BOMBARDMENT RENEWED AMID RUMORS OF PEACE

Two Rescues In Atlantic Save Lives Of 28 Seafaring Men

RADIO BRINGS NEWS OF BOLD DEEDS AT SEA

Danish Freighter Left To Sink and Crew Saved By Swedish Ship

CRASH SINKS VESSEL

Coast Guard Cutter Rams Schooner and Rescues Five Men Aboard

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. (US)—Radio flashed the news today of two rescues at sea in which 28 men were saved.

The leaking Danish freighter, Aggersund, was abandoned by her crew of 22, 600 miles northeast of Cape Race. The men were rescued by the Swedish vessel Blankaholm, which answered a radio call for assistance.

In a fog off Cape Cod the coast guard cutter Acushnet rammed and sank the schooner George W. Elzey Jr. Her captain, N. S. Kroeger, and his crew of five were taken aboard the cutter. None was injured.

News of both rescues was received here by the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company.

Steamer Springs Leak

The Aggersund, a 2,940-ton vessel built in 1892, was proceeding from Copenhagen to Boston. It developed a leak when more than half way across the Atlantic. The leak was kept in control until the steamer encountered a storm.

The water gained rapidly and her captain called for help, to which the Blankaholm, one of the nearest vessels responded. The Blankaholm, arrived in five hours, effected the rescue and proceeded on her way to Sweden. She had set out from Halifax.

Collision in Fog

The ramming of the schooner George W. Elzey Jr. occurred at 8 p. m. Saturday but news of it did not become known until today. She was a 696-ton vessel and was proceeding without cargo from Bath, Maine, to New York.

The collision occurred in a dense fog about three-quarters of a mile of Cross Rip lightship off Cape Cod. After the crew of six had been taken aboard the Acushnet her commander reported to the coast guard base at Boston that he was standing by until the schooner sank. He said she was sinking slowly. The rescued were to be taken to Boston.

20 Doctors Aid In Bringing Strangled Baby Back To Life

BOSTON, Feb. 28. (US)—Working frantically in relays for three hours, 20 city hospital doctors performed a miracle of science today by bringing a baby back from death.

The baby, found in an alley of Yarmouth street, with a wash cloth over its face, and a cord around its neck, was black and rigid.

Dr. Frank M. Deich, night superintendent, laid the baby on the operating table. He unwrapped newspapers from its rigid body, he took the cloth from its face and the cord from its neck.

Then he and another doctor took turns in blowing into the baby's mouth and forcing air into its lungs. Eighteen other doctors hurried into the operating room and took their turn as an "artificial lung" until at last it cried.

Pope Talks on Radio Of World's Afflictions

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 28. (AP)—Pope Pis XI declared in a radio broadcast today that its love of the fleshpots "is the source of disputes and wars that always have afflicted and still today afflict the world" with such grief and suffering "as perhaps never have been encountered in history."

The pontiff spoke specifically of the warfare in the far east in his addreec on the heroic virtues of venerable Maria Assunta Pallota, who died in China as a missionary, and said he hoped his benediction "will be an augury of universal peace and prosperity."

Political Leaders Of Texas Struggle For Party Control

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 28.—Capitol political observers who began to puzzle over party leadership suddenly have awakened to the fact that they can't tell who will emerge the dominant figure in party affairs in the state at the decisive test May 24.

The test will be leadership of the Texas delegation to cast 46 nominating votes for president, as proven in the party state convention.

Dozens of names of prominent Democrats were being checked over—Governor Sterling, Jed Adams, national committeeman; Jesse H. Jones, Dan Moody, W. O. Huggins, state chairman; Walter C. Woodward, leader of the Garner state forces; Congressman Sam Rayburn, national Garner chairman; T. W. Davidson, Roosevelt leader; W. L. Dean, prohibition leader and chairman of the last nominating convention; John C. Boyle, Mayor C. M. Chambers, ex-Senator A. J. Wirtz, opposition leaders; James E. Ferguson, former candidate of his own party for president; Lynch Davidson, chairman of the Harmony Democrats that held the line for Alfred E. Smith's nomination four years ago; Thomas B. Love, bone-dry bolter four years ago; U .S. Senator Morris Sheppard, and others.

Jones Is Active

Jesse H. Jones received the Texas complimentary vote for president four years ago. He is now holding an important post by a Republican president's appointment. On the reconstruction finance corporation, he will be busy in Washington.

Governor Sterling, an assured candidate for re-election, became the "leader of the party" in his election two years ago. His office will be at stake in the political campaigns undecided when the presidential convention meets. He is indifferent to politics, and the antithesis of the successful "mole worker" who manipulates political affairs from concealment behind the scenes.

Sterling Supports Garner

He will be in the Texas delegation to Chicago. He may serve as chairman of the delegation. He is a vigorous supporter of John N. Garner whom the Texans will support as long as Garner is before the convention. But that does not at all mean that he will be in command of the delegation, or that he would care to be.

Mr. Adams, dry personally and politically, is still national committeeman from Texas. If he should emerge as the strong man of the party, it would mean his re-election to that post. Other Democrats want the honor. Mr. Garner's nomination would put a Garner leader squarely in the place. Which one is a major question to be decided.

The interrelation of the Garner and Roosevelt movements in Texas will intensify the convention. These two movements in their relation to and conflict with one another will be set off as a single issue against the professionalized dry crusading and the important anti-modification sentiment.

It is no secret that many who

NEW ASSAULTS STIR HONOLULU

Wives of Two Navy Men Mistreated by Thug

HONOLULU, Feb. 28. (US)—Honolulu was aroused today by a new criminal attack on the wife of a navy man.

The victim was Mrs. Kathleen Hope, 25, attractive wife of John H. Hope, machinist's mate on the submarine S-28, now en route to San Pedro, Calif.

Mrs. Hope was robbed by an oriental appearing man, who later returned to her home, bound, gagged and blindfolded her and attacked her. Then he fled as she lay helpless.

Scores of police in radio equipped automobiles searched the city immediately after the attack was reported.

One suspect was arrested, but Mrs. Hope was in such a state of near nervous collapse from her experience that she was unable to identify him.

Navy authorities, by agreement with police, took no part in the search.

"The police feel they will soon capture this fiend," said Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commanding the 14th naval district here. "The

Attorney Interprets Pledges as Bribery

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28. (UP)—Atty. Gen. J. Berry King has flung a startling element into Oklahoma's maturing political situation.

DENISON, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—Charles Bodkin, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bodkin, drowned after falling in an abandoned well one mile east of Denison. The lad, with several other boys, was playing near the well when he toppled head first into 14 feet of water. The father, assisted by friends, recovered the body.

Congress To Resume Hostile Ways As Two Parties End Emergency Truce

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—The informal political truce that expeditiously effected congressional action on important emergency relief legislation this session has about terminated and bitter party battles are brewing in both branches.

Preliminary skirmishes last week in the senate and house have forecast spectacular political forays by both parties during the remainder of the pre-convention session. However, party leaders have tacitly agreed to get together at least once more to push through a $1,250,000,000 revenue bill because of the treasury's condition.

When this legislation is disposed of, the check-rein that has been strained for weeks, will be unloosened, and in the melee that follows the so-called truce will have been forgotten.

Already Republican advocates of a big navy want the $1,000,000,000 treaty limit construction bill to take precedence in the senate over the Democratic tariff measure, already passed by the house.

House Democrats increased the ire of staunch administration Republicans yesterday when they forced through their $132,500,000 unemployment emergency road construction bill and sent it to the senate after breaking party lines. The Republicans have been successful so far in blocking their opponents' proposal to consolidate the war and navy departments into a department of national defense and this has made more tense the inter-party situation.

Political Parties Return To Customary War With Attack on Garner

SPEAKER RETALIATES

Garner, Connally and Moses Exchange Statements In Scathing Comment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Speaker Garner's charge that President Hoover precipitated a panic drew a sharp retort today from Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, suggesting the Texan had begun his formal campaign for the presidency, and in return another shot from Garner.

In the first notice taken by the Republicans of the speaker's availability for the presidency, Moses in a formal statement said Garner should "run true to form" and blame Mr. Hoover for all the world's ills. Since this "formal campaign" has begun, he said, Garner should announce as a wet or a dry.

The speaker, who consistently has declined to enter a contest for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in a terse reply "the senator's statement will be, as usual, quite amusing to the reactionary element in the Republican party."

Connally Makes Charges

Simultaneously, Senator Conally, of Texas, one of the speaker's leading advocates, issued a statement through the Democratic national committee asserting Mr. Hoover "has been playing partisan politics while asking for a political truce."

The partisan declarations of the two senators heralded a flurry of preconventional activity on capitol hill and the end of the political truce that prevailed during enactment of emergency relief measures.

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders saw further aggravation of their preconvention situation in Samuel Seabury's Cincinnati attack on Tammany with its implied criticism of Governor Roosevelt, and Alfred E. Smith's renewed demand for a state's rights plank on prohibition. There was no comment on either, however, and it remains for the fu-

Lost Amarillo Boys Found By Airplane

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—Sought by scores of men who throughout last night combed the rugged breaks of the Canadian river 20 miles north of the city, three Amarillo boys, for 17 hours believed lost, were spotted from an airplane at 7:45 o'clock this morning at a farm house where they had arrived a few minutes earlier, following a night spent in one of the hundreds of clefts in the desolate country.

The boys, Gregory Van London, 11, Billy Stover, 9, and Warren Stover, 7, had attempted to walk to Amarillo after becoming separated from a picnic party about 2:30 yesterday afternoon. They were within six miles of the city when found.

The boys said they slept on the ground until daybreak after they had walked until the lights at Amarillo disappeared except a sign on one of the tallest office buildings.

ARMED FASCIST GROUP DEFIES FINNISH ARMY

Civil War Is Threatened By Highly Trained Dissenters

RESIGNATION ASKED

Body of 4,000 Men Equipped With Machine Guns And Rifles Gathered

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 28. (US)—Finland faced the prospect of civil war tonight.

Four thousand Fascisti, organized like an army, and equipped with rifles and machine-guns, are encamped in the city of Mantsala, 50 miles from the capital, prepared to march against the government.

At Tavastehus and other parts of the country, thousands more are gathered waiting the signal to start.

Army Leaves Cancelled

The government tonight cancelled all leaves to the army, assembled airplanes, and made ready to resist any move on the part of the rebels.

A Fascisti declaration from Mantsala tonight declared:

"A state of civil war exists."

Earlier in the day the Fascisti threatened an immediate sally in the direction of the capital unless Minister of the Interior Van Born and Governor Jalander of the province of Nyland resigned immediately. Both have been campaigning against the party, known locally as the Lappo.

Ready to Resign

Van Born is reported as ready to offer his resignation if the situation demands.

President Svinhufvuds was to have spent the week-end at his country residence but decided to remain in the city. The commander-in-chief of the civil aviation arrived by plane from East Finland ready to participate in the event of an emergency.

Police reinforced from the Helsingfors department were reported helpless against 4,000 armed men. Military police scoured the streets of Helsingfors and nearby cities rounding up soldiery on leave.

Thousands of Lappo recruits tonight were pouring into mobilization centers. Mantsala was closed to "unfriendly" traffic. The total in that city was estimated at any where from 4,000 to 20,000.

Meeting Broken Up

The uprising started last night when Fascisti using rifles and machine guns broke up a labor meeting at Mantsala. Police attempting to interfere were repulsed.

The principal speaker at the meeting was to have been Dr. Erich, member of the Finnish Riksdag, but before he began, 500 Lappos wearing civilian clothes and armbands marched in and began firing, then retired in military order.

Today all persons attempting to reach Mantsala were held up by armed patrols and machine gun guards who declared:

"The war has started."

The Fascisti boast that they will

Roar Of Japanese Guns Breaks Lull In Shanghai Fight

International City Agog With Reports of New Peace Efforts On Part of Invaders With Terms Described As 'Reasonable' for China

By KARL H. VON WEIGAND

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29. (Monday)—The roar of Japanese guns this morning broke the 12-hour lull in the Shanghai battle, dropping a heavy barrage over Chinese lines in back of Kiangwan.

The Japanese bombardment was directed from field artillery batteries behind the Japanese lines in the Hongkew park sector of the international settlement.

The guns broke into action just as American and other foreign residents had begun to hope that an armistice was being arranged on new Japanese terms. Shanghai Americans wondered whether the new bombardment was the beginning of a new Japanese push; whether it heralded the initiation by fire of the 10,000 Japanese reinforcements landed today.

Windows Rattled

So terrific was the shelling that windows and doors in the settlement shook and rattled with each broadside.

Despite the renewed Japanese bombardment, an armistice in the Shanghai war, which has cost more than 5,000 dead and wounded on both sides and many millions of dollars in destruction, was in the air today.

The initiative to end hostilities preparatory to negotiations for peace apparently comes from Japan. This is quite appropriate, since most quarters agree that Japan precipitated the conflict.

Officials Confer

Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese naval commandant, and Nomaru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, yesterday conferred privately with Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of the Japanese army. They admitted touching upon the grave diplomatic aspects of the Shanghai situation.

Minister Shigemitsu last night frankly said he had received instructions from Tokyo to endeavor to reopen discussions for a truce or armistice on the following basis, which in more than one point resembles the conditions made by China answering the Japanese military ultimatum of 10 days ago:

1. If Chinese troops are withdrawn 12 and one-half miles from the border of the international settlement the Japanese army also will fall back.

2. Withdrawals are to be supervised by a mixed commission of Chinese and Japanese officers to which may be added foreign neutrals if desired or necessary.

3. A neutral zone is to be established between the two armies.

Conference Planned

4. A round-table conference shall be convened at which, besides Chinese and Japanese, there also shall be representatives of all nations whose interests are involved in Shanghai.

This conference will discuss all outstanding Shanghai problems, both foreign and Chinese, and the future status of Shanghai.

5. Another round-table meeting shall be held in the interim to arrange for policing of the neutral zone between the two armies.

Minister Shigemitsu's instructions are believed here to reflect internal conditions in Japan and the strong pressure in Tokyo of American, British, French, Italian and German ambassadors to discontinue using the settlement as a base for

PEACE PARLEY HELD

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29. (Monday) (AP)—Attempts to arrange a peace formula were made aboard the British flagship Kent today between Admirals Nomura and Matsuoka of Japan, and Chinese officials, including Dr. Willington Koo, former foreign minister, and the chief of staff of the Chinese 19th route army.

The representatives of both sides were invited to the conference by Admiral Kelly, commander of the British fleet in Chinese waters. The result of the conference was not given out.

Ships Endangered as Gale Whips Channel

LONDON, Feb. 28. (US)—A bitter 60-mile gale raged tonight along the English channel, driving hundreds of small steamers into harbors and sending mountainous combers sweeping over the cross-channel boats.

The new castle steamer Castle Galleon was rendered helpless off Yarmouth, where the gale threatened to drive the craft ashore. The captain anchored, but both cables were broken and the ship plunged toward the rocks.

Hero Of Shanghai

(Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

Foreign military observers have credited Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, shown above in a new picture taken in the Shanghai war zone, with the initial success of the Chinese stand against better-trained, better-equipped Japanese forces. He is commander of the Chinese 19th route army, which bears the brunt of the Japanese attack.

SOVIET GRANTS JAP REQUEST

Use of Eastern Railway For Troops Allowed

MOSCOW, Feb. 29. (Monday)—The Soviet government announced this morning it has granted Japanese troops permission to use the Chinese Eastern railway out of Harbin for an advance eastward toward the Soviet-Manchurian border.

Japan requested permission to send troop trains along the railroad Tuesday. Moscow's delay in replying served to create considerable tension between the two powers since Japan insisted the troop movement was necessary to protect Japanese subjects near the border from Chinese raiders.

The government announced that Japan has been given permission to send troops along the railway into the Imienpo region where the Chinese under Gen. Ting Chao are mobilized on the strength of new Japanese assurance that Soviet interests will not suffer. In the case of extreme necessity, the statement added, Japanese troops may push along the railroad as far east as Hailun, 50 miles from the Soviet frontier.

Trial Of Ex-Sheriff Of Hall County On Fee Extortion Charge Set Today

AUSTIN, Feb. 28. (AP)—Trials of S. A. Christian, former sheriff of Hall county and John W. Bowen, Dallas broker, in connection with violations of the Texas fee system of remunerating officers have been set for tomorrow in Travis county district courts.

It was likely the Christian case would be postponed on account of illness of the defendant. It was not known whether the Bowen trial would proceed.

Christian was charged with extortion in connection with the collection of fees of office, and Bowen was accused of forging witness fee certificates in connection with trial of cases in Dallas county district courts.

The indictments were an outgrowth of an investigation conducted by a senate committee charged to make an inquiry into alleged violations of fee laws. Several sheriffs, former sheriffs and other Texas office holders were indicted. Three sheriffs were convicted and sentenced to terms in the penitentiary. Their cases now are on appeal. They were Woody Townsend, Sheriff of Bastrop county, given two years; Clint D. Lewis, sheriff of Burleson county, three years, and N. L. Speer, sheriff of Walker county, three years.

Cases are pending against Sheriff John Burttschell of Lee county, Sheriff John H. Bigham of Bell county, Sheriff A. J. Rammert of Austin county and H. H. Burns, former sheriff of Shelby county.

DEMO LEADERS WANT CONTROL

Many Politicians Seek To Head State Delegation

set out for Roosevelt, and who are for him whenever Mr. Garner may get out of the picture, are gleefully supporting Mr. Garner. The great growth of his strength may yet cause some of these to run away from him.

Mr. Garner is getting other support from other factions who see him as perhaps the agency they can use to "stop Roosevelt."

W. O. Huggins, the state chairman, is allied with Mr. Jones. Together they hold a tremendous influence in the party. They will not be in conflict with one another. Judge Huggins was selected by Governor Sterling to head the state committee. He will not be in conflict with Governor Sterling unless an issue should split the ranks of the party extensively.

The Alfred E. Smith forces almost broke up the Beaumont convention four years ago, when John Boyle, Senator Wirtz and others threatened the control of Gov. Dan Moody over the meeting. Senator Wirtz, Senator W. K. Hopkins and others are now working in behalf of Garner. It is probable they are more friendly to Roosevelt than to Smith.

Moody Fights Fergusons

There is a very powerful undercurrent of Roosevelt sentiment in Texas. It will be in a predicament in the convention if Mr. Garner becomes the man whose strength denies Roosevelt the two-thirds now required for nomination. At this time, it does not seem possible for this faction to itself quit Speaker Garner and wrest convention control from the Garner forces. If Mr. Garner disappears after a number of ballots, then the Roosevelt people will have a tremendous pull for the Texas votes.

Former Gov. Dan Moody has limited himself this year to saying he will do whatever he can to prevent the Fergusons from having a chance to return to official power. He and a group of other drys recently began draft of an appeal to all factions in Texas to concentrate on national relief—"empty stomachs before parched throats"—but the bid for statewide Democratic unity has not yet seen the light of day.

It was a logical follow-up of Governor Moody's prophetic final words as he retired from the governorship a year ago, hoping party control will be held by devoted, genuine Democrats and not by "fanatics of the extreme right or the extreme left."

Thomas B. Love's leadership is negative. He was able to defeat the Democratic party in Texas four years ago, but he has not been able to carry an affirmative issue to success.

There is less reason to believe now than in former years, that the bone-dry extremists, practically forced to a choice between one or another of several liberals, can regain control of the organized Texas party machinery.

Drys Back Garner

Senator Morris Sheppard and Senator Connally stepped to the front in favor of Mr. Garner. This gave strong evidence that there cannot be a prohibition fight against him of any magnitude, since Mr. Sheppard is the author of the prohibition amendment, and he and Connally both firmly-set dry anti-modification officials.

T. W. Davidson, acceding to the head of the Roosevelt forces in Texas without any other particular political leadership, would become a much more powerful factor in Texas affairs should the convention nominate Governor Roosevelt without the necessity of the Garner Texas people coming to his rescue. If the Garner votes finally were significant in naming him, then the credit and the honors would go to the Garner peopel.

It is not political, in the form in which the wiseacres are debating the Texas convention three months before it arrives—They are talking about the age-old issue of personal ambition and personal victory and personal dominance over the state's affairs.

Senator Moses Berates Garner

ture to determine whether Seabury is out for the presidential nomination himself and where Tammany is going to throw its delegation support at Chicago.

Roosevelt Refuses Comment

Governor Roosevelt, who will fight it out with Smith in the first presidential primary March 8, in New Hampshire, is described as viewing Seabury's criticism as "unfair." While the governor himself declined to comment, a close friend interpreted him as feeling he should not participate in a "political issue in one of the cities of the state," since he was charged with the duty of presiding as chief magistrate in the proceedings leading to the removal of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, Tammany hall district leader.

Senator Moses in his statement again predicted Mr. Hoover's renomination and re-election.

Moses Is Caustic

"Recalling the vigor with which Speaker Garner once commented upon the action of the supreme court in the estate tax case," he said, "I marvel at the moderation with which Mr. Garner has now begun his formal campaign for the presidency with the single and simple assertion that President Hoover brought on a panic.

"In order to run true to form the speaker should have added the charge that the president brought on the world war, loaned billions to Europe during a Democratic administration, directed riotous expenditures for armament in foreign countries, brought about the unbalanced budgets of other governments, made added loans in Latin America, is responsible for Bolshevism in Russia, engineered the 18 revolutions in as many countries, caused the panic in Germany, and the economic collapse in central Europe, forced England off the gold standard, fomented the Sino-Jap row, created the drouth, and is responsible for the over-production of coffee in Brazil, copper in Africa, sugar in Cuba, rubber in India, cotton in the South and wheat in Canada, Australia and the Argentine.

"Doubtless these and other charges against Mr. Hoover will be formulated by the speaker as he advances in his campaign for the presidency and as soon as he determines the more pressing question whether he is running as wet or dry.

Predicts Re-Election

"In about eight months from now Speaker Garner will be able to formulate another charge against the president, namely, that Mr. Hoover has retained the confidence of the American people and has brought about his own re-election."

Speaker Garner, in his formal statement said:

"Senator Moses' statement covers considerable territory. It would indicate that to this he has given about the same amount of thought as to his famous remark, when he referred to the Republican seantors from the West as 'Sons of the Wild Jackass.'

"In fact, the senator's statement will be, as usual, quite amusing to the reactionary element in the Republican party."

Carrying on the week-end political debate, Senator Connally said:

"With President Hoover begging the Democrats to cooperate in effecting panic relief legislation, which in itself is a confession that he can not command the support of his own party in congress, it is rather dazzling to have his spokesmen claiming credit for him for the Democratic enactments."

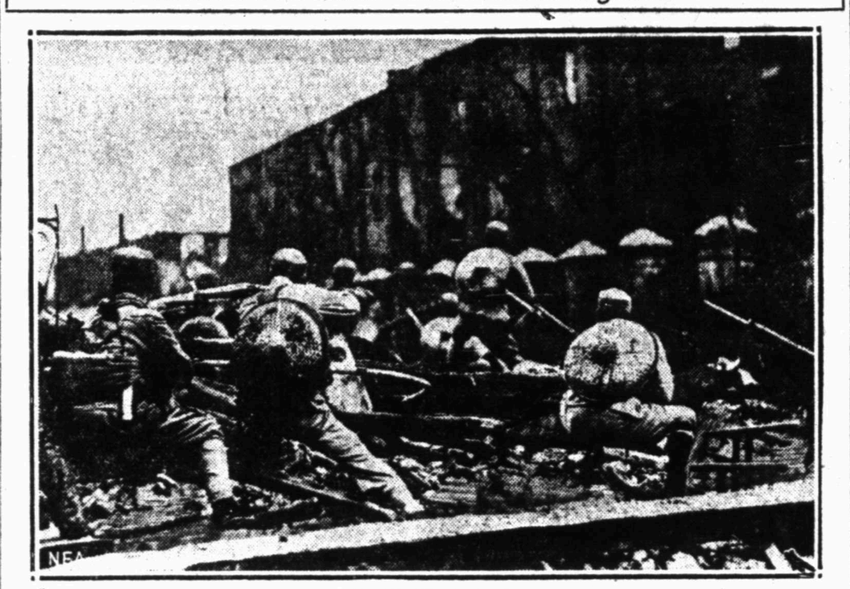

Demo Aim Cited

"Fortunately for the country," the Texan added, "this cheap begging for applause where no credit is due will not inspire Democratic reprisal. The Democrats are more concerned with doing what is possible to help the country than to reap any other advantage from this course than is involved in public appreciation of their actions and their attitude."

Connally declared if Mr. Hoover had all the "remedies" already enacted and awaiting decision in mind "why should he have waited more than two years during the progress of the panic to enunciate them?"

"Up to very recently," Connally said, "he had huge majorities in both houses of congress. He could have had enacted the finance reconstruction corporation, the Glass-Steagall bill, the tax revision, and all the rest of them, at any time during this period and not have held them back until the Democrats became the preponderant force in congress."

Behind The Lines With Chinese Fighters

AWAITING INVADERS' CHARGE—Their only barricade the scattered ruins of a building demolished by shellfire, troops of the defending Chinese forces are shown in this Record News-NEA Service picture as, with machine guns and rifles leveled, they crouched to await a Japanese charge. These are Cantonese soldiers; note on their backs the huge, umbrella-shaped straw hats which are part of their year-round equipment.

HERO COMMANDER VISITS LINES—"Prepare to fight to the last bullet . . . the last man" . . . With these stirring words, Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai directs his courageous Chinese 19th route army in its inspired defense of the Shanghai area. Here the commander (indicated by arrow) is shown, in the first picture taken of him in the war zone, as he personally supervised operations in the trenches. Grimly looming the distance are burial mounds.

A WOMAN VICTIM OF WAR—Features contorted with pain . . . the fear of death tortuously written in her face . . . a Chinese woman who was shot down during the fighting in Shanghai is pictured here as she lay in a street on a bed of rags. It's a grim sidelight of warfare in which hundreds of unarmed civilians have been mowed down.

Broadway Warmly Receives Nude Painting Rejected By Park Ave.

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. (US)—The nude painting that shocked Park avenue and had its face turned to the wall has found a more friendly reception amid the glittering lights of Broadway together with a dozen other equally unconventional paintings.

In the heart of the theatrical district—never indifferent to the clarion call of art or the charm of scantily-draped beauty—a group of enterpresing artists with an expert impressario as their manager have opened a "salon des arts."

And there they hope to find the broad-minded aesthetic appreciation which Park avenue denied them.

Basking in a soft light behind black velvet drapes, the major attraction is the painting innocently entitled "Friendship," which no less a personage than the former Countess de Beaumont, Mrs. Henry Fisher, caused to be removed some months ago from the exclusive Park Avenue hotel where it was being exhibited.

Gates Has Vision

But Mr. Ivan Gates, who deserted an interest in promoting aviation to champion the cause of art, has a properly artistic regard for climax.

When he guides you through his new gallery he always saves for the very last the palpitating portrait which shocked the former countess so she threatened to move from the Park Avenue hotel unless it was taken away.

First you must see "Leda and the Swan," a modernistic interpretation of the ancient Greek myth by Zitter of Greenwich Village. After you have tried in vain to disentangle Leda from the rest of the scenery and look properly impressed, Mr. Gates leads the way to the next picture.

It is entitled "reclining figure" by Hyman Zeff Katz and for the sake of making it more readily understandable by the Broadway art enthusiasts this explanation is added on a placad:

"Painted in red to represent deep emotional feeling. She has turned around to hide her self-consciousness."

Then comes "Figure and a Doll" painted incidentally by Louis G. Ferstadt, the same artist who created "Friendship," and portraying an amazon of a woman looking sidelong at a French doll, a placard again explains:

"The opposite tendencies in life. The life like nude woman and the lifeless cold doll—emotional friction."

Finally, after all the rest have been pointed out, Mr. Gates rubs his hands and brings the already appreciative visitor to "Friendship" itself.

There in rich oils are two young women gracefully reclining in conversation with only a scarlet robe thrown carelessly across their legs to protect their modesty.

operations and urging the cessation of hostilities.

Japanese willingness for a truce on what appears on the surface to be a reasonable basis is believed also to indicate that the influence of militarists in Japan regarding the Shanghai adventure is on the wane.

China May Accept

An authoritative Chinese source today told me that the simultaneous withdrawal of both Chinese and Japanese troops with foreign neutral observers in the zone between the two armies would in all probability be acceptable.

As if to give emphasis to Japan's "desire" for peace, two Japanese transports arrived last night, the Florida Maru and the Amur Maru, steaming up the Whangpoo river past the U. S. S. Houston.

About 1,000 Japanese soldiers were landed from the Florida Maru in the Yangtzepoo district of the international settlement. The steamer's name was painted out. The troops marched to barracks nearby.

The Amur Maru, and another unnamed transport, were reported docking at Changwahpang, just west of Woosung creek, where other detachments were landed earlier yesterday.

Chinese Reinforced

At the same time, the Chinese announced the arrival of new reinforcements for Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai's 19th route army.

Thus, while diplomats were seeking to recapture the situation from the hands of the military, both General Tsai and General Uyeda were preparing to renew the battle with greater intensity on the Chapei-Woosung front.

Both Japanese naval and army planes carried the war into the air again Sunday. Naval planes cooperating with the Japanese warships bombed and shelled the Lion forest fortifications along the Yangtze north of the Whangpoo, and reported their complete destruction.

A second squadron bombed the Hungjao airdrome, just west of the French concession, for the third time in as many days.

The extent to which Japanese air forces have participated in the Shanghai warfare is best shown by figures given by the Japanese naval intelligence bureau. Naval planes alone have dropped 650 110-pound bombs and 250 550-pound bombs. This is exclusive of the large number of bombs dropped by army planes—many more than the naval squadrons'.

Kiangwan Falls

The Japanese last night claimed complete possession of Kiangwan village, where they found 20 men and women on the verg of starvation. They also claimed the capture of 150 Chinese sharpshooters.

The Japanese military communique states:

"The district around Kiangwan is a scene of utter desolation. The greater part of the village's homes are utter ruins, either from shells, bombs or fire."

The Chinese communique emphatically denies that the Japanese took Kiangwan by military advances. The Chinese say:

"The village was abandoned by the Chinese on Friday night for two reasons. First—Continuous artillery and aerial bombardment had reduced the village to a ruin no longer of military importance. Second—The large number of corpses of farmers' families killed by the Japanese and left unburied rendered the village uninhabitable and polluted the water supply.

"The village was deserted at 9 p. m. Friday and the Japanese continued to shell the deserted ruins Friday night and Saturday."

LEAGUE CONSIDERS JAP PROPOSALS

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

GENEVA, Feb. 28.—The "neutral twelve" of the League of Nations council were busy today studying informal proposals received yesterday from Japan with regard to "some scheme for a truce at Shanghai and the establishment of a neutral zone," but kept their deliberations secret.

It was learned from informed quarters the Japanese proposals were not likely to receive a favorable response from Chinese authorities.

The Japanese circulated their suggestions to individual members of the council only and did not present them to the league secretary or the council as a body.

