

Orders Mercy Airdrops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying he evacuated Americans from Cambodia "with a heavy heart," President Ford Saturday ordered U.S. aircraft to parachute food, ammunition and medicine into besieged Phnom Penh in a last ditch effort to help an abandoned ally.

Ford, apparently surprised and moved by the decision of Cambodia's leaders to shun evacuation and stay at their posts, also renewed his request that Congress give Cambodia emergency military aid.

Pentagon spokesmen said the mercy airdrops could not begin before daylight Sunday in Cambodia at the earliest. Because Cambodia is 12 hours ahead of American time, that meant the operation might start by late Saturday or early Sunday EDT.

The details are still being worked out, a spokesman said Saturday afternoon.

When the go signal is given, Air Force C-130 cargo planes — flown by civilian charter airline crews — will roar toward Phnom Penh and the encircling anti-aircraft guns of Communist-backed rebel forces.

Ford's order to parachute supplies into Phnom Penh represented a major shift from previous Cambodian supply strategy and underscored the besieged nature of the city.

An airlift of supplies to Phnom Penh was halted Friday because rebel gunners had made it too dangerous for planes to land at the city's airfield.

If the city is endangered to the extent that we have to evacuate our embassy, you're sure as hell not going to ask aircraft to land at an airport which may or may not be in the hands of the enemy, a Pentagon spokesman said.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen disclosed plans for resuming the airlift in the form of parachute drops during a briefing for reporters Saturday, hours after the last Americans had been airlifted out of Phnom Penh under U.S. Marine guard.

Nessen said details of the airdrop would have to come from the Pentagon.

The Pentagon spokesman said he had few precise details on the size or scope of the airdrop because the regular command post for the mercy flights — the U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh — was no longer functioning and the operation was still being organized, apparently at another U.S. command post in Southeast Asia.

He said the flights would be "strictly a daylight operation" and stressed that "there will not be any American military personnel involved."

The spokesman said although military transport planes were involved, they would be flown by the same civilian charter airline crews that had been making the earlier flights to Phnom Penh's airfield from South Vietnam and Thailand.

DC-8 aircraft used in the earlier airlift can not be used for the airdrop, the spokesman said, because they do not have parachute drop capability. He said all the new flights would be made by Air Force C-130s flown by civilians out of Thailand.

The main cargo, I expect, will be rice, ammunition and medical supplies, he said.

Asked whether any weapons might be included in the drop, he said, "I doubt it."

At the White House, Nessen said Cambodia needs primarily food and ammunition, and there are enough authorized U.S. funds left to provide these supplies for perhaps two more weeks.

On that subject, he renewed Ford's request for emergency military aid to Cambodia and said the President had never withdrawn it despite wide spread public impression to the contrary.

Nessen said the President was relieved at the success of the lightning evacuation but was concerned at reports he had given Cambodia up for lost.

The President still hopes that the Congress will act quickly to approve assistance to Cambodia, he said.

In his foreign policy speech Thursday, Ford did not renew his request for $222 million in extra military aid to Cambodia. He scolded Congress for refusing to provide it and said, "I regret to say that as of this evening it may be too late."

Nessen said Ford did not mean to leave the impression he was withdrawing the request.

On the contrary, he said, Ford meant to point out the urgency of the need, and still wants to do whatever is possible to maintain Cambodia's neutrality and independence.

Just before Ford's address Thursday, administration officials told reporters Ford would not ask again for Cambodian aid because the situation there left no room for "a plausible request."

The presidential aide who spoke anonymously with newsmen Saturday said Ford decided to make another try when he learned that Cambodia's Premier Long Boret and other top officials had refused to be evacuated. Boret announced he was forming a "revolutionary committee" to see the battle through.

The aide disclosed Ford knew the evacuation was being prepared even as he addressed Congress Thursday night, but he said the President was assuming most members of the U.S. backed government would leave with the Americans.

Some of the evacuees were taken aboard the carrier to the Thai port of Sattahip near U-Tapao.

Shayne and Charlie.... Only One Moving Mouth

By THOM MARSHALL

Teachers at Horace Mann Elementary would have a difficult time catching fifth grader Shayne Raulston talking in class, if ever he took a notion to talk in class, because he can talk without moving his mouth.

Young Raulston's no dummy. But Charlie is. Charlie is Raulston's dummy, and Raulston is as fine a 10-year-old ventriloquist as ever threw a voice.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Raulston of 600 N. Banks, Raulston first became interested in ventriloquism about three years ago when his grandmother gave him George for Christmas. George also is a dummy.

Young Raulston, a mere 7 years of age at the time, began reading books on the subject — which he found at Lovett Memorial Library. He also practiced a lot.

The hardest part to learn, Raulston recollected, was to keep my mouth from moving.

He said that he practices every day for 15 or 20 minutes using material that is often his own.

"Sometimes I think it up and sometimes I get it out of books," he said.

Most of Raulston and Charlie's personal appearances so far have been before children's church audiences. But this week they will entertain the kindergarten, first and second graders with programs in the Horace Mann Library. The programs are part of the local observance of National Library Week.

Charlie, sitting on Raulston's knee, is not a shy dummy. He was asked if he had any opinions on the general status of current world politics.

Yeah, he answered. "It stinks."

Raulston's mouth didn't move.

Charlie was asked if he had to go to school.

Yeah, he answered. "I hate it. I have to work all day and then stay up all night doing homework."

Raulston's mouth didn't move.

Charlie was asked if he ever lost his voice.

Yeah, he said. "Sometimes. Like when I have laryngitis."

Raulston's mouth didn't move.

Raulston was asked what his routine consisted of.

Well, he said, "sometimes I tell jokes and sometimes I sing."

Charlie's mouth didn't move.

Canadian Ministers Ask For Action On Sheriff

CANADIAN — The Rev. Vernon Cline, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, one of seven ministers in this city who drafted a letter requesting that court action involving Hemphill County Sheriff Eldon Corley be expedited, said Saturday that no word has yet been received from the state attorney general.

The letter was submitted by the ministers following the recent resignation of a pair of Hemphill County deputies and the sheriff's departure to Louisiana on a leave of absence.

Without giving reasons for their resignations, David Rusley quit Saturday and Lee Peyton quit Monday.

Corley faces a misdemeanor indictment for public drunkenness and a civil action seeking his removal from office on the basis of allegations by a former dispatcher that he was publicly intoxicated at 13 specific times and places between May 6, 1973 and July 5, 1974.

The civil suit is set for a mid-September trial and the misdemeanor charge is pending in justice of the peace court.

Only two deputies remain in Canadian to enforce the law of both city and county.

Right now, we're without real law enforcement since the sheriff has left town," said Cline.

We drafted the letter because the suit against Sheriff Corley is too drawn out.

In 1973, the Canadian city police department and the sheriff's department were consolidated. Since that time seven deputies have resigned from the department.

In addition to Cline, ministers who drafted the letter include: Barton Morse, First Christian Church; Dazel Leonard, First Baptist Church; Dennis Jordan, Assembly of God Church; Raymond Duncan, Church of Christ; James Holman, Canadian Methodist Church; and Smiley Johnson, Canadian Presbyterian Church.

Economy: Bad for Farmers, Others Good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Double-digit inflation has been left behind at least for now, and government economists say the easier price trends look firm enough to hold inflation below 10 per cent for the year.

The first quarter (January to March) may well mark the transition between double digit and single digit inflation, the Commerce Department's latest "Survey of Current Business" says.

President Ford's Council on Wage and Price Stability issued an even more optimistic forecast last week, saying, "If crops are good, the annual rate of increase in the Consumer Price Index could be as low as 6 per cent by the fourth quarter (October to December) of 1975."

Corley Found Sane for Trial

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Edward Elton Corley, a 30-year-old construction worker charged with murdering three women and a boy, has been judged sane and will be tried for one of the killings.

The jury deliberated an hour and a half Friday before returning the unanimous decision.

Corley will be tried at a later date for the murder of Vicki Lee Morris last Sept. 14. He also is charged with murdering Jeannette Wright and her 7-year-old son, Wayne, last August and the Sept. 15 murder of Louise Dolly Jones, 32.

"Oh, no," cried Corley's

sister, Joy Jones of Longview when the verdict was read in the three-day sanity hearing.

Mrs. Jones and Corley's mother, Mary Honzell, who had testified Corley was insane both sobbed audibly.

Corley, dressed in a brown suit, sat passively throughout the proceedings. Mrs. Jones, who ran up and embraced Corley after deliberations began, sat with her mother when the sentence was read.

Defense attorney James Knowles said he intends to file pretrial motions next week in connection with the case, probably including a request for a change of venue.

That's the rosiest forecast by any government group to date. The official optimism is grounded in the fact that various price indexes have lately been rising at the slowest rates in a long time.

The wholesale price index, for example, has actually dropped for three straight months due to falling prices for raw agricultural products and processed foods.

This is bad news for farmers but good news for most other Americans, who have been battered by two years of extraordinary increases in the cost of living.

Consumer prices are still going up, as they almost always do, but at a much slower rate than before. The retail cost of goods and services has been rising at the slowest rate since late 1973, when inflation was in the single digit range.

Energy is an unknown factor and Ford's conservation plan would boost national energy price levels a full 2 per cent.

But even if the compromise energy program ultimately adopted by Congress and approved by Ford carries this much clout, the wage-price panel says, the chances for a rate of inflation below 10 per cent during the year seem excellent.

The dark side to this picture, of course, is that Americans are paying for price improvement with high unemployment and low demand. These are the key reasons why prices are falling or rising less rapidly than before.

The major question in the months ahead is this: Once the recession ends, the economy revives and the unemployment eases, will the inflation rate remain modest or will it soar once again?

The answer depends to a large extent on how much fiscal stimulus, in the form of higher government spending, the administration and Congress inject into the economy.

The speed with which the Federal Reserve Board increases the money supply and the extent to which business and government will be competing for a limited supply of investment dollars this year and next will also help determine future price trends.

In the meantime, the easing of inflation may be some small consolation to the 10 million Americans out of work and millions of others who are hanging on by their purse strings.

Rocky Buys Ranch Land In Texas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has purchased 6,000 acres of South Texas ranch land in Willacy and Kenedy Counties for family recreation.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family in New York said Friday the land "has several ponds and lakes, groves of live oaks and abundant wildlife."

It will be used for a variety of outdoor recreation activities for the vice president and his family, such as camping and riding.

Rockefeller bought the land from Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Yturria. A purchase price was not disclosed and mineral rights were not included in the sale, the statement said.

The purchase reflects the vice president's strong interest in and affection for the area since his visits many years ago with his brothers, the statement said.

Man Reportedly Jailed In Moyer Murder Case

AMARILLO police reportedly have a man in custody in connection with the April 2 slaying of Katrina Moyer, 16.

Tom Curtis, Potter County district attorney, reportedly told the Amarillo Globe-News that he expected charges would be filed Monday on Jim P. Vanderbilt Jr., 22, a former policeman on the Amarillo force.

Police reportedly think they have the revolver used in the Moyer slaying.

Vanderbilt was arrested at 5 p.m. Friday at the police department where he still was attending classes. He was fired March 26 following a police investigation into an incident wherein civilian reportedly was struck with a flashlight. He reportedly became a police officer in Amarillo on Dec. 18, 1974.

Vanderbilt reportedly was charged with aggravated kidnapping in connection with an incident on March 27 when a woman allegedly was abducted from a shopping center and later was released unharmed.

On April 2, Miss Moyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Moyer of Amarillo, was found dead at 2:40 a.m. about 10 miles north of Amarillo and about a mile east of the Dumas Highway. Hudson Moyer, a former state representative from Amarillo, served from 1963 to 1970.

INFLATION INCREASE POSSIBLE

Spending limits vital

When President Ford signed the largest tax reform bill in the nation's history recently, he literally drew a line at $60 billion on a graph and said he would not allow the federal deficit to go beyond it. With that bit of symbolism, he was appealing in advance for support from the people of the United States of America for what he knows must come inevitably — vetoes of major new spending bills.

Without question the nearly $25 billion Christmas tree tax relief program carries the possibility of refueling inflation that could reach into the taxpayer's pocketbook and businessman's profit. By the act of drawing the line with a big black marker pen, Mr. Ford was saying that a $60 billion deficit may be absorbed within the economy but that a larger deficit would ignite new inflation.

As a veteran of a quarter century in Congress, Mr. Ford must realize that he is being optimistic in hoping to keep the deficit within the limit he spelled out. Bills that would push the deficit higher and higher are already in the hopper in both houses of Congress. The only question is whether the will exists in Congress to forgo these spending increases, or whether the President's veto can be sustained if the issue comes to a test.

Mr. Ford was certainly correct in stating that the tax bill combines apples and oranges by providing tax relief on the one hand while on the other forcing some taxpayers, oil companies for example, to pay more taxes. It would have been better if Congress had followed Mr. Ford's suggestion and passed an uncluttered tax relief bill, then left basic tax reform to more deliberation. The oil depletion allowance — one of the foundations on which this nation's energy industry was constructed — was partially repealed in the bill without even the benefit of a committee hearing. There is little logic to action such as this at a time when the nation is trying to achieve energy self-sufficiency and encourage exploration for new energy sources.

Some of this high-handedness came as a result of the removal of fiscally conservative members and chairmen of the Senate and House committees which handled the legislation. Therein lies one of the dangers for the future. Unless the economy responds to the tax cuts with an obvious recovery — and it is important to note that a $1.5 trillion economy can eat up the tax cuts quickly — the liberal forces could come back next year for an equal or even bigger cut. Secretary of Treasury William E. Simon already believes a $100 billion deficit is possible as a result of the bill. He says that he feels he is "living in a bad dream." Next year could turn from a bad dream to a nightmare.

However, the President has acted to put the tax reform bill into effect. Congress could avoid a series of veto showdowns with the White House by being realistic about federal expenditures. It need only face the fact when anyone, including a nation, lives on credit, the bills eventually come due and must be paid, with interest.

The proof of reform

The reforms to the House committee structure have been given increased luster by Rep. Al Ullman, recently named as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee to replace the fallen Wilbur Mills.

The Oregon Democrat rejected an effort to tie repeal of controversial oil and gas depletion allowances to a bill carrying tax cuts aimed at stimulating the economy. Taxes and energy are separate matters, he said, and should be taken up accordingly by the lawmakers.

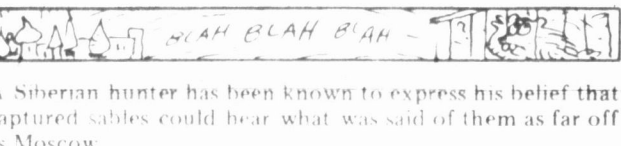

And the House Rules Committee concurred in Ullman's personal objection to linking a delay in President Ford's order imposing a tariff on imported oil to legislation increasing the government's debt limit to $331 billion. A Rules Committee vote reversed the action of the Ways and Means Committee majority combining the issues.

The urgency of the nation's energy and economic problems precludes legislative trickery. With the serious and sincere divisions between Congress and the Ford administration on the best approach to solutions, no bill deserves a free ride. Each must be evaluated on its merits.

'Give Nothing To Anybody'

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "Doctor, I'm with you about giving charity to India and Bangladesh. I have a hard rule in my house. I give nothing to anyone or anything. Period."
A few years ago, a man I know wanted me to give to India because of floods and droughts. I told him it would be a sin to try to prevent the Divine will from taking shape. Droughts and floods there are God's method of cutting that population. He was so upset he consulted his preacher who was truly shocked at my actions. Both said that Indians only lived to be 20 to 25 years old. I answered that this was long enough for them to make more Indians. Was I wrong? — H.B.H., Pensacola, Fla.

