of January 24. At the request of a Fort Worth detective who investigated the case here, he said he came here Friday and found his car in the Oklahoma garage. Mennis claimed it, he said, and produced a bill of sale, showing that he purchased it from the Abbotts.

When asked if he could identify the car, White stated positively that it was his and that he identified it by the pieces of extra equipment and lights which he had put on when it was delivered to him.

Says He Witnessed Theft.

The testimony of Claude Dill, a Fort Worth youth, assisting in investigations, was next put on. He said that he was present and saw the car stolen on the night of January 24 and that, two days later, he helped to deliver it to the Abbotts' garage here. His statements to the effect that the engine numbers were changed and different parts of the car were removed and substituted, was ruled inadmissible by the court, on an objection from counsel for defendants, on grounds that his testimony was hearsay in that he did not see the work done.

Dill said that he later went with a Fort Worth detective to the Northwest oil field and found the car there, which had been purchased by Mennis. He positively identified it as the car stolen from White.

In answer to questions put to him by counsel for the defendants, Dill admitted that he had carried a pistol while in Wichita county without having a commission to do so. Immediately after he had left the stand, the court ordered him sent to jail on a misdemeanor charge of carrying a pistol.

Witness Arrested.

The case was filed against him in county court at law and he was later released under $150 bond.

Mennis, who owns several leases in the Northwest field, testified that he bought the car from Abbotts on January 31, and that he was given a bill of sale for it on February 17. He paid approximately $525 for it, he said, and added about $200 in other equipment. Since investigations of alleged activities of the Abbotts has begun, he said, he examined the engine numbers on the car which they sold him, but declared that, in his opinion, the numbers had not been tampered with.

J. W. Hughes, a mechanic at the Oklahoma garage, also testified that he had examined the numbers, and that, in his opinion, they could not have been changed.

At the conclusion of the trial, Judge Napier ordered Mennis to turn the car over to White. The Abbotts, in turn, will be forced to reimburse Mennis in the amount which he paid for the car.

Assistant County Attorney John Martin acted as counsel for the plaintiff, and Attorneys Carrigan and Chauncey represented the respective defendants in the suit.

YANK DEFEATS FRENCH CHAMP AT LONG RACE

By Associated Press.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, America's best middle distance runner, won the International 3,000 meter special race at the Guaranty Club's indoor games in Madison Square Garden tonight. This was the special event in which the Olympic 5,000 meter winner, Corporal Josef Guillemont, came from France to compete. For half the distance Guillemont was in second place about twenty yards behind Ray, who led practically from start to finish. Walter Higgins of Columbia passed the French soldier at the beginning of the tenth lap, which was little more than half the distance of the race. John J. Romig of Pennsylvania State College, forged ahead of the visiting Frenchman at the beginning of the 14th lap and from that to the finish the order was Ray, Higgins, Romig and Guillemont.

Ray won handily by 35 yards. Higgins, in second place, was a half lap ahead of Romig and fully three-quarters in front of Guillemont. The Frenchman's showing was a disappointment to the spectators as he was handicapped somewhat by an injury to his right foot suffered in training early in the week. It was also his first appearance in a board floor race.

The one thousand yards run was a rousing finish between the winner, Tom Campbell of Yale and Harold Cutbill of the Boston A. A.

Demand Official O. K. Upon Shoot For Traps Title

Trapshooters are determined that the word "championship" shall stand for something—that a sportsman, who pulls a wicked trigger when shooting at clay targets, and wins a title, shall have all the honor and recognition to which his performance entitles him. With that thought in mind, the general committee of The American Trapshooting Association has ruled that:

"The use of the word 'championship' in connection with any competition at registered targets is prohibited, unless special sanction is granted by The American Trapshooting Association."

This rule naturally will result in drawing the line a bit finer as to what constitutes a titular event. However, the shotgun men will have chances galore to win championships which have been sanctioned by the governing body of the clay target sport. As a matter of fact, there will be no less than 174 official individual championship titles at stake in the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone in 1921.

The A. T. A. registers all targets of three classes: Singles, 16 yards; doubles and distance handicap. At the Grand American Handicap tournament (the big national event), there will be an opportunity to win the American amateur championship at single targets, the American amateur championship at double targets, and the American amateur 18-yard championship. The above represent three championship titles up for competition.

At each of the five Zone Handicap tournaments there will be a Zone championship at single targets, 16 yards rise; a Zone championship at doubles, and a Zone 18-yard championship. This means an additional fifteen championship titles to be competed for.

At each of the several state (or provincial) tournaments, there will be on the program a state (or provincial) championship at 16-yard single targets and at doubles. Of the 48 states in the union, two—Nevada and New Mexico—are affiliated respectively with California and Colorado. Consequently, there may be 46 state tournaments if all the states are able to fulfill the requirements for registration. There are four divisions in the Dominion of Canada, each holding its Provincial (or Divisional) tournament at which similar championships at single targets and doubles will be held. This provides a total of 50 tournaments, at each of which two individual championships will be on the program, or a grand total of 100 championship titles put up for competition among the residents of the several states and divisions.

Then there will also be an All-Round championship at the G. A. H., at each of the five Zone tournaments, and at the 50 state and divisional tournaments. To win this title a contestant must be high on all targets shot at on the program, or, in other words, have the highest average at all the distance handicap targets, and at the G. A. H. and at the Zone tournaments, the 18-yard targets will be included. This would give a total of 56 All-Round championships to be decided in 1921.

Adding together the three National championships, the 15 Zone championships, the 100 state championships, and the 56 All-Round championships, we would have the grand total of 174 Official Individual championship titles at stake in the United States and Canada in 1921.

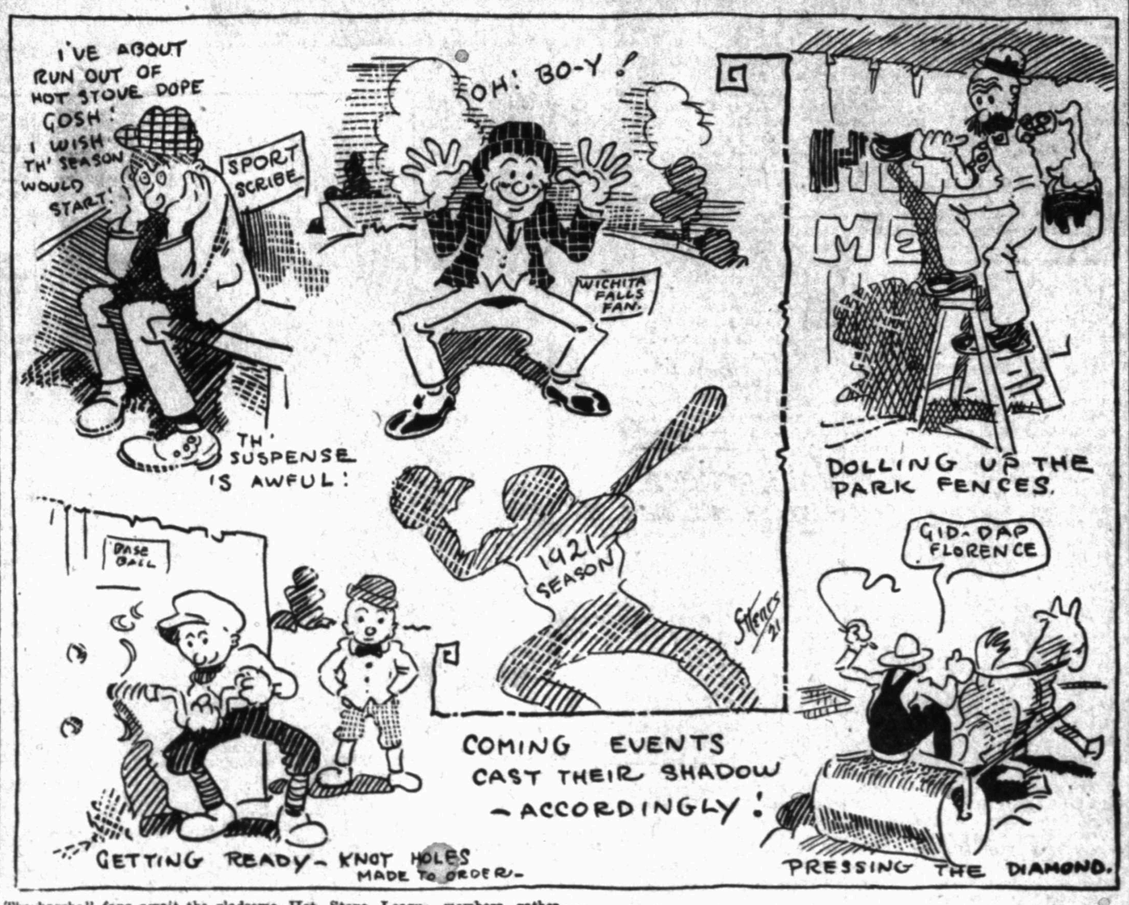
JUST TO FORGET THE BUM DEAL THE WEATHER MAN PUT OVER



The baseball fans await the gladsome day,
When "rookies" toss around the ball in play.
The Spudder's park is being put in shape.
The fences painted, new hinges on the gate
While all outside is snow and slush.

Hot Stove League members gather 'round the range
And curse the weather man, who acts so strange,
But the kids are busy, knives and gimlets bore
Holes in the fence, to watch the score
While all outside is snow and slush.

The news that several veterans have signed,
Is all the "dopsters" have to write—a blind
To cover up the fact that others want more jack
To feed their kids and pay the rent due on the shack,
While all outside is snow and slush.

Just three more weeks until the Spudder team reports
"Spring won't be here," the pessimist retorts,
But fans are hopeful, almost gay,
While waiting anxiously, the opening day,
While all outside is snow and slush.

SPORT BRIEFS

Benny Leonard and Joe Welling meet in an eight-round bout in St. Louis, at catchweights, February 24.

Many Americans are going to see the polo games at Burlingham, England, according to Walter Camp. The international polo championship is at stake.

"Hold-outs" will be a rarity in baseball, if the clause in the new contracts permitting the clubs to fine the players who refuse to report, is carried out to the letter.

Jeff Smith, contender for the middleweight championship, has signed articles to meet Georges Carpentier in a 20-round bout to be held at Monte Carlo, March 31. They have boxed before, Carpentier winning.

Bull Montana, Douglas Fairbanks, George Stevens, Young Fitzsimmons and Speedy Sparks will be the attraction at a wrestling-boxing card in Fort Worth, next Tuesday night.

The American Association will send two players from each team in the league to Louisville, sometime during the season, to play the Louisville Colonels in a special benefit game as a testimonial to Louis Knapp, umpire deceased.

No boxing will be allowed in Wisconsin during Holy Week, according to an order issued by the State Athletic Commission.

A city ordinance now before Mayor Hylan for approval, may ban the six-day bike races in New York city.

The Shreveport racing season opened Friday and continued through Saturday despite the protest made by some of the citizens to Governor Parker of Louisiana.

Jack Britton and Ted (Kid) Lewis may make it an even twenty, if the boxing promoters of Canton, Ohio, persaude the champion and his most persistent challenger to enter the ring. Britton has been offered $6,000 for his end, but is holding out for $7,500. What Lewis is to get, was not stated.

The "man with the hoe" is rapidly losing his job. The latest usurper of his place in the scheme of things agricultural is the man behind the onion planter. This machine, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, is the product of the inventive genius of an Iowan. It is a simple four-wheeled contrivance which makes the furrow, measures the correct spaces and drops the sets. The dropping mechanism is operated from the rear wheels. Power is supplied by the operator through the medium of plow handles projecting from the rear of the device and another workman follows with a hoe and covers the sets.

In France there are 14,000,000 persons who have saving accounts. These accounts amounted in 1913 to $5,818,000,000 francs. This was increased considerably during the war.

"WEE DICKIE" IS HOLDING OUT FOR $10,000 PER YEAR

Dick Kerr.

"Wee Dickie" Kerr, hero of the 1919 world series, is a holdout. Dickie was offered a contract by the Chicago Americans with a salary of $6,500 per, but Kerr says $10,000 or nothing doing. He has sent the contract offered back to the White Sox owners with a little note asking for the raise, but as yet has not received an answer, either in the affirmative or the negative.

Kerr says he has been offered a contract to play two games a week with a semi-pro team of Chicago at the same salary the White Sox offered him and thinks that the major team should accede to his demands for the additional $3,500. Whether or not the White Sox will give him the additional salary asked is a matter of conjecture, but sport writers in this part of the country believe that "Wee Dickie" is entitled to a raise.

It will be remembered that Kerr pitched and won the games he worked in against Cincinnati during the world series fiasco of 1919. With both Cicotte and Williams beaten to a pulp by the Red Sox batters, Kerr turned the Cincinnati tide with what seemed little effort. The little pitcher was given a great deal of credit all over the United States then, and after the "frame-up" was discovered. As the star pitcher of the new White Hose, Dickie thinks he should be treated accordingly and be given the raise he asks.

New Contract Expected to End Hold-Outs

When all the players in the major leagues are signed to the new form contract agreed upon by magnates at the gathering in Chicago some time back, it is expected there will be little of the unreasonable "holding out" among athletes which has been customary in recent years.

For there is a clause in the new document which gives the club the right to penalize the player who does not report for practice when ordered to do so. Further, he must take part in exhibition games scheduled by the team, and receive no compensation other than provided for in another part of the contract.

Under this clause, athletes who are late in reporting may have a fine plastered on them. As there are few ball tossers who like to see their money go in this manner, it is expected that the yearly crop of hold-outs will be cut down.

The clause in the new document which covers this point reads as follows:

"In order to enable the player to fit himself for his duties under this contract, the club may require the player to report for practice at such place as the club may designate, and to participate in such exhibition contests as may be arranged for a certain period prior to the playing season without any compensation than that herein elsewhere provided.

"In the event of the player failing to report for practice or to participate in the exhibition games, as provided for, a penalty by way of a fine may be imposed by the club, the same to be deducted from the compensation stipulated herein."

FATHER TIME PLAYS QUEER PRANKS.

In 1886, when John L. Sullivan stopped Paddy Ryan in three rounds at Mechanics Pavilion in San Francisco, a small, red-headed boy assisted in getting rid of soda and "sas" at 10 cents a bottle.

Fifteen years later that same lad with the red hair was promoting championship fights in the same Mechanics Pavilion. He is the greatest boxing promoter California has ever had. His name is James W. Coffroth.

When Jim Corbett was training at Carson City for the Fitzsimmons fight he asked for more sparring partners, and a big lumbering fellow was given the job of soaking up lefts and rights. His pay wasn't much, but he was a good feeder. Later this same lumbering fellow knocked out the man who beat Corbett and became champion of the world. His name is James J. Jeffries.

When Corbett was entering the side door of the California Athletic club the night he fought the great Peter Jackson, a tall, skinny kid with curly hair stood in the mob cheering Gentleman Jim. The tall, skinny kid didn't have the price. He didn't see the fight, but he heard the cheers on the sidewalk outside the club along with thousands of others.

He had ridden the brakes from the East on side-door Pullmans and wanted something for his trouble. Nine years later he faced Corbett in Madison Square Garden, but lost. His name is Kid McCoy.

When Joe Walcott was just making his name as a boxer in Boston he had a large, good-natured, colored fellow as rubber. He was quite a hand, but one day he suddenly disappeared. He was next heard from as sparring partner to Kid Carter in 'Frisco.

The night that Jeffries and Ruhlin fought in San Francisco this same colored fellow hid under the ring all day until the fighters got into the ring. Then he eased out and grabbed a seat in the rear of the arena. Some years later this same colored fellow met and defeated this same Jeffries at Reno, Nev., and won the heavyweight championship of the world. His name is Jack Johnson.

When Willie Ritchie was lightweight champion of the world and was training to fight Leach Cross in New York, he had a number of boys help him get into shape. One of those lads was a little, black-haired Jewish boy. He boxed with Willie daily and for his trouble received three pats on the back each afternoon.

Much water passed under Brooklyn bridge after that. Ritchie was beaten. His former sparring partner became lightweight champion and finally met Ritchie his old boss, in a ring at Newark. He stopped Ritchie in eight rounds. His name is Benny Leonard.

THEY DON'T WANNA PLAY IN FRED'S YARD.

It does seem rather strange that the big boys bar Fred Fulton when talking of fights.

Managers of heavies tell you that their man is better than old John L.; that he is the snappiest thing that ever donned a pair of trunks, and that Dempsey would be a set-up for him.

They carefully avoid mentioning the name of Tall Freddie, the plasterer, and if they do crack about him they usually say that he is a faker or a quitter or that he won't draw.

Like a number of others, we still think that Fulton is a great fighter. Tom O'Rourke, his manager, thinks so, too. Pipe Tom's note here below:

"Dear Tad—Note what you had to say about our old Irish gladiator, Peter Maher and his K. O. record.

"Fulton has had seventy-five fights without any set-ups; has scored fifty-two K. O.'s and won two bouts on fouls. He had eighteen no-decision bouts. He was K. O.'d three times—once by Al Palzer, once by Jack Dempsey and once by Harry Wills.

"Who has a better record than Fulton? He bars nobody and picks no soft ones. First come, first served.

"Is it not up to Dempsey, Willard and Brennan to box Fulton?

"Sincerely,
"TOM O'ROURKE."

SALM HAPPY WITH NEWS OF CLARK'S RETURN TO FOLD

Last week was pretty kind to the Spudders, particularly in the assurance it gave of the return of Danny Clark. The presence of the capable little second sacker is of particular moment right now, as it is in the inner circle that the Spudders will have to do the most building. Danny fills a big hole, and his return leaves Walter with only one position, that at first, to fill, in order to start with a seasoned crowd on the infield.

A deal for a first sacker has been hanging fire for several months, but so far the club has not succeeded in satisfying both the prospective infielder and the club from which he was purchased.

So, now the Spudders can count on Clark at second, Buddy Tanner at short, McElwee at third, and Montegut as an extra prospect, with a number of likely looking youngsters.

Walter will not by any means be satisfied to stand pat on this lineup, and is constantly on the lookout for better material, but the shortage of infield material in all leagues of higher classification indicates that addition of more talent will be difficult.

Should the Spudders secure or develope some exceptionally good infield material, it is likely that McElwee will be shifted to the outfield. The boy is a whale with the stick, and covered a lot of ground in a highly satisfactory manner in the few chances he was given out there last season.

Salm's outfield will probably be composed of the famous trio of last year, Josefson, Miller and Mokan, although the latter is still the property of the Pirates. Mokan's release from Pittsburg is expected as the Pirates are filled up with good outfield material. Several likely looking youngsters will be bidding for a chance in the out garden and it would not be surprising if Mokan does not return, to see one of them a regular.

The Spudders have a preponderance of battery material, the majority of the youngsters signed up being pitchers or catchers. With Darrough back and with the probability of Zinn returning, Salm has a good above the average staff. Frank Kitchens, although slowing up, will probably be the mainstay behind the bat, alternating with either his younger brother Raymond, who is already signed, or Eddie Noyes, the backstop secured from Houston.

Giving Away Weight

The old, familiar story of a "good big man being able to win over a good smaller man," although the weights were but 15 pounds in difference, was re-enacted when Bill Brennan outpointed Bob Martin in New York, Friday night.

Perhaps another boxing adage could be applied to the battle by repeating Jim Corbett's contention that skill and experience generally wins over youth and greenness." However, the point is, Martin, while a man with a terific punch and plenty of gameness, picked on someone who was just a little bit better before he was ready for the experiment. The defeat perhaps, lost the chance of a match with Jack Dempsey.

After the Champion

A match for the championship was and always has been the bright star by which Martin guided his career through the lesser heavyweight boxers until he thought he was ready for a chance with the "trial-horse" Brennan, for that is what Brennan has become. Martin, while bowling over Ray Smith, Captain Bob Roper, Martin Burke and a host of other heavyweights since his discharge from the army and while having a successful boxing career while in the service, has been in the boxing game for just a little over three years. With two more years of experience under his belt and with a little good luck in the matter of reverses, there is no doubt but that Martin should become one of the best, if not the champion, among the heavyweights. Martin made the mistake of trying to forge ahead too fast and it is believed that he will profit by his mistake.

Barney Is Optomistic

The New York Yankees have nothing on the Pittsburg Pirates in believing the crowds will be larger this season, as was proven by an announcement made by President Barney Dreyfuls, Saturday. Barney is going to increase the seating capacity of Forbes Field by 16,000, so he says. Perhaps the Pirate leader expects to land the flag this year, or "mebbe" he thinks "Rabbit" Maranville will be another "Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb in drawing the public to the games played in the Smoky City. Barney generally has something up his sleeve and he may spring it. Quien sabe?

Jack Johnson will be released from the Leavenworth penitentiary in the very near future. The "Big Smoke" has announced his intention of meeting Dempsey in a bout for the championship. Promoters in Havana are ribbing up a bout between the former champion and Fred Fulton. All this is true, but * * * While not wishing to be pessimistic it is going to be rough sledding for the negro who did more to kill the boxing game than any other boxer, after maybe the first bout. It is possible that people will flock to see Johnson in action after his release but after the first match it is going to take more than Johnson to "pack 'em in." Really Johnson should not be allowed to enter an American ring—as principle, manager, second, or in any other capacity against an opponent who is white or of any other color.

A Ripe Chestnut

Pop Boone, Fort Worth sport writer must be getting old and his memory gradually failing. He springs something like this on the poor public:

"Connie Mack admits that the Philadelphia Athletics may not win the pennant in the American League this summer. This makes it unanimous."

The above has been sprung on the fans for the past five years or ever since the once famous aggregation first finished in the cellar back in 1915.

TIME DOESN'T DRAG FOR THREE WOMEN LOCKED UP AS MURDER TRIAL JURORS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 19.—For the first time since women have been allowed on murder juries three feminine jurors are being kept under constant guard, together, day and night, cut off from their families and friends, until they have helped decide the fate of a man charged with killing a fellow man. They are the three women in the jury of twelve persons which is trying Judge William H. McGannon, chief justice of the Cleveland, Ohio, municipal courts, charged with murdering Harold Kagy after an automobile ride in May, 1920. It is McGannon's second trial. The jury disagreed the first time. The days aren't dragging for the women jurors, they say.

Grand opera, theaters and the high cost of living furnished topics of conversation for the three women, Mrs. Zuleika Allen, Mrs. Hazel McGlynn and Mrs. Rose Bayne. Mrs. Florence Morrison is their bailiff. The way they spent one of the early days of the trial is a typical one. Until they retired for the night, shortly after 10 o'clock, and for nearly an hour afterward, the three discussed with Mrs. Morrison every phase of grand opera, chatted volubly about current and impending attractions at the local theaters, and worried and fretted over the high cost of living just as though they were meeting in the home of one of them for an evening's visit.

To begin with, as soon as court closed for the day, the women jurors, together with the nine men on the jury, were taken to a hotel for dinner. From the way in which the three women enjoyed their steaks, mashed potatoes, apple pie and coffee, it hardly looked as though the trial was weighing heavily on them. All three declared the meal a first-rate substitute for "home cooking."

Take in Movie Show.

After dinner the trio followed Mrs. Morrison to their hotel suite where plans for the evening were discussed. Upon learning they would be allowed to go to a theater, they went to a movie house, where they saw Wanda Hawley in "Her Beloved Villain."

The three women members of the McGannon jury. Left to right: Mrs. Hazel McGlynn Mrs. Rose Bayne and Mrs. Zuleika Allen. Below, Judge William H. McGannon, on trial for murder.

Returning to the hotel ,embroidery work was taken out of handbags, and an impromptu sewing circle was formed. The women, who will probably be kept in custody for at least two weeks, saw a chance to do the better part of a whole winter's sewing.

About 9 o'clock the sewing circle was temporarily disrupted by the arrival of Mrs. Allen's husband, who appeared, loaded down with candy, flowers and magazines. Allen was not allowed to be alone with his wife, and, under the rules of the court, was obliged to carry on his entire conversation with her in the presence of the bailiff.

Judge Powell's instruction, "Don't discuss this case among yourselves," was observed scrupulouly by the women jurors, who, in chatting over their needlework, touched on practically every topic under the sun except the one popularly thought to be uppermost in their minds—the murder of Harold Kagy.

As for the men on the jury, they herded by themselves and no one was concerned about what they were doing—except a mere man bailiff.

