Old Glory Unfurls Over Defeated Japs

Schools Sell Part Of Central Ward Tract

Thirteenth Street Frontage Is Sold For $175,000; Q Frontage Retained

THE Lubbock Independent School district yesterday afternoon entered into contract to sell that portion of the Central Ward school property fronting 345 feet on Thirteenth street and extending southward from Thirteenth for 422 feet.

Price was $175,000; $25,000 in "earnest money" is in escrow in First National bank and Chas. C. Crenshaw, Lubbock attorney acting for the purchasers, said he expected the other $150,000 payment to be in the school district's hands by September 7.

Q Frontage Retained

The school district retains ownership of the Avenue Q frontage of the property, which extends 138 feet north and south on Q, and 180 feet east and west. A. C. Jackson, school district business manager, last night was instructed by trustees to put this property on the market at a net price to the schools of $75,000.

Identity of the purchaser was not disclosed by Attorney Crenshaw who said his clients asked that their names not be made public. However, it is generally believed that Sears, Roebuck & Co. is the purchaser, although not even trustees of the school district have been told with whom they are dealing.

Similar Deal Fell Through

In a similar "hush-hush" transaction several months ago, the Dallas realty firm of Fisher & Fisher all but closed a deal for the entire Central Ward property, including the avenue Q frontage, for total consideration of $250,000. Fisher & Fisher wouldn't disclose the names of its clients, who, with the realty company, permitted a total of $1,100 in "earnest money" to go to the school district when the deal fell through. Public statements in The Avalanche-Journal that the potential purchaser was Sears, Roebuck & Co. were never denied and the two deals, last of which was culminated yesterday, were identical in many ways with a purchase made by Sears in El Paso.

Secrecy surrounded the purchase of property in the border city; Fisher & Fisher of Dallas were the real estate agents, and announcement finally was made that Sears, Roebuck was the purchaser. A similar announcement is expected here within a few weeks at the most.

Under the terms of the transaction, Lubbock Independent School district, already cramped for space, will be permitted to use the Central Ward building and grounds

School Tax Rate Is Kept At $1

The Board of Trustees of Lubbock Independent School district last night voted to retain the $1-per-$100-valuation tax rate on property owned within the 10-miles-square district for another year and announced that bids on the $1,500,000 bond issue, approved by voters on last August 21, would be accepted here on the afternoon of September 11.

The $1,500,000 raised from the bond issue will be spent on a system-wide expansion program and A. C. Jackson, schools business manager, was instructed to "start the ball rolling" through the various government bureaus in an effort to get early approval for the construction program.

Trustees canvassed the vote on the special bond election, results of which were 517 votes for issuing the bonds to 12 votes against—a majority of 49-to-1. Haynes & Strange, Lubbock architectural firm, was chosen to draw the plans and supervise the construction of new buildings and additions set up under the expansion program.

Property Sale Discussed

G. H. Nelson and J. Ray Dickey, representing the Lubbock Boys club, appeared before trustees' regular monthly meeting, held in schools business offices at 1007 Texas avenue, and asked trustees to sell property adjoining the Boys club building to the Boys club "for the lowest possible price, keeping in mind that the Boys club, like the schools, is a publicly maintained and supported institution in the best interests of the city's juveniles." They pointed out that the Boys club building already has been outgrown, and said Boys club directors would be willing to pay $4,000 for the property with the property reverting to the schools should the Boys club ever be abandoned.

After discussion, the trustees agreed to sell the property, located between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets on Avenue K, for $4,745. Trustees were unanimous in wishing to sell the property, not large enough for school uses, to the Boys club for $4,000. But it was pointed out that taxpayers have $4,745 invested in the property—including simple interest at 2 per cent since 1929—and that the school board could not conscientiously sell at a loss, even to the Boys club. Directors of the Boys club are expected to give an affirmative answer on Friday.

DDT Use Approved

At the request of the trustees, Dr. J. W. Rollo, City Health officer; Don Cook, one of his assistants, and James H. Harris, of the Texas Department of Health, discussed projected use of the new wonder insect-killer, DDT, in the school buildings. Upshot of a lengthy discussion was that DDT will be dusted in school basements and sprayed upon some walls to kill flies, fleas, roaches and other insects which find their way into most buildings and residences. Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, chairman of the school board, said he thought Lubback was lucky to be one of the 50 Texas school systems given DDT for this purpose by the State Health department. Doctor Rollo agreed, and both physicians said "only good and no danger can come from this use of DDT."

Supt. Raymond W. Matthews said everything is shaping up for the opening of schools next Monday, pointing out that regular classes will start on Tuesday after teachers meetings and reception of new students on Monday.

At the request of Superintendent Matthews, the trustees unanimously accepted the resignations

Price Battle Opens As OPA Stands Firm

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 — The fight over the price you'll have to pay for things like refrigerators and washing machines started full blast today. It's OPA versus the nation's storekeepers.

OPA wants prices on the new peacetime goods set at where they were in 1942. Storekeepers want higher ones.

And here was the rest of the country's fast-changing picture:

Butter — Points are coming down—Sept. 2—from 16 to 12.

Soldiers — The Army's set to lower its discharge points: from 85 to 80.

Rubber—Suddenly available for rubber toys, kitchen tools, floor mats.

Auto Prices Start Down

Used cars—Prices have started falling. Average drop, $25 a car.

Toys — This Christmas pretty much like last Christmas. Tin's scarce.

Black markets — Beginning to fade in used cars and chickens.

Bath towels — Any size is all right to make now. Controls came off.

This is the heart of the OPA-storekeeper fight which may continue bitterly:

OPA wants the new peacetime things sold to you to be sold at the price you would have paid in 1942.

But retailers—their spokesmen had a session with OPA today — say this puts them in a squeeze, that they may go broke and for this reason:

Wholesale Price Up

Because of some increased costs, OPA will let the manufacturer charge the wholesaler a little more than he charged in 1942.

But by the time the goods reach you—passing from wholesaler to retailer—the price must be back down to 1942 levels.

So the wholesaler and retailer must absorb that higher cost.

They want a better break than that, they say. OPA shakes its head, says it will consider the matter. But it already has laid down the rule.

The government lifted all controls on products manufactured from reclaimed and scrap rubber, and all synthetic rubber except butyl.

Rubber Merchandise

This should make rubber available for toys for Christmas, and things like bathing and shower caps, combs, beach balls, bath mats, bottle stoppers, rubber gloves, window wipers, hair-curlers kitchen tools, rubber heels.

The government is keeping rigid control over natural rubber and butyl.

The price of used cars, which zoomed up and stayed up during the war, has started to fall because of word new cars will soon start rolling. The average drop is $25.

Dealers in used cars and chickens say black market in both are beginning to dwindle away. The reason: Promise of new cars coming, and plenty of chickens soon.

Storm-Lashed Coast Starts Rehabilitation

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOUSTON, Aug. 28. —An enormous task of relief and rehabilitation occupied a 300 mile stretch of the central Texas coast tonight as one of the most destructive hurricanes in Gulf history blew itself out in East Texas.

Early estimates of terrific damage, transmitted by patched communications facilities, placed crop and property damage in the millions of dollars and from some of the hardest hit sections, still isolated from the outside world, there had been no word.

Bleak Picture Drawn

From battered, sea-level communities down the fertile, well-populated coast came fragmentary reports that drew a bleak picture of wrecked towns, hundreds homeless, crops destroyed. Three persons were dead and at least 12 injured.

Throughout the stricken region the Red Cross worked, feeding and caring for thousands of persons. In Bay City alone, inland town of 6,000 about 60 miles southwest of Houston, 1,500 citizens looked to the humanitarian organization for aid. Bay City, where the 135-mile-per-hour hurricane raged with full fury, was still cut off from outside communications. The last word had been from a reporter who, a moment before the line went out, telephoned that the community was being torn apart by the wind.

State health department sanitation crews were at work along the coast, checking water and other sanitation facilities. At Washington the Federal Housing administration said it would insure property repair loans up to $2,500 to mend storm-damaged structures.

Big Areas Inundated

The giant hurricane, moving slowly, pushed up surging, mountainous tides so dreaded in the flat coastal country and thousands of acres were inundated. From Victoria, 90 miles southwest of here, came a Foster Field report that seawater had risen over Matagorda island in some places and that 10 enlisted men and an officer marooned on the island fought off hundreds of rattlesnakes that sought safety on high sand dunes.

Two U. S. Women Shot In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28 (AP)—Two American women were shot and one of them killed yesterday outside Cuernavaca by one of their two Mexican escorts whom the surviving woman said also robbed them.

The woman killed was identified by the police as Mrs. Molly McClagherty, also known as Mrs. Molly McClagherty Price of San Antonio or Corpus Christi.

Her companion gave her name to the police as Miss Elinor Schuster, 193 Second street, Clifton, N. J.

Mrs. McClagherty was shot once in the heart and probably died immediately. Miss Schuster was shot three times, once in each leg and once in the abdomen. Attending surgeons said today that she is out of danger.

Story Told to Police

The story which Miss Schuster told the police is that she and Mrs. McClagherty made an automobile excursion yesterday to a convent 10 miles from Cuernavaca. On their return, the party stopped to search for a spring the men said was near there. Failing to find it they started back to the car. Then, Miss Schuster told the police, one of the men turned and shot her in the leg. She protested and he shot her in the other leg. As she continued to denounce him, he shot her in the abdomen. When she finally reached the car she found Mrs. McClagherty dead on the ground, shot in the heart.

The police reported that a large diamond ring and possibly other valuables or money had been taken.

Advance Unit Runs Up Flag Near Tokyo

By RICHARD CUSHING
Associated Press Staff Writer

OKINAWA, Wednesday, Aug. 29 —The first American flag was raised over conquered Japan at 12:10 p. m. Tuesday (10:10 p. m. Monday, central war time) by a Fifth Air force radio unit.

The unit, known as the "Flying Circus," was sent along with the first airborne contingent to set up a radio tower for contact with the mass of troops arriving tomorrow.

Landing at 8:47 a. m., the "Flying Circus" less than four hours later hoisted Old Glory to the top of the radio antenna.

Elaborate Luncheon

Top-ranking American air men told of eating an elaborate luncheon of turtle soup and assorted sandwiches at Japanese field headquarters at the edge of Atsugi air field yesterday.

The luncheon was served in a spotless frame building. Flowers adorned the table. Food was served to more than a score of American officers by Japanese waiters. Japanese officers ate in an adjoining room.

Col. John H. Lackey, jr., veteran pilot of Norfolk, Va., landed the first plane on the field. With him were Col. James T. Pettus, jr., St. Louis, Mo., and Col. Delbert Ward, San Antonio, Tex. They all expressed surprise at the Japanese attitude.

"They appeared to be doing their honest best to show they wanted to oblige," Ward said.

Japs Appear Relieved

It appeared to Ward that the Japanese were relieved the war was over "but it still hasn't soaked in—it's hard for them to realize the seriousness of the defeat of their country."

All agreed the Japanese conducted themselves in a military manner, saluting snappily but doing no bowing nor scraping. Few handshakes were exchanged.