Tokyo's latest suggestions as presented by Naotake Sato, Japanese representative in Geneva, were understood to include the former proposal for retirement of the Chinese army a certain distance from Shanghai. What distance and what other conditions were included have not yet been revealed here.

U. S. WILL NOT RECOGNIZE GAINS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Whatever the reaction of Europe to Japan's new truce offering, it was re-emphasized in high quarters today the United States will decline to recognize such Japanese gains in either Shanghai or Manchuria as are obtained in violation of existing treaties.

Standing firm upon that position, this government is expectantly awaiting developments at the League of Nations assembly meeting this week.

It can now be said the American government strongly opposes proposals for a boycott against Japan. Responsible officials, it was revealed, have sounded out President Hoover's sentiment and that prevailing in both the executive and legislative branches of the government and found almost unanimous opposition to such a step.

In addition, American observers in Europe have reported through diplomatic channels the major powers abroad likewise are opposed to a boycott plan.

It was learned President Hoover personally directed Secretary Stimson to dispatch the now historic note of Jan. 7 to Japan, declaring this country would not recognize any right, title or benefit gained by Japan through violation of either the Kellogg pact or the nine power treaty.

Although no direct representation was made to other nations to join the United States in this move, a statement was made at the time that if they reached similar decisions an effective bar would be formed against future treaty violations.

Those directing America's foreign policy were said today to have received reports the leading European powers were doubtful whether they could take such a positive step.

Floods Recede After Taking Heavy Life Toll

SEATTLE, Feb. 28. (AP)—Floods which claimed 14 lives, washed out bridges and caused many residents of lowlands to abandon their homes for high ground last week in Washington were receding today.

Cessation of the rain and colder temperatures which halted the melting of snow in the Cascade and Olympic mountains brought relief bodies of seven of the victims of floods and landslides still were uncovered.

Property loss was considerable because of numerous washouts and the flooding of residences. Damage to highways and railroads was extensive.

MINERS' BODIES ARE RESCUED

Remove 14 From Mine Wrecked by Explosion

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 28. (US)—Rescue workers, heroically toiling in day and night crews, today recovered 14 bodies from the blasted, gas-filled chambers of the Bolssevaine mine of the Pocahontas Fuel company here.

Twenty-two others are missing beneath tons of rock and debris, and were given up for dead.

Mine officials were unable to identify the recovered bodies, mainly because they had been burned beyond recognition.

The corpses were found in the basin main section of the mine pit, almost a mile beneath the surface. Inspectors and probers said it was apparent that the men had been killed almost instantly when the explosion occurred at 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Officials believed that the other bodies would be found scattered all over the bottom of the mine, which was wrecked by the force of the blast.

Thirty state troopers this afternoon were called out to keep families of the victims from rushing the mine entrance. Until other guards can be brought here, the bodies will not be brought to the surface for fear of general rioting by anxious kin trying to identify dead loved ones.

LISBON FEARS REVOLT BREWING

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 28. (AP)—The government tonight charged a revolutionary plot was in fomentation and that the rebels planned to cut off the water and electrical supplies of the city.

The authorities ordered troops in neighboring garrisons to be ready for any emergency.

(Just before midnight tonight London sources reported telephonic communication between London and Lisbon had been disrupted. It was feared serious trouble had broken out in the Portuguese capital in view of the fact disorders were known to be expected Monday morning. Madrid also was out of telephonic communication with Lisbon and the Associated Press was unable to gain contact with the Lisbon American legation from Madrid).

HOSTILITIES MARK CUBAN ELECTIONS

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 28. (AP)—One person was killed and several were wounded in political animosities today while soldiers stood guard over polling places as Cuban voters elected municipal assemblymen in their respective parties.

Eduardo Estrada was shot to death in Quemado de Guines, Santa Clara province. He was with Representative Ricardo Campo, Liberal, at the time.

In Ceigo de Avila, Camaguey province, supporters of Enrique Villena and Enrique Recio, candidates for Liberal nomination for governor fought with pistols, hammers and other weapons. An undetermined number of persons were injured.

Santiago dispatches said three bombs exploded there, one in the home of Senator Carlos Clavel, another in that of Dr. Eduardo Havha, brother of the mayor, and the third in front of the provincial palace. Alarm at the provincial palace explosion proved fatal to Senora Flora Aguero, who had just given birth to a child.

Today's primaries were the first step in the reorganization of Cuba's three major political parites—Liberals, Conservatives and Populars—preliminary to November's elections. Municipal assemblies name provincial assemblymen, who in turn select delegates to the national conventions.

President Gerardo Machado is a member of the Liberal party.

Senate Committee to Investigate 'Bear Raiders'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—The senate banking committee will seek to learn this week whether a small group of professional speculators on Wall street have been deliberately driving down security prices and the extent of the practice.

Armed with names and statistics, Senator Walcott, Republican, Connecticut, close friend of President Hoover, will go before the committee Tuesday to ask that certain stock traders be subpoenaed.

Leaders believe the time has come to determine the foundation for administration beliefs the bear raiders have checked every recovery move resulting from reconstruction measures.

Air Line Shortens Time On Coast-to-Coast Hops

CHICAGO, Feb. 28. (AP)—United Air Lines announced today that it will start 31-hour and 40-minute service from New York to San Diego, March 1, with 23½-hour schedule from Chicago west. This was said to be the longest night and day tri-motored passenger plane service in the United States, the distance being 2,847 miles from New York to San Diego.

A program of at least 40 reclamation and public works projects, at a cost of nearly $7,000,000 is planned in Yugoslavia for the four year period of 1932-36.

DEATH CLAIMS C. P. HAMPTON

W. F. & S. Engineer Dies Early Sunday

Claude P. Hampton, 43, 1214 Taylor, died at 1 o'clock Sunday morning at a Wichita Falls hospital after a short illness. Mr. Hampton was an engineer for the Wichita Falls & Southern railway at the time of his death.

Funeral arrangements will be announced after word has been received from his mother and sisters in California. The body is being held by the Merkle Undertaking company.

Survivors include his widow; five children, Claudia Lee, Chester Paul, Annie Mary, Jerry Lou, and Sophia Joyce Hampton; two step-children, Lucian Harris and Elwyn Harris, all of Wichita Falls; his mother, Mrs. W. B. Hampton; four sisters, Mrs. W. E. Mayes, Miss Beulah Hampton and Miss Fayne Hampton, all of Los Angeles, and Mrs. B. L. Denton of San Diego, Calif.; two brothers, William D., and Carl C. Hampton, both of Wichita Falls.

Mr. Hampton was first connected with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway as an engineer in Wichita Falls on Jan. 6, 1921. He was transferred to the Wichita Falls & Southern lines on Dec. 20, 1921, a position which he retained until his death.

navy will not interfere at this time."

Mrs. Hope was alone in her home last night when the dark skinned man, whom she said looked like an oriental or half-breed, suddenly appeared. He was masked and was believed to have climbed through an open window.

"Give me your money," he demanded.

The terrified woman obtained her purse and gave him $4 in currency and change.

This seemed to satisfy the man, who then departed, warning her to remain quiet for half an hour.

Next door a minute later Mrs. R. D. Curry, wife of a navy electrician at work at the Pearl Harbor Naval yard, was startled when the same bandit entered her home, asking money.

Just at that moment, Mrs. Hope screamed for help and the man hastily ran back to where she was.

Slamming the door, the robber tied Mrs. Hope's hands, gagged her with a pair of silk stockings and then blindfolded her.

Then he criminally attacked her and fled.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Curry had barricaded herself in her own house, afraid to leave to summon help. She waited until she saw the bandit did not appear and then went to Mrs. Hope's aid.

Police were then notified, while Mrs. Hope, hysterical, was taken to the city emergency hospital for aid.

Mrs. Hope is slightly crippled as a result of recent illness.

The attack on Mrs. Hope was the first on a white woman since the "Honolulu slaying" on Jan. 8 of Joseph Kahahawai, a native, as the outgrowth of an assault upon Mrs. Thalia Massie, 20, wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N.

Stricken Gorilla Improves; Greeted By Senator Borah

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (US)—N'gi, baby gorilla in the Washington zoo which science is trying to save from double-pneumonia, today was allowed his first visitor in four days—Senator William E. Borah.

With attending specialists now hopeful the little ape may recover, Senator Borah called at the lion house this morning, and was allowed to walk quietly to the cage where N'gi is being treated in an oxygen chamber, brought here from New York at the expense of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald.

N'gi, still a very sick little boy despite some decided improvement since yesterday, slept through the visit, but the distinguished guest was able to catch a glimpse of him through the window in the white rubberized tent.

Sometime last night N'gi ate a tomato and a large pear, and two bananas, his favorite fare. Today he ate two more bananas, but what is far more important, he drank 12 ounces of water—the first he has taken since stricken with pneumonia a week ago.

Costly Army Bombing Plane Is Delivered

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 28. (US)—After a delay of two weeks the mystery bombing plane built for the United States army at the Glenn L. Martin plant here at a development cost of more than $200,000 has been secretly delivered to the army, it was announced here today. Army airmen, who have been at the Martin plant for several weeks, flew the mystery plane away from the Martin aerodrome yesterday.

The plane was taken to Aberdeen proving grounds, where under constant guard, it was housed in a special hangar.

The plane is said to be the fastest bombing machine in the world. It was reported that the plane, with its crew, left the field in exactly 11 seconds.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

There's a story told of William Faulkner, the comparatively new writer who has impressed the intelligentsia with his latest novel, "Sanctuary," that failing on his job of postmaster at Oxford university, Miss., he was fired.

He saw no need to sort out mail and deliver it at once, one story went, and students raised a howl; another story was that the inspectors found that he'd been throwing away mail, chiefly newspapers, and the third and most libellous story was that he was discovered studying human life through the medium private letters. At any rate he was fired, and he expressed himself as being rejoiced, saying that he could go out now and get a job where he wouldn't have to sell a postage stamp to every d-d fool who had two cents.

That's a lot of introductory talk leading up to a dissertation on letters, of which we mean to write. Morning mail isn't often anything particularly pleasant, especially along toward the first of the month. Even those thick, creamy envelopes that have an air of intrigue, come from a beauty specialist who thinks she might be able to improve us. Vain dream! Then forever and forever, some kind hearted promoter of style is trying to give us the pick of garments that are to be put on sale when we have not been able to be classed with "hoarders" for years.

The letters that are long, chatty, newsy delights are so rare a thing. Once in a great while, we receive one from Mississippi and our spirit is refreshed and our mind made more buoyant. And once in awhile one comes from Tennessee that tells us all the gossip—which is news but not uplifting.

We fear, with many other complainants, that the art of letter writing is falling into disuse. Too many stamps are used to tell the recipient that —— has flue, which is almost epidemic; that —— had a tooth pulled and his jaw is swollen; that the writer baked bread and is going to a luncheon and expects to have "so and so" for dinner.

When we wish to read letters that give us a kick (nice phases, but the mental effect is only comparable to a long-gone Martini), we go back to tomes of published letters we know almost by heart, usually landing on Charles Lamb.

As the fishing season approaches we read in a letter of his written in 1809 "Of Walton's Angler," a new edition is just published, with the original plates revived. I think of buying it." He expresses our own sentiment when he says "Nothing puzzles me more than time and space, yet nothing puzzles me less, for I never think about them."

"Wind in the west," the dear old bachelor wrote, "which promotes tranquility"—and in an indefatigably industrious life, he penned that springtime idea "I wish that all the year were holiday. I am sure that indolence, indefeasible indolence, is the true state of man."

Lamb never, as he expressed it, "subsided" into matrimony." His whole life was given to the care of his poor half-mad sister, and friends must have known what impended when he wrote "a sad depression of spirits, an unaccountable nervousness" overcame him.

Lamb drank; he smoked indefatigably; he moved hither and yon as Mary needed the change. And he veiled any sadness in such letters as that which he wrote to Godwin on Jan. 2, 1810. He had just moved to the inner temple and was describing his rooms, "My best room," he said, "commands a court in which there are trees and a pump, the water of which is excellent cold with brandy and not very insipid without—— Here I hope to set up my rest and not quit till Mr. Powell, the undertaker, gives me notice I may have possession of my last lodging. He lets lodgings for single gentlemen, you know."

For letters carrying so brave and heartening a spirit as that of Lamb, we are one of the fools who would pay two cents for the stamps to cover.

First Methodist Circle Will Serve Luncheon

A group of the best cooks in the circle will look after the turkey and all that goes with turkey dinner, it has been announced, when members of circle two of the First Methodist Woman's Missionary society, Mrs. T. Service will continue from 11 o'clock until 2:30 and the public is invited to attend.

T. C. U. English Instructor Will Speak At Zundy

One of the most interesting speakers of Texas will be heard in Wichita Falls Monday night when Miss Rebecca Smith, head of the department of English at T. C. U., will be presented by the City Teachers association at Zundelowitz Junior High school at 8 o'clock in an address on "The New Evaluation in American Life and Letters."

Miss Smith is well known as co-author with Mrs. Margaret Collins of Fort Worth, of "16 Rue Pigalle," that improvisation that has been presented twice at the Woman's Forum clubhouse to a packed auditorium. Every word of the sparkling dialog in this play was Miss Smith's work.

For six years she has been a clever reviewer of books for one of the prominent Texas magazines and she has hundreds of poems published in the Southwest Review.

Mis Smith is a native of the same town from which Irwin Cobb hails, and has, like that writer, a keen sense of humor. She came to T. C. U. as her second position and has been there since. She is vice president of the Texas Folk Lore society, a member of the Poetry Society of Texas, and is noted for her beautifully given and instructive lectures.

Make This Model at Home
DESIGNED IN SIZES 38 TO 52
Pattern 2211
Step-by-Step Instruction Diagrams Given With This Pattern
By ANNE ADAMS

Pointed lines give the effect of slenderness, so the lace vestes, the skirt seaming, and the line of the neck are all particularly flattering to the woman whose figure is matronly. The snug hip section is especially good below a bodice that is slightly bloused. This model is lovely in printed silk crepe of dark ground, trimmed with cream lace.

Pattern 2211 is obtainable only in sizes 38 to 52. Size 38 requires 4⅞ yards of 39-inch fabric, ½ yard of 18-inch lace.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted. Address all mail and orders to

Why So Many Take BLACK-DRAUGHT

THERE are good reasons why so many people prefer Thedford's Black-Draught — why it is their favorite laxative:

They like its thorough, cleansing action.

They like that "better feeling the next morning" — a refreshed feeling after the release of intestinal poisons.

And the low cost of Black-Draught is another point in its favor. You are really buying medicine when you buy Black-Draught, as the sealed container, in which the medicine is sold, costs only a small fraction. Its light weight has saved expensive freight bills. Black-Draught is packaged, weighed and sealed by machine. It can be sold for less because of these savings in your favor.

MONDAY FINAL DAY ON TAXES

School, Irrigation Payments Due Feb. 29

To day—Monday, Feb. 29, is the last day for payment of irrigation and city school taxes for 1931 to avoid their being declared delinquent.

Payment of at least one-half the 1931 water improvement district tax, and one-quarter of the school tax, must be made by midnight Monday night to comply with the requirements announced by both units.

Each of the tax accounts was given a 30-day extension on Jan. 31 to allow taxpayers until Feb. 29 to make payment. Those extensions were made in order that local citizens might have better opportunity to take up delinquent taxes without penalty or interest, as provided by a legislative relief measure.

It was indicated Sunday that both irrigation and school tax offices will remain open Monday evening until all who wish to pay taxes have been taken care of.

Police Abandon Gang Theory in Houston Case

HOUSTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Abandoning their theory that Mrs. Pauline Caporina, 25, met death at the hands of gangsters, police today were following a new lead in the investigation of Friday's roadside murder.

A woman witness was sought for questioning in hope she might be able to provide information on the past life of Mrs. Caporina and subsequently open the way toward the final solution of the slaying.

Mrs. Caporina was found beaten to death Friday morning in a half filled roadside ditch on the outskirts of Houston.

Joe Caporina, husband of the slain woman, was questioned by officers. He said he drove his wife to a point on Milam street and left her there and went home the night of the killing.

Police Recover Sedan Taken From Wichitan By Bandit And Girl Aide

A large sedan owned by E. O. Sturm, taken at his residence on the Petrolia-Henrietta road at 9 o'clock Saturday night, was recovered by Wichita Falls police at Second and Adams early Sunday morning. The spare tire was missing.

Police continued to investigate the case Sunday but no arrests had been made. Mr. and Mrs. Sturm were met at the garage door on returning home by a masked man. They were directed into the house where Mrs. Sturm was forced to bind her husband's wrists with adhesive tape, carried by the bandit. The man assisted Mrs. Sturm in binding her own wrists.

Loot included $16 in money taken from Mr. and Mrs. Sturm's purses and her wrist watch, which the bandit was directed to take by a woman companion who remained in a shadow on the porch of the residence. After obtaining the loot the bandit pair left in Mr. Sturm's sedan, telling him it would be left on Seventh street.

The bandit was described as poorly dressed and nervous while in action. He told his victim he was hungry and that it was his first attempt at banditry.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Any man who can solve the depression can be president, says an economist. But why would a man like that want to be just president?

Avoiding the Dole

THE present hardly seems a good time to get worried about the chance that continued mechanization of industry will give workers more leisure time than they know how to use. But depressions do not last forever, and sooner or later, when all the wheels are turning again, we shall have to face the implications of the fact that the world's work can be done now in a lot less time than used to be the case.

William John Cooper, United States commissioner of education, pointed out the other day that we are still going to have an unemployment problem on our hands even when prosperity has returned; and he remarked, very pertinently;

"Many factories will not employ a man past 45. Shelving the aged means an old age pension system. Periodic unemployment means unemployment insurance, or doles, or something worse."

All of which, of course, simply means that if we are going to go on in the future as we have in the past, we must accept the unpleasant fact that the men for whom industry has no room must be taken care of somehow.

A year ago the word, "dole," was a word at which all good men shuddered. A few days ago a bill providing for a direct federal dole came within a mere handful of votes of passing the U. S. senate. The word is not as frightening as it was; in another year it will be even less so. Gradually and painfully, we are learning something.

Now all of the things that have been said against the dole are quite true. England provides thousands of living examples of the way in which the dole can sap manhood of its self-reliance and energy. But there is only one way of avoiding the dole—to rearrange industry so that there will always be work for a honest, capable and reliable workman.

Present conditions, to be sure, are abnormal. But when normal times return we shall have to keep that fact in mind. Unemployment, in other words, represents our greatest problem—a problem that is with us in good times as well as in bad times.

No 'War Birds' Wanted

CANADIAN dispatches reported the other day that 80 aviators, released from the Canadian Royal air force recently because of a governmental economy program, have offered their services to the Chinese government in its fight with Japan; but the Chinese consul general in Canada, after thanking them, explained that he knew of no way in which his country could take advantage of the offer, since no preparations have been made for taking on foreign fliers.

Only one American, to date, has served under fire as a flier for the Chinese aviation corps—and he was killed recently when Japanese airmen shot him down in flames a few days ago.

In this connection it is worth remembering that the U. S. consul general in Shanghai recently warned American aviators that Shanghai is no place for be-winged soldiers of fortune these days. The Chinese air force is small, and it evidently is not ready to recruit airmen from this side of the Pacific. The jobless aviator who would like to do a little fighting will, apparently, have to possess his soul in patience for a while.

A New Begging Racket

THE magazine Variety prints a dispatch from Hollywood that is surely one of the oddest of all the news stories produced by the depression. It is a story telling how panhandlers in the film capital have taken to hiring women and children to act as "supporting cast" for beggars.

It works like this; a beggar will engage a woman and child and will take them along as he goes down the street asking for quarters. Men who would ordinarily give him nothing grow soft-hearted when they see his supposed wife and child, and shell out liberally. The beggar, Variety says, can average from $10 to $14 a day in profit, after paying his "assistant" $4 a day.

The chief moral to be drawn from this little tale is: don't give money to street beggars. Make your contribution to a regular charitable organization and let it do the rest.

First Night

Blow the sweet trumpets—here comes Mrs. K.
Fresh from Nevada with a fresh decree.
She takes her seat—to her intense dismay,
Adjoining her sits husband number three.
Sound the hard brasses—down the center aisle
Comes Mr. J—a youthful 54.
His latest keptive wearns an angel smile—
A sable cloak—and not a great deal more.

Nor must be overlook that gay octet
Who saunter in at 9 with studied grace
To chirp and smile at people they have met
At Newport, Cannes or some gay watering place.

This poet hopes (the while he fumes and glares)—
The show holds acting half as fine as theirs! —DON WAHN.

Pepitaph No. 5

Added to the list of suggested epitaphs for W. W. (which will have to become a book some day, we hope) is James J. Green's, to-wit: "Here lies Walter Winchell with more dirt than he can use!"

Gag

J. J. Lewis eavesdropped the following gab in a general store in Maine. A traveling salesman had sold a bill of goods to a shopkeeper and was on his way down the street to see a competitor.

"No use calling him," said the rival. "He's all washed up, broke as the 10 commandments."

"Well," chirped the snappy comebacker, "maybe I can sell him a mirror so he can see himself starving to death."

The Big Gossips!

The Medina, N. D., Citizen (a newsy rag) has this to report under the title, "Peterson Township": "Lester Christopher made a trip to Medina Saturday after coal for the Chas. Peterson farm . . . Fred Ferguson is reported as some improved after his attack of rheumatism . . . The Osterman farmers were getting in a fresh supply of coal this week . . . Elmer Kohlhoff was a Sunday visitor at Bismarck . . . Our mail man is making the trip very nearly on schedule time . . . A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hans Butschat Wednesday. All concerned are doing nicely . . . It may be big news to some of us that Walter Whenchall gets good money but he doesn't say much either. Mostly about some woman getting a divorce in Reno or who has the best looking legs in Hollywood. Wouldn't it be nice if us farmers could make such a decent living in 5 years of our time?"

As If You Didn't Know

"No one, observes B. Holzman, "has devised a way of learning how to play the piano in 10 easy lessons—for the neighbors."

Stew Stuff

Francis W. Freeley tells of a pal who was suffering from hangover. He was explaining what happened the night before at his house. "I'll have to cut out likker," he said. "I got fried last night, the wife nagged me and I threw an ax at her, missing her by inches!"

"Gee, I should think you would swear off after that!" said the listener.

"I'll say I should," was the retort. "Booze spoils my aim."

The Squelch Sweetgant

Eddie Mayne has a lovely manner of crushing the type who slaps you on the back and chirps: "What's new?"

Mayne mangles him with: "Your brains, you dope!"

Nifty

From "Unkie"—"An egoist is a guy who changes his opinion every day except the one of himself."

Sid Parrygraph

A certain, big time comedian was boasting last night and among his remarks he chirped: "You know most of us comedians live by our wits."

"Really?" groaned a critic. "Who writes your gags?"

Oop!

"Whatever became of the gag 'suddenly taken drunk' that Bobby Clark uses with Paul McCullough at Holtz's Hollywood hit?"

"It was in Winchell's column the other day!"

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE EATER OF 750,000 PANCAKES—In celebrating his 20th wedding anniversary Willards Larsen, of Harrington, Cedar county, Nebraska, will have achieved the championship in pancake eating. Of the 1,716,720 pancakes which Mrs. Larsen has baked since her wedding day 20 years ago, the veteran farmer has eaten in excess of three-quarters of a million pancakes, himself. This quantity would stack up to a height of 12,500 feet, which is considerably higher than the highest peak in the North Swiss Alps.

The Story Of John N. Garner

'Jack' Battles Under The Banner Of Veteran Champ Clark

CHAPTER VIII

In the early days of the partnership of "John N. Garner and Wife," Mrs. Garner rarely, if ever, went to the capitol.

She converted a room in the K street boarding house into an office, and remained at home, where she could attend to the steadily increasing correspondence of the rising young congressman, and at the same time keep a motherly eye on Baby Tully.

In those far-off days the house office building had not been completed, and members of congress usually carried their offices around under their hats. Space was so inadequate in the capitol that members who could afford to do so rented private offices uptown. Generally the most prominent of representatives could be observed almost any time standing out in Statuary hall, with an arm draped lovingly over the huge calf of Ethan Allen's white marble leg, the while he dictated his correspondence to his secretary.

Mrs. Garner was always intending to give up her secretarial job, but she liked the work, the one child was very little trouble, and so, gradually, she remained as stenographer to her husband so long that it became virtually impossible for her to relinquish the job.

She had been with him, as secretary, from the old legislative days at Austin. She had typed every letter that had been written. She had the files at her finger tip. But more than this, she was carrying in her head a tremendous mass of facts—names, dates, places, events, political friendships, political enmities—everything going into the background of a man whose ambition in life, to reach the speakership, if possible, but to make a name for himself at all events, rested in the last analysis upon his ability to keep his seat in the house of representatives, from the 15th congressional district of Texas.

Her Husband's Secretary

Mrs. Garner, before long, reached the point where she could not let go of her work without doing her husband's cause injury. The intricate things she knew in so many subtle ways could not be transferred to the mind of any other person. So she kept on as her husband's secretary, and still continued to keep on as his secretary after he was elevated to the speakership. It is the most remarkable partnership political Washington has ever known, having endured now for more than 30 years. The habits of a lifetime are inextricably bound up in it.

Does Mrs. Garner advise other women to become their husband's secretary?

Strangely enough, she answers this query emphatically in the negative, despite the fact that she loves the work, and her "boss." It is exacting work. The labor is great. She would advise no woman to do as she has done. Even now she would step aside, if she could, but she is too much a part of the whole Garner experience. The habit is strong upon her. So all day long her typewriter clicks away. Letters are opened, read and answered, a thousand details are attended to. She rises early, and nearly every day is at the capitol an hour or more before her husband arrives there. In the evening, if they are to go out to a dinner, or he is to go alone, it is she who lays out his clothes, puts the studs in his shirts, ties his tie—wife, secretary, comrade, mother, all in one!

Longworth a Friend

A remarkable friendship, that between the two Garner partners. It was at the beginning of the 59th congress, in December, 1905, that the foundation was laid for another friendship, which, with the passing of the years, became a Washington institution. At this time Mr. Garner was abruptly taken off the committee on railways and canals, and placed at the bottom of the Democratic side of the committee on foreign affairs.

Near the bottom of the Republican side of the committee he first met a young Republican member from the Cincinnati district of Ohio, Nicholas Longworth. The wealthy aristocrat—than whom there has probably never been a more democratic man in congress—and the cowpuncher from the western plains of Texas, struck up a friendship that survived all political vicissitudes, through life. They became well-nigh inseparable, not only at the capitol, but "out of doors," as they would say in the house of commons. Nick and Jack! Bitter opponents politically, they fought each other tooth and nail. Neither, in the house, was ever known to yield the other a political advantage. Their parliamentary encounters are part of the traditions of the house. Uptown, of an evening, boon companions, at many a quiet little party.

Longworth had the entree into every exclusive home in America—Cincinnati, Washington, New York, Newport. Garner, while he, too, might have gone everywhere when he had become better known, rarely went any place. The Longworth home was one notable exception, but the company when the Garners visited there was generally small.

His Judgment Valued

There was probably nobody in the country whose political judgment was valued more by the natural-born politician from Texas, who had had the ingenuity, when he had wanted to come to congress, to create a district for himself, than was the political judgment of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Theodore Roosevelt's singularly talented daughter. Her salon was for years the center of high politics, especially during the fight on the League of Nations, which she whole-heartedly opposed and did much to defeat.

All through the early stages of Garner's career, the friendship between Nick and Jack continued. It grew stronger with each passing year. It lasted to the day of Longworth's death. It is more than a Washington tradition. It is a political epic.

Washington marvelled at this friendship, affecting to see something strange, and unaccountable in it. But the explanation, in fact, was an exceedingly simple one. Though one was a Republican, born to wealth and the "Social Register," and the other a Democrat, born to the hardships of a farm, both first of all were gentlemen, and each quickly recognized that fact.

Moreover, for all his western breeziness, John N. Garner, like Nicholas Longworth, was descended from fine old revolutionary and colonial stock. His ancestors had helped to found the government which both served, side by side in congress.

Both were lovable and friendly men, warm-hearted, generous, and of a happy disposition. Both enjoyed good fellowship, a well-told story, a good practical joke.

"Nick" Plays Joke

On one occasion, when Garner was spending his vacation on a fishing trip in Texas, Nick clipped from a newspaper a rather severe criticism of his friend, and rushed it to him by air-mail, with the explanation that he wanted him to enjoy himself thoroughly and have a good time. In the final analysis, both of these men were "square shooters." Doubtless, there were more subtle things, buried deeply in the nature of each, which drew them together. As Mr. Wodehouse once sized up a similar friendship:

"Who can trace to its first beginnings the love of Damon for Pythias, of David for Jonathan, of Abercrombie for Fitch? Who can explain what it was about Park that first attracted Tilford? We simply say, 'These men are friends,' and leave it at that."

So it was with Nick and Jack. If Longworth had lived a few months longer, Garner would have fought him for the speakership with all the energy, and political skill, and votes at his command, and Longworth would have fought back. And they would have remained friends through it all. This capacity for friendship, of John N. Garner, was to be strikingly exemplified during the world war, when for the first time he became a major figure in the house, strong, capable, dependable—and without the handicapping animosity of anybody. It enabled him to play an important, though confidential, part in the war.

Law Business Prospers

Where Garner and Longworth were headed in their early congressional days, when both, starting from scratch, only knew that they were on their way, neither could foresee. That both would reach the

Winter Coughs

Toward the end of winter whenever one is surrounded by a large number of people, as in a street car or theater, one is bound to hear the sound of coughing from every direction. Coughing often starts with a mild irritation of the throat which follows a cold, but it may develop into a habit. Coughing should be considered as a symptom and not a disease. Thus, in the ordinary cold the cough is at first dry and hard and coughing spells cause much distress. Later the cough begins to bring up the masses and strings of mucus. In this way one can tell something about the progress of the disorder. When a cough is well started in an acute disease such as bronchitis, there is little than can be done except to keep the patient warm, cut down the food supply, and let the disease take its course. When the cough has accomplished its purpose, which is the removal of the excessive impurities and mucus from the air passages, it will disappear unless the habit of coughing has been formed.

The cough at the beginning of a severe cold in the chest seems to be of little value, being at this stage an acute dry cough, but later it loosens and the patient begins to improve as soon as much mucus has been expectorated. Mothers are soon able to tell the difference between the various kinds of coughs, whether due to colds, croup, bronchitis or whooping cough.

A cough which lasts for a long time and becomes chronic should be heeded as a warning of danger. If coughing were properly cared for in the beginning, chronic coughing could be avoided and, as a rule, such serious troubles as chronic bronchitis, tuberculosis and pneumonia.

Coughing may do a great deal of harm by keeping the throat constantly irritated, by robbing the patient of sleep, causing soreness of the muscles of the throat and chest, besides being somewhat of a strain on the heart. A dry persistent cough which hises no mucus needs attention. Such patients may find that their cough is due to nervousness and should make an effort to control their cough by willpower, making a strong effort not to start coughing in the first place. It is easy to cause a cough by coughing as it only takes a few minutes for the throat to become irritated so that it constantly tickles, causing a continuation of the coughing. A temporary relief for simple coughs consists in sipping hot lemonade and honey, applying cold packs around the throat, and baking the upper chest under the deep therapy lamp.

