Reagan 'won't cave in' as he meets visit critic

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying he will not cave in and cancel a visit to a German cemetery where Nazi SS soldiers are buried, is preparing to meet face to face with a Jewish leader who says the president has brought "pain and shame" to Americans.

Reagan was scheduled to present the Congressional Gold Medal today to Elie Wiesel, a survivor of two Nazi concentration camps and chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Commission. The White House ceremony was arranged before the uproar about Reagan's planned cemetery visit.

At a ceremony at the Capitol on Thursday marking the 40th anniversary of the liberation of Jews from concentration camps at the end of World War II, Wiesel said he understood the administration's efforts to "deal delicately with German sensitivities."

"But what about American sensibility?" he asked "Did no one consider the pain and the shame some, if not most Americans, would feel upon learning that the president of the United States, for whom we have genuine admiration and affection, plans to visit a cemetery in which there are a good number of SS graves?"

Weisel said in an interview Thursday that he had been weighing whether to have the event postponed or to go ahead with it and use the occasion to reiterate his opposition ot the cemetery visit in person.

But this morning, on the "CBS Morning News," Weisel said he would attend the ceremony.

"I will accept with gratitude the medal given to me by the American people, by the Congress, and I will express that gratitude."

He also said he would have other remarks to make in accepting the award, but did not say what they would be.

The White House said Reagan would use the ceremony to call for observance of Jewish Heritage Week.

Reagan, speaking to editors and broadcasters at a White House luncheon, said he had no plans to cancel the visit to the small military cemetery in the southwestern German town of Bitburg.

"I think that it would be very hurtful and all it would do is leave me looking as if I caved in in the face of some unfavorable attention," the president said.

He conceded that some of the 2,000 or so graves in the cemetery are those of SS troops — "the villains, as we know, that conducted the persecutions and all."

But he said most of them were youths about 18 of age "drafted into service to carry out the hateful wishes of the Nazis." In a dispatch from Bitburg, Associated Press Writer Mark Heinrich said examination of the gravestones showed that 47 carried SS markings but many of the other soldiers were teen-agers.

Speaking of the young draftees, Reagan said, "They were victims, just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps."

His remark touched off a new wave of protest.

"For the president of the United States to equate the soldiers who died in an attempt to subjugate the world to an unconscionable ideology with those who were the tragic victims of the implementation of that ideology is morally unconscionable and politically outrageous," said Rabbi David Saperstein, director of the Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism.

"I am flabbergasted at the continued insensitivity and shocked at the lack of historical perspective," said Abraham H. Foxman, associate national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Wiesel and the Holocaust commission, appointed by Reagan, sent the president a telegram expressing shock and adding, "If no immediate correction is offered by you, it will mean you see no difference between war and genocide."

Loeffler considering gubernatorial bid

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, who represents Midland in his 21st District, has indicated he is seriously considering the 1986 gubernatorial race and may have a decision by next week.

Thursday afternoon, Loeffler issued a brief announcement from his Washington, D.C. office which stated: "I have been contacted by numerous individuals urging me to run for governor in 1986. I am giving it very serious consideration and will make a final decision in the near future."

Loeffler

One Midland man who talked with Loeffler this morning said there is a "sincere chance" that the congressman will run for governor on the Republican ticket. "Numerous friends and supporters have written him to consider it. He's called people across the state and hasn't had any negative answers," said the man who asked not to be identified. He also said Loeffler is expecting to make a trip to Texas next week and may have a formal statement by then.

ERNEST ANGELO, a member of the National Republican Executive Committee, has mixed emotions. "I'm so pleased with what he's doing where he is. But Loeffler will do well at whatever he does. He'd make a fine governor."

Although the race is still a year away, other names that have been mentioned among the Republicans to challenge Gov. Mark White are Bill Meier and Mike Richards, both who sought statewide offices in 1982 and lost, State Sen. Buster Brown and Mesa Petroleum leader T. Boone Pickens. Former Gov. Bill Clements, who lost to White, also has been on the list.

But Win Brown, who supported Clements in 1978 and 1982, said the former governor has indicated he doesn't want to go through another campaign. "Clements has a harshness and abrasiveness about him that Loeffler doesn't have," said Brown.

Those in-between campaign years such as 1986 bring back memories of the massacre the Republicans took from the Democrats in 1982 when White won his position. But some Republicans contend it won't happen in this gubernatorial race.

Five killed in apartheid protests

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Five blacks were killed in a night of anti-apartheid violence, and a black mob invaded a white suburb of Port Elizabeth and set a white man afire, police and news reports said.

The attack on the white man in Uitenhage was the first assault on a white in a white neighborhood during the current wave of protests and rioting over South Africa's system of racial segregation — apartheid.

The victim, Erasmus Jacobs, was badly burned Thursday evening and doctors said today his life was in danger.

Police shot and killed three blacks in Despatch, near Uitenhage, a white suburb of Port Elizabeth, in a clash with rioters Thursday night, a police spokesman said. A black crowd burned to death two black men, aged 17 and 22, in Kwazakhele township near Port Elizabeth, the spokesman said.

Blacks have been attacking other blacks considered to be collaborating with the white-minority government.

The attack on Jacobs was the second attack by blacks against whites in nine months of violence that has killed more than 300 blacks and one white baby. The 3-week old boy was killed in October when blacks stoned a car traveling through a black township.

A new wave of violence followed the police shooting deaths of 20 blacks near Uitenhage on March 21.

Jacobs was in a parked car in the white community waiting for a friend who had gone into a cafe to buy a loaf of bread when he was dragged from the car and set on fire, The Port Elizabeth Evening Post said.

The paper quoted Jacobs' companion, Carel van der Mescht, as saying that when he emerged from the shop, Jacobs was in flames on the sidewalk and shouted, "Go away! You can't help. There are too many of them."

Van der Mescht said he fled in his car as the mob threw bricks at him. A police patrol rescued Jacobs before Van der Mescht returned 10 minutes later, police said.

Dr. Leon Cilliers, chief superintendent of Port Elizabeth Provincial Hospital, said Jacobs was burned over more than 80 percent of his body. He said Jacobs was in stable condition today, but that his life was in danger. Cilliers said Jacobs told him the crowd poured kerosene on him and set him on fire.

Such attacks by black mobs have become common in recent weeks, but the targets have been other blacks regarded as collaborators.

In Soweto, Johannesburg's sprawling black township, a crowd of about 1,500 students today burned a shop owned by a black whom the students suspected of bewitching and killing their school headmaster, witnesses said.

The crowd marched to other schools, where about 1,500 more youths joined them. Police used tear gas to disperse them. Soweto, the nation's largest township, unofficially estimated at nearly 2 million people, has stayed relatively quiet during the current unrest, although it was the site of fierce fighting in 1976.

In Uitenhage, a court inquiry into the March 21 shootings heard evidence that a 2-year-old boy also may have been killed and his death not disclosed.

Police probing stabbing death of Midland youth

From Staff Reports

The Midland Police Department is continuing its investigation into the apparent stabbing death early this morning of a 16-year-old Midland youth whose body was found lying near an abandoned vehicle in the 700 block S. Big Spring St.

According to police, the victim's name was being withheld until the next of kin had been notified. He was pronounced dead at the scene at 12:55 a.m. by Justice of the Peace Charles Sprayberry. The cause of death has not yet been determined. However, an autopsy is scheduled to be performed today.

According to police Lt. Earl Luckie, the victim staggered from the vehicle and fell to the ground after an apparent struggle broke out between the victim and an undentified subject who left the scene heading in an undisclosed direction.

Investigators first responded to the incident termed a hit and run. Upon their arrival, however, they found the victim's body lying in a "large pool of blood," according to the report.

Aunt of girl found dead will continue campaign

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — The aunt of a little girl found dead more than two months after she disappeared from near her home has vowed to continue a campaign to find missing children.

The decomposed body of Christi Lynn Meeks was found by fisherman April 3 at Lake Texoma. The body, at first thought to be that of a little boy, was positively identified Thursday as that of the 5-year-old girl.

Teresa Rogers, 30, had launched a nationwide search for her niece after the girl disappeared from near her home in west Mesquite on Jan. 19.

On Wednesday, Ms. Rogers had located a donated office for her newly formed Christi Meeks Foundation for Missing Children. Despite the news, she plans to go ahead with efforts to help find other children.

"I don't want this to happen to someone else," Ms. Rogers said after learning Thursday that the her niece's body had been positively identified. "Just because we found her, I'm not going to stop.

"There are so many others out there like her. I need everybody's help. I don't want people to think the foundation is going in the closet."

Ms. Rogers said she plans to quit her job selling insurance to devote herself fulltime to the foundation's work of publicizing and locating missing children.

Nationwide, between 250 and 500 children are abducted each year, experts say.

"My life hasn't been the same since it (the disappearance) happened," Ms. Rogers said. "I'm sure my life will never be the same."

Through her efforts, more than 50 billboards were put up across the state with Christi's photo and description.

In addition to participating in four area searches by friends and relatives, Ms. Rogers initiated efforts to have the child's picture put on milk cartons and shown in movie theaters.

"I wanted to keep her face out there and keep the public aware of what was going on," she said. "Without it, it would have just died down."

Investigators at the Dallas County medical examiner's office on Thursday confirmed through dental records that the body found in Lake Texoma is that of Christi Lynn Meeks of Mesquite.

Grayson County Justice of the Peace Charles Odle said the child, whose body was so badly decomposed it was officially listed as that of a boy when it was found April 3 ago, died of an apparent drowning.

"It has definitely been determined off the dental examination that it is Christi Lynn Meeks," said Odle. "As far as we know, it was death by drowning, but she has been identified by dental records.

Lake Texoma is about 80 miles north of Dallas and Mesquite on the Texas-Oklahoma border.

Christi was last seen following an unidentified man to a gray compact car near her stepfather's Mesquite apartment on Jan. 19, police said.

Opponents push vote on Nicaraguan aid

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House Democrats, confident they can defeat President Reagan's plan for $14 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels, are spurning a proposed Republican compromise and forcing a showdown vote next week.

The Democratic leadership Thursday rejected a GOP concession that would have limited the $14 million to non-lethal supplies, but would still have funneled the assistance through the CIA, which has aided the Contras in their war against Nicaragua's leftist government since 1981.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today Reagan has agreed in principle to legislation limiting aid to non-lethal supplies for the balance of this fiscal year, ending Sept. 30. He said details had not been worked out but "we have agreed in principle with members of the Senate and with individuals with whom we have talked in the House."

"The CIA is not a humanitarian outfit," said Christopher Matthews, a spokesman for House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. Matthews added that the proposed aid would amount to military logistical support.

The Democratic alternative, which was slated for a vote after action on Reagan's plan Tuesday, would provide $5 million for humanitarian aid for the Contras and other Nicaraguan exiles, but distribute the assistance through the Red Cross or some other independent refugee relief agency.

The plan, sponsored by Reps. Michael Barnes, D-Md., and Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., also would set aside $9 million for use by Latin American nations to implement a possible peace settlement in Nicaragua.

"We're trying to put the United States firmly in support of the peace efforts of the Latin Americans themselves," Barnes told the House Rules Committee before the panel decided to ship the competing proposals to the House floor. House Republicans also will be given a chance to propose an alternative plan.

Rep. William Broomfield of Michigan, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he believed the Democrats spurned the GOP compromise Thursday because "they're more determined to get the blood of Reagan" than reach a bipartisan agreement.

With a vote also expected Tuesday in the Senate, congressional headcounters in both parties agreed that Reagan's original plan to send $14 million in aid to the Contras appeared dead. Republicans, however, hoped to salvage the plan that would grant the assistance as non-military supplies.

In a largely procedural move, the Republican-led Senate Appropriations Committee voted 15-13 Thursday to approve Reagan's plan, but some committee backers said they would vote against the proposal on the Senate floor.

Later, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called Reagan and offered to help work out a compromise on the issue.

Under Reagan's plan approved by the committee, the $14 million would be provided as food, clothing and medical assistance for a 60-day cease-fire period. After that, Reagan could divert the money to weapons and ammunition if the Nicaraguan government, in the president's judgment, fails to negotiate seriously with the rebels.

At the White House, Reagan said he is willing to "make some alterations" in the original request for $14 million for the rebels.

"My feet aren't in concrete on this," Reagan said in a speech to editors and broadcasters."Yes, there is leeway. We are flexible."

In Washington to urge passage of the Contra aid was Winston Churchill II, grandson of the late British prime minister and a member of the British Parliament.

Soviets build Sandinista communications network

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Soviet military technicians are setting up a communications system in northern Nicaragua that will enable the Sandinista Army to respond far more quickly to military activities by anti-communist rebels, U.S. officials say.

The Soviets are known to have had military personnel in Nicaragua for some time but this is the first time their presence has been disclosed in battlefield areas close to the Honduran border.

Release of the "top secret" intelligence information appeared to be linked to the administration's campaign to win congressional approval next week of a $14 million aid package for the Contra rebel forces.

A key element of the lobbying campaign involves administration efforts to underscore what officials describe as an expanding military role by the Soviet Union and its allies in Nicaragua.

The officials said the facility is part of a Soviet attempt to enhance the Sandinistas' intelligence gathering capabilities through satellite communications with an existing installation in Managua that was built with Soviet technical help.

According to the officials, who insisted on anonymity, the Managua facility gives the Soviets the ability to monitor telephone conversations well beyond Nicaragua's borders and to keep track of airplane traffic and ship-to-ship communications in the area.

The officials also believe that the construction of new runways and expansion of old ones in Nicaragua is part of a long-range plan under which the Soviets eventually will use that country as a base for intelligence gathering flights as far north as the West Coast of the United States.

Asked Thursday about the presence of Soviet personnel near combat areas in Nicaragua, State Department spokesman Edward Djerejian said only it would "be a concern" if it were true. He noted that the administration normally does not comment publicly on intelligence information.

The Soviet and Nicaraguan embassies here had no comment on the alleged Soviet activities. CIA spokeswoman Kathy Pherson declined comment.

Djerejian estimated the Soviet presence in Nicaragua at 200, adding that the number of Cubans there is believed to be about 7,500. Of that figure, at least 2,500 are reported to be engaged in military-related activities. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega has said the Cuban military presence in his country does not exceed 800.

Djerejian said, "One of the U.S. objectives toward Nicaragua is the severance of military and security ties with Cuba and the Soviet bloc."

The U.S. officials said the principal Soviet activities in Nicaragua include setting up communications facilities, "signal intelligence" activities and the testing of MI-24 HIND D helicopters.

The Soviets are reported to have given the Sandinistas about a dozen MI-24s, a weapon the Soviets have used extensively in their war against rebels in Afghanistan.

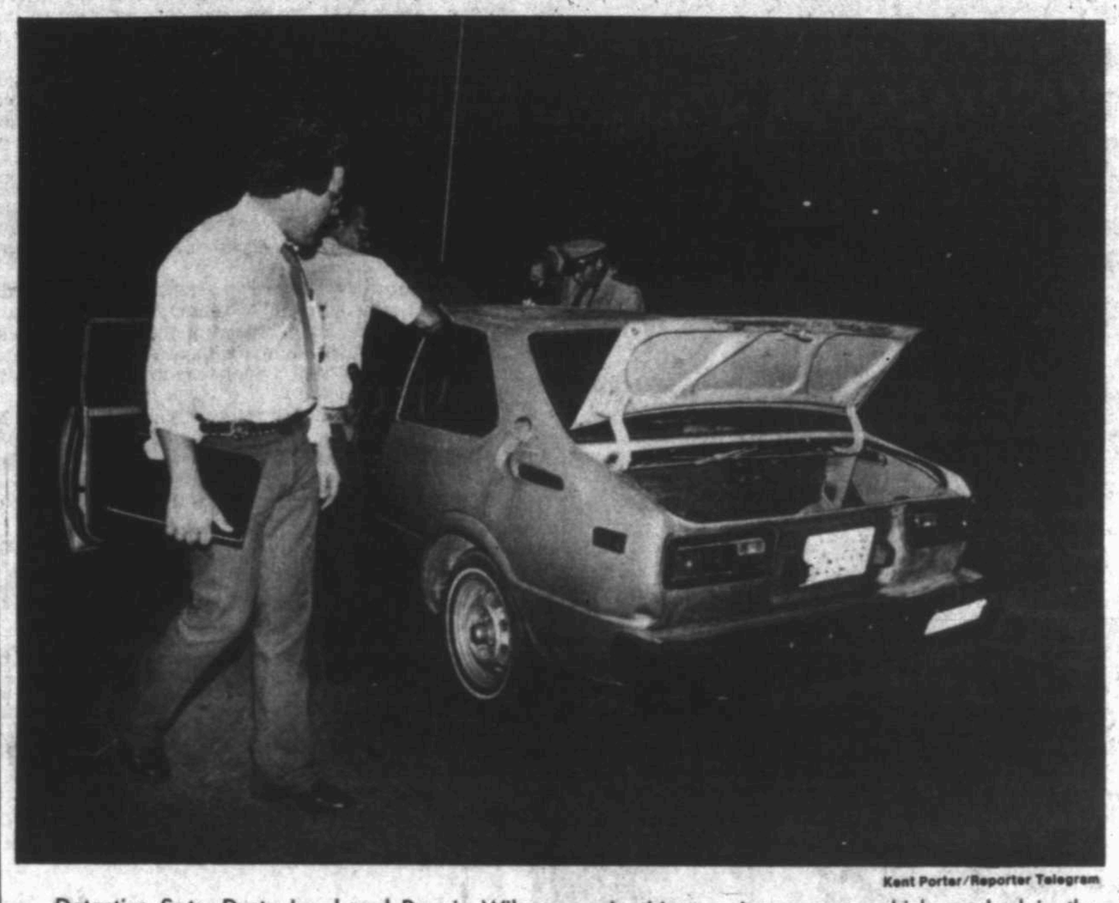

The U.S. officials said the MI-24s, once they are put into operation in the war against the Contra forces, could be decisive in the Sandinistas' efforts to defeat the insurgents.

According to the sources, the administration is particularly concerned about the intelligence gathering operation in Managua. They said the Soviets appear to be intent on establishing a capability in Nicaragua similar to that which they have set up in the Havana suburb of Lourdes in Cuba.

That installation is described by U.S. intelligence experts as "the most sophisticated Soviet spy base" outside the Warsaw Pact.

Detective Sgts. Dusty Land and Ronnie Wilson investigate the scene where the body of a 16-year-old Midlander was found stabbed to death early this morning near a vehicle parked in the 700 block of S. Big Spring.

DEATH

The struggle apparently broke out near the vehicle parked in a vacant lot, police reported.

A tire iron was found lying near the body, but police would neither confirm nor deny hether the victim used it as a weapon in his own defense.

Footprints also were found near the scene, but police refused to disclose whether they were those of the victim or the subject.

A motive has not yet been determined, according to the report. There are no suspects.

"IN 1982, the Democrats put together a unique coalition. I doubt seriously if they could duplicate it," said Angelo. "The Republican Party has reached a level of support that is different from any we've had. There is no reason to believe 1986 would be the same as 1982. In spite of that (the 1982 statewide losses), we gained at other levels of officeholders. And Clements got 300,000 more votes than he did in 1978."

Angelo contended the early interest in the 1986 races will be helping the Republican Party. "Normally, we're scraping around in November or December for candidates."

If Loeffler decides to take on White, one hurdle he will have to overcome is lack of name identification throughout the state. Although he is known in West Texas and his 21st District, he may not be recognized in the Dallas and Houston areas, where a large majority of the votes are concentrated.

Loeffler is known in central Texas, where his home of Hunt is located, according to Brown. "When it comes to congressmen in Texas, Loeffler is a mover and shaker. Jim Wright (D-Fort Worth) is an opportunist. Loeffler has as much name ID as any other congressman." He pointed out that Phil Gramm, who won the Senate race last year, would be a big supporter of Loeffler's. Also on his side would be former Sen. John Tower, for whom he worked, and Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock.

WHITE DOESN'T have the support he did in 1982, according to Brown, who cited "mistakes" the governor has made to upset the voters.

Of White's pledge to lower utility rates, Brown said the governor did replace the members of the Public Utility Commission but the rates today are higher. He also promised teachers salary increases and they haven't come in the amounts the teachers had wanted.

In visiting with some teacher groups in Austin recently, Brown said, he was told the teachers statewide are displeased and will "do all they can to get him out."

"White is a good campaigner, but he's not an administrator," Brown added.

Kent Hance, a Lubbock Democrat who went to Congress the same year as Loeffler, has indicated he will seek a statewide office in 1986. After losing the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat in 1984, Hance is back in Texas working for a law firm. He, however, denied this week that he is considering switching to the Republican Party.

With his philosophy and his votes, Hance would be more comfortable as a Republican, said Angelo. But Brown expects Hance to stay in the Democratic Party and run for attorney general.

For several years, Loeffler has talked of wanting to become Speaker of the House when and if the Republicans win a majority there. As Deputy Minority Whip, Loeffler is high on the list to be considered.

But the Midland source said the idea of running for governor was presented to Loeffler only recently, and he talked of bringing his children back to Texas to live. "If he stays in Congress another 10 years, his children will never have lived in Texas," said the man.

CBS bid 'uphill battle'

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — A multibillion-dollar takeover bid by a "confident, brash" Ted Turner faces an uphill battle because CBS has both the time and money to defend against the media maverick's unfriendly effort, analysts said.

The stock-swap plan announced Thursday is a complex package involving no cash and will be difficult to sell to CBS shareholders since its exact value is uncertain, the analysts added.

"It's a bewildering, confusing package. It's a challenge to investors, it's a challenge to analysts to figure out what it's worth," said Fred Anschel, who works for Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Another stumbling block is the lengthy procedure needed to obtain regulatory approval, which analysts say will discourage CBS stockholders from offering up their shares.

And the biggest obstacle to the offer may be the top-rated network's oft-expressed determination to remain independent.

Indicative of the deal's lukewarm reception was the performance of CBS stock on Wall Street after Turner announced his offer. It initially rose $5.25 a share but then retreated and ended the day at $106.12½, down $3.62½ from Wednesday's close on the New York Stock Exchange.

Turner Broadcasting's common stock was unchanged at $24 in over-the-counter trading.

Turner is offering a package of stocks, bonds and notes in his own Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting for each of CBS's 29.7 million shares outstanding.

Turner's Cable News Network valued those securities at $175 a share, which would make the whole deal worth about $5.2 billion. But one Wall Street analyst valued the offer as low as $120 a share, or about $3.6 billion.

CBS had little to say about the offer Thursday. Spokeswoman Anne Luzzatto said, "Once we have evaluated the material, CBS will inform its shareholders of the merits of Turner's proposal."

Shuttle lands safely after rain delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts, their homecoming delayed 98 minutes by rain, glided safely back to Earth today at the end of a bittersweet journey that astronaut-Sen. Jake Garn hailed as proof that "man is needed in space."

The 103-ton space plane blew one of its six tires as it rolled to a stop, but the astronauts were not aware of it and the rupture did not divert the craft from its center-line touchdown.

Fifty-five minutes after the landing, the crew left the shuttle for medical exams and showers. Garn walked unsteadily down the stairs, and waved and smiled weakly as he was helped into the astronauts' van.

During seven days in space the crew of six men and one woman logged many accomplishments and one big disappointment: the failure, despite a valiant effort and through no fault of their own, to revive the $85 million Syncom communications satellite.

Discovery, its final dash across central Florida heralded by sonic booms, dropped out of a clear sky and onto a 15,000-foot runway three miles from the launch pad it left a week ago and where shuttle Challenger is perched, 10 days from liftoff. Like the landing, Discovery's launch was delayed by rain.

With commander Karol Bobko at the controls, the shuttle touched down at 8:54 a.m. EST, swooping in from the south after making a series of wide circles above this spaceport. The ship had traveled 2.5 million miles.

"The Swat Team is home," said Mission Control, referring to the makeshift, flyswatter-like tools the astronauts used in an unsuccessful attempt to repair a satellite.

As the shuttle neared the end of its rollout, Mission Control told the astronauts, "I think you blew a right-hand outboard tire." Inspection later showed that it was an inboard tire that had blown, and television pictures showed it to be frayed.

Thousands of spectators at the landing strip and along nearby rivers and highways cheered the landing, the fifth here in 16 shuttle flights and fourth in succession.

An hour before touchdown, Bobko and pilot Don Williams fired braking rockets more than 200 miles above the Indian Ocean to to slow the shuttle's speed and start it on a supersonic dive through the atmosphere.

The astronauts were to have landed at 7:16 a.m., but rain clouds near the landing strip prompted Mission Control to instruct them to stay up one extra circuit of the globe. The clouds moved away and Discovery was told to come home.

Reagan, speaking to Discovery from the White House, told the crew it had "demonstrated a lot of ingenuity" in constructing makeshift tools, taking an unplanned space walk and flying to a rendezvous to try saving the powerless satellite launched from the ship's cargo bay Saturday.

Congressman Horton tells America: Mind your posture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers may not be able to legislate good posture, but it won't be for lack of an effort on the part of Rep. Frank Horton.

"All too often we have failed to take as seriously as we should the familiar, but all too easily dismissed, exhortation of every mother, father, grandparent and aunt and uncle: 'Sit up — mind your posture,'" says the New York Republican.

Horton has introduced a bill to promote "correct posture" throughout the nation. It is currently awaiting action before a House subcommittee.

His bill would not quite make it against the law to slouch. But it would clearly put both the Congress and the president on record against the bad habit.

His measure would designate May 1-7 as "National Correct Posture Week." It would also encourage President Reagan "to involve every American, through presidential proclamation, in getting back to basics in personal health care."

"It is entirely appropriate" for Congress to involve itself in such a matter, Horton said. He observed that physical fitness has been a national concern since the Kennedy administration.

He said his goal is for "a healthy, robust and self-confident citizenry." And you can't have that unless more people straighten up, Horton suggested.

"Of course, in any campaign for good posture, our focus must be on our youth," Horton said in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record. "The business of a strong body is not something obtained overnight. You have to start early and work at it."

Horton noted the effort already has the support of one interest group: the American Chiropractic Association.

Congressional budget writers have been doing much of their work behind closed doors thus far this year. Getting information on the latest developments hasn't always been easy.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., was less than illuminating when pressed for details by reporters as he emerged from a private negotiating session between Senate Republicans and White House officials.

"We're preparing a constitutional amendment changing the First Amendment to seal off all these corridors," he said facetiously.

"What's going on in there? Absolutely nothing to justify your waiting here more than 30 seconds," Specter said, departing.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., was no more helpful when asked — several days before the congressional Easter-Passover break — whether he expected progress on a budget compromise before the start of the holiday recess.

He feigned a blank look. "What holiday?" he asked.

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — After extracting promises for reform, the Pentagon has released General Electric Co. from a total ban on the receipt of new government contracts.

The decision was announced Thursday by Air Force Secretary Verne Orr. With one exception, Orr said the nation's fourth-largest defense contractor is free again to bid on and receive new contracts.

The lone exception involves GE's Space Systems Division. It was the performance of that division on a nuclear warhead contract that recently prompted a federal grand jury to return a fraud indictment against GE. Orr imposed the contract suspension on March 28, two days after that indictment.

According to company spokesman Jack Batty, GE's 1984 revenues totaled roughly $29 billion, of which about $5 billion was defense work. The Space Systems Division "represented less than 3 percent of total company sales," he added.

That would mean the division, which concentrates on producing satellite components and re-entry warhead systems for ballistic missiles, generated 1984 revenues on the order of $850 million.

Although the ban on receiving new contracts was imposed by the Defense Department, it applied to every agency of the executive branch. Orr's announcement thus came as a significant relief to GE.

"We are pleased that Secretary Orr has partially lifted the suspension," Batty said. "We hope to resolve the remaining matters — the legal case and the residual, partial suspension — as soon as possible."

In a statement announcing his decision, Orr cited improvements already made by GE as well as promises by the company to "strengthen its internal accounting and management policies and practices to prevent any further overcharges or improprieties on government contracts."

Those promises were secured from GE Chairman John F. Welch during a meeting on Monday, Orr added. He said GE had agreed to form an in-house Government Contract Compliance Review Board that will have the authority "to dismiss any employees who violate company contracts," and which must develop a system "to encourage GE employees to report any wrong-doing."

An ombudsman will also be appointed who will be responsible "for installing a hotline which will be widely publicized among GE employees," Orr said. In addition, company auditors must begin reporting to board directors who are not employees of the company, and GE must file special monthly progress reports with the Pentagon for the next year.