A — I'm afraid so — at least in part. When I wrote recently that simply sending our food to huge population 'anthills' wasn't the long-range answer to the grim problem of famine across the world, I didn't say or mean: "Give nothing to anyone or anything."

This is an attitude more characteristic of Ebenezer Scrooge. What I tried to point out was that we should be selective and scientific in our giving, not simply pumping more fuel in the form of food on an already raging population explosion.

Q — "I heartily agree with your opinion on the misdeeds of some of our past Presidents, long before Nixon. But let us face facts. These men are all far in our past to explain these things from the graveyard. On the other hand, we still have Nixon with us, and he is quite capable of explaining his recent actions to the American people if he could."

Now that you have expressed your opinion of these past Presidents, how about answering your reader's original question regarding your personal opinion of Nixon? You never did answer the question, you know. — Mrs. J.M.B. Nashville, Tenn.

A — Didn't I? In that case, as the gentleman in question was fond of saying, "Let me make myself perfectly clear."

My opinion of Richard Nixon is that he should be judged and rated exactly by the same standards by which his predecessors were judged and rated — no more, no less. Only when our country becomes more virtuous and righteous than it was in the days of our ancestors will we have the right to hold our Presidents to higher and different standards of conduct than our ancestors did.

Can you see any evidence that this happy national improvement is indeed occurring, Mrs. J.M.B.?

Q — "I am not a reader of your column, but I have read enough of your stuff to know that you are a fossil of the Neanderthal Age. When I read your piece on capital punishment, I was amazed to read the paragraph murderer is beginning. Frankly, my compassion for my own potential murderer is highly limited."

The vengeful attitude you express therein is pre-Christian. I don't know whether or not you are religious. I do know you must worship a god that is not the Christian God, who is filled with compassion, mercy and love even for those who do not deserve it. — J.H.W., Gainesville, Fla.

A — Christ said: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." I believe this implicitly and try to practice it. Thus, if I become a beastly murderer, I would want others to do unto me exactly as I have been doing unto them. At least the part of me which had not fallen back into the animal would want this, if only to safeguard my future potential victims.

As for the poor old Neanderthaler, what do you suppose their crime rate was, J.H.W.? I'll bet money, marbles or chalk it was a fraction of New York City's.

DEAR ABBY: Thank God someone wrote in to say she had had it with clods who always ask handicapped people. "What happened to you?"

I am engaged to a handsome, 24-year-old man who lost his left hip and leg to cancer surgery. He wears a prosthesis, but it doesn't function like a real leg, and he must also use crutches and has a lot of difficulty getting around.

It never fails, no matter where we go. Some idiot will come up to him and ask, "What happened to you?" When he tells them, they reply that they know about a dozen people who had the same thing and most of them just died from it. This is the God's truth. We have gone to restaurants and have had drunks come up and fall all over us sobbing and crying about what a pity it is to see such a good-looking young man in such a terrible shape.

Believe me, we have taken to staying home lately rather than to go out and run into such stupid numbskulls.

Please ask parents to teach their children to be a little more considerate of handicapped people. They've suffered enough.

ALSO HAD IT WITH CLODS

DEAR ABBY: The annual "POOR ME" award should go to "Had it with Clods." She (or he) wrote, "The next time you see a handicapped person, don't ask, 'What happened to your legs? What happened to your arm? What happened to your face?' Just keep your mouth shut, and leave us alone!"

"Had it" appears to be suffering from a disability far more serious than physical. An emotional one.

Unfortunately the "leave us alone attitude" is exactly what the physically handicapped do not need. They need more attention when it comes to building designs, education, employment, medical assistance and housing.

The tendency to divorce the physically disabled from the mainstream of life is one of their biggest problems. I am an active, 50-year-old, single paraplegic, and I sure as hell don't want to be left alone. I want to live, learn, work and play. And I enjoy flirting with the opposite sex just as any other redheaded, healthy grandmother would — I just do it from a fast-rolling wheelchair.

PEGGY BENDRICK, RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ABBY: I have the perfect solution to the "clod" who asks, "How did you lose your leg?"

Simply say, "I will tell you if your promise that you will not ask another question about it."

When the "clod" promises, reply, "It was bitten off. Now — no more questions from you!"

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more "clod" letter? I have a friend who has one leg and a marvelous sense of humor. Someone once asked, "Chum, how did you lose your leg?" He replied, "I didn't lose it. I know where it is!"

THE STATE of North Carolina has just passed legislation requiring that students in its public schools learn something about principles underlying our free enterprise system.

It's a sad commentary when lawmakers find it necessary to force such a wonderful idea on people. You would think parents and students would jump at the chance and not have to be pushed into learning what makes our economy tick.

Talking about it with Dr. Dan Long, Pampa school superintendent, we learned he believes strongly that economic principles and the workings of the free enterprise system should be available for study in our schools.

The superintendent said Pampa at the outset of the current school year began offering an optional program on the subject of economics. Under a new state law, Pampa High School offers the study on an elective basis.

Students are not required to take it, but the school is required to offer it.

In North Carolina the study of economic principles now is a must subject required of all high school students.

Dr. Long says the Texas Legislature now is considering a bill that would provide consumer education for school pupils.

He added that Pampa schools also have free enterprise fundamentals intertwined in the elementary grades and high school social studies.

WHEN YOU get right down to it — the principles of economics are outstanding in their simplicity. It's when these commonsense rules are applied to something as large and as complex as the national economy that they get lost and become submerged under layer upon layer of gobbledy gook, double talk and extraneous detail that very few people understand.

Thus, shrewd folks who would ask a salesman "What's your free offer gonna cost me?" don't even think of asking Congress the same question, under similar circumstances.

That's why Congress and governmental units are able to pick our pockets with the left hand, and return some of the loot with the right hand (like revenue sharing and federal aid grants), causing those who don't understand what has happened to jump up and down with thanks for Big Brother's "generosity."

And that's why there needs to be more and more study in our schools about the principles of economics and what it is going to take to preserve the free enterprise system.

An appreciation for, and an understanding of what makes the American market system tick — along with a preparation to participate successfully in our economic system — should become an integral part of school programs at high school, college and graduate levels.

It is good to know your school superintendent and school board members think along those lines.

NOW, LET'S get down off the soap box and make a complete flip from the top rung to the bottom. To do that it becomes necessary to call in the City Hall Cat and a couple of friends to hold the net.

The Cat has been wondering for nearly a year and a half how many Pampans have noticed something unusual as they pass along the walk at the south entrance to City Hall.

High up in the lone tree on the lawn there is a sheer nylon scarf entwined in the branches. Monty Gordon, deputy tax man for the city, says it has been there ever since he went to work for the city.

All of the 50 to 60 mph wind gusts that have swished through Pampa in all that time have failed to dislodge it. The gal from whose head it was blown has never been able to retrieve it.

How's that for four paragraphs of much ado about nothing? Bet you didn't even know that scarf has been up there all that time, did you?

GETTING BACK to free enterprise, oil men in the Texas Panhandle, and everywhere for that matter, will be interested in New York Sen. James Buckley's remarks to the American Association of Petroleum Geologists the other day.

Buckley said increasing national regulation is endangering the free enterprise system. He said Congress had singled out the oil industry for punitive treatment and urged the nation's businessmen to fight the "Headlong plunge into a socialized society."

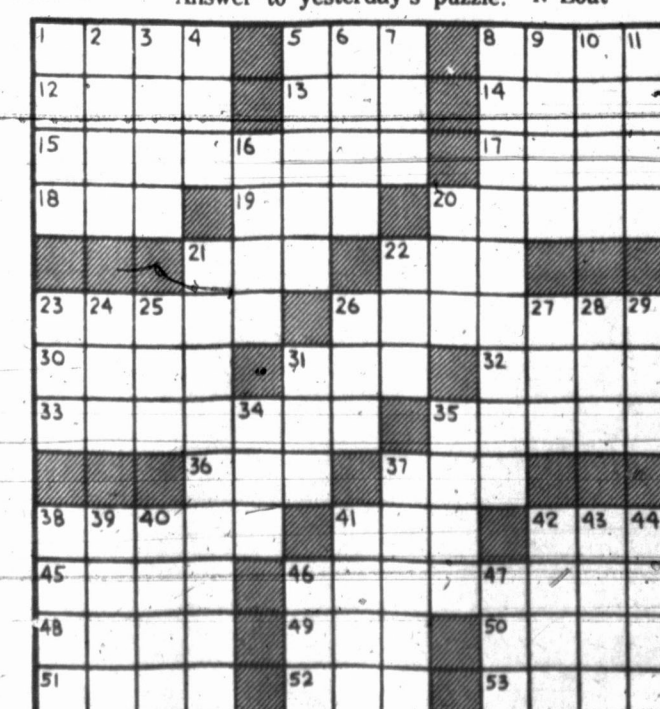

He said the oil and gas industry is the Congress' favorite whipping boy and urged oil men to stop worrying about the depletion allowance and join with other businessmen to work against increasing regulations.

"Every businessman who cares about the future," Buckley said, "must somehow involve himself in the political process, not to advance his own personal ends but the nation's ends."

We suspect Senator Buckley's remarks and advice will be kicked around quite a bit among members of the Panhandle Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

Arrests Two in Tech Murder

DALLAS (UPI) — Two suspects were arrested Saturday in connection with the execution-style murder and robbery of a Texas Tech student and the beating and wounding of his date in the Trinity River bottom east of the city. A police detective called the murderers "kill-crazy."

Police said the men were arrested early Saturday and were being questioned. The men were not identified, no charges were filed and no bond was set. Police refused to say where the men were arrested and would give no further information about the arrests.

Police Capt. Jack Davis, investigating the Friday incident, called the murder of Michael McMahan, 22, of Kennenick, Wash. a "senseless killing." McMahan's date, Deia Sutton, 20, a student at the University of Texas at Arlington, was wounded in the muddy brushland near the river.

Police had been searching for McMahan's metallic blue car. Its description had been broadcast on police radio four times each hour. The suspects were described at about six feet tall and between 25 to 30 years of age.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, APRIL 13

Your birthday today: Opens a year-plus of normal opportunity that materializes according to your desire for healthy growth and the energy you are able to expend to bring it about. It is well to have some clear image of what you wish to become. Relationships prosper spontaneously. Today's natives are perennial optimists, fond of philosophic contemplation, peace loving.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Give yourself a break. Leave business considerations aside; see about friendship for its own sake. Take your full share in local observances of faith and civic cooperation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You have a quiet opportunity to think where you're going and whom to go with—choices begin now, unannounced. Be willing to put your energy behind group and family projects.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be out and about. There are many conflicting details to sort out before you start to explain anything. It's an uneven day—make it as smooth as you can.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Once you've played your usual role in the customs of your community, relax, catch up on hobbies. Take a rest from the work you've been pushing. No shoptalk!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: A conservative approach works best this Sunday. By all means, avoid noise and unusual activity. Check your home for security; plan needed corrections.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You have a rare chance to convert the useless into something of value. You can also redirect your course to greater productivity by quiet decisions made now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You're past your low-energy point. Not yet time for extra action, it's high time for serious discussion of where you and yours should go together.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You have such a busy, complex week ahead that it's best to get in plenty of extra rest. Be content with normal amenities; participate in public observances gracefully.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Boredom is a signal of something going wrong within. Don't just "do something" to stir up action. Strive to become a person too alive to be bored.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: This is a good day to run a double schedule—rest and load—then put in enough effort to complete neglected routines, correspondence budgets. Then take another break.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Be wherever you feel your presence is needed most and where it appears you can gain by contributing. Strive for genuine elegance of appearance and behavior today.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your energy is up a bit; likewise there is a temptation to be a busybody. If you can leave well enough alone, you'll benefit later. A complicated but fun day.

MONDAY, APRIL 14

Your birthday today: You spend the early months of this coming year in experiments, most of which bring unexpected results, useful experience, but little material improvement. You occupy the latter months with productive applications of what you've learned. Relationships are more demanding than usual, require both tact and candor. Today's natives are independent and stubborn, go their own way despite outside distraction.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You're alert, on the move early, or should be. Beware of taking on too large a venture before checking to see exactly what's at hand to work with and what's due to come in.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Caution on financial questions means discounting partisan opinions. The day favors personal relations. Use a human touch to resolve problems without much effort.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You don't have any reason to stir up action. There'll be plenty of it shortly. Meanwhile, get equipment and supplies into good order, and your work place free of clutter.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: If you can avoid being in the public eye, fine! If not, mind your manners. You gain nothing by shouting and getting embroiled in other people's disputes. Romance beckons tonight.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Private ties generate some stress and must be taken care of as soon as possible. Sharpen your work routines. Allow extra time for general reorganization.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Step right up to claim a better rating and higher status. Collect what you've earned and put it to immediate, productive use. Share your good humor, but avoid making fun of anyone.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Stop wasting time trying to figure out who the villain is. Decide how to improve matters and get busy. Excellent progress is possible if you put your mind to it.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Almost any story you repeat today turns out to be incomplete or incorrect. Pay attention to what people do rather than what they say. Have a small party this evening.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Teamwork is difficult to achieve, probably because you want more done than usual and haven't convinced others of its necessity. Be patient, tactful, but persistent.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Stay well within rules and budgets; pace your efforts to avoid haste and fatigue during this long, strenuous day. You have an intense but happy evening.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Big ideas take over. Be sure your schemes are practical and in line with current conditions. You have several unrelated matters to attend to. See that all receive equal attention.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Continue the art of gentle persuasion to get what you want. There's change in the near future and you should be in the midst of decision-making.

ERA — — — women in conflict over equal rights

By JANE MARSHALL

One called it the greatest fiction ever perpetrated against women... a fraud flying under false colors.

The other called the only way all men and women will have full legal equality.

Both women were taking about the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) in a debate which both sides admit has caused more heat than light. Not since women's suffrage have women been so politically involved in a piece of legislation.

The debate between Hermine Tobolowsky and Lana Tyree took place at the Villa Inn in Amarillo Saturday as part of New Horizons for EVE (Education - Voluntarism - Employment) sponsored by Amarillo College and other organizations and businesses.

Texas ratified ERA to the U.S. Constitution in 1972 and voters ratified a similar amendment to the Texas Constitution.

For two years Texans have been living under a constitution that reads "equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed or national origin."

But there are forces in Texas trying to revoke its ratification, a question which in turn has been questioned.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has said that a state's ratification is final. Charles Black, professor at Yale University Law School, disagrees.

But whether or not ERA should be approved and ratified by the necessary 38 states seems to be a matter of who you believe.

One side: ERA is not necessary and is incredibly rigid.

The other side: ERA is the only way to insure that sex is not a factor in determining the legal rights of men and women.

Tobolowsky, attorney from Dallas, supported the amendment. Tyree, an attorney from Oklahoma City, presented opposition.

Shana Alexander, former editor of McCall's Magazine and columnist for Life and Newsweek, keyed the day.

Tobolowsky stressed that ERA was the only way to secure full legal equality for the sexes. She has tried, she said, to change the discriminatory laws with individual legislation, and found it couldn't be done.