The type of chronic raising cough belongs to the family of catarrhal disorders along with sinus trouble and influenza. If one has any of these disorders where the cough is secondary, I would suggest that you write to me and secure the instructions for overcoming the special disease which is causing the cough. It is useless to treat the cough by itself without overcoming the disorder which is responsible for it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Children Will Be Normal

Question—Miss Verdetta C. writes: "Recently I met a young man who was born a twin. His brother was normal in every way but died when he was very young. The young man of whom I am speaking was born with just one ear. My mother insists that his children can be born just as he is and also be minus other organs. He is quite a popular boy and I admire him, but am afraid to marry him unless I am sure it will be all right. I would like to hear from you as soon as possible."

Answer—It is quite unlikely that any children of the young man you inquire about will be born with abnormal ears, especially if his ancestors have not been marked in the same way. If he is normal in other ways, the inheritance from your side of the family will tend to prevent the defect from occurring again.

Conduct After Meals

Question—Mr. Oliver J. writes: "Please tell me what a person should do after meals, say for the first half hour. Should a person walk about, stand, sit down or lie down?"

Answer—Right after a meal it is a good plan to rest, either sitting or lying down for about a half hour if you can do so; however, this is not necessary unless one eats a very large meal.

Diverticulitis

Question—P. G. writes: "Kindly give me some information about diverticulitis."

Answer—Diverticulitis is a condition where small pouches form along the border of the colon and become filled with hardened feces which may give rise to inflammation or abscess. Liquid diet, manipulative treatments and the use of enemas give the greatest relief.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Bruce knew now that he would have to make a personal appearance at the Morse residence. He knew down in his heart that it was the only right thing to do, too, but he resented it. He smoothed down his hair and grabbed his hat. He was more anxious to find out about this other thing, this thing that was supposed to be coming off at his house on Friday than he was to apologize to Sybil.

He stopped at his aunt's door and called to her.

"I'm going, Aunt Eleanore," he said. "I didn't get what that was you wanted to tell Sybil about Friday night."

Mrs. Durand did not open the door. She had finished with her scene. She wanted no more of it. She didn't feel as if she desired to go through the ordeal of fainting tonight. Any way this little affair wasn't worth it. She had Bruce coming her way. She could see that. She therefore stayed inside and called out to him.

"I said that you should tell Sybil you will be looking forward to seeing her on Friday night at your house."

Bruce let it sink it, so that he was sure there was no mistake about it. "What's happening here on Friday night?" he asked.

"I'm having some of your friends over for a little party."

Bruce mumbled, "Oh."

"You haven't had any of them over in such a long time that I thought it would be rather nice for you. I'm doing it all for you, Bruce," Mrs. Durand added hurriedly.

"But why didn't you ask me first Aunt Eleanore," Bruce asked. "It so happens that I have made some arrangements for Friday."

There was a long pause in the room before Eleanore Durand could collect her thoughts. Not that she hadn't anticipated something like this. In fact, she welcomed it. But she desired her answer to sound plausible.

"I had intended to ask you, Bruce, darling," she said in a sweet tone, "but you were gone the other morning before I thought of it, and then it slipped my mind until today. I knew you'd be happy about it, though. You haven't had a party here for such a long time."

Bruce was sore. He wasn't angry, he was sore. He could see through the whole scheme as easily as if it had been covered over with a silk net. His aunt certain had lost her ability to pull the wool over his eyes. She used to be able to do it cleverly. Formerly he never found out until after the thing was all over. Now he could see through it all beforehand.

He could see also the outcome. He would either have to assert himself before his aunt and simply refuse to come to the party, thereby causing nothing less than a volcanic eruption, and consequent damage, or else he would have to throw himself at the mercy of Lois and beg her to understand him. He didn't know which to do. He stood there at the door for a few minutes quite unaware of the fact that his aunt was listening, waiting anxiously for him to move on.

Finally she said to him, "You'd better go, dear. Sybil may be going out and you'll want to catch her before she leaves. Why don't you call her first?"

Bruce started for the telephone, in fact he picked the instrument up in his hands. There was only one person he wanted to call. That was Lois. But he didn't feel free to do so while his aunt was so close. She would probably strain her ears to hear what he was saying.

"I'll go on over," he said more to himself than to any one else.

He slammed the door hard when he went out.

Mrs. Durand tip-toed out of her room and made sure that Bruce had gone before she came downstairs. Yes, he was climbing into his roadster. He slammed the door on that, too. None of these things escaped his aunt's attention, but she merely tossed them off as amounting to nothing in the long run. What if he was a little irritated now? Some day he would thank her for keeping him from doing such a foolish thing as marrying outside of his class. She wasn't going to have it, anyway, whether he liked it or not. And that seemed to be that.

She went down the steps into the library where Mr. Durand was sitting. "Well," she said, triumphantly. "Bruce is beginning to see his mistake!"

"Is he?" Mr. Durand remarked, disinterestedly. Mr. Durand had not had a chance to talk to Bruce yet. He must do that before it was too late. He must ascertain whether Bruce actually loved this girl. If Bruce did, then Charles Durand contended (to himself) there was not any reason why he shouldn't have her.

"I'm having a little party for him Friday night. Just an informal affair. Nothing elaborate," Mrs. Durand went on.

"Asking this girl of his?" Mr. Durand tried to make out as though he thought there was a possibility of his wife doing that when he knew that it was absurd even to think it. He knew in fact that the only reason Eleanore was giving the party was not to ask the girl.

"I am not," Mrs. Durand responded crisply. "You should know better. Please don't suggest anything like that in the presence of Bruce."

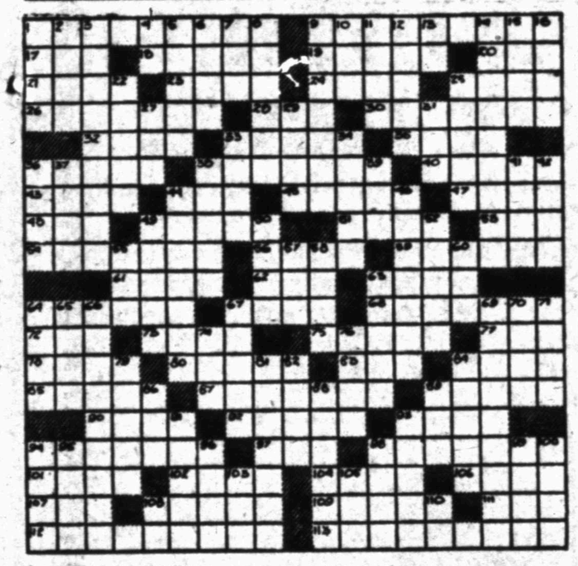

There was a flat silence.

"Anyway, a girl like that would feel terribly out of place among Bruce's real friends."

"Well, my dear," her husband said, "you seem to be the manager. I'll let you referee the game and I'll sit on the sidelines, if you don't mind, and be a spectator."

Electran on Honor Roll

"While the Middle West, South, and Pacific coast are represented by outstanding sprinters, not a single Honor Roll man in the 100-yard dash and only two in the 220-yard dash represent colleges east of the Alleghenies."

That is the manner in which the February issue of The Athletic Journal establishes the superiority of a vast number of college dash men over the big eastern college teams during the year 1931. The same article proceeds to list the 1931 stars included on the Honor Roll of the Track and Field Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association. And thereon apepars the name of Richard Houser of Electra, former Tiger track star who last year with the Texas Christian university track squad established the Southwest conference record in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.6.

Only two men in all the nation were able to beat Houser's time last year, and only one man was able to tie it. Frank Wykoff of Southern California and Emmett Toppino of Loyola at New Orleans are ranked ahead of Houser, both having made the dash in 9.5; and Eddie Tolan of Michigan equaled Houser's mark; but there are six other sprinters on the honor roll who could do no better than 9.7 in the 100-yard dash, and whose names are grouped below that of the Electran on the honor roll.

Houser's picture appears in the magazine in connection with the article, which comments on the former Electra High school boy as follows:

"He takes his track seriously and learns quickly. He runs with very smooth body movements, using a full arm action and high knee lift. His coach, Mark Clark, considers the principal reasons for his achievements are his mental alertness in starting and his large store of nervous energy which he conserves until the day of the meet, when, with every nerve and muscle a-tingle, he comes out of the holes almost as fast as he finishes. He did not jump the gun all last season and was always in the lead at the 10-yard mark.

"He holds the Southwest conference 100-yard record with a time of 9.6, which he made last year at the conference meet. A pulled muscle kept him from entering the National Collegiate meet in June. He has run the 220 in 21.2."

Houser, son of Mrs. John Houser of Electra, is in his third year at Texas Christian university. Last year was his first year of college competition. He graduated from the Electra High school in 1928. While in high school he was attentive to track and field sports but did not go out for football or basket ball.

A Tongue-Twister

Ever since I read the paper two Sundays ago I have felt a peculiar contortion of muscles surrounding what is commonly called the voice box, or, to be vulgar, the adam's apple; there seems to be a catch in my throat ever time I try to talk. All last week I tried to diagnose the ailment, with no success whatever. Finally, just when I had about made up my mind to consult a specialist, I discovered the trouble; I had been trying to pronounce the name of that second baseman the Spudders bought recently.

After being checked and double-checked, this guy's name was announced by the club as Ollie Bejma. That was bad enough. Imagine the general consternation, then, when it was discovered later that the "Ollie" part of it was merely an abbreviation for Aloysius!

So, then, it's Aloysius Bejma. The average baseball fan, we believe, can pronounce Aloysius without having to howl for a therapeutist afterwards; but let him tackle "Bejma" and he immediately becomes a fit candidate for the nearest clinic.

Our first inclination was to make the "Bej" part of the name rhyme with sledge, the pronunciation resembling something like Bedge-ma; and that effort, we believe, is what caused the pain in the thorax. Afterwards we decided to give the name a Spanish pronunciation, gurgling the "Bej" in such a way as to make it rhyme with "bay." That makes the pronunciation "Bay-mah," which admittedly is easier than the sledge-hammer version.

So until further notice, and in order to keep our doctor bill as low as possible, we are calling him Aloysius Bay-mah. When he arrives, of course, he may change all this. Let us hope it's for the better, and not the worse!

The task of pronouncing Bejma's name is almost as stupendous as the task Bejma himself faces this season in replacing the usually consistent Bear Allday at second base. The sale of Allday to the Galveston Pirates leaves the keystone sack position wide open to all who may want to claim it. And according to an authority whose word is as safe as a hoarded dollar, Bejma is going to be one of the leading second base contenders in Manager Severeid's flock.

The authority is Ray Cahill, of the St. Louis Browns' staff of scouts who personally scouted Bejma and on whose recommendation Mr. Unpronounceable was signed to a Spudder contract. Cahill writes that Bejma is not only a steady fielder, but a young, ambitious hustler who will make a valuable addition to this club. Bejma comes to the Spudders from Quincy, Ill., of the Three-Eye league. Let us hope that in that loop of the extra orb he acquired an adequate batting eye.

Red Sox Depart for Camp at Savannah

BOSTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today departed for their new training camp at Savannah, Ga. Manager John Collins headed the party, which included but two players, Justin McLaughlin and Bob Barr, Boston pitching prospects.

This player list, however, will be greatly augmented at New York.

FROG-BEAR TIE EXPECTED

Leaders Finish Chase With Southern Methodist

DALLAS, Feb. 28. (AP)—Five games this week will conclude the 1932 Southwest conference basket ball schedule.

The race goes into its final week with Texas Christian and Baylor tied for first place with nine wins and two defeats each. The two leaders conclude this week by playing the same team—Southern Methodist Mustangs. Baylor plays the Mustangs Tuesday night at Waco and Texas Christian Saturday night at Dallas.

Unless there is a tremendous upset, the title chase will end in a deadlock for Southern Methodist has won only one game this season while losing nine. It has not been decided definitely whether there will be a play-off in case of a tie.

In order to continue in a tie for the championship, both leaders played commendable basket ball Saturday night. The Christians, lead by the 20-point goal shooting of Adolph Dietzel, smothered Southern Methodist, 52 to 19. Baylor had a close call but managed to win from the University of Texas, 35 to 30.

The conference standing:

Team—	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	Op
Baylor	9	2	.818	382	311
Texas Christian	9	2	.818	404	283
Arkansas	6	4	.600	304	259
Texas	5	6	.455	289	328

DIETZEL SETS NEW RECORD

DALLAS, Feb. 28. (AP)—A new Southwest conference basket ball scoring record for one season has been established. Adolph "Too Tall" Dietzel beat his old record of 168-points last night when he scored 20 points against Southern Methodist university for a season total of 171 points.

In 11 games he has scored 69 field goals and 33 charity shots for 171 points. He has one conference game left to play. It will be against the weak defensive Southern Methodist team, and in it he will have a chance to establish a record for conference players to shoot at.

When Dietzel started against Southern Methodist he had collected 151 points. During the first period, Dietzel was held to six points. In the last 20 minutes, he broke loose and scored seven field goals, four of them in the last few minutes of play.

Dietzel's biggest individual scoring night was Jan. 16 against the Rice Owls when he looped 24 points. His parade to a new record follows:

Jan. 9, against Baylor, 9 points.
Jan. 16, against Rice, 24 points.
Jan. 20, against Texas, 15 points.
Feb. 6, against Texas, 16 points.
Feb. 8, against A. & M., 17 points.
Feb. 12, against Arkansas, 11 points.
Feb. 13, against Arkansas, seven points.
Feb. 16, against Baylor, 14 points.
Feb. 20, against Rice, 22 points.
Feb. 22, against A. & M., 24 points.
Feb. 27, against S. M. U., 20 points.

The first five in the Southwest conference scoring race follow:

Player, School—	FG.	FT.	Pts.
Dietzel, T. C. U.	69	33	171
Strickland, Baylor	44	31	119
Sumner, T. C. U.	39	27	105
Dixon, Rice	36	21	93
Hess, Rice	30	33	93

Campbell's Appetite For Speed Increases

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28. (AP)—More than 30 years behind the wheel of a racing car at full throttle on the roaring roads of three continents, seem merely to have stimulated the appetite of Sir Malcolm Campbell for more speed.

The British driver's latest and greatest achievements here have not satisfied him by a long shot, even though they include a new mile record of nearly 254 miles per hour and four other notable world records.

He sails back to England with his Bluebird II the end of this week supreme as the speed king on land, the only man ever to pilot an automobile over Dayton Beach's famous measured mile at an average two-way speed of better than four miles per minute.

But he won't be satisfied, he says, until he does this "speck of space" at the rate of five miles per minute or 300 miles per hour. This would mean exactly 12 seconds for the mile, if you can grasp the idea, which seems all quite simple, a matter of "luck" and conditions and Sir Malcolm.

He probably will have to build another machine if he does it. He has already spent more than $100,000 on the Bluebird but the best that he likely can ever get out of this car, under perfect conditions, is somewhere between 270 and 280 miles per hour.

Corsicana's Football Future Looks Bright

CORSICANA, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—All indications point to fine football teams in Corsicana for the next few years.

More than 40 boys in the ninth grade answered the spring football call issued by Coach John Pierce recently and more than 80 boys are in training at the Junior high school.

Coach Pierce stated he was expecting more than 200 prospects out within the next few weeks after basket ball is concluded.

"It looks like we will have good football teams here for the next few years at least," Pierce opined after recalling there would be 10 lettermen back from the 1931 University of Texas Interscholastic league semifinalist club in addition to a flock of promising reserves last fall. A number of the stars of last year's junior high club, winner of second place in the Central Texas Junior High league, will give the veterans competition.

Corsicana Tigers have advanced to the semifinals in the state race for the past two years.

HOUSTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Gus Moreland of Dallas today won medal honors in the Houston Country club's 18th annual golf tournament, defeating Willie Maguire Jr., of Houston in a play-off. They had tied during qualifying play in the tournament, which ended yesterday, each with 144.

Moreland took a 72 today, one over par, and Maguire a 78. The Dallas star went out in 35, one under par, but three-putted two greens coming back. Maguire was in trouble on the third hole, going into the trap for a seven, and at the seventh hole, where he went out of bounds and took a six.

Moreland won the tournament championship yesterday, defeating John Dawson of Chicago, 2 and 1.

DEMPSEY IN RING TONIGHT

Mauler Boxes at Dayton To Open 'Comeback Week'

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. (AP)—Call this "comeback week" in national fistic circles and let it go at that.

Jack Dempsey continues his exhibition tour; Benny Leonard, retired undefeated lightweight champion, tries again at New York; and Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight champion, returns to the ring after a long absence.

Dempsey boxes four rounds at Dayton tomorrow night and four more at Cincinnati Thursday night against a quartet of unknowns. Leonard, whose first comeback attempt here several months ago resulted in a questionable knockout victory over Pal Silvers, tries again at the St. Nicholas arena tomorrow night against Billy McMahon. New York welterweight. Delaney will meet Phil Johnson, Jersey City heavyweight, at Bridgeport, Conn., Thursday.

Boston, Hollywood and San Francisco come through with the "big" bouts of the week. Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, meets Johnny Indrisano of Boston in a 10-round non-title match in the Boston garden Friday; Stanley Poreda, Jersey City heavyweight, tackles Jimmy Flinker of Vallejo, Calif., in a 10-rounder at Hollywood Friday; and Young Corbett, Fresno welterweight contender, meets David Velasco of Mexico City at San Francisco Friday.

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 28. (AP)—Billy Burke, national open champion today won the Florida West coast open golf championship here with a 72-hole score of 288 and collected the first prize of $750.

Burke carded a 72 and a 76 on his two 18-hole rounds today to add to his 36-hole total of 140 yesterday.

Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, former national open champion, won second money of $500 with a score of 143-75-72—290.

Gene Sarazen, Great Neck, L. I., defending champion who barely qualified yesterday with a 36-hole round of 152, shot brilliant golf today to finish third with 291. He put together two sub-par rounds of 69-70 today and won $350 in prize money.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., finished fourth with 143-75-74—292 and received $200.

Babe Ruth, New York Yankee slugger and leading amateur at the end of 36 holes, had trouble today, completely "blowing up" on the final 18 to card a 95, and Bayard Mitchell, St. Petersburg beat him out for the "Simon Pure" prize. Ruth had a total of 339 compared with Mitchell's 317.

Happ Morse Discovers He Didn't Break His Ankle

DALLAS, Feb. 28. (AP)—Happ Morse, manager of the Dallas Baseball club, found today that he did not break his right ankle when he fell while officiating the S. M. U.-T. C. U. basket ball game last night at Fort Worth. However, ligaments in the ankle were badly torn and it was swollen twice its normal size up to the knee.

The injured leg will be placed in a cast tomorrow and Morse will have to remain in bed three or four days, but after that he will be able to get out with the aid of crutches. He probably will be forced to use crutches for two weeks and likely will be kept out of a baseball uniform for about a month.

Morse said he would take charge of his team with the start of spring training March 7.

Cy Leland, Now Radio Announcer, Hangs Up Track Shoes For Good

SPRING DRILL AT WELLINGTON

Early-Year Grid Practice Starts March 8

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Feb. 28.—With eight lettermen expected to turn out for spring training within the next two weeks, Jim Smith, Wellington High school coach, stated Saturday the Skyrockets would put forth one of the strongest football teams in the history of the institution.

"The line will especially be strong," Coach Smith said. "Six of the 1931 linesmen will take their places on the grid next fall and two of the backs will return. We have plenty of shifty backs coming up from the second string and should make a strong bid for the district championship."

Featuring elementary rudiments, tackling practice, passing, formations and punting, the 11 will start spring training in earnest Monday, March 8. Elmer Knox Jones and J. N. Cook, co-captains, also expressed their hopes for a strong eleven. Both men hold their letters for previous work on the eleven and their experience is expected to be of great assistance to the Skyrockets, when they make their debut next fall.

Lettermen who will turn out for spring practice are Elmer Knox Jones, J. N. Cook, Barney Glenn, Venus Gillespie, Lloyd Wooldridge, Homer Willoughby, Dwight Robertson and J. M. Strong.

Seniors Ahead in Vernon Intramurals

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 28.—With 43 points to their credit the seniors are well on their way to receive high honors in the final round of the Vernon High school intramural meet to be held Monday afternoon. In the opening round Friday afternoon, the juniors were runnersup to the seniors with a total of 19 points.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 28. (UP)—The spiked shoes of Cy Leland, "The Paddock of the Southwest," have been hung on their peg for good, the Texas Christian university flash announced today.

Leland, who sped to fame on tracks in New York, Chicago, California, England, South Africa and numerous other localities during the past five years, said he would race no more, meaning he will forsake the Olympic trials.

Leland first gained national recognition during 1929, when he was considered the fastest man then playing football. He started at T. C. U. on the gridiron as a backfield man. In 1930 he established himself as one of the fastest track men in the country. His arch rival then was Claude Bracey of Rice institute, whom he defeated several times. He established a record time that year at the Drake relays to defeat Bracey in the 100-yard dash.

During his racing career, however, Leland was never able to beat Frank Wyckoff, the Southern California star.

Leland's present occupation is radio announcer. He is heard regularly over station WBAP here. His duties make it impossible for him to undergo the severe training necessary to keep apace present day track stars, he said.

Allison Wins Net Title at Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28. (AP)—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Texas, won the singles championship of the second annual Pan-American tennis tournament here today by defeating George Lott, Chicago, defending champion, in straight sets, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

Lott and Marcel Rainville, Toronto, Ont., Canadian champion, won doubles honors in the tournament by their defeat of Allison and J. Gilbert Hall, East Orange, N. J., 7-5, 6-4, 6-1.

The Texan, by his victory, scored one leg on the Pan-American trophy. Lott has a leg on the trophy by virtue of winning the championship last year.

HOUSTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Charles Sloan's crisp driving proved more than Karl Kamrath could handle today as the Houston city champion defeated the young Texas university tennis star, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, in the feature match at the River Oaks Country club.

The Story of John N. Garner

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

speakership was doubtless beyond the psychic powers of either to foretell. Garner had prospered in his Uvalde law business, and had become a successful banker, and small farmer. He had a talent for achievement in anything. In the 60th congress he introduced a bill of his own providing for an elastic currency. This showed the banking influence. He understood finance from experience.

Early in 1909 the house was thrown into a furore of excitement by a clause in Mr. Roosevelt's annual message in consequence of which it was claimed that the president had committed a breach of the privileges of the house. This was contained in a criticism of the house for its failure to make certain appropriations for the secret service, the president asserting, in effect, that a chief argument against so doing was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men. It was held to be to all intents and purposes, a charge that the house had acted to shield criminals and to shield themselves.

Wave of Indignation

There was a wave of indignation, and President Roosevelt was bitterly scored, by members of his own party as well as by Democrats. By the non-partisan vote of 212 to 36 the offensive language was "laid on the table," which was a humiliating parliamentary slap in the face. Garner was one of those who thus voted against the distinguished father-in-law of his bosom friend, Nick Longworth. His friendships have always survived such incidents, in Texas, as well as in Washington. He is that sort.

So far as Texas was concerned, the young congressman, with his feet fairly well familiar with the Washington ladder, played his political game with consummate skill. Each election he had an opponent, but, remarkably enough, never the same opponent twice. Those who tried to get his congress seat away from him and failed, wound up by being his friend and his supporter the next time.

No campaign he ever fought—and he has fought some hard ones—ever left behind it any bitterness. He even became great friends with E. H. R. Green, who had financed the campaign of his opponent in his first fight to go to congress. Green used to beat him, in the after days, playing billiards, but he never could beat Jack Garner playing politics. After a while he gave up trying.

Retains Popularity

It was soon observed in the Uvalde district, that though a part of it was strongly Republican, and increasingly so in more recent years, John N. Garner always got from 2,000 to 5,000 Republican votes. Garner was always fair, and this fact began to sink in. He appointed Republican boys as well as Democratic boys to West Point and Annapolis, never letting partisan politics interfere with obtaining the best material his district offered for the army and navy. When possible he gave the appointments to the sons of poor widows, and usually he had to dig down into his own pocket to help them pay their expenses to go north to take their examinations.

Still, although he soon found himself, by industry and prudence, in comfortable circumstances, he was never, in the accepted sense, a rich man, and is not a rich man today.

CHAPTER IX

John N. Garner, in his early days in the house of representatives, felt crushed and smothered. And no wonder!

The most ruthless political oligarchy that had ever appeared in America ruled it with an iron fist.

At the head of this organized despotism stood Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, the speaker. The rules by which he governed like a czar had been perfected by Thomas B. Reed. The machine which he dominated was small. It was the perfect close corporation.

The heart of this machine was the committee on rules, of which the speaker himself was the chairman, and whose members he appointed.

In fact, the speaker named all the committees, and appointed their chairmen, and moreover, he used the power of "recognition" in a way that enabled him to dominate the house, by ignoring, in a legislative way, those who were outside the pale.

There were rumblings against this autocracy in the 58th congress, but they were faint. Storm clouds grew darker in the 59th congress, where men like Garner of Texas, of the minority party, had little or no voice in the making of important laws. The speaker and a handful of Republican leaders determined which bills should be passed, and which should not be passed. From this political tyranny there could be no redress save through force.

As was natural, the Democrats, Garner among them, were sullen and resentful. On the Republican side an insurgent movement began, at first so puny that it was laughed at by the bosses.

President Taft called the 61st congress in extraordinary session, and it met on March 15, 1909, for the purpose of enacting a new tariff law. Mr. Taft, singularly lacking in clairvoyance, did not perceive that this law, plus insurgency, were to spell his political doom.

Champ Clark Fights

There was one man on the Democratic side of that house who was an orator, a statesman, a parliamentarian of exceptional skill and learning, and a grim fighter.

This was the Democratic leader, Champ Clark, of Missouri. The lieutenants trained in Democratic government by him are today the leading spirits of the house of representatives under a new and wholesome regime.

On the opening day of the extra session, Champ Clark arose in his place and offered an amendment to the rules, removing the speaker from the chairmanship of the rules committee, and transferring from the speaker to the house itself the power to appoint this committee. It also increased the membership of the committee from five to 15 members. It was the first attempt to break down "Cannonism." From the point of view of the ruling oligarchy, it was as deadly as dynamite.

John N. Garner, a devoted follower of Champ Clark, voted with his leader. The motion was lost, the supporters mustering but 180 votes against the 203 commanded by the oligarchy. Of the 180, only 166 were of Champ Clark's own party. Fourteen insurgents boldly braved "Uncle Joe" Cannon to his face, and suffered for it, by loss of place and influence in the house.

In the midst of the debate Mr. Garner of Texas arose and asked a pertinent question.

Calls It Great Battle

In reply Champ Clark said that the liberals of the house had entered upon a great battle.

"We had to fight the power of the machine in this house," said he, "and nobody appreciates the power of the machine more than I do. We had to fight the influence of the president of the United States, new in office, with the pap undistributed, and lots of hungry people. In addition to that the entire force of the cabinet was enlisted against us. In addition to that the 'regular' senators were enlisted against us, and whether they have drafted the supreme court or not I do not know."

A few Democrats did not stand with Clark in this first fight for the enfranchisement of the house of representatives, but Garner stood with Clark, then and thereafter.

On July 31, 1909, the house finally voted to agree to the conference report on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, which passed, on this, the final and decisive ballot, by the narrow margin of 195 to 183. Here again John N. Garner followed his great leader, Champ Clark, and voted against the bill, which finally became law, by the president's signature, Aug. 5th. It was William Howard Taft's political death warrant. But it was a good omen for Garner.

In the following session of the same congress, Garner took part in the most momentous political revolution in the history of the United States, in which he fought shoulder to shoulder with the leader of his party.

The second revolt against "Cannonism" occurred on March 16, 1910. A parliamentary reform known as "calendar Wednesday" had previously been adopted, to permit members to obtain action on bills which the oligarchy had hitherto smothered in committee. On this historic date Speaker Cannon sought to over-ride this "calendar Wednesday," there was an appeal from the decision of the chair, and Cannon was overruled.

Follow Up Advantage

The following day this advantage was followed up by George W. Norris, now the progressive Senator from Nebraska, who offered a resolution proposing to abolish the committee on rules, of five members, and substitute an elective committee of 15, which should select its own chairman, and of which the speaker should not be a member. It was practically identical with Champ Clark's proposal which had been made a year before.

Garner threw himself into this fight on the side of Champ Clark. The battle was the most memorable in the annals of congress. Cannonism was dethroned, and for the first time since the establishment of the government, by this and subsequent reforms, the speaker was stripped of his arbitrary powers, was removed from the rules committee, was deprived of the right to name the committees, and the ruling power in the house was restored to the membership of the house, where it still reposes.

Although this is commonly referred to as an insurgent victory, the ground work for the revolutionary reform was laid by Champ Clark, of Missouri, was made possible only in consequence of the loyal support of Democrats like John N. Garner, and progressive Republicans of the stamp of Norris, of Nebraska. They fought shoulder to shoulder, but without the whole body of Democratic votes the handful of insurgent Republicans would have been powerless.

Progressive Influence

It was inevitable that a man of John N. Garner's natural aptitude for parliamentary strife, and of his inate sense of justice and fairness, should have been profoundly influenced by this progressive movement in the house of representatives.

It did influence him in many ways. He became, for one thing, a student of and a recognized authority on the rules of the house. It was, and is, necessary for a member to know these rules in order to obtain his rights as the representative of a constituency, and secondly, to become a force in the house. Garner, from the outset, nursed the ambition to become a power in the body of which he was a member.

Fighting such a brave fight under such an inspiring leader as Champ Clark, the Texan became impregnated with the spirit of liberalism. And at the same time he gained an intimate knowledge of the machinery by which so vast a body as the house of representatives is necessarily governed.

Garner emerged from this contest, which extended over a considerable period before all the reforms were finally accomplished, one of the most astute parliamentary leaders in the house, master of the rules and precedents, which are bewildering in their immense volume, having come down, as they have, from the first congress in 1789.

Helps Elect Clark

Although the Republican party lost the house in the following elections, President Taft called the 62nd congress in extra session on April 4, 1911, to consider Canadian reciprocity, and Garner had the great satisfaction of helping with his vote to elevate Champ Clark to the speakership.

Ten days later he voted with Clark in favor of the law providing publicity for campaign expenditures.

Garner followed the leadership of Clark so closely that he also voted for the reciprocity bill, although originally his district had been against the principle of reciprocity. Speaker Clark himself on this roll call took the floor and asked that his name be called that he might vote for it himself, an unusual thing for a speaker to do, except to break a tie.

By this time John N. Garner was recognized as one of the outstanding leaders on the Democratic side of the house.

His spurs had been won.

It would not be long before he received them.

