ELECT FITTS COMMISSIONER

CLOSE 2-DAY CELEBRATION AT IOWA PARK

Earle Mayfield Unable to Keep Appointment to Speak at Picnic and Rodeo.

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, July 16.—Iowa Park closed late tonight its two day celebration of the opening of the concrete road between this city and Iowa Park with a crowd that exceeded that of Friday night. The crowd during the day was only slightly less than that of Friday.

Merchants today declared that their Big Trades Days held in conjunction with the celebration had far exceeded their expectation in every respect.

During the day the athletic events were carried out as scheduled with no hitch in any part of the program.

In the morning several track events open to all were held and prizes awarded.

Due to illness in his family Earl B. Mayfield, state railroad commissioner and candidate for the United States senate was unable to speak in the afternoon as had been planned. Other events of the afternoon, including Ford races, a battle royal and several special contests for ladies, were carried out.

The ball game between the locals and the Texhoma Oil and Refining company team of Wichita Falls resulted in a 6 to 0 victory for the home team.

Mrs. H. Braley was awarded the $40 first prize, drawing the lucky number of thousands collected from the sales made by local merchants. Other prizes were awarded in connection with this feature of the trades days.

A feature of the two days celebration was the work of the county Red Cross Public Health nurses conducted under the supervision of Misses Mary Quinn and Mamie McBride of the Wichita Falls headquarters.

In a building located in the park the two nurses aided physicians in the examination of over 150 babies Friday and Saturday.

The night crowd was larger than that of the day Saturday. With a big open floor dance the holiday spirit prevailed throughout the town and brought a fitting close to this city's greatest celebration.

ANOTHER MAN IS VICTIM OF KU KLUX KLANSMEN

By Associated Press.

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 16.—R. F. Scott, of Deweyville, Texas, covered with tar and feathers, was dumped out of an automobile in the heart of the business district of this city tonight about 10 o'clock.

Scott underwent an ordeal without parallel in the history of the present Ku Klux Klan wave. He was kept in the woods since 9 o'clock this morning, he said, and frequently beaten until blood oozed from his back and breast. Just at nightfall, when the fifteen uniformed men were about to enter Beaumont, they covered his body with a coat of tar and rolled him in feathers.

GOES TO KANSAS BY AIRPLANE TO BE WITH MOTHER

In response to a message from Kansas City that his mother was dying, Clyde Key left this city Saturday night about 11:30 by airplane, H. K. Neal was the pilot for the trip.

PRESIDENT SPENDS WEEK-END ON YACHT

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President and Mrs. Harding again left Washington late today on the yacht Mayflower for a week-end cruise down the Potomac. They will return Monday morning.

Accompanying them are General Pershing, Attorney General Daugherty, Charles G. Dawes, director of the budget; B. C. Forbes, director of war risk insurance; Senator New of Indiana, and Mrs. New; Senator Edge of New Jersey; Brigadier General Sawyer, the president's physician, and E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, and Mrs. McLean.

A FEW YEARS AGO THIS WOULD BE FAIR HITTING

By Associated Press.

ELEVENTH, Minn., July 16.—First Baseman Daubert of the local team of Mesaba Iron Range League, is believed to have set a record by hitting five home runs in as many times at bat in a game with the Virginia team here yesterday. His last home run came in the tenth inning with two men on bases and brought victory for Eleventh, 9 to 6. The five circuit drives were made off Pitcher Dumont, formerly of the Washington American League team.

League of Nations Talks Disarmament

Council Announces Plans Will Go Ahead Despite President Harding's Proposal for Conference.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 16.—The League of Nations is going ahead with its work in connection with disarmament on the theory that it will in no wise interfere with the proposed confrence on limitations of armaments in Washington and that it may develop information which would be of use to such a conference. That was the decision announced at the opening session today of the temporary mixed commission for the reduction armaments, appointed by the league which was presided over by the Rene Viviani of France, chairman of the commission.

M. Viviani, P. A. L. Fisher, the British representative, Senator Carlo Schanzer of Italy, and the delegates of the leading nations represented on the commission were agreed on this point and also were in accord in praise of President Harding's initiative in proposing a conference in armaments. They declared the league could not but welcome joyfully all deliberations having in view a solution of the delicate and complex general question which the league was studying objectively.

PRELIMINARIES INTO QUIESCENCE PERIOD

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Diplomatic preliminaries to the Disarmament conference went into a period of quiescence today while Japan deliberated whether to consent to the board discussion of Far Eastern problems considered essential by this government if a serious disarmament effort is to be attempted.

So far as could be learned no word had come to the state department tonight in response to the informal explanation made to Japan yesterday relative to probable scope of conference. Officials, however, made no secret of their continued confidence that Japan eventually would join Great Britain, France, Italy and

MINERS' REFUSAL TO ACCEPT WAGE WILL CLOSE MINES, SAYS

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, July 16.—"The action of the miners in refusing to accept wage proposals of the operators will paralyze the coal mining industry," a prominent operator declared here today shortly following the adjournment of the joint five day conference of miners and operators.

"The mines absolutely can not be operated under the demands made by the miners and their action means that these industries must, at least for the present remain shut down," the operator declared.

With the flat refusal of the miners to accept the proposed wage reduction the conference was adjourned this afternoon without any further counter proposals.

Both miners and operators agree that this action means that the bituminous fields of Texas, which were closed last March, will remain closed for an indefinite period.

RAINBOW DIVISION OPPOSED TO BONUS

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 16.—The Rainbow division veterans association failed to endorse an immediate cash bonus for former soldiers at the closing session of their annual convention here today. They passed a resolution, however, recommending early collection of the accrued interest on the allied war debt to the United States and the use of the money to pay the adjusted compensation for ex-service men.

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED IN FALL

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Howard Smith, United States air mail pilot, was instantly killed late today in the Marina by the 300 feet fall of his plane as he started on his regular trip to Reno.

The plane went into a nose dive, apparently because of engine trouble, observers said, and burst into flames as it struck the ground. Smith's body was burned beyond recognition.

BRITAIN DEVELOPING COTTON CORPORATION

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Great Britain is at work on formation of an empire cotton growing corporation to stimulate cotton production throughout the empire, under royal charter with a grant of one million pounds, the commerce department was informed today by Consul Linnel, at London. It will not be a profit making organization, Mr. Linnel said.

EVERYBODY WORKS, INCLUDING FATHER, IN WICHITA FALLS

By BASCOM M. TIMMONS
Record News Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—Most everybody works in Wichita Falls. At least the census bureau says so and it ought to know. Census statistics for 1920 with regard to occupations in Wichita Falls were made public today and show that out of a total population of 40,079 there were 20,242 persons of aboue ten years of age employed, which is 50.5 per cent of the entire population, including men, women and children and 60.3 per cent of the population of 10 years of age or or more.

Of the total workers, 17,343 or 85.7 per cent were males and 2899 or 14.3 per cent were females. The male workers constituted 83.7 per cent of all males above 10 years of age, while the female workers constituted 22.5 per cent of all females of 10 years and upward. Of the gainful workers of Wichita Falls, 1976 or 36 per cent were in the manufacturing industries; 2532 or 12.5 per cent in transportation; 2864 or 14.1 per cent in trade; 250 or 1.2 per cent in public service; 845 or 4.2 in professional service; 2218 or 11 per cent in domestic and personal service; 1732 or 8.6 per cent in clerical occupations and 327 or 1.6 per cent in all other occupations.

WHAT KIND OF REPUBLICAN IS HERB HOOVER?

Democrats in Congress Wondering About Question Following Recent Speech to Convention.

By RASCOM N. TIMMONS
Record News Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Democrats in Congress are wondering just what kind of a Republican Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in the Harding cabinet, is.

They today hailed the speech of Hoover before the National Shoe and Leather Association at Boston as the best kind of Democratic argument.

Hoover warned that no tariff would cure the nation's ills. His speech came in the midst of the House consideration of the Fordney tariff bill.

"While many of the causes of the present depression lie within our borders, yet there may be no recovery from these hard times for many years to come, if we neglect our economic relations abroad," Hoover said. "Even if we lower our vision of civilization in this crisis solely to our own selfish economic interest, we are yet mightily concerned in the recuperation of the entire world. The hard times that knock at every cottage door today came from Europe. No tariffs, no embargoe, no navies can defend us from these invasions. Our sole defense is the prosperity of our

TEXAS TOWNS RAISE MONEY FOR SURVEY

By Associated Press.

BALLINGER, Texas, July 16.—The towns of Ballinger, Bronte, Miles, Rowena, Tennyson and San Angelo today completed a fund of $4000 to be used in finishing the survey of Colorado Valley irrigation project now under way.

When the survey is completed, it is planned to form an irrigation district, elect officials, and issue bonds for the erection of a dam and the digging of canals.

HARDING TO LOSE VOTES IN OKLAHOMA

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President Harding has definitely alienated the convention votes of Oklahoma, Kansas, Wyoming, Texas, West Virginia and Montana and this block of nearly 100 votes will be cast against his renomination, republicans were asserting here today.

All these states except Texas were in the republican column last fall. The republican sentiment in all of them is said to have been strong for the tariff on oil, which was killed by President Harding's letter to Chairman Fordney.

Republican congressmen from these states made no pretense at disguising their irritation at President Harding's interference with the oil schedule, the only schedule to which he objected.

Republicans say that the convention votes will be cast against Harding because if renominated he could carry none of these states, and the resentment against him is so strong with the voters in these states dependant upon the independent oil industry that were he again to head the ticket he would carry congressmen and state officers down to defeat with him.

Talk of Former Governor Lowden of Illinois, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin and Senator Johnson of California, as possible nominees heard here during the recent republican national committee meeting, is being renewed.

PASSENGERS ENDANGERED BY SHIP GOING AGROUND

By Associated Press.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 16.—Strenuous efforts were being made tonight to remove 330 passengers from the steamer Rapids King of the Canada Steamship line, which was disabled in the long Sault Rapids of the St. Lawrence river late today by the breaking of a rudder chain. The tiller was used to beach the vessel in seven feet of raging waters. No boats were able to approach the disabled craft because of the swiftness of the current.

NIGHT WATCHMAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, July 16.—Oscar Seals, night watchman, shot and killed his wife, Amie, then sent a bullet through his own brain here today. Death in each case was instantaneous.

Domestic troubles are ascribed by neighbors as being responsible for the tragedy. Three young children survive.

DALLAS WOMAN HEADS PROFESSIONAL CLUBS

GRAND JURY WILL INVESTIGATE FENCES

Special to the Record News.

DALLAS, Texas, July 16.—Alleged "Fences" for what is believed to be an organized band of automobile thieves will be investigated by the grand jury when they go into session Monday.

Within the last two weeks no less than six stolen automobiles are reported to have been found on the sales floor of a Dallas business house.

MRS. KABER MUST SERVE LIFE IN PEN

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 16.—Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber today escaped the electric chair but was found guilty of first degree murder for plotting the assassination of her husband, Daniel F. Kaber.

It was the hope that mercy would be extended by a male jury which caused her counsel to exclude women jurors, on the ground that they are more cold blooded and mereiless than men.

The hope was fulfilled when the twelve men returned a verdict recommending mercy.

As a result of the recommandation for mercy, Mrs. Kaber was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville by Judge Maurice Dermon. Had the jury not recommended mercy, the court would have been compelled to sentence Mrs. Kaber to die in the electric chair.

The prison term for Mrs. Kaber was the first tangible result of the state's effort to bring to justice those responsible for the murder of the Lakewood publisher, as he lay an invalid in his home on the night of July 18, 1919. There remain five others to be tried on first degree murder charges in connection with the crime.

Others to be Tried.

Two of these are Mrs. Mary Brickel, aged mother and Miss Marian McArdle, daughter of Mrs. Kaber.

Miss McArdle was with her mother who was lying in semi-conscious state in her cell in the county jail when news of the verdict was brought to them by Attorney W. Poulson, Mrs. Kaber's personal counsel.

DEFEATS W. G. BRALLEY FOR CITY OFFICE BY MAJORITY OF 161 VOTES

With a majority at the city hall of 183 while his opponent had a lead of only 22 at the court house box, J. B. Fitts was Saturday elected fire and police commissioner over W. G. Bralley, the present incumbent, whose election in April was contested and held void through failure of the election judges to sign ballots.

The Fitts plurality was 161. The total vote, 1767, while 50 per cent larger than predicted by some of the political dopesters, was a third smaller than the total of the other election.

The vote follows:

Box	Fitts	Bralley	Totals
City Hall	311	128	439
Courthouse	653	675	1328
Total	964	803	1767

Picks Morgan for Chief

R. W. Morgan will be Mr. Fitts' recommendation for appointment as chief of police, he said Saturday night, following the announcement of the results of the election:

"I intend to stick to my platform promise to employ home men," he said.

"Mr. Morgan's name will, however, be only my suggestion, for I intend to consult with the other members of the council before becoming fixed to any individual," he said.

"There are a number of mighty fine officers who would fill the place creditably, to whom I would have no objections should the other members of the council prefer them."

He said that J. S. Glenn was among this number, praising his ability as an officer, as well as that of Morgan.

"Other appointments in the police department will be entirely in the hands of the chief of police," he declared. "I intend to only pick the chief, and expect him to be capable of running the police department."

For Present Fire Department

No changes whatever are planned in the fire department, Mr. Fitts stated.

"I think we have the best fire chief in the state," he said, "and the best fire department."

In announcing future plans, Mr. Fitts also expressed his warm appreciation of the support given him by his friends in Saturday's election.

"I don't regard this as much of a personal victory, as a victory for the platform and principles on which I stood for election," he said.

Bralley Expresses Thanks.

Commissioner Bralley also expressed appreciation of the votes accorded him by his friends in Saturday's election and expressed himself as fully content to be relieved of the cares of the administration of the police department.

As far as Mayor Cline is concerned Mr. Fitts will have a free hand in the control of the affairs of the police department.

"There is only one way that the members of the city council can operate under the present city charter, and that is for each of them to have a free hand in the running of the department for which he is named the head in this same charter, and be entirely responsible for the results.

"Then, the majority of those who voted Saturday have decided they want Mr. Fitts to run the police department, and I am democrat enough to believe in the voters getting what they ask for."

Mayor Comments on Election.

"As far as Mr. Bralley is concerned, I regret the result," said Mayor Cline in commenting on the election.

"This is simply for the reason that I am responsible for drawing Mr. Bralley on to the council to fill a disagreeable position which he did not want to fill.

"No one knows better than myself the thing he has been up against in his fight against crooks and criminals, nor how well he has performed the job in running them from the town. As a result of his efforts, we now have a pretty clean town—not perfect—no town ever was—but a pretty clean town.

"As for the personal side of the election, and the result was as direct a slap to me as would have been possible, without my running myself, I don't feel that at all."

VALERA'S PROPOSAL SECRETED

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—Eamonn De Valera's proposal and the nature of Sir James Craig's conversation with Premier Lloyd George, remain closely guarded secrets. There was no conference between the British prime minister and the Irish republican leader today. Mr. De Valera will visit Mr. Lloyd George probably Monday afternoon and in some circles it is predicted that a round table conference may be held Tuesday. This, however, is only indicative of the hopeful feeling generally prevailing regarding progress of the negotiations for an Irish settlement.

The Sinn Fein delegates were joined this evening by Desmond Fitzgerald, Sinn Fein minister of propaganda, who has just been released from an internment camp. The delegates will remain in London for the week end, exchanging visits with Irish sympathizers. Three members of the Ulster cabinet, H. M. Pollock, E. A. Archdale and U. M. Andrews, together with Secretary Colonel Spender, also arrived in London this afternoon and conferred with the Ulster premier tonight in preparation for meeting of Sir James Craig with Premier Lloyd George Monday.

In a message to a war memorial meeting at Castle Dawson, Londonderry county today, Sir James declared that the British empire would never be weakened by any act of his.

Those who had made the supreme sacrifice, he added, "trusted us to give nothing away and their trust will never be betrayed."

CATTLE POOL NOT ENOUGH, KELL ASSERTS

Reiterates Former Declaration Banker's Financing Will Not Aid Live Stock Industry.

Local Financier Says Government Must Aid if Chief Business in West Survives.

Government leaders, who a short time ago were expressing themselves as favoring liberal treatment in an effort to avert the crisis in the cattle industry, have apparently undergone a change of heart in the matter, and show a disinclination to have the administration participate in the kind of relief needed, as it was once believed they would, according to information coming to Frank Kell from friends in Washington Saturday.

Without commenting on the correctness of the information, Mr. Kell reiterated his former declaration that if this means that the government plans nothing further than the present $50,000,000 bankers' pool that it will not save the situation, nor avert the threatened calamity through depletion of the herds from which the nation draws its meat supply.

Security Second Consideration.

"This pool will operate as a purely commercial banking venture," Mr. Kell pointed out in discussing the matter. "And this will not be sufficient.

"It will help only the fellow who has sufficient security to secure loans in the present market, and will not help the fellow who already has his herds mortgaged for as much or more than their present worth, and will have to sell off his herds if some means is not found where he can obtain loans from a source which shuts its eyes to the security, and operates only chiefly on the man's reputation for integrity and business capacity."

Government aid would be necessary in a case like this, and such loans, Mr. Kell points out, would be permissable only in the case of cows, calves and heifer yearlings. Steers of more than one year old, he says, should stand on their own feet.

"While in the main opposed to government intervention in matters of this kind, especially in favoring one line of industry, I still maintain it would be justified in this case," Mr. Kell said.

"The aid I have in mind would only be extended to save the mother cows and the young of the herds, to the end that the future herds could be provided for; and the future meat supply not imperiled—the imminent prospect of which creates a national problem."

Outlines Own Position.

In order that his position be thoroughly understood, Mr. Kell points out, that while extensively engaged in the cattle business, his entire holdings consist of steers of more than one year old—cattle which would not benefit from any of the plans he has advocated for the meeting of this crisis.

Following is an analysis of the situation which Mr. Kell has given the Record News and to a number of the prominent bankers who have been interested in this situation:

"I have noted with much interest the activity on the part of the administration in undertaking to offer financial assistance to the cattle industry of the Southwest, and note that a financial plan of $50,000,000 has been worked out through the banking connections of New York and the country at large, the funds being made available for the use of the cattle men.

"I understand in a general way that these funds will be loaned to the cattle men, but upon a sound commercial basis; that is, with sufficient security in each instance to insure the refund of all the money so advanced, regardless of the future financial distress obtaining in the cattle country, and that these funds will be loaned on fixed maturities of six months, with a moral obligation only of renewal at the expiration of the first maturity, the rate of interest, I assume, to be the usual commercial rate obtaining in the territory where the loans are made.

Will Not Save Cows.

"This plan, while offering some relief to the cattle industry, will not go far enough to save a large per cent of the mother cows and calves. A great many of the cattle raisers have pledged their cows and calves for obligations created when prices were very much higher than at present. Due to the wide-spread financial distress prevailing throughout the entire United States, the banks carrying these obligations in the cattle growing sections of the country, finding themselves in stringent circumstances, and finding it absolutely imperative that they realize upon their outstanding bills receivable, have demanded the cattle growers move their cows and calves to Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska for,

POWERFUL AMERICAN JUNTA AT WORK TO PREVENT U. S. FROM RECOGNIZING MEXICO

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Record News Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A powerful American junta is at work to prevent the resognition of the Obregon government in Mexico. If it is successful, this country, which by congressional resolution has just extended its hand to Germany, will refuse to recognize our neighbor on this continent—a neighbor whose northern border touches our southern border.

And if it is successful it will also mean this: the Obregon government will fall. Without the recognition of the United States what looks to be the one best bet for Mexican tranquility will vanish.

The junta is working behind the so-called Mexican revolutionary committee. The complete plan was brought to Washington by H. S. Bryan, of Zanesville, Ohio, who has lived in Mexico city for 11 years.

Bryan himself favors the plan which calls for a new revolution headed by Pablo Gonzales, former Carranza military chief. The complete plan calls for the overthrow of Obregon and the elevation of Gonzales, who is a banker and business man of Laredo, Texas, although a Mexican citizen. Gonzales would be known as "supreme chief of the reconstruction movement."

Soon Under Full Steam

Bryan believes the movement will soon be under full steam, because of the remarkable fact that an American citizen comes from the capital of Mexico to the capital of the United States and gives out a bold interview predicting a revolution in the country which has harbored him, Bryan's statement is printed here.

While replying, in answer to a query as to the character of Gonzales, that he "is the only real friend of the United States" among prominent Mexicans, and while asserting that no chance exists of a restortation and friendly relation between this government and Mexico so long as Obregon continues to hold the reins, Mr. Bryan stated he had no connection of any kind with the revolutionary movement. He went to Mexico in 1910, he said, for the Goodyear company of Akron, Ohio, although he long ago severed his relations with Goodyear, has continued in business in Mexico City.

Mr. Bryan said that there was published in Mexico City, by authority of a committee of 203 Mexicans, a "plan of national reconstruction." These 203 Mexicans, the Oldo man lieser bed as including successful and conspicious business men.

Would Hold Election

This "plan," according to a literal translation provides, among other things:

First: The constitutional order of the Mexican republic is hereby declared suspended since the 7th day of May, 1920, the date when the elected President Carranza abandoned the state capital, continuing in this condition until the circumstances may permit the performance of electing a new mandatory.

Second: The supposed election of the provisional president that happened to reach the person of Adolfo de la Huerta, is declared hereby void of effect and without legal value.

Third: By the same reasons, are declared void of effect the supposed elections of deputies in the national legislature, as well as the renewal of half of the higher chamber, coarsely simulated during the temporary charge of Adolfo de la Huerta.

Fourth: Area void and without value, all designations which with a pretext of election, took place in various states of the republic, that is that of the governors and local legislations, as well as indirect elections together with those magistrates.

Fifth: Is not recognized Alvero Obregon as president of the republic in virtue of being legally and even morally incapacitated for such a high charge, and because, at the same time not being elected by only designated by the spurious legislature.

Sixth: As a consequence of all above said, are void and without legal value, all acts of the so-called president Alvero Obregon, be those acts accomplished directly or indirectly by his secretaries of state and chiefs of departments, being thus all mentioned acts subject to revision and to ratification only in case of an immediate special necessity."

Chief to Govern

Varying provisions continue until it is further declared: "The nation will be governed, according with the basis of the present plan, and means that circumstances will suggest, by one military chief, having the supreme command, and who, by virtue of office will be at the same time the chief of the army."

A subsequent provision relates specifically to special care which it is proposed to be given that Article 27 of the Mexican constitution which is just now the sticking point in the progress of the United States toward resuming friendly relations, shall not have retroactive effect.

The "plan" further provides that a citizen who will be invested with the dignity of "chief of the reconstruction movement" will order the opening of a national trial against those involved in the "odious murder" of Francisco I. Madero and Jdcenciado Jose Maria Pino Suarez; "opening at the same time and continuing until its final conclusion" another trial to establish the guilt of those who participated in the events which "gave such tragic end to the life of don Venustiano Carranza."

The supreme military chief is to fix the date for new elections of general powers as well as for the states and territories.

Finally, the subscribers of the plan call upon Pablo Gonzales as their unanimous choice for "supreme chief of the reconstruction movement, in order to elevate him, at the triumph of this cause, to the highest magistracy of the nation."

The detailed provisions of the "reconstruction plan" follow a long preamble which purports to cite the preceding circumstance and the needs which call for this new revolutionary movement.

May Overthrow Obregon.

Bryan states the plan of the revolution was published in Mexico City within the past month, and indicated a belief that yesterday's news dispatches of activities by Gonzales at the head of his men would be followed by sweeping developments, which would end in the overthrow of Obregon.

Gen. Pablo Gonzales was in command of Mexico City following the overthrow of the Carranza government. He declined to be a candidate for president, Bryan declaring that Gonzales said to him personally:

"If I remain and benefit as a successor to Carranza, I will be everywhere charged with his murder, and I cannot submit to being charged with the murder of my friend, Carranza."

Asked as to the possible outcome of the revolutionary movement, Mr. Bryan said:

"To my mind it is the only salvation for Mexico. There can be only a reasonable revolution against the so-called Obregon government by Mexicans who have the best interests of Mexico and the United States at heart, or intervention.

"There is no chance of recognition of the outfit now in control in Mexico. Obregon cannot do the things that the United States requires of him, that is, he can't do them and live."

Three Control Obregon.

Mr. Bryan explained he meant by that, that Obregon was under the domination particularly of three members of his cabinet, General Calles, minister of commerce and industry; Adolfo de la Huerta, formerly provisional president of Mexico, now minister of finance; and Antonio Villareal. The Ohioan asserted these men are well known in Mexico to be opposed to any policy looking toward acceding to the requirements specified by the United States. Asked why, he gave a reason which already has been heard unofficially here from some of the most asturely informed persons both in and out of the Washington administration.

"One very close friend of the Mexican administration told me in Mexico City the other day," related Mr. Bryan, "that de la Huerta said this:

Why Want Recognition.

"Why should we want recognition? We have to make a bluff at wanting recognition. If this government were recognized, we would be on the same plane with other governments of the world and would have to pay our debts. Our retonues are four or five times as much as Diaz ever had. We don't have to pay our debts. We're still getting the money."

"That," continued Mr. Bryan, "is the whole thing in a nutshell as far as those fellows are concerned."

Explaining why he believed Obregon cannot last, Bryan said:

"He cannot last without recognition, and he cannot get recognition as long as he is controlled by this cabinet."

It is coming to be pretty well understood in Washington that powerful interests are working to prevent Obregon's recognition and that the interventionists have not lost heart.

DELEGATES WILL TELL OF CONVENTION

If Doc Hoover and Ben Neal have not forgotten what happened at the Kiwanis convention at Cleveland by this time they will make their first official report at Monday's luncheon at the Kemp Hotel.

It is understood that the delegates will have some photographic proof to back up their reports and these with the usual "hot line," which these delegates are known to possess, assure an interesting session.

Music for the program will be given by Miss Horton, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. F. R. Collard.

TAYLOR TO FIND CAMPS FOR SCOUTS

Scout Executive H. E. Taylor will make several trips in this section this week to look over prospective sites for camps which the Wichita Falls Boy Scouts plan to take on week ends this summer. The sites will be selected according to the qualifications of a place to swim, abundant shade and drinking water supply, Mr. Taylor said.

These week end trips which are being planned, Mr. Taylor says, will give the scouts an excellent chance to put the scoutcraft work into practice, as well as providing them with exercise and fun.

There is a probability of having another camp in the Wichita mountains some time in August, Mr. Taylor said. The success of the last camping trip and the desire of scouts to go on another long trip soon, he said, was causing him to take the matter up.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR WILLIE MAY M'GEE

To celebrate her eleventh birthday, little Miss Willie May McGee invited a number of friends to spend the afternoon at her home on Saturday afternoon, July 16.

An impromptu program opened the afternoon's entertainment, each little guest responding with readings, or piano numbers with one violin number adding variety.

Games were then played, and kodak pictures taken, then the guests were invited into the dining room, where the birthday cake lovely with it's eleven gleaming candles, was cut, after the candles were blown out, with a wish of happiness for the little hostess from each of the guests. Ice cream was served with the cake.

Last but by no means least was the opening of the birthday gifts, which were numerous and pretty, as well as useful.

NEWTON FRIGHTENS BURGLARS

The timely interruption of Motorcycle Officer Newton in the work of prowlers who were attempting to loot the Lewis-Jones Hardware company, 802 Scott street, Saturday morning about 2 o'clock probably prevented them from hauling away considerable loot, in the opinion of Detective Chief Boyd. Eight revolvers and pistols were reported to have been taken by the robbers.

