Hitler Thinks Daladier Aims Fit His Own

Official Action Is Dependent Upon Britain's Course

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Authorized German sources said today that official Germany sees no conflict between the war aims expressed by Premier Daladier yesterday—security, defense of his country, guarantees for European peace—provided those are France's real war aims—and the peace proposals of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reichstag speech.

For Home Consumption? The German government apparently is willing to regard the French premier's strictures on imported home consumption. Likewise his presentation of German aims are forgiven him, although sharply rejected by the German viewpoint, these sources said, provided his basic demands are for security and guarantees.

German sources do not think Daladier can prevail on the French public to venture out from his Maginot Line and attack Germany if the proclaimed French war aims are defense and security. One trouble (in German eyes) about Daladier's speech, however, these sources pointed out, is France's alliance with Britain.

While Germany can decide for herself whether France nor Britain can act without her, she is not prepared to accept an official German partner. Hence official Germany can not take a final stand on the Daladier speech until Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain has been heard.

The authorized sources find Daladier much vaguer than Hitler (Hitler said definitely that the Versailles treaty would not be restored) Daladier did not specifically demand the restoration of Poland.

If Daladier says he does not want six months hence to have new unrest, the authorized German sources insist, Germany replies that she too wants an end to interfering with Germany.

All we did was liquidate Versailles," one informed source said. "We have again and again given binding declarations regarding our western boundaries. The world should at last recognize this."

Summing up, one spokesman said that the Daladier speech marks progress, Germany, through her fuerher, has reiterated a feeling of strength rather than from weakness—the reich's readiness for peace and again disavowed aggressive intentions. Hence Daladier's demand for security merely voices what Germany has been clamoring for years.

A close watch was being kept on British political developments prior to the Chamberlain speech. The German press emphasized continued conferences with representatives of the dominions, expressing belief they were unenthusiastic about the war.

Delayed reaction to Hitler's proposals apparently was causing concern. One editor wrote that "four days ought to be enough" for some sign of "appreciation for Hitler's efforts to establish a lasting peace."

NORTHERN STATES ASK ALLIED AID IN HALTING SOVIET MARCH

England Has 158,000 Men In France, Plus Many Army Vehicles

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha told the House of Commons today Britain had sent an expeditionary force of 158,000 men to France during the first five weeks of the war.

Just before Hore-Belisha spoke Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, declared the balance now was in Britain's favor in the war on merchant shipping.

Hore-Belisha also reported that 25,000 army vehicles had been transported to France, including many tanks, "some of them of enormous dimensions," weighing 15 tons or more.

He said the British troops in France "at this minute are busily engaged in fortifying their positions in the line."

The transport of the expeditionary force compared favorably, he asserted, with Britain's 1914 war effort, explaining that in the first six weeks of the World war only 148,000 British troops were sent to France.

"Nor are the contingents at present across the channel the last that will arrive," he added. "The expeditionary force has been transported to France without a casualty to any of its personnel."

Water Use At All-Time High

An all time record consumption of water during September and a sharp decrease in the general fund were shown by the regular monthly financial report of the city Wednesday.

Prolonged drought conditions boosted water consumption for September to 35,342,350 gallons, more than 2,000,000 above the previous record figure for any one month. Customers were billed for $13,643 for September water, an increase of $922 over August and up $1,294 over September a year ago.

A $25,000 transfer from the general fund to the new waterworks improvement fund to care for the city's share in the PWA project contributed to the decrease of the general fund balance $4,606. Other items which were included in the net $27,019 decline were $1,365 in transfers to the interest and sinking fund and payment of an annual rental on water rights in section 33. General fund revenues amounted to $18,736 during the month, including $1,500 in delinquent taxes.

Because the payments out of the general fund for September were $24,837 in excess of budget appropriations for the month, it had the net effect of converting a budget under-run into an excess of $12,536 for the first half of the fiscal year.

Want An End To Nazi War, Is Report

Finland To Resist Granting Of Military Concessions

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP)—Northern European states, especially Sweden and Finland, were reported unofficially today to be urging Britain and France to end their war with Germany so as to aid efforts to halt Soviet Russia's military and diplomatic expansion.

Germany Could Help? The northern states, said reports in usually well-informed circles, believe that if Germany were at peace in the west she could prevent the Soviets from dominating eastern Europe.

These reports circulated in foreign circles as a Finnish delegation arrived for talks with Russian leaders against a background of Soviet troops massed on borders of the Baltic states.

The Soviet Union has just concluded a series of military alliances with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, three former segments of the Russian empire which broke away following the World war. They became, in effect, Soviet protectorates.

Finland, also once a part of the czarist empire, appeared next in line for this "protection."

Anxious Finns Leave Cities As Crisis Nears

HELSINKI, Oct. 11 (AP)—A civilian exodus from Helsinki and Viipuri was in full swing today as the Finns anxiously awaited developments in Moscow, where a delegation headed by former Premier Dr. Juho Kusti Paasivirta arrived for "political and economic" talks with Soviet leaders.

This followed increased military activity by Finland and an experimental blackout of this capital city last night.

Responsible Finnish sources said a firm refusal would be the nation's answer to any Soviet Russian request for military and economic concessions such as Russia obtained recently from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Many women and children already had left the city in response to a radio appeal yesterday by Interior Minister Urho Kekkonen. Railway and bus stations were crowded with persons leaving the cities. Long lines of women and children stood at ticket windows. All schools were closed.

Nazi Attacks Said Repulsed

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Bad weather hampered operations on the western front today as the French general staff announced that fresh attacks by "strong enemy patrols" had been repulsed south of Saarbruecken and Firmsaens during the night.

The attacks apparently were a continuation of thrusts which the Germans launched Sunday on a 35-mile front east of the Moselle river.

Reference to fighting in the region of Firmsaens, 55 miles east of the Moselle, was taken as an indication of the increasing scope of the German assaults.

The German attacks, French sources said, were led by "suicide squads" of hand grenade throwers supported by companies employing automatic arms.

Extent of the fighting was such the French declared, as to give the impression of a coordinated "feeler" attack along the entire line between the Luxembourg border and the German industrial city of Saarbruecken.

French military men attached significance to the fact that the activity followed closely Premier Daladier's radio speech retuning Adolf Hitler's peace formula.

Some observers expressed belief the German attacks were the prelude to a large scale offensive which might be expected before the end of the week.

TINGLEY WINS SEAT ON ALBUQUERQUE CITY COMMISSION

He hit the political comeback trail yesterday with a smashing victory in his quest for a seat on the Albuquerque city commission.

Questioned whether the city job was but a prelude to an attempt toward some higher office such as governor, which the constitution prevented him from holding more than two consecutive terms—Tingley said:

"I have the immediate problem of serving as a city commissioner, and that is my only present interest. I have no other plans for the present."

SALAZAR LOSES HIS FINAL APPEAL FROM ELECTRIC CHAIR

ROAD BOND ACT IS RULED VALID

AUSTIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—The road bond assumption act passed in the recent session of the legislature and designed to distribute excess funds to qualifying counties in September next year was ruled valid by Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today.

The opinion requested by the board of county and district road indebtedness, said some objectionable features in the bill had been eliminated before final passage.

Statisticians reported the excess as totaling approximately $8,500,000 but pointed out the amount was subject to variation.

The act describes the ratios by which the distribution will be effected and provides the monies should be used for new construction, maintenance of roads other than designated state highways and for debt service on bonds and warrants issued to build lateral roads.

Mann's ruling declared the funds first must be applied to the payment of bonds, warrants and other legal obligations issued prior to Jan. 2, 1939, the proceeds of which were expended in acquiring rights-of-way for state-designated highways.