DANIEL TALKS ON SYMPATHY

Jesus' Love for Friends Extolled in Address

Sympathy with the griefs and joys of other persons is one of the first elements of true greatness in one's character, Roy J. Daniel told members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

Mr. Daniel discussed the New Testament account of Jesus' return to Bethany to recall his friend Lazarus from the tomb, and of the Master's weeping to behold the grief of those who had gathered there.

Mr. Daniel's address in part was as follows:

"The miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead brings to our attention the three lessons of faith, of sympathy, and of the power of God. A lesson of faith is brought to our attention by the conduct of the two sisters of Lazarus at the time of his sickness and death. The lesson of sympathy is shown by the conduct of Jesus on that occasion. And the lesson of the power of God is brought out by the returning of life to the body of Lazarus after he had lain in the tomb four days.

Grief for Friend

"Martha and Mary were the two sisters of Lazarus, and together the three formed a very happy home circle and lived in the town of Bethany, about a mile and a half from Jerusalem. Jesus visited in their happy home quite often, and partook of their unselfish hospitality. Not very long after one of those visits to their Bethany home, Jesus went to Perea, some 20 or 25 miles away from Jerusalem, to be away from His enemies, which were increasing in the capital city. And it was while Jesus was at Perea that Lazarus the brother became ill. The sisters of course thought of their friend who had made the blind man see. They believed that Jesus would help them. So they sent messengers to Perea to see Jesus and to tell Him that Lazarus was ill, and to ask Him to go restore the brother to the sisters. Jesus through the divine nature knew all and saw all, but He delayed for four days to answer the sisters' appeal. Then in disregard of His bitter enemies in Jerusalem He returned to Bethany. One of the sisters (I believe it was Martha) went out from Bethany to meet Jesus, and she said, 'If you had been here our brother would not have died.' They believed that he would have lived. The fact that the sisters sent messengers for Jesus, and the statement that one of them made to Him near Bethany prove their faith in Him and faith that He could have saved their brother.

"The death of His friend Lazarus and the deep grief of His friends the sisters wrung the soul of the Savior. Jesus wept. (The shortest verse in the Bible). A crowd had gathered, and some one made the remark that surely one who could restore sight to blind eyes could have prevented the death of Lazarus. But Jesus made no answer to their remarks. With tears upon His cheeks, He was overwhelmed with sympathetic grief for His dead friend and his sisters. His grief was so deeply sympathetic and sincere that His enemies there in the crowd could not help but be touched by it, and they remarked: 'See the grief of the man for his friends.' One of the greatest qualities we can develop is the quality of sympathy. It is impossible for us to be able to understand unless we are able to sympathize. What makes it possible for us to be able to give a hungry man on the street two bits of the last half dollar we have? We can sympathize with the man because perhaps before we got the half dollar we likewise were hungry in some strange city. We can sympathize with those who are going through things we have gone through. What a splendid example of sympathy we have where General Lee met the repulsed men of Pickett's charge at Gettysburg and said, 'My brave men, it was not your fault. It was all my fault. I am the one to blame.' No man is ever greater than his ability to sympathize. What great sympathy was shown when Ruth decided to accompany her mother-in-law to a strange country and to a strange land and race, and when she said, 'Thy people shall be my people, and their God shall be my God.' The actions of Jesus at the home of Martha and Mary teach us the great lesson of human sympathy.

"Jesus inquired where they had lain Lazarus. They then went to the tomb, and Jesus asked that the stone to the opening be removed. Mary remarked that her brother's body must be in a badly decomposed state because he had been dead four days. Jesus prayed a prayer of thanks to God for having heard His petition, and then cried out: 'Lazarus, come forth.' And Lazarus came out of the tomb covered with grave clothes and the napkin about his face. Jesus ordered the grave clothes to be cut from Lazarus, and he was restored to life and to his sisters. Jesus restored Lazarus to life not for His own glory and to impress the crowd, but He restored him to show the power of God and to impress the crowd with the power and glory of the Heavenly Father.

Faith Needed

"During the past three hundred years the people in the United States have expanded from the Atlantic coast westward until we extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada on the north to the Gulf on the south. In 1783 the United States covered the territory from the Atlantic to the Mississippi river. In 1803 Louisiana territory was added, Florida next became a part in 1819. In 1845 the empire of Texas was made a part of the United States. In 1846 Oregon became ours in spite of English trappers and traders. The Mexican cession of 1848 gave us California and what we have called the Golden West. The Gadsden purchase of the southern end of Arizona and New Mexico in 1853 completed the rounding out of continental United States. For generations people streamed westward. The Ohio and the Mississippi and the Missouri were covered with boats. The Oregon trail was covered with prairie schooners. Horace Greeley in New York said, 'Go West, young man, go West.' 'Westward Ho!' was the cry. But now we have reached the time and place where there is no longer any new West to go to. Yet permit me to call your attention to the spirit land in the West that all of us are moving toward each day of our lives. It is a Western land that every one of us will reach some day sooner or later. It is a land that can be reached only by passage through the grave or earthly death—the promised land of God, the happy land of 'Beginning Again" where all our broken dreams come true. Faith will make it possible for us to reach the happy western spirit land, and the power of God will keep us there forever. The class song of this Bible class tells about the land of beginning again:

" 'There is a land of beginning again,
Where skies are always blue.
Though we have made mistakes, that's true,
Let's forget the past and begin life anew;
Though we have wandered through a river of tears,
Where sunshine won't come through.
Let's find that paradise, where sorrow can't live,
And learn the teachings of forget and forgive,
In the land of beginning again,
Where broken dreams come true'."

Jesus' Tears Were For Sins Of World As Well As For Lazarus, Class Told

Tears of grief shed by Jesus at the tomb of Lazarus were shed not only for the death of a friend, but for the vortex of sin and doubt into which the world has moved, Judge P. A. Martin told members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

The speaker based his address upon the twoword declaration, "Jesus wept." The sentence proves, he said, that Jesus "had all the emotions and weaknesses of other men, to bring forth tears, and groaning, under the influence of deep sorrow."

Judge Martin spoke as follows:

"The raising of Lazarus from the dead is the subject of the lesson for today. The incident is recorded in the gospel of John alone, and, in view of the fact that Lazarus had been dead four days, it is regarded as the greatest of the miracles of Jesus, showing forth his Godly power.

"Many are the sermons we have heard preached upon the incident; sermons on the resurrection, on divine power, on the majesty of the Master, exhibited in the command, 'Lazarus, come forth,' and on the human instrumentality that brought the Master to the tomb and that removed the habiliments of the grave from the resurrected body; in fact a hundred good lessons are to be found in the text of this assignment.

Shortest Verse

"I shall use only one and that one the shortest verse in the Bible, consisting of only two words, 'Jesus wept.' As I studied this lesson, I asked myself why did the old apostle find it necessary to record the apparently insignificant fact that the Son of God wept as he approached the tomb of Lazarus. Did he not know that there would appear to some of his readers something incongruous in the spectacle of One vested with all power in the heaven and in the earth, knowing, as he undoubtedly did know, that in a few moments He would restore the dead brother to the loving arms of his sisters, and weeping just like an ordinary human as He approached the grave where He would assert His divinity? Why should He weep at all? And, even if He did weep, why be so particular as to record the fact in these two short words?

"I think I have found the answer to these questions; at any rate I have satisfied myself about the matter. The writer recorded this to show the world that the Savior of men had all the emotions and all the weaknesses that mankind is heir to and that under influence of deep emotion, His bosom heaved, His eyes shed tears and His groaning broke forth from His lips just like other men. He knew with those who wept and rejoiced with those who rejoiced. It is true that there is no recorded instance when Jesus laughed, but I am convinced that He was no gloomy figure at a feast or a kill-joy at a wedding. I cannot imagine Him as a funeral figure at the marriage in Cana of Galilee where He made wine of the water for the guests of the bride and bridegroom, to add to the festivities of the occasion. One who can weep with his friends can laugh with them if occasion offers.

"If this part of the transaction had been omitted in St. John's gospel the reading world, lost in wonder and amazement at the mighty exhibition of his God-hood might have lost sight of that other nature, the nature of the Son of Man, as he proclaimed himself to be and might have forgotten that his tears are ever ready to be mingled with our own in time of distress.

"In the little village of Bethany, just outside the walls of Jerusalem there lived two sisters, Martha and Mary and their brother, Lazarus. The brother was the bread-winner, Martha was the housekeeper, the cook and the maid of all work while Mary was the religious leader of the three, something of a religious student and philosopher. She it was who "chose the better part" to sit at Jesus' feet and listen to His words of wisdom when He visited their humble home. It seems that He was on terms of intimate friendship with this family and probably visited them frequently. They had implicit faith in Him and when the brother was taken sick sent messengers to persuade Him to come at once, but He purposely delayed His coming until he had been dead four days, had been laid away in his tomb and a gathering of friends had come to the house to comfort the bereaved sisters.

Wept for World

"And when Jesus wept these friends said 'Behold how He loved him.' They could easily understand this human manifestation of love and we who read can understand it too and find comfort in the fact that He did have this love for His fellowman and this heartfelt sympathy for those in grief and bereavement. And yet, I do not believe that the death of Lazarus and the grief of his sisters was all that moved the Son of Man to tears and groans. Yonder on the hill, scarce a mile and a half away was Jerusalem, the holy city with its teeming thousands to whom death should come, and, looking down through the ages He saw the multiplied millions to whom death should come in all its horrible forms. Death, grim, implacable death, the common enemy of all mankind of all ages. He had come into the world to offer them life, an abundant life, and even some of the people who should witness His raising of Lazarus would reject Him and crucify Him in a few days at the behest of His enemies, and is it not reasonable that he shed some of those tears for you and for me, as well as for those millions who lie in their graves having none to roll away the stone is it not reasonable to think that in that moment he looked down the vista of the ages and saw the present day world, plunged headlong into a vortex of sin and doubt rather than resting in the everlasting arms of faith and love? The writer of the old hymn evidently thought so when he penned the lines:

" 'The Son of God in tears,
Angels, with wonder, see;
Be thou astonished, O my soul,
He shed those tears for thee!
He wept that we might weep,
Each sin demands a tear,
In heav'n alone no sin is found,
And there's no weeping there.'

"Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was, in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.' "

COP IS "BOGEYMAN"

BOGOTA, Columbia.—Mothers wishing to curb the unruly spirits of their offspring have put the police of this country in an evil situation. The mothers insist that the cops are "bogy men" and that they'll "get" the children if they aren't good. In an effort to relieve this misunderstanding, police have made a house-to-house canvass, during which they distributed 15,000 toys to children.

'BOMB WIZARD' PERFECTS ACE

Devastating War Machine Offered to World

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (US)—Through a secret method of destruction, entire cities can be wiped out by remote control, Lester P. Barlow, "bomb wizard" of the world war said tonight.

Barlow arrived in Washington to place his new agency for destruction, which he said was "almost too terrible to contemplate," before congress, with a view to use it to compel a limitation of world land armaments. He explained:

"This new and devastating agency of death could be used successfully against any city in 24 hours.

"It's radius of action is 1,000 miles. It would require a personnel of 5,000 men to carry it out and but few would ever be in a hazardous position at any time.

"The operation of a single equipment would wipe out a section of 2,500 feet wide and 6,000 feet long."

Well Known Engineer

Barlow is a well known engineer of Stamford, Conn., whose deadly inventions of the world war, particularly in airplane bombs and depth bombs, were used by the United States government.

So terrible is his new secret, he declared, that he will place it before congress only under guarantees that the secret be not divulged.

Barlow laid his proposal before Chairman McSwain of the house military affairs committee. He seeks no compensation for his secret, he said.

He wants congress to grant him authority to reveal his secret to four members. If they declare it is all that he claims for it, Barlow wants a commission to take it to the Geneva disarmament conference and place it before the powers. Barlow said:

"I am an engineer and for once an engineer, not the international bankers or the diplomats holds all the cards.

Picks His Confidantes

"I insist on naming the four members of congress to whom I will reveal this terrible secret. I have in mind two Republicans and two Democrats. I will reveal it to Chairman McSwain, Democrat, and Representative LaGuardia, Republican, to either Senator Borah or Senator Frazier, both Republicans, and to one Democratic senator.

"They must be pledged to keep it secret unless this nation should become involved in war. I also am ready to reveal it under the same pledge to two practical national defense men, one former General William Mitchell of the army air corps."

Barlow warned that if this government fails to accept his proposal he is prepared to place the matter before either Premier Mussolini of Italy or Stalin of Russia, two nations who are sincere for disarmament.

Using this new agency for destruction Barlow declared:

"All Japanese cities could be destroyed from the mainland of China.

"Italy could operate from within her borders against Spain, France and Germany.

"Russia from within her borders could reach all Japanese cities, Germany, France and Poland.

"The units of this destructive agency may be high explosive, incendiary, lethal gas or combinations of all three."

One of Barlow's unusual inventions during the world war was an airplane bomb which would explode at a certain distance above the ground no matter what distance it was dropped from a plane.

An aviator desiring to blast troops lying prone on the ground could set the bomb to explode a foot before it reached the earth. In the case of stand troops or transport trains, the bomb could be exploded exactly when it was five or six feet above the earth.

Wellington Scouts Clean 200 Yards

Special to The Record News

WELLINGTON, Texas, Feb. 28.—Thirty Boy Scouts cleaned up over 200 yards during the past week in a city-wide clean-up campaign, according to J. L. Anderson, scoutmaster.

The scouts started on the four sides of the town and worked toward the center, cleaning every yard that was strewn with debris and dirt. They also hauled several loads of garbage to the city dumping grounds and instructed housewives in the manner necessary to prevent disease through the proper disposal of waste materials.

All persons who called the scout headquarters asking for assistance in spading up flower beds were rewarded with a patrol of scouts answering the call. Scouts Alexander Saied and Page Wilson were given official scout knives for being the most efficient during the clean up week.

Oldtimers at Amarillo Tell History of Lake

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—"Wild Horse lake in Amarillo isn't a lake any more, and besides it isn't in Amarillo," say those who are preparing a history of Amarillo.

The historic old lake bed lying north of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad and northwest of the main Amarillo business section was once designated on the maps as Wild Horse lake. Oldtimers—at least some of them—now claim that Wild Horse lake was near St. Francis, 12 miles northeast of Amarillo.

They say the lake was once called Broncho lake and Mustang lake, and "the lake at the head of Amarillo creek." From the last mentioned designation the lake came to be known as Amarillo lake, and was an important watering place for cattlemen.

Since engineering plans have changed the drainage of the surrounding territory, now crisscrossed with city streets, the lake bed is dry most of the time.

Tri-State Fair To Open At Amarillo

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—Many improvements have been made at the Tri-State fair grounds here in preparation for the annual Amarillo fat stock show, which opens Monday.

Livestock received for the show this year will be hauled on a new extension track to loading docks at the show barns inside the fair grounds. It was necessary to build almost a mile of track. Repairs have been made on all the show pens, new concrete walks have been constructed and drainage gutters built where needed.

The show management has announced the best accommodations for competitors and visitors in the show's history.

Bill Lampe, fair president and director of the show, said interest in the annual stock exhibition could be measured by the entry of 175 baby beeves by club boys and girls of 20 Panhandle, eastern New Mexico and western Oklahoma counties. The number, which was announced several days in advance of the close of entries, was 15 above last year's record entry. Other departments of the show, Lampe said, will be equally as large.

The Panhandle Cattle Raisers' association will hold its annual convention in Amarillo in conjunction with the fat stock show.

Horse Thief Handled In Old West Style

DALHART, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—An alleged "horse thief," roped and tied in the true manner of the old West, recently was delivered at the Dallam county jail to Sheriff Harvey D. Foust.

The delivery was made by Holt Holloway and Arthur Farmer, for whom the man had been working. The victim had been run down near the New Mexico line after taking a horse and saddle that belonged to Holloway and Farmer.

Tied with a lariat, the man was hauled before the sheriff in the turtle back of a car.

A textile school to revive declining French-Canadian handicrafts has been established in Quebec by the provincial government.

RUBIO OUTLINES MEXICAN PLANS

Economic Policy of Republic Explained

By EDWARD J. BING

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 28. (UP)—"Abolition of the gold standard certainly has not hampered the economic recovery of the world and Mexico's 25 years experience with the gold standard seems to bear out this," President Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico declared in a United Press interview today.

"The gold standard was introduced into Mexico in 1905 and I do not think it has shown any marked advantage to the country," President Ortiz Rubio stated. "While Mexico will avoid anything that may be considered systematic inflation of her currency, I do not think that rigid maintenance of the gold standard would assist either our country or world trade generally."

Two Big Problems

President Ortiz Rubio received the correspondent at Chapultepec palace. He was at his desk beneath a painting showing him in company with Gen. P. E. Calles and J. E. Obregon.

"Mexico must constantly keep her eye on two questions, one being a revival of international trade relations, and the other regeneration of her own economics," the president said. "I cannot think of any problem more urgent than these two.

"I believe that radical disarmament throughout the world is an indispensable prerequisite to lasting improvement in the economic situation. Mexico, being unarmed herself, will not only welcome as far reaching a disarmament as possible, but will cooperate in every action directed toward that end. Armaments have had the double disastrous effect of increasing the suspicion and distrust among the nations adding to their already far too cumbersome economic burdens. This is why disaramament is at least as urgent a task for civilized nations as is a revival of international trade itself.

Economic Policy

"Mexico's economic policy in the near future will be dictated by the world-wide economic depression and will not be merely that of reducing imports wherever possible but also will be to encourage our Mexican home industries. Far from intending to pursue a narrow-minded policy of isolation, however, Mexico will do nothing that would exceed the necessities of economic recuperation and she will avoid any kind of economic or other discrimination regarding other countries.

"This attitude also applies to our immigration policy because, when the economic situation of our country again permits increased immigration, the usefulness of the individual immigrant, his fitness for cooperation in the welfare of Mexico and not racial, national or political discrimination will inspire the attitude of our government towards those who desire to make Mexico their permanent home.

Wichita District C. E. Names Officers

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 28.—With the Saturday morning session of the Wichita District Christian Endeavor convention devoted almost entirely to conferences, Rev. R. E. Austin of Seymour was in charge of the opening period.

Approximately 100 delegates were present at the Fellowship banquet given at the high school cafeteria Saturday evening. Yells and songs were given by the different towns represented.

Following the banquet, the delegates adjourned to the Central Christian church where Dr. Nat E. Grafton of Wichita Falls delivered the main address with "Prayer Plus" as his subject.

At the business session the following district officers were elected: President, Miss Cora Mitchell, Quanah; vice president, Horace Lovelady, Vernon; secretary, Inez Herring, Vernon; treasurer, Janet Snuggs, Wichita Falls.

Near the close of the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dale, state Christian Endeavor workers from Dallas, arrived to participate in the convention.

Historic Flag Pole Is Moved to New Mobeetie

MOBEETIE, Texas, Feb. 28. (AP)—Many oldtimers of the Panhandle came to Mobeetie on George Washington's birthday to attend the removal of the flag pole at Old Fort Elliott to a new location on the school grounds in New Mobeetie.

The old flag pole was first erected when the fort was established to protect settlers against Indians. It was later moved to the old town of Mobeetie, but the town moved to the Clinton, Oklahoma and Western railroad when it came through three years ago, leaving the flag pole behind.

Oldtimers present included two who were born in the vicinity of Mobeetie about 1870.

Smith And Roosevelt Forces To Wage Battle For Delegates In Vermont

FRIENDS OF AL DEMAND VOTE FOR CHAMPION

Rosevelt Backers Already Claim the State For Governor

CONGRESS SEETHING

Tom Connally of Texas And George Moses Swap Out On Accusations

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—A contest for delegates pledged to Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination will be made in Vermont, James E. Kennedy, former Democratic national committeeman from that state, announced tonight after a conference with Mr. Smith.

Friends of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt have claimed support for his presidential candidacy in Vermont. There is no presidential primary there, but delegates will be selected at a state Democratic convention.

Mr. Kennedy told Mr. Smith he has a strong following in Vermont which insists that they be given an opportunity to send delegates to the national convention pledged to him.

Mr. Smith reiterated his statement that he would not personally make a fight for delegates, but that he would not undertake to stop friends who may wish to do so for him.

POLITICAL BATTLE RAGES IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Congress hauled down its "politics adjourned" flag today and entered the presidential campaign debate with a bang.

In the senate, "Tall Tom" Connally of Texas denounced George Moses of New Hampshire for what he termed a "savage attack" on Speaker Garner over the week-end. He reiterated the Garner claim that President Hoover and the administration were responsible for hard times and warned that the period of cooperation on legislation was over except, perhaps, in the case of the tax bill.

On the house side, Representative McDuffie of Alabama, Democratic whip, issued a 600-word statement suggesting Garner as the man to nominate to avoid a deadlocked convention and another "Madison Square garden fiasco."

Smith Conference

Outside the Washington political arena attention was drawn to New York reports of a secret conference between Alfred E. Smith and New York and New England Democratic leaders friendly to his possible candidacy.

Although Smith's office said such a conference was not on the day's calendar, it was understood the 1928 presidential nominee might be preparing a statement to Massachusetts Democrats outlining his position and in effect asking for support in the primary, April 26. So far, Smith has said he would make no pre-convention campaign for the nomination.

Samuel Seabury, counsel to the New York legislative investigating committee, denied any political ambitions in his Cincinnati anti-Tammany speech; Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma announced he would make seven campaign speeches in North Dakota this week to advance his own candidacy, but said he had changed his mind about stumping Georgia, and a Fort Worth pamphlet endorsing Melvin Traylor, Chicago banker, as a "homespun

Plan Heard to Break Up Racketeering in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (US)—Secretary of Labor Doak would be given broad power and a special fund of $100,000 to break up rings of racketeers by Chairman Dickstein, New York, of the house immigration committee.

This action is a result of disclosures made by Doak at a secret session of the committee. The matter will be laid before the committee for action tomorrow.

Hoover's Enforcement Proposal Embodied In Bill Filed For House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—A revision of the nation's criminal procedure to block the escape of law breakers through legal delay and technicalities was urged upon congress today by President Hoover. Simultaneously, he urged a wholesale remodeling of the federal bankruptcy laws.

In addition, in one brief paragraph of a special law enforcement message, the president spoke of prohibition for the first time since the completion of the Wickersham report.

Pursuing his idea that the national capital should be a model enforcement city, he asked prompt action upon his previous suggestions for additional dry law enforcement here. One phase of his plan would have the local police force clothed with the authority of federal dry agents.

Bill Introduced

The special message drew prompt reaction in congress. Senator Hastings, Republican, Delaware, introduced a bill to carry out the recommendations. He is a member of the judiciary committee which considers this type of legislation.

The special message drew prompt reaction in congress. Chairman Sumners of the house judiciary committee announced that within two weeks hearings would begin looking toward "a complete overhauling of the bankruptcy laws." Even before the president spoke, Sumners said, considerable work was done by his committee to this end.

At the outset of his message today the chief executive said the increase in crime in the United States "is and must be a subject of concern to the government and to every well-disposed citizen." At its conclusion he pleaded for increased law observance.

Respect Necessary

"We must all keep before us the thought," he said, "that effective administration of the law in a republic requires not only adequate and proper machinery, honest and capable officials, but above all a citizenry imbued with respect for law."

In brief, here are the president's suggestions for revising federal criminal procedure:

The supreme court would write a series of uniform rules for all sections of the country, designed to speed criminal appeals, and governing "all proceedings after verdicts" in both district and appeals courts.

Legislation would be enacted permitting accused persons to waive indictment by grand jury after a plea of guilty, thereby allowing the immediate service of their sentence.

Jury System Revision

The grand jury system would be revised to limit the time for quashing indictments because of disqualification of grand jurors, coupled with legislation permitting indictments to stand if approved by 12 jurors, regardless of the presence of ineligibles.

Legislation would be shaped "in the interest of child welfare" to permit the attorney general to forego the prosecution of children in the federal courts, returning them, instead, to their own states for action by local juvenile courts.

Under the "diversity of citizenship" laws, corporations organized under the laws of one state but active elsewhere would be treated as citizens of the state in which they do business, thereby placing their cases in state rather than federal courts.

The president cited figures to show "undue congestion in the courts in a number of districts" and recommended the appointment of additional judges in those sections where civil and criminal cases are suffering long delay.

The chief executive placed considerable weight upon the need of revising the national bankruptcy laws. He criticized the existing act as "defective," as holding out "every inducement for waste" and for exploitation.

Texas Democratic Executive Group To Meet March 9

HOUSTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Chairman W. O. Huggins of the state Democratic executive committee today said the committee would determine whether candidates for congressman at large shall run for designated places.

Mr. Huggins called the committee to meet in Fort Worth on the morning of March 9 to make a decision on that matter and also to select the city for the party's May state convention.

He revealed he had received a letter from F. O. Fuller, Houston attorney, in which Fuller announced his candidacy for one of the three posts to be filled in the congress, asked to have his name on the ballot as a candidate for "place No. one" and threatened to seek a writ of mandamus if his candidacy were not so designated by place.

COURT ORDERS WELLS OPEN

Federal Injunction Balks State Interference

TYLER, Texas, Feb. 29. (AP)—Judge Randolph Bryant today issued a federal court order restraining Gov. R. S. Sterling, Adj. Gen. W. W. Sterling and Gen. Jacob F. Wolters from interfering with the "lawful production of crude petroleum" from five East Texas wells owned by the People's Petroleum Producers, Inc., a Louisiana corporation.

The order, mailed here from Sherman by the court, acted upon the plaintiff's original petition filed shortly before the hearing of the Brock-Lee company's case, and asked virtually the same relief as did the suit heard before the three-judge federal court at Houston.

Eight other oil companies have recently filed petitions similar to the Brock-Lee petition, which was upheld after a lengthy hearing.

Last week the People's Petroleum Producers, Inc., filed a suplemental petition asking an injunction against the railroad commission to restrain that body from enforcing the state conservation laws as applied to oil and gas. The court has not yet acted upon this plea.

J. R. Blades, deputy clerk of the federal court, said that he would issue writs carrying out the last order of the court as soon as the plaintiffs had posted a bond of $1,000. The writs would enjoin interference with the wells until the court takes final action on the petition asking for an injunction.

Gorilla May Live After Use of Oxygen Chamber

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (US)—Still in an oxygen chamber, N'gi made further gains today in his battle for life.

The young gorilla appeared stronger than at any time since he was stricken with influenza last week, and was taking nourishment quite regularly.

Eight tanks of oxygen having carried him through the crisis, the specialists in attendance were confident for the first time today that he will live.

Woman Given Jail Term As Hit-And-Run Driver

DALLAS, Feb. 29. (AP)—A six-month jail sentence was given to Mrs. Una Counts today for failure to stop and render aid to W. A. Minyard after injuring him with her automobile Dec. 30 as he was boarding a street car. Minyard's leg was broken. A motorcycle policeman pursued and arrested Mrs. Counts after she had driven away from the scene of the accident. Her attorney filed a motion for a new trial.

FRANCHISE FOR 5-CENT TAXIS SOUGHT HERE

Wichitan Explains Plan Of Operating Cabs By Schedules

COUNCIL IS UNDECIDED

Traction and Taxi Owners At Austin Wage War On 'Jitneys'

Members of the city council Monday night were asked by George C. Williams to grant him permission to establish in Wichita Falls a five-cent taxi service, to be operated strictly on schedule with five-passenger closed cars, and in such parts of the city as the council might approve. The council took the matter under advisement with promise of early action upon the application.

Mr. Williams declared his belief that residents of Wichita Falls would welcome the type of transportation proposed at the rate of five cents. He stated his intention of beginning with two automobiles, and increasing the number as rapidly as public patronage indicated the need for more equipment. With reference to operating on published schedules, Mr. Williams said "that is the only way to develop patronage."

Only five passengers would be accepted at one time by the taxi vehicles, the applicant stated. The plan includes carrying adequate insurance for the protection of passengers against injury, he said.

DIME TAXIS SWARM STREETS AT AUSTIN

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Feb. 29.—Latest development in the dime-taxi situation with which the city council now is occupied indicate not only that the public has taken kindly to the revival of this type of transportation, but that newcomers in the field are being charged with encroachment upon taxi service already established. Dozens of the machines have entered service here recently.

A suit was filed in district court here Saturday to enjoin the secretary of state from chartering any taxi concern seeking to use the names already given to established taxi service in Austin.

Foremost among the provisions which probably will be included in the controlling ordinance now being considered by the city council are the following:

Cars for taxi service must be licensed by the city; must be bonded to protect passengers; can operate only by previous definite appointment upon streets already served by street car and buses; can not cruise promiscuously anywhere for fares.

Operation of the 10-cent cabs has brought protests from the local street railway company, as well as from the orthodox taxi companies.

Women Rule City As Feb. 29 Concession

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (US)—Aroma of perfume replaced thick cigar smoke in the headquarters of municipal government in three Illinois cities today when the ladies took over the reins as a Leap Year prerogative.

Bachelorhood was frowned upon at Morris, Ill., by the women officials. All single men were rounded up without favoritism and each was fined $1, the funds collected to be turned over to the unemployment relief fund.

Single women ruled at Aurora with Miss Mildred Pratt occupying the mayoralty chair. Ruth Cole, the fire chief, rose to the occasion when an alarm was sounded and rode to the blaze. Male firemen, however, put out the fire.

At Joliet it was decided that married women were more experienced in bossing and the responsible positions were turned over to wives for the day.

Gangsters Pay Taxes Under U. S. 'Big Club'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Gangsters frightened by the internal revenue bureau's drive against Al Capone have voluntarily paid hundreds of thousands of dollars in income taxes due the government.

The story of how they have been filing delinquent and amended tax returns was told tonight for the first time by David Burnet, commissioner of internal revenue, in an interview by Oliver Owen Kuhn, in the Washington Star's national radio forum.

Burnet said that the government realized the additional revenue after "it was apparent that this activity had pricked the conscience of many tax payers who had failed to file returns or make honest returns."

Man Arrested After Two Years on Bank Charges

LODI, Calif., Feb. 29. (US)—For two years a respected citizen and druggist here, Hugh C. Masengill, 41, was arrested today and identified, police said, as Harry Clinton, wanted in Nashville, Tenn., on charges of violating the banking and narcotic laws.

Sues Pickford

When Mary Mulhern left the Ziegfeld "Follies" for married life with Jack Pickford, screen actor, she soon discovered her folly, she charges in a divorce suit at Los Angeles. Pickford is a brother of Mary Pickford. Miss Mulhern said he "found fault, nagged and criticized her in a cruel manner."

COUNCIL CALLS CITY ELECTION

Officials Named for Vote Here April 5

Members of the city council Monday night passed a resolution calling for a city election on April 5 for the purpose of choosing a mayor and two aldermen for the ensuing two years, and naming the officials who are to preside at the various boxes.

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., Aldermen J. N. Prothro and J. S. Bridwell are the three officials whose terms expire April 1. All three men have announced their candidacy for re-election. Thus far no other candidates have appeared.

As in the past city election, there will be 10 boxes. Their locations, and the officials assigned to each box, are as follows:

Central police station: Nat L. Inge, judge; W. K. Nile, B. L. Trevathan, George H. Hodgins, clerks.