INDICTMENT OF MODEL SON FOR MURDER PRESENTS ODD CASE

Ralph M. Davis, Mrs. Davis and her two children, Roland, age fourteen months, and Maxine, three years old.

KENTLAND, Ind., Feb. 19.—Three members of the grand jury that indicted Ralph Davis, former Sunday school teacher and "model young man," for the murder of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis, on their farm near Morocco, Ind., Jan. 20, admit now that they were brought to their decision largely because of public sentiment in the community.

The grand jurymen, who requested that their names be withheld, declared that though they had examined some seventy witnesses during the investigation they had found no direct evidence that Davis committed the crime charged to him. The evidence upon which they returned their verdict, they admitted was entirely circircumstantial "and not much of that."

Davis Is Still Held.

The charred bodies of the parents were found in the fireswept ruins of their home. Davis was arrested in Chicago and taken to Kentland where the indictments were returned He is being held incommunicado and without bail at Rensselaer.

Information gathered from the three jurors revealed that they based their indictments on four things. First, public sentiment, which had readily accused Davis; secondly, his attitude in not rushing into the burning building to attempt the rescue of his parents at once, but going first for help; thirdly, the fact that the bodies were clothed, which evidenced that the elder Davies were murdered, and lastly that several bones in the bodies were broken.

Was Good Witness.

Referring to Davis' evidence before them, the jurors declared that he had answered freely, fully, without nervousness and with every appearance of innocence. He did not contradict himself, they said.

Regarding the possibility of his having had an accomplice—the "ragged stranger" mentioned by some witnesses—the jurors declared that the only evidence on this point was that a beggar had come to the Davis home several days before the tragedy. This is not unusual in this community as it is near a railroad line.

The jurors declared that the embezzlement charge against Davis, the charge of stealing $1,250 from the Newton county farm bureau, upon which he is also indicted, was not made until after the murder charge had been placed.

Second Charge Afterthought.

"Had it not been for the murder indictment the embezzlement charge would never have been made," said one juror.

"There was no tangible evidence against Davis except of the circumstantial kind. It was charged that he was heavily in debt and at outs with his father. He was in debt for many hospital and doctor bills due to sickness in his family, but we have been unable to find any evidence that he was at loggerheads with his family. No letters, no confessions, no threats, no trouble with his father were we able to substantiate.

"Though he was in debt and his father had the reputation of being closefisted, Davis could not have benefited under the Indiana laws from the estate under one year's time, and he knew it."

Declares Davis Innocent.

Elmer Skinner, superintendent of county roads and a power in the community, has issued a statement in which he declared that to his mind Davis was innocent of the charge and characterized the work of the grand jury that indicted him as "bungling."

"There is nothing in all the evidence, so far as I know, that would warrant the indictment, and I mean to see that he has support to defend himself from these attacks," Skinner's statement reads in part.

Carl Boy-Ed, Deported German Officer, Weds U. S. Sweetheart

Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, now Mrs. Boy-Ed, and Capt. Carl Boy-Ed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—News of the marriage of Miss Mackay Smith to Capt. Carl Boy-Ed was received by the capital's social circles with rather a shock, although in a way it was no surprise, for the devotion of the former German naval attache to the bishop's daughter has been a matter of years' standing.

Some extremely romantic tales were told about the love affair, particularly after Boy-Ed, in December, 1915, returned to his native land by request of the American government, which demanded of the kaiser his recall.

Mrs. Alexander Mackay-Smith Mother of the bride and her younger sister, Gladys, now Mrs. William Bell Watkins of Westtown, Pa., is one of the real social leaders of Washington. She has a fine big home within a few blocks of the old German embassy.

Here both Mackay-Smith girls were presented to society at a series of functions which were attended by brilliant representations of the diplomatic and official sets of the capital.

Romance Began on Arrival.

Almost from the time of his first appearance in the social life of Washington, Miss Virginia was courted by the German naval attache, who—say what else you will about him—was a sort of beau-ideal diplomat, with all the graces and charm of the old world.

The Mackay-Smiths have a large home called Wildcliffe at Seal Harbor, Me., and it was soon noticeable that Capt. Boy-Ed spent his summers with them up there.

As long ago as 1914 there were rumors of an engagement between the German captain and the bishop's daughter. In 1915 this gossip reached a point where Mrs. Mackay-Smith felt it incumbent upon her to make a denial that a troth existed.

That was about the time when evidence was accumulating to the effect that Boy-Ed was stirring up trouble in Mexico so as to embarrass this country and also was at the head of a scheme whereby numerous German agents were brought to this country on forged Scandinavian passports. These were the charges which caused his dismissal from the United States subsequently.

Mrs. Mackay-Smith declared when asked of the engagement, that it was "preposterous and without foundation" and said she could not account for the rumor.

Captain Boy-Ed, however, never made any denial of the troth. When asked about it he invariably declined to commit himself one way or the other. Miss Mackay-Smith never denied the attachment.

Kaiser Breaks Into Story.

Another story concerning the romance, which gained wide currency before Boy-Ed's dismissal, was this: The kaiser himself (so it was said) must give his approval to the marriage of any of his aides of so high rank as Boy-Ed, and therefore such approval was asked for just before the naval attache returned to his native land, the idea being that Boy-Ed would marry his American fiancee and take her back to Germany with him.

But (so the tale goes on) the permission never was received. The kaiser sent it, in code form, addressed to Boy-Ed, but an American military censor, supervising radio matter in those days, suppressed the message in the belief that it was something dangerous to the welfare of the United States.

So Boy-Ed returned to Germany without a bride. It was said that two of his trunks were decorated with entwined hearts. He departed from here on the liner Rotterdam, December 27, 1915. Boy-Ed was guaranteed safe conduct by the British and French governments and reached his destination without difficulty.

He is forty-eight years old and of Turkish descent through his father; hence his peculiar name. His bride is said to be thirty-eight. She was presented to society in 1901.

The Mackay-Smith house in Washington has not been opened this season, and the whereabouts of the bishop's widow and daughter have not been known exactly to their friends, who simply understood they were "somewhere abroad."

Small College Relay Section Shows Promise

URBANA, Ill., Feb. 19.—The relay events for the smaller college section of the fifth annual University of Illinois relay carnival, to be held here March 5, promises to be hotly contested this year. There are eleven college entries at this early date, and several other schools have indicated their desire to compete.

Wabash College from Crawfordville, Ind., an easy winner in the college section last year, is expected to send a team. Cornell College from Iowa, Charleton College from Northfield, Minn., Milliken, Eureka, Lake Forest, Knox and Illinois Wesleyan from Illinois and Earlham College from Indiana are other entries received.

The special events are also creating interest among the universities and colleges. Many schools have a few individual stars and their entries have been coming in rapidly.

Birmingham Southern College from Iran Aggies, Creighton University from Omaha, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Indiana University and University of Missouri have men entered in the special events as well as the relays.

Every Western Conference school is expected to have men in competition and the relays between the "Big Ten" schools should result in some great races.

KILL THE RAT

He is an Enemy to Health and Property! He Causes Waste, Fire, Pestilence, Disease, Death! He Destroys Enough Food in the United States to Maintain a Million Soldiers

The Rat Campaign in Wichita Begins

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22

Oust The Rat

1. By excluding him from your buildings through rat-proof construction.
2. By shutting off his food supply through metal covered garbage cans and other refuse containers.
3. By eliminating all breeding places through the removal of boarded passages, yards, etc.
4. By killing him, through poisons, traps and natural enemies.
5. By enforcement of anti-rat ordinances.

Instructions On Rat Extermination

Don't allow piles of rubbish or trash to accumulate about your premises. They harbor rats.

Don't pile lumber or kindling directly on the ground. Place on racks about two feet high. Rats live in and burrow under such piles.

Don't throw garbage on the ground. Keep it in metal cans with tight fitting lids and have it regularly removed. Keep grain in metal protected container. Starve the rats.

DON'T PLACE RAT POISON WITHIN EASY REACH OF CHILDREN. PLACE IT ALSO OUT OF REACH OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS. IT IS DANGEROUS AND WILL KILL.

Don't mix or handle poison or handle traps with bare hands. Pass traps through a flame to destroy human scent. Rats are suspicious of human odor.

POISON—BARIUM CARBONATE is the safest poison to use. It can be placed on pieces of buttered bread, fish or meat scraps or made into a dough with four or five parts of flour, meal or oat meal. To add a little bacon grease will make it more enticing. The poisoned bait is placed "in run ways" and holes protected from children and domestic animals.

To make a "run way" place a box three or four inches from an out building and remove a small strip of board from the lower edge of the box next to the building. This makes a "run way" and play ground. After the rats have become accustomed to using the box loosen one of the top boards and introduce different kinds of bait, but no poison. Ascertain which bait they prefer then use that as the poisoned bait.

Concentrated Lye placed in "rat runs" and holes will tend to drive rats away but is not an effective poison.

Carbon Disulphide mixed with water and poured into rat holes will kill and drive them out.

Traps. The spring snap trap is the most efficient. It should be placed in or near rat "runs" and dirt or other material scattered over it for disguise Remove dead rats as soon as possible from the traps and pass traps through a flame before resetting to destroy scents. Generally the addition of bacon grease to trap bait will tend to entice the rats.

These traps should be protected from children and small romestic animals.

USE EVERY SAFE SCHEME YOU MAY KNOW OF FOR KILLING AND RIDDING YOUR PREMISES OF RATS.

DOLLAR DAY IS ANNOUNCED FOR THURSDAY

With a demand on the part of both the merchants and the buying public, created through the double success of the Record News dollar days, the second of these events is announced for Thursday of this week.

The last dollar day afforded an opportunity to the merchants to bring the smaller articles in their stocks prominently to the attention of the buying public—articles which are generally overlooked in a large sale.

It allowed the buying public an opportunity of securing unusual bargains and discounts on the smaller and necessary articles of merchandise.

A great many really remarkable values were offered to the public on the last occasion, and similar offers will be made on the coming day.

Testimony to the success of the first dollar day was offered both by the merchants and by the public.

"It was a real opportunity for both the merchant and the public," said John W. Thomas, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association, in speaking of the last dollar day. "It was an entire success. I think the Record News is entitled to considerable amount of credit for their commendable enterprise in organizing this event—one performing a service both to the man who sold and the ones who bought."

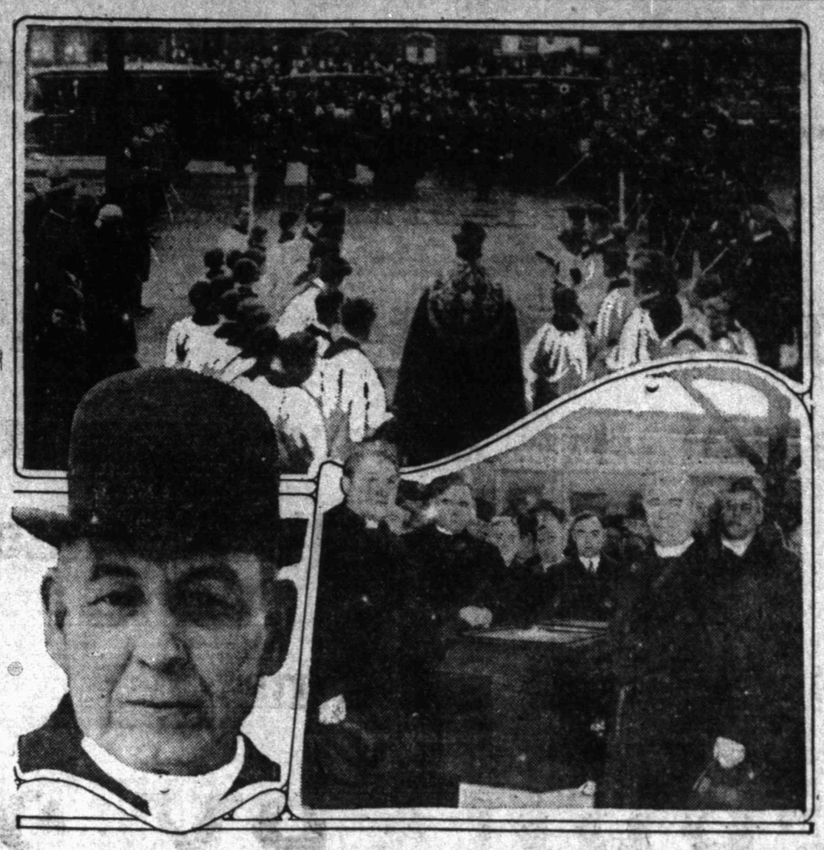
CLERGY FROM MANY PARTS OF COUNTRY HONOR DEAD BISHOP



Picture of Bishop John P. Farrelly, taken a short time before his death, and scene attending arrival of his body in Cleveland. Above, St. John's cathedral choir boys chanting "Miserere" and Knights of St. John standing with drawn swords as body of bishop was being carried into cathedral house. Below, priests carrying body to hearse from train. The pallbearers were the Revs. T. F. McMahon, P. J. O'Connell, James A. McFadden, George P. Murphy, Gilbert P. Jennings, James O'Leary and C. H. Le Blond.

A message of regret from the vatican, where the bishop was known because of his twenty years as spiritual director at the American college at Rome, are among the hundreds of expressions of sympathy and tribute received by associates of Bishop John P. Farrelly, head of the Cleveland diocese. Bishop Farrelly died from pneumonia, contracted while saying mass a short time ago at Nashville, Tenn. He was taken seriously ill while at the home of a friend in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday, Feb. 12.

The body arrived in Cleveland two days later and was to lie in state in St. John's cathedral until Thursday. Bishop Farrelly's body will be placed beneath the crypt in the cathedral, where his three predecessors in the diocese are buried.

MID-CONTINENT ADOPTS PLAN TO CURTAIL DRILLING

TULSA, Feb. 19.—Rules for the stoppage of drilling in the oil field of Oklahoma were drafted, here today by the Mid Continent Oil and Gas association.

The association held that until the market approaches normal again that producers should not drill in a well unless it was an offset to producing wells, or unless forced to go ahead by legal restrictions.

The pipe line companies, it was announced, at the meeting have agreed to co-operate in the stoppage program.

DODSON WARNS CALOMEL USERS

It's Mercury! Attacks the Bones, Salivates and Makes You Sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid, which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and cannot salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constiptation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

Knocked Out In Battling Local "Cops"

In a fight between two city detectives and five men occupying a room in an uptown apartment Saturday night, Conner O'Neil, living in the apartment, was knocked unconscious by one of the officers. He was taken to the Wichita General hospital, where he regained consciousness. He later left the hospital.

The men used abusive language and had taken a revolver from one officer when the other officer came to his rescue, according to the story told by the officers. The arrests were being made on complaints of other occupants of the apartment, they declared.

During the fight four of the men and two women whom the police state were in the room when the officers arrived, made their escape. Their identity is known and it is expected that other arrests will be made today.

In India last year 1,162 persons were killed by tigers.

SECRETARIES OF STATE HAVE MADE UNITED STATES HISTORY; C. E. HUGHES IS NOW SLATED FOR THAT PORTFOLIO

The great office of secretary of state, to which it is generally accepted Mr. Harding will appoint Charles E. Hughes of New York, has peculiar distinctions in our national history. It is an office which in reality is older than the government itself, for John Jay was elected secretary of foreign affairs five years before the adoption of the federal constitution. It is an office which has been held by a line of men whose names are more impressive, from a purely intellectual standpoint, than the list of our presidents.

Several of the men who headed the state department became presidents and all were distinguished, especially so at the bar or on the bench. The first secretary of state, John Jay, was one of the great legal and diplomatic minds that formed the republic. William Seward ranks among great secretaries of state, not only because of his generally high qualities as a statesman, but because of his accomplishments as Lincoln's official during the Civil war.

Seward was a big man when he entered the cabinet and a bigger man when he left it. Not since the Revolution had our foreign affairs called for such a combination of wisdom and firmness. The North expected Seward not only to repel European intervention, but to prevent European recognition of the Confederacy, and the secretary of state was able to do all that was asked of him. The Trent affair and the French intervention in Mexico were among the grave diplomatic problems which Seward handled with tact and success. His greatest diplomatic triumph in peace was the purchase of Alaska from Russia. Seward was twice governor of New York and twice a senator in congress from that state, and in both offices distinguished himself. The state department for years after Seward's incumbency felt the results of his work there, for he reorganized a department which had suffered from the spoilsmen.

Like Webster, James G. Blaine was twice secretary of state. His first period in the office was brief, being terminated by the death of President Garfield. Three years later, in 1884, he was the republican nominee for the presidency and was narrowly beaten by Cleveland. When Benjamin Harrison entered the White House in 1889 he summoned Blaine, the most brilliant and perhaps the most popular man of his party, to be his premier. Blaine's three years in the state department produced a record that measures up to his general public accomplishments. He made a good treaty with Germany respecting the Samoan islands. He negotiated the Blaine-Pauncefote treaty of 1802 relative to the Bering sea fisheries. He forced Chile to admit the inviolability of our legation at Santiago and to pay indemnity for the killing of American sailors by a Valparaiso mob. His note to Italy on the subject of the Italians who were lynched for assassinating the New Orleans chief of police is a model of vigor. Like two of his predecessors, Webster and Clay, Blaine was a popular idol whose failure to reach the presidency was a matter of regret to millions of followers.

The successor of Hay, who served under McKinley and Roosevelt, Elihu Root, was a vastly bigger figure in the public eye than Hay himself. His services as secretary of war had been highly beneficial, for he reorganized the department, planned the war college, created the general staff and applied the merit system as far as practicable to the promotion of officers. Five years of Root did much for the war department, and President Roosevelt, on the death of John Hay in 1905, was glad to have America's greatest lawyer take over the state department. In Root's term of office no wars or important international disputes occurred; so he devoted his efforts to improving our relations with the Spanish-American countries. Since he left the state department Mr. Root has been a larger figure than ever. As senator, as counsel for the United States in the North Atlantic fisheries arbitration, as a member of the Hague court of arbitration and as president of the New York constitutional convention of 1915 he has taken a very active part in public affairs at home and abroad.

When Elihu Root left the state department, his place was taken by another statesman almost of equal fame in the matter of legal ability. Philander C. Knox was regarded as the greatest business lawyer in America when in 1901 he accepted the attorney generalship and proceeded to silence his critics with his proceedings against the Northern Securities company and the Beef Trust and with his report to congress making clear the status of trusts and combinations in the law. In the state department Mr. Knox continued Mr. Root's good work of making better friends with the South American republics and he made a successful tour of the southern continent. His great work in the senate last year, in opposition to the Wilson covenant, showed further qualities of statesmanship.

These with other big men, as Monroe, Webster, Olney and Sherman, have filled our state department. And the public, which sees in Justice Hughes one of the finest legal minds of the age and many marks of the highest statesmanship, expects to have his name burn as brightly as the others on the brilliant scroll of lawyers, statesmen and diplomatists.

PRISONERS HOLD ELECTION.

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—Deer Island has held its first political rally. Twelve candidates, all prisoners, made ringing speeches to their fellow-inmates, soliciting votes in their own behalf in the election of five delegates to conduct the newly organized Mutual Welfare league.

It is said that there are only three mats of ivory in existence. The largest one measures eight by four feet, and although made in the north of India, has a Greek design for a border. It is used only on state occasions, like the signing of important state documents. The cost of this precious mat was almost incalculable, for more than 6,400 pounds of pure ivory were used in its construction. Only the finest and most flexible strips of material could be used and the mat is the finest woven fabric.

The orientals have cultivated a taste for our jewelry in preference to their own and American salesmen are reporting a remarkably strong demand for the products of the occident. This is particularly true of China and Japan. Watches of all grades are sought.

After having tried for a number of years to get over and around the hills surrounding their city, the residents of Pittsburg have decided to strike at the heart of the difficulty and go through them. Accordingly tunnelling operations have been gotten under way which, when completed, will result in a double-tube bore that will accommodate pedestrian, street car and vehicular traffic, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The estimated cost of the undertaking is between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 and it is expected that two years will be required for its completion. It establishes no precedent as another bore, made several years ago, has given satisfactory service, although reserved for the use of street cars only.

BLACKSMITH'S IDEA OF TOMBSTONE VERSE

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Henry Jackson, some time blacksmith and farrier of Cheshunt, has given the local burial board a posthumous problem.

It is the problem of an epitaph. Henry Jackson left instructions that his tombstone should bear these words:

My head and hammer lie reclined,
My bellows, too, have lost their wind,
My fire's extinguished, forge decayed,
And in the dust my vise is laid,
My coal is spent, my iron gone;
Last nail is driven; my work is done.

The burial board at first decided that they could not permit the inscription, but they thought again, and have instructed their clerk to refer the matter to the local bishop for a ruling.

BEARS CONTROL LIVELY SESSION IN STOCK MART

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Bears exercised undisputed control over today's short but lively stock market sessions, availing themselves of adverse overnight advices to bring about further impairment of quoted values.

Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, the weakest feature of the previous day, when it suffered an extreme decline in excess of 10 points, was under renewed pressure, sustaining a net loss of 6 points on far the largest turnover of any security. Oils as a group were most conspicuous, latest developments in the Mexican field giving impetus to renewed liquidation.

Reactions extended to steels, equipments, motors and coppers, finally embracing many miscellaneous issues. Leathers also sustained severe declines.

Rails alone were comparatively immune from the general selling movement, which continued almost to the heavy close, when short coverings served to effct some moderate rallies.

Nominal dealings in bonds, including Liberty issues, indicated further price irregularities, several of the recent foreign flotations manifesting further reactionary tendencies.

NEW YORK SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The local market for raw sugar was quiet and as no fresh business was reported prices were unchanged at 4¾ for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 5.64 for centrifugal.

The market for refined was steady and unchanged at 7.50 for fine granulated. There was a fair inquiry report, although the demand is said to be diminishing. There was only a quiet trade in futures and operators were inclined to vene up and await developments in connection with the proposed Cuban selling plan. It was reported that the committee in Cuba would begin operations next week, which led to a little covering and prices advanced slightly, closing unchanged at 4 points higher. March closed at 4.98; May 5.23; July 5.44; September 5.63.

HIGHER WHEAT PRICES RESULT FROM EVENING

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Week end evening up and some buying credited to seaboard accounts was responsible for higher wheat prices today. Other cereals were affected by wheat and provision recovered some of their loss because of the strength in grains. At the finish wheat recorded a net gain of ⅞ to 1 cents, with March 1.70 to 1.70¼ and May 1.60 to 1.60¼. Corn finished ⅜ to 1¼ cents higher and oats wer up ⅛ to ⅝ cents. Provisions were 10 to 25 cents lower.

Wheat gained strength after a small break at the start and finished strong. There was heavy profit taking by shorts throughout the session and this was the principal source of the strength. Some buying was encouraged by reports of 11,000,000 bushels sold for export at the seaboard the past few days.

There was some good class of buying of May corn to remove hedges against sales to the seaboard and the latter reported around half a million buahels sold for exports.

Oats followed corn and advanced readily.

Provisions were easier on selling by some houses on outside orders, but made moderate recoveries because of the strength in grains.

COTTON TRADE SLOW ON DULL, UNEASY MART

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—Evening up quotations during the week, and preparation for pending first March notices furnished the bulk of the trade in the cotton market today. Holders of long contracts evidently continued fearful that March notices in the New York market would be heavy and act as a weight against values. The ring did not absorb their offering well there being less realizing on the short side that might naturally have been expected after the declining tendency of the week.

Closing quotations were at net losses of 6 to 20 points. March was the weakest month.

Unfavorable weather over the belt attracted attenion for it was considered that the rain and snow would seriously interfers with plowing; which has been making rapid progress. At the same time the weather did no more than steady th market at the decline.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. — The cotton market showed continued weakness today with March making another low record for the season, while later months sold into new low ground for the movement in the case of most deliveries. The markets closed barely steady at a net decline of 7 to 20 points.

The market opened steady, selling by the south and southern spot houses being pretty well absorbed at the start by covering for over the week end and Washington's birthday. Offerings increased on slight rallies, owing to less favorable reports from the domestic goods trade, continued fears of sput liquidation before new crop financing is completed, the weakness of foreign exchange rates, and the further decline in the London market for bar silver. Private cables from Liverpool reporting that British coal miners would accept a reduction in wages without striking, led to some covering in the morning, but failed to check the decline. Last prices were approximately the lowest of the day.

