No Wallace In Race

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)-With no Wallace to oppose them for the first time in 16 years, Republicans have invested extra energy in this year's gubernatorial primary, hoping to make the quantum leap toward a two-party system in the Democrat-dominated state.

They will elect their standard bearer in a primary on Tuesday. A primary election also will be held in North Dakota.

Barred by law from seeking re-election, Gov. George Wallace will leave office next January after an unprecedented three terms, his hold on the office broken only by the death of his first wife, Lurleen, who was elected in 1966 as a Wallace stand-in.

When Mrs. Wallace died of cancer after only 6 months in office, she was succeeded by then Lt. Gov. Albert Brewer, who served out the 32 months remaining in her term.

Chinese Accused

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)-Vietnam accused China today of sending hundreds of fishing boats into Vietnamese territorial waters, flying warplanes into its air space and assigning troops and border police to create trouble at crossing points on the Vietnamese-Chinese border.

The Voice of Vietnam radio station said the Foreign Ministry reported that between Aug. 10 and Aug. 25, hundreds of Chinese fishing boats violated Vietnamese waters and disturbed the peaceful lives of Vietnamese fishermen on islands off Quang Ninh, Thanh Hoa, Nghe Tinh and Binh Tri provinces.

The statement said during the same period, Chinese troops and border police intruded into Vietnamese territory, throwing grenades, shooting guns and occupying areas at more than 10 crossing points, while Chinese warplanes flew reconnaissance missions over Quang Ninh and Coa Lang provinces.

Demand Perfection

WASHINGTON (AP)-Adm. Hyman Rickover contends that Americans expect their president "...to be pluperfect, even more perfect than the Lord."

In an interview Sunday, the 78-year-old military leader also said, "We don't understand, we put a man in a job with little power, little authority and we expect him to do everything that every citizen wants."

In a stormy appearance on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Rickover charged that U.S. citizens "have a pretty good life" and have become lackadaisical. During one heated exchange, he denounced the panel of reporters' questions as "stupid" and "pseudo-political."

Controls Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter is emphasizing that he is philosophically opposed to mandatory wage and price controls and that he would resist using them except in the event of a national emergency.

"Whatever we might do in the future, it would be short of any mandatory wage and price controls and it would be carefully worked out if things should get worse on inflation so that the interests of the working people and consumers would be protected," the president said in an Aug. 18 interview with editors of labor union publications. The White House released a transcript of the interview on Sunday.

Rains To Spread

By The Associated Press

More rain was expected to dampen Labor Day holiday spirits across Texas today.

Widely scattered showers and some thundershowers were concentrated during the predawn hours in northwestern Texas, where skies were cloudy. Clear to partly cloudy skies were the rule elsewhere.

A wider section of West Texas received showers last night, prompting flash flood warnings in the El Paso area.

A flash flood watch in the mountains of Southwest Texas was lifted before dawn when rainfall was lighter than had been anticipated.

Waldorf Set Afire

NEW YORK (AP)-A California man was arrested and charged with arson after allegedly setting fire to Sir Harry's Bar at the exclusive Waldorf Astoria hotel.

None of the 50 customers in the bar Sunday night was injured.

Police said Cary Jon Yurman, 32, of San Francisco walked into the bar, just off the hotel lobby, carrying a liquid incendiary device in his shoulder bag.

He lit and threw it, causing fire to spread rapidly throughout the bar, which suffered extensive damage, police said.

Session Begins Tomorrow

Summit Meet Principals Optimistic

WASHINGTON (AP)-The leaders of Egypt, Israel and the United States, searching once more for ways to bring peace to the Mideast, made final preparations today for the Camp David summit meeting.

President Carter, who is hosting the politically risky meeting at his Maryland mountain-top retreat, prayed for peace during a Sunday School session at First Baptist Church here.

"Let every heart involved be cleansed of selfishness and personal pride. Let us all turn to thee, God our father, for true guidance, wisdom, forgiveness of others, in the search for common ground," Carter said.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, upon arriving in New York City, declared: "We want peace more than any nation on earth."

And President Anwar Sadat, still in Egypt, said he considered the conference "a turning point" in Mideast history.

Begin and Sadat will arrive Tuesday afternoon at Camp David, where Carter will be waiting for them. In that secluded atmosphere, U.S. officials hope Begin and Sadat will be able to make the compromises necessary to give new impetus to the stalled peace process.

To help them, the Carter administration has prepared dozens of options and proposals for possible compromises on difficult points.

SIX MONTHS ON THE ROAD-Floris and Dorothy Howard of Austin have spent the last six months touring the U.S. and Canada in their trailer home. Austin Couple Concludes 6-Months Trek At Rally

By JOHN DUNNAM

After visiting 17 states and five Canadian Provinces during the last six months, Floris and Dorothy Howard made Snyder their last stop on the way back to their Austin home. They are among the 300 plus members attending the 14th State Rally of the Holiday Rambler Recreation Club being conducted here over the Labor Day weekend.

"We saw some beautiful country and met a lot of wonderful people but it sure feels good to be back in Texas," said Floris.

"I can tell you one thing we learned for sure," said Dorothy. "Texas has the best roads and the cheapest gasoline."

Floris is a retired Air Force master sergeant. He spent 24 years in the military and 17 in the civil service. Dorothy continues to work as a librarian in an Austin junior high school. They have two grown children.

"The prettiest country we saw was along the North Cascade Highway in Washington State, it was simply gorgeous. Traveling during the spring and summer as we did we saw pretty flowers everywhere we went," said Dorothy. "Alberta was the lovliest Canadian Province we visited," she said.

The only trouble they had during their six months on the road was three flat tires. "These things (the trailers) will take care of you if you take care of them, said Floris, but just like a car, they require regular preventive maintenance." he said.

The Howard's 30-foot air-conditioned trailer cost about $14,000. They tow it with a three-quarter-ton pickup. A 32 foot trailer with all the extras goes for about $17,000 said Floris.

They averaged 9 miles to the gallon of gas reported Floris. "The highest price we paid was 94 cents in Alberta but that was for an imperial gallon so it was actually about 80 cents a gallon."

That is still considerably higher than the 65 to 75 cents they paid in the states with the cheapest gas being found in Texas and the highest in Minnesota and the north central states. The farther north and east they went the higher they found the price of gas.

The Howards report that people were friendly everywhere. But with the

WTC To Register Tuesday

Fall semester registration at Western Texas College will get underway at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center.

Sophomores with surnames beginning with letters A-D are to register from 1-2 p.m. Surnames E-K will register from 2-3, L-R from 3-4, and S-Z from 4-5 o'clock.

Evening student may register between 6:30-9 p.m. Tuesday.

Freshmen will begin registering at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Students with surnames beginning with letters L-R are scheduled from 9-9:45, S-Z from 9:45-10:30, A-D from 10:30-11:15, and E-K from 11:15-12 noon.

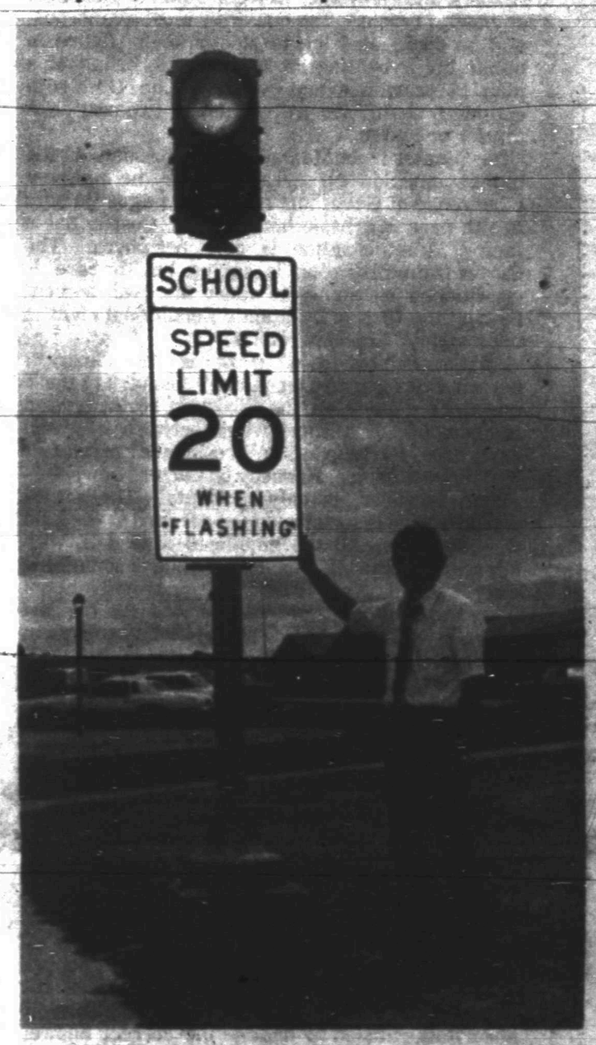

Registration will continue from 1-5 p.m. for any student not registered.