Wichita county courthouse: E. P. Murrell, judge; Roy A. Jones, Mrs. R. M. Morrow, Mrs. W. W. Gardner, clerks.

House, No. 600 North Broadway: J. B. Scarborough, judge; Weldon Johnson, Mrs. Fred Biedelspacher, Mrs. Mary Johnson, clerks.

J. L. Jackson Jr. and W. S. Curlee appeared before the council as representatives of the local real estate board to petition the passing of legislation to forbid the posting or painting of advertising matter on walls or windows of vacant buildings without consent of the owners. They recited that many plate glass windows in the downtown district have been used promiscuously and repeatedly by various concerns for the display of advertising matter. The council authorized the city attorney, Thelbert Martin, to prepare an ordinance at once forbidding such practices, and imposing a considerable penalty upon offenders. The ordinance will be submitted to the council next Monday night.

The condition of the bodies, rescue workers said, indicated they were killed instantly by an explosion that roared through the basin main section of the mine Saturday morning.

Car Strikes Woman When Judge H. K. Dycus Is Blinded by Lights

Special to The Record News

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Feb. 29.—Mrs. Graydon Rowlett, 35, was instantly killed here tonight when an automobile driven by Judge H. K. Dycus struck her as she walked on the highway with her husband and little daughter, en route to church.

Judge Dycus, county judge of Archer, said that the lights of an approaching automobile blinded him so that he did not see the three church-goers on the road.

The accident occurred on Center street, two blocks north of the town square. Mrs. Rowlett was on the left of her husband and daughter. The child was to the outside of the roadway, while Mr. Rowlett walked in the center, with his wife on his left arm and the child on the other.

The impact of the auto as it struck Mrs. Rowlett from behind flung her loose from her husband. Mr. Rowlett and the child were uninjured.

Judge Dycus was returning from Wichita Falls when the fatal crash occurred. The time was about 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Rowlett had been a resident of Archer City since her marriage eight years ago. Her husband, the son of Constable T. L. Rowlett of Archer City, was born and reared here.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Monday night. However, services probably will be held Tuesday at an hour to be set later.

Fascist Group Clashes With Finnish Soldiers

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 29. (AP)—A Fascist march on the capital today encountered government troops 25 miles away and a clash of arms ensued, but its outcome was not immediately apparent due to crippled communications.

The fascists, or Lapau, simultaneously served a demand on President Pehr Edwin Svinhufvud to shear Marxits and Socialists from the government or suffer the consequences of civil war.

The president's reply was an emergency safety law giving himself extreme military powers to meet the rebellion.

Troops Continue Conflict As Governments Prepare For Parley

TOKYO, March 1. (Tuesday) (AP)—A foreign office spokesman said today that Japan could not accept a proposal for simultaneous withdrawal of Japanese and Chinese forces from Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, March 1. (Tuesday) (AP)—A new Japanese offensive was launched over a long line from Chapei to Kiangwan at 8:30 a. m., today, using fresh troops which had been pouring into the battle-front. The Chinese continued to hold their positions.

The staff of Gen. Yoshinora Shirakawa, who has been expected to be commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces here, landed at Woosung from a cruiser. Japanese officers said General Shirakawa had come ashore at an undivulged spot.

The Rengo (Japanese) News agency correspondent reported today that the 14th Japanese division, numbering 12,000 men, was landing at Liuho, on the south bank of the Yangtze river, 15 miles above Woosung.

LEAGUE DELEGATES ACCEPT TERMS

(By The Associated Press)

A proposal for truce at Shanghai and an international conference to arrange a final settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict was accepted yesterday by the representatives of Japan and China on the League of Nations council.

The United States is participating in this new move for peace, as are Great Britain, France and Italy. All four have important interests in Shanghai.

In hopeful tones both the Chinese and Japanese representatives at Geneva gave their support to the peace plan and promised to recommend immediate acceptance to their governments.

Jap Attitude Changed

The attitude of Japan was in marked contrast to the position she has maintained in the past before the council.

Both Geneva and Shanghai were optimistic over peace—but that made no difference to the men in the battle lines. This morning Chinese infantrymen swept across Chapei and broke the Japanese defenses in a surprise attack.

The Japanese called for help from the big guns, reformed and put on a counter-attack in which they recovered most of the ground they had lost.

Japan gave formal warning to the Chinese mayor of Shanghai that if Chinese reinforcements were brought in the warfare would be carried inland 50 miles by the Japanese bombing planes. The mayor was informed that both the Shanghai-Nanking railway and the Shanghai-Hangkow railway would be bombarded and that all military trains would be destroyed.

Russia Masses Troops

The Tokyo foreign office was informed 100,000 Soviet Russian soldiers had been massed in the vicinity of Vladivostok in preparation for what is considered in Russia to be an inevitable conflict with Japan. The Japanese consul at Vladivostok said that an iodine factory had been converted for the manufacture of poison gas.

The Chinese government at Nanking decided to launch a punitive expedition against the new Manchurian-Mongolian state established under Japanese auspices and to resume diplomatic relations with the Soviet government, which were broken off in 1929.

Mayor Thompson of Amarillo Looms As Likely Successor to Pat M. Neff

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 29.—Friends of Mayor Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo are jubilant in the belief their efforts will be successful in having him appointed to the state railroad commission when former Gov. Pat M. Neff resigns to take the presidency of Baylor university.

Apparently Governor Neff's decision was not to be made within the next 10 days; but no doubt has developed of his going to the university post and creating a vacancy on the railroad commission.

Familiar With Oil

Mayor Thompson will be the first Panhandle man on the railroad commission; and will be one of the first intimately familiar with petroleum economics to sit upon the board that administers oil conservation. He is from a section that now is building more new railroad than any other part of the nation, and the foremost natural gas producing area of the world.

Colonel Thompson has worked in harmony with Gov. Ross S. Sterling's administration, and has just returned from a trip to Washington in behalf of Texas farm credits from the new reconstruction finance corporation.

American" candidate made its first appearance in the East.

As for the Republicans, President Hoover gained two more delegates pledged to him in Kansas, making his total there four.

Replying to Connally in the senate, Moses disclaimed speaking for the administration in saying Garner's formal campaign for the presidency had begun with his charge that Mr. Hoover precipitated a "panic" and suggesting the speaker "run true to form" and charge the president with all world troubles.

"I content myself with two disclaimers," Moses said.

"I do not speak with authority for the administration and I have made no attack, either savage or bitter, upon the speaker of the house. I have ventured to comment upon a candidate for the presidency and candidates for president enjoy no 'closed season.'"

Raps Texas

"So far as the situation is now concerned with that particular candidacy I have but one question to propound and that is why is it that Texas nowadays is doing all the talking for the Democratic party—a state which was not heard from politically between election day in 1928 and the election of a speaker of the house in 1931."

Connally admitted "the great mistake of my state in 1928" in voting for Mr. Hoover, but said it wouldn't "make the same mistake again."

The Texan accused the administration of "playing politics during the political truce." He named Secretaries Hurley and Hyde and Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the navy among those claiming "credit" for Mr. Hoover for the emergency non-partisan relief program.

Connally, who is advocating Garner for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he assumed "now that the administration has secured cooperation in enactment of the program in which it was particularly interested, it will open up its guns in an effort to destroy the speaker or any one else who becomes prominent in the Democratic party as a possible candidate for president."

Fears Deadlock

McDuffie's statement said it was becoming "more and more apparent that a deadlock in the Chicago convention is a very grave possibility which Democrats must avoid."

"If my estimate of the situation is correct," the Alabaman said, "it is time for Democrats everywhere to take stock of the situation in the most practical way, regardless of personal wishes or opinion, with a view of finding a man who not only possesses the necessary qualifications, but whose availability from a national standpoint would assure his election.

"In my judgment, John N. Garner, who holds the second highest and most important office in the government, is such a man," he said.

Two other house members joined the day's political argument. Representative LaGuardia, New York Republican and anti-prohibitionist, wrote Secretary Stimson asking him if he intended to favor or oppose prohibition if he attends the Republican national convention as a New York delegate.

Representative Warren, a North Carolina Democrat, issued a statement branding as "unmitigated gall" Secretary Hyde's criticism of the Democratic house for passing the $132,500,000 emergency road bill to give people jobs when the Republicans "sat impotent and suggested nothing."

Edmonds, district agent; Miss Minnie Mae Grubbs, district home agent; and Sterling Evans, district agent for Southern Texas.

Kelly Hunt Appeals From 10-Year Term

Kelly Hunt, now in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., on perjury and liquor convictions here last November, has filed an appeal from a verdict returned against him in Archer county last fall on a burglary charge and giving him 10 years, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Austin.

The Archer county conviction was based upon Hunt's alleged implication in the robbery of the Dundee bank in January, 1931. The stolen safe was believed by officers to have been destroyed near the Hunt home west of this city.

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

February Sets Temperature Record; Rain for Month Totals 4.14 Inches

A new high record for maximum temperature in February since the Texas Electric Service company weather bureau has been operating was reported in the monthly review released Monday. The high temperature was 87 degrees on Feb. 9, as compared with 85 degrees in 1930 and 73 degrees last year. The bureau records date from 1924.

Total precipitation for the month was 4.14 inches, exceeded only by the 1931 record of 4.16 inches. The greatest daily range in temperature was on Feb. 7, when the thermometer varied 42 degrees as compared to 30 degrees on Feb. 20, 1931.

Twelve days were reported in February with .01 inches or more precipitation as compared with seven in February, 1931. The 1931 record of 2.61 inches in 24 hours remained intact with 2.12 inches reported Feb. 22, this year. No snow was recorded either year. Nine clear days were reported as compared with eight in 1931, while 17 cloudy days and three partly cloudy days for February, 1932, were reported as compared with 14 cloudy days and six partly cloudy days in February, 1931. No hail or sleet was reported for the month in either year.

A killing frost was recorded on Feb. 5, this year and on Feb. 14, 1931. Thunderstorms were registered on Feb. 10 and 14, 1932, and on Feb. 22, 1931.

A minimum temperature of 26 degrees was reported on Feb. 4, 1932, as compared with 32 degrees on Feb. 14, 1931. The lowest February temperature recorded was nine degrees in 1929.

While the highest temperature for a single day was recorded this year, the highest mean was 56.41 degrees established in 1930, a check of records from 1924 to date reveals. The mean temperature for February, 1932, was 55.80 degrees, which exceeds all years except 1930.

TEN WARSHIPS GO TO PACIFIC

U. S. Navy Concentrating West of Panama

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—The might of the American navy is being mobilized in the Pacific.

Under orders disclosed today, 10 warships will pass through the Panama canal to join the powerful fleets which soon will hold maneuvers in defense of the Pacific coast. This will bring to 202 the fighting ships flying the American flag west of the canal.

The unexpected move, representing the first time that the special service and training squadrons have been directed into such maneuvers, attracted widespread attention.

Tension Eases

Asked if there was any relation between the sudden orders and the far eastern situation, navy officials replied their latest reports showed an easing of tension in the orient and emphasized a statement by Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, that a plan for such a ship movement had been "under consideration since the maneuvers were first announced."

Announcement of the maneuvers was made by Admiral Pratt in testimony before a house committee in January a year ago.

The 199 vessels that will be concentrated in Pacific waters before long now are made up of 12 battleships, 17 cruisers, 33 submarines, 81 destroyers, three aircraft carriers and 56 auxiliaries.

Orders in Effect

The orders for the vessels took effect immediately. Those going are the battleship Arkansas, now en route to the canal from Guantanamo; the destroyer Claxton at New Orleans; the destroyers Fairfax and Taylor at Norfolk; the destroyers Evens and Tillman at the New York navy yard; the destroyer Hamilton en route to Norfolk and the Canal Zone from Washington, D. C. navy yard—all of the training squadron—and the cruiser Memphis and the destroyers Wickes and Philip of the special service squadron, all now at Panama.

The movement will leave east of the canal only a bare skeleton of the once mighty Atlantic fighting force. The warships which will be left will include the battleship Wyoming and eight vessels of the fleet base force at Guantanamo; nine submarines at New London; the cruiser Milwaukee at Boston; some 60 naval tugs, minesweepers and small craft on naval district work and three battleships undergoing modernization. They are the New Mexico at Philadelphia and the Mississippi and Idaho at Norfolk.

Deafness and Head Noises From Catarrh

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, if your nostrils are clogged or if phlegm drops in your throat causing catarrh of the stomach or bowels, secure proper treatment at once. Otherwise you may lose your health, become a wornout catarrhal wreck with your smell, taste and hearing completely gone.

Sprays, salves and inhalers may bring you temporary relief, but permanent escape from this dangerous, health-sapping, disgusting disease can only come from a constitutional treatment that will expel the catarrhal poison from your system. So go to Allison's Drug store or your druggist today for an ounce of Parmint, take this home and add to it a little sugar and ¾ pint hot water. A tablespoonful taken four times a day will act upon the blood and mucous membrane and bring relief.

Think what it will mean to breathe freely again, to hear plainly, smell, taste, and arise in the morning refreshed and strong, with clear head and throat free from phlegm. Certainly you cannot enjoy or benefit from life so long as you are afflicted with catarrh. So for your own sake give Parmint a trial—start treatment today.—Adv.

MAN AND WIFE SHOT TO DEATH

Houston Couple Found In Apartment

HOUSTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—T. Z. Lane, 35, and his wife, about 30, were found shot to death in their apartment here late today. Paper in Lane's effects indicated he had been connected, as a sergeant, with the 40th school air squadron at San Antonio.

Justice Campbell Overstreet returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

The couple rented the apartment about two months ago, P. C. Stewart, manager of the building said. Reports in the neighborhood, which police did not confirm, were that the woman had planned to leave tonight for Indiana.

The local army recruiting office said that Lane was not known there. The equipment of an army man was found in the apartment.

Lane was shot in the head and a pistol lay near the body when it was found. The woman was shot twice in the back. Her body was found in front of the home. It appeared she had attempted to flee.

J. A. Looney, said he was driving past the house and saw a woman run from the apartment screaming and fall on the sidewalk. He saw she was shot and ran to the rear of the apartment. He then heard a shot, looked in the apartment and saw Lane lying on the floor.

ference to arrange terms for a final settlement of the conflict.

The United States, Great Britain, France and Italy—as well as Japan and China—are participating in this new move to halt the warfare in the Shanghai area.

In hopeful tones both Naotake Sato and Dr. W. W. Yen, the Japanese and Chinese council delegates gave their support to the peace project and promised to recommend its immediate acceptance by the governments.

The attitude of the Japanese representative was in marked contrast to the position Japan has taken in the past. Hitherto Tokyo has insisted that Chinese withdrawal must precede Japanese evacuation and throughout the Sino-Japanese conflict the Tokyo government has declared against participation by neutral powers in peace negotiations.

Although the memorandum setting forth the peace proposals did not specify an immediate armistice, Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary and one of the prime movers for peace, declared that "unless the hostilities in the Shanghai area are stopped this conference will not be held."

RUSSIA PREPARES FOR WAR WITH JAPAN

TOKYO, Feb. 29. (AP)—The foreign office was informed today that 100,000 Soviet Russian troops have been massed in the vicinity of Vladivostok in preparation for what is considered in Russia to be an inevitable conflict with Japan.

This information came from Japanese Consul Yamaguchi at Vladivostok, who reported that troops were stationed in the city and along the Ussuri railway near the border of north Manchuria.

In a telegram to the foreign office the consul asserted that an iodine factory at Olga Bay was being converted for the manufacture of poison gas and that fortifications at the entrance to Vladivostok harbor and on Russian island were being strengthened by new heavy guns and anti-aircraft batteries.

Basing his report on information which he said he received from a reliable foreign source, M. Yamaguchi declared that there were two army corps in the immediate vicinity of Vladivostok and that most of the troops were new arrivials from European Russia.

Munitions, foodstuffs and military supplies of all kinds were being brought in day and night, he said, and three new forts were under construction at Sedanka on Amur bay near Vladivostok.

The consul informed the foreign office that he had been told the Russians considered a Russo-Japanese clash to be inevitable—if not over Manchuria then over the fisheries question, which has been a source of friction between the two countries for several years.

U. S. IS PLEASED WITH PROSPECT FOR PEACE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—State department officials were pleased by today's news from Geneva that China and Japan have accepted the League of Nations proposal for an armistice at Shanghai and a conference of the leading powers to restore peace.

Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, has been the leader of the armistice movement. For three days he has been in touch with Secretary Stimson and the various foreign offices concerned with the Shanghai crisis, and the hope is general that with the fighting stopped it will be possible to work out a plan which will make peace permanent.

This is by no means certain, however. The decision of the Nanking government today to send a punitive expedition against the new government set up at Manchuria may complicate the Shanghai negotiations, as the armistice is only a first step.

The elimination of fighting at Shanghai apparently leaves the Manchurian situation untouched.

DRAMA CRITICS TO BE QUIZZED

George Jean Nathan and His Crowd Draw Attacks

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Critical dramatic critics were called on today by the house patents committee to appear in person for a lambasting on charges that they have made a financial tragedy of the legitimate theater.

The storm broke on their absent heads with the suddenness of an old fashioned melodrama. Chairman Sirovich, who wrote a play himself not long ago, said more harsh things about them than they ever did about a show with a lisping ingenue.

Three newspaper men and three committee members sat rather listlessly at a routine hearing of the committee but they sat up as the chairman called the "destructive" critics "graduate describers of prize fights and horse races."

The committee members agreed with Sirovich. So tonight, the New York member, a physician before he was elected to congress, was writing critics asking them to appear, presumably to be given doses of their own medicine.

Reviewers in New York, Chicago, Boston, Cleveland and other cities will be asked to come. George Jean Nathan, who has been writing tart pieces about the show business for a good many years, is almost certain to get an invitation.

Sirovich said he was especially anxious to hear those of "the George Jean Nathan stripe, who, so I understand, boast they have never seen the last act of a play."

The non-appearance of some theatrical producers who had been invited to appear began the criticism of the critics. Sirovich interrupted a witness to remark that such men as the Shuberts and Hammersteins were in bankruptcy and would not get to Washington to defend their interests before congress.

He insisted—and the committee members agreed—that adverse criticism of plays was responsible more than any other factor for the fact that four out of five legitimate dramas are financial failures.

The chairman said he thought dramatic critics should have a license, or something similar gained by a thorough examination, before they were allowed to practice.

"Well, lets have them down here and test them," said Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas. Let's call out the old blue-backed speller and see how many of them know how to spell."

The movies got a little of the blame for the plight of the legitimate drama but Sirovich saw them closing their doors, too, unless the muzzle was firmly placed on the head and hand of the "destructive" critic.

In case of the vacancy and his appointment, Mayor Thompson will be committed to a race in the July primary election for the four-year unexpired portion of the term from next Jan. 1.

Appointment Favored

His appointment will quiet numerous political appeals now pouring in upon Governor Sterling for the railroad commission appointment, by and on behalf of those desiring to run for one of the two commission posts this summer.

It appeared here the oil and gas industry, which has insisted upon a right to have some of the commission fundamentally acquainted with it, will welcome Mayor Thompson as one of the three men to administer the conservation and proration laws.

Among duties of the railroad commission are review of state freight rates; licensing of common carrier and contract carrier trucks, license of bus lines; control of oil and gas and gas utilities.

SALMON CLIMB STEEP STAIRS

True Fish Story Told By Interior Department

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (US)—Speaking of fish stories, the interior department today published one about salmon walking up ladders, climbing stairs, and riding elevators, all of their own volition, which had the most lurid of piscatorial raconteurs tearing their hair.

The funny part is it's true.

Sockeye salmon, valuable in the Northwest, always return to the place of their birth to spawn, which caused trouble when the 253-foot Baker river dam was installed in Washington state. The ladders, stairways, and elevators for the fish resulted.

Circumventing the dam is a fishway which in its lower stages looks much like a large stairway. It consists of steps, two feet high and 10 feet from front to back, each step an individual pool. Salmon, rebuffed by the 253-foot dam, take these two-foot steps one at a time, resting between.

After 50 feet of this, however, the salmon becomes so weary they are often washed back as fast as they go up. There the ladder begins. It consists of curved rod "fingers" at the front of each step. As they are curved up-stream, it is easy for the fish to jump over them. Once there, however, they are entrapped, and can rest until they wish to go further.

Having struggled up 100 feet by steps and ladders, the salmon are now only too glad to ring for service. At this juncture comes the elevator.

This is an immense steel tank, mounted on wheels on an incline track, and placed so the salmon jump into it as they take the top step. When it becomes full machinery hauls it to the top of the incline, where the fish are dumped into Baker lake.

French Inventor Loses Airplane Patent Suit

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—A patent-infringement suit, which if successful would have given a monopoly of the airplane "stick control" to Robert Esnault-Pelterie, French engineer and inventor, was dismissed today by Judge Maurice D. Campbell in Brooklyn federal court.

Esnault-Pelterie based the suit on a United States patent obtained by him on Nov. 3, 1914, which in turn was based upon a 1907 French patent.

Judge Campbell handed down a 52-page opinion in which he reviewed the development of the airplane in America and said that the plaintiff failed to prove his contentions. The court found the "stick control" had been in use in the United States since 1910.

Chicago Printer Perfects Perpetual Calender After 11 Years Research

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (UP)—Christopher Columbus discovered America on a Wednesday. Else Richard Grelik, another discoverer, made a serious mistake.

For 11 years Grelik calculated. He used bales of scratch paper; grosses of lead pencils. When leap years rolled around he gritted his teeth, but kept on subtracting. On the last sheet of paper, with the stub of the last pencil, he finally totaled the figures. His balances checked.

"Eureka," he exclaimed, "the world's first real perpetual calendar is a success!"

The calendar is a circular card of numbers guaranteed by Grelik to show the day of the week or any date from the year one up to and as far as the most curious may care to peer into the future. Take Columbus, for instance. Whirl the calendar until you come to the figure 1492. It is printed in blue. Remember the color—blue. Then find Oct. 12, printed in one of the middle circles. That done, cast your eyes up the column until you come to a blue square.

"What's printed in the blue square?" demanded Grelik, Chicago printer, tonight. "Wednesday. That's the day Columbus finished his sight-seeing."

Similarly 1920 is green as far as Grelik's circle of figures and squares is concerned. So gaze at the Jan. 16 column for another demonstration. Then look down the column until you come to another green spot. Friday it is, according to Grelik and his calendar; the day that the national prohibition laws went into effect.

Purple spots take care of a few hundred more years. So do orange ones, and yellow and red and white.

All that may seem somewhat involved at first glance, but as Grelik pointed out, 11 years of constant study is bound to produce something complicated.

"You ask what all the little stars are for? They mark the leap years. And leap years, young man, are tougher on perpetual calendar inventors than they are on bachelors."

Seabury Explains Cincinnati Talk

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—Samuel Seabury, counsel to the legislative city investigation committee, on his return from Cincinnati today repeated that the only purpose of his Cincinnati speech Friday night was to lay before the country the true facts of his investigation of New York City.

The speech had been interpreted by individuals and newspapers as a bid for nomination to high office.

He attributed reports that he wished to be a candidate for president, vice president or mayor to the "ridiculous denunciations" of minority members of the Hofstadter committee whom from the start of the investigation "have done everything humanly possible to obstruct."

Accused Texas Bank Robber Held in Florida

HOUSTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Sheriff T. A. Binford was notified this afternoon that H. F. (Bill) Belote, indicted in connection with the robbery of the Guaranty Bond State bank in Tomball, had been arrested in Leesburg, Fla.

Binford said he would leave for Florida soon as he could get extradition papers for Belote's return to Houston. The wire said Belote had agreed to waive extradition but Binford said he was taking no chances.

M. R. (Pete) Belote, a brother of the man now held in Florida, and Harry Morris previously were arrested in Houston. They were tried and each sentenced to five years. The bank was held up by three men who escaped with about $3,600 after locking A. H. Keefer, the cashier, in a vault.

The letter was written as a reply to recent charges by Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, that some of the pilots were getting from $125 to $150 per month.

As a result of a dispute over a wage cut, some of the lines' pilots were discharged recently.

CHRIS' CRUISE PLANNED AGAIN

Thirty Mariners to Attempt Discoverer's Feat

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—Thirty mariners who are getting ready to repeat Christopher Columbus' feat hope the folks this side of the Atlantic won't mind if the Santa Maria carries a radio this trip.

Sticklers for historic authenticity, they'd really rather not have anything so modern on the little vessel when she sets sail from Palos this spring. But marine rules are marine rules and it looks as though they'd have to carry a radio.

Outside of that—and a doctor who will represent another concession to regulations—the Santa Maria, a new vessel built by the Spanish government as a duplicate of Columbus' tiny flagship, will have no conveniences aboard that the discoverer of America didn't have.

The Santa Maria, which was a star attraction at the Seville exposition last year, will leave Palos in April or May, flying the old Spanish flag with rampant lion. Some 40 days later, if the ocean is kind, she will touch at Santo Domingo. Then will follow a tour of the principal coast cities of South, Central and North America, and finally a visit to the world's fair at Chicago.

The sailor men will sleep on the floor as Columbus' men did, and if they can't cook on a stove of the 1492 vintage they'll be hungry.

Officers said the bandit confessed the shooting of Sweeney. He asserted Miss Lyons was not implicated and police said she would be released.

"B.C." Relieves Head Cold Pains In Three Minutes

...sparkling vitality and a clear skin reflect rich, red blood cells

"IT is good of you to say those nice things," she replied.

Some people just "bubble over" with vitality . . . they inspire compliments.

Nature has its own way of making a strong body and a clear skin . . . by its use of the red-blood-cells.

So often the pressure of work and worry or some sickness "burn up" these precious red-blood-cells—then the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter."

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

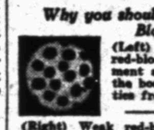

A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

Nu-Health Water

Some time ago we had the privilege of reading a report of the state health department upon the water system of our city; also a report from the health department of the United States government and were immediately convinced that Wichita Falls needed pure, cheap, drinking water more than any other one thing in all the world.

It is, therefore, our greatest ambition to make absolutely pure drinking water "Almost As Cheap As the Air You Breathe" and "As Pure As the Sunlight From Heaven." To do this we have gathered much information from the world's best informed authorities on pure water and have purchased new equipment, some of which has never been used by bottled water concerns in Texas. We have also purchased a five-gallon bottle washing machine which has recently been perfected to meet the laws of certain states which require that each and every bottle shall be sterilized for five minutes before being washed with treated water.

Nu-Health Water Will Be Available March 5

And will contain just the necessary minerals so essential to perfect health . . . and remember—

Q.—How long is the Grand Canyon?—A. M.

A.—The Grand Canyon of the state of Colorado has a total length of about 280 miles from head of Marble Gorge near the northern boundaries of Arizona to Grand Wash cliffs near the Nevada line. Its most impressibly beautiful part, 105 miles long, lies within the Grand Canyon National park in northern Arizona. The width varies from five to 15 miles, while the maximum depth is more than a mile. The characteristic portion so often seen in pictures is the point near the town of Grand Canyon, Arizona, where the gorge is almost 15 miles from rim to rim.

Q.—Does the boll weevil fly at night? Is it attracted by light?—J. W.

A.—The boll weevil is entirely helpless and without power of locomotion in its larva stage when it infests the scales and bolls of cotton plants. In its adult stage it moves from place to place by flight and does fly at night as well as in the daytime. However, the boll weevil unlike other weevils of the same group of insects is not attracted by light and consequently can not be snared in this manner.

A.—The first is nearing completion in Lausanne. It will be 20 stories high. The ground floor will be occupied by a motion picture theater, the other floors being given over to business offices and apartments.

Q.—In the French and Indian war did all the Indians fight on the side of the French?—K. L.

A.—Had all the tribes thrown their weight to either side, the other side would doubtless have been defeated. But it happened that they were divided. The majority of the Indians, however, were with the French. Nearly all the Algonquin tribes were French in their sympathies. But the very notable exception is found in the fierce warlike Six Nations, or Iroquois, of northern New York, who cast their lot with the English.

Why was the name of the Scarlet Topper tomato changed?—R. D.

A.—This wilt-resistant tomato was developed by Fred J. Pritchard, internationally known tomato breeder of the department of agriculture who died in January, 1931. As a memorial to him the name of this variety has been changed to Pritchard.

Q.—Is Alaska represented in congress?—J. L.

A.—Alaska has the status of a territory in the United States government, and is represented in congress by a delegate. Citizens of Alaska do not at present have the right to vote for president but have a legislature of their own.

Q.—With what acid can one write or print on celluloid?—A. J. S.

A.—It is possible to write on celluloid with a solution of asphalt in solvent naptha, xylol or other solvent. The pen must not be too full, or a blur will result. This writing remains on the surface of the celluloid, and can be wiped off with a bit of absorbent cotton or a rag moistened with benzol. The solution will tend to bite into the celluloid is glacial acetic acid, or possibly better, acetic anhydride, is used instead of part of the naphtha or xylol. A solution of nitrocellulose is said to be used instead of oil for making ink with which to print upon celluloid. As the celluloid itself is chiefly nitrocellulose, ink of this kind will adhere to it very firmly.

On Writing a Book

THE young man who sets out to write a book usually fails entirely to realize that he is entering one of the most sharply competitive fields there is.

Offhand, it seems as if the man with a good yarn in his system ought not to have much trouble getting it printed. Lots of books get published every year, and some of them are, to put it mildly, middling poor. It should be fairly simple to put one over if it's any good at all.

But the reality is more discouraging.

A typical example is the case of E. P. Dutton & Co., a representative publishing house.

This spring Dutton is publishing 42 books. These were chosen from more than 10,000 manuscripts that were submitted. Of the 10,000, approximately 1,500 were held worthy of serious consideration, not only by the editorial department but by the sales, advertising, publicity and trade promotion departments.

"It is generally estimated," says John Macrae Jr., vice president of the firm, "that most large publishing houses receive about 10 times as many manuscripts as they can give serious consideration to. The others are obviously so poor that they have to be refused without this careful consideration, in order not to clog up the editorial offices and because of the expense involved—the actual reading of a manuscript costs about $10."

Nor is that the worst of it. Of the 42 books this firm is publishing this spring, only 10 are first books by new authors. The other 32 are all by writers who are well known to the public and to the publishing trade.

What, then, is the aspiring young author up against when he blithely wraps up that distillation of dreams and desires which constitutes his manuscript and consigns it to the mails? He has just about one chance in a thousand.

Do you hope to become a writer? Think twice about it—think more than twice, in fact and accept the fact that the odds are all against you, and consider the added fact that even if it gets published your book probably won't make you any money. Then, if you still feel you must write—go to it, and good luck.

The Naval Construction Bill

THE senate naval committee has approved the $980,000,000 construction bill brought in by Chairman Frederic Hale of Maine, and early passage by the senate has been forecast by political leaders in Washington.

It is worth remembering, however, that this is not an appropriation bill. Passing it does not mean that Uncle Sam is immediately committed to the expenditure of all that money. In fact—judging by the comments some senators made about passing the bill in order to strengthen the hands of the American delegation at Geneva—one might wonder whether the bill were not a bluff.