Orr said he had also received assurances from Welch that GE would dismiss any employees convicted of fraud or perjury, and that discussions were continuing "on the question of proper disciplinary action against employees in the Space Division."

"Although not indicted, some employees were in a position to know that the alteration of time cards was taking place, but took no action to halt it or bring it to management's attention," Orr said.

GE was indicted on March 26 by a Philadelphia grand jury on charges it defrauded the government of roughly $800,000 on a nuclear warhead contract, primarily through the use of bogus time cards.

Orr gave no indication when he might lift the continuing contract suspension against GE's Space Systems Division.

"The Air Force is seeking additional assurances from General Electric concerning specific corrective actions to be taken in the Space Systems Division," Orr said. "The suspension will remain in effect until the Air Force has had a chance to complete its review."

Surrounded by King County jail guards, Wai Chiu 'Tony' Ng is escorted to a Seattle courtroom Thursday. Ng was found innocent of murder in the 1983 Chinatown massacre of 13 people but was convicted of robbery.

Suspected salmonella cases swell to 9,400

Confirmed victims of the epidemic numbered 7,671 by late Wednesday, out of 9,489 cases reported, health officials said Thursday.Most of the cases were in Illinois, with victims also reported in Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan.

CHICAGO (AP) — Tests have virtually eliminated dairy workers as the source of the nation's second largest salmonella outbreak, which has hit nearly 7,700 people in six states, including an infant infected at birth, officials say.

Meanwhile, Illinois' top health official defended his agency Thursday against charges by two University of Illinois professors who criticized a two-week delay in testing the dairy workers.

And state House Speaker Michael Madigan called for legislative hearings into the state Public Health Department's handling of the outbreak, which was recognized March 29 and prompted the closing of Jewel Companies Inc.'s Hillfarm Dairy, the source of milk believed to have carried the infection.

Confirmed victims of the epidemic numbered 7,671 by late Wednesday, out of 9,489 cases reported, health officials said Thursday.Most of the cases were in Illinois, with victims als reported in Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan. Five deaths have been linked to the outbreak and nine others are under investigation, officials said.

The unidentified child who was infected at birth by its mother was in good condition Thursday night at Bronson Methodist Hospital in Kalamazoo, Mich., officials said. The mother had drunk milk sold at a Jewel food store.

"This is a rather unusual twist," said Sue Eddy, a field nursing supervisor for the Kalamazoo County Health Division. "We don't expect this sort of thing to happen."

The fifth salmonella-linked death was reported in Illinois, Will County Coroner Robert J. Tezak said.

Lauren A. Keefe, 24, of Mokena, died in Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet after being admitted for acute leukemia on April 8, Tezak said. Her death was attributed to leukemia, with salmonella listed as a secondary factor.

The outbreak's 46th lawsuit against Jewel was filed Thursday.

Dr. Robert Northrop, an associate professor of epidemiology at the University of Illinois, and Dr. Samuel Epstein, professor of environmental and occupational health sciences, criticized the health department for the two-week delay between the time the outbreak was identified and tests on dairy workers.

If early testing had turned up a worker with a salmonella strain identical to that in the milk, it could have provided a significant clue to the source of the contamination, Northrop said. Testing employees 15 days after the outbreak began, after thousands were infected, would not tell investigators much.

Jeremy Margolis, acting public health director, said early testing of employees was considered but that experts from the dairy industry and state and federal governments agreed "that where you have carrier contamination, you can expect its marks to be found in the facility."

"Virtually every square inch of employee space was swabbed for salmonella," Margolis said, but no trace was found. However, he said, "I won't even consider when I'll consider opening the dairy."

At least two deaths and 16,000 illnesses were reported in the nation's worst salmonella outbreak, which occurred in Riverside, Calif., in 1965.

Third defendant acquitted of murder

SEATTLE (AP) — A jury's verdict convicting Wai-Chiu "Tony" Ng of robbery but acquitting him of murder in the 1983 Chinatown massacre of 13 people was "completely irrational," his lawyer said.

Butdefense lawyer Mark Mestel said Thursday that he was pleased that Ng was cleared of murder.

The 28-year-old son of a Chinese restaurant owner was the third and final defendant in the bloody gambling club robbery that was Washington's worst mass murder.

If jurors accepted Ng's defense that he was forced with death threats into participating in the robbery, both sides said, they should logically have acquitted him of all charges.

"Duress is just as applicable to robbery as to murder," said Mestel, "There just are some internal inconsistencies (in the verdict), ... but I'm going to go home and be happy because my client was found not guilty of murder."

Jurors "didn't want to find him guilty of murder but they didn't want to let him go either," Mestel concluded.

Prosecutors said they were surprised by the verdict, but pleased with the robbery convictions.

After 13½ hours of deliberations over three days, the King County Superior Court jury convicted Ng of 13 counts of first-degree robbery and one count of second-degree assault in the wounding of the massacre's lone survivor, Wai Chin.

Sentencing was set for May 29. The maximum penalty for first-degree robbery is life in prison, with a mandatory five years. Second-degree assault also carries a mandatory five-year minimum.

Thirteen middle-age Chinese, 12 of them hog-tied, were executed with gunshots to the head.

Hungarian leaders concerned about economic turndown

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — This Soviet bloc entrepreneur — so-called because of its experiments in free-market economics — has been hit by a turndown. Some government leaders have warned of a rise in social tensions and a strain on Communist Party unity because of it.

The Hungarian party's congress in March — the most important policy session since 1980 — focused on the economy, and senior officials spoke with alarm about inflation, the chances for young people to earn a living wage, a squeeze on the elderly who live on fixed incomes and backward industries.

Karoly Grosz, a member of the party's Central Committee, told the congress that social tensions have increased because of economic stagnation.

"Fear and uncertainty about the future can be witnessed," he said.

Grosz, who is considered a possible successor to party leader Janos Kadar, added, "The risk of eventual political conflicts has to be undertaken."

"Political conflicts" in today's Hungary usually means internal party disagreement. Two major factions are the reform wing, which has directed economic development since the late 1960s, and those favoring a return to more centralized control.

In the last 15 years, state-run industries have been given a great degree of autonomy in an attempt to compete with the West. Private enterprise has been encouraged and the profit motive recognized.

Even the Soviet Union has shown interest in Hungary's economic course. The chief Soviet delegate to the congress, Politburo member Grigori V. Romanov, spoke of the "correctness" of Hungary's economic experimentation, despite the concerns expressed by the Hungarian officials themselves. He indicated that the Soviet Union was considering similar innovations.

Since Romanov's remarks, there have been top-level exchanges on economic coordination between Moscow and Budapest.

Some Hungarians have collected the symbols of Western affluence — new homes in the suburbs and luxury cars.

Many people earn extra money by moonlighting on a free-market basis. Consumer goods that were once a luxuries have become readily available for those who can afford them.

Private boutiques with the latest Western styles line fashionable Vaci Street. Less-exclusive stores are also well-stocked.

But years of artificially low consumer prices, the strong U.S. dollar, increasing energy costs, payments on a foreign debt of $4.1 billion and worldwide recession have had a destabilizing effect.

For the average Hungarian, the bubble burst with a string of price increases. The last one boosted postal rates by 80 percent, fuel costs by 25 percent to 30 percent and dairy product prices by 29 percent.

Another feather

The fact Midland was ranked only behind Austin, San Antonio and Dallas in a new study ranking the 52 largest Texas cities, in terms of quality of life, will probably shock a number of Texans. After all, when one unfamiliar with the Tall City thinks of Midland, about all that may come to mind is oil, duststorms, blazing heat and wide open spaces.

We're not going to deny any of it. It's all present here — some of it notably so.

But there is another side of Midland few infrequent visitors ever see. That doesn't mean it doesn't exist because it truly does. The surveyors for the University of Texas at Arlington's Institute of Urban Studies, who performed the study, recognized that quality. The results of the study bear that out.

Quality of life isn't simple to measure, primarily because the yardstick used can vary from individual to individual. One person may believe the most important "selling point" for a community is its economic opportunities. For others it may be political makeup, cultural amenities or recreational outlets.

All those categories — and several more — were included in the UTA survey. Richard Cole, dean of UTA's Institute of Urban Studies, noted that while Midland did not place number one in any of the categories, the city did well in several and "when you added it all up it did real well."

The results aren't really a surprise to anyone who's lived in Midland for any length of time. Those residents — along with long-time Midlanders — share an unquestioned respect for the community's "plusses." In many instances, those advantages aren't obvious to a visitor or casual sight-seer. For example, there is Midland's remarkable downtown business district — reminiscent of Dallas or other centers of banking and business. There's business in Midland that can't be found in a city of comparable size in the state, and even exceeding some larger cities. And there's Midland Community Theatre and the Midland-Odessa Symphony, the city's remarkable Republican political base and ....

We could go on and on because, and this saying may be a little corny but is still applicable, in Midland the sky's the limit. There's more truth than fantasy in that little citywide motto and more than a few Midlanders who would gladly lend their success stories to Midland's acclaim.

This city has established itself as a leader in the state and in the nation in more ways than one. Those statistics have been cited by us and by others time and time again. We'll not repeat them at this time.

But they do all give credibility to the Midland ranking in the UTA survey. It wasn't a surprise but an achievement. Now Midland only needs a bigger hat — to help support this latest in a long line of feathers of acclaim.

Principle gone wrong

President Reagan says that he wants to "look to the future" and elevate the "spirit of reconciliation" when he journeys to West Germany next month. It's for this reason that he turned down Chancellor Helmut Kohl's invitation to visit the site of the Dachau extermination camp, where tens of thousands were mercilessly put to death during the Nazi era, but agreed to offer respects at the Bitburg military cemetery, where German dead from two world wars are interred. To give prominence to the spirit of reconciliation four decades after the defeat of Nazi Germany is a worthy principle. To do so in a context that smacks of gross insensitivity is another matter.

Statecraft is properly conducted with due regard for symbols as well as close attention to substance, which is precisely why Reagan decided on a gesture of homage to the German war dead. The message that it is meant to convey is that the past is past, that the conflict and bitterness of earlier times have given way to friendship to alliance. Certainly there's nothing wrong with sending such a signal. It is the context in which it will be given that has prompted first surprise and then anger in this country.

Bitburg was a staging area for German tanks thrown into the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944, the climactic effort conceived by Hitler to achieve a stalemate against Allied forces in the fighting on the Western front. That engagement is remembered as the greatest and most costly land battle fought by American troops in World War II. It is remembered as well for the murder by German forces of more than 200 American prisoners of war at Malmedy, and the cold-blooded killing of scores of Belgian civilians in the battle zone. Many of those involved in the Malmedy massacre case were never identified. Some were killed in later fighting. It is not inconceivable that some are buried in the Bitburg cemetery. A more appropriate site for a presidential wreath-laying ceremony could have been chosen.

The White House, responding to the public outcry over Reagan's plans, is hastily moving to revise the presidential itinerary. A visit to Bitburg apparently remains on, but in addition the president probably will do something to pay tribute to Holocaust victims. People who know Reagan say that there is no doubt of his compassion for all those who suffered in the Holocaust. Certainly, too, the president did not deliberately set out to offend American war veterans and others in his effort to signal reconciliation with West Germany. But, calculatedly or not, offense has been given — the product, it can only be assumed, of White House staff work that has been egregiously and incontestably indifferent to what a decent regard for public opinion requires.

Taxing 'fairy tale' coming true

WASHINGTON — Having maneuvered presidential approval of Social Security cutbacks that campaigner Ronald Reagan vowed he never would permit, budget director David Stockman last weekend dropped the other shoe: "whopping" and "staggering" tax increases when Congress rejects his austerity program.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

That is surely neither President Reagan's nor chief of staff Donald T. Regan's policy. But they now confront the tax alternative after acquiescing in Stockman's budget. Indeed, there is reason to suspect this has been the OMB chief's secret agenda all along.

Thus, agreeing to the White House-Senate Republican "compromise" budget is Don Regan's first blooper in his virtuoso White House performance. While praised by official spokesmen, it is privately described as a "disaster" by some of Regan's subordinates.

Once again, Republicans have managed the worst of several worlds. The "compromise" budget, while likely to fail in the Senate, is a goner in the House. But the president has put the mark of Cain on his party by squeezing the elderly just as Walter F. Mondale predicted. Reagan also gave the tax-increasers of both parties new life.

Just that scenario was predicted last summer by Republican congressmen who lunched with Stockman. Promising one last try to cut expenditures, he predicted failure followed by a "grand coalition" to raise taxes. When we told Stockman of this scenario, he called it "a fairy tale."

Indeed, with the arrival of Don Regan and Pat Buchanan at the White House, chances for a tax increase seemed evermore remote. Even Stockman, breakfasting with reporters Feb. 13, declared tax hikes out of the question. But by the time he addressed the National Press Club March 29, he was calling for eventual tax increases — "sooner or later" — in the absence of deep spending cuts.

Stockman then weighed in with Regan to press for the Senate budget, breaking the president's campaign promise. White House aides deny that the chief of staff made the decision that was the president's. But Reagan was given the Stockman-framed alternatives of either a budget bust-up or Social Security crackdown. He also was told, incorrectly, that limiting COLAs (cost of living allowances) did not break his word.

The president's hurried support of a politically-unviable proposal appalled Republican politicians, including White House aides who had not been consulted. "I think Republicans should undergo a frontal lobotomy to avoid mentioning the words 'Social Security,'" a White House insider told us.

Democrats were overjoyed. Mondale and Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York trumpeted Reagan's breech of faith on Social Security and predicted it would be followed by the breaking of the tax increase pledge, thereby vindicating Mondale in full.

When Stockman appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" last Sunday, the "sooner or later" of two weeks earlier had become "sooner." If the unpassable budget did not pass, he said, "the alternative is a whopping big tax increase." A few minutes later, he was even more insistent: "If we don't have these reductions, we're going to have to have staggering increases in taxes ...."

Stockman is telling Democrats that if they do not pass an unpopular budget, they will face the tax program Mondale wanted all along. Junior Democrats on the House Budget Committee talk about a $20 billion tax boost. House Majority Leader Jim Wright and AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland insist "tax reform" should be a tax increase. Stockman's rationale is that continued deficits doom the recovery, a theme he has sounded throughout his tenure at OMB. His Jeremiad two years ago warning of calamity has been followed by sustained economic recovery.

That recovery was forecast with uncanny precision by H.C. Wainwright & Co. With that track record, the Boston-based firm last week told clients that 1985 growth would be only 2.4 percent (thanks to Federal Reserve tight money) but would surpass 5 percent in 1986. But Wainwright analysts fear a Stockman-style tax increase could abort the recovery. The president and Don Regan are intent on avoiding that, but buying Stockman's budget did not make their task easier.

Fed worker efficiency needs help

WASHINGTON — As the president and Congress continue to seek ways of paring the deficit, the efficiency of federal civilian employees deserves stern review.

The president's now-defunct plan to cut government salaries by 5 percent would have touched only the tip of the iceberg, providing only minimal savings and not addressing the real issue: the shortcomings of federal employee compensation.

Both the Carter and Reagan administrations have analyzed factors affecting public-sector efficiency and motivation.

The recent Grace Commission Report cited literally thousands of areas where government efficiency may be improved.

A commission I chaired for President Carter in 1978 studied potential improvements in compensation for the military.

These studies and other examinations have produced similar alarming conclusions on the personnel practices of the federal government. Among these:

— Civil Service retirement programs are weighted too heavily on deferred compensation, to the detriment of current salaries.

— The proportion of middle- and upper-level managers in the federal government is nearly three times that of the private sector.

— Ironically, almost half of the highest federal executives are underpaid by 50 percent in comparison with peers in private industry. This is a leading cause of "brain drain" among senior federal employees.

The emphasis on retirement benefits over current compensation is supported by the fact that the cost of Civil Service retirement is 29 percent of the cost of payroll, as compared with 14 percent in the private sector.

If the Civil Service retirement program were funded as are private sector retirement plans, the federal retirement cost would rise to 85 percent of payroll. Further, Civil Service retirement benefits are treble that of the private sector.

Does this matter?

It matters at three levels.

First, at the entry level, the government has trouble attracting and retaining the most promising young technical and other specialized employees.

I learned, for example, that at one point not too long ago one vital department had 675 entry-level engineering jobs unfilled — half its recruiting complement.

Young employees incur expenses that must be paid on a current basis. As a banker, I'll attest that creditors generally won't wait patiently for 20 years before they are paid. Young people need a boost in income today. Often they find it by opting for jobs in the private sector.

Second, at the mid-career level many federal employees feel "locked in" to a position, more or less "serving time" until they can collect retirement benefits.

From a federal employee's viewpoint, the option to leave government service is financially imprudent after around 10 years of service because of the extensive retirement benefits that would be lost.

When an employee makes that career decision, his morale and productivity can nose dive. This worker's poor morale often has an equally harmful effect on co-workers.

Third, among seasoned employees, there is a tendency to retire young. Average retirement age in the Civil Service is 55, versus 63 in the private sector. Only 10 percent of Civil Service personnel eligible to retire before 60 remain at work.

With pay below the private-sector level and generous retirement benefits indexed to inflation accrued, the current federal-compensation structure encourages early retirement.

The result is knowledgeable career employees' retiring early to capture attractive retirement benefits over the maximum number or years — an additional "brain-drain."

The problems with federal-compensation structuré are compounded by a top-heavy management.

I was surprised to learn that a full 72 percent of the government's management personnel are graded at GS11 or above. Only 28 percent of the managers are graded GS5 through GS10.

The fault for all of these compounding problems does not lie on the shoulders of any particular agency or administration. Rather, the overall governmental decision-making process encourages glossing over difficult issues in lieu of addressing them directly.

This flaw has resulted in a series of "quick fixes" in place of a permanent, long-term solution. I propose that we need to:

— Improve current pay relative to retirement benefits.

— Make pay and benefits competitive with private-sector markets.

— Pare the number of Civil Service managers.

— Appraise the cost-benefit at all levels of the service.

These items will alleviate the loss of talented executives to private industry, restore a pyramid managerial structure, raise morale among all levels of federal employees and bring a greater efficiency to the Civil Service.

Oil men facing fight

On a recent trip to Washington I was surprised at an article appearing in the Washington Post on April 2 entitled "Why the GOP Can Talk Tax Reform." Embodied in the article was the following statement:

"At least two factors are working to encourage Reagan administration support of tax reform legislation.

"The first is the declining political and economic strength of the tax sensitive independent oil industry which in 1980 was a critical source of major donor contribution to the Republican National Committee and to conservative Republican House and Senate candidates.

"The second is the collapse of the united front of the business community. Firmly behind the corporate tax cuts in the 1981 tax bill, the business lobbying community is now fragmented by competing tax priorities: reduction in the top rate, depreciation schedules, capital gains and research credits, a split making tax simplification politically possible."

Should these allegations from the Washington Post be true, then I believe, the independent oil operators should show that we are not declining in our political and economic strength. Supporters of the GOP need to know the interest and needs for this industry both in national security and capital formation. In meetings with six different congressmen, four Democrats and two Republicans, our committee was told the same thing — we would get no more than comes out of the administration's tax reform policy in either the House or the Senate. This means we need to make the administration aware, both at the President's level and at the Treasury's level, of our needs as surely we will be cut in both the House and the Senate.

Again yesterday our senior senator, Lloyd Bentsen, echoed the message we received in Washington, saying that we needed to use all of our influence with the administration and I urge each of you to write, telegram, communicate with both the office of the President and the office of the Treasury to be heard in Washington.

Towing angers city visitor

In March, on a visit to Midland Memorial Hospital to visit a very sick sister (who is a cancer patient), I was unable to locate a parking spot in the hospital lot. A car immediately in front of me had also been searching with no results.

Being from out of state, I followed this person to see where he parked, and parked my car alongside his on Garfield Street. I visited my ailing sister for about an hour and left to run some errands for her. When I reached the parking area my car was gone. I called the police to report my car stolen and, later, they told me the car had been towed away, which surprised me very much.

You see, this was supposedly a doctor's parking area. However, a lady and I walked to the parking area and found there were no signs of any kind telling me it was a private parking area. The doctor does have a private parking area off the street that was in the process of being repaired.

I ask you and your readers how an out of state visitor is to know not to park unless there are signs stating that fact. I purchased a camera and took pictures of the area which plainly show no signs against on-street parking in that area.

A lawsuit is in the process of being filed against the doctor for the charges incurred, and reimbursement of my funds. I feel a written apology, from the doctor responsible for this action, is in order.

I am very disappointed in Midland because of this very unfriendly act. If this is the treatment out of state visitors receive, I will be very hesitant to use any facility or shop in Midland again.

Couldn't the doctor have simply placed a warning note on my car? I would not have parked there if signs or a notification of some sort had been posted.

Women foreign service officers allege sexism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women foreign service officers, in a nine-year-old lawsuit against the State Department that is about to go to trial, contend they get less prestigious jobs and fewer promotions than men.

Specifically, the women say they are disproportionately assigned to consular work — such as issuing visas and helping U.S. travelers abroad — rather than to the other three areas of specialization in the foreign service: political, economic and administrative. In State Department jargon, these areas are referred to as "cones."

In its reply, the department acknowledged that "women appear to be disproportionately assigned to the consular cone and underassigned to the political cone."

"However, the difference between male and female conal assignment is explained by differences in education among all entering officers, examination test scores ... and cone requested ...," the department said in rejecting the women's claim of bias.

The trial in the class action suit is due to begin May 6 in U.S. District Court and is expected to take a couple weeks at least.

The suit alleged that the department discriminates against women in promotions, assignments, awards, performance evaluations and grades at which they were hired.

In a telephone interview, one of the plaintiffs' lawyers, Karen H. Edgecombe, said there was no explicit allegation that consular work was considered "women's work." Nevertheless, she added:

"I think the implication is that consular work is seen as something like social work, and that women are better at counseling people trying to get into the United States and at dealing on a one-to-one basis with people."

In a pre-trial brief filed recently, the women maintained that there was both intentional discrimination as well as a discriminatory impact resulting from policies that may not, in themselves, be sexist.

The brief charged that "consular affairs work has historically been viewed as inferior to the 'diplomatic' work of political and economic affairs. The cone is perceived as having less status or prestige and, consequently, morale among consular officers is lower than in other cones."

It added, "The political cone has traditionally been viewed as the road to the top."

Consular work may also include taking testimony for U.S. courts and dealing with U.S. citizens imprisoned abroad, while political officers analyze and report on political matters, maintain contact with foreign political leaders and negotiate agreements.

Economic officers deal with trade, investment and monetary issues, and administrative officers perform support work at U.S. missions in such areas as budget, personnel, security and communications.

Ms. Edgecombe disputed the State Department's contention that the difference between the way men and women foreign service officers are treated could be explained by education.

Maintaining it was "groundless" to assert that consular work was less prestigious, the department contended that consular officers were promoted more frequently than political or economic officers.

"Consular work is a critically important aspect of the foreign service," the department said.

The plaintiffs said that in 1983, only 14 percent of consular jobs were at the senior level, compared with 41 percent of economic jobs and 37 percent of political jobs.

The suit contended women receive fewer assignments to positions that are believed to help boost a foreign service officer's career. For instance, the suit said women "have historically been underrepresented" in positions as deputy chiefs of mission.

But the department argued, "There is no statistically significant disparity in the promotion system — women FSOs (Foreign Service Officers) do as well as their male counterparts throughout the promotion process, at all levels, when one properly analyzes those persons eligible for promotion."

The department said that "since at least the early 1970s, the Department of State has undertaken concerted efforts to ensure equal employment opportunity for all its employees, to increase the representation of women and minorities at all levels in its foreign and civil service work forces and enhance their status."

It said women were moving up through the ranks and that "over the next few years" the number of women in senior ranks will increase.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight: fair and cooler with lows mid 50s. Wind south 10 to 20 mph. Saturday: sunny and warm again with highs mid 80s. Wind southwest 15 to 25 mph with lake wind advisories.

Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight: decreasing cloudiness and a little cooler. Lows near 60. Wind south 10 to 15 mph. Saturday: sunny and warm again with highs mid 80s. Wind south 15 to 25 mph with lake wind advisories.

Pleasant weekend anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

A pleasant weekend is in store for Midlanders, with sunny skies and warm temperatures continuing, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Tonight will be fair and cooler with a low in the mid-50s and southerly winds at 10 to 20 mph. The high for Saturday is expected to be in the mid-80s with southwesterly winds at 15 to 25 mph.

The record high for April 18 was 96 degrees, set in 1948. A record low of 37 degrees was recorded in 1953.

STATE

Showers and isolated thunderstorms covered the western sections of the Texas Panhandle early this morning in response to a deepening surface low located over southeastern Colorado.

This low pressure system was creating south winds over most of Texas. These winds were pulling moisture up from the gulf and over the state resulting in widespread cloud cover. Only the northeast corner and far West Texas were cloud-free.

Wind speeds over the state were averaging 15 to 25 mph over West Texas but only 10 to 20 everywhere else.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. were generally in the 60s although the southern tip of texas was still sitting in the 70s. The temperatures overnight ranged from 58 at el paso to 75 at brownsville.

The forecast for today called for widely scattered thunderstorms over the northwestern sections of the state. The remainder of the state expected partly cloudy to mostly cloudy skies and warm temperatures.

NATION

Snow piled up in Pacific Coast mountain passes and headed for the Rockies, thunderstorms dumped hail in Michigan and early morning temperatures promised a heat wave today from the Plains to the Atlantic Coast.

Rain with up to 8 inches of snow expected at higher elevations along the central Pacific Coast prompted travelers' advisories today for the Cascades, Siskiyous and northeast mountains of Oregon.

Snow-prompted travelers' advisories also were issued for the northeast mountains and northern Sierra Nevadas of California and the Lake Tahoe Basin.

Rebs looking for victory in Volpe's last lap

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee head track coach Sam Volpe will take his 24th and last walk around a District 4-5A track Saturday and he's hoping he can carry on that walk a championship trophy under one arm.

Volpe announced his retirement prior to the 1985 track season, saying, "This is it. The last time around. I've had a lot of fun in my 24 years at Lee, but it's time for someone else to have some fun."

His 1985 Rebels have a good shot at nailing down a 4-5A track title Saturday and it would be a good way to help Volpe end his career at Lee. If the Rebels can win the team championship, it will be Volpe's fifth district title.

OF COURSE, Volpe and his Rebs still have Region I and state meets on the horizon, but Saturday will be his last in the 4-5A league.

Ironically, Volpe's last district track meet comes on the campus of Abilene Christian Univiersity where it all started for him.

He ran track at ACU before taking the head track job at Liberty in 1952. That lasted one year before he moved to Midland and Sam Houston elementary as a teacher in 1953. In 1954, he moved to the the track at the junior high level at San Jacinto and then went to Alamo in 1957.

He took over the reigns of the Lee track program in September of 1961 when the school opened. After four track titles, two cross country championships and a list of five state champions, Volpe is giving up track.

But won't he miss it?

"I'll miss the competition and the track meets. There is no question about that, but I don't think I will miss the workouts and practice. I won't miss the wondering if your team is prepared to run — or the windy and cold days," said Volpe.

"I've eaten a lot of dry hamburgers over the past 24 years. I think that's one thing I'll remember. Dry meat and bread and the way the kids would complain about it. There are little moments like that you don't forget."

When asked about things he would remember most, he replied, "I think everyone remembers what happened last — and that's Saturday in Abilene. I'm sure I'll remember that, regardless of how it turns out. But the only real highlight of my life is when I met my wife Marilyn."

Kent Porter/Reporter-Telegram

Sam Volpe, the only head track coach Midland Lee has known, discusses strategy with his junior varsity 400-meter relay team. Volpe is stepping down from the Rebel helm at the end of this, his 24th season.

VOLPE CONSIDERS his 1979 team to be the best Rebel squad he has had. That team scored over 150 points in the district meet while qualifying six individuals and two relays for the Region I meet.

In 1980, Lee was the first district team to win nine of 15 events, but did not win the title. Lee qualified seven individuals and two relays to the Region I meet that year, the Rebels' record haul.

However, this 1985 edition may have to be listed very high after Saturday. There is a possibility Saturday that seven individuals and two relays will qualify for the Region I meet. So, if the last thing that happened is to be remembered, 1985 could be a very memorable year for Volpe.

Volpe says that the Canyon Reef Relays in Snyder somewhere in the 1960s was the coldest track meet he has endured. "I mean it was windy and cold and up on a hill. It's the most miserable meet I've ever been to."

Volpe says he's still kidded about a meet in Fort Stockton in 1977. "A real wet snow fell that year on the second day of the Comanche Relays. A lot of the teams pulled out, but Lee stayed and competed. A kid who ran for San Angelo, who is now a coach, told me just the other day that he would never forgive me for staying at that meet.

