Commissioners Work To Eliminate Forms Of Disease In County

Emphatically denying all rumors that a hog quarantine prevailed here, Luther Gribble, county judge, stated today following a visit from F. D. Porter of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry, that this county was not under quarantine and that spread of hog cholera in this county was being put down rapidly.

Members of the court, however, warned all farmers to keep their hogs up and not to allow them to stray away from their farms. Cleanliness was cited as one of the best preventative against the spread of hog cholera.

The rumor to the effect that hogs of this county would be placed under quarantine Wednesday night was started early in the week and caused many farmers to make special trips here to see if they must kill their hogs before that time.

Mr. Porter spent Monday and (Continued on Page Six)

Parsons Car Is Stolen Friday

Thieves stole their second car here in the past two weeks last Friday evening when they took a new Ford Coach belonging to S. K. Parsons, cotton buyer.

The car was parked in front of Mr. Parsons' office, just north of the square, and as he stepped across the street to the Wellington State Bank for a few minutes, the car was taken. Reports also stated that the thieves took the car to the Lucky Corner Pilling Station, where they had it serviced and then drove off without paying the operator.

A Chevrolet belonging to Bennett Bond was stolen from his garage here four days previous to the theft of the Parsons car. Mr. Parsons had only had his car a few weeks and the Bond car was also practically new.

Kiddies Urged To Mail Letters To Santa Claus As Soon As Possible

The Leader will again publish letters from the boys and girls to Santa Claus. These letters will appear in the Christmas edition of the paper, which goes in the mails on December 13, and will give Santa ample time to receive the letter from every child in Collingsworth County who sends his message in care of the Leader. In order to insure publication of all letters received, however, it is essential that the letters be mailed or brought to The Leader by December 11 if possible.

All letters should be written in legible handwriting and each should be taken to see that each letter is plainly signed in order to avoid mistakes when the letters are published and sent on to Santa.

Santa will be glad to hear from his little friends again. He has received hundreds of letters from Collingsworth County kiddies during the past years and will be anticipating their messages again. Do not neglect to mail or bring the letters in as soon as possible.

NEW HEART STIMULANT

Another discovery which may prove a great boon to humanity is reported from Calcutta by the noted Indian scientist, Sir Jagadish Bose, who claims to have developed a powerful heart stimulant which has restored life after all heart action had ceased.

The new drug is derived from a plant found in the Himalaya mountains, and its discoverer predicted that it will in time, supercede such heart stimulants as strychnine and digitalis.

Information concerning the new stimulant is as yet meager, but Sir Jagadish's scientific reputation is said to be such as to inspire confidence that a most valuable therapeutic agent has been developed.

GOOD ROADS PAY

It has been frequently asserted that good roads really cost nothing in the long run, but yield a profit on the investment necessary to provide them.

According to Thomas P. Henry, of the American Automobile Association, good roads have reduced the cost of automobile operation from an average of 10 cents a mile to 6.43 cents a mile in the last few years.

This means that for a trip of 100 miles the expense is now $3.75 less than it would have been under average conditions in 1925, taking into account the cost of gasoline, the less wear on cars and tires, and some allowance for time saved.

If these savings are only sufficient to offset the additional gasoline and other taxes necessary to build the highways the motorist is still ahead of the game, because of the greater satisfaction and comfort enjoyed while on the road.

A SENSIBLE JUDGE

One of the distressing results of sending men to prison indiscriminately for all sorts of offenses is that it often works a terrible hardship on those dependent upon them. Judge Nova of Brooklyn is one who recognizes this, and in certain cases adopts practical means to protect innocent victims of the law's operation.

When Frank Bruno, who earns $50 a week, was brought before him recently and pleaded guilty to having two wives, one with two children and other with one, the judge said:

"I would gladly send you to Sing Sing, but your two wives and their children would be the sufferers. You will pay the wife with two children $20 a week and the wife with one child $15."

Thus five persons, who would have been deprived of support through sending Bruno to the penitentiary, were provided for, while the culprit will be constantly reminded of his offense and is not likely to repeat it.

That appears to be justice tempered with common sense.

SPEED POSSIBILITIES

Certain aviation engineers predict that airplanes may eventually attain a speed of 1,000 miles an hour; also non-stop flights around the world will be made.

As the apparent movement of the sun due to the earth's rotation, is less than 1,000 miles an hour in latitudes above and below the equator, such a speed would present some interesting collateral experiences.

For example: Traveling west, one might circle the globe in daylight, as the plane would keep pace with the sun. Traveling east, the plane would meet the sun twice, so that it would apparently experience two days in 24 hours.

Strangest of all, if the plane were flying somewhat faster than the visible movement of the sun, it might start out shortly after sunset and fly west to overtake the sun, which would appear to rise in the west. Continuing its flight, it would finally leave the sun to far behind that it would appear to set in the east.

A watch carried under either of these conditions might tell how long the plane had been in the air, but would be of little use in determining the time of day at any given point during the flight.

WITHOUT A PRESIDENT

It may not be generally known that every four years the United States is without a President for several hours, but such is the fact. The term of the outgoing President expires at midnight on March 3 and the new President is usually sworn in about noon on the following day. During the intervening hours the country is without a chief executive.

The question if whether a vacancy existed during this interval was discussed early in the history of the country. In response to an inquiry, Chief Justice John Marshall wrote on February 21, 1821:

"These has been uniformity and voluntaril interval of 12 hours during which the executive power could not be exercised."

If an emergency demanded, the new President could be sworn in immediately after his predecessor's term expired at midnight on March 3, but no situation has ever existed to make this necessary.

It is said that in early times American Indians never kissed. And they never made up, either, except with war paint.

Racing a train to a crossing is an exciting yet harmless sport—unless the race is a tie.

"Rubber dollars" might be desirable if we could stretch them sufficiently to make ends meet.

The come-back of the bicycle is hastening the day when we shall blow taps over the last pedestrian.

WELLINGTON

People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

By Jimmie Gillentine

Our old friend, J. W. Chapman, who incidentally happens to have been operating his business longer than any other man on the square, tells the best story of this week.

Best Story Of The Week

One year when crops were flourishing and it was very hard to get good workers, a farmer hired a man who came to his place for a job. The man turned out to be a good worker and the farmer was well pleased.

Cold weather came along, however, and one morning while the farmer was sitting at the breakfast table, he began blowing into his coffee.

"What are you doing that for?" asked the hired hand, somewhat amazed, since he lived in another part of the country and had never seen such a procedure.

"Why, to cool off my coffee," replied the farmer.

The pair went out into the field to gather corn and as the cold wind hit his hands, the farmer placed them before his mouth and began blowing again.

"What is that for?" asked the hired hand.

"To warm my hands," replied the farmer.

"Then just give me my pay," replied the hand, "I ain't gonna work for no man that can blow hot and cold air out of his mouth."

Song writers seem to have gone to sleep on the job. For a while it seemed that every time a rain fell, a man took a bath, someone smiled, or said, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime," Tin Pan Alley was inspired for a new song hit. Now we have had the N. R. A. for several months and not a sign of the "Blue Eagle Blues."

Freedom of The Press

There comes a time in every man's life when he is disgusted, disillusioned—and even ashamed of his profession, but this week I read an article by Marlin E. Pew, which made me really proud of my profession. The article was based upon the supposed attempt to suppress the freedom of the press by the N. R. A. Code—to be more specific, to create a situation whereby the press could not criticize nor combat the N. R. A. program. This situation has attracted wide attention during recent weeks and the press has at least a temporary victory. One particularly striking thing brought out by Mr. Pew was the fact that corrupt politicians have literally bought police forces and fixed other officials in many instances—but the most feared person to the crook of today is the newspaperman. These men have passed up "graft" advertising, refused bribes, legal pull and other legislatures and firmly told the crooks that the only way to stop the news was to burn their plants, which in one instance was attempted.

