Talco Plagued By Series Of Fires

"They're running us to death", said a spokesman for the Talco Volunteer Fire Dept. He said his department had answered 10 grass fires, one to a (no fire) and one house (no fire) call all within a six day period.

One fire burned over the pastures of Buster Copelands, Opal Morris and into the Sonny Reed pasture.

The first call on that blaze came in about 12:20 p.m. Wednesday August 20, then the blaze rekindled about 4:45 p.m.

Those fires apparently started from the road possibly from discarded Cigarettes, matches or arson.

August 23, unit 2 of the Talco Fire Dept. went to an auto accident (no fire). The same afternoon they answered a call to the Belcher place one half mile south so Wilkerson.

On Sunday, August 24, at 9:30 a.m. the department was called again to the Opal Morris place three miles west on FM. 71 then the blaze rekindled at 10:15 p.m.

Another grass fire started on the Edwards lease and burned over several acres of wood and pasture land with billows of black smoke rolling from an occasional oil pit. That fire followed by a call answered at 4:00 p.m. to a grass and woods fire south of Wilkerson.

The other Sunday fire was on the Penn Lee Lease owned by Exxon where transformer exploded setting the grass on fire.

At 12:00 noon Monday Unit 2 of the department rolled on a call back to the Opal Morris place to a grass and barn fire. At 4:45 p.m. they answered a call to the Wilson Lease to a grass fire.

The Talco Fire Dept. was joined by personnel from the Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Vernon, Winfield, North Franklin and Bogata Fire Dept. who helped extinguish the grass fires.

Just another grass fire, but the Volunteer from the Talco Fire Dept. know it could turn into something more dangerous. This is why they are asking citizens to wait until wet weather before burning trash. If you smoke use the car ash tray. The grass is dry and brittle and on a windy day fire spreads fast.

Rebel Scrimmage Shows Promise

By Scotti Wood

The Rivercrest Rebels held an intersquad scrimmage, Friday night, and the outcome was promising. Coach Milfred Groves said, "I am very pleased with the good hustle and spirit I saw."

The Rebels were divided equally into four teams. Two blue teams opposed two white teams in two different scrimmages. The intersquad scrimmage gave every boy a chance to play at least 40 plays. If the Rebels had scrimmaged another team some boys would have played more and others less.

The scrimmage was a lively one, and the defense overpowered the offense. Only two touchdowns were allowed on the night both coming in the first scrimmage. Each side, the blue and the white, scored a touchdown apiece. In the second scrimmage both teams failed to cross the goal line proving the overpowering defense. Groves said, "Our defense was stronger tonight than our offense, and the boys made mistakes, but that was expected. Overall we looked good, and it was a good scrimmage. The boys have been working hard and if they continue this we should be ready for the first game. They (they boys) are looking forward to competing against someone besides themselves."

The Rebels next action is Friday night, August 29, when they host Honey Grove at 7:30.

East Texas Eating

By Margie Rice

The early fall apples from the Allegheny mountains along the west coast are beginning to appear in area grocery stores! The early arrivals that I've seen so far were nice, small red Rome and Yellow Delicious varieties, each packaged in three pound bags. The bags were priced at $1.49 and $1.29 which averages out to $.49 and $.43 a pound; the best prices we've seen on apples of any sort in a long time.

The small apples are ideal for eating fresh. I'll have a hard time doing anything else with the first several pounds.

Both the Rome and the Yellow Delicious are also ideal cooking apples. They have enough tartness, flavor, and tissue strength to withstand gentle cooking without going k'poop. So, sooner or later, a Fresh Apple Pie or Pielet is a must.

Fresh Apple Pielet is the name around our house for individual, fold-over applepies. The pielets bake in 15 minutes or so, so they fit into busy meal schedules and can bake in the toaster oven.

Fresh Apple Pielets
(or Over-Fried Apple Pies)
Peel, core, and slice firm, tart apples. One small apple makes two of the little pies. Simmer with about a tablespoon of sugar from sticking, until the slices are barely tender. (approximately five minutes).

Pour the juice into a small bowl, cool slightly and blend in 1 tsp. cornstarch per apple. Pour this mixture over the apple slices. Heat gently, stirring constantly until the juice thickens. Set aside. (The filling can be refrigerated for use later.)

Roll out egg size amounts of pastry. Cut out pastry rounds, using a 5 inch saucer as a guide. Place the pastry around on a baking sheet and put about 3 tablespoons of the apple filling in the center. Moisten edges of the pastry with water. Fold in hand, making sure the edges are even. With a fork dipped in flour, press pastry edges firmly together. Bake at 425 degrees until golden brown, about 10 to 15 minutes.

I like to serve the pielets while they are still hot. They are good cold, too, and are ideal lunch box or picnic desserts.

The pielets freeze well. I usually freeze unbaked ones, but have froze left-over baked ones and they worked out fine. Simply pop the frozen pielets into a 400 degree oven and bake or warm.

FIGHT HEAT and save money

You have the power!

During hot summer months, you regulate the amount of electricity you use for cooling. Your thermostat is the control switch! By raising the setting from 72° to 78° you can save up to 50% on air conditioning costs. Save even more by taking extra care not to waste energy. By insulating and ventilating your attic, you can prevent heat buildup that puts a strain on your air conditioner. And, if you caulk and install weatherstripping around windows and doors, you can put a stop to cool air leakage. Curtains and outdoor awnings help, too, by shielding windows from direct sunlight.

Using energy wisely requires careful thought and planning. Why don't you start now by reaching for your thermostat? Set it at 78° and pay lower electric bills in the future.