"Changes are being made in Texas now," she said. "The Texas Legislature has enacted some specific legislation benefiting women." Women may not now be denied credit in their own right if they have the requisite financial resources and they may also manage their own property, she cited.

"It's very basic that any law apply in the same manner to everybody in the United States," she said.

She added that the undiscriminatory laws which have been passed can be undone if ERA is not ratified nationally.

"Without ERA women can never do all the things that male counterparts can do," the attorney said.

She shot down several theories which have been circulated by Women Who Want to be Women (WWW). An anti-ERA organization.

"Women's rights of privacy is still insured by the constitution," she said. ERA will not force the sexes to share bathrooms nor will it force women to pay alimony or go to work, Tobolowsky added.

Many of these points have already been tested, she said. When women were given the right to vote, opponents said that they would have to share rest rooms and sleep in the voting room because voting lines would be so long people couldn't finish voting in one day, she told.

Tobolowsky said she believes the 14th amendment and Article seven of the civil rights amendment do not protect against sex discrimination but only racial discrimination. The Supreme Court will not say it effects sex, she reported, adding that the American Bar Association has overwhelmingly endorsed ERA.

"The 14th amendment is completely inadequate," she said. "ERA tells states and congress to do something."

Tyree spoke against the amendment, emphasizing that her beliefs against the amendment should "not be taken as a stand against the antiquated laws discriminating against sex or race."

"It is not a social issue but a legal question," she said. "ERA will not correct the problems of discrimination. It will not solve the problems," the attorney from Oklahoma said.

"Even if it were all encompassing, any law in Texas that is in the books will still be there."

The 14th amendment inherently guarantees that an employer shall not discriminate against on race, creed or sex, she told her audience which filled the convention hall of Villa Inn.

She stressed that the amendment applies only to government action, that the private work force will not be effected.

"We have the rights; we need to enforce them," she said, listing the protecting laws in existence: Equal Pay Act, education amendment of 1972 and the Health Manpower Training Act in addition to the 14th amendment and Article 7 of the civil rights act.

Federal courts have ruled that sex discrimination is prohibited without ERA, she reported.

She cited an example in Oklahoma, a state which did not ratify ERA. A law in which boys were permitted to buy beer at age 21 and girls at 18 was ruled unconstitutional. Now everyone has to be 21.

"We don't play with the U.S. Constitution," she stated. "If it is not necessary and not going to cure problems, we should not adopt it. If we pass ERA the federal courts will tell us what we've done."

She suggested that the constitutionality of laws which discriminate be challenged in the courts.

"Both sides (of ERA) should join forces and get done what needs to be done," she said.

The keynote speaker, Shana Alexander, spoke of the "tangled thicket of stupidity and gross neglect" surrounding the equality of women under the law. "Women had duties not rights," she said of the past.

She accused women's magazines of feeding women "illusion, fantasy and gorgeous deception of reality." They are slick paper ghettos to sell products to women, she said.

Alexander was fired from her job as editor-in-chief of McCall's Magazine. She said she had wanted to help it serve real needs of real women. They pulled what she called a hypocritical, discriminating, chauvinistic pre-Pill job.

Her book, "Shana Alexander's State by State Guide to Women's Legal Rights," took four years of research and will be out in a month.

She called some of the Texas laws disgraceful, naming the law prohibiting black children to be adopted by white parents.

She called divorced laws in 25 states - including Texas, archaic and punitive for their premise that someone is at fault when a marriage fails.

Alexander said that crime was the only equal opportunity occupation.

"No group should be denied or granted rights because of race or reproducing capacity," the author added.

An eight-hour House Constitutional Amendments Committee hearing is set for Monday. More than 1,000 women on both sides of the emotional issue are expected to pack the House chamber for the hearing, and Rep. Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas, Committee chairman, is drawing careful guidelines to control tempers at the hearing according to a UPI report.

Rep. Bill Hilliard, D-Fort Worth, has proposed rescension of Texas' ratification of ERA.

Rep. Sarah Weddington, D-Austin, will lead opposing side. Hilliard says he isn't attempting to repeal a state equal rights amendment, but believes Texas should not be a party to putting such a provision in the U.S. Constitution.

UPI said ERA is a question most legislators had rather not face.

Americans Abandon Cambodia

By United Press International

The United States abandoned Cambodia Saturday.

U.S. Marines hauled down the Stars and Stripes and evacuated most remaining Americans from the country as Communist-led insurgents closed in on Phnom Penh.

The fall of the capital itself appeared imminent, sealing Cambodia's fate as the first country won by the Communists in the Indochina War.

Three dozen Marine helicopters, protected by 20 circling U.S. warplanes and defying rebel rockets, swept into a soccer field to pickup Americans. Cambodians and other nationalities and take them to the carrier Okinawa circling off the coast. Among them were U.S. Ambassador to Cambodia John Gunther Dean and acting Cambodian president Saukham Khoy.

The 70-minute airlift, dubbed "Operation Eagle Pull," signaled the end of a massive, five-year U.S. effort to keep the Communist-led Khmer Rouge from taking power in Cambodia.

The decision to pull out apparently was made Friday evening and was ordered by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The insurgents had battled their way to within 2 1/2 miles of the heart of the city.

WTCC Chooses New Officers In El Paso

Frank Junell of San Angelo, chairman of the board, Central National Bank, was elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce (WTCC) at the 57th annual convention of the WTCC in El Paso Friday afternoon.

Junell succeeded Burl B. Hulsey Jr. of Fort Worth, president, Texas Utilities Company, who has served as president during 1974-1975. Hulsey was elected chairman of the board.

Other officers elected include W.H. (Bill) Collins of Midland, president - elect, and vice president and editor of the Midland Reporter - Telegram, Jack Pilon of Brownwood; vice president of finance and membership, O.R. Clements of Odessa, vice president of program of work, Bob Corkins of Alpine, vice president of special events, and Garnet Gracy of Abilene, treasurer.

E.W. Williams Jr. of Amarillo was elected district vice president.

Named director-at-large was Arthur Duggan of Littlefield. Elected WTCC directors for three-year terms at the session were Bert C. Woodriddle, of Claude, and J.M. Mitchell of Dumas, Clarence Denton of Floydada, Max Ray Faulkner of Miami, Herbert H. Potter of Sudan and Charles R. Brown of Wheeler.

and the military situation was on the verge of collapse.

In Washington, the Pentagon said 276 persons, including 82 Americans and 159 Cambodians, were evacuated. Others were Filipino, Spanish, Swedish, British, Canadian and Italian. A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Bangkok said a handful of American newsmen remained behind.

A UPI Cambodian correspondent filing from Phnom Penh after the evacuation said rebel gunners hit the soccer field with rockets during the pullout, killing one Cambodian civilian and wounding another.

Prime Minister Long Boret remained in the besieged capital and told the nation Saturday night he had formed a "revolutionary committee" to run the country and search for peace. "We must stop this flow of Cambodian blood and try to find a peaceful solution," he said.

But the military situation deteriorated hourly. The rebels closed in on Pochentong Airport and the United States halted its airlift of food and ammunition - Cambodia's one remaining link with the outside world.

In Peking, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, ousted as Cambodia's chief of state in March, 1970, weeks before Phnom Penh joined the Indochina War, said Saturday he had rejected a U.S. invitation to return to Phnom Penh to form a new government.

Sihanouk, in exile in Peking for several years, said Washington's invitation was contained in a note to the chief of the U.S. mission in Peking, George Bush, handed him Friday night.

As the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh closed for the last time, security officer Sidney Telford of Newport, Vt., checked to see that no classified documents had been left behind. "It went like clockwork," he said.

"It was the saddest clockwork you ever saw."

A Marine security guard hauled down the American flag from its second-floor staff, folded it in a three-corner package and carried it with him aboard the final evacuation helicopter.

Minutes after the helicopter swung away, 15 rocket and mortar rounds smashed into the area around the embassy building.

Past Chief Rejects US Invitation

PEKING (UPI) - DPA — Former Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk rejected Saturday a U.S. invitation to return to Phnom Penh to form a new government.

Sihanouk, who has been living in exile in Peking since his ouster in 1970, said Washington's invitation was contained in a note the chief of the U.S. mission in Peking, George Bush, handed him Friday night.

The Americans also had asked Sihanouk to arrange a cease-fire with the Communist-led insurgents following his return to the Cambodian capital.

In his reply, Sihanouk said he would never betray his Cambodian Communist allies. Sihanouk said he would always be standing by their side and would help them achieve a deserved victory.

Sihanouk advised the U.S. government to close its embassy in Phnom Penh immediately and to evacuate all American civilians and military personnel from Cambodia.

Sihanouk said Ambassador Bush told him Sunday morning that Washington had complied with his suggestions.

Political observers in Peking regarded the U.S. invitation to Sihanouk as proof that Washington has settled for the political and military realities in Cambodia.

Texas Resists Recession Better, Economist Says

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas has withstood the recession much better than the rest of the nation, with almost all industry showing great resistance to depressing forces, a business expert says.

Dr. John R. Stockton, professor of business statistics at the University of Texas, wrote in the April Texas business Review "Texas economy is faring substantially better than the national economy."

However, Stockton said, "The most depressed segment of the Texas economy has been the building industry." Building permits declined 29 per cent in the first two months of 1975 compared to the same time last year.

Industrial production, or the demand for repairs, has increased this year because of the decline in buying goods such as homes or cars. However, demands for repairs do not equal the demand for new products during periods of active buying, Stockton said.

An increase in airplane sales in Texas, he said, has offset the decline in car and boat sales, "with the result that the decline has not had nearly as damaging an effect on the economy in Texas as it has in other states."

Other factors adding to a boost in Texas' economy during the recession, Stockton said, are increased employment in machinery manufacture, oil and gas extraction and in the chemical industry.

"While industrial production in the United States for the first two months of 1975 was 10 per cent lower than for the same two months in 1974, Texas industrial production declined only 2 per cent over the same period," Stockton said.

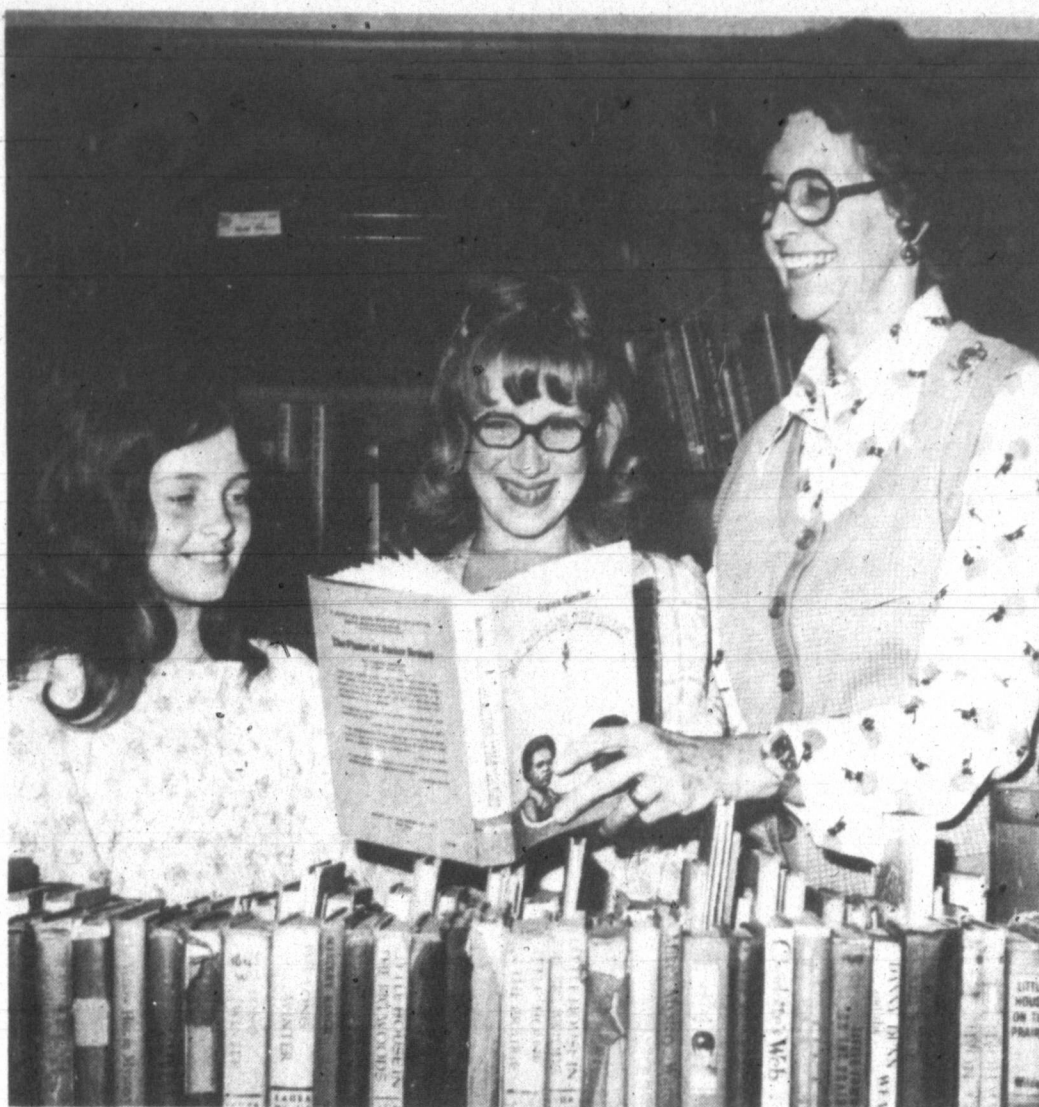

Agriculture income declined in 1974 and Stockton said the farmer still had many adjustments to make in 1975 with foreseeable problems in the cattle industry, grain, fuel and fertilizer prices.

The total dollar volume of sales has held up well in the state in 1975, Stockton said, but increases have not kept up with the rise in retail prices.

"When this rise in prices is taken into account, figures show that the total volume of merchandise sold in Texas department stores has declined about 4 per cent," he said.

This decline is noted despite sales ending March 1 were 7 per cent higher than for the same period in 1974, he said.

Unemployment in Texas for February was at 6.1 per cent of the labor force and 6 per cent in January. In January and February 8.2 per cent of the nation's labor force was unemployed, Stockton said.

LIBRARY WEEK — This is National Library Week and Mrs. Frances B. Walls, elementary library coordinator for Pampa Public Schools, is showing Toni Kindle and Alicia Allen, sixth grade students at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School, around the library. The book they are looking at is "M.C. Higgins, the Great," by Virginia Hamilton, the 1974 winner of the Newberry Medal.

National Week Salutes Libraries

National Library Week begins today, according to Mrs. Frances B. Walls, library coordinator of Pampa Schools.

Mrs. Walls said that Governor Dolph Briscoe signed a proclamation on Feb. 10 which declared April 13-19 as National Library Week in Texas.

State chairman for the week is Barbara Jordan, a state congressperson.

"Libraries serve to expand the human experience, develop the human potential, challenge our appetite for curiosity," Ms. Jordan said. "Properly supplied and staffed, they are havens for the elderly, sources of practical knowledge for the worker, and developers of young minds. Both a healthy respect for our historical origins and a mature view of the future can be developed through library resources."

Mrs. Walls said that Pampa's library facilities include Lovett Memorial, 111 N. Houston...

