By Food Shortage Protest...

Polish Traffic Stopped

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Workers protesting food shortages paralyzed traffic in the center of Warsaw today, jamming the capital's biggest intersection, and about 100,000 workers walked off their jobs in Czestochowa for an hour-long warning strike.

The official Polish news agency PAP said the blockade was "paralyzing traffic" in the city center. Unarmed police were diverting traffic from the congested area and blocked further passage by the motorcade. Officers were stationed around the city to reroute cars.

Meanwhile, factory sirens blared out the start of a one-hour warning strike in Czestochowa, an industrial center and religious shrine city about 130 miles southwest of Warsaw. About 100,000 workers joined the strike in 300 factories to protest shortages of food and other goods, the independent labor union Solidarity said.

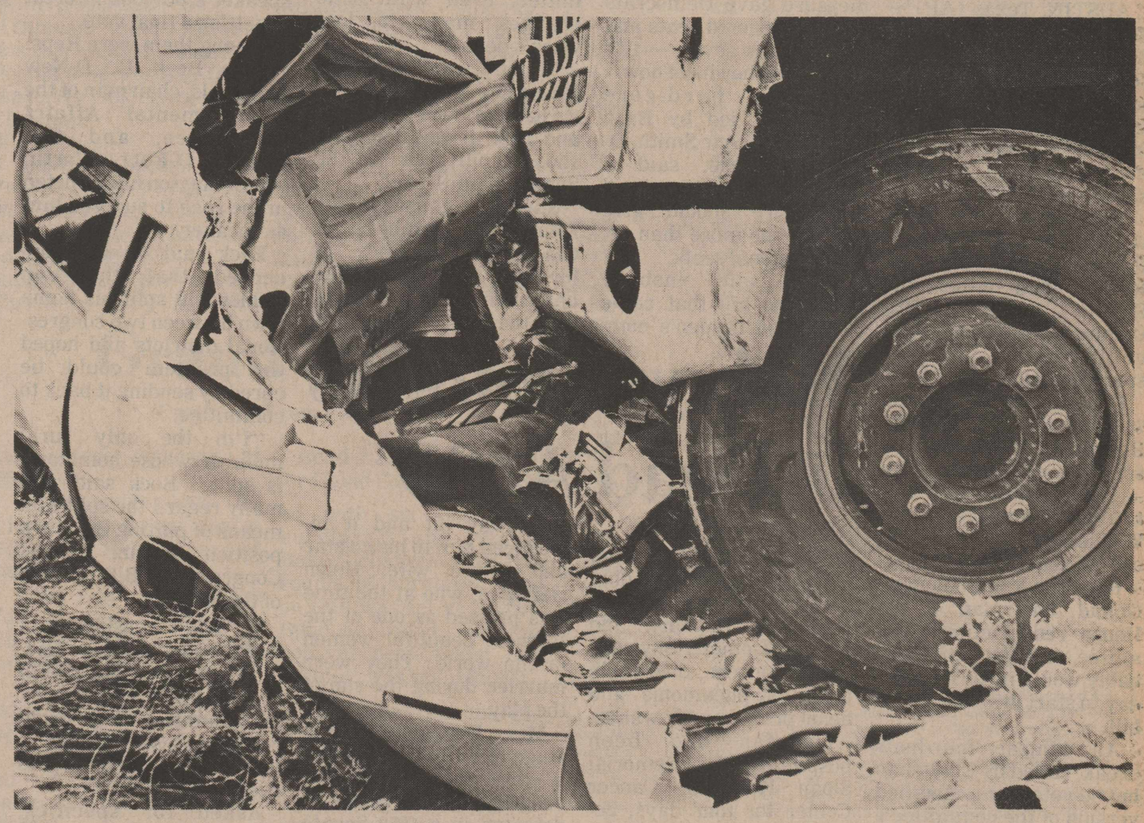

In Warsaw, about 300 vehicles converged on the main thoroughfare Monday and have remained idle in a stand-off with police who refuse to let the convoy pass by to Communist Party headquarters a block away.

"The people's patience is coming to an end," the drivers warned in a statement issued today.

Uniformed Solidarity union guards this morning kept several hundred curious pedestrians from the center of the circle where Marszalkowska Street and Jerozolimskie Avenue meet.

Solidarity workers opened makeshift canteens, press and information bureaus and offices in buses at the blockade. Women made sandwiches for the protesting Solidarity workers.

Solidarity suspended talks with the government on the food crisis because of the street confrontation. Solidarity leaders described government proposals as "vague," and the government said it needed time to study the independent labor federation's position. Union officials said the talks probably would resume Thursday.

NO INJURIES!— Bystanders called it a miracle when Apolonia Nichols, driver of the car, received only a few minor cuts after her car was hit and pushed from behind into the resident manager's apartment at the Purple Sage Motel Monday. The driver of the truck, Benito S. Calderon of Odessa, was also not injured. (Staff Photo by Lois Gleason)

British Consulate Invaded

NEW YORK (AP) — A man identified as an Irish sympathizer walked into the British consultate here today with what he said was an explosive device strapped to his waist, police said.

Police ordered the evacuation of the 7th through 12th floors of the building and a police hostage negotiating team was called to the scene.

It was not immediately known what, if any, demands the man had made.

A crowd formed behind police barricades which in recent weeks have been used to control demonstrations by Irish sympathizers at the consultate on Third Avenue.

Soviet Buildup In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says a Soviet military buildup in Cuba has reached a level far in excess of the island's defense needs and is "intimidating and endangering" Cuba's neighbors.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Monday that the latest addition to Cuba's "bulging arsenal" is a 2,300-ton Koni class frigate equipped with surface-to-air missiles, 76mm guns, torpedoes and mines.

Fischer said the vessel, described as the most advanced warship ever supplied to Cuba by Moscow, is a demonstration of "Cuban and Soviet disregard for stability in the Caribbean.

Coalition Formed

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin overcame last minute snags today to reach an agreement with his coalition partners on the formation of a new government, Begin's office announced.

The new government may be one of the most hawkish in Israel's 32-year history.

Begin has chosen Ariel Sharon, a former general and war hero, as his defense minister. Sharon was the driving force behind Israel's program of building Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territory, a policy that was internationally condemned.

Great White Shark Caught

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The third great white shark caught in Southern California waters in the past 10 days was swimming strongly today at Sea World, parks officials said.

The shark, a young male, weighs 100 pounds and measures 5½ feet.

Two San Diego fisherman caught it Monday about a mile off the Torrey Pines State Preserve.

A male great white caught earlier off Ventura lived less than three days. A female caught off Ventura six days ago was released into the sea Saturday after showing signs of distress.

Harrelson Trial Set

HOUSTON (AP) — The trial of convicted hired killer Charles Harrelson on a charge of illegal possession of firearms has been scheduled for Oct. 19.

Harrelson, who has figured prominently in the investigation of the 1979 fatal shooting of U.S. District Judge John Wood in San Antonio, has been in the Harris County jail since September.

$100,000 Per Hour Fine Set

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge ordered today that the union representing striking air traffic controllers be fined $100,000 for each hour of its illegal walkout — $2.4 million a day.

U.S. District Judge Thomas C. Platt's order doubled the fine sought by the Air Transport Association from the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

The Brooklyn judge said the union was in violation of an injunction he issued 11 years ago prohibiting a PATCO strike. Platt has presided over cases involving the union and the federal government for more than a decade.

Ask Us

Q.—Is it against the law for people hired by the county to hire their kin folks to work for them, whether it is in the courthouse, the coliseum, or wherever?

A.—It would depend on several factors, including how close the kinship is, etc., whether they would be affected by nepotism laws.

Truck Hits Car, Apt. Causing Heavy Damage

A woman escaped serious injury Monday at noon after her car was hit from behind by a Ford Truck carrying heavy machinery, and smashed into the resident manager's apartment at the Purple Sage Motel, tearing cabinets and a sink from the wall of the apartment, causing extensive damage.

Apolonia Gonzales Nichols said she had stopped on East Highway to make a left turn onto 37th Street when she saw that the truck behind her wasn't going to stop. Authorities said the brakes on the truck had failed.

Ms. Nichols was taken by Scurry County EMS to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor lacerations. Reports indicate she was later released.

Budget Adopted...

Alcohol Ban In Parks Approved

Following a two-hour discussion that attracted a full house, the Snyder City Council last night passed on second and final reading an ordinance prohibiting the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in public parks within the city.

The vote was unanimous, with Councilman Don Gressett making the motion, which was seconded by Councilman John Wilson.

The crowd last night appeared to be about 50-50 on the issue, whereas those attending the July meeting when the first reading of the ordinance was approved were overwhelmingly in favor of the restriction. Ken Minyard, who was the only one to speak out in opposition at the July meeting, led off the opponents last night and then concluded the statements from the audience by simply urging, "Don't pass it."

Several who had pushed for the ordinance at the July meeting returned, including Juluis Roemisch, who had proposed the ordinance.

Following the discussion, Mayor Milton Ham said, "The council is going to do what it thinks is best for Snyder."

The park ordinance was the first item considered on the agenda, and by the time the city's $4 million budget came up for a hearing and final action, the full house had evaporated, leaving only city staff members, a couple of citizens who were directly interested in other items on the agenda, and press and radio representatives.

The budget got unanimous approval. However, no tax rate was set, pending firm figures on property valuations from the Scurry County Appraisal District. City Manager John Gayle said these figures are expected toward the end of the month.

In other business, the council:

—Approved a zone change from light manufacturing to two-family residential for the west 150 feet of the north 111.62 feet of Block 80 in the Scarbrough Subdivision, as requested by A. E. Deen.

—Authorized a stop sign to replace a yield sign on Ave. U at 28th St., along with other recommendations for traffic changes in that area recommended by City Engineer Mike Smith. Attention had been focused on the traffic situation there by a request from Jerry Lee Hendon.