The constitution of the United States provides, right along with its specification of the freedom of the press, and equal specification for the freedom of speech.

We Would Have A Better Country

Through these two channels, free press and free speech, have been advanced every idea this government is now including in its program. The free press and free speech factions are even far ahead of the government—and many of the present governmental plans, such as controlled production, were advocated through these factions as long as a century ago. If every man, and every man has the sincere right of free speech, would fight the gangster just as the press has done with its, none the less important factor of freedom, there would soon be no gangsters. As the people of the United States, we do not realize what a real privilege we enjoy in free speech—and we certainly do not always use to the best advantage.

BRIEF TOPICS

It's a decided disadvantage to have a shop on a street at the foot of a steep hill, according to J. J. McCann of Seattle, who complained to the police: "Five parked cars have slipped their brakes and come crashing downhill through the front of the McCann Printing Company. That's too many. There ought to be a law."

Canning champion of the world is Mrs. Gertrude Klingberg of Beloit, Wis., who was awarded the international championship trophy at the World's Fair in Chicago.

On November 23, her birthday, Doris Duke, daughter of the late James B. Duke, tobacco king, found herself the possessor of the greatest part of a fortune of more than $50,000,000.

London has a woman farmer, Mrs. William Mortimer, who grazes her flock of sheep on Parliament Hill Fields, close to traffic-filled streets.

In the past few years attendance at motion pictures in this country has ranged from the depression low of 60,000,000 a week to a peak of 100,000,000.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

Two thousand five hundred years ago the Greeks played a game on a rectangle field, the game was called Harpaston, meaning The Forward Pass.

When the Romans invaded Greece they adopted the game and with them it became a military recreation.

Among the old Roman records it shows that Augustus Caesar appointed a philosopher to revise the football rules because the game was not severe and rough enough for his Legions.

When the Romans captured Britain they not only unloaded armor, swords and spears but they also unloaded footballs.

Then as now they were oval in form and called a "Pig-skin," for the original football was the inflated bladder of a pig.

The name American Rugby sounds strange to football players in the United States, but it is the correct name for this game—we got our idea from the Rugby school of England.

The early Virginia colonists brought the old English game to America and soon after 1830 students at several colleges began to play it.

Ten years later, at Amherst, Brown, Harvard, Trinity and Yale, there were interclass games resembling the class rushes which still take place in some colleges, and so rough did they become that in 1850 the faculties of Yale and Harvard prohibited football.

In 1871 football was revived at Harvard, with rules which permitted running with the ball, as in Rugby; two years later Harvard's team refused to join the association formed by Yale, Columbia, Princeton and Rutgers because its players would not abandon the Rugby style of play.

Not long after this McGinn college in Montreal challenged Harvard to a match, and on May 15, 1874, these two teams played the first intercollegiate Rugby match in America.

On the 15th a match was played under Harvard rules, and Harvard scored three times. The next day, under McGinn rules, neither side was able to score.

The success of these contests aroused enthusiasm for Rugby, and in 1875 Harvard and Yale played a game under a compromise set of rules which omitted both running with the ball and of batting the ball with the hand.

The original Rugby rules have been entirely superseded by a gradual development of a code much more complex but permitting a far higher development of team play.

In the past 57 years with the exception of three years some change has been made in the Rugby code until today it presents a distinctive American game.

For nineteen hundred years football has been as British as mutton chops or side whiskers—so is the game becoming a part of American life.

Can you imagine this game when the players wore chin whiskers or mustache or perhaps both and the Co-eds could only show their great enthusiasm by waving their handkerchiefs in the air.

Miss Fay L. Bently, a welfare worker, was given a recess appointment to be judge of the District of Columbia juvenile court by President Roosevelt.

Golden Ply Tire Is New Invention

"Internal wear, the basic cause of tire blowouts, is overcome by the new 'Life-Saver Golden Ply' developed by the B. F. Goodrich Company for the Goodrich Safety Silvertown tire," according to an announcement by Wellington Motor Co., Goodrich dealer here.

"The incessant flexing of the tire carcass at high speeds and other factors arising from the operation of automobiles under today's motoring conditions, set up internal friction that affects the life of ordinary rubber compounds and leads to blowouts.

"Goodrich Safety Silvertowns are now made with this new ply of golden rubber between the tread and remaining fabric plies. The new rubber compound resists heat and binds the tire into a single unit, thus preventing formation of blisters which cause blowouts.

"This development is not only now in the tire industry, but it also is one of the advancements to meet the pace the ever-progressing automotive industry in general."

HOW HEIRESS CELEBRATED RECEIPT OF A FORTUNE

NEW YORK—To those who may be worrying themselves sick over what to do if they should inherit ten of twenty million dollars, the manner in which the former Barbara Hutton met the situation will be of interest.

The granddaughter of the late F. W. Woolworth, who turned a five and ten cent idea into millions of dollars, came into her one third share of the fortune upon arriving at the age of 21, and gave a little party to celebrate, as who wouldn't.

The former Miss Hutton—she is now the wife of Prince Alexis Mdivani—had a fine birthday cake and was host to twenty-two small tables of guests at dinner. The eighth and ninth floors of her father's town house on Fifth Avenue were given over to the party. An orchestra played gypsy music and some voices from the opera provided further entertainment.

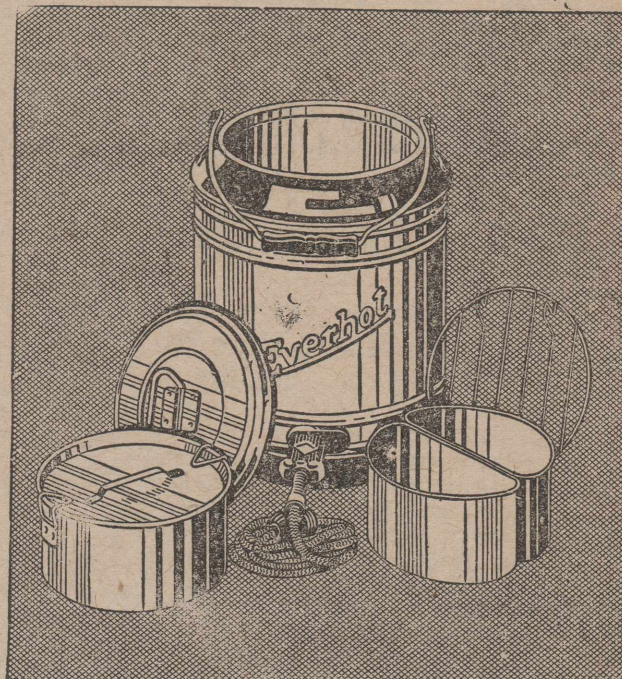

Under the terms of a premarital contract, the five and ten cent stores heiress will retain control of her fortune, the prince having received, it was understood a marriage settlement.

Thanksgiving Days

John H. Baumgardner
There is in the heart of that fertile farming section in Mississippi where vegetation flourishes and the trees grow to a great height, a small farm which has been the homestead of the Oliver family for several generations. This farm is a wonderful place for it has always been well kept and has a fine orchard and many large shade trees on it.

Last year the last of the four children spent his first year in college. The only girl was a talented musician and was playing in an orchestra in Chicago. The other two boys, one a civil engineer and the other an architect, were working on jobs of their own.

When Thanksgiving came last year this lovely old couple, who were still living on their farm, had not heard from their children. The mother, a very fine old lady, prepared a Thanksgiving dinner as she had always done. She was in hopes that some of them would be there for dinner. Finally, after they had given up all hopes and were just sitting down to a large old oaken table with the finest Thanksgiving dinner you can imagine on it, the two oldest boys and the girl appeared in the doorway. You can hardly imagine the joy this made for this fond old mother and father. That day was the happiest Thanksgiving that family had spent. Late that afternoon the youngest boy arrived from his college's annual football game, and that evening was spent in a way that almost anyone would enjoy.