Fall River advices said that if there was not an improvement in demand or prices, mills there probably would resume short times operations and there were reports that Carolina bankers were advising farmers to sell enough of their old crop cotton to liquidate at least 50 per cent of their outstanding obligations.

OHIO COLLEGE TO TURN OUT FINISHED BUSINESS MEN UNDER NEW OFFICIALS

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio, Feb. 19.—A college to develop young men Aband women who will be able immediately after graduation to take charge of virtually all kinds of industrial plants and business houses as propreitors and executives is about to be developed in Ohio, under the direction of a Quaker, a civil and hydraulic engineer of wide reputation, who is trying to revolutionize American education. The man is Arthur Ernest Morgan, the newly elected president of Antioch conege, an institution at Yellow Springs, Ohio, which for many years has been in a dying state. The college was founded in 1853 and was the first in the country to admit women on equality with men in all courses of study, though not the first to provide co-education for the sexes.

The college will not only save students from all expenses for tuition, board, fees of every kind and charges for books, but it will itself be supported and expanded by the students' own efforts. There will be around it a fringe of plants, factories, business and financial houses conducted by students under specially trained leaders. The course will be six years.

Mr. Morgan has reorganized the board of trustees and has induced among others to serve on the new board, Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York capitalist and financier, and Jerome Greene, formerly secretary of the New York general education board.

What Is Sought?

The new trustees aim to make Antioch:

A college whose buildings will be constructed by students under supervision and whose maintenance charges will be met by students.

A college whose entrance requirements will compel all who want to matriculate to pass tests showing intelligence of high order, excellent physical condition and fine character.

A college that will aim at both practice and theory, the students pursuing studies part of the time and working in plants, factories and business houses virtually all the remaining time.

A college which will set as its standard a cultural development fairly equivalent to the liberal arts institutions now existing and yet will enable the students to make short cuts to high stations in the economic life of the country.

How much money President Morgan has raised for his enterprise has not been disclosed, but the rapidity with which the project is developing indicates that he will have a large fund available. His method does not require an initial outlay of millions. The main point has been to enlist the support of business and financial men.

He is already developing his plan into actual practice. At present there are about 200 students at Antioch. A dozen miles away is Springfield, an industrial center, with rolling mills, factories, machinery plants and manufacturing establishments. President Morgan has arranged already with forty of these industrial and business corporations to enter into his educational scheme.

Dayton and Xenia are also near Yellow Springs, and it is President Morgan's plan to incorporate these business fiells into his college scheme. Antioch college as it exists has a value of more than $1,000,000. It has a large administraton building, a recitation hall and two dormitories. These are the principal structures on the campus.

In this college scheme President Morgan is insistent on physical education as absolutely essential. "Probably ten per cent of the student's aggregate school time," he said, "should be given to this subject."

Summarizing the division of the student's school time, President Morgan allots 45 per cent to cultural subjects, 30 per cent to general vocational courses, 15 per cent to special vocational courses and 10 per cent to physical education.

How It Started.

When antioch got into the slow dry rot several months ago that something had to be done, Mr. Morgan was one of the trustees. He had large engineering interests, traveled extensively around the country, but the germ of an educational idea that had been in his mind for years led him to accept the presidency of the college. This germ had been tested in a small way and had proved a success.

Here is how it was done. Mr. Morgan married a Wellesley college graduate, who had fitted herself for teaching. As a student she had won high honors. In his profession Mr. Morgan had seen many technical school and college graduates who were well equipped with theories but lacked the training for stepping into important tasks. He came to the conclusion that the system of education needed revision, so he and his wife started at the bottom.

They started a school, Moraine Park school, based on making studies interesting to children from kindergarten age up to 12 or 14. The school was divided into several compartments, representing a printing house, a bank, a store, etc. It was a miniature municipality. To run the little printing house, bank, etc., the children had to know arithmetic, writing and reading. With Mrs. Morgan's assistance the school became so successful that the demand for admission far exceeded the accommodations.

So when Antioch college, whose first president was Horace Mann, was almost gasping its last breath Mr. Morgan decided that the Moraine Park school principle should be applied to the higher realm of education. In traveling around the country he unfolded his ideas to many business and professional men as well as educators.

China Handicapped by Corrupt And Ignorant Leaders, Former Baylor Professor Declares

Corrupt officials, in a land filled with ignorance and superstitious reliance in their leaders, who allow themselves to be hoodwinked on the one hand and bribed on the other by land hungry Japanese diplomats, were declared to be the greatest handicap to efforts to arouse the sleeping powers of China by Dr. H. L. Hargrove, former teacher in Baylor university and for seven years a teacher in China, in an interview Saturday.

Conceit and deceit bolstered with an unfathomable oriental ingenuity were characterized as the chief traits of the Japanese people. He declared that they have used their deceitfulness in a thousand ways in China. Secret treaties and trades, in which discarded army supplies, including arms and ammunition, are palmed off on the Chinese people, were sighted as some of many indignities suffered by the Chinese peoples through the crookedness of Chinese officials and the machinations of the Japanese.

University students form an active factor in molding public opinion and provide leadership for may reforms, according to Dr. Hargrove. He said that the mass of the people are entirely ignorant of even the rudiments of an education.

Under the old Confucian school the people were taught, and practically forced to follow the mandates of the university leaders and this custom still clings in many parts.

He declared that the university students there are thoroughly organized and that recently they went on a strike from school and took the stump in opposition to certain officials instrumental in negotiating a corrupt treaty. He declared that the students won the people over to their side and at least partially accomplished their object.

Japanese goods are often seized at stations, where they are being received and burned as a warning to merchants that Japanese trade will not be tolerated and one merchant was marched down a street and then horsewhipped as an example to others.

The famine in China beggars description, said Dr. Hargrove. Where one million are starving in Europe, there are five million starving in China. He declared that the people had eaten all the herbs from the ground and bark from trees in an effort to prevent starvation, and that their only hope for life is the help of the United States. Chinese parents sell their girls into slavery to obtain money to buy food.

With reference to the probability of war between the United States and Japan Dr. Hargrove declared that he believed them too wise to ever actually come to war, and prophesied that they will continue their crafty encroachments on the rights of every nation. He declared, however, that the Japanese being a militaristic nation, modeled after the plan of the former kaiser's war machine, may be compared to a "pistol-toting" man and that trouble may eventually arise.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Jack and Mary at lunch while "on location."

This is our very newest picture of Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks. It was taken but a short time ago when Mary was filming "Through the Back Door." Often when on location the little star must dine in picnic fashion when luncheon time rolls around, and this was taken just after Mary and Jack had feasted on sandwiches, jelly, cakes and milk a la school children. Jack Pickford is co-directing his sister's pictures and promises to develop into a real director in his own right if he keeps on.

It was reported several months ago that he would make pictures for his wife delayed his plans and now he has given up the idea for a time.

Giving 'Em Instructions

Extra men and women who find it difficult to know what to do and what not do in society scenes would do well to read Allen Holubar's instructions. He purposes publishing them in a book and is passing them along to other directors who have had the same trouble in coaching players as he has had in "Man—Woman—Marriage."

Mr. Holubar says:

Do not lift your dancing partner by the ears.

Do not drag back the right leg in making a bow.

Do not nudge your hostess in the ribs to attract her attention.

In no circumstances must men playing "diplomats" engage in fisticuffs while the camera is clicking.

Dowagers must not shoot crap with the property man it interferes with their work.

Dinner guests must not eat all the food until it is certain that a retake will not be necessary.

While dining the guests will keep the elbows close to the ribs and avoid bayoneting their neighbors with their funny bones.

More Cupid Stuff

According to advices received from the coast, Lila Lee has confirmed the report of her engagement to Capt. Claude Collins of the United States aviation service. Miss Lee is very young and will not marry Captain Collins for a year or more. Her real name is Gussie Appel, and she is now under the guardianship of her own mother, after having been practically reared by Mr. and Mrs. Gus Edwards, who took her when she was a tiny child.

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH AFTER HE KILLS DETECTIVE

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Feb. 19.—Johnnie Davidson, a detective, was shot and instantly killed by Joe Harris, negro, about 10 p. m. Saturday. Tony Margiotta, partner of the dead officer, in a vain effort to save his life, shot and killed the negro, but not before the black had fired two shots into the body of Davidson. Two of the negro's bullets grazed Mr. Margiotta's head, burning part of the hair from the right side.

QUAKER CITY MISS HAS MODEST SUIT FOR PALM BEACH

Miss Elizabeth Brockie of Philadelphia.

It's more than an open winter at Palm Beach this year and society folk from all over the United States are enjoying the warm breezes at that famous Florida resort. This smiling miss in the unusually modest—in these delightful modern days—bathing suit is a Quaker City miss, Elizabeth Brockie.

A most unusual theft was that of a river barge containing 12,000 feet of lumber, which was stolen one night recently from a wharf on the Alabama river.

JEFFREY WELL MAKES SHOWING AT NEWCASTLE

An oil and gas showing in the lime at 3400 feet is reported this week-end from the test of the Arkansas Oil and Gas Company on the Jeffrey, seven miles northwest of Newcastle, Young county. One hundred and fifty feet of lime and shale, with a good showing of oil and gas have been drilled, according to these reports. Arrangements are being made to test.

The news is interesting since it brings a new locality into the limelight, the Newcastle section having been almost entirely passed up since the South Bend pool has been the sensation of the North Texas district. This is getting over into the part of Young county which was first brought to the attention of oil operators by the Texas Company operations. The bad weather will probably delay a test of the Arkansas Texas for a time.

An epitaph reads as follows:

"This yere is sakrid to the memory of William Henry Skaraken, who was shot by Colt's revolver—one of the old kind, brass mounted, and of sich is the kingdom of heaven."

DINNER STORIES

Now that Mr. Wells has called Napoleon a conceited clown aping the ways of Alexander and Caesar—quoting Victor Hugo here and there in the process—he may turn to various pages of "Les Miserables" and reread what Hugo said about the Duke of Wellington.

A Scotchman came south to have a look at London. He spent a few days in ondon, and sped back to Scotland again.

On the first night of his return to his little village up in the wilds to his friends gathered around him to hear his opinion of the town whose streets were "paved with gold."

He told the tale as only a Scot can—short and candid, without too much padding; then a friend interrupted him.

"Ho long wur ye in Lunnon a' the gither, Jock?"

"Ameot a week," replied the traveler.

"Pa, what's an actor?"

"An actor, my boy, is a person who can walk to the side of a stage, peer into the wings at the group of other actors waiting for their cues, a number of bored stage hands and a lot of theatrical odds and ends and exclaim, 'What a lovely view there is from this window!'"

Cypher Club Charity Ball Nets European Children's Fund $380 And Proves Gala Society Event

One of the most beautiful and thoroughly enjoyed dances in the memory of Wichita Falls society were a few of the expressions of an unusually large crowd which attended the charity ball given by the Cypher club at the Kemp hotel Friday night. Wichita Falls society was there in recognition of the worthy cause, and the affair enjoyed a very pleasing patronage, despite the inclement weather.

The European children's relief fund, which received the net proceeds, will be helped to the extent of over $380, not counting the money for tickets which have not been turned in so far.

Starting with the grand march, led by Homer Crawford and Miss Gay Grwnn, the couples wended in and out, describing the Cypher club emblem, with four musicians of the Doc Ross Jazz Bandits acting as the four letters contained in the club name. R. J. Marin, president of the club, directed the unique march. When the couples forming the design had completed the movement, William Viner made an announcement in behalf of the club, inviting all the mothers and guardians of the young lady guests of the club dances to be present as chaperons at all of the club affairs, and emphasized that the high standards of the organization which have been maintained in the past would continue in the future dances.

As an extra cabaret attraction the dancers were treated to several selections by Harry Peterson, who, with Shelia Terry and Morris Lloyd, presented "Three's a Crowd" at the Palace theater, and a comedy skit by Powers and Wallace from the same line entitled "Georgia on Broadway." These cabaret features were furnished by the courtesy of the Palace theater and the artists, and were thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The beautiful ballroom of the Kemp was decorated in the Cypher club colors with small streamers hanging along the walls at intervals bearing out the color motif. Although the floor seemed to be rather crowded, due to the unusual patronage, everyone seemed to enjoy the affair all the more. A number of out-of-town visitors were present at the dance, as well as those local guests of the club.

Punch was served throughout the evening.

Kids Started for Wilson's Office Now Dodging Pen

"When my boys were babies I saw in them future presidents, diplomats or cabinet members, and such, but after a few years I feel like I will be doing well if I manage to keep them out of the penitentiary."

This humorous illustration of the revision of motherly ambitions and ideas on the rearing of children prefaced one of the most interesting talks made at the Tuesday meeting of the Wichita Falls Federation of Women's clubs and the discussion that followed of the problems confronting the mother in making "home laws" indicated that a highly interesting year's study may be expected in the city federation.

Much satisfaction has been heard expressed informally among those present at this opening meeting in the program as outlined by Mrs. James C. Berney and her committee.

As has been previously published the study will relate to the management of the home and the children, and to the care and feeding of infants.

The policy of making each meeting an open forum for discussion of individual problems and also of individual ideas that have been put into operation to meet the various problems is one which insures the meetings will always be of interest.

The program schedule also provides for a study of other subjects of interest to women, including literature, art, drama and matters of local civil interest, these to be handled through the medium of the various clubs.

The clubs will be kept in touch with the work of each other through reports which will intersperse each program, according to the outline submitted by Mrs. Berney at the first meeting of the federation and approved in full.

SHRINE LEASES AUDITORIUM AT AVIATION FIELD

Arrangements are being perfected according to Walter D. Cline, potentate of the Muskat temple for the remodeling of the building formerly used as aero repair shop at Call Field into an auditorium seating over 3,000 people.

When completed, this auditorium will be used for all Shrine meetings and ceremonials.

Stanley Field, local architect, is at present working on the plans for the conversion and work on the subject will be speeded up. When completed it will be one of the largest auditoriums in this part of the state. Being situated on the paved road and therefore accessible from the city, it is believed this auditorium will be a great factor in advancing the work of the local temple.

The next ceremonial of the local temple will be held the first week in May at which time it is hoped a class of 500 novices will be initiated.

A George Washington drill and ball will be held Tuesday evening starting at 8:30 at the Arcadia hall. Music will be furnished by the Shrine band of 50 pieces, which has reached a high state of efficiency under the conductorship of Joe E. Ward.

The Shrine drill patrol, with Horace Robbins as captain, will make its first public appearance in its new uniforms on this occasion. Drills have been going on for some time and a good showing is anticipated by the patrol. Every noble is urged to be there and wear his fez.

Beginning Saturday, February 26, the Shriners will hold weekly luncheons at the Kemp hotel. A novel program has been arranged for the initial luncheon which will be held at 12 o'clock sharp. It is rumored that some prominent Shriner will leave the hotel next Saturday with a valcable present. Julian Montgomery, city engineer, will have charge of the arrangements of the luncheon.

Maskat temple instituted August 31st, 1920 with something like 400 nobles now has a membership of over 1,000. It is Potentate Cline's desire to double the membership during the present year. The local temple is one of the livest in the entire state and is working to be up among the largest.

THREE-INCH LEAD PENCIL GOT OUT OF BABE'S FACE

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—Theodore Boisseau, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boisseau, from whose upper jaw a piece of lead pencil three and one-half inches long was removed, is rapidly recovering from the effect of the operation, one of the most unusual ever performed.

When an X-ray was taken of the boy's face it was believed that a broken bone was the cause of the swelling on the cheek. The pencil, which had been imbedded in the child's face for months, was brought to light when the surgeons made an incision at the point of the upper jaw where little Edward felt the worst pain.

Last October he was struck by an automobile and in some unusual manner the pencil was driven into his face.

Private James Cunningham won a 90-day furlough from Camp Dix, N. J., when he shinned up a 90-foot pole to replace a pully that civilian workmen said could not be replaced without lowering the pole. Woman Mends Locks

One of the few women locksmiths in America is Mrs. C. C. Buble of New Orleans.

Mrs. Pankhurst Says:

"There are only two class distinctions today—poverty and ignorance. Both can be overcome by education. The war swept away that foolish class pride that frowned upon women who did useful things. Today it is the idler, the waster of time and money, who is in turn frowned upon by the sensible women of our best society; and I use this term in its broadest sense."

Believing that every woman should be doing something of benefit not only to herself but to her community and the larger community of humanity, Mrs. Pankhurst, the former English suffrage leader, thus expressed herself.

She Won't Talk Much

In saying her official goodbye to Oklahoma, Miss Alice Robertson, only congresswoman-elect told members of the American Legion in Muskogee she was going to Washington to "keep my eyes open and my mouth shut."

This would be a pretty good plan for all women, and men, too, who are new to public duties and offices.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS PRESENT PLAYLET

A large and appreciative audience of friends and members of the Royal Neighbors greeted the performance of the playlet entitled "The Corntassel Family," which was presented by the camp at the hall in the Swartz Wood building Thursday evening.

The camp wishes to thank all who took part and helped to make the entertainment a success, and announces that it will put on another playlet, "The Deestrick Skule" in the near future.

CHORUS OF FIFTY TO SING "FILM"

London, Feb. 19.—An experiment unique in the history of the film world will be made in Manchester at the end of March, when a new film, "Christopher Columbus," will be screened with vocal and instrumental accompaniment.

The voices will number 50, including six principals and will be heard during the hour and a half run of the film.

The promoters of the experiment claim that such an attempt has never been made before, even in the United States.

GOVERNMENTAL CHANGE MEANS LITTLE TO HIM

By HARRY L. ROGERS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—Secretaries, ambassadors, ministers and department heads may await the change of administrations with fear and trembling, but there is one employe of the state department who is not worrying. He is Edward Savoy, diminutive colored messenger of the secretary of state.

HARRY L. ROGERS

Since 1869 "Eddie has attended at the secretary's door, ushering in and out the princes, potentiates, diplomats, politicians and mere pests who from time to time find it necessary or expedient to pay a visit to the senior member of the American cabinet.

In many ways Eddie is distinguished. To begin with, he knows the names and faces of probably a greater number of the world's public men than any other living person. His memory in this regard is proverbial among officials, and he can be relied upon to furnish at a moment's notice the pedigree of almost any caller at the secretary's office, whether the visitor hail from Latin America, Europe or the orient.

The department abounds in stories of diplomats returning to Washington after an absence of 10 to 15 years, only to be recognized, catalogued and ticketed by this little russet-colored Who's Who in diplomacy before they have even presented cards or credentials.

During the 52 years of presiding at the little desk just outside the secretary's door, Eddie has served many distinguished chiefs. With characteristic reserve, however, he is cautious of expressing a preference. Hobnobbing with diplomats all his life, he has acquired to a considerable degree their manner of speaking and there is just a suggestion of that diplomatic "cageyness" which is the bane of newspaper correspondents reporting the activities of the state department.

Throughout his diplomatic career, however, Eddie has labored under one handicap which, in part, at least, arises from physical peculiarities of figure over which he has no control. In showing the way to a strange diplomat it is his custom to precede the visitor by a few feet, meantime lending verbal encouragement by the remark: "Walk this way, please, sir."

If it is recalled that Eddie is probably the bow-leggedest man in the world, it will not be difficult to understand that inexperienced diplomats are sometimes amazed at the little man's polite request.

BELGIAN NUNS ARE GUESTS AT SCHOOL

Students of the Academy of Mary Immaculate honored Mother Gonzague and Sister Julienne, visitors from Belgium, with a reception given at the academy on Tuesday evening. Mother Gonzague since the war occupies the responsible position of superior general and is visiting all of the schools of the Sisters of St. Mary in the United States and Canada.

A feature of the entertainment Tuesday evening was a recital rendered in the school auditorium, which was opened with a song of welcome by the whole student body. The next number was a "Greeting," given by Miss Sheilagh Kananagh. Little Miss Rose Marion Art sang "Paries Vous Francais," and Misses Edna Black and Mary Margaret Lewis played the "Hungarian Dance," after which the Boys' Glee club, accompanied by Miss Ethel Moran and Edna Steed on violins, sang "Mother o'Mine."

A reading, "Uncle Alic's Bad Talks," was given by Miss Elvia Allman, after which Miss Grace Hall rendered a piano solo.

Miss Stella Hill sang "Sorter Miss You," accompanied by Miss G. Hall at the piano and with violin obligato by Miss Moran.

The closing song, "The Day Is Done," was sung by the Girls' Glee club, after which Mother Gonzague, in a few well chosen words, thanked the students for their splendid program and cordial welcome, and expressed feelingly the gratitude and appreciation of the people of Belgium for the assistance rendered them so generously by the Americans.

A metal lighter than any yet known and as strong or stronger than steel has for years been the dream of many, and every now and then rumors are circulated to the effect that at last it has been discovered. The latest report relates to a new magnesium alloy said to have been discovered by a metal company in Montreal. The new alloy, it is stated, is only two-tihrds the weight of aluminum and is "as strong as steel." It is said to be especially suitable for pistons and connecting rods of areo and motor-car engines, where strength and lightness are desirable.

Of the 287,000 women who became English brides in 1920, 250 were over 70 years of age.

SUPER-PICKED CAST TO PLAY MAJESTIC BILL

Cecil B. DeMille, director general of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, and producer of "For Better, For Worse," which is to be given a return showing Monday and Tuesday at the Majestic theater, is a stickler for fine acting and he personally selects the cast used in each of his productions.

"For Better, For Worse" is no exception in this particular. All of the roles, from the leads down to the minor parts, are taken by actors of prominence and reputation, and a list of their names is sufficient assurance that the acting will be of the very highest quality.

Elliott Dexter, who will be remembered as the husband in Mr. DeMille's "Old Wives for New," and as the hero in "The Squaw Man," has the leading role.

Tom Forman, a popular leading man, who returns to the screen after devoting many months to army service, will portray the second leading male role. This is Mr. Forman's first appearance under DeMille's direction, although he has distinguished himself in many Paramount pictures.

Gloria Swanson, who has also appeared in many of the DeMille pictures, is the heroine. Miss Swanson is as noted for her beauty as for her acting ability.

Wanda Hawley, another Paramount Arteraft favorite, who will be remembered for her work in "Old Wives for New," "We Can't Have Everything" and other DeMille pictures, is also in the cast. Others are Theodore Roberts, Raymond Hatton, Sylvia Ashton and Jack Holt.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL IS "DEAD BROKE"

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Admiral Michel Kedroff, commander of the remnants of the Russian anti-bolshevik fleet, who has just arrived here from Sebastopol, describes himself as "the poorest admiral in the world." Though at one time one of the wealthiest landed proprietors in Russia, the admiral is now absolutely "broke." When he stopped at Bizerta, Tunis, en route to France, he had to borrow postage stamps from a French naval officer there.

The officers, directors and employees of the City National Bank of Commerce don't believe in red tape, formality or too much dignity, but they do believe in live, progressive, accommodating service to all customers and they strive to live up to this belief all the time. That's one reason why people find this bank such a pleasant place to deal.—Adv.

"Circus King" Pictures Life Of Eddie Polo

Eddie Polo, Universal serial star, who has scenarized his own life in "King of the Circus," a chaptered drama he now is producing, has the distinction of having played before three of the crowned heads of Europe. Just three months before the war began, Polo was playing a vaudeville engagement at the Winter Garden in Berlin and was commanded to appear before the kaiser and give his trapeze performance. Polo was known as the "classiest" of athletes, graceful in every movement and lacking the bulging muscles of the European gymnasts. The former ruler of Germany admired athletic perfection and presented Eddie with a gold cigarette case at the end of his exhibition.

Eleven years ago, when Polo was touring England with an American circus, he was one of three acts that appeared at Buckingham Palace to entertain the late King Edward and his suite at the royal command. The prince of thrills now treasures a signet ring as a memento of the occasion.

Polo also appeared before the King and Queen of Italy some years ago while on a vaudeville tour of Europe. This added much to his prestige in Rome, and his engagement in that city was extended four weeks beyond his original booking. He also has appeared before the ruler of Spain.

During Eddie's trip to England a year ago to film some scenes for his recent serial, "The Vanishing Dagger," King George was reminded that the popular gymnast who had entertained his father was then in London. Before a command appearance at the palace could be arranged, Polo left for France; so the next best thing was done. The Universal Exchange in London had on hand a number of films in which Eddie Polo appeared, and these were sent over and shown at the palace. It is said that the royal party greatly enjoyed the thrills provided by the Universal star.