—Approved a stop sign on 35th St. at Houston Ave.

—Approved a contract with Anderson and Anderson, Certified Public Accountants, to audit the city's accounts.

—Appointed Councilman Ed Thrift as the city's representative on the RSVP board.

—Approved a parade scheduled for Sept. 13 by Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, as requested by Fr. Thomas Jordan.

—Approved bid forms for seeking a depository for city funds.

—Approved transfer of the lease agreement on the city's alfalfa field from Tim Collier to M. L. Duke.

—Authorized the city manager to seek bids for employees hospitalization insurance.

Action on a request by Scurry County EMS for the purchase of walkie-talkie radio equipment and extricating equipment for the ambulance service was delayed so that more information could be obtained.

The council set its next regular meeting for Tuesday, Sept. 8, since the regular meeting date, Sept. 7, falls on the Labor day holiday.

Ham presided over the session and council members attending were Gale McPherson, John Wilson, Don Gressett, David Holt and Rod Waller. Councilman Ed Thrift was out of town.

Following action on the agenda, the council went into an executive session of some 40 minutes to discuss legal matters with the city attorney.

Settlement of the baseball strike has not erased the problems of the major leagues. How to proceed for the remainder of the season is the big question facing the club owners now.

Both the owners and the players are somewhat apprehensive over the reaction of fans.

Will they come back for a shortened season? Or, did the strike alienate so many that crowds will dwindle?

We figured from the very beginning that if the baseball strike lasted until the professional footballers played their first exhibition game, the season was pretty well shot. The first pro football game was played the past Saturday, and we could not help but wonder if it didn't influence the baseball negotiators to get down to business that they should have settled several weeks ago.

We will know more next week about the outlook for the remainder of the baseball season. Also, it will be interesting to see how the crowds shape up at this weekend's pro football exhibitions.

The baseball settlements did not remove strikes from the news wires. The air controllers stepped in to prolong the subject. So far as the general public is concerned, their timing may be bad. We suspect that most people are sick and tired of hearing about strikes.

And, regardless of any merits their case may have, and despite a heavily inflated economy, not many people can work up a lot of sympathy for someone who makes more than $30,000 a year, no matter what his job is.

And at the time, nobody in the room had any idea that Dr. Robert Clinton was about to abdicate the presidency of WTC and that Dr. Newbury would be in his chair by the time the 1981 faculty dinner date rolled around. (It is set for Aug. 17).

House Nixes Redistricting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Several members of Speaker Bill Clayton's conservative Democrat team joined with liberals and moderates Monday to hand the speaker a resounding defeat on congressional redistricting.

The result could be a remap plan that tips more toward Democratic interests than either the Senate or Gov. Bill Clements will accept. That could cause another special session.

House members voted 78-66 for a motion by Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, to send the redistricting bill — which they had tentatively approved last Wednesday — back to committee for rewriting.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House redistricting committee, said the panel probably would meet Wednesday to start drafting a new bill.

An almost four-hour break, called by Clayton to hustle votes for a modified version of the committee's bill, was used by Bush and the House Democratic Caucus to gather votes to send the bill back to committee.

The bill before the House was similar to one passed by the Senate and blessed by Clements. It assured the defeat of liberal Congressman Jim Mattox of Dallas and carved a new GOP district between Dallas and Fort Worth. The district of Congressman Martin Frost of Dallas would become more than 60 percent minority.

The Texas congressional delegation will increase from 24 to 27 because of population gains.

Von Dohlen said the measure gave Democrats 20 congressional seats and Republicans seven — two more than they have now.

But hard-core Democrats, led by Bush and Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, said a Democrat-controlled Legislature should give the GOP no more than six congressional seats.

Smith said "nobody likes" the bill that came out of Von Dohlen's committee, even with some changes made in last week's debate.

"I don't want to get the House in a situation where we have to lower our heads and look at the floor and shoo a bill over to the Senate," Smith said.

Several conservative Democrat members of Clayton's "team" of loyalists and committee chairmen voted to recommit the bill, despite the speaker's obvious interest in getting a final vote.

Among them were Reps. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, chairman of the Environmental Affairs Committee, and Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, whom Clayton has assisted in the race to succeed him as speaker.

Bock said he was concerned that the Von Dohlen bill split his home town between two congressional districts and hoped the problem could be cured by sending it back to committee.

"I'm the only rural member whose hometown is split," Bock said. But many regard the split as a means of putting Bock in a position to run against Congressman Bill Patman of Ganado.

"I didn't consider it a team vote," Lewis said. "... I just didn't like the bill ... and if they sent it back to committee they could come back with a bill ... that is more acceptable to everybody."

Asked for specifics, Lewis said, "There were a lot of things I didn't like."

U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth has urged legislative leaders to pass a bill minimizing Republican gains. Democrats hold an edge of only about 30 votes in the U.S. House, and Wright's chance to succeed Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill would vanish if the Republicans gained control.

Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, who drafted the redistricting plan that squeaked through the Senate by one vote, said the House action presents an opportunity "for them to come to their senses, pass the Senate bill or improve the Senate bill."

Bush, chairman of the Democratic Caucus, attributed his victory to the four-day weekend Clayton had declared to allow time to collect votes for the Von Dohlen bill.

He said during the four days, House members heard from their constituents.

"People are asking, 'Why can't you Democrats come up with a plan with a little more Democratic flavor to it?' " Bush said.

Bush contended Clayton and Von Dohlen had "attempted to force feed the House" and it "backfired on them."

He acknowledged that passing a bill providing 21 Democratic districts and six Republican districts would risk a veto that would mean a second special legislative session. But he said the risk was worth running.

"I think we are willing to come back for another special session. If we draw it (the bill) properly and are geared up, we can override a veto," Bush said.

The redistricting committee last week rejected, 10-9, amendments designed to give Democrats an edge.

Melvyn Douglas Is Dead At 80

NEW YORK (AP) — Melvyn Douglas, twice an Oscar winner and leading man to Greta Garbo, Katharine Hepburn and dozens of other Hollywood glamor queens, died early today of pneumonia and heart problems. He was 80.

Douglas had been hospitalized at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center for four days, according to his son, Peter Douglas.

The younger Douglas said his father did not have cancer but was at Sloan Kettering because he had come to know doctors there when his wife, Helen Gahagan Douglas, was treated there prior to her death last year.

He was born Melvyn Hessleberg in Macon, Ga., the son of a Russian pianist and a Kentuckian mother from whose ancestors he took his stage name.

Douglas' first acting jobs were with traveling stock companies. He made his Broadway debut in 1928 in "A Free Soul." But it was David Belasco's last stage production "Tonight Or Never" in 1931 that brought Douglas double fortune: It was his first Broadway hit and it introduced him to his co-star and future wife, Helen Gahagan, who at the time was praised as one of the 10 most beautiful women in the world. They were married during the run of the play.

Mrs. Douglas left the stage and films to become a three-term California congresswoman. She was defeated in a 1950 Senate race by Rep. Richard Nixon, who used widely criticized campaign tactics. Without calling her a communist, Nixon expressed Mrs. Douglas' liberalism in a way so that she appeared to be one, or at least a sympathizer.

After her defeat, Mrs. Douglas returned to the theater and concert stage occasionally during the 1950s and continued to be active on behalf of liberal causes and Democratic candidates who espoused them.

Douglas, also accused of being a communist sympathizer, served in the Army in the Burma-China theater in World War II and was discharged a major and resumed acting in Hollywood.

After many Broadway successes including "The Best Man," for which he received a Tony, Douglas appeared in 70 films, including "Hud" in 1963, and "Being There" in 1980, both of which won him Oscars for best supporting actor.

at wits end

I could have predicted that men wouldn't stick with "handbags" in their wardrobe.

Oh sure, it looked wonderful, didn't it? Having a bag that held all those little notions close to you at all times, like a clean handkerchief, breath spray, car keys, money and comb.

I knew they'd get sick of it.

Handbags have been millstones around women's necks for years—banging against their hips like broken shutters.

I only knew of one woman who was born with a handbag: Queen Elizabeth. The birth was tricky because the purse would not turn and the handbag was born breach. The rest of us, however, received one when we were little girls. They usually had a chain on them and a picture of Donald Duck or Snow White's castle.

They always had a shiny new penny in them. For some of us that's as good as it ever got. Whenever we put it down our mother would say, "Where's your purse?" That was to be the beginning of purse paranoia.

A woman learns early that a handbag is as much a part of her anatomy as any of the four major appendages. She carries it to the beach, the ski slopes, to church, to school, to her wedding and to picnics. It's the first words she utters to her children: "Get my purse." It's the last thing a policeman places on your chest at the scene of the accident. It's the only meaningful conversation she ever has with her husband: "Watch my purse."

Some women (who are into self-punishment and weekend flogging) also dedicate their lives to having a purse match something. Heaven forbid they should be caught with the red lizard shoes and the navy wet leather handbag at the same time.

I refuse to play that game. It's bad enough that since I have been able to balance myself, I have had to carry a purse around that has held everything from used nose tissue to a dead hamster awaiting a hero's burial...from plastic silverware to rubber bands...from road maps to laxatives...from footlets to batteries.

If you want to know the truth, I'd rather carry a sow's ear...than a silk purse!

To Free Him From Box.....

Parents Request Air-Conditioning For Son

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Like most 7-year-olds, Raul Espino Jr. would rather play with his crayons than listen to adults having a serious conversation.

And that's what the youngster did Monday as his parents asked a federal judge to order their son's entire classroom to be air-conditioned in order to free him from a plexiglass cubicle.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela said he would decide by Aug. 15 whether to grant the reqest from Ana and Raul Espino.

"Other alternatives have not been considered," Vela said, as little Raul drew in his "Super Heroes" coloring book. "We may be able to find a solution with the present setting."

The boy was injured as an infant in an auto accident, which left him a paraplegic and unable to control his body temperature. He is confined to a wheelchair and must stay in an environment between 72 to 78 degrees.