Thursday will be the first day of classes. Students are invited to attend an Ice Cream Social at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Central Courtyard. Members of the faculty provide homemade ice cream for this event each year. At 9 p.m. Thursday, the Howdy Dance will get underway in the Student Center.

Kazov Tired Of Snoopers

MOSCOW (AP) - Sergei Kauzov says he's had it with reporters snooping into the whereabout of him and his new bride, Christina Onassis.

"We're so tired of people probing our private life, where I've flown to and where I've arrived, and when I went to the bathroom and came out again, that I don't want to comment," he said Sunday when asked if it was true Christina was off furniture shopping in Helsinki, Finland.

GET READY--The start of school brings with it children crossing streets and flashing lights to mark the school zones. City engineer Jim Dower is shown beside one of the flashing lights on El Paso Ave. Although school does not start until tomorrow, Dower said the lights would be turned on Monday to catch the attention of Snyder motorists.--(SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Area Observes A Lazy Holiday

Labor Day began as a lazy holiday in Snyder and it marked the end of summer vacation for some 3,500 public school pupils in the Snyder Independent School District.

Many Snyder business firms were closed for the holiday. Also closed were city, county, state and federal offices.

Local law enforcement agencies reported the holiday weekend had been mostly quiet.

The school pupils will report for their first classes Tuesday morning. Some of them will have breakfast at the school cafeterias as the district initiates a government-mandated breakfast program. Serving will continue to 8:15 a.m.

Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m. in all schools. This is half an hour earlier than last year as the Snyder Schools return to a daily classroom scheduled of 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Bus routes will be virtually the same as last year, but the buses will run about 40 minutes earlier tomorrow than they did last year, Supt. Bill J. Hood announced.

Elementary school pupils who did not register a week ago during the day set aside for that purpose may register when they report for classes to begin tomorrow.

Blood Drive Set Tuesday

Snyder Jaycees have scheduled a blood drive here Tuesday.

Donations of blood will be accepted between the hours of 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the conference room at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

TO CONDUCT SPEECH TESTS--Beginning Wednesday, elementary schools will be testing kindergarten students and first graders new to Snyder schools for articulatory errors in their speech. The Predictive Screening Test of Articulation (PSTA) is required by state law and will be administered by Barbara Bigham (left), and Alta Nation, speech and language pathologists. Parents will be notified should their child need additional testing. (SDN Staff Photo)

The hottest national issue right now is national health service. It doesn't rate with inflation, energy, taxation and possibly a few others on the basis of urgency. At long last the Carter Administration has sensed the fact that what is done in the co areas won't matter if something isn't done rather quickly toward getting in order.

When wishful thinking is laid aside inflation winds up in first place without the slightest suggestion of doubt. A few weeks ago President Carter admitted seeing the light. He says now he is prepared to do a lot of vetoing in the weeks ahead in order to get the economy started in the right direction.

In spite of these considerations, however, health service is receiving top attendion by newspaper readers and television viewers. And for the most obvious of reasons. The country's most glamorous, and no doubt also the most ambitious, figure in public life is beating the tom-toms in behalf of a plan to provide every person in the U.S. with complete health service. At public expense as a matter of course.

The Senator from Massachusetts (Kennedy is the name) unveiled his dream before the national conference of Governors a few days ago. He said health care is a basic human right. Cost is not a factor. Administration is only peripheral. The Carter Administration is saying health care is conditioned on ability to meet the cost without feeding the fires of inflation. "Conditional right is not a right," Kennedy retorts.

What's the big idea? How is the clash of personalities going to terminate? Answers to these questions depend on the direction, velocity and temperature of political winds between now and early 1980. Participants in Presidential primaries may have a choice, Kennedy or Carter.

That, however, is only incidental. The major consideration is socialized medical care or the kind we have now. All the emotional appeal is with advocates of the big idea. Experience is something else. It sounds great to be free from worries about costs and availability of health service. But the cost will be there, regardless of what eloquent advocates say on the subject.

Up to now experience casts doubt on promises of national health care adovates. Medicare, Medicaid, Food Stamps. Full employment. None of these has measured up to advance billing.

who's harvey wollman?

The great trivia question of this year's governors' conference was "Who is Harvey Wollman?" Answers from various state officials, White House aides, reporters and others ranged from "third baseman for the Cubs?" to "Isn't that a drink?"

Among those flunking the quiz, which was popped in a bar about midnight on the first day of the meeting, was California Gov. Jerry Brown, who absolutely refused to believe the correct answer when he was finally told that Harvey Wollman is the governor of South Dakota.

The newest member of the governor's association, Wollman is also likely to set some kind of record for brevity of tenure. After serving as lieutenant governor since 1975, he became governor only in late July when the incumbent, Democrat Richard P. Kneip, was named ambassador to Singapore.

Unfortunately for Wollman, no sooner did he become governor than he lost the primary election in South Dakota. So his first trip to a national governor's conference will most probably prove to be his last.

This is the prayer of a woman who is returning to school as a student after an absence of 15 years.

"Please God, let there be a parking space for a car with only an E AREA sticker. (Issued only to 37-year-old, first-semester freshman, with no major varicose veins, whose car is low on gas.)

"If You do not see fit to guide me to such a paradise, please help me look like a VISITOR.

"Tell me the computer made a mistake and Home Management and Child Care on my schedule does not mean what I think it means.

"Deliver me from coming face-to-face with the registrar, who is bound to remember that on my enrollment card under SEX, I filled in 'occassionally.'

"Let me not be the only woman on campus in a pair of pantyhose and a bra.

"When it is lunchtime, give me a sign other than my stomach growling at 82 decibels. Watch over me especially when you see me methodically cutting up the meat of younger students and telling them to sit up straight.

"Protect me from 'operators' who try to sell me second-hand books outside the bookstore that are no longer being used this year.

"Grant me the serenity to accept what cannot be changed, courage to change what should be changed, and the wisdom to keep my mouth shut when I don't know the difference. (I read that off an old tea towel.)

"Keep me from despair when someone jots down phone messages on my freshly-typed Philosophy notes.

"Help me to refrain from punching out friends who laughingly warn me a campus is no place to make an estrogen connection.

"Give me patience when I come home from a hard day in the library to discover no one has cleared off the kitchen table and the milk is still on the front porch.

"And if I'm not being too pushy, Lord, could You please see fit to send me a friend - one who has heard of Robert Benchley, Edward R. Murrow, String of Pearls, saddle shoes, and who knew hand computers when they were called fingers?

"And one last request...if there can't be comfort, encouragement and pride from my family for what I'm doing, please let there be a pot of coffee in the kitchen every morning."

WASHINGTON (NEA) - President Carter, who has had no more luck than his predecessors in weeding out wasteful federal programs, might do well to emulate a political tactic developed by the Environmental Action citizen's lobby.

Every election year since 1970, Environmental Action has published its "Dirty Dozen" hit list - the names of 12 members of Congress the group considers to have the worst voting records on environmental legislation. Then it sets out to beat those congressmen at the polls.

In the four congressional elections held since the "Dirty Dozen" campaign was organized, the lobby group has had remarkable success. Thirty-one of the 41 members named to the hit list (some were repeats) are no longer in Congress. Twenty-five were defeated, while six chose to retire.

Despite a few conspicuous exceptions such as Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, who is going into his fourth straight election as a "Dirty Dozen" target, most members named to the list have found it a dangerous distinction.

Now a former Nixon-Ford administration official, Laurence H. Silberman, has suggested a similar approach for ridding the government of programs that no longer work or involve excessive waste.

Writing in a new Republican Party quarterly magazine called "Commonsense," Silberman notes that almost every federal program, once initiated, "achieves instant immortality" because an "iron triangle" builds up among the congressional committees that developed the program, the bureaucrats who administer it, and the constituency that benefits from it.

Although the general public decries wasteful spending and unnecessary programs, the "iron triangle" alliance in favor of keeping a program going is always stronger, because it is intense and narrowly focused, than the diffused constituency for reform.

James McIntyre, President Carter's budget chief, is the first to acknowledge the difficulties of reducing, let alone eliminating, programs which do not by any objective standard warrant continuation.

"It's one of the most frustrating problems we face," he told us in a recent interview. "Those with a vested interest in a program always claim it just needs a little more time - and a little more money - to prove its worth."

But Silberman's analysis, which McIntyre found intriguing enough to get photocopied on the spot, suggests that the president could mobilize an effective board constituency for program cuts by using something like the "Dirty Dozen" technique.

In preparing the federal budget each year, Silberman argues, the president should require department heads to rank each program within their jurisdiction according to effectiveness - the bang for the buck.

Then, before actually sending his budget to Congress, the president should make public the rankings - along with an explanation of why certain programs are rated at the bottom of the heap.

"Perhaps ineffective but particularly popular programs would gain a somewhat higher than deserved ranking" Silverman concedes. "But if those at the bottom were not the very worst, they almost certainly would be poor ones."

Most presidential management reports receive scant notice from the press and public. But a report card on federal programs, coming directly from the president, would probably be the exception since, as Silberman points out, it has the ingredient that commands attention in Washington - winners and losers.