GIANT OF FILM PRODUCTION TO BE GIVEN HERE

Cecil R. DeMille's superb Paramount picture, "Forbidden Fruit" which will be the feature at the Olympic theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday decidedly marks an era in motion picture production in this country. It is a stupendous photoplay and of such excellence as to entitle it being termed a masterpiece of which any producer might well be proud.

The story is embellished by a vision of Cinderella in which Mr. DeMille's genius is displayed to the finest advantage. It is colorful, strongly effective and produced on a scale of magnificence unexampled even in this day of stupendous productions. Agnes Ayres, the leading woman player is a suffering wife living in a tenement, Clarence Burton, a gambler and crook, plays the role of her husband and Theodore Roberts, is an oil king, who has an important part in shaping the girl's destiny. Jeanie Macpherson, while the photoplay was the work of Alvin Wyckoff and Karl Struss.

The cast is headed by a trio of players who appear for the first time under the DeMille banner. They are Agnes Ayres, Forrest Stanley and Clarence Burton. Miss Ayres, known as one of the most lovely women on the screen, is credited with acting of high merit in this production.

Forrest Stanley is one of the most versatile of leading men. Clarence Burton is a veteran of numerous Paramount productions and is recognized as a character man of rare ability.

In the suporting company are such players as Kathlyn Williams, Theodore Kosloff, Theodore Roberts, Shannon Day, Bertram Johns and Julia Faye.

"DON'T WORRY" GIVEN AS SECRET OF AGE BY WOMAN AGED 104

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—To few women is it permitted to celebrate their one hundred and fourth birthday and to fewer is it permitted to celebrate such a birthday surrounded by two daughters, 74 and 76 years of age, and a son who is 80 years old.

Mrs. Elizabeth Osborne DeHart of 145 Dill avenue, who enjoys these many distinctions, has just celebrated her birthday in the company of her two daughters, Mrs. Lydia A. Price, with whom she makes her home, and Mrs. Mary E. Keese of Nashville, Tenn., and her son Isaac DeHart.

Mrs. DeHart came to Atlanta more than 30 years ago. She was born at Ashbury, N. J., in 1917 and after the war between the states came to Nashville, Tenn., subsequently removing to Atlanta.

Until about two years ago Mrs. DeHart's physical condition was such as to enable her to get about at will, but during the past few months her strength has failed to the point where it is necessary for her to remain in bed most of the time.

"Don't worry" is the panacea Mrs. DeHart recommends to everybody desirous of living to a ripe old age.

160,000 TEACHERS QUIT LAST YEAR

WELLESLEY, Mass., Feb. 19.—Of the 660,000 teachers numbered in the United States last year approximately 160,000 quit their posts for lack of adequate remuneration, according to an estimate made by the department of education at Wellesley college.

The head of the department reports an unusually great dearth in the supply of college trained women for secondary schools. Only as physical instructors are the Wellesley girls said to be getting salaries commensurate with the money offered in business life.

KINGS, QUEENS OF FOWL TRIBE PLAY IN MOVIE

What is a Yanconna Yillie? No, Oswald, it is not the latest thing in futuristic dances nor yet the name of a newly discovered disease.

Yanconna Yillies are the finest chickens in the barnyard kingdom. Chanticleer, it is said, was a Yanconna Yillie. They are born to the purple, they are the royalty of chickendom, their pedigrees will reach from Chicago to Dallas, they are the last word in feathered fowl.

"Chickens," Douglas MacLean's latest Ince-Paramount production, which will be featured at the Empress theater on Monday deals with Yanconna Yillies. True to their traditions they play a noble and honorable role in the young comedians sparkling comedy. They save the day for Deems Stanwood, the star role assumed by MacLean and win for him the desirable hand of Julia Stoneman, enacted by winsome Gladys George.

The story deals with the humorous and at times tragic adventures of a wealthy city chap who takes to chicken farming as the result of his dead uncle's will, aided and abetted by love at first sight. The girl owns the Yanconna Yillies, the pride and envy of the countryside. They command a fabulous price. The boy gets into serious financial difficulties through the dishonesty of his legal guardian and trustee. The Yanconna Yillies come to the rescue, but not before a series of incidents happen which are said to make "Chicken" one of the light comedy triumphs of the season.

Gladys George, leading woman, heads a clever supporting company, Jack Nelson directing and Bert Cann did the photography.

PALACE THEATRE

SPECIAL NOTICE

In order that we may maintain the present high standard entertainment that has made the PALACE the most talked of theatre in North Texas we are forced to make a slight increase in the ORCHESTRA SEATS ONLY.

While the patronage has been all that we expected and even more, the extra high cost of SEVEN ACTS and the extra overhead expense incurred in securing them has resulted in an actual loss during the first three weeks of operation.

Between two policies of operation: to maintain the present prices and reduce the Majestic Vaudeville to FIVE ACTS, or, to continue the entire SEVEN ACTS and make a slight increase in admission, we chose the one recommended us by a number of our most regular patrons and Wichita Falls' most prominent business men, which is the latter policy.

PRICES EFFECTIVE WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23rd

LAWYERS USE BIBLICAL LORE IN ARGUMENTS

BY W. J. HUSKE.
Record News Staff Bureau.

CLEELAND, Feb. 19.—Mellifious sentences, resounding words and quotations from the poets have re-turned to the vocabulary of lawyers with the advent of women jurors, declared Judge Dan B. Cull of the Cleveland common pleas court.

"I've noticed a marked change in the kind of address made by lawyers practising in my court since we have had mixed juries," he said. "Witness baiting will son become a lost art if the new attitude of courtesy assumed by attorneys does not wear off.

"Skilled practitioners believe that woman's sympathy will go out to the person who seems to be getting the worst of it and attorneys now attempt to lead the doubtful witness with soft words to himself admit that his testimony is open to question.

"More than that, attorneys now draw their quotations from the Bible and the classics, with a liberal sprinkling from the poets, rather than from the vernacular of the street and the ball park.

Story of Naomi and Ruth.

"The other day a lawyer defending a young man charged with automobile stealing told the story of Naomi and Ruth and how Ruth fell from grace. He compared his client to Ruth and the jury, which had several women members, returned a verdict of acquittal.

"Women jurors are more attentive than men," the judge continued. "They are always on time, contrary to the popular tradition otherwise. They never keep the court waiting as male jurors frequently do."

The ideal jury, the judge believes, consists of six men and six women members. "It makes the atmosphere of the court more wholesome, the attorneys on both sides are more courteous and the case moves faster," he said.

Other Cleveland judges agreed with Judge Cull.

"Women seem to grasp some facts better than men," said Judge A. J. Pearson. "Perhaps it is their intuition. In cases where money matters are involved women are more considerate than a male jury and smaller verdicts are returned. No doubt this is explained by the fact that women are not accustomed to handling money in the same volume as men and place a higher value on it."

Attorneys Spruce Up.

"Attorneys have abandoned their boastful and self-confident attitude before juries composed partly of women," said Judge Samuel E. Kramer.

Our lawyers dress better since women have become part of the legal machinery," was the contribution of Judge Maurice Bernon to the symposium. "There is a marked tendency to spruce up and appear in court with clothes and and hair very neatly brushed, shown by members of the bar practising in my court.

The lone jurist who has observed no change is Judge Homer C. Powell. "Attorneys in my court carry on their cases in the same way before a jury which has women as before a jury composed entirely of men," he said. I can see no difference."

THESE WOMEN ARE FEW OF MANY WHO EARN FIVE-FIGURE INCOMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—One hundred thousand dollars a year is not a mean salary for a man, even if he is an expert in his line, but it is rather remarkable for a woman, and according to most mere men you might ask casually there are not "so many women getting more than five thousand a year." Here is right where Mr. Mere Man is very much mistaken for there are a goodly number of women, and young, good-looking women they are too, who earn five-figures incomes.

There are two young women, at least, who are making $100,000 a year and it is a significant fact that they are both in the motion picture business. A pay envelope of $25,000 is almost common, and $10,000 stipend is often attained. Scenario writing and cinema directing are the highest paid vocations, while the invasion of banking, advertising and sales fields prove almost as profitable to the experts regardless of sex. Women having proved her mettle by invading the world, is proving her merits by pushing to the very front in the realm of the highest salaried workers, and many women are finding there is romance in commercial pursuits as well as in affairs where sentiment plays a more prominent part.

Anita Loos is making $100,000 as a scenario writer. Francis Marion is making the same as a motion picture director. Jane Martin makes $10,000 as an advertising woman and Miss Clara Porter makes her large income as an officer of one of the large New York trust companies.

Perhaps Anita Loos's story is the most interesting one because it deals with a business known to so few of us. She came naturally by her literary as well as her theatrical talent, for her father was not only an actor and a manager of a theater but an editor also. She played in his productions from the moment she could walk. She began writing motion picture stories at the age of fourteen in San Diego, Calif. She began sending her stories to Mr. Griffith, who was then working in Los Angeles, and they were often accepted. Then she wrote for him two years before he ever saw her and when he did finally meet her he was more than a little surprised at her youth. Later she wrote for Douglas Fairbanks, and then she started writing for Constance Talmadge. She often collaborated with John Emerson, who was formerly a director but is now confining his efforts to writing. Miss Loos is now Mrs. John Emerson in private life. Last year the couple turned out six plays, but this year they expect to do only four, making them better and fewer.

The Woman Film Director

Frances Marion, who writes scripts for Mary Pickford and is one of the two women directors of film productions in the country, is another of the $100,000 a year women.

Miss Marion holds down a man's size job, and an eight-hour day isn't a part of her program. From 8:30 in the morning until 7 at night she is to be found in the New York studio of a film company, where a dozen screen plays are staged at one time, deeply engrossed in the technical problems of her profession.

She not only makes "tests," directs "sets" and otherwise fulfils the same duties a man would, but lends her advice in the many various phases of this absorbing art.

As a child in California, where she was born, Miss Marion's sense of the romantic, an inherent gift that has been at once the source of joy and tribulation in her life, ran rampant. It helped to sell her paintings when in her early teens she started out to earn her own living. It did much to make her career as a newspaper woman on a San Francisco daily one of incressing good fortune. It was the essential quality in her stories when at the turning point in her career she first met Mary Pickford and was engaged to write her scenarios.

From that moment Miss Marion's life has been one mad rush, for during the last six years she has not only written the film plays but has supervised their production for Mary Pickford.

During the war, Miss Marion did relief work in France. She was married about the same time Mary Pickford was and the two went abroad on their honeymoon together.

College Girl as Banker

Miss Clara F. Porter, banker, was the recipient of one of the most conspicious honors bestowed upon women in 1920. As an officer of one of the largest trust companies in New York she has won a prestige that undoubtedly will do much to break down the barriers that stand between women and high places in business for which in so many cases, they are eminently fitted.

"Fresh from college she entered the business field and, she says, took the first job that offered. "That happened to be the position of correspondent for a firm, where I made myself generally useful," said she. "From writings simple business letters I went on to preparing advertising copy and in time became editor of a magazine published in the interests of public service corporations. I became acquainted with the officers of several banks and three years ago was offered a position by the company with which I am now connected.

Miss Porter's is by no means a "show" position, made to curry with women clients, but a real job with all the responsibility and hard work—yes, and the salary—that goes with it. She is assistant secretary of her bank.

J. J. Martin, Advertiser

Jane J. Martin is the advertising manager of one of the largest premium stamp businesses in the east, but although blue eyed and fair, also plump, she is still a woman and declines to say how long it took her to get from a salary of $10 a week to one of $10,000 a year, because that would be telling how old she is.

"Success spells hard work, says Miss Martin, who signs simply "J. J." and leaves the "Miss" to the imagination. "I started at sixteen as a stenographer in a room with nineteen other girls.

"I believe there is a big field for women in the advertising game. At present, there are about 250 women in New York working in it and they all do well. In this business, as in all business lines, the woman who wants to succeed must take the man's point of view."

"J. J." Martin is a member of the executive board of the League of Business Women and president of the League of Advertising Women, and the only woman member of the national executive committee of the National Association of Advertisers.

Thin eyebrows show a lack of vitality and thick ones a highly vitalized temperament together with power and endurance.

As a customer of the City National Bank of Commerce, you have at your command facilities for the handling of every phase of up-to-date banking as well as the counsel and co-operation of officers who are successful, experienced business men as well as bankers.—Adv.

MARKETWARD MOVEMENT OF CATTLE DROPS

BY B. N. TIMMONS,
Record News Staff Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Just how serious the 1920 contraction in the marketward movement of cattle, sheep, hogs, horses and mules was is shown in the report of the department of agriculture today on the receipts and disposition of live stock at public stockyards.

During the year 2,403,744 head of cattle less than in 1919 were handled at the 66 principal stockyards in the country. Local slaughter fell off 1,434,101 in the same period. The figures for receipts at stockyards in 1920 were 22,166,118, compared with 24,569,862 in 1919. Local slaughter in 1920 was 12,185,521, as compared with 13,619,622 in 1919.

Texas, in common with the other cattle producing and cattle slaughtering states, felt the bearish influence of the cattle market. At Fort Worth, the principal livestock center of Texas, receipts fell from 1,266,635 in 1919 to 1,134,323 in 1920. The great packing plants at Fort Worth showed the effect of the sluggish market to a marked degree. Slaughter dropped from 715,090 in 1919 to 557,575 in 1920. Receipts at Amarillo dropped from 184,670 in 1919 to 146,625 in 1920.

El Paso Loses.

El Paso receipts fell from 202,777 in 1919 to 151,693 in 1920. Local slaughter at El Paso dropped from 24,151 in 1919 to 21,044 in 1920.

San Antonio receipts dropped from 250,097 in 1919 to 233,284 in 1920. San Antonio, however, was one of the few markets in the nation where local slaughter increased, more than doubling in this respect, the figures being: 1919, 14,468; 1920, 36,938.

Oklahoma City, a market for West Texas, showed a startling decline, falling from 593,282 in 1919 to 390,706 in 1920. The precentage decrease in slaughter at Oklahoma City was even greater—227,584 in 1920, compared with 367,574 in 1919.

Kansas City, the great Southwestern livestock market, had receipts of 3,085,00 Tin 1919, and only 2,500,166 in 1920, while local slaughter went down from 1,617,196 in 1919 to 1,263,882 in 1920.

Chicago had receipts of 4,253,408 in 1919, and 3,849,495 in 1920. Slaughter at Chicago was 3,082,001 in 1919 and 2,602,863 in 1920.

Small at Others.

Omaha, Wichita, Denver, East St. Louis, St. Joseph and all other cattle markets showed like conditions.

Hogs receipts at the 66 principal hog markets in the country were 2,355,538 less in 1920 than in the year previous. The decline in slaughter for 1920 was 3,253,426 from 1919.

Figures for hogs were: Total receipts, 1919, 44,414,251; 1920, 42,058,713; local slaughter, 1919, 29,999,117; 1920, 26,745,691.

Fort Worth hog receipts in 1919 were 588,004; 1920, 412,637. Local slaughter in that city in 1919 was 463,641, and in 1920 322,194.

Dallas Receipts Gain.

Dallas hog receipts in 1919 were 45,416, and in 1920 56,324. Dallas is one of the few cities showing a gain in hog receipts that also showed a gain in local slaughter ,going upward from 44,060 in 1919 to 56,334 in 1920, showing that all hogs received were slaughtered there.

San Antonio also showed a gain, its hog receipts in 1920, being 28,706, compared with 24,668 in 1919. In local slaughter San Antonio more than doubled jumping from 7,511 in 1919 to 15,835 in 1920.

El Paso receipts fell from 16,731 in 1919 to 15,185 in 1920, but its local slaughter increased from 6,771 to 10,552 in the same period.

Oklahoma City hog receipts fell from 470,066 in 1919 to 340,862 in 1920, while local slaughter in the same period dropped from 360,165 to 287,814.

Kansas Hogs Less.

Kansas City hog receipts fell from 3,140,530 in 1919 to 2,466,419 in 1920, while slaughter dropped from 2,600,480 in 1919 to 1,838,080 in 1920.

Receipts of hogs at Chicago were more than a million less in 1920 than in the previous year, the figures being 8,672,476 in 1919 and 7,528,120 in 1920. Decrease in slaughter was even more marked. In 1919, 7,571,849 hogs were slaughtered; in 1920, only 5,869,592.

Sheep receipts at the 66 stockyards were 3,667,159 less in 1920 than in 1919, while slaughter was 1,768,863 less.

Horse and mule receipts at the 60 principal markets were 330,770 less in 1920 than in 1919, or a decrease for the year of 31 per cent.

BRITISH TIRE OF AMERICAN MOVIE FILMS

By EARL C. REEVES.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The old adage that trade follows the flag may yet be supplanted by a new one, to the effect that trade follows the film, according to Sir Walter de France, member of Parliament and a film producer.

EARL C. REEVES

He is worried about it. He's also worried because so many people worry him about it.

This, he says, is a paraphrase of the statement and question which dogs his footsteps. Everybody says:

"Cinemas aren't bad, of course, but one does get rather tired with so much America stuff. Our own people seem to be very unenterprising. Why can't they produce pictures at least as well as the Americans?"

It is typically British, deFreece concludes, for the Britons to condemn their own people for not being sufficiently wide awake.

"I don't think it quite fair, all the same," he adds. "It doesn't give due recognition to the conditions necessary for success.

"What is lacking? Facile critics say at once, 'lack of enterprise in making use of our assets.' I don't agree. What I should accuse our country of is lack of the capital required.

"The cinema industry may be literally 20 years old, but in its modern developments it is hardly yet a quarter of that age. It has really grown up within the last five or six years. And for the whole of that time everybody's energies in this country were required for war purposes.

America Has World Market.

"Expensive productions like films, it must be remembered, can only be paid for by the world-wide markets. The war gave America a world market for most of her goods, and this world market gave her such profits that her concerns were able to put aside huge sums of development."

For America the film industry rolled up like a snowball, the movie M. P. declares.

"Increased profits increased the capital. The increased capital provided for the cultivation of new markets and gave employment for more people in every department. This, in turn, meant more money to be spent in all directions by the public.

"British concerns have to compete with American concerns which have built up strong organizations with their war-time returns.

"It is not to the credit of British industry that Americans should have to produce pictures with American stars in British surroundings and in a short time I hope the present unsatisfactory state of affairs will come to an end.

"To attain this object British companies are now directing all their energies to manufacturing films worthy of a world-wide market in the hope of stemming, partly, at any rate, the American invasion.

"Once we determine to make up for the lost years of war, and to build up the capital that is so vital to success. I have every confidence that British enterprise and British talent will put us in the front rank in the cinema industry just as these same qualities have done so in every other industry."

VENUS DE MILO CLASSED "STYLISHLY STOUT," DECLARE MODERN GIRLS OF TODAY

Written by Margery Rex for the International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Venus de Milo has always been cited as a standard of perfection in physique.

Every once in a while some authority on physical training expresses his willingness to shake Venus's good right hand—provided someone can find it for him—because she is so different from all the other girls he knows.

At such times the critic, whoever he may be—it is usually a he—makes comparisons with the girls of his day, very much to their disgust.

The disgust is due to two reasons:

First, that anyone should waste time criticizing them when he could better employ his time in admiration.

Second, and more important reason, because the average young woman regards Venus, though considered of model proportions, as merely a "stylish stout" of the old Greek days.

This time the critic of modern measurements of young ladies is Dr. R. Taite McKenzie, of the physical department of the University of Pennsylvania. He opines:

What Dr. McKenzie Thinks

"If we compare the typical student of our women's colleges with the deep-chested vital type that has come to us through the succession of Venuses like the Venus de Milo, we are apt to become pessimistic over the future of the human race." Then he adds:

"This may be some explanation of the fact that the native American race depends for its continuance so largely on immigration."

Now, we have never heard the sighs of many maidens trying to emulate the armless idol of physique worshippers. As a matter of fact, the heroic type of woman is not widely admired of her own sex.

But purely for argument's sake we will offer some opinions concerning modern young women and concerning Venus,, also the respective proportions and claims to consideration of both, including the future of the race, and perhaps, if we have room left, a word about the young man of today.

The opinions offered will be in effect like that very irritating person we all know, who, when asked a question point blank, says slowly and impressively:

"Wh-e-ell, yes AND no."

Our answers will be like that, which is to say some agree with the Pennsylvania doctor and some don't.

From New York university comes a word of comfort. Its sender is Dr. James E. Lough, psychologist. He bids us girls to be of good cheer.

Dr. Lough Takes Cheerful View.

"There is no noticable change in college girls," he says. "I do not consider that they are discouraging in type.

"The outlook as regards physical welfare is excellent. There has never been among young people, particularly young women, such interest in outdoor life and good health.

"College girls of earlier days were far inferior to their present prototypes.

"I should think any of them wouldn't want to take Venus as a model of physical perfection any more than a business man of our day would want to be developed like a gladiator of old.

"Each type has, and has had, its place in life. I am not at all impressed with Dr. McKenzie's comparisons between the college girls of today and Venus."

It seems no more than fair to assume that what is said to be true of the college girl is true of the average girl, since there is nothing in college life to cause physical deterioration. What, then, is the viewpoint of a man of general observation of public health and its effect on the race?

What Girls Want to Know

All of which is most interesting, but it appears to us that the worthy and efficient Dr. McKenzie has not told the one thing about Venus that everyone wants to know. Aside from her "perfect" proportions, and the fact that she has often been called a mere "slouch" the thing people ask is: "How did she get that way?"

The reason young ladies wish to know this is to avoid such a fate.

ACTRESS APARTMENT NO PLACE OF BUSINESS

PARIS, Feb. 19.—An actress' apartment is not her "place of business" despite the fact that she uses it to rehearse some of her parts, the Paris courts have just ruled.

Mlle. Cecile Sorel, noted beauty, sought to extend the lease of her apartment five years under the law that prevents a landlord from expelling a tenant engaged in business. A court expert reported that the two large salons in Sorel's apartment seemed to him to be fitted out rather for impromptu dances and entertainment than for work, and the landlord won.

WORLD WILL END JUST AS IT BEGAN

LONDON, Feb. 19.—In a sermon on "Christian Doctrines in the Light of Evolution," at Westminster Abbey, Canon Barnes said it was certain that just as life began on this earth, so it would at some time cease to exist.

"The whole solar system is cooling, and like a gigantic top is gradually slowing down," he said. "The heat of the sun and of the earth is slowly growing less. Water on the top of the earth will be absrobed by rocks, the atmosphere, if we can judge by the moon, will vanish and the whole process of the biological evolution of the earth will become extinct."

The officers, directors and employees of the City National Bank of Commerce don't believe in red tape, formality or too much dignity, but they do believe in live, progressive, accommodating service to all customers and they strive to live up to this belief all the time. This is ROTARY'S Birthday

During the present week, the Rotary club of this city is uniting with other Rotary clubs in wide-awake cities throughout the United States and in Canada, Cuba, Great Britain and many other foreign lands, to celebrate the sixteenth birthday of this unique organization. Beginning in Chicago, in 1905, with one club of only four members, Rotary has now more than 800 clubs with 65,000 members.

1905 ROTARY 1921

The Rotary Club has come to be known in each locality as a power for good, an example of high standards of ethics and personal character, and a cross-section of the substantial business and professional element of each community.

The remarkable growth of Rotary has been spontaneous, entirely without the aid of systematic or paid organization work, and stands today A Monument to a Big Idea which is gladly accepted by the alert, progressive business and professional element of America and the World. Wherever you find a Rotary community, that community contains a group of men who are earnestly endeavoring to conduct their business and personal activities in accordance with a Creed of Right Living.

To the Rotarian, community prosperity is more desirable than personal profit. His city is "the best in the country" and his country "the best in the world." The Rotarian is an all-wool, yard-wide, he-man, who works hard, plays square, and gives with a smile. He has an eye for a neighbor's need, a hand trained to help, and a heart for true men, good women and little children.

Origin

Rotary was born February 23, 1905. Four Chicago men, one a lawyer, one a mining operator, the third a coal dealer, and the fourth a tailor, decided on that day to organize a club. These men, drawn together through mutual acquaintance, proposed a series of meetings at their respective places of business.

The circle soon was enlarged by representatives from other lines of business so that within a year a membership of fifty was reached.

As the time came for each to act the host, he gave a discourse on his own business so that his guests might learn something worth while regarding it, and thus broaden their own knowledge concerning various businesses outside their own.

The name "Rotary" was selected early in the life of the Chicago Club and was suggested by the early meetings which were held in "rotation" at the various members' places of business.