After all, Thanksgiving should mean more to us than it has in the last few years. We seem to have forgotten many of the things we should be thankful for. To some of us it only means a turkey dinner or another annual football game, but we should stop in our mad rush long enough to think about the sacrifices made for our benefit and to be thankful for them.

Farmer Getting Larger Portion Of Food Dollar

WASHINGTON.—With the advance in retail food prices checked in October and with slightly higher prices received by farmers, the spread between prices paid by consumers and prices paid to farmers was slightly less on Nov. 1 than on October 1, according to Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the A. A. A. processors' and distributors' charges took 62c of the consumer's dollar on October 24, compared with 63c a month previous, 69c in February and 53c in 1929.

Average retail cost of monthly purchases of typical foods used by a family amounted to $17.55 at the end of October, against $17.95 in September, while the farmer's share was $6.70 in October, against $6.62 a month before.

Next to getting more money in consumers' pockets, Dr. Howe said the major problem of recovery is to cut all wastes in distribution so that consumers will pay as little as possible and yet increased payments to workers and farmers will be allowed for. So long as dealers' and processors' margins are kept at a reasonable level, small increases in retail prices may benefit farmers and workers greatly, he pointed out. From February to October farm price of fourteen typical foods advanced 47 percent, while the increase in cost to consumer was only 20 percent and the increase in middlemen's margins was only 5 percent.

Tick Quarantine Lifted On Five Texas Counties

WASHINGTON—A 13,208 square mile territory in Texas, Louisiana and Florida will be released from the cattle tick fever quarantine on December 1 by an order issued today by Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace. In Texas, Atascosa Grimes, LaSalle, Live Oak and Waller Counties are released from Quarantine.

With this order, 89 percent of the original tick infested area of the United States is freed from the quarantine which now is confined to relatively small areas in Texas, Louisiana and Florida. Areas released by the order in Louisiana are Point Coupee, the remainder of Iberville and Ascension, and parts of Iberia, Livingston and St. Martin parishes.

Clyde Barrow Makes Escape

Reports State That Barrow Has Made Arrangements For Funeral

Evading, as has become a habit of his recently, a trap laid for him by Sheriff Smoot Schmidt, Clyde Barrow, Dallas bandit wanted in several cities for crimes ranging from murder down, fled in a machine gun bullet-riddled car Wednesday night, held up and robbed two men of their automobiles as they were returning on the Jefferson road from Dallas to Fort Worth, shot at them both through their automobile window, cutting them with flying glass, then again fled toward Dallas.

Dallas.—The manager of a Dallas funeral home said Friday that a man who represented himself to be a relative of Clyde Barrow had asked that they be prepared to handle funeral services for the elusive desperado should he be killed.

"The man came to us about 12:30 or 1 o'clock the night after Clyde was shot," the manager said. "He asked that we handle the body in the event Clyde should be killed."

The same company was in charge of funeral arrangements for Buck Barrow, brother of Clyde, who was killed in Iowa only this year.

With the bandit was Bonnie Parker, also of Dallas, credited by some with being Barrow's wife. When Barrow held up the Fort Worth men, Bonnie jumped from their auto by his side, flourished a pistol and assisted in the robbery.

The men whom Barrow and Bonnie held up were Thomas R. James of 2515 Willing and Paul Reich, 920 Burnet, Fort Worth. They had been to Dallas for the Scottish Rite reunion. Reich is secretary of the Julian Field Masonic lodge.

Mrs. Charles Stovall of Sowers community, where the trap for the bandit was laid and failed, was injured when a stray bullet from the guns of one of the battling parties smashed a window in her house. She was cut on the neck by a piece of glass.

Sheriff Schmidt, acting on a tip received from a prisoner in the county jail, took three of his deputies, Ted Hinton, Bob Alcorn and Ed Castor—with him Wednesday evening, and, armed with a machine gun, two submachine guns and a repeating rifle, hid by the side of the road. According to the tip they had received Barrow was coming to Dallas to visit his father and mother, who have a filling station on the West Dallas road. He has been said to have paid many visits to Dallas during the past few months, but never has been caught.

As the car approached, Schmidt and his deputies recognized Barrow and Bonnie Parker and started to fire at the automobile, which was moving about twenty-five miles an hour.

Barrow returned the fire, Schmidt said, and speeded up with a rain of bullets following him.

As quickly as the Sheriff and his men could reach a telephone they communicated with Dallas and had the alarm broadcast.

The fleeing Barrows followed the Sowers road to the Jefferson road, turning to the right toward Fort Worth. Near Hersley Field the bandit overtook the car in which were James and Reich. They crowded the latter to the side of the road, fired several bullets through the car windows and ordered them to get out of the car. It was here that Bonnie aided Barrow and threatened the victims with a gun. They abandoned their own car, took that of James and again fled toward Dallas.

Ward Collier, secretary of Mosleh Shrine Temple of Fort Worth, also on his way home from Dallas, picked up James and Reich and took them to Fort Worth.

In the Barrows' car, now in possession of the Sheriff's office, are thirteen bullet holes on the driver's side and several holes in the glass, made as the slugs from machine guns passed out of the car.

Quantities of blood on the floor of the seized car, on its cushions and elsewhere indicated that the Sheriff and his deputies in their brush with the fugitives near Sowers may have wounded them seriously. Bullet holes in the car doors and top were at a height that made it probable the occupants of the car were seriously wounded.

Railways Have New Low Rates

The announcement of reduced rates on all railroads operating west of the Mississippi River will undoubtedly be welcomed by the traveling public who appreciate the luxury, comfort, speed and safety of railroad travel, but still must hold expenditures down to the minimum.

The Fort Worth and Denver City and Wichita Valley Railway, serving this territory with efficient passenger transportation, joins the other systems in announcing rate reductions that will make railroad travel not only the pleasant and most satisfactory but also as low in cost as any recognized passenger carrier service.

Effective December 1st, the Denver Road announces: a one-third reduction on sleeping and parlor car charges through the elimination of the surcharge.

Swimming Popular Sport for Women

UASTIN, Tex.—Swimming has long been a popular sport for women at the University of Texas. Of the 349 "co-eds" who have taken the swimming test required of them by the department of physical training for women, 208 have passed it and have been allowed to choose their own physical training courses, according to Miss Bernice Erwin, classifier and assistant secretary of the department. The girls who did not pass the test, which consists of keeping oneself afloat for ten minutes without stopping to rest, are required to take swimming. But the swimming classes at the University are not composed of only those who fail the safety test. Even in the days when a small indoor pool known as the "bathtub" had to suffice for beginners' classes, and advanced classes had to be taken by bus to municipal pool for instruction swimming classes had large enrollments. The large and attractive pool in the new women's gymnasium has proved a tremendous drawing card for swimming popularity, however.

Name Officers To Head Farm Credit Unit In Houston

Federal Land Bank Has Been In Operation In Texas Since 1917

HOUSTON—Nov. 23—Election of officers to head the four units of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston, serving the State of Texas, was announced here Thursday following a meeting of the board of directors of the Federal Land Bank of Houston.

Albert C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank was elected General Agent, chief executive officer of the regional office of the Farm Credit Administration. Mr. Williams will continue to serve as president of the land bank. Heretofore, officers of the Federal Land Bank have served ex-officio officers of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank. The increase in volume of business and the organization of the Houston Bank for Co-operatives and the Production Credit Corporation made it necessary to elect separate officers. Election of the following officers was announced: Federal Intermediate Credit Bank; Dwight P. Reordan, president; T. P. Priddy, Jr., treasurer; C. M. Welch of Fort Worth, secretary; Rufus H. Robertson, Kosse, assistant treasurer. Production Credit Corporation: Tully Garner, Uvalde, vice president and treasurer; Owen W. Sherrill, Dallas, secretary; John H. Rugel, Dallas, assistant secretary. Bank of Co-operatives: James A. Smith of Paris, treasurer; John B. Jones of El Paso, secretary.