"He told me, 'Ken Fannin (then San Angelo track coach) said if Lee stays and runs, we stay and run.' Fannin wanted to run against Lee and they did stay. There weren't many teams to run that day, but Lee and San Angelo were two of them."

LEE HAS been a competitive track force for more than a decade, but Volpe remembers that it wasn't always easy. "It was really tough in the '60s. It was hard to compete with a new school in this league. I guess I'm lucky that I survived 24 years after the start we had."

But in the '70s and '80s, Lee has been a 4-5A power. Volpe has also experienced several second place finishes, and one in particular stands out. Lee lost the district title by one point to Odessa Permian at Memorial Stadium. A loss like that is compounded when it comes at home.

Volpe says he has no idea how many Lee athletes over the years have won district championships in individuals events, or how may Region I and state qualifiers. "I really don't know the figures. It would probably take me a while to figure all that out and I'm really not inclined to do that. I want to be free now and do some things that I want to do. I may paint a house, watch a little basketball on TV or just sit by the fireplace with Marilyn."

However, Volpe can name his five state champs. They are miler Jeffery Earl, 4:20.2, 1962; high jumper Kenny Cauble, 6-8, 1966; high jumper Brian Huckabee, 6-8, 1973; vaulter Bill Curnow, 15-9, a national best in 1971; and shot putter Milton Jones, 1974.

"You remember the good ones, there is no question about that," said Volpe. "But many of the others, who did things that they just weren't capable of doing, stick in your mind, too.

"I had David Piccolo on the team and he did more with less ability than anyone I can think of. He had that something that the great athletes have. I don't know what you call it — I guess its determination, heart and desire."

In the 1979 district meet in Big Spring, Piccolo, for a reason now forgotten, was not allowed to run in a preliminary heat of the 300 hurdles. Volpe went to bat for Piccolo and the heat was re-run, causing the ire of some other distirct coaches who didn't feel it was right to make their athletes run again. The sophomore Piccolo had no chance of qualifying in that meet. Two years later, Piccolo was the district 300 hurdle champion.

ONE OF the disappointments that Volpe has endured is the fact that Lee is the only district track team that still works out on a dirt track.

"It has been tough working on that track at Lee, but I wouldn't be a bit jealous if they decided one day to put one in at Lee after I'm gone. The kids deserve it."

Despite the 24 years of service, Volpe will not win the longevity war at Lee. Head basketball coach Paul Steuckler and head baseball coach Ernie Johnson both came to Lee with Volpe in 1961. Both say they will be back next year and beyond.

Johnson, whose baseball Rebels put the clamps on a playoff berth this week, joked, "I would like to stay until at least 1990, but that is if I can pass a teacher's compentency test."

Stueckler's basketball team won the 4-5A title in Feburary. "I never intended to stay 24 years, but I'm still here. You never know how things are going to work out."

Now Volpe goes after a league crown Saturday, which would make it a clean sweep for the three coaches who owned the first keys at Lee.

Lee assistant track coach Eddie Wolski said, "I love watching Sam during a meet. When things get close and it looks like we have any kind of chance at winning a meet, his motor goes in high gear. He's been a great coach for Robert E. Lee High School. It would be really sweet if we could bring home that championship next Saturday for Sam."

Tall City gears for record haul

4-5A Track

ABILENE — The one place you can't add numbers from the math book and come up with the right answer is at the annual District 4-5A track meet. Still, if pre-district performances hold, the Tall City could be on its way to winning 17 individual and four relay berths for the Region I meet in Lubbock in two weeks.

That bold predicition will all take shape here Saturday at the Abilene Christian University oval where the top two finishers from each event will vault into Lubbock's regional competition. It's at Lubbock where state berths can be earned for Austin's mid-May run.

The District 4-5A meet gets underway at noon Saturday with field event finals. Running preliminaries will follow and the finals will be under the lights at 7:30 p.m. It will be a long day which is expected to finally end around 9:30 p.m.

BUT THE payoff is big for the top two finishers and Midland should fare well in that battle.

If season best performances hold and there are no major surprises, it looks like the Midland Lee boys could earn seven individual and two relay berths. Midland High could earn two individual spots while both the girls of Lee and MHS could find region berths for four individuals and one relay each.

If that's the case, the Tall City will be sending a large armada to Lubbock. But warning should be cited. Some of these predicitions are close at best. There are others who could even add to that figure with a little improvement. But the one thing you can count on is that this 4-5A meet rarely runs to form. It's where stars are born and former stars burn.

Lee's Walter Jones could be on a course to qualify in four events, heading the Midland assault. He seems to be a shoe-in lock on the 100 and 200 meters. His 10.31 in the 100 is by far the best and his 21.03 ranks just behind Permian's Thom Lish, who has a 21.00. All those times are Top 5 state ranked marks. Either way he should be in the top two. The trouble spot is the long jump where San Angelo's Willie Blakey is favored with a 23-10½ this year while Jones owns a 22-9¾, but Permian Lish is over 22-feet also and is a threat to Jones.

Gators leave Angels in dust cloud

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

The Midland Angels are determined to weather the storm, be it swirling dust and high winds, or a rocky 3-7 Texas League start.

Manager Joe Maddon and his entourage are willing to eat a little dust, like the 11-6 pasting by Beaumont Thursday, and wait for the good things they are certain will happen, rather than push the panic button after just 10 games.

"We're not running on all cylinders right now," Maddon said. "We had base runners on all night long, and we had the right people at the plate. We're not getting stuck with the wrong people up there. Some guys just aren't producing like they can.

"But I know every one of these guys can do the job and we're not giving up on any of them."

AGAINST THE Golden Gators, who left town with a 3-2 edge in the five-game set, little good did happen for the Angels, practically none of it in front of more than 2,000 fans who braved the baseball's season's first dust storm at 'Pack the Park" night. The crowd's biggest response came from a bench-clearing brawl in the bottom of the fifth inning.

But by that time, Midland found itself in an 8-1 hole that it never could dig out of.

The Gators, now 4-5, capitalized on a misplayed, wind-driven fly ball by Gary Green to leftfielder Greg Key that would've ended the second inning. But Key couldn't find the handle and designated hitter Frank Castro drove home Green and Tom Brassil in front of him with a single to take a 2-0 lead.

Shane Mack, the Padres No. 1 pick in the 1984 draft and the Beaumont centerfielder, manufactured a run on a single, a bobbled pickoff throw, a sacrifice and a passed ball in the third for a 3-0 Gator lead.

In the fourth, Finch fell apart allowing hits to the first four hitters before Scott Suehr came on. Brassil and Castro each singled in a run and Mark Wasinger pushed across a run with a suicide squeeze. Two more runs crossed on a two-out error by second baseman Juan Cruz.

IN ALL, the Angels committed five errors allowing six unearned runs to cross the plate.

Finch bore the brunt of the Angel errors, permitting seven runs, just three earned. Mark Poston, 2-0, earned the win with three innings of middle relief.

"Our fielding goes from horrible to remarkable, we need to gain some kind of consistency that way," Maddon admitted. "But there's no excuse for it. As the game progresses, those become really big plays psychologically. With the wind and the conditions out there, fighting back from 11-3 is a lot different than seven or eight to three."

Midland certainly had the chances to match the Beaumont run total leaving a total of 12 runners on base at least one in every inning but the seventh.

In the fifth, just one of many aborted Angel rallies, Key found himself in a rundown between second and third after Devon White missed a bunt. Key, who was out easily, ended up on top of Beaumont third baseman Wasinger about 15 feet short of the bag.

AS WASINGER used his feet to remove Key from on top of him, tempers flared and fists were thrown. So were Key and Gator catcher Benito Santiago, both out of the ball game for their part in the melee.

Midland Angels headed back to school

From Staff Reports

Manager Joe Maddon and some of his Midland Angels were scheduled to go back to school at 1 p.m. today, but it's almost assured they will receive high marks this time around.

Maddon recently made plans to bring two or three of his players to visit the second grade class of Mary Ann Hale at Santa Rita elementary.

The visit came about when Hale's class began reading daily the Midland Reporter-Telegram as a classroom project.

"Last Sunday the Reporter-Telegram ran the pictures of all the Angels and each student chose a player and wrote him a letter," said Hale. "The kids really enjoy reading about the Angels and they've had a lot to read about this week with all the game stories and editorials.

"I called the Angels and Coach Maddon said he would bring a few of the Angels for a visit. Our kids are thrilled to death about the Angels coming to our school."

North Stars shine in rally

Stanley Cup Playoffs

Associated Press

Down 3-0, the Minnesota North Stars were in the perfect position to fold up their act, just as they had done many times during the National Hockey League season. Instead, they came alive just as they were being counted out.

The North Stars won the Norris Division last year but were a dismal fourth this season with a 25-43-12 record. A slew of injuries and indifferent performances by the healthy players were the main cause of the team's fall.

But the North Stars are vindicating themselves for their horrid regular season. They swept first-place St. Louis in the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs and stormed back from that 3-0 deficit to hand the Chicago Black Hawks an 8-5 whipping Thursday night. That gave Minnesota a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven divisional final.

"I think the Hawks took it for granted that when we were down 3-0, it would be a cakewalk," said North Stars Coach Glen Sonmor."But after we got those two quick goals (in the first period), we knew the shoe was on the other foot. We not only outfought them and outskated them, but we beat them to the puck."

Rookie Ed Olczyk, defenseman Doug Wilson and Tom Lysiak beat goalie Gilles Meloche in the opening 5:42 of play at Chicago and the rout appeared to be on. But Dennis Maruk and Willi Plett replied in the next 1:45 to close the Hawks' lead to 3-2.

Then Brian Bellows laid out Chicago's Keith Brown with a crushing check which freed Tony McKegney on a breakaway. McKegney beat goalie Murray Bannerman to tie the contest at 7:40 of the second session.

"It was gratifying to see Brian work so hard," Plett said. "After the St. Louis series, I kind of took Brian and Steve Payne under my wing and told them when they play the Hawks to be a little more physical and muck it up a little.

"The check that Bellows put into Brown ignited our team."

Minnesota scored three goals in the next 6:39 to take control of the game and Gilles Meloche held off the Hawks with 42 saves.

"This was a team effort," said captain Craig Hartsburg. "When a lot of players, including myself, were out of the lineup (during the season), the team floundered."

Nordiques 2, Canadiens 1

At Montreal, the Nordiques' only American put in a shot from the right-wing boards that Canadiens' goaltender Steve Penney couldn't get his glove on at 12:23 of overtime. The Nordiques, who finished three points behind first-place Montreal in the Adams this season, were 1-6-1 against the Canadiens during the season.

"I was trying to stay wide on the play, Michel Goulet got me the puck and I got rid of it quickly," said Kumpel, a 1984 U.S. Olympian. "I knew the defenseman was coming up on me, so I just shot, looked up and it was in."

Brent Ashton had Quebec's other goal, while Lucien DeB-lois scored for Montreal.

"I think both teams were kind of flat, there wasn't the intensity there usually is," said Montreal forward Mats Naslund. "The only reason I can see is that we scored that late goal the other night (in Game 5 of the first round to beat Boston) and they (the Nordiques) had to come back also (in Game 5 against Buffalo).

"I don't think we were back to normal."

Oilers 4, Jets 2

At Edmonton, Paul Coffey's shot bounced into the net off Winnipeg defenseman Dave Babych's skate six minutes into the third period, then Wayne Gretzky added an empty-net goal for the Stanley Cup champions. The Oilers have won seven consecutive playoff games against Winnipeg, which was missing injured stars Dale Hawerchuk and goalie Brian Hayward.

Gretzky scored his first playoff goal and had two assists for Edmonton, which also got goals from Mark Napier and Jari Kurri.The Jets kept pace through two periods with goals from Bengt Lundholm while they were shorthanded, and Paul MacLean.

Only 16,236 fans attended, nearly 1,300 short of a sellout and one of the smallest crowds in Edmonton's NHL playoff history.

Flyers 3, Islanders 0

The visiting Islanders appeared listless after their historic comeback in the opening series, beating Washington in five games after dropping the first two. Rick Tocchet contributed a goal and an assist and Brian Propp set up two goals for the Flyers, overall points leaders during the season.

Tim Kerr and Ron Sutter also scored for the Flyers and Lindbergh blocked 22 shots for his firstt playoff shutout and second over the Islanders this month.

"It probably was one of the best games for our defense," said Lindbergh. 'It is nice to have the shutout but winning was most important."

Lopez hits Scotch with eight birds

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nancy Lopez fired eight birdies enroute to the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 J&B Scotch Pro-Am, a tournament she has won three times in the past six years.

Lopez carded an opening-round 66 that gave her a one-stroke lead over Patty Sheehan and Vicki Fergon.

Lenore Muraoka of Honolulu, who had her lowest LPGA round ever, and Patty Hayes of Rockledge, Fla., each were in at 68, two shots off the lead.

The two golfers eligible for a $1 million bonus should they win — Alice Miller and Ayako Okamoto — posted scores that left them in markedly different moods. Miller was happy. Okamoto wasn't.

Winner of the Dinah Shore two weeks ago, Miller, of Marysville, Calif., shot 69 and said, "It was a good solid round, but not quite as good as I had hoped. But four-under doesn't hurt."

Miller shot her opening round over the Las Vegas Country Club course, a par 36-37—73 layout of 6,087 yards.

Consecutive victories in the Dinah Shore and J&B would win her the $1 million bonus. Japan's Okamoto would win it with a second straight J&B tournament championship. She won in 1984 with a record 275.

She had a 36-37—73 Thursday over the par 36-36—72, 6,227-yard Desert Inn course and commented: "I putted very poorly. I had two three-putt greens and missed short ones on several other. It was a poor round."

Beth Daniel, of Charleston, S.C., who won the Kyocera Inamori Classic last Sunday at Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., opened here with only a 75.

Lopez, of Conroe, Tex., and winner here in 1979,'82 and '83, played the Las Vegas Country Club course in 33-33. She said she "played real well, didn't get in any trouble and didn't have to play in the rain."

Early morning showers had stopped before she teed off.

Sheehan, who won the $50,000 top purse in the J&B Gold Putter Award Playoff here last October, was happy with her 36-31 round over the Desert Inn Course.

The golfers alternate courses the first two rounds of this 72-hole tournament. Then the two final rounds in the 72-hole tournament that holds a $30,000 first prize award will be played at the Desert Inn.

"This Desert Inn course plays much harder than the other one and that's why I'm happy about my score today," Sheehan commented.

MHS girls Region I bound again

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

For the eighth consecutive season, the Midland High girls golf team has won a Region I berth. The latest honor came Thursday at Hogan Park when the Bulldogs finished second to San Angelo in the last meet of the District 4-5A golf tour.

San Angelo posted a three-round team score of 1116 to defeat the Bulldogs by 84 strokes. Odessa Permian moved into third position after the Hogan round with 1261, passing Big Spring, which finished with a 1268. Midland Lee followed with a 1370 and Big Spring B was last with a 1541.

The top two teams and top two individuals earn Region I berths and Midland High has been to every Region I competition since 1978, all under head coach Mary Baird.

The medalist competition in the 4-5A race was no contest as Abilene Cooper Michelle Hapack ran away with the title, closing with a 76 Thursday for a 235 three-round score. She won the medalist title by a full 27 strokes over San Angelo's Lisa Faber, who posted a 262. Midland High's Stacy Owens was third with 263.

Hapack is the only Cooper golfer on the tour, but she will be headed for the Region I meet with the girls from San Angelo and Midland High.

"I wish we had a full team at Cooper," said Hapack. "I think it would be easier to go to state with a team. I think it will take even par to go to state this year.

Despite her best tournament round of 76 Thursday over the Hogan layout, Hapack was not pleased with her effort. "I was awful on the back nine with four bogies," lamented Hapack.

Hapack had seven pars, a birdie and a double bogey on the front nine for a 37, but came home with five pars and four bogeys on the back side.

The real race turned out to be for second place between MHS' Owens and San Angelo's Faber. Faber owned a three-stroke lead going into the Thursday round, but Owens fired an 85 to make a charge. Faber came in with an 87 to win second by a meager stroke.

"I had my chance to take second, but I finished with three double bogeys," said Owens.

Owens and Pam Emerson (105 Thursday) are two seniors headed for the Region I meet for the second time. Juniors Shelli Childers (101) and Kim Dickson (106) also had Region I experience last year. The newcomer is sophomore Michelle Maxwell (108).

"The regional tournament is on my birthday, so that takes a little of the excitement out of it for me. I'd rather it be some other time," said Owens. "I don't think we have any kind of shot at winning it. Our team is really so young that we really don't have a chance."

Other Top 10 finishers in the medalist race were San Angelo's Liz Montelongo, 93-278; San Angelo's Chrissi Whittenberg, 95-281; Permian's Mishun Washington, 91-283; San Angelo's Dee Dee Wynne, 92-284; Big Spring's Pam Martinez, 92-285; Midland Lee's Shari Saikin, 101-299; and San Angelo's Angie Soto, 95-299.

Cynthia Porter paced Lee Thursday with a round of 98 while Saikin had 101. Other Lee players were Vickie Smith, 113; Michelle Lance, 122; and Tracy Bernard, 130.

Playing as individuals were MHS' Rhonda Bohannon, 121; MHS' Iris Brito, 137; Lee's Tami Stephens, 124; and Lee's Michelle Sanchez, 145.

Candiotti goes distance against San Antonio

Associated Press

Tom Candiotti's strong nine-inning pitching performance for El Paso was good news for the Milwaukee Brewers, the parent team of the Diablos, but bad news for the San Antonio Dodgers.

Candiotti, 27, who had a 4-4 record with the Brewers in 1983 and a 2-2 mark before a shoulder injury sent him back to the minors last year, struck out four, walked only one, and allowed only six hits Thursday night as the Diablos beat the Dodgers 4-0 in a Texas League contest.

In his first decision of the season, the 6-3, 205-pound righthander went the distance in a shutout that required only an hour and 53 minutes. He never allowed a San Antonio runner past second base.

The Diablos improved their record to 5-5 with the victory, while San Antonio fell to 5-3 with the loss, the Dodgers' second in a row.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa widened its lead in the Eastern Division by beating Arkansas 8-3, Jackson thumped Shreveport 5-1, and Beaumont outgunned Midland 11-6.

League teams tonight begin new 5-game series. San Antonio is at Beaumont, El Paso at Midland, Tulsa at Shreveport and Jackson at Arkansas.

El Paso got only six hits off San Antonio pitcher Shawn Hillegas, 0-1, but bunched three of them together in the second inning, along with a sacrifice bunt and a wild pitch to score all of its runs.

After Glenn Braggs led off with a single, designated hitter Joey Meyer followed with a grounder to the third side of the mound. Hillegas tried to throw Braggs out at second, but the throw was late. Jesus Alfaro's bunt to the same side of the mound went unfielded, and the bases were loaded with nobody out.

TRACK

THE LEE sprint relay team with Jones on the anchor has not been beaten by a 4-5A team this year and they own a best of 41.60, which is a state Top 10 ranked time. Harold Woods, Marq Brackens and Quintus Hampton joined Jones to record that time. Chris Kenney, who is suffering from a stress fracture, has also run on that team.

Lee sophomore Mike Garza also seems to be uncatchable in both the 3200 and 1600 meter runs. He owns a state ranked 9:14.0 in the 3200 and a 4:30.34 in the 1600. Garza has even gotten some help in the 4-5A meet since the 3200 will be run in the afternoon, giving him a lot of recovery time before the 1600.

Brackens is the defending 400-meter champion, but his 48.19 this year is topped by San Angelo's Ottoway Perryman, who owns a 47.84. Still, both should advance. Hampton, a junior, is also the defending champ in the 300 intermediate hurdles, but Permian's Gerry Guster has a national ranked time of 36.3 while Hampton's best is 37.93.

The Lee 1600 relay will have Brad Cooper, Craig Swearingen, Hampton and Brackens. This unit has a 3:16.72, by far the best in the league. When Jones was on that unit, a near school record 3:15.0 was recorded.

In the shot put, it isn't a matter of who will win, but how far will Midland High's Darrel Davis throw. He has the state best of 63-3¼ and had a 62-4½ last week. He has no challenger.

MIDLAND HIGH'S other berth could come from Randy Simmons in the 110 hurdles. Simmons, like Hampton, has to contend with Permian's Guster in the hurdles. Guster has a 13.59 in the 110s, another nationally ranked time. Simmons posted a career best 13.73 last week and looks like the second place finisher.

Simmons, with a best of 39.41, could also challenge for a region berth in the 300 hurdles if Hampton or Guster falter. MHS' Freddie Goodman could also compete in the 200 after a 22.02 last week if Jones or Lish falter. Lee's David Almond (1:59.83) appears to have an outside shot in the 800 meters where San Angelo is strong. Anything else would send major shock waves through the 4-5A scene.

Lee's girls seem to have a lock on four individuals and one relay if form holds. Diane White appears headed to Lubbock in both the long jump and triple jump. She leads the district in both with an 18-6 in the long jump and a 38-1½ in the triple jump. Tami Woodberry is solid in the 100 hurdles with a 14.80, a time she has produced several times and one which doesn't appear challengable.

The tough ones will be in the 100 where Tangi Carter looks like a second place finisher. Carter owns an 11.87 while Odessa High's Regina Gentry, with an 11.55, is a heavy favorite. Still, both should advance. The other Lee berth could come in the 800 relay where OHS is favored with a 1:42.66, but Lee owns a 1:44.98, which leads the other district foes.

IT'S HARD to say just how many region qualifiers MHS will earn in the girls meet. It looks like three individual berths and a relay team are secure, but there are others on the edge.

Sophomore Ethel Edwards should have no challenge in the 100 with her state ranked 24.62 leading the way. Distance running sophomore Amy Cumings is seeking region berths in both the 3200 and 1600. Her 3200 time of 12:26.11 makes her a favorite, but San Angelo's Cindy McClure owns a 5:25.49 in the 1600 while Cumings has a 5:41.69. It still should be a race since Cumings has always run with little competition to push her. MHS also should be second in the 1600 relay with its 4:03.04. Permian's 4:00.90 is the league best and OHS also has a fine relay team.

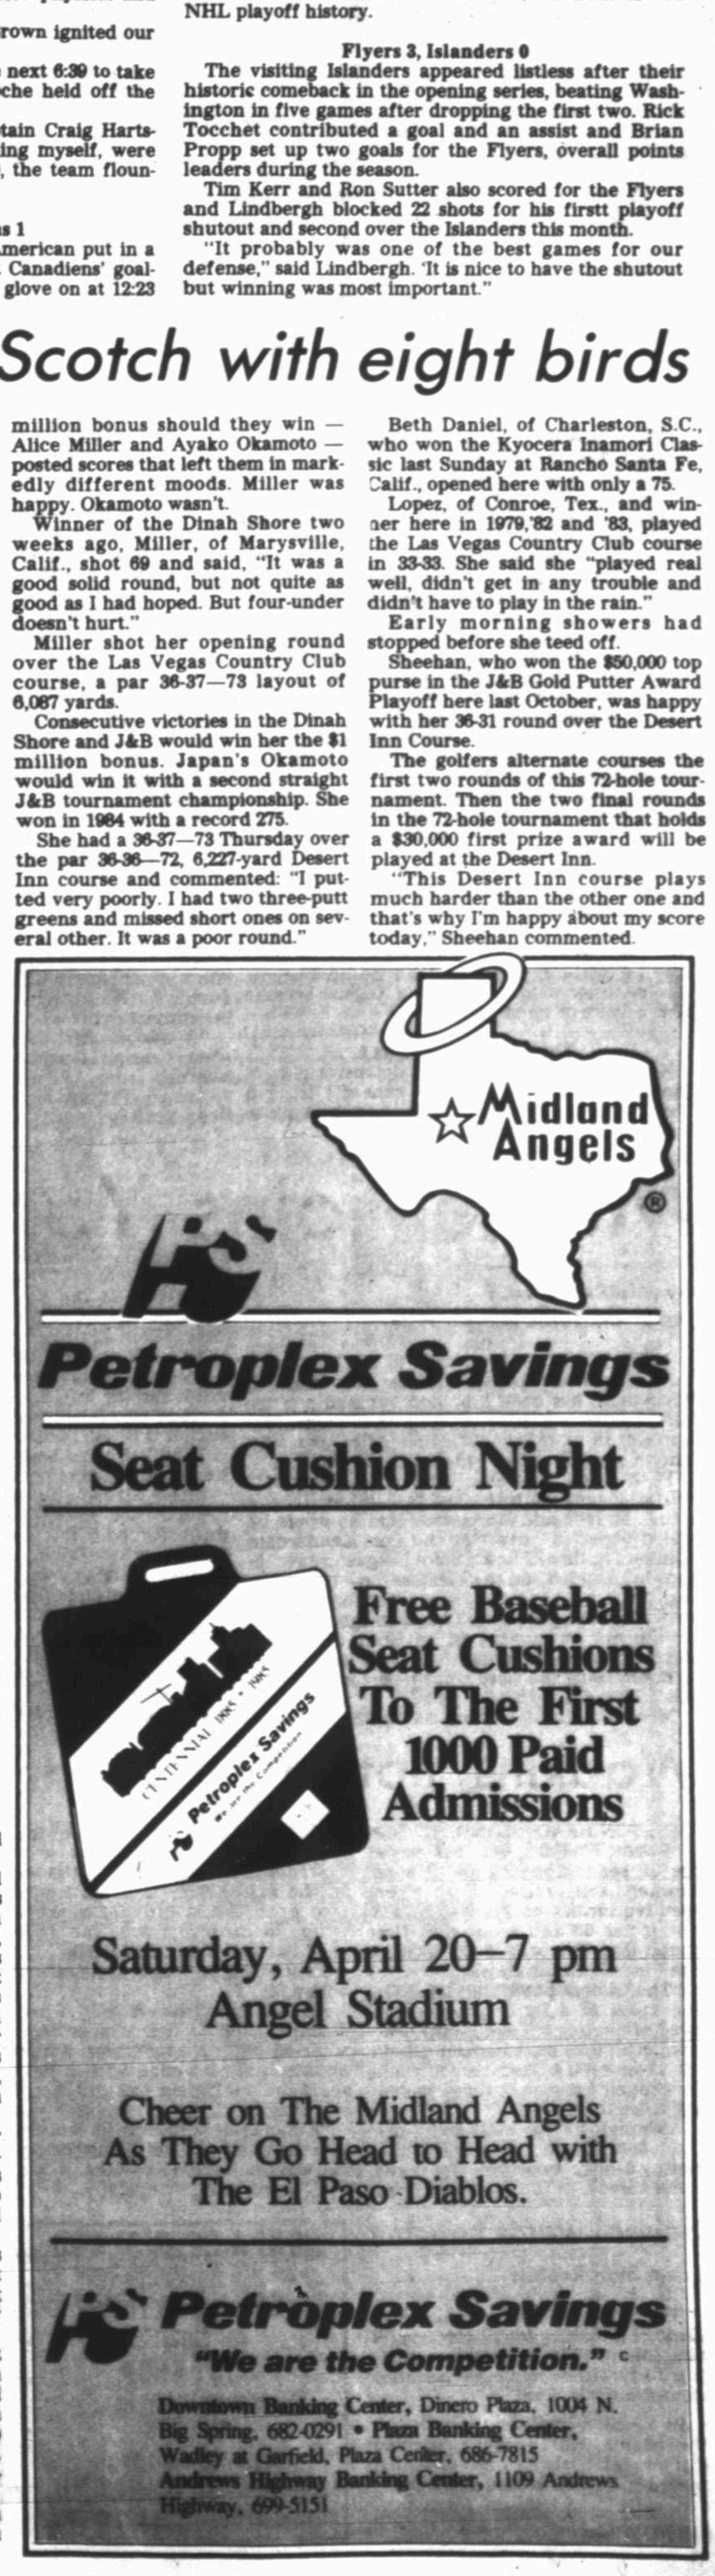

But the MHS region ranks could swell with some gutty performances down the line. For instance, Tina Knight, a region qualifier last year, owns a 17-5 in the long jump. Lee's White is the big favorite and Knight will have to battle San Angelo's Yolanda Blakey (17-4½). That's a close battle since Knight was under 17-foot last weekend. Knight also has an outside shot in the triple jump, but third may be the best she can hope for.