Ag Update
By Herb Brevard
Beef cattle producers must consider alternatives in planning their winter feeding program, according to Dr. Ken Smith, area agronomist, and Wayne Taylor, area economist, for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Buying hay could be expensive this year and the hay supply will probably be short if hot dry weather continues. When buying hay, the two specialists urge producers to know the quality so that other supplemental feeding can be planned properly.

Small grain and ryegrass pastures offer one alternative. Plant one acre of small grain and ryegrass pasture for every three cows between September 1 and September 15 on a prepared seedbed. Plant between September 15 and September 30 if planting in a sod. Fertilize with 100-60-60 at planting and topdress with 50 to 60 pounds of nitrogen in February and April. The cost of this program is approximately $40 per head and will save about 40 percent or 1,000 pounds of hay per head. The program should add an additional 50 pounds per calf on fall born calves and should increase conception rates significantly over a straight hay feeding program.

If the producer is interested in utilizing only ryegrass winter pasture, he should plant one acre for each two cows on October 15. Fertilize with 250 or 300 pounds of 6-24-24 per acre at planting and topdress with 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate in February and April. The ryegrass program will cost about $35 per head. Approximately 800 pounds of hay per head will be saved. This program works well for winter calving cows.

For a program utilizing clover as the source of grazing, Smith and Taylor recommend planting the clover on October 15. Fertilize with 300 to 400 pounds of 6-24-24 per acre at planting. Plant arrowleaf clover on the upland and white clover on bottomland soils. Plant eight pounds of arrowleaf clover seed per acre and four pounds of white clover seed per acre. Planting one acre for each two cows will cost approximately $30 per head. This clover grazing program will also save approximately 800 pounds of hay per head and works well with winter calving cows. The clover should add approximately 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre back to the soil for utilization by summer perennial grasses.

Tax To Be Filed Soon

September 2, 1980, is the date by which most owners of large trucks, truck tractors, or buses must file a Federal Highway Use Tax Return, Form 2290, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

The tax year for the Highway Use Tax begins July 1, 1980, and runs through the following June 30, 1981. Vehicles placed in service after July must have Form 2290 filed with the their IRS Service Center by the last day of the month following the month a vehicle is used on a public highway for the first time.

According to the IRS, the tax generally applies to single unit trucks weighing 13,000 pounds or more, two-axled truck-tractors weighing 5,500 pounds or more, three or more axled truck-tractors regardless of weight, trucks of 9,000 or more pounds equipped for use in combinations, and buses with a gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds.

USDA Strengthens Work Requirements

Able-bodied food stamp recipients must actively search for jobs or be dropped from the program, under regulations proposed today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and Labor (DOL).

"Under the proposed rules, people who fail to look for a job on their own or who don't report for the interviews at their state employment office will find their households dropped from the food stamp program for two months," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Those who are exempt from the work registration requirement are primarily the elderly and disabled, those already working, those responsible for the care of dependents, or those already registered for work under the unemployment insurance and work incentive programs.

The rules also require recipients who register for work to be called in to their state employment service, now identified as Job Service, in most states, for an interview and job classification.

Foreman said that under the existing program, funding limitations have prevented employment offices from actually calling in and interviewing any more than the most employable of the food stamp work registrants. Recipients who have registered for work but who have had few job skills have often not had the benefit of employment office services according to the assistant secretary. Under the proposed rules, the USDA would more than double the amount of funding to the DOL, raising the annual amount to 570 million so that DOL can reach these hard to place recipients.

State job service agencies would continue to refer registrants to potential employers, under the proposed rule. But food stamp job seekers would have to supplement this service with their own eight-week job search. The proposed rules would establish as a standard that work registrants contact between eight to 24 potential employers within the eight week period, and also report for two follow-up interviews with their employment counselors.

Requirements for each person's job search would depend on their individual circumstances and the availability of jobs in the community, as assessed by the job service counselor.

The state job services would report to state welfare agencies the names of food stamp job seekers who refuse to comply with the interviews or job search requirements, as well as those who find jobs.

While the work registration and job search regulations are expected to be in effect by early 1981, USDA and DOL plan to run an 18-month demonstration project to test other ways, such as job-finding clubs, to match food stamp applicants with jobs. USDA and DOL will be seeking state welfare and job service agencies to sponsor the demonstration projects.

The proposed regulations complete implementation of major food stamp reforms enacted in 1977, and set uniform national standards for work registration and job search activities.

Aerosol Product Recalled

Johnson Wax (S. C. Johnson and Son, Inc.) today announced a recall of some recently manufactured 19 ounces aerosol SHOUT laundry soil and stain remover due to product seepage through a faulty side seam, according to L. R. Peterson, Executive Vice President - U. S. Consumer Products.

Cans involved began appearing in stores June, 1980. These cans have a small drawing of a "crown" printed at the left end of the blue stripe that is part of the package's front label design. They also have an inch-wide, notched, vertical side seam. Only 19 ounces cans of aerosol SHOUT having both of these features are affected.

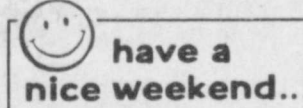

Peterson said the recall was issued because seepage may increase possible consumer exposure to ingestion, eye contact and flammability as cautioned on the label.

Johnson Wax recommends that consumers having such a container dispose of it carefully observing label cautions. To contact Johnson Wax for product replacement or further information, call the toll-free SHOUT consumer line, 800-558-5790. Or write to Carol Hansen, S. C. Johnson and Sons, Inc., 1525 Howe Street, Racine, Wisconsin, 53403.