Lackey set his C-47 on Atsugi at 8:27 a. m. and within 45 minutes the Americans had their own portable control tower in operation.

Lackey, who had been flying transports in the Pacific for three years, termed the concrete-surfaced Atsugi strip "the best Japanese built strip I have ever seen—it will take anything from B-29s on down."

The technicians preparing for mass landings tomorrow had little repair work to do. The Japanese had filled larger bomb craters and marked smaller unrepaired holes with red flags.

Jap Army Removed

All Japanese Army personnel had been removed from the area, which was guarded by unarmed naval units. Nipponese MPs carried clubs and officers carried their traditional swords.

There was no Japanese flag flying in the airdrome area. The "Flying Circus" radio outfit of the Fifth Air force ran up Old Glory on the radio antenna rod about 12:10 p. m.

Gen. Roosevelt Wants Full Report Released

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt today asked a congressional committee investigating his business affairs to "make public the full report immediately."

Through his Washington attorneys, the son of the late President released the following telegram addressed to Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee:

"In view of the press reports purporting to give a partial version of the testimony taken by the Treasury department concerning my financial transactions, I respectfully urge that the committee make public the full report immediately. Naturally I am not cognizant of testimony other than my own, but I feel strongly that the American people have a right to know all the facts and to hear all the evidence in connection with the reports.

"If the full statement is not made available immediately to the public, continued speculation and erroneous stories can only further distort the facts."

Budgets For State Boards Completed

This duty was imposed on the committee by an act of the 49th legislature, in an effort to keep an eye on expenditure of federal funds made available to departments, or other special funds available without legislative appropriation.

Halsey Leads Mighty Fleet Into Tokyo Bay

Gen. Wainwright Eagerly Accepts Invitation To Witness Formalities

(By The Associated Press)

MANILA, Wednesday, Aug. 28—Powerful warships of the Third Fleet led by Admiral Halsey aboard the 45,000-ton Battleship Missouri began a triumphal penetration of Tokyo bay today as General MacArthur flew north from Manila for his entry into Japan Thursday.

The mighty display of American naval power, moving through Uraga strait into the bay, occurred as the United States flag flew for the first time in victory over conquered Nippon—within 18 miles of the emperor's palace in Tokyo.

Great Forces Poised

Followed by other warships, Halsey rode the battlewagon into the bay at 7:08 a. m. (5:08 p. m. central war time) as great sea and airborne forces were poised for large scale occupation landings, backed by warships massing from as far away as the Aleutians.

LANDINGS START TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28 (AP)—Norman Paige, American Broadcasting company correspondent, said in a broadcast from Tokyo bay the powerful Marine-bluejacket landings will start at 10 a. m. Thursday, Tokyo time, (8 p. m. Wednesday cwt) at Yokosuka.

Paige described a leisurely inspection trip aboard a Higgins boat at Yokosuka, speaking of signs of destruction everywhere caused by American air attacks.

His master plan for the powerful occupation unfolded orderly, pointed toward the historic surrender signing Sept. 2 aboard the Battleship Missouri in Tokyo bay. Today he invited Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, the American hero forced to sign the surrender of the Philippines in 1942, to be with him at the formal capitulation of Nippon. Wainwright recently was released as a prisoner of war in Manchuria and has been taken to Chungking.

General Wainwright, a hero even in defeat at Corregidor, eagerly and promptly accepted the invitation.

Airborne troops raised the Stars and Stripes at Atsugi airfield, southwest of Tokyo, which they are preparing for the arrival Thursday of MacArthur and thousands of troops in air transports from Okinawa.

Observers at Adak assumed that Vice Adm. Frank Jac Fletcher's cruisers, destroyers and carriers, getting set to move west, would take part in occupation of northern Japan—for which General MacArthur as yet has made no announcement.

As the large scale occupation operations scheduled for Atsugi and Yokosuka to the south of Tokyo, impended, an Associated Press correspondent aboard a Liberator over Tokyo reported that a deathly stillness gripped that metropolis, Japan's defeat plainly was written in its ruined sectors, said Spencer Davis.

At Okinawa, Associated Press correspondent Richard Cushing reported, American planes will begin evacuating 6,125 prisoners of war, largely American, from two camps within 10 miles of Atsugi tomorrow. His report reemphasized American determination to achieve such release simultane-

Wainwright 'All Right' On His Arrival At Chungking, Accepts MacArthur Invitation

By DEAN SCHEDLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Wednesday, Aug. 28. —Lt. Gen. Jonathon Wainwright, American hero imprisoned by the Japanese since he surrendered Corregidor, today accepted an invitation of General MacArthur to witness Japan's formal surrender in Tokyo bay Sunday.

The presence of Wainwright aboard the Battleship Missouri in Tokyo bay for the ceremony would offer a dramatic contrast to his grim experience in being forced to sign the capitulation of American forces in the Philippines early in 1942.

Aides Also Invited

The invitation also was extended to Wainwright's chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Lewis C. Beebe, aides Lt. Col. John Pugh and Maj. Thomas Dooley, and orderly and chauffeur, Sgt. John Carroll. All were captured with the general at Corregidor.

MacArthur said he also hoped the British commander who signed the surrender at Singapore could be present.

The supreme command of the Allied powers will have Wainwright present, if possible for the surrender of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, in the Philippines. The surrender of Yamashita, the general who accepted the British capitulation at Singapore, is in the process of being arranged.

Reaches Chungking

Wainwright, 62-year-old American hero of Corregidor, arrived in Chungking today from a Japanese prison camp in Manchuria and his prison-taut face broke into a smile as he announced: "I'm all right."

With him in two giant American transport planes came seven other American generals—their names may not yet be disclosed—seven British generals and some 16 other Americans, British and Dutch military and civilian internees.

(In Washington the War department said Wainwright expects to follow Gen. Douglas MacArthur into Tokyo. Wainwright plans to leave Chungking Thursday for Manila, then proceed to the Japanese capital.

(The department said Wainwright advised he would be accompanied to Tokyo by Brig. Gen. Lewis C. Beebe, Faribault, Minn., captured in the Philippines and recently freed; Col. John Pugh, Maj. Thomas Dooley and T/Sgt. H. Carroll, also former prisoners.

Tokyo Is Gripped By Death Pallor

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

IN A LIBERATOR BOMBER OVER TOKYO, Aug. 28. (AP)—The stillness of death hung over the ruins of Greater Tokyo today.

At her threshold lay the mighty Allied fleet drawn up in full battle array and at her backdoor the first elements of a great Army of occupation had landed at the Atsugi airdrome and were preparing the way for thousands more to follow.

As this Liberator bomber circled for approximately an hour at a low level over what was once the third largest city in the world there seemed no question of the utter defeat Japan had suffered. The national humiliation seemed to rise like a cloud from the reddish smudge of flattened buildings spreading over the city for blocks too numerous to count.

Only Occasional Vehicle

There were no crowds walking the streets already swept clear of rubble. There was only an occasional vehicle and a few cyclists. The bustle of a great city was gone. It had been crushed by fire bombs and defeat.

As we dropped to less than a thousand feet from a run over the palace grounds, we saw a line of soldiers—perhaps imperial guards—drawn up at attention. An officer was reading to them from a white paper.

There was one exception. On the northeast side of the Sumida river, one long, low structure had six letters painted in brilliant yellow on its flat roof. The letters spelled "thanks" and we knew without asking that it was

Man Found Dead In Room Here

R. D. Coulson, about 65, shoe shop employe, was found dead about 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night in his room at 809 Ave. K, apparently the victim of a heart attack, police said.

Coulson's body was discovered lying across his bed, clad only in underwear and socks and shoes, by Leonard Huber, manager of a rooming house at that address and operator of the Quality Shoe Shop, at 805-A Broadway, where Coulson was employed.

Door Forced Open

Huber forced open the door to Coulson's room after the roomer failed to answer his calls. He had known that Coulson had not been feeling well Tuesday, he told police, due partly to a fall that Coulson had taken about noon. At around 5:30 o'clock, he said, Coulson had answered his inquiry with, "I'm feeling better, I'm lying down now."

Justice of Peace D. W. Robertson said he probably would enter a verdict of death by natural causes.

Police patrolmen D. J. Hoover and W. E. West said $967 in a thick roll of bills was found in a suitcase in Coulson's room, and $62 in his billfold.

No Known Relatives Here

Coulson has no known relatives living in Lubbock, police Capt. Bill Bell said, although he has a brother in the wholesale drug business at Coleman and another brother at Greenville.

Coulson formerly worked as a traveling salesman in this territory, according to Robertson, who said he had known the man as a Lubbock resident for 10 years.

The body is at Sanders Funeral home.

Survivor Threads Way From Thailand Jungles . . .

Cruiser Houston Mystery Lifts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP) — An American officer brought word out of Thailand jungles today that some 300 survivors of the old heavy Cruiser Houston, which vanished in 1942, are in a Japanese prison camp.

The Houston was part of an Allied naval force that tried to halt Japan's march through the Pacific islands and took a licking in the battle of the Java sea on Feb. 27, 1942. The cruiser disappeared the next night while trying to run Soenda strait, between Java and Sumatra.

The first official report that some of her crew had been picked up came today from Lt. Col. Nicol Smith, who operated with underground forces in Thailand for the Office of Strategic Services. The number of survivors is approximate, Smith said, but "anyone having relatives on the crew of the Houston can be very optimistic."

He told a news conference that two of the crew escaped from a prison camp in Thailand several weeks ago and found their way, nearly dead from exhaustion and exposure, to a guerrilla training station run by Maj. Robert Bartlett of Los Angeles. Smith did not have their names.

But they are to be flown out of Thailand shortly.

There is a possibility other survivors may have been captured and sent to other prisons and that some may have avoided capture and teamed up with guerrillas in the Pacific islands.

A former traveler and author with residences in New York and San Francisco, Smith left India by plane a week ago.

Filling in details in a statement issued by OSS, Smith said about two weeks before hostilities ended two "incredibly thin and extremely hungry American Navy enlisted men" staggered into one of the OSS guerrilla camps which blanketed Thailand and told Major Bartlett they were survivors of the Houston.

"They had been aided by Thais who had helped them through the jungles to the nearest American guerrilla camp," he said.

"They brought the story that . . . there were several hundred of their friends who had survived the years of imprisonment in the jungles of remote Thailand and southeastern Asia.

The Navy department announced the loss of the Houston March 14, 1942.

Ration Point Value Of Butter To Drop

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (AP)—The ration point value of butter will be reduced from 16 to 12 red points a pound for the period beginning Sept. 2, an Office of Price administration spokesman said today.

The reduction will hold good for both household and institutional users.

This will be the second cut in butter point values this summer. In mid-July it was reduced to 16 from 24 points.

United Nations Charter Influences Settling Of East Asia Troubles

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Staff Writer

The United Nations charter, upon which the world is pinning such great hopes for an era of peace, has been given new meaning by developments in East Asia.