The opinion also stated certain monies due counties or road districts in the years 1939 to 1937 should be repaid in so far as possible in the form of increased percentage of participation on issues of bonds now outstanding and extending over the life-period of those issues.

Members of the committee in charge of the convention closed here Tuesday for the two higher branches of Texas Odd Fellowship issued a statement of thanks today for those outside the order who had a part in making the event a success.

There were several donations of chairs, food, etc. and service rendered outside the ranks of the order for which the committee expressed appreciation.

MISS LANEIOUS NOTES

By Mary Whaley

A short way to lose your temper, increase your vocabulary, and raise your blood pressure is to go into this crossword puzzling stuff.

It may happen that you get off to a good start and the old heart beats faster as you decide you are about to beat it but then you run into a four letter word meaning Malayan priest! Oh, well, you figure, I'll get it from the other direction - but you run amok on the fourth son of some Biblical character that has never been brought to your attention before.

Nothing will make you feel half as frustrated. Chewing the top of your pencil and frowning mightily doesn't help a bit. You are stymied and all you can do is wait until the next day's solution.

Of course, there are some who resort to the dictionary or others who slip in letters that don't make words but this type of puzzle worker is frowned on by the true puzzler who outlaws this procedure.

Such conditions have been known to make Mom snarl at the kids and make Dad tear at his thinning hair. But true to his avocation, the fiend, victim, or fan, depending on your point of view, tries again the next day. The poor things! Most of them are beyond human aid.

Beattie Songs Please Crowd

Winning the approval of the audience with his varied program and his deep, resonant voice, Douglas Beattie, bass-baritone, appeared here last night at the city auditorium in the first of a series of concerts to be presented this winter under auspices of the Civic Music association.

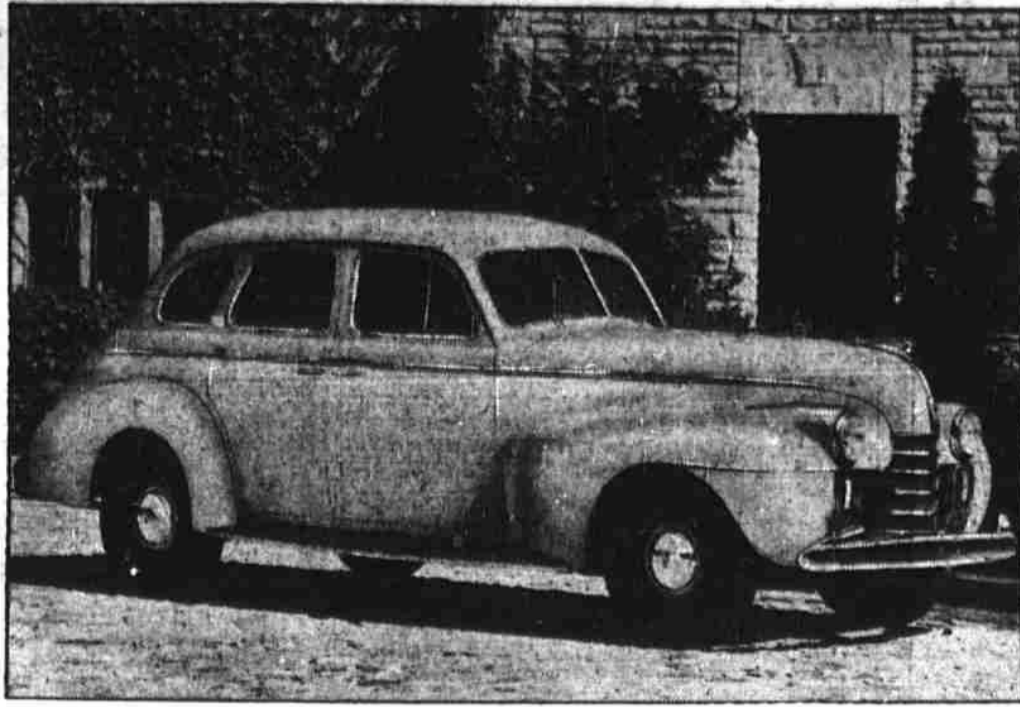

Mr. Beattie's program consisted of songs sung in German, Italian, Russian, and English. Rex Uhl of Berkeley, Calif., was his accompanist.

"La Calunnia" from the "Barber of Seville," by Rossini, won the most applause from the audience as did his encore, "Evening Star," from "Tannhauser."

Mr. Beattie took the audience into his confidence by telling anecdotes on many of the selections he sang and told the story of singing the aria from the "Barber of Seville" in Genoa, Italy. During one of the performances he incurred the wrath of an Italian performer. "You villain of an American! Go back to your own country where you belong!" shouted the singer at Mr. Beattie in the middle of the performance. "And so I did," remarked Mr. Beattie, "although the irate singer later became a good friend."

The closing encores were "Tom Cat," by Gulesion, and "Stone Cracker John," by Eric Coates. A large group of children also attended the concert. Their memberships in the association were scholarships bought by American Business club, Central Ward P.T.A., Kiwanis club, High School P.T.A., Jack Frost Pharmacy, High School Choral club, Lions club, Wm. Cameron company, South Ward P.T.A., Modern Woman's Forum, Rotary club, Big Spring High School Band, College Heights P.T.A., Gibson Office Supply, Public Investment company, Tom Ashley, Agnes Currie, Tom Dawas, Mrs. C. S. Holmes, Harold Macomber, and Hester Williams.

Hydra-Matic Drive Introduced As New Feature On 1940 Oldsmobiles, Now On Display In City

Three new Oldsmobile series for 1940—two sixes and an eight—with marked changes in styling, and impressive increases in wheelbase length and overall dimensions, have made their appearance in dealer salesrooms everywhere. The models are on display here at Shroyer Motor company.

Bigger and better throughout in body and chassis alike, the new Oldsmobiles reveal striking advances in comfort, safety, power and beauty.

Headlining all features of the 1940 Oldsmobile offerings is the introduction of a feature called Hydra-Matic Drive—a combination of liquid flywheel and fully automatic transmission, which reduces driving to its simplest, easiest terms. The conventional clutch assembly is entirely eliminated. There are no clutch parts to wear out and replace. The clutch pedal itself is gone, leaving no work for the left foot to do. To start the car you simply step on the starter, move a valve-actuating lever into forward position, and then step on the accelerator.

Changes from low, through second and third, and into fourth, or cruising gear, are entirely automatic. Gears, incidentally, are always in mesh so that there can be no clashing of gears of chipping of gear teeth. This means also that the engine serves as a brake on down grades.

To stop the car the driver simply steps on the brake. With no clutch to press and no gears to shift, there's nothing for the driver to do but steer, "step on it," and stop. The feature is available at an extra cost in all three series of cars.

Oldsmobile's series "60," introduced so successfully last year in the low-price field, this year appears with an overall length increased to 197 3/4 inches, and an engine stepped up to 95 horsepower. An entirely new body has been designed for the "60" this year that takes full advantage of the greater wheelbase length. It is a body of a type heretofore associated only with cars of much higher price. Seats are so wide that three passengers may ride with comfort on either front or rear seat.

The Six "70"

In the popular priced field, Oldsmobile again offers the six cylinder "70" series, biggest selling car last year in the Oldsmobile line. It is equipped with an improved, luxurious observation-type body, distinguished for wide, deep, windshield and windows, and narrow body pillars that provide maximum vision for the passengers, and likewise add grace and distinction to the outward appearance of the car. Overall length of the "70" series is increased to 199 3/4 inches.