Stephen F. Austin Elementary, 1900 Duncan; Pampa Senior High School, 111 E. Harvester; Pampa Junior High School, 2401 Charles; Baker Elementary, 300 E. Tuke; Horace Mann Elementary, 400 N. Faulkner; Sam Houston Middle School, 900 N. Frost; Travis Elementary, 2300 Primrose; Wilson Elementary, 801 E. Browning; St. Vincent's, 2300 N. Hobart; and Lamar Elementary, 1234 S. Nelson.

Reappointments For Notaries Due in May

Texas Secretary of State Mark White has announced that all presently commissioned Notaries Public desiring reappointment for the new term which begins June 1 and ends June 1, 1977, must pay the required fee and file a new oath and bond with the County Clerk between May 1 and May 15, inclusive.

White stated that any person not now a Notary Public who desires appointment for the beginning of the new term on June 1 should apply to the County Clerk before April 30. The required application forms may be obtained from the county clerk.

He emphasized that Notaries Public should not send requests for appointment or for commissions directly to the Secretary of State as the law specifically provides that the County Clerk approve Notary Bonds and forward copies of the application to the Secretary of State.

Music Queen Dies Saturday In Comeback

PARIS (UPI) — Josephine Baker, the American-born queen of French music halls for half a century, died Saturday in the midst of a triumphant comeback. She was 69.

Miss Baker collapsed Thursday a few hours before she was to go onstage in her latest hit, "Josephine," which opened to rave reviews March 24 and was sold out three weeks in advance.

Bentsen Nixes Plea For Indochina Aid

TULSA (UPI) — Congress did not cut off aid to Indochina suddenly and completely, but the time has now come to say enough is enough, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said today.

Bentsen, one of five announced candidates for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, was in town gathering support for his campaign. He commented at a news conference on President Ford's state of the world address Thursday night.

"The administration had previously asked for $1.4 billion and they leave the impression that we cut off all aid to Vietnam, but we didn't," Bentsen said. "We voted $700 million and I haven't been in Washington so long but what I still think that's an awful lot."

"When their soldiers left a billion dollars worth of arms, tanks, guns and ammunition on the battle field, what makes anyone think they wouldn't have left another billion dollars worth? We lost 55,000 American lives over there. We spent $248 billion. At some point you have to say enough is enough."

Bentsen held a private breakfast meeting with Democratic officials this morning and was scheduled to speak to a party women's group later in the day.

At the news conference, he was asked why he thought he would make an acceptable candidate for 1976.

Urges Baylor Law Students To Back New Constitution

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Price Daniel Jr. Saturday warned Baylor law students the "time for fundamental change is at hand." He urged them to support the revised state constitution to be presented to voters in the November special election.

Daniel addressed the students as part of Baylor's Law Day program, and concentrated on the need for a revised constitution for Texas. Daniel, former Speaker of the House, was president of the 1974 Constitutional Convention which defeated a revised document by three votes.

"Law Day is an appropriate time indeed for us to focus our attention upon the fundamental law of Texas and resolve the time for fundamental change is at hand," he said.

"Not every word of the new document is as I would have written it or as you would. But I have no reservations at all about supporting the entire document," he said.

Daniel praised the proposed constitution, citing provisions for better political representation for all citizens and a commitment to equal educational opportunity for all children.

He also said provisions for decentralizing government would give citizens a stronger voice in local governmental policies, but allow the legislature to work effectively as the people's board of directors.

"I am especially thankful the legislature, in its wisdom, avoided the unnecessary emotional controversy of irrelevant side issues which temporarily delayed the efforts of the Constitutional Convention of 1974," Daniel said. Inclusion of a right-to-work provision in the 1974 document has been blamed as the reason for its defeat.

"I urge you and the people of Texas to join with me in helping insure that Texas has a completely new constitution in 1976. What better gift could we give ourselves in honor of the nation's bicentennial?" he said.

State Education Board Approves Legislation

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The State Board of Education Saturday unanimously approved proposed legislation calling for immediate restriction to enroll students by proprietary schools when a serious violation of the law is found.

Proprietary schools would also be prohibited from advertising or soliciting students if any serious violation was found. Restrictions would be lifted only after any discrepancy had been corrected and confirmed by the Texas Education Agency.

Janice Boyd, assistant director of the Texas Proprietary School Division, said a problem in interpreting the law could occur.

"Should the legislation pass, we will have to develop policies and procedures to define what 'serious' is," she said.

Proposed legislation to strengthen the Texas Proprietary School Act was introduced in an effort to crack down on the division because of a recent audit showing mismanagement of such schools. The most serious problem reported in the results of an internal performance audit was allowing proprietary schools to operate in violation of existing law.

Auditors and board members believe millions of dollars are owed Texas students in tuition refunds for courses dropped or from schools that closed down.

Other legislative proposals adopted by the board include:

—Disclosing of assets of school owners to TEA and allowing the state to freeze assets so students can be assured of refunds in case a school closes down.

—Requiring regular financial and curriculum audits of proprietary schools with the division footing the bill.

—Providing for student refunds for home-study courses followed by residence training.

Neither, Cohn nor Meyer was available for comment Saturday.

Inflation has its bright side. It's going up at a faster pace than the crime rate.

Connally Lawyer Attempts To Prove Accuser Lies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney Edward Bennett Williams will attempt this week to show that former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr.'s chief accuser, Jake Jacobsen, is a liar, embezzler, and ingrate.

The famed defense lawyer will make a routine motion for a directed verdict of acquittal at Connally's bribery trial in U.S. District Court Monday, and begin his defense if it is refused as expected.

Chief Judge George L. Hart Jr. has imposed a tight gag on all comment by lawyers in the case, but Williams' opening statement and his cross-examination of Jacobsen revealed his strategy.

Although Williams did not puncture any part of Jacobsen's allegations when the prosecution presented its case, he did try to portray Jacobsen as a man not to be trusted or believed.

Jacobsen said he gave Connally $5,000 in milk-producer funds on two occasions in 1971 for help in securing an increase in federal price supports for dairy farmers while Connally was a member of Richard M. Nixon's cabinet.

Jacobsen also said that in 1973 when Watergate investigators began in 1973 to examine the milk producers' political contributions, he and Connally plotted to cover the bribe by contending that the former Treasury secretary had refused the money.

Watergate prosecutors called 36 witnesses before resting their case Thursday. But Jacobsen was the only one to tie the money directly to Connally.

Presumably Connally will take the stand to testify directly to what Williams said in his opening statement: "He did not at any time receive anything whatsoever from the milk producers or Mr. Jacobsen or anyone else."

Williams said Jacobsen offered the money to Connally for use as a political contribution, but Connally replied, "No, Jake, as a member of a Republican administration I will not contribute to Democrats and as a Democrat I will not contribute to Republicans."

Williams said Jacobsen then "had it made."

"He never told anyone Connally turned it down. He kept it," Williams said. "He converted it to his own use. He embezzled the money."

Williams said "it worked so well" that Jacobsen asked for and kept an additional $5,000 in milk money in October, 1971, that he claimed was to go to Connally.

Williams said Jacobsen told Senate Watergate investigators, Watergate prosecutors and the Watergate grand jury at least six times that Connally had never accepted any money.

Meanwhile, in February, 1974, Jacobsen was indicted by a federal grand jury in Texas on charges involving the alleged misappropriation of $268,726 and the mishandling of $268,726 in savings and loan funds.

Jacobsen began plea bargaining with the special prosecutors, and agreed to plead guilty to one count of making an illegal payment to a public official in exchange for dropping the Texas charges and testifying against Connally.

Jacobsen and Connally have been friends for 25 years, and both were proteges of Lyndon B. Johnson. Williams produced a 1972 letter in which Jacobsen told Connally that no one in public life had treated him so well and there was no way to express his gratitude.

"Did you say that?" Williams asked.

"I don't remember saying that but I might have,"

Times Says Ari Was To Divorce Jackie

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aristotle Onassis decided shortly before his death to start divorce proceedings against his wife, Jacqueline, The New York Times reported Saturday.

The Greek shipping magnate's will provided only $3 million for Mrs. Onassis, far less than published reports have indicated she would receive, the Times quoted friends of the Onassis family as saying.

The will also set up trust funds of $1 million each for the children from Mrs. Onassis' marriage to the late President John F. Kennedy, the article said.

Caroline and John Kennedy will receive incomes from the fund until they are 21 years old, the Times said.

Onassis, who died in Paris March 15, left an estate valued as high as $500 million. Previous reports had said Mrs. Onassis would receive up to $200 million in her bequest, and her children Caroline and John would inherit as much as $15 million each.

The Times said the divorce action was set in motion Dec. 3, when John Meyer, described as Onassis' closest associate, called New York lawyer Roy M. Cohn.

"He called me when Mr. Onassis was with him," the Times quoted Cohn as saying Friday. "He said it was absolutely definite, and that Mr. Onassis wanted to end the marriage."

The Times said it has been unable to obtain comment from

Meyer, although one of his associates said Meyer would not answer questions until "the (Onassis) family has decided what to do about Jackie."

The New York Times, however, reached Meyer in Florida late Friday night and he denied he had contacted Cohn in connection with any Onassis divorce proceedings.

"These stories are totally ridiculous," Meyer told the Times. "That skunk (Cohn), I haven't seen him for the last six or seven months, and I can prove it."

"I know nothing about the will or the kids," Meyer told the Times.

Meyer who lives in Manhattan, had been an associate of Howard Hughes before working with Onassis.

Neither, Cohn nor Meyer was available for comment Saturday.

El Paso Gas Denies Reports

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. has denied published reports it may abandon its plans to build a coal gasification complex near Burnham in the Four Corners area of New Mexico.

The firm is seeking a postponement of approval for the construction, saying its primary reason for the action was that the company wanted the project deferred until "certain matters relating to the underlying coal leases are settled."

Published reports Friday quoted Navajo Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald as saying it appeared "unlikely" that El Paso would now build its three proposed gasification plants "in the foreseeable future."

Liberal GOP Group Says State Solons Few

By RANDY FITZGERALD
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A liberal Republican organization has compiled a voting analysis that reflects what most Texans already knew — that progressive Republican political tendencies among the 26 Texas House and Senate members are a rare phenomenon.

The Rip on Society, a Massachusetts-based force of liberalism in the Republican Party, found only one Texas Republican — Rep. Alan Steelman of Dallas — and four Texas Democrats who voted more than 50 per cent of the time in accordance with Ripon views in 1974.

Steelman voted "correct" 75 percent of the time on the 16 House votes selected by the Ripon Society for analysis.

Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas scored only 45 per cent on the 23 selected Senate votes. Democrat Sen. Lloyd Bentsen got a 24 per cent rating.

Ripon's ratings were based on votes covering civil liberties, abortion, foreign aid, fiscal restraint and congressional reform issues, and such miscellaneous votes as the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president, which the group supported.

Rep. Jake Pickle, of Austin, a Democrat, was the second highest Ripon scorer in the delegation behind Steelman, with a 57 per cent "correct" rating. Pickle voted with the Ripon Society on eight of the 14 votes he cast in their survey.

By far the lowest Ripon score was recorded by Rep. Ray Roberts, D-McKinney, who voted "correct" just once on the 16 votes, for a seven per cent rating. Second lowest was Rep. Richard White, D-El Paso, at 14 per cent "correct."

The other three Texas Democrats who voted with the Ripon Society view more often than not were: Reps. Barbara Jordan, D-Houston, 56 per cent; Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, 53 per cent; and Bob Eckhardt, D-Houston, 53 per cent.

Among Republicans in the House delegation — four of them in 1974 — none scored anywhere near Steelman's percentage. Former Rep. Bob Price of Pampa, who was defeated by Democrat Jack Hightower, had a 19 per cent Ripon rating, voting "correct" on three of the 16 votes. Both Rep. Bill Archer, R-Houston and Rep. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, received a 44 per cent rating.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, was shown supporting the Ripon viewpoint 40 per cent of the time. Among the issues on which the Ripon Society said he voted "wrong" were: his vote in favor of requiring that 20 percent of all imported oil be carried in United States flag vessels; his vote in favor of a bill sponsored by Rep. Bob Poage, D-Waco, providing $2 billion in emergency loan guarantees to livestock producers; and his vote against an amendment abolishing proxy voting in committees and subcommittees.

Ripon Society percentage scores for other Texans include: Reps. Omar Burleson, D-Anson, 25 per cent; Bob Casey, D-Houston, 19; Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, 18; Henry Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, 31; Abraham Kazen, D-Laredo, 31; George Mahon, D-Lubbock, 44; Dale Milford, D-Dallas, 33; Wright Patman, D-Texasarkana, 30; Bob Page, D-Waco, 38; Olin Teague, D-College Station, 25; Jim Wright, D-Dallas, 23; and John Young, D-Corpus Christi, 31.

Social Security

By Howard L. Weatherly
Branch Manager

Pampa Social Security Office
Benefit payment to disabled children under the Supplemental Security Income program administered by the Social Security Administration may not be understood by the general public, particularly the parents or guardians of such children, according to Howard L. Weatherly Branch Manager of the Pampa Social Security Office.

Children of any age, even infants, may qualify for monthly disability checks under a federal program referred to as SSI. This program replaced the State public assistance programs providing assistance to the aged, blind and disabled.

In order to qualify for such benefits the child must meet the definition of disability as stated in the law and must have little or no income or resources. All SSI payments are based on need and the eligibility of children under 18 can be affected by the income and resources of their parents regardless of how severely disabled the child may be. The law assumes that a child shares in the income and resources of his parents. The amount of income, as well as the size of the family, would determine how much, if any, of the income or resources would have to be considered as belonging to the disabled child. The basic amount of the monthly Supplemental Security Income payment for one per person is $146 per month, but can be less depending on other income the individual might have. In the case of a disabled child, any income he might have as well as that of his parents could affect the amount of the monthly payment. Once the disabled child reaches the age of 18, or 21 if they are in school, the income of his parents is no longer considered in determining the amount of payments.

Red Cross Board Has Tuesday Meeting, 22 Go

By LIBBY SHOTWELL, Executive Secretary ARC
The Red Cross Board met Tuesday morning in the City Club Room with Miss Norma Briden, chapter chairman presiding. Breakfast was served by Doris Wilson and Libby Shotwell to 19 members and three guests — Bill Lynch, Betty Moody, and Nina Spoonmore. Standing committee reports were given and it was decided to have a breakfast meeting for the annual meeting again this year. Plans for the meeting will be made by Morris Kille, Louise Sewell and Libby Shotwell, with the tentative date set for the second Tuesday in May. A report of the nominating committee was given by George Warren, chairman, with Jack Chisum, and Warner Phillips. Nominated were: Wayne Wilson, chapter chairman; Miss Norma Briden, vice chairman; Mrs. James Frazier, secretary; Vincent Simon, treasurer; with three new directors — Jerry Davis, Butch Shephard, and Fred Kindle who will serve three years on the Red Cross Board. It is a little late to be telling you of Easter Sunday at Lefors. However, we know that the victims of the tornado will never forget the kindness to them this Easter. Gibson's sent 180 dozen candy eggs and the men at the canteen hid them for the children, and such fun as they did have. The E.S.A. Sorority furnished dinner of turkey and dressing and all of the trimmings. John Gikas made the peach and apple cobbler for the dessert which was delicious. Yes, this Easter will long be remembered by the people of Lefors. Jimmie K. Williams and her mother, Georgia Mack with friends served dinner last week to the victims of the Lefors Disaster. Some of the girls from the Junior Department of the First Christian Church took their money and bought cookie rolls and baked them for the Lefors Disaster Canteen. These were the girls who worked for the Lefors disaster victims: Ella Mae Mix, Charlene Warden, Ann and Neikita Kadingo, Jay and Tony Williams, Lyssa Malone, Lyth Quarles, Brenda Smith, Berklee Brainard, Andrea Parker, Sidney and Julie Jackson. Thanks girls for all of your help. The contributions to the Lefors Disaster have been coming in great, but please know we are a long way from helping all who need help. A friend asked me this week, if we did not have all of the money we needed.

