

On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

The News sent out subscription expiration notices a few days ago and the response has been very gratifying. We haven't counted the number who have been in to renew or sent it through the mail but there has been quite a few. We appreciate those in our community who subscribe to their home town paper. We believe they are getting a bargain. If you are not a subscriber you are missing out on a lot of Loraine news. Sure, you can read some Loraine news in other papers but when you read it in the Loraine paper you get the whole story not just the high lights. There are few papers published today that give as much "home town" news as does The Mitchell County News. If you are skeptical just come to our office some time and check some of the papers we get.

We know spring is here because we hear farmers talking about planting cotton. Everybody has a different idea about the time to plant cotton. I am reminded that I once knew a banker who told his customers "the time to plant is when you get the moisture". Anyone who has been in this section for any length of time knows that one year early planting may work out fine and the next year late planting will do better.

Farming is like the newspaper business in some respects. The farmer never knows until after harvest exactly what kind of crop he will make. The publisher never knows until the deadline comes each week how many ads he will have in the paper. Sometimes a merchant will say early that he intends to have an ad and will get up the copy but the deadline comes and he still does not have it ready and says "I'll just skip this week". So we never know for sure what we'll have in the way of ads.

Texas Electric Service Company Operates Longest Steel Tower Line

Fort Worth - The longest steel tower electric power transmission line ever built in the Southwest has been put in operation by Texas Electric Service Company between Fort Worth and Odessa. The line, which is 336 miles long, more firmly links Texas Electric's eight power plants and various major load centers served by the company.

Announcement of completion was made by Beaman Fisher, president and general manager of the company.

"Construction of this new line is further evidence of Texas Electric's confidence in the continued growth and progress of the North Central and West Texas area we serve," Fisher said.

Construction of the big, new line required nearly 500 carloads of steel and conductor, Fisher said, pointing out that the line was built in the shortest time of any line of its type and size anywhere in the U. S.

The western terminus of the new power line, which now operates at 138,000 volts but is designed for conversion to 345,000 volts as the use of electric power increases, is near Odessa.

Later the line will interconnect with a 345,000-volt line to be completed by other Texas power companies in 1964 between the Fort Worth-Dallas area and Houston. When this connection is completed, the power systems of Texas as Power and Light Company, Dallas Power and Light Company, Houston Lighting and Power Company and Texas Electric will be more firmly interconnected to exchange much greater quantities of power during emergency conditions and to achieve maximum economy in providing the electric power generating reserves of each company system, Fisher said.

Tumbleweed Festival At C. City May 11-12

Bob Reilly, Prade Marshall for the 1962 Tumbleweed Festival parade, this week began a search for antique cars to add still more color to this already colorful segment of the Festival. The three year old annual event is slated this year for May 11 and 12.

Reilly stated that the parade would be open to anyone wanting to drive a restored antique car. The only requirements are that the car must be pre-World War II, in good shape and run under its own power.

Other major features of the parade, which this year will be in honor of Congressman George Mahon, will be some 20 floats made primarily of tumbleweed.

Tumbleweed Queen Pageant contestants will ride the floats in the parade. Convertibles carrying Mahon, the secretary of the Air Force and other state and national dignitaries will be intermingled with the floats.

Music and color will be provided by area school bands. An Air Force Color Guard will lead off the hour-long parade.

That night the first, second, and third place winners in the Miss Tumbleweed contest will be named in a series of eliminations. A message from Mercury prompts this story. Not the planet Mercury—for this isn't a space-age story.

We mean the Mercury outdoors people. They remind us that down Texas way, the time is nigh when the "bow-hunting" fisherman can have a ball.

There is a group of sportsmen (and women) in this world who think nothing is more fun than to combine hunting and fishing, using the weapons of ancient time to harvest one of the most ancient of fishes.

In states where it is legal and it is in most counties in Texas, they take a bow and arrow and go fishing (or hunting) for carp, impaling the fish with an arrow when the fish come into the shallows of rivers or lakes to spawn. It's one of the most exciting sports of all, since it is an apt combination of fishing and hunting.

If you've ever tried it, you know it takes a real hunter to sneak up on carp. It's certainly no casual process.

Those big scaled vacuum cleaners are a spooky, jittery lot. They are quick to spot a potential danger and react immediately.

submerging in a split second. About the only time you can slip up on them is when they are spawning.

This occurs when the water warms to their liking in the spring. Then they proceed into shallow water and roll in the spawning process.

Sometimes you can see half of the fish's back sticking out of the water.