It is in the medium priced eight cylinder Oldsmobile, christened this year the "Custom 8 Cruiser," that the most spectacular change in the Oldsmobile line for 1940 appears. Here, on a wheelbase increased to 124 inches and an overall length increased to 210 3/4 inches, is a body of a type new to American highways.

Because floors are so low that running boards are no longer needed, Oldsmobile engineers have incorporated the width of the running boards customarily require into the body itself. Needless to say, it creates an interior that is spacious far beyond any previous motor car design. Front seat width in the Custom 8 Cruiser is 60 inches, a width actually 10 inches greater than was considered adequate in many cars not so long ago.

Realization of Russian demands here would make the Soviet dominant in the Baltic. Thus one of the biggest gems in the crown which Nazi Chieftain Hitler hoped to wear would have gone glimmering. The Finns have declared their determination to resist such demands—by force if necessary. That takes a lot of courage, in the face of Russia's might.

harder by Russia than he is by the French Premier Daladier has given Herr Hitler half the allied answer to the Nazi chieftain's peace proposals—and the reply of the Bull of Provence is that there is nothing doing along the Hitlerian lines.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to give the other half of the Anglo-French response in Parliament tomorrow, and there has been no indication that it won't echo the sentiments of his brother-in-arms.

Responsible Nazi quarters in Berlin, anxiously hoping for a favorable reply, reluctantly admit that if Chamberlain follows the expected course, then the prospects of peace won't "be so bright."

That puts the baby back on Hitler's doorstep. It will be for him to decide whether he wants to go ahead with the war or seek some other avenue of approach to the peace which he undoubtedly wants.

In any event he must act. He can't sit still and let the allied blockade strangle him.

Crowded By Russia Many close observers figure that the Nazi leader finds himself in a difficult position. His new-found brotherhood with Comrade Stalin of Moscow has developed along such amazing lines that commentators declare Hitler is being crowded

H. W. Johnson of Chicago, controller of the railroad, estimated the saving at $303,228 yesterday as a hearing began on transfer of the properties before W. J. Schutrumpf of Washington, examiner of the interstate commerce commission.

Save Yourself Money

The best reason to hope that eventually preventive measures will save lives from being lost in traffic accidents is the success of the campaign for fire prevention, now several years old.

Fire prevention work has resulted in the saving of untold millions in property, but what is more important it has saved many thousands of human lives.

It has taken many years of hard campaigning—this is Fire Prevention Week—to bring about a worthwhile saving in life and property; but no one in his right mind would say it hasn't been worth all the time, energy and money expended in the good cause.

The money saving has been twofold: in the saving of property from destruction, and in the reduction of the rate on fire insurance.

It is important that a city have a good fire department—we have one of the best, incidentally—but fire prevention depends a great deal on the average citizen. He can do more by way of prevention than all the fire departments in the world, for the simple reason that most fires are started through his carelessness and he can prevent them by mending his ways.

Fire Prevention Week is set to dramatize for the average citizen his responsibility in the work. His insurance rate can be as high or as low as he cares to make it. It depends almost altogether on his own record in keeping down losses.

If he will heed the lessons to be put before him this week, he will save himself some money and possibly the lives of himself and family.

As one of the firemen's slogans reads, "An ounce of prevention is worth a ton of ashes."

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Let us consider the piscator. The abuses heaped upon him by the ignorant and the profane are common knowledge. He can't open his mouth without being accused of perverting. When a man tells me he went fishing and that the bass were so predatory they smashed his tackle, stove in his boat, and permitted him to escape by the skin of his teeth, I believe him. Who am I to question the veracity of people I don't know. I wasn't there.

There are times when mentioning my own experiences that people break in with rude and crude interruptions. Just the other day our drama critic, Mark Barron, who is at heart a professional doubter, broke in with the low insinuation that every time I tell of an escape it seems to have a different ending. It probably hasn't occurred to him that I have made any number of escapes.

Not long ago a man in Fort Worth sent me a nice little scroll, a "Liar's License for Fishermen," because, quote, "by long practice and coupled with a vivid imagination, you have exhibited all the proper qualifications." Therefore I am entitled to lie any time and anywhere except in the presence of game wardens. It also provides for the use of doctored scales and elastic rulers. Guides may be bribed. The lone restriction is that no lie, once told, may be retraced.

I leave Friday to test this talisman. Once again I join Mel Gruff in the environs of Northville, New York, more than 200 miles north, this time after wall-eye. Getting ready has been a lot of good clean fun.

After fiddling away two hours in a tackle establishment this evening, laying by a supply of new 12-pound test line, some spinners, and other accessories, I passed out into the street again and came upon a party of friends en route to a supper dance at one of the hotels. They were very happy. They thought they were enjoying life. If course I felicitated them on their imagination—supper dances are so original—and in any case I did not want to throw gloom on an evening that for them promised such pleasure.

But as they piled into their cab and went noisily away, I pitied them. They were going to a supper dance. They were having a high old time. How little it takes to satisfy some folk, I mused, patting my pockets to see that my tackle was still there.

And how suddenly envious they would be if they could but know that, come Friday, I'll be on the handsome road, renewing my faith in nature, with the city far behind, with whiffs of smoke drifting lazily up from my pipe, my liar's license snugly next to my fishing license in an inside pocket.

That was snug of me, really. I was standing on a street corner in Manhattan, being snug. Probably I shall be punished for this. I'll break a leg, or much worse, the fish won't bite. But then, what can you expect when half your friends don't even speak your language.

The British navy captured a consignment of coffee intended for Hitler's personal use. The temptation to mix in a bit of arsenic and send it on its way must have been great.

A Newark wife complains her husband continually threw meat balls around the kitchen. He was probably unleashing an inhibited desire to become a major league pitcher.

In the light of events, Constant Reader wants to know just what it is we are expected to celebrate on Armistice Day.

The man next door, whose wife has gone off on a visit, says he can now define "equaler" more accurately than Webster.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Funeral orations are not in our line but along with a number of other newspaper men we are especially sorry at the death of Senator Logan of Kentucky.

He was one of that fairly limited number of senators who are both able and willing to sit with a reporter through an hour of chat and discussion of tough issues with many angles. He was not a "natural authority" on a single issue that we can recall, yet he had a knack of assembling a mass of sound information which he was willing to let reporters have if they asked for it.

He had spent most of his life as a judge before coming to the senate and his knowledge of the law was much respected not only by the press but by the fellow senators. He was not a "hard working" legislator who spent diurnal hours in his office digging out tax data. Nevertheless he probably read from day to day far more than the average senator, and on subjects of special interest to him he read and studied as much as any.

IN A FIGHT

The supreme court fight interested him deeply, and throughout that period he was a source of abundant help to Senator Joe Robinson, majority leader, whose death came as a dramatic climax to that historic conflict two years ago. Senator Logan was one of the lead-off men for the administration group trying to win authority for appointment of young and fresh men to the supreme court.

He endured probably the toughest grilling of any who spoke. We happened to talk to him briefly before he went on the floor for that speech and he said then that he knew what he was "coming up against." He hoped only that he would be permitted to talk long enough without interruption to give some semblance of coherence to his speech. He had prepared it carefully.

Nothing like that happened. When he arose he drew a barrage of questions which continued without a break until he finished, three hours later. A glance at the Congressional Record shows that rarely was he permitted to finish more than three or four sentences at a time until some senator arose to question or argue. Patiently he answered reams of questions that drew him down side-alleys, and as patiently he returned to his own theme after each skirmish.