Danger of civil war in China, which might have found the big powers lined up on opposing sides, has been greatly lessened, if not eliminated. Right on the heels of the Chinese-Russian treaty of alliance, the Chinese communists have agreed to discuss a settlement with the Chungking central government, and, if it can be arranged, to enter the government of a unified China.

Connection Unmistakable

The connection between the Soviet treaty and the changed attitude of the Yenan Communist regime of Mao Tse-Tung is unmistakable. Under the treaty, Russia pledged her entire material and moral support to the Chungking government. Russia further agreed not to interfere in the internal affairs of China.

That knocks the last prop from under Mao's hopes of outside support and leaves Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek free to deal with the Chinese Communists in whatever way he considers best for the interests of the nation. With Russia now lined up alongside Great Britain and the United States in support of the central government, the Yenan group is hopelessly outmatched and has no chance of wresting power from Chiang by violence.

Hurley to Accompany Mao

Bowing to the inevitable, Mao Tse-Tung has finally accepted Chiang's repeated invitations to a conference. Patrick J. Hurley, United States ambassador to China, is to accompany Mao from Yenan to the Chungking meeting, which is a favorable omen inasmuch as it goes a long way toward promoting for Mao the "face saving" which is so important in Oriental politics.

For their part, the Communists have presented proposals which do not appear unreasonable on their face, and almost certainly will be accepted by Chiang Kai-Shek as a basis of discussion.

Would Entail Recognition

The key point of the Communist proposals is that the Yenan group be admitted to membership in a coalition government. It would entail legal recognition of the Communists as a political party, provide for freedom of assembly, speech and of the press, and finally for a national assembly elected by unhampered universal suffrage.

The Communist program, broadcast by the Yenan radio, did not mention specifically the disposition of the Communist army, but before any agreement could be reached, it obviously would have to consent to being disbanded or incorporated into the regular Chinese Army under the central government. That will be one of the principal points to be settled.

The other will be the extent of Communist participation in the government. The Communists undoubtedly would have to be satisfied with a decided minority in key posts until and if a national election, under a new constitution, demonstrated their right to stronger representation.

Soldier Disappears In Borrowed Plane

HUGO, Okla., Aug. 28 (U.P.)—Civil and military authorities were looking today for a Camp Maxey, Tex., soldier who disappeared in a borrowed airplane.

The plane owner, Hugo Nash, said the soldier identified himself as Pvt. Bob Rein. Nash said he believed the soldier lived in Chicago.

He said the soldier borrowed the plane and left a note saying he was taking a cross-country flight and would be back as soon as possible.

He has been unheard from since Aug. 20.

Nash said the soldier had a student pilot license permitting him to make flights within 150 miles of here. Nash said the missing plane was a red, open-cockpit Fleetwing biplane.

Lubbock Couple Has Belated Celebration; Son Is Liberated

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams, 508 Hub Homes, staged a private V-J Day celebration Tuesday when the War department informed them that their son, Pfc. William M. Adams, 24, was liberated from the Japanese at Mukden, Manchuria on Aug. 26.

Pfc. Adams is Lubbock's first Japanese prisoner reported liberated since surrender of the enemy.

"V-J celebrants didn't have a thing on us," a member of the Adams family said, "we are having one all our own out here today."

One Card Received

The family only had one card from Pfc. Adams since his capture at the fall of Corregidor in 1942. "But we never gave up hope," they said. "We knew he would come back."

Pfc. Adams volunteered for service in February of 1941 and was with the 60th coast artillery of anticraft on Corregidor at the time of Pearl Harbor.

His grandmother, Mrs. F. J. Miles of Edgewood, was fortunate to be visiting in the Adams home when the good news came today. He has three sisters, Joyce, Atha and Glenna, all of Lubbock, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Stewart of Smyer.

Essair Adds Two More Flights

Inauguration of two more daily flights, one southbound out of Amarillo this afternoon and the other northbound out of Houston Thursday, will double public service of Essair Lines, Inc., between the Panhandle and the Gulf, it was announced in Lubbock Tuesday afternoon.

Trip 3 will commence operation by taking off from Amarillo at 1:20 p. m. today, arriving in Lubbock at 2:14, Abilene 3:36, San Angelo 4:34, Austin 6:04 and Houston 7:26.

Leaves Houston at 7:05 A. M.

Trip 2 will leave Houston at 7:05 a. m., arrive in Austin at 8:16, San Angelo 9:46, Abilene 10:39, Lubbock 11:54 and Amarillo 12:55 p. m.

Other flights, inaugurated Saturday when an official party including Mayor O. W. Ribble of Lubbock was flown from West Texas to Houston and a Rice hotel reception by Essair and Houston city officials, are maintained so that, on flight 1, one may leave Amarillo at 7:30 a. m., arrive at Lubbock at 8:24 and Houston at 1:36 p. m.; and, on flight 4, leave Houston at 2 p. m. and arrive at Lubbock at 6:49, Amarillo at 7:30.

Less Than Five Hours

Schedules are set up so that planes may cover the distance between termini in slightly more than five hours—even by flying only 120 miles an hour and spending 10 minutes at each intermediate landing place. The Lockheed Electras, however, are capable of cruising at 160 miles an hour on only 60 per cent of their horsepower—a condition that should make for comparative ease in maintaining schedule.

Ground stations, fully equipped with radio and teletype equipment and personnel recruited after service with other airlines, have been set up, and Essair has 15 captains and co-pilots, exclusive of its chief pilot, so that all airmen flying the line may have plenty of rest before taking turns at flying the 678-mile route.

Jap Propaganda Turns Three Faces To World As Surrender Reasons

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Japanese propaganda turned three faces toward the world today.

First there was the "liberal" line, spoken by the conservative element in Japan which never really liked to use the military for expansionist purposes unless it had to.

WHITE

Next there was the militarist himself speaking, and finally there was the befuddled cherry - blossom line from a Japanese Christian.

The "liberal" line probably made the most sense to American ears. The Tokyo Asahi Shimbun, which used to speak for the wealthy ruling classes as "The Times" speaks in London, has been waging a campaign to inform the Japanese people they are defeated—a campaign which began only after much American criticism that the Japanese hadn't been told that unpleasant fact.

The Asahi then say that Japan must correct the serious mistakes she has made by establishing political freedom and abolishing the military "to establish genuine cooperation with China, and cultivate friendship with the other races in East Asia and contribute to the task of securing a permanent peace in the world.

Among the militarists speaking was the premier, Prince Higashikuni, who said the real reason for Japan's surrender (he did not say defeat) was the atomic bomb and the emperor's "love of the people."

But Japanese officers who have been doing some of the fighting told Americans entering Tokyo bay that American fleet and aerial bombardment already had hit Japan so hard she would have had to give up soon anyway.

It remained for the Rev. Michio Ozaki, described as chief of the American-Asiatic board of the Japanese Christian association, to dust off the tarnished pre-war Japanese appeals in a newspaper article which the Tokyo radio saw fit to beam to East Asia.

Although Ozaki said he was "convinced that all of the 130 million Americans do not justly understand Japan," he gave them credit for wanting to. He said this could be seen in the tea-ceremony and flower arrangement "in fashion among the society class of America."

Neither Ozaki, nor any other Japanese spokesman whose words have reached the outside world since the surrender, has mentioned Pearl Harbor and what that assault upon international morality meant to the world.

It's a safe guess that few Japanese see anything wrong in it—except that it didn't work.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

HAD you ever thought that the boy next door whose Dad wouldn't trust him to drive around the block in their $500 automobile is now piloting a $500,000 bomber and responsible for the lives of nine others?

SAW IT THROUGH

VANCE SPEARS, who recently was discharged from the Army Air Forces under the point system, is one man who saw the Pacific war from the beginning to the end. Happy over being a civilian after almost six years in a uniform, Spears is visiting his sisters, Mrs. Martin H. Benson and Mrs. Ruby J. Bomar, before reporting for work with an airlines company.

A flight engineer, the young man was a member of an unarmed Flying Fortress crew that had been ordered to fly to Hickam field, near Honolulu, the week end of Dec. 7, 1941. The day that dawned peaceful enough was destined to be one that would never be forgotten as the young men, tiring from the long flight over the water, suddenly realized while about 40 miles out of Pearl Harbor they were being fired upon. If you saw that picture, "Air Force," that gave of the history of the Fort, "Mary Ann," you have a fair idea of how helpless and tragic things were that day Spears said, adding "only it was worse." That ship, broken half in two, you often see in pictures taken at Hickam field that Sunday, was from his squadron.

The veteran was on Guam when the war ended so abruptly, working with B-29 crews. He said the work of the crewmen who carried the awful atomic bomb was so secretive military police escorted them everywhere they went until after that first bomb was dropped. The airmen knew something terrific was brewing but they could only guess at what it might be.

From Dec. 7, 1941, until his discharge recently Spears served mainly in the CBI and Pacific theaters, traveling thousands and thousands of miles and spending some time in the hospitals fighting malaria.

THE UNDERWEIGHTS

WE'RE always talking about the problems of the overweights and surely it must be only fair enough to pass on a few words of advice for those who are on the other side of the ledger, but for the life of us it's hard not to say, "Congratulations, you lucky people!" We have it on good authority that the skinny folk have just as many unhappy moments as their fat cousins. They tire easily and are nervous and susceptible to disease.

Underweights either do not get enough food of the right kind, or they us up too much energy or both. According to Dr. William A. O'Brien, who writes for the NEA service, resting more will have a tendency to increase weight. In other words, living, as well as eating habits, must be changed if one is to gain pounds.

NO COMPARISON

ACCORDING to Dr. O'Brien, underweight may result from a disorder which interferes with assimilation of food or from actual disease. If actual disease is not present, eating too little often will be the cause. O'Brien talking:

Most underweights believe themselves to be hearty eaters, because they compare the amount of food they eat with the amount others eat and conclude that food cannot be responsible for their underweight as they are already eating a great deal. We cannot compare our food needs with those of other people because we all differ in our energy expenditures or in the way in which we assimilate our food.

To gain weight the diet should be stepped up 500 to 1500 calories a day in addition to the food you are now eating. Drink an extra quart of pasteurized milk each day and this will add 700 calories. Eat fatty meats, rich salad dressings, and gravies, cream soups, dessert, and ice cream. Fresh fruits and vegetables will stimulate your appetite.

Do not eat between meals as this may take away your appetite, but eat before you go to bed. Get a good sleep each night and learn to relax and you will gain weight if there is no organic cause for your thinness. Certain drugs have been used as artificial appetite stimulants, but after they were discontinued the extra weight was lost, as the old eating habits were resumed.

Retail Merchants Tell OPA They Cannot Absorb Price Increases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (U.P.)—Retail merchants told the Office of Price Administration today that they cannot absorb price increases as proposed under OPA's new reconversion policy.

The retailers also told OPA in a meeting here that it is not possible for them to recommend "a practicable, reasonable and economic pricing program" under President Truman's hold-the-living-cost-line order of two weeks ago.

Would Be "Disastrous"

Walter Morrow, president of the American Retail federation, said following the meeting at which retailers presented a 129-page report, that OPA policies would be "disastrous" to retail merchants.