Growth

In 1908, San Francisco, having learned of the Chicago Rotary Club, patterned one after it. This was in turn rapidly followed by others. Eventually, the National Board of Commissioners, a delegate body representing fourteen clubs, arranged the first National Convention. This was held in August, 1910, at Chicago. At that time the term "National Association of Rotary Clubs" was adopted, but a few years later was changed to "International" in recognition of a Canadian club represented and an application for membership from a club which had been organized in London.

Rotary is now established in the British Isles, in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, China, India, Japan, Panama, Spain, Argentina and Uruguay.

All clubs seeking membership are carefully surveyed to insure proper caliber of personnel and adequate representation of sufficient lines of business to justify membership in the International Association.

The Rotary Platform

RECOGNIZING the commercial basis of modern life as a necessary incident in human evolution, the Rotary Club is organized to express that proper relation between private interests and the fusion of private interests which constitutes society.

To accomplish this purpose more effectively the principle of limited membership has been adopted, the Rotary Club consisting of one representative from each distinct line of business or profession. Each member is benefited by contact with representative men engaged in different occupations and is enabled thereby to meet more intelligently the responsibilities of civic and business life.

The basis of club membership insures the representation of all interests and the domination of none in the consideration of public questions relating to business. On account of its limited membership the Rotary Club does not constitute itself the voice of the entire community on questions of general importance, but its action on such questions is of great influence in advancing the civic and business welfare of the community.

The Rotary Club demands fair dealings, honest methods, and high standards in business. No obligation, actual or implied, to influence business exists in Rotary. Election to membership therein is an expression of confidence of the club in the member elected, and of its good will towards him. As his business is an expression of himself, he is expected actively to represent it.

Membership in the Rotary Club is a privilege and an opportunity and its responsibility demands honest and efficient service and thoughtfulness for one's fellows. Service is the basis of all business.

He profits most who serves best

Objects

The "objects" of the Rotary Club are to encourage and foster—

High ethical standards in business and professions;

The ideal of Service as the basis of all worthy enterprise;

The active interest of every Rotarian in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of his community;

The development of a broad acquaintanceship as an opportunity for Service, as well as an aid to success;

The interchange of ideas and business methods as a means of increasing the usefulness of Rotarians;

The recognition of the worthiness of all legitimate occupations and the dignifying of the occupation of each Rotarian as affording him an opportunity to serve society.

Membership

The Rotary Club is composed of one member from each distinct line of business or profession, although, occasionally one additional representative from the same firm is permitted. Such a plan makes for thorough representation by all branches of business, yet prevents an unwieldy number or the domination of any club by any one business or profession. Such a membership becomes an ideal forum for the consideration of public or civic questions. It prevents lagging interest, for if a lagger develops he is dropped from the club, and the way is opened for a new and alert member.

Contact and exchange of ideas with diversified business interests is broadening in every sense and tends to introduce fresh thought and new viewpoints into every business and profession represented.

Summed up, Rotary is man's humanity to man at its broadest, biggest and best. Wherever you see a Rotarian, there you see a man who is earnestly endeavoring, day by day, to learn how to be of greater service to those about him, working through the medium of his business, through his social opportunities, and through all established agencies of public service

PIRATE HAUNTS NOW BEING USED BY RUM RUNNERS

BY JACK ROYLE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—On the hydrographic charts of the Atlantic coast is a broad dotted section marked "Grand Bahama Banks." There has always been money in those banks, but never have they yielded better profit than since January 16, 1919. From the days of Sir Francis Drake, Sir Edward Morgan and the buccaneers, past the times of Teach, Blackbird, Caesar and the pirates of the Carribean, to the gun running days of Dynamite Johnny O'Brien, those coral islets, cays and reefs have yielded treasure. Today they shelter the secrets of the rum runners, dealers in liquid gold and fire, products of Scotch distilleries and Cuban cane fields. For the center of the supply and the great distributing point for much of the liquor which is reaching the United States is among the cays of the Grand Bahama Banks.

Fifty Miles From Florida.

Gun Cay is the rum runners rendezvous. Port Royal, the old pirate capital, in its palmiest days never plied a more profitable trade in Spanish treasure snatched from the sunken galleons. This liquor distributing center is a coral island little more than a mile long and 100 yards wide.

Less than fifty miles off the Florida coast, its low lying rocks would be undistinguishable to the landsman from any distance were it not for a squat red lighthouse which marks the channel in the reef. Approaching it from the Florida side, it seems deserted, for its one house faces the broad Atlantic to the eastward. Soon, however, the tips of slender topmasts show above the green palms and underbrush, and as the questing vessel swing past the narrow barrier in the reef with the surf breaking close to port and starboard, the rum runners' fleet is revealed at anchor.

Case Goods Galore.

Seldom are there less than ten or a dozen craft swinging lazily with the tide. Schooners, sloops, yawls and motor craft there are, and sometimes a dingy steam tramp with smoke curling slowly from her funnel shows that shipments direct from the banks of Thames and Clyde are not lacking. The decks of many are piled high with cases bearing names now less familiar in the United States than of yore. The square bottles of Gordon, the well-remembered signature of Peter Dawson, the pi- bottles and five stars of Haig a- Haig, show that the British still find a market across the Atlantic.

On some vessels, a carelessly flung scrap of dingy canvas veils the name and port on bow and counter, but others flaunt both with apparent unconcern. For they are peaceful freight carriers, ostensibly about their lawful business. There is small doubt, however, that no craft approaches unseen and the crews doing lolling about the decks in apparent unconcern, as the visiting craft winds among the fleet are said never to move far from a rifle hidden from view behind a gunwale.

Like Pirate Crews.

And the crews, Captain Kidd or Blackbeard or old Captain Watling never had crews who better looked their parts.

Caribs from the isles, negroes from Jamaica, mixed bloods and hard-faced white men from every port of the Carribean, they loll about the decks, beared and unkempt. They wear the same white cotton trousers rolled to the knees the same broad hats and bandannas and the same vivid shirts as their brethren of the freebooting days. Only the gold earrings and the cutlasses and pistols in their belts are lacking. These have been replaced, it is said, by those who have dealt with them, have been replaced by good gold coin and more modern weapons.

Activity at Night.

If Gun Cay is peaceful and lazy during the day it is active at night, it is said. With dusk silent craft, with portholes covered and exhausts muffled, slide in the direction of the squat lighthouse. It is equally a breach of etiquette and equally dangerous to inquire too closely into the identity and destination of these ships without lights as it was to make searching inquiries of strangers in Leadville in the 60s.

Return With Gold.

They come and they go, none knows whence or whither. But they bring good gold with them and take good Scotch away. Sooner or later their cargoes are sold by stealth in ports from Baltimore to Galveston. Florida alone has 1,200 miles of coast line with hidden harbors galore. And there are less than a score of prohibition enforcement officers to watch this coast.

If Guy Cay is the wholesale center of the business of the Bahama Banks, Bemini is the social capital. It also is a beautiful tropical island less than 45 miles from Miami beach. Game fish surround it, but all the sharks are not in the waters. It is readily reached either by water or air, for flying boats make this harbor their landing place daily.

The principal attraction to most visitors is the hotel where it is possible to enjoy that now almost obsolete sport of "putting your foot on the rail." It has become a rich man's sport, however, for the gentlemanly gentleman with the white apron and the circular hair cut behind the bar blandly extracts 75 cents for each decoction of spiritous, vinous or malt liquors.

Roulette Ball Rolls

Adjoining the footrail is the Palace of Chance, where the drone and click of the ivory ball among the tenets of the roulette wheel sound a warning as unmistakable as the whirr of a rattlesnake. Few heed the warning, however, until bitten. Play for small stakes is discouraged. The ceiling is the limit. It is a high ceiling, and a large, gray, stout man, well known in New York sporting circles, stands unobtrusively about ready to lift the ceiling if any patron demands it. Hazard finds some few devotees, but the faro table is often deserted. Too technical a game for the unitiated, the croupier with the agile artists' fingers declines to "open up for less than $100." That is to say, $100 is the smallest amount of checks sold.

It is said that before prohibition the island of Bemini owed the British government about $450,000. Now, it is claimed, the little community has a balance of some $1,600,000 on the right side of the imperial ledger.

New Ambassador Urges Economic Co-Operation Between Italy and U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—When Senator Rolandi Ricci, Italy's new ambassador to this country, who has just arrived, was appointed to the Washington post it was said that Premier Giolliti desired him because of his industrial mind and the belief that he would aid greatly in furthering commercial relations with this country. After the new ambassador had been greeted by Italian officials in this country he expressed a keen desire to co-operate in the development of economic relations between Italy and the United States. He also said he would take up the question of Italian immigration.

"The warlike state of mind is dying away in Italy as quickly as in the rest of western Europe," says Ricci. "We Italians are accustomed to hang our linen up in the sunshine after it has been washed, and are accustomed even to dispute in a loud voice among ourselves while doing the washing. Any one seeing and hearing us, but not understanding our temperaments and being interested in speculating about us, seeing that some of the linen is tattered and torn, and hearing us disputing heatedly as to who is responsible for the wear and tear, pictures us abroad, especially here in North America, as a people restless without order, without discipline, always ready for strikes, revolutionary and bolshevistic.

"None of this is true. No European people has come out of the war with so firm a purpose to work, and none has put it into practice so quickly.

Harvests Now Profitable

"Agriculture, the first native Italian industry, has now annual harvests as profitable as ever. Notwithstanding the great reduction made by the war we have already reconstituted the number of cattle we had before the war. Fruit growing is becoming a real industry in many places. There is every reason to hope for a notable increase in grain production.

"The electrical industry is the greatest in Italy in the matter of capital invested. All the textile industries, particularly those of silk, cotton, wool and hemp, are very largely exporting. The siderurgical and metallurgical industries are still hampered by the excessive price of coal and by the cost of raw materials, and are passing through a period of difficulties.

"The industry of hides also is undergoing the general reduction of prices prevailing throughout the world market and particularly on account of the stock of shoe leather in Italy and interference of government control, which has had the effect of stiffening our home market. I am liberal, not only politically, but also in economic and financial matters.

"An attempt in which American initiative should take part is that of the search for petroleum in Italy, and still more the installation of plants in Italian ports for the discharging and distribution of imported petroleum and its products by means of pipe lines and accessories to the districts of consumption. Such installation would be a remunerative enterprise. Otherwise we shall be obliged at the proper time to come to an understanding with Russia and England.

Must Combine Ocean Interests

"For carrying on the industry of ocean transportation I believe that it is also necessary to combine American and Italian interests. If news already published about certain combinations of shipping interests are correct, I believe that it would be successful and convenient for American and Italian interests to foster their combination for the commercial operation of a fleet of steamers of suitable size whereby the excess of American tonnage and the abundance of skilled personnel of the Italian marine could work for a reciprocal benefit. I hope that this subject will receive the most favorable attention of Italian and American shipowners.

Funds in Good Shape

"Italian trade has always stood for uprightness in international relations. It resents difficulties, delays, and, we must frankly say, even thefts during transportation. But I beg those who complain against such inconveniences to be posted about what happens in England and elsewhere. After all, all countries are more or less alike. Transportations needs to be organized and better assured everywhere. In Italy things are not going worse than outside, perhaps even in America.

"Italy possesses remarkable and noteworthy energy which will bring about a reconstruction relatively short in Italian economy. I should strongly believe that Italy in her efforts is entitled to a better support from her foreign friends. They most thoroughly understand their moral duty to give co-operation to Italy, whose entry into the war has been as generous as it was glorious. They must be remembered that Italy has attained the greatest victory of the whole war by destroying the anachronistic Hapsburg empire."

FILE CHARGES FOR OCCUPYING CITY PROPERTY

Complaints were filed in police court Saturday morning against 30 persons alleged to be living in or owning buildings now located in city streets. The complaints which were filed by City Attorney Mann state that the buildings in their present location constitute a nuisance. It is expected that the persons named in the complaints will appear in police court Monday morning.

The buildings concerned in the complaints are practically all located east of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad and north of Seventh street on or in the vicinity of Lee, Front and Seymour streets.

The filing of the complaints are the result of an extensive survey made by the city engineer's department during which the irregularities in regard to the building locations became known. In most cases according to City Attorney Mann, the buildings were constructed and are now occupied by squatters who came here during the boom period.

In other cases he said the buildings were constructed by reliable firms and individuals who owned property in that section of the city but due to the fact that properties were never properly surveyed, they had unintentionally construed their buildings in the street. In a few cases he declared the present street was now located where buildings was thought by owners to have been constructed.

Where such mistakes have occurred it is the intention of the city to allow the property owners sufficient time to move the buildings to their proper location. In all cases city attorney said the owners have been warned several times and the present section comes after they have refused to voluntarily move the buildings.

The complaints were filed against the following owners and occupants: H. Elliot, 505 Front street; P. A. Pincler, 310 Front; W. B. Rayborn, Lee street (no number); J. R. Clark, Front street (no number); Joe Chambless, 212 Front street; W. J. Butler, Front street (no number, two buildings); W. E. FLAPPERS IN NICE USE YELLOW POWDER AND WEAR MONOCLES

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Monocle wearing is the new fashion craze in Nice.

A number of women now appear with a dark glass monocle screwed in their eye.

The ochre face powder in use of late has resulted in a curious anomaly. Many women using it have become indifferent to exposure to the sunshine and walk out unprotected, while their men companions shade their faces from the burning rays with many-hued parasols.

AUTO BUILDERS FAVOR DROP IN DUTY ON CARS

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 19.—Motor car manufacturers to a unit favor a reduction of 15 per cent in the duty on automobiles selling for $2,000 or above and a provision for

In arriving at this decision the manufacturers realize that such a reciprocal relations as a national policy in order to restore foreign trade in motor vehicles. A uniform tariff of 30 per cent ad valorem is desired. reduction will simulate foreign automobile productions, but the balance in horsepower and selling price between American and foreign vehicles is in favor of the domestic manufacturer, therefore he has no great fear of dangerous competition.

Plan Change

A brief bearing upon the subject of tariffs has been filed with the ways and means committee of the house of representatives by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Under the present act affecting the exportation of automobiles, the following duties are laid:

Automobiles valued at $2,000 or more and automobile bodies, 45 per cent ad valorem; automobiles, automobile chasses and finished tires, 20 per cent ad valorem.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce would amend this paragraph to provide 20 per cent tariff and a national policy of reciprocal relations, thus furnishing protection for American industries requiring it, producing a revenue and preventing discrimination by foreign nations. It is explained that this opinion affects present conditions and does not prevent future advocacy of such changes in the tariff as may be deemed necessary when the world situation warrants it.

Statement

In maintaing that increased revenue will result from tariff revision, the brief states:

"The imports of high-priced cars during 1920 amounted to 6 per cent and those of lower-priced motor vehicles to 94 per cent of total automobile imports. According to numbers there were but fifty high-priced cars and 654 low-priced cars. The revenue from the former was $90,305 and $153,986 from the latter. The smaller number consisted of automobiles selling in country of origin at more than $2,000.

"The smaller imports of that type of vehicle may be due to the higher Unied States duty. With a uniform duty of 30 per cent, however, the imports of higher-priced cars will be proportionately increased, and consequently result in higher revenue. Despite the fact that this measure may directly affect their interests, American manufacturers of high-priced cars are adherents of this policy, believing that it will be of general benefit to the industry.

Large Scale

"Because of large scale production and consequently minute division of labor, American manufacturers are making automobiles which embody the higher value for every dollar of cost."

A survey shows that the American motor car manufacturer can readily compete in the foreign market. Then there is the fact that the automobile industry in this country ranks second in size. It employs 300,000 persons, or approximately 50,000 more than does the United States Steel corporation. In the United States there are about 8,000,000 cars in use, 90 per cent of those used in the entire world, which indicates the extent of the foreign market and the limitations in the United States. It is said motor car production as far as domestic consumption is concerned, need not be curtailed until 12,000,000 cars are used in this country.

Touching upon exchange and foreign resentment, the brief says:

Lots of 'Em

"During 1920 the exports of American motor vehicles to all countries, including noncontiguous United States territories, amounted to close to 180,000 in number, at a value of approximately $200,000,000. All possible efforts should be made to stimulate foreign trade, so as to enable American manufacturers to find markets for increased number of cars abroad, thus tending to stabilize the industry.

"At the present time, the export trade is considerably hampered by great depreciation in the foreign exchanges. To afford manufacturers in countries with the depreciation of currency an opportunity to sell their products in the United States will tend to right this condition. Although it is fully realized that the increased imports of automobiles, even if the duty on high-priced cars is reduced, will not be such as materially to improve the exchanges, still even minor influences of this kind if multiplied in other trades that will not be greatly affected thereby, are certain to bring about improvement in international finances.

"Besides the depreciation of money exchanges the greatest obstacle confronting American exporters of automobiles is the tariff wall being built up abroad in retaliation because of the high duty on foreign automobiles imported into the United States. Resenting the American duty of 45 per cent on the high-priced cars certain interests in Great Britain have already urged the assessment of duty higher than 33 1-3 per cent on all kinds of motor vehicles, whereas up to now that duty is applied to passenger cars only. France has already imposed a duty of 45 per cent on the kind of automobiles exported by American firms, an action which is directly traceable to the belief that the United States automobile duty is discriminating against high-priced cars of French manufacture. Similar action has also been taken by Italy and Belgium. Spain is about to follow.

Favorable Results

"That favorable results from a uniform United States duty may be expected is shown in the action of the French automobile manufacturers who informed their government that the English, Belgian, Italian, and French syndicates had collectively voted a uniform tariff of 33 1-3 per cent. This duty was to apply to all automobiles imported into and from any countries that entered into the agreement. The French ministry, however, cited the United States tariff on automobiles of over $2,000 in value and fixed the French duty at that rate on automobiles of the type mostly exported from the United States.

"The establishment of a uniform rate on cars of all prices at the present minimum of 30 per cent ad valorem will stimulate the development of foreign trade in that the rate will apply to motor vehicles from such countries only as grant equality of treatment for American products.

"Against countries, which, however, despite the benefits accuring to them because of the establishment of this uniform lower rate continue to discriminate against American trade, there should be applied additional duties to be determined by law or warranted by the particular circumstances.

"With regard to the administration of a policy of reciprocal relations such as that obtained, the president of the United States should have the power to ascertain what countries discriminate against American trade and to take measures in accordance with this provision to protect United States interests."

BLOW-OUTS FROM AUTO ROW
BY FLAT TIRE

For most of the week that has just ended the prospects for business looked very good, but the recent bad weather has curtailed the auto shopping just the least bit. Reports for new sales for the last seven days are encouraging for business as a whole and with a few more bright spring days sales will be on the increase.

Carl Waelder, of the Franklin Sales company, returned to the city the first of last week after being absent from business on his recent wedding tour. Carl says he is back on the job and out after business, but we know that a newly married man hasn't much time for business, even if he does report two sales for the last week.

L. R. Stringer, of the Nolen-Stringer company, has been on his toes lately and reports the sales of the Haynes variety. Funny where they find them all.

Toute Suite Dodson, of the Southern Tire and Vulcanizing company, says that business is great; in fact, so good he made a trip to Dallas to spend some of his money. If that's his speed, better watch this newly elected member of the W. F. A. D. A.

Wildhelm-Moulder are dressing up their place a bit this week in the way of some new signs. Business must be good on Lamar avenue when they spend their money for advertising.

We reported last Sunday that the Motor Supply company had taken on another salesman, but I guess we were mistuken as this salesman is now nowhere to be found. Evidently we were justified in our suspicions about the congeniality of this organization so someone had better page Captain Langford before this thing goes too far.

The Auto Tire company has added another Ford service car to its list. We say "service car," Lesley might have bought it to take some more of those hunting and fishing trips in.

L. L. Dixon, custodian of the Buick line, is all smiles the last few days and he has a right to be, for when one can sell two new and one used car for cash all in one morning, he has a right to feel good. Wonder if he would part with the recipe of how he does it?

E. G. Nelson of the For-Rent-a-Ford company, purchased two new cars this week which is a good indication of good business. Mr. Nelson says that things are looking much better for the future and that when the weather gets back to normal business in general should be good.

J. M. McFall says that the recent bad weather has given his firm a chance to loaf a bit and rest up for a few days. Now we knew that whenever automobiles are considered that the Dodge comes in for its share, but we didn't know that owing to business they didn't have time to come up for air.

SEND RUSH ORDER FOR MORE BUICKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Indications of improved conditions in the eastern automobile market are given in telegrams received by the Buick Motor company from the New York distributors, who estimate their requirements up to April 1 at more than 1,000 cars.

The distributors declare they have made delivery of the last of a particular model they have on hand and ask immediate shipment of several carloads to meet additional orders.

WOMAN INSTALLS G. A. R. OFFICERS

LARAMIE, Wyo., Feb. 19.—Mrs. Hilda Roach, member of the Woman's Relief Corps, G. A. R., was the installing officer when the 1921 officers of Custor Post No. 1, department of Colorado and Wyoming, G. A. R., took office here. It is believed to be the first time in the history of the civil war veterans' organization that a woman has acted in this capacity.

Death has dwindled the membership of Custer Post No. 1 to less than 20 and only a few of these are able to attend meetings. The post boasts an adjutant who is ineligible for membership in the G. A. R., E. E. Fitch, son of a former adjutant, is permitted to act as adjutant by sufferance.

A French dessert dish of gilt plate, double thread and shell pattern, consisting of two sugar sifters, four spoons, a pair of sugar tongs, 24 small spoons, 24 forks and knives with porcelain handles, formerly the property of the Emperor Napoleon, and bearing the imperial cipher of the bee, was sold in a London auction house not long ago. The service was the property of a nobleman whose name is not revealed.

MAKE ONE CASING FOR EVERY FIFTH PERSON IN NATION

One tire to every fifth person in the United States was made last year. In actual figures the rubber totaled over 23,400,000. Think of the enormous quantity of cotton and rubber that was consumed in the production of these tires.

"It would take an entire railroad and a fleet of steamers to haul the raw product that go into the manufacture of automobile tires," says H. A. Dodson of Southern Tire & Vulcanizing Co., local distributors for Firestone tires.

The rubber-tire business, which was originally the outgrowth of the rubber goods industry, has assumed such proportions that the former activities of the makers have been lost sight of. Rubber companies besides making tires are turning out hot-water bottles, balloons, tubing, belting, shoe soles and a thousand other things, even to nursing bottle nipples.

"But the combined output on all these essentials has been put in the background by the greater volume of tire production."

SERVICE OUTLINES SEWAGE SYSTEM

A system by which an isolated dwelling (or small group of buildings) having running water may dispose of sewage safely and at small cost is recommended by the United States public health service in one of its recent weekly reports.

The chief feature of the system, which has been in successful operation in New Hampshire for summer cottages and hotels for 10 years, is a rectangular septic tank, of concrete, with a minimum capacity of 94 feet. This will serve 20 people; four cubic feet additional should be provided for each additional person.

The tank should be buried under 12 to 18 inches of earth, as near as practicable to the house, with which it should be connected with piping. The effluent from this tank which contains organic matter that might be objectionable and even dangerous, is commonly best disposed of by some sort of subsurface irrigation whose exact form will necessarily be governed by the nature of the soil. Full details are given in the report.

Before installing such a system, however, the state health authorities should be consulted to prevent the contamination of springs and other underground waters.

BRITISH DYESTUFFS BILL NOW A LAW

LONDON, Feb. 19—The new British dyestuffs bill became a law a few days ago and from now on the import of dyes will only be possible under license.

The board of trade is about to constitute a committee consisting of five persons connected with the trades affected, three persons concerned with the manufacture of dyes and three others who are not directly affected in any way. This committee will be for the purpose of advising the board of trade.

It is understood that the act will not apply to goods imported to the United Kingdom for exportation to other countries, providing that such goods comply with the conditions imposed by the commissioners of customs and excise regarding such re-exportation.

New Zealand is experiencing a shortage of labor which is interfering with the industrial progress of the country. Tide of immigration is not sufficient to keep up with the demands and it has become imperative that the depleted ranks of workers be filled by natives who must be taught trades.