When he transferred last year from a school for the handicapped to Egly Elementary School, a 5-foot-by-foot box with a portable air conditioning unit was built for him. A two-way sound system later was installed to help him communicate with his teacher and classmates.

None of the elementary school classrooms in the Brownsville Independent School District are air-conditioned, despite 90-degree temperatures in the early fall and late spring.

Mrs. Espino testified she was overjoyed to hear her son would be with normal children — but then dismayed to learn he would be confined to the cubicle.

The Espinos unsuccessfully asked the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education to order the classroom be air-conditioned. They took their case to federal court, arguing the district is violating a law that requires handicapped children be educated in the "least restrictive environment."

School Superintendent Raul Besteio testified he decided to build the box instead of air-condition the room for fear of jealousy among other parents and teachers.

He said he had to turn down a woman from Pennsylvania who offered to pay for air conditioning costs because it would have been "discrimination."

The school district, with a relatively low tax base in the Rio Grande Valley, cannot afford to air-condition all elementary and junior high classrooms, he said.

Another school official said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration called to suggest fitting Raul with an air-conditioned vest that would allow him to sit in the classroom with other students.

"It hasn't been developed to the point that it's available for a person of his age," said Dr. Ron Schraer, director of special education.

Raul spends about half the school year in the box but can stay in the classroom during the cooler days of winter and early spring, said his first grade teacher, Inez Vega.

"He's not able to participate in certain activities in the classroom," she said, adding that the sound system malfunctioned occasionally and the air conditioner was noisy.

A Harlingen psychologist who examined Raul testified the youngster suffers no emotional or psychological problems because of the box, but added that the enclosure was "inappropriate for learning."

"It certainly limits his educational experiences and personal contact with other students in the areas of socialization and group learning situations," said Dr. Emmett Hutto.

After the hearing, Besteiro said the district had considered other alternatives, such as making the enclosure larger, but ruled them out.

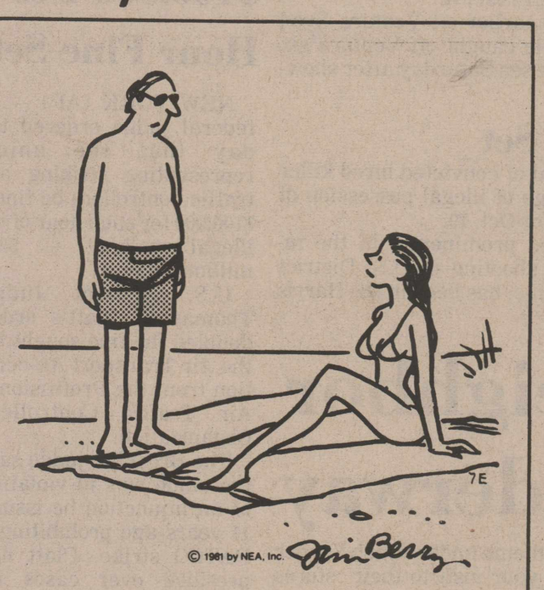

"I have to worry about everyone in the district," he said.

At one point, Vela had interrupted his testimony to say that concern about teacher and parent reaction to air conditioning one classroom was not "the problem."

Jerry Garcia, attorney for the Espinos, said there was a good chance the case would be appealed regardless of how Vela rules. Schools open locally on Aug. 25.

"I hope the judge decides there's no reason why they can't provide air conditioning for the classroom," he said.

Jerry Falwell Refuses To Debate

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Moral Majority leader Rev. Jerry Falwell has refused a challege to debate the editor of a nationwide religious publication because "it would be a waste of time," a Falwell spokesman says.

Rev. Spurgeon Dunnam III of Dallas, editor of the nationally circulated Texas Methodist-United Methodist Reporter and the National Christian Reporter, issued the challenge last month in a letter to Falwell.

"We really think the debate would be a waste of time," Cal Thomas, Falwell spokesman, said Monday from Falwell's headquarters in Lynchburg, Va.

Thomas said Dunnam does not represent the views of most United Methodists and charged that "his noisemaking is an attempt to enhance his own visibility."

Dunnam, one of Falwell's more outspoken critics, says the debate should focus on abortion and the appropriate role of Christian religious leaders in the appointment of governmental officials.

"I am hereby responding to what I understand to be a call from God and challenging you to a public debate," Dunnam wrote in a July 22 letter sent to the evangelist.

Dunnam said Monday he had not been formally notified about the debate refusal.

"I'm going to leave the door open until I hear something directly from them," he said.

But another Falwell spokesman, Nelson Keener, said a letter would soon be sent to Dunnam telling him the debate offer had been rejected.

The challenge came after Dunnam and other religious leaders criticized President Reagan's hourlong telephone conversation with Falwell the day Reagan nominated Sandra Day O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court.

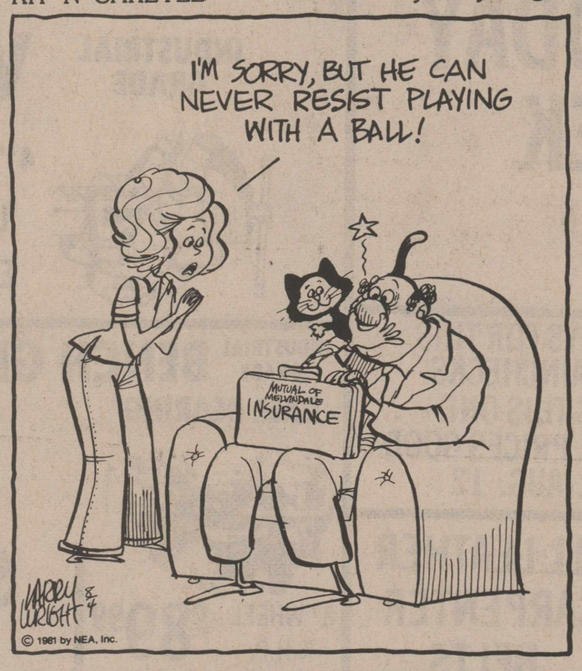

Falwell and other leaders of the religious right have criticized the O'Connor nomination saying she had allegedly taken pro-abortion and pro-Equal Rights Amendment stands while serving as an Arizona legislator.

Dunnam said Falwell has represented himself as "being a spokesman for a majority of American Christians.

"Someone needs to say Falwell doesn't speak for all Christians," Dunnam said. A public debate, he added, might help the public realize that "not all Christians are narrow-minded, unthinking, Bible thumpers who spout anti-ERA, anti-abortion and anti-humanism slogans, while ignoring those aspects of the biblical message which do not support New Right political ideology."

Dunnam said he will leave his debate offer open, adding that an ideal time would be a national anti-abortion rally in Dallas on Sept. 3 at which Falwell is scheduled to speak.

Bond was set at $1,500 on James Christopher Pierce, charged with possession of a controlled substance, cocaine.

Theft charges filed against Curtis McGlouthin, were not presented to the Grand Jury as he made restitution, said Pete Greene, district attorney.

Grand Jurors were Albert Malone, Hiram Thompson, Florence Lewis, Vernest Tippins, Mrs. James Bass, Joe Coronado, Ruben Felan, Jimmie Joe Key, H.G. Gafford, Betty Richardson, Carolyn Greene and C.A. McCown, foreman.

through the wall of the apartment which was occupied at the time by Catherine Williams and her daughter. Neither were injured, but water gushed from the wall where the sink had been and cabinets torn from the wall spewed their contents on the floor.

The car was totally destroyed, but the truck, coming to a stop with one wheel on the trunk of the smashed car, sustained only minor damage. Officer Buddy Kinney took the accident report.

The Snyder Fire Department and Texas Electric were called to the scene to turn off power and water in the apartment.

In other activity, Mrs. Byra Strong, 2606 Ave. U, reported the theft of a boys' White's Auto brand 10 speed bicycle with a brown seat and brown vinyl on the handlebars. The bicycle was taken sometime between 10 p.m. Friday and 4 p.m. Saturday.

Police were called to the Wild Country club at 11:13 p.m. where the manager said a subject exposed himself to a customer. The man attempted to run from police, reports indicate, but was apprehended by Sgt. Wade Norris. The 26 year-old man was booked into city jail for public intoxication and evading arrest.

At 4:54 a.m. today, a woman at 1000 Ave. U, told police a man was threatening to kill her. Police took one man into custody at the residence for criminal trespass and public intoxication. Further charges may be pending. The man was found to be carrying a pellet gun.

Strike Stops Dedication

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the first casualties of the air traffic controllers' strike may be — you guessed it — the dedication of an airport control tower.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., says he was supposed to be on hand today to dedicate the new tower at Benedum Airport outside Clarksburg, W.Va., but because of the strike he will be stranded in Washington.

"I don't think even the FAA officials will be able to get their planes over the mountains for the dedication," he said.

Also stuck is Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, whose constituents plan to turn out 2,500-strong in Lubbock tonight for a $30-a-plate appreciation dinner for their man in Washington.

But their man doesn't want to be in Washington, not today, anyway.

Flying Attorney Lands Safely

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A San Antonio, Texas attorney landed Tuesday at Madrid's Barajas airport, safely ending his second solo transatlantic flight in a single-engine aircraft.

Phillip Hardberger, 46, said the 7,000-mile flight was a mark of his appreciation to Spain for its cultural contribution to the United States.

He said it also commemorated the settlers from the Canary Islands who were sent to San Antonio under a royal decree by the king of Spain 350 years ago.

Hardberger, accompanied by his wife, Linda, on the last leg of a two-hour flight between the Potuguese capital of Lisbon and Madrid, touched the plane down at 1:36 p.m. Madrid time.

Flying a Beechcraft Bonanza dubbed "Spirit of San Antonio II," Hardberger left San Antonio last Wednesday, stopping in New York, Newfoundland, the Azores and Lisbon.