"Absorption (by retailers) of all price increases would be disastrous to everybody," Morrow said. "Certainly a lot of new business would fail."

Report Is Presented

The retailers' report was presented by Paul Nystrom, representing the Limited Price Variety Stores Association of New York.

1. Adoption of a broad and realistic de-control policy for application to non-essentials.
2. Immediate discontinuance of the maximum average price program.
3. Immediate abandonment of all pricing techniques based on industry-wide averages.
4. Economic pricing at all levels that will assure maximum production and distribution.

Detailed Analysis Given

The retailers presented a detailed analysis of business conditions as they see them.

"In view of these findnigs," the report said, "your committee advises that it cannot accept the tentative cost absorption proposals advanced by OPA.

"Further, it is the considered and unanimous opinion of your committee that it is not possible to recommend a practicable, reasonable and economic program within the framework outlined in executive order 9599, issued Aug. 18, 1945."

To Insure Orderly Transition

In that order, Mr. Truman instructed federal economic agencies to continue into the reconversion period such wartime controls as will be needed to insure an orderly transition from a war to a peace economy.

The committee referred to was a "task group" which OPA asked retailers to appoint last July to present retailers' views on price control.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles told the retailers he could not agree with some of their "basic assumptions."

Misinterpretation Cited

"I think that in some cases there also has been misinterpretation of our (OPA) basic policies and of the President's executive order and of some of the techniques which we have followed," Bowles said.

He added that apparently the retailers were assuming that price control would continue for a longer time than he anticipated, although he did not indicate when he expects that controls will be dropped entirely.

He promised careful consideration of the retailers' report, but warned that their problems are not the only ones involved in reconversion.

Housing Shortage Is Causing Teachers To Resign Positions

Lack of houses and apartments in the city forced the resignation of four faculty members of the Lubbock Public schools, R. W. Matthews, superintendent, has announced.

Supt. Matthews said one of the teachers made two trips to Lubbock from Dallas in an effort to find living quarters before he offered his resignation. Another teacher was here three days and another over a week trying to find places to live. A fourth teacher was forced to resign for the same reason—no place to live.

Anyone in the city, who has an apartment or house to rent, is asked to call Supt. Matthews. Rooms are plentiful, but the teachers with families are of course interested in larger quarters with cooking facilities.

With school beginning next Monday, it is urgent that all teachers have places to live within the next few days, the superintendent said.

Aug. 31 Deadline For Dairy, Beef Payments

August 31 has been set as the last day that applications for dairy production and beef production payments, through the Agriculture Adjustment Agency, can be made. Walter Y. Wells, administrative officer in Lubbock county, made the announcement. Applications can be made for whole milk and butterfat produced during April, May or June and beef sold between May 19 and June 30. Application for payment on beef sold after June 30 can be made within 60 days from date of sale. The animal must weigh 800 pounds and bring at least $13.50 per hundredweight and be sold to a licensed slaughterer.

Farmers were required to turn in reports of any soil building practices completed this year by August 15 to the Agriculture Adjustment agency offices at Fourteenth and Ave. Q. Walter Y. Wells, AAA administrative officer has said that they can now turn in any practices completed after July 31. Those who have ploughed their cotton or feed crops after this date can report this as contour farming and enter reports, Wells said.

He moved to Munday in 1900 and later to Crosbyton where he served as County judge from 1919 to 1920. In 1937 he came to Lubback, where he has since made his home. His death followed a stroke suffered a week ago.

The daughters are: Mrs. A. G. Reeves, 2014 Eighth; Mrs. J. N. Payne, Ralls; Mrs. Howard Crausbay, McAdoo; Mrs. John Reagan, Floydada; Mrs. Harley Henderson, Tahoka; and Mrs. Frank Hill, wife of the Lynn County News editor, also of Tahoka.

Area Rent Control Is Not Affected By OPA Office Closing Here

Lubbock area rent control office has not been affected by the recent announcement of closing of the local district Office of Price administration, R. E. Key, area director, has announced.

The local rent offices will remain in operation, with the only change being that the duties will be supervised by the Fort Worth OPA district office. Lubbock remains a defense rental area and rent controls are due to remain for some time, Key said.

Numerous calls and questions prompted this announcement, Key added.

Additional Safety Precautions Required On Texas Highways

Additional safety precautions affecting any commercial vehicle such as trucks, tractors, trailers, semi-trailers, motor buses or vehicles with cranes or other lifting devices, are required on the highways of Texas, the state highway patrol has been authorized.

Sgt. E. L. Stroud of the Lubbock division office of the patrol has been informed by W. J. Elliott, chief of the patrol, that house bill 586, which became effective under an emergency clause May 28, provides that drivers of all such vehicles shall "from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise and at other times of insufficient light to render clearly discernible any person on a highway at 200 feet, whenever stopped upon a main traveled portion of any highway in the state for as long as 15 minutes, place a warning signal upon the highway or roadway side of the vehicle at a distance of not less than 150 feet nor more than 200 feet from the vehicle, near the edge of the roadway, in every direction from which any vehicle may approach."

And the bill gave these new requirements:

"Such warning signal is to be a lighted flare or an electrical device capable of operation under all weather conditions, for not less than 12 continuous hours, or a red reflex reflector, or a type approved by the Department of Public Safety, and said flare device or reflector shall be placed in such a way as to be plainly observed as a signal by the driver of an approaching vehicle for a distance of 500 feet.

"Each such vehicle shall carry three or more signal flares or red reflex reflectors. . . ."

Laws amended did not permit use of reflex reflectors, which are authorized by interstate commerce regulations. "They now are considered in many respects an advantage over other types of warning signals." Laws amended also did not require that commercial vehicles carry equipment to mark danger on highways.

In effect, the old laws simply provided that no repercussions resulted unless "something happened" as result of failure to carry such equipment; whereas there now is a fine for failure to carry it. First offense is finable not more than $50, second not more than $200, subsequent offenses each not more than $500 or county jail imprisonment of not more than 60 days, or both.

Army To Cut Discharge Points To 80; Discharge Age To Be Lowered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (U.P.) — The Army disclosed today that it will reduce the point discharge score from 85 to 80 as soon as Gen. Douglas MacArthur gives the word, and that it plans to cut its size from 8,050,000 to 2,500,000 by July 1.

The Army also plans, once the needs of the Japanese occupation become clear, to lower the age at which soldiers become eligible for discharge upon application. That age is now 38. It was not indicated by how much it would be lowered.

Draft For Two Years Only

Additional demobilization plans and the projected point revision were submitted to the House military affairs committee as it began an inquiry into the administration plan to continue drafting young men. Under the plan, such men would be drafted for two years only.

Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Henry, assistant chief of staff for the Army's personnel division, said a new point plan reducing the required number of points for discharge from 85 to 80 would go into effect only after MacArthur finds that his Pacific manpower needs are provided for and discharges can be accelerated.

2,500,000 By Next July

Earlier, Maj. Gen. I. W. Edwards, assistant chief of staff for Army planning, told the committee the Army plans to whittle its strength down to 2,500,000 men by next July.

Henry said that when MacArthur's signal comes, no men with 60 or more points will be sent overseas. At present the Army is screening out 75-point men from outfits headed for the Pacific.

All discharge points will be recomputed, Henry said, and brought up to date. The present system limits a soldier's discharge points to those accumulated up to last May 12.

Re-Enlistments Urged

Henry said the War department is counting on getting nearly 800,000 new men between now and next July 1 to offset discharges. Of these, he estimated 500,000 will be draftees and 300,000 volunteers. Henry said that men already in the service will be urged to reenlist, and will be given special inducements, including a 90-day furlough.

Since V-E day 326,000 men have been discharged under the point system, Henry said, adding that by next January the release rate is expected to hit a peak of 22,600 a day.

400,000 To Get Releases

Henry said there are now 400,000 men in the Army with scores of 85 points or more. It is expected they will be released by November, and by that time, he said, an addition 500,000 will be eligible for discharge.

To offset these releases, the War department must send 540,000 men to the Pacific and 200,000 to Europe by next July 1, Henry said.

Concerning the critical point score, Henry said, "We must drop the score shortly, but before we make more men eligible, we must be certain of the situation in Japan."

However, he added, three groups are so vitally needed that they will be held for six months after they become eligible for discharge. They are orthopedic mechanics, transmitter attendants and specialistis in measuring brain waves—about 500 men in all.

Henry said that it is no longer necessary to consider officer releases on an individual basis. Officers will be released on a point score system similar to that for enlisted men, he said.

Surrender Parley Not As Dramatic As Expected---T. Dealey

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ted Dealey, president of the Dallas Morning News, now in the Tokyo area at the invitation of the War and Navy departments, is at the scene of the formal surrender of Japan).

By TED DEALEY
Distributed By
The Associated Press

WITH THE U. S. THIRD FLEET, Aboard USS Iowa, Aug. 28 (Via Navy radio)—Hardly had we hit the deck of the USS Iowa from the USS Destroyer Waldron than the Jap destroyer carrying 21 emissaries to Adm. William F. Halsey's flagship appeared.

After traveling more than 7,000 miles in less than five days our little party of three publishers and two war correspondents got to Sagami bay just after daylight Monday. We had seats on the front row just as the curtain began to rise.

The scene was not as dramatic as I thought it would be. Only about 12 ships of the Third fleet were in sight of the Iowa as the Jap "can" appeared on the horizon. No more than 12 carrier planes circled overhead as the Jap emissaries transferred from the USS destroyer Nicholas to Halsey's flagship.

At 7:25 in the morning the Jap met it and by 9 o'clock all the Jap emissaries had been transferred to the Missouri. An hour later the conference and the show was all over. It was as simple as that.

There were half a dozen Texans on board the Waldron en route from Iwo Jima to Sagami bay. The chief commissary steward is Paul V. Zimmerer of Gainesville, who has been in the Navy 12 years. Others included J. D. Egloff of Paris, W. A. Estes of Corsicana and Roy C. Cobb of Longview.

They keep talking about typhoons but we haven't seen any yet. As a matter of fact, this part of the Pacific resembles very much the Gulf of Mexico and those terrible typhoons they talk about are nothing more or less than our good old Texas Gulf hurricanes to which we are all so accustomed.

Texas PGA Open To Be Held At Lubbock Club Next Year

The Texas PGA Open, the grand daddy of all Texas golf tournaments, will be fired over in Lubbock Country club course in 1946, it was announced Tuesday night by Herb Schroeder, club pro.

The details for the staging of the big professional golfers tournament in Lubbock were completed Tuesday through the tireless efforts of Chick Trout, chairman of the tournament committee of the local club, John Kattmann, who will be chairman in charge of affairs for the big tournament, and Schroeder.

Schroeder learned Tuesday night from George Aulbach of Amarillo, president of the Texas PGA, and Shorty Hornbuckle of Odessa, vice president, that they would be in Lubbock in the next 30 days to arrange final details, and set the dates for the tournament.