If we actually go ahead and appropriate money for that amount of construction, it will mean that we have lost all faith in armament reduction plans. Spending just under a billion dollars on new fighting ships is not exactly a pacific gesture.

Installment Auto Tags

AUTHORITIES in Arkansas have found a novel way of making the depression easier for motorists, simply by permitting automobile owners to pay for their 1932 license tags in installments instead of in a lump sum, as is usually the rule.

Many taxpayers are unable to pay the full amount now, but can pay part of it now, part of it in June and the remainder in September. And the plan has much to commend it.

There are those, of course, who insist that people whose incomes have been radically reduced by unemployment or part-time work have no business trying to run their automobiles. But the auto, in a great many cases, is an absolute necessity. A ruling that permits the ordinary citizen to continue using his auto when he is hard up is apt to be a wise one.

Gandhi's Secret

MAHATMA GANDHI'S recent plea to his followers to get rid of mankinds's two greatest fears—the fear of death and the fear of the loss of material possessions—helps to explain how it is that this wizened little man can possess such a tremendous amount of power.

"No power on earth," says Gandhi, "can subdue a man who has shed these two fears."

When you stop to think about it, it is easy to see that he is right. If you have not the slightest qualms about losing everything that you possess, nothing that any one can do to you can frighten you; and when a man who is in that fortunate position puts himself at the head of a great movement, it will prove an uncommonly hard task to stop him.

Portrait of a Man Talking To Himself

La Tucker's heroics when the Palace playhouse started flaming was duly recorded by the gazettes, and deservedly so . . . Sophie was brave — and while the smoke and fumes and blazes devoured the scenery, she kept her noodle and averted a panic . . . And Mr. Elmer F. Rogers, the custodian of the amusement temple, also kept the casualty list down to zero . . . And the ushers and stage mechanics served the patrons in the medal manner, too . . . But Oscar Wilde told the same tale better ever so many decades ago . . . Oscar told how a theater in Britain was choked to capacity and during act two of a play flames leaped playfully from the wings, and immediately the spectators went into a stampede . . . Women were being trampled down and their devastating shrieks drowned the excited shouts of the men as they fought their way to the exits . . . Only one person kept his head . . . A youthful fiddler, who leaped from the orchestra pit onto the stage and begged the audience to keep their pews . . . "There is absolutely no danger!" he bellowed. "The fire brigade has been summoned and the fire is already quenched! Please resume your seats and let us go on with the play!" . . . So compelling was the young violinist that most of the audience returned to their chairs—feeling somewhat ashamed of themselves . . . And all were burned to a crisp!

Well, I've been misled, they would have me believe . . . About that home for working girls, where three square meals and a room are offered at a tiny tariff . . . Now comes a letter, unsigned, from "the girls," arguing that the meals are not fit to eat, etc. . . . I always get letters like that—after trying to applaud those who do noble work for the distressed . . . Unsigned mail is usually wickered by me, and perhaps the girls have just cause for grumbling . . . But until they sign their names to their complaints I will not serve as their counsel . . . More interesting is the letter from the lad at the Walter Reed hospital, at Washington . . . Telling me about Gene Tunney's contributions to a former opponent . . . Gene wrote about the chap in his recent magazine piece . . . But it remained for those who know him well to reveal his kindly nature to the needy . . . And I am told that for many seasons Tunney has been kicking in with a sweet check every week . . . To the one-time ring enemy and war vet, now ailing . . . The legend-spreaders certainly can make you look like a bum . . . But there is some comfort in knowing this—that the day eventually arrives when some one with a typewriter and a pillar in a newspaper can tell the crowd that they've been wasting a lot of time hating you . . . And when that day comes the applause seems all the more deafening.

That Branch Cabell simile drew too many complaints . . . "Hearts like muffled drums are beating" . . . When Longfellow used it so many decades before the "Jurgen" author arrived . . . And the squawks because I credited another with "Colder than Gandhi in a rumble seat"—instead of crediting Rox Reynolds, formerly the paragrapher on a San Francisco paper . . . But I have another beef about that credit—from a Los Angeles author, who says it was coined by him during a football game there . . . Reynolds, however, sold it to a humor mag in January, and so he will be listed as the parent in Mr. Wilstach's annual collection of better similes . . . Those complaints mustn't irk me . . . I've shelved 15 pounds in three months over less important problems . . . What I would like to know is what the sponsors of that new musical show are doing for the wife of Frank DeHaney, who is destitute? . . . DeHaney being the stage hand who was was injured in Philadelphia while facing the music for that new production . . . And he is confined at the Wickersham hospital there—nearly blind.

It's little things like this that make big paragraphs for me, too . . . I mean the high-hattitude of that waning star who snubbed that college dramatic club in Washington, D. C. . . . The group invited the actress to become one of their exclusive honorary members, and they went to the bother and expense of arranging a party in her honor . . . To which the local prominents had been invited . . . All this listed to happen during her week's engagement there . . . And it must have been very embarrassing when she didn't show up or even decline the invitation . . . But the group shouldn't have arranged matters until they had been assured she would be there . . . And so they are stuck with the specially engraved and jeweled pin they had purchased as a gift . . . Of course, the actress has met every one of consequence to her, except, it appears, the mistress of etiquet, Emily Post . . . Now that Garbo's shoe size has been kidded by the press, the wits of the street contribute their scallions . . . Comes one from A. Faulkner, who tells of the girl who longed to follow in Greta's footsteps . . . "After struggling through three of them she died of exhaustion."

Wonder what George M. Cohan thinks about? . . . I mean when the rest of us on the dais are striving to be clever? . . . His speech the other night at the Friars was grand . . . His salute to Bing Crosby so arrested us all that it seemed as though we had all stopped breathing—rather than risk a sound that would disconcert him and his mellow remarks . . . He has such a way with him . . . Wonder what his thoughts are when he thinks of how his Broadway has altered? . . . And if he feels that it has decayed? . . . Or improved? . . . Maybe he never bothers . . . They say he hasn't changed much . . . That only his hair has grown more silvery . . . It was among the thrills to be invited to that distinguished board . . . The Friars, indeed, have been more gentle with me than I with them . . . But prodigal as I am, that tolerant organization of fellows has always asked me to sit among them—at their carnivals and their adroit entertainments . . . But when they seated me on the same board with their Abbott, whom they idolize I rested comfortably for the first time in a spell . . . For I had been condemned and spat upon by one who came down to my level—and the Friars, which represent the nobility of Broadway, had lifted me up out of the resin—and let me share Mr. Cohan's bread and wine.

EXPLANATIONS OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE POLE GRAVEYARD—In order to test the efficiency of preservatives on the buried ends of telephone poles in erection, a telephone pole cemetery is maintained on a hill near Limon, Colo. Hundreds of poles, treated with a wide range of preservatives, are buried in the ground, and over their resting place are markers indicating the date on which the "remains" are to be exhumed. This experimental cemetery ranks with the bizarre cemetery for ships which I have featured previously.

The WINDOW COW—"Penn State Jessie," the cow with a window, was provided with an opening in her side which gave the cow no trouble and through which samples of the contents of her stomach could be removed with a small dipper for experimental purposes at the Penn State college. A rubber pad was used to close the window after samples were taken. The experiments led to an important discovery in the domain of nutrition.

The Story Of John N. Garner

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

'Jack' Battles Under The Banner Of Veteran Champ Clark

CHAPTER X

When the Democratic party came back into power in the house of representatives in 1911, under Champ Clark's brilliant and patriotic leadership, it had been wandering in the outer darkness for 16 years.

No Democratic speaker had presided over the house since the close of the speakership of Charles F. Crisp of Georgia, in 1895.

With the exception of a few of the "elder statesmen" like Clark, the great body of Democrats in the house had enjoyed absolutely no parliamentary experience under Democratic rule. Clark had served under Crisp. He had preserved in his own soul the Democratic tradition and the historic Demoratic fighting spirit.

Many of the Democrats who had fought with him against "Cannonism" before very long left the house, and eventually went to the senate. Among them were such men as Ollie James, of Kentucky, Broussard, of Louisiana; Hardwick of Georgia; Hitchcock of Nebraska; Hughes of New Jersey; Shepard of Texas; Stanley of Kentucky; Underwood, of Alabama, and Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the present Democratic leader of the senate.

The promotion of these men left big gaps in the Democratic ranks. Champ Clark was obliged to train up a new generation of lieutenants who would be capable of becoming the leaders of the future. He had his eye on all likely material. John N. Garner had long been under his observation.

Confidence at Home

Garner by this time had spent eight or nine years in the house. He had demonstrated, for the one most essential thing, that he had the confidence of the people of his own district, and might be relied upon to return to congress every two years indefinitely. This sort of stability in a representative is indispensable to a career of leadership.

Champ Clark had also observed that Garner was an economist in words. He had been four terms in the house and hadn't made a speech yet. Never once had he taken the floor, and soared off on a flight of rhetorical fancy.

Champ Clark was himself both an accomplished orator and a practical statesman. But he knew the futility of mere language.

Garner spent most of his time in his seat, watching the progress of legislation, and not on his feet making futile addresses. Few speeches have ever changed a vote in congress. Now and then he arose to ask a question, to contradict an erroneous statement. At times he would challenge James R. Mann, then the real Republican leader in the house, and by all odds the shrewdest and most adroit parliamentarian on that side. Clark saw that Garner had acquired a valuable grasp of the rules of the house, a very rare accomplishment. He began to use him more and more, to depend upon him, to lean on him.

Clark appointed him a member of the conference committee on the diplomatic and consular bill Feb. 21, 1913, and this was the first assignment of this kind he had had. Many times in this session Clark called the Texan to the chair, to preside in his absence. He invariably acquitted himself well.

Wins Coveted Place

With the beginning of the 63rd congress, which met in extra session in April, 1913, shortly after the beginning of the first term of President Woodrow Wilson, John N. Garner obtained the recognition in the house for which he had worked so hard.

Committees were not elected by the house, which meant that Democratic members of committees were chosen by the party caucus. Oscar W. Underwood in this manner became chairman of ways and means. It was the greatest forward step he had made in his congressional career. He won the place by merit. He had been tried and was trusted, by the leaders and by the house.

It is again, characteristic of the man, that he turned down an important chairmanship, on a committee which in the minds of most men ranks high, in order to gain a place of inferior rank, well down on the Democratic side of the common ways and means, the place upon which his heart had been set almost from the day he had entered congress.

Much "Log Rolling"

Places on ways and means were coveted by many ambitious Democratic members of the house, all of whom had some elements of strength. As is usual, in the making up of committees, there were many spirited contests for the vacancies, many more applicants than available places. Much trading went on, support here, for support promised there. The customary amount of what is called "log-rolling," or, less elegantly, but even more picturesquely, "you scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

John N. Garner saw what was going on, and instead of being discouraged, he was stimulated to increased activity, renewed determination to reach his goal. He put up such a fight that finally it was said to him upon authority:

"Give up this effort to go on ways and means, and you can have the chairmanship of the committe on foreign affairs."

John N. Garner's reply is worthy of preservation for all time, as a guide to all men when tempted to depart from the pathway they have laid out for themselves through life:

"I don't want the chairmanship of foreign affairs—I am going to a place where I can make a chairmanship for myself."

The group of leaders who were busily engaged in slate-making were aghast at such determination on the part of Garner. They had thought to sidetrack him with a chairmanship, among the prerogatives of which would be one of the most beautiful committee rooms in the capitol, a high-salaried clerk, which meant so much more patronage, and, for the man who held that chairmanship, a recognized social position in the smart official life of Washington.

A chairman of the foreign affairs committee, if he chooses, can be a high-stepper in the diplomatic set. He can attend all the banquets and dinners, and swanky afternoon teas galore are within his grasp. He is a figure of some consequence at exclusive White House affairs. He has the pleasure of having ambassadors and ministers of foreign governments use his ear for a speaking trumpet, filling him up with all sorts of propaganda.

John N. Garner was determined that his career in the house should be along constructive lines of finance. He knew that a place on ways and means would lead him to where he wanted to go and that the chairmanship of foreign affairs would force him into channels where he had no desire to go.

The fact is that Garner was not then, had not been before, and has not been since, unduly interested in foreign affairs. His whole heart and soul are bound up in the problems of plain, ordinary, every-day American people, exploited by outrageous ly high Republican tariffs and victimized by unfair tax laws. So Garner said:

"I am going to a place where I can make a chairmanship for myself."

How he made those words come true is not only a part of his own life's story, but a part of the history of the house of representatives.

An informal snapshot of Speaker John N. Garner taken as he stepped casually out of the capital building.

Water Cure

Although the use of water for the treatment of disease has been used by many races for hundreds of years, the methods for applying it do not seem to have been systematized until 1829 when a farmer in Silesia, Austria, by the name of Vincent Priessnitz attracted world-wide attention by his successful cures through the use of water. He first applied water to the treatment of injured farm animals and found that the animals became well so quickly that he did not hesitate to use the same treatment for himself when he was injured so severely that doctors told him he could not live. The notoriety attending his cure caused others to seek his aid and it was not long before he had to devote his entire time to similar treatments of sick and injured human beings. His phenomenal success was partly due to the favorable contrast his simple methods of treatments had over the extremely poor technique which the doctors of his day employed. Even though he did not apply water treatment as scientifically as can be done today, he was a very observing man and quick to learn, and there is no doubt that many successful cures can be credited to his name.

Bathing in those days was not a popular practice, in fact, it was almost deemed improper for one to bathe more than once or twice a year. The fame which attended the simple water treatment in Silesia has undoubtedly much to do with the popularity of bathing and cleanliness today.

The therapeutic value of water is largely due to its ability to absorb and hold large quantities of heat quickly. Water also has an excellent solvent power, being capable of dissolving most of the toxic waste products of the body. Water has also an advantage in that it can be used in a vast numbers of ways either as ice, liquid or vapor and it also has the property of being an excellent conductor of electricity and is useful in many types of electrical treatments. Water may be applied to the human body anywhere between the temperatures of 32 and 140 degrees Fahrenheit. It is rarely used at these extremes of temperature, most of the cold water applications varying from 50 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and the hot applications from 100 to 110 degrees. Water at the present time is used principally for the reduction of fevers, for purposes of cleanliness, and for the application of heat.

When rightly used, water can exert a very beneficial effect upon the body, and every doctor should be familiar with its effects. In fact, every person should learn how to use water as a treatment. The body cannot only be kept clean inside and out, but the use of water at the proper temperatures serves as a valuable remedy which often has no equal in the physician's armamentorium. There are a number of good books on hydrotherapy which can be obtained in any large public library and any one interested in the healing art should study this valuable adjunct which generally is known under such names as hydrotherapy, hydropathy and the water cure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Acquired Diseases Not Inherited

Question—Ma and pa ask: "If the parents have a diseased blood, such as leprosy or scrofula or any infection, will the evidence show on the baby or in the baby's blood? We are told that lepers at the lepers' colony have had children before or after commitment to the colony and that there is no evidence shown in the blood of the child; in other words, will the child inherit diseased blood from the parents?"

Answer—There is no evidence that any acquired disease may be inherited by the child. When children are born diseased, it is only because they had been infected when the mother was carrying them.

Function of Pineal Gland

Question—M. G. asks: "How can one make the pineal giand work better? What is the cause of it going wrong?"

Answer—There is no specific way of making the pineal giand work better. It is a gland which apparently performs no function in an adult, although it seems to serve the purpose of restraining sexual development in early childhood.

First Methodist W.M.S. Continues Study Of Korea

Continuing the study of "Korea, Land of the Dawn," begun last week, members of the missionary society of the First Methodist church met in the church parlors Monday morning at 10 o'clock, for mission study.

After a hymn led by Mrs. Stanley M. Raub, with Mrs. J. E. O'Brien at the piano, the inspirational talk was made by Mrs. C. B. Haynie who read two passages of Scripture, one from Psalms and one from Isaiah, each a prophecy of the establishment of the kingdom of God throughout the world, which she likened to the "dream-garden of a flower-grower." The speaker said that this garden was in constant need of watering and nourishing and that in the fulfillment of this dream of the kingdom of God, the forces of Christianity must work together, and that she believed that this was being done more effectively today than ever before; particular attention was called to the fact that children are being constantly reminded of world brotherhood and that this training of the children is the leaven which will lighten the whole lump of mankind and will do more to bring about world peace than all the disarmament conferences. Mrs. Haynie declared that the church, through its missionary activities, is striving to make "little gardens with flowery paths for little feet everywhere" in the world and is striving to get and to exemplify the mind of Christ in all human relationships, so that this "dream garden" may become reality. A prayer for dedication to the task of Christian Endeavor was given by Dr. S. Stephen McKenney.

Misses Thelma Norvell and May Bartlett played a violin duet, "Semple Avieu" (Simple Confession) by Thome, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. E. O'Brien.

Mrs. W. D. Cline, superintendent of the mission study, reviewed briefly last week's lesson. "The Great Light" was the topic discussed by Mrs. D. J. Carithers, who told of the ancient religions of Korea, and then the entrance of Christianity. Confucianism was described as a religion which acknowledges a supreme being and emphasizes morals and ethics and contains many beautiful teachings but which maintains ancestor worship as one of its chief characteristics. Buddhism, the speaker said, commends the virtues of patience, love, kindness, temperance and other kindred qualities, but does not believe in a supreme being and is an idolatrous religion to which one-third of the people of the world belong. Mrs. Carithers said that animism is spirit-worship. Then the speaker told very dramatically of the entrance of Christianity into this land of so many religions, and of the consequent unique spiritual awakening of the people. The interesting story was told of an old nun in a Buddhist temple and of her conversion to Christianity, as an example of some of the effects of the impact of Christianity on the Koreans.

In her discussion of the "Economic Problems" of Korea, Mrs. Jozach Easley drew an engaging parallel between the conditions in Korea and in America. She told of the constantly and rapidly changing conditions in Korea, which was but recently the "Hermit Kingdom." Because the industries are owned and operated by the Japanese, the Koreans themselves are able to profit very little from the improvements made in their country and as a people they are in danger of developing a paralyzing pessimism and self-pity, Mrs. Easley said, so that the problem becomes a spiritual, as well as an economic, one.

Mrs. J. C. A. Guest dismissed the session with prayer.

The next mission study class will be held next Monday morning, March 7, at 10:30 o'clock in the Educational building.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Spring made no bones about coming on, deceptive as she sometimes is. Though, of course, winter may come blustering back and in his jealousy, kill some of spring's charms. It is her coloring, he wars upon.

And today there are jonquils and forsythia making the world golden; peach trees are turning pink and plum trees are already full of fragrant white flower. Nothing is more glorious than the japonica that flames in so many Wichita Falls yards and that fills Bellevue park with its own particular glory.

I came into the building where I work today and saw upon a desk two magnificent tulips. One was a vivid red and one a wine and scarlet. I came upstairs and kept going down to look again until their owner caught me, and I learned there were many of them blooming in his yard on Berkeley. Mr. Rhea Howard is cultivating tulips this season and their glory began several days before February was ready to go out.

There are pansies in the Howard yard and in Mrs. C. E. McCutchen's also. In the latter japonica flames and crocus and other such timid flowers have bloomed. She pets them into bravery.

It must be a wonderful thing to come back to life in the spring as a flower. I can fancy nothing I would rather be in a new birth than a flower. But it would be just my luck to be a prince's feather—which is the only thing called a flower in botany that I refuse to consider one.

While on the subject of resurrection, I remember a Sunday school teacher who said that she had not the slightest doubt on earth that she would meet all her loved ones in heaven in the same shape and image which they wore on earth.

If I had not been just as certain of another belief, my life would have been haunted. Fancy finding the hunchbacks and harelipped just the same in heaven. And so far as that goes, those people who lack deformity would like a chance to be something but plain, when they reach the "happy shores."

There are tall who would be short and short who would be tall; there are fat who would be lean and lean who would be fat. Heaven being a place of eternal happiness, each must have his desire.

But the trouble will be when desires conflict. The musicians who want eternal music will rasp the nerves of those souls who cry for peace. And how will the people who wish to concentrate on books manage to be polite when an animated angel wants to talk of the new style in wing cuts?

With all respect for all things sacred, we apologize by stating we are not yet quite over the flu and just ramble on.

North Side Women Meet in Circles

Members of the North Side W. M. S. met in circles Monday. Circle one met at the church and the session was opened with a song. Mrs. C. R. Walker gave the devotionals from the eighth chapter of Romans, after which the lesson from the mission textbook, "Healing and Missions" was taught. Those taking part on the program were Mesdame J. B. O'Bannon, R. L. Lancaster and Will Gillen. Plans were made to observe the March week of prayer.

The meeting was closed with sentence prayers and there were nine present.

Circle Two

Circle two met at the church for mission study. After a song, Mrs. Pratt gave the devotionals, and Mrs. Parker, the opening prayer. A brief business session was held after which Mrs. McAda closed the session with prayer.

South Side Baptist W. M. U. Honors Members

A social honoring Mrs. J. D. Beggs, who is leaving to make her home in San Antonio, was given Monday afternoon by members of the South Side Baptist W. M. U. in their meeting in the church annex.

Emily Post Writes On 'Good Taste Today'

By EMILY POST

It does not make much difference whether you hear the name "Emily Post" or whether you hear the word "etiquette," but the chances are that you will instinctively add the one after the other. Therefore, in this first article, it may be well to explain why the title I have chosen is not the one expected of me—"Etiquette."

Actually, etiquette and good taste are synonymous. Proper behavior is behavior according to good taste in everything that is said or done or thought or chosen or used; in other words, according to the precepts of etiquette. But to many people the word "etiquette" suggests nothing but a lot of fussy little rules about nothing worth fussing about! Therefore, I feel that the point of view that I want to express, will be not only clearer, but broadened, by the title "Good Taste Today."

Will Include Background

The word "today" is added because I have no intention of upholding the point of view yesterday whenever that of today is better, or even as good. Moreover, this will allow me to go beyond the boundaries of manners and behavior, which are like the action and dialogue of a play, and include the setting of the scene—in short, the background against which we live our lives.

Inseparable, therefore, from our speech, our manners, our appearances and our character, is the ability (or the failure) to create the beauty and personal appeal of our homes, whether "home" be in a great house or in one little room. To many, perhaps, such subjects as architectural beauty, the theory of color harmony, charm in furniture arrangement, sound as formidable as the fundamentals of ethics, or the ideal of culture. As a matter of fact, I want to write at one time or another about each one of these subjects, since they are essential to us all.

Our Children

TO BED

"What have you been doing? Dirtied yourself right after I had put clean clothes on you. You march yourself right off to bed. That's all about it. You're going to go to bed and stay there for the rest of the day. At least you won't be dirtying any more clothes."

What relation has going to bed with dirty hands? Any healthy child is going to get his clothes dirty if he plays at all. Why not give him the kind of clothing that play and dirt won't hurt? If it is dress up time of a Sunday, a party, a trip, don't put on his dress suit until the last minute. Then take him along with you, promptly. It isn't sensible to ask a child to keep his clothes without spot or wrinkle through a long dreary idleness.

Here is another instance of going to bed that is a mistaken action. "My little son went to school for the first two weeks and then, because a big boy knocked him down, and he was bruised and scratched severely, he refused to go back. "All right," I said, "if you don't want to go to school you can go to bed and stay there." He went to bed and seems perfectly willing to stay there."

He would rather go to bed than face the rough playground. He feels safe in bed and he is afraid of outdoors at school. He won't attempt to go to school unless we manage to get him to change his attitude toward it. Keeping him in bed isn't going to do that. It will relax his body, and his mind, and teach him to retreat from trouble, but it won't make him face it.

I think it is a mistake to send a child to bed for any purpose save sleep and rest. Going to bed ought never to be a punishment. If a child gets to think that bed is a place of punishment he is not going to like to go there at any time and then you are going to have a bad time every bedtime.

Staying in bed is bad for children unless they are ill or in need of sleep. Bed is a lonely place. The household activity goes on apart from it. Nobody stops to consider the one in bed except at meal time and that only in passing. If one is sent to bed for punishment and loneliness soon drives one to seek comfort from oneself and that is dangerous. The sick child is saved from that because he is attended by anxious friends, mother, and nurse and physician. The child under discipline is left to his own resources and that, I repeat with all the emphasis possible, is bad for him.

Prolonged inactivity is cruel. A child is the soul of action. It is his life. To deprive him of it for any length of time is to do him great hurt. Aside from that serious as it must be, is the habit he gets by going to bed. Soon he will go to bed of his own accord at every opportunity: when he is in bad humor, when things go against him, whenever he is at odds with his world. We don't want that.

We have to teach a child to stand up to life, not to retreat from it. We want him to fight against weakness, illness, and retreat. Then we certainly do not want him to get to making bed a refuge. He is to stay out of bed except when he needs to rest or to sleep or recover from illness.

Dress children in overalls and sweaters and let them play. Deprive them of some privilege when they are behaving badly. Make the punishment reasonable and keep it related to the offense, as far as you can. It is not the severity of the punishment that matters. It is the effect. If you consider the effect of sending a child to bed for long periods of the day you will soon see that it is a mistake.

Mme. Sun Yat Sen Suffers Collapse

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29. (AP)—Mme. Sun Yat Sen, widow of China's first president, suffered a nervous breakdown today, brought on, her doctors said, by overwork.

She, with hundreds of other Chinese women, has been doing her bit in relief work, tending the wounded and in many other ways sharing the tremendous labor which has fallen upon every one in Shanghai.

Thirty-three temporary hospitals have been organized this month by the Chinese Red Cross and to date the patients number nearly 4,000, most of them wounded soldiers.

Chinese doctors coming in from the lines with Chinese wounded have charged their work is made dangerous by Japanese aviators who swoop low and send a hail of machine gun bullets into the little parties of Red Cross workers searching the battlefield.

Floral Heights Methodist W. M. S. Has Bible Study

"A Land of Turmoil," from the Bible textbook "Pleaders of Righteousness," was the theme discussed by Mrs. Finis A. Crutchfield Monday at the meeting of the Floral Heights Methodist Woman's Missionary society. She traced Israel's doom in a vivid talk. The terrible onslaught of Assyria and then of Babylon were followed by golden days, she said, in which the wealthy people multiplied. The cities became centers of wealth and luxury. Many of the middle-class people had been destroyed in the long wars and others slipped into the status of serfs and hirelings.

Material prosperity affected the richer class but the middle and poorer classes were more and more over-taxed and were finally deprived of even the consolation of religion which had become an affair of sumptuous brunt offering followed by huge festivals. By the time of Hosea, there was political turmoil and organized society was tottering.

A Prophet's Diagnosis

From the beginning the Israelites had been taught that their safety came in keeping from foreign contact. But alliances, commerce and intertrade all tended to draw the people away from their life-long unity and Israel was weakened. Hosea saw national decay and pictured it as a loaf of bread charred to carbon on one side and raw dough on the other. The condition of his people was his constant concern.

Casual stories and references give the impression that the crossing of the racial line became common. Intermarriage with other races undermined the racial purity. Hosea watched the approach of Israel's dissolution. From this great prophet, Mrs. Crutchfield stated, some of the greatest and deepest revelations concerning man and God has come.

Opening Service

The session opened with a song service and prayer and an inspiring devotional was given by Mrs. A. B. Gough from the book of Hosea. Sentence prayers were led by Mrs. R. J. Claypool who is in charge of the Bible study services and were closed by Mrs. Charles Crowell.

Mrs. Claypool conducted a contest on true and false Bible facts which was most interesting and instructive.

Mrs. W. J. Stuckler led a song service with Mrs. Fred Sehmann at the piano, Mrs. T. F. Hunter announced a 42 party to be given by her circle Tuesday afternoon. Members of circle four, it was announced, will serve the men's banquet Friday evening, March 4, and members of circle five will serve a dinner in the church dining room Friday, March 11.

There were 62 members present and Mrs. C. H. Bingham dismissed the meeting with prayer.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Mrs. Durand thumbed idly through a leather bound book that was lying on the table in front of her. She knew that all this would make Bruce angry at her, in fact he was already. It made her a little peevish to think that she had to assume all the responsibility for him. After all, he was Charles' nephew, hers only by marriage.

"Yes, be a spectator," she said, beginning to weep a little. "You're just as eager as I am for Bruce to make a good marriage. You want to see him married to the right kind of girl, some one with money and with social prestige who can help him. Some one of whom he can be proud, and you know it, but you're contented to sit idly by and let me do all the work. Bruce is angry with me even now."

Mr. Durand did not look up. "You are mistaken concerning my desires," he asserted. "I desire Bruce to make a good marriage, but I also desire him to be happy in it."

Eleanore looked at him quizzically. She simply could not understand Charles at times.

The Morse family lived in a house that was similar to that of the Durands except that it had been built at a later date which was an indication that the Morses had made their money later than the Durands had made theirs. It was also synonomous with the fact that they were later members of the North Shore Country club and subsequently Evantston society.

Mrs. Morse had not forgotten for an instant that she came of pure English stock. Her ancestors had, she declared, been traced as far back as the landing of the Pilgrims, but she never intimated that they came over on the Mayflower. People looked askance at you if you made statements like that nowadays. If you believed every person who said his ancestors were on the Mayflower that little vessel would have sunk before it ever left England.

There was, however, a distinct understanding among the social elect that Mrs. Morse was of sturdy English stock. That helped her, she was sure, in making her entrance into Evanston society when Herbert made his money in real estate. She forgot promptly that she had been of the same English stock before Herbert had cashed in on his holdings. That was one of the things she never mentioned.

Mrs. Morse's life had been passed thinking up ways to promote the interests of her only child, Sybil. In the first place, Sybil had been a bashful child. Mrs. Morse didn't know why. Neither she nor Mr. Morse was bashful, she told everybody who spoke of Sybil's shyness. She had taken Sybil to specialists, who pronounced the malady only one of her characteristics. She probably would outgrow it, the specialists consoled.

But Sybil was now 20. She had been to Mrs. Smythe's School for Girls, situated on the Hudson above New York, she had been to a select seminary in Washington, and finally, when it was decided that perhaps a coeducational school was the thing that would bring her out of her shell, she was promptly shipped off there. To no avail. When she returned the following summer she still was unable to cope with any situation wherein a man was concerned.

Bruce Durand had known her since childhood. He liked her, certainly he liked her. He had been forced to tell his aunt this countless times. But he wasn't at all interested in her. Whenever he spoke to her out of sheer courtesy he half expected her either to begin weeping or to run away and hide.

Mrs. Morse had liked Bruce Durand and had picked him out of the entire North Shore crowd as being the most desirable man to marry her daughter. She had planned things carefully when Sybil had made her debut two years ago, but an unfortunate thing had occurred. Bruce Durand had been called away unexpectedly.

Bruce remembered all about it. It had made an unpleasant scene. Recollection also brought forcibly to his mind that this happened to be Sybil's second debut. She hadn't been able to click on the first one, so now she was being accorded a second one. Bruce smiled to himself as he drove along toward the Morse home, despite the fact that he was inwardly angry.