Carp hunters usually use a lightweight outboard motor to get them to the shallow water six to eight inches deep, ever alert for the scaly back of a lunker carp.

This type of fishing-hunting work best when one person does the poling and another the shooting. In fact, it may not work at all unless the hunter is all out to shoot. He must have an arrow at the nock, with the line running from arrow to bow reel free and ready for a quick shot.

Carp do not wait for the shot. They come up like a surfacing whale, stay on the surface for an instant or two and down they go again. It is during this brief time they are on the surface that the arrow must be released. Sounds interesting, doesn't it?

It is too—and very much so. Get a team of carp-archers into a "hot" spot and an afternoon of thrills is in store for them!

It's a thrill even when you miss—the carp are the water's splashiest critters you ever saw, when spooked.

Carp a Native of Asia
In 1877 the carp, a native of Asia that had been transplanted to Europe, was further transplanted to the United States. This started one of the greatest sports of all time.

Pioneers of carp fishing, by the hook and line method, and there are some say that they require great sport, good eating and require a fair amount of provide great sport, good eating skill to catch. But they say this in the face of the almost overwhelming feeling of others that a carp is a "junk" or "trash" fish, a good for nothing but fertilizer and cat food.

Perhaps the truth lies somewhere in between, with the carp neither a complete villain nor a perfect hero. After all, hardly anyone is perfect.

It is hard for Texans to realize, but in many parts of the country, it is carp, and carp alone, that provide all the readily available fishing for a great many people.

For example—a number of lakes in eastern Nebraska are stocked annually with thousands of pounds of carp. Purpose is to provide fishing for those who are far removed from gamefish waters.

Other states provide the same service for metropolitan areas where people are starved for recreation. What many fishermen fail to realize is that it takes real strategy to catch a carp.

These soft-mouth critters are as nervous as a henpecked husband at a stag party. They are quick to drop a bait if it does not suit them in every way.

To be a success at carp fishing, use light lines, small hooks, bring a few grains of whole kernel canned corn on a hook and drop it into carp infested areas.

Do not use heavy weights. Carp swallow the bait slowly. If they feel the pull of a sinker they will drop the hook.

Anxious to try your luck at carp fishing—or how and arrow hunting for carp?

It's a good way to test your skill—and have some fun.

The Case Against Race Track Gambling

Texans on May 5 will vote their opinion "for" or "against" legalized gambling. The primary ballots of both parties will carry the question. We who are against legalized gambling urge every thoughtful man and woman to vote "against."

Not one valid argument can be advanced on gambling's behalf. The total experience of mankind argues eloquently against it.

Is gambling economically justified?

Virgil W. Peterson, director of the Chicago Crime Commission, testifies "Gambling drains the salaries, savings and investments of a community into a business enterprise that serves no human need. Those who benefit from gambling profits are almost without exception members of the underworld who invariably control the gambling business."

Gambling is the biggest single cause of such crimes as embezzlement and invariably brings in its wake a mounting stack of unpaid bills, skipped installment payments, repossessed automobiles and furniture, and lapsed insurance policies.

Since some people gamble anyway, shouldn't we make it legal in order to police it?

The Chairman of the United States Senate Investigating Committee says no. "No plan for legalized gambling that was presented to us seemed to carry any guarantee of success."

Isn't race track gambling a good source of tax revenue?

Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin says, "The idea that legalized gambling will be a revenue-raiser is an illusion. Every dollar raised from such sources means five dollars spent in higher police costs, higher court costs, higher penitentiary costs and higher relief costs."

But after all, isn't pari-mutuel gambling pretty harmless? So a guy loses two dollars.

This is the same, tired, fallacious combination of words mouthed by every gambling profiteer from Al Capone to Benny Binion.

The sad fact of gambling can be told in four words of Damon Runyon, "horse players die broke." A two-dollar bet is murder. Gambling . . . two dollars . . . ten dollars . . . a hundred to recoup . . . is a cause of broken marriages, neglected children, poverty and sometimes suicide.

Ask a bank examiner. Ask a divorce court judge. Ask a probation officer. Ask your retail credit association. Ask the relief people. The easy money boys won't give you the answer.

Small wonder that the three D's of gambling have been described as Debt, Degradation and Death.

You won't succumb to the fever, nor will we. But frankly we don't want our kids to be exposed to such characters as Hot Horse Herbie, Harry the Horse, Bookie Bob and John the Boss.

We don't want our kids to grow up around a race track.

Do you?