Hardberger, who will spend about two weeks in Spain before flying to France and Britain, carried a book of San Antonio's history, an earthenware plate depicting the first Spanish settlement at La Villita in the heart of San Antonio and earth from the oldest remaining Spanish-built church in the region as a gift for Spain's King Juan Carlos.

He also carried gifts for Madrid Mayor Enrique Tierno Galvan, including prints of oil paintings depicting each of San Antonio's five Spanish missions.

He also handed Tierno Galvan a letter in Spanish from the Bexar County commissioners court of San Antonio which recognized the role Spaniards played in founding the Texas city.

Hardberger flew from New York to Paris four years ago in a single-engine craft on the 50th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's historical flight.

Rajai Selects Prime Minister

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Mohammad Ali Rajai today named Hojatoleslam Mohammad Javad Bahonar as prime minister of the ruling Islamic party. The appointment comes a day after two bombings marred Rajai's swearing-in ceremonies.

The official Pars news agency said Rajai decreed the premiership in a letter read during a morning session of Iran's Parliament, which will vote on the appointment during a special session.

Bahonar was secretary general of the Islamic Republican Party, which led the yearlong campaign of the Moslem clergy to oust former president Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who is in exile in Paris.

Iranian sources said Bahonar had studied philosophy and education in England, Japan and the United States.

Pars also reported 13 people were killed Monday when a blast ripped through crowded Enghelab Square in the western Iranian city of Kermanshat at midday.

A second bombing was reported in Tehran.

As luck would have it, I've come on a marvelous new cake recipe that makes a perfect summer dessert.

Light as a feather and with delightful fresh lime flavor, in my opinion it's really worth baking. I like to serve slices of it topped with fresh fruit and whipped cream. Or for a more formal presentation, I slice the cake into three layers, then sandwich them together with fresh berries or other sliced fruit (or a mixture of the berries and other fruit) and then cover the whole cake with plain sweetened whip. Either way, this Fresh Lime Sponge Cake is a lovely, lovely offering.

SUMMER LIMES—Their fresh flavor distinguishes a light-as-a-feather sponge cake.

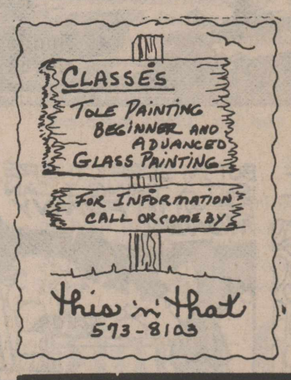

FRESH LIME SPONGE CAKE

6 large eggs, separated
½ teaspoon cream of tartar 1½ cups sugar
2 teaspoons grated lime rind (from a small lime)
¼ cup fresh lime juice ¼ cup water 1¼ cups fork-stirred all-purpose flour
Confectioners' sugar

In the large bowl of an electric mixer beat the egg whites and cream of tartar until they hold peaks that tilt slightly when the beater is slowly withdrawn. Gradually beat in ½ cup of the sugar; continue beating, if necessary, until whites hold stiff straight peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn.

Without washing beater, in a medium-size deep bowl, beat the egg yolks until thickened and lemon color. Beat in the remaining 1 cup sugar a tablespoon at a time, until mixture is thick and ivory color. Add the lime rind, lime juice and water; with mixer at lowest speed, beat gently until blended; gradually beat in the flour until blended. Add to egg-white mixture; with a rubber spatula fold in just until blended.

Pour into an ungreased 10-inch angel cake pan; with a rubber spatula cut through batter to remove large air bubbles. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until cake springs back when lightly touched or a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 hour. (Cake will not reach top of pan.) Immediately invert on a wire rack; cool completely. With a small metal spatula, loosen around tub and edge of pan. Ease cake from pan with fingers. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

"The Amateur" Suspends Disbelief

THE AMATEUR. By Robert Littell. Simon & Schuster. 252 Pages. $12.95.

Robert Littell writes so well that he makes it easy for the reader to willingly suspend disbelief.

And this is quite necessary if Littell's novel, "The Amateur," is to be enjoyed. In the hands of less able writers, Littell's plot would be laughable, but he is talented enough to make it plausible.

Charlie Heller is a minor cog in the machinery of the CIA. He is not licensed to kill nor to parachute into enemy countries on cloak-and-dagger missions. Rather, Heller spends his time in the cryptology department where he codes material for transmission and decodes material being received from agents around the globe.

In his spare time, Heller follows a scholarly pursuit. He is "using his computer to see if there were, as many people have claimed, ciphers in Shakespeare's plays proving that someone other than Shakespeare was the real author ...

But Heller's quiet life is shattered when terrorists invade the American Embassy in West Germany. When their demands are not met on deadline, the terrorists shoot and kill an innocent young woman. The woman is Heller's fiancee.

Heller asks his superiors to have the terrorists tracked down and killed. For some reason, they refuse. So Heller takes matters into his own hands. He tells his bosses that unless they let him go after the killers he will release secret CIA material to the press.

Reluctantly they agree, and Heller is given a crash course in weapons, killing and surviving in enemy territory. Then he is turned loose in Czechoslovakia to carry out his mission.

It's hard to believe that such an ill-prepared person as Heller could possibly succeed in his quest. But, then again, he might. Just stick with Littell and suspend the disbelief. PhilThomas AP-BooksEditor

FIX-IT-FAST

Take Care With Clogs

The plumbing job you face more frequently than any other is the sluggish or clogged sink drain. In the bathroom, the villain most often is hair.

Everyone prefers the easy solution to any problem, and the easy way with a clogged drain seems to be clearing it with one of the chemicals you can buy at the grocery store.

But wait. Don't use the chemical first. Try using the plunger first. If that doesn't do the job, then try the chemicals.

You will need drain cleaner, liquid or crystal, rubber gloves and safety glasses. This project is for overnight.

1. If the drain is sluggish but not yet stopped up, put a couple of kettlesful of boiling water into the drain. This may melt the grease and clear the drain.

2. If the drain is clogged, remove all water from the sink before putting chemicals in. (Note: Read the label of the drain cleaner you buy and follow the instructions exactly, regardless of what is said here. The chemical maker knows best how it should be used.)

3. Following the instructions on the label, put in correct amount of chemical. Avoid getting chemical on porcelain or chrome of sink. Put directly into the drain opening.

4. For best results, give chemical time to work. Overnight is best.

5. Clean drain by rinsing thoroughly (usually with cool, not hot, water) after chemical has broken through the clog.

SPECIAL NOTES ON CHEMICAL USE

Don't use drain cleaners to unclog toilet. They may damage the porcelain. Use plunger or auger.

Have room well ventilated. Chemicals generate gas as they eat through clog.

NEVER use a plunger on a clogged drain into which you have already put a chemical. Water in drain containing chemical may splash and burn you severely.

To be safe when using a caustic chemical, wear rubber gloves, long sleeves and glasses to protect you from splashing or boiling chemicals.

Be particularly careful of your eyes. These chemicals can blind you. Don't lean over sink as you add chemicals. Wear glasses. Take care not to splash.

Marriage Rate Has Increased

WASHINGTON (AP)— Wedding bells rang a record 2,331,337 times in the United States in 1979, but 1.18 million marriages also ended in divorce that year, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

The center said Monday that marriages in 1979 rose for the fourth consecutive year and were 2 percent above 1978. However, the 1979 rate of 10.6 marriages per 1,000 people was just below the peak of 11 per 1,000 set in 1972.

The center says 1979 also was a record year for divorces, with a 4.5 percent increase over 1978. The divorce rate was 5.4 per 1,000.

The 1979 marriage statistics are final. The center said provisional data for 1980 indicates another increase.

The median age of brides in 1979 rose for the seventh straight year to 23.4. In 1970 it was 21.7.

Here is another Karpin "Popular Bridge" hand on serendipity. Look at the West hand, the dummy and the bidding. You are West and lead your ace of diamonds. It picks up the king and jack and you are ready to lead to trick two.

You consider a shift to the king of clubs but the game is match point duplicate and this lead is likely to give declarer an important overtrick.

Finally, you decide to lead a low diamond. You expect that your partner will ruff and that declarer will overruff, but your play will prevent the possibility of South drawing trumps and then leading the 10 of diamonds from dummy to discard a loser, followed by getting to discard a second loser on the nine that will have become high. Far-fetched, but possible.

So you lead a low diamond and serendipity takes over. Partner ruffs with the nine and South discards a club. Back comes a club. Declarer plays the queen and your king wins.

It turns out that your partner held ace-nine of trumps and your play had produced two trump tricks for for him and cost declarer his contract.

The skin you're in

Many women wonder what the difference is between astringents and toners. Astringents, made with an alcohol base, are applied after cleansing to remove any soap residue and to wipe away excess oil. They're intended for women with oily skin. Toners, on the other hand, are alcohol-free. Women with dry or normal skin use toners (or fresheners) to remove all traces of cleanser. Both astringents and toners should be followed by an application of moisturizer.

Dear Abby

Office Moocher Gets Dose of His Own Medicine

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A word to IN THE HOLE, who asked how to handle "El Cheapo," a cheapskate moocher in her office. (He never contributed toward the daily snacks of coffee and Danish, but he always ate well.)

Years ago, I worked in the bookkeeping department of a local bank. One woman always kept a box of candy on her desk and the rest of us would chip in to pay for it.

Our "El Cheapo" never put in a penny. Even worse, he would grab a handful of candy, eat it and take another handful — cleaning her out.

In a fit of disgust, we decided to teach him a lesson, so one day we filled the candy box with chocolate Ex-Lax. We never had any trouble with him again.

ETHEL IN MELBOURNE, FLA.

DEAR ETHEL: Touche. One might say he cleaned her out, and vice versa!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letters regarding marriage to a disabled person. They all missed one very important point: All physically handicapped people are not noble, heroic and courageous. Many are, of course, but some are not.