A lot of bunk, that was what it was—that society stuff. He wanted to quit it cold. He never wanted to see another country club. He wanted to marry Lois and get a little apartment some place — some place where they would never have any company. All this talk about reputation and social level upon which his aunt harped, made him sick.

Too bad Sybil Morse had been a flop. It wasn't his fault, was it? What did one man or less mean to her party? There were plenty of men standing around the punch bowl, he guessed. None of them ever missed a chance to dance a little and look the girls over when it didn't cost them anything. Fellows who had money were sometimes a lot tighter with it than fellows who didn't have so much, Bruce had learned. Say, not one of those girls who had been to Sybil Morse"s party could begin to compete with Lois Corbin. She was a thoroughbred who made all of them look as if they needed training. But they wouldn't ask Lois to their parties. Oh, no! Not even if they knew that she was was his girl. She didn't have a family who lived on the North Shore of Lake Michigan. Her father hadn't made a sudden fortune in the real estate game, therefore she wouldn't be welcome in this crowd.

Bruce laughed scornfully to himself. Well, they could have their society, their Four Hundred or whatever they wanted to call it. After this party that his aunt was giving for him Friday night he'd crawl away like somebody who had withdrawn from the business of living. False values — that's what was the trouble with all of them.

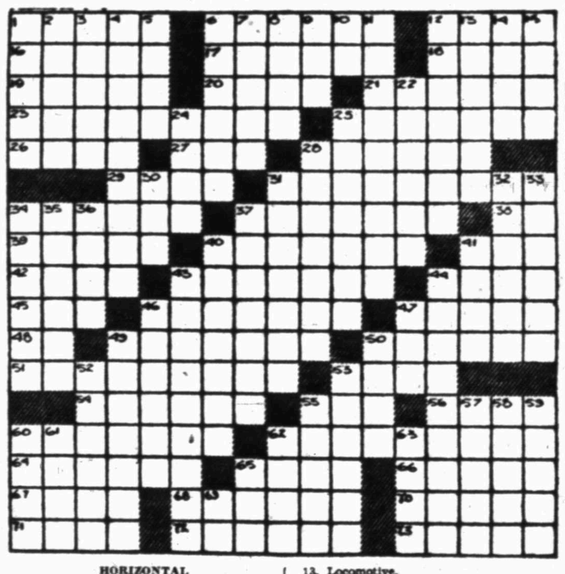

Mrs. Morse saw his yellow roadster round the corner and nose into the Morse driveway. She called hastily to Sybil, who was upstairs at the moment.

"Sybil, Sybil," she hurried up the stairs to meet her, "it's Bruce, honey! Bruce Durand! He's just coming into the driveway, now. He's probably coming to apologize to you for missing your party."

Sybil was as excited as was her mother. She always had been interested in Bruce. She wished she could get up enough courage to flirt with him a little. Well, not exactly to flirt but to act as Alice Winslow and Babe Thomas did. They could talk to the men they liked so casually and the next thing one heard was that they were engaged to the very men that Sybil had seen them talking to out at the club. It hadn't seemed difficult at all.

HANK SEVEREID ARRIVES TO ASSUME SPUDDER MANAGERSHIP

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Squared Circle Again

The Olney Enterprise editor in a recent issue took pen in hand to verbally boot the old Rambler in the trouser seat seam, and doubtless had the Rambler been present in the flesh the editor would have made an attempt to carry out in real life his heart's desire as expressed in his article. In fact his article says that such treatment is exactly what I deserve.

The reason, it appears, is that recently I printed "a far-fetched effort to soothe the Wichita losers" in the district four basket ball tournament here. But let the Enterprise editor speak for himself. Here is his oration:

"Did Olney basket ball fans read 'The Rambler's Corner' in Thursday's Wichita Record? We hope they did.

"The comment might have been amusing if it had not been so unethical and unsportsman like. It had the ring of regular sand-lot alibi stuff. It was a far-fetched effort to soothe the Wichita losers. But the Rambler passed the buck by quoting a Clara fan. The writer blames no fan for backing his own team, but when the fan has to go so far afield and stoop so far over to reach the 'soothing syrup' he deserves nothing less than a verbal swift kick in the trouser seat seam.

"Despite the Clara fan's reported statement and despite the Rambler's corner, the Olney Cubs have played a fine, clean game throughout the season and are still going toward bidistrict honors. The record will compare favorably with any team, in point of fouls, the writer ventures. They are as good sports in defeat as they are in victory, and they claim only such honors as they win by fair play. Their record to date is not one built on alibis, Rambler and the Clara citizen to the contrary.

"Incidentally and as a matter of further information, B. M. Densmore who was director of the district meet made the statement following the tournament that it was one of the best he had ever seen."

Strangely enough, there is a similarity between this Olney denunciation, and the row I had with H. T. T. in the Vernon Record during the last football season. In the Vernon case I printed a letter some fan had written—goodness knows what it was all about now; I've forgotten!—and the Vernon columnist immediately stated he doubted if it were really a letter from a fan, insinuating I had written the diatribe myself.

In like fashion, the Rambler now gets credit for writing the Clara fan's letter.

The Rambler hopes, however, that the present scrap with the Olney editor will not assume the proportions, real or imaginary, of the Vernon wrangle. In the latter case the Vernon columnist charged me with slander for printing the letter in question, whether I had written it or not; and, what was more painful, proceeded to fill his columns for about a week with stuff concerning "What Every Columnist Should Know"; all of which, of course, was designed to show his readers what a terrible columnist I was, and, conversely, what a great newspaper man he was. The upshot of it was, in all probability, that readers of the Vernon Record, one of the few really good small dailies in this district, and The Record News, a great family newspaper, were bored to death through the whole business, for nothing is more tiresome than to hear or read about two writers engaged in the momentous (to them) argument: "Am I greater than you, or are you greater than I?"

But lo, I seem to wander far afield.

Returning to the case at hand, I will state in the beginning that I really did receive a letter from a Clara fan, and that said letter is the one published some days ago in this fertile garden of athletic literature.

It seems a little odd to be denounced in Olney. Really, I'm getting quite a kick out of it, for in all truthfulness I believe it will help my cause, i. e., it may help me hang on to my job.

You see, folks up my way for months and months have been accusing me of being so all-fired prejudiced in favor of anything and everything coming from or even smacking of Olney, that it was reported students of the local high school really considered organizing to ride me out of town on a rail, and see that I stayed out.

It all resulted from the fact that the Rambler is nothing, after all, but a human being. I like a winner. For several years we didn't have winners here and I didn't have anything, locally, to whoop for. But just a few miles off were the Olney Cubs, and for them I could shout my head off, for in practically everything they were on top. There were other winners, of course, in many other surrounding towns; but Olney had more to whoop for and I didn't mind parading that fact in print.

The present rukus, I repeat, may save me from extermination by the no small number of local adherents who have long contemplated me with murderous intent.

As to the actual argument, all I can think to say, for the life of me, is "What of it?"

Olney was adjudged the winner of the game. Several hundred spectators were there, every one of whom may have had a different view of the matter. Just because one of those opinions happened to get in print—one that favored Wichita Falls—the Cub stronghold seethes with consternation, like the Democratic party trying to agree on prohibition.

Olney, after winning the district, went ahead and copped the bidistrict crown from Crowell. They will go to the state tournament at Austin next Friday and Saturday. Broadminded fans of both districts three and four are rooting for them to go the limit in the state tournament. Down there at Austin they may get a pretty big scare, with all those fine teams about. But the Cubs will not be scared too much; they're over that stage now. They got the biggest scare of their lives in the game with Coach Barry Holton's Wichita Falls Coyotes!

TRAINING CAMP OPENS TODAY

New Pilot to Look Over Band of Youngsters

By FRED THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

Though there are few things Henry L. (Hank) Severeid did not experience in 15 years under the big top and in the double A's, today, for the first time, he will actually manage a ball club.

It won't be much of a club—just 10 or 12 youngsters reporting for early tryouts—but more players will follow; tall oaks from little acorns grow, you know.

Severeid, with his wife and two daughters, Jane, 9 years old, and June, 5, arrived here yesterday afternoon, apparently none the worse off for a long automobile ride from Los Angeles, Calif. They left the coast last Friday.

"We'll Work," He Says

The veteran catcher, who toiled 11 years for the St. Louis Browns, and spent four years in the Pacific Coast league before accepting the Wichita Falls skippership, faces probably the hardest task of any Texas league manager this year. He must please a public whose tastes he is not intimately acquainted with; he must shape a presentable ball club with very few veterans returning with which to form a nucleus; he doesn't at the start know those few regulars who will come back, and furthermore, he doesn't know but two or three of all the players who are to report. And all of this faces him in his first attempt at being a manager.

We do not review these problems for Severeid's benefit, for he knows all too well the situation that confronts him. It is rather to show his reaction to the coming task.

"I know I have a hard job ahead of me," he said. "I knew that even before I left the coast. I could have stayed with the Hollywood club as a catcher, you know, and had a pretty good job; one not as hard as this one; but I felt I wanted to be a manager, and decided to strike right out and try my hand at it, when the Wichita Falls job was offered me.

"The situation here is certainly not ideal; we have few good men returning whom we can call regulars, and it is always hard to build a club when you have very little to start with; but that doesn't mean the job is a hopeless one. Not by a long shot. Baseball is full of surprises, and none can tell but what we might have the biggest surprise of all right under our noses.

"Naturally I can't say anything about the club's chance. I only know a few of the players and don't know what some of them can do. Even if I knew them all and had gauged their ability, a prediction would be risky. I can, however, promise a lot of hard work. We'll work hard to give this town a winner."

Born "Hustler"

Severeid has an abundant store of nervous energy and a lot of good humor which, combined, make him an ideal companion. He is 38 years old, and his hair is almost completely gray, but you would put him down for a good-natured boy before classifying him as the usual middle-aged man. His blue-gray eyes are always dancing as he talks; and he talks fast. He appears to be a born "hustler."

As is well known, Severeid will be a playing manager, the first of the kind to pilot a Wichita Falls club since Jim Galloway's reign in 1929. "I expect to do most of the catching, unless something unforeseen develops," he said.

He did not amplify that statement, but if he meant he would not do most of the catching if the club already had a fair receiver, there is no doubt but what Hank will get the nod from himself; especially since the sale of Art Bradbury to San Antonio.

The veteran maskman appears a little over-weight, but it will take but little training to bring him down to his playing weight, he said. His round, rudy cheeks bespeak the best of health. He tips the scales at slightly over 200, but he plays at 195.

Now Get This Straight

And by the way, boys, it's pronounced Sev-reed. Most of us have been saying "Sev-er-eyed," and this, according to the actual owner of the name, is wrong. The "Sev-reed" is pronounced with the accent on the first syllable, and the "e" that is between the "Sev" and the "reid" is not pronounced at all.

A small band of youngsters reported to Secretary Airey yesterday and will be given their first workout starting at 10 o'clock this morning. This will continue through the week. Pitchers and catchers are to report March 5, next Tuesday, and the remainder of the squad a week later.

The new manager announced a radical change in the conduct of Spudder spring training camps when he said he would have only one workout a day through the entire training period. Morning and afternoon drills have been the policy of most of Hank's predecessors.

"The system of two workouts a day has passed out," he said. "It's hard on the players, and really doesn't do them any good."

Hank said that until training camp games started he would start work about 10:30 or 11 o'clock, and call it a day about 2:30 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon. When games start, the boys will report daily about 1 o'clock, he said.

Meets Pal Here

Severeid, total stranger to this huge state, was shown around a bit yesterday by Secretary Airey. Imagine his pleasure in finding, among all the strangers, a friend from the coast. He was Monroe Sweeney, former Texas league and National league umpire who of recent years served as an arbiter in the Pacific Coast league. Severeid and Sweeney are close friends. Sweeney served in the Texas league in 1922 and 1923, and the ensuing four years worked in the National league. He winters in Mineral Wells and was here on a visit with Jim Galloway.

Sweeney was vociferous in his praise of the new Spudder skipper. "He's a fine fellow, a splendid fellow," said Sweeney, "and he's a hard worker, too."

Severeid came up just as Sweeney was driving off with Galloway. And Sweeney, as a farewell, said: "Goodbye. The worst I can wish you is a pennant."

In all, 22 lakes and streams of Glacier National park were stocked the past year with a total of more than a million trout.

Meet Hank

CASHION PICKS LETTER MEN

Seven Cage Stars to Get Award

Seven men on the basket ball squad of the Cashion High school, which was nosed out of the county championship by the Electra Tigers, will receive letters, Coach Randle Hanks announced Monday.

Those to receive the honor were announced as follows: Dick Neely, guard; Nolan Neely, guard; J. F. Rutledge, forward; Lloyd Crowe, forward; Ted Swinford, center; LeRoy Reed, forward; and Floyd Skipwith, guard.

Crowe, Swinford and Skipwith will return next year while the other four will graduate at the end of this term.

District Baseball Season Discussed

Preliminaries for the second annual interscholastic league baseball card in district No. 4 were arranged Monday afternoon at a meeting in the Kemp hotel called by Superintendent B. M. Dinsmore of Electra.

Knox Kinard, Oklaunion superintendent, was named chairman and H. B. Boswell of Harrold was elected secretary. All entries must be received by Mr. Boswell by March 26, and first games are to be played two weeks from that date. Mr. Dinsmore will arrange a schedule of games after all entries are received. A round robin schedule is planned and Mr. Boswell will notify all league director generals in the nine counties of the district.

The Nocona Indians won the district title last year. Counties in the district are Archer, Baylor, Clay, Jack Montague, Throckmorton, Wilbarger, Wichita and Young.

Mr. Dinsmore, Mr. Kinard, Superintendent Oder of Bomarton and Butler Westerfield of Burkburnett attended the meeting here Monday. Megargel and Odell sent notices that they would enter the league play.

Vosmik Arrives In Camp of Indians

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 29. (AP)—Joe Vosmik, ex-sandlot batting sensation with the Cleveland Indians last year, blew into the Indian camp with a trio of rookies today to head the final contingent of tribesmen on the spring training jaunt.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh gave his squad of pitchers their first and most extensive batting practice today with Wes Ferrell lifting one against the left field barrier.

Alexander of Tigers Breaks Old Tradition

PALO ALTO, Calif., Feb. 20. (AP)—Dale Alexander shattered a Stanford university tradition and gave the Detroit Tigers' spring training season an auspicious opening today by twice driving the ball from home plate over the left field fence at the university baseball field.

The fence is 460 feet from the plate and Stanford athletic authorities said the feat never before had been accomplished. It was the Tigers' first drill.

GARDNER GETS NEW UMPIRES

Three New Arbiters Added To Texas League List

DALLAS, Feb. 29. (UP)—J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, announced today that three new umpires will wear the blue serge this season when games start in mid-April.

The new arbiters are Clarence Brooks, Long Beach, Calif., in the Arizona-Texas league last year; Clyde DeFate, Kansas City, Mo., with the Cotton States league last year, and Robert Kober, St. Louis, formerly in the Three-Eye league.

Three Church Loop Contests Tonight

With only two weeks left to play in the last half schedule of the Wichita Falls Sunday School Basket ball league, interest has reached fever heat. The First Christians and Highland Heights Christians have thundered through the second half undefeated just as they did in the first half and tonight's games should be of interest.

The first game on the weekly triple header finds Floral Heights Methodist and Floral Heights Presbyterian clashing with their second place tie at stake. Both teams have been clicking smoothly and this game should prove to be a whale of a scrap.

In the second game of the night Highland Heights Christian takes on the crack East Side Presbyterians. The Presbyterian five is one of the hardest teams in the league to beat and should give the Highlander five a real scrap.

First Christians take a breather in the last game of the evening when they take on Temple Israel. The Temple five have not been able to click all year while First Christian has swept aside all opposition from the very start.

With Jim "What-a-Man" Janeway still out of the lineup with injuries, the Christians will have to depend on Noel Brashear and Monty Griffin for their offensive punch, but the task could not be placed in a more capable pair of hands.

Should both the Christian teams win tonight, next week's clash of the two should prove to be a very interesting struggle with the championship at stake when they meet. Should Highland Heights lose tonight they will still have a crack at the lead in next week's game.

Pirate's Skipper To Tackle Infield Problem

PASO ROBLES, Calif., Feb. 29. (AP)—One of the Pittsburgh Pirates' biggest problems—the shaping of the infield—is to be among the first tackled by Manager George Gibson.

Gus Suhr, of course, is going to be the first baseman and Capt. Pie Traynor will be on third, but the balance of the inner works must be studied.

Tony Piet and Howard Gorskloss are to fight it out for second base and while Tommy Thevenow seems in good shape to start the season at short, Gibby is planning for emergencies.

Cardinal Regulars Fail to Show Up

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 29. (AP)—Manager Gabby Street had planned a long round of batting practice today to celebrate arrival of the Cardinal regulars, but only three reported so the old sergeant postponed the slugging workout with much grumbling.

Joel Hunt, George Watkins and Bob Parham, outfielders, were the only athletes who joined the battery men who had been working for a week. Sylvester Johnson and Jim Lindsey were additional pitchers on the job.

Carnera Wins Slow Battle in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 29. (US)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, won the decision over Pierre Charles, the French boxer, in 10 slow rounds at the Palais de Sports tonight. The winner was given six of the 10 rounds but the exhibition was characterized by experts as a "disappointing."

Carnera outweighed Charles by 45 pounds.

Appling Arrives To Complete Chisox Roster

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Feb. 29. (AP)—Luke Appling, young White Sox shortstop, landed in camp today, placing all hands of the 1932 team on deck.

Appling was a man of mystery until he strolled into camp. He was mailed a contract about six weeks ago but nothing was heard from him until he put in his appearance.

Condell and Orth Meet This Week

Another grudge battle is promised to Wichita Falls mat fans this week in the meeting of Silent Condell and Paul Orth in the main event of Promotor Whitey Grovo's weekly wrestling show. The battle last week between the two ended in a near riot with the two men mixing it again after the match. Condell asked for a chance to even the score with the Toledo Badman. Condell issued a challenge at the close of last week's match and Orth informed Grovo that he would accept the challenge.

Their match last week ended in a draw, with each winning one fall, but this week the match will be to a finish. Condell, one of the leading favorites of Wichita Falls fans, has displayed his skill here many times and has reputation of being one of the cleverest boys in the ring. Orth has appeared here only twice.

On the semifinal match Promotor Grovo will introduce to local fans two new faces in Sailor Moran of Chicago and Jack Fields of St. Louis. Grovo said he had seen both men in action many times and that they were sure to be pleasing performers. There will also be a good preliminary match on the card.

Only Three Unsigned Players to Worry Sens

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 29. (AP)—Indications were today as the Washington Senators' pitchers and batters went into action that most of the team will be on hand for duty well before the week is out.

Dave Harris, over whom there is speculation as to whether he is for sale, has sent word he will start for camp not later than tomorrow. Joe Cronin, shortstop, likewise has written he is anxious to get going, and Sam West is headed for Biloxi. Buddy Myer, second baseman, arrived to get the signing business decided, leaving President Clark Griffith's signing worries confined to West, Heine Manush and Joe Judge.

City League Amateurs To Organize Tonight

Amateur baseball players wishing to compete in the City league this season are invited to meet in the office of C. C. Bunnenberg, city park commissioner, in the Memorial auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight. Organization of the league for the 1932 season is expected to be perfected. A six or eight-club league is expected, it was said.

Two Absentees In Camp of Athletics

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 29. (AP)—All but two of the Athletics are in camp now and the ball park hummed with activity today. The only two absentees are Al Simmons and George Earnshaw, who are training in Hot Springs, Ark. There will be an "added starter" when Joe Boley, who was sold to Cleveland but returned to the A's by Judge Landis, arrives here March 10.

BENNY LEONARD WHIPS M'MAHON

Former Champ Gets Good Start on Comeback

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (UP)—Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, passed his first genuine test in his comeback campaign tonight when he won a 10-round decision over Billy McMahon, rugged New York welter, before 4,000 fans at St. Nicholas arena.

At times, the semi-bald Leonard appeared like the master boxer of eight years ago. He bobbed and weaved under McMahon's wild swings, and countered with stiff jabs which kept the younger opponent off balance.

Leonard clearly won six rounds, two were even and two went to McMahon. The former champion, now 36 years old, weighed 151¾; McMahon, 149.

Although Leonard's victory tonight was clear cut, a decision earned by virtue of his masterful boxing, ringside spectators agreed that McMahon could not have lasted three rounds, if he had fought Benny 10 years ago.

In the first two rounds tonight Benny was content to bob and weave and let McMahon do the leading. Then in the third, Benny opened up, and shook his opponent with a series of stiff rights and lefts to the head.

McMahon came out fast in the fourth round, but Leonard caught him coming in with a right under the heart that discouraged the youngster.

In the fifth McMahon managed to reach the side of Leonard's head with a few stiff rights but Benny refused to back up under fire.

Benny was at his best in the sixth and just before the bell, he caught McMahon with a solid right across and a left to the jaw which made Billy give ground.

From then on Leonard boxed skilfully to coast to victory in his first 10-round go since he abdicated his throne.

Austin Youth, 15, Shoots Hole in One

AUSTIN, Feb. 29. (AP)—A little boy has made good in a big way.

Leon Johnson, 15, who is only 4 feet 9 inches tall and tips the scales at a mere 85 pounds, made a hole in one on the Austin Municipal course today.

He accomplished his feat with a spoon on No. 2 hole which is 170 yards long.

Howard Payne Wins Season's Last Tilt

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Feb. 29. (AP)—Howard Payne tonight won the final game on its basket ball schedule, beating St. Edward's of Austin 41-30. The Jackets were ahead, 25-11, at the half. Herron of the Saints led in scoring with 14 points.

A 170-pound marlin swordfish caught in making the M-G-M fishing short, "Fisherman's Paradise," is said to leap more than 50 times high in the air.

Arkansas Beats Rice Owls, 34-19

HOUSTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—The deadly left hand of "Doc" Sexton, tall Razorback center, here tonight shot the Rice Owls into submission as the Arkansas cagers staged another fast finish to trim the Rice five, 34-19.

Sexton's left wing accounted for 11 points in the second half when the Razorbacks came on to win the game. Again playing the man in the hole, Sexton repeatedly shook loose under the Rice basket for crip shots.

The game marked the final appearance of the Rice quintet this season and was the second loss to Arkansas in the past three days.

Rice led at the half, 15-14, thanks to a crip shot by Hess, but the Owls did not have the stuff to keep pace with the Fayetteville crew. The Owls collected only four points in the entire last half.

Yanks' First Drill Draws 5,000 Fans

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 29. (AP)—Led by the twin monarchs of home run slugging, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees put on their first full spring drill today for the benefit of some 5,000 non-paying fans, a full battalion of photographers and a corps of experts. The experts consider this expensive outfit the one most likely to dislodge the Athletics from the American league peak this year.

Just to make the opening ceremonies official, Ruth, in uniform for the first time, almost punctured the high water-tower with a foul ball, pounded one of his typical home run balls into the palm trees bordering the lake beyond center field and easily dominated the whole affair.

Ruth and Tony Lazzeri are now the only unsigned players. All that stands between Ruth and the ceremony of affixing his signature to a document calling for $70,000 per year is a conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert. This is expected to take place next week.

ADVERTISED

All the king's horses . . . and all the king's men can't make a success out of a bad product. No amount of advertising will create a market for it. The more it's advertised, the more its defects become known.

But a good product well advertised grows as swiftly and naturally as a healthy plant. People try it and like it. They tell others. They like it. Soon that product is found everywhere . . . and its name, spread abroad by advertising, is on every tongue.

When you see something widely and consistently advertised, you can be pretty sure it's well worth having. If it weren't . . . if it didn't represent an honest and worthy value . . . the maker couldn't afford to advertise it.

Look over the advertisements in this paper. Some of these names you know. Others perhaps are newcomers, potential friends bringing some new comfort or convenience. But all are entitled to your trust . . . all are here because they have something real to contribute to your advantage . . . your service . . . your happiness.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—An opening decline in cotton was followed by rallies on trade buying and covering accompanied by reports of a continued steady spot basis in the South.

Prices eased again later under southern selling or realizing and liquidation which appeared to be influenced by the easier ruling of wheat and the afternoon stock market. May contracts after selling up from 7.00 to 7.07 declined to 6.97 and closed at 6.98 with the general market closing quiet at net declines of 6 to 3 points.

Houses with Liverpool connections were sellers at the start, but the southern selling was not a great deal in evidence, while the decline to 7.15 for July and 7.35 for October seemed to attract a fair demand which came partly from the trade. Early losses were just about recovered with July selling up to 7.23 and October to 7.43 or back to Saturday's closing quotations.

Demand then tapered off and prices worked lower during the afternoon.

Trade buying was in sufficient volume to give the market a fairly steady undertone as prices worked back to the early lows, but was gradually supplied and closing prices were within a point of the lowest for the day on most positions.

Reports from Texas said demand for spot cotton was quiet, but that offerings were light with the basis steady.

Liverpool cables reported hedging with continental and Bombay liquidation in that market, but said there was a sustained demand for cotton cloths, and that demand for yarns was improving. Exports today 75,275 making 5,934,722 so far this season. Port receipts 28,698. U. S. port stocks 4,706,944.

Futures closed quiet, 6 to 9 points lower. Spot steady; middling, 7.00.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 29. (AP)—The cotton market was somewhat erratic today influenced largely by fluctuations in stocks. The general trend of prices was somewhat downward. After opening 4 to 5 points down on unfavorable Liverpool cables the market later rallied owing to a firm start of stocks and some trade buying, gaining 6 to 8 points, but lost the advance in the afternoon losing 8 to 9 points from the earlier highs with a reaction in stocks. The close was a shade above the lowest being called steady and showing net declines for the day of 5 to 6 points.

The market opened easier owing to lower Liverpool cables than due that market coming in 3 to 4 penny points worse than expected. Private cables stated that there had been hedging as well as continental and Bombay liquidation. Manchester cabled that the cloth demand was sustained and yarns were improving. Other Manchester advices reported a market improvement in trade at that center.

May closed at 6.98, down 5 points and October at 7.32, down 5 points net for the day. Port receipts 28,698; for week, 48,248; for season, 8,409,998; last season, 8,100,358. Stock Values Slip Lower While Bond Trading Rules Irregular

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (US)—With professional trading dominating almost to exclusion of other transactions, the stock market slipped lower today on a turnover below a million shares.

In the bond list, irregularity prevailed, the most disappointing feature here being the inability of second-grade rail bonds to improve. First-line rail bonds also were fractionally lower, while other parts of the market showed betterment, industrials advancing about half-a-point on the average. Some of the U. S. governments attained new peaks for the year.

Peculiarly enough, it is not the highest-type bonds which are being most keenly observed these days, but rather the medium or second-grade bonds with the doubtful status which exerts most influence in times of credit and psychological stress.

Display of sustained strength in the lower-grade bond issues would be welcomed currently as demonstrating success for the confidence-inspiring and credit-stabilization efforts of the government authorities. It then could be argued that that portion of the market which feels most keenly the effect of the investor and semi-investor's disfavor is reflecting the confidence-program.

It seems too great a hope to look for stocks to reflect the claimed betterment in credit conditions until after the semi-speculative securities have begun to feel the benefits. And this seems a worthy thought, since many lower-grade bonds at prevailing prices are virtually equity securities and if a genuine improvement is under way these speculative bonds certainly would hold greater immediate appeal than many stocks.

To a sizable degree, today's reaction resulted from the shift of speculative sentiment from the morning to afternoon, the late market being forced to absorb offerings from disappointed morning bulls. This has been the experience of the market several weeks; it reflects the indecision prevailing in important quarters regarding the intermediate prospects for the market.

Steel common appeared under pressure of genuine selling, presumably brought in by weakness of the preferred issue, which closed off three points.

There is no question but that the constant public harping on short-selling has reduced such activities among the general public, but professionals continue to dialy in the market for moderate fluctuations.

A good deal of this professional short-selling is covered each day, so that the effect of the "borrowing demand" is nil. Therefore, it was not suprising that modest premiums are being demanded and then only on a few stocks: 1-128 for steel common, 1-256 for steel preferred; Peoples Gas and Western Union at 1-32, International Shoe 1-64, Case and Transamerica at 1-256.

There was the usual amount of bearish news. The Pennsylvania railroad's president reasserted to stockholders the inability to maintain dividends "unless earnings improve," and the Atchison's chief said February was no better than January, this apparently despite the lowered wage scales.

From Washington it was indicated that applications, not all of which of course are to be satisfied or even a small portion thereof, are piling in for reconstruction finance corporation aid. The total asked now is said to approach 15 billion dollars, against the two billions available.

It was not until late in the day that the General theaters receivership was announced; this has been long anticipated, as is well demonstrated in prevailing prices for its securities. It may be best for the market that the event finally has taken place.

Sears-Roebuck sales were down 16 per cent for the four-week period.

Commodities were generally lower for the day, but the index for last week showed no change. This is the second consecutive week in which the downward tendency in commodities as a whole has been checked.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (AP)—Indications that unofficial estimates tomorrow on farm reserve domestic supplies of grain would make a bearish exhibit tended to pull cereals downward today, especially wheat.

An increase of 850,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total placed an additional weight on values. Export buying of North American wheat was desultory, recent large purchases having apparently satisfied overseas demand for at least the present.

Wheat closed unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, ⅛@¼c under Saturday's finish, corn at ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, oats ⅛@¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 15c up.

Corn derived relative strength from the fact that country offerings were not as heavy as of late. Some Illinois reports said shelling had stopped, and that farmers were busy in the fields. Oats averaged lower with other grains.

Corn—May 38⅛c, 39½@39⅝c; July 41½c, 42¼c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (US)—Continental buying supported cash quotations in Liverpool today, despite easiness in the futures caused by liquidation prior to first deliveries on March contracts. As a result the easiness in the English market was not much of a factor in other pits.

Excellent weather over most of the winter wheat belt is expected to bring crop development to a point where the effects of irregular winter temperatures may be determined.

In addition to reports that Soviet agents were attempting to re-purchase wheat in England there were reports that England has sold further quantities of Russian wheat back to Greece. Cables state that the wheat is of good quality and under the preferential tariff system can be imported with a minimum duty.

The government report on farm reserves is due March 9. Private reports are to be given to the trade tomorrow. On March 24 the government report on farmers' intentions to plant will be released.

Al Capone Worries Over Prison Term

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone is doing some worrying over his day of atonement—the 11 years he was sentenced to serve in prison for income tax evasion.

Sinct Oct. 24, he has been confined in the county jail awaiting outcome of the appeal to the U. S. circuit court of appeals, which upheld his conviction Saturday. But the way Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson worded the sentence, Capone must go to a federal penitentiary before he can receive credit on the 11 years.

So while his attorneys got set for another move in the courts today, "Scarface Al" was making up his mind whether he should stay in the jail here or move to a penitentiary during a petition to the circuit court for a rehearing or an appeal to the supreme court. There was a possibility the prosecution may decide for him by asking the appellate court to order his transfer.