Three shot guns were reported to have been found on the sidewalk near the entrance of the building. The men were said to have dropped these in their haste to get away when the officer was observed.

The bandits made their escape in an automobile truck, according to Officer Newton, who said that he had dismounted from his motorcycle and approached the building on foot, when he found the men.

Entrance to the building was effected by use of a pass key. The front door was said to have been left open.

WHAT KIND OF REPUBLICAN IS HERB HOOVER?

neighbors and our own commercial skill. The recovery of our foreign trade can march only in company with the welfare and prosperity of our customers."

Hoover's argument bore a striking resemblance to that which has been repeatedly made by Congressmen Connaly, Garner, Rayburn, Lanham, Garrett and other Texas members. Hoover warned that a nation does not become rich by its exports alone, but by its trade with other nations.

Attacks Own Party

"I may say in passing that our whole standard of living depends upon our imports," Hoover said, as if directly attacking the plan of his own party to put up the bars against imports. "Exports are the great balance wheel for our production. Exports are vital to the stabilization of our industries, of price levels of wages, and of employment. Exports comprise a large percentage of certain industries. For example, we generally export 20 percent of our wheat, 60 percent of our cotton, 75 percent of our copper, not to mention others. Unless we find a market for the surplus production or our great industries, we shall continue to keep some 25 million of our people in reduced buying power. We might even drive them into poverty—during the many years that would be required to shift the whole basis of our internal production."

Warning that Europe must sell here if she is to buy anything here, Hoover pointed out that manufacturers in this country must get their cost of production down, and be willing to take smaller margins of profit, must eliminate waste in production, and that American transportation costs will have to come down.

Warns Against Europe

Hoover also warned, against the United States letting Europe look after its own affairs. This is particularly interesting in view of the fact that western bankers who recently visited the White House and had dinner with President Harding, Secretary Mellon and Secretary Hoover, advised that this government look after America first and let Europe shift for itself.

"If we stop giving more credits our exports will further decline, and the decline will find its interpretation in more unemployment among our own people and more displacement of our industries," Hoover said. "The natural effect of our continued surplus of exports is that our dollar is at a premium over even the most stable currencies in the world. Thus the cost of producing our commodities is higher than in any other country. Our high barometer of money exchange means we need more credit outward or alternative we must send less goods out or take more goods in."

age, was at Sterling house, a detention home for women.

The others charged with hte crime are Mrs. Erminia Colavito, mid-wife nurse, who is alleged to have been a go-between Mrs. Kaber and Salvator Cala and Vittori Pisselli, who are alleged to have actually killed Karber.

Mrs. Kaber showed no signs of interest in the verdict or even the sentence imposed by the court, if in fact she actualy knew what was happening, for she was apparently oblivious of all things. She merely nodded her head when pressed for answers as to whether she understood. She was limp and had to be carried to and from the court room.

Deny Daughter Ball.

Her own fate sealed, what little interest Mrs. Kaber did show was said to be in the future of her daughter, whom County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton says he will ask be given the death penalty. Bail for Miss McArdle was refused today by Judge Bernon on the ground that in the light of testimony in Mrs. Kaber's case which tended to implicate her also in the crime, he could not grant her temporary freedom. Marian is alleged to have furthered her mother's murder designs and to have played the piano to drown noise while the alleged assassins were shown their victim by Mrs. Kaber.

Because of her physical condition, Mrs. Kaber will not be taken to prison for ten days more, it was said. The jail physician said he thought Mrs. Kaber's condition is due to overstrain during the trial.

Both counsel for the defense and state said they were well pleased with the verdict.

Defense counsel announced there will be no appeal.

CO-EDS TO TOUR ENGLAND.

LEWISTON, Me., July 12.—Miss Nellie M. Milliken, Bates '22, daughter of former Governor Milliken and Misses Elizabeth and Caroline Chase, Bates '01, accompanied by Dr. Phoebe DuBoise, examining physician for women at Bates, will tour England on foot during the coming summer, according to an announcement at the college. Scotland will also be visited.

COURT REPORTER HAS WAR RECORD

Sketching the war record of a candidate for office, or of a new official or appointee has been quite the thing, since the World War, but it is rather unusual for a woman appointee to have a war record, such as is the case with Mrs. Maj Wade Nevin, Wichita county's first official court reporter.

Mrs. Nevin has recently taken the office of reporter for the Wichita county court at law, presided over by Judge Guy Rodgers.

For three years Mrs. Nevin was overseas in Red Cross work, as a searcher in hospitals during the two years of combat, and for the next year engaged in rehabilitation work in the Balkan states.

She was attached to several of the base hospitals in France. Immediately after her return to the United States she came to Texas, after a visit at her old home in New York City, and has been an enthusiastic Texan, and Wichitan as well, ever since that time, about a year ago.

China in accepting full participation in discussions.

No Hasty Decision Sought

It was emphasized in official circles that no hasty decision was sought and that there was no desire here to have the Tokio government accept unreservedly until it had satisfied itself of these exact purposes and good faith of the United States in proposing the conference. The general expectation was that a delay of several days would ensue before the next important development.

Meantime those who are to be in charge of the conference began to turn their attention to physical difficulties involved in providing suitable quarters here for so important a gathering.

No meeting place has yet been selected, although suggestion has been made that the Pan-American building probably would provide best facilities in the national capital.

It is thought not unlikely that several hotels and apartment houses may have to be taken over to accommodate the visitors.

FORMER JAPAN MINISTER FAVORS DISARMAMENT

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 15.—Yukio Osaki, former minister of justice, whose resolution proposing curtailment of naval armaments was rejected by the Japanese house of representatives in February last, in commenting today on President Harding's proposal for a conference of the great powers on armament limitation and Far Eastern questions, said that when he introduced his resolution the people though it Utopian and it was indifferently treated.

Now that President Harding has issued a world summons other questions will be decided, but importance is dwarfed by that of disarmament, M. Ozaki declared.

"Participation by China may seem strange because of her slight navy, but it is only reasonable that she should be invited because she is vitally interested in Pacific problems.

"Some Japanese erroneously believe that the eight battleship and eight cruiser program is the minimum for defense; on the contrary, it is the maximum which may be reduced according to the strength of the imaginary enemy. Moreover, Admiral Kato, minister of the navy has declared it is not necessary to stick to the eight battleship and eight cruiser program. The Japanese should understand that finances are uppermost in the endless naval competition between America and England which surely will lead to bankruptcy. Japanese statesmen should treat limitation of armaments in consonance with the prevailing temper of the world. Discussion of General Pacific problems is fraught with important consequences to the future of Japan and demands careful consideration."

RICH UNIVERSITY YOUTH CAUGHT STEALING RIDE

BINGHAMTON, July 10.—Robert Peel, aged twenty, son of a wealthy Washington family and a student at Cornell university, was arrested here by railroad police on a charge of "bumming" a ride on a freight train. Peel had traveled from Ithaca to this city and was on his way to his parents, who are touring California, he told the police.

Peel, who was dressed in stylish corduroy riding breeches, hightop leather moccasins, golf stockings and an army shirt, said: "I don't have to travel this way. My people have lots of money. But I like the adventure; I like the life of a vagrant."

He had $18 when arrested, but said that sum would meet all his needs until he reached California. He has just finished two years at Cornell.

fattening through the summer months with the understanding that the cattle. When in marketable condition, will go forward to the markets. There being at the present time no market other than for beef purposes, these cattle will be sold to the packers for slaughter.

"The $50,000,000 provided as above indicated will be available to only a very few of these cattle growers, due to the fact that their herds are already mortgaged for as much, if not in instances for considerably more, than the actual value of the stock. Therefore, under he plan worked out, this class of cattle would hardly be eligible for mortgage and rediscount with the bankers syndicate underwriting this fund.

A National Emergency

"We realize that it is dangerous for the government to set a precedent of treating one industry differently from others, unless there is a national interest involved. In this instance, however, if the she cattle, calves and steer yearlings are forced into the slaughter pens in a wholesale way as conditions now indicate they will be, it will result in the depletion of our cattle ranges to such an extent that when the present supply of older steers will have been butchered for the current meat supply of the country, we will find that our meat supply is almost exhausted and it will be necessary that we import from foreign countries a large per cent of this food supply which has heretofore been furnished from our own ranges, and this creates an emergency of national importance by reason of which we feel that the government is justified in making this distinction in regard to the classes of live stock above mentioned, but no others. Our idea is that a steer of more than one year old is like any other farm commodity, and should not be extended preferential treatment.

"The application of the extension of the preferential treatment to steer cattle over one year old would affect a market condition, while preferential treatment to the she cattle, calves and yearlings affects one of the largest food supplies of this country.

"You probably are well aware of the fact that once our ranges are depleted of the mother cows and other female cattle, that it would take some three to five years to reproduce the cattle with which to take care of our current meat supply.

Government Should Aid

"Therefore, should the government at Washington City and the business men of the country at large premit these cattle to be slaughtered, as it is quite apparent now they will be unless prompt assistance is rendered, an emergency will have been created which becomes of national importance.

"The financial plan which has been worked out should in no sense be disturbed, but should be permitted to function, taking care of the situation as far as this method can be applied.

"However, to meet the situation fully, and to avert what it is quite apparent will become a national emergency, some kind of financial plan should be worked out by the government, something along the lines of the War Finance Corporation, liberalizing so as to make the plan easily workable and available for the smallest as well as the largest cattle grower, regardless of where located, making this plan sufficiently liberal that the question of security behind the loan would not always be the controlling factor, but the cattle growers reputation for business integrity and business capacity should be largely considered in extending this financial support. The time of maturity, of the paper should be made not less than twelve months, and in most instances eighteen months to two years, and the rate of interest should not be exhorbitant.

"If the administration should feel that it would be impracticable to administer the relief need of which is quite apparent to all of us, by operating through a board such as the War Finance Corporation, then according to our opinion the next best plan would be for the banker's syndicate which has already been organized to liberalize their plan of operation so as to extend the aid to this class of cattle growers above indicated, and along the lines above indicated.

"To do this, however, we feel that it would be the duty of the government to in some way guarantee the banker's syndicate against a final loss in the winding up and liquidation of the affairs of the syndicate; our idea being that if no other plan is available that the bankers' syndicate should be worked out so as to extend credit as above indicated, using as the basis of credit the cattle growers' reputation for business integrity, as well as the security that he could give, and also extending this accommodation over a period so as to give the cattle growers opportunity to save the herds, and in the end secure a material enhancement in the value of his livestock, which in most instances would be sufficient to liquidate his indebtedness, and at the same time avert what is quite apparent now would become a national emergency.

"We realize that no doubt some legislation would be essential in order to carry out either of the plans above suggested. We believe, however, that with this matter properly presented to congress that such legislation could be had, and speedily so.

"If further conference were desired, we would be very glad, indeed, to co-operate in every way possible and to impart such information as we may have.

"In order that our position may be thoroughly understood, we desire to state that we are quite extensively engaged in the cattle business. However, all of our holdings are steer cattle more than one year old, and according to our idea paper against this class of cattle should not be eligible through either of the plans suggested by us. Therefore our interest in the matter is in the interest of the public good and not for our special benefit."

ALLEGED AUTO THIEF TRANSFERED TO JAIL

"SHELL-SHOCK" IS MISNOMER, SAYS EXPERT

LONDON, July 16.—Last August a departmental committee of the War Office was appointed, with Lord Southborough as chairman, to inquire into the nature and treatment of shell shock and associated matters. Criticism of the committee's rate or progress has lately made itself heard, and there is considerable curiosity as to what it has done and is doing.

The committee held its first meeting on September 7 and has met once a week ever since, with one or two exceptions. At each sitting it has examined two or three witnesses, the last to be heard being Captain Gee, V. C. M. P. It is examining commanding officers of all kinds and grades, medical officers, both civil and military; recruiting officers, and officers who have suffered from some form of shell-shock, and is about to examine representatives of high command. It will also take the evidence of men who have suffered. It has appointed sub-committees to deal with special aspects of the subject. It expects to report in the autumn.

Hysteria is Proper Name

Generally the results of the inquiry so far are understood to justify the view that the term shell-shock is unfortunate. It is much to be regretted, indeed, that it was ever used at all, because in many instances the bursting of a shell has nothing to do with the shock the man receives. The evidence shows that the affections of men said to be suffering from shell-shock are nervous diseases in all respect similar to those known to the medical profession in civil life. There is really no distinction to be drawn between the two. There are, however, two classes of cases. There is the class of case where a man is knocked down, perhaps buried by a bursting shell. There are records of men being killed outright by the firing of a shell close by, although on examination they show no outward sign of a wound. Those may, in a sense, be described as shell-shock cases, but the majority of cases are those of people who suffer either from neurosis or hysteria produced without the intervention of any particular explosion. These men are either men of character and bravery who went on until human nature refused to do any more, when the nervous system collapsed, or they are men who, from the beginning, had no heart for such an existence as war, were bound to break down and should never have been recruited for service at the front. Some of them suffered from infections and other debilitating conditions.

The work of the committee is directed rather to the future than to the past but the nature of the inquiry naturally involves the duty of examining the methods of treatment which have been applied to officers and men who suffered from these diseases. It must also be borne in mind that there are men who are still either in homes or under care in the asylums of the country.

The French instituted a system of keeping men suffering from shell shock in rest hospitals behind the front instead of sending them home. They did this because they found that a nervous disease was better treated in the hard medical environment of the camp than by letting the patients return to their families, where they were sympathized with and "molly-coddled."

New Recruiting Tests

The question has been raised whether methods could not be devised by which men who are accepted by the recruiting officer but who were thought or known, either from personal observation or from their medical history, to be of nervous and sensitive disposition, should be really trained to face the ordeals to which men are subjected in these days of great shells and high explosives. It would seem, from the course the evidence has so far taken, that the recruiting officer and the medical officers of the future will have not only to ascertain that a man has good muscles, but also that he has good nerves and that he has no hereditary taint. The two most important factors, indeed, in the prevention of what is miscalled shell-shock so far revealed by the inquiry are careful investigation into the mental family history when the man is recruited, and education during his training. Doctors who are trained neurologists have somewhat definite ideas to the class of man who is likely to break down. They group the cases into classes which may be found in all armies and are not peculiar to our own.

"Soft" Man's Disease.

There is no evidence whatsoever of this neurosis in previous wars. It is perfectly certain that in Wellington's campaign, wher there were the bloodiest battle possible, men must have collapsed in the same way as they did in the late war. It has been objected that the armies in those days did not have such big guns and high explosive shells. That, however, is not an explanation, because the majority of cases are really break-down cases from wear and tear, quite apart from the effect of the firing of the shell. What did the authorities do with those men in previous wars? Probably the men who broke down became deserters and were shot. In the late war cases of desertion were very largely cases of men who wandered away and were found in a state of imbecility—unable to remember their names or where they were. They were mercifully dealt with, because they were always overhauled medically before any serious sentence could be passed upon them. In Wellington's time they were treated as deserters, and therefore as cowards.

The conclusion to which the inquiry seems to point is that, given a good system of recruiting, care as to the mentality of the men fine morale in the regiment and good officers, especially medical officers, there would be next to no shell-shock at all.

Shell-shock comes from soft men.

HOME GARDENING HOLDS INTEREST IN DETROIT

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—Detroit is fast becoming the "home garden" city of the country.

Thousands of Detroiters, who acquired the gardening habit during the war, have continued the practice of making and tending patches of vegetables and small fruits until it has become a hobby with a large proportion of men here. More interest is being taken in gardening than in golf, baseball, or other sports during the summer months, according to those who have made a study of the situation.

COFFMAN NO. 1 REPORTED AT 500 BARRELS

Opened up Saturday evening, after tank connections had been made, the Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Coffman started flowing, and is estimated good for between 400 and 500 barrels flush, according to Saturday night reports from the field. The well was drilled in several days ago, and brought itself in, but was shut down for lack of tankage.

The Harper and Jones No. 1 Taylor, a short distance northeast of the Texhoma Taylor wells, was reported Saturday as showing up for a fair producer, though there was still some salt water in evidence. Oil was being swabbed in considerable quantities, it was reported.

The Texhoma No. 7 Gose is reported drilling around 1200 feet, the No. 8 drilling around 500 feet, and the No. 3 Taylor drilling around 1100 feet.

REPORT FLOW INCREASED BY 400 BARRELS

Shot in the 2,100-foot sand, from which it had been producing around 700 barrels, the North American-Roxana No. 1 Ford, one of South Bend's recent sensations, increased its flow to around 1,100 barrels daily, according to week-end reports from South Bend.

This well marks the eastward extension of the 2,100-foot sand, and the new developments make it the largest well yet completed at this depth.

HONOLULU NEWSY MUCH DIFFERENT TO OUR PRODUCT

HONOLULU, T. H., July 16.—The newsboy of Honolulu stands alone in his class. That he sells newspapers is the only characteristic he has in common with his brother of the continental United States.

He may be American, English, Scotch, Irish, Hawaiian, Spanish, Portuguese, Filippino, Chinese, Japanese or Korean, or a combination of any two, three or even four of these nationalities, but, no matter what his blood, his method never varies.

If he knows the news contained in the paper he sells, he never tells it. No raucous shouts of "Triple murder in St. Louis." "Big flood in Colorado." "Prince assassinated," or the like ever are heard on Honolulu's streets. The newsboy here has a paper to sell and he sells it you take your own chance on the news it contains.

"Stawbull, dreedlrty," indicates to the initiated that the news vendor is offering you the afternoon Star-Bulletin of the three-thirty o'clock edition. "A'tise" tells you that he has the morning Advertiser for sale.

Barefoot, clad in a hat or cap, a shirt and a pair of trousers, he haunts the street cars and he tours the corners. No one boy has any one stand. He may offer you a paper on a down town street intersection and half an hour later try to sell you another at Waikiki beach, a couple of miles from the business district.

He is persistent to the verge of being a public nuisance, but he almost invariably smiles—and he certainly sells his papers.

HOW CARNATIONS WERE NAMED.

When you pin a carnation in your buttonhole you make a "buttonhole bouquet of a flower whose name is closely related to the words "carrion," "carnal," "carnivorous" and "carnival." The Romans called it "carnatio" because the only type of flower they knew was flesh colored and they got "carnatio" from "carno," which meant flesh. The ancients knew this fragrant flesh colored blossom long before Romulus and Remus were suckled by a she-wolf which was long before the temples t opped the hills and walls encircled Rome.

Yes, the carnation is a very old flower, and it is believed that it first came into blossom in Southern Europe, but here we step into the realm of guessery. Theophrastus, who lived about three hunired years before the Christian era and wrote a history of plants, wrote of this flower as the Dianthus, which name was made from Dies, divine, and anthus, flower, meaning of course a divine flower or the flow of the gods. Its fragrance was said to be especially pleasing to gods and goddesses. Amt this flower today belongs to the genus which botanists call dianthus.

The Greeks later seem to have given a specific name to the flower, and called it Caryophyllus, and there is something interesting in that name. Caryon is the Greek word for nut and phyllon for leaf. The Greeks called the clove tree caryophyllus and then they called this flower caryophyllus because in its perfume there was a suggestion of cloves. The Latins called it carnatio, or the flesh colored flower, and we keep that name today.

It is believed that the flower has been under cultivation for more than two thousand years. Some English Grecian, translating Theophrastus, made him say that "The Greeks cultivate roses, gillyflowers, violets, narcissi and iris." In the translation the Greek name was rendered as "gillyflower," because that is what old English gardeners used to call it.

WILL DISCUSS COUNTY AGENTS

EUREKA, Ill., July 16.—The part the county agent should take in building up of a permanent and profitable agriculture will be discussed at the annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in Chicago, November 30, it is announced by M. L. Mosher of this city, president of the association.

Relation of the county agent to the county farm bureau movement and qualifications for county agent work are other topics scheduled.

NEW LATITUDE FINDER DEVISED BY NAVY MAN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—With the transfer of Captain Robert Morris for the past two years assistant of the Twelfth Naval District, to a post at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., popularly known in the Navy as "the preparatory school for admirals," it became known that Captain Morris is the discoverer of the simplified method for finding the latitude of a ship. The discoverer, made famous by the controversy, that raged following the announcement of the method through observation of the star Polaris and now universally used at sea, remained unnamed until now.

It was while serving as navigator of the battleship Kansas that Captain Morris made the discovery, worked out and fully proved the system and then submitted it to the navy department.

At the time Captain Morris made his discovery it was universally condemned by astronomers and its advocacy by the navy department at Washington started a controversy that was bitterly waged between the "theoretical" and the "practical," and did not quiet down until it was supposedly ended by the substitution of Captain Morris' method for the astronomers method in the Nautical Almanac, the authoritative guide book universally followed by practical navigators.

Used on Seven Seas.

Today Captain Morris' method is employed by all shipmasters sailing on the seven seas of the world to find "where they are at," its merit being that it "saves time," estimated to total each day on all the ships at sea not less than five working years for one navigator.

Scarcely understandable to the landsman, Captain Morris' discovery differs in its vital departure from the now obsolete methods of the astronomer in this: It uses a table which is entered by using the local "sidereal time" instead of the "hour angle"—the latter being the astronomer's method—a quicker operation by many minutes and saving, it is estimated more than 748,800 minutes of work.

and enviable naval record. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1900 and has served actively in the navy in all parts of the world. He commanded three transports during the World War, notably the Siboney, which fought the German submarines to a standstill off the coast of France on two occasions.

Decorated for Valor.

For "exceptionally meritorious conduct" on those occasions he was awarded the United States Navy Cross and, by the President of France Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Captain Morris is famed in the navy as an all-around officer of engineering ability as well as a practical line officer. He was turret officer of the old U. S. S. California for two years after she was commissioned in 1907. He was executive officer of the naval training station in San Francisco, 1910-1911, and has letters of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy for excelling in engineering in 1914.

SEYMOUR HIGH SCHOOL AWARDED FEDERAL AID.

Special to the Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, July 16.—The Seymour high school has been awarded $750 state and federal aid to be applied as one-half the teacher's salary for a department of economics for the coming year. There are only 40 schools in the state to receive such assistance this year and Seymour is to be congratulated for the school facilities to meet the requirements this aid demands.

CONNECTICUT ABOLISHES BIGAMOUS MARRIAGES BY STOPPING UP THE LOOPHOLES IN HER LAWS

NEW HAVEN, July 16.—The Nutmeg State will no longer provide the spice of life—especially the life matrimonial—that variety is supposed to lend.

Connecticut has abolished the bigamous marriage which its statutes have heretofore declared to be no bigamy unless the contracting parties live together in the state.

Governor Lake has signed a bill amending the marriage and bigamy laws in his state, where so many dissatisfied husbands fled to take another partner, leaving their perfectly good wives at home.

Little was known of this legal loophole for marital monotony until Vice Chancellor Joseph Merrit Lane of New Jersey, took advantage of it—in September, 1919—to have two wives and yet escape imprisonment.

Since that time we have had the cases of the broker, Herbert Thornton Andrews of Jersey City, and the eloping church treasurer, Shubel K. Silver of New Brunswick.

Andrews the Bravest.

Of all these Andrews was bravest. He not only ran away from his first wife to marry a younger and more comely woman, but he brought the second wife, Esther Tatnal Andrews, back home to dwell in peace and unity with his first choice, Mrs. Maud Andrews.

Not until the neighbors began to take notice and complain about the plural matrimony of Andrews was any action taken.

After the publicity and criticism that followed wife No. 2 fled, Mrs. Maud Andrews held the citadel, and it was reported that a reconciliation had taken place.

But soon came the news that Esther and Herbert could never be parted and that after a divorce was procured they would marry again.

Alas for such plans! Andrews was threatened with arrest, not only for bigamy, but also on perjury charges. Andrews, of course, in applying in Connecticut for a license had said he was single at the time.

And all the while Mrs. Maud Andrews declared she tolerated conditions while wife No. 2 lived under her roof only for the sake of her children.

Merrit Lane had no such fears of prosecution. He was free from fear of a bigamy charge. He can not ever be charged with perjury for his bigamous marriage, because the facts in the case were sworn to by Grace Hercht, whom he married in this fashion, and not by him.

And when Grace Hercht swore he was single she believed it to be the truth, so she has said since.

Mrs. Hercht-Lane also swore that they never lived together in Connecticut or anywhere else after the marriage. But Prosecuting Attorney Kenealy of Stamford, now a state senator, was ready to draw up a bill amending the bigamy statute so as to make marriage of already married persons bigamy whether the contracting parties lived together afterward or not.

Meanwhile the chance for another try at marital happiness was not lost upon such anxious observers as Shubel K. Silver, church treasurer of New Brunswick, N. J., and Adelaide Gouin, waitress of Perth Amboy. Silver had a wife and several children. He is over forty. But he was strongly attracted to the young waitress, a girl of seventeen.

Funds are necessary even for bigamous marriages. Silver had little money of his own. But for the sake of the waitress he left home and family and robbed the cash box of his church to the sum of $6000 in liberty bonds.

With the liberty bonds in his pocket, Adele at his side, both bound together in bigamy, they sought fredom and happiness in the Maine woods.

Farce System at End.

Investigators caught up with them, however, and brought Silver and his bigamous bride back to civilization and court.

Silver is now in prison for an indeterminate sentence of from two to seven years. His wife has sued for divorce, naming No. 2 as co-respondent.

Lane is free, but is no longer vice chancellor of New Jersey and has suffered undoubtedly from the exposure of his private life.

Andrews is still at large, since the authorities in Connecticut thought it might be foolish to prosecute him under the prevailing statutes. And Mrs. Andrews No. 1 has threatened to divorce him.

How many more men or women have taken their troubles to Connecticut for solution is not known. Other cases may crop up later on. Many such marriages may have been effected which may not become known for a long time.

But now the loophole is closed, with the state's action in amending her laws. The bill signed includes the words, "Who shall live together" in the portion of the statute which bears upon residents of other states who married in Connecticut.

At last the farce of the lawfully bigamous marriage is ended. Connecticut, as one of the oldest states in the Union, will be freed of the reproach which such legal inconsistencies have brought to her.

QUAIL ABUNDANT IN BAYLOR COUNTY.

Special to the Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, July 16.—The 1921 quail crop in Baylor county promises to be the largest of the past ten years. The Bob White left this country in the dry years of 1916 and 1917 and it was predicted by some that there would never again be any large number of birds here. They are here now more numerous than ever and the weather during the brooding and hatching period has been most favorable for them. From reports this condition prevails in most West Texas counties this year.

MASTER MASONS TO HOLD MEET ON THURSDAY

Every master Mason in Northwest Texas is invited to attend meetings of Masonic bodies to be held on the afternoon and evening of next Thursday when Andrew L. Randell of Sherman, grand master of Masons of Texas, will attend and deliver addresses, it was announced Saturday afternoon by C. O. Fritz, recorder for the local commandery and active in all Masonic work.

A session to be held during the afternoon at 3 o'clock over which Grand Master Randell will preside will be devoted to business in which all Masons are vitally interested, according to the announcement.

Closer co-operation between the different Masonic bodies of this section of the state is said to be one of the aims for which the meeting was called by the grand master.

A banquet for all attending will be served at the close of the afternoon session in the Masonic temple. Following the banquet the body is scheduled to adjourn to the First Methodist Church, South, where the evening program will begin at 8 o'clock, with Past Grand Commander W. Lee Moore, presiding. Grand Commander Randell will be the principal speaker at the evening program and will be followed by C. R. Hartsook, Frank Collier, J. A. Kemp and others.

The regular meeting of the Wichita Falls Commandery, on that date is called to meet promptly at 7:00 o'clock, according to their announcement, in order to enable the members to conclude their business early and attend the program at the First Methodist church.

Never Even Said Good-By.