PAMPA DAILY NEWS 7 Pampa, Texas 69th Year Sunday, April 13, 1975 WTSU Dairy Teaching Aid

The West Texas State University Dairy, managed by associate professor of animal science Dr. Kenneth Wilson, is used as a teaching aid for students from kindergarten age to seniors enrolled in the university.

grade school children visit the dairy," he continued. "Before they make their visit they study from books, and when they do visit the dairy we always milk a cow for them."

The dairy, a self-supporting unit depending on the milk production for its only income, now owns a 70-cow herd with an average of 60 cows on the milk line.

Some of the milk is used in the class rooms for the purpose of running milk tests.

"We have seven university students that do the milking," Wilson said. "We have no herdsman, which is unique in that the students help in the management. We work on the seniority system where the two most senior students have the right to order things done."

"There are 13 different milk quality tests," Wilson stated.

"We can not run all of the tests, because of our limited testing equipment, but we run all we have equipment for."

The students that work at the dairy also make sanitation recommendations to the sanitation department of public health.

"Small amounts of milk are furnished to some of the grade school classes to demonstrate how butter is made," Wilson said.

The dairy is used for class work to give the student experience in artificial insemination, pregnancy testings, sickness, calving and calf care.

Students from the Canyon High School cooperative program and the Texas Rehabilitation program receive credit for learning a skill while working at the dairy, Wilson noted.

"Four - H and FFA students use the dairy for contests each year," Wilson said. "We have close to 250 students each year."

The dairy is also used in research projects, and in problems courses offered by the Agriculture Business and Economics Department.

"Each year about three thousand kindergarten and "Many other campus people use the dairy," Wilson said.

"Photography students use it as a learning aid, and the Health Department holds tours for the Department of Nursing."

The cow herd breeds at the dairy are Brown Swiss, Jersey and Holstein - Friesian.

One portion of the yard will feature a flower plot in the shape of Texas with red, white and blue blossoms. The club expects to complete the project within the month.

House Education Group Ask For $11.9 Million

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The House Education Committee is going to ask the Appropriations Committee to spend $11.9 million less for the state's colleges and universities than was earlier proposed.

The House Education committee cut $54.7 million from the budget proposed by the legislative Budget Board and then added proposals the Budget Board did not include that will cost $52.7 million. This left the committee's proposed budget $11.9 million less than the one proposed by the Budget Board.

Education Committee Chairman Fred Head, D-Athens, said his committee will confer Monday with the Appropriations Committee to convince it to adopt this latest budget for higher education. Under current House rules, Head's committee has the authority to purpose the budget and two-thirds of the Appropriations Committee must agree on any changes of Head's recommendations before they can be adopted.

"There's no doubt in my mind this is fat," Head said of the $11.9 million difference in the two recommendations.

"I would hope the Appropriations Committee will take a look where the real needs in education are," Head said Thursday. "The responsible approach is to reduce this higher education, which has fat in it."

The committee recommended eliminating the $4 million budget item for the nine museums supported by state universities.

"We were unable to see the direct relationship between higher education and museums," Head said.

The committee also recommended 10 per cent reductions from the general administration, organized research funds and special items funds at 22 colleges and universities; a reduction from $600 to $500 per student per year in the Tuition Equalization Program for private colleges; and the elimination of the $492,077 system administration budget for Texas A&I University.

Most of the $52.7 million added by the committee goes for repairing buildings at existing universities, including $5.7 million for predominantly black Prairie View A.M. University which, according to Head, has been neglected by the legislature in previous budget recommendations.

The committee also budgeted $1 million for a minority scholarship fund at the University of Texas at Austin. Students and faculty at the university along with minority legislators have been asking for such a fund but the university's board of regents has maintained the legislature would not appropriate the money to finance it.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Presents:

Woman Of The Year For 1975

MRS. ELBERT WALKER
Miss Jewel

1975 FIRST LADY

By BOBBY COMBS
Women's Page Editor

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority has selected Mrs. Jewel Walker, 1812 Evergreen, as Pampa's Woman of the Year for 1975. She will be honored at two o'clock this afternoon by the sorority and her friends at a Yellow Rose Tea in the First Christian Church.

Mrs. Walker has been credited with early education of young people. In working principally with children, she is a dedicated person, whose counseling is available at whatever hour, day in and day out.

In seeking a Pampa woman, who has accomplished the most during the current year in cultural, civic work, church, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority members read through numerous nominations made by men and women civic leaders. After screening and long deliberations by the six chapters involved in the selection: Upsilon, Rho Eta, Xi Beta Chi, Xi Theta Iota, Preceptor, and Phi Epsilon Beta, it was decided that the only selection this year could be Mrs. Walker.

In reading one of the nominations submitted for BSP's consideration, members had these facts to consider:

"In my estimation no one could possibly be more deserving of this recognition."

"I hardly know where to begin to describe all that Jewel has done over the 15 years I have known her. Jewel truly lives The Golden Rule and she finds her greatest happiness in being able to help others. I don't think she has ever heard of another's need that she hasn't found some way to help them. This help is given quietly and without any desire for recognition — her reward is simply in being able to help. I marvel at all she is able to accomplish when I realize her days contain no more hours than mine."

"Personally, she has always been available to help with our children, with school problems, job problems, meals, etc."

"I have known of so many instances over the years, a young woman having marital problems knocking on her door at midnight because she had left her husband. Jewel took her in, called her husband to tell him that she was all right, then, helping them to talk out their problems the next day."

"A neighbor, dying of cancer, she comforted the entire family, took in food, took her to the doctor, sat in the hospital, etc."

"A child who had never been able to speak, she worked and coached until the child began to talk."

"So many children from broken homes and their parents, she has helped in so many ways."

"Elderly people, confined to the nursing Home who she sympathizes with, and so she has them for lunches, takes them for rides, shops for them, etc."

"I don't think Jewel lets a day end without finding some way to serve her fellow man. To her, no problem is insurmountable!"

"Her community activities are many, more than I probably know. Her sincere interest in the Art Guild, the Sattelite School, Newcomers, political activities, all are a means to be with and meet people and in so doing to find areas to help others."

"Jewel has an inner beauty that comes from her love of life and peace with the world. She feels the pain of another's success. She has no time to criticize or condemn, no time to bemoan what might have been, she is thankful for each day and looks forward to finding ways to live it to the fullest."

"I'm sure that when God looks on Jewel Walker he smiles and is pleased. How wonderful this world would be if all of us could adopt even a portion of her philosophy of life."

"Jewel's first love is children and she conducts a weekly kindergarten at her home with the sign on the door reading: 'No parents admitted unless accompanied by a child.' She offers special training in creative-dramatics speech and teaches teenagers ballroom dancing."

Because of her interest in all phases of Pampa's development, Mrs. Walker is a member of the First United Methodist Church and of the Winsome Sunday school class. Daughter of the American Revolution, is a Sweetheart of Camp Dinker of United Daughters of Confederacy; Delta Kappa Gamma, a National Honorary Teachers Association; Pampa Fine Arts Association; Vocational Association for the Education of Young Children; and is presently serving as president of Pampa Civic Ballet Co.; Jeannie Willingham, director, and recently received recognition for a 4-H Clover Award as a 4-H adult leader.

She formerly was a Brownie leader of the Girl Scouts, director of Pampa Little Theatre board member for mentally retarded children of Gray County, theatre arts chairman of Pampa Fine Arts Association, and was instrumental in organizing Children's Plays in Pampa.

In addition to the above, Jewel's hobbies are people, little or big, reading, stereo music, camping, gardening, fishing and is a swamper for Elbert, her husband who designs and makes furniture, and raising flowers, wild cats, Tim the Beagle and children.

She loves gourmet cooking, traveling and collecting copper, pewter and early American furniture.

In addition to all this, Mrs. Walker has two prize possessions, her four-year-old grandson, Bert who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Elbert Walker of Star Harbor near Cedar Creek Lake and "Betsy" her 11-year-old Galaxie XL-500.

Being named Woman of the Year is not an honor one sets out to achieve — nor is it an honor that is worked for. It is an honor bestowed by Beta Sigma Phi Sorority because the accomplishment demands recognition and cannot be overlooked. It is an unsought honor and one, which we have found, makes the recipient one of the most humble persons.

RECOGNITION TEA — Yellow roses will express Pampa's esteem and gratitude to it's first lady this afternoon at the 30th annual Beta Sigma Phi recognition tea in the First Christian Church. BSP committee members hosting the affair are from left, Kay Nash, Mrs. Walker, receiving the traditional rose, Debra Stubblefield and Starla Tracy.

HOME WORKSHOP — Mrs. Walker takes part in a great many phases of husband's hobbies, but being his "swamper" in the workshop is probably her number one job. Many of the furnishings in their home were designed and created by the couple.

BALLET PRESIDENT — Pampa's Woman of the Year is involved in many community activities and one position she serves as president of the Pampa Civic Ballet Co., Jeannie Willingham, director. Mrs. Walker has spent many backstage hours in recital preparations for the Company. She also instructs teenagers in ballroom dancing at her home studio.

HOMEMAKERS NEWS

By MRS. ELAINE HOUSTON
County Extension Agent

An Extension Horticulturist offered the following suggestions for keeping healthy and also provide the family with fresh vegetables.

America is exercise conscious today as never before. There are joggers, walkers, hikers, bicyclists wherever you go. Countless people are engaged in daily exercise in pursuit of stronger, healthier bodies and peace of mind. There are many ways to promote good health, but from a physical standpoint, athletic types as well as non-athletes have long expounded gardening as a healthful hobby.

In a recent survey conducted by the American Medical Association, it was found that 47 percent (137,500) of the doctors polled, used gardening to keep their health and sanity. Among the doctors, gardening topped all other hobbies and sports. It stands to reason that these professional doctors advocate gardening to their patients as a good way to health and relaxation.

Results of psychological tests relative to hobbies, personality traits and life habits associate a general feeling of relaxation and inner peace among people who pursue gardening in one form or another. Psychologists agree that gardening seems to promote such feelings and certainly a more healthy one.

Today as never before, our society is beset with tension, stress and frustration. The strain of the "daily grind," and the pressures of modern life make us yearn "to get away from it all" whenever we can. And one of the easiest ways to get away is in your own back yard.

Gardening has yet another attractive benefit. With the skyrocketing price of food nowadays, a vegetable garden—even a small one—can lower your food costs by as much as $100 a year.

We will be going to receive training in new techniques in food preservation April 22 in Amarillo. With new varieties of vegetables—hybrids and crossbreds—some of the food preservation techniques have changed. Such as the low acid tomatoes need to be processed where the high acid varieties can be canned by the conventional water bath method.

Again this year we will be conducting a preservation mailout series for those interested in learning more about canning, freezing, pickling, and jelly making. This mailout series is a set of six letters and bulletins with information on home preservation. Sign up for the mailout series by calling the Extension Office at 669-7429.

Woman's Place In a Man's World Topic For Varietas Study Club

Mrs. J.R. Spearman presented the program for Varietas Federated Study Club at the home of Mrs. J.E. Gibson on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls, president, presided.

Mrs. Gibson, incoming president, gave a report on the Top of Texas District Convention held in Amarillo recently and she presented an award to Mrs. L.B. Penick for her educational program. Mrs. Sprawls made an additional report on the convention.

The afternoon's program topic was "Individuality." Mrs. Sprawls introduced Mrs. Spearman, who spoke on "Woman's Place in a Man's World." In her introduction she told her audience that, since Texas was founded on old Spanish and French laws, the early Texas women were better protected than those of most other states. She then contrasted that protection with the freedom of the present time, when the Women's Liberation movement is demanding equal rights for women in the home, in business, in politics, in education, and in all other fields of endeavor.

She quoted from a 1974 book entitled, "Legal Rights of Texas Women," explaining the state laws that now give women full rights to conduct business, to make contracts, to sue and be sued, to own separate property, and to be liable for their debts.

The speaker then quoted the findings of five psychiatrists regarding the results of the laws and customs regarding women. She said, "These psychiatrists agree that problems often arise that pertain to equality of the sexes. Wives, when working outside the home, frequently demand equal housework from their husbands, sometimes feel guilt because they are away from their children, and often create dissension by demanding jobs for which they are not suited or for which there is no provision for women. They should strive to maintain their equality but also to maintain happiness in their homes and their marriages."

Mrs. Spearman closed her talk by saying, "Paul Harvey said recently that one of every ten crimes is now committed by women. This trend must be reverse. If the equality of women is to serve the purpose for which it was originally intended, women must use their present status for the betterment of society, not for its detriment."

Present at the meeting were Miss Anna Pierce and Mmes. W.A. Bohot, F.A. Cary, H. Price Dosier, S.C. Evans, J.E. Kirchman, Raymond Morrison, J.E. Gibson, Otis Nace, L.B. Penick, J.R. Spearman, Aubrey Sprawls, Ralph Thomas, Sherman White, and Abel Wood.

Consumer Food News

In two weeks consumers will begin to see "a new face" on beef cuts in the supermarket.

New grade standards by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) go into effect April 14. The grades will only appear on meat graded by USDA graders, which is a voluntary service that meat packers must request.

The major change in the grade standards is that all beef carcasses that are officially graded will be identified for both quality and yield, point out Woodrow Bailey and Dr. Frank Orts, meat specialists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "These two value grades will give a better determination as to the true worth of the carcass."

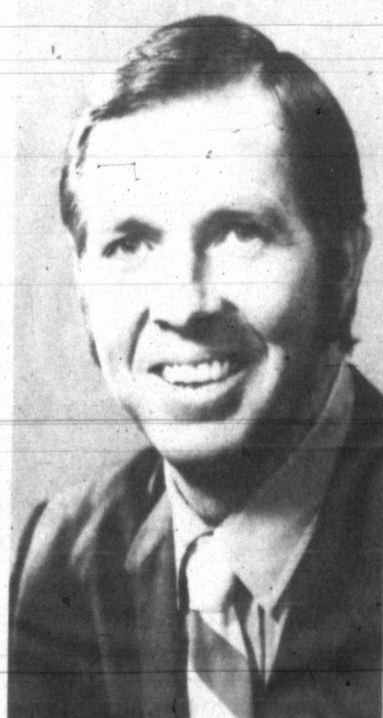

Another change, according to the specialists, will be that the conformation or shape of the carcass will no longer be a factor in determining the quality grade since it is not related to eating quality of meat. However, conformation is indirectly used in yield grade determination.

LIBRARY LINES

By Mary Fatheree

Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, head librarian, reports that March was a record-setting month at Lovett Library, with 9,844 books in circulation.

Over two-thirds of this number were checked out by adults, Mrs. Cockrell said.

Fiction books circulated in March numbered 5,391, with nonfiction close behind at 4,453.

The growing popularity of non-fiction is evident as you look at circulation figures for the past seven years. In 1967, for instance, for every non-fiction book checked out at Lovett, two fiction books were checked out.

As the years have passed, the gap has steadily narrowed until non-fiction has nearly caught up with fiction in the last few months.