If the rankings were carefully compiled, and the president's own budget watchdogs would see to that, the vested interests fighting to preserve wasteful or ineffective programs would find their task considerably harder than it is now. If a "Dirty Dozen" hit list works in congressional elections, why should't "Bureaucratic Boondoggles" draw some fire at budget time?

September is an active month for most people as the Labor Day weekend gives many a day off, hunting season opens, football, school and college begin. The Snyder Daily News will add to those activities the first Southern Kitchen's Cooking School to be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Only a few tickets remain to the cooking school which should provide an evening of real entertainment for those that attend. If you plan to go you should ask for your ticket as soon as possible at one of the following merchants: Town and Country Meat Center, Everybody's Thriftway, Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio, West Texas State Bank, Gibson's Discount Center, TG&Y, Roe's, Early's Grocery, Furr's Super Market, M&M Electronics, and Texas Electric Service Co.

Pauline Boyd and Farm and Ranch Western Wear are celebrating its first anniversary with a sale this week. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Welton Robinson.

Nancy Grimmett of Art Style Beauty Salon announced last week the association of Nancy Candanoza as new hair dresser.

The crew at Joe Box Realty attended the Texas Association of Realtors workshop at the Southpark Inn at Lubbock last Wednesday.

Loren Sullivan, manager of Penney's, was in Odessa last Wednesday for a sales meeting.

Tony Hayley, manager of Gibson's, returns from a week vacation this week.

Wayne Denson, co-owner of Scurry C.B. Sales, is reported to be doing better after being hospitalized for burns in an accident a few days ago.

Snyder Lanes reopens Tuesday, Sept. 5 after a two week vacation and remodeling project.

Buddy and Glenda Powell are now owners of Feather Printing Company. They purchased it from Herb Feather.

Herschel Hinshaw and wife Pat, owners of Hinshaws House of Flowers, went to Ruidoso for a few days vacation last week.

John McMaster recently returned from Battle Creek, Mich. where he attended the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency's Business and Industrial Emergency Planning Course.

McMasters has recently expanded his business in Snyder and added a branch office in Sweetwater. He is now owner of Snyder Security Co. and Sweetwater Security Co. as well as Southwestern Bonding Service.

In one of their largest rallies, members of the Holiday Rambler Club attracted some 308 recreational vehicles to Snyder Friday and Saturday.

Conscious Fund Grows

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) - Remember the television program "The Millionaire?" The state of Maine has a like-minded but not quite as generous benefactor.

For the fourth month in a row, Maine's Treasurey Department has received an envelope containing a $10 bill wrapped in a sheet of paper with the words "conscience fund."

The envelopes have had Portland postmarks but no return addresses. The latest arrived Friday.

"You figure some guy has done something wrong somewhere along the line and his conscience is bothering him," said Deputy Treasurer Maurice F. Stickney, adding that the money is deposited in the general fund.

growing older

by lou cottin

Many employees will no longer be forced to retire at age 65 thanks to the new law raising the mandatory retirement age for most jobs to 70.

Businesses will reluctantly adjust to the change. Employers will be permitted to stop contributing to older workers' pension plans during those last five years on the job. Pension plans managed by trade unions may also make age 65 the cut-off date for collecting workers' pensions from employers.

Retired people who have not yet reached age 70 have two options: They can continue their retirement. Or they can go looking for jobs.

In some cases, sheer boredom will spark the desire to return to work.

In others, the need for more money will be the deciding factor. Housing and medical costs, taxes and other living expenses continue to go up.

For those of us with money to carry on, retirement is — at best — a mixed blessing. Without money, it's no blessing at all. For many in both groups, a part-time job might be the solution.

But finding a job after age 65 will not be easy. Only those with special skills or talents will easily get back on a company payroll.

The average worker won't make it. Employers have not yet become accustomed to the new retirement age.

That means we may be forced to register for some kind of retraining program.

Administrators of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) have a budget of $12.1 billion for aiding the unemployed and underemployed. Add to that sum the $340 million earmarked for senior citizens under Title IX of the Older Americans Act.

There's no question that a 65-year-old can be retrained. Money is available to do it. And the facts prove it can be done.

What will be needed first is a list of employers throughout the nation who can use part-time help profitably.

But a change in attitude will be necessary to get these employers to hire workers over 65. American business is locked into the idea that 65 is old. We will need to prove that a 65-year-old can be productive.

Fortunately, such proof is available. There are successful firms that keep employees on the job without regard to age. Some even hire people over 65.

Take, for example, Bankers Life and Casualty Company. At age 90, John D. MacArthur, who founded the company 40 years ago, remains active as chairman of its board.

Bankers Life has about $1 billion in assets and $4 billion of life insurance in force. The company employs 12,000 people.

John Maguire, director of corporate services at Bankers Life, and Richard Whalen, its assistant director of personnel, reported on the company's employment policies at a hearing of Rep. Claude Pepper's Special Committee on Aging. Here are some statements from their report:

— "Hiring people over 65 has been a good policy for us."

— "We are tough about requiring a good day's work. We expect a good day's work from every employee in every job."

— "Based on our experiences, older people are loyal and reliable. They come to work on time. Most have virtually perfect attendance records."

They completed their testimony with these words: "Basically, this is the approach we look for. Can the man or woman do the job? That is the only criterion for continued employment."

Those of us between the ages of 65 and 70 can look back over many years of top-grade performance in our jobs. We need to believe we still can make a contribution.

Let's not go applying for jobs with hats in hand. Let's not go with heads bowed. We aren't beggars. Our records of years of work attest to our honesty, dependability and understanding of how serious employees perform.

We are the men and women who brought the nation back to prosperity after the Depression. Today's business profits are the results of our efforts.

We are going to prove ourselves again. Those of us who go back to work at age 65 will give five years of valuable work to our employers.

We have, after all, an ulterior motive. We will prove by our performance that retirement at any fixed age is a social and business mistake.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

Each year the Snyder Jaycees turn to the merchants and people of Snyder for support. Each year we receive the support requested—then some.

The Kiddie Park is a prime example of the support of the people of Snyder. When outsiders ask about this project, they are amazed to find that we have had over $30,000 in one year. These people do not know of the generosity of Snyder's citizens and merchants.

The words "thank you" seem so inadequate as do plaques and certificates to express the Jaycee's gratitude to Snyder. I wish it were possible to go to each merchant and each citizen to personally thank him for his support, but time will not allow. So, please accept this sincere and most humble thank you from the organization that truly appreciates its town. It is easy to be the best when you are supported by the best!

A grateful president,

Seeing With Another's Eye

DEAR ABBY: I am a farmer in Francesville, Ind. Soon I will be out in the fields harvesting the corn I planted last May.

That doesn't sound like a very important statement for a farmer to make, but it's important to me because it means that I can again provide for my wife and three children—something I wasn't able to do before my recent cornea transplant operation.

Nineteen years ago I lost one eye in a farm accident. Then last year, lightning struck twice, and I seriously injured the other eye in another farm accident. This left me legally blind. I prayed for a cornea transplant, and God heard my prayers.

I am grateful to God, and to my very dedicated eye surgeon, Dr. Louis Girard of Houston, who performed the miracle of restoring my sight.

I wish I could thank the unselfish donor who thought beyond his own life and made provisions to pass on the gift of sight to a stranger. But since that is not possible, I pray that the Lord will bless the family of the donor who cared enough to share.

Abby, please continue to urge your readers to donate their eyes at the time of death so that someone who has lived in darkness will be able to see again, as I am now privileged to do.

PERRY NEIHOUSER

DEAR PERRY: Your letter made my day. And anyone out there who wants a donor card may obtain one free by writing to THE LIVING BANK, BOX 6765, HOUSTON, TEXAS 77005. They are a non-profit organization, so please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. God bless you and He will.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't solve alone. I am very much attracted to a handsome New Hampshire state trooper I've seen, but I don't know how to meet him.

His license number is 206. Do you think if I were to speed and get stopped the next time I saw him, it might help? I don't want to be tacky.

DESPERATE IN KEENE

DEAR DESPERATE: I don't recommend breaking the law in order to break the ice. If you don't want to be "tacky," you'd better find someone who knows him—and something about him. Your handsome No. 206 may have a wife and six kids at home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HUNGRY FOR MAIL ABOARD THE USS ENTERPRISE CVN 65": Next time you write to someone, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It will double your chances for a speedy reply. And if that doesn't work, write to me (and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please). I'll answer quicker than you can say "shore leave"!

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Rites Held Today For Rotan Mishap Victims

ROTAN-Funeral services were held today for Mike Fowler, 19, and John Arnett, 20, both of Rotan who were killed early Sunday morning in a two car collision about 1½ miles north of town on Highway 70.

Injured in that accident were Teresa Arnett, wife of the deceased who suffered a broken leg, and Terry Porter, also of Rotan who was treated and released from Fisher County Hospital with minor injuries.

The Fisher County Sheriff's department reports that Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Fowler was driving south and had topped a hill when he struck the Arnett vehicle which was pulling onto the highway. Arnett and passengers, his wife and Porter, were thrown from the automobile.