"The Federal Land Bank of Houston has been in operation since 1917 and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank since 1923. The Production Credit Corporation and the Bank of Co-operatives were organized a few weeks ago when Governor W. I. Myers, Commissioners—G. M. Brennan, S. M. Garwood and F. W. Peck, W. Forbes Morgan of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C., visited Houston. The election of officers of the Intermediate Credit Bank, the Production Credit Corporation and the Bank for Co-operatives will further speed-up the machinery to make available to farmers and ranchmen of Texas a complete and co-ordinated credit system under the Farm Credit Administration," said Mr. Williams. "The new officers will take up their work immediately."

There were no changes in the official staff of the Federal Land Bank. Under the new set-up, the Federal Land Bank of Houston will continue to make long-time first mortgage amortized loans on farms and ranches of not to exceed 50 percent of the appraised value of the land and 20 percent of the permanent insured improvements. Farm loans made through local National Farm Loan Associations each borrower takes stock in the association in the amount of 5 percent of his loan. The Federal Land Bank is also acting as agent of the Land Bank Commissioner in making supplemental land loans.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston extends credit to financing institutions, which make loans for agricultural and livestock purposes but does not make loans directly to individual farmers and ranchmen. Under the new set-up the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank will continue to provide agricultural credit by discounts of notes from livestock loan companies, agricultural credit corporations and state and national banks. This bank will also discount agricultural paper for Production Credit Associations.

The Production Credit Corporation of Houston has $7,500,000 capital which will be used to provide the initial capital for production credit association to be formed throughout the state. Officers of the Production Credit Corporation will carefully consider, and the territory to be served by such associations before taking steps to bring about the formation of associations. Where it is feasible to do so, Production Credit Associations will probably be affiliated with National Farm Loan Associations. Ten or more farmers of a district may apply for a charter for a Production Credit Corporation. Such applications should be made through the Production Credit Corporation of Houston. Borrowers are required to own stock in a Production Credit Association in an amount equal to 5 percent of their loans. Such stock may be paid for out of the proceeds of the loan. Production Credit Associations will make loans for periods from 1 to 12 months for the purchase and refinancing of livestock, for the growing and harvesting of crops and for general agricultural purposes. The interest rate on such loans will be 3 percent above the discount rate of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston. At the present time, the production loans will bear 6 percent interest.

The Houston Bank for Co-operatives, capitalized at $5,000,000, will make loans to local and regional farmers' co-operative associations in Texas to provide working capital for their business operations and provide capital to finance or refinance the purchase or lease of necessary buildings and equipment. The interest rate will not be less than 3 percent, nor more than 6 percent, the Governor or the Farm Credit Administration being empowered to fix the rate within those limits. On long-term loans—not to exceed 20 years—for buildings and equipment owned or leased by co-operatives, the interest rate will be 4 1-2 percent at this time, while short-term loans—usually not to exceed 12 months on working capital for merchandising of agricultural commodities and food products will bear 4 percent interest. Co-operative borrowers are required to take stock in an amount equal to 6 percent of their loans.

Directors of the Federal Land Bank attending the meeting Thursday were: S. A. Lindsey, Tyler; R. C. Archer, Austin; Ralph H. Harris, San Angelo; W. C. Hurst, Longview; R. S. Rodgers, Lubbock; A. C. Williams, president and M. H. Gossett, chairman of the board.

The new arrangement eliminates charity relief except in cases where the people are physically unable to work. All full and efficient days work will be demanded of each man under the Civil Works Administration, but there is also an advantage in that each man will be allowed to work thirty hours each week and common labor will draw a salary of 35c an hour. The maximum pay for the rent of first class trucks will be 50c an hour and trucks of less capacity or efficiency will be paid in a corresponding scale on down to 20c an hour for two horses and a wagon. The truck can be used 60 hours a week, but the drivers will be allowed to work only thirty hours with a 130 hour maximum in each month.

Farmers May Work

Farmers as well as anyone else who is unemployed will be allowed work on the various projects, although the present relief rolls will be assigned work. Soldiering on the job will be a thing of the past under the new plan, for a man who refuses to turn in a full days work will be fired, and supervisors who cannot secure the maximum service out of the men under their direction will be replaced by supervisors who can.

County and city officials have been working night and day for the past week in order to line up enough projects to give every unemployed person in the county work as soon as they need it. Each commissioner is working on at least one project for his precinct, and Dodsonville and Wellington are submitting projects in addition to those of the county. It is understood that the Dozier-Luttre road project is well under way, and the other Commissioners expect to have their projects in Austin this week. Wellington is submitting projects to improve fifteenth and other streets. People who live on the streets are raising the money to pay for the materials in Wellington.

All persons who expect to secure work on the Civil Works projects are requested to register with C. C. Bishop in the court house in Wellington at their earliest convenience. There is enough man power available to perform the work on the projects already submitted, but other applications are expected to be approved as the registration increases. Mr. Anderson further states that a considerable number of first class trucks can be used early in the projects, and some of the commissioners will need a considerable number of wagons and teams in their work.

The allotment in Collingsworth County has been made in proportion to population and need. A warning in respect to exceeding the number allocated to each county has been sent out by Lawrence Westbrook, administrator for Texas. He says: "A check up now in progress reveals that in a number of counties, due to an excess of enthusiasm on the part of those in charge, locally, more than the county's allotment of men was placed on jobs, and re-adjustment will be necessary to bring those counties back into line but every effort will be made to place men taken off jobs into other projects as rapidly as they can be approved and placed in operation."

"A list of the counties in the Panhandle and the number of civil works jobs allotted to each out of the 121,350 initial allocation is as follows: "County: Armstrong, 218; Carson, 146; Castro, 73; Childress, 192; Collingsworth, 304; Dallam, 170; Deaf Smith, 121; Donley, 170; Floyd, 206; Gray, 412; Hale, 388; Hall, 230; Hansford, 85; Hartley, 60; Hardeman, 267; Hemphill, 97; Hutchinson, 267; Lamb, 328; Lipscomb, 97; Moore, 48; Ochiltree, 121; Randall, 121; Swisher, 109; Wheeler, 291.

Preparations for work in Collingsworth County has been pushed at a rapid rate since last week when four officials went to Austin to secure first hand information concerning the proposed method of conducting the C. W. A. work. Those who attended the Austin meeting were: Luther Gribble, county judge, Clark Anderson, county chairman, Miss Katherine Boverie, administrator and Deskins Wells, mayor. Besides attending an all day conference, Miss Boverie took another day of detailed instruction in the duties of the administrator and was appointed a direct agent of the Federal Treasury.

Tuesday visiting in this county and held a post mortem on several cases, where cholera symptoms were thought to prevail—but reported no traces of a current cholera epidemic. He made a test of the hogs on which the post mortems were made and will send test to laboratories in the north and report the findings to F. C. Murray, veterinarian, in an effort to suppress any minor disease which might be current. Following Mr. Porter's inspection and report, local officials said that no local quarantine had been effected at the present time and that none was expected but urged that all farmers with sick hogs report them to the commissioners court in an effort to curb the spread of any disease.

Officials State--

place thus forming a new point of infection. I will state here that it is a violation of the law to allow hogs to run at large. If you have only a small number of hogs and can confine them in a small pen, one of the best precautions is to render it impossible in some way for birds, dogs, rats or other animals to enter. Poultry netting with one-inch meshes will keep out birds and is cheap. If possible arrange so that hogs can be fed and watered from the outside without entering pen or pasture.