In the non-fiction category, books on technology (which includes engineering, medicine, manufacturing, the applied and domestic sciences) lead the field in circulation each month, followed by the arts, history and travel, literature, social sciences and philosophy.

Mrs. Cockrell says that the unusual demand for books in philosophy is due to the fact that in the occult sciences are included in this section.

Don't forget to join the Friends of the Pampa Library this week at the Citizens or the First National Bank. Only one dollar yearly helps your library work for you.

Reviewing Virginia Hamilton's "M.C. Higgins, the Great," the 1974 John Newberry Award winner in the field of juvenile fiction, is Mrs. Frances B. Walls.

The author, Virginia Hamilton, is particularly proud and conscious of her Negro heritage and attributes these feelings to her Ohio birthplace.

Her grandfather Perry was one of the many thousands of slaves who escaped from the South to Ohio, and she grew up in what had been one of the strongest stations of the Underground Railroad.

The tradition and background of her childhood play an important role in all of her writing. "M.C. Higgins, the Great."

"Okay," Jones spoke calmly. "But you get to thinking because you can swim and because of that pole, you are some M.C. Higgins, the Great."

"Hmmm — I never thought it," M.C. said. Mayo Cornelius Higgins sits on his gleaming, forty foot pole, towering over his home on Sarah's Mountain.

Stretched before him are rolling hills and shady valleys, but behind him lie the wounds of strip mining: a spoil heap oozing downward, endangering his home.

High atop his steel pole, M.C. dreams of escape for himself and his family.

Past and present, daydream and reality meet in inevitable conflict. M.C. must come to terms with his heritage and his own desires.

In a sudden dramatic climax, he realizes that safety for himself and his family will never be found in fleeing the hills.

This is a powerful, contemporary novel and a major contribution to fiction for young readers and young at heart adults.

Pampa Garden Club Plants Tree; Speaker Tells of Arbor Day Event

A mulberry shade tree was planted by the Pampa Garden Club at the Santa Fe Park, Cuyler and Atchison Streets, in Arbor Day ceremonies Monday. Representing the Pampa Girl Scouts who are landscaping the park was field director Mrs. Margaret Rion. The tree was planted by Luther Sober, Pampa park department.

Preceding the planting, Mrs. S.T. Holding directed a special Arbor Day program at the regular business meeting session of the club. Arbor Day dates back 1500 years when a Swiss village decided to plant a grove of oak trees. J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska is considered the originator with his organization of the first Arbor Day in the U.S. in 1874.

Mrs. Holding noted that trees are important as they prevent soil erosion, provide cover and food for wildlife, timber, beauty, oxygen, and wind buffers. They trap swirling dust, produce humidity, cut smog, moderate temperature, and raise property values.

Tips in transplanting trees include digging holes large enough to allow the roots of bare rooted trees to spread out without cramping. Holes for balled trees should be 25 percent larger in diameter than the ball. Trunks and limbs of thin-barked trees should be wrapped to protect from drying winds and sun scalding. Care must be taken to avoid any air holes by plunging a hose deep into the soil and allowing water to run until no air bubbles appear at the surface of the planting.

In selecting a tree, certain features should be considered, stated Mrs. Holding. With some exceptions fast-growing trees are usually shorter lived and a softer wood, while slower growing trees are the opposite. When landscaping, one should consider the final shape of the matured tree, whether a columnar, pyramidal, weeping, globe, or umbrella effect is desired. Bonus features for trees include flowers, berries, fruit, autumn foliage color, growth habits, and trunk textures. Temperature tolerance in winter and disease and insect resistance are other factors.

Trees should be planted far enough from the house that at maturity they do not hang over the building or hit electric or telephone wires. They should be planted at a distance from water, gas, and sewer lines.

The next meeting of the Pampa Garden Club will be a pilgrimage to the Alibates flint quarry, with departure time at 8 a.m. Monday, April 14. From the Pioneer Gas Building, Mrs. Georgia Mack is chairman of the event. The three-mile slab outcropping the cliffs near Lake Meredith was a source of American weapons and tools 7,000 years before the Pyramids. The Smithsonian Institute researchers recognize this area as one of the continent's foremost continuous link to man's past. The various ages of man have been identified by archeologists through flint fragments which cover the ground several feet deep in many places.

Members and guests will have a picnic lunch before returning to Pampa.

Economist Urges Farmer, Consumer

A love affair between the farmer and the consumer is going to have to develop if the American way of life is to remain intact, says an agricultural economist in Lubbock.

"The next few months are critical in determining the type of agriculture, and the stability of agriculture, and whether or not individual farmers can remain in business in the future," says Marvin Sartin of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Financial requirements of agriculture are at all time highs, and risks from product price variations stagger the imagination. Agriculture desperately needs the understanding and support of every American."

Sartin says that agricultural producers need the support of consumers and their elected representatives to obtain the legislative might necessary to insure adequate new farm farmers, commodity organizations, and general farm groups should recognize that potentially the most productive achievement for agriculture is the establishment and continuation of a mutually beneficial relationship with the American public. Public relations is the key, and the public is fairly easily convinced with the right approach.

"During the recent past, we have seen some attempts to gather public opinion on the side of agriculture," he says. "However, these were mostly tragic failures and did far more harm than good. When cattlemen were reeling from their financial plight, their frustrations gained the upper hand. In attempts to force governmental action through public outcry, they instead brought cries of cruel and inhumane slaughter. Cattlemen and agriculture got a black eye."

Sartin believes that instead of alienating people, agriculturists need to convince the public that problems existing in the farm industry are their problems as well. Farmers are many small individuals, and farm organizations are segmented, splintered, and competitive. Selling the public on needs of agriculture is a big task.

"While most Americans today are far removed from the farm, I believe that most have a soft place in their heart for the land and for those who till the soil and feed the cattle. The opportunity, the need, and the time are here for agriculture to get into the public relations business."

Says Sartin, the problem is how. The segmentation of agriculture in many small commodity organizations and several national general farm organizations does not provide a united front. However, farmers control each of these organizations, and if they would look beyond their specific personal problems and projects, they could join together to share their needs and concerns with every American.

Deer, Cattle Can Range Together

LUBBOCK — Two Texas Tech University research projects indicate that deer and cattle can share West and North Central Texas range land and do well, particularly when good management practices are used.

Seasonal diets of white-tailed deer and cattle studied on two adjoining ranches in Haskell, Shackelford and Throckmorton counties in North Central Texas showed "little competition existed."

Grasses made up the bulk of the cattle diets at all seasons. Shrubs were the most important food item for deer, except for the fall period when forbs (broad-leaved weeds and other plants) were most preferred.

The other projects, near Eden south of San Angelo, will not be complete for another year, but researcher Mark E. Byard said preliminary data indicates that the presence or absence of cattle on pastures made no significant difference in deer densities.

The surveys are under the direction and supervision of Dr. Dee A. Quinton, professor of wildlife management at Texas Tech.

Ironwood, polecat bush and pelotazo were the main food items of deer in the summer. During the fall their diets shifted to forbs with prickly pear and spreading sida the most important. Mistletoe comprised almost 70 per cent and mesquite 10 per cent of winter deer diets. Mistletoe also was their primary forage in the spring.

Only in the fall and winter was there some competition between the deer and cattle for food. During those seasons approximately 17 per cent of the cattle diet was shrubs and during the spring and summer that proportion dropped to 4 per cent. Cattle also increased their forbs diet to 15 per cent in the spring.

County Agents List Points For Successful Gardens

Time spent in early spring to plan your vegetable garden will provide fresh vegetables for eating and preservation with less work according to county Extension agents Foster Whaley and Elaine Houston.

The first important consideration is to choose vegetables that the family likes best, they advise. If only one or two members of the family like a particular vegetable, it may be cheaper to buy it at the supermarket and use the garden space for those vegetables enjoyed by all.

Secondly, choose those vegetables that have a superior taste and flavor when freshly harvested as compared to the usual store bought produce. Tomatoes, sweet corn, peas and snap beans are good examples of vegetables that taste better when harvested garden fresh.

Space is another consideration, the agents said. A small garden can provide many meals if vegetables chosen do not require a lot of garden space. Also, dwarf varieties of many vegetable crops are available.

Houston and Whaley recommend that the inexperienced home gardener start with a relatively small garden and select vegetables that are relatively easy to grow. A garden 20 feet by 20 feet can provide abundant fresh produce

COMPANION PLANTING — Companion planting features semi-dwarf American marigolds in the back and a mixture of grandiflora petunias in the foreground. This week's farm and garden page features information on planting gardens in Pampa.

Home Gardens Take Root

By EDWARD A. FULTON
United Press International
There's more than the usual springtime migration to the back yards, by household gardeners, a check around

Texas shows. This year the ranks are greatly swollen by eager newcomers, some with a lot to learn.

"We had one call from a lady who almost had it down right for fighting a blight in her roses," said Yeneta Mastin, a secretary at the Texas A&M University Extension Service. "She knew she had to disinfect with chlorine bleach, but instead of disinfecting her pruning shears, she sprayed the whole tree. It died."

"It's really humorous, but it's nice too. People that have never planted a garden before in their lives are planting them this year. It's just the lack of knowledge. They call us wanting to know whether they should plant by the full moon or the dark of the moon."

The Extension Service recommends the "frost-free date" method of planting, based on planting a particular vegetable before or after the average date of the last killing frost in relation to the plant's ability to withstand cold.

Kathy Wilcher, an employee of the sprawling Wolfe Nursery in the Dallas suburb of Irving, said there was widespread carnage early this year in home gardens across North Texas.

"They have been planting gardens since early this year, maybe a little too early," she said. "They put tomatoes, peppers, corn, all the vegetables, into the ground. That was back before it snowed."

And then the ground froze them out and they came back in here and bought more seed and started over. There is a boom on home gardens. We have laid in bigger supplies of seeds, tools and how-to booklets and we keep selling out."

In Uvalde, Texas A&M Extension agent, said, "I'd say we're seeing an increase in gardening among people who have never had much experience with it before."

"I suppose a part of it can be attributed to the cost of food, maybe the major part. I think people want to get outside in the spring and maybe there's more leisure time. Regardless of why it is, we're getting 125 to 250 calls a day — more telephone calls in this area of the state from people asking for information about gardens, how to plant them, when to plant, how big, what they should plant, any question you can imagine."

Mary Mahoney, information specialist at Texas A&M in College Station, said the urgent requests for information are pouring in there more than anywhere in the state.

"We have bulletins on gardening, little newsletters, and they are constantly having to reprint," she said. "We just can't keep them in stock. All of our county agents are being bombarded with requests for information."

Extension Service seminars on gardening for the Texas public are reported overflowing.

Gardening Bulletins Offered by Gruhlkey

Gardeners may obtain a pair of brochures from Perry Gruhlkey, district conservationist, that could be of benefit in solving special problems.

"Mulches for Your Garden" and "Gardening on the Contour" are U.S. Department of Agriculture bulletins that deal with the subjects.

Gruhlkey said that the pamphlets may be picked up at the Soil Conservation Service office in the County Courthouse Annex, or they may be ordered by writing that office at 919 W. Harvester (Field Office), Pampa 79065.

There is no charge for the Crowds were turned away from a class in San Antonio. Another in Renner in north central Texas, luckily held in a large building, was expected to draw about 200, but overflowed with 1,800 people wanting to find out how to plant tomatoes.

Shirley Dillm, civilian secretary to the vice commander at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, suggested home gardens as a pastime for airmen and their wives and the response was immediate.

The base command set aside 120 plots 30 feet by 30 feet, and divided them among the base families. Within a few days, there was a waiting list of 150 families and this year base officials are considering allocating another 80 plots.

Mrs. Alice Grant, assistant manager of the Cornellum Nursery in Houston, said more young persons are buying seeds and fruit trees this year.

"I didn't notice them so much last year," she said. "I think the economy has something to do with it." However, she said she suspected most of the customers just wanted to be working in the yard.

H. W. Weir, assistant manager of the Friedlander Seed Co. in Tyler, reports heavy seed sales. He said many young people "don't even know how deep to plant a seed or how many seeds to a row there should be. Maybe they'll buy a pound of seed, maybe they'll buy 200 pounds, all for just a little backyard garden. You can tell they've never planted before because of the questions they ask."

"We tell them everything we can."

Joe Patrick, customer service representative for the Magnolia Seed Company in Dallas, said the industry was caught with its plants down by the 1975 boom.

"We figured there would be about 6 million home gardens in the country this year," he said. "As it turns out, there are probably about 60 million, and we don't have enough rakes, shovels, hoses, seeds, fertilizer and booklets."

"In the past we were just trying to stay alive; now we're trying to catch up."

LEGISLATIVE PAY RAISE
Recently some information came across my desk with reference to the proposed legislative pay raise that I thought would be of interest whether you have a financial interest in farming or not.

On April 22, voters will be casting ballots on Amendment No. 2.

Salaries of legislators are set by the state constitution. Thus, an amendment voted on favorably by the voters of the state is necessary before any salary change can be made. This is unlike the U.S. Congress — Senators and representatives can vote changes in their salary and expense account status.

Presently, state legislators draw $4,800 annual salaries. They draw $12 per day expense accounts while the legislature is in session.

The proposed Amendment raises salaries to $7,200 annually. The new Amendment would raise the per diem allowance to cover the cost of lodging, food, and other expenses incidental to living away from home while the legislature is in session.

If approved, this would be the first time since 1960 that an upward change has been made. GRAY COUNTY BRUCellosIS FREE

Earlier I mentioned that Gray County had been declared a Brucellosis Free County. Since then I have learned that Gray County is one of only 18 Texas counties that has attained this status. There are 30 states that have attained this status.

On March 1, 1975, there were 3,125 cattle herds in Texas under quarantine due to Brucellosis infection. These herds represent approximately 140,625 head of cattle and 35 per cent of all Brucellosis infested cattle in the U.S.

Gray County had previously been designated a Modified Brucellosis Free County. The Brucellosis Free status means no herds have been found infected for an extended period. Certification is now obtained by blood sampling culicows as they are slaughtered at the packing houses.

TRADE DELEGATION TO TEXAS

Bill Nelson, executive secretary to the Texas Wheat Producers, in a recent newsletter advised Texas Wheat Producers to the fact several trade delegations from all over the world will be visiting Texas in the interest of expanding trade in wheat.

April 17-20, a trade delegation from the European Economic Community will visit Texas. They are responsible for purchasing over 400 million bushels of wheat annually from all over the world. Other teams will be hosted from Switzerland, Japan, and Indonesia.

4-H Club News

Five 4-Hers from Gray County competed in the District Elimination Contest in Canyon, Saturday, April 5.

The five 4-Hers competed in the livestock judging contest. The Gray County senior team, Frank Morrison, Clint Couts and Kevin George, placed 5th. Two juniors, Thad Greene and Jamie Greene, competed in individual livestock judging. Thad was second high individual in sheep judging.

The County Eliminations have been set for April 19 at the Courthouse Annex. There are 29 events which the 4-Hers can compete in ranging from beef cattle demonstrations to public speaking. 4-Hers winning in the county eliminations will be eligible to compete in district competition at West Texas State University at Canyon, on May 3.

The winners of the senior division at district level will compete at the State 4-H Roundup June 3 to 5. Juniors do not compete past the district level. Any 4-H'er who needs help on a demonstration should contact the County Extension Office.