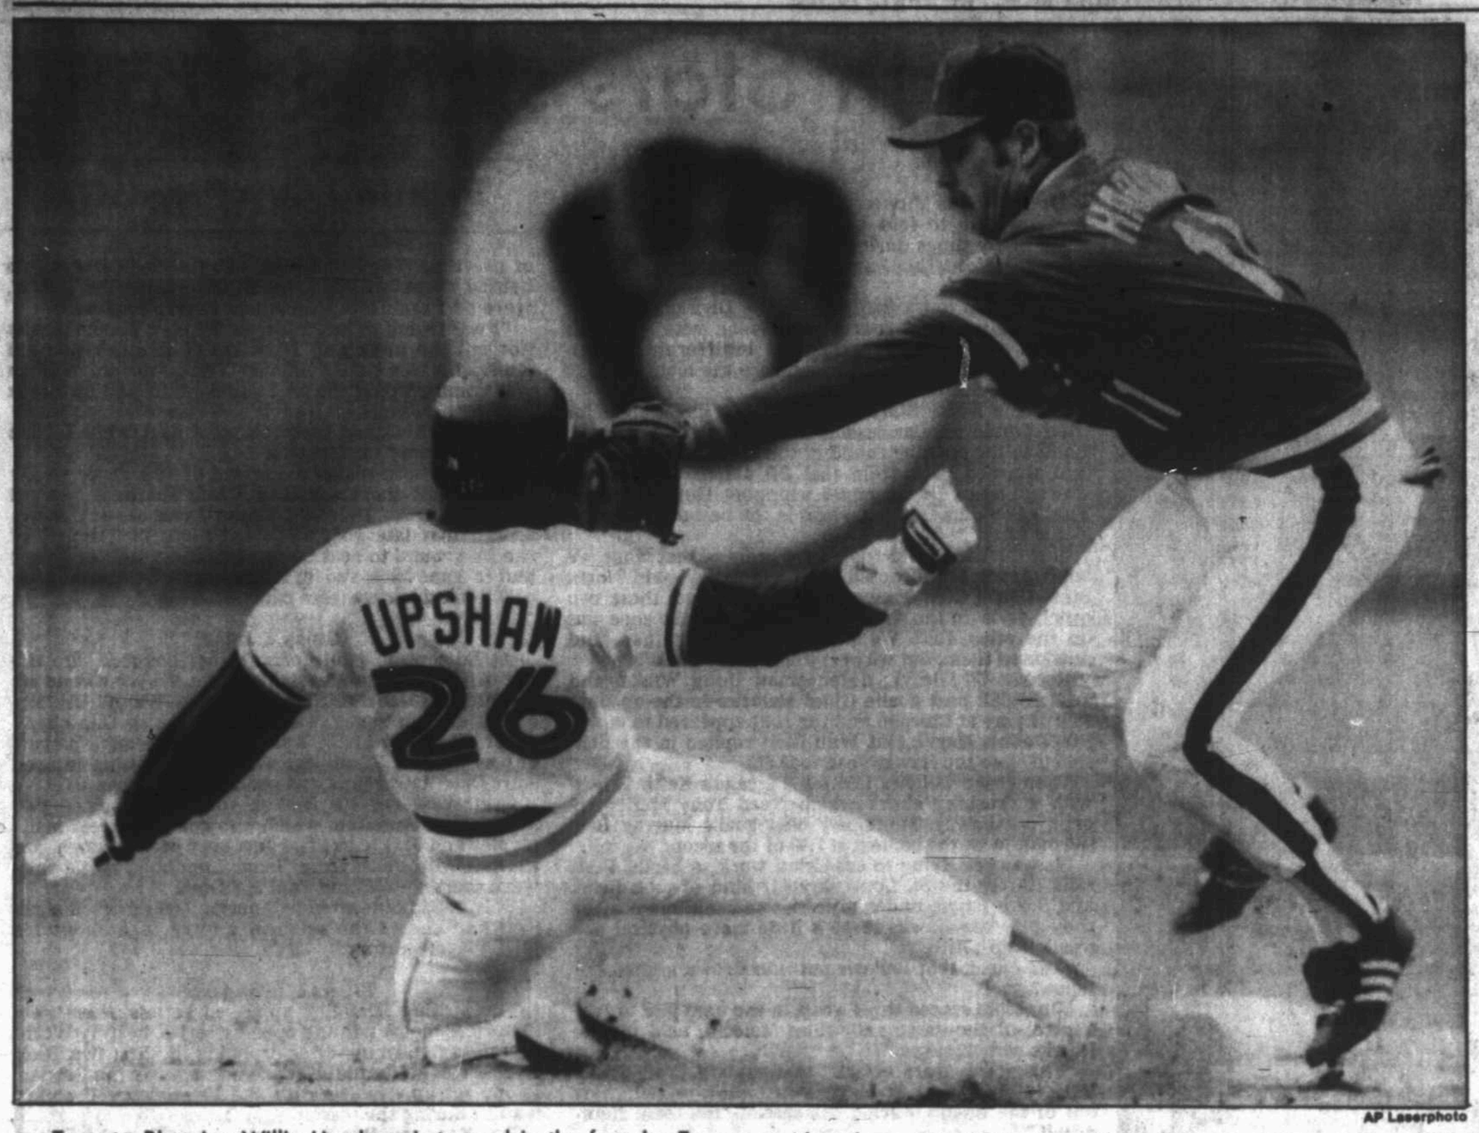

MHS' Betsy Woodruff is not far off the pace in the 800 either. Woodruff owns a 2:32.57, which ranks third. The MHS 400 relay team also ranks third behind OHS (48.11) and Permian (48.46) with its 48.81.

There lies the hopes and dreams of another 4-5A track meet, but weird things can happen. Just ask former Midland High sprinter Billy Taylor.

The last time the meet was held at ACU, Taylor appeared to have won the 100 meter race, but was picked third when officials ran the 100 on the dark side of the track where no pictures of the finish could be taken. Taylor then missed a chance to compete on the regional level.

Almost any year you can pick an incident such as this when math never seems to work out.

Valenzuela cuts San Diego, 5-0

Associated Press

NL Roundup

After a lack of hitting support last year, Fernando Valenzuela seems to be taking matters into his own hands this season.

Looking as good as he did in his rookie season in 1981, when he won the Cy Young Award, the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher hurled a 5-0, two-hit beauty over the San Diego Padres Thursday.

The shutout was the second straight for the left-hander, who stopped the San Francisco Giants 1-0 on five hits last Saturday and hasn't allowed an earned run in 25 innings this season.

"There's no trend," said Dodger catcher Mike Scioscia. "He's going out there and pitching the same way he always has. He pitched about as well as a guy can pitch today. He used all of his pitches and they were all working today."

Last year, Valenzuela had a 12-17 record, and rarely got any runs from the weak-hitting Dodgers, who averaged only 3.12 runs per game, fourth lowest in the National League.

On Thursday, however, he got four runs in the first off Padres left-hander Mark Thurmond, 0-1, on an RBI single by Mike Marshall, a two-run double by Candy Maldonado and a sacrifice fly by Scioscia.The Dodgers got their final run in the eighth on Marshall's RBI single.

Valenzuela, 2-1, allowed only a first-inning single by Tony Gwynn, last year's National League batting champion, and an eighth-inning single by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua. It was the 20th shutout of his career and his third two-hitter.

Valenzuela walked three and struck out eight, fanning six of the seven Padres he faced during one stretch.

Expos 7, Cardinals 1

Mike Fitzgerald's two-run double keyed a four-run uprising in the fourth inning, helping Montreal roll past St. Louis behind Steve Rogers' five-hitter.

Rogers, battling back from an injury-plagued 1984 season, walked four and struck out four. A 15-hit attack, Montreal's biggest in eight games, insured the 35-year-old right-hander his first triumph in three decisions.

In addition to Fitzgerald's double, the Expos' offense featured three hits and two RBIs by Vance Law and two hits and two RBIs by rookie Herm Winningham.

"He really pitched after the sixth," said Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers. "He made all of his pitches count. He was super."

Rogers said the hot day in St. Louis helped him go the distance..

"It made it easy in that it didn't take much to stay loose," he said. "It made me feel very good, but I'm just glad I put enough zeroes out there to win. I'm going to take it, I'm not going to dissect it. I'm just going to let it be."

Reds 4, Giants 3

Cesar Cedeno's bases-loaded single drove in two runs in the bottom of the 10th to give Cincinnati a come-back victory over San Francisco. The Giants twice failed to hold one-run leads, in the ninth and 10th innings, when they went ahead 3-2 on Chris Brown's RBI single.

After Tony Perez led off the Cincinnati 10th with a single off Greg Minton, 0-1, and was forced at second by Eric Davis, Pete Rose drew a walk and a double steal put both runners in scoring position. Gary Redus drew an intentional walk to set up Cedeno's single, which gave reliever Carl Willis, 1-0, his first major-league victory.

Rose had a single in four at-bats, leaving him just 85 hits away from breaking Ty Cobb's record of 4,191 hits.

"I decided to come out early to take extra hitting, and it paid off," said Cedeno, who took extra batting practice before Thursday night's game. "I'll have to come out early again tomorrow."

Joe Carter breaks out of slump

Associated Press

AL Roundup

The Cleveland Indians had it, lost it, and had it again. They finally kept it at the end — because Joe Carter had it all the way.

Breaking out of a 3-for-24 slump with a vengeance, Carter hit a single, double and home run and drove in two runs to lead the Indians to an 11-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Thursday.

The Indians had to battle for this one, squandering a 5-0 lead after three innings.

"But it had to be frustrating for (Baltimore Manager) Joe Altobelli, too — coming back from five down and then losing," said Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales after the up-and-down victory. "They're the kind of club you can never have too many runs against."

Orioles starter Storm Davis, who admitted, "I stink now," allowed the Indians to get away to a 5-0 lead after three innings.

Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken made two errors as the Indians scored three unearned runs to break a 5-5 tie in the fifth as Carter contributed a double to the rally.

Carter, a former Midland Cub, homered in the seventh against Tippy Martinez, and Pat Tabler, who knocked in four runs for Cleveland, tagged a two-run shot in the eighth against Don Aase. Rick Dempsey slugged two homers for the Orioles, playing without first baseman Eddie Murray, who returned to his home in Los Angeles because of the death of his sister.

Yankees 3, White Sox 2

Ken Griffey made a strong defensive play in the sixth inning that saved two runs and drove in the go-ahead tally with a single in the seventh to lead New York over Chicago.

The Yankees' winning rally came against White Sox left-hander Floyd Bannister, 0-2, who had won his previous eight decisions over New York dating back to 1982. The winner was Rich Bordi, 1-0, who relieved Dennis Rasmussen in the sixth. Dave Righetti worked the last 1⅔ innings for his third save, getting out of a two-on, none-out jam in the ninth.

With runners at first and second and one out in the White Sox sixth, Griffey snared a drive into the left-field corner by Carlton Fisk, slammed into the wall in foul territory, then spun and rifled the ball to the infield. Second baseman Willie Randolph's relay to first doubled off Tom Paciorek.

Angels 9, Twins 8

Doug DeCinces hit a three-run homer and Rod Carew drove in two runs with two singles and a suicide-squeeze bunt, leading California over Minnesota.

The sweep of the three-game set gave the Angels their first series sweep at Minnesota in the 25-year history of the two clubs. It was California's fifth straight victory and the Twins' seventh straight loss.

"It was my first (homer) of the year — that's always special," said DeCinces, who raised his average from .167 to .200 with his 2-for-5 performance. "Things haven't gone well for me. I've been battling myself."

Blue Jays 4, Rangers 2

Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer in the third inning and Damaso Garcia smashed three doubles as Toronto beat Texas, handing the Rangers their seventh loss in eight games.

Dave Stieb, 1-1, was the winner, pitching 6 1-3 innings, giving up two runs on six hits while walking five and striking out two. Bill Caudill, the third Toronto pitcher, earned his first save.

"It's about time we put something together," said Toronto Manager Bobby Cox. "We've been hitting all right and we got some outstanding defense today as well."

Red Sox 4, Royals 3

Jim Rice's long home run off Mike Jones in the 14th inning powered Boston over Kansas City.

Rice's blast, estimated at 440 feet, gave the victory to Bob Ojeda, 1-0, who entered the game in the 12th. Jones, 0-1, the fourth Kansas City pitcher, started the 13th.

The Royals tied it at 3-3 in the eighth after the Red Sox had scored two unearned runs to take the lead in the top of the inning.

"In situations like this, you've just got to grind it out," Boston Manager John McNamara said, referring to two previous Boston losses at Royals Stadium in which the Red Sox scored only one run. "We stuck with it and won a big game — a real big game that broke a four-game losing streak."

The Red Sox used three pitchers, including Ojeda, who went the last three innings and gave up one hit to earn the victory.

"You couldn't ask anybody to do a better job than Ojeda did," said McNamara. "He's really starting to feel comfortable out there."

ANGELS

"We're told that if we're caught in a rundown to run straight through the glove. When I made my move to the inside (Wasinger's glove side) he didn't have the ball yet and I caught him a little off balance, that's why he fell down," Key said.

"We're taught to be aggressive whether we're up by 10 or down by 10. I didn't have any alternative. I didn't want to start something, but when the catcher (Santiago) came up on the side, I was just protecting myself.

The brawl seemed to spark the Angels briefly, scoring a run in the fifth once play resumed on an RBI single by Reggie Montgomery, then another in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by David Heath and Kevin Davis.

In the eighth, after a blast by Tito Nanni over the fence in center, Midland kicked up its heels with the help of three free passes by Beaumont's Tom Kockenmeister. The Angels still had the bases loaded with White, hitting a cool .343, at the plate. But the switch-hitting centerfielder bounced it back to the mound and Davis was an easy out at the plate. Billie Merrifield ended the rally by following with a ground out to third.

Beaumont didn't rest on its lead however. A two-run homer by David Corman in the seventh and a solo shot by Wasinger in the eighth put the wraps on the Gator victory.

ANGEL DUST: Second baseman Mark McLemore, who was scratched at the last minute in Wednesday's ball game, also sat out Thursday's effort. McLemore, the Angels leading hitter at .444 strained a muscle in the back of his left knee in batting practice Wednesday. He should be out of the lineup until Sunday's game...The El Paso Diablos roll into Angel Stadium for a five-game series starting at 7 p.m. Opening day starter Don Timberlake is slated to go for Midland...Outfielder Dan Murphy and pitcher Fred Wilburn are ready to come of the disabled list today, but Maddon isn't ready to announce any roster changes, yet. "Their time is coming up and something will happen, I'm just not sure what, yet"...The Angels hit just two home runs in the five-game set with Beaumont, Doug Davis on opening day, and Nanni Thursday...Santiago's ejection was his second of the series and the third for the Gators...The Gators return to Beaumont to open a five game homestand with San Antonio.

'Gunner' back on Buc airways

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Prince, the partisan play-by-play announcer whose unexpected firing 10 years ago alienated many Pittsburgh Pirates' fans, has officially rejoined the club's announcing team, it was confirmed today.

The return of Prince, whose loud sports jackets and anecdotal storytelling are Pittsburgh trademarks, was to be announced today at a Three Rivers Stadium news conference called by KDKA radio, the flagship station of the Pirates' radio network.

The Hiring originally was reported in today's editions of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Murcer joins Yankee farm as DH

By MURRAY CHASS
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — He refused to call it a comeback, but a once-popular Yankee who since his retirement has been a broadcaster and a front-office executive will play again this weekend — and not in an old-timers' game. After that, who knows where baseball will take Bobby Murcer.

Perhaps the first assistant vice president of a major league club to play in a minor league game, Murcer said Wednesday that he would be the designated hitter for the Fort Lauderdale Yankees in three Florida State League games. He bats left-handed and the Yankees have been looking for a left-handed power hitter, but Murcer retired as a player nearly two years ago.

"I'm not speculating on anything after Sunday," he said by telephone from Fort Lauderdale. "I'm not using the word comeback. I just want to see if I can still do it."

Murcer, who will 39 years old May 20, retired in June 1983 at the Yankees' invitation, making room on the roster for Don Mattingly. He batted only .182 in 22 times up that season and finished with a .277 average, 252 home runs and 1,043 runs batted in for his 15-year major league career. After serving as a Yankee broadcaster for a season and a half, he became assistant vice president earlier this year, which prompted this question:

If he did come back with the Yankees, would he be permitted to negotiate his contract?

"He's already turned in his own scouting report," said Woody Woodward, the vice president for baseball administration, to whom Murcer is an assistant.

Murcer's return to uniform stemmed from his post spring-training rehabilitation work in Florida with Rickey Henderson.

"When he'd get tired hitting and took a rest, I'd get in the cage and hit, and it wasn't bad," Murcer said. "Last Monday, Woody asked me how things were going, and I said, 'Rickey and I are swinging the bat pretty well.' He said, 'What do you mean?' and I told him. I said, 'Maybe I should play this weekend against Miami.' He said, 'Do you think you can?' and I said, 'Yeah.' He said, 'Well, give it a try.' We'll see what I can do."

At Fort Lauderdale, Murcer will be playing under Bucky Dent, a rookie manager and his former roommate. He will play against West Palm Beach Friday, then Miami Saturday and Sunday. Miami is the team with which Mike Torrez, among other former major leaguers, plays.

What if Murcer should hit well in the three games?

"I'd have to do something spectacular to open the Yankees' eyes," he said. "I'd probably have to hit two or three home runs. I may flare a couple over the third baseman's head. Maybe I'll be lucky to do that. The only thing that bothers me is if Bucky wants to pinch-hit for me. I may have to talk to him before the game."

Before he plays, Murcer will have to sign a minor league contract. "I may hold out," he said.

Wadkins, not Lanny, leads

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Bobby Wadkins, who has played his career in the shadow of older brother Lanny, reeled off three consecutive birdies on his way to a 6-under-par 65 and a one-shot first round lead Thursday in the $400,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

"That word 'potential,' it's been the killer of a lot of players. I'm tired of hearing it," said Bobby, who has yet to take an American title in his 11-year PGA Tour career while his brother has won 14 times, including twice this year.

Although he has collected more than $600,000 in career earnings, Bobby's only two victories have come abroad, in the European Open in 1978 and in Japan the following year.

Wadkins, the first man off the tee in the morning calm, missed only two greens and did not make a bogey in his effort over the 6,808 yard Harbour Town Golf Links.

Paul Azinger was second alone with a 66.

Hale Irwin, twice a U.S. Open champion and a 2-time winner here, went out with a new driver, a new putter, a sand wedge with a new shaft and a different ball and shot a no-bogey 67.

"A moderately successful venture into the unknown. I'm trying to play my way out of 10-11 months of bad golf," Irwin sad.

School wants coach

From Staff Reports

The Highland Independent School District is looking for a person to fill the role of principal-coach, according to newly appointed superintendent Ronnie Kincaid.

In addition to duties as principal, the person will also have coaching duties for girls athletics, which includes both basketball and track.

If interested, contact Kincaid at 915-766-2292.

BOWLING BEAT

Bogle sets torrid pace for Midland Bowlers

By RANDY ISENBERG

George Bogle is the pacesetter this week for Midland's Bowling Beat, with games of 277, 233 and 233 for a 743 series, while bowling in the TGIF Mixed League at Dellwood Lanes.

Mike Reed paced Fairmont Park Mens with a 236-675 set and 231 game and 671 set in the Busy Mens League. Mike has been bowling particularly well the last 10 weeks. Ron Hopkins was among the leaders at Dellwood with a 256 game and 697 series. Ron also rolled a 232 game nnd 634 series during the week. Dana Shank rolled a 696 series.

Pacing the women, Donna Leigh, the 1984 Texas State Mixed Doubles champ with Gayle Walters, paced the women bowlers with a 219 game and 606 series, at Fairmont Park Lanes in the Pin Money Mixed League.

ROSIE URIAS rolled a 202 game and 603 series in the Southwestern Bell League at Fairmont Park Lanes while Monica Elger rolled a 223 game and 603 series at Dellwood Lanes in the Early Starters League.

Bowling Tip: This weeks bowling tip is about basic spare shooting. Spare shooting is the key to better bowling. For middle spares such as the 5-pin use the regular target for hitting the head-pin on the first ball in seeking a strike. For spares to the right for righthanders, move to the left on the approach, and use the area of the third aiming arrow on the right. How far you move to the left depends on whether you are rolling at the 10-pin, the farthest pin to the right or the 3-pin or the 9-pin, pins closer to the middle. For spares on the left side of the lane, righthanders, stay to the right and use the area of the 2nd or 3rd aiming target on the right. How far you move and your aiming arrow depend upon whether you are rolling at the 7-pin, the farthest pin on the left or the 2-pin or the 8-pin, pins closer to the middle. Lefthanders do the opposite.

One basic point to keep in mind. Be aware that the right side of the lane is the aiming area for righthanders and the left side of the lane is the aiming area for lefthanders.

Know the rule: As Fall league schedules come to an end, it is important to keep several rules in mind. One of the most important rules to be aware of is the league rule concerning ties for league championships.

BOWLING HEADQUARTERS in Greendale, Wis., serves 10 million league players. This organization has done an incredible job of putting together an easy to understand league rule book. If you have a question concerning a league rule, always check the book. Read the rule. Do not read into the rule. Just read it. If you do not understand the rule, check with a league officer, bowling center personnel, or an Association officer. Bowling center managers will direct you to the association who can best help you locally, and national officers who can help you in Greendale.

The following rule discussion concerns ties for 1st place or other trophy positions.

Both the ABC, the men's national governing body and the WIBC, the women's counterpart, rule books clearly state that, "Playoff series must be at least 3 games." A league does not have the option to adopt a special playoff rule for less than three games according to page 48 of "The Women's Bowler Magazine," the official publication of the Women's International Bowling Congress. Another important point to remember is that standings for the season are determined by points won during the season in actual competition. Total pins for the season cannot be used to break a tie for any place in the Position Standings.

Bowling Trivia: League championship races are coming down to the wire now, and for those teams that are nearing their first league championship, or maybe their second or third, you might be interested in knowing what the record is:

The record in ABC sanctioned mens league play is 16 consecutive league championships by the L.D. Ranch team of Wheatland, Wyoming, from 1966 until 1982. The record for womens team play in WIBC competition is 8 held by two teams, the A&W Drive In team of Wellington, Kansas, 1961 through 1969 and the A.A. Andersons, Inc. of Harvard, Illinois, 1965 through 1973. The A&W team finished in 2nd in 1969-1970 and then ran up 5 more championship years in a row.

If your league is close going into the tail-end of the schedule, the Moose League of Nampa, Idaho, in 1953-54, finished the schedule with 3 teams posting a record of 50½ wins and 49½ losses. Two teams posted 50 wins and 50 loss records, while the 6th and last place team finished with a record of 48½ wins and 51½ losses.

ON THE LEAGUE FRONT:

Fairmont Park Men: Mike Reed, 236-675, 231-671, Bud Allen, 240-663, Tim Schneider, 252-649, George Overton, 256-644, Dale Lower, 234-637, Rick Daughtery, 236-636, J.B. Hopkins, 221-633, Raymond Castillo, 224-630, Ty Bowling, 233-626, 235-616, Jeff Minnick, 233-626, Travis Robertson, 234-624, Sherman Wright, 266-619, Brian Gillette, 615, Ken Haskell, 224-612, Ken Block, 220-612, Gary Dennis, 235-606, Richard Brown, 236-608, J.D. Dana Shanks, 198 and Darrell Hopkins, 198, both in the civic Commercial League at Dellwood are nearing the level.

DeBartolo eyes Oklahoma

Proposals make racing attractive

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A year ago this month, Edward J. DeBartolo said he did not believe Oklahoma was a good place to build a horse racing track because of the chances of the track being profitable was slim.

DeBartolo apparently is having second thoughts, as officials of the DeBartolo Corp. Owners of Louisiana Downs horse racing track, said Thursday the company is interested in building a race track in Oklahoma.

Thomas S. Sweeney, senior vice president and general manager of Louisiana Downs, told the Tulsa World the company's interest in building a track in Oklahoma came about because of the proposed change in the so-called 6-6-6 split.

Both houses of the Oklahoma Legislature have passed a bill changing the split to give race tracks 10 percent on the first $100 million of the seasonal handle, 8 percent on the next $50 million and then 6 percent after that. Money for purses for winning owners would remain at 6 percent throughout.

The state would get 2 percent of the first $100 million, 4 percent on the next $50 million, and then 6 percent thereafter. The bill had gone to Gov. George Nigh for his signature but has since gone back to committee for possible amendments to give horse owners a larger split.

DeBartolo, president of the firm bearing his name, said last April he did not think there would ever be a major race track in Oklahoma.

He gave as a reason for the opinion the cost of building a track and the doubts anyone could get a good return on their investment.

Sweeney said he and other officials of DeBartolo Corp. visited Oklahoma City " a couple of weeks ago" and looked at a site owned by the Oklahoma City Zoological Society.

"We saw their plot plans and we became interested," he said. However, Sweeney did not rule out possible development of a track other than in Oklahoma City.

The Lincoln Park Downs Planning Committee announced last fall that it was looking for a developer to build a track on land owned by the zoo as a way to generate long-term income for the zoo.

DeBartolo Corp. had considered Oklahoma for a race track earlier, Sweeney said, but considered the present pari-mutuel tax structure prohibitive to building a new facility.

"We are extremely hopeful it will change," he said.

The DeBartolo Corp. is believed to be the world's largest designer and builder of shopping centers and enclosed malls.

The DeBartolo family, which operates out of Youngstown, Ohio, is also the largest single investor in sports enterprises in North America.

In addition to Louisiana Downs, DeBartolo owns the Thistledown track in Ohio and Balmoral Park in Illionis.

He also owns the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League, the Pittsburgh Major Indoor Soccer League team and operates the Pittsburgh Civic Arena.

Prepster goes on slam binge

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Marty Burke had never hit a home run in a game until last week. When the game was over, Burke had three — all grand slams.

Burke's feat last Friday set a new national high school record for the most grand slams in a single game as the husky center fielder for Huffman High School in Birmingham led the way in a 26-8 trouncing of cross-town rival Woodlawn.

Burke said he could believe the first, but not the second. And when he blasted the third, he said he was "in a daze or something."

"The first time I had two strikes and I hit that one," Burke said. "The second time he threw the first pitch right down the pipe, I mean just perfect, and I hit that one. Then the next time was the same way, a first pitch fastball."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, April 20, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: It is never too late to plan for a financially secure future. Buckle down to work and 1985 can be a banner year for the entire family! Help is available if you really need it. Otherwise, paddle your own canoe. Travel plays a key role in romance. You could decide to make a major change in lifestyle. Offspring dominate your thoughts when fall rolls around. You get an opportunity to make up for lost time. CELEBRTIY BIRTHDATES: "Gimme a Break's" Lara Jill Miller and Joey Lawrence, World Series winner Milt Wilcox, rising Yankee star Don Mattingly, Ryan O'Neal and Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone you thought to be an ally could turn out to be an opponent. A true friend boosts your spirits! Learn to accept constructive criticism from those who love you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Jumping to conclusions could result in confusion. Verify social arrangements and travel schedules. A new infatuation could turn out to be the real thing! Proceed slowly. Do not reveal too much too soon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A last-minute invitation holds great appeal. You enjoy getting together with someone who lives in another state or country. Good news arrives for a teen-ager on a waiting list.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Being late to an important appointment could throw off your whole schedule today. Spend more quality time with a teen-age son or daughter. Romance holds a happy surprise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Embarking on a romance with a neighbor could lead to unpleasant complications. Better keep some distance. Regular exercise leaves you feeling fit and looking good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Joint financial matters seem to be interfering with your private life. Resolve a domestic problem early in the day before it escalates. Replace bad habits with good ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A dream could prove prophetic. Act accordingly. Being tactful with a child will win you his/her love and respect. You get something you want without having to ask for it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be more affectionate with your loved ones and they will realize how much you care. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Step up a self-improvement program if you want quicker results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A weekend job could be the answer to a temporary financial crunch. The mail brings good news from a student far from home. Keep spending down and pay off old bills.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Something you write today has an excellent chance of being published. A change in the weather could alter your weekend plans. You enjoy entertaining old friends in your home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You find success in an area where you have never explored before. Getting in touch with an older person puts you in a nostalgic mood. Treasure your memories but sell "white elephants."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Involvement with a community athletic program holds special appeal for parents. Real estate is a good investment if you have the down payment. An old friend does you a terrific favor.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

We are unhappy at the lack of organized bridge activity on college campuses. Not too long ago, more than 400 schools took part in an annual Intercollegiate Pair Championship. And back in the 1960s, there was a collegiate par tournament. This hand, composed by Larry Rosler and Jeff Rubens, is from the 1967 event.