An airman had been taking up passengers for short trips, and by the time his last trip came was absolutely fed up by being asked silly questions.

He told his passengers, two ladies, that on no account were they to speak to him—that he could not talk and give his attention to his machine and that they must keep silent.

Up they went, and the airman quite enjoyed himself. He looped the loop and practiced all sort of stunts to his own satisfaction with no interruption from his passengers until he felt a touch on his arm.

"What is it?" he said, impatiently.

"I'm so sorry to trouble you," said a voice behind "and I know I oughtn't to speak I do apologize sincerely, but I can't help it. I thought perhaps you ought to know 'Annie's gone."—Los Angeles Times.

NEW RURAL ROUTE OUT OF CLARENDON.

CLARENDON, Texas, JJuly 16.—Clarendon is to have a new rural route, known as Route 2, commencing August 1. This route will go east and south of this city, will be 19 miles in length, and will serve about 70 families. Mail will be delivered Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. Benton Tatum will be the carrier.

Farmers of Northwest Texas Raising Sufficient Food for Own Use, Says Agriculturist

Farmers in this section of Texas and especially along the Fort Worth and Denver railroad are paying more attention to raising sufficient food for their needs, in addition to their wheat, cotton and other crops, according to M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the eDnver.

Figures show that out of 650 farmers in Childress county, one of the counties under his jurisdiction, all are raising hogs except 10, all have one or more cows and all have chickens. A large proportion of this number also raise sufficient gardens to take care of their individual needs.

This change in the attitude of the "one crop" farmer, Mr. Oates says, was brought about by the hard lesson of last year, when the cotton farmer found himself without money to buy groceries and without and produce to furnish food for himself and his family.

Much more interest is being taken in the work of the county farm agents than formerly, Mr. Oates says, and the farmers are working together better than ever before in the matter of cotton pools, variotis clubs and the special courses of instruction arranged by the agricultural agents.

Cotton Pool Successful.

Extraordinary results have been obtained by use of the "cotton pool" in Baylor county, a total of 791 bales having been sold at a price $6,124 higher than bid by local buyers at Seymour, Mr. Oates says. This "pool," which is managed by G. O. McGowan, county demonstration agent, has another quantity of cotton, 512 bales in all, which will be disposed of soon.

Other interesting figures compiled by Mr. Oates show that the boys of the farms along the Denver road are active in the boys farm clubs, in fact the membership in the boys clubs along the Denver totals 28 per cent of the membership of the entire state. There are 14,816 boys enrolled in the agricultural clubs in the state, 4,044 of whom live along the Fort Worth and Denver.

Consent of the authorities at A. & M. college has been secured by Mr. Oates to lend the services of F. W. Kazemeier, poultry expert, to hold classes of instruction for county agents on the subject of poultry "culling."

A great amount of money can be saved by intelligent culling of the poultry stocks by the farmers, Mr. Oates believes, and he expects to see good results come from the classes of instruction, throughout the district, which Mr. Kazemeier will hold. The classes will start about the last week of August.

RUSSO-ITALIAN TRADE TREATY IS UNDER WAY

ROME, July 16.—Italian and Russian economists are at present preparing a commercial treaty between the two countries on similar lines to that signed by England and Russia. The head of the Russian economic mission in Italy is M. Vorovsky. The Italian government is represented on the Italian mission, and Count Sforza, Italian foreign minister, has had many interviews with the Russian envoy.

Commercial relations between the two countries were re-established long ago, and goods have already been exchanged. The aim of the Russian mission is to get Italian capital interested in Russia.

Italy would also be asked to supply technical personnel, foremen and engineers, who would direct the work of Russian workmen. In exchange for this Italy would receive concessions on certain factories and land in Russia, as well as naphtha, benzol and coal from the Donetz mining district. Forests along the Black Sea would also be open to exploitation by Italy.

Russia's greatest need is transportation, and here Italy, according to M. Vorovsky, could be of little use to Russia. She has no locomotives or railroad materials to export. However, arrangements would be made whereby Italy, could supply automobiles and auto trucks, as well as barges and ships. The latter could be used on Russian canals and rivers, which, the bolsheviks claim, could be transformed so as to ease communications between the Baltic and the Black Sea. Italy would also be offered the exploitation of certain mines, although some of these have been idle for more than three years.

SHRINERS AT VERNON PLAN BIG BARBECUE

An old fashioned barbecue with all trimmings is announced as only one of the few features of the program planned by the Vernon Shrine club for a celebration on Labor day to which all shrine members and the patrol band, has been extended a cordial invitation.

At least 400 out of Iowa Shriners from Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Electra, Harrold and Oklahoma are expected to attend the celebration, according to early announcements of the arrangement committee.

A special train is being planned by Shriners from Wichita Falls and a few other towns.

L. S. Hawkins, high priest and prophet of Maskat Temple, and member of the Vernon Shrine club, will head the entertainment committee. The new Vernon country club will be headquarters for the entertainment, which is expected to last all day and far into the night.

W. J. Webb, secretary of Masonic bodies of Wichita Falls, was scheduled to return to Wichita Falls Saturday night from Waco, where he has been taking work in the special classes being conducted by the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

HARVESTER COMPANY CUTS MACHINERY PRICE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The International Harvester company today announced a further price reduction, effective immediately on all sizes of tractors, the second cut on tractors this year. The latest reduction is $100 each on the smaller tractors and $200 on the largest.

YOUR FUTURE AND OUR FUTURE

YOU often say of a man, "The more I know him, the better I like him." Of course as you come to know him better you learn his faults and failings as well as his virtues and achievements; you discover his little human weaknesses and his splendid manly qualities; but you get to UNDERSTAND him—and you like him. You figure that, after all, he's a whole lot like yourself, with about the same up hill and down dale to go in life, and you know that he needs your friendship and that you want his.

Well, it's the same way with a business—especially a business that has direct dealings with you. An electric light company is not a piece of machinery, it's a human aggregation, with just as keen and fine an aspiration to get on in the world as any individual. It has to work for its living the same as anybody. It has to earn the money with which to pay its bills and maintain its credit, and make enough so it can "save up a penny for the rainy day." It has to plan for its FUTURE the same as anyone else. It has the same problems as the rest of us to face, only, perhaps, on a larger scale. Every red blooded company, like every red blooded man, wants to stand four-square with the world.

It is FRIENDSHIP and GOOD WILL that counts in the business world today. The Wichita Falls Electric Company wants YOUR friendship. We believe that our future and your future are identical. The continued growth and prosperity of the Wichita Falls Electric Company and the community which it serves are interdependent. We want you to know us better and we believe that when you do, when you comprehend some of our problems, when you consider some of our achievements, when you realize some of the splendid possibilities before us, you will be as enthusiastic as we are about our mutual future. Let it be a bright one.

PRESIDENT HARDING BURNS BRIDGES BEHIND HIM.

President Harding elected as a protectionist and erstwhile a champion of tariffs for all American products has declared against a tariff on oil importations. President Harding has an excuse for his most remarkable attitude. He says the government has from time to time urged its nationals to develop more oil in the fields of the world and that a tariff on importation would be a reversal of the policy the government has adopted. While protesting against an oil tariff the president has let it be known that if one is enacted it ought to carry a bartering provision similar to that afforded in the case of the lumber industry by the makers of the Fordney bill. This, the story goes, would enable Secretary Hughes to negotiate for a removal of the export oil tariff of Mexico, which has aroused bitter opposition of the American petroleum Titans who are opposed to the American congress placing a tariff on oil importations. There is no American oil exported. Why should the administration attempt a repeal of the Mexican export tax by an implied agreement to waive an import tax. It is the contention of the American producers and exporters of Mexican oil that an export duty of 35 cents per barrel will result in driving many of the large companies to do more wild catting in Texas. They contend that the Obregon export tax will practically exclude Mexican oil from the United States. May shipments of oil from Mexico to the United States were the smallest of any month this year, being about fourteen million barrels. Now it is reported that the Dutch Shell Company is about to begin more extensive operations in the Texas wildcat territory. It is said to hold extensive leases in Texas, under the name of the Roxana Oil Company. H. W. Deterding is the controlling spirit of the Dutch Shell Company. He is said to have held a conference in New York a month ago with Texas oil men and that in the near future the amalgamation of a large number of smaller Texas companies into the Royal Dutch Shell is more than a possibility. Deterding is a Hollander, and the Rockefeller among the oil men of the old world. It has been claimed time and time again that the Royal Dutch Shell is controlled by English interests. Its king director and dictator insists that the main stockholders of the Royal Shell are Dutch; that its officers are Dutch; and that it is a Dutch concern. Moreover, it is regarded as the largest and strongest competitor of the Standard Oil organization the world over. Nationals are barred from Dutch possessions in the Far East. It is a matter of fact as well as a matter of history that the Dutch government and Dutch interests do not take kindly to the exploitations of oil fields in their possessions by the nationalists of other countries. Independent oil producers of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana are battling against terrible odds in this tariff war now on in the city of Washington. Arrayed against them is the president, gigantic petroleum interests, men of millions or billions who are the chief producers of Mexican oil and the interlocking interests which are all powerful in the United States. If protection is good for the manufacturer why isn't it good for the producer? If the products of foreign mills made by the cheapest of labor under foreign skies, are to be shut out, why shouldn't the raw materials or raw wealth of Mexico and South America be shut out? There is a remarkable condition of things uppermost in this tariff fight. New England shoe manufacturers demand free hides and a tariff on foreign leather and shoes. American oil kings demand free Mexican crude and fuel oil. Like their New England brothers they are republicans. Now where does the protection come in for the independents who are playing the game under American skies? In the making of a tariff does it depend on whose ox is being gored?—the big or the little ox?

CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT.

Chief Justice William Howard Taft is a fitting successor to the late Chief Justice Edward Douglas White. From the organization of the supreme court by the fathers of the republic to the present era of the government the nation never had a more rugged, a more intellectual, a more liberty-loving, a more democratic or a more fearless chief justice than the distinguished son of Louisiana who passed on to his reward not many days ago. He had been a Confederate soldier, he had been a democratic United States senator, he had been an associate justice of the supreme court before William Howard Taft, then president of the United States elected to that high office by the republican party went beyond political lines in his selection of an ideal successor to Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller. Now President Harding has made an appointment as ideal in every way as that which was made by the president who named Edward Douglas White to the highest position in the gift of the chief executive of this republic. Chief Justice Taft has been in the public life of his country more than a third of a century. He has adorned every position to which he was ever elected or appointed. He is an ideal American and his poise and his patriotism, his wide sympathies and his broad tolerance have won for him the love as well as the confidence of his countrymen regardless of political affiliations. He is the only man in American history who has ever been president of the United States and chief justice of the supreme court of the United States—each in itself the most exalted position that the mind of man can conceive or that the votes of his fellows or the appointive power may create.

PRESIDENT OBREGON A STANDPATTER.

President Obregon will not modify the Mexican oil tariff. He has declared himself that the oil tax will not be decreased because Mexico must take advantage of the wild exploitations that have been made of her riches. Mexico has a foreign debt of $500,000,000. President Obregon and his financial advisers insist it is very desirous that this debt shall be liquidated. Export tax on the riches of Mexico will help some. Development of the resources of the country will help. Recognition of Mexico by the United States will help. There are only 15,000,000 Mexicans; 10,000,000 are friendless peons, landless and illiterate. Why shouldn't they be given a helping hand? Isn't some of the natural wealth or resources of Mexico the heritage of the people? If not, why prate of a Christianized civilization and equal and exact justice for all alike?

SPEAKING OF CLEVER STAMP WORK.

I have no doubt the president is coming down here to apply the party whip to you men. You will go back to the soldiers and tell them you changed your mind about the bonus because the president asked you to—Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. Well, what could the president do? Secretary Mellon had informed him that it would be impossible to produce from $1,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 additional revenue without bankrupting the industries and institutions of the country. Then the presidential bludgeon fell and the senators became amenable to reason. Now, when the former service men get busy the politician who holds office and who will seek re-election will find himself between the devil and the deep blue sea—the White House and the Salt River.

A new Eldorado of placer gold has been found in Mexico. The territory includes several thousand square miles. There is no doubt of it. An army of occupation should be sent to Mexico. There are rich pickings in Mexico and the Mexicans don't need the pickings.

Senator Penrose says that the bonus bill will be sent to his committee and that it cannot be taken care of until "we" have disposed of tariff and tax legislation. Is it to be a funeral or a place on ice in the morgue?

CATTLEMEN AND THE BANKERS POOL.

Secretary Mellon has made the announcement that the $50,000,000 bankers pool formed to handle live-stock loans began to function on July 11. Management of the pool is under the direction of M. L. McClure, who offices in the Continental and Commercial National Bank building, Chicago, and to whom all inquiries should be directed, according to the secretary of the treasury. It is interesting to note that Secretary Mellon says, "the differences have been satisfactorily adjusted," that many applications for loans have been made and these applications will be acted on before the week is ended. Further more he says the committee expects to make advancs aggregating $17,000,000 the first week. "Lest we forget," representatives of the eastern banks, when the government was about to loan the money, guaranteed to provide $25,000,000 for the pool, providing western bankers would match this sum, dollar for dollar. Eric P. Swenson is chairman of the committee representing the eastern bankers and the western committee which has its headquarters in Chicago is composed of M. A. Trayler, J. R. Washburn, S. T. Kiddo, John Fletcher and M. L. McClure, director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Eric P. Swenson is the chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York and the members of the western committee are prominent bankers of Chicago. Cattlemen may be interested in knowing that direct placing of the loans will be through "wellknown cattle loan companies, intimate with local conditions and through local banks. Notes received under the loan will have a maturity of six months, with the privilege of renewal where necessary, up to a total of thirty months. First consideration will in all cases be given to the breeding herds." The foregoing statement is taken from the July bulletin issued by the National City Bank of New York. Another excerpt from the same bulletin may interest those who are in need of loans, "the rate of interest will be as low as is consistent with current conditions in the money market. It may be definitely stated that no brokerage commissions in connection with placing the loans will be permitted. It is held by the bankers instrumental in providing the credit that the chief purpose of the loan is service—to provide greatly needed aid to those who are confronted with a very menacing problem. And brokerage commission, therefore, would be entirely out of keeping with the spirit in which the money has been so promptly provided." Neither the federal reserve bank or the war finance corporation control the $50,000,000 to be loaned. Congress was in the mood to appropriate the $50,000,000 the loans to be made or handled by the war finance corporation. Then the house of Morgan interposed and sprung the real plan. Of course cattlemen as well as many southwestern bankers are certain to be grievously disappointed. They had hoped for direct financial relief from the government. Now the money must come via another route. If it saves the day for the cattlemen, all well and good. If it heaps additional burdens upon a depressed industry and tightens the coils about those who are battling desperately to save it from extinction it will furnish material for another story and will be an issue uppermost in the political campaigns to come. Frank Kell pointed out the road which should be taken. William N. Waddell, speaking for the cowmen of Texas, resented the action of the government in sidestepping when the suggestion came from the house of Morgan that private interests should form a pool and make the loans and that the government should keep its hands off.

WHEN POLITICIANS FALL OUT.

Governor Len Small of Illinois is having a monkey and a parrot time with his fellow republicans of the Abraham Lincoln state. He is preparing to strike at "the schemes and slanders of the character assassins who demanded a grand jury investigation of his accounts while he served the state as state treasurer." Governor Small is a protege of Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson of Chicago. He is a well seasoned and resourceful politician and he knows how to get back at his critics. He has called a special session of the Illinois legislature to enact drastic tax collection laws and a law-giving local option on transportation. His republican critics say that Mayor Thompson and the governor have a personal machine in the city of Chicago which permits the operation of 4,000 saloons, regardless of Federal Judge Landis and the Volstead law enforcement officials. There is going to be a political blow up in the grand old state of Illinois in 1922. And the people of Illinois have one coming.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

GETTING ALONG.

The other day we read
A remark that had been made
By a lecturer to the effect
That to live comfortably
These days and enjoy
The ordinary advantages
A man had to have
At least a million dollars.
This worried us some
For we have not quite
That amount and we decided
To look into the matter
And do a little
Expert accounting and so
We spent several days
At it and sized the thing up
From every angle,
Carefully computing expenses
And figuring on the present
Value of the plunk.
We found the professor
Was mistaken in his remark.
To live comfortably and Offer his family the Usual advantages, a man
Doesn't need a million.
By strict economy he can Manage to wiggle along
In quite a degree of comfort
If he has $999,999.90.

Fortunate will be the chorus girls who secure engagements to play in the new Earl Carroll theater, New York city. They will enjoy every convenience and luxury that is known to the stars, but most important of all, they will have dressing rooms that are but one short flight above the stage.

In the past, chorus girls have had their dressing rooms on the third, fourth and fifth floors, despite the fact that they must run up and down steps as many as fifteen times during a performance.

They dress the oftenest and endure the most physical strain. Yet the Earl Carroll theater will be the first to take their comfort into consideration.

THE SWIFT RETORT.

A gentleman we know,
Whose wife is away
For the summer,
Wrote her a letter and Started it: "My Treasure,"
And closed it:
"I send you my love."
And she wrote back
By return mail:
"My Treasurer:
Please send check."

NEWS OF OUR VILLAGE

A good many from out of town are here to enjoy the heat.

There were only three parades on the average today. It was a dull day for parades.

A strange thing happened the other day. An actress sailing for Europe stood up while the photographers snapped her and did not sit down with her knees crossed. Maybe she ain't an actress at all.

Who's Who

DONALD B. MACMILLAN

Donald B. MacMillan will soon be on his way to explore Baffin Land, the vast Arctic island southwest of Greenland. He will take with him a crew of six men. They expect to reach Baffin Land August 15, and return to the United States late in 1922.

MacMillan is the son of a Cape Cod sea captain. He was born in Provincetown, November, 1847, and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1898. After postgraduate work at Harvard in 1910-12 he took up teaching and became a public school principal. He made his debut as an explorer in the Cabot Labrador expedition of 1910, and three years later became the leader of the Crocker Land expedition. During 1911-12 he made ethological studies of the Eskimos in Labrador. In the mean time he served as chief lieutenant to Peary in the latter's successful dash to the North Pole in 1909. Altogether he has made eight voyages into the Arctic regions.

Breakfast Stories

The girl reporter accepted the editor's invitation to dinner and when asked how she enjoyed it said: "Oh, fine, but I'll never go to dinner with an editor again."

"Why not?"

"Well, the dinner was fine, but he blue-pencilled about three-quarters of my order."

"I was at the big general stores in Market street the other day," said Slimfingered Joe, "when the whole electric light apparatus went wrong and all the different departments were as black as pitch."

"My word, what a bit of luck!" chuckled his friend. "What did you get?"

"My beastly luck again. It's always dogging me. I was in the grand piano department."

A traveling salesman found himself in a village hotel dining room when a heavy downpour of rain set in.

"Dearie," he said, addressing the waitress, "it looks like the Flood."

"Like what?" the girl inquired.

"Like the Flood. You have read of the Flood and how the Ark landed on Mount Ararat, haven't you?"

"No, sir," admitted the waitress, "I haven't seen a newspaper for three days."

SPIRITUALIST LEADER CLAIMS EVERY MODERN FAMILY WILL COMMUNICATE WITH SPIRITS

NEW YORK, July 16—On one of the hottest days of the year, in a red-and-gold ballroom, one hundred men and women gather together to discuss the future life, the disembodied spirits and the possibility of communication with them.

The twenty-fifth convention of the General Assembly of Spiritualists is in session at the Waldorf. These earnest people sit attentively while their leader speaks of the past, of their religion, of the social and business ostracism once attendant upon it and of the freedom from persecution which prevails today.

Predicts Family Mediums

Soon, he avers, nearly everyone will believe in communication with the dead, and in every family someone will serve as medium for the group.

This pronouncement causes no surprise to the members of the convention, although it is rather startling news for outsiders. But the president of the gathering, J. F. Steckenreiter, goes on to tell of the heavy price believers once paid for their faith, since any spiritualist was considered at once time a legitimate object to persecute. He emphasizes the difference between the fortune teller and the medium, a distinction not always conceded.

Various pastors of Spiritualist churches tell of the headway made during the year both financially and socially. Young people's societies are formed, mortgages on churches paid off, clubs chartered and guilds maintained.

It is surprising to learn, when they arise to speak, that various women in organdies and silks are ministers of this particular gospel. Several colored women, good speakers, tell of success among their people and in their church group.

One of them, Mrs. Hetty Johnson—a New York minister—relates stories of her "child-guide Chatterbox," who aids and advises her. To one who does not entertain this belief it all is apt to seem trivial.

Noted Adherents of Faith

But at once names like those of the late W. T. Stead, the late William James and the living Conan Doyle come to mind.

General acceptance of spiritualism is delayed, the president of the meeting says. Yet few believe now that it is actual claptrap or a device of satan. Neither do intelligent ministers of other creeds denounce it from their pulpits, he declares.

Later on Mrs. Mable Marie Butler, of Binghamton, told me that there was a great difference between spiritualism and spiritism.

"Spiritualism is as different from spiritism as college is different from grammar school," she says.

"Our belief is wonderful, new and healthy. It is holy and wholesome. It is God's own love in a practical form.

"But the pearls of occult science are buried deep in the earth. It takes time to bring them completely to light. That means we all must work hard."

Young and comely, she had attracted more than one glance by the intensity of the fervor which shone from her pleasant face during the speeches of other members.

Flowers and Spirits Connected

Mrs. Hetty Johnson tells of the connection between flowers and the spirits. At her Sunday seances each visitor holds a flower, which makes it easier to get a message.

"With God's flower in my hand," she says, "I can always get a better message.

"That is like holding God in my hand. And we can better realize that there is a paradise waiting for us beyond the grave."

Across the tired face of a simple laboring man hope flashes at these words. Yet, at some rather extreme ideas which are offered now and then a few of the audience smile slightly, as though fellow members had not reached such a high plane of understanding as they themselves. One raises a lorgnette and smiles superciliously.

But there is a camaraderie between the old and young, between the more intelligent and the less intelligent, between the well-to-do and the poor.

TO SAIL FOR SOUTH SEA IN 34 FOOT YAWL

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—Harry Pidgeon, who, single-handed, sailed his little thirty-four-foot yawl Islander from Los Angeles Harbor to Honolulu and back last summer, is again consumed with the Pacific ocean wanderlust and is reported, to be outfitting for a longer cruise. He will leave shortly for the South Sea Islands in the Islander, heading for the Marquesas, some 2,000 miles southwest of the local port.

The mariner, who is fifty-six years old, had his first taste of cruising on the Mississippi river in 190', when he drifted down that stream in a flat-bottomed craft from Minneapolis to below New Orleans. On this boat he had no sails, just a pair of big sweeps with which he prevented the craft from being swept ashore by the current on the way downstream.

Later he went to Alaska, where he prospected for a number of years, having his first taste of the ocean aboard vessels runing between Puget Sound and Alaska.

He has "read up" on the Marquesa Islands and believes he will find them most interesting. If all goes well he may continue his voyage to other islands in the South Pacific.

PRINCE OF WALES PROVES WIT AT DEGREE CEREMONY

CARDIFF, Wales, July 16.—A vast audience representative of every phase o fthe national life of Wales was roused to the highest pitch of Celtic enthusiasm when the Prince of Wales, following his installation as Chancellor of the University of Wales recently, conferred degrees on a number of distinguished men and greeted them in Welsh. It was something of an ordeal for the Prince to employ the Welsh formula, but he came through with flying colors and his pronunciation was unanimously declared to be excellent.

Perhaps the most interesting incident of the proceedings was afforded by the conferring on Mr. Balfour of the degree of doctor in literis, for this, as the prince reminded the audience, enabled him to a certain extent to repay a debt incurred only a week ago at Cambridge, where the positions were reversed.

"There," said the prince, "Mr. Balfour, as Chancellor, gave me an honorary degree and addressed me at some length in Latin, a tongue with which I regret to say I am not familiar as I should be. So it is a special pleasure for me to find myself in a position to repay the compliment, both as regards the degree itself and the formula of its presentation, for though I dare not compare my pronunciation of Welsh with his faultless and scholarly Latin, I cannot help thinking that he understood considerably less of my few remarks than I did of what he said to me at Cambridge."

BUDGET TO BE STARTED IN COUNTY

The budget system as the official method of handling county expenditures by the year will be worked out at once according to information Saturday from Pat Murphy, county auditor.

Mr. Murphy returned Saturday morning from Houston where he has been studying the methods used in Harris county said to be one of the most successful plans to handle the expenditure of funds that has ever been used in any county in the state.

According to Mr. Murphy counties throughout the state are beginning to realize the need of a more systematic method of handling expenditures and the apparent success of the Harris county plan is causing many county officials to look with favor on the budget system.

The state law at present require the county auditor before the beginning of fiscal year to prepare a report on probable income and needed expenditures from which the commissioner court is required to formulate a budget for the year. According to Mr. Murphy it is planned to start the budget system along the lines of the Harris county system and beginning another year to put the plan in active operation if approved by the commissioner's court.

"I am absolutely sold on the budget system as an efficient and economical method of handling county funds," declared Mr. Murphy Saturday. "The Harris county method is far more elaborate than what we need here but some of their methods can be incorporated in a system for this county which will serve at least to do away with a large amount of wasteful expenditures."

WILL FIX TAX RATE MONDAY

The tax rate for the county will be decided upon at the regular meeting of the county commissioner's court Monday according to information from J. P. Jones, county judge, Saturday.

Although the tax assessor has as yet not completed the work of his office it is expected that he will furnish the commissioner's court an estimate as to the total tax values of the county from which a tax rate can be determined.

According to statements from three members of the court it is not expected that the tax rate for the county will exceed the rate of 80 cents of last year in spite of the lower assessments. An estimate as low as 75 cents was made Saturday by Pat Murphy, county auditor.

County Tax Assessor Deaton now places total tax assessments for the county at a minimum figure of $72,000,000 with a probability that final figures will show a substantial increase over the estimate.

According to county officials the state tax rate for the coming year will probably exceed that of last year. It is not expected that the state rate will be known before the coming month.

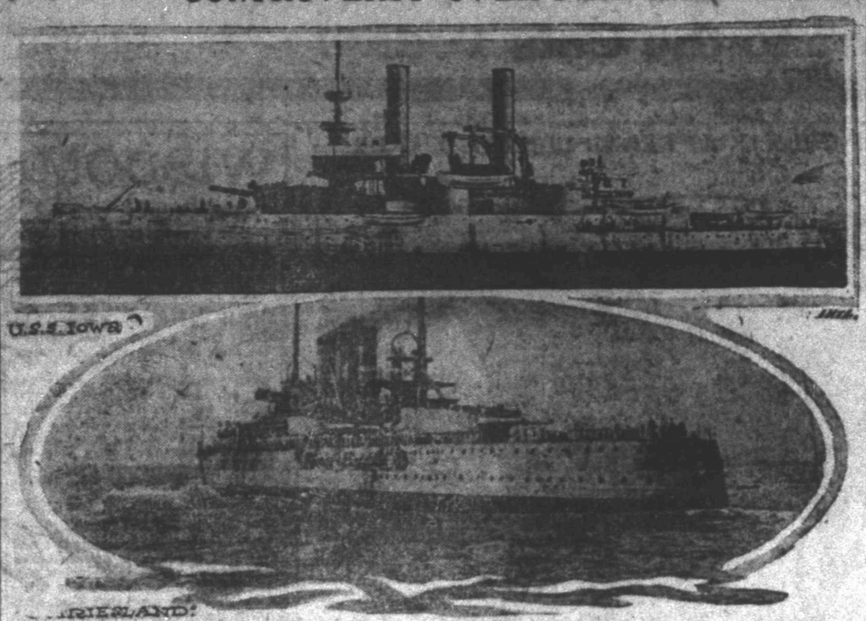

SEES THIRSTY SNAKES

VININGS, Ga., July 16.—"Wow! Wait till I kill this big snake," yelled W. B. Kinney, third trick block telegrapher of the W. & A. railroad, at the dispatcher's telephone as he was reporting a train. His eyes registered horror as a four-foot rattlesnake came writhing through the door into the office. Kinney bombarded the reptile with about everything movable in reach, finally smashing the snake's head. Long continued drouth has emboldened snakes, who are desperate in their hunt for water.