Soil Erosion Costs Money

By Tommie J. Holder, Soil Scientist
Soil Conservation Service
Soil erosion costs you money. You are either a landowner whose valuable topsoil is being lost, or you are a taxpayer whose tax dollars are being spent to combat erosion or repair damage caused by erosion, or you may be both of these people in one. In either case, soil erosion costs you money most of which is unnecessary.

Soil erosion can be controlled. Loss of topsoil can be practically eliminated, crop damage caused by washing or blowing can be greatly reduced, silting in of water supplies and damage done by blowing sand can be reduced by proper land treatment. The key word in the solution of the soil erosion problem, however, is YOU. It is your soil, or your tax dollar, or both that is being lost when soil erosion occurs.

You have seen and felt the effects of soil erosion. Perhaps the most irritating of these effects in the Mitchell County Soil Conservation District is the annual "blow season". The dreaded sandstorm makes us very uncomfortable. Our discomfort is of small importance though when compared to the actual damage done to small growing crops, loss of clay and silt particles which hold the soil's fertility, destruction of fences and the inconvenience and cost of removing drifted sand from roads after every bad "blow". Cost of these damages when added to the cost of emergency tillage to prevent or reduce soil blowing amounts to several thousands of dollars annually.

Erosion caused by water may be even more costly than that caused by wind. Top soil lost to water erosion is usually from our most fertile land. Costly mechanical structures such as terraces and waterways are frequently

PIONEER CHICKEN BREEDERS BACK 4-H PROGRAM

H & N Farms Offer Awards To '62 Winners

SPECIAL—Hundreds of 4-H Club members and other youth groups have had a glimpse of what goes on inside one of the most modern and scientific hatcheries in the world: The Heisdorf & Nelson Farms, Inc., at Kirkland, Wash., just outside Seattle.

Pioneers in breeding and housing research, H&N have not only made an important contribution to the poultry industry, but are now ready to make a sizeable contribution to 4-H as the new sponsor of the national 4-H poultry program. "When the opportunity to support a national 4-H Club program came our way," said Arthur Heisdorf, president, "we were mighty pleased. We have been involved locally with 4-H and throughout the state. Now we can be in it all the way."

Will Aid Many

Heisdorf believes that 4-H boys and girls will benefit personally through individual and team efforts to produce better quality chicks and eggs. Then there is the added possibility of earning money, he pointed out.

"The entire poultry industry can benefit, also," Heisdorf said, "because 4-Hers will come to know of the challenging career opportunities which lie ahead." Recent visitors to the hatchery were Candace Gardner, almost 11, and Gary Moffett, 11, members of the Flintstone Flyers 4-H Club of nearby Redmond. The youngsters stood in awe at the long rows of incubators, and squealed with delight when allowed to hold a tray of newly hatched chicks. Candace and Gary soon will join more than 115,000 other 4-Hers working on a poultry project. These young people are learning the latest methods of chicken and egg production based on scientific findings and technology of the agricultural college experiment stations and private hatcheries.

April is a wonderful time for chick and child. And it's especially wonderful when you can get the first look at a batch of newly hatched chicks as these 4-H Club members are doing. Here, Candace Gardner, who will celebrate her 11th birthday May 25, and Gary Moffett, already 11, admire the handful of day-old chicks held by Arthur Heisdorf, president of Heisdorf & Nelson Farms, Inc., of Kirkland, Wash. Candace and Gary belong to the Flintstone Flyers 4-H Club in nearby Redmond and are considering starting a poultry project of their own.

Awards for 1962
Among the tangible benefits to club members are the following awards provided by the new sponsor: A medal for four county winners, and for the state winner a free trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Six national champions will receive $400 scholarships. The 1962 award winners will be named by the Cooperative Extension Service. Further information can be obtained from the county extension agent or the state 4-H Club office.

destroyed or lose their effectiveness because of water-transported topsoil. Farm ponds lose their capacity due to sedimentation caused by upstream erosion, and perhaps more serious, is the loss of capacity of municipal water reservoirs. Measuring the eventual cost of such damage is frightening. Again, most of this cost is unnecessary.

The responsibility for controlling erosion is yours, the landowners and taxpayers. You have control of the land and must make the decisions concerning how it is used and how it is cared for. Soil erosion is a damaging, costly by-product of improper land use that becomes more serious the longer it goes uncontrolled.

Erosion control can be accomplished, but there is no "one shot job finished" solution to the problem. Terracing does not completely stop water erosion; nor is emergency tillage to create surface roughness the only way to control wind erosion. Erosion control starts with a complete plan of proper land use and may involve several alternative mechanical and vegetative control measures.