Note the suggested response to South's opening one no trump bid, which might raise some eyebrows. How can North possibly invite game with 6 points? The action is justified because North has a source of tricks. Although the hand is not good enough to consider game in clubs, we think it is simply a matter of whether North should respond two or three no trump, and we have a slight preference for the latter. The contract will depend not so much on whether South has 16 or 18 points, but on how many tricks the club suit will provide.

Against three no trump, West leads the top of his spade sequence, and East produces the king. There is no point to holding up the ace of spades for a round—declarer can always duck a club into the "safe" hand, and a diamond shift at trick two could be dangerous.

After winning the ace of spades, declarer should start on clubs. West produces the king and declarer must duck in dummy—he has no outside entry to the clubs. West continues with a spade, declarer wins and leads a second club.

When West fails to follow to this trick, declarer must again play low from the table and concede a second club trick. Since he has five winners outside of clubs, he needs only four tricks from that suit for his contract. The defense has no counter. No matter what East returns after winning the queen of clubs, declarer wins, crosses to the ace of clubs and cashes out his nine tricks.

Record price bid for painting

LONDON (AP) — The J. Paul Getty Museum of Malibu, Calif., has paid a world record price of $10.45 million for "The Adoration of the Magi," a painting by Italian Renaissance artist Andrea Mantegna.

But Timothy Clifford, director of the National Gallery of Scotland in Edinburgh, said after the Thursday bidding that he would try to block the necessary export license and start a fundraising effort because he thought the almost-500-year-old painting was part of Britain's heritage.

"That is my opportunity to come in and match the sum of money the Getty Museum has paid," said Clifford.

The work, painted around the year 1500 in tempera and oil on linen laid on canvas, is 21⅛ inches high and 27⅝ inches wide.Its subtle brown and gold colors show the three wise men bringing gifts to the Christ child, with Mary holding the infant and Joseph standing behind her.

It had been on loan to the National Museum of Wales in Cardiff since 1980.

Tim Bathurst of Artemis Fine Arts Ltd., a London gallery, represented the Getty museum in the bidding at the London auction house Christie's.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singers Barbara Mandrell, Ricky Skaggs and Lee Greenwood led finalists for individual honors in four categories each in the 19th annual Music City News awards chosen by fans across the country.

The veteran quartet the Statlers is a finalist in seven categories, while Alabama and the Oak Ridge Boys received four nominations each.

Finalists and winners are chosen by subscribers to The Music City News, a monthly country music publication based in Nashville.

The winners will be announced on a syndicated television special June 10 at the Grand Ole Opry House. Show officials say the program is the only fan-voted nationally televised presentation of its kind.

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins, the state's first female chief executive, gave credit where it was due when she received her award as a "role model American mother."

"Without them, I couldn't have made it," said Mrs. Collins, 48, of her son, Steve, 24, and daughter, Maria, 21. "They started traveling with me at ages 6 and 9."

Mrs. Collins was among eight women honored Thursday by the non-profit National Mother's Day Committee, most of whom also were successful in a career.

They included soap opera star Susan Lucci, who plays Erica Kane on "All My Children," mezzo-soprano Frederica Von Stade of the Metropolitan Opera, and astronaut Anna Fisher, who in November became the first American woman to walk in space.

Also receiving awards were Louisa Kennedy, wife of an American who was held hostage in Iran; Sarah Palfrey, former world-class tennis player; Madge Sinclair, TV actress on "Trapper John, M.D."; and Clara Hale, who runs a home for children of drug-addicted mothers.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Longtime Grand Ole Opry stars Minnie Pearl and Roy Acuff will help toast the Opry's 60th birthday on a two-hour nationally televised special.

The prime-time CBS special will be taped at the Opry House on Nov. 21 and will be broadcast late this year or in early 1986, Tom Griscom, senior vice president of broadcasting at the Opryland USA theme park, said Thursday.

Miss Pearl and Acuff, who joined Griscom at a news conference on the Opry stage, have agreed to perform, Griscom said.

"Adoration of the Magi"

The taping of the special, which will examine the Opry's history as well as the radio show, comes one week before the Opry's 60th birthday on Nov. 28.

"This will be more than a two-hour songfest," Griscom said. "An intregal part of the show will be the words, comments and memories of the Opry members."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown recalled experiences of his 57-year political career with the 350 guests at a dinner in his honor four days before his 80th birthday.

Brown, governor from 1959 to 1967, greeted each guest, including former U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein and Brown's son, former Gov. Jerry Brown, as they arrived for Thursday's dinner.

Seven hundred guests are invited to the birthday party Sunday in Beverly Hills. The two events were expected to raise about $200,000 for the nonpartisan Edmund G. "Pat" Brown Institute of Government Affairs.

NEW YORK (AP) — Move over, Michael Jackson and Bruce Springsteen. "The Saga of Bernhard Goetz" is ready for MTV.

"Bernie, Bernie, Bernie, the jury is out, now you can tell us what it's all about," sang cult film star Otto von Wernherr during Thursday's filming of a video at a subway stop in Manhattan just blocks from Goetz's apartment.

Von Wernherr, who co-wrote the song with Jay Fitzooth and Robert Brady, said it was "not pro-Goetz or anti-Goetz."

"It's tongue-in-cheek," he said. "We leave enough room to cover everybody's feelings."

Goetz, indicted on charges of attempted murder in the shooting of four black teens in a Manhattan subway last December, did not take part in the filming and his attorney said it could possibly prompt a lawsuit.

NATION in brief

Supreme Court ruling impedes public's rights

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A state Supreme Court ruling that says the barking of dogs provides sufficient reason for stopping and frisking people violates their right to move about in public, a dissenting justice said.

The court on Thursday upheld by 5-2 the firearms conviction of a man who contended he was illegally searched in 1980 after he had emerged from an alley with another man. Police, alerted by dogs barking, had stopped the two.

"The mere barking of dogs does not give rise to a reasonable belief that a crime may have been committed or attempted," Justice John Flaherty said. "Dogs chained in a back yard will often bark at anyone who passes through an alley, even a police officer."

'Nazis' housed together

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Demjanjuk, accused of being a former World War II death camp guard, and Andrija Artukovic, a former official of the Nazi puppet state of Croatia, are now housed in the same medical facility in Springfield, Mo.

Demjanjuk, 65, was moved Thursday to the U.S. Medical Facility for Federal Prisoners to await extradition to Israel, where he is wanted for trial on charges of mass killings at a camp in Treblinka, Poland.

Artukovic, 85, Croatian interior minister during the war, is sought by Yugoslavia on mass-murder charges.

Copter crash kills three

ELBA, Ala. (AP) — A military helicopter's crash that left three men on a training mission dead was caused by a mechanical failure, the county coroner said.

The UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter crashed near a rural road in southeastern Alabama Thursday. The victims' identities were being withheld pending notificiation of relatives, said Lt. Col. Larry Retta, an Army spokeman at Fort Rucker.

"They didn't hit any trees or anything; something just went wrong mechanically," said Coffee County Coroner Fred Moore. The three "were killed on impact."

Attorneys may appeal

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys for Weyerhaeuser Co. said they had not ruled out an appeal of a $2.3 million judgment against the paper products company for infringing on a diaper patent even though it was much less than the $30 million sought.

A federal jury ordered Weyerhaeuser on Thursday to pay Procter & Gamble Co. for infringing on its patent for Luvs disposable diaper, which it copied for its generic diaper sold to Montgomery Ward & Co. and J.C. Penney Co.

"Weyerhaeuser and Procter & Gamble have been friendly competitors for years and it's unfortunate that this had to come into court," George McAndrews, an attorney representing Weyerhaeuser, said.

Board financially set

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pulitzer Prize board had been running in the red before 1983 but now is enjoying financial health, thanks to a $20 fee for each book submitted for the annual writing awards, the board's secretary said.

The board has rejected a writers' union request to drop the fee, Robert C. Christopher said Thursday.The $20 fee for submissions was first imposed in 1982 in journalism categories and the following year on book and music entries.

In a letter to the board, the National Writers Union said the fee could prevent a small or struggling publisher from submitting a book for prize consideration.

Baby found in laundry

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — A hospital laundry room where a 3-week-old girl was buried under a foot of soiled sheets for 90 minutes had been searched once before the infant was discovered, the child's father says.

"We kind of assumed someone had taken her," Fred Harris, a Wexford County sheriff's deputy, said after his daughter, Hilary, was found Wednesday.

The child, who was being treated in Mercy Hospital for pneumonia, apparently was picked up by a hospital housekeeping employee gathering laundry in the pediatrics unit, Harris said.

Sisters run to help mother

WOOD LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Two sisters aged 6 and 3 ran a-half mile to get help for their mother, who was pinned under their car when it overturned on a gravel road, relatives and rescuers said.

"I tried to get the car off of Mommy, but I can't lift it up," Sarah Ellingson, 6, told Deb and David DeVlieger, who opened the door of their rural home Wednesday and saw the exhausted children.

"Come and help me, come and help me," pleaded Sarah.

DeVlieger said her sister, Bonnie, 3, was bleeding from the mouth. Sarah had stuffed a tissue into Bonnie's mouth and told her to bite down to stop the bleeding, he said.

Convicted murderer James D. Briley executed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A smiling James D. Briley followed his brother to death in the electric chair, less than a year after they led the nation's largest death-row escape and just hours after fellow inmates staged an uprising to block his execution.

Briley, who got married in a prison wedding three weeks ago, "had no final statement" before he was executed for the slayings of a pregnant woman and her young son.

He smiled, and "asked the witnesses twice, 'Are you happy?' He told the chaplain "I love you,'" said Kathi King, operations officer for the State Penitentiary.

He was pronounced dead at 11:07 p.m. Thursday, Ms. King said.

Earlier in the day inmates at the prison rioted to try to block the electrocution, injuring nine guards and a prisoner. The disturbance prompted an indefinite lockdown at the 800-inmate institution.

Briley was the 42nd person executed in the United States since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and the third person in Virginia. The last execution in the state was that of Linwood Briley, on Oct. 12.

The two brothers led the largest escape of death row inmates in U.S. history last May 31 when they and four other condemned murderers broke out of the correctional center in Mecklenburg. All six were recaptured by June 19.

Briley received two death sentences for the slayings of Judy Barton and her 5-year-old son, Harvey Barton. He also was convicted of raping Ms. Barton, who was eight months pregnant, and killing her common-law husband.

A third Briley brother, Anthony, is serving multiple life sentences on murder convictions stemming from the same crime spree.

The execution followed the failure of two last-ditch appeals and came two hours after James Briley's lawyer, Gerald Zerkin, ruled out further appeals for the convict.

"He's handling it better than I would have," Zerkin said after a brief visit with Briley. J.L. Reamy, one of the nine witnesses to the execution, described Briley as "more nervous than terrified."

Briley spent most of his last day talking on the telephone with his family, who spent Thursday night at his father's Richmond home. Evangeline Briley, who married the condemned man March 28, Briley's mother, daughter, brother and two aunts visited him Thursday afternoon.

Thursday evening, Zerkin produced a female state prison inmate who testified in U.S. District Court that a man whose testimony helped convict Briley told her he committed the murders.

But Judge D. Dortch Warriner, after hearing from Priscilla Scarborough and others, ruled that the testimony of Ms. Scarborough, who is serving a prison term for grand larceny, was not credible.

He also rejected a contention that Briley's lawyers were denied access at the time of his trial to Duncan Meekins.

Airports should promote 'fair competition'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Ed Vogler

"Fair competition" should be promoted at public airports, Ed Vogler said amid controversy surrounding the proposed minimum standards affecting Midland Regional Airport and Midland Air Park.

Vogler is former chairman and currently a member of the seven-member Midland Airport Board which is trying to resolve points of contentions in the proposed standards affecting general aviation at the city-owned airports.

"It is not the intent of the airport board or the (city's) aviation department to recommend to the City Council the adoption of minimum standards which would force anybody out of business," Vogler said. He noted that the city "does have a responsibility" to enlarge on Federal Aviation Administration guidelines regulating public airports.

"Everybody believes in the American way — less regulations and so forth," he said. Opponents of the proposed standards have been critical of what they consider excessive or needless provisions within the standards.

The airport board met with about 25 Midland-Odessa pilots and fixed-based operators and specialty shop operators last Tuesday in City Hall to begin resolving conflicts which the proposed standards, drafted by Aviation Director Victor White, brought to the fore.

THE CITY'S airports currently operate under 1979 minimum standards which regulate the business environment at the airports and the city's lease agreements with its tenants. These include the specialty shops and FBOs providing such services as aircraft fueling, airframe and engine maintenance and repair, aircraft hangaring, avionics repair and installation, air charter and air taxi services and ground school and flight training.

The FAA's concerns include air safety, certification of pilots and airframe-and-powerplant mechanics and technicians, avionics technicians and certifying the airworthiness of aircraft.

The airport board requested that critics of the proposed standards form a committee of airport businessmen, including pilots, FBO and specialty shop operators. That committee is to study the city's 1979 standards, now in the form of a city ordinance, and to examine a set of unadopted standards from the early 1980s while they also continue to examine the proposed standards, which some critics want to scrap. The committee is to compile grievances, comments and recommendations from parties it represents. Critics of the proposed standards say the standards are too specific and restrictive, would inhibit free enterprise and would discourage "shoestring" operations or beginning businesses and would favor the major FBOs over the smaller operators.

Vogler said he feels confident that a set of minimum standards which "should be acceptable" to all parties involved will emerge "when we are finished with the overall task as assigned by the City Council." He noted the importance of the "input from the people supplying aeronautical services" at the airports.

Vogler, who said "competition should establish reasonable prices in a free marketplace," noted that an imbalance of supply and demand during the oil boom of the 1980s created problems at the airport.

"AIRPORT FACILITIES and services were in such great demand and in short supply...that added facilities had to be built," he noted.

Today, he said, the reverse has taken place. The supply is outstripping the demand.

"In general, the present supply exceeds the demand. That's the whole gist of the situation."

Vogler noted that minimum standards may be established by the airport owner — the city in this case — "as minimum requirements...as a condition for the right to conduct business of an aeronautical activity on the airport."

Groundwork for the standards evolved during World War II when "many civil airports were improved with federal funds," he noted.

Bobby Holt, a pilot and a member of the airport board, said the conflict surrounding the proposed standards stems from "a lack of communications." He said many of the operators at the airports were unaware of the 1979 standards and of the revised but unadopted standards from the early 1980s.

Holt noted that the proposed standards "address everything." He suggested that the Golden Rules of fair and ethical business practices in many cases could replace many of the detailed provisions of the proposed standards.

Conflicts at Midland Regional Airport have been "kind of brewing" in recent years, Holt noted, and said that operators have been "lurking and kind of avoiding each other" instead of openly discussing the issues. The airport atmosphere at times became somewhat hostile, he said.

"I THINK IT'S healthy for a community," Holt said of the airing of the airport problems. "I'd like to see people get more involved." Working out the problems is "going to involve give and take...and hard work," he said.

Jack Ballentine, vice president of operations for Memphis Aero Corp. of Midland, a major FBO at Midland Regional Airport, said he has "never been in total agreement" with the draft of the proposed minimum standards.

"There are some things in there that don't need to be there," he said. "Everybody is not going to like some of the things," which, for example, would regulate hours of operation, number of single-engine and twin-engine aircraft operated by flight schools and charter services, lease agreements, freelance mechanics and pilots, surcharges (city fees), and, among others, the minimum amount of square footage which could be leased for office and work space.

"An airport needs some minimum standards," Ballentine said.

Some of the proposals, such as a $150 monthly city surcharge on tenants of FBOs, are "just a little bit overboard."

Ballentine noted that Memphis Aero's services, including fueling, hangaring, repair and maintenance of airframes and engines, aircraft painting and interior work, and avionics maintenance and installation, do not conflict with services provided by its tenants, which include aircraft brokers, air charter and flight schools. Memphis Aero's tenants include Petro Jet, Vista Aviation, AirMaster and Hank's Flite Center.

"I certainly would not be in agreement with a lot of things in there (the proposed minimum standards)," Ballentine said. "They (airport board and, later, the City Council) are going to have to draw some lines. They are not going to please everybody."

Serving on the airport board are U.S. Air Force Gen. (ret.) Edwin J. White Jr., chairman; Bill Mewhorter, Rusty Buckingham, Clem Barnes, Boley Embrey, Holt and Vogler.

Gen. White earlier said the airport board has general aviation's and the airport operators' "best interests at heart."

"We don't intend to create a monster," he said. Those proposed standards will be reviewed and revised as more and more information is gathered and presented to the airport board.

"I understand their problem," White said. "Nobody is trying to put anyone out of business."

Gramm: Budget plan will bring out 'sacred cows'

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, predicted Thursday that those bent on derailing the compromise budget plan due for a vote next week "will round up all the sacred cows in sight and drive them through the Senate."

"The key decision we must make is clear. Will we maintain the recovery by controlling spending? Or will we return to free spending and business as usual in Washington?"
— Sen. Phil Gramm

For his part, Gramm said he will play an active role in floor debate and will "oppose any amendment to the budget which increases spending for any program without a corresponding decrease in other programs."

Talking to Texas reporters in his office, Gramm said there must be "a core of people who look beyond politics" to keep intact the spending blueprint negotiated by the White House and Senate Republicans.

If the core group is much below 25 in number, the compromise could fall apart, Gramm said.

He recalled that in assembling the House coalition of Republicans and mostly Southern Democrats that approved President Reagan's 1981 budget — called "Gramm Latta II" after chief sponsors Gramm and Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio — members dropped in and out on key issues but supporters maintained "a floating majority." He believes that may happen this year in the Senate.

On Monday, when the Senate opens debate on the budget, Gramm said he will try to recruit fellow senators to hang tough in support of the compromise. He said he wanted to announce his attentions before urging others to adopt a similar position.

"The key decision we must make is clear," Gramm said. "Will we maintain the recovery by controlling spending? Or will we return to free spending and business as usual in Washington?"

He vowed to resist any effort to "add back" money for specific programs, "no matter how appealing" unless the amount added was subtracted in another area.

The freshman senator emphasized that the budget plan simply sets a spending ceiling but in no way ties the hands of members on authorizing or appropriating committees. "It doesn't tell the Agriculture Committee how to write the farm bill," Gramm said. "We can fund a good, strong farm program with the figures we have in here."

Asked his opinion of House Majority Leader Jim Wright's suggestion that all corporations should be required to pay a minimum tax, Gramm said rather than add another "ad hoc" provision to the tax code, he prefers tax simplification.

"That's a tax reform issue, not a budget issue," Gramm said. "I'm not going to be for raising taxes so government can continue to spend as usual in Washington."

The most controversial aspect of the plan would limit the automatic cost-of-living adjustment in Social Security payments. Recipients would receive an increase for the first 2 percent of inflation and for any inflation above 4 percent, a maximum loss of 2 percent.

Also, the budget plan would end some rural loan programs, wipe out the Small Business Administration and the popular Urban Development Action Grants. It would restrict student loans, cut Medicare and Medicaid and reduce operating subsidies for public housing projects. Military spending would be allowed to grow 3 percent above inflation.

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., served notice Thursday that Democrats will "use every means at their disposal to stop the Reagan administration attempt to cut Social Security cost of living adjustments."

Small-town 'Doc' succeeds in big city

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

Doc Severinsen joins the Midland-Odessa Symphony at 8 p.m. Saturday at Chaparral Center for an evening of pops entertainment.

Doc Severinsen, well-known to audiences across the United States since 1967 as "The Tonight Show" band leader, won his first competition when he was 12.

Those who entered the Music Educators' National Competition had to have already won in their respective states before they could compete on a national level. And Severinsen won the national as well as his state.

"The competition was frightening," Severinsen said in a recent telephone interview from Las Vegas. "I spent 90 percent of my childhood being afraid, as I was always going to be playing a concert or was at a contest or something. The pressure gets to you even when you're a kid.

"I was from such a small town that you go to the big city to compete and you think, 'Well Heaven sakes, there's no way they can give me anything. I'm just from a small town and all.' You spend 90 percent of your time with your toe on the rug."

Severinsen, who is bringing his trumpet and his rhythm section to Midland's Chaparral Center for an 8 p.m. Saturday performance with the Midland-Odessa Symphony, got his nickname from his father, a dentist and an amateur musician.

"I called him a frontier dentist because we lived in a little cowtown in eastern Oregon and he was called Doc," Severinsen said. He remembers how his father wanted him to learn about music so he taught him how to play when he was seven years old.

"HE TRIED to get me started on the violin but I didn't go for that. Then he switched me over to trumpet for the simple reason that that was the only horn available. There was no music store or anything, and a friend of ours had an old trumpet in his attic. He went and got it out, oiled it up and that's how I got started."

From the beginning, Severinsen enjoyed playing because he was good, but he never thought as a young child that he would be a professional musician.

"What I really wanted to do was be a jockey because I loved horses. It was a horse community and not as a hobby; I mean, they really used them. I was not interested in the life of a musician at that point."

Then, when he was a pre-teen, he was asked by the man who ran the general store what he wanted to be when he grew up.

"I told him I wanted to be a band leader like Paul Whiteman. He laughed. I guess I got a laugh along with him but that's the first time I can remember somebody saying what do you want to do and me saying I want to be a musician."

When Severinsen was a senior in high school, he went on the road with the Ted Fio Rito Orchestra. His parents weren't "too keen on the idea" but they had realized by that time that Severinsen was "going to be a musician."

He laughed as he recalled his first time on the road.

"IT WAS unbelievable. Half the guys in the band or most of them were from back East — Brooklyn, Connecticut, New York — places like that. I couldn't even understand what they were talking about. I could not recognize it as language as I knew it. They had to try to interpret what I was saying, and I had to try to interpret what they were saying."

He traveled all over the United States performing live and on radio.

"In fact, I had to fly home from Detroit, Mich., to my little home town of Arlington — 600 people — to graduate from high school. Then I went right back on the road. It was terrific to get to see the world at that point in my life."

Severinsen toured with the Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman and Charlie Barnet bands before signing on with NBC as a staff musician in 1949. The turning point in his career came when Johnny Carson took "The Tonight Show," and he was offered a job.

"I didn't really want to take it because I had been on the old 'Tonight Show' with Steve Allen, and I was busy doing other things."

Skitch Henderson, who had the band for Johnny, convinced him by saying, "Aw, come on. You'll never be sorry."

Severinsen agreed without realizing Henderson wanted to use him as band leader when he wasn't there.

"IT REALLY led to my being Johnny's band leader, which has been a really unbelievable thing."

"The Tonight Show," which comes into homes in the evening hours, is actually taped at 5:30 p.m. Working a "regular" job in the music business, one which can be compared to being a house band for a certain amount of weeks out of the year, often presents quite a challenge. Such would be the case with "The Tonight Show," except for Carson.

"There's very seldom a time when I drive into work that Johnny isn't already there. He works, he studies what he has to do that night, he makes mental preparation. He's an inspiration to everyone who works with him because you have to get up for your job each day."

Severinsen doesn't spend all his creative efforts in one place. A man who is "always looking for new things to do to stimulate" himself, Severinsen divides his off time between headlining in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, performing in clubs and on college campuses with his fusion group Xebron and making guest appearances with symphonies across the United States.

Odessan found not guilty in indecency case

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 70th District Court jury of seven women and five men deliberated more than two hours Thursday before finding 39-year-old Roger Gresham not guilty of indecency with a child.

Gresham was indicted by an Ector County grand jury in May 1984 on an allegation he had taken "indecent liberties" with the 12-year-old girl in December 1983.

After the jury was dismissed, one juror told Judge Gene Ater and special prosecutor Jim Jordan Gresham was found not guilty because the incident date in the indictment, and dates testified to by the girl and her mother, did not coincide.

During the course of the two day trial, jurors viewed a videotaped interview the girl did with a representative of the Department of Human Resources. She alleged Gresham had fondled and otherwise abused her on several occasions beginning in late May or early June 1983. Attorneys in the case said the girl's mother testified the incidents began about January 1983.

Following presentation of the videotape to jurors Wednesday, defense attorney Michael McLeaish asked Judge Ater for an instructed verdict of acquittal because of the conflict in dates between the indictment and the girl's testimony but the judge rejected the motion.

Neither special prosecutor Jordan nor McLeaish called the girl to the witness stand to corroborate her recorded statement.

Judge Ater named Jordan special prosecutor for the trial because District Attorney Eric Augesen had previously represented Gresham in a civil matter.

Dallas paper sets up minority-hiring plan

DALLAS (AP) — After canceling a satirical column earlier this week under pressure from black citizens, the Dallas Times Herald announced it would hire two high-level editors and 10 new reporters from the minority community.

The announcement came Thursday after executives of the Times Herald met in a two-hour closed door meeting with prominent Dallas blacks following protests earlier this week over the satirical column "Joe Briggs Goes to the Drive-In."

The syndicated column last Friday featured a parody of the popular song "We are the World," titled "We are the Weird," which blacks called insensitive and racist.

Newspaper executives canceled the column following the protests.

"These steps will address what all of us perceive as an under-representation of minorities in our newsroom," said Tom Johnson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Times Herald, after the meeting. "This problem is not isolated in the Times Herald; it exists in many newspapers across the nation.

"However, we are determined to learn from the lessons of this past week and move ahead in a genuine effort at accelerated progress in affirmative action and improved racial, sexual and ethnic sensitivity at all levels," he said.

Dallas County Commissioner John Wiley Price, who had requested the meeting, said, "The meeting has been entirely fruitful and productive. We feel we're on the right road now...We feel that their good-faith effort is something we can rely on."

Times Herald Editor Will Jarrett said he had set a Jan. 1, 1986, goal for hiring the 12 minority employees.

"Like most institutions, you ought to listen if people make a good case for something and it's right...In the case of Joe Bob Briggs' column, they were absolutely right," Jarrett said.

The new plan calls for hiring an assistant to the editor or associate editor who will have "senior policy responsibilities" covering all newsroom operations, the Times Herald said. The plan also involves hiring the paper's first minority editorial writer.

The dispute arose over last Friday's column, written by Times Herald columnist John Bloom. In the column, a fictional Joe Bob Briggs offered a satirical perspective on the song "We Are The World" used to raise funds for starving Africans. The column included several references to "Negroes" that members of the black community found offensive.

The Times Herald carried a page one apology Tuesday, and after a meeting with protesters later that day, Jarrett announced the column would be dropped

On Thursday, he said the newspaper also would discontinue a weekend column titled "Jock Talk with Joe Bob" that appeared in the newspaper's Sunday sports section.

Most of his special performances are with symphonies, such as the 8 p.m. concert at Chaparral Center Saturday. Tickets, priced at $12, may be purchased at the Center, which is located on the Midland College campus.

WHEN HE does this type of concert, he plays a concerto which was written for him, then is joined by his rhythm section for a presentation of popular pop tunes arranged in a symphonic fashion.

Such diversity in performances requires switching gears with ease.

"To go from playing with a jam group in a nightclub someplace, like Las Vegas, and playing in Midland, I have to do a total turnaround. You have to be aware of the difference and accommodate that. It keeps you on your toes, I'll tell you that."

Then, Severinsen finds all performances challenging.

"When you're a trumpet player you have a physical challenge each day. I just want to be the best I can be each day at what I do. You have to recapture it every day.

"It's like being an opera singer. When you wake up you don't know whether the voice is going to work that day or not. I don't know whether my lip is going to work and you have to apply yourself physically and mentally to make it happen."

Severinsen has no regrets about choosing the life of a musician.

"It's very rewarding if you put your best into a performance. You get up for it, and it's a successful performance in that the audience likes what you're doing and lets you know that they like what you're doing; it beats anything else."

Suspect in sexual assault remains in Midland jail

From Staff Reports

A 22-year-old Midland man, suspected in the sexual assault Thursday night of a 19-year-old woman, remained in custody today after he was apprehended near the scene of the assault by a police K-9 unit.

According to reports, the Terrell woman had gone to the Greyhound Bus Station, 1308 W. Front St., to catch a bus. When she realized she had missed it, reports said, she called friends to pick her up. She was waiting outside when the man reportedly approached her shortly before 11 p.m.

The woman told police the man forced her down an alley and into the back yard of a vacant house at 1301 W. Washington, where the alleged sexual assault occurred.

The woman did not indicate that the man displayed or had a weapon, reports said.

K-9 unit officer Richard Edens and his dog Oso were called to the scene after the woman called police at about 11 p.m.