THIEVES TAKE VALUABLE PAINTINGS FROM CHURCH

NAPLES, July 16.—Six masterpieces of Italian painting were recently stolen from the Church of Jesus and Mary. They included works of Bernardino Siciliani, Paul Di Maio and Sannino. The thieves entered the church at night and opened four heavy barred and bolted doors before reaching the canvasses. Police were put on the trail of the pictures which were found but the thieves left no trace.

NAVY PLANS NEWER METHODS OF DEFENSE DESPITE TALK OF DISARMAMENT AND CONTROVERSY OVER PLANE AND SHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The ex-battleship Iowa will be used as a moving target for the guns of the Atlantic Fleet in manoeuvers off the Virginia Capes during the joint Army and Navy aerial bombing tests scheduled for July 20. The Iowa will be attacked also by the guns of the Atlantic Fleet. The ex-German battleship Ostfriesland will serve as a target also in the joint tests. Should aircraft bombs fail to sink her, she will be used as a target for the guns of the fleet. Terms of the treaty require that the Ostfriesland be destroyed by August 9, 1921.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—With the nation talking disarmament and the controversy as to the value of the aeroplane against the battleship still raging, in high naval circles here plans are being made for new methods of naval defense.

The bombing tests which the Navy has made off the Virginia Capes and which are still in progress have developed a very well defined sentiment among naval men that the navy's strategy must be changed. This is irrespective of their conclusions as to the value of the aeroplane in naval warfare. It is generally admitted that whatever opinion may be held of the aeroplane, it is a weapon which will be used in naval warfare in the future and a defense must be provided against it.

Whenever it becomes necessary to increase the strength of the navy against new weapons the first thought is of added armor. There are those who have already advanced the theory that battleships may be more completely armored against air attacks, but this theory does not find great favor among the thinking naval officers, for they are of the opinion that the modern battleship is carrying about all of the armor that she is capable of wearing and still maintaining speed necessary for battle.

Aerial Warfare In Infancy.

The submarine is probably the only vessel which is capable of adding a defense against the aeroplane by additional armor. Plans have been submitted for a heavily armored submersible, which might be considered as defended against the aeroplane, but these plans are not endorsed by the naval experts, and there is considerable controversy as to the practicability of a heavily-armored submarine.

There are many changes in construction of the new battleships which will lessen the visibility of the vessels from the air and there may be some slight additional armor added, but it is generally believed that the modern navy must be defended from the air in some other manner than by the addition of armor.

While naval officers as yet are unwilling to admit that an aeroplane could sink a modern battleship under battle conditions, they do admit that the aerial warfare is still in its infancy. No one should believe that the navy is sitting tight and laughing at the aeroplane. The navy does not do things that way. While the navy discredits the statements of airservice enthusiasts that the aeroplane will displace the battleship, the navy silently makes preparations to defend itself against this new weapon which they now believe to be a weak weapon, but which they admit may become a most potent factor in future naval warfare.

"CLUMSY" IS CAUSE OF SUIT

"Clumsy," a white Shepherd dog, is the cause of a $1000 damage suit filed Saturday in the County Court at Law.

In a several page petition filled with legal terms which ordinarily have no connection with members of the canine family a rather lengthy history of Clumsy is given.

O. A. Harmier and Shannon Layne, constable at Burkburnett are defendants in the suit filed by T. G. Childress, also a resident of that city. According to the petition the trouble started last January when Harmier got out sequestration papers against Childress, claiming ownership of the dog then held by Childress. Later Childress, according to petition, replevied to obtain the dog but before Clumsy was returned to him Harmier obtained the dog by a writ of attachment.

The petition claims that the action was unlawful and asks for $43.20 actual damages with the remainder of the $1000 claimed as exemplary damages.

The Pessimist's View.

"Wouldn't it be fine if we could live our lives over?" said the optimist.

"What good would it do us?" sneered the pessimist. "It would merely enable us to make our mistakes easier."

BILLIONAIRE OF BERLIN UNABLE TO BUY HOME

BERLIN, July 16.—Billionaire, banker, coal king, ship owner, Hugo Stinnes, the richest man in Germany is unable to purchase a residence in Berlin. For the past year Stinnes has made his home, while in Berlin, in the Hotel Adlon. His suite cost him not quite a million marks a year.

The Berlin Wohnungsamt, as the department which issues permits for tenants to occupy lodgings is named, refuses to grant Stinnes the privileges of a Berlin residence because he maintains the old family homestead in Mueiheim on the Ruhr. Three times the Stinnes scouts have found suitable dwellings for the German Croesus. Three times Stinnes has asked the necessary approval of the "Wohnungsamt" and had some thousand-mark a month clerk refused his request. The last deal was for a beautiful mansion on the Belleviewstrasse, but the Wohnungsamt refused assent.

The Wohnungsamt is omnipotent in Germany. It is empowered to billet families of Russian emigrants in the finest mansions. A landlord can neither raise his rent nor evict a tenant without permission of this august office. Your own mother-in-law can't get permission to live with you if the Wohnungsmat refuses. You can't rent a house or apartment, even if both you and the landlord agree, if someone whose name is ahead of you on the Wohnungsmat list objects.

The Stinnes millions have so far been powerless before this socialistic institution. Although he owns the big Excelsior and exclusive Esplanade Hotels in Berlin, Stinnes prefers to remain in the Adlon, where he gets the same service as any other guest, until the Wohnungsamt is convinced that Germany's foremost business man needs a Berlin dwelling.

NEAR WEATHER PROPHETS HIT BY SCIENTIST

WASHINGTON.—The 15th day of July and the 15th day of December appear to be universally popular dates on which the goose bone, moon ring, star gazers and other would-be weather prophets give to the public their prophecies as to what the weather will be for the ensuing season.

A majority of these predictions are based upon old-time superstitions and have no foundation of fact. There is yet to be discovered a method by which a coming season may be foretold with accuracy. These self-styled prophets play upon the credulity of the people, and also upon the fact that there are a few signs which are indicative of early coming climatic conditions. These signs, however, are indicative only of conditions of from a few hours to a week at the most.

The United States possesses today one of the best weather bureau services in the world—a service that effects yearly a saving of many millions of dollars—a service that is as far as it is humanly possible to make it, accurate and a service that has played a most important part in the development of the country. It also has been the means of saving millions of dollars' worth of shipping to say nothing of the numerous lives that would have been lost if warnings of the bureau had not been heeded.

Just to what extent the old-fashioned superstitions possessed truth is a matter for a specialist to decide so the writer visited Prof. Charles Frederick Marvin, chief of the United States weather bureau.

"Numerous superstitions regarding the weather have been handed down from gereation to generation, but few of them have any scientific basis," he said. "Of course, it is true that there are signs that have been observed by scientists and others for years, which give a pointing finger as to what the weather of a few hours or day or so will be.

"There is nothing as yet discovered that will enable us to tell, with any degree of accuracy, what a coming season will bring. Goose bones do not connect up with weather sequences. The ring around the moon is due to the condition of the atmosphere in the sky and is an indication, but not a definite indication, of rain.

"All of us who are connected with the bureau would be happy if we could learn of some plan to forecast weather far in advance. Just think what it would mean to know how much coal would be needed for the vigors of winter!

Every year the ground hog superstition is a matter of general comment, but you cannot place any dependence upon that animal. Take his last appearance, for instance; he was out long before the time in which he is annually slated to appear, but he does not seem to have affected conditions very materially. We do not pretend to be long range forecasters. We indulge in cold scientific deductions, leaving nothing to luck. Our work is along conservative, safe and sound lines and we have endeavored to win the respect and confidence of the public.

"Returning for a moment to the long range forecasted, we find that his predictions are very general in character. He refuses to predict specifically. If, for instance, he harps on the subject of a wet moon he fails to specify whether it is a wet moon for the whole of the United States or only a limited section of the country. A man in Portland, Me., may look gravely up at the sky, sagely nod and state that the moon is a wet moon, but he fails to state that the weather may be wet in Portland and dry as a tinder box in the wheat fields of Kansas."

Touching upon the subject of rain making, Professor Marvin said:

"The so-called rain making is little short of charlatanism. It is a fake. It is impracticable. While it is true that in a few instances small clouds have appeared shortly after the work of the so-called rainmakers, we find by looking over our charts that rainfall was due in or near that locality a few hours or so after these self-styled sky wizards had performed their personal magic. A storm occurred recently down in the Gulf of Mexico. We have arrangements with numerous vessels plying these waters to keep us informed as to conditions and this in conjunction with our other observations, enabled us to send out a warning which resulted in numerous vessels scurrying from the danger zone. This warning saved hundreds of thousands of dollars to shipping.

"I do not think a pet corn, a goosebone, a sunflower plant or a herd of ground hogs with their combined services totaled would have been of as much benefit as our service was. It caused these vessels to shun the danger spot. At the present time we have an interchange of reports with Mexico and Canada. Columbia is also installing an up-to-date system."

The discipline of golf who declares that his clubs are sensitive a week or more before a storm either possesses the imagination of a Jules Verne or a candidate for the club whose members declare that they always go around the course in par, Professor Marvin said.

Prof. W. J. Humphreys, Jr. D., professor of meteorological physics of the United States weather bureau, probably has given more attention to weather proverbs and their justification than any other scientist in this country. In touching upon weather superstitions, he declared that some of the signs used to a greater or less extent are those which have been observed for many years and that they are viewed by old-timers with an understanding of their significance. He pointed out how fishermen weigh anchor and prepare for flight when to the unobserved there will be naught to indicate anything but fair weather; how the man of the woods will notice changes and comprehend the message of warning.

Among the proverbs he quoted are:

"A year of snow, a year of plenty." If the reader will but stop and think that if there is a continuous covering of snow he will realize it delays the bossoming of friut trees until after the probable season of killing frost, and it also prevents alternate thawing and freezing, so ruinous to wheat and other winter grains. Other proverbs among the many he has collected are the following:

"A late spring never deceives."

"January warm, the Lord have mercy."

"If you see grass in January, lock your grain in your granary."

"January blossoms, fill no man's cellar."

"January wet, no wine you get."

"January and February do fill or empty the granary."

"Despite the fact that there are some signs which are quite accurate, I am still of the opinion that humanity is best served by having a trained corps of men who work through scientific deductions." Professor Humphreys said.

No longer can we pin our faith to the old signs when we would know what the coming months might bring. Science has decreed otherwise.

NEW YORK TO CLAIM WORLD'S BIGGEST CHEESE

ALBANY, N. Y., July 16.—There have been all sorts of "big cheeses," but New York state intends shortly to have the biggest.

The largest single cheese ever manufactured is now being made at Lowville for exhibition at the State Fair September 12 to 17, in Syracuse. It will weigh twelve tons. Seven thousand five hundred cows will contribute 150,000 pounds of milk, while four barrels of salt are also required for the manufacture of the bigcheese. A bandage for the cheese will cost $100.

State officials, including Governor Nathan L. Miller and Berne A. Pyrke, newly appointed commissioner of farms and markets, and members of the Council of Farms and Markets and State Fair Commission are at Lowville watching the cheese being "poured."

PROTEST ROOSTER CLOCK

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio, July 16—Residents of one section of Martins Ferry are protesting against a "two o'clock rooster." The bird, a thoroughbred, begins crowing at 2 o'clock each morning, much to the disgust of the protestants. The owner says the bird is so progressive it goes on daylight saving time, and then some.

MARSHALL HURLS BRILLIANTLY, HOLDING PANTHERS TO TWO HITS, AND SPUDDERS WIN 3 TO 1

By C. F. CARTER

Backed by beautiful fielding, Rube Marshall hurled a brilliant game against the Fort Worth Panthers yesterday afternoon and beat them 3 to 1 in the second game of the series. The biggest Saturday crowd of the year, 2375 fans, including J. Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, and officials of the Fort Worth club, witnessed the finest game of baseball that has been played at Athletic Park this season.

Marshall held the Panthers, admittedly one of the finest ball clubs that ever trod a Texas league diamond, to two hits, a dinky Texas looper to right, and a triple by Possum Moore that also would have gone for merely a single if the ball had not taken an erratic hop on the Bermuda grass and broken past McElwee. Marshall had everything a good pitcher should have; a beautiful curve that nipped the corners, a wicked fast be" and a perfect change of pace. He walked only two men, struck out five, including Clarence Kraft, Moore and Dutch Hoffman, and he was as cool and collected as a big-city bootlegger with a police pull.

Behind Marshall the Spudders played sensationally. They may have booted some in other days, they may boot some again today, but yesterday each man on the Spudder club looked like big league timber. Buddy Tanner's work at short sparkled like the Hope diamond, the little fellow covering an acre of pasturage and handling seven chances in brilliant style. Twice Tex McDonald made lightning one-hand grabs that were nothing short of spectacular, while on the other side of the diamond Caddy Works and Danny Clark were running like a couple of well-oiled Seth Tohmas clocks—and the outfield, McElwee, Griggs and Bescher, grabbed everything that came their way.

Bob Uses His Bean.

Bob Bescher in particular was as prominent as a sore thumb and in the eighth inning with the tieing run for Fort Worth on third base pulled one of the brainiest bits of baseball the local fans have been privileged to see in a long, long time. Bob, judging the ball perfectly, refused to catch a long wallop from Haworth's bat, and let it fall foul by a scant two feet. Had Bescher caught the pill, as he easily might have done, Wachtel would have scored standing up after the catch. All we've got to say is we're darn glad, from a Spudder viewpoint, that the majors turned Bob loose because he couldn't throw, (which is rich) and the Southern association passed him up because he couldn't hit (which is richer.)

The Spudders got away to a two-run lead on Bill Whittaker in the opening frame. Bescher crossed the Panther infield with a bunt down the third base line that caught Haley flat-footed. Tanner singled through second, and Bob went to third, scoring when Tex McDonald singled to deep short. Danny Clark singled to left, and Buddy held up at third. Tex, thinking Tanner would attempt to score, over-ran second base on the play and was run down, Sears to Whittaker to Rigney. On an attempted squeeze play, Griggs missed the ball, and Tanner was nailed at the plate. Cecil then soaked a single to left that brought Clark home with the second tally. McElwee was thrown out by Hoffman.

Rube Pours It On 'Em.

Then for four innings Rube Marshall mowed the Panthers down mercilessly. Not a hit was registered, and the only Panther to reach first base got there on four wide ones—and then a little break in the luck gave the Cats their only tally in the fifth canto.

Haley opened it with a Texas leaguer to right, and went to second while McDonald was throwing out Rigney. Possum Moore died at first, Tanner to Works, and Haley moved on up to third, scoring a minute later on a passed ball. Rube became irritated, by heck and promptly struck out Bill Whittaker.

Meantime, Whittaker, having weathered the storm of the first inning, had settled into the collar and was pitching a masterful game himself. An occasional lonely single was the best the Spudders could glean from Bill's shoots, while the Panthers for their part couldn't pull a hit out of Reuben with a vacuum cleaner.

The Panthers threatened in the eighth, but brilliant defensive work choked 'em off. Rigney flied out to Bob Bescher, and then Possum Moore cracked one over Danny Clark's head for what should have been a single. McElwee was all set for the ball, but it took an erratic bounce went past him six feet to the left—and Possum kept on moving. McElwee raced after the pill, grabbed it, turned and pegged to Clark. Danny cut the ball loose to Tex at third, and on a mighty close decision Umpire Daley called the big Fort Worth catcher safe.

Moore was hurt slightly, and Atz sent Wachtel in to run for him, at the same time sending Homer Haworth to bat for Whittaker. Haworth whipped a long one to Bescher. Bob went back after the ball, got under it, took one look at the falling sphere, another at the foul line, dropped his hands—and let the ball fall in foul territory. It was a great play on Bob's part, as Wachtel would have scored easily after the catch.

Haworth found another one to his liking and shot it also to left, a fair hit ball. Bob came in, caught it, turned it loose and with a beautiful peg nailed Wachtel at the plate by four feet. Boy, howdy, there was baseball in that inning!

In the eighth the Spudders made their third run, when Clark singled to right after two were gone. He stole second and scored when Griggs dropped a Texas leaguer in right that Hoffman and Phelan let fall between them.

Rube Marshall hurled a wonderful game, and the team played wonderful ball. Let's all go out this afternoon and help 'em make it three straight.

PRESS BOX PATTER

J. Doak Roberts, the well known Ban Johnson of thishyear league, grabbed himself an eyeful of real baseball. Bill Stripling, president of the Fort Worth club; Paul La Grave, secretary, and Pop Boone, sporting editor of the Fort Worth Record, also just had to hop a rattler and arrive in time to take in the glorious battle. There is keen excitement in various sections of Texas whenever the Cats and Spudders hook up, we'll say.

Kane kept tossing soiled apples to Daley to hold for later examination—but it didn't seem to bother Rube; he merely grabbed the next new ball given to him, and kept on pitching the same sweet brand.

Buddy Tanner was all over the infield, put up a beautiful game at short and also grabbed himself a couple of hits. A lot of fans who are ignorant of the true situation have been unjustly riding Buddy of late, and yelling for Gross to play the hole between second and third. Salm pulled Gross out of the line up and sent Buddy back in for a very good reason; said reason being that Danny landed in a woeful slump on the road, his fielding and pegging being wretched and his batting something to bring tears to the eyes. He'll come out of it, of course, for the kid's a natural ball player—but Buddy belongs right there at shortstop at this writing, and don't you let anyone kid you into thinking otherwise. Yes, we saw Danny Gross playing a brilliant game right here at home a few weeks ago—and we also saw him when the slump hit him in the Fort Worth and Shreveport series on the road.

Tex McDonald pulled two of the greatest grabs a third sacker ever has shown at Athletic Park, one in the second on Haley, the other in the sixth on Coombs. And that old boy's throwing arm makes a ball look like a bullet.

Thought Possum Moore would never finish his turn at bat in the third. He fouled 'em, and fouled 'em, and fouled 'em, while Rube kept patiently sticking 'em up there. Finally, with the count 3 and 2, Rube stuck his fast ball over the outside corner, and Possum died a-swinging.

Caddy Works shows the old pepper out there at first. You can hear that voice of his until the last man's out: "Come on, there, Rube. Gotta get him, gotta get him; shake it up, gang; the old fight, the old pepper; gotta get him, gotta get him!"

Let's not permit our overwhelming desire to win this series and our memories of one hot-tempered act, cheapen our sportsmanship. And by that, fans, we mean let's give Clarence Kraft a square deal. We know what you're going to answer; you're going to call attention to the Miller-Kraft fracas of several weeks back. But many a ball player in the heat of a hard-fought game pulls something he is ashamed of later—and it doesn't add to our reputation as a city of good sports to be too bitter in the way we ride a ball player. Let's give the whole Fort Worth team a square deal—and then lick the everlastin' daylights out of 'em!

The Herald of Gospel Liberty, a religious paper published at Dayton, O., claims to be the oldest religious paper in the country, probably in the world, as it was established 113 years ago and has been printed regularly through all the years.

HERE'S HOW, RUBE

By "SHAKE"

"I got my fast one workin',
No more will I be shirkin'," Rube Marshall said to Kitch;
"I got it back, by golly,
I'm near as ripe as Holly,
Now watch me pitch."
Then Reuben poured it on 'em,
He showed 'em up, doggone 'em,
That sluggin' Fort Worth crew;
He fanned Big Boy and Possum.
He'd sorter double-crossed 'em
When the count was three and two.
'Way up flared Reuben's dander,
And that Southern loop right-hander
Just cut his fast one free;
Each Cat became a kitten,
And the ball in Kitchens' mitten
Was heard in Tennessee;
Then Rube again would grip it,
Wind up, and gently slip it,
A slow one o'er the center.
The batter'd strain his torso,
Yes, that, and even more so,
But, shucks, he couldn't dent 'er
Rube fanned them heavy stickers,
Them Fort Worth city slickers,
He stuck 'em 'neath the lid;
He poured the buckshot in 'em,
And did the Spudders skin 'em?
Hot dawg! I'll say they did!!

FURNISHES ONE OF THRILLS AT GRAND CIRCUIT OPENER

Lon McDonald driving Jeannette Rankin, winner of the Tavern "Steak" at North Randall.

Judging by the opening week at North Randall, the Grand Circuit is in for one of its most thrilling and prosperous years. The Randall card was replete with thrilling finishes, long-shot victories and surprises in general. But favorites had their inning, too. Jeannette Rankin, one of Lon McDonald's stable, was overwhelming favorite in her first race of the season, the Tavern "Steak" and came through in two straight heats in bandy style.

EVANS VICTOR IN WESTERN GOLF CLASSIC

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—R. E. Knepper of Sioux City, Iowa, champion, carried National Champion Chick Evans of Chicago to the thirty-fourth green today before Evans could annex his sixth title as western amateur golf champion, three up and two to play, at Westmoreland Country club. Evans did not have to extend himself, however, as the Iowan was overgolfed, having played all last week in the Iowa championship and had hard matches this week in the western.

Knepper was never up except once, losing the first hole 4-5 by getting in a pit. He squared the match by taking the second hole, 4-5, with a ten-foot putt and he held the champion even with pars for the next five holes. Then, on the short sixth, the Iowan won 3-5, and held the lead to the first turn only to lose it on the 10th where Evans scored a birdie three.

Evans won the twelfth and thirteenth, stopping for luncheon 2 up. This advantage was increased to 3 up at the 19th and the champion, by winning the 21st, the 22nd and the 23rd reached his maximum lead of six up. Evans dropped the 27th and 39th but became dormie five by winning the thirtieth with a birdie and halving the 31st. Then he prolonged the struggle by accidentally moving his ball on the 32nd green and getting into bunker trouble on the 33rd, dropping both holes to become dormie three. The champion, with a perfect four on the 34th ended the match, Knepper having to play out of a trap to halve the hole.

Evans played 21 holes in par, 4 in one under par and on nine he went above perfect figures while Knepper had three birdies, 22 pars and 10 above par.

The tie for low medal scores will be decided later, Knepper and Harrison Johnson of St. Paul sharing that honor in the qualifying round with 144 for 36 holes.

CARP'S FRIENDS SAY HE WILL TACKLE CHAMPION AGAIN

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Notwithstanding defeat by Jack Dempsey in Jersey City on July 2, Georges Carpentier, it is reported in boxing circles here, will seek a return match for the championship, believing that by adopting an open style of battle he may be able to win.

In a statement made at his training camp after the Jersey City macth, Carpentier said he would fight any man in the world excepting Dempsey but his closest friends now say that he has changed his mind. Georges disobeyed the orders of his advisers and forced the fight with the champion, and therein, it is claimed, is where he made his biggest mistake.

Should Georges again be matched with Dempsey and the bout held in New York state, where the boxing rules permit 15 rounds to a decision, he might win the championship by outpointing Dempsey. Carpentier's friends believe he is clever enough to box the champion and stay away for 15 rounds.

With the Pugs

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 16.—Eddie O'Hare, New York heavyweight and recent sparring partner of Champion Jack Dempsey, has been matched to meet Terry Keller in a 12-round bout here next Thursday night, it was announced today.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, July 16.—A bout with Harry Greb of Pittsburgh as one of the opponents, scheduled to be held here next Monday has been called off, it was announced today. Greb and Frank Moran were to have been the principals but after the latter was knocked out by Martin, the A. E. F. champion, recently, a substitute was sought. As none was found the promoters called off the macth.

TEXAS LEAGUE .400 HITTER IS NOW A DREAM

By WILLIAM RUGGLES.
Statistician, Texas League.

The dream of a .400 Texas League leader is dissipating as the topnotchers recede further from the mark they held so long so brilliantly. Clarence Kraft, still holding the top, is now batting .371, leading Hack Eibel by nine points through Wednesday's games. Whether the split season has revived players' interest in base blows or whether the old hot sun has improved batting eyes, league averages have improved noticeably, and on Wednesday night there were twenty-nine .300 hitters, including twenty-four day-to-day regulars as against twenty-five out July 3, or whom only twenty were regulars.

Jim Galloway has started a drive for the top of the last week, that may threaten Kraft and Eibel. Welcome re-entrants in the .300 class are DeMaggio, Fuller, Jackson, Hoffman and Bittle.

Flock of Pitchers.

A flock of pitchers are shown winning half or better of their games, the latest arrival being Buzz Whittaker, hero of last year's short series with Little Rock, who, after a bad spring, has finally attained the .500 mark again.

In winning percentage, Bugs Pate of the champions has wrested the lead from Hollingsworth of Wichita Falls, who is tied with Johns of Fort Worth in second place. Pate has won sixteen games. The titular leader is Jake May, who, after participation in several ragged affairs, is credited with three wins and no defeats.

Pate has appeared in the most games, twenty-nine, while Paul Wachtel leads in innings pitched, 196.

Hollingsworth leads in strike-outs, his 131 beating everything in sight. John Conloy, who occasionally reverts to pitching from shortstopping, has the lead in control, which of the winning pitchers. Joe Gleason of Shreveport is the wildest, sixty-eight passes.

Clarence Kraft, manfully assisted by his 23 home-runs, remains the leading run scorer, with 80 tallies. Arthur Ewoldt of Shreveport coming second with 67. Kraft also leads in base hits, 126, and in total bases, 242. Hack Eibel has 110 hits and 215 total bases. George Whiteman still leads in doubles, 34, with Eibel 25, his closest rival. Eibel has taken the lead from Kraft in triples with 13 to the Panther slugger's 12. Kraft still leads Eibel in home-runs 23 to 18. Stanabury of Houston are tied in sacrifice hits with 27, Haley of Fort Worth having 25. The injury to Chick Taylor enable ol' man George Jackson to grab the lead in base thefts, 22, and Bailey of Houston has tied Taylor's 20.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

The White Hope Battery.

Now, it's just like this. Once upon a time we figured in a gloomy mood we'd like to be an umpire in the Texas League, and have the whole baseball world of Texas sore at us morning, noon and night. And then we suffered from a second thought, two in the same day, and remarked mournfully:

"Aw, what's the use? Some day we'd call one wrong when 'Tiny' Goodbred was pitching and 'Possum' Moore catching, and we'd take a coupla squints at those two mountains of brawn and bone and we'd lose our nerve, and after that we wouldn't be good for anything—and Aw, what's the use?"

Ready For the Grave.

Well, well, the Associated Press states that a rumor is afloat that a St. Louis undertaker is trying to purchase the Browns. No wonder Walter couldn't put over that deal with the St. Louis club—you can't talk business with a man who's waiting for the undertaker.

"They crossed his arms
One sunny morn;
His death was due
To drinking corn."
—Electra Star.

Five Bucks a Quart.

Before he died,
The poor sick beggar
Warmly praised
The corn bootlegger:
"I'm dying, friends,
But that's all right;
It had a kick
AND THE PRICE WAS RIGHT."

Ain't It the Truth?

Students of the animal kingdom assert that the fox-tailed monkey of South America utters loud cries before sunrise and after sunset—in which respect, we hasten to add, the fox-tailed monkey bears a remarkable resemblance to the fans of Wichita Falls and Fort Worth whenever the Spudders and Cats become embroiled in a "crooshul serious."