Senators agree that it was one of the hardest questionings a senator has endured. Had Senator Robinson endured such a test his fiery temper might have risen to such a pitch as to cause his death long before it came.

PROPHECY

A strange little story now is available in connection with Logan's death that could not be told before. A day or so after Robinson's death, we happened to be talking with Senator Copeland of New York, the senate's only physician-member in a long time. He recalled then what reporters had noted at the time, that he had two times gone over to Robinson's side to caution him against such tempestuous speech as was his habit. He knew Robinson's condition.

"Who will be next to go?" we asked him.

It so happened that Logan, in a speech some time before, had quoted that little bogey-man verse beginning:

"Last night I saw upon the stair
 "A little man who wasn't there
 By way of answer, Copeland repeated that verse as a means of referring to Logan. He added:
 "When a man in his later years begins to thin out about the back of the neck, look out."
 Logan had begun to "thin out" about the neck. Yet he was not the next to go. Senator Copeland himself, a few weeks later, died suddenly in his apartment here. That was two years ago.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—Signs of the times:
 In one day prices jumped a dime on several items in one studio luncheon menu. C'est la guerre—but even so they hadn't the nerve to boost the price of Honeycomb Tripe.

Director to producer: "But the scene is censurable."
 Producer to director: "It'll get by now." (C'est la guerre!)

Sitting through the preview of "Intermezzo," which introduces a new Swedish star, Ingrid Bergman, I was conscious of something unique in the girl's appearance. Something startling. About the second reel it dawned: the gal has eyebrows, real ones, her own, unplucked, unshaped, unglamorized, the real McCoy. It's been years since that kind has reached the screen. Questions before the house: Are eyebrows coming back? Along with corsets and bustles?

There's a scene in "A Call on the President" in which Joe Turp (William Gargan) is visiting the White House, and the chief executive is listening to a foreign broadcast. Says Joe: "Is that guy shooting off his mouth again?" The president nods, and philosophizes to Joe about the state of the nation, asks Joe what he would do in the situation. And Joe, drawing on his Brooklyn wisdom, says he'd handle it the way you do a telephone threatener: "Just don't answer. Hang up on him—and let him guess what you're going to do."

Gargan, playing Brooklyn's (or Damon Runyon's) Joe Turp, with Ann Southern as his wife, Ethel, says he spent years forgetting his Brooklynese, expects to spend years after this role learning English again. "He was born on Brooklyn's Henry street, once worked 'under a truck.' In 'A Call on the President' the set is a reproduction of Brooklyn's Henry street, and Joe Turp's livelihood is mechanical.

"For years," says Bill, "I was like many a Brooklynite in resenting Brooklynese as Damon Runyon wrote it—and then I left Brooklyn and began to notice 'er' for 'or' and 'erster' for 'oyster.' I don't know why we talk that way. No dese, dem, and dose, but 'er' and 'erster' always. It's the only place in the world you hear it."

After all these years, Hollywood is actually going to provide a home for its old people. The stage, with actors' homes and hospitals, is far ahead of the screen, but the movie industry is catching up. That Sunday air program of screen stars—sponsored by the Guilds—got off to a big start with the Cary Grant-Ann Southern-Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland show. And in 31 weeks will bring to the "home fund" another $220,000. Tentative plans call for a central building plus individual bungalows on an as yet unselected tract of at least 25 acres—and work to begin within the next two years.

The home will be open not only to actors but to the eligible from the entire movie industry. At least a dozen stars, directors and others have offered to donate bungalows.

It's a sign of the times—this awakened conscience in an industry which in the past has showered everything on the few successful, practically by turned its back on its forgotten many.

Chapter Two

MYSTERIOUS NOTE

"Who are these relatives?" asked Forrester.

"The wife, and a younger brother of Murchison's— he's in the chemistry department—and Professor Jared Devoe, a cousin of Mrs. Murchison's. She is living with him and his mother at present."

Forrester looked up sharply. "If she expects her husband home any time, why leave her own house?"

"It isn't her own house. It belongs to the University, furniture and all. She gave it up a month ago to save expense, I believe. The Devoes live on the Horseshoe too, so she's right there in case Murchison does come back."

"If they're so sure he is coming back why have they brought the case to you?"

"I've been waiting for that question," Davies told him. "They are quite plausible about it. They say of course they're not sure and they can't afford to take any chances. But they all act as if they wouldn't have Murchison for him. It's an underhand business. The brother never agrees with the other two at all, and yet he isn't quite open and aboveboard either."

"What's your own opinion?"

"The Commissioner stirred restlessly. "That's why I've come to you. I'm confused. It doesn't seem possible that we've been able to find no trace of him in six weeks—no trace, dead or alive."

Forrester returned to his whistling. Davies waited.

Forrester looked up. "What motives might a criminal have?"

"As far as I can see, none. Murchison had money in the bank but it hasn't been touched. Owned nothing worth stealing except a lot of books, and they weren't stolen. Nobody would want them anyway. At the time he disappeared he had about twenty dollars on his person, and a good watch. That's not enough. He wasn't particularly popular with his colleagues, rather bad tempered, I gather, but he doesn't seem to have any enemies. Nobody but his family knows that he has disappeared."

"Where does his wife think he is, then? If she's so sure he'll come back and yet you can't find him?"

The Commissioner frowned. "Apparently he's a man all wrapped up in his work," he said slowly. "Fond of carrying out long and careful experiments. They think he's gone off to some place where he can work alone and unmolested until he finishes whatever he's engaged on. But where? God only knows. You can't get very far on twenty dollars."

"What experiment?"

Davies looked up. "Don't ask me," he said. "I don't know."

"Do they?"

"No. He never talked about his work at home, even to his brother, who, being a scientist himself, might have understood."

"He was at the head of the physiology department, wasn't he?" Forrester said finally.

"Yes," Davies was watching him.

"Who worked under him?"

"Chop named McBein."

"Does he know what experiments Murchison was engaged on?"

"We haven't asked him. Do you think that's the key?"

Forrester did not answer. After some time he said: "What was he doing when they got him, cutting dogs and cats up alive?"

"I don't know. It wasn't proved, anyway. It was just a rumor that shrieks came from the University laboratories at night, and since Murchison was head they jumped on him. He denied it, and it was dropped. Wasn't that all?"

"I'd be tempted to look into it. Sounds interesting."

"My Son Michael"

Davies rubbed his chin. "I'm afraid it's beside the point, Forrester. I think we can look nearer home for trouble."

"So you do know something?"

"Very little. But I know this—they don't want him found, John. They don't want him found."

"I see."

"And that," said Davies after a pause, "is where Michael comes in."

MYSTERIOUS NOTE

"Who are these relatives?" asked Forrester.

"The wife, and a younger brother of Murchison's— he's in the chemistry department—and Professor Jared Devoe, a cousin of Mrs. Murchison's. She is living with him and his mother at present."

Forrester looked up sharply. "If she expects her husband home any time, why leave her own house?"

"It isn't her own house. It belongs to the University, furniture and all. She gave it up a month ago to save expense, I believe. The Devoes live on the Horseshoe too, so she's right there in case Murchison does come back."

"If they're so sure he is coming back why have they brought the case to you?"

"I've been waiting for that question," Davies told him. "They are quite plausible about it. They say of course they're not sure and they can't afford to take any chances. But they all act as if they wouldn't have Murchison for him. It's an underhand business. The brother never agrees with the other two at all, and yet he isn't quite open and aboveboard either."

"What's your own opinion?"

"The Commissioner stirred restlessly. "That's why I've come to you. I'm confused. It doesn't seem possible that we've been able to find no trace of him in six weeks—no trace, dead or alive."