Justice of the Peace Ernest Roberts pronounced Fowler and Arnett dead at the scene. The time was 1:50 a.m. Sunday. Arnett was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Normon Arnett. Two parked vehicles were also reported damaged in the accident.

Porter's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Porter.

Services for Mike Fowler were conducted at 10 a.m. this morning in the First Baptist Chuch of Rotan. The Rev. David Bugg officiated and Weathersbee funeral Home will conduct the burial services at 5 p.m. in Llano cemetery. Fowler was born March 1, 1959 in Rotan, and attended Rotan High School and Texas State Technical Institute in Sweetwater. He is survived by his parents, a sister, Janie Foster of Merkel and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ahrlett of Tow.

Services for John Arnett were at 2 p.m. today in the Weathersbee Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. John Robertson, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Rotan officiated. Burial was in Rotan Cemetery.

Born Dec. 24, 1957, in Spur, he moved to Rotan in 1972 from Lubbock and attended Rotan High School. He married Teresa Moore in Arlington.

The couple had been employed by Hinds department store since June.

He is survived by his wife, his parents, his paternal grandmother, Mrs. A.B. Arnett of Rule; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Brown of Santa Fe, N.M. a sister, Elizabeth Oates of Virginia Beach, Va. and a brother, George Arnett of Stamford.

GI Bill Use Is Dropping Fast

WASHINGTON (AP)- The number of military veterans using the GI Bill to attend college is dropping as the Vietnam War era falls farther into the past.

The Veterans Administration, in its annual report, says the number of veterans drawing government benefits for college fell 28 percent in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1977.

Nixon Likely To Get Visa

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Australia will grant former President Nixon a tourist visa if he comes on "a genuinely private visit," a senior government source said today in Canbera amid more press debate on the controversial trip.

The government turned down Nixon's request to make an official visit and meet with Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, but Nixon's chief aide said the former president planned to come anyway on a private visit. Police are reported worrying about protecting Nixon, even on a private visit.

In an editorial entitled "Stay Home Yank," the Sydney Sunday Telegraph said of Nixon's reported decision to come despite the government rebuff: "Is there no end to the arrogance of Richard Milhous Nixon?"

license plates on their trailor reading Smile-U and the pickup tags reading U-2, it could be said they made the first gesture. Floris said other travelers they met along the way always mentioned that the friendliest people they had encountered were in Texas.

The Howards came to Snyder along with over 300 other members to participate in the Holiday Rambler Recreation Club's 14th state rally. The Chamber of Commerce scheduled a variety of activities for the travelers including tours of local industries, museums and a shopping sprée. It will be impossible to determine how much the affluent visitors spent, but Loverta Lovell, assistant to the chamber manager, said Saturday the largest single purchase was an auto.

Three Mishaps Reported Here

During a quiet Memorial Day weekend, city police investigated three minor traffic accidents.

The first occurred at 11:22 a.m. Saturday at the Varsity Square Shopping Center. Involved in it were a 1966 Ford pickup driven by Claude Alvis Scarlett of Snyder and a 1972 Plymouth driven by Judy Jackson Smith of San Angelo.

The next accident took place in the 3600 block of 40th St. Involved in it were a parked 1974 Chevrolet owned by Billy Boone and another vehicle which fled the scene. It was reported at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

The final mishap of the weekend occurred at North Park about midnight Sunday.

Reports show that a parked 1969 Chevrolet pickup owned by David Fuentez was struck by another car which left the scene.

Cowboys Favored Over Jones-Less Colts...

Pokes' Septien To Get His Chance Tonight

DALLAS (AP) - The newest of the Dallas Cowboys gets a quick pressure test tonight in the opener for the defending National Football League champions.

With millions of national television viewers looking on and some 65,000 fans in Texas Stadium, young Rafael Septien will be introduced as the Cowboy placekicker.

If past jousts with the Baltimore Colts are any indication, Septien will also get a quick introduction into high drama.

Baltimore beat Dallas in Super Bowl V with a late field goal and two years ago Efren Herrera tripped the Colts 30-27 on the last-second field goal.

Herrera was traded to Seattle after a salary fuss with Cowboy management. Dallas went through three more kickers and finally released rookie free agent Jay Sherrill to make room for Septien Wednesday.

However, Septien, who was a rookie with Los Angeles last year, didn't come easily. Oakland was in the bidding.

Dallas offered and Septien accepted a multi-year contract for undisclosed terms.

"I decided on Dallas because it's a tremendous organization even though Oakland offered more money," said Septien. "I know the people in this part of the country. They are very warm. I can't wait to show them I'm a good kicker."

Septien hit 18 of 30 field goals and 32 of 35 extra points for the Rams last year.

He is now only one of two Cowboys on the team who weren't drafted. The other is running back Preston Pearson.

However, the game should boil down into a duel between Dallas' high-scoring offense, No. 1 in the NFL last year, and Baltimore's "Sack Pack," which permited only 10 touchdown passes in 1977.

The Colt defense will have to play well because some vital cogs in last year's American Conference Eastern Division champions will be missing.

Quarterback Bert Jones was on the sidelines with an arm injured in a preseason game against Detroit and tailback Lydell Mitchell, a 1000-yard gainer, was in San Diego after a dispute with Colt management.

Halfback Don McCauley was the Colts' leading ground gainer in the preseason with 137 yards.

Dallas' offense was led in a 3-1 preseason by Roger Staubach's passing and Tony "The Thrill" Hill's receptions. Hill beat out both Golden Richards and Butch Johnson for a wide receiver post opposite Drew Pearson.

Although Baltimore leads Dallas 4-3 in their all-time series, the Cowboys have played well against AFC teams, winning 18 of 22 games.

Baltimore was 1-3 in the preseason and this was the sixth straight year the Colts have opened the regular season on the road.

Dallas was a 13-point favorite over the Colts, who will be quarterbacked by Mike Kirkland.

Says Denver Squadmen...

Broncos Are For Real

By The Associated Press

Now, as the Denver Broncos were saying before they were so rudely interrupted...

The Broncos, beginning the defense of their American Football Conference championship, started where they left off in the West, beating Oakland, 14-6 in their opening game of the National Football League season Sunday.

"It's about time people started believing Denver is for real," said defensive tackle Lyle Alzado.

"I still don't think people believe us yet," added safety Bill Thompson. "But I don't care."

Clutch interceptions by safeties Thompson and Bernard Jackson keyed Denver's victory over its chief rival in the AFC West. Nine months ago, the Broncos beat the Raiders 20-17 to cop the title in a major upset.

The first NFL regular season weekend got started Saturday night when the New York Giants defeated Tampa Bay 19-13 and concludes tonight when Baltimore plays the defending champion Cowboys at Dallas.

Broncos 14, Raiders 6

Denver converted a pair of turnovers into touchdowns and rode a stubborn defense to its victory over Oakland.

Craig Morton lobbed a 5-yard TD pass to Haven Moses for the first score and the Broncos clung tenaciously to a 1-point lead, withstanding field goals of 33 and 22 yards by Errol Mann. Otis Armstrong plunged in for the wrapup TD in the final minute.

"Our defense won the game for us," said Morton.

It was Oakland's first regular season loss in Denver since 1962.

Saints 31, Vikings 24

Turnovers spelled the difference for New Orleans with safety Tommy Myers intercepting three passes and returning one of the thefts 97 yards for the winning touchdown over Minnesota.

Cornerback Maurice Spencer, who had an interception of his own, deflected Fran Tarkenton's pass into Myers' hands.

"I kind of stumbled and all I could do was concentrate on holding the ball," said Myers.

"I took one look over my shoulder and didn't see any of their fast players around and from there on, it was clear sailing. I didn't think Fran could catch me."

Falcons 20, Oilers 14

Atlanta's defense recovered two fumbles, made two interceptions, recorded four sacks and turned a blocked punt by Tom Pridemore into a touchdown by Tom Moriarty to beat Houston.

"I know our defense is gonna force fumbles, interceptions and sacks and when they come, there's no way we can lose," said defensive back Rolland Lawrence, who had one of the recovered fumbles.

Second half field goals of 30 and 48 yards by Fred Steinfort supplied the winning points. Both three-pointers followed fumble recoveries by Robert Pennywell and Lawrence.

Rams 16, Eagles 14

Rookie Frank Corral's third field goal of the game, a 46-yarder with just seven seconds left to play, carried Los Angeles over Philadelphia.

The Eagles had taken a 14-13 lead on Wally Henry's 57-yard punt return with less than six minutes to play. The Rams started their winning drive from their own 12-yard line with less than two minutes left.

"I can't believe it," said Corral, who also connected from 29 and 49 yards. "This is about the best thing that ever happened to me so far."

Farmer Flogs Texas; Astros Hurting, Too

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Ed Farmer, released by the Milwaukee Brewers from their Triple A farm team three years ago because of arm trouble, just may be the pitcher they have sought all season to bolster their bullpen.