Marriage Insurance Officials On Trial for Using Mail to Defraud

DALLAS, Feb. 29. (AP)—It was revealed in federal court today that the full value of marriage insurance contracts issued by the National Marriage and Birth Trust company was paid to officials of that organization, to members of their families and to certain of its agents.

Eleven persons were on trial for their alleged activities in connection with the company. They were charged with using the mails to promote a scheme similar to a lottery and with using the mails to defraud.

The defendants were Charles B. Hedrick, Hix Smith, Earl Ragland, C. G. Earman, W. A. Hedrick, Fred N. Irvin, Lawrence W. Adkins, Georgia A. Boyd, Leon H. Godchaux, W. A. Bell and C. L. Phillips.

Miss Countis Thompson, an employe of the company, said that under the rules of the company no contracts were to be paid until 90 days after they were made. Despite this provision a number of contracts were paid in less than the stipulated time, she said.

She described contracts issued and paid to relatives of company officials and to certain agents, which were paid in full, but on which in some instances there were no assessments paid, and in others were only a portion of the required assessments were paid.

Government witnesses told of purchasing contracts on which they paid assessments, but on which they never received anything in return.

Ecclesiastic's View on Birth Control Is Cited in Wife's Suit for Divorce

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 29. (UP)—Modishly dressed Mrs. Israel H. Noe, wife of the dean of St. Mary's Episcopal cathedral here, revealed from the witness stand today intimate facts of her married life, which she considers warrant her divorce. The basis of her action is her husband's view of the ethics of birth control.

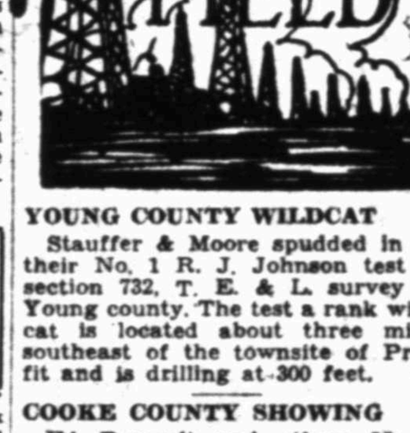

Mrs. Noe, 36 years old and mother of two daughters, spoke calmly before a courtroom thronged with women and friends of the couple. Seated rigidly before her was her husband, dressed in the conventional ecclesiastic costume of black suit and white collar.

She testified that for three years before her divorce action last summer she slept in a separate room with her daughters, and "the dean slept downstairs."

"Why did you sleep in separate rooms?" she was asked.

"Because he refused to sleep with me," Mrs. Noe replied.

She is seeking a divorce on grounds of alleged wilful desertion, cruel and inhuman treatment, abandonment and non-support. In a previous answer to the charges, Dean Noe said his "coolness" toward his wife was prompted by medical opinion that if she bore another child her life would be endangered.

YOUNG COUNTY WILDCAT

Stauffer & Moore spudded in on their No. 1 R. J. Johnson test in section 732, T. E. & L. survey in Young county. The test a rank wildcat is located about three miles southeast of the townsite of Proffit and is drilling at 300 feet.

COOKE COUNTY SHOWING

Ed Ruewalt and others No. 1 Mrs. Zuma Berry, located in the T. B. Hardwick survey, abstract 1599, two miles northeast of the town of Rosston in Cooke county is coring into a sand topped at 2671 feet that is showing considerable oil. The well is an absolute wildcat, being located to the north of the Gulf Production company tests on the J. T. Donald farm in the Guffey survey. The sand Saturday had been cored to a depth of five feet while plans were under way to continue taking cores sometime Sunday, but no further information has been received as to the result up to Monday night.

WISE COUNTY WILDCAT

Rosenfeld and associates No. 1 Texas Land and Mortgage tract in northeast Wise county is cleaning out the hole at a depth of 2310 feet preparatory to resuming drilling. The well, which has been closed down for about nine months, is reported to drill to a depth of 2,500 feet unless oil or gas in paying quantities is encountered at a lesser depth.

GETTING NERVOUS

Brown & Lickey No. 1 J. Coleman located in lot 1, section 79, A. T. N. C. L. survey in Archer county, is nearing the sand depth at 2175 feet and should pick up the 2200 foot formation sometime Monday night. The well, a deep wildcat test three and a half miles west of Chalk Hill pool, just now is the most interesting test going down in the district due to its bearing on the possible extension to the 2200-foot Chalk Hill sand.

GOING DOWN

The Buttrum Petroleum company is deepening its No. 1 Holeman test in Jack county and is cleaning out at 2022 feet. The well, was drilled sometime ago, was a producer but declined and will drill to one of the deeper pays in the pool. It is located in the northeast quarter of section 4, P. H. Rice survey.

NORTHEAST OF GRAHAM

Bratcher and others No. 1 Lowe, located in lot 15, section 3412, T. E. & L. survey, six miles northeast of Graham in Young county, a deep test has spudded in. The new test is a 50-foot east offset to the same parties' No. 1 Graham well which was junked at about 900 feet a short time ago. The test is also a short distance southeast of the Dewey Knox producer in the same survey.

HUTCHINSON LOCATION

Animal Inoculated With Dangerous Germs Is Stolen

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 29. (AP)—A year-old sheep, inoculated last week with dangerous and contagious disease germs, was stolen today from the experimental laboratory of the Charlerol-Monessen hospital.

Hospital attaches and police were making a frantic effort to locate the animal, which is laden with potential illness and death for persons with whom it comes in contact.

Fear was expressed that needy persons may have taken the sheep for use as food, unaware of the serious consequences which would result if the meat was eaten.

DEALERS CITE PRICE FIXING

Committee Hears Evidence On Branded Articles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (AP)—Opponents of legislation to permit producers of branded goods to fix retail prices told the senate interstate commerce committee today that such a measure would increase the cost of living and foster monopolies.

Benjamin H. Namm, Brooklyn, N. Y., department store operator, said branded and nationally advertised goods have failed to decline in price since 1929 in proportion to unbranded goods.

As chairman of the committee on resale price legislation of the National Retail Dry Goods association, he described his organization as "unalterably opposed" to the measure sponsored by Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, and Representative Kelly, Republican, Pennsylvania.

Q. Forrest Walker, economist for R. H. Macy & Co., big New York department store, said "price fixing cannot fail to create monopolies."

The bill, he said, provides no means of "safeguarding the public interest" against this.

He observed that "prices of a great many branded articles go up and down in unison."

Saying that he did not charge any combination in restraint of trade, he remarked that prices of cigarets, for instance, produced by "the four major companies," go "up and down pretty regularly."

Here's Text of Hoover's Message

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. (UP)—President Hoover's message on strengthening the judiciary read in part as follows:

"To the senate and house of representatives:

"On previous occasions I have called the attention of the congress to the necessity of strengthening and making certain changes in our judicial and law-enforcement machinery. Since then substantial progress has been made both through improved methods of administration and additional legislation. However, there is room for further improvement."

Congestion in the courts:

The following statistics indicate this congestion as well as the progress made:

"In private litigation in federal courts in the last five years there has been no large increase in the number of cases commenced, but the courts have not been able to reduce the number of such cases pending and awaiting trial.

"The number of government civil cases begun in 1928 was 20,695, increasing each year until in 1931 the total was 25,332. Cases terminated during this period show that the judicial department has kept pace with the increase but has been unable to reduce the congestion.

Bankruptcies Increase

"The number of bankruptcy cases begun has increased from 53,000 in 1928 to 65,000 in 1931, with a steady increase in the number of cases undisposed of at the end of each year.

"Criminal cases commenced have increased from 1928 to 1931, but the number pending shows a decrease from 30,400 at the end of 1928 to 27,900 at the end of 1931."

Reform in criminal procedure:

"The extent of crime is and must be a subject of increasing concern to the government and to every well-disposed citizen. This increase is by no means confined to the violation of new criminal law.

"Some part of all crime is due to confidence of criminals in the delays of the law and to their ability to avoid conviction and to delay penalties by misuse of the procedure and provisions of the law intended to assure fair trial.

Criminal appeals:

"The present procedure in criminal appeals to the United States circuit courts of appeals and the procedure in the United States district courts, in preparation for appeals after verdicts of guilty, lend themselves to delay and unnecessary expense. With the granting of bail and the stay of execution of the sentence, the convicted person loses all incentive to expedite his appeal.

Uniform Rules

"I suggest that the supreme court of the United States be authorized to prescribe uniform rules of practice and procedure in criminal cases for all proceedings after verdicts in the district courts, and for the circuit courts of appeal, including the courts of the District of Columbia.

"Legislation should be enacted to permit an accused person to waive the requirement of indictment by grand jury. Where the accused admits his guilt, preliminary hearings and grand jury proceedings are not necessary for his protection, they cause unnecessary expense and delay. In such cases the law should permit immediate plea and sentence upon the filing of an information. That would allow the accused to begin immediate service of his sentence without languishing in jail to await action of a grand jury, and would reduce the expense of maintenance of prisoners, lessen the work of prosecutors, and tend to speed up disposition of criminal cases.

"There have been many instances, some recently in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, where indictments, returned after long and expensive hearings, have been invalidated by the discovery of the presence of the grand jury of a single ineligible juror. By law applicable to the United States district courts, including the supreme court of the District of Columbia, it should be provided that if not less than 12 eligible grand jurors vote for an indictment it shall not be invalidated because of the presence of ineligible jurors. Legislation should be enacted limiting the time for making motions to quash indictments because of disqualifications of grand jurors.

Child Welfare

"Each year many juveniles charged with violation of law fall into the custody of the federal authorities. In the interest of child welfare there should be legislation enabling the attorney general to forego prosecution of children in the federal courts and to return them to state authorities to be dealt with by juvenile courts and other state agencies equipped to deal with juvenile delinquents.

"The constitution provides that the judicial power of the federal courts shall extend to cases between citizens of different states and the judiciary acts have provided for the exercise of this jurisdiction. In its application, the courts have determined that a corporation shall be deemed a citizen of the state under whose law it is organized. Cases involving corporations, with jurisdiction based on diversity of citizenship, form a substantial part of the business of the federal courts. Legislation heretofore has been proposed to abolish entirely the jurisdiction of the federal courts based on diversity of citizenship. I do not approve of such a measure.

"I recommend the consideration by the congress of a measure to modify this jurisdiction to a limited extent by providing that where a corporation, organized under the laws of one state, carries on business in another state it shall be treated as a citizen of the state wherein it carried on business as respects suits brought within that state between it and the residents thereof and arising out of the business carried on in such state.

"The federal government is charged under the constitution with the responsibility of providing the country with an adequate system for the administration of bankrupt estates.

"A sound bankruptcy system should operate—

"First, to relieve honest but unfortunate debtors of an overwhelming burden of debt;

"Second, to effect a prompt and economical liquidation and distribution of insolvent estates; and

"Third, to discourage fraud and needless waste of assets by withholding relief from debtors in proper cases.

Bankruptcy Inquiry Made

"For some time the prevailing opinion has been that our present bankruptcy act has failed in its purpose and needs thorough revision. During the past year the department of justice, with my approval, has conducted an investigation into the administration of bankrupt estates in the federal courts.

"The present bankruptcy act is defective in that it holds out every inducement for waste of assets long after business failure has become inevitable.

"Except in rare cases it results in the grant of a full discharge of all debts without sufficient inquiry as to the conduct of the bankruptcy or of the causes of failure.

"The bankruptcy act should be amended to provide remedial processes in voluntary proceedings under which debtors, unable to pay their debts in due course, may have the protection of the court without being adjudged bankrupt, for the purpose of extending the maturity of their debts, or, in the case of corporations, for to reorganize.

"The act should be amended to require the examination of every bankrupt by a responsible official and a full disclosure of the cause of his failure.

"The discretion of the courts in granting or refusing discharges should be broadened.

"The choice of the liquidating personnel should be limited to competent individuals or organizations after careful consideration by the courts of their qualifications and ability to maintain an efficient and permanent staff for the conduct of their business. Compensation for such services should be upon a scale which will attract trained business organizations.

"The inquiry has not stopped with the collection of information and an expression of general conclusions. Its results have been embodied by the attorney general in a bill for revision of the present bankruptcy act in order to present the proposals in concrete form.

"I earnestly commend them to your consideration."

$11,000 FEE PAID COUNTY

Sheriff and District Clerk Report Earnings

Annual reports of four county officers for the past year, as certified by County Auditor Paul Barnett, were received by the county commissioners court Monday, and ordered filed with the county clerk.

Return of more than $11,000 to the county in excess fees from the district clerk's and sheriff's offices was revealed in the reports. The sheriff's department showed receipts of $46,288.64 for 1931, of which approximately $23,000 came from the feeding of state and federal prisoners. Expenditures, including salaries of deputies, employes at the jail, office expense, etc., totaled $39,023.33. The county already has been paid $4,500, and will receive the balance of $2,765.31 as state script now held by Sheriff Perry Browning is redeemed.

A total of $3,745 in excess fees already turned over by Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, district clerk, to the county, was received from the following sources: 1931 fees, $433.88; delinquent fees collected, $1,601.05; jury and stenographic fees, $1,710.24.

Annual reports from the offices of O. L. Gibbs and R. V. Gwinn, justices of the peace, also were received and filed.

Hobo Freezes to Death In Refrigeration Car

BUFFALO, Feb. 29. (US)—When inspectors today went to check over a load of butter shipped here in a refrigerator car from Chicago, they discovered the frozen form of a man stretched across the butter tubs. He was identified as John Pelican, 27, of Two Rivers, Wis.

Police said the victim apparently had crawled into the car in the dark to steal a ride East and was trapped in the ice car when inspectors suddenly closed the door, not knowing of the human cargo.

Bank Robber Dies With Secret of Money Cache

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 29. (INS)—Refusing to the end to divulge the location where he buried $2,000 loot after robbing a Lumberton, Miss., bank, Henry Ward, shot down in a gun battle with police at Bogalusa, died here today.

Ward had served terms in Missouri and Texas prisons under other names, according to District Attorney Hall.

'AGRICULTURAL HOSPITAL CORPS' TO LEAD VALLEY DRIVE

DEVELOPERS TO ASK SUPPORT

5,000 Members Sought For Irrigation Program

An organization of 99 young business men of Wichita Falls will go into action within the next few days as a "Wichita county hospital corps to administer relief to a sick condition of agricultural development in this section." The "field hospital" for the corps operations will be at 802 Eighth street. Office equipment is to be moved in Tuesday and the actual drive will open as soon as minor details can be completed.

Committee of 99

The 99 young men are veterans of promoting enterprises in Wichita Falls and will represent the Junior chamber of commerce in the Valley Development association campaign for a minimum of 5,000 new members. The hospital corps will be invited to join the association first and will carry the drive to taxpayers of the city, President B. B. Greever of the association said.

The membership campaign is a major part of the association's program to place the irrigated valley on a basis to realize the "fondest dreams" of the community when bonds were voted for the project, Mr. Greever continued. A prospect list of 2,500 persons known to be interested in progress of the valley will be furnished the corps at a breakfast on the opening date of the drive.

Leaders of the association believe plans now under way will lead to a realization of plans of primary interest in the development of this section. The necessity of financing the program points to the need for a sympathetic membership with the valley interests in mind to assist in directing public opinion in selling this section on the valley development.

"Don't Argue"

Directors committees and subcommittees of the valley organization have been meeting almost daily since its organization six months ago and plans for development of the valley have been thoroughly and carefully developed, Mr. Greever declared.

A goal for the initial day of the drive has been placed at 1,500 members who are willing to invest $1 on developing the valley to which they are already contributing in taxes.

Hundreds of Wichitans have indicated a desire to invest in the association and many firms are expected to enroll with investments of more than the membership dues of $1. The corps members will be charged to visit every downtown business location and if a prospect desires to argue the point of investing $1 in his community's future the corps member is to be instructed not to waste time in argument.

GENERAL MEETING CALLED TODAY

A general meeting of all committees of the Valley Development association will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce offices in the Hamilton building, President B. B. Greever announced Monday afternoon. Matters of vital importance to the program of the association will be discussed and Mr. Greever urges a full attendance. The meeting will be held jointly with the directors of the organization.

Wife of Accused County Official Takes His Job

TAHOKA, Texas, Feb. 29. (AP)—When the office of Walter Z. Florence, who has been charged with misappropriation of Lynn county funds, was declared vacant, Mrs. Lois Florence, his wife, was appointed to succeed her husband as Lynn county commissioner, it was learned here today.

Whereabouts of the former county commissioner have been unknown for two months, District Attorney T. L. Price said. Amount of funds alleged to have been taken by Florence was not made known. Florence was serving his second term as commissioner when he disappeared.

Mrs. Florence is said to be the only woman county commissioner in the state.

Dallas Issues Warrant For Man Held Here

Two felony warrants were issued in Dallas Monday for A. G. Thomas, charging forgery in two cases on information furnished by Police Chief Dick Morris of Wichita Falls. Thomas was arrested here Friday on a similar charge after cashing a $10 check at a local bank using the name of a Marshall, Texas physician. The defendant will be held for Dallas and Abilene, where a warrant also has been issued for him.

The defendant is alleged to have cashed checks at two denominational hospitals in Dallas, Chief Morris said. Thomas said he recently arrived at Galveston after working as a stoker on a freighter en route from Germany.

MILITARY AFFAIRS

Plans for appointment of subcommittees to handle various phases of the 1932 program of work were discussed Monday afternoon at a meeting of the chamber of commerce military affairs committee. Grover C. Bullington is committee chairman and presided.

Details of assisting national guard units, cooperation with patriotic organizations and relationship with the Fort Sill, Okla., officers and men were stressed at the meeting.

WING FLAP

DAYTON, Ohio.—A wing flap for airplanes which, it is said, will reduce landing speed from 65 to 26 miles an hour, has been developed by Howard M. Rinehart. The flaps are placed on the under side of the plane wing and are operated from the cockit. They are said to also increase lifting capacity and aid in taking off.

Where Can You Sell Live Snakes and What Is Goose Liver Sausage?

Record News Information Bureau Answers Many Strange Questions for Readers

Where can you sell live snakes?

How do you secure a patent?

What is the address of Ringling Bros. circus?

Who was "Bigfoot" Wallace?

The above questions are just a few of those submitted to Frederic J. Haskin, director of The Record News information bureau, during the last few weeks. The bureau is called on to give all sorts of information, and some of the correspondents go into details to tell of the argument, the hope or the desire that led them to write Mr. Haskin for information.

According to reports kept by the bureau, the number of letters written by readers of The Record News averages between 60 and 75 per week. Not all of the information requested is strange or unusual. School children ask help on theme subjects, and debaters ask for outlines and articles on their assigned propositions. Business men use the bureau to help their trade, and particularly in seeking information on which to base expansion plans or to seek new outlets. An Oklahoman recently wrote for information on tanning hides, a Wichita resident on how to feed squabs and a woman on how to prevent accumulations of moisture on windows.

In nearly every instance, The Record News information bureau supplies the answer, or tells the inquirer where to write for the information desired. The most frequent question from young men is how to secure a job with the forestry service. Scores of persons ask information on land that may be occupied under the homestead law and many others ask for the values of coins and stamps. Most of the questions which the bureau is unable to answer concern events on which neither the government nor any other known agency collects data. Frequent requests for aid in tracing lost relatives are received, and in most instances, of course, such information is impossible to secure. Persons who seek the addresses of men who are serving or have served in the army, navy or marine corps are given directions as to how to secure the aid of government departments in tracing lost friends and relatives.

The Record News Information bureau, with Mr. Haskin the director at Washington, does not answer legal questions, nor will the bureau give advice on financial matters. Any information the bureau can secure on any other subject, however, it will forward to the reader without charge. The only requirement for using this service is that the person requesting information enclose a stamped envelope for the reply.

SCURRY GIVES TALK ON TEXAS

Gen. Houston State's Greatest Leader, Club Told

Three hundred years of Texas history, from the arrival of the Spanish Cabeza de Vaca in 1528 to the victory of Gen. Sam Houston's ragged little force at San Jacinto in 1836, was outlined before members of the Kiwanis club Monday by Judge Edgar Scurry in an address commeorating the 86th anniversary of Texas' independence.

Disowning any prejudice in favor of General Houston, the speaker declared him "the greatest of all Texans, without a superior." Freedom from partiality to Houston, the speaker said, was based upon the fact the Scurry family disliked the early leader, and was in turn disliked by him.

Judge Scurry told of the early settlements which lead eventually to rivalry between Spain and France, and described the aggressive policy of Mexico north of the Rio Grande following her winning of independence from Spain in 1821. That opening phase of modern Texas history reached its climax at the Alamo on March 6, 1836, and found its conclusion 45 days later at San Jacinto when General Houston's surprise afternoon attack routed Santa Anna's army and took the Mexican general captive.

Several violin solos by Miss Merrell Strong, accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, were included in the program arranged by Dr. F. R. Collard. Harry Awker, head of the federal employment bureau here, made a brief talk. A club singsong lead by W. E. Young included "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," with M. A. Ellis at the piano. Invocational prayer was said by Rev. W. D. Bratton, rector of the Episcopal church.

Drapery Section Opened by Saul's

A new drapery department has been opened at Saul's offering a wide range of new materials for selection for home decorating, it was announced Monday. Mrs. S. G. Barton, veteran buyer, has returned from the East with a large new stock which has been placed in charge of a competent young woman, who is an expert interior decorator.

The department is on the store balcony which has been arranged for comfortable shopping. Appointments may be made with the department head for home visits in discussing arrangement of individual homes. The public is invited to visit the department to view the new draperies.

Electra Man Dies Of Pneumonia Attack

F. P. Smith, 37, of Electra, died at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at a local hospital after an illness of three days following an attack of pneumonia. The body is being held by the Hines mortuary pending completion of arrangements. Mr. Smith was employed as a pumper by an oil company prior to his illness. Survivors are his widow and parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Smith of Electra.

Wichitans to Attend Electra C-C Banquet

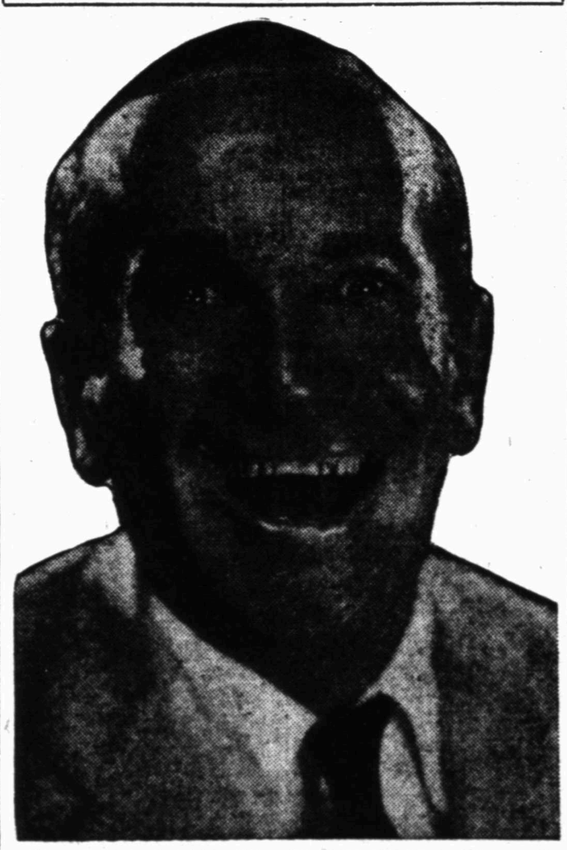

Representatives of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and the Junior chamber are planning to attend the annual banquet and membership meeting of the Electra Chamber of Commerce to be held March 8. The program will start at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Armilda hotel.

TWO FIRE ALARMS

Two alarms answered by units of the Wichita Falls fire department Monday caused no damage, Chief J. L. McClure reported. An alarm at the Jamison gin, 114 Scott, at 10:15 o'clock Monday morning was turned in when a pile of cotton hulls ignited.

Defective wiring was given as the cause of a minor blaze at 804 Indiana at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The fire was located in the floor of offices owned by C. E. Graves.

His Control of Audience Called 'Magical'

It was none other than Alexander Woolcott, the well-known dramatic critic, who said of Al Jolson, "There is no other performer who holds such an absolute dictatorship over an audience. It is magical." The famous entertainer has made his return to the stage, after an absence of five years, in "The Wonder Bar," a European novelty, to appear at Memorial auditorium on Friday, March 11 for one performance.

C-C Workers Plan Active Week With Dozen Meetings Scheduled

Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce officials and committees will have a busy program this week with a series of organization and important committee meetings carded, President A. E. Kelly said Monday.

Tuesday morning at 9:15 o'clock the directors of the organization will meet with A. P. Barrett, state chairman of the citizens antihoarding campaign, at the Wichita club. Judge William N. Bonner is local chairman. The directors will hold a regular meeting at 10 o'clock at the offices of the organization in the Hamilton building where all committee sessions will be held.

A definite time for a meeting of the agricultural committee had not been set Monday but was expected to be held Tuesday afternoon. Directors of the Valley Development association will meet at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Meetings announced for Wednesday include the taxation group at 10 a. m., the civic activities group at 2 p. m., and the trade area development committee at 4 p. m.

An organization meeting of the retail merchants division of the chamber will be held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning and the manufacturers and jobbers division will organize at 3:30 p. m. Thursday. Representatives of these businesses in Wichita Falls are invited to attend regardless of whether membership is held in the chamber of commerce.

Walter D. Cline, chairman of the 15th anniversary arrangements committee of the chamber, has called the first meeting of the group at 10 o'clock Friday morning. A giant celebration is set for Sept. 27, 1932, marking the passing of a half century since the founding of Wichita Falls in 1882.

Chairman Harry Hines has called a meeting of the conventions and reception committee at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. A tentative meeting of the out-of-town baseball attendance group has been set for Wednesday.

Wichitans to Attend Dallas Traffic Meet

Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, planned to leave early Tuesday morning for Dallas to appear before the Texas traffic bureau at the Santa Fe building at 10 o'clock. He will represent interests of Wichita Falls shippers on important rate proposals submitted by Texas railroads. He was authorized to represent this city at a meeting of the traffic committee of the organization Monday afternoon. L. H. Sullivan, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls & Southern railway and a member of the bureau, also will attend the meeting.

Electric power for hauling French canal boats has doubled the speed per hour over the old fashioned horse-drawn boats.

FIREMEN ON LONG SHIFTS

Revised Schedule Gives Men Every Third Day Off

Operation of the Wichita Falls fire department with a total of 41 men will begin Tuesday morning, the remaining 18 men who have been employed in the service during the past two years having been dropped from the personnel Monday in compliance with strict economy measures adopted by the city council.

Alteration of the working schedule, announced about a month ago to keep each man on duty 72 hours and off 24, will assign each fireman to only 48 hours of station duty before his 24-hour relief, Chief J. L. McClure said Monday. Under the new scheme of crew organization, each man will work two days and take off the third in regular rotation. The plan will provide a total of 32 men ready to answer alarms at any hour of day or night.

Nine firemen will be assigned to station No. 1, in the old city hall at Ninth and Ohio. Each of the other stations will have a crew of five men. The outlying stations are located at Avenue H and Buchanan; Seventeenth and Holiday; Seventh and Wofford; and Jefferson avenue near the Burkburnett highway.

Reduction of the fire department's personnel by the release of 18 men was ordered by the city council in an effort to bring governmental expenses of the city during the ensuing year within the limits of anticipated revenue.

City firemen are endeavoring to obtain an extension of the 10-day annual vacation heretofore allowed them to 15 days, it was said Monday.

Suit Asks Interpretation Of Mrs. Zundelowitz' Will

Suit was brought in district court here Monday afternoon by Joseph N. Sherrill and others against Winnie Cowen and others for the purpose of obtaining the court's interpretation of the will of the late Mrs. A. Zundelowitz, pioneer Wichita Falls resident.

Mr. Zundelowitz, pioneer Wichita Falls business man, and philanthropist for whom the Zundelowitz Junior High school is named, died several years ago in California. Mrs. Zundelowitz continued to make her home in that state until her death. The possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Zundelowitz were varied, and their heirs are numerous. In order to obtain the court's interpretation of Mrs. Zundelowitz' will for the benefit of its executors, the suit was filed.

Negro Given Six Months For 'Pigeon Dropping'

Six-months' imprisonment in the Wichita county jail was meted out by Judge Irvin J. Vogel Monday in the county court at law to a negro charged with "pigeon dropping" when the defendant entered a plea of guilty.

The case was a companion to that brought before Judge Vogel last Saturday, when another negro was given a like sentence. A negro woman who claimed to have dropped $35 in the game appeared as complainant against both the convicted men.

SCHOOL CENSUS OPENS TODAY

Parents Asked to Aid In Wichita Count

Enumeration of scholastics in Wichita county for 1932-1933 is to begin in Wichita Falls and in all rural districts Tuesday morning, according to information given by school officials Monday.

Nine principals of secondary schools in this city will take the annual census here, while principals and teachers in the rural districts will make the count.

Children who have attained or will attain the age of 6 years before Sept. 1, and those who will be less than 18 years of age on Sept. 1, are to be enumerated as scholastics. Parents of such children can reduce materially the work of census-takers and assure themselves a minimum of inconvenience by preparing in advance lists of their children of school age, it was declared.

Enumerators will begin their rounds immediately after the close of school in the afternoon, and some few may work early in the day, it was said. Parents were urged by school officials to answer doorcalls promptly when the enumerator calls, in order to expedite completion of the task.

Workers in Wichita Falls will be J. A. Park, T. W. Brumbelow, J. T. Rundell, W. A. Franklin, W. E. Walker, Joe B. McNeil, S. L. Butler, and R. A. Jarrott for the enumeration of white children. A. E. Holland, principal of the Booker T. Washington school, will take the negro census.

PUBLICITY MEETING

A meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce publicity committee has been called by Chairman Ray Keith at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the offices in the Hamilton building.

Both yearbooks will be issued to the students about the middle of May, Miss Davis said.

State Play Contest

Wichita Falls representatives in the annual district junior college one-act play tournament, which was to have been held at Gainesville Saturday night, will enter the state tournament at Hillsboro March 11 without district competition, it was announced Monday by Miss Lillie V. Lillard, secretary of the Texas Junior college public speaking association.

Gainesville's inability to compete Saturday because of the illness of a representative gave Wichita Falls the decision. The Gainesville representatives will compete with T. M. C. of Terrill next Saturday for district honors, it was announced.

Leaders Club

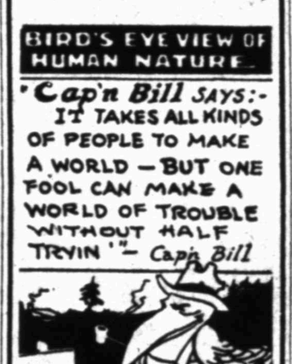

Members of the high school Leaders club of the gymnasium classes will meet next Monday at the home of Thelma Stehlik for a "grub," Miss Davida Olinger announced Monday. During a short business session the group will discuss plans for health week, which is to be held early in April.