The dates will likely be in May, the month the tournament is usually held. It was played over the officers course at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, last season, with Jimmy Demaret, playing under the banner of the Corpus Christi Naval Station, winning the big show with some sensational sub par shooting.

It is understood that the successful manner in which the recently completed Lubbock Country club invitation tournament was handled, showing up as one of the most successful in West Texas golf history, had much to do with Lubbock's getting this major tournament.

Seminole Looks For Big Season

SEMINOLE, Aug. 28. (Special.)—Gridiron prospects in this little oil city takes on the brightest hue since two years ago, when Coach Marlin R. "Shorty" Hayhurst tacked the Region Two banner in the Seminole High school trophy case.

With an optimistic outlook on the 1945 season, Coach John P. Burns will start workouts here Saturday for the Seminole Indians, with 15 lettermen, headed by All-District Charles Everett, due to report for the first workout.

Plenty of Vets

Burns will be able to field an entire eleven, using nothing but lettermen, and have reserves for two backs, one end and a tackle. Along with this fine array of talent will be Fred Blair, 200-pound center, who looms as one of the outstanding line prospects in the district. Blair was ineligible last season, but is ready to go this year.

Blair will contest with Jameil Aryan, letterman, for the center post, but most sideline coaches favor Blair for the starting role.

The Indians are due to field a line that will average 171 pounds, and a backfield averaging 160 pounds. Only four seniors are expected to be in the first string lineup, a fact that points to future power for the Indians. Two of the prospective first string, including Everett, are only sophomores.

Lettermen Starters

Loyd Lunceford, lightest starter of the team, appears to have the inside track at left end. He weighs 140 pounds. Donald Patton, 160 pound senior, is slated for the other end. Logan Cook, 185 pound junior, and Jack Ridens, 170 pound junior, are slated at the tackle posts. Everett, 175 pound sophomore, and Howard Medcalf, 170 pound senior, loom as the starting guards. Blair, at 200 pounds, rounds out the line.

Tommy Bowers, 165 pound sophomore, is due to take over at blocking back. J. O. Chaffin, 160 pound junior, and Bob Walker, 150 pound senior, are expected to team at halfback, with Constant Hood, 165 pound junior, taking over at fullback.

Others On List

Other boys expected to be battling for positions on the team will be Charles Baker, 135 pound sophomore end; John Ancell, 170 pound sophomore guard; C. D. Wickson, 145 pound senior guard; Melmer Zimmerman, 175 pound junior tcakle; Bobby Hunter, 150 pound sophomore halfback; Billy Ayres, 150 pound senior fullback; John Henry Burns, 140 pound sophomore end; Dick Pruett, 155 pound senior tackle, and Bobby Agnew, 160 pound sophomore guard.

The Indians will take the warpath Sept. 21 with a rugged ten game schedule before them, the last eight in a row being conference battles in District 6-A. The complete schedule is:

Sept. 21—Plains at Seminole.
Sept. 28—Seminole at Sudan.
Oct. 5—Denver City at Seminole.
Oct. 12—Andrews at Seminole.
Oct. 19—Seminole at O'Donnell.
Oct. 26—Seminole at Slaton.
Nov. 2—Tahoka at Seminole.
Nov. 9—Seminole at Sundown.
Nov. 16—Seminole at Post.
Nov. 23—Seagraves at Seminole.

Nelson Ties With Snead At Oakmont

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28 (AP) — Banging out birdie threes on the last two holes, Byron Nelson scored a sub-par 70 on the afternoon round to deadlock with Sammy Snead at an even par total of 144 at the halfway mark in the $10,000 war bond tournament at Oakmont Country club today.

In the morning round Snead won the $1,000 war bond for the leader of each round with a 73 to Nelson's 74.

Eleven shots back of the leaders came Harold (Jug) McSpaden with 81-74—155. Stocky Gene Sarazen, who won the PGA title on this course 23 years ago, contributed a pair of 79's.

Upsets Feature Play In Junior Golf Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 28 (AP)—Two upsets featured the first round matches of the 19th annual Texas State Junior Golf tournament here today.

Herbert Pohl of Dallas, a top favorite who qualified with a 76, was defeated by George Terrell, jr., San Antonio, and Dallas' state high school champion, Gene Towry, lost to Joe Conrad, San Antonio, 1 up on 19 holes.

Medalist Tony Holguin, an infantry private, put out Richard Puente of San Antonio 3 and 2.

Junior baseball closed its second, and perhaps most successful season, Tuesday at Chapman field with all the trimmings that need to go with a big barbecue, athletic events and after dinner speaking.

The turnout was well attended and the crowd that turned out to pay honors to the kid baseball stars were given a good time.

Ronnie Kent, American Business club star, stole the honors in the athletic events, winning two out of three of the events. Kent roared around the bases in 16.3 seconds for the best time, and stepped the 100 yard dash in 12.1 seconds to finish two steps ahead of the rest of the field.

The catchers throws to second base ended in a four-way tie Darry Stickland of ABC, Billy Travis of the Optimists, Buddy Weber of Kiwanis and Terry Young of Kiwanis shared the honors in this event.

Following the barbecue, which included 600 pounds of well barbecued beef, several leaders of the sport in Lubbock gave short talks. The American Legion nine, one of the top teams in the state, was highly praised, along with praise for the work that has been done by promoters of kid baseball in Lubbock.

Class B Grid Clubs To Meet Saturday

Hamilton Still, superintendent of Meadow schools, announced Tuesday that a meeting will be held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Hilton hotel in Lubbock for members of District 1B. Still is temporary chairman of the district.

All teams expecting to play football this year in the conference are urged to be on hand for the meeting. The meeting will be for the purpose of organizing and electing officials fo rthe coming year.

Schools that have been playing in the district are Plains, Meadow, Ropes, Frenship, Cooper, New Deal, Abernathy, Hale Center and Petersburg. If there are any others planning to play, they are invited to attend.

Halsey Moving Into Tokyo Bay

ously with the occupational movements.

Among the more powerful units ready to go into Tokyo bay in support of the Yokosuka landings is the Battleship Mississippi, carrying the name of the warship on which Commodore Perry entered those same waters in 1853. The Mississippi state flag, displaying the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy, fluttered from the main mast.

Eighteen miles northwest of Yokosuka, 150 airborne troops who landed yesterday and became the first foreign conquerors to set foot in Japan in modern times, rushed to get Atsugi air field ready for tomorrow's arrival of General MacArthur and 7,500 armed sky troopers from Okinawa.

Mighty Fleet Rings Japs

Admiral Nimitz, en route to join Halsey, announced that Japan would be ringed in the occupation by the world's mightiest naval force—the U. S. Third, Fifth and Seventh fleets and the American forces of the North Pacific.

Dopking and AP correspondent Hamilton Faron also reported that 10,000 Marines and bluejackets expected to go ashore today at Yokosuka—Japan's second greatest and most secret naval base—or at least occupy the guardian fortified islands, but there was no confirmation here.

Under MacArthur's announced schedule, the landings are supposed to coincide with his own at Atsugi, where he arrives tomorrow to assume the military rule of the vanquished empire.

Japs Thoroughly Beaten

Japanese naval ship pilots who guided the small force that entered Tokyo bay yesterday, as well as those for the main fleet at anchor in adjacent Sagami bay, disclosed for the first time how thoroughly their nation has been beaten even before the atomic bomb blasted the will to resist.

They pictured to correspondents a nation hungry, its air force grounded for lack of fuel and its transportation system wrecked by the incessant bombings before the atomic terror was loosed upon Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

"Tokyo isn't a nice place to live these days," said one Japanese naval officer. "There isn't much food and many people are bombed out of their homes."

Rear Adm. Oscar C. Badger, aboard his flagship, the light cruiser San Diego, led the little squadron of warships into Tokyo bay yesterday and anchored a few hundred yards off Yokosuka.

One Mine Exploded

The Japanese pilots said the waters had been cleared of mines. But Badger took no chances and sent two minesweepers on ahead. One of his destroyers exploded an unswept mine.

Behind the San Diego came the Destroyers Yarnall, Twining, Stockham, and Wedderburn, the high-speed Destroyer-Transport Gosselin with Marine landing parties and correspondents, and the Seaplane Tenders Suisun, Mackinac and Gardiner's Bay.

Crews manned battle stations as the ships in single file streamed through Uruga strait, along whose frowning shores white flags waved above the 116 coastal guns that once guarded the vital waterway.

The fortress islands guarding Yokosuka appeared deserted, Dopking reported. To the north he could see the skeleton city of Yokohama, the once-proud port of Tokyo now bombed into hopeless ruin.

Nimitz On South Dakota

Nimitz, who will sign the surrender articles on the Missouri for the United States, will make the Battleship South Dakota his flagship. It was not immediately clear whether he would go on in to Tokyo bay at once with Halsey and the Missouri.

Correspondents were not permitted to land at Atsugi with the first airborne party, but a picture of the dramatic event was pieced together by reports from crewmen returning to Okinawa, from returning naval officers, and from AP correspondent Richard K. O'Malley who flew over the field.

MacArthur's representative was Col. C. H. Tench and he set about at once to get the field ready for his chief. Later naval officers landed, including Commander Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, now Halsey's aide.

A returning naval officer said the Japanese attempted to make a tea party of the event, leading officers to a pavilion and serving orangeade, but the Americans were there for business and went to work.

Despite repeated bombings—the wrecked hangars and planes testified to the accuracy—the Americans reported to Okinawa that one 5,600-foot runway and another of 5,100 feet were ready for immediate use.

Two jeeps were landed with portable two-way radios for directing the heavy traffic tomorrow, when transport planes will begin landing at three-minute intervals.

Japanese inperial headquarters sent a last-hour message to MacArthur asking for another conference before the full-dress signing of the surrender document, but there was no indication the supreme Allied commander had replied.

They also declared their residents in Korea, where events had taken "a sudden turn for the worse," were in "imminent danger."

Ryukyus Are Warned

General Stilwell ordered Japanese commanders in the Ryukus, the strategic islands south of Japan proper, to get in contact immediately with his U. S. Tenth Army headquarters on Okinawa and arrange to surrender.

In the Philippines, arrangements proceeded for the surrender of 10,000 Japanese troops who fled into the uncharted wilds of the Sierra Madre mountains.

Naval authorities at Guam said the Japanese in the Palau islands were not expected to surrender until the signing of the final articles of capitulation in Tokyo bay.

Nimitz's headquarters announced that the Fifth Fleet and the North Pacific naval forces would join the Third Fleet in controlling waters around Japan, while the Seventh Fleet would land occupation forces on Korea and police adjacent waters, including the Yellow sea.

News Briefs

J. R. West, of Idalou route 1, reported to police that his automobile inadvertently struck a small girl, three or four years old, Tuesday night in 2200-block Ave. H, slightly injuring her. While he was discussing the accident with her parents, a motorist came along and crashed into his car, he said. The child did not require hospital treatment, it was said. West did not furnish the name of the girl nor of her parents, police said. Only slight damage was done to his car in the second accident, he related.