Forrester returned to his whistling. Davies waited.

Forrester looked up. "What motives might a criminal have?"

"As far as I can see, none. Murchison had money in the bank but it hasn't been touched. Owned nothing worth stealing except a lot of books, and they weren't stolen. Nobody would want them anyway. At the time he disappeared he had about twenty dollars on his person, and a good watch. That's not enough. He wasn't particularly popular with his colleagues, rather bad tempered, I gather, but he doesn't seem to have any enemies. Nobody but his family knows that he has disappeared."

"Where does his wife think he is, then? If she's so sure he'll come back and yet you can't find him?"

The Commissioner frowned. "Apparently he's a man all wrapped up in his work," he said slowly. "Fond of carrying out long and careful experiments. They think he's gone off to some place where he can work alone and unmolested until he finishes whatever he's engaged on. But where? God only knows. You can't get very far on twenty dollars."

"What experiment?"

Davies looked up. "Don't ask me," he said. "I don't know."

"Do they?"

"No. He never talked about his work at home, even to his brother, who, being a scientist himself, might have understood."

"He was at the head of the physiology department, wasn't he?" Forrester said finally.

"Yes," Davies was watching him.

"Who worked under him?"

"Chop named McBein."

"Does he know what experiments Murchison was engaged on?"

"We haven't asked him. Do you think that's the key?"

Forrester did not answer. After some time he said: "What was he doing when they got him, cutting dogs and cats up alive?"

"I don't know. It wasn't proved, anyway. It was just a rumor that shrieks came from the University laboratories at night, and since Murchison was head they jumped on him. He denied it, and it was dropped. Wasn't that all?"

"I'd be tempted to look into it. Sounds interesting."

"My Son Michael"

Davies rubbed his chin. "I'm afraid it's beside the point, Forrester. I think we can look nearer home for trouble."

"So you do know something?"

"Very little. But I know this—they don't want him found, John. They don't want him found."

"I see."

"And that," said Davies after a pause, "is where Michael comes in."

British Freighter Completes Perilous Crossing, After Its Convoy Sinks Two German Subs

HOUSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—After a perilous Atlantic crossing during which crew members saw two German U-boats shattered and sent to the bottom by British destroyers, the English freighter Newton Pine finally reached the safety of the United States territorial waters and was loading 240,000 bushels of wheat here today.

The Newton Pine presents the most war-like appearance of any of the foreign ships which have called here since the war began Sept. 4. Painted a drab grey, sand bags are piled high about the decks and cabins, while a 12 pound gun is mounted aft at the starboard rail.

"We were lucky to make this westward crossing," crew members said.

One sailor, a typical Englishman who referred to the sailors aboard the destroyer as "navy blokes," told of the convoy, the enemy submarines and the shattering explosion that sent a British tanker to the bottom when a torpedo struck her amidships.

"We left England after the war was declared," the sailor said. "For the first four days of our 25-day trip across, we were convoyed by British destroyers. There were several other ships in our convoy.

"In those first four days, three German submarines attempted to attack us. From the decks of our ship we saw two of the subs sent to the bottom. One of them was only about a hundred yards off our port rail when the depth bomb got it."

"Evidently," he continued, "the sub was not far below the surface because when the depth bomb exploded, a great geyser of oil, water and wreckage spewed above the surface. The second sub was farther away, but it left a big splash of oil on the water after the destroyers had bombed it."

The destroyers, the sailor said, reported they had sunk a third U-boat but the crew members did not witness this battle.

Swede Larson, The Navy's Cinderella Coach; Is Back In 'Seventh Heaven'

By JOHN S. GROVER
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Move over, Cinderella, you've got company—Major Emery E. (Swede) Larson jumped from directing football traffic in 1938 to head coach of Navy football in 1939.

Last year nearly killed the Swede. He commanded the U. S. marine detachment at the naval academy. The marines direct stadium traffic on football Saturdays. Larson's duties as boss traffic cop kept him from seeing a home game.

Being stuck within hearing of games he couldn't see was exquisite torture for Larson, who suffers from four-plus gridiron dementia in the tertiary stages.

Larson at a football game is a whirling dervish with the itch. He's the champion heavyweight nall biter of the east coast. He takes his football hard.

He's as unorthodox as a fan dancer in red-flannel underwear.

It's a coaching convention to meet about prospects. Larson started the fraternity by announcing his prospects were swell and his material tops.

Most coaches surround themselves with a flock of assistants. Larson cut his staff to three.

He collects airmail stamps. Ma-lines all over the world save rare issues for their old skipper.

Larson was picked on Walter Camp's second all-America team at center in 1921, the year he captained Navy. He occupies a special niche in Navy's hall of fame as the only three-year varsity griddler who never walked off the field after a defeat by Army. Navy won three straight from the Cadets in the "Larson years." He was on the all-America lacrosse teams in 1922.

He can't stay out of football. If they put him in charge of an old ladies' home, he'd have the inmates scrimmaging the first week in September.

Last year was Swede's first without a football assignment in 25 years. But he stopped to watch some 15-year-olds in a vacant lot and five minutes later he was their coach. He organized the idea, scheduled games with prep teams, and they went through an eight-game season undefeated.

He played on the all-marine team three years after graduation. He was the seagoing coach of the U.S.S. Pennsylvania when that battleship won the fleet championship two years in a row. He coached the all-Navy team in Hawaii in 1927, and next year the University of Hawaii drafted him for line coach. He coached at Parris Island marine base for three years. When they sent him out to China, he promptly organized and coached the Sixth marines. Football follows the flag when Larson is around.

The leathernocks have a marching song that declares firmly that the streets of Heaven are guarded by United States marines. If Larson ever commands that detail, don't be surprised to see goal posts on a cloud some fall afternoon.

It wouldn't be heaven for Larson without football. He's probably working out some plays now to utilize a halfback with wings.

The Sports Parade

By HANK HART

No standout team boasts District 3-AA football conference, but this weekend the championship may be decided in the Midland-Sweetwater clash at Midland. Again it may not for San Angelo is yet to be reckoned with.

It is quite possible that every team in the family will be slapped down once. Larry Priddy's Sweetwater forces apparently have been over rated and Midland's Bulldogs are fast gaining backing. Rumors circulating from the eastern sector of the circuit where Abilene lost a struggle to the Ponies last week relate that the red shirts looked none too strong in cuffing the Eagles, are weak in too many spots.

Joe Coleman's Odessa crew, clipped unexpectedly by Big Spring last week, has not deserted ship and is still a contender. The Broncos can be counted on to beat somebody, are pointing toward the game with Midland.

Pat Murphy's Steers are now being taken seriously, what with the Odessans' scalps on their belts. The Bovines certainly are not beating their chests and sticking their chins to the fore but they, too, must be reckoned with.

Lamesa is yet to be heard from but from all indications are willin given now to call it are willin even now to call it far weaker than a season ago.

All in all it remains decidedly a battle royal. The survivor may not go very far in the state race but the debating that results before Turkey Day is going to be interesting.

Although there is no standout eleven like District Nine's Breckenridge, Seven's Masonic Home or Eleven's Tyler, the circuit offers several youngsters who compare with the state's best as individual performers.

TURFMAN DIES IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Ral Parr, 62, the turfman who owned a derby winner but said he liked the insurance business better than racing, died unexpectedly last night.

Parr's black, white and red silks, the oldest active colors registered with the New York Jockey club, were up when Paul Jones won the Kentucky derby and the Belmont suburban in 1920.