Edens was named earlier this week in a civil lawsuit brought against the City of Midland, Chief of Police Wayne Gideon and K-9 Sgt. Ed Nicks. The case was filed by a church custodian who was attacked in April 1983 by a police dog handled by Edens. The attack came during a search of a downtown church suspected of being burglarized. The custodian, who was hiding in a utility closet when he was attacked, claimed he did not hear Edens give warning that the dog was entering.

That dog has since been retired.

Police reports indicate Edens gave Oso the command to track and the dog began down an alley north of the Triangle Radiator Sales and Service, 1010 W. Front St.

The dog then entered a back yard at 1007 W. Washington and continued down a sidewalk to a vehicle parked in front of 1001 W. Washington, police reports said.

There the dog stopped and "showed great interest" before tracking to the side of the house at that residence, where he found a man lying beside an air conditioning unit. The man was arrested and photographs were taken.

Detective B.G. Johnson then took the photographs to the emergency room at Midland Memorial Hospital, where the victim identified the man in the photos as the suspect, police said. He is expected to be charged with sexual assault today, police said.

Senate establishes panel on high-level nuclear waste

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Senate concurrent resolution establishing an interim study committee on high-level nuclear waste has received a favorable recommendation by the Senate Natural Resources Committee, which has sent the measure to the full Senate for consideration.

SCR 76, sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, creates the Select Committee on High Level Nuclear Waste, a nine-member group which will "monitor events leading up to the recommendation of three candidate sites" for a proposed nuclear waste repository.

The U.S. Department of Energy last December ranked a site in Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle, along with sites in Washington and Nevada, among the top three sites being considered for the repository nationwide.

Another site in Swisher County in the Texas Panhandle is also being considered by the DOE for the repository site.

The state has filed suit against the DOE in the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans for the ranking of the Texas sites, alleging procedural irregularities in the selection process.

Under SCR 76, the committee is charged with checking on the progress of litigation against the DOE, as well as keeping up with the DOE's exploratory activities should a Texas site be chosen for characterization studies.

The committee, whose members will be chosen by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis, will report on such activities and make recommendations to the 1987 Legislature. SCR 76 states the committee will be composed of six lawmakers and three public members.

In a related action, Sarpalius has withdrawn a bill which establishes a Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office to monitor federal efforts to locate a repository site. SB 1244 was also to have been considered by the Senate Natural Resources Committee, but the West Texas senator pulled the bill after his other measure was reported out favorably.

An aide said Sarpalius thought SB 1244 would be unnecessary before an interim committee could make recommendations to the Legislature.

Power plants 'economic black holes'

AUSTIN (AP) — It could cost more to shut down Texas nuclear plants than it does to build them, Ralph Nader's Public Citizen group said today.

"Nuclear power plants are economic black holes," said Michael Twombly, Texas director for Public Citizen.

The consumer group's report says it could cost up to $24 billion to "decommission" the eight nuclear reactors Texas ratepayers are financing. Reactors are decommissioned after about 30 years.

The eight reactors being financed by Texas ratepayers are at four projects: the South Texas Nuclear Project near Bay City, Commanche Peak near Glen Rose, Palo Verde in Arizona and River Bend in Louisiana.

El Paso Electric owns 15 percent of the Palo Verde project. Beaumont-based Gulf States Utilities owns the River Bend plant.

All of the facilities are still under construction.

With a decommissioning cost of $3 billion per reactor, it would cost $7 billion more to shut them down than it did to build them, according to Public Citizen.

Community Services Day Care to take summer registrations

From Staff Reports

The Community Services Day Care will be taking summer registrations beginning May 1. The Day Care center is located at 815 S. Carver and offers all-day child care for ages birth through 12.

For more information, call Marian Allen, 684-8392.

The Midland YMCA will begin registration for its 1985 Day Camp — Camp Comanche Trails, on May 1. Registrations are being taken at any Midland YMCA.

Camp Comanche Trails is located on FM 868 and Andrews Highway. The camp offers a full schedule of outdoor activities for the day camper. Included are hiking, swimming (both recreational and lessons), archery, riflery (BB guns), nature lore and overnights.

Camp Comanche Trails will offer 13 sessions, beginning June 3 and running through August 23. Pre-registration is available for all 13 sessions. A small deposit will be required to hold a place in any particular session.

Fees will be $45 per week for YMCA members and $50 per week for non-members.

For more information, call any Midland YMCA: Community Services — 684-8392, Alamo — 694-2528, Central — 682-2561.

Central YMCA, 800 N. Big Spring, will be offering a new summer program for youth entering the first through seventh grade called "Wellness 85." This camp will teach children in a fun and informative way proper attitudes about diet and exercise before they develop bad habits. Campers will participate in fitness testing, aerobic activities, health education and nutrition classes. There will also be nature study, arts and crafts, first aid, swim instruction, game time and field trips. The camp will be run from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday for a four week session in June and a second four week session in July. For further information call the Central YMCA.

Three men jailed on assault charges

From Staff Reports

Three California men were being held in Midland City Jail early this morning awaiting arraignment on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon following a disturbance Thursday at Dallas Nights, 1008 S. Midkiff.

The three were arrested about 10 p.m. Thursday when a disturbance broke out at the club resulting in the assault on off-duty police officer Bobby Welborn, according to Lt. Jim Colburn.

Colburn said Welborn — a security officer at the club — attempted to break up the disturbance when the three men resisted and allegedly struck him with a police baton.

Police apprehended one man at the club. The two other suspects fled the scene and were apprehended shortly afterward.

Colburn said Welborn was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital for treatment of head injuries and later released.

In other complaints, Derk Bergoon, 3508 Seaboard, reported the theft of a pocket watch and about $25 cash Thursday from a locker located inside the Lee High School field house, 3500 Neely.

The theft is believed to have occurred between 2 and 5 p.m., according to the report. The property together is valued at $425.

A coffee table, draperies and other property valued at $270 were reported stolen either Wednesday or Thursday from a residence at 300 Howard, according to police reports.

Larry McCuin, a representative of Century 21 Realtors, 921 N. Midland Drive, reported to police that the theft occurred between 10 p.m. and midnight. Also reported stolen were bed frames, box springs and mattresses and a wall telephone.

DEATHS

Florence Byrd

LAMESA — Florence Byrd, 69, of Midland, died Wednesday at her home.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Brannon Funeral Home chapel with Dr. C.H. Murphy, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lamesa, officiating. Burial was to be at Lamesa Memorial Park.

Mrs. Byrd was born in Oklahoma City. She married Henry Leroy Byrd Sept. 17, 1951. He died May 26, 1976. She was a housewife. She moved to Midland in 1981 from Brady.

Survivors include two sons, Howard Smith of Somerville and Edgar Smith of Midland; two brothers, George Flud and Lonnie Flud, both of Midland; a sister, Juanita Irwin of Azel; 11 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Marie Sands

Services for Mrs. William N. "Marie" Sands of Midland will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. J.B. Stewart officiating.

Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Sands died at her home Thursday morning following a lengthy illness.

She was born July 20, 1908, in Windom, where she was reared. She graduated from the University of Texas and was employed as a secretary for the Texas secretary of state. She married William N. Sands on March 18, 1938. The Sands moved to Midland in 1959.

She was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Boon Bible Class, Midland Women's Club and the Midland Lawyer's Wives Club.

Survivors include her husband, William Sands of Midland; two daughters, Aletha Gossett and Melinda Connelly, both of Midland; her mother, Lessie Nash of Ardmore, Okla.; two brothers, Raymond Nash and Joe C. Nash, both of Ardmore; one grandson and three granddaughters.

Walks along Midland Nature Trail scheduled

From Staff Reports

Nature walks along the Midland Nature Trail are scheduled for April 23 and 30 and May 7, 14 and 21. These walks will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 10 a.m., and are being sponsored by the Midland Soil Conservation District, Midland Parks and Recreation Department, Midland Independent School District and youth scouting groups.

The group will meet in the parking lot north of the Women's Club building at the south end of Hogan Park.

There also will be a public organization founding meeting April 29 at 7 p.m. in Allison Fine Arts Building Auditorium at Midland College.

Construction of the nature trail began in 1981 and now 2,000 to 2,500 students use it every year, as well as local nature hobbyists (bird-watchers, animal watchers, photographers and plant finders). A number of people use it as a quiet place for their exercise walk.

This year the Nature Center is being developed. Burr Williams, a local nurseryman, was hired to promote the center by the Soil Conservation Board and $150,000 has been acquired to put up a permanent building and other developments such as a windmill.

April and May are the months of the greatest natural activity. Spring bird migration and the spring flower show are among some of the reasons to take a walk around the half-mile surfaced trail, according to a spokesman with the Parks and Recreation Department.

The tours will be guided by Williams and other Midland naturalists. For more information call Williams at 686-9632.

Senior Games slated for May 15-18

From Staff Reports

The fourth annual Texas Senior Games are slated May 15-18 at the University of Texas at Arlington. Any person 50 years or older as of May 15 and who is an amateur in the event in which he or she registers may participate. Deadline for entries is May 1.

Registration forms are available at the Senior Center, 2500 Delano Avenue, and the Midland Parks and Recreation Office, 300 Baldwin St.

There will be eight age groups and a small registration fee for each event. Events include billiards, bowling, bridge, checkers, dancing, 42, golf, swimming, tennis and washer pitching. There will be a sports medicine and physical fitness clinic, cardiopulmonary training, a dance party and a health fair as free activities.

Texas Senior Games are supported by the Texas Department of Aging, Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness, Texas Recreation and Park Society, Dallas Morning News, American Association of Retired Persons, Texas Amateur Athletic Federation and Texas Association of Area Agencies on Aging.

Police rule man's death suicide

From Staff Reports

Police have ruled suicide in the case of the body of a 20-year-old man found Thursday morning in an east-side wrecking company lot.

According to reports, the body was found by a driver of B.J. Wrecker Service, 1603 Orchard Lane, who was parking a car in a line of vehicles on the west side of the fenced lot.

The man's body was found lying on the ground between several cars.

Reports indicate he was a former patient at Big Spring State Hospital who suffered from suicidal tendencies. Evidence at the scene indicated he had jumped from a fourth-floor window of the 45-foot tower, formerly used by city firefighters as a training tower.

The man, who suffered multiple broken bones and internal injuries in the fall, left a trail of blood as he stumbled through and over cars in the lot to the site where his body was found, police said.

Two people die in ultralight crash

HOUSTON (AP) — Two people are dead after their ultralight aircraft crashed while approaching a dirt landing strip in northwest Harris County, authorities said.

Frank Lee Volta, 29, and Cynthia Whitaker, 20, of Bryan, were killed Thursday evening after the aircraft "came straight down," Ed Moers, with the Rose Hill Volunteer Fire Association said. Volta's place of residence was not immediately known, officials said, although he was identified as the owner and pilot of the plane.

Harris County deputies said "something on the plane snapped" and the craft went out of control near Hockley.

Shriver: LBJ made 'the majority discriminate' on minorities' behalf

AUSTIN (AP) — Millions of Americans gained from the Great Society, and Lyndon Johnson's anti-poverty programs have gotten a bum rap recently from conservative critics, several former LBJ aides say.

"What Lyndon Johnson did to his great, I think imperishable, credit was to get the majority to discriminate on behalf of the minority," said R. Sargent Shriver, one-time Johnson aide and 1972 Democratic vice presidential candidate.

"The minority were human beings just like the majority, and this country can only prevail when we're united — rich and poor. He stood for that. Lyndon Johnson did," Shriver said.

Shriver and other Johnson assistants Thursday began a two-day symposium critiquing the Great Society 20 years later. The sessions are sponsored by the University of Texas and its Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Participants are examining the War on Poverty and the civil rights, education and health legislation passed during Johnson's administration, some of which now is being criticized as costly and ineffective.

Shriver, also Peace Corp director in the 1960s, said today's "Reagan Revolution" is different from the social change wrought under Johnson's leadership because Reagan's policies help the majority of Americans.

"What President Reagan is doing is catering to the majority, who are well-to-do, at the expense of the minority who are poor," he said.

"We have had the largest increase in the poverty population of America since 1979 that we've ever sustained since they collected records on poverty. The number has increased by 9 million," Shriver said.

Barbara Jordan

For that trend to reverse, many people must be convinced that the rugged individualist doesn't have all the answers, he said.

"I think that we've got, somehow or other, to convince Americans that John Wayne and individualism are not the only symbols of our society," Shriver said.

"I think our country was founded by people who had a great sense of the United States being a...new community of people, all of whom had a sense of civic responsibility for one another.

"A sense of community has been lost. A sense of caring has been (lost). Nobody cares about anybody else," Shriver said.

While some conservative critics now say the Great Society cost too much and did too little, proof of its success easily can be found in the achievements of young people who were helped by the programs, former U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan said.

"These programs were not mere words, friends; there are flesh-and-blood examples of what these programs meant. The legacy of Lyndon Johnson continues to enrich our lives," Ms. Jordan said.

"He saw the enemy, and the enemy was not government. The enemy was ignorance, poverty, disease, ugliness, injustice, discrimination. He believed that it was the duty of government to defeat the enemy."

The Great Society was the benchmark of Johnson's presidency, Ms. Jordan said, adding that Head Start, for preschoolers, and the Job Corps training programs were sparkling high points.

"Even though the Job Corps right now is being threatened by the budget ax, we cannot ignore that many who otherwise would not have been helped were helped," she said.

ROTC cadet dies of heart failure during physical test

ABILENE (AP) — Authorities say a 25-year-old ROTC cadet who collapsed at Hardin-Simmons University near the end of a two-mile run that was part of a physical test died of apparent heart failure.

Albert Lewis Fitts was pronounced dead at 2:50 p.m. Thursday at Hendrick Medical Center by Taylor County Justice of the Peace Samuel Matta, who ordered an autopsy.

Major James P. Ellis of the HSU Military Science Department said Fitts, a junior at McMurry College, collapsed shortly after noon while running with 20 other cadets taking the "routine Army Physical Readiness" test.

Ellis said the test for all cadets, being given at Parramore Field, also involves sit-ups and push-ups and is given twice a year.

Fitts recently passed a physical examination at Dyess Air Force Base that "revealed no difficulties," he said.

Texas nominees for first teacher in space chosen

AUSTIN (AP) — A Friendswood teacher who wants to experiment with flies and an Austin high school instructor who doubles as a tennis coach are Texas' nominees for first teacher in space.

Stephen Warren of Stephen F. Austin High School here said he moved quickly when President Reagan announced the competition to pick a teacher for a ride on the Jan. 22, 1986, space shuttle mission.

"I didn't wait, I went and called the White House right then," he said.

Peggy Lathlaen, a Friendswood elementary school teacher, was the other nominee announced Thursday at a Capitol news conference.

"We have very positive feelings that it will be a Texas teacher who will get to take this voyage on the shuttle," said Ms. Lathlean, 34.

The two Texans are among 120 teachers who will be nominated for the free ride. Warren and Ms. Lathlaen were picked by a panel of educators, who looked at applications from 420 teachers.

"The selection of a teacher to be the first citizen passenger to go into space underscores our country's committment to its schools," state Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby said.

Troops made lasting friends in Honduras, reservists say

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas National Guard troops made some lasting friends for the United States while on a training exercise in Honduras, the reservists say.

"This task force has done more to bond the Honduran military and civilian populace to Americans than anything else," said Lt. Col. Federico Lopez, task force commander.

Lopez made the remarks in a brief speech late Thursday after the first plane load of about 150 men landed at Kelly Air Force Base.

About 400 guardsmen left Honduras Thursday, returning to the United States after a three-week Big Pine III training exercise with the U.S. Army and Honduran troops.

Officials said the purpose of the mission was to train the Hondurans in tank warfare.

But Lopez said the soldiers were able to offer medical care and dig wells for three villages.

"Those people learned to respect us," he said.

The soldiers appeared tired and solemn as they trailed from the cargo plane to a hangar.

They deposited their luggage outside the hangar, where a U.S. Customs Service dog sniffed their belongings for narcotics.

The inspection is routine in customs screening, said Phebe Brown of the base public affairs office.

Toole to be questioned in Lucas probe

WACO (AP) — Ottis Ellwood Toole, traveling companion of self-proclaimed mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas, will be brought to this Central Texas city to help a grand jury determine the truth behind Lucas' confessions, Attorney General Jim Mattox says.

"You can't investigate Henry without investigating Ottis," said Mattox.

The McLennan County grand jury today will probably set a date to continue its Lucas investigation, said District Attorney Vic Feazell. Lucas testified for more than eight hours Thursday before the panel.

Feazell said the grand jury will probably reconvene in two weeks. The panel had recessed at about 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

"Henry is being consistent in what he is telling us," said Mattox. "That is not necessarily consistent with what he has said in the past. But he is being consistent with what he's told us since we've been talking with him."

He said he wants a complete investigation of all of Lucas' confessions, including interviewing Toole, who remains in a Florida jail under a death penalty. Lucas, 48, had claimed responsibility for as many as 600 killings nationwide but the Dallas Times Herald reported this week that he now claims responsibility for just three.

The grand jury inquiry was spurred by Lucas' confession to the 1981 murder of Dorothy Collins, 25, at a time when officers believed another suspect was on the verge of confessing, authorities said.

Mattox, saying he believes he can convince Gov. Mark White to provide necessary funds for a continuing investigation of Lucas, added, "I'm going to visit with (White) next week to talk about the matter.

"We've already invested a substantial amount of state funds in this task force, and I think it's reasonable now for us to invest additional state funds to try to clear up questions or problems that may have developed either as a result of the (Texas Ranger Homicide) Task Force's activity or as a result of local activities," said Mattox.

However, in an Austin press conference Thursday, White said, "I don't think there is any need of additional state funds (for the Lucas investigation). I do not disagree with (Mattox), I just don't think there's a need for additional funding."

Judge's order stops family's deportation

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A federal judge Thursday extended a restraining order preventing immigration officials from deporting a Nicaraguan family that includes a teen-age honors student, the family's attorney said.

U.S. District Judge Ricardo Hinojosa on Friday is scheduled to decide whether to hold a hearing on a motion on a habeas corpus petition, the last legal alternative the family has to remain in the country, attorney Ray Cantu said.

Connie Linarte, a junior-high honors student who didn't speak English when she arrived from Nicaragua four years ago, says she and her family will be killed if they are deported.

"I am so scared we will be sent back because I am sure they will put us in jail," she said.

Two weeks ago, Miss Linarte, her parents, three brothers and a sister, were less than an hour from being deported when Hinojosa granted a restraining order against immigration officials.

"This is the only relief that they have left after the exhaustion of administrative procedures," Cantu said of the writ of habeus corpus.

Hinojosa, government and the family's attorneys met briefly Thursday afternoon and Cantu said the girl's parents and an older brother would be released from a federal detention center on their own recognizance Thursday.

Two other boys were in a juvenile detention center. Miss Linarte and her sister were staying in a convent.

They had been separated since the judge granted the restraining order.

Cantu said a hearing on the writ of habeau corpus would be next week. He said the judge has the power to grant total asylum or grant the right to a new hearing before an administrative law judge.

Cantu said the family's life is in danger because of conditions in Nicaragua. The family is opposed to the Sandinista government which rules Nicaragua, Miss Linarte has said.

Dollar slides

LONDON (AP) — The dollar, still buffeted by bad economic news from Washington, dropped against all major currencies in early European trading today in a continued slide. Gold prices were mixed.

National Westminster and Lloyds, two of Britain's four major banks, cut their base rates by half a percentage point to 12.5 percent as sterling edged near $1.30. The pound has not closed above $1.30 since Sept. 3.

The Bank of England, bowing to the trend, announced a half percent point cut in two of its own money market rates.

"We remain hopeful that strengthened sterling exchange rates will enable this downward trend to continue over the coming months," said National Westminster chief executive Philip Wilkinson.

The dollar's slide followed sharp drops on Thursday after the U.S. Commerce Department said the economy grew at an annual rate of 1.3 percent in the first three months of this year, the most sluggish performance since the last quarter of 1982.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before it begins in Europe, the dollar plunged to close at 246.85 yen, down 3.65 yen from Thursday's closing 250.50 and 4.15 lower than last Friday. The dollar was quoted at 247.27 yen in later European trading.

The dollar fell against the British pound to $1.2955 in early trading, more expensive than $1.2885 at the close Thursday. The dollar has fallen by nearly two cents against the pound this week.

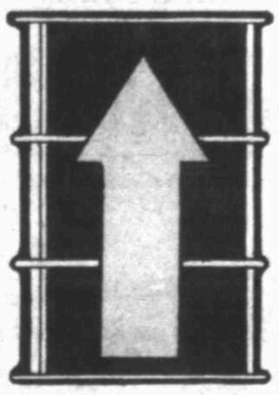

Gold opened in London at $327 bid an ounce, up a dollar from Thursday's close, and firmed in later trading. London's five major bullion houses set the mid-morning "fixing" at $327.70.

In Zurich, gold opened at $326.75 bid, down from Thursday's late bid price of $328.50, and was quoted later at $327.60.

In Hong Kong, gold closed at $327.51 bid, up $1.92 from Thursday.

Silver was quoted in London at $6.44 bid an ounce, down from $6.53 late Thursday.

Senate looks at 'shrinking' Texas industries

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Texas refining and petrochemical industries, already reeling from the double whammy of subsidized competitors and a bloated dollar, will continue to shrink, witnesses said Thursday at a Senate hearing.

Bernard L. Weinstein, assistant director of the John Gray Institute in Beaumont, reported that every Gulf Coast area has suffered job losses since 1980, largely because of declining refinery activity.

A dramatic example is the recent layoff of more than 1,200 persons at Texaco's huge Port Arthur refinery, about 40 percent of its employment base, Weinstein said.

This layoff came on top of 2,000 jobs lost through attrition and layoffs in the previous three years. Formerely rated at 402,000 barrels a day, the streamlined operation now is rated at 200,000 barrels.

"By the end of the century, the industry -- which three years ago employed 173,000 -- will probably employ fewer than 100,000 workers nationwide," Weinstein said.

Chaired by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the hearing on conditions in the refining and petrochemical industries was the third in a series examining U.S. trade policy.

Texaco senior vice president William Tell of White Plains, N.Y., said evidence is mounting that foreign government-owned export refiners seeking access to U.S. markets are absorbing costs of $2-$3 per barrel, representing as much as 7 1/2 cents per gallon.

In an attempt to compete against this foreign competititon, he said, domestic refineries are taking large losses in many instances.

"The declining trend in U.S. crude prices and resulting reduction in producer cash flows has led to a sharp reduction in U.S. exploration and drilling activity," Tell told the committee.

Unless these trends are reversed, the U.S. could be pushed to 50 percent import dependence, a level which Tell said "is an unacceptable dependence on foreign sources."

Departing from his prepared testimony, Tell said his company also, reluctantly, is exporting jobs. "As businessmen, we are doing what we have to do," he said. He questioned, however, whether it is in America's best interest to allow the domestic refining base to continue to erode.

In the absence of a U.S. government policy shift, he said, it is reasonable to expect that privately-owned U.S. refiners will continue the pattern of plant closings, Tell said.

Tell stopped short of recommending specific steps to slow imports, but he urged that a policy review be immediately undertaken.

Bruce A. Melaas, on behalf of the Petrochemical Energy Group, warned that limitations on crude oil or petroleum product imports to protect domestic refiners would have undesirable results and "burden many domestic industries from pharmaceuticals to automobiles."

Past efforts to limit imports hindered the petrochemical industry's ability to compete in international markets, Melaas said.

Emmett Sheppard, president of the Sabine Area Central Labor Council, of Groves, said until recently had no idea what was causing the decreased demand for refinery products.

Unions in the Sabine Area negotiated wage reductions and concessions to increase productivity and save the companies' money, Sheppard said.

"We knew plants were as competitive as any in the country. It just did not add up. Then, a few months ago, we discovered the real problem – refined oil product imports."

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, said the situation in the Golden Triangle serves as an example of what may be in store for the entire nation unless actions are taken to preserve the domestic petroleum industry.

Dollar tumbles after GNP report

Associated Press

The dollar continued to lose ground against major world currencies in early trading in Asia and Europe today, extending a sharp retreat that was triggered by a Commerce Department report of unexpected weakness in the U.S. economy.

In addition to its report Thursday on sluggish overall economic growth, the Commerce Department also said that after-tax corporate profits fell 0.5 percent in last year's fourth quarter — the third straight quarter of sliding earnings.

In foreign-exchange trading Thursday, the dollar fell to its lowest levels in more than seven months against some key currencies, and it fell further in the early going today.

One benefit of the falling dollar to other countries is the hopes the currency's decline has raised for relief from high interest rates.

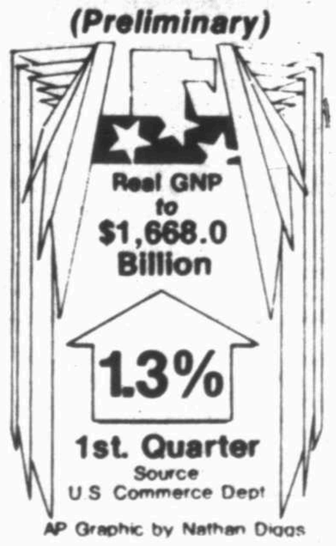

The Bank of England today announced a cut of one-half percentage point in two of its key interest rates as the pound climbed toward the highest level against the dollar since early September.

Because of the dollar's strength, many other countries have been keeping interest rates higher than they otherwise would, in an attempt to keep investments in their currencies competitive with returns on dollar-denominated investments.

But signs of a weakening economy and falling interest rates in the United States have undercut the dollar.

The Commerce Department Thursday revised its estimate of U.S. economic growth, as measured by the GNP, to a meager annual rate of 1.3 percent for the first three months of the year, compared with the initial estimate in March of 2.1 percent.

The revised figure for the GNP — the broadest measure of economic health — came in at the slowest pace since the end of the last recession,

AP Graphic by Nathan Diggs

when the GNP expanded at a rate of 0.5 percent in the final quarter of 1982.

The department said in a separate report that after-tax corporate profits fell 0.5 percent in last year's fourth quarter — the third straight quarter of sliding earnings.

"For some reason, the market really chose this number to hang its hat on," said Frank Pusateri, a currency analyst at the New York branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Since reaching record heights on Feb. 25, the dollar has plunged 12 percent and now is nearly 5 percent lower than when the year began, according to the Federal Reserve Board's measure of the dollar against 10 other major currencies. It fell 2 percent on Thursday.

The GNP report among other things signaled to the credit markets that interest rates were not likely to rise sharply soon. That clouded the outlook for increases in yields on dollar-denominated investments as well.

The prospect of stable-to-lower interest rates also sent bond prices soaring and interest rates skidding in the money markets Thursday. Interest on one-year Treasury bills fell to 8.10 percent from 8.32 percent the day before.

The Veterans Administration said it was lowering the maximum interest rate on federally backed mortgages to 12.5 percent from 13 percent, effective today.

The White House conceded the first-quarter economic performance was "clearly below" its expectations and put most of the blame on a surge of imports that hampered U.S. manufacturers' sales.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told reporters that the slow initial growth would make it difficult, but not impossible, to meet the Reagan administration's expected 3.9 percent growth for the entire year.

Some private analysts said the administration's 1985 economic growth target would not be met and that GNP growth would be about 3 percent — well below the 6.8 percent rate of 1984.

"The administration's forecast is out the window now," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

The 0.5 percent decline in after-tax corporate profits was a sharp revision from the Commerce Department's initial estimate that profits rose 0.4 percent in the fourth quarter of 1984. Profits had fallen 5.7 percent in the third quarter.

For all of 1984, however, after-tax profits rose 14.5 percent, following an even larger 21.6 percent gain in 1983, the government said. The 1984 gain came largely from strong growth in the first quarter, since each of the following three quarters showed weaker profits.

TI president expects 1985 'to be lean year' for his firm

DALLAS (AP) — This is going to be a lean year for Texas Instruments Inc., and it won't be much kinder to the already flagging semiconductor industry, TI President J. Fred Bucy has warned his company's stockholders.

Bucy announced an 88.6 percent drop in first-quarter earnings and a planned 1,000-job reduction at the company's annual shareholder meeting Thursday. Hours later, TI stock tumbled 12.5 points to 97¾ on the New York Stock Exchange.

The electronics giant's first-quarter earnings fell from $80 million in 1984's first quarter to $9.1 million in the same period this year, Bucy said.

Bucy attributed the drop to a continuing world oil glut, start-up costs for new plants in Dallas and Japan, and a semiconductor industry that has grossly oversupplied the market.

TI isn't alone in its financial setback, he said, predicting that the world semiconductor market will fare even worse than the 10- to 12-percent dip that some analysts have predicted.