When I married my husband, he walked with a decided limp and had to use a cane because of an industrial accident. He was awarded a disability pension and was on Social Security. His doctor gave him some exercises to improve the use of his leg. (He never did them — too boring.) A vocational rehabilitation service offered a course to retrain him for another job. He flatly refused to consider it.

Instead, he sat home, day in and day out, watching soap operas while I went to work. He did absolutely nothing. He called himself "sick." ("I'm too sick to do this, too sick to do that.") This "sick" man could eat like a horse, and did. He put on weight, making it harder for him to walk.

I finally left him, and I can assure you, it had nothing to do with his leg. Never mind the physical handicap. The important question is, does the person have a character handicap?

FORMER WIFE

DEAR FORMER WIFE: Your point is well taken. There are lazy, selfish, bitter people among the disabled population, just as there are lazy, selfish, bitter people among the able-bodied. One should view a disabled person as a person first. And if he happens to have a disability, he should be regarded as a person with a disability.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband passed away three years ago. Since then an old friend of mine who had just lost his wife turned up, and three months later we were married.

He's a fine man and I love him dearly and he loves me, but he has a 13-year-old daughter at home who has him wrapped around her little finger. Abby, I raised two daughters and I've never seen one like this. Whatever "Baby" wants, Baby gets! When a storm comes up, she comes into our bed to cuddle with her father. She's 5-5, weighs 185 pounds and has the mind of an 18-year-old. She's been wearing makeup (and heavy) since she was 10!

Her father thinks she can do no wrong and her wish is his command. I've given up trying to guide her.

I sold my own house and remodeled this one to make a home for this man. I really have tried hard to make this marriage work, but I just can't take any more of this daughter-father stuff. What do you suggest?

DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: The daughter has problems. And if her father doesn't recognize it, he has problems, too. Family counseling is essential in order to make this marriage work. If your husband loves you, he will cooperate. I hope he does, because unless his daughter is straightened out now, she will be his "problem child" all her life.

Black College Will Not Close

DALLAS (AP) — Saying he has "never known a black college that didn't have financial trouble," the executive director of the United Negro College Fund has promised to keep open the doors of Dallas' debt-riddled Bishop College.

Bishop, beset by financial difficulties like many other black schools, will not close despite its overwhelming debts, says Christopher Edley.

"I don't think there's any question that Bishop College will survive," said Edley during a Sunday news conference.

Edley, along with National Urban League president Vernon Jordon and NAACP representative Frances Hooks, announced Sunday the acceptance of the first half of a $1 million contribution to Bishop from Alpha Phi Alpha, a national black fraternity.

For Hired Killing Of Mother. . .

Jury Convicts Markham Duff-Smith

HOUSTON (AP) — Markham Duff-Smith, convicted of capital murder for the hired killing of his mother, would rather get the death penalty than spend his life in jail, his attorney says.

A jury deliberated 40 minutes Monday before returning a verdict of guilty against Duff-Smith in the 1975 death of his adoptive mother, Gertrude Zabolio. Her strangulation with a pair of pantyhose had stood as a suicide for more than four years.

"Our client has told us if he were found guilty, he'd rather get death. He didn't want to spend the rest of his life in prison," said defense lawyer Victor Blaine.

The punishment phase, which continues today, has focused on a crime Duff-Smith has been accused of, but not tried for — the 1979 shootings of his sister, Diana Wanstrath, her husband John and their 14-month-old baby, Kevin.

Prosecutors said they hoped to persuade jurors to assess the death penalty by proving that Duff-Smith also was responsible for the Wanstrath slayings as part of a plot to eliminate heirs to his family's estate.

Assistant District Attorney Ted Poe said prosecutors tried Duff-Smith in the Zabolio slaying instead of the deaths of the Wanstrath family because they had better "corroborative evidence."

Poe said Duff-Smith might never have stood trial in his mother's death except for a dedicated detective who continued investigating the Wanstrath slayings even after medical examiners ruled them a murder-suicide.

Johnny Bonds' 19-month investigation led finally this year to confessed killers in both the Wanstrath and Zabolio deaths and resulted in rulings in both cases being changed from suicide to murder.

Prosecutors began calling witnesses in the penalty phase of the trial Monday afternoon.

Prosecutors introduced into evidence police photographs of the victims, including the infant, Kevin, who was shot while he slept in his baby bed. Jurors winced as they passed the photos among themselves.

During final arguments Monday morning, defense attorneys tried to undermine the credibility of prosecution witnesses.

Prosecutors accented the emotional with dramatic displays of oratory. At one point, Poe thrust his finger toward Duff-Smith and shouted, "Markham Duff-Smith, you killed your mother for filthy lucre."

He praised Bonds for his dedication and credited the 14-year veteran detective with "clearing the names" of Mrs. Zabolio and Diana Wanstrath.

Defense lawyer Blaine asked the jurors why they had not heard from Walter Waldhauser, who was to have been the prosecution's key witness.

Waldhauser had confessed to being the middleman in both the Zabolio and Wanstrath killings and agreed to testify in return for a lighter sentence. However, prosecutors never called him to the stand.

"Where is Walter Waldhauser?" Blaine asked. "Maybe he wasn't called because he wasn't going to say anything the state wanted to hear."

Defense attorneys maintained Waldhauser was trying to frame Duff-Smith and said Waldhauser admitted as much to his own attorney. That, they said, was why he was not called to testify.

Prosecutors would only respond, "No comment," to the allegation.

Astronauts Are Getting Ready For Sept. Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two astronauts who will take the world's first second-hand spaceship on a five-day voyage next month say preparations are going smoothly for a scheduled Sept. 30 launch.

"I've been waiting to fly in space a long time. I just can't hardly wait," said Navy Capt. Richard Truly, the pilot of America's second space shuttle flight.

He and Air Force Col. Joe Engle, the flight commander, will ride into space on the Columbia, the stubby-winged craft that launched the nation into the age of reuseable space vehicles last April.

It was America's first manned spaceflight that did not end in a splashdown.

Like astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen before them, Engle and Truly will soar into space from a launch pad at Cape Canaveral and then land the Columbia like an airplane.

The second flight will keep Columbia in Earth orbit two days longer than the first trip of three days, and will carry a heavier payload. But otherwise, Engle and Truly said their mission will be essentially the same as before.

"If we get up and back down all right I will consider that pretty successful," said Engle.

The astronauts will test a 50-foot-long mechanical arm that will extend from the payload and be controlled inside the cockpit. It is equipped to "grapple" certain objects that are fitted with stems.

"Other designs have claws but we are not ready to do that yet," Engle said. He described the existing arm as having a cylinder for a "hand" that grabs by squeezing a special stem attached to the target object.

Columbia's payload also will contain equipment for five "earth resources" experiments designed to show the commercial adaptibility of the space shuttle. It will fly upside down and forward relative to the Earth during these experiments, which include a special radar that NASA says could detect mineral resources, including oil, from space.

Another experiment will scan the ocean, note color differences and could locate schools of fish or possible effects of pollution.

Extra-vehicular activity — spacewalks — have been ruled out. But the Columbia will carry spacesuits for both men just in case a serious enough problem develops — such as with the payload or its doors — and an "EVA" is required.

Truly acknowledged, "We are the first to fly a used spacecraft. I wish we could buy used cars that look as good and from people like Crip and John (Young)," Columbia's first "owners."

Truly said his biggest concern was not some catastrophe in space but the possibility of an early return to Earth caused by the extreme conservatism he said was built into the shuttle program.

"We are very conservative. If we see one failure — it doesn't matter that we are four deep in avionics (four back-up systems) — we want to get out of orbit," he said.

He said space scientists would rather diagnose a problem on the ground than allow the astronauts to "build up flight time."

"We have defined the minimum mission of the flight at about two days," he said. The top priority experiments will take place during the first 48 hours, with lesser priority duties to follow.

"The thing I've always wanted to do is look out the window and see," Truly said. "We have very little time for gawking, but whatever time there is, you can be sure my nose will be pressed to the glass."

Captive Boat Returns Today

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A South Korean fishing boat and its 17 crewmen returned today after 244 days in captivity in North Korea. The North Korean radio said the government in Pyongyang decided the boat strayed accidentally into North Korean waters because of bad weather.

Bronzes Taken To New Home

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) — Two 5th century bronze warriors dredged up from the Ionian Sea were secretly trucked to their permanent home here, where officials hope they will help revive southern Italy's dwindling tourist industry.

The celebrated Riace Bronzes, believed by some to be the only surviving works of the Greek sculptor Phidias, were found by divers off southern Italy nine years ago. They were displayed in Florence and later at Rome's presidential palace while Calabrian officials fought to get them back.

The life-size figures, weighing close to 1,000 pounds each, were brought secretly moved to Reggio Calabria, the provincial capital, on Monday after townspeople in Riace threatened to prevent their exhibition here. They wanted it held in their tiny town, near the spot where the warriors were found.

Average Billing can help smooth out high summer electric bills.

If you use the same amount of electricity this summer as you did last summer, you'll see a big increase in your bills.

But our Average Billing Plan can help, because it "averages out" your payments. You still pay for all the electricity you use. However, in high-use months you pay for less electricity than you use, and in low-use months you pay for more than you use.

Many customers find this helps ease the impact of high summer air conditioning bills. Our Average Billing Plan is available to both residential customers and churches. If you'd like to know more, give us a call at Texas Electric.

Some Jurists Play Musical Chairs

DALLAS (AP) — Some Texas jurists are taking advantage of a loosely controlled visiting judge program to fatten their wallets while living on the road at taxpayer expense, the director of the state Judicial Conduct Commission says.

Maurice Pipkin said a state law on visiting judges was intended to allow a judge with an overloaded docket to get some relief from a neighboring judge. But he said some jurists are taking advantage of the program to fatten their wallets, drawing $25 per day as stipend, plus expenses.