He certainly did Sunday after relieving Andy Replogle with none out in the fifth innings, two runs in for Texas, the bases loaded with Rangers and the Brewers clinging to a 3-2 lead.

Farmer promptly struck out John Lowenstein, retired Al Oliver on a grounder which allowed the tying run to score and got dangerous Richie Zisk on an inning ending fly to center. Sal Bando broke the tie with his 16th homer in the Milwaukee fifth, and Farmer finished with five innings of two-hit relief and earned his first major league victory since 1974 as the Brewers won 4-3.

"What could be worse?" Brewer Manager George Bamberger said. "Three-two, bases loaded, no outs. It could have been worse only if it was the ninth inning.

The Brewers took a 1-0 lead in the second as Robin Yount reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on a single by Gorman Thomas. RBI singles by Yount and Buck Martinez off loser Jon Matlack 12-12 made it 3-0 in the fourth.

The Rangers got to Replogle, who had pitched 20 2-3 successive scoreless innings, in the fifth after singles by John Ellis and Juan Beniquez.

Harrah then singled to left and Hisle's throw appeared in time to retire Ellis at the plate, but he knocked the ball from Martinez' grasp and scored. Successive walks forced in another run and brought on Farmer.

Cubs 4-3, Astros 2-2

Chicago gained two games on Philadelphia by sweeping the Astros. Rookie Scott Thompson had a run-scoring single in his first major league at-bat and Greg Gross also drove in a run in the decisive seventh inning of the opener. Thompson pinch-hit a single, helping the Cubs win the nightcap. Willie Hernandez had saves in both games.

Mets 8, Dodgers 5

Lee Mazzilli had two homers, two singles, drove in three runs and scored two for the Mets. Mazzilli had a profitable trip to California. While in Los Angeles, he got a Hollywood screen test.

Cardinals 10, Reds 2

Pitcher Pet Falcone singled and doubled and scored two runs, while winning only his second game this season as the Cardinals belted Cincinnati.

Red Sox 11, A's 5

Jim Rice clubbed his major league-leading 37th homer and drove in four runs, powering Boston's East leaders past Oakland. Bob Stanley 13-2, who relieved Jim Wright with one out in the third, allowed just four hits.

Richest Race Held At Ruidoso Downs

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) - The world's richest horserace, the All-American Futurity was to be held today before a standing-room-only crowd of more than 15,000 persons, and a national television audience numbering in the millions.

The race is a 440-yard sprint for 2-year-old quarterhorses that is worth a whopping $1.28 million, with $437,500 going to the winner.

Vespero, with jockey Keith Asmussen, was the favorite.

MGA Lists Outcome

The team of Dutch Stehley, Pete Greene, Gene Dow and Mutt Henrod took first place in the weekly Men's Golf Association meet last week.

The foursome of Howard Crenshaw, Richard Baack, Geral Greene and Tom Burton tied with the team of Larry Hildreth, John Greene, John Noble and Ben Givens.

Loser Award To Be Given

Glen Polk and Larry Genuchi from KSNY Radio compete for the Born Loser award at 5 p.m. today at the minature golf course. Spectators are invited to view the competition, and all donations will go to muscular dystrophy.

Owner Bob O'Day also announced that for every $1.50 taken in at the course, he will donate 50 cents to the annual fund drive.

Swinger Tiw, Weekly Meet

Harold and Dena Ellis and Dan and Shirley Head tied for first during weekly Twilight Swingers golf action at Snyder Country Club last week. Play was best ball per two-some.

Three teams tied for third place. Larry and Betty Hildreth, John and Carolyn Greene and Sterling and Bernice Parker locked for the position.

In tournament play following, Richard Baack, Hildreth and Russell Yorgerson tied for first while Billy Wayne Harris took fourth.

Forrod Whips Wade

NEW YORK-Lele Forood registered the biggest upset of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships when she stunned third-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 3-6, 6-2 in a third-round match.

Meanwhile, Chris Evert, the No. 2 seed, defeated Caroline Stoll 6-1, 7-5 to move into the fourth round.

Kite Leads British Open

ENDICOTT, N.Y.-Tom Kite fired a 3-under-par 68 for a 199 total and stretched his lead to five strokes entering the final round of the $225,000 B.C. Open.

Kite's nearest challenger for the $45,000 winner's share was Mark Hayes, who shot a 6-under-par 65. Rod Curl was third, six strokes behind the former NCAA champion from Texas.

Unser Wins Calif. 500

ONTARIO, Calif.-Al Unser won the $300,000 California 500, completing an unprecedented sweep of the Triple Crown of Indianapolis car racing.

Unser, driving the same Lola-Cosworth he rode to victories in the Indianapolis 500 and Pocono 500 earlier this season, finished more than 14 miles ahead of runner-up Pancho Carter.

Tom Bagley was third followed by Gordon Johncock and Lee Kunzman. Only five cars out of 31 starters were running at the end.

Many Parents Prefer School In Living Rooms

EDITOR'S NOTE-Millions of kids will be trooping back to school after Labor Day -- but not the tiny minority whose parents are keeping them at home, some quietly evading the law, others openly defying it. Here's an unusual closeup of these educational dissenters and what makes them go against the mainstream.

By Malcolm N. Carter
Associated Press Writer

They dare not entrust their children to the schools, public, private or alternative.

For some, the reason is as straightforward as the quality of education. For others, it's what they see as a premium paid in conformity as the price of success. For still others, it's values taught or flouted.

They have turned their living rooms into school rooms, teaching their own children at home and defying convention.

Besides society's disapproval, they also invite lawsuits under state compulsory education laws. To avoid detection, some never register their children in school. Others resort to ruses. Most fear publicity and won't be named.

Whatever their number - and guesses place the number between 5,000 and 10,000 families - they are a frightened few among millions of parents who send their children to school and many others whose children are taught at home because of handicaps, for example.

"Most of the people that I'm aware of are quite scared," says a New Jersey mother who is reluctant to discuss the subject for fear that authorities will be reminded to clamp down.

She's 40, the wife of a plumber and herself a former teacher. She keeps her 6-year-old at home because she thinks schools are "stifling," not because of fundamentalist religions or moral principles that underlie the majority of similar parental decisions.

"Most people like the system, and I guess that's why I decided to get out rather than to try and change it," she says.

School, she adds, "is not a nourishing place for my son to be. It decides too much for him. It decides at what level, what subject, what pace he'll learn."

She says she hasn't thought ahead to any problems that could result from her son's lack of formal credentials, and she sees home study as an outgrowth of having had natural childbirth, nursed her son and, later, prepared his baby food at home.

There are dozens of children on their street and she doesn't worry about his ability to get along with others in his age group.

"The social life that kids get in school is mean anyway," she insists. "They certainly don't work out problems for themselves."

The New Jersey mother keeps in touch with like-minded parents through a kind of underground newsletter. She tells about one couple who took their children out of school because they felt the kids were getting dumber every year, and a Texas policeman who wanted his children to learn that God created life.

In Utah, John Singer is under a court order to send his five children to school but says he'd rather die than expose them to the sex, drugs, homosexuality and veneral disease that he says are rampant in the schools. An excommunicated Mormon who champions polygamy, he's kept the law at bay - and his kids in a one-room schoolhouse of his own construction - with his guns.

In Yacolt, Wash., Patricia Smith is fighting an impending school board action aimed at returning her daughters, 11 and 8, to the classroom after four years of teaching them in their converted garage.

"I believe in a supreme being," the Mormon mother says. "And the religion I was teaching at home was being aborted in the classroom."

Says Robert Sessions, a 33-year-old philosophy professor in Decorah, Iowa, who is battling in the courts to keep his 8-year-old son, Erik, at home: "We're more concerned about what happens to children as people. They learn best when they're motivated to learn."

He opposes the notion that learning takes place only in a classroom and doesn't like competitiveness in the schools, among other things.

Although the Supreme Court permitted the Amish to educate their children at home in a 1972 ruling based on constitutionally guaranteed religious freedom, the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law says just 26 states allow home instruction for other reasons as well.

But University of Massachusetts professor David Schimmel, head of the Legal Literacy Program, says the state statutes permitting home study give the courts considerable leeway.

These laws generally require an education at home to be "equivalent" to an education in school. Officials may, therefore, question the qualifications of the teacher, the content of the cirriculum, and the chances for social interraction, Schimmel says.

"For those who do proceed in this way," he observes, "it's a tremendous undertaking."

Those who do beggar classification.

"There doesn't seem to be any easily grasped common denominator, except by definition they seem to be independent-minded, stubborn people," observes John Holt of Boston, author of several books on education and an advocate of home instruction.

Holt runs a newsletter, "Growing Without Schools," that reaches 700 subscribers. He thinks the number of keep-the-kids-at-home parents is probably below 10,000.

The New Schools Exchange in Pettigrew, Ark., dedicated to "humanizing education," says it's receiving "hundreds" of letters every year. The Seventh Day Adventist's Home Study Institute says 600 of its home students pass up its religious courses. This suggests home instruction unrelated to the denomination's religious purpose.