Parr, who suffered a stroke at Saratoga in 1935, was stricken with another last night in the historic Maryland club and died a few hours later.

ODLE ON SIDELINES

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11 (AP)—The hard-pressed T. C. U. Horned Frogs suffered a terrific jolt today when X-rays revealed that Jack Odle, the junior quarterback, had suffered a broken thumb in the Arkansas game last Saturday. He will be out three or four weeks.

Dixie 11's Seek New Successes In Intersectional Engagements

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Looking at things entirely from the intersectional angle, this is likely to be about the biggest week of the 1939 football season and another one which will enhance the prestige of southern football.

On a percentage basis southern teams still are below the 500 mark in their major encounters with northern rivals, but in the matter of glory they're tops and apparently headed still higher. Duke over Colgate, Alabama over Fordham, Louisiana State over Holy Cross, Mississippi State over Arkansas and Vanderbilt over Rice have been major southern triumphs against other sections. Then there have been such equally amazing affairs as the close scores of Georgia Tech against Notre Dame and Furman, Centre and Virginia which didn't figure to win at all against Army and Navy.

This week's program looks like much the same sort of stuff.

North Carolina, with a wealth of fine backs, figures to have the best of New York University. Fordham doesn't appear strong enough to stop Tulane at New Orleans.

Duke, invading the north, should be able to tackle Pitt's Panthers at least on even terms.

Bringing the southwest into the argument, Rice and Louisiana State should have a whale of a tussle and Texas A. and M., apparently the strongest of the Southwest conference teams, may get a real argument from Villanova. Southern Methodist, which hasn't shown a great deal yet, is a good possibility to upset Notre Dame, which has had two close squeaks so far. Texas Christian likely will find a long trip and a fairly good Temple team too much to overcome.

Another great tussle may be that between Texas, winner of two important intersectional games so far, and Oklahoma, which tied B. M. U. and trimmed Northwestern.

Would Abolish Majorettes At Grid Games

Joe College Says Coed's Place Not In Front Of Band

By ROBERT GEIGER
AP Feature Service Writer
DENVER, Oct. 11 — There's a gentleman's agreement in the Big Seven football conference out here in the Rocky Mountain country for the suppression of shapely, shorts-clad drum majorettes.

Drum Majorette In Action

Reasons: 1. Some think a display of legs distracts attention of fans from football players (and possibly of players from their work). 2. Some say it isn't dignified for a girl to display herself in the flimsy majorette uniforms. 3. College military bands "are traditionally male institutions" and shouldn't be opened to females. (That's the way Colorado University boys voted.) 4. Girls complicate traveling arrangements when bands make trips with the football team. 5. The girl twirlers can't "stand the gaff of practicing and performing in sleet, rain or high winds."

"We have girls in our concert organization and respect them highly for their musical ability," said Band Director Hugh McMillen, "but I don't think they have any place in a military band as majorettes."

Another band leader confirmed the report that "some of the conference band leaders had a gentleman's agreement." If one school breaks this agreement "we all may have to abandon it."

The Colorado U. situation was complicated because there are 15 girls who have had majorette experience and would like to lead the band. "I don't think they intend to make an issue," said McMillen.

He reported that there also was a movement in the east and mid-west away from majorettes. Southwestern schools still like them.

Moore Stands Out In Grid Workout

Junior Moore, who stepped out to pace the Big Spring Junior high school Yearlings in their 19-19 deadlock with Colorado City last week stood out like a sore thumb as Howard Schwarzenbach sent his charges through a tough scrimmage at the Highland Park stadium Tuesday afternoon.

Moore showed amazing ability to keep his footing in his thrusts at the line and it became more and more evident that he was going to bear the brunt of the Yearlings' attack in their Friday assignment here with the San Angelo Kittens.

Swatzy gave the Yearlings several new plays and indicated that the locals would shoot a much more versatile attack at the Kittens than they were able to employ against Colorado City.

Gehrig Named To N'York Office

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia today appointed Lou Gehrig, former New York Yankee star first baseman incapacitated by a subtle form of paralysis, a city parole commissioner.

The appointment, for a term of slightly more than 10 years, carries a salary of $4,000, less a current 5 per cent pay cut.

The mayor said: "I believe he (Gehrig) will not only be an able, intelligent commissioner, but that he himself will be an inspiration and a hope to many of the younger boys who have gotten into trouble."

Austin Panthers Rated On Even Terms With Bovines

MILNER'S TEAM ARE DISTRICT FAVORITES

There's no Jerry Spitzer in the crowd but the Austin (El Paso) football team that Walter Milner brings to Big Spring Friday to do battle with the Big Spring Steers in a non-conference exhibition rates just as highly in their own district as did the 1938 crew that the rugged half-back led.

Filling Spitzer's shoes this year is a youngster by the name of Sammy Klink, 145-pound quarter whom the Steers might remember from last year's team.

Klink combined with Spitzer and the other members of the crew to give the Panthers a 20-6 victory over the Steers in a game played in El Paso.

He will be given assistance in the ball totting duties by Howard Hammonds, two year letterman, Lavender Humphrey, 132-pounder, and Manuel Ferguson, a 16-year-old who graduated to the Panthers from the junior team.

The Panthers have been very impressive to date. They dropped a 18-6 decision to Odessa two weeks ago but looked good in doing it and will go into the Friday night game on even terms with Pat Murphy's crew.

Earlier in the campaign the Panthers upset Amarillo, 7-6, giving the Sandies their first licking on Butler field, Amarillo.

Last weekend Milner's charges cleared the way for a district title by smashing Ysleta easily, 14-0.

Milner's starting line will average about 155 pounds which compares favorably with the Bovines' forward wall.

SAMMY KLINK

go with Odessa and has not returned to practice. His absence will force Pete Pressley, junior half, into plenty of action. Pete has been backing up Owen Brummett at fullback but has been switched about in Murphy's experiments.

Horace Bostick, hurt in practice last week, has not yet donned playing togetery and is not expected to be ready for action before another ten days.

Net Stars Of Cuba, Mexico Square Off

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11 (AP)—A strong Cuban tennis team expressed confidence today that it would return to Havana the end of this week with the Copas Marti and Hidalgo—symbols of tennis supremacy between Mexico and Cuba.

The Cuban stars will meet a team of leading Mexican players tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday in a renewal of the international Mexico-Cuba matches which lapsed eight years ago.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT By the Associated Press
NEW YORK — Lew Jenkins, 130 3-4, Sweetwater, Tex., stopped Primo Flores, 135 3-4, Puerto Rico, 5-0.

Chisox Rack Up City Title

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—After 17 years, the Chicago White Sox still find Teddy Lyons, the 38-year-old righthander, a handy man to have around.

Lyons pitched the Sox to the city baseball championship last night, setting the National League Cubs down with five hits for a 7 to 1 victory in the seventh game of the series. The victory gave the Sox their fifth straight city diadem.

Last night's game drew 14,781 spectators in 83-degree weather.

$22,350.97 REALIZED
CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—The monetary value of the city baseball title, won by the White Sox in a seven-game series with the National League Cubs, was $22,350.97.

That was the players' share for the American leaguers and it was split among 32 shareholders, each getting $698.46. The Cubs' share was $14,900.64 but the individual take was not known because the split was secret.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS
DENVER, Oct. 11 (AP)—Thousands of hunters, many of them from other states, deployed through the Colorado uplands today with better than usual expectations of bagging a deer, elk or bear during the state's 10-day big game season. The season opened at 4 a. m. The weather generally was fair.

Only coffee from the "Magic Mountains" brings you this VIGOROUS FLAVOR!