"They're playing musical chairs. Judge X will go to judge Y's court, who will go to someone else's court, and the first thing you know there is a chain of visiting judges," said Pipkin.

"Some of them live pretty high off the hog. There is no restriction on what they spend. They just present the bills and the county picks up the tab."

He said Houston likely will spend $250,000 for visiting judges this year and Dallas County expects to pay out more than $100,000.

Pipkin says his suspicion about abuses in the program came to a head after he attended a judicial conference where he heard a judge ask the presiding judge of an administrative district to assign him a court in Texarkana so he could visit Hot Springs, Ark., and go to the horse races.

"It's something that's been bothering us for years, because it is such a loose arrangement," he said.

Judges also travel from one end of Texas to the other, instead of sitting in for jurists in nearby towns and cities, Pipkin said.

"I know of instances where one judge goes all the way from Wichita Falls to Houston to be a visiting judge — which is a long way," he said.

Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court says he does not know of any abuses, but he agrees with Pipkin that there should be more supervision of the visiting judge program.

Greenhill and Pipkin say there is a need for a centralized court administration that would give Greenhill — the state's top court official — tighter control.

But the chief justice says resistance against any such change is "strong," and the voters should be the ones to deal with judges who abuse the program.

Texas is divided into nine administrative judicial districts and the presiding judge in each district assigns visiting judges.

"The presiding judge who calls for a visiting judge is the one who should be responsible. It is his responsibility to determine ... why one of his judges needs someone to sit in for him," Pipkin said. "They are paid extra for that responsibility."

But Dallas County's presiding Judge Paul Peurifoy says he "accepts on good faith" a request for a visiting judge.

Peurifoy says sometimes a certain case will call for another judge's expertise and he will arrange for the two jurists to exchange benches.

Pipkin says such exchanges are defensible, but cost both counties.

IRS Gets What It Wants Through Tax Cut Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — What the Internal Revenue Service couldn't win in the courts it obtained in the big tax-cut bill.

As a result, Phil and Susan Long are lamenting wasted years of work, and some of their future too. They aren't the only losers, they say. They claim that Congress, the courts, and all Americans have lost too.

"What happened may end realistic oversight of the Internal Revenue Service," said Susan Long, 37, who with her husband had filed 13 successful suits against the IRS under the Freedom of Information Act.

Seven years ago they sought historical data that would reveal how effectively the tax system worked. The IRS objected. The Longs sued and won in the courts. The IRS stalled. Next step: The Supreme Court.

Quietly, a bipartisan House group agreed to attach to the tax bill a provision that would in effect exempt the IRS from disclosure requirements. The Longs say it resulted mainly from IRS lobbying.

The language of the provision is very broad, said Susan Long, who holds a doctorate from the University of Washington, is now working at the National Institute of Justice, the research arm of the Justice Department, and who will teach at Syracuse University this fall.

She worries that "it overturns any other law requiring disclosure," that it "takes away the power of the courts, and leaves the decision (to comply with requests for data) to the Treasury Secretary," and may even "exempt IRS from providing information to Congress."

The IRS argument has been that to reveal the information sought by the Longs, though it would have been for academic research and might even have involved a grant from the National Science Foundation, would hopelessly tie up their computers. House supporters also said it would reveal too much about the operations of the IRS, enough perhaps to allow those who were so inclined to dodge their federal income taxes.

Susan Long, who with Phil began the crusade for information in 1969 after the IRS unsuccessfully contended they owed additional taxes on their real estate business in Bellevue, Wash., decries the arguments.

"In court they didn't have facts to defend" their arguments, she says. Had they been able to, she feels, they would have been exempted from disclosure. "But they simply didn't have the facts to document."

The House tax-cut bill included the provision, and in conference it was agreed to by the Senate.

"It's so discouraging," said Susan. "It overturns years of effort. And the House acted without hearings," she said, and then added bitterly: "Democracy in action? Seven years in courts, all in our favor! And in one swoop it's all gone." She paused. "It's very sad."

Charges Leveled Against Ministers Benefit Trust

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Officials of a bankrupt Texas medical insurance trust that covered the employees of the Rev. Jerry Falwell have been charged with mismanagement and deception.

A lawsuit filed in Austin, Texas, last week alleges that Ministers Benefit Trust was "a mere scheme for the unregulated sale of insurance." The lawsuit seeks damages that probably exceed $1 million.

One of the allegations is that the officials showed preference to some members of the trust in making claims payments and ignored claims that should have been paid first.

There is evidence Falwell's employees were shown such preference, a Texas state insurance official said last month. But the lawsuit does not mention the Lynchburg, Va., evangelist or his corporation, Old Time Gospel Hour Inc. by name.

Falwell recently said he was unaware if the claims of his employees and their families received preference. He said he never sought special treatment, and Gospel Hour had to cover $170,000 of its employees' medical bills after Ministers Benefit failed.

Hundreds of ministers nationwide are still owed more than $300,000 for doctor and hospital bills they thought were covered.

Bob Browning, who was the administrator of Ministers Benefit, denied any wrongdoing Monday. Other defendants could not be reached for comment.

Browning, a Hurst, Texas, insurance salesman, set the trust up in July 1978 and ran it out of his office.

Ministers who joined paid monthly premiums into the trust fund, which would then pay their covered medical expenses. As of August 1979, 644 churches and church schools belonged.

Texas authorities shut down Ministers Benefit last fall, and found that it had about $128 in the bank. The Travis County District Court later declared the firm insolvent.

Anthony Harris, an official of the state Board of Insurance, was appointed receiver of the firm and has since been trying to find a way to pay the back claims. The lawsuit was filed in his name.

In May, Harris demanded that Browning and other officials pay the trust more than $800,000. That sum would cover the unpaid claims and the legal expenses of the state, and return administrative fees paid to Browning that the state alleges were unreasonable.

Browning said he met with state officials a few weeks ago and they offered to settle for about $800,000. He said Monday he does not intend to settle, and denied that the administrative fees he charged to the company were unreasonable.

The lawsuit alleges that Browning, trustee Bob Littlejohn and the three ministers on the benefits committee were aware, or should have been aware, that the trust fund was heading for insolvency more than a year before it was shut down.

It claims they lied to trust members about its financial status and the reason their claims were not being paid. The lawsuit contends that Browning and Littlejohn continued paying their fees and expenses from the trust funds after they knew it would end up broke.

Securities Have Reached Highest Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — After declining last week, yields on short-term Treasury securities have risen to their highest levels in more than two months, the Treasury says.

About $4.3 billion in six-month bills were sold Monday at an average discount rate of 15.571 percent, up from 14.79 percent a week earlier, officials reported.

The government also sold about $4.3 billion in three-month bills at an average yield of 15.674 percent, up from 15.065 percent the previous Monday.

The average rates were the highest since the May 22 levels of 15.675 percent for six-month bills and the record 16.75 percent for three-month bills.

Wants to prolong fertility

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am single and plan to marry at the age of 48. Could it be possible for me to still give birth? I am 46 now, and have a very regular menstrual cycle. But I am afraid in two years I might not be able to have a baby. How about prescribing some medicine that can prolong my fertility to satisfy my spouse-to-be. He is longing to have a baby.

DEAR READER — Well, if you are planning on having a baby, time is wasting.

There are women who have babies late in life, in fact I am told of one birth to a woman of 57. Your fertility is determined in part by a biological clock in your brain. When it is time for your ovaries to stop producing mature ova capable of being fertilized, your fertility will stop. Most women enter the menopause between 45 and 50.

There is an increased risk of birth defects in children born to a woman later in her reproductive life. However, there are many healthy and even gifted children born to older women, so I do not consider age a barrier in that regard. Besides, if there were any reason to be concerned tests can be made to see how healthy the expected baby might be in advance of delivery.

You will want to read The Health Letter number 17-2, Female Reproductive Function, which outlines the standard cycle and factors related to fertility. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

There really isn't any pill we can give to prolong the normal fertile period for a woman. We do not know how to control the biological clock. If your ovaries are still functioning it might be possible to use a fertility pill to induce ovulation, if that is needed, but I would not count on this. Rather I would give nature its best shot and try to get pregnant as soon as practical.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A year ago I started having seizures. At the onset my legs and arms were tingling and I was breathing very fast. I would get dizzy and pass out. I went to the doctor and he had a brain wave test done and couldn't find anything. He said I hyperventilate. I'm not sure what that means. Can you please tell me what makes this happen? I'm 17 years old and very worried.

DEAR READER — Relax! Your doctor means that you don't have any serious medical problem. You may have anxiety and worrying about your condition will make matters worse.

Hyperventilation simply means that you are breathing too hard and fast, overventilating your lungs. When this happens a person blows off too much carbon dioxide and upsets his body chemistry. The chemical change even affects the calcium in your circulation. That can cause the tingling that you describe. The fainting is a result of overventilation, too.

I don't know why you are anxious but if you have another attack, remember it is not serious and try to breathe very slowly and take shallow breaths. That will help prevent the blow-off of carbon dioxide and may control your symptoms.

Polovchak Kids Seek Home Here

CHICAGO (AP) — A 13-year-old Soviet boy and his 18-year-old sister, who were granted political asylum last year by the United States, have filed for permanent residence, one of the first steps toward American citizenship.

Walter and Natalie Polovchak filed the request Monday with the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which said it will make no ruling until a custody battle over Walter is settled.

"You can rest assured that the State Department is involved in this at a national level," said Lloyd Bishop, acting district director for Immigration. "We will not take any action on this application until the courts rule."

Walter ran away from home last year after his parents, Michael and Anna Polovchak, became disenchanted with American life after living six months in Chicago. They decided to return to the Ukraine but stayed when the boy refused to leave.

The boy was granted asylum, made a ward of the state and placed in a foster home. The foster parents are Ukrainian-speaking and live in the Chicago area but have not been otherwise identified.

Natalie also chose to remain here but was not involved in the probate proceedings because she is an adult.