Murray Lists Causes

Dr. Murray, who has been working with farmers in an effort to prevent the spread of cholera in this county, makes the following report concerning the check the spread of the disease:

"As Hog Cholera is present in the county in a very virulent form, I am offering the following information and suggestions which if followed will be of great value in our efforts to check the spread of the disease.

"It should be realized that the disease is highly contagious by direct contact of one animal with another. Also that the sick hog infects the floor and litter of his pen and in fact everything with which he comes in contact, and the infection is very easily carried long distances in any number of ways. Some of the most common modes of transmission are by means of the feet of persons or animals and the wheels of vehicles traveling from infected to non-infected premises, pigeons and other birds feeding in infected pens and later carrying the infection to other points, roaming dogs and other animals eating the carcasses of hogs, dead with cholera and later carrying the infection back to their own homes or to other farms in the neighborhood, and by streams of water carrying infectious material from one farm to another.

"The above are only a few of the most common means by which the disease is spread. It would be impossible to name all the various ways by which the infection can be carried. In some instances it is impossible to tell from just what source the infection came. It is sufficient to say that in whatever manner a non-immune hog comes in contact with infectious material from any source, it is practically certain to develop a case of cholera.

As to protective measures I would say first keep your hogs in a pen or pasture with a good fence where you can see them every day. If allowed to run at large over the country one or more could sick and die in some out-of-the-way place thus forming a new point of infection. I will state here that it is a violation of the law to allow hogs to run at large. If you have only a small number of hogs and can confine them in a small pen, one of the best precautions is to render it impossible in some way for birds, dogs, rats or other animals to enter. Poultry netting with one-inch meshes will keep out birds and is cheap. If possible arrange so that hogs can be fed and watered from the outside without entering pen or pasture.

"Persons entering pens should first wash their shoes with a good disinfectant solution and again upon leaving.

Pigeons are among the worst dangers and should be destroyed and burned. Also dogs of any value should be tied or restrained in some manner, especially at night. Worthless curs should be killed.

"Where possible, hog lots should be so located as to not receive drainage from other above on a stream or draw.

"Keep hogs in thrifty growing condition by proper attention. An unthrifty hog has little resistance to disease and is losing you money anyway.

"The bodies of all hogs dying with any disease should be burned.

"The above suggestions are based upon experience and common sense and if carried out will be of great help in stopping the spread of the disease. However, the only sure preventive measure is vaccination with pure patent anti-hog cholera serum. This does not mean that every man who has a hog should rush in and vaccinate. There are herds so situated that they should be vaccinated without delay. On the contrary the great majority are at this time in no great danger and can probably be carried through safely by using precautionary measures as above outlined and thus save expense. Each farm and each group of hogs is a separate problem to be handled according to circumstances. The county authorities have employed me to assist the people in an effort to stamp out this disease and I shall be glad to help anyone interested to work out the best way to handle his particular case."

In connection with the drive to eliminate the disease, city officials announced that all persons who did not screen their hog pens so that birds, dogs or anything else that might carry germs would be forced to either kill their hogs immediately or else move them outside of the city limits.

Miss Floy Wynn of Dodsonville visited in Wellington, Tuesday. Miss Wynn had been in Amarillo visiting for several days.

Deck's DIDACTICS By H. D. W.

The new deal in relief work is here, but it won't be called relief anymore. Charity is out and work is in under the new Civil Works plan. From now on every man used on public works will be forced to perform a full day's work for an adequate day's pay, and supervisors will be instructed that leaning on a shovel handle does not constitute a full day's work. Those individuals who have learned to make an art of this practice will either learn a new method or they will be fired. It is estimated that approximately $60,000 will be spent in Collingsworth County between December 15 and February 15, and sufficient projects will be provided to give all of the unemployed work, if the allocation for this county makes it possible.

Some farmers are criticizing the county officials for starting the work so early in the year. The time to start was not left up to the local officials. President Roosevelt ordered the State Administration to start work immediately and the same order was passed on down to the local officials. It had to be started now or not at all, and this community would be bankrupt if it had to carry the load itself without the aid of Federal funds. Furthermore, we would have been forced to help pay for the money whether we secured our part or not. Farmers also complain, and correctly so, that the proposed work is liable to raise the prices they have to pay for farm labor. This same question was brought up at the meeting in Austin, and it was pointed out that the same conditions would arise if business conditions started to improve of their own accord. No person regardless of his line of business, can object to conditions improving. And in view of the special effort that President Roosevelt has put forth to improve farming conditions, it occurs to me that the farmer should be the last man to object to a raise in wages caused by another feature of the President's plan.

The C. W. A. will mean quite a bit of difference to this community during the next two months. Last year relief workers received $1 a day and worked on the average of two days a week. There is a lot of difference in the things a man can buy who gets $42 a month as compared with one who gets $8. Of course they are going to have to work harder, but that will be welcome to most of them. Some people didn't sign up last year because they didn't like the thought of charity. This year they are going to be given a chance to work for money that is paid them.

Maybe I shouldn't tell this, but Clark Anderson came in personal contact with Ex-Governor Ferguson while he was in Austin. We were sitting on the north side of the House of Representatives and a procession of people walked by. Clark and I were trying to study out a set of rules and regulations and didn't pay any attention until one man stumbled over Clark's foot in the aisle, caught his balance by leaning on Clark's shoulder and passed on. It was not until he got on the speakers platform and the assembly started rising that we noticed that it was Jim Ferguson himself. However, Clark doesn't mind the incident, but you had better take a stick or something along with you if you contemplate asking him about how many white horses there are between Austin and Wellington. By the way, how many white horses would you estimate you could see on a hundred mile trip?

Dr. E. W. Jones came back highly enthused over the old world courtesy of the people south of the Rio Grande as were the other three members of the party. He is quite correct, for I have experienced it myself. The treatment you receive at the hands of a gentleman of culture in Old Mexico makes you realize that we do not know the first principles of hospitality as they practice it down there. If you have friends or can make friends after you get there, a visit to Old Mexico will change your idea of the people who are our neighbors on the south.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Work left last Tuesday for Littlefield where Mr. Work will continue his work with the Huddleston and Work Construction Company. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Work of Paris, Tennessee, came last week to make Wellington their future home. Mr. Work will take H. Work's place here.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Graham left this week for Dallas where they will spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

Lionel Barrymore Stars In Picture Of Country Doctor

"One Man's Journey" To Fetaure Work Of Average Rural Physician

Legionnaire Week

Five Stars Features In Special Thanksgiving Release

As a special Thanksgiving preview Thursday night with performances also scheduled here for Thursday and Friday, the Ritz will feature "One Man's Journey."

With its hero a familiar American type whose record of service is known to all humanity, "One Man's Journey," starring Lionel Barrymore, tells the dramatic story of a country physician who achieves true greatness through what the world is wont to call failure. This country doctor role is rated one of the most sympathetic ever played by Barrymore.

In the near future the Ritz will sponsor an entire week of entertainment under the auspices of the American Legion, according to the announcement of John Bonner, manager, today. An announcement of the specific week will be made soon—and the Legion will receive a percentage for the entire seven days of the specified week. "One Man's Journey" is considered the ideal story vehicle for Lionel Barrymore's inimitable histrionic talent. He is seen as a doctor who returns to practice in the rural community where he was born. Through the years he devotes his whole life to the service of others, a patient, plodding healer. Opportunities for study and the realization of his dearest ambitions arise, but he refuses them rather than forsake the humble folk who have come to depend upon him.

The climax shows the obscure "failure" winning a spectacular battle with death after the greatest modern surgeons and physicians have failed, and receiving besides, the recognition which comes with outstanding achievement. Romantic interest figures importantly in the story, and he drama is said to be packed with considerable droll humor.