Am I right—or Amarillo?

Aw. Call 'Em Right.

The sight of a Brooklyn, N. Y., girl has been restored after sixteen years of blindness. We print this just to bring hope to the heart of some poor blind umpires.

Too Much Mustard.

Oh, bring back the glorious days again
When the one-hit pitcher was right,
When a four-base knock made the grandstand rock
And the infield was stonewall tight.

In those balmy days the twirler who gave
Eight hits in the gosh-durn fray
Got the big razzoo from the bleacher crew
And was shipped to the bushes next day.

Today's he's a wonder who travels the route,
And the papers daily proclaim:
"Jones sure was in trim, only ten hits off him,
While the locals got twelve in one frame."

It must make Bugs Raymond turn o'er in his grave,
And bring grief to the soul of Ed Plank,
As they scan the cold truth of the record of Ruth,
That fence-bustin', home-runnin' Yank.

Oh, bring back those wonderful days again,
When a clean-hit single was sweet,
And the rare home-run was a SON-UVAGUN
That took us clear out of our seat!

HARVARD-YALE ATHLETES ARE IN TRAINING

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 16.—Harvard and Yale's combined track forces, which are to meet Cambridge and Oxford, of England, in an international meet, have started training for the important event. The Yale men have reported at New Haven and have transferred their quarters to the Preston House, Swampscott, and from there the campaign against the Britons will be developed.

The Elks will be taken to the Harvard Stadium four or five times a week, where they will train under the watchful eye of Coach Johnnie Mack. The remainder of their time will be spent at their seashore headquarters. The Harvard lads are expected to stay around town and join in the Stadium training, although there is a possibility that they, too, will be quartered out of the city. Practice will be held late in the afternoon to escape the heat.

Must Capture Mile to Win.

Three Crimson athletes are already on the job. Captain Dennie O'Connell will run the mile. The Harvard weight men—Captain-elect Jim Tolbert, in the shot-put, and Friske Brown, in the hammer-throw—also have begun working under Coach Eddie Farrell. Bill Bingham will be head coach of the Harvard team, as he was during the past season.

Ned Gourdin, the wonderful broad jumper and star sprinter, and George Krogness, all-around jumper and hurdler, are two Harvard contestants who have just returned from the National A. A. U. championships at Pasadena. Gourdin looks like a double winner—the hundred and broad jump—although Abrahams, of the English team, is a good man in both events. Krogness is entered in three events—the high hurdles, broad and high jumps.

The indications are that Tommy Campbell will confine his efforts to the half mile against the Britons. Siemans, of the Elis, then would be O'Connell's partner against Staillard, the wonderful Cambridge runner, and Milligan of Oxford.

If the Americans are to win it looks like they must capture the mile and hurdles to do so. In the past the mile has always been won by a Johnnie Bull, and the timbers of a Yank. It looks as if the Englishmen will run true to form this summer and, more than that, may win the hurdles for the first time, mainly because Trowbridge, the former Princeton star, is a "Rhodes" scholar at Oxford. He did 15 4-5 seconds to win the event in the dual meet with Cambridge this spring.

Yale is using three freshmen—Chapman in the 440; Hullman, in the hurdles, and Douglass in the two mile.

MANY EXPECTED AT SUNDAY MORNING PRAISE SERVICE

One of the largest gatherings of young people ever assembled in Wichita Falls is expected to attend a novel song service program announced for Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock at Bellevue park, according to the announcements of originators of the movement.

The program is to be under the supervision of all young people's societies of the city and is to be concluded in plenty of time for people attending to return to their homes for breakfast in time to reach Sunday school and other church services.

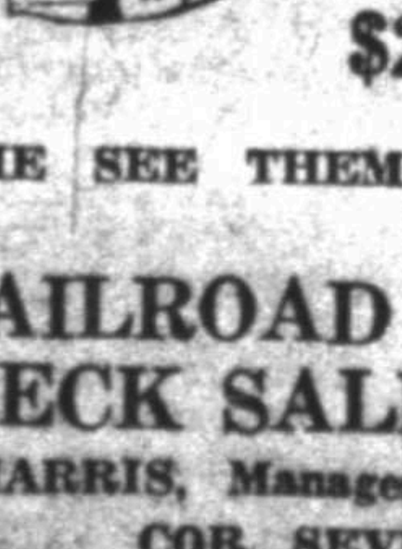

The program in full as announced is as follows:

General Theme: "Helping Others." Mr. Noles, leader.
Song service led by J. W. Akin, Jr.
Prayer.
Reading—Mrs. Broncushio.
"Helping Youn People"—Mr. Dooley.
Men's Quartet—Messrs. Hansen, Neal, Akin and Bullington.
"Social Service in Wichita Falls"—Mr. Parks.
Special music—Selected.
"A City Union For Wichita Falls"—H. Gordon Cross.
Closing exercises.

RICHARDS AND HAYES TO MEET FOR WEST NET CHAMPIONSHIP

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 16.—Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., by defeating John Hennessey of Indianapolis in the final round of the western tennis championship here this afternoon, won the right to play Walter T. Hayes of Chicago, western title holder, in the challenge round tomorrow. The score today was 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

ESCAPED THE "COOLER"

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 16.—Even burglars must keep cool.

One entered the home of T. H. Seelbinder and after taking a course of iced luncheon from a refrigerator heard members of the family entering. He grabbed a bathing suit and dived through a window. He is recovering in a hospital.

STATE GOLF MAGAZINE SAYS WICHITA GOLFERS "A KEEN LOT"

The growth and rapid development of golf in this city is receiving general publicity over the state, as a result of the splendid showing in the recent Texas championships made by Tommy Cochran, Dudley Golding and others. The July number of The Texas Golfer devotes a full page to a review of the game here, with a two-column photo of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club and the new 18-hole putting course in front of the clubhouse.

The article, which was written by Jay Renfro, associate editor of the magazine, who made a special trip to this city last month to gather his "dope," follows in full:

"The oil city is golf crazy. At any hour of the day a visit to the Wichita club will reveal any number of the bugs out batting the little white ball about the lot. And, by the way, they have sure got a keen lot.

"Although comparatively new, it is coming around in fine shape. At present temporary sand greens are being played, but not far from these grass greens are under construction and they should do well as they were begun right and are under proper care at all times. The course, upon completion, will measure up to championship requirements and Wichita Falls is likely to step in and take an active part in State golf activities.

"The number of players is rather small compared to the membership of the club, but those who do play are very enthusiastic and play practically all the time. Tommy Cochran, formerly of Austin but now a resident of the Oil City, ranks as the best in that section of the state. Tommy holds the course record with a 68, and this is likely to stand for a good while to come. Second to Cochran comes Dudley Golding, one new to the game but rapidly developing into a finished golfer. Golding qualified in the Second flight in Dallas and is expected to do better in coming tournaments.

"These two stand above the rest, but there are many who follow closely behind. Included in this group are T. P. Adams, W. E. Norton, A. R. Cotton and Judge Weldon. Just below this quartette comes a foursome which is just about as regular as the sun. Though not yet startling golfers all four are rapidly coming to the front. This four-some includes Lloyd Weaver, Scott Bower, M. Stanforth and Newton Maer.

"The club is provided with a nine-hole putting course in front of the club house and this is the favored spot at night. Many putting trophies have been donated and competition will start soon.

"Besides the County Club, Wichita boasts a Municipal course. The ground selected for this is the west part of what was the aviation field. There is a hill 35 feet high in the northwest corner of the course and from this one can obtain a fine view of Wichita and the surrounding country. The street car stop is only about half a mile away and there is a hard surfaced road from the city so the course can be reached in any kind of weather. A polo field adjoins the plot of ground selected for the course and this has been set aside for practice. The first nine is rather short and flat and tends to encourage the beginning rather than penalize, while the second nine requires better golf.

"E. H. Staley, a golf enthusiast who came to Wichita from Kansas City, realizing the field for the man who could not afford the club, took up this and now has the course ready for play and besides bringing credit to the town, deserves much credit for his achievement."

JAPAN EXEMPTS CABINET MEMBERS FROM INCOME TAX

TOKIO, July 16.—Enforcement of the new income tax laws in Japan brings to light certain exemptions which must be of particular interest to American officials struggling along on comparatively small salaries. While numerous prominent men of Japan are forced to pay this month far more than they have ever paid before in the way of income taxes, there are certain cabinet ministers who cannot be touched by the new law.

Cabinet Ministers in Japan get what is known as social expenses and from these expenses, and from these expenses they are allowed to entertain fairly lavishly important visitors, prominent statesmen and others who come to Japan. Count Uchida, foreign minister, whose position in Japan corresponds to that held by Secretary of State Hughes in the United States, is allowed Y3,-000,000 ($1,500,000) annually for "social expenses." Numerous guesses by the newspapers of Tokio as to just how the count uses this sum of money are made, but doubtless an itemized statement of the count's "expenses" will not be known. Viscount Takahashi, finance minister, must worry along on only Y125,000, while the premier is cut-off with the sum of Y100,000 ($50,000.)

AGED SLAYER IS GIVEN A PARDON

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 16.—For the first time in the history of his administration Governor T. C. McRae has exercised his pardon power by commuting the sentence of M. E. Jackson, sixty-eight-year-old slayer, who during 1911 served two weeks of a ten-year sentence, escaped and remained unmolested on his Mississippi county farm for ten years.

Jackson was convicted of slaying John Holland, "bad man," in December, 1910, being actuated, he contended at his trial, by the motive of self defense. Public sentiment apparently favored the old farmer, as no attempt was made to arrest him following his return home after he had escaped.

Due to a persistent desire of his landlord to sell the farm on which Jackson resided, the aged tiller was taken into custody and returned to the penitentiary. The sheriff of Mississippi county wrote Governor McRae a letter explaining his reluctance in arresting Jackson. He would not make the arrest, he said, unless ordered to do so by the state.

Following Jackson's return to the penitentiary the governor's office was besieged with petitions from statesmen and citizens throughout Arkansas urging the chief executive to pardon the old man so that he might spend his last few years with his people.

ARTHUR IRWIN. OLD TIME BALL PLAYER, COMMITS SUICIDE

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 16.—The probable suicide of Arthur Irwin, an old time baseball player, formerly a manager of Cincinnati, Kansas City and New York teams, was reported by officers of the Metropolitan line steamer Calvin Austin when she docked today. He had been ill a long time.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 16.—Arthur Irwin, whose probable suicide was reported from Boston today, was forced to relinquish his position as manager of the Hartford baseball club of the Eastern league when he was taken to a hospital June 21, suffering from abdominal trouble, attended by severe nervous attacks. He left the hospital early last week and went to New York two days ago.

"I am going home to die," he is reported to have said to a fellow passenger on the steamer from which he disappeared.

STUDY OF BIRD LIFE INTERESTS CHILDREN MORE

CHICAGO, July 16.—Interest in the birds of America is growing rapidly among public school children and their organization in bird study clubs has advanced to large proportions.

Enrollment in the schools of the United States and Canada for the past ten years totalled 1,676,743, T. Gilbert Pearson of New York, president of the National Association of Audubon Clubs, announces. Classes numbered 66,709 in this period.

Next year the association hopes to enlist a third of a million children. "Hundreds of thousands of bird boxes are made and placed by the children, birds are fed by them in every state of the Union in winter, and hundreds of programs are performed on Bird Day and at other times to arouse general interest in bird study in the schools, Mr. Pearson added.

Totals of enrollment in the middle and southwest for the past decade were thus given by the national association:

BELIEVE MINE WAS WORKED BY INDIANS

KINZUA, Pa., July 16—Kinzua is on the verge of having a new boom. In the days when lumbering was at its height around here the lumbermen made things lively—Volstead and Wayne Wheeler were unheard of then.

Now this little town, some miles south of the New York state line from Salamanca, is awakening. Everybody is getting excited over silver. Even the conservative are taking notice. They expect soon to see mules and prospectors streaking through the nearby forest fastness searching for traces of silver and the mother lode.

This week several men visited Warren, Pa., and asked a local hardware store to construct them a furnace. They had samples of ore which they declared was secured from the hills near Kinzua. They had the ore assayed and they report it was pronounced sufficiently high grade to be produced in paying quantities.

In the early days Warren County had silver mines that supplied the Indians with the silver beads they wore. There is hardly a section of the county that does not have legends of ancient mines from which the Indians obtained their silver. The hidden lodes have never been found.

An old legend has it that the Indians used to make their gods of real silver. The mine was as fabulously rich as that of the Incas and Montezuma. One tribe had the secret of this great treasure house, but guarded it very closely. Then one day, as the tale goes, the earth slid and blotted out both mine and operators.

At any rate, folks around Kinzua are again dreaming about fabulous riches.

HEILMANN SLUGS HIS WAY INTO LEAD AMONG AMERICAN LEAGUE BATTERS: HORNSBY STILL IN FRONT IN NATIONAL

CHICAGO, July 16.—Harry Heilmann, the slugging outfielder of the Detroit Tigers went on a batting rampage last week and batted himself out of second place in the race for batting homers in the American League and is now in front of Tris Speaker, the Cleveland world's champion pilot, who stepped out in front a week ago.

Heilmann boosted his average to .432, compared with .409 a week ago. Speaker Speaker did not do so well with the willow and lost 21 points, his average dropping from .415 last week to .394, the same figure held by Ty Cobb, the Detroit manager, who has not been in the game the last few weeks because of an injury. The pair, however, are runners-up to Heilman, Tobin of St. Louis being fourth with .375 and Babe Ruth of the Yankees next with .371.

Up to the recent New York-Chicago series, Ruth had been stopped by the Chicago pitchers and in addition to this he had been unable to get a home run in Chicago this year. Little Dick Kerr who set the "home run king" back during the last invasion of the White Sox to New York was on the mound for the Chicago club during the final game in Chicago, and he fell the victim of Ruth's bat. Babe killed two birds with one stone. He not only knocked out his 32nd home run off a Chicago pitcher, but added Chicago to the list of cities in which he has clouted out home runs. Chicago was the last of the American league cities to come in on Ruth's string.

Ruth is far ahead of his last season's record for homers. The averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday give him a total of 34 circuit drives. He also has scored more runs than any other player in the league. He has crossed the place for his club 69 times. Although he has cracked out only 106 hits, he leads the league in total bases with 245, which is addition to his string of home runs include 23 doubles and 7 triples.

George Sisler, the St. Louis star failed to add to his string of stolen bases during the past week, but his 16 thefts continues high. The averages are those of players who have participated in 50 or more games.

Cutshaw Coming Fast.

George Cutshaw, the initial sack guardian of the Pittsburgh Pirates is making Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, step lively to retain the lead among the National League batters, who have participated in 50 or more games, according to the averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. Cutshaw, who boosted himself up to second place a week ago by steady hitting, has increased his position appreciably. This week the averages show him hitting .382 compared with .365 a week ago. Hornsby suffered a reversal in form and as a result slumped eight points but still retains the lead with an average of .420. Cy Williams of the Phillies boosted himself to third place with an average of .364.

George Kelly, the slugger of the Giants, again leads Irish Meusel of Philadelphia for circuit drive honors. Meusel failed to add to his string during the past week while the Giant's first baseman, drove out his thirteenth four-ply blow. Frisch of New York and Carey of Pittsburgh are having a merry race for the stolen base honors. Carey is out in front with 23 thefts, while Frisch is one behind him. Frisch, however, leads the league as a run getter, having crossed the plate 70 times for his club.

NATIONAL OPEN TO START TUESDAY AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The request of the Professional Golfers' association for a 36-hole instead of an 18-hole qualifying round for the national open championship has been refused by the United States Golf association.

W. D. Vanderpool, secretary of the association, said today that the change requested by the professionals would necessitate a complete revision of the program. The tournament will open Tuesday at the Columbia Country club, Washington, D. C.

THOSE LOST KALE ON SERIES TO TELL JURY SAD TIDINGS

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Fans who lost money betting on the White Sox in the 1919 world series with Cincinnati will be among the first witnesses called when the baseball trial gets under way Monday. Assistant States Attorney George E. Gorman announced today C. K. Nimsund and George M. Cohan, the actor, are among the losers to be subpoenaed, he said.

EDDIE CENTENARY TO BE CELEBRATED

BOSTON, July 16. The centenary of the birth of Mary Baker Eddy will be celebrated tomorrow at her birthplace, Bow, a little town near Concord, N. H. Many Christian Scientists from all over the United States and many from foreign countries will make a pilgrimage to her grave. Observances will be held in all Christian Science churches in honor of the founder and discoverer of what is now known as a remarkable spiritual movement. On February 1, 1866, as the result of a fall, Mrs. Eddy first experienced the spiritual healing.

Every dollar you save increases your opportunities for making more money, and in general promotes your chances for success. The City National Bank of Commerce is assisting thousands of Wichita Falls people to accumulate reserve funds, and welcomes deposits in any amount from $1.00 upwards at 4 per cent compound interest.—Adv.

ROTHGEB BACK AS COACH TO A. & M. ELEVEN

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, July 16.—C. J. Rothgeb, line coach of the A. & M. College of Texas eleven the past season and coach of the 1921 Southwestern Conference championship Aggie track team, who resigned at the conclusion of the track season to enter business at Champaign, Ill., will return to the college and assist in building up the Aggie eleven for this next season, D. X. Bible, head coach of athletics, announced just before his departure from college on his vacation last week. It is not expected that Rothbeg will remain after the close of the football season.

His work here will be concerned mostly with the men in the line as Bible will entrust himself to the task of building up a backfield and working out the offensive and defensive tactics of the squad in formation.

Never in the history of successful football teams has there been so many new faces as will be seen in the eleven that will b put out this year, but in this day of the mad rush for supremacy in the business life as well as on the athletic field all coaches are calling for the youngster, who can deliver speed, and there is certainly a wealth of this kind of timber that came to light on the reserve, freshman and company teams the past season.

With the passing of the wonderful Higginbotham, Mahan and Pierce, will doubtless also pass the defensive game the Aggies have played so well during the past few years, and the fans will see the Aggies passing the old oval more this season and perhaps the most varied line of attack ever witnessed by the followers of Aggie teams.

Old men of the varsity eleven who will be soon again are: W. E. Murrah of Plano; A. F. Dietrich, Dallas; R. L. Carruthers, Fort Worth; T. F. Wilson, Honey Grove; M. V. Smith, Belton; W. C. Wier, Georgetown; A. B. Morris, Cedar Hill.

Men of the varsity team who did not play last season in the conference games, members of the reserve, freshman and company teams who have been spotted by Bible for tryouts in September are: H. T. Pinson, Proctor; G. D. Francis, Cleburne; L. S. McWhorter, Palestine; W. G. McMillan, Calvert; O. H. Frazier, Hillsboro; F. K. Buckner, Weatherford; T. L. Miller, Coleman, J. P. ECONOMY
THIS IS SENSIBLE—
SEE IF IT ISN'T!
The cost of clothes depends upon the amount of service you get out of them.
Now it is a fact that scientific dry cleaning not only keeps garments looking their best, but really increases the length of their service, too.
We use the best approved modern methods. We know how to treat various kinds of fabrics so that they are not harmed, but rather benefited, when dust and grime are removed.
Think of our service as a genuine economy—a service which thrifty people value most.

STEADY TONE PREVAILS IN LOCAL MART

A steady tone is apparent in the Wichita Falls wholesale markets and no changes are expected to be put into effect Monday morning. Little changes are expected in fresh fruits and vegetables, the most active lines, and the grocery lines have been unusually inactive in price fluctuations lately.

Poultry, eggs, butter and dairy lines continue at the same price.

The following prices were obtained at the opening of the day's business from local jobbers and can be relied upon as official, although subject to fluctuation:

Fresh Vegetables.

Selling prices in Wichita Falls to retailers: Cauliflower 15@18c a lb.; egg plant 20 cents a pound; lettuce $1.25 a dozen; turnips 4 cents a pound; cabbage, 4c a pound; yams, 5 cents a pound; onions 3½c a lb.; parsley 75 cents a dozen bunches; mustard 80c a dozen bunches; potatoes 3 3-4 cents a pound; tomatoes 8¾ cents a lb.; new potatoes, 3½c a pound; string beans $3.50 per 30 pounds, squash 7 1-2 cents a pound; roasting ears 50 cents a dozen; cucumbers 10 cents a pound; beets, 5c a lb.; celery, $3.00 a dozen.

Vernon Darby, who is charged by indictment with the murder of John Whitman, local tailor in April was released from the county jail Saturday on $10,000 bond. The bond was set Saturday morning by Judge H. F. Welon of the 30th District court.

Darby's case is set for trial next month.

Teacher Gave It Up.

Teacher—If your mother had twenty-five yards of stuff, and made a dress containing eighteen yards, how much would she have left?

Little Girl—Mamma can't make her own dresses. She has tried often and they are always either too—

Little Girl—Depends on which dressmaker she sent it to. Some wouldn't send back any.

Teacher (impatiently)—Suppose she sent it to an honest one?

LIGHTEST DAY OF YEAR ON STOCK MART

NEW YORK, July 16.—Barely 115,000 shares were turned over in today's stock market—the smallest daily total of the year. Price movements were in keeping. Standard shares drifted idly within fractional limits. The International Harvester company announce another cut in prices of tractors. Tool steel schedules also were revised downward.

Actual loans and discounts of clearing house banks for the week contracted slightly more than fifty-five million dollars. Net demand deposits increased $35,000,000 and cash holdings were reduced by nearly $21,000,000 leaving excess reserves at little more than $13,000,000.

Government bonds, including Liberty issues, were steadier, but rails, industrials and internationals were featureless on nominal dealings.

COTTON UP ON BETTER TRADE NEWS

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Favorable opinion of the weather in the eastern belt, continued large exports and favorable items in weekly trade reviews concerning the textile industry supported cotton prices today and during most of the session prices were at moderate advances. At highest levels October stood at 12.60 and the more active months were 17 to 22 points up. The close showed net gains of 13 to 22 points with October at 12.58. Early clearances of 251,137 bales from Galveston caused bullish comment and later there were exports of 2000 bales from Savannah and 6675 from Houston.

Around mid-session enough liquidation came from longs to bring about recessions of about ten points but later the market rose to new high levels for the session on cables from Manchester reporting increased trade and hardening prices in both cloths and yarns.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 16.—Cotton was quiet but generally steady today. Bullish features commented upon in news from the goods trade on spot market, failed to stimulate much fresh buying but offerings were very light and after selling off to 12.88 early October rallied to 13.07, closing at 13.03 compared with 12.90 at the close yesterday. The general market closed firm at a net advance of 6 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 9 points on reports of a better tone in the goods market and overnight buying orders. There was some southern hedge selling and scattered realizing for over the week-end which caused reactions right after the call and sent active months a point or 2 below last night's closing figures. After these early selling orders had been absorbed, there was no pressure of consequence and the market ruled generally steady during the balance of the morning on covering.

A feature which attracted attention around the ring was the fact that offerings showed very little increase on the basis of 13 cents for October, suggesting that contracts for sale at that level had been pretty well absorbed earlier in the week. On the whole, however, local brokers felt that the trading was without special feature or significance and much of it was attributed to evening up for over the week-end. Weather conditions were considered more favorable, yesterday's late nervousness over rain or shower prospects having abted, and buyers were more disposed to emphasize the talk of an improving tone and a better export demand for cotton goods.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was placed at 114,000 bales against 87,000 last year.

BUSY DAYS FOR THE CHEF

The summer season is a trying one on club chefs. "Scarcely a day passes," said the chef of a widely known Murray club, "that I dont receive a large box containing crabs, eels or a bewildering variety of small sea fish from some member at the seashore with a note saying that he will be in for dinner with some friends that night and will I kindly prepare the trophies he has caught for the occasion. More often than not his sea spoils are improperly packed and delayed in transit, and when they reach the kitchen they are not exactly fresh. Then again they'll send in species that were never meant for food.

"Of course, explanations are not in order, and I have to go through my refrigerators and try as best I can to match the stuff he has sent me with edible sea food. If I'm successful a substantial tip is usually forthcoming, but if he ever suspects the substitution no amount of explaining will put him in a good humor."—Kansas City Star.

WHEAT RECEIPTS ARE 7000 BUSHELS DAILY AT ELECTRA STORAGE

ELECTRA, Texas, July 16.—Since the harvest, wheat has been coming to the Electra elevators at the rate of from 5000 to 7000 bushels a day. Approximately 100,000 bushels have been shipped from Electra this season and the local elevators now have about 75,000 bushels in storage.

The wheat in this section ranges from 12 to 15 bushels per acre and is of exceptionally good quality. Practically all wheat that has been shipped from here this season has been classed as No. 1 and No. 2. It is estimated that the wheat crop will bring more than $200,000 cash into this city and community.

SOUTH SEA ISLAND LAW PROVIDES FOR DISPENSING RUM

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Some new wrinkles in government have been introduced in the Gilbert Islands, one of the far south groups in the Pacific.

And—according to members of the crew of the trading schooner Lottie Bennet, which has just arrived at this port from Tarawa, principal port of the Gilbert Islands—the new laws, rigidly enforced by native police, seem to be working well, even the Blue laws and temperance measures.

Here are some of the laws, according to the Lottie Bennet's crew:

Each native shall have five acres for producing cocoanuts as his personal right. Should he have a wife he shall own seven acres and, for each child, an additional acre.

On each day except Sunday each male shall receive one goblet of rum paid for out of the public treasury.

Four shillings is the daily wage on the plantations.

There shall be no work or fishing on the Sabbath, neither are the women permitted to do the family washing.

Crews of visiting craft are not permitted to purchase liquor and, instead of receiving free cocoanuts, shall pay the native one shilling apiece.

Those who reach the age of sixty years must retire. All the other inhabitants are taxed in cocoanuts for their upkeep.

Mrs. James E. Wilkins is a prominent figure in the lumber industry in California.

WHEAT EASY BUT CORN AND OATS HIGHER

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Wheat was easier but corn and oats were strong and provisions higher on the Chicago board of trade today. Net results of the short session were recession of ¼@2c in wheat, gains of 1½@1⅜ in corn and 1 to 1½ in oats. Provisions made net gains of from 5 to 5½c. Technical position of wheat occupied traders at the start of the session and there was considerable changing of holdings between the various options. Prices wavered rapidly but there was plenty of support on all breaks until near the end.

Corn was unaffected by wheat. Numerous field reports said that corn needed rain and with no general precipitation in sight, this condition was a considerable factor. Oats followed corn closely and had as a further stimulus reports of good seaboard inquiry for oats. Provisions were higher early on the bulge in the hog market and the strength in corn. When the advance became pronounced, however, there was fair selling by commission houses and the finish was well within best figures of the day.

ALDERMANIC IGNORANCE

LONDON, July 16.—Women bathers at Hythe, Kent, are reported to have expressed a wish for more modest bathing attire.

Alderman Tonbridge, who last season voiced complaints against the sights on the seashore, moved at a meeting of the town council that the bathing inspector be authorized to purchase a quantity of two-piece bathing suits.

The alderman attempted to describe the required article, and finished up lamely that "it is a sort of flounce, you know."

There should be forty-eight stars, one for each state in the United States flag.

PUBLIC INVITED TO VISIT SPIZ WATER PLANT

FINANCIER OPTIMISTIC ON BUSINESS

NEW YORK, July 16.—Optimistic views regarding business conditions were expressed by Thomas F. Ryan, financier, when he left for Europe today on the Olympic. He said determination and co-operation would help restore prosperity much sooner than most people think. His statement follows.

"I feel confident that business conditions all over the world, with few exceptions, are slowly improving.

"In this country, orderly but persistent liquidation has been going on for many months.