Also, the Gray County Horse Club will be meeting Monday evenings at 7:30, at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena, to practice for the County and District Horse Shows. For more information on this or other questions about 4-H, contact the County Extension Agents.

Foreign Team To Study Texas Wheat

A series of foreign government industry-trade teams of individuals responsible for wheat buying in world markets will be studying types, quality and facilities for handling Texas wheat prior to the expected bigger than usual Texas harvest beginning in May, according to Ken Kendrick, Stratford, chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board.

The Producers Board will be the Texas host for the groups which will be making other visits to gain a better picture of the U.S. wheat production and marketing system under auspices of Great Plains Wheat Inc. (from Europe) and Western Wheat Associates (Asia).

HANGING BASKETS — Hanging baskets continue to gain in popularity and to add a touch of nature to many surroundings, says a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Any plants with drooping foliage such as ferns are excellent for hanging baskets. Numerous succulent plants also do well in hanging baskets and will tolerate heat and drought. Flowering plants such as periwinkles, portulaca and petunias make excellent additions to hanging baskets. Galvanized wire baskets with pressed or sphagnum moss liners make good containers. Use a good potting soil. Baskets exposed to drying winds need watering two to three times a week.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

The monthly meeting of the Governor's Task Force on Water and Natural Resources was held April 6 and 7 in Austin to review the short range Texas Water Plan. Following the meeting the Task Force appeared as witnesses before the Senate Standing Committee on the Texas Constitution in support of Senate Joint Resolution 49 by Senator Max Sherman and House Joint Resolution 67 by Representative Tom Massey.

The two resolutions would permit the people of Texas to vote on the issue of permitting the Texas Water Development Board to raise the limitation of $400 million to $800 million. The Senate Committee Public Hearing was held at 9 a.m. April 7 in the Senate Chamber.

Gen. James M. Rose, chairman of the Task Force, entered testimony showing that the raising of the limitation from $400 million to $800 million was a necessary step to provide the financing of water projects by most of the smaller cities of the state. Under questioning from members of the committee, he pointed out that this increase in the limitation of the bond issue was not part of the plan to finance importation of water from the Mississippi River.

In reply to a question from Senator Roy Harrington of Port Arthur, Gen. Rose stated that Texas was and had been importing New Mexico water into the El Paso area. He also revealed that importation of water was not new to other states. He stated that Oklahoma was importing underground water from south of the Red River in the Vernon area.

Joe Carter, chairman of the Texas Water Rights Commission and also chairman of the Legal Review sub-committee of the Task Force, supported the testimony of Gen. Rose. Danny Burger who handles the use of the bond issuance of the Water Development Board and the Water Rights Commission also presented testimony in favor of the joint resolutions. A number of representatives of small cities in Texas that have been recipients of aid through the existing bond issue spoke strongly in favor of the new limit of $800 million.

Two chronic protesters against any development of the water resources of Texas were again on hand to oppose the joint resolutions. Stuart Long, an employee of the Sierra Club read a prepared statement against the short range Texas Water Plan and the joint resolutions to raise the limitation on bond issues charging that the Bond Amendment Resolutions were part of a plan to import water from the Mississippi River to West Texas.

In a press release he stated that the 1969 bond amendment election that had importation as one of its features was defeated by Texas voters by an overwhelming vote. This statement was an outright falsehood. A check of the vote tabulations on the '69 bond amendment will show that the bond amendment lost by approximately 6,000 votes. The eligible voter records of Gray County and Carson County for the year 1969 will also show that there were enough voters who did not go to the polls to have put the bond vote over the top. Records will also show that Carson and Gray Counties voted in favor of the amendment.

Stuart Henry has made so many appearances at public hearings concerning water projects that no one takes him seriously anymore.

Meg Titus of the League of Women Voters also made one of her many appearances at the April 7 public hearing. She claimed that she represented over 4,000 members of some 40 local leagues scattered over the state. She identified herself as the chairman of the Water Quality and Air Quality Committees of the League of Women Voters. She also claimed that the League of Women Voters, through their local leagues, had made a careful and detailed of the Texas short range and long range water plans and that the local Leagues had nearly unanimously opposed the short range Texas Water Plan that has been prepared by the Governor's Task Force. Her arguments against the Joint Resolutions was little different from the line of attack she has used at other public hearings concerning water projects. Her whole line of attack seems to be in the direction of people planning that would move the people of West Texas to other areas of Texas where the water is plentiful. She revealed no plans to combat the congestion and pollution problems that would be brought on by this massive movement and concentration of people. Had the Panhandle area cities listened to her line of persuasion the water projects such as Lake Meredith, Wolf Creek Tule Creek and Greenbelt would never have come into being.

Should an import water plan ever come into being that takes into consideration the wishes of this area of the Panhandle it is quite possible that the voters will turn out in overwhelming numbers to support it. The water people who were in attendance at the public hearing on April 7 could not understand the seeming obsession that Stuart Henry and Meg Titus have against any further development of the water and natural resources of West Texas.

Pampa Snare Relays

By PAUL SIMS
AMARILLO — Pampa, which surprised most followers Friday by piling up 19 points in the field events, used that momentum Saturday in the running events to stun the 16-team AAAA Division field and win the team championship of the Amarillo Relays in chilly Dick Bivins Memorial Stadium.

The Harvesters tallied 73 points to win the first championship for Pampa in the Relays' 26-year history. Favored El Paso Irvin was second with 55 points, followed by Wichita Falls Hirschi with 44 and surprising Muleshoe with 43.

The top Amarillo school was Palo Duro with 41 points. Amarillo High had 37, Tascosa 36, Caprock 28 and Borger 14 to round out 3-AAAA's entrants.

Floydada outdistanced the AA-A-B Division field with 88 point, 28 ahead of runner-up Memphis. Olton was next with 36.

Pampa had the advantage going into Saturday's running events after placing third in the field events Saturday, getting a first place from Garland McPherson and a second from Willis Price in the pole vault and jump, respectively.

That total and the fact the Harvesters qualified several for the running event finals in Friday's prelims cast Pampa into the favorite's role Saturday, a role which it made a reality.

McPherson vaulted 13.5 for his best career performance and top honors in the event. Price leaped six feet even, six inches lower than Amarillo High's Delbert

New but good enough for second place and eight points in the high jump.

In the shot put Friday, Frankie Lemons of Pampa placed sixth with a 48-0 toss.

Pampa started the running events slowly by losing out in the sprint relay but finished strong, winning the mile-relay, an event Pampa needed for the team trophy.

The Harvesters, leading Irvin, 53-47, going into the mile relay, would have finished second in the meet had Irvin won and Pampa placed third. Irvin and Wichita Falls Rider were co-favorites to win the events.

However, a collision during the second leg between Ryder in Irvin runners wrecked the latter's hopes for the meet title. Still, Pampa's Chuck Quarles was leading at the time the Irvin runner fell and the Harvesters quartet maintained its pace for the remainder of the event, winning in 3:31.1. Muleshoe was second.

"We would have beaten them anyway," Pampa coach Scott Dunham said. "You can't take anything away from our kids; they competed real well."

Members of the Pampa team were Roel Hansen, Quales, Price and Howie Lewis.

Other firsts for Pampa were recorded by Hansen in the 880 and Lewis in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles.

Hansen won the half-mile with a 1:59.4, an impressive time for the snowy, breezy conditions. Irvin's Manny Mendoza was second with 2:01.9, and teammate Jesus Almanua was third with 2:03.25.

Lewis, who was edged by Palo Duro's Greg Sellmyer in the 120 high hurdles, came back in the intermediates and trimmed the PD hurdler, 40.0 to 40.3.

In the highs, Sellmyer won in 14.3 seconds. Lewis ran 14.35. Both were personal bests and two of the more impressive times of the meet.

Just prior to the AAAA high hurdles, Panhandle's Kerby Daniels set a meet record in the AA-A-B event, winning with a 14.1 clocking, 2.5 seconds ahead of Sunray's George Rasor.

Pampa's Rick Leverich was also instrumental in the victory, placing third in the 220. Wichita Falls Hirschi's Stanley Wallace won in 22.8, followed by Ryder's Charles Humphrey with 23.0 and Leverich with 23.35.

Dunham was tense "all the way through." He said, "It was so close and I knew we were on the verge of doing something no other Pampa team had done."

The Harvesters will be involved in the District 3-AAAA Track Meet Saturday in Dick Bivins. "It's gonna be tight, very tight. I'm concerned about Palo Duro, their depth. Amarillo High will be tough because of the field events and Tascosa because of the sprinters and relays."

Pampa, in the district meet, will try to win its fifth championship of the season in six meets.

In B-team action of the Relays, no team totals or championships were established but a few Pampans placed.

Friday, Bruce Ferris finished fifth in the shot with a 44-7½ heave.

Pampa won second Saturday in the spring relay (46.2) and fourth in the mile relay (3:48.6). In the 880, Clinton Henry took fifth place with a 2:11.2 run. Paul Sloan ran 43.3 to place third in the 330 intermediates, and Ammanul Abraham was third in the mile (4:57.3).

Pampa's B-teamers will also compete in the district meet Saturday.

Mesa Captures Title In B-Division Singles

BORGER — Amanda Mesa of Pampa whipped Amarillo High's David Gillette, 6-2, 6-3, to capture the "B" Division boys singles championship of the district tennis tournament Saturday at Borger.

Mesa's victory was enough to pace the Harvester B-team boys to the team co-championship with Borger. Borger won the girls title.

Pampa's Eugene Laycock, who was eliminated from the winner's bracket Friday in "A" singles, beat teammate Doug Hughes, 6-0, 6-1, for third place Saturday.

However, only the first two places qualify for the regional tournament.

"I was real pleased with Mesa," Pampa coach John Michie said. "He's been working hard all year long since he came here last semester. He's improved."

Borger won the girls championship in the "A" Division, while Tascosa won the boys title.

Champions were Alan Alpar of Tascosa in singles, Jim Montoya and Ben Ballinger of Amarillo in doubles. Jelise Richardson of Amarillo in girls singles and Shelley Schmitz and Kay Clark of Borger in girls doubles.

A BOYS SINGLES — Alan Alpar, Tascosa, def. Bobby Hall, Tascosa, 6-1, 6-4.

Tigers 7, Yanks 2

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nate Colbert's grand slam homer capped a seven-run seventh inning Saturday which carried the Detroit Tigers to a 7-2 triumph over the New York Yankees.

Tiger rookie Vern Ruhle and the Yankees' Pat Dobson were hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel through six innings when Bill Freehan opened the Tigers' big inning with his first homer of the campaign.

Don Meyer then singled and stole second as Art James struck out. Tom Verzer walked and Aurelio Rodriguez sharp single to left loaded the bases. Graig Nettles fumbled Ron LeFlore's bounce, allowing Meyer to score, and Gary Sutherland's sacrifice fly scored Verzer and moved the other runners up a base.

Yankee manager Bill Virdon elected to intentionally pass designated hitter Willie Horton, setting the stage for Colbert's second homer of the season.

Cubs 6, Expos 3

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jerry Morales triggered a four-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning with a two-run single Saturday to lift the Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 decision over the Montreal Expos.

The rally came off Montreal relief pitcher Dale Murray who had replaced starter Dave McNally.

Young Qualifies For Regional

BORGER — Cindy Young placed second in the 100-yard dash to become the only Pampa High qualifier for the regional meet next weekend during the District 3-AAAA Girls Track Meet Saturday in Bulldog Stadium here.

Miss Young ran an 11.9 to finish behind Palo Duro's Pleacia Freeman who ran 11.6. The first and second-place finishers in each event of the district meet qualify for regional Friday and Saturday in Abilene.

Amarillo High won the meet with 160 points. Other team totals were Tascosa 123, Borger 77, Palo Duro 65, Caprock 62 and Pampa 36.

Pampa was fourth in the 880 relay with a 1:55.9 time. Amarillo won in 1:53. flat.

Sherry Kimbell of Pampa was third in the 440 with a 65.1. The Harvesters' 44-0 yard relay team was also third with 54.0. Amarillo High and Borger were first and runner-up, respectively.

Miss Young beat Amarillo High's Laurie Farwell who ran 12.1 in the sprint.

Weathered Medalist

Plainview 1st, Pampa 4th In Relays Golf

AMARILLO — Pampa, which made Friday's cut for the first time since 1967, came back Saturday and finished fourth in the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament at Amarillo Country Club.

The Harvester golfers shot 340 Friday to earn the right to play on the second day. Pampa shot 332 Saturday to finish at 672 and in fourth place, behind Plainview with 641, Lubbock Monterey with 651 and Amarillo High with 657.

Plainview established itself as the favorite to capture the 4-AAAA title by winning the term championship behind medalist Greg Weathered. The sophomore golfer carded a 155 total for the two days to take top honors.

Teammate Chad Williams was runner-up with a 156.

For Pampa Curt Beck was eighth at 164 and Wiley McIntire ninth with 165.

Other Harvester scores were Mickey Lowe 171, Randy Watson 172 and Scott White 175 (dropped). B-team scores for Pampa, which placed sixth in the six-team "B" field Saturday after making Friday's cut, were Hank Jordan 158, Joel Hickey with 171, Bruce Hungerford with 174, Lubbock Norwood 183 and Bill Browning 185 (dropped).

Monterey was second in the large-school division with 651, followed by Amarillo 657, Pampa, Lubbock Coronado 673 and Hereford 708.

Amarillo High, at 640, won't be "B" division over Monterey 645, Coronado 661, Borger 667, Tascosa 683 and Pampa 686. Medalist in the "B" division was Amarillo's Mark Pritts with 156. Runnerup was Monterey's Mike Beck.

Mephis, led by medalist Matt Monzingo, won the AA-A-B division with a 671, followed by Denver City 698, Dalhart 712, Olton 726, Tulia 746 and Vega 792. Monzingo and Olton's Scott Robertson tied at 165 after 36 holes. The Memphis golfers edged Robertson on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with a bogey six. The Olton player shot a seven.

Pampa coach Deck Woldt called Jordan's two 78's "two super rounds." He added, "I think Hank's gonna be a good player."

"I was pleased. We didn't play that well but there weren't too many teams that did. Just to make it an go back after an eight-year drought."

"I didn't think we could make it but as I was watching the scoreboard and watching the cut scores I realized that we did have a chance."

Pampa will play in the sixth and final district round Friday at Amarillo Public Golf Course.

Weiskopf Grabs Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf wiped out Jack Nicklaus' five-stroke lead with the "super round" he needed, a 66, to move ahead by a stroke Saturday after three rounds of the Masters golf tournament.

"The way Jack was playing, I knew I just had to play a super round to get back into things," Weiskopf said. "I knew I couldn't afford to shoot a 72 or 73."

Weiskopf, the winner last week at Greensboro and a three-time runnerup in seven previous Masters appearances, was at 207, nine under par, for 54 holes.

Nicklaus had a 73 Saturday and was at 208.

Practically everyone had conceded the title to Nicklaus after his 68-67 start staked him to a five stroke bulge, matching the tournament record lead at that point.

But Weiskopf had said Friday "I'm not out of it yet," and he backed it up on Saturday.

It was the second time in three weeks that Weiskopf, who was a college teammate of Nicklaus' at Ohio State, wiped out a big Nicklaus lead on a Saturday.

At the Heritage Classic, Weiskopf charged from six behind to tie Nicklaus for the 54-hole lead. But Nicklaus then won by three shots.