One of the most impressive casts ever assembled by RKO-Radio "One Man's Journey," May Robson, Dorothy Jordan, Joel McCrea, Frances Dee, James Bush, Oscar Apfel, David Landau and Sam Hays play principal parts. John Robertson directed the picture in a story included in the 1932 O'Brien collection of best short stories of the year.

May Robson, who has the role of sympathetic elderly housekeeper for Dr. Watt, leads the cast in "Lady for a Day." Recently she played prominently in "Little Orphan Annie," "If I Had a Million" and "Strange Interlude." She has also starred in "Mother's Millions."

Dorothy Jordan young dramatic heroine in "One Man's Journey" was presented in the stellar role of "Madame." In addition she had featured roles in "Cabin in the Cotton," "70,000 Witnesses," "Lost Squadron," "Shipmates," "Hell Divers," "Wet Parade," "Young Strangers" and "Down to Earth."

Under the RKO banner Joel McCrea, playing Dr. Watt's son, has graduated from supporting roles to starring parts. He has been co-starred with Dolores Del Rio in "Lord of Paradise," and cast notably in "Most Dangerous Game" and "Sport Parade." Many of his featured roles were with Constance Bennett, as in "Rockabye," "Born to Love," "Bed of Roses" and "The Common Law."

Frances Dee, sweetheart of McCrea in "One Man's Journey," has played a leading female role with William Gargan in "Headline Shooter" for RKO-Radio. In addition, Miss Dee has portrayed important roles in "If I Had a Million," "Strange Cast of Clara Deane," "Rich Man's Folly," "The Silver Cord," "Caught," "Along Came Youth," "Working Girls" and "This Reckless Age."

Although only 12 years old, Marie Prescott Penny, of Forest Hills, L. I., has recently had a book of her poems published.

Basketball Holds Interest In State

AUSTIN, Tex.—Basket ball is already attracting many high schools over the State, according to Roy Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas Bureau of Public School Interests. Approximately 1,400 schools are expected to participate in Inter-scholastic League basketball. Schools may enroll in this sport without penalty until December 15, while a penalty is imposed from that date until the final deadline on January 15.

A slight change has been made in the operation of the basketball tournament of the League this year, Mr. Henderson said. A regional championship and the State meet, the State being divided into eight regions, one team from each region to compete for the State championship.

OBITUARY OF EDWARD JACKSON CLARK

Edward Jackson Clark was born April 26, 1876 and departed this life June 10, 1933. His age was 57 years, 1 month and 15 days.

He was married to Miss Minnie Bearden, September 30, 1900. To this union was born nine children, two of which preceded the father in death. He is survived by his wife, seven children, three brothers and three sisters.

Brother Clark was converted in early life and lived a consistent Christian, a devoted husband and father, always cheerful and had a good word and a smile for everyone he met and always ready to help his fellowman in time of need. He was loved by all who knew him. He attended the Baptist church and Sunday school. Before going out called his family and friends present to his bedside and gave a bright Christian experience and said that death held no terror for him, that he was ready to be with Jesus and his angels.

We would say to the bereaved family to weep not as those who have no hope for blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; "Yea" saith the Spirit, "that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Effort Is Made To Increase Maximum Student Efficiency

STEPHENVILLE, Texas—Students at John Tarleton College should have a maximum physical efficiency the year 'round, and maximum mental efficiency during the winter months, according to figures submitted by Neal Gearreald, director of the school of agriculture at Tarleton, in comparison with the investigation of Dr. E. Huntington of Yale University.

According to Dr. Huntington's figures, people are at their maximum efficiency physically when the temperature averages 64 degrees Fahrenheit, with a variation from 55 to 70 degrees. The average temperature at Stephenville is 64.8, according to one year's check. The variation over a period of forty years is from 10 to 105 degrees. For a large part of the year, counting out two or three weeks in the winter and a little more than that in the summer, the variation here is not far from that described as ideal.

The optimum temperature for mental work is said to be 40 degrees with a variation from 30 to 50 degrees during twenty-four hours. The winter climate of Stephenville comes near fulfilling this requirement than that of the summer months; so students are expected to have a little more mental energy during the long session than during the summer term.

Humidity, which is also an important factor in energizing or enervating is supposedly ideal at 50 percent during the summer and 100 per cent during the winter. Altho Stephenville has no instrument to measure humidity, Mr. Gearreald points out that there are no cases of sunstroke in this section because high humidity and high temperatures do not go together. Comparatively dry air during the hot months increases efficiency, for the most part, although excessive dryness during July and early August is sometimes devitalizing.

Changes in temperature from season to season, as well as from hour to hour each day, are supposedly stimulating to bodily and mental activity. During the last few weeks some days have produced four or five kinds of weather, from cool nights, still, cloudy mornings, and misting rain at noon, to bright sunshiny afternoons with a brisk breeze. During such weather, according to Mr. Gearreald, all students should make "A's."

The area wherein was supposedly located the Garden of Eden is in the same latitude as Stephenville; according to the World Atlas, the climate is very similar to that of this section, with cool nights, brisk winters, and even the hot, dry winds of summer.

"Perhaps this sort of climate is most favorable to spiritual and religious, as well as bodily and mental development," Mr. Gearreald concludes.

Thanksgiving Day Based On Health Says Texas Doctor

AUSTIN, Texas.—The primary reason for the institution of Thanksgiving Day was health. We know how Governor Bradford called together the people, those of whom were left after the terrible first year of death and disease, to give thanks to God for all his mercies.

We have come a long way since that time in the matter of health, but not one seldom thinks of Thanksgiving in connection with the health that we enjoy. Most persons have been so accustomed to having those advantages that they are scarcely given a thought until sickness makes its appearance.

The State Department of Health, city and county health organizations have labored for years to secure the measure of health protection that the public now enjoys. They give thanks for the methods that have helped in the saving of thousands of lives each year and look forward to the years to come for greater service.

Since the first Thanksgiving, the mode of transmission of many diseases has been discovered and in many instances the prevention has become common knowledge. Yellow fever, plague, ad cholera have practically ceased to exist. Smallpox, diphtheria, and typhoid fever can be eliminated as a cause of death if a person would have themselves and children immunized. Malaria and many other diseases can be controlled if the public would demand that this protection be a part of the every day activities of the government and practice what is known in regard to prevention.

During the past fifty years the expectation of life has increased about fifteen years. This means that a baby born now can be expected to live fifteen years longer than if he had been born fifty years ago. We have much more to be thankful for now than our Pilgrim forefathers, so let each in his Thanksgiving, pledge to assist in furthering the work being done to improve health conditions throughout Texas.

FROSH DAY CEREMONY

DENTON.—An Indian tribal ceremony, symbolizing adoption of the freshmen into the college tribe will be held by the junior class at Texas State College for Women, (CIA) Tuesday, November 21. This ceremony will be initiated as a campus tradition to be held on a day set aside as "Freshman Day."

Freshmen and juniors participants are to attend the rites attired in Indian costumes. A peace pipe, made at the college, and a wood block from which invitations to college students are to be printed, will be handed down to each succeeding junior class.

Annual Christmas Seal Drive Dec. 1

Many residents of this country will receive in their mail on December first a supply of Christmas seals sent by the Texas Tuberculosis Association in its annual seal sale to raise funds for the campaign against tuberculosis.

For the twenty-fifth consecutive year the letter enclosed with the seals will be signed by H. A. Wroe, who has served as treasurer of the Texas Tuberculosis Association since its organization in 1908.

Mr. Wroe is well known in banking circles throughout the state. He is chairman of the board of directors of the American National Bank, Austin, and has held office in the Texas Bankers Association.