Crosby Grand Jury May Report Today

CROSBYTON, Aug. 28 (Special) A 72nd district grand jury whose deliberations have included an investigation of the death of Lonnie Hillin, son of the Crosby county sheriff, is expected to report to Judge Dan Blair at noon Wednesday, according to courthouse rumor this afternoon.

Before the jury convened Monday morning, court officials had predicted that the body might complete its work in one day.

Ruel Griffin, Crosbyton saddle maker, is charged in young Hillin's death.

A rape case and a burglary case also were on the jury's agenda.

The Chicago Bell Telephone Co. was organized in June, 1878, just two years after the telephone was invented. It now serves more than 1,141,000 subscribers.

Hurricane Damage

ing officer of Foster Field, flew over the coastal area during the height of the storm and commented that "it was unbelievable."

"The entire coastline appeared under water. Everywhere you could see was water, except an occasional high spot where hundreds of cattle were trying to crowd. Port Lavaca was simply buildings rising out of the bay."

Rice Crop Damaged

The hurricane caught this region's huge rice crop ready for harvest and did terrific damage. In the Dayton-Devers area, extending 50 miles east from Houston, injury to the crop ranges from five to 20 per cent, the American Rice Growers association estimated. In the Dayton area, 30 miles east of Houston, the damage was 10 to 20 per cent. Twenty miles further east of Houston, in the Devers area, the estimates ranged from five to 10 per cent.

At Angleton it was estimated that 10 per cent of the $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 rice crop was lost. Only five per cent of the crop had been harvested.

Houston Lightly Hit

The thickly populated and industrialized rich Houston-Galveston area, battened down for an expected powerful blow, escaped with 55 to 60-miles-per-hour blows. At Houston, where 15.65 inches of rain were measured at the airport weather bureau station, John M. Sims, superintendent for the U. S. engineers on the Barker dam flood control project, said the city will be saved from a flood on Buffalo Bayou unless additional heavy rains fall.

Winds in north Harris county took one life last night and 12 other persons were injured. Perry T. Wolfe, 62, was killed when his house was demolished. Four other homes were destroyed. Earlier, on the southern Texas coast off Port Isabel two commercial fishermen had drowned when their fishing boat was capsized in heavy seas.

Wharton Feels Wrath

Wharton, 60 miles southwest of Houston, was the last city to feel the wrath of the hurricane. A check of damage today showed homes damaged, trees uprooted and enormous damage to rice and cotton. A warehouse was demolished and power lines were down. The highway south to El Campo was under water at many places and beyond El Campo traffic was halted.

North of Wharton, at Sealy and Mill Creek, the Brazos river, swollen by heavy rains, was on the rise. Bradley reported extensive damage to rice, corn, cotton and pecans.

Southwest of Houston, Eagle Lake was without power, many houses were damaged, cotton and rice crops were destroyed.

Estimates of Damage

Preliminary reports of damage in the coastal region included $750,000 to $1,000,000 in the Port Lavaca area; $500,000 at Rockport; $750,000 at Port Aransas and $750,000 at Corpus Christi.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times said a five-county survey of crop damage in the coastal bend area showed an estimated loss of $1,500,000 with late cotton in San Patricio county suffering heaviest.

Flooded highways made progress to coastal towns in the Matagorda bay areas difficult. Tivoli, a community of 30 or 40 homes, was under water. The damage was great at Austwell and Seadrift where winds ranged up to 135 miles per hour.

In the Rosenberg area, southwest of Houston, the rice crop was practically destroyed and cotton was damaged at least 50 per cent.

Many wells supplying gulf coast towns with water were flooded and contaminated by surface water and Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, warned residents of the areas to drink boiled water pending restoration of normal safe supplies.

Sanitation Crew

A crew of sanitarians went to Port Lavaca to aid the water situation there and similar inspections were made at Aransas Pass, Rockport and other coastal cities.

NEW HIGH REGISTERED

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP) — The stock market's industrial average, while confronted with selling on the lengthy upswing, managed to make another new high for the past eight years today although rails and many other recent climbers suffered losses.

Transfers of 1,260,000 shares compared with 1,570,000 the day before.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point at 66.9, its sixth successive recovery.

Improvement was retained by U. S. Rubber, General Motors, du Pont, Standard Oil (NJ), Anaconda and North American. Santa Fe dropped two points and lesser recessions were recorded for Chrysler, Hudson Motors, Graham-Paige, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward and Goodyear.

Railway bonds were spotty.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 25 to 50 cents a bale higher today in moderately active dealings. Persistent mill buying against textile orders featured trading and rallied values as much as 75 cents a bale, although prices receded moderately from the best levels on increased hedge selling toward the close. Scattered outside buying was stimulated by reports of heavy hurricane damage to cotton crop in the Texas coast area, some quarters believed, however, that qualities would be lowered without much actual loss in cotton. The New York Cotton exchange service received advices indicating there was very little if any damage in warehouse stocks in Houston and Galveston.

Reports in the trade that any efforts to change the present support program in cotton would meet strong opposition in Congress contributed to the steadiness in futures.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

Gen. Wainwright

Andrews quoted Wainwright as saying in an interview in Chungking that he was the "happiest man in the world and feeling 20 years younger than he did 10 days ago" before being released from his Manchurian prison.

("My heart goes out to President Roosevelt, to the War department and to the American people for their kind understanding of the misfortune that befell me on Bataan and Corregidor," Wainwright was quoted. "I am most sorry that I cannot thank President Roosevelt in person. To the American people I say—thank you with all my heart.")

Wainwright came out of three years, four months and three weeks of internment since he raised the flag of surrender over the last bomb-blasted American-held soil in the Philippines on May 6, 1942. They were three silent years in which Wainwright's fate was unsure.

As he landed, an official handed Wainwright a photograph of his wife, Kitty. He looked at it long and intensely, leaning on his walking stick as a crowd left him temporarily alone with his thoughts.

Wainwright and his group, including the pre-war governors of Singapore, Hong Kong, North Borneo, and the Dutch East Indies, flew to Chungking from Russian-occupied Mukden via Mukden via Sian in Shensi province.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, American commander in China, was the first to greet him as the tall, gaunt soldier descended the plane's ladder. "General Wainwright, welcome. I'm Wedemeyer," he said.

Wainwright replied: "How do you do, sir?"

There was a pause as the two men looked at each other. Then Wedemeyer asked: "How do you feel?"

"I'm all right," the returned hero answered.

Wears British Trousers

Wainwright was wearing the trousers of a British enlisted man. His sun helmet bore the insignia of his rank.

The American arrivals also comprised 14 officers and men — four major generals, three brigadier generals, one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, one captain, two technical sergeants and one private, first class.

(In Atlanta, Ga., wives of Maj. Gen. Edward King and Brig. Gen. W. E. Brougher said they had learned their husband were liberated from a Japanese prison camp in Manchuria.

During his stay in Chungking, Wainwright will be the guest of Gen. Wedemeyer at the theater commander's house, a far cry from the tiny, isolated prisoner camp at Hsian, Manchuria, where the hero of Corregidor was held.

FATHER, SON DROWNED

GALLUP, N. M., Aug. 28 (U.P.)—Funeral services were planned today for a Round Rock, Ariz., father and son who were drowned Sunday when their boat capsized in a lake near Round Rock west of here. The dead were Frank Young, 47-year-old irrigation project foreman at the Round Rock Navajo service, and his son, Billy, 14: Indians recovered their bodies.

Nominated for faculty positions, and elected unanimously by the board to teach during the 1945-46 school year were:

Misses Alleyne Quicksall, Sanders; Daisy Chausse, Guadalupe; Marion E. Short, Junior High; Ruby Powers, Hunt; Betty Jo Hubka, and Mrs. Lela D. Mitchell, Wilson; and Mrs. Vera Mae Stanford, K. Carter.

Place of Miss Mayme Alexander as Senior High's dean of girls will be filled at least temporarily by Mrs. Oscar A. Kinchen, who previously had been assigned to homemaking. Mrs. Kinchen, formerly of Texas Tech's faculty, also will oversee home-making as well as counsel girls, the superintendent said.

Mr. Matthews pointed out that he still had several faculty posts empty, although all previously had been filled but were soon vacated because teachers selected could not find living quarters in Lubbock.

Messrs. Matthews and Jackson said applications for state aid were being drawn up so that the Lubbock schools will, to the best of their ability, be able to furnish instruction in 1945-46 to physically handicapped children unable to attend regular classes.

Present at the meeting were Chairman Hutchinson, Trustees Paul Hardwick, Walter G. Alderson, R. F. Bayless, Hubert L. Allen and Chas. A. Guy; Superintendent Matthews and Business Manager Jackson.

for 12 months at no cost to the schools; also retains ownership of materials in the building which will be sold after razing.

Will Fisher, of the Dallas realty firm, also "in the picture" in the deal closed yesterday, said in Lubbock during the first negotiations that his clients planned to spend $350,000 improving the property; that they were "a nationally known mercantile concern of high standing;" that they planned on operating a general mercantile, department store and furniture business on the Central Ward location.

Recently, Sears representatives were negotiating for the property owned here by the Cobb department stores interests, located on the southeast corner of Avenue J and Thirteenth. After considerable conversation, the negotiations were dropped about two weeks ago, and at the same time the school district again was approached to sell the Central Ward plot to an unnamed purchaser.

The Fisher realty firm, which originated the transaction between the school board and Attorney Crenshaw and which carried it through to the signing of the sales contract, will receive a $6,875 commission from the purchase price when the deal is completed.

a prisoner of war camp.

As Colonel Brissley approached Sagami bay where the fleet is anchored, he led the formation of three planes down to 2,000 feet. Cloud formations hanging off southern Honshu suddenly dissipated. We saw three white hospital ships escorted by destroyers under way.

Then as we neared the Yokoshuka naval base the whole northern coast line of the bay seemed to be ringed by warships. There were the sweeping outlines of the great battlewagons of the Missouri and Iowa class and the King George. A carrier on escort duty passed; then below us stretched out the rest of the Allied battle fleet.

Our People Don't Need A "Czar"

THE late Thomas Marshall, (U. S. Vice-President, 1913-1921) once made headlines throughout the nation when he observed: "What this country needs most is a good five-cent cigar."

While many smokers, their mouths burning from the acrid, wartime fumes of "ropes," will be quick to retort that the statement still stands, a top housing official in Washington has come forth with a declaration that the greatest need in America today is a home for the man whose pocketbook can afford only $20 to $40 a month for rental.

John B. Blandford, jr., National Housing administrator, is the Washington official. He thinks private enterprise will provide homes for the $40-plus class and the government low-rent program will take care of the $20-minus class.

Further, he thinks, the United States should build, through government and private financing, 1,250,000 homes a year.

On certain points, Lubbock citizens can agree with Blandford.

This city, like most growing cities in America, needs more homes—especially homes that the smaller wage earner can afford to buy or rent. There are few two-bedroom homes available for rental in Lubbock at this time. Occasionally a rental property does become vacant, as a result of a worker being transferred to some other community. But such vacancies are rare and far between.

Blandford also advocates another idea, on which he will receive almost universal approval. He suggests an extension of mortgage insurance to help builders and guarantee an adequate income to large investors in rent projects. This idea should stimulate building of rental properties.