A Mountain of Flavor in Every Spoonful!

There is a secret to the wonderful flavor of Folger's coffee. That secret lies in the "Magic Mountains" whence it comes-- fertile tropical peaks that experts call the world's coffee paradise. Coffee grown here has an amazingly vigorous flavor. Indeed so rich is it that coffee lovers say you can use one-fourth less and still drink luxuriously. Remember the name Folger's-- you'll not forget the taste!

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees

"Oh," she turned back and looked at the garden gate. Michael unlimbered his long legs, stood up and went over beside her. He leaned an elbow on the sundial, cupped his chin on his palm, and stared at the garden gate. Tuck regarded him frowningly. "What's the matter with you?" she asked. Michael sighed. "I don't know," he replied. "I caught it from you."

"From me?"

"That's it. Ever since I came home you've been alternately saying 'Oh!' and sighing. And paying no attention to me. I asked if you knew when the laundry was coming back, and you replied by inquiring if I had been busy this summer. What the District Attorney has to do with my clean shirts is a trifle beyond me. And Charlotte Jean asked you if you wanted the coffee on the sun porch, and you told her you thought it would be a good idea to house-clean the study tomorrow. The poor girl went out dazed. I saw her stagger against the kitchen wall."

"Well," Tuck said frowningly. "I think it would."

"Would what?"

"Be a good idea to house-clean the study tomorrow."

"I see." He gazed at her thoughtfully. "Could it have been the watermelon?"

"Could what have been the watermelon?"

"The study. Could the watermelon, or, in other words, why?"

"Michael, there isn't a particle of sense in anything you're saying. Well, at least you heard me that time."

"I heard you every time. Only, you haven't really said anything yet."

"Perhaps not. If I started to say things now could you hang upon my words until I've finished?"

"I could try." She wrinkled her nose up at him. He bent toward her, then straightened suddenly as her smile changed to a frown. "She's looking," she murmured quickly. "I can see her behind the curtain."

"Who's looking?" He turned and followed her glance.

"Oh Michael, for goodness sake! Now she knows what I said."

"Well, who is she, and what difference does it make anyway? Tuck, will you come down to earth?"

Continued tomorrow.

Won't Reveal His Secret Of 'Death Ray'

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. Antonio Longoria, who in 1924 confirmed reports he had perfected a "death ray" machine, said today it was possible such rays would be used in the present European war, but that he would never reveal his secret or help recreate such an apparatus.

The Cleveland inventor, who built a machine in 1923 that he said killed pigeons on the wing at four miles, destroyed it because of its danger.

"It's quite possible that someone may stumble across the particular electric wave I used," he said. "I found it accidentally myself and I am certainly not proud of the discovery. The machine killed small animals, and it could kill human beings just as easily."

"The ray lies in one of the unexplored frequency bands in the vicinity of the X-ray. It kills painlessly, without burning, by changing the blood to a useless substance—as light changes silver salts to photography."

Dr. Longoria said in addition to a demonstration here of the ray's ability to kill pigeons, he showed a group of scientists in California that the ray could kill rabbits even when the animals were in a thick-walled aluminum case.

"I could assemble such a machine again," he declared, "but I never shall. My inventions have brought me wealth. I am interested now only in doing something to help civilization, which seems to be going backward instead of ahead."

Higher Crude Prices Seen

TULSA, Oct. 11 (AP)—Generally higher prices for crude oil before the end of the year were predicted by many quarters of the industry today.

Prices already have moved upward in some sections. Four districts in Pennsylvania received a 25-cent a barrel boost. Parts of Illinois, Michigan, Louisiana and Texas were given markups.

Many purchasers regarded distress crude as a dwindling problem. One said lighter oils could be obtained only with difficulty in the Texas Gulf area and demand for heavy crude was good.

Scattered increases in tank wagon gasoline prices have been made. And the recent stepup in industrial activity, along with winter demands, was strengthened fuel oil.

One source said Canadian demand was 20 per cent above that of last year. Coalwise business has been reported brisk.

The past week also brought announcements of construction activity. Standard Oil Company of Louisiana plans a $3,000,000 improvement program at its Baton Rouge plant. Continental Oil company will spend $1,250,000 on a new thermal cracking plant at Ponca City, Okla., and $250,000 more in improving other equipment. Shell Oil company will build a $600,000 natural gas processing plant in the Magnolia field, Columbia county, Arkansas.

The Oil and Gas Journal reported 300 completions for the week ended October 7, compared with 497 for the previous week, and 501 a year ago.

World's Best Rifle Soon Will Be In Doughboys' Hands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Doughboys of the regular army and national guard soon will be supplied with the "world's best shoulder rifle," the new Garand Semi-Automatic M-1, at the rate of 400 a day.

An $8,710,000 order for 65,000 of the weapons was given a commercial arms plant by the war department yesterday to supplement the expanding output of the Springfield, Mass., arsenal.

Twenty months hence, under present schedules, some 168,000 infantrymen will be armed with the rifle.

No other army has a rifle comparing in deadliness with this weapon, ordnance experts said. The Garand fires a clip of eight bullets one or more a second before reloading.

At the same time, President Roosevelt disclosed administration plans for building the army up to a force of about 600,000, including the regular troops, the national guard and reserve officers. He told reporters, however, that the nation's armed forces already approach that figure.

The war department announced also a $6,983,292 order for warplane motors, including a new 1,500 horsepower plant for medium bombers which was officially described as

In First Fall Conference

Dates for the regular monthly meeting of the advisory board of the city recreation department were set for the second Tuesday, it was decided at the first fall session at the city hall Monday night.

Plans are to vary but little from the usual program procedure. The superintendent is to formulate the program agenda from existing needs or problems that may arise from suggestions from council members.

City Manager E. V. Spence suggested a plan of inviting various playground groups and their leaders to council meetings whereby special discussions might be of vital interest and stimulation to them.

Lack of a sufficient number of recreation leaders and inability to secure other leaders was considered the greatest hindrance to the program at the present time.

Members present were Pat Murphy, Marvin House, Sr., Harold Akey, H. F. Malone and Spence.

WIN OVER FROGS MAY HAVE SAVED THOMSEN'S JOB

By FELIX H. MCKNIGHT
DALLAS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Big Milt Sington's foot settled the air over at University of Arkansas last Saturday.

HE MET THE TWO CONVERSION POINTS

that downed Texas Christian, 14-13.

FANS POURED OVER THE ARKANSAS

bench, palming Coach Fred Thomsen's back in congratulations. The shield for whispers of criticism all down loss to Mississippi State. Thomsen brushed them aside, muttered:

"YEAH, I KNOW, I'M A GREAT COACH TODAY."

The talk was open around Fayetteville that Thomsen wasn't on the firmest possible footing before his Razorbacks, in a fine demonstration of how to take it on the chin and then come back, streamed through T.C.U. in the fourth period to topple the Southwest conference's defending champion.

NOT SO MANY WEEKS AGO THOMSEN

made a statement: "If we get by Texas Christian in the opening conference game, we will be hard to handle."

ARKANSAS GOT BY TEXAS CHRISTIAN

and Thomsen may have something. His Razorbacks are potent. No finer back will take the field this season than Kay Eakin, the conference triple-threat who was delayed a year in getting national recognition by a broken shoulder received last year.

CLOSE OBSERVERS SAY

the Arkansas did look miserable against Mississippi State. They never threatened and folded before the State's attack. The Razorbacks tried now running stuff off a single wing. A brand new innovation for the huge passing team. It didn't work too well.