"Merchants are buying only what they can sell for cash. Consumers have had to listen to so much pessimistic talk they have been expecting still further reductions in prices that they are buying only what is absolutely necessary for their daily wants. People everywhere have been scared. They are getting over that. The people of this country are the greatest consumers of food and manufactured products in the world in normal times and normal times are slowly coming back.

"While the labor question is a difficult one there are many signs which show that union, as well as non-union laborers are honestly willing and trying to do their part in the readjustment which is going on. I hope the standard of living and prices of the working man will never reach the low pre-war level. To force that would be a very bad thing for everybody."

TRADE WITH JAPAN GROWS

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 16.—A significant feature along the Savannah waterfront is the resumption of trade between Savannah and the Orient. Two years ago, after trade had been fairly well established between this port and the Far East, the cotton movement decreased almost to the vanishing point and shipping to the Far East became practically a zero. With the reopening of cotton selling exports have begun to increase, with Japan and other Oriental countries again looking to Savannah for cotton. Several ships have recently taken on cargoes here for ports in the Orient and four Japanese ships are due soon to take on cargoes, mainly of cotton.

The Next War?

"The Next War," if there be one, will be a matter of cold, premediated murder done in cold blood by bespectacled chemists and bacteriologists in laboratories, and electricians sitting before boards of keys and levers and buttons. It will be killing, killing of women and children and old people and babes, killing at long range by means of poison gas and loathsome disease germs, by flames and lethal rays. It will be a war waged with the weapons of the snake and the spider, of the filthy disease germs and the crowling louse.—William Slavens McNutt in Leslie's.

FEW CATTLE FIND WAY TO FORT WORTH

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 16.—Not enough cattle found an outlet today to make a market quotable. Receipts amounted to 350 head of cattle and 130 calves. One car of calves sold to an outside buyer at $6.75.

Good hogs brought $10.45 and choice consignments were quotable at $10.50, the market closing at the highest point of the week. Bulk sales ranged from $10 to $10.40. Receipts reached about 325 head. Prices gained 15 to 25 cents.

Nothing was offered in the sheep house. Quotations:

Cattle: Beeves, $3.00 to $6.50; stockers, $2.00 to $4.00; cows, $2.00 to $4.50; canners, $1.00 to $2.00; heifers, $3.00 to $6.00; bulls, $1.00 to $3.00; calves, $1.00 to $6.75; yearlings, 3.00 to $6.50.

Hogs: Light, $10.30@10.45; medium, $10.00@10.30; mixed, $9.50@10.00; common, $8.50@9.50; heavy, $9.75@10.25; rough heavy, $8.50@9.25; pigs, $7.00@9.25.

The culmination of the recent advance in hog prices was reached on the Fort Worth market today when the top of $10.45 was paid for weights of 210 pound. Hogs reached $10.35 on March 12 and then declined for a period of three months, reaching the low point of the year on June 4, the top that day being $7.35. Since that day, hogs have gradually improved in value and the peak was reached today.

Sheep: Genuine lambs, $6.00@8.00; lambs and yearlings, $6.00@6.50; wethers, $4.25@4.50; ewes, $3.00@3.50; culls, $1.00@2.00; goats, $2.00@3.00.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK.

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, July 16.—Cattle, 350; for week: Beef steers, fat she stock and bulls mostly 25@50c higher; calves, 50c higher; stockers and feeders mostly 15@25c higher; some stockers up 35@50c; stock cows and heifers, steady to strong.

Hogs, 600; active, 10@20c higher; best to shippers, $10.15@10.25; packer top, $10.25; bulk of sales, $10.00@10.25; packing sows and pigs, steady to strong.

VARSITY CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON CRIMINALS

An address on some of the painful problems which face a police commissioner in the discharge of his duty and on the various angles from which crime must be fought by W. G. Bralley is announced as the feature number on the program of the University Club luncheon Tuesday at noon.

Some thrillers are promised the membership in the "reminiscences" to be given by Judge Edgar Scurry, according to the announcement of the program committee.

Other numbers on the program will include a vocal solo by Miss Teresa Veale, accompanied by Frank F. Loew, a piano solo entitled the "University Club March," composed by Prof. Loew at the request of the club and a vocal duet by Paul Von Allman and Ben Neal.

TWO MEN HELD IN CONNECTION WITH $30 CHECK

Following investigations conducted at the request of the Freeman and Black company, after they had accepted a $30 check in payment for an $18 hand bag, two men were arrested late Saturday afternoon by City Detective Hunter.

Detective Hunter declared that the check was believed to be worthless. Ten dollars of the money given in change to the purchasers was reported recovered when the arrest was made.

The two men held are reported to have stoutly protested the allegation that the check was worthless and to have declared that they had money in the bank to cover the amount called for.

It is improper to use the flag in lieu of a table cover, as is often thoughtlessly done at public meetings.

In choosing your banking home you want experience, complete facilities, up-to-date equipment, a carefully trained organization, sound business methods, and friendly service. The City National Bank of Commerce is always glad to have these tests applied to it.—Adv.

ANNOUNCEMENT
—It is my pleasure to announce to the many patrons of my real estate agency that Mr. E. R. Loofbourrow is now actively connected with this office and that he will be very glad to receive his friends and customers at the address below and render them any service that their real estate requirements may indicate. Mr. Loofbourrow is an able and practical realtor, well acquainted with Wichita Falls locations and property values and he places himself at the disposal of those interested in buying or selling any form of real estate.
—I might further say in passing that some of my friends think that since the organization of the Wichita Falls Building & Loan Association that I have not been interested in my usual real estate activities. Quite to the contrary, this office has made a number of recent sales, never had better bargains, never felt more optimistic for the PRESENT and future of Wichita Falls, never felt more proud of a real estate agency. "Seven Years in Wichita Falls," never said with more conviction, as did Paul of a Bible community, "This is no mean city," and never had more friends or patrons. I should say I am YET in the real estate business. The building and loan association too, is making wonderful progress, thanks to the splendid Board of Directors and I especially invite my friends and those who BELIEVE in Wichita Falls to visit this office and learn how and why the association will do a wonderful work in the further upbuilding of our city. I thank you for reading this long advertisement.

FORT SMITH PATIENT WHO SLEPT THREE YEARS IS ENIGMA TO ALL WHO HAVE WITNESSED HIS CASE

Pellagra is one of the most dreaded of all diseases. It attacks body and mind with a scourge that it is almost impossible to combat. It is death-producing in its ravages, and, to paraphrase the ancient quotation about the gods, "Whom pellagra destroys, it first makes mad."

Jim Eslinger probably never has been completely right in the head since he spent body-withering hours in the fields under the glare of the Arkansas sun. He had a little farm at Bonanza, near Ft. Smith, and tried to raise cotton and a little crop there. He sold the cotton, but he had to eat the corn, because money came seldom to the Eslinger family. A diet of corn—there you have one of the main causes of pellagra.

The entire Eslinger family was afflicted with the disease before their condition became noticed by the other people in Bonanza. It took them some time to report the matter to the Sebastian county health officials, it took the officials some time to hunt up the Eslingers and get them located, and all the time the pellagra was extending its ravages further into the system of everyone on Jim Eslinger's tiny little farm.

When an official visitor at last called on the Eslingers, Jim denied that his little clan was in ill health.

"There'sit nothin' wrong, doc; we've just been feeling porely," Jim protested over and over. "If you take us to the hospital or raise a fuss about us what's to become of the farm?"

"You'd better consider what's to become of you, first," the health official replied. "You're a mighty sick man, your wife is in worse shape, and your children are far from well. Come with me, if you want to stay alive."

The whole family was bundled up and carted to the Sebastian county hospital where Mrs. Eslinger died soon after her arrival. She didn't have a fighting chance for her life. The children got well and Jim hovered on the border line. At last the pellagra was driven out of his system but it left him paralyzed.

Beginning of His Nap.

One June day in 1918 Jim's daughter, Viola, a pretty, fullgrown girl, was wheeling him about the attractive yard of the hospital in an invalid's chair. The other hospital inmates smiled at him and spoke to him. Jim tried to return their greetings, and it seemed as though he was on the road to full recovery, if such a thing was possible, considering his condition.

Viola brought Jim's chair to rest under a tree and a bird flew past his face, chirping as it went.

Jim screamed violently.

"Papa's a little bit nervous today" Viola explained to hospital attendants who came to find out what was the matter. "I'll move him across the yard. Maybe he'll like it better there."

She started to wheel the chair towards another place on the grass and a hen, guiding a brood of chicks, ran directly in the chair's path. Jim glanced once at the fowls, quivered all over, and fell against his backrest, unconscious. That was the beginning of his long sleep.

He slept through the rest of the day into the night and the attendants did not worry particularly, thinking maybe the nap was caused by intense nervousness and exhaustion. When he did not wake up the next morning they became worried and called the county hospital officials. The doctors worked with Jim every way they knew, but were not able to restore him to consciousness.

The year 1918 was probably as momentous a one as can be found in this nation's history, but Jim slept through it all. The drive in the Argonne, that epochal phase of the world war, came in October and November; the armistice was signed November 11; December saw some of the soldiers coming home and the United States singing a paean of victory for the triumph of its colors overseas, but still Jim slept, mindless of all, his brain apparently a complete blank.

All through 1920. Dr. A. A. McKelvey, county physician, toiled with Jim with every art the medical profession knows, but could not restore the man to consciousness. Jim ate his meals regularly, took liquid nourishment in the main, and, of course, lost weight, but did not seem in particularly bad health otherwise. He just would not wake up.

Nineteen-twenty came and went and still Jim's nap "carried on." Nineteen-twenty-one saw it apparently as unending as ever. He was moved from a little cottage near the main hospital into the hospital proper and received jolts in the moving, but nothing roused him.

While His "Fame" Grew.

March of 1921 saw Jim's fame carrying all over the United States. People came to the hospital by the dozens, then almost by the hundreds to see him. Newspaper correspondents were sent to Fort Smith from cities ordinarily far outside of Fort Smith's "league." A representative of Pathe Weekly, a movie news aerial, carted his camera out to the hospital and took pictures of Jim one day, to the high excitement of every other inmate of the hospital, but Jim remained completely unperturbed.

Three or four times his eyes flickered and once two hospital nurses gazed through a crack in the door in time to see him sitting up in bed, looking out of the window. When they attempted to tiptoe into the room to catch him in the act, he whisked beneath his covers again and his face resumed its immobility. He was as dead to the world as ever, apparently.

It was at that time that the other hospital inmates began to get irritated. Whether Jim was getting too much attention or whether he was getting too much care, the result remained the same—they got a fine case of professional jealousy and began to circulate reports tending to undermine the validity of Jim's illness.

"He's stalling" men who had occupied the hospital cottage with him said. "He opens his eyes and takes in everything in the sight when no one's around. He's lazy, that's all, and he's making the best of the game he's playing."

Doctor McKelvey didn't believe Jim could be playing a game and could have played it three years without a slip. Superintendent J. C. Bryant, in charge of the hospital, didn't think so either, but they were determined to make sure. They put Jim through every test known to waken a man. They tickled his feet, they pricked him gently with pins, they shook him, they worked his joints and massaged them. The result of their efforts were absolutely nothing. Jim slept as soundly as ever.

And Then—the Awakening.

Then, a few days ago, came the awakening.

Mrs. Cleo Bryant, daughter-in-law of Mr. Bryant, was feeding Jim his breakfast when the man opened his eyes and said, "Lord help me."

Mrs. Bryant could not believe her ears.

"What did you say?" she almost gasped, not realizing hardly, that she was addressing a question to the man.

"Lord help me," he repeated.

Mrs. Bryant summoned her mother-in-law in post haste, and the two women almost expected Jim to seek retreat in his covers as he had done before when the nurses thought they had caught him awake. Instead he looked at the elder Mrs. Bryant and remarked, casually, "Jesus is a great man."

Dr. McKelvey was called and found that Eslinger indeed was talking. What is more, the man seemed to be absolutely awake. His voice was very weak, it is true, and he repeated many of his words over and over, but, nevertheless, he formed ideas in his brain and spoke them through his lips.

Mrs. Viola Gaines, his daughter, was called to his bedside.

"Do you know who this is, Jim?" Dr. McKelvey asked.

"That's Viola," he said, with a look of love in his eyes. He tried to cover the girl's hand with his. "You've never left me," he told her. Mrs. Gaines has visited her father daily since the start of his stupor.

Jim was propped up in bed and told to look out of the window. He moved his head readily and obeyed the instructions. Then he was told to take hold of a piece of bread and butter that was offered him.

"I can't move my arms," he said. "They feel like they are dead."

The arms were massaged, however, and Jim soon was able to feed himself as well as any man of his age can. Of course, he made the movements slowly, like an invalid recovering from a long illness.

An attendant asked Jim if he wanted some grape juice.

"Do I want some grape juice—Do I want some grape juice—Do I want some grape juice—?" the man replied in automaton-like fashion.

"Yes," said the attendant at last, just a bit impatiently. "Do you want some grape juice?"

"I want some grape juice—I want some grape juice—I want some grape juice." Jim decided, and drank it with relish when it was offered to him.

Influence of a Little Child.

"The baby," said Eslinger, with instant recognition. The child cooed delightedly at the soft voice, and Jim tried to smile in response.

Dr. McKelvey remembered that Jim had chewed tobacco before he became unconscious and sent for a plug. When it was brought to Eslinger's bedside, the doctor held it up before the sick man.

"Tobacco," Jim said instantly, and reached feebly for it. It was handed to him, he took a bite of it, and chewed with evident pleasure.

All of that happened about a week ago when Jim first woke up and talked. Saturday and Sunday his voice was even stronger and his memory better.

Mrs. Bryant was remarking to her husband that, perhaps if the owner of a farm on which Jim used to work would come to the hospital, Jim might talk to the man, and the work of restoring the long-unused memory might be helped along in that way.

"The man lived at Cane Hill," Mrs. Bryant soliloquized, not knowing that Eslinger was paying any attention to her or that his bed even was within hearing distance. "I'd send for him if I could think of his last name. Let's see, the name was Frank, Frank, Frank——What was the other name?"

"The name was Frank Leighty," Jim put in. "Frank Leighty at Cane Hill."

"Mr. Eslinger, how old are you?" the elder Mrs. Bryant asked.

"I'm an old man," Jim answered, rubbing his hand across his forehead as though every one of his sixty-three years had left its toll of worry there.

"I know, but how old are you?" Mrs. Bryant persisted.

"My folks have the record. They could tell you," Jim answered.

Limited Comprehension.

The persons who think they are going to be able to tell Jim of the war and prohibition and a few other calamities that happened during his long sleep are going to be mightily mistaken, however, unless the man regains his senses far more than he shows any ability to do now.

"Did you ever hear of the war, Jim?" a visitor asked last week.

"Did I ever hear of the war?" Jim repeated vacantly.

"Yes. Did you ever hear of the war?"

"War — war — war — war ——," Jim started, and still would be saying it if he hadn't been asked another question to get his mind off the subject.

"What do you think about prohibition?" he was asked. "This country has prohibition now. Prohibition, you know, dry——dry——, no whiskey, no beer."

"I don't drink whiskey," Jim said, almost with a touch of dignity. So that line of questioning was ended before it got well started.

Jim's bed was wheeled to the window so he could look across the hospital grounds and towards the long turnpike that skirts the ground from the east to the west and connects with the Wadron road at the far corner of the hospital.

"I don't know where that trail goes to," he said, almost mournfully. Then—with appreciation. "My God, that's pretty."

The man is shrewd at times, too. He was chewing tobacco when he saw Mrs. Cleo Bryant eat a piece of candy.

"What is that?" he asked curiously.

"That's candy," she told him.

"Candy's good," she told him

"Yes. Do you want some?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Bryant advanced to the bed. "Give me your tobacco," she said. "Then I'll get you some candy."

"You get the candy first," he bargained. "Then when you bring it here, I'll give you the tobacco."

Bright manifestations like that and like his remembering that his daughter, Viola, had stayed with him all through his illness came to Jim only on the first days of his awakening, however. They were Saturday and Sunday.

Monday saw him with a much weaker voice, a vacant stare in his eyes, and only occasional rational remarks. Tuesday saw him even worse, so far as sensibility was concerned.

"He's going to sleep again—or he's showing all symptoms of it," the hospital attendants who have watched him through every phase of his illness say.

It appears that way to the average visitor who sees him, too—the visitor, say, who saw him him late in March just after it was rumored he had sat up when no one was looking, and who saw him again, last Monday and Tuesday. Few, very few, of his remarks carry meaning and so many consist only of monotonous repetitions of words. "War—war—war," "Cake—cake—cake" "I want candy—I want candy—I want candy——."

Jim has the look of insanity in his eyes, nothing more or less. If he recovers anything approaching normal mentally it will be a miracle, and a wonderful testimonial to the unfailing care of Dr. McKelvey and the Bryants."

"He's incurably insane," Dr. McKelvey says quietly. "He never was of strong mentality."

"Is he going back to sleep again?" the doctor was asked.

"I wouldn't be surprised," was the answer. "It really will be easier on him if he does."

It sounds paradoxical, but when one sees Jim when he is awake, and notes the mumbling of his lips, and the wistful look in his eyes—the look which seems to say, "I'd like to understand what it's all about. Please, why can't I?"—one realizes that Dr. McKelvey is right.—Kansas City Star.

HOT ELECTRIC PLATE CAUSES DAMAGING FIRE

Starting from an overheated electric plate, fire Saturday morning at 9 o'clock damaged the home of Mrs. M. Vickery, 1002 Sixth street, approximately $1000.

The fire burned a part of the roof and practically destroyed the room in which it started, according to the report of firemen.

The building was the property of a Burkburnett bank and the furnishings the property of Mrs. Vickery. The property was partially covered by insurance, Mrs. Vickery said.

LEGION POST NOT BACKING SHOW AS ORGANIZATION

As an organization of the local post, American Legion, is taking no part in the staging of the Sunday moving picture shows, according to a statement signed by a majority of the executive committee of the local post.

The signatories, however, refrain from expressing individual views on the subject, merely making it plain that activities of members and officers in the venture was purely personal, and not as representatives of the organization. The statement follows:

The undersigned officers and members of the executive committee of Pat Carrigan Post disclaim any purpose on the part of the Post as an organization to either foster or support the aims of the proposed American Club. In our view it would be contrary to both the spirit and purposes of the American Legion to involve itself in partisan issues not directly concerned with the promotion of higher ideals of citizenship.

We withhold any expression of our individual views on the subject of Sunday observance, and this action is not to be taken as either approving or condemning the proposed activities of the American Club. The only purpose of this statement is to clear up any possible misunderstanding as to the attitude of the Post as an organization towards the club.

THIRD NEW LODGE WILL BE SOUGHT

Should Wichita Falls receive dispensation for a second Masonic lodge when the petition, which was formally approved last Friday night, is presented before the grand lodge next December, dispensation for a third lodge probably will be immediately sought, it was announced Saturday.

Prominent Masons in Wichita Falls declare that with the large membership here it is found that the work is more than can be handled successfully and promptly by teams from one lodge, and that they feel three lodges are needed in the city. About 200 members is said to be about the proper number of members in each lodge while the local body has a membership of over 700.

The new lodge which is being sought at the present time is to be known as Faith lodge. Officers proposed in the petition, which was signed by about 75 members, were: W. Y. Hammack, W. M., R. E. Shepherd, S. W., and F. B. Mashburn, J. W.

SHOPLIFTING NETS CULPRITS BUT $1 EACH

Two cases of shoplifting in which the total of stolen goods would be worth less than a dollar, according to the estimation of officers, were reported to Police Chief Huff Saturday afternoon.

A six foot negro, weighing around 200 pounds, was the first man reported. He was accused of taking a small ring from the Kress store.

A Mexican woman, the next apprehended, was reported by Kress employees to have stolen a bead necklace. The woman was recommended for clemency by Chief Huff because of the fact that she had a child clinging to her skirts.

NEGRO WORKMEN IN BATTLE ROYAL

Starting over "no one could explain what," a free for all fisticuff with six husky entrants was developed among workmen on the city sewage ditch at Ninth and Austin streets Saturday afternoon.

All six of the men were haled to the police station where they were booked with affray. No one was seriously hurt.

BENEFIT SOCIAL FOR DAY NURSERY REPORTS SUCCESS

A total of $52 was realized from the ice cream social given Saturday afternoon by the ladies of the First Methodist church for the benefit of the Day Nursery.

The social was held at the home of Mrs. C. B. Jetter, Elizabeth and Brook streets, and was declared by all attending to have been a pronounced success from every standpoint.

The ladies asked that their hearty thanks be extended the Olympic and Strand theatres, the Frear Furniture company and the Record News for assistance given by these organizations in making the benefit social the success it was.

A daily deposit of twenty-five cents in a Savings Account with the City National Bank of Commerce will, in the course of five years, with the aid of 4 per cent interest paid by the bank, amount to practically $500, and in ten years to considerably over $1000.—Adv.

MISS JOSEPHINE CUMMINGS.

MISS JEWEL CUMMINGS

MISS DOROTHY BABCOCK.

THE PICTURES

Misses Josephine and Jewell Cummings, daughters of Judge and Mrs. B. Y. Cummings of 1817 Elizabeth Street, have recently moved here with their parents from Eastland, Texas.

Miss Dorothy Babcock of Fort Worth has returned home after a two weeks' visit with her aunt, Mrs. John Robinson, at the William-Mary Hotel.

DESPITE MANY DEPARTURES VARIETY OF PARTIES HELD.

Many departures marked the week and those who tarry either from necessity, or choice have settled down to a midsummer program which is varied and pleasant, with frequent parties of a more or less informal nature, varying from dinner parties at the G and Country club, lawn fetes, to informal bridge parties mostly for out-of-town guests. Miss Lillian Randle assisted by her mother, Mrs. C. C. Randle, Mrs. Ernest Metcalf of Tulsa and Mrs. J. B. Broughton gave one of the most delightful affairs of the week, a dinner dance at her home on Wednesday evening complimentary to her house guests, Misses La Farris Thames and Katie May King of Fort Worth and Hazel Metcalf of Tulsa, Okla. The reception suite and table were profusely decorated with summer flowers for the occasion, and following an elaborate five-course dinner, the hours were pleasantly spent in dancing. Those present other than the honorees, included: Misses Gwendolyn Walters, Marjorie Woolsey, Frankie Adickes, Helen Knotts, Stella Winters and Kathleen Randle and Messrs. William Powers, Audrey Joe Everton, Raymond Smith, Lemuel Stone, C. C. Randle Jr., and Workman.

Thursday evening, Messrs: and Mesdames C. C. Randle, Frank Keim, L. L. Dixon and C. J. Coffey entertained about 50 guests at a swimming party and dinner at the Golf and Country club, complimentary to Mrs. Ernest Metcalf and daughter, Helen of Tulsa, Mrs. W. H. Metcalf, mother of Mrs. Randle, of Fort Worth, and Misses Katie May King and LaFarris Thames of Fort Worth. The club dining room and table were beautifully decorated with baskets of flowers of various colors, and a delicious six-course dinner was served. The evening was pleasantly spent in the swimming pool.

SALVATION ARMY KIDDIES ENTERTAINED WITH PICNIC

The rain and overwhelming clouds did not daunt the ardor of about 100 Salvation Army kiddies early Friday morning when the ringing of the phone at Citadel kept Ma Burdick busy answering the question as to whether they could have their promised picnic or not.

They came in their pretty dresses and ribbons in the rain, and local friends with their cars saw that they were not disappointed. Just before starting, armed with balloons and banners, a picture of the gala scene was taken.

On account of the threatening weather, the plans for the day were changed and instead of going to Haven Park first, as announced, the crowd was taken to the Iowa Park celebration where they were turned loose in the park in charge of Misses Stella Baum, Twila Reighner and Ruth Haynie, who supervised games until the noon hour when after singing the doxology and a short prayer service, a sumptuous luncheon consisting of ham and beef sandwiches, potato salad ,deviled eggs, fruit, candy, ice cream cones, cake and soda pop was served. Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Haines were hosts of the affair with Ma and Pa Burdick, Cadet Thorne, assistant, P. E. Baley and Mrs. A. Paraham, superintendent of the Salvation Army Sunday School, special guests.

About 2:30 o'clock the crowd was taken to Haven Park where the swimming pool was donated by the park management and a good time was enjoyed in the water. Mr and Mrs. Haines were assisted by Mesdames A. H. Carrigan, C. C. Randle, D. O. Long, N. O. Monroe, O. W. Hines, J. B. Broughton, L. Wheeler, J. D. Meredith, P. C. Bennett, J. W. Akin Jr., D. B. MRS. ECKMAN HOSTESS AT BRIDGE PARTY.

One of the prettiest and most enjoyable affairs of the week was the bridge party given at the Wichita club Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Carl Eckman entertained complimentary to her house guest, Mrs. L. B. Wellman of Houston.

The lounge of the club was beautiful with decorations of baskets filled with shasta daisies, tied with huge bows of fluffy tulle.

In the games, Mrs. Louis Whithan won the high score favor, a dainty ostrich quill pen and ink well. Mrs. C. E. Thames made the low score and was consoled with a pretty hand painted flower pot containing a plant. Mrs. Carl Waelder was presented the booby prize, a silver dinner bell with hand painted handle, and the honoree was given a hand painted candle stick.

A delicious refreshment course, consisting of fruit salad, sandwiches, ice tea, ice cream, and cake, was served to Mesdames Wellman, Carl Waelder, A. E. Murdock, C. H. Reid, Jake Avis, C. E. Thames, Tarleton Morrow, George Campbell, F. E. Thornburgh, P. J. McCormack of Victor, Colo., Louis Whitham, Davis Bass, H. O. Cravens, J. C. Mann, Hugh Weaver, O. B. CHARMING COSTUME ADDS TO PLEASURE OF SUMMER OUTING

Most effective is the opening at the left, banded with worsted trimming in blue, henna, purple and gold, contrasting delightfully with the green foliage. The sleeves follow out the original idea of the costume in their flowing Russian peasant effect.

The automobile picnic kit seen in the picture was strapped to the back of the roadster. Ready to serve seven persons, among its conveniences this kit has containers for knives, forks and spoons, salt and pepper, all grouped about seven white enameled plates. On either end of the kit are two square aluminum containers with air-tight covers. Included in this attractive bit of luggage is a table-cloth, napkins and paper cups. An under space provides a tray which is so divided that individual compartments may be had for all the necessities that make for a picnic lunch.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

CHERRY BATTLES WITH "GREEN EYES"

Cherry arrived home a quarter of an hour or so before Edward, and she slipped into a negligee, then lay down on the chaise lounge to relax and collect her scattered thoughts before her husband appard.

The more she thought about Arline Bates and the way she had looked up into Ned's eyes, the more furious she became. The first genuine cold chills of jealousy violently attacked the little bride.

When she heard her husband's footsteps on the stairs she threw her arm over her face and to all appearances was as cool and composed as possible when he entered the room a moment later.

"Had a hard time, dear" she asked trying to keep her voice from betraying her inward emotion. "I was just about to turn in for the night. Given you up, almost."

She studied Ned's face from behind her arm as she talked. He looked tired, harrassed. There was a tenseness round his mouth that caused her to wonder if he had not been through some sort of a scene with Arline. The girl was extremely temperamental, as was well known in Wellsberg, and she was not apt to spare anyone anything if her mood saw fit to raise "ructions."

"Oh, nothing specially bad, Hon," Ned answered, stooping down to kiss her. "I always seem to get a heap of unpleasantness at the end of the day lately. It's terribly fagging."

"Did you have dinner over at Wayne's?" asked Cherry.