But on one point, the chief of the NHA will find many in disagreement with him. Most of the builders in America and many ordinary citizens, who wish to build their "postwar dream home" now that the war is over, would like to see all of the government's restrictions on building removed.

It is still necessary to have a priority in order to get the lumber needed, unless one has a clever way of avoiding regulations.

And there are men in the building business watching the Washington picture closely, who declare most emphatically that Mr. Blandford is trying to make his office a permanent fixture—himself a permanent "Building Czar."

"We could go ahead and build the homes we need here, and provide work for hundreds of men if we were not tied up by government restrictions," they say.

Regardless of whether NHA controls are helping or hindering the business, one point is clear: We do need more homes which can be rented and sold at reasonable figures.

Too much speculation in homes is not good. A healthy city must have moderate-priced homes for its average-salaried citizens to occupy.

Wilbert Lee And 1946

TEXANS, who do not care for hillbilly music and "Pappy" O'Daniel's brand of oratory, can begin dusting off their ear plugs.

For just as wild geese flying south in August may mean an early fall, there are signs pointing to the fact that Sen. Wilbert Lee O'Daniel is getting his campaign machinery oiled up with the idea of running for governor.

While the senator, whose term does not expire in the U. S. Senate until the end of 1948, has stated that he does not have any political plans for the future, he told a newspaperman recently:

"I will say this—the living conditions would be better in Austin than in Washington."

Then he added that he had "received a flood of letters from old folks" of the state, urging him to run for governor next year.

Yep, Wilbert is still Wilbert, Washington hasn't changed him any more than he has changed Washington.

Reconversion And Prices

THE first reaction of Lubbock housewives, upon reading the latest OPA edict that the prices of new washing machines and other durable goods will be the same prices that prevailed before the war "or very little higher," is to shout: "Hurrah!"

But this rule like many other OPA regulations may not be the blessing it appears at first sight.

Labor and materials are higher than they were in the prewar years, and many manufacturers are reported to be discouraged from going ahead with their conversion and sales plans, knowing that their prices are going to be limited to such an extent that very small profits are possible, of, indeed, there will be any profits at all.

Naturally, no one wants inflation. Neither do we want to see manufacturing so restricted that folks, who need new washing machines and other appliances, cannot obtain them.

Let us hope that the OPA is not slowing up reconversion. That could result in unemployment and other complications that would affect us all.

THE STORY: Brock offers to release Thayer from their marriage. Heartbroken, Thayer recalls their early love. For a moment, Brock's bitter reserve beraks down—then the dinner gong sounds and the moment is lost.

VI

Thayer managed the lipstick and went downstairs as the gong sounded the second time, already planning her words. "Ready?" she'd say to Brock. "Mmm! Smell dinner?" He could get out of chair; she wouldn't help him. "Nobody cooks like Emma, except maybe Miss Mary. Remember the chicken salad—and the eight biscuits?" They'd go to the dining room together. . . .

His mother was in his room, helping him, petting him. "Oh—there you are," she said to Thayer, smiling gently.

"I went to freshen up . . ." Thayer stopped short. Why should the necessity of explanation be laid upon her? "Ready, Brock?" she asked, but the tone lacked all she had intended to convey.

"No—over here," Mrs. Kittridge said as they went into the hall. "It's so far to the dining room. I had Emma lay the table in the sitting room by the fire. It's cozy and easier for you, dear." Her eyes caressed her son.

"Now, Mother, I . . ."

"Let me be happy doing little things," she said. "I've been so lonely with no one to do for. You'll never know, my dearest."

Thayer felt herself stiffening. She had the feeling so often hers in this house, of being present, yet excluded. The sitting room was Mrs. Kittridge's sanctum, marked indelibly with the impress of her possessions. Never was Thayer invited to this room, though often coming in from the plant she had heard Mrs. Kittridge and Moya laughing in here together. Now, on Brock's first night home, his mother had cleverly drawn him into the one place in the house peculiarly hers. "We've had little suppers in here so often," she reminded him. "Brock, remember? . . ."

Thayer tried to act natural, but mostly she was conscious of one thing—Brock's eyes were again avoiding hers.

At long last, the meal over, they again accompanied Brock to his room. He paused in the doorway. "I don't need any help," he said, "I can manage alone." Thayer knew that he was excluding her.

Mrs. Kittridge made no opposition. "Just as you wish, dear, though I'm sure—either of us . . ." She kissed him tenderly. "Good night, son." Then she shook her finger coyly. "You're still my little boy, though; I shall come and call after a while just to be sure you're all right, the way I used to."

"Good night, Mom," Brock said. "It's — swell being back." He hesitated.

Thayer looked steadily at her mother-in-law. For an instant their glances locked, then the older woman said with a little laugh, "Well, I must see Emma about breakfast." Her heels tapped briskly down the hall.

Thayer and Brock were facing each other again, but the wall was up between them.

"Brock, if I can . . ."

"I'll manage, Thayer. I — I'm used to it."

She said gently, "Then good night, Brock," and was stabbed by the relief in his eyes. She raised her lips for his kiss. It was anticlimactic.

She turned and went down the hall. Ahead the long polished stair seemed a symbol of all that separated her and Brock. She went up as she heard Mrs. Kittridge's returning feet, not looking back, her head high, but her heart sick within her.

Brock sat on the sunny terrace in a low chair. He would have liked to throw himself full length upon the grass, but he hesitated. Should someone come, a ridiculous sight he'd be, trying to get to his feet—foot. He couldn't bear it if Thayer should come in and find him sprawled on the ground. The knowledge it was Thayer would make him awkward, uncoordinated. When he was alone he did all right, that was the bitter thing; but in front of her . . . That feeling of inadequacy would burn into him, and all at once he'd say something caustic. Then, willing or not, his glance would be pulled to hers and he'd be aware that he was lessening himself in her eyes.

Always he caught himself watching her eyes. They were grave and beautiful, but to him they seemed eyes in which the flame had gone out.

He had been so proud of the love he had to give Thayer, so proud of his strong disciplined body. With Thayer he had entered into the real fullness of manhood. There had been no humility about their love; there had been magnificence.

When he left her Brock had felt invulnerable, immortal. The war was a phase to be got through with quickly so that he might get back to her and to the making of their life together. It was not until later that he thought of death. Awareness came slowly, unwillingly, but having come it could not be thrust aside. With death all about him he came at last to feel he could not escape it. What he had had of life was all he was to have.

He was calm after that, controlled, efficient. He accepted the inevitable, his aim simply to do his job until the end. Nothing in his make-up to prepare him for what really happened. The possibility of living, maimed, he had been incapable of considering.

When it happened he was without defenses to meet it. He should have been dead and he was alive. But the thing had to be known and faced at last and his mind reeled from the shock of it. He had cried out, horror expelling the words, "Not my leg. No—no—not my leg." He scarcely felt the merciful drive of the hypodermic needle. He kept saying over and over, a moaning monotone, "Thayer, Thayer, Thayer."

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

TO many people the coming of peace seemed to be something like a New Year's Eve celebration, a cause for hilarity, horn-blowing, paper-throwing and general noisy rejoicing.

Happy New Year, then, to all of you who felt that way! Far be it from me to be a kill-joy.

But I want to remind you that right after New Year's Day a work-a-day year always begins, a year with many responsibilities, much toil and many disappointments.

BRANDEIS

We have gone through a terrible experience, every one of us. We have suffered and sacrificed and many of our fundamental conceptions of life have been shattered.

The worst is over, but don't let us fool ourselves.

We are entering a new war now—the war of peace.

No shooting, no atomic bombs, no bloodshed.

But there are a hundred enemies we have to face and conquer, insidious, treacherous enemies who fight in the dark.

Unemployment, inflation, communism, racketeering, speculation, all these and many more, are enemies that have to be watched and fought and conquered.

I talked to several returned aviators a few days ago. They were jubilant, of course, over our victory.

"But do you know," said one of them, "I am more afraid of our people here at home than I was of the Japs.

"In war you are on the alert every minute of the day and night for your enemy. You know he's there. You know that either you get him or he gets you.

"But here at home our folks don't seem to have the slightest concern over the future. The war's over, that's all they think about. Good times will come again. Food, gas, radios and vacuum cleaners.

"Don't they realize that theirs is now a tremendous moral responsibility? Here we are responsible for practically the whole world from now on. What have we done to meet our responsibility?"

THE other three in the group fully agreed with him, and the youngest—only twenty-five, but a major with many honors on his tunic—added this observation:

"Well, if the civilians don't realize what lies ahead of them, maybe we guys who've been through the mill can take over and run the show just like we have run it overseas."

And that, to my mind, is the way we'll win the peace like we won the war.

Let the guys who ran the war help us to run the peace.

Happy New Year to all of you!

Britons "Invade" U. S.

Their Cheap Cars For Sale Here

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

AMERICA'S automobile world has been amazed to discover that the British are shipping small, low-priced automobiles to the United States at the very moment when government controls and lack of materials prevent U. S. manufacturers from swinging into large-scale production for almost 18 months. They have submitted their protests to various agencies at Washington.

They cannot ascertain whether the arrangement for these shipments from a country supposedly devoted exclusively to manufacture of war goods was negotiated at the top levels or not. Inasmuch as State department officials profess ignorance of any deal, it is believed that the opening of the American market at this time was granted to former Prime Minister Churchill by higher-uppers of the Roosevelt administration.

TUCKER

Moreover, manufacturers of the cheap car have already established dealer agencies in Mexico and many South American countries. They have promised bountiful delivery within the next few months. With such a head start, they may be able to grab this field before their American competitors can enter it.

The No. 1 question at Detroit and Washington is how Britain was able to retool and turn out these machines before either Germany or Japan had capitulated. For the fact that these flivvers are already on sale — they have already arrived at the capital —demonstrates that the foreign makers did not wait until May 8 or August 14 before reconverting their factories.

PRICES: Detroit motor magnates are disturbed over this premature competition for several reasons. Although miniature autos have never made much headway in the United States, it is possible that they may pack a greater appeal in postwar days, especially to returning soldiers.

Major explanation for the auto industry's concern is the price factor. Despite the 10 per cent duty on these imported vehicles, they will sell in this country for approximately $600.

By contrast, even the lowest-priced American make, which used to cost around $700 in prewar days, soon will be retailed for $1000 or $1100. Higher labor charges account for the difference in the bill. There is also the new consideration that CIO's United Automobile Workers are already demanding 30 per cent increase over wartime wages.

Moreover, several American industrialists, including Henry Kaiser, have proclaimed their intention of entering this new field. They insist that they can turn out a car by mass volume methods that will constitute a dangerous rival for the standard brands.

Thus, every British motor of similar design will be an advertisement for this postwar product, adding another handicap to the economic disadvantages from which domestic producers already suffer.

RESENTMENT: Prospective loss of the Mexican and South American markets is another serious blow. Under lend-lease, those republics have had many samples of our automobile skill and resources, and it had been expected that they would become lucrative customers for peacetime output.