"I sure hope it doesn't turn out the same way," said Weiskopf, whose previous rounds here were 69 and 72.

Johnny Miller, 11 strokes behind at the start of the day, charged into third place at 211 by shooting the best round of the tournament, a seven-under-par 65 that included a Masters' record six straight birdies on the front nine.

"My game... just needed inspiration," said Miller, a winner of 14 tournaments and nearly a half-million dollars on the PGA tour in the past 15 months.

Tom Watson was fourth at 72-212 and Bobby Nichols and Billy Casper were at 213 following Saturday rounds of 72 and 73, respectively.

Weiskopf won seven tournaments including the British Open in 1973 but then he dived into a slump that had not ended until the past month. He finished second at the Heritage and won at Greensboro last week.

He began play Saturday in a six-way tie at 141, a half-dozen strokes behind Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, playing with Palmer in the final twosome and followed by quite possibly the largest crowd to ever watch a single group in a tournament — estimated at 25,000 and upward — immediately began running into trouble.

Nicklaus bogeyed the first hole, only his second bogey of the tournament. He made that up in a hurry with a birdie at No. 2 but when Jack then missed a short birdie putt at the their hole; there was a feeling that perhaps it was still going to be a contest, after all.

Most of the huge mob watching Nicklaus and Palmer, the Masters' only four-time champions, was cheering for Palmer, and it's quite possible this didn't help Jack any, either.

In fact, at times the mob — which lined some fairways six and eight deep — even moved on to the next hole once Palmer putted out; not pausing to wait for Nicklaus to finish.

Weiskopf's charge began at the sixth hole, a 190-yard par-3, where he hit a four iron to within 18 feet and made it for a birdie.

He got another bird at the 530-yard eighth, reaching the fringe in two shots and chipping to 18 inches. That cut Nicklaus' lead to four.

It went to three when Weiskopf birdied the 485-yard, par-four 10th hole, sinking a 30-footer. Moments later Nicklaus bogeyed No. 9, shrinking the lead still further, to two strokes.

Weiskopf moved into a tie when he birdied the short par-five 13th, reaching in two and two-putting, and Nicklaus three-putted 11 for a bogey.

Pampans Fall Friday In District Net Action

BORGER — Pampa's top finals hopeful, Eugene Laycock, was one of several Harvesters failing to qualify for Saturday's finals but Pampa's showing in the district tournament here was its best ever.

Laycock drew a first-round bye and whipped Caprock's Greg Taylor, 6-0, 6-4, in the quarterfinals. But the Pampa senior found Tascosa's Bobby Hall too hot to handle and lost, 6-4, 6-7, 7-5, in one of Friday's closest matches.

Laycock returned Saturday playing for third place in the tournament. Also in "A" singles, Pampa's Doug Hughes made the semifinals by beating Borger's Dennis Boren, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, in the quarterfinals. Then, Hughes fell to No. 1-seeded Alan Alpar of Tascosa, 6-1, 6-3.

In "A" doubles, Pampa's Jerry Allen and E.B. Ellis whipped Leroy McMurtry and Tim Wyble of Caprock, 6-2, 6-2, in the first round. The Pampans, in the quarterfinals, lost to Tascosa's Marty Hands and Jim Ferrell, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Pampa's Stacy Douglass lost to Palo Duro's Karen Harrison, 6-4, 6-2, in second round action in "A" Girls Singles. In doubles, Tascosa's Armanda Hamman and Lynn Rogers downed Pampa's Karen Hampton and Donna Coufal, 6-1, 6-1.

Pampa's Amanda Mez won matches over Caprock's Terry James and Tascosa's Jeff Neely to qualify for Saturday's semifinals (see page 17 for details). In "B" doubles, Caprock's Garet Bendergraft and Bobby Baker stopped Wayne Williams and Frank Stowers of Pampa, 6-0, 6-1.

In "B" Girls Singles, both Pampa entrants — Maria Martinez and Gena Cox — fell in first-round matches.

In doubles, Pampa's Ginger Richardson and Connie Jones lost in the first round. But another Pampa duo — Cathy Carpenter and Anne Henderson — went further, before losing in the semis, 7-5, 6-4.

Borger's girls clinched the district title Friday by advancing players to the finals in both Saturday's singles and doubles events.

Houston Drops Knickerbockers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Rocket Rudy Tomjanovich, thrilled at his team's first round victory in the National Basketball Association playoff, Saturday said there was much more to it.

The 6th year Michigan player scored a game-high 25 points, leading a 118-96 win over the New York Knicks. Little Calvin Murphy scored 20.

"Our backs were against the wall," Tomjanovich said in a back-slapping lockerroom scene, "and we were fighting for our respect, not just the money."

"You know they wouldn't put us on TV all year long because they didn't think much of us. What do you think they think now?"

It was a Bailey-led group of Rockets' substitutes who provided a slim second quarter lead which Houston never relinquished.

Tickets Available

Tickets for the Pampa Optimist Boys Club Grand Opening Bar-b-que are still available from The Pampa News or from any Optimist member.

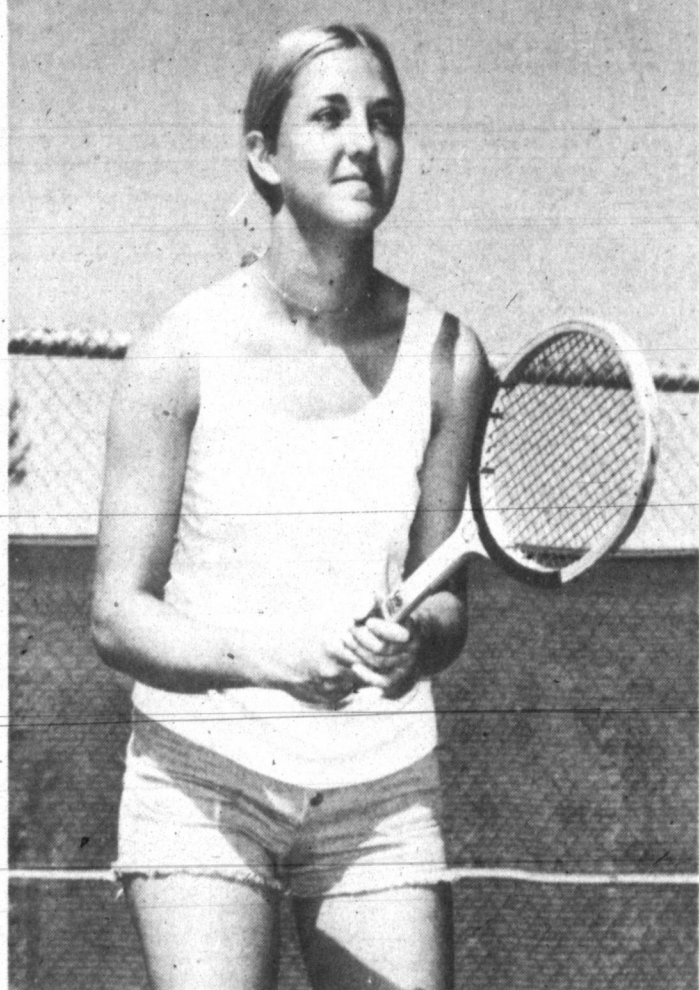

Warren Spahn, Hall of Fame pitcher, will be the club's guest of the bar-b-que and opening day baseball festivities.

Tickets can be purchased from Paul Sims, sports editor of The News, for $3.00.

A's 5, Rangers 4

ARLINGTON (UPI) — Left-hander Vida Blue and reliever Rolie Fingers combined on a three-hitter and Sal Bando rapped out a three-run fifth inning home Saturday to lead the Oakland A's to a 5-4 nationally-televised victory over the Texas Rangers.

Fingers relieved, and after throwing a wild pitch to advance the runners, gave up a two-run single to Jeff Burroughs before retiring pinch-hitter Jim Spencer on a long fly to center to end the game.

DOUBLES ENTRANT — Karen Hampton (above) teamed with Donna Coufal for the District Tennis Tournament Friday in Borger. The pair lost to Tascosa's Armanda Hamman-Lynn Rogers, 6-1, 6-1, in the first round of "A" Girls Doubles. Pampa's doubles teams this season were considered by followers the best in Harvester history.

In Spring we become aware of the larger tournaments to be here the next couple of months. In particular there are the two really big ones for the ladies the WIBC National Tournament held this year in Indianapolis, Indiana and the state tourney held in Irving.

Although the national is a bit far this year we will be right next door to it next year. Denver will be the hostess city and I'm sure we will have a nice representation from our area. Now is the time to be thinking about going to that one. You really have an experience of a lifetime by attending a national tournament and convention.

We have a few teams going to Irving for state competition. Want to wish the girls a safe trip and have fun. Good luck to all of you.

The league scores go like this.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK — A 391,000-pound rolling salute to the nation's Bicentennial celebration runs down the tracks in the form of Santa Fe Railway's "Super C", the nation's fastest freight train. Painted red, white and blue with the seal of the United States, the locomotive is reminiscent of America's railroad heritage. The "Super C" runs between Los Angeles every day carrying mail and other freight. Five locomotives will be painted by summer and one will be rolling nonstop at 1:45 a.m. and 10:25 a.m. each day.

Much of World Hungry

Perhaps one-fourth or even one-half of the world's population, that is, two billion people, are on the verge of starvation today.

Profound food-producing regions such as the Panhandle could play a major role in solving the food crisis in the future, according to two West Texas State University professors, who are striving to develop hybrids seeds and agricultural technology in hopes that the existing political and economic roadblocks will end.

Presently what we have in the world today is that the population is exceeding in most parts of the world the available supply of food," says Dr. Robert Sawvell, WTSU associate professor and acting head of geography. "This is particularly true in Latin America, Africa and South Asia. Whether or not we can sustain this growing population is closely related to increasing food production in those areas."

That technology is found in North America, "where we're making great strides in increasing production through the development of hybrids and increasing nitrogen production," notes Dr. Ron Thomason, WTSU associate professor of plant science.

But the transferral of such vital knowledge to the starving countries must first surmount the complex tangles of politics and economics. Divergent views exist on the nature of the problem, whether there is one and what should be done about it.

"There are three views of world hunger," Sawvell says. "The first is one held by a number of people in this country who question whether there really is a problem. The second school argues that population control is unnecessary — a view held by the Vatican, the Soviets and the Chinese — and that it is not population control that is needed by the reform of social conditions not only in the countries who face hunger but in the producing countries. Lastly, the view of the school principally made up of demographers is that this is the 'survival of the fittest' struggle."

Under-developed and developing countries also claim that the countries with surplus foodstuffs refuse to share their wealth, according to Sawvell.

"Distribution is so tied up in politics it is sometimes impossible to move surplus grain to deficit countries," he continues.

But this is not seen as an answer.

"At a American Society of Agronomists meetings in Chicago, it was stated that we should no longer try to solve the food problem by shipping grain because it destroys incentives in the people. We should move into training these people in production of food," Thomason says.

"By shipping supplies of grain, the countries can become dependent upon us and we will have destroyed their local agriculture," Sawvell notes.

"The question is where do we find the compromise position between what the developed world sees as a population problem and the developing worlds sees as a shortage of food problem," Sawvell continues. "But there is no question we are going to have to in some way limit population growth."

The solutions seem to rest in ideas and in people, but not in the actual transferral of food or equipment.

"I think it would be unwise of us to export our high-energy, mechanized type of agriculture to everyone in the world."

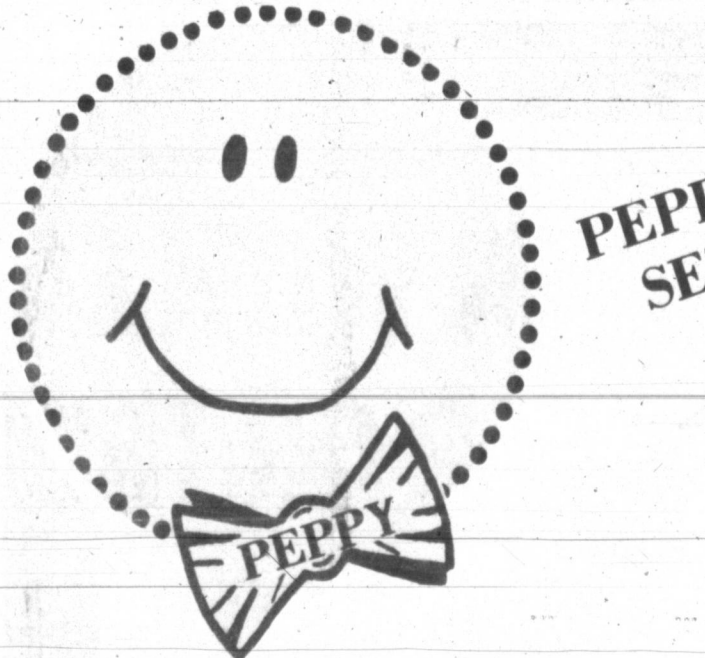

Sawvell says, "If everyone country utilized as much energy in agriculture as we did, there would be little doubt that the available supply of oil would be used up in 20 years."

Swavell predicts that while the situation won't change appreciably for North Americans in the future, "The real crisis is going to come in those areas where population is increasing over production. We have to face realities."

Film Featured At AARP Meet

Judy Auwen, Highland General Hospital, showed a cancer film, Journey to Darkness, for the Monday meeting of the Pampa chapter of American Association for Retired Persons (AARP).

The meeting was in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas building.

The members agreed to take fruit to the next meeting for the Pampa convalescence home.

Dean To Talk To Beef Men Thursday

Dr. Frank Baker, dean of the Oklahoma State University School of Agriculture and immediate past president of the American Society of Animal Science, and Eugene Moos, International Trade Affairs representative for the National Association of Wheat Growers, will speak at the third annual Texas Beef Conference in Amarillo's Hilton Inn Thursday. Moos, a delegate to the recent World Food Conference, will keynote the morning sessions of the conference with some observations on the world food situation.

City Bosses Have Session On Computer

Department heads were called into a meeting at City Hall Friday for an orientation session on Pampa's computerized accounting code system.

"When you have a computer," City Manager Mack Wofford said, "we believe it should do as much work as possible."

Today's 9 a.m. meeting in the City Commission meeting room was addressed briefly by the city manager and then turned over to Frank Smith, supervisor of the city's data processing equipment, and Milton Saltzman, personnel director.

Their discussion centered around modification methods that better fit into the city's automated accounting system.

"We are continuing to strive to make the system more efficient and make it do more work that will relieve departmental employees of as much of the accounting drudgery as possible," Wofford said.

The data processing system handles the city's utility billing, tax department, payroll and other city financial procedures.

David and Laveeta Brockbank left an import-export business in Australia and located in Pampa. They bought Jim's Steak House in November 1974 from Jim Bossay.

"We want to provide a good place to eat so the people of Pampa won't have to travel far," said Mrs. Brockbank. "We have live entertainment and we are starting to have special nights."

Jim's has had an Italian special they plan to have Cajun, Scandinavian, Mexican, and other gourmet nights.

Jim's plans to do some renovating, working the decor around the existing 150-year-old bar.

Brockbank said the restaurant business was "a new venture which requires a lot of work, but I find it stimulating meeting people and being involved with the public."

Mrs. Brockbank said, "We have confidence in Pampa, that's why we invested here." She added, "Business has been good and people still go out for a good time and good food."

"The countryside may not be as pretty as Australia's, but the people are twice as nice," Brockbank commented.