PAIGE UNCORKS SPEED KING IN STOCK CHASSIS

Confirming brief telegraphic reports from the Paige factory to Perry Hancock, local distributor of the Paige here, Fred Wagner, official starter of the American Automobile association, arrived in Los Angeles last week in order to superintend the practice trials at Los Angeles Speedway, waxed eloquent in his praise of the car and of Ralph Mulford's work in driving the new Paige 6-66 to a new world's stock-car record at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mr. Wagner made a special trip to Florida in order to superintend the trials and took with him his electric timing device, which records automobile speeds in hundredths of a second and which was used in making the test, the time recorded being 35.01 seconds for the mile, or 102.8 miles an hour.

The official trial was made on January 21 at 12:12 p. m., the car being a Paige 6-66 Daytona stock model, with the famous racing driver, Ralph Mulford, at the wheel. The time made breaks all existing stock-car records regardless of piston displacement, and, checked, measured and timed by officials of the contest board of the A. A. A. is now the official stock-car mark for the world. Wagner officiated as timer and F. E. Edwards as technical representative of the Three A.

The remarkable feature of the record made by the Paige is not alone the speed attained, although speeds of better than 100 miles an hour were undreamed of in the automobile world of 10 years ago. The significant fact is that a car designed and built for the daily service of the average automobile owner should have in it, besides very desirable elements of dependadibilty, the extra power and stamina to withstand, without any additional reinforcements, the tremendous additional strains attendant on a speed of almost two miles a minute.

Calls on Auto Losers to Aid Fight on Theft

The Dyer law has now been in effect for about six months. It was passed by congress to discourage interstate traffic in stolen cars. It is not a perfect measure, but it is a step in the right direction.

The measure provides a penalty of $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, for bringing a car, unlawfully acquired, from one state into another, or for exporting it.

On the whole the law has proved effective in curbing car thieves but the effectivenss of any statute depends upon the interpretation which each judge charged with its enforcement, places upon it. No matter what the maximum penalty, the judge's state of mind does not alter his point of view. If he considers the car thieves brought before him as merely joy-riders, he is likely to deal out penalties in sugar coated form. Under the new law there have been cases where a fine of as low as $100 has been imposed for interstate traffic in stolen cars, even where the culprits have admitted their guilt.

It is up to us, who had 160,000 of our cars stolen last year, to see that the Dyer law is not made impotent because of the indifferent attitude the judges in certain communities take with regard to the theft of cars. If we raise enough of a hue and cry over every miscarriage of justice toward the interstate stolen car traffic we can keep the teeth of this law sharp.—In Mitor for February.

GENERAL OUTLOOK CALLED REAL GOOD

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—One thousand workmen are to be added immediately to the force now employed at the plants of the Packard Motor Car company, it was announced Thursday by Alvin McAuley, president of the company.

Mr. McAuley's statement, which at the same time announced the payment of the regular dividend on preferred stock, said that the additional men were being put to work because of orders that have been received for cars and because of the general outlook for business.

FRENCH COINS ARE BEING CIRCULATED

AMERICUS, Ga., Feb. 19. — French silver coins of one or two franc denominations are in circulation in this section, being passed as quarters and half dollars. The two-franc resembles an American half dollar, having on its obverse side almost an exact replica of the Liberty statue. On the reverse side is the lettering "Republique Francaise." The coin is almost the size and weight of the United States Liberty half dollar.

The one franc piece resembles a quarter, but is a little lighter than the American coin.

CALLS PULLMAN LUXURY IF AUTO RANKS AS SUCH

"The man who regards the automobile as a luxury cannot consistently ride in a Pullman car.

"People used to live without trains, doctors, telephones, electric lights or automobiles. Who says they are luxuries today? If by some trick of fate we were deprived of any one of those things the entire order of our lives would have to be changed. Business would be in a chaotic condition for years before people could become accustomed again to the old order." So said Paul Von Allmen of Eckman & Von Allmen, local distributors of the Hupmobile and Peerless, the other day in discussing the prospects for a good business year in 1921, and he illustrated his statement by pointing out the following pointed facts:

The automobile insures delivery of fresh food, free from harm by broiling sun and poisonous flies.

The nation's three great interdependent industries—steel, railroads and automobiles.

Fifty million citizens are made happier, healthier and better by the automobile.

The automobile does not promote waste, it reduces it.

Without automobiles city rents would quickly double.

Without automobiles many would have to abandon their suburban homes.

The automobile ceased to be a luxury and became a necessity 15 years ago.

CHAINS PREVENT WEAR.

Many motorists seem to believe that tire chains induce wear. Not if they are properly used. Without tire chains the drive wheels tend to spin around more or less on slippery surfaces. Sharp pieces of stone, cinders and other similar material in the road cut the rubber and scrape it deeply, a condition that does not arise when the chains are in place.

Christianity is endeavoring to combat the prevalence of suicide in Japan. It is said to be fostered to a great extent by the ancient traditions which are a part of some of the religions of the nation.

GIRL AUTOISTS CARRY RELIEF TO TORN AREA

Since the armistice. the American committee for devastated France has established seven centers for relief work and social service in the north of France. In each there are groups of from 10 to 15 American and English girls who are carrying medical care into the field wounded and sick from village to hospital, and supplies of food, clothing, livestock and other necessaries to the dugouts and huts of 200 villages and hamlets.

Every chauffeur is responsible for the upkeep of her own car. She is expected to make minor repairs herself. Of course the camionettes are Fords, and each one has a temperament, perhaps a temper of its own. They acquire names according to their dispositions and are known and beloved or scorned by these designations throughout the committee, but even the "corpse" is loyally defended by its driver, and "Henry" has a charm of his own, while the "Tank" and "Tillie's Nighmare" each brings its memory of valiant service. They are liable to drive many miles a day only to return at night and find that there is a child hurt by a live grenade who must be transported that night to the hospital at Soissons or at Blearancourt. Meeting emergencies with courage and devotion has been the rule among the overseas chauffeurs.

Then, too, the roads are often muddy and tires choose to blow out right on the sides of the slipperiest hills and one's working uniform is never clean and the motor shivers and dies in a crisis. Yet ask a chauffeur in France if she would trade her job for any other and see what she says. No other branch of service brings a girl into such close relationship with the peasant folk of France, whom to know is to love and admire. When a camionette stops in the ruined street of a tiny village the people appear to come literally up out of the ground, to crowd about the car with smiling faces, eager for a word with the American lady, so kind, so extraordinary, so strangely undaunted by the intricacies of machinery. She is a phenomenon that they accept on faith, understanding not, but pouring out unstinted affection at her feet. Her sympathy and encouragement win their hearts. They call her in charming patois, "Mat tchotte fille," "my litle girl," and invite her to share with them the best they have to offer.

One or two villages in particular are assigned to her special protection. She is their Marraine, and in them she knows by name every man, woman and child. These friendships are enduring and they constitute one of the precious legacies of work among the French. You cannot possibly live close to the heart of life in a tiny village and give as much as you receive.—In Motor for February.

EMERGES FROM OBSCURITY WITH WAVE OF FAVOR

The Essex is only two years old, but men have already paid $75,000,000 for it. This two years' campaign has been one of brilliant success. Nearly 50,000 Essex cars are in service.

Without a word to identify it as the product of the men who build the Hudson super-six, it emerged from the obscurity of an unknown car and thrust itself ahead by the force of unqualified merit, to the position of one of the most prominent cars in the world.

That these comments, by Lloyd Weaver here, distributor of Essex cars, are justified is indicated by the way Essex has held the public eye, as perhaps no other car ever has.

Mr. Weaver further claims that Essex has the world's first year fine car selling record, is substantiated by the fact that 22,000 Essex cars were purchased by the public in the first 12 months, for which they paid $33,000,000. It is worth more than passing note to observe how many of these Essex owners formerly drove large and high-priced cars.

SURE START FUELIZER.

This is a hot-spot two-way intake manifold with automatic primer for installation on Ford cars. It is designed with hot and cold intake pipes with a butterfly valve between, which by dashboard control permits regulation of the mixture to the proper heat for efficiency. The automatic primer, operated by pulling the choke, allows a spray of raw gasoline to enter the cylinders independently of the carburetor.—In Motor for February.

Machine Guns And Armor no Bar to Bandit

"Is the sawed-off shotgun in its holster by the steering wheel, Henry?"

"Yes, my love."

"And have you told the chauffeur to man the machine gun in the rear seat?"

"Yes, darling, everything has been attended to."

"Then put your automatic pistol in your pocket and drive down to the corner for a yeast cake."

Henry buttoned his bullet-proof waistcoat about him and started toward the garage, followed by his wife's parting injunction, "and do be careful, Henry, not to stay out after dark."

Needless to say, in three days of motor manditry, all the precautions of husband, wife and chauffeur were as naught, for an armored car, bristling with machine gun destroyers and masked thugs, held up the yeast cake special within sight of the grocery store and robbed Henry of the three cents that he had on his person.

Seriously somewhat more speaking, something must be done about the rampant outlawry that is making the motor highways unsafe for our few remaining law-abiding citizens.

Either make it a criminal offense for an honest citizen to drive an automobile, or legalize the profession of thievery and by so doing automatically remove the universal urge to break the law.—In Motor for February.

PIERCE-ARROW SHOWS PROFIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Reports of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company for 1920 show net profits after all charges and federal tax of $1,769,914, or $3.88 per share on the 250,000 shares of common stock after deducting $800,000 for preferred dividends.

In 1919 net profits were $2,491,070 or $6.75 a share on the common after preferred dividends.

The reduction in the 1920 net earnings is due, officials say, to reduced business during the last half of 1920 as well as to unusual expenses of reorganization and development of new models of passenger cars and trucks.

EVERY YEAR TO BE LEAP YEAR BYE AND BYE

BY EARL C. REEVES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Every year will be leap year by and bye. For the scientists and feminists are joining hands to prove that it should be so.

EARL C. REEVES

All along the Darwinian line, so to speak, it is the female of the species that does the selecting of a mate—until mankind is reached.

There, alas some—both scientists and feminists—admit the female of the species does a bit of the selecting. But it's only indirectly. And it's all wrong.

Sir John Cockburn started the ball rolling in a scientific lecture. Scientifically, it seems, woman should propose. It's a mistake, perhaps, that she hasn't been doing it all along.

Dr. Knight of the Freedom league says she and other women present at the lecture quite agree with Sir John.

"Women ought to be free to choose the father of their children," Dr. Knight contends. "At present they are not entirely free and they never will be until complete economic equality of women and men has been achieved."

Work on Sly Now.

"Of course, most girls select their husbands nowadays, but it is done in an indirect—one might almost say underhanded—way. Why should it not be done quite openly? If a girl likes a man and feels that she wants him as her husband, it ought not be considered immodest on her part to make the first advances. The man might be too shy.

"A girl would instinctively pick a man who would make her a good husband and I don't see any reason why woman shouldn't propose.

"Men can say 'No' just as a girl can. They would soon get used to it."

Mrs. M. L. Seaton-Tiedeman, secretary of the Divorce Reform union, thinks it might help put her society out of business. There would be fewer divorces.

"Woman is better fitted to choose a mate than man," she declares. "A woman is not so easily imposed upon by externals.

"With men it is different. So long as a girl is beautiful, tastefully dressed and has charming manners, they don't bother to study her character."

But, thinks Mrs. Seaton-Teideman, along with this change should go a casting-out of the general idea that women regard marriage as a career, and are all waiting for some man to come along and provide a home.

MARRIED MEN TO GET PREFERENCE IN FORD PLANT

DETROIT, Feb. 19.—Another shift, consisting mostly of married men, will start work Monday in the Ford Motor company's Highland Park plant.

The new force of about 10,000 men will replace the 10,000 re-employed when production at the plant was resumed January 31. As the plant is operating, five days a week, the present force will quit Friday evening and the new shift will start Monday morning.

It is understood that the new shift is to work for two weeks, then be replaced by the one now at work.

The reason for the replacement, it is said, is that the Ford company wants to provide work for as many of its married employes as possible. The money that the men in the present force have made since they went back January 31 will enable them to carry on for two weeks while the new shift is working.

The men in the new shift, the same as those now at work, will be paid at the same rate of wages they were receiving when the plant closed, December 31.

WORLD STEPPER GOES IN TO COP FRENCH CLASSIC

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 19—When the famous Grand Pirx road race for the automobile supremacy of France is staged over the roads near Strausbourg in July there will be enterd at least one driver who showed his tires to the crack pilots of two continents in an international 500-mile race over the famous Indianapolis Motor Speedway course.

He will be "Howdy" Wilcox of Indianapolis, who scampered across the finish line a winner in the Indianapolis race in 1919. "Hodwy" was driving a Peugeot and he will pilot a Peugeot in the Grand Prix.

Wilcox has also been named to drive a Peugeot in the 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Motor speedway May 30. It is said he may captain the French Peugeot team in case Jules Goux decides to remain overseas to prepare the Peugeot cars for the French Grand Prix. According to Wilcox, two Peugeots will be entered in the Indianapolis classic and as soon as the race is over he will go immediately to France and prepare for the historic French race.

Had there been no wars or epidemics, it is estimated the present population of the world would be 1,519,000,000 people.

ROCHE TWIN DECIDES TO RENOUNCE CITIZENSHIP FOR TITLE AND FORTUNE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Another American citizen is to become a naturalized English peer. Confronted with the alternative of becoming a peer in spite of himself, Edmund Maurice Burke Roche, who through the death of his father last September, inherited the estate and titles as the fourth baron of Fermoy, has decided to renounce his American citizenship.

It has become known that Burke Roche had been seriously considering becoming a British subject in order to assume the entailed honors left him by his father, the third baron of Fermoy, for some time. He is the elder of twin sons of the late baron and Mrs. Fanny Work Burke Roche of this city. Both are 35 years old.

He announced definitely, however, that he had now made up his mind to become a British subject and to claim his title. This sets at rest his previous statement, made just after the death of his father, that he doubted that he would ever take his place among the Irish peers in the peerage of Great Britain.

Burke Roche said:

Took Long Time to Decide.

"I have decided to prove my claim and accept my title. It has taken me a long time to come to the decision, but I have decided to do it. I had hoped that I could persuade my younger brother to assume the title, but I found that could not possibly be done.

"Even if I remained an American citizen I still would be the baron of Fermoy in the British peerage."

The younger brother is Francis Burke Roche. Edmund, known better as Maurice Burke Roche, may go abroad in time for the international polo games in Hurlingham, in June, to join his sister, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, and his brother, who are now in England. They are to remain there to attend the games.

Burke Roche said, however, that he had not decided when he would take the first steps necessary to becoming a British citizen and the consequent steps of proving his title.

There is the possibility of Burke Roche holding a seat in the house of lords.

The second and third barons of Fermoy became involved in financial troubles and much of the furnishings of the old family seat at Cork were sold. The third baron was assisted financially by both sons, who inherited considerable fortunes from their grandfather. The late baron, better known in New York as the Hon. James Boothby Burke Roche, married Miss Frances Work, daughter of the late Frank Work, here in 1880. They were divorced in 1896. The twins have since lived in this country. Neither has married.

Mrs. Fanny Work Burke Roche of New York, mother of the twins; right, Edmund Maurice Burke Roche, who will become Irish peer, and in the center is Francis Burke Roche, who will remain an American because he is a few minutes younger than his twin brother.

MOTOR STRONG AS ITS WEAKEST COG

There is an old adage that says, "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link," which applied to an automobile might be said this way, "An automobile is no better than its weakest bolt," says Perry Hancock of the Wichita Paige company.

It is absolutely true and an excellent argument against the practice of permitting repair men to replace worn parts with cheap imitations in stead of standard replacement parts.

In a Continental motor, for example, there are 1,780 parts, counting all nuts, bolts and so forth.

If one particular nut does not perform its function, it starts a chain of trouble. Obviously then, if inferior replacement parts are put into a good motor, automatically the motor becomes a poor motor through the weakness of the weak parts thus installed. And, also automatically, there is a loss in value far greater than the amount saved on the imitation parts.

DRAW YOUR OWN CONCLUSION

When a motor car is running 15 miles per hour and is brought to an abrupt stop the impact is equal to that of a body striking the earth from a height of 13 feet. When a car is running 50 miles per hour and is stopped in its tracks the impact is equal to that of a 120-foot fall.

WILSON OF TODAY IS FAR FROM RUGGED MAN OF 2 YEARS AGO

Those Who Had Hoped to See Once More the Vigorous Woodrow Wilson Now Realize He Is a Man Whose Health Will Never Be Strong Again; Great Contrast in General Appearance.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Woodrow Wilson today is not the Woodrow Wilson of two years ago. The national capital has come to this realization since the president made recent public appearance at the theater.

DAVID M. CHURCH

All during the long siege of illness which the president has undergone the optomistic statements from the White House have given rise to the general impression that sooner or later the old Woodrow Wilson would appear in public.

The recent public appearances which the president has made have disillusioned those who have hoped to see once more the vigorous Woodrow Wilson, and they realize now that he is an old, broken man, whose health will never be strong again.

Comparison between Woodrow Wilson at the theater two years ago and Woodrow Wilson at the theater now is almost pitiful.

Was Ardent Theatergoer

Never was there a more ardent theatergoer than Woodrow Wilson, and never a more appreciative auditor, statesman and scholar, nevertheless he found joy in the antics of slapstick comedians and he apparently found thorough pleasure in the strains of the modern jazz and the gyrations of the accompanying dancers.

Woodrow Wilson at the theater in the old days was a man whose eyes sparkled, who sat in the closest attention, and who laughed heartily at jokes almost inane, and was profuse in his applause. He appeared to exult in all of the beauty and grace that was paraded across the stage. A most enthusiastic theater fan was the old Woodrow Wilson. Players, particularly comedians and vaudevillians, loved to play before him for they found him quick to respond, and generous in his applause.

At the theater now, Woodrow Wilson is a restrained auditor. He enters through a side door and with secret service men and members of his family at his side, he walks slowly into his box, leaning heavily on his cane. He wears a cape, for it is easy for him to draw it close about him. His entrance always brings applause and for a minute he falters and bows slightly, sometimes feebly waving his cane to the applauding audience. Then he slowly and carefully takes his seat in a far corner of the box, with cape still about him and his cane still in hand. His face is thin and wrinkled, his hair is graying and perhaps a little thinner. The animation that once characterized his face is gone. The flash of his eyes is dimmed.

Sits Quietly in Box

The play begins and Woodrow Wilson pushes forward slowly in his chair and then slips back again. His attention is the closest, but the ready response to the stage action is no longer there. When some bit of comedy amuses him, he smiles, almost with an effort and there is little of the hearty laughter and the whispers to the members of his party that formerly encouraged the players. When his enthusiasm must give vent, he grasps his cane and pounds upon the floor, while one arm remains at his side. He follows every line; he is still a theater fan, but his enthusiasm is that of an old man, a man who finds enthusiasm almost an effort, though his interest is unflagging.

The play over, the audience generally waits until the president has left. As he leaves his box there is a burst of applause and a cheer or two, and the president turns, sometimes seemingly with a desire to show his strength, and in a faltering manner he turns back a few steps, bows and smiles thinly and then grasping his cane, waves it to the audience rather feebly. Then through a guarded side door he steps into his motor and is whisked away through a back alley, avoiding the crowds.

The audience leaves, fully realizing that the vigorous Woodrow Wilson of yesterday is no more.

AUTOMOBILE SHOWS DO VALIANT WORK

DTROIT, Feb. 19.—Reo Motor Car company officials have much faith in the efficiency of automobile shows in bringing results. Company exhibits were staged at three shows the past week, the southern shows at St. Louis, the northwestern show at Minneapolis and the one at Rochester, N. Y., R. C. Rueschaw, sales manager, attended the St. Louis and Minneapolis shows, while P. L. Emerson was in charge at the Rochester exhibition. Complete lines were shown at all three places.

The national show at Chicago brought a good volume of business to the Reo company, according to Mr. Reuschaw. Pittsburgh took one complete trainload of cars as did Harrisburg, Pa. Eastern business at the show was unprecedented.

DURANT MOTOR IS CENTER OF STAGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Much interest is being shown in the new Durant Motors, Inc., by automobile circles. By some it is thought the company will bring out something out of the ordinary in designs, others point out that Mr. Durant has always been identified with manufacture along conservative lines. Guessing as to the price of the car is lively.

There are those who are confident that the cost will be within the reach of anybody wishing an automobile. Some go so far as to predict that Mr. Durant is planning to compete with the Ford Motor Car company. Considering the present market prices of material and labor, impression on the trade is, that the Durant is likely to be marketed between $650 and $800. Mr. Durant himself is silent as to details.

"The new company will be in active operation by August 1, 1921. Its purpose will be to bring out as good a car as can be possibly made for the money and the price of it will be less than $1,000," he said. "It will not be a freak or anything in the idea of it being low in price."

San Francisco Strike Is Ended By Contractors

BY ELLIS H. MARTIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The thin ice of labor relations which threatened to break up under the strain of reconstruction and readjustment has been solidified in San Francisco so far as the building crafts are concerned.

Strikes and lockouts have been barred under one of the most unique arbitration agreements ever entered into by capital and labor and which promises to effectually banish labor trouble from the field of building operations and all its allied branches.

By agreement between the San Francisco Building Trades council, which represents fifty-seven unions, with a membership of more than 17,000, and the building contractors, all disputes now pending or likely to arise are automatically referred by both sides to the arbitration committee of three named in the agreement, a permanent body with powers to adjust any and all disputes.

This arbitration body is unique in that it represents neither side, all three members being neutral and unanimously selected by both sides to the agreement from a list suggested for the purpose. The board of arbitration is composed of Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, Max C. Sloss, former associate justice of the supreme court, and George L. Bell, consultant in industrial relations and management.

Formulate Unique Agreement.

The agreement is an outgrowth of a series of strikes and lockouts last summer, which tied up building operations and resulted in the industrial relations committee of the Chamber of Commerce taking a hand. This committee, through its chairman, Wigginton Creed, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, and Consultant Bell prevailed upon both sides to get together in an effort to effect a solution. The following agreement was the result:

"It is understood that all three arbitrators to be deemed impartial arbitrators of all controversies, and under no circumstances is any one of them to be considered a representative of the board of arbitration of either of the contending parties.

"It is agreed that this board shall sit as a continuing board of arbitration, to which shall be submitted all disputes as to hours, wages and working conditions in building trades where there are no disputes now, as well as in those where there are, when and as such disputes arise between the signatory parties, and that the decisions of the board shall be accepted as final and carried out by all parties. This step is taken in order to provide a permanent method of settling amicably and in a reasonable manner labor disputes in this city affecting the building trades, and with the hope that building operations henceforth may be put on a certain and stable basis—a result which will be of advantage to the workers, to the employers and to the public.

Have Broad Powers.

"It is agreed also that the board of arbitration may go into all questions concerning the general building situation, and call upon the signatory parties for information and copies of contracts or agreements concerning any phases which the board desires to investigate.

"It is further agreed that the board of arbitration may incur such expense as it deems necessary for the employment of investigators and clerical assistance, and that the entire incurred expense by the board will be shared equally by the signatory parties.

"It is understood that all hearings of the board of arbitration are to be conducted as public sessions, save and except such special hearing as in the judgment of the board should be held in executive session.

"It is understood that the trades in which there are now disputes concerning hours, wages and working conditions, which disputes will be immediately submitted to the board are as follows: Painters, glass workers, varnishers and polishers, cement finishers, cement laborers, hodcarriers, tending plasterers, marble rubbers and sawyers, marble finishers and polishers, marble masons, marble masons' helpers, hoisting and portable engineers, roofers, elevator constructors, elevator constructors' helpers, reinforced iron workers, team and auto truck drivers, plasterers."

LOOSE VIBRATOR.

In case the screws that hold the small brass jackets to the vibrator box become worn so that they do not grip any more, do not try to remedy the trouble by using longer screws, as this will probably injure the windings of the coil and ruin the vibrator. The better plan is to put a metal band clear around the box and attach it to the dash with small bolts.

DRASTIC LAWS AND JURIES

While the state and national crime wave carries on its daily output of death and pillage, popular feeling is voicing itself in apparently inconsistent ways. The legislators of states whose legislatures are in session are offering various drastic laws to punish violators.

But the verdicts of juries, to whom much additional attention is directed, vary from severity of the Spanish Inquisition type to penalities so mild that they bring startling contrasts.

In several states bills have been introduced recently making highway robbery punishable by life imprisonment. One pending bill provides the death penalty. Another legislator urges that a man who kidnaps a girl under 14 years of age be sent to the penitentiary for life.

Pardon boards are being wiped out, stiffer sentences demanded.