"Yeh, Miss Bates and I had to stay over till 8 o'clock to finish up business with two ginks who could not see us until that time. After we had settled matters we all went over to the hotel and had supper. Miss Bates sort of got on my nerves tonight. She lost her temper while we were discusing important business. Didn't want to take dictation, cross and overworked, so she said. It made things twice as hard for me, of course, but I had to hide my feelings."

"You wouldn't listen to me when I proposed acting as your secretary," said Cherry, "and now you see that after all my plan wasn't so bad, goosey?"

"Oh, I couldn't get along without Arline, somehow. She knows the ground too well. Besides, she's usually sweet tempered. That's what makes it so much more worrisome when she turns cranky."

To Cherry's astonishment Ned had called the girl "Arline" without any hesitation this time. It must have been a forget on his part, for once before he had caught himself in time when he was about to say "Arline" instead of Miss Bates.

Well, there was one thing certain: If Ned was doing anything out of the way she, Cherry, would soon teach him a lesson. It was not so hard to bring refractory husbands to terms she very well knew. But on second thoughts, as she kissed him affectionately a few minutes later, she determined not to let him know the wild thoughts chasing each other through her head.

CANNING RHUBARB

Rhubarb Jam—To each pound of rhubarb allow one pound of sugar, one-half teaspoon ground ginger and the grated rind of one half lemon.

Cut rhubarb into short lengths without peeling it. Put all the ingredients into preserving kettle over a slow fire. Stir occasionally to prevent burning. Boil until the jam sets quickly when a little is tried on a cold saucer. Pour into sterilized glasses.

Rhubarb Jelly—Two cups diced rhubarb, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon granulated gelatin, grated rind one-half lemon, one cup of water.

Put rhubarb unpeeled into stew-pan with sugar, water and lemon rind. Simmer until rhubarb is tender. Rub through a fine sieve. Soften gelatin in one-quarter cup of cold water, stir in strained juice. Turn into a mold dipped in cold water and set in a cold place to become firm.

SUGGESTIONS

Washing Cut Glass—Cut Glass should be washed in luke-warm water which has been softened by the addition of soap, ammonia or washing soda.

Cleaning Cement Floors—Wash with soap water and rinse with clear water, wiping dry so that no dangerously slippery spots will be left.

Clean Bulbs—Electric light bulbs should always be cleaned while the light is on. The fine wire in the bulb is much less likely to break while it is glowing and in a more or less plastic condition.

Paint Stains That Are Dry and old may be removed from cotton and woolen goods with chloroform. It is a good plan to first cover the spot with olive oil or butter.

To Clean Rag Rugs—Lay rug on washboard and scrub well with ordinary soap. Rinse well and before hanging on line put them through starch water; they will appear like new and also will keep clean much longer.

BREECHES INSTEAD OF SKIRTS IN ENGLAND

Will breeches instead of skirts be tomorrow's fashion for the women of England? Dress designers in London half believe it may, and are beginning to be haunted by the spectre of the knickerbocker knut (feminine gender) in Piccadilly and Bond street.

At Murren and St. Moritz, in Switzerland, where London's smartest set disports itself indulging in skiing, skating and coasting down hill on bobsleds, nine out of every ten women have taken to "breeks." The London dress designers say that these sportswomen, once having realized, like the land girls of war days how comfortable breeches are, will insist on wearing them when they come home again. They think that these fair denizens of Belgravia and Mayfair at any rate will want to wear knickerbockers for walking and other outdoor exercise. And of course, if once one who really is in society sets the example, the middle class and suburbia will follow suit.

Breeches have been worn for skiing for years, but usually they have been covered by a short skirt. The skirt, however, is now only worn when the sportswoman has returned to her hotel and not always then.

Englishwomen, moreover, are now skating (heaven forgive us for saying this in summer time, but let it stand) in the breeches for the first time.

Bright-colored gabardine has been greatly used this season for skiing costumes and magenta, cornflower blue, bright green and yellow figures form an admirable contrast to the white landscape.

Pretty Lady Denman, whose husband is a former governor-general of Australia, and who is now at Murren with her son and daughter, wears breeches, and so do Lady Chichester, the two attractive daughters of the American Vis-countess Harcourt, and ever so many others of London's smartest girls and women. The Sketch, Tatler and other society journals are filled with photographs of them with their—ahem! "nether limbs" thus clad, and very fetching they look in them.

If the fears of the dress designers are well founded, "breeches for women" may presently become as much of a slogan in the British Islands as "Votes for Women" was a few years ago.

And speaking of the wearing of breeches instead of skirts I direct attention to another London fad which the new English woman who is not in the least afraid of showing her legs seems to be adopting. Long ago the fashion was introduced in France of rolling down the upper legs of children's stockings. It was adopted in England by cyclists and others, among them sometimes golfers who had a Scotch precendent. But now it has been taken up by women, "nice" women, really, and if you could peep beneath the skirts of hundreds you would find bare knees.

With the Women of Today

The Hon. Mary Ellen Ralph Smith.

An English Devonshire lass is the first woman to be apponted to the cabinet of any parliament in the British Empire. The Honorable Mary Ellen Ralph Smith holds the highest place yet attained by one of her sex in the parliaments of the world. At the last election despite political parties, religious creeds or social castes, her name headed the list in every poll and the number of her votes outstripped any number ever before cast in the whole province.

Thirty-six years ago Ralph Smith, who had given up the ministry for his wife, née Mary Ellen, who had left her home near Exeter, England, because of her husband's health, landed in Vancouver, Canada, when that place was nothing but a sawmill and a rough stepping place. This couple helped Vancouver "grow up." Ralph Smith took a lead and his wife was an able second. It was not long before his name was mentioned as the proper man to represent Vancouver in the British Parliament. In 1916 Smith was appointed minister of Finance after his re-election to the British Columbia Legislative Assembly. He died the same year and his wife took his place.

Her children were growing up and marrying and she had leisure from household cares and duties, although she never had allowed the interest of her home to slip her mind. Thus she was prepared for a public life.

"When she took her seat in the legislature she maintained that what was right and good for the women, the children and the men of the province, they should have. She demanded that and fought for it. What was wrong she decried and fought against. She seldom had to compromise, for soon men legislators saw that her ideas were sound and unselfish and that she wanted no concessions, no places for political friends, no emoluments for herself, nothing at all but those things that would add comfort and improvement to her land."

These are the words of the press in Vancouver. The Honorable Mary Ellen Smith is now being spoken of as a coming senator for the Province of British Columbia in the Dominion Parliament of Ottawa, the capital of Canada.

ODD BITS ABOUT WOMEN

Miss Minnie Kehoe, a lawyer from Pensacola, Florida, has had the rather unique experience of defending a army captain in a court-martial case. She won her suit for him in a court which was composed entirely of army officers, not one of whom was below the rank of captain.

Miss Dorothy M. Rehfeld, president of the Business Women's Club of Aberdeen, South Dakota, is the only independent practicing woman lawyer in the state.

Miss Margaret McArdle of Birmingham, Alabama, has the distinction of being the only woman buyer of a steel corporation in that state.

Sounded Dubious.

"Was her father encouraging when you went to ask him for his daughter's hand?" the friend asked.

"We-e-ll, that depends," replied the suitor gloomily.

"How's that?"

"He told me to put my proposition in writing so that I couldn't back out as all the others had done."

LLEGE OF INDUSTRIAL ARTS FINEST

al to the Record News.

USTIN, Texas, July 16—It is necessary to remind the readers he Record News that the college Industrial Arts at Denton is not the state college for girls but foremost institution of its kind America. More than 1400 Texas attended the college of Indust- Arts last year and several hun- s were turned away. Moreover ex-students association, the fac- of the college, the student body, well as the board of regents be that it is wrong for the agri- ural and mechanical college for to usurp the work of the Col- of Industrial Arts for women.

statement signed by all the re- s in defense of the College of In- rial Arts and on the administra- of the Smith Lever law in Tex- as been submitted to the govern- and the members of the legisla- . Why should there be duplica- of work? Why should a school men usurp the work of a school women? Why should an agri- ural and mechanical college con- t an extension department for wo- at a great expense to the tax ers? Why shouldn't the legisla- e of Texas authorize and direct at a cooperative agreement be en- ed into between the agricultural Mechanical College of Texas and College of Industrial Arts, where- the latter institution will be per- tted to direct the home demonstra- n extension service in Texas?

conomy in expenditure of money is anded by the people of Texas and ficiency in the rendering of service the people of Texas should be giv- due consideration by the lawmak- . Regents of the College of In- trial Arts, after a careful study the Smith Lever law and an in- tigation of the law in South Caro- a and in Florida, where the educa- nal situation in its relations to the rpretations of the Smith Lever as similar to that in Texas de- ed that the home demonstration nsion service should be under the ection of the College of Industrial s whose original purpose and pres- t organization and work are design- to improve the home life of the ople of Texas

They say there is nothing in the mith Lever law from beginning to d to mean that the home econo- ics extension service is necessarily be done by a college exclusively r men, when there exists in the me state a state supported home nomics college for women, such as College of Industrial arts. In dition to this they say that in a at majority of the other states of union the land grant colleges are educational and have a faculty in me economics, a body of woman dents home economics, adequate me economics laboratories in which study and to do research work and me economics libraries. It is there- e logical in the said states that home demonstration extension ser- e be directed from such coeducat- nal institutions.

Hon. David F. Houston, former resident of the Agricultural and chanical College of Texas, and of University of Texas, and secre- y of agriculture at the time the mith Lever law was enacted, wrote letter to President F. M. Bralley the C. I. A., which contained the llowing statement. "This depart- nt has been of the opinion that here a state college of agriculture hot coeducational the college might great advantage ask the coopera n and assistance of institutions hich have strong departments of me economics and a body of wo- n. Such action would seem to be the interest of efficiency and the lfare of the people of the state der the act the college must re- ive the funds, but there is no rea- why it should not include in its achinery such forces and other in- titutions as may be helpful and make ch arrangements for bearing the cessary expenses as may seem wise Two state colleges in South Caro- a and two state colleges in Flor a are conducted along these lines Dr. W. B. Bizzell, while president the College of Industrial Arts and fore becoming president of the Agri- ltural and Mechanical College of xas, addressed a letter to a promi- nt Texan in which he said: "I do believe that the A. and M. Col- e has any more right to conduct tension courses in home economics an the University of Texas, has to rp the field of agriculture by ex- sion." Again Dr. Bizzell said, "I lieve that the College of Industrial ts is in a position to do more ef- tive work in home economics than e university or the A. and M. Col- e. And I really wish that it were ssible for some relationship to be tablished between the A. and M llege and this institution whereby e College of Industrial Arts could ceive, through the A. and M. board regents, the share of funds available extension work in home economics de possible by the provision of the mith-Lever act."

This was in the year 1914. In the ar 1916 Dr. Bizzell said, "I believe co-operative plan can be worked t whereby the College of Industria rts can share in the benefits of the mith-Lever law." Governor Neff and e lawmakers of Texas should see it that duplication should be minated and then avoided. The moi of the College of Industrial Arts "We learn to do by doing." It is id that statistics show that more raduates of the College of Industrial rts have married farmers and ranch en than have married men of any her vocation.

It is admitted that one of the chi- nctions of the A. and M. College Texas is to train scientific farmers d to make farming, the cultivation the soil, with all that means, re unerative, attractive and satisfied is, however, believed that to place e home demonstration extension rvice under a co-operative agree- nt at the College of Industrial Arts, ould enable the authorities of the gricultural and Mechanical College Texas to concentrate a larger per nt of their resources on the making farmers, who when they are grad ted from the A. and M. College will ctually live on the farms of this ate and cultivate the soil and on the ally important lines of service that ve been delegated to the Agricul- ral and Mechanical College by the xas legislature. The contention is d it is based on logic that the things at relate primarily to farming, in ense, belong to the A. and M. Col- e of Texas and the things that re- primarily to home life, for sim- lar reasons belong to the College of Industrial Arts.

Legislative action has been requested by the regents and it is believed that the arrangements suggested would be not only best for the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas and the farm and the home interests of the state but that it would result in economy in the expenditure of money and in increased efficiency in service to the people of Texas. Since its foundation eighteen years ago the success of the College of Industrial Arts has amazed the educators of America. Thousands of Texas girls have been educated there and not a divorcee in their ranks.

President F. M. Bralley is recognized as one of the leading college presidents and business executives of the country. The board of regents is composed of Colonel James H. Lowry, M. Eleanor Breckenridge, Mrs. Sallie B. Capps, J. A. Kemp, Mrs. E. P. Turner and J. W. Sullivan, all widely known for their untiring efforts in the cause of education and the general advancement of Texas along the best approved and most modern educational lines. There is a way to avoid duplication of work in Texas and the board of regents of the College of Industrial Arts have given a hint to the senators and representatives of the Texas legislature how to go about it in one department at least of the state government.

THE RANGER SCOUT

SCOUT IDEALS.

On my honor, I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country. What countless illustrations of a high sense of duty the late war has given us!

On a beautiful summer's day, a large excursion steamer set out from a certain lake port with hundreds of pleasure-seekers crowding its decks. All of a sudden it was rumored that a fire had broken out in the hold. Although every effort was made to stop it, the fire gained headway, and at length its flames shot up into the deck. At the wheel was John Maynard, the pilot. "Head for the nearest shore, John Maynard," rang out the captain's sharp order, for he realized that it was a race for life. Higher, higher mounted the flames, nearer and nearer came the shore. "If you can hold out five minutes longer, John Maynard, we will reach the shore," cried the captain to the pilot, as the flames were spreading toward the pilot house.

Now the heat had become almost insufferable. His left arm hung useless at his side, but with his right hand on the wheel, John Maynard guided the ship. "A minute more and we are safe," shouted the captain, and then there went up a great shout of thanksgiving, as the keel grated on the shore, for the ship's company had been saved. But at the same moment the brave pilot was engulfed by the flames; his allegiance to duty had cost John Maynard his life.

A certain man of high character and winning personality had gathered about himself a group of boys, whom he had formed into a Bible class. He was fine and clean and strong; the boys loved him, and he had a great influence over them; and then he died. After conference the boys decided to ask a certain lawyer in the city to become their leader. "But," said the lawyer, "I cannot, for I am not right with God." With characteristic directness the boys replied, "Why not get right then?" This challenge the lawyer could not refuse.

The power of example, whether for good or evil, cannot be over estimated. If your life is not what it should be, unless you are prepared to so change it as to make it a worthy example to your boys, it were far better for you to quit scouting.

And you, boys, will never know until you have become men what an influence for good you may have on the men who are your leaders. May you help them as they are seeking to help you, to be always true to the Scout oath and Scout law.

A BIT OF TROOP NEWS.

Sure thing, Mike! Troop Eight is still alive, and notwithstanding the fact that the weather is so hot that we all melt and almost run through anything that we may happen to be sitting on, at our weekly meetings, we are here challenging any troop in town to equal us in attendance and efficiency. You other troops had better look out, for we are going out strong for that pennant that so many of you fellows would like to have, and remember we have an even chance with all you other troops this quarter, for it will not be quantity that counts this time, but QUALITY, and quantity? We got it and to spare! Well Scouts, when you haven't got anything to do better come around and pay us a visit, we are too busy to ever come around and see you.—The News Boy; "Wichita Eight."

All of the troops that are holding meetings this month, or any time during the summer, please report it to the Scout Executive's office and if you will write a snappy little article about your doings and hand it to either Harrold E. White at the Record News or H. E. Taylor, at Boy Scout headquarters.

A bit of news comes to us from the Pueblo flood two scouts who did some real heroic work, fighting the fierce torrent in a motor boat they at last succeeded in reaching a house which was floating away carrying five persons with it and which was fast burning away. The Scouts in some manner reached the various windows of the upper story where the five people were and rescued them from the trap of death.

I'm strong for the fellow who tackles his part
With courage and vigor and resolute heart;
Who is proud of the work he is given to do
And proud that folks know he will see the thing through;
Who goes boldly forward and sticks to his pace,
Considering slacking or failure, disgrace;
Who refuses to quibble or straddle or duck,

"SIDE TICKLERS."

Isn't It?

"Can you tell me what a ground hog is?" said the teacher.

"Sure," said Jimmy, "Sausage."

As Usual.

Elderly gentleman standing on train-steps to boy: "Say, son, will you run into that depot and see if I left a black handbag in the southwest corner?

Breath.

First Class Scout: Great Scott, boy! Why don't you chew cloves?

Safety First

An old lady was siting on the porch of a hotel in one of our southern cities where also there were a number of boys, was approached by one of them with this query:

"Can you crack nuts?"

"No, my dear, I can't, I lost all my teeth years ago."

"Then," said the boy, extending two hands full of walnuts, "please hold these while I go get some more?"

Abead.

Visitor: You haven't a skull of Napoleon here and yet you call this an up-to-date museum. Why each of the last three museums I visited had one.

Attendant (pointing out a small skull)—But you did not see this one. This was Napoleon's when he was a little boy.

THINK IT OVER.

It is true that men in groups, in a regiment, possess a force quite different from the sum of their individual power. But this sum varies with every leader. The worker accomplishes more or less, not only as his companions vary, but to even greater or less extent as his leaders change.

The raw recruit under Napoleon the Great is vastly different from his cousin Napoleon the Little; and an army of sheep led by a lion will almost always defeat an army of lions led by a sheep.—Saturday Evening Post editorial.

"TROOP SIX DO'IN'S."

Business consumed most of the time at the regular meeting of Troop Six last Friday. Plans for a hike on Tuesday were completely thrashed out and preparations for our parents night program were made. Our attendance is bolding up great during the summer considering the number of boys away on vacations.

Fellows, we have a sure enough mothers club Mrs. J. A. Harris was elected president. She is a wonder, just takes right hold and makes things go. They are to have one night of the month as their night, when they will meet with the Scouts, and believe me, we will have some time. Sure they furnishe the eats also. Ain't that fine!—H. B. White, Scoutmaster, Troop 6.

EFFICIENCY OR INEFFICIENCY

Hey, you fellers! What about this efficiency contest? Have you forgotten that there is still a contest open for competition. So far this month, all the competition shown has come from one troop. Do you think they are running against themselves? Why don't some of you Scouts tie a string on the scoutmaster's finger to make him remember to turn in that efficiency blank every Monday.

Troop Six won the big flag last quarter. But now we are starting a new contest, and some changes in the grading have been made. Now every troop has just as good a chance as the other, in fact, the small troop will now have it on the big ones. Hereafter, the percentage method will be used. Each month's total will be divided by the troop membership to get the percentage, and the three months total percentage will be divided by three to get the highest average percentage. Just as clear as mud, isn't it?

Let's all get a running start on this new contest so as maybe our momentum will carry us through. Work boys, pass those tests, wear your uniform to the meetings, get dad and mother out to watch you perform, hog-tie the troop committeemen and bring them to your meetings, read the editorial clipping from the Saturday Evening Post, and then sit down and think, "how can I help my troop to win this efficiency contest? Go to it, boys; show your paces.

"THE SUMMER CAMP."

By George Bolin.

(Second Installment.)

The next day, Wednesday, June 1st, the other Scouts arrived in full force, and strange as it may seem they arrived in time for dinner. Some came in touring cars, but the largest bunch came with Mr. Taylor in the truck. Camp life then began in earnest.

Things went smoothly for a few days, not an incident happened to mar the enjoyment of camp life. But on Friday, Si Marriott, a scoutmaster, took nine of us on a hike through the mountains to the Narrows, a place far famed for its beauty of scenery. On our way we stopped at the old home of Quanah Parker, that great old Comanche Chieftain about whom we read so much in Texas history. One of his daughters was living there. They say that he only had thirty-nine children. The woman was very nice to us showing us about the house and telling us much of the traditions of the place.

On the trail to the narrows, we discovered a tunnel in the mountainside, and immediately set out to explore it. We found that it went back into the mountain for about one hundred and fifty feet. Continuing our journey, we arrived at the Narrows at 11 a. m. A few minutes rest, and presto, we were all swimming and diving in the cool clear waters of the Narrows.

It was indeed an enchanting place, possibly the most beautiful spot in the Wichita mountains. On each side of our swimming hole, the walls of the canyon extended above us to a height of three hundred or more feet.

Fishing by hand became a sport at the Narrows, the scouts would form a human net across the stream and wait until the poor unsuspecting fish would come along; a splash, then a great fuss in the water and soon up would come the scout fish in hand. Twenty-seven of the scaley beauties were captured in this fashion. Wild grapes, which literally covered the creek bottom, and fish furnished us with a sumptuous dinner.

Following our lunch, four of us ascended to the top of the mountain to find a rattlesnake already occupying it. We quickly annihilated the foe, but during our absence the other scouts had struck for the camp. That meant little to our young lives, like the hardy woodsmen we were, we made our way back to camp arriving there only about thirty minutes after the others.

Rain (about three times a day) was the only thing to interrupt the monotony of camp life. Our cots had not yet arrived, but Mr. Taylor received a telegram stating that the cots were in Wichita Falls awaiting his orders. They had been shipped from the National Guard armory at Austin, Texas. Chester Powell, another scoutmaster, was dispatched to Wichita Falls in great haste to get the cots and bring them to camp, along with him went four scouts who had become afflicted with "cold feet" and wanted to come home.

Sunday night it rained and continued to rain until noon Monday. In the afternoon, four scouts and myself started on an exploration trip through the mountains. We skirted the base of Mount McKinley and came upon a running stream. Some of the scouts claimed that the stream ran all the time, while the others contended that it ran only after a rain. The only logical way to settle the controversy was to follow the stream to its source. Following the stream brought us to where it wasn't, but still we could not decide whether or not it came from a spring or a seep, so we agreed to call it a draw.

Then, we started for the top of Mount McKinley. From its summit me could see an old mine shaft, so we started for it. On the way down the mountain a skunk was discovered. His intentions may have been good, but he nearly asphyxiated us with a demonstration. At the foot of the mountain another skunk was sighted, this time we marched into battle heavily armed with rocks. Soon the foe was vanquished, and once again a scout victory was declared. It fell my lot to skin the hting which task I accomplished without much discomfiture.

As we were in the game preserve, we did not know whether or not it was unlawful to kill a skunk. Immediately the organization of the "Dirty Five" was started, and every member sworn to secrecy. The skunk skin was wrapped in a handkerchief very careful to eliminate the smell as far as possible. Our journey to the mine shaft was continued. We gave the old mine the once over and back to camp.

(To be concluded next Sunday.)

WEST ADDRESSES SCOUTS

"How American Legion posts can co-operate with the Boy Scouts" was the subject of an interesting article by James E. West, chief scout executive, in the July eighth issue of the American Legion weekly. In his article Mr. West outlined the work of the two organizations along patriotic lines careful to draw the distinction, resolute in his stand against making scouting military, but calling attention to the fact that both the Legion and the Scouts aim toward greater Americanism.

That a number of Legion posts were adopting scout troops was pointed out forcefully. Legion men of high moral character make the best scoutmasters; they are qualified for the job, so says Mr. West. Would it not be a good thing for our local post to line up with Scouting? They too might adopt a troop. Certainly with those fine new quarters ample provision could be made for a troop to hold their meetings there.

If your father or brother is a Legion man, mention this to him. Maybe he will get the Pat Carrigan post to back up the movement, and adopt a troop. Who knows?

"WOODEN LEGS."

Leroy was taking a merit badge examination for hiking. His answers had been fairly satisfactory, but when they come to the care of the feet while on a hike, Leroy was stumped.

Examiner: Leroy, how would you care for your feet after a ten-mile hike?

Leroy (absentmindedly): Why, I would take them off, of course!

"ACTION BOYS, ACTION!"

Some of the troops must either be dead or dying. The Ranger scout has appealed repeatedly for every troop to appoint one or more reporters to keep us posted on the activities of their troop. Something must be radically wrong. I know they wouldn't forget to perform their duty, that's not like a scout. Will some of you wise scouts tell me all about this thing? Honestly, I don't know whether we are coming or going.

Another thing, points will be given for getting the report in by Tuesday, five p. m. Every point is going to count on this new efficiency contest, so don't miss anything.

I'll tell you what to do. Appoint yourself a committee of one to see that this matter is brought up at the next business meeting, and have a reporter elected or appointed. What'chasay?

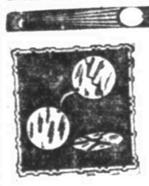

YOU NEVER CAN TAME A WILD-CAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous, Dangerous Calomel.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury! Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; Besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

MISS BONHAM MADE FAMOUS BY PAINTING

WASHINGTON, July 16.—While the announcement that the famous "Miss Wyoming" has been selected as honorary chairman of the committee of judges to select the world's champion all-around woman rider in the McAlpin Trophy contest at Cheyenne Frontier Days during the last week in July, in which she will be the first woman thus honored in the history of western cowboy sports, an interesting little "inside story" of unselfish service on behalf of the west and its reward is revealed.

Two years ago a newspaper man was sent out from New York, bringing the design of the now famous 1919 "Miss Wyoming" poster, complete but for the figure of "Miss Wyoming"—herself drawing aside the curtain which reveals the bucking bronche of the noted roundup.

It had been specified that none but a real Western girl should pose for the "Miss Wyoming" figure, and the correspondent arrived, a stranger from the East, to select the model.

A prominent Cheyenne society maid was invited to pose and refused coldly. Another was asked, and again the designer was snubbed. Another and another members of the local "400." Time grew short; a dozen had been asked, and still no model.

Then Miss Helen Bonham was suggested for the part, and in her the designer found a real cowgirl, almost the perfect type for the figure. "It will be hard work," she was told, "and others have refused to help," but she only laughed.

"If it will help Frontier Days and the West I will be glad to do it," Miss Bonham replied, and for a week the maid went through the gruelling work of posing for dozens of pictures until at last the right one was made.

The poster was published everywhere, and Miss Bonham, as "Miss Wyoming" was started on the road to fame.

Then the trip to the East as the state's messenger in delivering the Frontier Days invitations to the country's notables was suggested. Now, with the prospect of meeting the president, the mayors, the governors and being entertained as a celebrity by the greatest cities of the East, the maids who had before spurned the idea of posing and who had snubbed the Eastern correspondent suggesting it, all clamored to be chosen. "It should be some of us who are prominent," they said.

But Miss Bonham, as "Miss Wyoming," was by then not only prominent, she was famous, and the maid who, Cinderella-like, had risen from obscurity through her desire to help the West, went, as all newspaper readers know.

Entertained at the White House by President Harding, by New York millionaires, mayors, governors, the women's clubs, this little Western Cinderella charmed all by her graciousness and personality. In the meanwhile the girls who had "cold shouldered" the stranger from the East gnashed their teeth in dismay.

And now, with every cowgirl in the West in the contest to win the world's championship riding title at the great Frontier Days sports, with the gold, silver and diamond McAlpin Trophy and the attendant trip to New York for its presentation as the prize "Miss Wyoming" is again honored and on her badge of judgeship will be the inscription:

LORD FITZALAN NOT TO LIVE IN DUBLIN CASTLE

DUBLIN, July 16—Lord Fitzalan, the new Irish Viceroy, will not take up his residence in the state apartments of Dublin Castle. Normally the Castle besides being the seat of government in Ireland is the official residence of the Lord Lieutenant, and the Viceregal Lodge is merely a sort of rural rest house.

The Viceregal Lodge is at present being redecorated and furnished for the reception of the new Viceroy. He will have no other residence unless, as Lord Dudley did, he rents one for himself somewhere in the provinces.

After the first year of the war Dublin Castle was turned into a military hospital. The state rooms became dormitories and operation theaters. The hospital is now gone.