That market "in 1985 will be down 15 percent from 1984, to $22 billion," he said. "We believe the impact that the weakness in the computer market will have on future semiconductor demand has not been fully recognized."

Bucy said he expects to see the crunch caused by too-fat inventories to begin dissipating by year's end, and TI has set an ambitious goal of tripling its annual sales to $15 billion by 1990.

But "the pressures on TI's profits will continue and may intensify in the near term," Bucy said, saying that shortened workweeks in the semiconductor division will be extended through June.

Bucy said another 1,000 jobs will be cut in the second quarter to help hold costs down, but TI officials said they haven't determined where those cuts will occur.

TI, which employs more than 83,000 people worldwide, announced a 2,000-job reduction in December, about 1,300 of those coming in Texas, according to TI spokesman Norman Neureiter.

Bucy said, however, that "we are continuing high levels of investment in research and development of new products and processes. Although this investment depresses near-term profits, it's the right decision for the long-term future of the company."

In the short term, first-quarter sales in 1985 were $1.29 billion, down four percent from last year's first quarter. Earnings per share were 37 cents, compared with $3.32 per share in the same quarter last year.

"No one predicted the severity of the semiconductor downturn" in an industry that swelled 46 percent in 1984, Bucy said.

But the TI chief said he was confident that many of his company's problems are behind it now.

After taking a financial beating in the personal computer market, TI scrambled out and is now concentrating on more specialized business and professional markets, Bucy said.

And the flap that started after the Defense Department stopped accepting TI chips has settled down, too.

Neureiter said it took TI three months to resolve the semiconductor testing problem that the company notified the Pentagon about several months ago. No equipment failure was ever found, he said, and the company considers the matter cleared.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Shell building coal gasification plant

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. has announced plans to build an environmentally sound coal conversion plant at its Deer Park manufacturing facility near Houston.

The "coal gasification demonstration plant" would be the first to use a clean, environmentally compatible process for converting nearly any kind of coal into medium Btu gas, James McCormick, manager of synfuels business development for Shell, said Thursday.

Construction should begin late this year and the plant should be operating in early 1987, Shell said.

Tandy reports 65 percent drop in earnings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Tandy Corp. reported Thursday that its third quarter earnings dropped 65 percent, in part because of a writedown of $18.25 million on computer hardware and software.

The computer and electronics firm, which markets products through its Radio Shack chain of stores, posted earnings of $21.9 million, or 25 cents per share, for the quarter ended March 31. That compares with earnings of $62.57 million, or 60 cents per share, for the same period of 1984.

Sales for the period were $670.5 million, up 2 percent from $656.1 million for the third quarter of fiscal 1984.

Muse losses jump 88 percent over last year

DALLAS (AP) — Struggling Muse Air Corp., the target of a pending takeover by rival Southwest Airlines Co., said Thursday its first quarter losses jumped 88 percent over the previous year to more than $5.18 million.

The regional air carrier had revenues in the period of nearly $26.2 million, up 15 percent from the $22.8 recorded in the same period of 1984. Losses per share increased from 59 cents in 1984 to 99 cents for the period ending March 31.

Muse recorded a loss of $7.75 million in the fourth quarter of 1984, and Chairman M. Lamar Muse said in a statement that losses had been reduced by schedule changes on Jan. 15 and expanded service.

Nakasone promotes economic policies

TOKYO (AP) — Saying there will be no exceptions to the principle of free trade, Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone set up a commission of top officials today to open the Japanese market to foreign products.

Nakasone, who will himself head the new External Economy Policy Promotion Headquarters, said in the first meeting that "no sanctuaries will be accepted."

"This is our last chance to promote external economic policies. If we fail this time, our international reputation would suffer greatly," Nakasone was quoted as saying in Japanese news reports of the meeting.

Meanwhile, U.S. trade officials said that congressional resolutions seeking retaliatory trade measures against Japan helped U.S. negotiators get significant compromises from Japan in five days of talks on telecommunications equipment which ended today.

Donald Abelson, director of technical trade barriers at the office of the U.S. Special Trade Representative, told a news conference the Ministry of Post and Telecommunications agreed to delete 10 of 30 remaining technical standards required of telephones and other telecommunications terminal equipment. Until April 1, there were 53 items on the list of standards.

He said that he and his group of technical experts also successfully negotiated the modification of two more standards. Abelson said six more items will be further clarified in ministerial circulars. He said 12 will remain unchanged.

Asked if he thought the non-binding resolutions against Japan in both houses of Congress have helped U.S. negotiations, Clyde V. Prestowitz, counselor to U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, said "Yes."

On April 9 Nakasone announced a three-year "action program" to lower tariffs, simplify import procedures and increase imports of manufactured products.

Nakasone also made a televised appeal to the nation to buy more foreign goods to defuse friction resulting from Japan's huge trade surpluses — $44 billion worldwide and $36.8 billion with the United States last year.

The new commission, consisting of all Cabinet members and leading officials from Nakasone's Liberal Democratic Party, will draw up details of the program this summer after receiving reports from government ministries. The outline of the "action program" will be completed in July.

Nakasone promised on April 9 that Japan would abide by a trade policy of "freedom in principle, and restrictions as exceptions."

When Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister Moriyoshi Sato said today that farm products should be among protected items, Nakasone responded, "There will be no exception to the principle of free trade. No sanctuaries will be allowed."

The commissioners agreed that a decision on lowering tariffs on plywood and boneless chicken will be made in June. The United States has pressed for lower levies on forestry products, while Thailand has demanded lower rates on boneless chicken.

On Monday, International Trade and Industry Minister Keijiro Murata plans to meet leading industrialists to enlist their aid in increasing imports.

The United States, Japan's main trading partner, is urging Japan to buy more telecommunications, electronics and pharmaceutical products as well as forestry products.

The semi-governmental Japan External Trade Organization announced today that in 1984, Japan purchased $40.6 billion worth of foreign manufactured goods, up 18.2 percent from the previous year. The manufactured goods accounted for 29.8 percent of total imports for the year, the organizations said.

According to figures of the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development, an international group, in 1982 manufactured goods accounted for 22.7 percent of Japan's imports, compared to 59.5 percent in the United States, 55.2 percent in West Germany and 65.5 percent in Britain.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Penn discovery flows 200 barrels

From Staff Reports

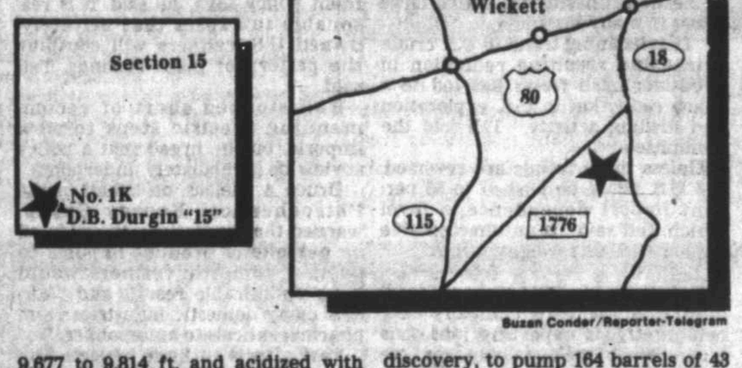

COASTAL OIL & GAS CORP., Midland, has completed the No. 1K D.B. Durgin "15", Ward County Pennsylvanian discovery, to flow 200 barrels of 41.3 gravity crude, 247 Mcfd and no water.

n a The well is flowing on a 12/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 860 psi from the Pennsylvanin interval 7,587 to 7,620 ft., which had been acidized with 2,700 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid. Gas-oil ratio is 1,235:1.

Permitted as a 9,400 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,146 ft. Plugged back to 9,060 ft., 5 1/2 inch casing was set at 9,142 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,545 ft., formation tops include the Queen at 2,682 ft., San Andres at 3,370, Glorieta at 4,562, Pennsylvanian at 7,587, Atoka Lime at 8,856, and the Barnett at 9,064 ft. Top of the pay is 7,587 ft.

The discovery is located 660 ft. from southeast and southwest lines of Section 15, Block 34, H&TC survey, 11 miles southwest of Monahans.

Upper Penn well pumps 356 barrels

A prolific Upper Pennsylvanian producer in the Baum field of Lea County, New Mexico, the AMOCO PRODUCTION CO. No. 3 State "DY", was tested to pump 356 barrels of oil 550 Mcfd and 170 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 1,545:1. Amoco perforated the Upper Penn 9,677 to 9,814 ft. and acidized with 3,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Drilled to 10,000 ft., the well is plugged back to 9,960 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,000 ft.

On a ground elevation of 4,296 ft., formation tops include the San Andres at 3,980 ft., Tubb at 6,836, Drinkard at 6,948, Abo at 7,550, Wolfcamp at 8,956, Pennsylvanian at 9,631, and the Cisco at 9,789 ft. Top of the pay is 9,677 ft.

Locationis 710 ft. from south and 660 ft. from west lines of Section 19, T13s, R33e.

Floyd oil discovery pumps 164 barrels

PRODUCERS OPERATING CO., INC. has completed the No. 1 Adams, undesignated Floyd County discovery, to pump 164 barrels of 43 gravity crude and no water. The operator perforated 7,613 to 7,669 ft. No treatment was reported.

Drilled to 7,808 ft., the well is plugged back to 7,690 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 7,808 ft.

Location of the discovery is 1,000 ft. from north and 2,175 ft. from west lines of Section 37, AB&M survey, Abstract 1692, 11 miles southeast of Floydada.

Penn producer flows 5.05 Mmcf per day

HARVEY E. YATES, Roswell, New Mexico, completed the No. 1 Page-Hanks "17", Barbasol (Penn) producer in Pecos County, for an absolute open flow of 5.05 Mmcfd. The well is flowing from the Penn interval 6,883 to 7,042 ft., which had been acidized with 4,000 gallons of 15 percent HCL.

Drilled to 7,730 ft., the well is plugged back to 7,120 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 7,730 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,880 ft., formation tops include the Queen at 2,246, San Andres at 2,423, Clearfork at 3,439, Wolfcamp at 6,220, Pennsylvanian at 6,750, and the Devonian at 7,530 ft. Top of the pay is 6,883 ft.

Location is 1,820 ft. from north and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 17, Block 125, T&STL survey, 14 miles west of Bakersfield.

Crockett gas strike tested for 175 Mcfd

A completion approximately 3/8-mile south of Canyon gas production in Crockett County's Ozona field, was finaled as an unidentified gas discovery.

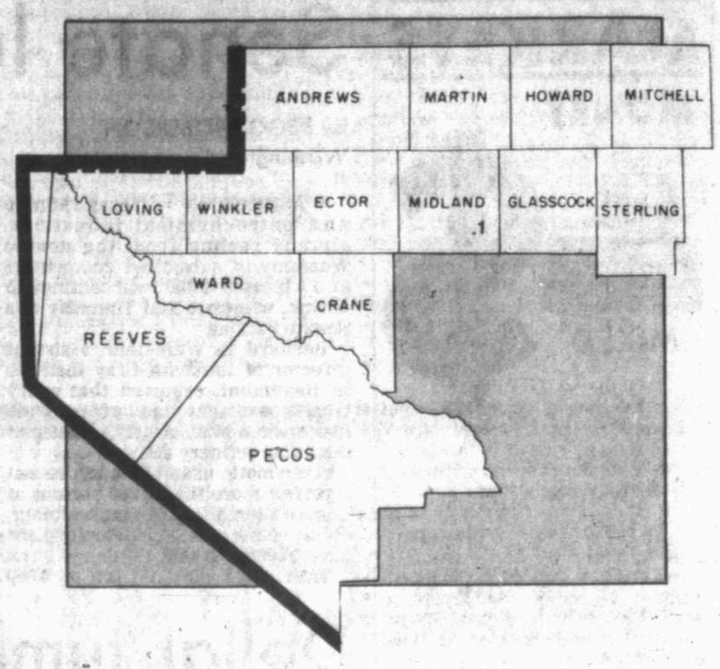

QUESTA OIL & GAS CO., Tulsa, Okla., tested the No. 1 Childress "9" for an absolute open flow of 175 Mcfd. The well is flowing from the pay interval 2,074 to 2,100 ft., which had been acidized with 2,500 gallons of acid and fracured with 40,000 gallons of gel and 76,000 lbs. of sand.

Total depth was 6,400 ft., plugged back to 2,227 ft. Final casing set was 4 1/2 inches at 6,331 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,319 ft., formation tops include the Clearfork at 1,842 ft., Spraberry at 3,200, Wolfcamp at 3,804, Friend Lime at 5,178, and the Canyon at 5,523 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 1,200 ft. from west lines of Section 9, Block XX, GC&SF survey, Abstract 3139, 18 miles southwest of Ozona.

Survey shows westerners lead in comfortable homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of the Western states are leading the "comfort sweepstakes," with more than a third of all homes having two or more bathrooms, new government figures show.

Nationally, the 1983 Annual Housing Survey found two or more bathrooms in 25 percent of all homes, ranging from 36 percent in the West down to only 15 percent in the Northeast.

Midwesterners had extra bathrooms in 18 percent of their residences, while the figure was 30 percent for the South, said the study by the Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The study also disclosed that, nationwide, more homes have complete kitchens than in 1970, central air conditioning is increasingly common and a larger proportion of homes are connected to public sewer and water systems.

Nationally, the survey counted 91,675,000 housing units, up from 67,699,000 in 1970.

Of the 84.6 million occupied units at the time of the survey, 64.7 percent were occupied by the owner of the unit and the balance by renters, the bureau reported.

The study said that of the 91.7 million homes surveyed, 23 million, or 25 percent, had two or more bathrooms. That's up from only 15.8 percent with extra bathrooms in 1970.

The largest share of homes across the country, 58.5 percent, had one bathroom and 13.5 percent boasted one and one-half baths. In addition, 2 percent reported no bathroom in their home, a decline from 8 percent in 1970. And a few thousand homes reported having a bathroom, but sharing it with another residence.

Even more common than bathrooms were complete kitchen facilities. The Census survey found that 98.4 percent of all homes had full kitchens, up from 96 percent in 1970. A complete kitchen was defined as one containing a sink with piped water, cookstove and a refrigerator.

Complete kitchens were reported in 99.5 percent of all owner-occupied homes, and 98 percent of rental units.

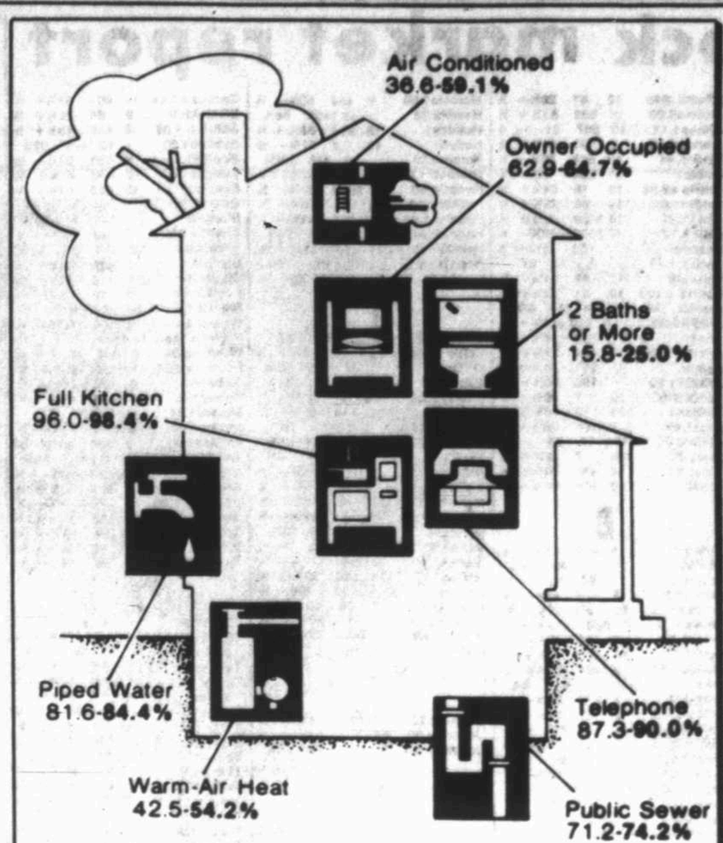

For year-round homes, the median size for was 5.1 rooms, the study said. It was 5.8 rooms for homes occupied by their owners, 4.0 rooms for rental units.

Some 38 percent of all homes had three bedrooms, the report continued, 33 percent had two bedrooms and 14 percent had only one bedroom. Two or three bedrooms were more common in owned homes, one or two bedrooms in rental units.

Warm-air heat is now the main source in over half of all homes, with warm-air furnaces and heat pumps covering some 54.2 percent in 1983. That's up from 42.5 percent in 1970.

And when those forms of heat are combined with steam and hot water, the total of homes with central systems climbed from 63 percent to 70 percent. At the same time, homes depending on heat from room heaters, fireplaces, stoves and portable heaters declined.

Of the nation's occupied homes, the report found that 55 percent used utility gas for heat, about the same as in 1970.

Hodel trys to end Continental Shelf quarreling

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Donald Hodel is trying to negotiate an end to quarreling between factions interested in Outer Continental Shelf oil leasing "so the next five years can be the most peaceful and productive ever."

The OCS leasing program has been mired in lawsuits, moratoria and legislative reform, said Hodel, keynoter at a three-day conference of the National Ocean Industries Association that ended here Tuesday.

One obstacle – the question of how to divide OCS revenues with coastal states in a "fair and equitable" manner – may be crumbling.

Texas and five other states Wednesday offered to settle for 37.5 percent of all revenues, including bonuses, royalties and taxes. Last year, the states rejected the federal government's offer of 16 2/3 percent of bonuses only.

Governors of Texas, Alabama, Alaska, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi signed the letter detailing the offer, described as "conciliatory" by a person who saw it.

California did not sign, but sent a separate letter formally rejecting the government's earlier offer without making a counter offer.

In his speech, delivered before he received the states' latest offer, Hodel explained that each time a lease-sale takes place, the Interior Department is required to propose a sharing arrangement.

If rejected, the proceeds from bonuses, rents and royalties for those areas are deposited into an OCS escrow account. That account now has about $5.7 billion. Texas, Louisiana and California are by far the largest claimants.

"Clearly, if we can settle this matter through negotiation it will remove an obstacle to the support of the program from key states," Hodel said.

The interior secretary, who also has viewed the OCS program from the perspective of Energy Secretary, said it can play an important part in slowing the trend toward increased oil imports.

The government historically had been acting as a "monopolist" with regard to its energy resources, he said, "limiting the resources leased and . . . driving up resource prices for consumers and, presumably, increasing our dependence on imports."

The OCS program is important for a number of reasons, he said:

"The balance of trade benefits are clear. It is estimated that our oil imports in 1984 cost about $38 billion. Add to that, expenditures for imported refined product and the figure rises to nearly $60 billion."

In addition, the U.S. has spent $15 billion to build the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, which can provide only limited protection, no matter how big or how costly, he said.

"OCS development provides daily one-and-a-half times the oil we could hope to get from the SPR. Also, instead of a supply that might last 90, 120 or 150 days, it is a day-in, day-out, year-in, year-out source of supply," he added.

Since 1954, more than $70 billion have been collected from OCS production. This has meant that OCS revenues have purchased more than 5.5 million acres of federal, state and local parkland, endangered species habitat and recreation areas through the Land and Water Conservation Fund, financed from OCS revenues.

NOIA soon will publish research on benefits of OCS activity to the economy, Hodel said.

Lampasas bank declared insolvent, closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 80-year-old bank in Lampasas, Texas, was declared insolvent Thursday by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency's office and was closed, but its deposits and some loans were assumed by another institution, officials said.

The Peoples National Bank of Lampasas, which had $33 million in 6,700 deposit accounts as of last Friday, was closed at 3 p.m. CDT by H. Joe Selby, senior deputy comptroller of the currency, spokesman Dean Debuck said.

The failed bank's office will reopen Friday morning as United Peoples Bank, a newly chartered institution, and depositors of the old bank automatically become depositors of United Peoples Bank, subject to court approval, said Alan Whitney, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman in Washington.

United Peoples Bank assumed deposits oillion to United Peoples and will retain loans and other assets of the old bank with a book value of about $14.8 million.

"Over the past year the bank experienced substantial deterioration in the quality of its loan portfolio," Debuck said. "The bank was unable to remedy its problems and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital, resulting in its insolvency."

Whitney said it was the second bank failure this year in Texas, and the 26th nationwide.

Members of the Tumbleweed Chapter of the Smocking Arts Guild of America gather to learn methods of the heritage craft of French hand-sewing and smocking from Sandy Hunter, past president of SAGA at a recent two-day seminar. The chapter meets monthly to share smocking techniques and patterns and sponsors national speakers at program meetings. Members plan to sponsor a booth at the Centennial celebration to sell their smocked items to raise funds for the chapter.

Quilters compete

Associated Press

American quilt-makers have a chance to win a cash award and a trip to New York in April, 1986, to participate in what is being billed as the largest quilt festival ever held.

The rules require each contestant to design and make an original quilt conforming to the themes of liberty, freedom and the American heritage. On the basis of color slides, between 500 and 1,000 quilts will be selected to be sent to New York next January. From this group, 52 semi-finalists will be chosen — one from each state, Washington, D.C., and U.S. territories, possessions and military bases.

A first- and second-place winner will receive $20,000 and $5,000 purchase prize awards, and their quilts will become part of the permanent collection of the Museum of American Folk Art in New York. All 52 finalists will receive air fare to New York for the festival and the two winners will recieve all-expense-paid stays.

The contest is sponsored by the museum and 3M Co. and is one of a number of activities being planned for the five-day festival which will take place April 22-27, 1986. The festival itself is a kind of opening salvo in the centennial celebration of the Statue of Liberty which is planned for the summer of 1986.

Before being sent on an international tour, the 52 award-winning quilts will be exhibited on Liberty Island, the home of the statue, between July 4 and October.

According to Dr. Robert Bishop, director of the Folk Art Museum, a quilt festival is particularly appropriate as a memorial to the Statue of Liberty — that most symbolic of American icons. Patchwork and pieced quilts are an indigenous American art form which is appreciated all over the world. In this country and elsewhere, enthusiasm for them is shared by art lovers, antiques aficionados and millions of quilt-makers.

Quilts figure in the lives of millions of Americans. Approximately 14 million were involved in quilt-making in 1983, according to a Daniel Yankelovich poll. Others attended quilt exhibitions, had an old family quilt repaired, or purchased a new or antique quilt.

Bishop, an authority on antique quilts and author of a number of books about them, has recently been studying the place of pieced quilts in contemporary life in preparation for the multi-faceted celebration the museum will orchestrate.

His travels have taken him to some of the scores of large quilt shows held each year in different parts of the country. Some of these shows attract thousands of visitors who participate in quilt-making workshops, look at exhibitions of exemplary quilts, and attend a trade fair where as many as 250 suppliers sell quilting materials.

Americans may not realize it but there is substantial international interest in American quilts and quilting. In Japan, for example, more than a dozen magazines are devoted to quiltmaking. In England, patchwork quilts are prized accessories in fashionable homes.

The museum festival will be a vehicle to bring together many in the quilting world, who usually have no contact with one another. For art lovers, there will be exhibitions and scholarly lectures. For quilt-makers, there will be workshops and quilting bees. For owners of old quilts, there will be repair clinics and appraisal sessions.

Among some special activities will be a fashion show of clothes made from quilted fabrics. Forty quilt dealers will sell their wares. An Amish quilting bee will be the centerpiece of a day devoted to Amish quilts and their role in the life of that community. A luau will be a feature on a day devoted to Hawaiian quilts.

Bishop expects as many as 150,000 to participate in the various activities. Organized tours will be arranged for quilting enthusiasts who live outside the New York area, he said.

To obtain a list of rules and an entry form, write to: The Great American Quilt Contest, One East Wacker Drive, Chicagi IL 60601. Or call toll-free 1-800-227-3800. For information on the festival, write the Museum of American Folk Art, 125 West 55th Street, New York, NY 10019.

Buying unfinished wood can cut furniture costs

Copley News Service

Unfinished furniture is a good way for budget-minded decorators to save money while decorating with wood furniture. However, most people think that staining and finishing a bare piece of furniture looks like a complicated job.

"But looks can be deceiving," said Homer Formby, a third-generation woodworker who developed a line of stains and finishes. "It's easy to get excellent results the very first time if you take it step-by-step."

And Formby agrees that unfinished furniture is a money saver.

"Visit an unfinished-furniture store and look at the beautiful furniture they're making today," he said. "You can buy well-made unfinished furniture for a fraction of the price of finished pieces. By investing a few hours of time and staining and finishing yourself, you can save up to 50 percent on your furniture dollar."

Unfinished furniture must be stained and finished in order to make sure the savings last. Untreated, unfinished furniture is likely to mildew or soak up blemishes and discolorations. The furniture therefore could lose its value.

"Besides saving money," Formby said, "staining and finishing furniture is a great way to rediscover the pleasure of working with your hands. There's a great feeling of pride and accomplishment in knowing you did it yourself."

Formby's steps for doing it yourself?

The first step is to sand the piece lightly with fine sandpaper or garnet paper. Then clean the piece with denatured alcohol, lacquer thinner or paint remover wash on a cotton cloth. This removes dust left from sanding and also removes dirt, glue or other imperfections that can appear on even factory-fresh furniture.

Next, determine if you should use a wood seal. Furniture made of soft woods such as pine, poplar or fir may streak when stained.

"Press your fingernail into the wood. If it indents easily, it's soft wood and should be sealed with a wood seal before staining. This keeps the stain from soaking in unevenly and results in a prettier, more expensive-looking finished piece," Formby explained.

Patchwork revives furniture

Copley News Service

Any plain piece of furniture will come alive when covered with fabric remnants in a patchwork design.

Cut the fabric pieces in various shapes and sizes. The colors and designs can be your choice.

Lightly sand the piece of furniture. Lay the fabric pieces face down on a newspaper and spray generously with a spray adhesive. Apply the fabric pieces until the furniture is covered completely.

Season arrives for thorough spring cleaning

Copley News Service

A thorough spring home cleaning can mean more than clearing the basement and washing windows. It should include a complete inspection of the home for possible trouble spots, storm damage and necessary general maintenance, according to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry.

Many tasks can be performed by a home owner. However, an unexpected problem or a large task may require help from a professional contractor.

— Areaways, basement windows. Clean and remove all leaves. Check for proper drainage. Check windows for signs of rust.

— Asphalt driveway. Patch cracks and holes. Coat with a sealer.

— Attic and crawl space. Check for water stains or condensation inside the roof sheathing. Check for birds or squirrels.

— Basement and crawl space. Inspect for moisture and cracks or leaks in walls. Cover open vents with screening. Check for termites and rodents.

— Bathrooms. Repair any cracked or peeling caulking along the tub, sink and toilet bases.

— Boilers and water heaters. Drain the sediment built up on the bottom of the unit.

— Central air conditioning. Clean and replace the filter. Remove any debris from around the condenser, and trim shrubbery away from the unit.

— Chimney cap. With binoculars, inspect for cracks and be certain the flashing is secure.

— Concrete driveways or sidewalks. Repair any cracks or holes. Inspect for salt damage.

— Exterior doors. Coat edges with paint or wood preservative.

— Exterior house paint. Prime and repaint blistered, peeling or exposed areas. Do not paint if the temperature is below 40 F.

— Exterior siding. Inspect for cracks or loose areas. Fill any cracks in stucco or caulking. Clear away any debris near wood siding.

— Exterior window shutters. Inspect and secure all hinges and laths.

— Fences. Check for loose posts or loose nails. Repaint or stain if needed.

— Floor drains. Clean if necessary. Flush out with a hose.

— Foundation walls. Check for signs of moisture, cracking and termites.

— Gutters and downspouts. Remove any debris and check for damage. Be sure the downspout drains away from the foundation.

— Interior paint. Wash walls and windows discolored from smoke and other pollution. Repaint if necessary.

— Interior walls and ceilings. Inspect for damp spots, mildew or discolored areas that could signal leaks. Check for condensation cracks around windows.

— Outside woodwork. Check varnish for peeling or flaking.

DEAR ABBY

Church bells might send families' fists flying

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married next month to a man who's in the Navy. Three months ago "Charlie" sent me a letter he had received from his mother in which she badmouthed my mother something terrible! Our families are worlds apart, and I think Charlie's mother feels inferior and insecure, and has a chip on her shoulder.