The Polovchaks have another son, Michael, 6.

Police Chief Finds Coins

Deep in the recesses was a piece of paper with the combination to a safe that had not been opened for at least 16 years.

The safe was opened Friday, and, to the surprise of everyone at City Hall, more than $1,200 in change was found.

"Best of all, it's silver coins," Mayor Dale Campbell said. Silver coins are worth far more than their face value because of their metal content.

Campbell said the safe used to hold parking meter money, fines and bicycle license fees. The combination was misplaced years ago, but no one was concerned because they thought the safe was empty, he said.

When the door swung open, a coffee can and leather bag full of change and rolls of coins were revealed.

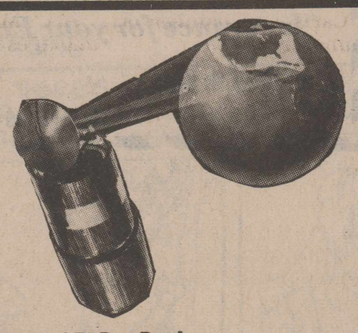

"There were pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and half dollars," said Treasurer Millie Bradley. "No silver dollars, but there were some silver certificates." The money was given to Mrs. Bradley for inventory.

She said there appeared to be more than $100 in silver certificates, paper bills once redeemable for silver. The rest was being separated Monday into years and mints. The most recent coins were from 1962.

"Some of these coins are just beautiful," she said.

Tiger Staff Prepares To Kickoff 1981 Drills

The 1981 Fightin' Snyder Tigers don't officially go into action until Sept. 4, but there are physicals, two-a-days and scrimmages before that and Coach George Byerly and his new staff are preparing in earnest.

Physicals for all high school boys will be given tonight at 7 in the field house, and shorts, shoes and socks for football will be issued Wednesday. Two-a-days for varsity and junior varsity players will begin with a team meeting at 7:35 a.m. Aug. 10.

Meanwhile, Coach Byerly and varsity assistants David Creswell, Walter Hargrove and Boe Smith are working to complete some cosmetic changes to the interior of the field house between skull sessions concerning the upcoming season.

"We need to work more as a staff in getting prepared but we're trying to get the field house in the best shape we can, too," said Byerly. The group will hold a clinic for all football coaches today, tomorrow and Friday.

"I'm real excited about the (coming) season," said the coach, who takes over the football program after two successful years as head basketball coach here. "I'm tickled to death with the staff we've got. We've just got to get the early part of it out of the way and get to know each other real well. Then we'll be set."

Byerly figures it will take a few days before the athletes and coaches feel comfortable with each other, since all of the assistants are new to Snyder.

Briefly, the new varsity assistants include Creswell, a 1972 graduate of Kansas State who hails recently from Lubbock Dunbar; Hargrove, a graduate of McMurry who last coached at Canadian two years ago; and Smith, who graduated from Northwestern Oklahoma State University in 1976 and coached there last football season.

Other coaches include newcomer Robert Crawford who will be head track coach and junior varsity football coach, from Dimmitt; Albert Lewis, head baseball coach and junior varsity football; and Larry Scott, head basketball coach and junior varsity football assistant.

Other familiar coaches will be Winfred Shipp, freshman football and jv basketball and Bud Birks, freshman football and jv basketball. In addition, Creswell will be freshman basketball coach, Hargrove will be sophomore basketball coach, and Smith will be assistant track coach.

Key dates on the football calendar include:

Aug. 4 -- High school boys physicals, 7 p.m. at the field house.

Aug. 5 -- First day to issue shorts, shoes, socks.

Aug. 5-6-8 -- Snyder High football coaches clinics.

Aug. 10 -- Begin two-a-days, 7:35 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. no contact allowed.

Aug. 14 -- Begin full contact, two-a-days.

Aug. 21 -- Scrimmage Vernon (varsity only), 7 p.m. in Stamford.

Aug. 28 -- Scrimmage Brownfield, 5 p.m. junior varsity, 6:30 varsity, in Snyder.

Sept. 3 -- First jv ballgame, 7 p.m. here vs Big Spring.

Sept. 4 -- First varsity ballgame, at Big Spring, 8 p.m.

Four Yankees To Head American League Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Four New York Yankees — outfielders Dave Winfield and Reggie Jackson, second baseman Willie Randolph and shortstop Bucky Dent — head the American League All Star team announced today.

They will be joined in the AL starting lineup for Sunday night's game at Cleveland Stadium by first baseman Rod Carew of California, Kansas City third baseman George Brett, catcher Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore outfielder Ken Singleton.

Earlier Monday, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced the starting lineup for the National League stars. It is headed by Philadelphia's Pete Rose, named at first base for a record fifth starting position.

Joining Rose in the NL infield are second baseman Davey Lopes of Los Angeles, Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion and third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia.

In the outfield, the NL will have three sluggers — Cincinnati's George Foster, Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Montreal's Andre Dawson. Gary Carter of Montreal was named the starting catcher.

Pitchers for both squads will be named Thursday and the reserves on the 30-man teams will be announced Friday.

The 52nd annual All-Star game, originally scheduled for July 14, will mark the return of major league baseball following a 50-day strike that ended last Friday.

The major league owners, who had been scheduled to meet today in Chicago to ratify the strike settlement and discuss plans for the remainder of the season, were forced to postpone the meeting because of the air traffic controllers walkout. The owners will meet Thursday instead or, if necessary, talk via conference call.

Major league teams continued working out, preparing for the resumption of the regular season next Monday. At Cooperstown, N.Y., the Oneonta Yankees defeated the Elmira Red Sox in a New York-Penn League gamayed as a replacement for the scheduled Hall of Fame contween the Oakland A's and Cincinnati Reds.

The All Star teams were selected on the basis of just over 3 million votes, compared with the usual 12 million ballots cast. Computer card balloting for the All Star teams, sponsored by Gillette, began in major league parks before the start of the strike June 12. During theiod of the walkout, voting continued in minor league parks and at retail outlets.

Ira Physicals Set Thursday

All Ira high school students should meet at Ira High School no later than 1 p.m. Aug. 6 to be transported to the Malone-Hogan Clinic in Big Spring for physicals. Students need to bring a urine specimen.

Nobody Complains...

Youngsters Fill In For Baseball's Oldtimers

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The only major leaguers around were oldtimers, retired and, for the most part, in the Hall of Fame. So the youngsters who bathed in the spotlight at Doubleday Field Monday provided the only game in town.

It was terrific baseball, too, as the Oneonta Yankees rallied to defeat the Elmira Red Sox 8-6 in a New York-Penn League Class A contest. Not one complaint was registered about the missing major league players, who are working out this week in preparation for reopening the season Monday after their 59-day walkout.

Normally, the Hall of Fame Game is an exhibition affair between a couple of major league teams. This year, after Bob Gibson, Johnny Mize and the late Rube Foster were inducted into baseball's shrine on Sunday, the Cincinnati Reds and Oakland A's were the scheduled participants. But the strike wiped that out.

"We scrapped that game a week ago," said Howard Talbot, director of the game. "We knew when the strike was imminent we'd have to find what to do.

"We contacted Oneonta and asked if they would move their Aug. 3 night game to Doubleday Field in lieu of the regular game. The proceeds, up to $2,500, went to the Yankees, and anything over $2,500 we would split the difference with them so that we could defray costs in planning for the regular game."

There were 3,229 fans at the game, about half the number the Reds and A's would have drawn. Probably the most thrilled people in the ancient ballpark were the players.

"It's a great honor to play in this game," said Oneonta second baseman Steve Scafa. "This is just my first year as a pro and right away I'm playing in a famous game like this.

"A few weeks ago someone mentioned it casually to us, and then it became a reality. The guys really are psyched about it and we all feel a little nervous," added Scafa as he warmed up before the game.

"We've played in some fields like this, but the grooming is the best I've seen. It looks like an Olympic stadium to me."

Art Mazmanian, who manages Oneonta, felt the spectre of playing in the Fame Game hurt his team last week.

"It affected us a little and we lost three of four to Little Falls," he said. "Our minds were not on what we were supposed to be doing.

"This is something they'll never forget, so how hard can you be on them if they look ahead? Heck, this park is no advantage to us because it's a hitter's field and the Red Sox are a power team. But it's worth it."

Local Pullers Take Honors At Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, N.M. -- Curtis Stipe and Royce Patterson took top honors in a WTTPA sanctioned tractor pull held last weekend at the Pecos Valley Raceway here.

The pull was sponsored by Richard Stoker of Snyder and Don Smith of Clovis in conjunction with the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce.

Patterson also took second in the 6200 4WD class and third in the 5500 Economy Tractor and 6200 Economy Tractor divisions. Stipe also earned dual honors, placing second in the 6200 Economy Tractor class.

Other Snyder pullers included Larry Lee, whose "Flamin' 44" took second in the 5500 Economy division. Lee also took fourth in the 6200 Economy class. Jesse Allen also represented Snyder, placing fifth and sixth in the 5800 4WD and 6200 4WD classes respectively.

Jesse Nell Allen placed fifth in the 6200 Powder Puff division.

Cowboy Camp Has Some Grumblers In Its Ranks

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Training camp wouldn't be training camp without players grumbling.

In this heaven-for-a-football-camp setting near the cool breezes of the Pacific Ocean, the Dallas Cowboys have managed to work up their fair share of gripes.

Let's give the soap box to wide receiver Butch Johnson, who has spent the majority of the training camp on the sidelines nursing a sore tendon.

"My worth to this team is like sticking a finger in a bucket of water...the hole you see in there is my worth to the Cowboys," said Johnson.

Interpreted, Johnson, who recently signed a three-year contract, wants more playing action but doesn't think he's ever going to get it.

"Some people say you should be satisfied with what you've got ... well, you can't respect somebody who says that ... it limits your growth potential," he said.