Commenting on the general outlook for this year's seal sale, Mr. Wroe said: "Raw silk is again moving across the country by water and rail; telephone installations show an increase; the Michigan-Ohio football game had a gate receipt of $150,000; the New York Federal Reserve District reports a 15-12 per cent gain for wholesale trade in New York State; chain stores particularly increased business in nearly all lines throughout the country.

"Business is definitely on the up-grade. Unemployment is decreasing, the public is feeling better, happier, and is spending more money, all of which forecasts a seal sale that will insure a needed expansion of 1934 of the effective year-round program of the Texas Tuberculosis Association."

Woman Returns To Assist In Indian Tribal Ceremony

DENTON, Tex.—A white woman, captured in infancy by a band of hostile redskins and reared by the Indians as one of their own tribe returned at her own will to assist white people, for whom she had nurtured a hatred many years, in the dedication of an Indian tribal ceremony.

For years, after the horrors of a dual-tribe raid in which Mrs. Millie Durgan, then a child of 18 months, was taken captive, and her life in the Indian tribe, she has hated the white race. Mrs. Durgan repelled all advances of the missionaries who sought to lead her into Christianity, and not until after the death of her little son did she change her attitude toward her own race and accept the established faith.

Mrs. Durgan is the mother-in-law of George Hunt, a native Kiowa, who came with his daughter, Ioleta, and two Indian girls to participate in the establishment of an Indian ceremony at Texas State College for Women. The ceremony which symbolized the adoption of freshmen on the campus into the college tribe was initiated as a college tradition by the junior class.

Tree Army To Get Turkey Dinner

By JOHN HOLT
Everything is going nicely in the "Tree Army." We are still having fun as usual. We have been having cold rainy weather, but the work goes on just the same. All of the boys take their part in every job they are assigned to and most of them come through smiling, regardless of bad weather. We are planning a big Thanksgiving.

The Mess Sergeant says we will have turkey with all the trimmings. I'm sure we will have a lot of fun because Thanksgiving is pay day, and everyone will have a chance to celebrate.

We have been getting quite a few letters from our old buddies who quit the C. C. C., October 1. All of them seem to be having a lot of fun at home. Some of the letters they write make us homesick at times, but we are here to stay until April 1, and I'll bet the old boys would like to be back in the C. C. C. Ones we have received letters from are: Roy C. Hardin, Vernon Crossland, Ocie Scott, Oran Lemley and Ansel Kitchen. We are really glad to get the letters and hope they will continue.

Cecil Baker has won for himself the name of "Sleepy." Sunday Morning he failed to hear the whistle and slept on past roll call and he got Sunday K. P. Since then he is easily awakened.

Three Little Pigs Happy After Papa Kills Big Bear

TACOMA, Wash.—And the pigs were happy, because papa pig killed the big, bad bear.

Sheriff Jeff Bartell told the bedtime story yesterday and he wasn't kidding—his hog did kill a big black bear, after hours of battling to save the lives of the three little pigs.

His children on the Bartell ranch told him a big bear with two little cubs had come to the pig pen, and was trying to eat the little pigs, and that the big papa pig, a 626-lb. boar was battling the bear hour after hour, and killed it. The claws and teeth of the bear cost the boar an eye, an ear and several gashes.

Co-Eds Improve Mail Receipts

DENTON, Tex.—Believing that the deficiency in Uncle Sam's daily mail must be remedied, students at Texas State College for Women are taking responsibility upon their own shoulders.

Members of the typewriting faculty at the college believe a letter a day is sure to help the situation and have inaugurated a system of setting aside four minutes of each class period for personal correspondence. Each student is expected to finish one letter during that time and is given credit for what she accomplishes.

Now Mother will get the long-looked for epistle—that is, she will if the stamps don't give out.

"We have a large scalding vat for hogs," Mr. Stovall said. "The only requirement to use the vat is to call in about three or four of the neighbors and make the affair a demonstration within the local community. Set a date and let me know and I will be glad to assist you in killing, cutting and curing of the meat."

"On account of the new cotton hog and beef cattle program, there will be a limit on the amount of work I can do in assisting farmers with their meats. Several have stated that they wanted a hog killing demonstration at their farm. If we can conduct a few of these over the county, everyone will get some idea of the work."

"The most striking thing to me about the demonstration last week, was the interest shown by everyone present. More food and better food for the farmer in Collingsworth County 'is my slogan'."

"Patty Hite, did not like the way we cut up the pork the other day. Patty said that we did not have anything to make sausage of. He said that he never did get enough of sausage to eat, but always had to stop eating before he finished. However, he did think we did pretty good because when we got through we had four hams for every hog and he was only used to two."

The following method of curing was used in the demonstration.

Materials To Use

Salt—In curing, salt removes moisture and preserves the meat. Sugar—Sugar softens the tissues and improves the flavor.

Salt peter (Potassium Nitrate)—Salt peter speeds up the curing. Process. It also improves the color of the cured meat.

Drycure: for 100 lbs. of meat to be cured, use:

8 lbs. salt.
3 lbs. brown sugar.
3 oz. Salt peter.

Rub slightly over half of this mixture on the meat and pack it down in a barrel or a stone jar. Save the remainder of the mixture. At the end of seven days repack the meat and rub on the remainder of the curing mixture. Let the bacon and Canadian bacon cure one and one-half days per pound per piece. For example, if your pieces of bacon weigh ten pounds each, they should be cured not to exceed fifteen days.

Let the hams and shoulders cure three days per pound per piece. For example, fifteen pound hams should cure for forty-five days. Let the shoulder butts cure 2 days per pound per piece.

For Mild Cures

The above recommendations for length of time to cure pork for both the dry cure and the brine cure a maximum and assure thorough and complete penetration of the cure. Some people prefer milder cures. To produce the milder cures the time that the meat is left in cure can be reduced by one-third.

Soak Before Smoking. When the meat has cured the proper length of time, it should be removed from the curing vessel and thoroughly washed so as to remove all excess salt. After it has been washed it should be soaked from one to three hours. For soaking and washing use fresh clean water. Do not use hot water. Soak bacon, Canadian bacon, and shoulder butts one hour. Soak hams and shoulders three hours.

Smoking The Meat

Reasons for smoking:
1. Smoke dries the meat.
2. The cresotes deposited on the meat act as a preservative.

3. The smoke imparts a very desirable flavor.

4. Smoke tends to prevent molds from forming.
Kind of wood to use. Green hickory gives the best flavor. Green pecan is also a very desirable wood to use. Any hard wood such as oak, etc., can be used with good success. Corn cobs give satisfactory results. Do not use pine because it gives a very objectionable flavor.

Greets 10,000,000th Visitor

Major Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the World's Fair, presents a set of tires to Miss Pauline Gollier, of Washington, D. C., a tabulation expert and formerly of Warsaw, Ill. She was the 10,000,000th visitor at the Firestone exhibit, which will again resume activities when "A Century of Progress" re-opens due to demands of President Roosevelt and his recovery advisors.

After the meat has been soaked hang it up in the smoke house and allow it to dry about 24 hours before starting the smoke. Let the fire burn with a very small flame so as to provide live smoke. Live smoke gives a brighter color and improves the flavor. Do not let the meat get hot enough to cause the fat to drip. The temperature should not go over 12 degrees Fahrenheit.

It takes about thirty hours of continuous smoking to finish the job. A small fire can be started every morning and allow to die down during the afternoon, or the smoking can be done in one continuous process. Either method gives good results. Smoke the meat until you obtain a medium brown color.

Smoke house.—An ideal size house for smoking is 8-8 with an 8 foot wall and a gable roof. The walls should be tight and the house should be fly-proof in every respect. Small ventilators should be located near the top of the house, either in the gable end or in the ridge of the roof.

If cured meat is to be kept any length of time, it should be wrapped in paper or placed in tight bags and then hung in a dry, cool dark and vermin-proof place. For further particulars, send to Extension Service, A. and M. College, College Station, Texas, for Bulletin C.60.