I was so shaken when I read that awful letter downgrading my mother, I read it to my parents. Now my mother says that she will not attend my wedding unless Charlie's mother apologizes to her. Charlie's mother says no apology is necessary because she didn't say anything to my mother's face.

I got alone fine with Charlie's mother before this happened. Whose fault was it? And what should I do? — IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: If you're looking for someone else to blame, start with Charlie's mother who wrote the letter downgrading your mother. Then blame Charlie for his poor judgment in sending that letter to you. Next blame yourself for reading it to your parents. What should you do? Try to get this family feud resolved so that at the sound of the (church) bell, everybody doesn't come out swinging.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a fine-looking woman with an outstanding figure. She has never owned a bra and probably never will. She says bras are uncomfortable, she's proud of her figure, and she has nothing to hide. In fact, she wears as little as possible.

I am proud of the way she looks, but my family is not. They have called her a "loose" woman. Well, she is not loose. I like the way she dresses and have personally bought her blouses and sweaters that show off her full figure because I think a little jiggle and bounce under her clothes looks nice.

Tell me the truth, do you think a woman who wears no bra is loose — or is it just my family? — PROUD OF MY WIFE

DEAR PROUD: A "loose" woman is one who is lacking in moral restraint. One who flaunts her full figure is merely lacking in judgment.

You obviously care what your family thinks or you wouldn't have written, so to minimize family criticism, minimize the "jiggle and bounce" in the presence of family.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I was very much in love with a man who didn't like my youngest son, so I stopped seeing him. Now I have met another man I like very much. He is good to my child, and we have a lot in common.

My problem now is that my older son joined the Navy and left me with Attila, his Great Dane. I live in a small apartment with no fenced yard. Since this Great Dane is little more than a puppy, he can be quite irritating. He's too strong and undisciplined for me to take for walks. My new friend dislikes dogs.

It's almost impossible to find a home for Attila — no one wants such a big animal. Having him put to sleep would make me feel guilty; he's a very sweet-tempered animal.

What on earth should I do? Shall I just wait until my son returns on leave, and let him remove the dog as he sees fit? If I keep him, it will be the end of my romance. — WORRIED SICK IN SUBURBIA

DEAR WORRIED: Check with your vet about obedience classes for Attila (he's old enough). And try to persuade your friend to go along. Observing how he handles frustration could give you valuable insight into what kind of husband he'll be.

AT WIT'S END

Burger War bombs go off

By ERMA BOMBECK

The casualties in the Burger Wars are mounting.

First, it was the clown at Jack In The Box who had a microphone implant in its mouth so people could transmit their orders through it. Everyone loved him. One day, they wasted him away with a stick of dynamite. The PR people took credit for the bombing.

Now, the life of Big Boy who has kept guard over the chain's 835 restaurants hangs in the balance. Diners are being asked to vote on whether or not he goes or stays. It's the Bert Parks story all over again.

Frankly, I think it's time for a little compassion in this country. Where does a 49-year-old fat kid with Reagan hair and checkered pants that make him look like he's starting the Indy 500 go after he's been turned out?

And more important, who is next?

Is it only a matter of time before the Colonel kicks his own bucket? Or that someone pulls the plug on the Golden Arches?

One of the analysts who knows about "images" said the Big Boy needs to look a bit more like Mr. T, star of "The A-Team," to appeal to kids. After all, the 23-year-old Ronald McDonald has done well for the McDonald chain.

I think someone should say something on behalf of all the advertising symbols who have served us so well for so long. I am comforted by familiar names and faces. If the Gerber baby is 86 years old and has gone complete cycle to adulthood and back to no teeth and strained lamb, I don't want to know about it.

If Mrs. Butterworth's mind has crystallized around the edges, I don't want her replaced by her granddaughter in a leather miniskirt.

Fast foods people are the only ones I know who go around shooting their own wounded. Some products hang on to their symbols for years. When Betty Crocker began looking a little dated, they gave her a new hairdo and a face lift.

Instead of putting Aunt Jemima in a home, they took off her bandana, gave her a home perm and allowed her to come into the 20th century.

And if we're talking guts, there's a restaurant in Disneyland that has Mickey Mouse nearby. Tell me what restaurant has the kind of courage to have a mouse hanging around.

But then, this is not an ordinary war. The battles between the burgers and the buns, the secret sauce versus the Mc/choices, the beef squared off against the quarter pounders and the Taco mission bell tolling for victory over the catfish makes the Star Wars stockpile look like a leftover.

Ever since Clara Peller became a double agent for Wendy's AND a spaghetti sauce, things have gotten real ugly. If Orville Redenbacher didn't own the company, I'd fear for his life.

Gypsum wallboard versatile

Associated Press

Gypsum wallboard, sometimes called plasterboard, enjoys equal popularity with do-it-yourselfers and professional builders because it is relatively inexpensive, can be handled without the skill required to use plaster, and is very fire-resistant.

This type of wallboard is made of gypsum plaster, a mixture of pulverized rock, hydrated pulp and a chemical binder. The plaster is sandwiched between tough paper which can be gray, cream-colored, white or any one of a dozen decorative designs.

There are many varieties of gypsum board for different purposes, among them those that are water-resistant, insulated and with an even stronger fire-resistance than the regular type. A lumber yard dealer once said: "If you can imagine a gypsum board for the special purpose you have in mind, the chances are that somebody makes it."

For the do-it-yourselfer, the size of gypsum wallboard that can be handled fairly easy is the 4-by-8 sheet; that is, 4 feet by 8 feet. Builders use larger sizes on occasion and, if you have need for something like a 4-by-10 or 4-by-12, your dealer can order it for you. But don't order one of the bigger panels until you know you can handle it. The larger sizes are heavier and more difficult to maneuver if you are working alone.

No matter which size you use and how carefully you have ordered the sheets to fit your particular project, you will have to cut gypsum wallboard now and then. It's difficult if you don't know how, but easy if you do. The board must be placed on a table or sawhorses or anything similar so that you can draw a sharp knife across the face side, using a straightedge as a guide. Move the scored line so that it is just on the edge of the support and snap it downward.

This will break the core, but the paper on one side will be intact. Carefully turn the board over and repeat the operation. The second cut will complete the job. If you do it exactly that way, there will be no tugging or pulling or tearing.

Whether the wallboard is installed vertically or horizontally, depending on the height of the wall, use special nails or screws to attach them to the studding. Use the same caution in getting everything straight as you would do with any kind of wall paneling, remembering the old maxim about "measure twice and cut once."

Since the wallboard is applied to studding and does not have a completely solid backing for fasteners, it is advisable to nail or screw right through the board into the studs if you wish to hang anything heavy.

Spring seed catalogs make flowery promises

Hearst News Service

It's the time of year when anxious gardeners fall prey to the promises beckoning from seed racks or covers of garden catalogs, a kind of a "come hither" seduction.

The offer is enticing: A few packets of flower seeds scattered freely through the garden will yield arm loads of fresh, colorful, fragrant flowers in a few months' time. Well, the offer is right and wrong. It's right because seeds properly chosen will deliver color in the garden and then can be enjoy in the home or on the patio table. It's wrong because it's not as easy as it looks.

Some flowers are best grown for staying in the garden. Others are best for cutting. Some do well on both counts. The trick is in knowing what is wanted and then reading the package or bedding plant tag carefully.

Height is one consideration. A plant that reaches eight inches at maturity won't produce flowers for cutting. "Thumbelina" zinnia is a good example. It grows just that tall and produces delightful flowers an inch or so across. It is a fine variety — but not for cutting. Its sole use should be in containers or especially grown en masse in the garden or as a border.

Flower type is another consideration. Some flowers have six petals; some have many more. Some flowers are arranged up and down the stem, some are borne at the top of the stem. Generally, flowers at the top of the stem makes the nicest arrangements. For example, gladioli flowers are arranged along the stem.

They are good for long, line arrangements but are not attractive plopped in a vase. Marigolds or zinnias, on the other hand, are ideal for cutting because there is a length of stem with (usually) a single flower at its end. They are good for plopping in a vase or arranging more artistically.

Pool guidelines offered

Copley News Service

Before diving into pool ownership, there are a few basic facts to consider and decisions to make.

Basically, you'll want to decide what size, shape and type of pool is best for you, where the pool should be located on your lot and who should build it for you. The National Spa and Pool Institute offers a wealth of information on pool ownership. Following are some of their guidelines.

To decide on pool size, the institute recommends allowing about 40 square feet per swimmer, 100 square feet per diver and 10 sqaure feet per "splasher," usually a child.

For example, a family composed of two swimmers, one diver and one splasher would require a minimum pool area of 190 square feet. However, keep in mind that abilities may change. Also consider how many guests you'll want the pool to accommodate if you use it for parties.

Intended use for the pool will determine the shape that's best. If you plan to use the pool primarily for exercise, consider a long, narrow, rectangular lap pool. If you play and entertain more than swim, you'll probably want a pool with a large shallow area, perhaps a square or kidney shape, and ample deck space. If divers will use the pool, water should be at least 7½ feet deep in the diving area.

Given the shape and size, there are a variety of types of pools to choose from.

— Gunite. This is the most popular and most expensive type of pool. It is constructed of concrete sprayed on steel mesh or reinforcing roads and finished with a coat of plaster.

— Vinyl. A prefabricated flexible plastic liner is hung over an in-ground frame of aluminum, steel, plastic, masonry block or wood.

— Fiberglass. This type of pool is prefabricated as a single shell or in sections. The shell is lowered into an excavation site that has been prepared in advance.

Before you decide to build any type of pool, check with the local zoning authority to determine restrictions on your property and to have a building permit approved.

You may have ideas about where you want your pool installed, but you'll have to abide by the directives of your city. You also should be willing to yield to the expertise of the builder you select.

Such factors as lot dimension, land contours, ground water, hard rock, proximity of utility lines, difficulty of access and local building codes will have a lot to do with where your pool ends up.

Cold creates penguin crisis

SEATTLE (AP) — An interruption in the food chain in Patagonia, the southernmost region of Argentina, led to the deaths of some half million young penguins, a University of Washington scientist reported recently.

Unusually cold weather during the summer season touched off the chain reaction, according to the scientist.

The weather prevented the usual upswelling of water that brings nutrients to the surface, thus there were no zooplankton for small fish and squid to feed on.

Penguins usually feed on these small fish and squid. The failure in the food chain, however, meant that there were fewer fish and squid in coastal waters and lead to much longer foraging trips for adult penguins.

This, in turn, meant that the recently hatched penguin chicks were left unprotected for longer periods, and approximately 500,000 of the young penguins died.

'Peyton Place' updated for TV movie

ENTERTAINMENT

By MICHAEL DOUGAN
Hearst News Service

Before leaving the airwaves 16 years ago, "Peyton Place" earned a spot in TV history by giving American viewers their first taste of prime-time soap. Though tame by contemporary standards, this series established the conventions that are now routine to its successors.

"Dallas," "Dynasty," "Falcon Crest" and others have borrowed more than a few pages from this story of love and lust in a small New England town. Nor have fans of the series forgotten it, or so Michael Filerman hopes. He is executive producer of "Peyton Place: The Next Generation," an upcoming TV-movie for NBC.

Filerman's tale focuses more on the older generation, with nine of the original cast members recreating their parts. Among these is Barbara Parkins, who played Betty Cord Harrington.

Ms. Parkins says the show "had a following all over the world, and even 16 years later people ask me about the show."

Ms. Parkins' wealthy character was not originally envisioned as an integral part of the storyline.

"I was only supposed to be in the show for six episodes," she recalled. "I think the character had such popularity they decided to keep her."

Also returning is Dorothy Malone, who played the sweet but simple-minded storekeeper, Constance MacKenzie-Carson.

Ms. Malone, who left the series a year before it was canceled and has since lived in Dallas, says the cast reunion "was just like seeing old friends."

Viewers too young to recall the series will get to sample it during the movie. Filerman has included three flashbacks incorporating footage from the series. But the new movie is different in some ways. For one thing, it's bolder.

"In the beginning, when we did it you had to have two single beds," says Ms. Parkins. "They had to be six feet apart and you couldn't sit on the beds. After a couple of years, we could bring the beds together and could sit on the beds, but you couldn't bring your feet up off the floor. We did everything using suggestion and also a part of the viewer's imagination, where now you have everything up front."

"The nice thing about this show is that we combine the elements of the '80s with a thin line of the old-fashioned qualities of what 'Peyton Place' was in the '60s," says Ms. Parkins.

Rita Lakin, who wrote the scripts for the series and the TV film, says she enjoyed dragging "Peyton Place" into modern times.

"It's 20 years and the whole world has changed, so when I started to write it I assumed Peyton Place has changed."

Ms. Lakin and the other writers on the original show have met for lunch over the years and fantasized about what has happened to the characters they created, she says. Because there were so many of them, however, she had to leave a few out of the new version.

"What I was trying to do was bring back the core characters," she explains. "We went all the way back to the beginning. These were the original characters."

That means that actors who played characters added later were not invited to appear. They include now well-known names like Lee Grant, Mariette Hartley and Leslie Nielsen.

Besides Ms. Parkins and Ms. Malone, returning "Peyton Place" alumni include Tim O'Connor, Ed Nelson, Pat Morrow, Evelyn Scott, Ruth Warrick, James Douglas and Chris Connelly.

Dioramas populated with roaches

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Cockroaches aren't inherently funny, but what Ricky Boscarino does with them is.

The 24-year-old artist fashions miniature wood and glass scenes and populates them with dead roaches. In one of the dioramas, a bunch of roaches yuk it up in a bowling alley; in another a pair admire statuary in the Galleria Borghese in Rome, where Boscarino studied art.

If Boscarino, a New Haven artist, had his way, he'd put cockroaches in the White House.

Among his creations is a finely detailed, tiny diner — the Eat Periplaneta — where roaches will soon be reading the menu. Boscarino has spent about 100 hours creating the diner, which uses a .22-caliber bullet for a cappuccino machine and aspirin tablets for counter stools.

"These are childhood memories of places I grew up near," says Boscarino, who is from Piscataway, N.J., where, he jokes, "there are no cockroaches."

He once aspired to become an entomologist but became bored with a 1980 summer job mounting insects for a Princeton University laboratory.

"I was thinking how can I make it creative, so I started mounting them in different poses," he said.

His first object of roach art shows two roaches seated at a table eating a meal.

Most of his raw materials are easily found — such as a clove painted green that becomes a bunch of broccoli in the grocery store.

But cockroaches, the most important ingredient, are a little too cagey to come by easily: "They are very intelligent. They can sense any predator long before it arrives."

One source of cockroaches is Boscarino's sister, a cartoonist whose cat catches the insects in her Washington, D.C., apartment. Others are rounded up "in the basements of Yale," while more have to be bought for $7.50 a dozen from scientific supply houses.

The return on investment is terrific, however. Boscarino's works start at $200 for dioramas with "two or three roaches. The more roaches, there's more elaborate scenes," which can boost the asking price to $3,000.

Pianist Byron Janis reveals painful secret

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Concert pianist Byron Janis has been performing for 12 years with a painful secret: He has arthritis in his hands.

It wasn't easy for the 57-year-old artist to publicly admit his illness because he didn't want sympathy or advice, and he didn't want listeners to blame any missed notes on his condition.

However, Janis decided to talk about his arthritis because he thought it would help others.

"It has been like a life and death struggle almost every day," he said in an interview. "Music to me was life. At any point, the thought of not being able to continue as a pianist was a terrifying one. I felt I must go on; it was horrendous but I did."

Janis has severe psoriatic arthritis which has resulted in limitation of movement and pain in his neck, right shoulder, jaw, wrists and fingers.

He was diagnosed 12 years ago when he went to a doctor in London for a scaly patch on his scalp. Janis can bend only one distal joint — the one closest to the fingernails. However, he can't make a fist.

While doctors have been amazed that he could play at all, Janis said, "I managed to maintain a very high standard. Otherwise I would have stopped. There were moments when I wasn't in top form. Those moments occur anyway.

"Human will and passion and discipline are very important. I've had those naturally. It's part of my nature."

A turning point came last summer, which made Janis decide to offer his services to the Arthritis Foundation. He was named its "ambassador for the arts."

"I was feeling awful. I decided the cortisone I was taking for three years was not being as effective," he recalled. "There was a risk in increasing it. I decided to get off it completely. I went on another diet. I was trying everything as everybody does. Up until three years ago I was managing on all kinds of other things and anti-inflammatory stuff.

"I thought, 'I may not be able to play much any more.' The thought occurred to me that there is one thing to do, to help others. I have, after all, done this for 12 years and that in itself I think would be of help to others, to know what you can do under such a circumstance.

"It became very difficult for me, once it was set to make this known. I thought, 'Everybody is going to think I'm some sort of freak.'"

As well as playing his regular 40 or 50 concerts a year, Janis will play some benefit concerts for the foundation and talk about a subject he's accustomed to keeping quiet. Until about a year ago, only his doctors and his wife, Maria, who is the late actor Gary Cooper's daughter, knew about the condition.

For one thing, a glance at the pianist's hands doesn't show a problem. "Two years ago we were invited for dinner at the White House. I was seated next to (artist) Andrew Wyeth. We were talking and he said, 'Gosh, you have such beautiful hands; I would love to paint them.' My heart leapt. I thought, 'It still doesn't show on the outside.'"

Over the years, Janis made a list of things he could do if he couldn't play the piano, including teaching, writing an autobiography and composing songs, film scores or a musical comedy.

"Last summer I went to the bottom. I thought I'd bottomed out many times in my life but this was it. I'd been playing since I was 5," he said.

Syrians try to mediate in Lebanon

AP Laserphoto

A Shiite Moslem militiaman stands guard in Beirut.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian leaders attempted to patch together Lebanon's national unity government today, meeting with militia groups that emerged victorious in west Beirut fighting and with the prime minister, who resigned in protest of the bloody battles.

Radio stations say the Syrians are unhappy about Prime Minister Rashid Karami offering his resignation and don't want to see Lebanon's fragile, year-old goverment collapse.

Syria has 30,000 peacekeeping troops in north and east Lebanon and is the main power broker in the country.

The radios reported that Karami held two overnight crisis sessions with Syria's vice president, Abdul-Halim Khaddam, in Damascus. They said there would be more talks today and possibly a Karami meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The radios said Khaddam also met with representatives of Druse militia chieftain Walid Jumblatt and with Nabih Berri, head of the Shiite Moslem militia, the Amal. Jumblatt and Berri are both ministers in Karami's Cabinet.

Militiamen controlled by Jumblatt and Berri defeated the PLO-trained Mourabitoun militia in two days of street battles. Police put the final casualty toll at 38 killed and 167 wounded.

Local press reports said that Jumblatt had participated personally in the 20 hours of street fighting in western Beirut, which is mostly Moslem.

A Sunni Moslem, Karami, 63, is a member of the the same religious denomination as the Mourabitoun and most Palestine Liberation Organization fighters. He resigned in protest Wednesday after the crackdown against the Mourabitoun, who had tried to set up an office in west Beirut, traditionally a Sunni stronghold.

The Mourabitoun, which means Ambushers, were allies of the Druse and Shiites against the Christians in Lebanon's 10-year civil war.

South-West Africa granted limited self-government

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa has announced it will grant limited self-government in the territory of South-West Africa, allowing an interim government to establish a bill of rights, court, and ruling council.

South Africa administers the territory, also known as Namibia, under a League of Nations mandate that the United Nations abrogated 20 years ago.

President P.W. Botha said Thursday the arrangement will not interfere with international plans for eventual independence of the mineral-rich territory of 1 million people.

He told Parliament that South Africa will work with the United Nations and other governments toward complete self-rule in the former German colony, which it occupied during World War I and controls under the League of Nations mandate.

"All laws of the (new) legislature will require the signature of the (South African) administrator general," Botha told Parliament. "South Africa will continue to negotiate with the United Nations and the international community on achieving internationally recognized independence for South-West Africa."

Botha said the planned interim government would create a constitutional council that would draft a proposed constitution.

The South African government has refused to move its troops out of the mineral-rich, 320,000 square-mile territory because of the presence of 20,000 Cuban troops stationed in neighboring Angola, which has given support to guerrillas fighting for control of Namibia.

The guerrillas of the South West Africa Peoples's Organization (SWAPO), have waged a 19-year war for power in the territory, including mining roads, bombing businesses and killing Namibians it accuses of cooperating with South Africa.

In New Delhi, India, Sam Nujoma, leader of SWAPO, said today the prospect for peace in the region was remote because of the "bullying and blackmailing tactics" of South Africa and the United States.

Nujoma spoke at a conference of the Non-Aligned Movement, which passed a resolution condemning South Africa's establishment of a temporary government in Namibia.

The conference was attended by 80 members of the 101-nation Non-Aligned Movement, including 28 foreign ministers, and was hosted by Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi.

The statement expressed "profound indignation that the racist South African regime has decided to proceed with its sinister scheme to install yet another puppet regime in illegally occupied Namibia."

The leaders expressed their support for SWAPO as the "sole and authentic representative of the Namibian people."

Botha said the interim government "will be empowered to promulgate a bill of rights and establish a constitutional court and constitutional council."

Yasser Arafat, left, and Rajiv Gandhi raise clasped hands in a sign of victory for the Palestinian people. Arafat arrived in New Delhi, India, Thursday for a Non-Aligned Movement meeting on Namibia.

He told a news conference later: "We will immediately start with the implementation of the government in South-West Africa.... Many steps will have to be taken to bring about a government. It is not only by the stroke of a pen that we can have a government."

The Reagan administration sides with South Africa, arguing that Namibian independence is not feasible until the Cubans leave the former Portuguese colony of Angola.

A U.N. plan for Namibia devised in 1978 provides for 7,500 U.N. soldiers and civilians to oversee a cease-fire and monitor a seven-month period before election of an assembly that would write a constitution.

India probing its biggest spy case

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's biggest spy case in nearly 40 years of independence, revealed early this year, involved 11 agents from the Soviet bloc and France who served here as diplomats, according to an official document.

The document accuses 19 Indians, 12 of them government officials, of providing secret information on India's defense, finances, commerce and foreign policy.

The government charge sheet names five alleged spies from the Soviet Union and two each from East Germany, Poland and France, and said the four intelligence agencies acted independently. A copy was obtained Thursday by the United News of India, which made it available to The Associated Press.

"During the investigation, a large number of foreign diplomats have figured who were actively involved in the conspiracy to procure from India information of highly classified nature, which has undermined the interests, safety and security of the state," said the 2,100-page document filed by a prosecutor Monday in a New Delhi district court.

The "intelligence agencies and their functionaries had independently hatched and implemented a general conspiracy in respect of India aimed at obtaining through clandestine and illegal methods official documents and information," it said.

The espionage, discovered in January, was "hatched by unknown functionaries of the foreign spy networks and executed by their agents in India under the cover of embassy assignments," it added.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman, Vladimir N. Tsatsyn, told The Associated Press: "There are no grounds for allegations of Soviet involvement."

The Polish Embassy's counsellor, Stanislaw Pawelczyk, said the allegation against his embassy was "not true, exaggerated," and East Germany's counsellor, Karl Fischer, said he knew of no involvement by his country.

France's embassy declined comment.

Lt. Col. Alain Bolley, a French deputy military attache named in the charge sheet, was recalled Jan. 20 after Indian news reports that he was buying secrets. The French ambassador, Serge Boidevaix, was recalled in February.

The East German, Polish and French diplomats named allegedly obtained classified documents from a New Delhi-based Indian businessman identified in the charge sheet as Coomar Narain.

It said the Soviets got information from two Indians working for Narain's Bombay-based S.L.M. Manekial Industries, an import-export company dealing in textiles, electronics and chemicals.

The businessmen got the information from the government officials named in the charge sheet and Narain supplied it in return for help securing foreign contracts, the document said.

The charge sheet identified the alleged French spies as Lt. Col. Alexi Morvan, deputy military attache in the French Embassy from February 1977 to August 1980, and Bolley, his successor.

The Soviets named were Leonid Burnev, B. G. Krylov, G.N. Roudney, S.L. Kehlebnikov and a person identified as Portnov — all described only as officials of the Soviet Embassy.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Air Force jet crashes in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet crashed at sea on a routine training mission in northern Honduras and the fate of the two crew members on board was unknown, the U.S. Embassy said.

The two crew members, both Americans, were believed to be dead, but U.S. soldiers continued searching for them, said an embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The names of the missing crew members were not released.

Wreckage of the OA-37 training bomber was found 15 miles northeast of Punta Sal, a port 217 miles north of Tegucigalpa, the spokesman said. The site is near Honduras' northeast coast, south of Belize, far from the Nicaraguan border.

Police, protesters clash in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Witnesses and news reports said police and thousands of anti-government protesters clashed at a monument and on 18 college campuses today, the 25th anniversary of a student-led uprising that led to the downfall of the Syngman Rhee government.

Students threw stones, torches and bottle bombs in attempts to break through police cordons just outside campuses, witnesses said. The Yonhap news agency said demonstrations were reported on 18 campuses in Seoul.

Almost 6,000 slogan-chanting people, mostly students, tried to march near a memorial tower and cemetery in northern Seoul which contains the graves of more than 180 students killed during the 1960 uprising, witnesses said.

Papl visit to Netherlands satirized

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Pope John Paul II has become the object of a satirical series on television, and a lampoon of the official Vatican newspaper hit the newsstands Thursday as the Dutch take a humorous view of the pontiff's impending visit.

One recent Saturday evening, about 5 million Dutch television viewers watched as someone bearing a strong resemblance to the pope tried to master the art of milking cows.

And in February, they were asked to believe that the pontiff was learning a favorite Dutch winter pastime — skating on the frozen waterways.

Harry Vermeegen, one of the writers of the weekly show "Pisa," described the pope jokes as a "mild protest against the upcoming visit of the pope to the Netherlands," and the skits purport to show John Paul's preparations for his first-ever papal visit here starting May 11.

Anglican priest bans witch's lecture

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — An Anglican priest has banned a witch from giving a lecture to local townswomen at a parish church hall, saying witchcraft is "anti-Christian."

Pat Crowther, High Priestess of the Sheffield Coven in northern England, said she was to have lectured to the women's guild Wednesday night on the history of witchcraft, but was banned by the Rev. John Marsh.

"I suppose he thinks I would arrive on a broomstick wearing a pointed hat," said Ms. Crowther. "Their attitude is both wicked and bigoted.... We have no connection with the devil. That's something the church thought up to frighten people."

Marsh said he had his vicar's backing.

Rebel, Sudanese leaders to talk

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (LAT) — The military government of Sudan announced in Khartoum Thursday that southern rebel leader John Garang was flying to the Sudanese capital for talks with Gen. Abdul-Rahman Mohamed Swareddahab, the military leader of the 13-day-old government. But Garang's lieutenants here called the announcement "a lie."

Rather than negotiating with the new Sudanese government, leaders of the Sudan People's Liberation Army here said the rebel movement had decided to wage war against the military leadership in Khartoum until it handed power over to civilians.

The report that Garang was headed for talks in Khartoum followed Swareddahab's announcement of a major concession to the rebellious south. The new government, he said, had decided to reunify the country's three southern provinces, reversing a June 1983 action by former President Gaafar Nimeiri that played a major role in launching Garang's rebellion.

Mexican drug arrests 'tip of iceberg'

MEXICO CITY (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John Gavin said Thursday that arrests of alleged Mexican narcotics traffickers following the kidnap-murder of an American drug agent are "just the tip of the iceberg" and that both Mexico and the United States must make a national commitment to fight illegal drugs.

Gavin spoke at a meeting here of the Dallas Assembly, an organization of business, professional and civic leaders from Dallas.

Arrests since the murder of Enrique Camarena Salazar, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent who worked in Guadalajara, "demonstrate not only the Mexican government's commitment to fight trafficking, but, also, unfortunately, the corruption that makes this kind of activity possible," he said.

But he said the United States also is to blame.

"We have our own corruption — including corrupt cops, judges, prosecutors and FBI agents," he added. "We have the lion's share of the world narcotics market."

Rights charges anger Gorbachev

BOSTON (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev exploded over complaints about Soviet human rights violations and showed himself a tough match for President Reagan, says a Republican congressman who met him last week.

"If the president ever has to go over there for a summit, with all the changes in time and food, he'd better get over early and get plenty of rest before he takes on that tiger," Rep. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts told the Boston Herald on Thursday.

Conte accompanied U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. at a four-hour meeting with Gorbachev during a visit last week to the Soviet Union.

"Gorbachev is quick, fast, smooth and tough," Conte said.

He said the leader exploded and pounded the table when O'Neill handed him an envelope filled with complaints about human rights violations in the Soviet Union.