Mary Royer of Portland, Ore., head of the National Parents League, says she has been helping half a dozen families a week set up schools for their own and, sometimes, other children as well. She puts the total at 275 schools in 28 states over the past decade.

Behind it all, she sees the "determination of many parents who refuse to be further intimidated and who are protecting their children from the incredibly immoral incursions persistently thrust into the family structure and into the minds of the innocents."

An Illinois woman with seven children at home asked that her name not be used because "I don't want to make waves."

She says her disaffection with schools began when a daughter she considers gifted was put into a class for problem children. Her daughter became passive and suddenly hard to manage, the woman says. Now 14 and the family's oldest child, she hasn't attended school since sixth grade.

The mother says she supervises her children five hours a day, instructing them as they cook, clean and do laundry. Her 8-year-old son, for example, learns percentages while figuring the sales tax during shopping trips. The children also read histories and biographies and attend classes at a natural history museum.

"Education is supposed to be an aid for life," she says. A conservative Roman Catholic, she insists parochial schools teach "heresy."

Parents have varying systems. A New York father began teaching his son about botany in Central Park, then advanced to chemistry and physics when the boy happened on a periodic table of elements.

In Washington, D.C., the mother of 8-year-old Susan makes the nation's capital into a school, taking the girl through the Smithsonian Institution, attending nine shows and jazz concerts and watching nature movies.

"Susan can drag you through the history of the universe, through natural history on up to the latest Mars landing," boasts her father, a pediatrician.

For him, the joy of home study is the job of watching his daughter blossom. For a Roman Catholic in Chicago, it's the need to inculcate her children with her religious precepts For a dropout professor in a Pennsylvania commune, it's the desire to emphasize values other than competitiveness, possessiveness, regimentation and achievement.

Their reasons may vary, but they are unified in one belief: No one, not a school superintendent, not a state statute, not a court of law, must prevent them from educating their young as they wish.

"I don't see how you can keep a kid from learning except to send him to school," the New Jersey mother says.

Adds the Illinois mother of seven, "I'm aiming for children who are free and independent, who are going to go and feel, 'I'm OK, I can do it.' They're going to be society makers, not society adapters."

CBS's 'Paper Chase' Anchored By Houseman

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - So much of the fall television season's offerings are so light-weight it's doubtful some could withstand a puff of wind.

Not so CBS's "Paper Chase," a comedy-drama anchored securely by the substantial weight of John Houseman in a reprise of his Academy Award-winning role as the curmudgeon college professor.

Houseman, the producer-director-professor who turned actor at 70 and won the Oscar first time out, once again plays Professor Charles W. Kingsfield Jr., who stalks the campus terrorizing law students.

Not only is Houseman back, but so is part of the team responsible for the 1973 movie, which won four Oscars. Producer Robert C. Thompson is executive producer; writer-director James Bridges wrote the pilot; and John Jay Osborn Jr., who wrote the original novel, is writing several scripts.

James Stephens is the naive young law student who makes the fatal mistake of showing up for Kingsfield's class unprepared.

Much of the series centers on the law students, but Kingsfield is the ever-present menance. The campus is eastern and the assumption is strong that it is Harvard.

CBS holds a sneak preview next Saturday, then the one-hour series will be seen on Tuesdays beginning Sept. 19.

It's a quality show and that raises the old chestnut that it may be "too good" for television. One major advertising agency took that view, saying in its preseason report that its outlook was poor. It said CBS was wasting the show by pitting it against two of ABC's top-rated shows, "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

"I've been hearing since the pilot that it's too good to last," says Houseman, 75. "I don't know what that means. They say we're doomed because we're opposite 'Laverne and Shirley.' I can't conceive that the same audience that watches 'Laverne and Shirley' will watch this."

Producer Thompson says, "Certainly we face the time slot with apprehension, but I don't think CBS is going to be too quick to throw us out. My feeling is that they'll give us a year to build."

Seven years ago it was said "The Waltons" was doomed when CBS put it against "The Flip Wilson Show." It took a while, but "The Waltons" eventually drove Flip off the air.

Houseman's role as the professor is a bit of typecasting. He was head of the drama department at the Juilliard School in New York when he accepted the movie role. He also taught at Vassar, UCLA and is now a visiting professor at the University of Southern California, where the exterior scenes are filmed.

He invited his Juilliard students to see the movie, then questioned them afterward. He says, "They were non-committal. I finally said, 'Come on, how did you like it?' They said, 'You were just like you are here.'"

Thompson says, "Kingsfield is not really an ogre. He feels it helps the students when he's tough. But somewhere along the line we'll see that shell broken momentarily and catch a glimpse of the human side.

"I think the fascination of that character is what made the film so popular, and I think it's what's going to help the series. I wouldn't want to deviate from that very much."

Houseman, whose film roles often are what he calls "evil old men," says: "Kingsfield is not really a heavy. In one sense, yes, - he scares the hell out of everyone.

"He acts imperiously and cruelly. He's a great teacher. One of the ways he teaches is by being tough on his students. He's aware of the effect he has. He does it purposely. Like many teachers of his generation, he enjoys the myth he's created. At Harvard they had a whole mythology about these teachers. The more outrageous they were the better the stories."

"Paper Chase" will adhere to the movie in substance and attitude - with several exceptions.

Thompson says, "We move along much faster and our casting is geared to a charisma and charm that's more obvious than the feature. Timothy Bottoms was very laid back as the law student, but James Stephens is ingratiating and charming right off the bat.

"In television you have to let the audience know immediately what your problem is and who your characters are."

In the series, unlike the pilot airing Saturday, the students will be as serious as in the film. Thompson says, "We're going back to the idea that they're professional students, so the tension and competition is greater. Out of that tension and competition will come the humor."

Cleaver Packs A Bible Now

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Eldridge Cleaver, the former militant Black Panther fugitive, packed a Bible instead of a gun when he returned to Will Rogers Park in Watts after a 10-year absence.

"I used to carry a gun... ready to take 'em with me," Cleaver told a crowd of about 500 people Saturday at opening ceremonies for the second annual Gospel Watts Happening Celebration. "But I'm not worried about it anymore. They're coming anyway."

Cleaver, now 42 and graying, was a fiery revolutionary when he fled the country in 1968 to escape a shooting-incident trial in Oakland.

But he turned to Christianity as he became disillusioned with radicalism and communism during his seven years of exile in Cuba, Algeria and France. On his return, he spent seven months in prison and launched his ministry.

"I wanted to get away from that philosophy, but I didn't know where to turn," he said. "Then I found Jesus Christ...and I'll never let him go."

Playboy Advisor Turns Corner

CHICAGO (AP) - Jim Petersen has turned the corner - he's 30, balding and what's more, doesn't think there's much of a market for the line of advice he pens.

Petersen for six years has been Playboy magazine's "Playboy Adviser" on sex and other problems readers.

"Everyone is into jogging today. Look at the best seller list - six books on jogging and none on sex. I guess we're really into the 'me' generation," he says.

Pope John Paul Tells Mondale He Has No 'Miracle Solutions'

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul I Monday told U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and other leaders of foreign delegations who attended his inauguration that the Vatican has no "miracle solutions" for world problems but is ready to contribute in any way it can "to serve the international community."

Speaking in French at a brief audience in the ornate Sala Reggia of the Apostolic Palace, the new pope also appealed for religious freedom for Christian believers.

"Allow us to count on your willing collaboration," he said.

"We wish foremost that the Christian communities always enjoy in your countries the respect and the freedom which any religious conscience is entitled to and that a fair place be made for their contributions in the search for the common good."

After the group audience, Pope John Paul received Mondale separately.

Earlier in the day the pope gave separate audiences in his private library to the 13 foreign chiefs of state who came to attend his installation and the wives of those who brought them. They were:

King Baudoin and Queen Fabiola of Belgium, King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sofia of Spain, Grand Duke Jean and Grand Duchess Josephine Charlotte of Luxembourg, Prince Francois Joseph II and Princess Georgina of Liechtenstein, Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco, President and Mrs. Jorge Rafael Videla of Argentina, President Rudolf Kirchschlager of Austria, President and Mrs. Patrick Hillary of Ireland, President Elias Sarkis of Lebanon, President and Mrs. Demetrio Basilio Lakas of Panama, Regent Captains Francesco Valli and Enrico Andreoli of San Marino, and the head of the Order of Malta, Angelo de Mojama di Cologna.

The audiences took place a few hours after a three-pound bomb blew a hole in the gate and broke windows of the Lateran Palace the pope's residence as bishop of Rome. But no one was hurt, and the pope was three miles away, at the papal apartment in the Vatican, where he lives.

Ten thousand policemen were guarding the hotels and embassies where the foreign delegations were staying to protect them against the Red Brigades and other terrorists who have been plaguing Italian life for months.

Police said they believed the attack on the Lateran Palace was the work of extremists who demonstrated in Rome and during the papal inaugural in St. Peter's Square Sunday against the presence of the Argentine president.