Fort Worth papers estimated that juries in that city have recently assessed a total of 497 years penal servitude against a number of prisoners. Two life terms were among the list.

Wichita Falls juries have given the death penalty, for the second time in local history, recently and several 20-year and life terms.

On the other hand a man who "borrowed" an automobile for a joyride and did not get the owner's consent escaped with a $10 fine. Petty thievery cases have been rewarded with only five or ten dollar fines.

It costs only ten dollars to get drunk. Vagrancy fines vary from $1 and costs, or a total of $10.80 in the justice of peace courts, to from $15 to $25 in the city courts without costs. Parking wrong costs $5; speeding $10.

A jury in another state assessed a negro 20 years in the penitentiary because he stole a chicken, valued at about 40 cents. He happened to steal it from a man in the public road. In that state the highway location made a case of petty larceny a gigantic offense.

Two men were accused here of stealing five Ford automobiles, valued at at least $2,000. Each was released on bond of $250. They could forfeit bonds and make $1,500 and avoid risk and trouble, if they so desired.

The at least surface inconsistency in the various cases leaves the crook wondering whether a toss-up may not give him life in jail or a petty fine.

TO WALK IN THE AIR

Double-deck sidewalks are proposed in the Chicago city council as a measure of relief for the pedestrian jam in the region of the loop. Vehicular traffic has been hoisted into the air and put under ground to ease surface transportation. It is now the pedestrian's turn to detour above or below to give his fellows more elbow room.

The Chicago plan suggests useful possibilities. It is proposed to connect the upstairs sidewalks directly with the elevated railroad stations. The existence of an elevated railway is not, however, essential to the success of the plan. It might easily prove useful in crowded cities which have no elevated.

An elevated sidewalk would naturally connect with business structures by way of their second story. It would bring second story space into a new demand for retail use. No small part of the pedestrian congestion is due to people merely going from one store to another in shopping or going from office to restaurant for lunch. It is said that in New York one may leave home in the morning, shop all day and return at night without ever seeing daylight or setting foot on the surface of walk or street. Something of the same possibility might exist in a comprehensive system of elevated sidewalks, whether the possibility be considered desirable or not.

The problem of urban congestion is always with us. The Chicago suggestion, at least, has the merit of being novel.—Cleveland Plain Dealer, Ind. Dem.)

The demand for baby carriages is said to be falling off. This is due, probably, to the rooted objection of the babies to anything less than a four-cylinder self-starter.—Boston Transcript.

It is not quite plain whether the country needs a two-cent piece or Theodore Roosevelt's likeness needs a coin.—Boston Herald.

AMERICANS AND MONEY

Europeans, whose only conception of Americans is based on the manners and actions of American tourists lounging about European cities, entertain very unjust and erroneous ideas about Americans. One of these ideas is that the two main ambitions of all Americans are to make money and spend it extravagantly.

Aldo Sorani recently wrote an article for the "Secolo" of Milan, in which he explained that the true, typical Americans are not greedy for money, but that they justly regard it as a fit exponent of material success and as a means of enlarging their activities and of doing charity.

In this article, Sorani says: "If we will take the trouble to examine a little below surface appearances, we will find that Americans do not idolize money or gold, but it is they who have lowered its value by keeping it constantly in circulation, moving from one to the other, and thus increasing the activities of all by increasing their efforts to obtain it. Americans believe that money is only a means to an end, and they do not regard money as real riches, while we Europeans think that money is the most wonderful of earthly gifts, and we spend our lives yearning for it. The best exponents of American opinion are their poets and philosophers, and all of them, from Poe to Whitman, and from Thoreau to Emerson, agree in maintaining that riches are not to be valued as riches, and work is not to be condemned as work Both of these factors tend to enlarge the sphere of the world and to make room for a little more blue sky for mankind, and they allow a little more of the spiritual to enter into the hearts of men.

"Americans are in general very optimistic; they believe in the power of will and in the bounty of nature and the greatness of God. These facts prove that the love of money has not turned Americans into misers, egoists, nor has it in any way narrowed their minds and souls, for their love of money and their quest for it represents only their ambition to attain the goal of success which they have set for themselves, and it helps to elevate and perfect them. Americans do not regard money as wealth, they think of money only as an instrument or utensil of their work, and as a protection of their liberty."—L'Unione (Italian, Dem.) San Francisco.

ONE AMERICAN HANDICAP

If the united States really cherished a desire to figure largely in the affairs of commerce, it is neglecting to build from the bottom up. Nations that are provincial minded always experience difficulty when they venture abroad. One evidence of provincialism is the belief that one's own language is the only one worth knowing. The French and the English have a talent for languages and the Germans are equally gifted. We have a talent for languages, but we quite generally decline to use it.

Business houses anxious to develop trade with South America find it difficult to employ young men and young women who can speak and write Spanish or Portuguese. Only a very small percentage of our people can either speak or read French, although we putter with the language in our high schools and colleges. As for German, we have placed that under the ban, although it is one of the most useful commercial languages, next to English, there is. American business men and the American public have for the last hundred years or so rather taken the view that if foreign nations want to trade with us they must learn our lingo. Perhaps the time has come when we will have to twist that around and convince ourselves that if we want to trade with other nations we must learn their lingo. Doubtless the proper place in which to make a beginning in the matter of developing the talent for tongues is in the commercial schools of the land. A commercial school that does not teach languages fails to grasp one of the fundamentals in the matter of commercial expansion.—Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat, (Dem.)

A GOOD START

The bill to reduce the American army to 150,000 men proves that the agitation against an elaborate military program has brought results. It was painful to note that America, above all, after going into the world war in order to crush militaryism and to help bring about a world peace, should have turned to favor militarism so strongly in the end. And it was even more painful to find that those demanding the use of armament were the secretaries of war and navy, both of whom were pacifists before.

But there is a limit to everything, after all. The people have awakened to the situation about them, and they have voiced their sentiments. The bill that has been passed by the senate is one of the first results of this awakening. Another bill should now be introduced, one that would reduce Mr. Daniel's naval program. That would be a true victory over militarism, in accord, not only with American traditions, but also with the true aspirations for which hundreds of thousands of American people went to fight and die in France.—The Day (Yiddish, Ind.) New York City.

Editorial Digest

SCRAPPING THE DREADNAUGHT.

The attack on "capital ships" by powerful minorities in both England and America seems to find them as vulnerable, in the eyes of the press, as the aircraft and submarine enthusiasts declare they are in battle. For the most part, American writers support the views of General Mitchell of the air service, who declares that for the price of one battleship we could make the country "airtight from attack by land, sea and air." Testimony against the capital ships in Britain, and Admiral Sims' view in this country seem to be more sympathetically received than the expert opinion of the navy board.

There are exceptions among the newspapers, however, and the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal republican) falls in with the board's opinion that "every new weapon of offense that has threatened the supremacy of capital ships has been met by a successful mode of defense." To bear out this statement, it declares:

"It might be recalled that neither airplanes nor submarines were effective to any great degree in the war after defensive measures against both weapons had been perfected."

Expert naval opinion "has not helped much" to settle the question either way, the Baltimore News democrat) remarks, especially since the other powers cannot agree:

"If England puts her faith in the torpedo and the bomb," it remarks, "at the same time that Japan sticks to the heavy rifle, what are we going to do about it? The navy's answer seems to be that we must build enough submarines and aircraft to match England and enough big-gun ships to match Japan."

The New York Times (independent democrat) also regrets that we "are not so well prepared as might be wished * * * to demonstrate the destructive power of the plane and the vulnerability of the battleship," while the Florida Metropolis (democrat) points out that "air strength in itself cannot ever be the biggest factor in either defense or offense," and while this branch of the military is "entitled to encouragement," it should not, despite General Mitchell's ideas, be developed "at the expense of the other arms of the service." The St. Louis Post Dispatch independent) considers that the conflicting evidence on hand prompts caution in any large outlays at present:

"Under present burdensome taxes large expenditures in capital ships which may presently become obsolete by reason of invention and development in other branches, cannot be sanctioned by business prudence. The circumstances, technical, financial and sociological, urge upon all governments the wisdom of minimizing naval programs."

Granting the arguments of the naval board that "marine inventors have not been at a standstill, and methods to meet the submarine and airship are being installed with some success," the Denver Rocky Mountain News independent) nevertheless feels that the country should take cognizance of the fact that "the world's brains are converging on sending the great ship to the scrap-heap."

The Indianapolis News (independent) sees the "testimony on both sides of the ocean piling up in favor of air navies," and argues that "if the airship is dangerous to the battleship today, it will be vastly more dangerous even one year from now," so swift is the development taking place," and concludes that "there is nothing wild in the belief that we are approaching a new era in naval warfare." While supporting this theory in general, the Lexington Leader (republican) reminds its readers that "it has been intimated that foreign governments, unable to compete with the United States in the building of battleships, now forming the unit strength of all navies, are spreading propaganda calling in question the value of such ships in order to halt our building program."

When it comes to a debate in which one side is all for the airship and the other all for the battleship, the Dayton News (democrat) thinks that "both sides are right and both are wrong." It continues:

"The navy in the future will require a strong air force in the event of some conspicuous engagement, while the airmen in themselves cannot be fully protected against enemy attacks without aerial guns and complete equipment now carried on first-class and modern sea fighting machines. It is obvious that the aeroplane and the battleship should coordinate their effectiveness in making possible the best possible protection to the country in the matter of defense. Secretary Daniels and General Mitchell, upon mature deliberation, will agree in the essentials of both the aeroplane and battleship as important and necessary agencies for our national protection."

WOOD ALCOHOL IN HOOCH MADE OUT OF RAISIN MASH

MARTIN'S FERRY, Ohio, Feb. 19.—Something new to worry about has been discovered for persons who make their own intoxicants.

Two men are taking treatment for wood alcohol poisoning due to the manufacture of raisin jack from raisins, which had not been stemmed.

One of the men may die.

Their malady baffled physicians for a time.

Although the doctors diagnosed the cases as wood alcohol poisoning both men claimed they had tasted no wood alcohol.

It was learned finally that the men had been drinking raisin jack made from mash in which the raisin stems had remained. The presence of the raisin stems, it is claimed, produced wood alcohol.

It requires one cubic yard of clay to make 469 bricks.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE

I have been reading
With considerable interest
The plan suggested by France
And England for the cancellation
Of all debts, and the more I read
Of the plan the better I like it.
Having this great object in mind,
I called on several persons,
Including my landlord, butcher,
Groceryman, laundryman, tailor
And various other gentlemen
To whom I am indebted, and I
Laid the scheme before them
With a great amount of eloquence,
But somehow my arguments
Did not seem to appeal strongly
To any of these great minds,
Although they all said that
They would consider the thing,
But at first glance it didn't
Look so very good to them.
I am still working on the plan,
And if I can persuade these men
That a cancellation of all debts
And a fresh start is the thing,
I will be in right just like
England, France and others
Will be, if they can put it over
I think, with a fresh start,
I will be able to accumulate
Enough debts to make possible
Another cancellation crusade
Two or three years from now.

We note the inauguration of a new system of chain shirt stores, and if the shooting keeps up as it has for the past two or three months we will all have to begin wearing chain shirts at that.

Women who used to borrow a cup of sugar and two eggs from the neighbor over the back yard fence are now borrowing each other's hair.

Madame Louise, beauty expert, who dressed the hair of wives of makers of history all over the United States and Europe, is the authority for the statement.

"Wigs are becoming more popular each day, and it is quite usual for women and girls to borrow each other's" said Madame Louise. "Wigs have come to stay, too. They preserve the hair from the rain and snow. Wigs are now considered stylish—not to aid nature," she said.

THE ESTHETIC BOSTON PHONE

Dear Roy: While in Boston recently I tried to get a friend on the telephone. After getting a connection I called:

"Is this Cambridge 543-W?"

"Ah!" replied a man's voice.

I repeated my number and again came back: "Ah! Ah!" louder than before. I appealed to central for the right number and finally got another connection.

"Is this Cambridge 543-W?" I demanded, as loud as I could.

"Ah! Ah!" called back the same voice.

I was frantic. "Operator, operator!" I yelled, rattling the hook sideways and lengthwise, "you've twice given me the insane asylum. All I get is 'Ah! Ah!'"

"Pardon me," replied the sweet thing, as calm as you please, "I gave you pahty Ah instead of W."

A few minutes later I strolled over to the fluffy queen at the hotel switchboard. "Why do you good folks in Boston slight your R's so?" I ventured timidly.

"Why, the idea!" she replied, pulling out a plug.

Bad Weather and Pipeline Shortage Hinders Operations In Young County Fields

Bad weather was added to the pipe line shortage to cause a dearth of news of importance from Young county this week end, the sleet and rain starting there on Thursday morning, holding up operations and also making communication with the field very difficult.

No new wells have been reported since the first of the week, completions, the Danciger, Heydrick and Spoonts, and other wells reported on the sand and waiting for pipe lines, having no further progress reports.

Bad weather is holding up news from the Panhandle Refining company's Scott well, south of the town of South Bend, and is probably retarding operations, as well as news. The Thursday reports were to the effect that the pipe line connections were made and that the sand would be drilled in on Friday.

The five-inch casing had been set, and the hole is reported in good condition. This test is at present the most interesting in the South Bend area, the performance of the well before the pipe was set, being such as to encourage the belief that the 3,100-foot sand will be very valuable.

The North American Scott test, some distance from the Panhandle well, is reported as still having water trouble. This test got the sand at the approximate depth of the Panhandle, getting it some weeks before the Panhandle, but the casing trouble has proven more difficult to remedy.

1,900-Foot Sand.

The Shamrock Oil corporation, is deepening its No. 1 Graham, which has been testing out the 1,900-foot sand for the past several weeks.

This well was at one time reported a completion in the 1,900-foot sand, but the plans this week, according to the local office of the company, is to drill on for the 2,100-foot sand and to develop the shallower sand later. The sand in the Shamrock will make a 25-barrel producer, possibly better, it is stated.

The No. 2 of the Oklahoma Petroleum and Gasoline Co. which got a 40 to 60-barrel showing in this 1,900-foot sand, east of the Shamrock lease, is being drilled for the lower sand and is reported now drilling below 2,400 feet.

About a mile and a half to the south there are several North American-Roxana wells producing from the 1,900-foot sand, completed before the Panhandle's strike on the McCluskey.

Tendency to Go Deeper.

From indications the testing of this 1,900-foot sand will not play an important part in the McCluskey-Graham operations at present, the tendency being to go down for the 2,100-foot and 2,500-foot sand, since the shallower sand, while making enough for fair pay, has not shown production enough to interest operators in its development while a few hundred feet below the sands produce several hundred barrels.

The Gulf Production company's No. 1 M. V. Keller, in the south part of the pool, has failed to get the 1,900 or 2,100-foot sands, according to reports from the field, and is now going down for the 2,500-foot sand.

The Oklahoma Petroleum & Gas reported drilling around 1,500 feet Ionie Co.'s No. 1 M. V. Keller is and the No. 2 is still a location.

On the Graham lease of the Oklahoma Petroleum & Gasoline Co. the No. 5 is reported drilling around 1,600 feet, and the No. 4 is still a rig. This same company's No. 2 McCluskey is reported a location.

Braddock Test Flowing.

The North American Refining-Roxana No. 1 Braddock, on the lease where the No. 2 was completed last week with a reported flow of 25 barrels an hour, is reported reaming around 2,500 feet.

The Godley Oil company's No. 1 M K. Graham is reported drilling around 1,600 feet and the No. 4 is reported below 2,000 feet. The No. 5 is reported drilling around 800 feet.

The No. 1 Stovall of Vanderrort & Seale is reported drilling around 1,700 feet. The Konowa Oil company's No. 1 Stovall is reported drilling around 1,100 feet.

The derrick is up for the No. 2 McCluskey of Heydrick & Spoonts, it is reported. A real test of the capacity of the No. 1 on this lease, which drilled into the 2,100-foot sand last week, is still waiting on the pipe line connections, according to last reports from the field.

The North American Refining company's No. 1 W. C. Burns is reported drilling around 700 feet.

The No. 1 Graham of Westervelt et al is reported drilling around 1,680 feet.

The No. 1 Graham of the Young county Oil & Gas Co., a mile west of the proven area, is reported with the five and three-sixteenth casing set and getting ready to test the sand found at 2,345 feet.

The Johnson Oil company is reported spudding in its No. 1 McCharen.

Barkley & Crotty No. 1 M. B. Dooley is reported spudding in. The Beamore & Hivick No. 1 M. B. Dooley is reported drilling around 670 feet.

JAPS BUY PLANES MADE IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Substantial orders are being placed with aeroplane manufacturers in this country by Japan, particularly for engines and parts.

Flying boats are also being extensively ordered by the Japanese, and manufacturers of aeroplanes and their parts are sending agents to Japan for the purpose of extending the business there.

It is stated that the ultimate object of the Japanese is to establish land and coast routes in various parts of the eastern empire for commercial purposes.

Attention is, however, drawn to the fact that all the planes now in use for commercial purposes in Europe were originally designed for warfare and that it would be a comparatively easy matter to reverse the process if it became necessary.

WEDDED FOR 75 YEARS, COUPLE LIVES IN PEACE

LINCOLN, Neb. 19.—Is married life a failure? Not according to Daniel and Mary Reneker, who live in perfect peace and harmony in their little cabin near Mt. Zion, Iowa. They have given married life a more thorough trial than any other couple in the country and pronounce it a success, positively and absolutely. Daniel and Mary Reneker should know whereof they speak too, for they have been married for 75 years and for all that space of time they have lived in the same homestead.

In 1846 the bride and groom left the little Ohio town where they were wed to "go west." They floated down the Ohio to the Father of Waters and then turned their course north. Into the wilderness they plunged and the stalwart husband cleared a piece of land he purchased for a dollar an acre and built the house which they have always occupied. And in spite of all hardships as the fairy books say 'they lived happily ever after." Daniel Reneker is 99 years old and his wife is 97 years of age. They have four sons living the eldest 72 and the "baby", Dr. John Reneker, is 54 years old and a member of the Nebraska legislature.

Seventy-five years ago, and it seems like yesterday to the loving couple, they began married life in their little home "and let the rest of the world go by."

LONDON PRICES CONTINUING ON DOWNHILL RACE

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Wholesale prices in Great Britain took a pronounced fall during the month of December, according to a report issued by the American Chamber of Commerce in London.

According to the index numbers a total fall of 670 points took place during the month of December, following a decline of 581 points in the previous month.

The biggest drop was recorded in the textile group, which showed a decrease of 20 points during the month. The highest figure for this group was reached in March last, when the index number stood at 161.

The basic figure for all groups is 100. Based at the price of the various commodities at the time of the armistice.

The cereal and meat group was responsible for a drop of 11 points, the highest point being reached in October, when the number was 121.

That the decline in wholesale prices has at last reached the consumer is shown by the fact that the index cost of living for a working class family has dropped 12 points during the past two months and is expected during the coming months.

M'Cluskey Increases Production

With the completion of the No. 6 McCluskey for 600 barrels, the Panhandle Refining company's daily production in the South Bend district, Young county, has climbed to around 2,200 barrels daily.

Pipe line run figures for the week just past show this new high total.

The reports the first of the week showed the company with a daily production of 1,600 barrels, this being without the new well.

If the weather does not interfere too greatly, the coming week should see a very material relief in the pipe line situation in Young county, the Prairie's new eight-inch line to the Eliasville station being scheduled for completion the last of this month.

The over production period in this pool has been handled in like manner to the same period in the Burkburnett pools, the pipe line's policy being to care for the leases on which connections had already been made, rather than to scatter its connections and prorate the oil runs.

For this reason some of the newer wells have been shut down until the additional line was finished, or have been drilled only a few inches into the sand and permitted to run in what storage was available.

Bandits Too Busy To Bother Adams

Frank R. Adams, famous author, playwright, traveler and soldier, recently completed a motor tour from Whitehall, Mich., to Santa Barbara, California and it proved so interesting that he could not restrain himself from writing a letter about it. His letter is directed to Ray Long, editor of Cosmopolitan, in which his fascinating short stories are now appearing. He writes: "Once fifteen years ago when I followed the Santa Fe Trail on horseback, the principal objects of interest adjacent to the beaten track were the skulls, vertebrae, ribs and other repair parts of cattle. Now after traversing the same ground by motor, my principal memory is of almost equally numerous abandoned automobiles, some buried, some overturned, others smashed and looted. There must be a story in each one.

"Was warned all along the line to beware of bandits, but no one tried to rob me of my ten dollars. Probbly all the professions or selling oil stock in the new boom towns.

"If your Americanism wabbles the least bit, the medicine is a trip from coast to coast by automobile. In no other way can you realize the tremendous extent of the land you own —Its breadth, its heights, and the depth of its mud especially in Oklahoma. Also advise crossing Glorieta Pass, New Mexico, by winter moonlight. If you don't slip you will carry away a lasting thrill.

"Was uniformly impressed by efficiency and courtesy of western garage men. Am in favor of a movement to deposit some of them to some eastern cities I could name.

"It was a luxuriously upholstered, high-powered four-cylinder Dodge Brothers' open faced caboose as did the trick. No repairs, no adjustments, almost no gasoline. Kept perfect time all the way. Short wheelbase, handy in mountain passes. Car would meet itself on some of the turns."

Mr. Adams leaped into fame several years ago as author of "The Time, the Place and the Girl." "A Stubborn Cinderella," and other musical comedies. One of his songs, "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now?" is probably known by nearly everybody in the world.

Rush Expected For Dictionary

Extraordinary efforts have been made for a big rush to get copies of the New Universities Dictionary, the book offered by this paper to its readers exclusively. Thousands beyond all expectations were ditsributed during the week.

"When we set our thoughts down in written form," says Professor Forrest M. Lunt, M. A., instructor of English in Horace Mann school, teachers' college, Columbia university, "we are without the aids of voice and manner to make clear what we are trying to say. Our thoughts must be understood because the relations which exist between the various parts of our sentences are clear. If the relations between the parts of our sentences are not clear, the thoughts we are trying to express will not be understood." This is Professor Lunt's introduction in the New Universities Dictionary to his article on "Practical Syntax," which shows readers of this new dictionary how to build correct sentences.

"Good usage, common practice, society—whatever you will—has decided what is good form, what is proper, in this field of syntax, just as it has in morals, etiquette or fashions," continues Professor Lunt; "therefore, the man or woman who has occasion to set his thoughts down in writing should observe the common practice, the universally understood rules which govern the relationship of words. If he fails to do this, or if he attempts to make his own rules, or if he will be considered without the pale of cultured educated people. From this it will be seen that the ability to construct sentences properly is hardly less important than the power to speak."

BRITAIN-AUSTRALIA AIR LINE PLANNED

LONDON, Feb. 19.—In the near future there may be a regular service of airships between England and Australia, the journey to last about 12 days, said Air Commodore E. M. Maitland at the annual meeting of the Royal Aeronautical society, who was in the R-34 in her flight across the Atlantic in 1919.

Dealing with the flight of the R-34, Commodore Maitland said they had on board ten officers, 20 men and two pigeons. One of the pigeons escaped in America tried to fly to England, got 800 miles across and was picked up in an exhausted condition by a trawler.

Commodore Maitland was offered $500 by a woman at the meeting for the pigeon.

BRITISH MAGNETO PRAISED IN REPORT

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The British magneto is the best in the world and British magneto manufacturers are abreast of any of their foreign rivals.

Such, at least, is the announcement made by the air ministry in a report just published. This statement is issued as the result of the competitions held last year by the ministry and it is generally believed by the trade here that it will be of great benefit.

The report adds that a few mechanical details need improving, but expresses the belief that they will soon be adjusted. Meanwhile no comments from the foreign rivals have yet been received.

SIX CYLINDERS OR TWELVE

To be Found in the Packard

An elementary diagram is enough to show that only in motors having six cylinders or a multiple of six, can the moving parts be balanced.

To engineers and owners alike, six cylinders gave the first solution of perfect mechanical balance—the elimination of mechanical vibration.

However, Packard has never been willing to call anything "the ultimate" It would be easy to claim that designing is a mysterious science and to cover it up with talk of "new features," "advanced systems," and novelty arrangement of parts. But simplicity has marked every great mechanical achievement, always.

The development work of Packard engineers has been tremendous—yet along simple lines and surprisingly straight to the point.

OH! RATS! "Yes Rats!"