If you have a soil erosion problem, help is available. The Soil Conservation Service, through a memorandum of understanding with the Mitchell County Soil Conservation District, furnishes technical assistance to cooperators with the District, to solve erosion and other conservation problems. Service technicians can explain the alternative solutions involving combinations of mechanical and vegetative practices. They can also provide the designs for necessary terraces, diversion terraces and waterways, and provide assistance for on-the-ground layout and checking out construction such structures.

COTTON COTTON COTTON
Cotton in the valley
Cotton on the hills
Cotton growing everywhere
Causes lots of rills.

Hills are just young gullies waiting for a chance
To go right on down the hill
Without a backward glance.

When one small drop of water runs
Or one small sandgrain blows
A tiny bit of soil is lost
That's how erosion grows.

Now what about this cotton
Just planted everywhere
It looks to me like some folks
Just really don't much care.

They're trying out this old land
To see if it will blow
When all the time, I'm pretty sure
That they already know.

Now cotton is the "money crop"
Without it we can't eat
That makes this all a puzzle
That sure looks hard to beat.

But with cotton growing everywhere
With two rows for a middle
Just plant those blanks to peas or grain
That's the answer to this riddle.

TORNADO SAFETY RULES

To know what to do when a Tornado is approaching may mean the difference between life and death!

I If you are near a tornado cellar: When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure. It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas or debris, and preferably equipped with pick and shovel. There is no universal protection against tornadoes except underground excavations.

II If you are in open country: 1. Move at right angles to the tornado's path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour.

2. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression such as a ditch or ravine.

III If in a city or town: 1. Seek inside shelter, preferably in a strong reinforced building. Stay away from windows!

2. In homes: The corner of the basement toward the tornado usually offers greatest safety, particularly in frame houses. People in houses without basements can sometimes be protected by taking cover under heavy furniture against inside walls. Doors and windows on the sides of the house away from the tornado may be opened to help reduce damage to the building.

3. Standing against the inside wall on a lower floor of an office building offers some protection.

IV If in schools: 1. In city areas

If school building is of strongly reinforced construction, stay in-

THIS BILL WOULD

HURT THE FARMER AND SMALL BUSINESS MAN.

WOULD FOR ALL PRACTICAL PURPOSES ELIMINATE THE MOVEMENT OF FARM WORKERS WITHIN THE STATE

House Bill 113 sets out at great length several pages of detailed complicated, ridiculous requirements that must be met by any person or carrier who transports migrant labor within the state.

The bill is clever, in fact, too clever an effort to lay out a catalog of requirements that on their face may at first appear plausible. Taken as a whole, however, the bill presents a great multitude of requirements, many of them hazy or ambiguous meaning - all designed with one purpose in mind - TO ELIMINATE THE FLOW OF FARM LABOR.

THE MIGRANT LABOR BILL WAS ENDORSED AND SUPPORTED BY AFL-CIO.

DON'T FORGET ELECTRICAL SYSTEMS DURING CLEANUP

College Station, April 26-Spring Cleanup Week, April 29-May 5 offers an excellent opportunity to clean up potential hazards in your farm wiring and electrical equipment. This word comes from W. S. Allen, extension agricultural engineer. He says many hazards have never been corrected simply because time was not taken to clear them up.

Allen offers several suggestions for an electrical cleanup program. First, clean around all main electrical switches by removing any obstacles which might prevent you getting to them quickly. Plug holes in any main switch boxes, because small animals can get inside and possibly cause trouble. After this is done, clean the outside of corroded or rusty switch boxes with a steel brush and mineral spirits, and then repaint them.

Cobwebs, dirt and trash should be removed from around lights or switches, especially in hay barns, cribs and feed rooms. Heat from bulbs can set off an explosion or cause fire where dust or cobwebs accumulate.

You should also replace faulty wall switches or convenience outlets that have bad contacts or do not work properly, continues Allen. Repair frayed or damaged cords on any portable equipment such as irons, heaters, lamps or small appliances, and replace outside wires that have lost their insulation.

Make sure that no clothes line poles, antennas or other such possible contacts can be made with your system of wires around the farmstead.

Allen points out that the appearance and safety of the farm is vastly improved by a neat outside electrical distribution system. Spring Cleanup Week is a good time to repair any flaws in yours.