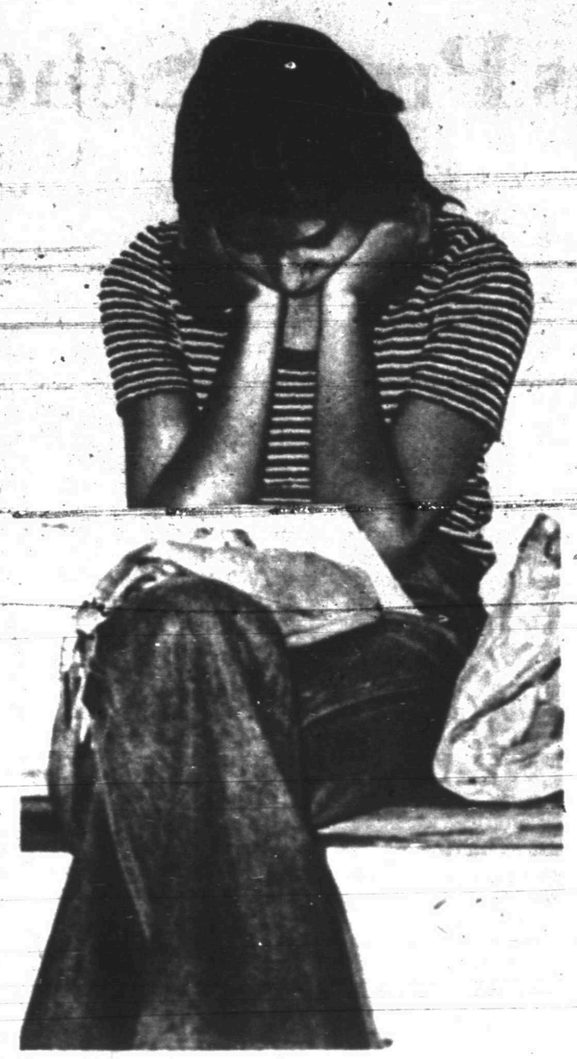

Pennies Not Amusing To Tax Collector

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) - Norman Cummings tried to pay his $195.50 property tax bill with pennies. The tax collector wasn't amused and refused to accept them.

Cummings, his wife and three of their four children showed up at Augusta City Hall on Friday - the deadline for tax payments - with 19,550 pennies in plastic milk containers. It was the deadline for tax payment.

Cummings, a state employee, said he was paying in pennies to "protest taxes in general."

John G. Edgerly, city treasurer and tax collector, said, "I thought it was in poor taste, especially when it's the last day and we've got wall-to-wall people...waiting to pay their taxes."

BACK TO THE BOOKS-Summer vacation ended for schools in the area last week but students and teachers will get tomorrow off in observance of Labor Day. Above, Sylvia Sanchez of Hermleigh seems to have made the transition back to the old routine well. Classes at Snyder schools begin Tuesday and Western Texas College kicks off the 1978-79 school year Thursday. (SDN Staff Photo)

Strong Quake Hits Germany

TUEBINGEN, West Germany (AP) - A strong earthquake centered in the sparsely populated Swabian hills damaged many buildings in the southwest part of West Germany but caused few injuries and no deaths. The quake, shortly after 6 a.m. Sunday, also was felt in parts of France, Switzerland, East Germany and Austria. There were three main shocks and 60 smaller aftershocks.

The quake registered between 5 and 7.5 on the Richter scale at seismological stations in West Germany and France.

The Central Observatory in Erlangen, West Germany, said it was the strongest quake ever recorded since the Germans began measuring quakes 100 years ago.

The damage was heaviest in West Germany, where 15 persons were reported injured. Areas near the Black Forest were hit hardest, and the Interior Ministry of Baden-Wuerttemberg state estimated the damage in the millions of dollars.

Police said the Hohenzollern Castle, ancestral home of the kaisers, was damaged extensively and would be closed for up to six months for repairs. They said the quake toppled chimneys, ripped open the walls and tore roofs off some of the buildings.

The ministry said hundreds of homes in villages around the castle were badly damaged by the strong initial shock and the 60 smaller aftershocks.

Police in Frankfurt, about 150 miles north of the epicenter, said burglar alarms were set off in stores and banks. In the Swill border state of St. Gallen, police received more than 100 calls an hour from worried citizens.

Officials in the Austrian states of Vorarlberg and Tyrol said the tremor shook buildings but caused no major damage. East Germany's official news agency ADN said the shocks were felt around Erfurt and Suhl but did not mention damage. Officials at the French seismological station in Strasbourg said the tremors were felt as far west as Nancy.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one whole number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake of 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage while one with a 7 reading is a "major" quake capable of widespread heavy damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9 on the Richter scale.

Prepare Now For Scurry County Fair

The time is very quickly approaching for all Scurry County seamstresses to start gathering up their entries for the 1978 Scurry County Fair, Mrs. Margaret Drum, clothing superintendent, reported. The fair will be Sept. 28, 29, and 30, so time is slipping fast.

The clothing division of the fair depends on the entries from youth and adults to make it an exciting attraction for fair visitors.

"Think about the garments you have made and don't forget to enter them in the County Fair." Mrs. Drum said.

Entries in the division will be taken at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 27. Judging will begin at 9 a.m. on Thursday. Only one entry per class. Youth and adult work will be judged separately. Exhibits will be released from 2-5 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 1.

The fashion show will be held during the fair on Friday, Sept. 29, in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum at 2:30 p.m. Entries in the clothing division will be modeled during the show. Only entries in the fair will be shown during this time. So all of the Scurry County home seamstresses are urged to take up your needles and prepare yourselves for competition in the Scurry County Fair because without you the clothing division will suffer. Mrs. Drum said.

Alan: "How about some articles on the use of point count?"

Oswald: "The 4-3-2-1 point count invented by Bryant McCampbell some sixty years ago is in universal use today. My old friend, Charles Goren, partner on occasion and rival on many more occasions is largely responsible for its success although strangely enough, his first use of point count was when he won his first national in 1936 as my partner. Charlie's development of the simple short suit count of one for a doubleton, two for a singleton and three for a void extended the count from notrump to cover all bidding and he deserves full credit."

Alan: "Didn't some actuary help him with that?"

Oswald: "The late Bill Anderson of Toronto did a lot of research with Charlie back in the late thirties and early forties."

Alan: "Today's hand would be bid the way shown in 99 percent of all bridge games anywhere in the world. Every declarer would make three spades, two hearts, one diamond and three clubs for the needed nine tricks. Quite a few would scramble a tenth somewhere but everyone would score game and rubber."

THE Fine Arts Division of Western Texas College
Snyder, Texas 79549 — Telephone 915/573-8511
announces
Humanities 131

The objective of Humanities 131 is to give the student a brief introduction to the nature and means of expression in music, drama and art; to draw parallels and contrasts in brief histories of the areas, and to develop a rudimentary ability to analyze and judge works in the fine arts.

The Humanities class will be team-taught by members of the Fine Arts faculty, Mike Thornton, Melvin Branch, Jane Womack, Guy Gamble and Jeanne Kobuszewski, and Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president. All instructors will attend each class session and participate in discussions and seminars. Films, guest lecturers, art exhibits, music programs, drama performances and possible field trips are planned. Classes will meet from 8:35 to 9:50 on Tuesday and Thursday mornings in the Fine Arts Building, room 107.

For further information concerning this and other courses in art, music and drama, call the Fine Arts division office at 573-8511, extension 234. Classes for day and evening students are scheduled. Registration is scheduled Sept. 5 and 6, with classes beginning Sept. 7.

SNYDER OAKS NEWS

Regular scheduled activities took place at Snyder Oaks Nursing Home this week. LOCAL MOTORCYCLISTS—A group of local motorcycle enthusiasts meets every Thursday in the parking lot of the Piggly Wiggly Supermarket. The group is loosely organized and is not yet a chartered club. The group's purpose is to promote motorcycle safety and foster a good public image of motorcyclists and motorcycles. They invite anyone interested in joining to contact them. They meet at 7 p.m. in the parking lot. (SDN Staff Photo)

WTC Offering Aikido Course

Aikido, a martial art which had its beginning in Japan late in the 19th century, will be offered for students at Western Texas College this fall.

Dr. Shelby Hillis, a First Degree Black Belt in aikido and a Third Degree Black Belt in Judo, will be instructor for the course. The class is scheduled from 11:15 a.m. to 12:05 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays in the gym.

Aikido, unlike judo, is not a sport, Hillis says. It is an effective means of self-protection and is becoming increasingly well-known for its effectiveness. It may not have the dramatic impact of some other martial arts, according to Hillis, but it has tremendous value for its students. Some of these advantages, listed in the student manual, are as follows:

There is the development of rhythmic movement and physical fitness, both intergal parts of self-defense training.

Aikido encourages discipline and non-violent attitude toward the opponent.

It teaches the effective twisting, bending, and stretching of the joints and limbs, thus enabling them to become supple and strong, and freeing them from harmful adhesions.

It increases the student's awareness of posture and good body alignment and improves reactions, perception, and coordination. The student learns to use the opponent's force, bringing that force into his own circle and thus neutralizing the aggressive action and bringing the attacker under control.