THOMSEN GOT ANOTHER ATTEMPT

only yesterday. Jay Lawhorn, big 215-pound sophomore fullback who looked great in pre-season scrimmages and then injured his knee, was due to play against Baylor Saturday but re-injured his leg in scrimmage yesterday and probably will be out for the season.

RUMORS AT ARKANSAS

that all wasn't smooth in the athletic setup could be squelched forever by consistent performances such as the T.C.U. affair—but travel may get the Razorbacks. They play in Waco next Saturday, Austin October 21, and Philadelphia October 28.

shores by comparing our situation to that of Poland."

"In my judgment," Clark boomed, "no more idiotic, moronic, unpatriotic remark has ever been made by a man in high public position."

He said this was "the same Louis Johnson who has been flying around the country in an army plane for the past several years preaching the inevitability of war and the certainty of our being drawn in."

Clark also denounced what he said was an effort on the part of the war department to make the nation war-minded by preparations for the draft.

"Already—when we have no quarrel with any nation in the world—with no authority of law whatever officials are going about the country training draft boards for the purpose of conscripting the youth of our land for military service. x x x I say it is a shameful thing because it can have no other purpose than inflaming the people and making them war-minded."

Meanwhile, Senator King (D-Utah) predicted after a conference with President Roosevelt that provisions of the neutrality bill which would restrict operations of American ships would be modified.

"I don't want to destroy our merchant marine," King told reporters. "We are making sacrifices enough of our neutral rights."

He expressed opposition especially to restrictions on shipping from west coast ports. The Pacific, he said, is outside the sphere of belligerent activities.

Opening the seventh day of the senate neutrality debate, Clark criticized the pending legislation as "a sieve instead of a fortress for our peace and security."

Few people appeared to realize he said, that repeal of the embargo is actually a quiet process of taking sides because it would open American arms markets to Great Britain and France. Trade with Germany has been halted by the British naval blockade.

DISAPPEARANCE OF NEW MEXICO MAN REMAINS MYSTERY

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 11 (AP)—New Mexico officers apparently were without a definite clue today to the five-day-old mystery disappearance of Gilbert G. Hendrix, Jr., 33-year-old Albuquerque finance company head.

Hendrix last was seen Friday at Santa Fe. His automobile was found Sunday in Denver and in it were a bloodstained handkerchief, a broken pair of glasses and three envelopes of the pay envelope variety.

Vic said he could find the last eight without any trouble.

"Stalin demanded that I take an active part in the purge. This I refused to do and I broke with Stalin."

That was in 1937, Krivitsky said. Entering the military intelligence in 1920, he said that from 1921 to 1923 he worked in the third bureau of the Red army general staff.

Answering questions by Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, about his various connections with the Soviet government, Krivitsky said that in 1923 he was sent to Germany "to organize the German revolution and prepare the manpower for the German Red army."

Holding various positions in the intervening years, he said he became director of the war industries institute and then in 1934 returned to general staff intelligence work. In 1935-37 he was chief of Soviet military intelligence for western Europe "which includes central Europe, particularly Germany."

Representative Thomas (R-N.J.) interrupted the witness to ask whether Stalin completely dominated Earl Browder's American communist party.

"Completely," Krivitsky replied. "Is Earl Browder the real head of the party here?"

"No."

"Is Stalin the absolute head of the communist party in this country?"

"Yes, of course. Stalin gives his instructions to the party here through the representatives of Communist International."

Lions Club Hears Safety Program

Otto Peters, whose first aid and safety work at the Corden refinery plant here has won him wide recognition, Wednesday told Lions club members that 98 per cent of all accidents are preventable.

Accidents, he said, affect the employer in the payment of compensation insurance rates, the employee in the loss of time, and the families and communities in economic and productivity loss.

Peter warned against infection, however tiny, strains, etc. He said that care, education and enforcement of same rules and regulations could reduce greatly the accident toll.

"Any thing that is caused to happen is not an accident," he said in illustrating the needlessness of many "misaps." "Most of the so-called accidents are incidents where employers hurt themselves or those with whom they work."

In the final analysis, he said, safety "begins and ends with self."

The program was in charge of Neal Stanley, member of the safety committee of the club.

FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE IN ASSAULT CASE

W. S. Gunter, Midland, was found guilty of assault to murder and sentenced to five years in the state prison by a Midland county jury Tuesday evening, Martelle McDonald, district attorney, said here Wednesday.

Gunter was charged with his sons, Herman and W. S. Gunter, Jr., in connection with the shooting of S. L. Box on a Midland street a year ago. About a year prior to that Box had been indicted for killing one of the elder Gunter's sons, but was acquitted.

The jury also gave Herman Gunter a two year suspended sentence and found W. S. Gunter, Jr. not guilty.

Yates Litigation To Be Considered By High Tribunal

AUSTIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—A maze of litigation involving 143 acres in the Yates oil pool, nine at wells worth several million dollars and a money judgment of more than $700,000 against the Gulf Oil Corporation will be considered by the supreme court.

That court today granted application for writ of error asked by the Gulf in a suit brought by the Marathon Oil company and others seeking to recover the value of oil produced on the M. A. Smith lease on section 28, block 194, G.C.S.F. survey, Pecos county.

The action meant the supreme court would review the judgment of the El Paso court of civil appeals which was adverse to the Gulf company.

A motion by the Callier-Temp Publishing company of Corpus Christi for a rehearing in a libel case which it lost to C. C. Chandler was overruled.

In their application, attorneys for the company contended the supreme court's refusal to reverse an appeals court ruling might be far-reaching and possibly could lead to "the destruction of the privilege of newspapers to publish fair, true and impartial accounts of official proceedings."

SOASH INVESTMENT WASN'T SO GOOD

Frank Wagner, Victoria, was interested in going to the "little town of Soash" while he was here for the I.O.O.F. encampment and department council convention this week.

When he found out that the town of Soash had disappeared and left only the bulk of an old bank building to mark its spot, Wagner laughed.

He had invested about $600 in some lots when the town and section on the northern Howard county line was being promoted little more than 20 years ago.

"They tell me my lots are out in the middle of a pasture now," he said, then reflected with a chuckle that "I wasn't the only one."

Thanksgiving Will Be Observed As Usual, Nov. 30, In Texas Cities

By the Associated Press

Most of Texas' larger colleges and apparently a majority of its public schools will disregard President Roosevelt's recommendation and observe Thanksgiving on the last Thursday in November as usual.

Governor O'Daniel announced some time ago he would proclaim two Thanksgiving days, one on November 23, the date favored by the president, and the second on November 30, the traditional last Thursday.

A survey today disclosed that the Thanksgiving school holiday generally would be November 30. The State Teachers' association intends to hold its annual meeting at San Antonio November 20 and December 1 and 2.

Among colleges which will count Nov. 30 as Thanksgiving are Southern Methodist university at Dallas, University of Texas, Texas A. and M., Texas Christian university at Fort Worth, Texas Tech. Rice Institute at Houston, and Hardin-Simmons, McMurry and Abilene Christian at Abilene. President Paul M. Neff of Baylor said Baylor had not yet voted on which holiday to observe.

Public schools of Houston, Austin, Fort Worth, Lubbock, Abilene, Waco and many other cities already have decided to observe the day for Thanksgiving on Nov. 30.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—With aircraft in the lead some selected shares worked higher in today's stock market, in which price changes were generally narrow.

The opening was quiet and business was never very active. With a turnover approximating 550,000 shares it was the slowest session since the "war boom" started more than a month ago.

Imminence of tomorrow's holiday and Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the British house of commons in which he is expected to lay down his country's peace demands, checked any tendency for traders to get out on a limb.