GAME WARDENS WANTED

San Angelo, April 27-Applications for employment of a limited number of game wardens are now being accepted by the Game and Fish Commission. The Commission is interested in receiving these applications from young men between ages 21 and 40, who are high school graduates and have an interest in wildlife conservation. The need for the additional applications has been brought through reorganization of the Game and Fish Commission, which has created additional opportunities for advancement of men who can meet the requirements.

Application forms are available at local Game and Fish Commission offices or from Personnel Office in Austin. Completed applications must be received by the Personnel Office prior to May 15, 1962. Written and oral examinations will be conducted in selected areas throughout the state in June, to make final selections.

Applicants selected will be employed in September, 1962, and will attend the 16-week game warden training course at Texas A&M College, scheduled for February, 1963. The course of instruction includes all phases of conservation work.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Finch and children of Midland spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Dee Finch.

"WHY I WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE"

By Annette Browning

The future of the American communities, states, and nation depends upon the young people of today. These young people will hold in their hands the responsibility to advance the prestige and integrity America has gained since 1781 when this nation became independent.

VAN BAUCUM

dent. The kind of responsible, dependable adults the young people develop into is dependent upon the training and education they receive in their adolescent years. I believe college is of vital importance in linking this young person with the adult he will become. College helps this young person become capable of working with others and of taking the individual responsibility that is the very foundation of our democratic way of life. In a democracy, such as America, each individual can effect the destiny of this nation. Each American has a responsibility to his country to uphold to the best of his ability those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity upon which America was established. College will assist the American student to gain a greater appreciation of the many contributions which so many people in so many different ways have made to our democratic society.

I believe that for our country to grow and flower as a nation, higher education for the young people is essential. I want to go to college so that I might learn to be a better citizen of this greatest nation in the world. The colleges of America will develop people who will guide our nation's destiny.

College is an institution of higher learning where a person can take the knowledge he has attained through the preceding years of his life and add to that knowledge to become a more responsible person in the future. College life will help these young adults in their physical, spiritual, mental, social, and emotional growth. College will best serve the present interest and the future goals of the students.

I want to go to college to prepare for my future profession. College will provide the training, education, and most of the necessary requirements for the profession I plan to enter. College will aid in self evaluation and help me grow and improve myself as a person as much as I possibly can. Social, cultural, and recreational activities are a vital part of college life. The extracurricular activities in college gives the student an opportunity to become better acquainted with the other students on campus. These activities and organizations will provide a better chance for experience in leadership.

It is altogether fitting and proper to want to learn to be a better citizen of America and to learn to improve an individual's character and personality; but is there not something else to desire from college? I plan to try to accomplish these things; but most of all from college I want to get a good thorough education. I believe education is intended to help the individual develop his potentialities, learn how to form his own opinions, and make his own decisions. College is the beginning of preparation for a lifetime of development for the young adult.

CLASSING AND MARKETING PART OF SUMMER COTTON SCHOOL

College Station, May 1-Plans for the 53rd annual summer cotton school at Texas A&M College have been released.

The school will be held from June 4 to July 13. Attendance for the full period is advisable, points out Professor J. M. Ward, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology and in charge of the school, but persons in the cotton business who are unable to remain for six weeks may enroll for two or four weeks of study.

Ward said the purpose of the school is to provide training for persons who expect to enter the cotton trade; for producers who would like to learn more about cotton marketing and for buyers who wish to review grade and staple standards or become more familiar with the elements of quality in cotton.

Such important phases of the cotton industry as grading, stapling and the determination of cotton properties and trade procedures will receive major attention, Ward said. Much of the time will be spent doing actual practice work and in discussions, but visiting specialists will lecture on various phases of production, marketing and processing of cotton, Ward added.

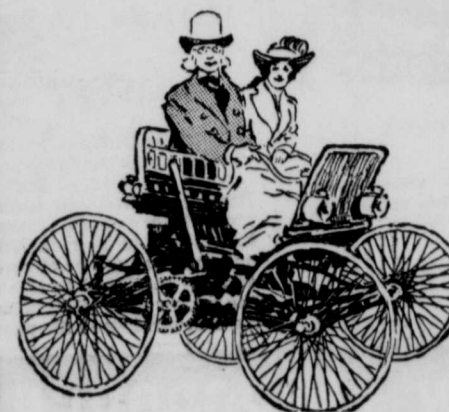

Detailed plans for the school may be obtained by writing Ward in care of the sponsoring department, College Station, Texas.

Jackie's educational plans are to attend Fort Worth College to become an International Business Machines programmer. His future ambitions are to finish college and to eventually own his own IEM plant.