Hillis plans to give aikido students the opportunity to meet one of the best known figures in aikido when he takes them to a five-day clinic at the Karl Geis School in Houston Oct. 26-30. The noted instructor will be Kenju Tomiki, Professor of Physical Education at Waseda University and respected member of the Kodokan.

Tomiki, now 77, studied judo under its founder, Dr. Kano, and when a 5th Dan Judo was asked by Kano to learn aikido under Morei Uyeshiba. Uyeshiba was the creator of aikido, having developed it after many years of study of martial arts.

Tomiki will teach two hours each day and Geis, a Fourth Degree Black Belt in aikido and a Seventh Degree Black Belt in judo, will conduct a second two-hour session daily.

Persons interested in aikido are invited to contact Hillis for information. Hillis will also be teaching judo for evening students in classes meeting on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Travel Budget Cut Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has ordered the executive branch of the federal government to cut at least $60 million from its $3 billion travel budget next year.

Calling the move a step toward fighting inflation, Carter asked heads of executive departments and agencies to cut administrative travel costs by 20 percent for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Corn Borer Hits Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The European corn borer has made its first appearance in Texas since the mid-1960s, the Texas Agriculture Department warned Friday.

The insect attacks corn and grain sorghum and has been found in Moore County in the Panhandle. Agriculture department personnel will survey the area.

A quarantine could be necessary, the department said, making grain screening or fumigating necessary. Most Moore County grain is sold to local feedlots.

Borer larvae burrow into plant stalks. The pest was found in Bowie County more than 10 years ago, but it was eradicated. It is currently in several states north and east of Texas.

In 1743, Sweden ceded a large part of Finland to Russia.

The military Order of the Purple Heart was founded in the U.S. in 1782.

National Prayer Day Proclaimed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has proclaimed Oct. 7 a "national day of prayer," saying, "From time to time we should turn to the Almighty for help and guidance, as we have done throughout our nation's 203 years."

Bad breath just a symptom

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wrote to you once before about an acne problem I had. You helped me tremendously and I thank you for it but now I have another problem that I need help with. I have terribly bad breath.

I do brush my teeth whenever I go out and have used many mouth washes but they only stay with me for about 20 minutes and after that the odor comes back. I've used almost every commercial mouth wash on the market, chewing device and breath mint without success. I've even brushed my tongue which didn't work. I was wondering if you have any other suggestions.

DEAR READER — I'm glad that your acne problem has been controlled with the information I sent you. Other readers who want The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Now about your bad breath problem. You need to realize that bad breath is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be caused by the teeth and apparently you've concentrated on that. Cleaning your own teeth is sometimes not the only answer. There may be infected pockets around the roots of the teeth that requires dental treatment. For this reason you should have your dentist check you very carefully and see if there's anything he can help you with in that department.

It is important to brush the tongue and I'm surprised at how many people don't realize that. A tongue loaded with food particles can be the major source of bad breath.

Besides that, any infected area in the respiratory system can be a source of odor. The odor comes from the bacteria. This can be from improperly draining sinuses or an infected throat area. The time honored one here is, of course, infected tonsils, but tonsils are seldom the cause of bad breath.

If your teeth are all right then you might want to see an ear, nose and throat specialist to make sure that you don't have a chronic infection of your sinuses that is contributing to your bad breath problem. Beyond that, there can be infections in the lungs which are not likely to occur in the young, healthy person who doesn't have symptoms.

Bad breath can come from any chemical imbalance of the body or what you eat. This is because the chemical substances that cause the odor are carried in the bloodstream just as alcohol is. Once the unoxygenated blood gets to the lungs to release carbon dioxide, it also releases the chemical vapors that have the odors.

When the odor is coming from the lungs, because of some defect in body functioning, there is not much that mouth wash or breath mints can do for you. Mouth wash and mints may mask an odor in the mouth momentarily, as you have experienced, but they will not cure the basic cause for bad breath.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem and What To Do About It. Others who want this issue can follow the same directions given above to obtain the issue on acne. I hope you have as much success with controlling your bad breath as you had in correcting your acne problem.

Four-Legged Duck For Real

SEATTLE (AP) - No one in Hawaii will believe there's a four-legged duck until it appears in person, so Lan Roberts says his radio station is giving Ginny Quackers an all-expense paid trip to the islands.

Ginny Quackers is a Pekin duck who achieved fame - if not fortune - by entering the world on July 4 with two extra legs.

Roberts, a disc jockey for KORL, says Ginny Quackers and her owner, Viola Cushman, are to arrive a week from today, "and we'll have a big Hawaiian welcome, with a red carpet, dancing girls and a limo to the hotel."

"We're working with the mayor's office on getting the key to the city for the duck. After all, this is an election year," he said.

Ginny Quackers, meanwhile, seems to be taking her new-found fame in stride - after stride, after stride, after stride.

President To Visit Aliquippa

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter will visit Aliquippa, Pa., for a town meeting Sept. 16, the White House says. Carter also plans to attend a reeception for Democratic congressional candidate Gene Atkinson.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you are both bold and visionary. And you have the courage to carry out your convictions and make them work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For best results today, keep what you hope to accomplish limited to only those who are affected. People not directly involved shouldn't be told.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may find you'll want to be around lots of people today. Friends or associates capture your interest and inspire your imagination.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you'll find those whose cooperation you need for matters important to you will be more helpful than usual. You should be able to get what you go after.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) That you have strong opinions today is actually helpful to one less sure of himself. You'll express your views with compassion.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Give as much attention as you can to a joint venture that has financial or material overtones. This is your most fortunate area today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A solution to an important matter involving another can be found today. It will be necessary, however, to act on it promptly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your work will go a lot quicker and smoother than you expected today, freeing you to accept a pleasant invitation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't hesitate to call upon friends or contacts if you're looking for company to share in your plans for the day. Chances are they'll be pleased to go along.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A domestic situation is best cleared up immediately or it could get things off-balance a bit. The more promptly it's handled, the less likely anybody is to get hurt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A sudden shift in conditions could occur today. You'll want to be able to alter your course, so don't lock yourself into a set schedule.

Demonstration Of Acupuncture Inconclusive

By Cynthia Kadonaga
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Edith Willins, who says she is terrified of needles, spent part of her Labor Day holiday lying before an audience of arthritics and other ailers with four pins in her face.

"This is the first time I've ever served as a guinea pig this way." Mrs. Willins said at Sunday's second annual Acupuncture Festival. The festival, sponsored by the Center for Chinese Medicine, featured acupuncture techniques against aging, obesity and pain.

The Los Angeles woman volunteered for the half-hour facelifting treatment. Stretched across two dining tables in a banquet room of the General Lee Restaurant, Mrs. Willins grimaced as 10 needles were put in her legs, hands and face. Staring out into the hall, she said, "It's very painful at first."

Immediately after the treatment, Mrs. Willins, who refused to give her age but looked to be in her 50s, told the audience of 150, "I want you to know that I'm 110 years old, but I hope I look like 30 now."

She added later, however: "I've looked at myself in the mirror and there's no difference. I guess I need another dozen treatments."

The acupuncturist, Starrie Ming of Santa Monica, said 12 to 15 of the $30 to $85 treatments would remove superficial wrinkles for several years. Her clients, she said, include movie stars and other celebrities, but she declined to name any of them.

Recent studies have shown that acupuncture may alleviate pain by stimulating nerves that release the body's own analgesic chemicals, called endorphins. The ancient Chinese treatment, based on the theory that nerve stimulation corrects excesses and deficiencies in the body's energy flow, has been used in dieting, facelifting and veterinary medicine.

Ms. Ming claimed she cured her dog's paralysis with acupuncture. "My cocker spaniel couldn't stand on his hind legs," she said. "He had arthritis and he cried all the time. I treated him every day for a month and now he's OK. It's been two years."

Ms. Ming, who also has dentistry and structural engineering degrees from UCLA, said she is one of an estimated 700 acupuncturists practicing in California, and one of about 5,000 nationwide. She learned the treatment from her physician father.

In addition to Mrs. Willins, Ms. Ming treated a 23-year-old physical education major for chronic neck pain. Kathy Woods, a student at California State University in Long Beach, said she had what doctors diagnosed as "nervous tension" that was aggravated by her participation in sports.

After 13 needles were removed from her neck and arms, Ms. Woods waved her hands above her head and said:

"It really feels a lot better. I recommend it. It's gone."

The audience burst into applause, and Mrs. Willins said she was impressed enough to try acupuncture for the rheumatoid arthritis she has suffered for a dozen years, despite her fear of needles.

Mayor Asks For Advice

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Mayor Charles Wheeler is giving all the amateur political consultants in town a chance to advise him of the wisdom of seeking a third mayoral term in 1979.

By calling a private phone line the mayor has installed, you can tell him, via tape recorded message, whether you think he should try to break the two-term tradition generally observed by Kansas City mayors.

And Wheeler, who is in his second four-year term as mayor, says he will give considerable weight to the advise.

"I'll give a lot of credence to it, if it is devoid of profanity," he said.