But under the mysterious arrangement mentioned above, British competitors may secure such an advantage that it may be impossible for Detroit and its manufacturing environs to catch up.

Naturally, the big-shots of this industry are grousing. They tossed their auto-making machinery into their yards, where it has been battered by the suns of Summer and the snows of Winter.

Most of it is now obsolete. They made the planes and tanks and trucks and half-tracks which won the war for the United Nations. So they resent their present plight.

REDEPLOYMENT: The mixup over the redeployment of European fighting veterans to the Pacific is accounted for by Washington's fear that our occupation troops and administrative agencies will confront difficulties and dangers which American forces have never experienced in the past.

It is not generally realized, but this is the first time that the Stars and Stripes will fly more or less permanently as a symbol of American conquest of a medievally minded and utterly strange people.

The original occupation plan, which Prime Minister Churchill sold to President Roosevelt as a result of England's experiences after the First World War, was to release veteran warriors in the Pacific by sending newly trained soldiers as their substitutes.

It was figured that a few months of police training would enable the 18-19-year-old boys to handle the Japs, especially as they will have planes, tanks, artillery and machine guns as their weapons, not to mention the atomic bomb.

PLAN: But the threat of Jap local uprisings forced a change in that program.

Tough and experienced gendarmerie will be required to keep the Orientals in check, and to convince them that they really lost a war.

That explains why weary GI's from Old World battlefields have been transferred to the Far East, and why the draft will be continued at the rate of 50,000 men a month until and unless Congress interposes an objection.

Here is the tentative plan for export of new and old American soldiers to Japan: As soon as Emperor Hirohito's subjects accept the fact of disastrous defeat and subjugation and occupation, the veterans of Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Okniawa will be brought home, and their places will be taken by the freshman fighters.

That swapping stage should be reached in about three months, according to our military and diplomatic experts.

SPENDER: The resignation of Harvard Professor Alvin H. Hansen as special consultant to the Federal Reserve board adds another golden name to the list of free and fancy spenders of public money who have departed from Washington since President Truman entered the White House.

In fact, the Cambridge academician was the shoot-the-works inspiration of such apostles as Harry Hopkins, Archibald MacLeish and Nelson Rockefeller in State and Henry Wallace in the dismantled Board of Economic Warfare.

In fact, Professor Hansen's quiet exit suggests that Marriner Eccles may soon quit as Federal Reserve chairman. For the Utah banker shares the Harvardian's philosophy that the national public debt, no matter how large, does not endanger the credit or financial system because we simply owe that money to ourselves.

It can be carried indefinitely, in their opinion, so long as nobody mentions it or worries about it.

LOANS: Hansen had also framed postwar blueprints which contemplated an annual budget of $30,000,000 at a minimum. Like MacLeish and Rockefeller, enthusiastic advocates of international goodwilling, he included approximately $10,000,000,000 in that total for loans to foreign nations, especially Britain.

Like Hopkins, he thought that the federal government should finance employment with a similar amount for such internal developments as roads, public buildings, bridges etc. He wanted both a domestic and a foreign PWA as a permanent institution.

The basic theory of this early New Deal group was that, if Uncle Sam pours out cash lavishly enough, purchasing power can be maintained and depressions staved off as if by magic. Obviously, the hardheaded Harry Truman, who knows what a dollars is worth because he had so few of them for many years of his life, does not subscribe to this professorial principle.

After trying unsuccessfully for several years to domesticate and train an obstreperous wild rose, a Texas horticulturist has named it the Harold Ickes.

Ex-Newsman Found In German Hospital

Walther Kleffel Pays The Price

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thomas L. Stokes, one of The Morning Avalanche's top correspondents in Washington, is enjoying a brief vacation. During his absence, his space will be filled by Bill Cunningham, former Texan and lately a nationally known sports writer, commentator, war correspondent and magazine author; and by other outstanding writers.)

By BILL CUNNINGHAM
Special Correspondent

BAD WEISS, Bavaria—I knew this former pension, as they call 'em in Europe, but lace curtain boarding house, as we call them, was a hospital for German wounded, because you could see the German nurses in their gray outfits, white aprons and Red Cross arm-bands passing in and out the gate. You also could see the weak and sick looking men, most of them amputees, struggling with their crutches, or dragging heavily about with the aid of their canes.

So I merely was making conversation with the American guards when I asked, "What have you got in here?"

My ears came up a little when the taller one shifted his cud of eating tobacco, hitched the sling of his carbine a little closer to his collar and said, "Luftwaffe officers."

"Any rank among 'em?" I asked.

"Yeah," he sad, looking me up and down, "there are some majors and colonels and a few like that, but most of 'em are lieutenants. Why are you asking?"

"I'm a newspaper man," I said, "I was just wondering, that's all."

"I understand one of these guys in here,' and he jerked his thumb toward the house, "is a newspaper man. He's a Luftwaffe major. He's pretty well banged up, but I guess they're going to kick him out in a few days. They don't keep them around here any longer than they can help."

Finds Newsman

"If he's a newspaper man," I said, "I'd like to talk to him."

"Well, he's kinda crippled up, but do you want him down here, or do you want to go up to his room?" asked the sentry. There was evidently no more to it than that.

I told him I'd go up, and he said the guy was the only major on the second floor. He said he might be asleep, but to go on in, that he slept most of the time and didn't mind being waked up.

I walked up the stairs, through the hall filled with German hospital equipment, knocked on the German officer's door, and that's how I found Walther Kleffel, one of Germany's best known newspaper men in pre-Hitler days, and probably the best known of any of them to prominent Americans until he suddenly disappeared in 1934.

KLEFFEL was a German Air Force ace in the First World war. After it he became the outstanding German writer on aviation. He covered big aviation meets the world over.

He was a really prominent and popular German. His employees were the Ullstein Publications, biggest in Germany. His parent newspaper was the Berlin Zeitung and Mittag. He was last heard of as a leading radio voice, and a spokesman for the German Olympic Games committee.

But nothing was heard of him after 1934. Worn, wan and with 10 bullet wounds in his body, he explained why. The Ullstein Publications were the big Jewish-owned newspaper and magazine empire the Nazis seized and stole in one of their earliest major grabs.

Kleffel had written a piece in which he said Rudolf Hess was slightly balmy, or so the Nazis said, anyhow, and he cut Robret Ley, the big "Strength Through Joy" man off the air a couple of times because he was falling-down drunk and making no sense in a broadcast.

So the Gestapo seized Kleffel and clapped him in a concentration camp. He spent the next four years in three of them, including the now famous Dachau. He was beaten repeatedly in efforts to make him confess that he was plotting against Hitler and to give the names of his accomplices.

Drafted At 45

Finally, evidently following that same strange quirk in the German cosmos that caused Pastor Niemoeller to volunteer for his old commission in the submarine service, Kleffel tried to get back his old commission in the German Air Force. He wanted to get out of the hell of Dachau. But he says, too, he wanted "to clear his name." If that makes him a Nazi, that's all right with us. I'm just reporting here, not torch carrying.

Instead of his commission, however, they drafted him at the age of 45, and threw him into the front line of infantry as a buck private on the Russian front. He had a year of it, was wounded 10 times by rifle fire and hand grenade splinters. The war got so tough on that front that politics evidently didn't matter and he was promoted from private to major before being seriously wounded.

THE MAN is an encyclopedia. He talks rapid English. He has a great sense of humor and what I liked about him was the fact that he didn't try to wash himself free of the Nazi taint for all the indisputable record of his imprisonment in Dachau.

His explanation is that "things were very bad in German in 1932 and '33," and here came an unheard of named Hitler who promised salvation. Nobody else even had a plan. By the time the German people realized that he was nuts and the Nazis nothing but gangsters, said Kleffel, the Gestapo was so powerful that nobody dared speak or they'd get what he got.

"And so," he said, "we were wrong. This is the price."

"What do they do with men such as you?" I asked him.

"Discharge us," he said, "turn us out. Send us on our ways.

"To where?" I asked.

"God knows," he said, "to whatever family we have left, or whoever will take us in. I'm better than most of my comrades in here. I can walk. Most of them have lost arms or legs. They're weak and unsteady. Some of them have no homes or families to go to. Go ahead and say what you're thinking—that we started the war and this is our retribution, that we asked for it and that we're getting it. I know that's what I'd probably be reasoning if I were sitting where you are."

"What do you see for a future for Germany?" I asked him.

"I don't know that there is any," he said, "the whole thing is crazy. It's been crazy since Hitler. I can't even picture myself as we're sitting here now. I was so proud of my profession and so happy in it, and here I sit with a member of that profession from America who's been kind enough to call—you in the uniform of a nation that's conquered mine, and I a prisoner of war!"

I took him my week's candy ration, and if that's over-fraternization, Dear Father, forgive me. But this is the first German I've met who didn't try to lay all the blame on somebody else, who didn't deny that he'd ever even known a Nazi. To me that makes him an honest reporter. This was my little tribute to truth.

"Of course they've eaten yours all up. It was Wheaties!"

Baby Bear's was just right. It was Wheaties! Big flakes of rich whole wheat (including all the bran). Roasted honey-brown. Toasted crispy-fresh. Flavored with sweet malt syrup. Better get two or three packages of Wheaties. One taste of that "second helping" flavor and you eat 'em all up.

Attempt By Fliers To Drop Ammunition To Soldiers Revealed

VICTORIA, Aug. 28. (U.P.) — An attempt by the commanding officer of Foster field to drop ammunition to military personnel on Matagorda island during the peak of the hurricane Monday in order that they might fight off hordes of rattlesnakes, was revealed here today with a summarization of damage done to Army installations on the island to protect government property. With water rising over the island, hundreds of rattlesnakes sought safety on high ground where the men were camped. The men blazed away at the snakes with .45 calibre revolvers.

Radio contact with the island was broken about 1 p. m. "Sorry, we gotta go off," was the last radio message when waters entered the building, damaging sending apparatus.

Col. Roy W. Osborn commanding officer of Foster field accompanied by Maj. Robert F. Mallory in charge of coast installations flew planes to the area in an effort to drop more ammunition and food supplies to the marooned men.

But they were unable to cross the bay waters of Matagorda peninsula to the island because the force of the hurricane winds forced the planes to turn back when they could make no headway.

"We bucked winds but simply couldn't make it across the bay" Colonel Osborn said. "It was our intention to help in any possible way and to notify the coast guard to evacuate the men." He said they could see the men protected on high ground but waves were lapping at the structures housing them.

"The entire coastline appeared to be under water," Osborn said. "Everywhere you could see was water. There was an occasional dry spot of land where hundreds of cattle were trying to crowd. It was unbelievable. Port Lavaca was simply buildings rising out of the bay."

Osborn said today that no injuries were suffered among the men left on the island. He said he was recommending the officer and men for the Soldier's medal as a result of their heroic achievement in protecting government property.

He said damage to property on the island and peninsula was not beyond repair. However he revealed that the Port O'Connor boat installation maintained for rescue work by the base was a complete wreck. It was reported that a large hangar on the island was wrecked.