Johnson, while not officially in Coach Tom Landry's doghouse, has drawn some recent stares from the boss man for his noisy chattering on the sidelines while his teammates are working.

Another wide receiver, Tony Hill, also has missed most of the scrimmages and workouts due to minor injuries, and this isn't setting well with the coaches.

Hill is trying to renegotiate his contract.

Also mumbling about his contract is yet another wide receiver, Drew Pearson, who has been the sensation of camp with his sparkling, mid-season form play.

Pearson also is renegotiating his contract.

The defensive tackle is in his option year and has agent Howard Slusher in talks with the Cowboys' brass, headed by personnel director Gil Brandt.

"It (the contract talks) are in the back of my mind but I'm not concerned," said White. "I came out here to get ready to play football for the season."

Or a Billy Joe DuPree.

"Nobody is ever paid what they think they are worth," said the Cowboys' tight end.

Offensive lineman Pat Donovan also is on the option year of his contract, but the talks have been going quietly with no open griping.

Donovan even led the applause at a recent practice when placekicker Rafael Septien showed up late at practice.

"Nice of you to come in," Donovan kidded. "What are you getting paid?".

Like DuPree said, Donovan, not what he's worth.

Physicals For Athletes Set

All Snyder High School boys, grades 9-12 are asked to take physicals tonight at 7 in the field house. High school girls will take physicals Thursday at 7 and in the field house.

Physicals for junior high boys will be held Aug. 18 at 7. Junior high girls will have physicals Aug. 20, also at 7. Both will be held in the field house.

Of Atlanta Course...

Mahaffey's Memories Not Fond

ATLANTA (AP) — John Mahaffey's memories of the Atlanta Athletic Club are less than completely fond and pleasant.

It was on this course in 1976 that, from the lead, he lost the U.S. Open. That's bad enough, to lose a national championship you seemed to have in your pocket. For Mahaffey, it was the second such loss in as many years.

And to top it off, "they were laughing at me; I was so short off the tee they were laughing at me," Mahaffey said before a practice round over the hilly layout that serves as the site of the 63rd PGA national championship beginning Thursday.

"I'm not long to start with," the slightly-built Mahaffey said, "and I was using a driver that nobody could hit more than 230 yards."

And it finally caught up with him. After leading for 69 holes, Mahaffey was overtaken in the run down the stretch by then-rookie Jerry Pate, the eventual winner. Mahaffey's last chance disappeared when he hit his second shot into the water on the 72nd hole of that event five years ago.

It prompted Mahaffey to go on a long search for greater length. He found it. But that wasn't really the answer, either.

"I can hit it much longer now," he said. "But I can't find half of 'em."

So, after expermimenting with three drivers in his last outing, he found one he liked, cut back on his swing, began driving it with consistency in the fairways — not long, perhaps, but in the fairways — and won the Anheuser-Busch Classic.

It was the sixth victory of Mahaffey's injury-plagued, oft-interrupted career, marked the fourth consecutive year in which he has won at least once and sent him into the PGA with renewed confidence.

"It helps," Mahaffey said.

"I hadn't been playing too well, and it's my own fault.

"I had cut back on my schedule early in the year. I felt that I'd been playing too much and had burned myself out by the time the majors came along in the summer.

"But being as small as I am, my swing depends a lot on timing. I have to play a lot to get it right. I have to have the competition, put myself in the heat, to be playing good. Up until a couple of weeks ago, this year had been a real bummer. I was making excuses and blaming outside factors when the fact was that I just hadn't worked and played enough."

It came together two weeks ago.

"A lot of people don't realize what a great player John is," said Curtis Strange, who battled Mahaffey for the title in Williamsburg, Va. "It's just surprising he hasn't won a couple of more majors than he has."

That last victory, however, indicated that the highly competitive Mahaffey is better than a long-shot chance this week in the last of the year's Big Four events.

"I'd like to win the PGA just because it's the PGA, not because it's being played here," Mahaffey said. "There's no revenge motive involved."

Pat Walker's is great and it really works! I'm 4'9", I've lost 15 lbs. and 18 inches and I've gone from a size 8 to a size 5 and I'm still losing. I adjusted easily to balanced eating and best yet I didn't have to go on a "diet". My friends can't believe I have lost so much weight when I eat as much as I do. My husband has also lost weight by eating balanced meals, his pants are getting too big and we hope to spare our children any weight problems. You don't have to do all those hard exercises, you just relax in privacy and there is no special clothing. It takes the weight off and if you want to look pretty and feel healthy, it's worth it.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1963 that neither state nor city governments might interfere with peaceful sit-in demonstrations for racial integration.

Call Lindy Clark Farm Service For Metered Propane Delivery

Whether your propane use is for the home or the farm, the folks at Lindy Clark Farm Service Center, located at 1609 25th St., are the specialists to know when it comes to metered delivery of propane.

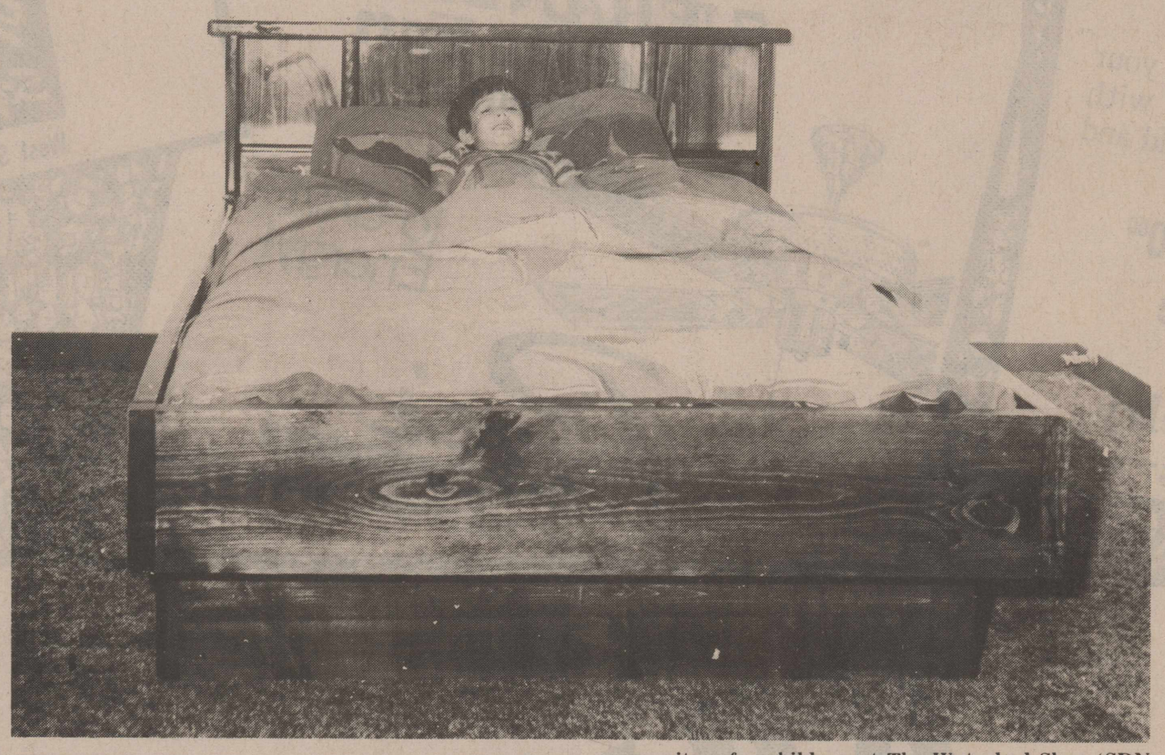

Do you worry about running out of gas or forgetting to call the supplier? Well, your worries are over. Once you are on Lindy Clark's route list you will never have to worry about how low you are running; they will be responsible for keeping gas in your tank. And, as a premium service, they offer same day and after hour delivery in emergency situations.

The Center also sells tanks for your convenience. Hook-up is offered on tanks purchased from Lindy Clark.

Secretary Joy Keller will take your phone orders and delivery is handled by Marvin Collier.

Lindy Clark Farm Service Center is located at 1609 25th St. and is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 5:30. Call them at 573-3516.

Lindy Clark is the answer to your fuel needs, and according to Mrs. Keller, "with gas prices going up all the time, we do try to stay competitive with other dealers."

Waterbed Shop Will Introduce You To Flotation Sleep Wonder

Flotation sleep is no longer just a novelty. More and more people are discovering the superior comfort of waterbed sleep each and every year and the folks at The Waterbed Shop, located at 4202 College, can help you make the same discovery.

For the best night's sleep you ever had, consider the waterbed. Today's waterbeds are designed for durability and sleeping comfort. The flotation systen is the most effective way devised to support a reclining body. When used with a heater, your waterbed will contribute to the deep muscle relaxation produced by controlled, continuous warmth. You'll sleep more soundly, more comfortably and wake with greater vitality.

Youngsters don't resist bedtime when they can nestle into the warm embrace of a waterbed. They'll fall asleep quickly, sleep deeply and comfortably all night. Let your children be the first on the block to own a waterbed, they'll love it.

Senior citizens who yearn for more restful sleep may rest assured in a waterbed. Hospitals long ago discovered the therapeutic benefits. Aside from the obvious advantage of a better night's sleep, waterbeds greatly reduce the discomfort of arthritis and back ailments.

You don't have to worry about leakage. A quality waterbed system—with frame and liner and properly constructed mattress—won't leak unless someone deliberately punctures the mattress. But even if it did, it would not damage the carpeting or floor for the water would be contained in the strong safety liner.

The slight discomfort of an old fashioned mattress is what makes people shift positions so often during the night. With a waterbed providing even support to all parts of your body, without pressure anywhere, you'll sleep undisturbed until morning. Don't put off that restful night's sleep any longer. Stop by The Waterbed Shop today and let Manager, Joe Bob Martinez show you their complete line of beautiful waterbeds.