Mrs. P. E. Williams—"I certainly did enjoy the demonstration on meat canning; especially on the sausage making. Everyone present said it was the most interesting demonstration ever given in the way of meat in the county. The mince meat was simply fine and the best of all, we got to taste it. I think each one of us farmers will be able to cure and can our meat from now on. Thanks to Mrs. Stovall for her help in the work. We all wish to appreciate the assistance of Miss Mashburn, district agent, and the method she demonstrated in canning and recipes shown will be invaluable to us."

Miss Mashburn, district demonstration agent—"With the interest shown in today's demonstration by the farm people, I am sure that soon there will be a better quality of pork products for home use. Our primary interest in giving the demonstration, is to improve home consumed foods, then if there is a surplus to be disposed of, it will command a better price. I would like to see a similar demonstration given in each rural community of Collingsworth County. I appreciated the opportunity of working with the county farm agent and others today."

Mrs. Claude Whitfield—"The canning demonstration was a revelation to me; of what wonderful good things to eat that can be made from the lowly swine. The mince meat is especially fine and the sausage so much better than the old fashioned sausage. There is no comparison. We also made soup stock and pickled pigs feet, better even than our mothers used to make. The choice loin roast was especially nice, such a golden brown and just the size to fit a No. 1 can. We made old fashioned head cheese. The men enjoyed the samples of nicely browned sausage. The demonstration was a great success and we are looking forward to the beef canning."

Charm Of Good Table Manners Is Theme Of Club Meeting

"The Charm of Good Table Manners" was the theme of the Se-Co Club program Tuesday, November 21. A clever play, "Invited Out," was given by Lurline Bird, Elwyn Atkinson, Fern Messick, and Dorothy Harrison. As a surprise feature, each member was presented with a program which was made the shape of a pan and held together with a needle and thread, (the club emblems). The club colors, yellow and white, were used. The programs were made by Dorothy Harrison, Lorene Alexander, and Lora Mae Calcote. In the business meeting, Bliss Miller reported 50 active members and $10.45 in the treasury. Lignite Generates Steam At Texas U

AUSTIN, Texas.—Lignite mined at Bastrop by a former University of Texas student, F. L. Denison, is used to generate steam at the new power plant at the University of Texas. To produce the 200,000,000 pounds of steam required to heat the 21 buildings on the campus this winter, a total of 36,000,000 pounds of lignite will be burned, according to C. J. Eckhardt, Jr., adjunct professor of mechanical engineering and superintendent of the power plant which generates both heat and electricity for all University buildings.

On exceedingly cold days, the $115,000 steam generating system will have to furnish about 2,000,000 pounds of steam, at a cost of approximately, Mr. Eckhardt estimated. A temperature of 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit is maintained in the furnaces where the lignite is burned. Steam, under 200 pounds of pressure per square inch, leaves the power plant in underground distribution mains which aggregate more than 100,000 feet in length. These mains are enclosed in tunnels, some of which are 20 feet underground and others comparatively near the surface. At some points in the tunnels the temperature is as high as 175 degrees.

THANKSGIVING

Shall We Pass It Up This Year?

SINCE the days of the Pilgrim Fathers, Thanksgiving has been an occasion of gratitude and joy. The day was set apart for pause and reflection—to celebrate a plentiful harvest—to enjoy the feeling of security, peace and contentment that are the honest rewards of an able and industrious people.

But What of Thanksgiving, 1933?

So many of the desirable things—the blessings that we took for granted as justly ours—seem to have vanished from our midst. Crops still thrive in our land, but are saleable only at prices still too low. Despite the sincerest efforts of the National Administration, thousands of self-respecting men, eager to support their families, have not yet found employment. Rare is the person into whose existence depression has not intruded its devitalizing influence.

Small wonder, then, that Thanksgiving, 1933, can become so easily a bitter mockery—any of us can make it so by brooding over our disappointments of the past four trying years, and contemplating a future which still appears to be uncertain. Take our railroad for example—

If we chose to make Thanksgiving this year an occasion for gloom, we could do so as easily as any individual. Even a brief review of the obstacles we have had to overcome could make us feel that the fruits of the supreme effort we have put forth are meager indeed.

Hopes are Rising—Faith is Strong

But we do not choose to see the dark side. We have kept resolutely on a fighting course through the worst of this period. Now that we are nearing the end our hopes are rising, our energies are redoubled, our faith in ourselves, our railroad and the Southwest is more firmly entrenched than ever.

Not a complaint do we utter, not a mutter of discontent, not a plea for sympathy. To the contrary, we are full of gratitude that we have come so far along the road—that we have succeeded in our zeal to preserve our identity as a pure Southwestern institution—that we have made such a truly wonderful record, in the midst of a period that has been a trial by fire.

Thanksgiving now has for us a deeper significance than ever. For events of recent years have proven to us again that a good offense is often the best defense—that people still recognize and will loyally patronize an institution that is conscientiously run in their service and best interests—that one of the best ways in the world to get business is first to deserve it by courageously providing superior facilities and service, not fearing the immediate cost of doing so.

Having reestablished these principles in the very teeth of depression, we look upon Thanksgiving as a day of thanksgiving, for we have much to be thankful for.

A Great Railroad Gives Thanks—

We have a great railroad that has been maintained at the highest peak of efficient service of any time in its proud history. We serve a great and rich territory, full of natural resources and peopled with a race in whom the determination to succeed is but a reflection of the traditional hardness of the pioneers who settled the Great Southwest.

Greatest of all, the people of the Southwest are with the Katy—they recognize what its pioneering has meant in opening and developing the territory and what its service to the community has since been. So long as the Katy can count on the support of such a people, the discouragements and disappointments we have recently shared together will soon be forgotten in the greater Southwestern prosperity that is certain to come.

People of the Southwest—let us all celebrate Thanksgiving as of old. Let us forget the past, except the lessons it has taught, and set our eyes resolutely on the future.

Junior Orchestra Is Presented At Assembly Program

Wednesday morning, November 22, the high school students and visitors enjoyed one of the most interesting assembly programs of the year. This was directed by Mrs. Dobbs and it consisted of presentation of the Junior orchestra.

"Alabama Lullaby" was given by the entire group with Frances Stowell as soloist. "Adoration," a violin solo was beautifully rendered by Wilma Ruth Forbis. Tap Dancing numbers were very gracefully done by Kathryn Lynn. Acrobatic events including hand springs etc. were cleverly done by Billie Voca Brickey. "You've Got to be a Football Hero" was effectively given by the entire orchestra, Frances Stowell singing. Tap dancing was done by Martha Jean Henry, Zula V. Porter, Kathryn Lynn and Billie Voca Brickey.

This entire program was thoroughly enjoyed. The students are wishing for a return of this orchestra.

the trip, which took place in the setting of an 800,000 acre ranch. Splendid treatment was also reported on the part of the Mexican people and Dr. Jones said that he absolutely reversed his opinion of the Mexican race.

"From what I had always heard of the Mexican races and what little I had seen of them I felt that I would not like them," Dr. Jones said, "but they are absolutely fine people—and their courtesy and friendship made our visit all the more enjoyable. I do not hesitate to say that I had one of the best times I have ever had in my life."

Superior horses, mules and livestock formed a principal topic of the hunter's conversation—and it seems that they enjoyed the fine animals almost as much as they did their hunt.

The man who owned the ranch where they hunted was said to have bought 80,000 acres of land for $4,000, a price of five cents an acre.

The hunters also brought back souvenirs of their trip and relics to remember the hunt. In addition to sentiment attached to the articles, they also said that the articles sold at ridiculously low prices, no import duty being necessary on items under $100 in value and the American dollar brings half of a small sack of money in exchange.