MR. RAT AND THE EX-KAISER

By Comparison—With Apologies to Mr. Rat!

Study, if you will, the features and characteristics of Mr. Rat, look him in the face, noting his deep set eyes, with their cunning but deceptive look, his long pointed "mous"-tach, his Roman nose, and his general expression. Any real American can see a marked resemblance and likeness to the ex-kaiser.

Compare their natural inclinations as to unclean living, and we must admit Mr. Rat is the closest competitor the ex-kaiser has. Compare their dispositions and inborn traits for destruction and we must admit that the ex-kaiser only exceeded Mr. Rat in destruction, when the taking of human life in wholesale quantities was the only way he could satisfy his selfish lust for destruction. Compare the worth and usefulness of Mr. Rat and the ex-kaiser to humanity and society; we must admit they are equally essential.

Mr. Rat Gnaws--The Ex-Kaiser Saws

From the striking resemblance, we believe if the family tree of Mr. Rat were carefully traced, we wouldfind the ex-kaiser a very close relative.

Through reliable information, we find that there are "No rats native to the United States," but that they have all migrated into this country from Europe, Asia, Norway and Egypt. (Again we feel the necessity of more stringent immigration laws).

All Americans rose in a body to fight the ex-kaiser. Millions of our best crossed the great pond amid grave dangers to get into the land and home of the ex-Kaiser, and by them he was eliminated from humanity and society, taking refuge in a neighor's backyard, where he is harboured. Citizens, the ex-kaiser's representative and friend, "Mr. Rat" is at work in every American home today and tonight, working a twenty-four hour day. We do not have to cross the pond to fight and kill him; all we have to do is to spend a little time cleaning our premises and to make a comparatively small effort to rid our homes of these undesirable pests, these alien enemies, who always maintain their alien disposition and carry on destruction.

Every citizen who believes in a clean city, who believes in fighting anything, anytime, anywhere that resembles the ex-kaiser, come out one hundred per cent February 22nd and fight Mr. Rat. Give some of your money to fight him. Collect all the forces about you and in your neighborhood and destroy Mr. Rat's home and fireside.

Five hundred men are giving a lot of time and effort to the work. Let at least ten thousand men and boys of Wichita Falls give the 22nd to this very important work. The Governor, the Mayor, and others are especially urging all to take an active interest in this work.

"MOONEY INNOCENT, I WAS FORCED TO TESTIFY," WITNESS CONFESSES

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—"I wanted to get this off my conscience before it was too late. I feel certain that Thomas J. Mooney, sentenced to death for the bomb explosion in San Francisco in 1916, was innocent. I lied in my testimony, but I was bribed and badgered into it by the district attorney and by members of the police force."

This was the statement of John McDonald of Trenton, N. J., who gave an affidavit a few days ago to Frank P. Walsh, former counsel for Mooney. He said:

"This confession has long been on my mind. Recently I could not rest because of the oppression of it. I am certain that Mooney was 'framed' all the way through. I saw the suitcase containing the bomb placed on the sidewalk, but I did not see the face of the man who left it.

"I could not identify him, but I was bribed and threatened into this frame-up. I could not go on any longer with the thought that Mooney was suffering innocently."

Will Go to Back It Up.

McDonald said that he would start for San Francisco soon to substantiate his affidavit before the special grand jury investigating the case.

McDonald's statement, Walsh said, was made voluntarily. The two spent several hours together drawing up the affidavit. McDonald said he was bribed with a large share of the reward offered. McDonald added:

"District Attorney Fickert and the others double-crossed me after I had perjured myself. I was never given a cent of the reward money, and had to pay most of my expenses during my stay in San Francisco.

"Do you know the hell that can exist in a man's mind because of the thought of having injured another? I have worried myself sick over this and am deeply sorry for the wrong that has been done Mooney."

McDonald is a waiter in the Central House, Trenton.

Made Change in Time.

In the affidavit McDonald says that he refused to identify Mrs. Mooney and Nolan. On the trial of Billings he fixed the time of the dropping of the suit case at 1:50 p. m. In the Mooney trial, he asserts, he was urged by Assistant District Attorney Edward Cunha to change the time to 1:30. This was done to destroy Mooney's alibi.

When he said he would not testify against Mooney he was told that "a man worth $100,000" would stand behind everything he said. This man, he learned, was one Oximan. Frank G. Oxman of Dyrkee, Ore., was a star witness for the state.

McDonald went to Los Angeles after the trial and sought to get his share of the $17,500 reward. Police Captain Mathison told him it had not been received, but he would get his share.

McDonald asserts that he never saw Mooney until he was led to Mooney's cell and the prisoner was pointed out. He was brought before Fickert daily for several weeks. He says the district attorney insisted that Mooney was the man McDonald had seen with the suit case.

Thomas J. Mooney in prison garb, at left, and Charles M. Frickert, district attorney, who prosecuted Mooney.

Mooney was sentenced to die as a result of the explosion which killed nine persons in a parade on preparedness day. The sentence was commuted to a life term at the instance of President Wilson. Warren K. Billings also got a life sentence. Frickert denies all charges of a frame-up.

Tennessee Sends Woman to Pen For Repudiating Assault Story

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19.—Mary Thompson McNamara, chief witness in the most sensational criminal assault case ever tried in the state, must serve from one to fifteen years for repudiating the testimony that convicted Allan McNamara of assaulting her. McNamara was sentenced to death in the electric chair, but former Governor A. H. Roberts commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

After McNamara's conviction his brother, Gus, married Mary Thompson, and when Attorney Ralph Davis made a motion for a new trial for McNamara he, put Mary Thompson McNamara on the stand. She then repudiated the testimony she gave against McNamara.

The state, believing that the marriage was consumated with the single idea of getting the girl to help set McNamara free, at once preferred a perjury charge and an indictment followed.

McNamara and two other young men were accused of assaulting three working girls at a lonely spot on Wolf river. One of the boys escaped and Jack Frey, who was indicted for criminal assault, is to go to trial at an early date. He has however, married Lillian Snider, the girl he is accused of assaulting. The assault was the culmination of a wild auto ride during which the girls begged to be taken home.

McNamara was married at the time of his trial and had a four-year-old child. His wife stood by him during the trial and said she had warned the Thompson girl to stay away from her husband. After McNamara's conviction she secured a divorce.

A claim of 95 per cent efficiency is made for the aparatus. In structure the boiler is quite simple, being rugged, vertical cylinder containing the vertically arranged electrodes. Steam pressures of up to 220 pounds are generated with a voltage ranging from the minimum to a maximum of 3,000.% The quantity of steam is ingeniously controlled by means of automatic valves which reduce the water level as the demand for steam decreases. "Most Miles Per Dollar"

Firestone Tires

Firestone tires and tubes make satisfied customers. There is quality built into this line that you do not find elsewhere, and our stock includes a style and size for every car and truck. Let us show you, and explain how to effect a great tire saving.

Strange—But True

Isn't it strange that the same fellow who won't buy a $10 suit, because he knows you can't get a good suit for $10, will go out and buy automobile tires with the idea that the cheapest tire is the biggest bargain.

There's a whole lot more to a good tire than just what you can see when you look at it. The real "works" is on the inside, and if quality wasn't built into a tire originally, there's no man in the world can get quality out of it.

So don't buy cheap tires—they're the most expensive in the end.

Philadelphia Batteries

How many months will your battery last? When you buy an ordinary battery you can't tell. But when you buy a Philadelphia battery you KNOW. The guess work is eliminated. For this battery is guaranteed twenty-four months, two years. That's the longest, strongest battery guarantee ever written.

LARKIN AND GULF PREPARE TO DRILL IN SECOND WELLS ON 1,400 FOOT ELECTRA SAND

W. B. Larkin and the Gulf Production company have gotten the 1,400-foot Electra sand in their second well in the new pool three miles east of the old South Electra pool and are now preparing to drill in and test this sand. The Larkin No. 1 Parker is north of the Gulf's discovery well, producing in the 970-foot sand, and the Gulf well is offsetting the first producer to the south.

The Larkin well has cemented the casing, and will wait about a week to drill in, while the Gulf test is reported ready to drill in immediately. The snow will probably hold up operations here a little longer than was at first anticipated.

The third new sand for this new pool was drilled into this week by the E. A. Dale No. 1 Cunningham, north of the 970-foot producers, and the well is reported a 10-barrel pumper at 310 feet. This depth is also common to the Electra district.

Operations in 700-Foot Sand.

The test of Ryner & Bailey, and Sam Kruger, south of the Larkin, Seay & Cranfill well, producing from the 970-foot sand, is reported drilling in and testing the 700-foot sand. Reports the middle of the week were to the effect that this sand looked like a fair producer. The Hammond & Haddix, on the Burnett, south and slightly east of the discovery well, got this 700-foot sand, but not in sufficient quantity to make a producer, it is reported, and are now drilling for the 1,400-foot sand, being down below 1,200 feet at the last reports.

A general shut-down here, as well as all over the district has been effected by the heavy snow, which covered Wichita and adjoining counties and with no more snow after Friday night the roads would be well into next week in recovering.

Succession of Shallow Sands.

When the second Gulf test and the Larkin test to the north failed to get production from the 970-foot sand, confidence was expressed that the 1,400-foot sand would be found here as in practically every section of the Electra district, where the shallower sand was found. This succession of shallow sands is one of the characteristics of this section, developments have proven, and usually when a test finds production in any one of the sands, the other sands are also found.

The Gladiolus lease, just three miles west of this new pool, is a notable example of the multiplicity and productivity of the Electra shallow sands, production being secured here from the 500, 700, 900, 1,000 and 1,400-foot sands. There are other leases which have this same number of sands in the Electra district, which were developed earlier and have not attracted the attention of the Gladiolus and other South Electra leases, where developments have been recent, and where there have been wells brought in of really sensational capacity, for the shallow sands.

Other Electra Operations.

The No. 1 S. B. Burnett of the Churchill Trust company is reported drilling around 450 feet. The Burr Davis Oil company's No. 10 Burnett is reported drilling around 500 feet.

The Planet Petroleum company's No. 10 Burnett is reported drilling around 1,000 feet and this same company's No. 1 Waggoner, Lease A is reported drilling below 1,400 feet.

The Texas Interstate No. 1 Burnett is reported testing out a sand drilled at 1,540 feet.

The completion in the 800-foot sand are reported for the Texas Electra company, in section 14, H. & G. H. R. R. survey. The No. 5 Parr is reported a 10-barrel well, the No. 6 a 15-barrel well.

The Roy I. Carter No. 2 Burnett is reported drilling around 600 feet.

The Madison Oil company's No. 4 Burnett is reported drilling below 900 feet.

The Hereford Oil company is reported to have the derrick up for its No. 3 Charles Allingham in section 32, block 5 of the H. & T. C. survey.

The No. 1 Burnett et al of W. R. Harris is reported testing out the 1,440-foot sand.

On the Gladiolus lease the Nos. 16 and 17 Burnett are reported drilling, but not yet down to the 900-foot sand.

The Gulf Production company's No. 11 Burnett in the South Electra pool proper, is reported on an oil sand at 1,600 feet and preparing to test.

The Gulf's No. 1 Burnett B in the South Fowlkes vicinity is reported drilling around 500 feet.

Around Iowa Park.

The testing of the 1,800-foot sand in the Gulf Production company's Potter Lewis in block 23, Kemp-Munger-Allen section, will be possible in the coming week, according to present indications. This test got the sand more than two months ago but has been held up with a tedious fishing job. The damaged casing has been finally recovered; the hole cleaned out and the casing set and cemented, according to the week-end reports, and the sand will be drilled into as soon as the cement has set properly.

From present indications this will be the first real test that has been given this deeper sand in the K.-M.-A., the efforts of the Kemp-Munger-Allen company to shut off the water and test the sand having been failures to date, according to reports.

To the west of the Gulf's 1,800-foot test on the D. G. Jackson tract, W. M. Priddy is reported to have started drilling on his No. 2. The first test on this lease was drilled early in the development of the Kemp-Munger-Allen pool and failed to make a producer.

The No. 4 Parkey of Bissonet et al in Archer county, is reported as having set casing on the lime, around 1,760 feet and intend to drill in as soon as the cement sets.

The Ryan Petroleum company's third shallow test, the No. 5 Nance, on the lease northwest of the Kemp-Munger-Allen pool, and across the Wichita river, is reported with casing set around 1,200 feet and rigging up a star to drill in.

Rivals Electra Shallow Pool.

The shallow pools in the Iowa Park section are rivalling the Electra shallow field for activity and a number of new wells have been reported in the last few weeks in the 300- to 800-foot sands, in blocks 50, 55 and 58 of the Wichita Valley farmlands, where the Watkins, Vat, Quadruple and other shallow wells opened up production during the days of Burkburnett townsite and northwest sensations. Real development of these pools necessarily waited until the boom excitement was over.

A new test for the Temple & White 1,300-foot sand has been started by the Universal Oil company on the J. E. Roller, in the Samuel Holloway survey, a little over two miles southwest of the producers on the Parker. This location is in the Lockridge pool, one of the first producing pools in the Iowa Park district. The test is reported drilling around 1,100 feet.

In the Sunshine Hill area the 1918 Oil company's No. 7 M. A. Eads is reported drilling around 950 feet. The No. 1 Ward & Todd of Browning & Browning is reported drilling around 650 feet. The Griswold Oil company's No. 2 Ward & Todd is reported drilling around 90 feet.

Activity in Texhoma.

The United Savings Oil association's No. 1 Beach, brought in some time ago as a five-million-foot gasser, and later having water trouble, is reported as having drilled deeper and now on a gas sand around 1,450 feet. Preparations are being made to drill in at this depth, it is reported.

The No. 3 Dodson of Wirt Franklin is reported testing the 1,250-foot sand.

The A. D. Robinson No. 3 Roller is reported drilling around 800 feet.

The Donovan Oil company's No. 3 Roller is reported drilling around 900 feet.

The test of the Gulf Coast Oil company on the E. E. Rexford, in the northwest part of the Texhoma field reported on the oil sand at 1,670 feet several weeks ago, and since held up with casing trouble, is reported in good shape at present and underreaming with prospects of getting the new sand tested out in a short time.

The Silver Cycle Oil company's No. 1 J. W. Donuohoo is reported drilling around 850 feet.

In the OldBurkburnett.

The Magnolia Petroleum company, which is leading in the bulk of drilling now under way in the old Burkburnett field, has several wells due for immediate completion, according to latest reports from the field. The No. 6 Holcomb lease A, is reported drilling in at 1,540 feet and the No. 10 and No. 11 Ramming drilling in, sand at 1,800 feet. The No. 65 Reilly is also reported drilling in, sand at 1,650 feet.

The No. 7 Holcomb, lease A, is reported spudded in and the No. 17 W. A. Martin is reported a new location.

On the Reilly lease Nos. 69 and 70 are derricks, and No. 71 is a new location, as is No. 72. A star is reported on No. 73, which will be drilled to the shallow sand. The No. 18 Chenault Viles is reported a recent location.

The Elizabeth Oil company's No. 6 Borcheldt is reported drilling around 1,350 feet.

In the Clara pool the Hull Tex Oil company's No. 1 C. J. Ferguson is reported on the 1,700-foot oil sand and reaming to set casing.

The No. 1 G. W. Chapman of Staley, Palmer & Chenault is reported drilling around 500 feet.

Wildcats.

The rig was reported moving on Thursday at the Montana Oil & Gas Co.'s No. 1 Avis, two miles east of the East Wichita test.

A fair showing of oil and gas around 1,350 feet was reported as encountered in the 300 Oil company's No. 1 Elloitt, to the northeast of the East Wichita, and in the neighborhood of the Champion and General tests in Clay county. The sand was passed up without testing, it is understood, and the test is to now below 1,400 feet.

The Allen & Foster No. 2 Joyce, north Clay county, offsetting the discovery well, is reported drilling around 700 feet.

ROMANCE OF BLIND LOVERS FULFILLED

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 19.—A love affair which began when both were totally blind and when Samuel W. Bean was unable to communicate with other human beings culminated in his marriage here to Miss Maude Woodworth. They met as students at the California State Home for the Deaf and Blind. Both are 24 years of age.

Bean now lives in Alameda at 1807 Santa Clara avenue, although for the past seven years he was a student at the blind school. Miss Woodworth, with the aid of strong glasses, now has her full sight.

Bean came to the school when he was 16 years of age after an accident which destroyed both his sight and his hearing. It was months before Miss Mary Eastman, the young man's teacher, could establish any communication with him. Now he is trained in the use of the deaf sign language and is able to converse with anyone.

After the wedding ceremony, performed with the aid of the sign language, the young couple had luncheon with Mrs. Bean, the bridegroom's mother, and Miss Eastman.

They will live in Alameda. Bean has written poetry which he sells to help earn a livelihood.

DIGS EMERALD AS BIG AS HEN EGG

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—An uncut emerald as big as a hen's egg has arrived in this country from Colombia, South America. It is a stone of 630 carats, of the best grade in color and was dug with pick and shovel in a mine first worked by the Spaniards three or four hundred years ago. The largest emerald in the world was mined in Ural mountains in Russia and weighs six and three-quarter pounds. Another emerald which surpasses the one just found is now at Bogata and weighs 1,000 carats. The value of the emerald just mined is uncertain but it might be said that it was a fair day's work for the miner who uncovered it.

FARMERS MIX UP MASH AND AWAIT TRAVELLING STILL

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 19.—The travelling "community" still is the latest worry of prohibition enforcement officers here. The police "clean-up" squad is now hot on the trail of an elusive whiskey-making outfit.

Evidence of the perambulating distillery was first discovered when the police found Parette Pasquale pulling his hair and gnashing his teeth over 31 barrels of mash, bewailing the fact that "that still ain't here yet."

"It cost me $400," wailed Pasquale, as the officer dumped the mash in the back yard. "Why didn't that still come?"

After arresting Pasquale the police also took into custody his brother-in-law, Dominick Columbia, at whose home 41 barrels of mash were found.

The police assert the "travelling still" is operated similar to the community operation of the threshing machine in rural districts—that is, going from house to house as it is needed.

NABBED WITH RUM, NEGRO PREACHER LET OFF TO SAVE

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 19.—Two prohibition officers visited the home of a negro preacher in Mercer county the other day in search of moonshine whiskey. When informed of the object of their visit the preacher devoutly raised his eyes to heaven and exclaimed

"Oh Lord, Thou knowest there is no moonshine in my home except for Thy cause."

This did not deter the officers, who proceeded with the investigation and unearthed 25 bottles of whiskey hidden at the back of a shelf. The negro was at once arrested and taken before Magistrate Cook of Matoaka, who gave him a stiff fine and jail sentence.

The negro brother immediately announced that he was able to pay the fine, but that owing to the fact that he had a revival going on in Rock district with scores of penitents every night at the altar, it could not be reasonably thought that he would be able to serve the jail sentence. There were dozens of sinners coming to this meeting who wanted to be saved, he declared, and unless he was there to carry on the meetings, these negro men would be eternally lamned with no possible escape from the lower regions. The time was ripe to pluck them from the eternal burning and if he was forced to serve the jail sentence, "de good Lawd would hold de man responsible what sent him there."

Magistrate Cook, a preacher himself, suspended the jail sentence.

HAYNES SERVICE

It is our desire to have all Haynes owners bring their cars to us for service. The secret of success in getting the most out of your car for the least expense and worry depends on the care and attention the car receives. This can best be accomplished through strict co-operation between the owner and the service department of the organization that handles the car.

It is ever our greatest desire to give the most attention possible to Haynes cars and their owners and a small amount of co-operation from the owners will assist us more than any other one thing.

We are proud of our service department and its personnel and sincerely believe that it has been a success from the beginning. This does not mean that we are not open for suggestions. You, the Haynes owner, are the one we are trying to please and any improvement you can suggest redounds to both your advantage and ours.

The enjoyment and satisfaction any owner gets out of his car depends primarily on the service and co-operation he gets on maintaining the car. Bring your Haynes to us for any trouble you may have and we will help you. Any information or suggestion that we can give we are eager to do so. Why not get the habit of dropping in at least once every month for a brief inspection. There may be some small things that need adustment which if allowed to go too long will mean a large repair bill, but might be repaired now at a small expense.

Prospective owners should by all means consider an organization's ability to render complete service before purchasing from them.

This fact is unmistakable proof of the popularity of the Chandler car and the high esteem in which it is held by owners. Back of this is the marvelous Chandler motor and the fact that ever since the inception of the car the Chandler factory has standardized on one chassis. Minor refinements have been made from time to time, but essentially it is the same car today that it was eight years ago.

SAYS AMERICA HOLDS FUTURE OF ALL RACES

BY NEWTON, C. PARKE.
(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Feb. 19—President Harding goes into office March 4 confronted with one of the most difficult tasks that ever faced any American executive, declare Claude Berton, well known French writer, in a striking article in the current issue of Le Monde Nouveau.

Chief of all the problems the new president must meet is the attitude the United States shall take toward Europe and toward Asia, writes Berton. He fears that "imperialistic ambitions" may lead America to turn her back upon Europe and seek not only markets but manual labor for her industries in Asia, intermingling yellow and white races. Summing up, he declares:

"America is face to face with a formidable responsibility. In the next ten years she is going to hold the future of the races of the world in her hands."

Berton summarizes the American presidential campaign, America's attitude toward the League of Nations, her controversies with England and the rapidity with which she is pushing her naval construction. He adds:

Future Market in Asia.

"The underlying thought of all the great American capitalists is to find in Asia a market for their goods, conceiving the possibility of Europe going bankrupt or half-bankrupt. They know very well that it is easy to create new wants among the people of Asia which is at the same time an inexhaustible reservoir of labor. For several years the American financiers have been harnessed to the organiaztion of a consortium of banks in China. Today they believe they have the project well along the way toward realization. The imposing mass of their capital will give them financial control of the country.

"The United States has today a government bank, the federal reserve. The president and the secretary of the treasury hold the reins over this powerful organization. In what measure and in what fashion will they use it to further political designs in Asia?

"Europe should have no illusions about the situation. All present efforts of the United States tend toward the creation of new outlets where they can plant their methods and their agents ,liberating temselves from commercial relations with Europe.

Struggle for Supremacy.

"The American imperialists are directing their attention toward the Pacific, counting upon exploiting the marvelous resources of Asia, developing China as a check against the expansion of Japan and detaching the United States from Europe. This will be done in the face of the British, and we shall have a struggle of the two Anglo-Saxon peoples for the supremacy of the world. In order to realize this immense plan, the United States has enough gold and a sufficient industrial equipment. Tomorrow the American merchant marine will be large enough to cover all the seas of the world, protected by a navy of a size never seen by the world. The United States will have all the necessary materials, an admirable machinery, supremacy in the world credit, a unique geographical situation, everything in fact except the essential thing, everything but men.

FRENCH LIMIT FOREIGNERS IN STAGE CIRCLE

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Quite a sensation has been caused in France by an edict made pubic by the Federation of Theaters to prevent theaters from employing but a certain percentage of foreigners in their shows.

The federation states that competition from foreign groups is much too strong. On the other hand, French theaters and especially music halls, remark that the percentage of foreigners employed is far below that generally accepted. They also fear that if France were to attempt to prevent foreign artists from appearing on French stages foreign countries and particularly America, England and Belgium, would likewise prohibit the appearance of French artists and thereby deal a severe blow to French theatrical interests. They point out also that many dancers and singers whose names terminate in "off" or "ska" are in reality often born in the heart of Paris and that likewise the comic who speaks with a strong American accent on the stage speaks the ugliest French slang when off the boards.

Oscar Dufrenne ,manager of a well-known music hall in Paris, says that regulations allow that 10 per cent of the musicians be foreigners and 8 per cent for the other artists. According to M. Dufrenne these figures are rarely reached.

BATTERY Exide SERVICE
EXIDE
BATTERIES
Sound business reasons, every one of them.
1. The first commercially starting and lighting battery was built by The Electric Storage Battery Company.
2. The Electric Storage Battery Company is the oldest and largest manufacturers of storage batteries in the world.
3. Exide Service means a definite battery service—repairs, overhauling and attention by a group of battery experts.
4. We can sell an Exide Battery, secure in the belief that you will get all the battery value possible and more than you ordinarily would get.
No matter what make of battery you have now in your car, if it needs attention, we shall be glad to give it expert, unprejudiced attention so that it will last as long as possible until you are ready to replace it with an Exide, the long-life battery.