But the official residence has been absorbed by the growing necessities of Irish government. The place now swarms with clerks far exceeding in number any formerly employed in Irish administration. They have been recruited not from the ordinary Irish civil service but for the most part from across the Irish Sea.

All the most important officials live in the Castle. It is not safe for many of them to leave it since men employed there have been shot dead in the streets. There is, therefore, no room for the Lord Lieutenant.

It is understood that he intends to entertain much more freely than Lord French, but he will do so at the Cireregal Lodge. There will be garden parties and musical parties instead of the old-time formal functions for which the Castle was famous.

JAP COLLEGE HAS MONKEY GLAND CURRICULUM

TOKIO, July 16.—Following the lead of American, French and Austrian scientists and doctors, in grafting a portion of animal gland into the interstitial gland of the human body to produce renewed vitality, the Imperial University in Fukuoka, Japan, will soon start experiments of that nature here. The work by the school will be a departure from precedent, however, as it will be the first institution in the world to create a department for such work.

Dr. Yasusburo Sakaki, who will be in charge of the work, expects to submit both men and women in dotage to the operation, using both monkey and goat glands in making the experiment.

SUES FOR $5,000 FOR BITE.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., July 16.—A leg's a leg for a that—whether it be the graceful limb of feminity or the strong but unattractive male member.

So thinks Samuel D. Ashley, who, while not claiming the impairment of any beauty, is suing Louis Malandrone and four others for $5,000 for the bite of one female Airdale dog on the leg of the plaintiff, from which the latter became "sick, sore, lame and disordered and remained so for a long space of time."

PROTRACTED MEETING AT METHODIST MISSION
Revival services will be conducted at the Factory church July 3 to 16, inclusive, according to the announcement of Rev. W. A. Betts, pastor of the Wichita Mission, Methodist Episcopal, South.
The services will be in charge of Rev. H. C. Hands, well known evangelist.
It also was announced that Rev. H. D. Pinkston will preach at the North Side Methodist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

EXPOSED.
BOSTON, July 12.—Because his nightshirt looked like a young tent, Jacob Sladkewich was searched, and beneath the robe was found some illegal liquor. The police had entered the house searching for contraband "hooche." They were about to depart empty handed, when they noticed that jacob's "nightie" looked extra large. Jacob pleaded guilty in East Boston court and was fined $50.

KID HOUSE AND BATTLING SENATE ENGAGED IN BOUT FOR PRESTIGE-WEIGHT TITLE

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 16—With the attention of some hundred and five millions of people in the United States has been focused in recent weeks on the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, the Irish muss and innumerable other encounters the wide world over, there has been going on right her e in Washington a battle no less earnest, no less hotly contested, even though less spectacular.

Pugilistically speaking, the affair might be termed the fight between Kid House and Battling Senate. The prize is prestige in the leigislative functioning of the government.

Kid House is beginning to "come back." He was almost knocked out during the war and the late unpleasantness regarding the League of Nations which followed it. At least, he has been groggy for several years, and has been more or less content to "hang on" and let Battling Senate do all the leading.

But it's different now. Still speaking from a pugilistic standpoint, the head of Kid House is beginning to clear up from the war hammering, the mist is beginning to fade from his eyes and he is beginning to send in a punch or two himself.

The "Founding Fathers," to use President Harding's favorite expression, either wisely or unwisely decreed in the Constitution that the senate should have the say in matters affecting foreign affairs, treaties and what-not, while to the house should go the privilege of exclusive authorship in the matter of taxation and fiscal affairs.

Senatorial Initiative Wins.

There wasn't much argument over taxes during and immediately after the war. Bills were introduced and passed without much palaver and spectacle. The doings of the house didn't find the front page very often. It was different in the senate. In that select body there was a bitter, relentless, oratorical and most spectacular battle being waged over whether the United States should or should not become a member of the League of Nations. For days it held the front pages of the nation, and names like Johnson, Borah, Hitchcock, Reed, Lodge irreconcilable, bitter-ender, mild reservationist, et cetera, became forever engraved in the American mind.

Gradually the house was pushed into the background so far as popular interest and the news of the day went. Indeed, the members of the house themselves were wont to slip out of their seats and over into the senate chamber to see the fireworks there. There was little doing in the house, so little, in fact, that the house began to be looked upon by members of the rising generation as a sort of appendix to the senatorial body, which could just as well be dispensed with. The senate furnished the initiative in most things and the house rubber-stamped its acquiesence.

But things are different now. The house is beginning to assert itself again. Not only is it exercising its constitutional prerogatives in a most independent manner, but in the past few weeks it has even stepped over into the senate's domain and forced that solemn and austere body to meet it as an equal in fixing a matter of foreign policy.

The Rebirth of Spunk.

The senate went ahead and passed the Knox peace resolution and sent it to the house to be concurred in as a matter of course. But the house didn't concur. It had its own idea of how peace should be declared between the United States and Germany, and it embodied that idea in the Porter resolution.

The senate was shocked beyond words. What was this, insurgency? It was. Emphatically so. The house wouldn't budge. Neither would the senate. In the end they both concede a bit and the redrafted Knox-Porter resolution was finally passed and signed by the president. But it was a bit of a blow to senatorial dignity.

The house passed the army appropriation bill decreeing that the size of the United States army after October 1 next should not be greater than 150,000 officers and men. The senate raised the limit and expected to find little difficulty in adjusting the difference. But again the house asserted itself in a most disconcerting manner. The house wouldn't budge. The house had said the army was going to be limited to 150,000 men and that was all there was to it, so far as the house was concerned. The senate accepted its defeat in some bewilderment.

Practically the same was true of the navy appropriation bill. The house passed the bill and sent it to the senate, where a lot of amendments were tacked on, providing this and that and the other. Back it went to the house and the senatorial appendages were relegated to the ash heap. The senate was again shocked out of all its customary sedate complacency. The very idea! A bunch of ordinary representatives telling the United States senate what the size of the army and navy should be and where the locations of important defensive positions and bases should be! Preposterous!

But in the end the house view prevailed.

The prominece which attaches to tariff and taxation in the present session also is aiding the house in its "comeback." Under the Constitution these matters must originate with the house and the house is taking advantage of its constitutional prerogatives to the fullest extent.

"GOOD WOMEN" IS STORY OF CONVENTIONS

To just what degree one must abide by the convention of modern society is a much mooted question. There are those who believe that a woman can flaunt convention and still be considered a good woman. There are others who frankly admit that a woman must remain on the straight and narrow path of convention or be socially ostracized for the slightest transgression.

In "Good Women," the new Robertson-Cole super-special production adapted to the screen from the story by C. Gardner Sullivan, the question of propriety and how necessary it is for a woman to guard her reputation, is carefully brought out. The new picture was directed by Gasnier, director of the master photoplay "Kismet" and although a decidedly different type of film, is considered equally important and interesting by Gasnier.

One of the chief characters in the picture is Inna Brouevitch, to whom domestic happiness is everything. She loves her husband Nicoli, an irresponsible musical genius. Nicolai, permits his wayward fancy to stray afield and becomes enamored with the daring theories of Katherine Brinkley, a petted heiress who considers she is entitled to "live her own life," which means a defiance of conventions.

The romance of these "soul mates" does not include the simple, loving wife. To Katherine the existence of Madame Brouevitch is but an incident. With the daring which is expressive of her theories, she exclaims "If she cannot hold his love, what right has she to spoil his life?" Then comes the test which proves the first flaw in her argument against convention. Intimacy with the "temperamental pianist discloses the shallows of his nature and Katherine realizes her mistake. It is now a fight to get back to her former standing in the community.

Brouevitch returns to the wronged wife while Katherine Brinkley passes through the fires of disillusionment, self-pity and suffering; eventually emerging from the ordeal with the knowledge that, after all, the existing social laws are doubtless the best, and happy, after her experience, that she may enjoy the quietude of a normal mal life against which she had raged so furiously.

Rosemary Theby, the beautiful screen favorite, is seen in the exacting role of Katherine Brinkley. Miss Theby does the best work of her career. Hamilton Revelle, as the musical genius, plays opposite Miss Theby and gives his usual finished performance. Others in the well-balanced cast are Irene Blackwell, William P. Carlton and Arthur S. Hull.

WARN OF DANGER IN ALBERTA WASTES

EDMONTON, Alberta, July 16—If you are thinking of adventuring to the Fort Norman oil fields, think a long time longer before you start. That's the warning of Theodore A. Link, geologist and pioneer explorer of the Mackenzie river basin.

The country is a frozen wilderness a thousand miles from nowhere, according to Mr. Link. It is dotted with infrequent posts of the Hudson's Bay company and has always been regarded as worthless except for its wealth in furs.

Before a railroad or pipe line is built into the region," said Mr. Link, "an output of 30,000 barrels a day must be assured. There is only one well there now. Its output is 1,500 barrels a day. To drill it cost $150,000 and it took seven months to get the machinery in. To sink enough wells to insure 30,000 barrels a day would cost several million dollars, to say nothing of the time it will take to ship in the machinery. The building of a pipe line would cost $30,000,000. A railroad would cost $30,000 a mile.

There may be a bonanza field on the Mackenzie or there may not. One well does not prove it. But even if there is plenty of oil there, hundreds of thousands of dollars must be expended before the field can be put on a paying basis. A few investors may get rich, but a little army of men will go broke. Hunting for oil in that country is not a job for a poor man."

Mr. Link and John Zieman started their geological explorations ninety miles north of Fort Norman. They went into country never before seen by a white man. They floundered through windfall and muskeg swamps they climbed mountains 3,000 feet high. Black flies and mosquitoes enveloped them in clouds. Within the Arctice Circle the blazing heat of the sun almost prostrated them. They almost were swamped in crossing Great Slave Lake. Again they nearly lost their lives in shooting Smith's Rapids.

NEW GIFT TO BELGIUM

Here is another great American achievement (not yet achieved in fact, but in the process of achievement), and the Belgians believe that it will prove a spiritual and indestructible barrier against future German aggression. Note that it is an American achievement.

Do you recall the day when the newspapers announced the German march upon Louvain and the looting and destruction of Belgium's treasures of literature and learning, the priceless collections of the great library?

And now from this country has gone a man, chosen by Belgians, who has designed the stricture which will take the place of that destroyed and another who will lay the corner stone within a few weeks from this date.

Whitney Warren, to whom Harvard gave the honorary degree of AM in 1913, was the man selected by the Belgians to rebuild the shrine of literature and learning. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university was the man selected by the Belgians to lay the corner stone and make the address proclaiming and interpreting the significance of the event.

No greater tribute ever has been paid to the art accomplishments of any nation than the selection of Americans as the architects of the new library at Louvain, for it is doubtful if any structure, reared in this generation, will have, in years to come, such significance as this will have.

"It will stand," said Mr. Warren, "the work and tribute of a free people to the gallantry of brethren whose hearts might bleed, but whose knees would never bend to the assault of the oppressor.

"It has been suggested that each American institution of learning shall have a committee appointed from and by its student body, pledged to devote itself to the collection of some special group of books and some special sum of money."—Boston Globe.

BILL FARNUM COMING TO MAJESTIC IN "THE RAINBOW TRAIL" WEDNESDAY

"THE RAINBOW TRAIL" WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

William Farnum is to be the attraction at the Majestic theater next Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Farnum will appear in "The Rainbow Trail," a sequel to the "Riders of the Purple Sage" which scored a hit here a short time ago. A famous picture based on the famous novel by Zane Grey. This star never has been seen in a more stirring, heart reaching drama.

"The Rainbow Trail" was photographed in the wilds of the Arizona desert and is a typical William Farnum production. It abounds in thrilling situations and episodes. Mr. Farnum is supported by his famous cowboys, who do some marvelous riding and shooting.

The scenic efects are beautiful, among those shown being the painted desert the Grand Canyon of Arizona and the homes of the ancient Aztec cliff dwellers. There also are numerous glimpses of the Navajo reservations and its inhabitants.

PIONEER HAS SEEN KANSAS CITY GROW FROM RIVER STOP

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 16.—Living on a farm which the growth of Kansas City has turned into a golf links is a man who has seen the city grow from a tiny Missouri river landing to 325,000 people. He has seen the Indian and the buffalo disappear, he freighted across the plains in the days before transcontinental railroads were more than dreams, and fought through the Civil War in the country in which he had been reared.

This pioneer is William M. Johnson. He lives just over the state line from Kansas City, in Johnson county, Kansas. He is the best informed man on Kansas and Missouri "border" history in this vicinity. He naturally has made valuable contributions to the local historical society.

Mr. Johnson was born on the old Shawnee Mission, less than a mile from his present home. His father, the Rev. Thomas Johnson, was an early superintendent of that institution, which was established by the Methodist church in 1837 for the spiritual and economic improvement of the Shawnee Indians.

As a boy, William Johnson went to school with the sons of chieftains from the plains of Kansas and one summer, when he was 10 years old, he was allowed to accompany the Indians on their annual buffalo hunt to the plains. He brought back his own share of dried buffalo meat. Getting a winter's supply of meat was a very important part of the year's program in the days before packinghouses were dreamed of in Kansas City.

William Johnson grew up in the bitter border warfare between "free state" and "slave state" men which preceded the Civil War. His father was a strong pro-slavery advocate, and was finally shot down at the doorway of his home by a band of "jayhawkers," as the free state raiders were called. The young son spent some time in the Confederate army during the Civil War. His farm, now a golf links, was part of the original Shawnee Mission tract, which his father bought from the Methodist church when the mission was discontinued. A proposal to buy several of the mission buildings, still standing to preserve them as a memorial of early Kansas history, was introduced in the last legislature.

KARL WIRTH OF HUMBLE ORIGIN.

Cabinets are so unstable in Europe that new men are constantly coming to the front, and, in many cases they vanish as abruptly as they appear. One of these new arrivals, the present German chancellor, Karl Joseph Wirth, has played a relatively inconspicuous part in public life. Like Friedrich Ebert, Prince Max, and Konstantin Fehrenbach, three of his predecessors in office during the brief career of the young republic, he comes from Baden, the cradle of German democracy and republicanism.

Like his immediate predecessor, Fehrenbach, he is the son of a country teacher, and in fact attended the same public school and the same secondary school as the latter. Moreover, the political careers of the two men have been almost identical. The new premier belongs to the Christian People's party, or Catholic Center.

After completing his preparatory studies Wirth became a teacher in the scientific school at Freiberg, the city where he was born forty one years ago, and where he has resided constantly since. It was the revolution which brought him into national prominence, although his creditable service as a member of the Freiberg city council had previously given him some local reputation.

He is rated in Germany as belonging decidedly to the new generation, and as sincerely democratic and republican. A man of conciliatory and sympathetic temperament, he was hardly expected to show the firmness of character needed to guide the government through its recent crisis. However, the courage which he has exhibited since assuming office has considerably reassured the country on the latter point.

In New York city more than 4,250,000 telephone calls are made daily. The operators number 16,000 and there are 5,000,000 miles of wire within the city.

ASK ME

Polly and Lois—Carol Dempster can be reached at the Griffith Studios at Mamaroneck, N. Y. Eva and Jane Novak are sisters and a letter addressed to 6629 1-2 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal., will be received by them. You are welcome.

Jessie—The actor who played Toby Moreland in "An Off-Shore Pirate" is Jack Mulhall. Address both Viola Dana and Jack Mulhall, care of Metro, N. Y. C. John Bowers, Goldwyn Pictures Corp., N. Y. city.

Bright Eyes—You are perfectly right about the actor in the "Hawk's Trail." It is King Baggot who plays the lead. I agree with you that he is fine looking and I suppose he is accustomed to having "Bright Eyes" ask for his photo, so he probably has a supply on hand for just such admirers as you.

Ruthie—Jack Mulhall plays Dick Beverly opposite "Pat" played by Mary Miles Minter" in "The Little Clown." Neely Edwards plays the part of Toto.

Din—The last time I heard of Paula Shay she was playing in "The Black Panther's Club." "J Acuse" is a French film, not an Italian.

Newton—Diana Allen, who plays the feminine role in "The Kentuckians," portrays Mamie Pike in "The Conquest of Canaan." "Nobody's Kid" was taken from the widely read book "Mary Cary," so your friend was mistaken about its being an original story for the screen.

Renie—Harry Myers is the actor who made such a hit in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." He will play opposite Bebe Daniels in "The March Hare." Yes, Wanda Hawley is married. Very happily married, so Dame Grundy says.

Fan—It was Jason Richards who played the role of "Sashcha" opposite Alice Brady in "The Land of Hope." Rene Guissart has charge of the camera work in "The Lying Truth." The first picture starring Vivian Martin released by Goldwyn was "The Song of the Soul."

E. D. Dee—Perhaps you do not know that the Bible stories have been used as great many times for the screen. Such a wealth of dramatic situations naturally would not be overlooked by the producers. A dramatization of these stories obviously could not be copyrighted and the writer or adapter would not have the same right as the writer of original scenarios.

Film Fam—Dorothy Gish's hair is not bobbed and black. That is a wig. Her own hair is long and blonde. She has worn the black wig ever since she appeared in "Hearts of the World."

The Timetans never touch water, but clean their faces and hands with butter, which they keep in the ground as long as sixty years.

"IN THE HEART OF A FOOL" AT STRAND THEATER MONDAY

ANGELENO "PHILADELPHIA"

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 16.—Herman J. Schutte, of Los Angeles, has found his brother, Frank, after twenty years of searching. A story in a local newspaper announced that Herman was here searching for his brother, from whom he received a last letter twenty years ago. Frank, a railroad man, read the story. He found his brother.

According to statistics gathered by the Institute of Public Service, one in every fifteen students in forty-two American colleges is studying with the view to entering the teaching profession. The figures are based on a survey covering more than 20,000 undergraduates.

"THE FOOLISH MATRONS" SHOWS HE WHO PLAYS MUST PAY PIPER

Maurice Tourneur presents "The Foolish Matrons"

"He who calls the tune must pay the Piper." So the old proverb runs. That is one of the truest maxims in life is set forth in vivid colors, in Maurice Tourneur's production of "The Foolish Matrons" which comes to the Olympic theater next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Here is the answer to what every woman wants to know, and what every man thinks he knows—what makes a successful wife? It is a story that will get the most blase. It is different. It has three heroines and it is hard to say which is the most interesting. It is a story of marriage presented in that brilliant, trenchant fashion that distinguishes Tourneur's productions from the average run of screen plays.

Two of the women fail to make a success of marriage—it is the third woman, that comes not empty handed but bearing spiritual gifts, who realizes to the full what marriage may mean.

In presenting the story as a screen play, Maurice Tourneur has given it the same lavish mounting that has marked his productions in the past, and the various roles are being interpreted by one of the most distinguished casts that Tourneur had given us during his brilliant career as a producer.

Hobart Bosworth, whose sterling characterizations of the past have established him as one of the foremost stars of the screen will be seen in the stellar role of Dr. Ian Fraser, a part far different from any in which he has appeared during the past. In place of the rugged action which has marked his former triumphs, he will be seen in a character that is all mental. The problems he confronts in this story are no less perplexing than those which have won him fame in the past, but he wins through the force of his personality in place of fistic encounters. The remainder of the cast includes such well remembered as Doris May, Mildred Manning, Kathleen Kirkham, Betty Schade, Margaret McWade, Charles Meredith, Wallace MacDonald and little Frankie Lee.

MARY MINTER HAS EXCELLENT ROLE IN PICTURE AT EMPRESS

Mischievous, rollicking youth that blithely forges its way to happiness in spite of all obstacles is the principal ingredient in the swiftly moving Realart comedy, "Moonlight and Honeysuckle", coming Monday to the Empress Theatre.

Mary Miles Minter is always best in those parts which call for pep and vivaciousness and the role of Judith Baldwin certainly gives her plenty of opportunity to exercise those qualities. Complications galore arise when she proposes trial engagements with a couple of her most ardent wooers in order to see which one of them will "wear" best as a potential husband. Of course, it's all strictly conventional, as far as trial engagements can be and before the final adjustment there is a world of super-humorous situations.

ITALIANS PLEASED WITH RECEPTION IN TEXAS PORT

"Ze toddle, she is too much lika patta da head and rubba da stomach sama time," ruefully complained a light-footed sailor after essaying vainly to acquire the bouncing, rubbery step. "She almost maka me—what you call it—seasick!"

During the Libia's brief stay in this port her commissioned and enlisted personnel were the recipients of an elaborate program of entertainment at the hands of Galveston citizens.

ELECTRICITY NECESSARY IN MAKING FILM

A portable electric light plant made it possible for the Goldwyn company to complete the 410 snow scenes for Katherine Newlin Burt's picture, "Snowblind," which comes to the Gem theater Monday in record time. Reginald Barker took his company to Banff, Canada, from which place they traveled every day to Lake Louise to take the necessary scenes.

The use of the portable plant with its ten rows of Kliegel lights was imperative, as the sun never shone strongly enough for photographic purposes. Consequently, the actors played with the lights directly in their faces and the camera shooting straight into whatever sun there was, an arrangement that has never been tried before in motion photography.

AUTO INDUSTRY LEADS RETURN TO NORMALCY

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—The automobile business is 10 per cent more prosperous than any other industry of the nation, according to Alfred Reaves of New York, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who was in Detroit this week to attend the automobile conference.

"We have every reason to be conservatively optimistic," said Mr. Reaves. "Slowly, but certainly, the automobile manufacturing industry is returning to normal. I believe 1922 will be a good year for it. This summer should prove much more satisfactory than the spring dil. The great business of a year ago cannot be expected to return for a long time, but a good steady business seems assured.

About Complete.

"Price readjustment in the automobile industry seems to have been about completed, judging from the final report just issued in the national automobile chamber of commerce, which shows changed prices on the various makes of cars. The new prices in many instances go back to the figures of a few years ago, notwithstanding that the models in many cases are bigger, with better finish and such additional equipment as cord tires and improved electrical apparatus.

"The midyear charge has now stabilized the industry to a degree that is bringing increased sales to all companies.

"Carload shipments from the factories during April and May were 67 per cent of the production for the same two months of las year, and there is reason to believe June will be at approximately the same rate.

Much Better.

"Compared with the feverish rush of motor-car buying last spring a two-thirds demand looks to be a big falling off, but compared with normal years, it shows that the motor-car business is faring much better than other lines.

"There has been a steady demand for used cars, prices of which have also been substantially reduced. Lower prices on new cars have been of somewhat by the reduced allowances on used cars when offered for trade-in by the retail buyer. In other words many who waited for the recent cuts if the past few months saw comparatively little owing to the [illegible] valuation on their old cars.

"Good buying power has been shown where prices have been reduced or where it was known that present prices and quality would be maintained. The national automobile chamber of commerce figures show that, with more than 8,000,000 passenger cars in use, the replacement demand alone should be about 1,000,000 cars. The production of passenger cars last year was 1,833,000. To show how close are the new prices, one of the largest manufacturers in his last cut was only able to reduce $25. This manufacturer is producing at the rate of 110,000 vehicles a month. During this readjustment period some cars are being sold at a loss because of the high wages and the costly materials that were bought last fall.

"While this week may bring a few more changes in cars that have not been reduced this year, it is generally agreed that the mid-year reductions have stabilized conditions in the industry with little possibility of further changes during 1921.

"The success of the automobile industry has been based on big production and the resulting low prices which insure a broad market. For that reason every effort has been made to produce better cars at lower prices to insure the big productions which make increased values possible. Moreover, in these readjustments of the past few weeks, motorcar manufacturers generally have taken into consideration the need for increased car and truck sales, by the 35,000 dealers throughout the country.

"The truck business continues to be on a par with general business, bt with an improved future just as soon as general construction and road building programs get under way, and railroads perfect their plans for the use of motor trucks for short-haul traffic, and in connection with store delivery."

With its passenger car output double that of six weks ago, present indications are that the General Motors Corporation will turn out approximately 300,000 cars, in all its lines this year. Chevrolet and Buick are in the production was with sufficient orders on hand to keep the factories running at the present rate for at least another thirty days. These figures indicate a production of about 75 per cent of that of the feverish period right after the signing of the armistice.

It is expected that production on the new Buick four-cylinder model will be under way next week. While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that this new touring car will retail at about $1000. Two open and two closed models comprise the line. Tests on experimental cars have been satisfactory according to those who have ridden in them. It is confidently predicted in the vehicle city that the Buick factory will be running at full capacity in August. Sales of six-cylinder models were stimulated shortly after the Buick price reductions. Preparatory to the arrival of the four in motordom, conferences of dealers and distributors are being held frequently in Flint.

MAY PREVENT SALE OF CARS ON SUNDAY

CLEVELAND, July 16.—Dealers and distributors in the Middle West particularly are watching with interest the attempt of the Cleveland Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' association to prevent the sales of automobiles on Sunday.

If a proposed ordinance is put into effect it will be unlawful for any automobile salesroom to be open on Sunday, and for any person to make any kind of a transaction affecting the sale or transfer of a motor car. It will also be unlawful for any person to display for sale any automobile in any place, either salesroom or used car lot.

According to those behind the new ordinance the business of selling automobiles in Cleveland "has degenerated to a catch-as-catch-can practice similar to pawnshop methods."

The dealers also say:

"The ordinance will particularly apply to the irresponsible fly-by-night dealer, who fills a vacant lot with a varied assortment of junk and the curbstone brokers, whose principal stock in trade at all times consists of stocks that have been picked up in bundle-by-cities."

Cooling System Important Part of Motor Power Plant

The cooling system is a very important part of the power plant of an automobile. If no means was provided for keeping down the excessive heat the engine would soon damage itself be burning up the lubricating oil. The effect of this would be to score the cylinders so that they would have to be reground, to overheat the engine so that it would knock, and finally, to cause the pistons to seize. When this happens the pistons become stuck in the cylinder and the engine stops. This may bend the crankshaft or connecting rod so badly that they will have to be replaced, and the pistons may be so tightly welded in the cylinder that they will be broken in the attempt to remove them.

It must be understood that the word "cooling" is used in a technical sense, as the engine works best at a temperature that is far from comfortable to the touch. In fact the hotter it is the more power we get out of it. This is because it is a heat engine, using the expansion of the gas as it exploded to push down the piston. If the cylinder walls are cool some of the heat goes to warm them up and less is left to make power. This explains why an engine has very little "pep" when first started. But as soon as the cylinder walls are properly heated the full force of the explosion is exerted on the piston. It must then be apparent that the real purpose of the cooling system is to prevent the engine overheating and not to cool it in the ordinary meaning of the word.

It is unfortunate that a cooling system is necessary, as we lose at least 30 per cent. of the energy through the cooling system alone. But this loss is unavoidable on account of the high temperature of the explosion, which varies between 2,000 and 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. We may make some use of this surplus heat in winter by diverting it into the body of the car so as to warm the passengers, but that is all.

With further study of the problem our engineers may succeed in making better use of this wasted energy, but the outlook is not very bright.

There are three distinct methods of cooling the automobile engine, called the pump system, the thermosiphon, and air cooling. The pump system is the favoriate as it allows the engine to be abused to a point where the other systems would overheat. This damages the engine, just the same, but the results are not so apparent.

The essential parts of the pump system are a water jacket around the tops and sides of the cylinders. This is filled with water which is kept circulating by means of the pump. The only type of pump now in use is the centrifugal, which drives the water away from the center by centrifugal force. This draws the water from the radiator and forces it into the water packets. Here it takes up the heat from the cylinders and passes back into the radiator, entering it at the top. As it passes down the water loses some of its heat to the outside air. As the car runs forward the air passes through the core of the radiator and carries off the heat. But the engine is frequently run with the car standing still, so that there will be no draught through the radiator. To take care of this condition, there is a fan set just back of the radiator. This is driven by a belt from the crankshaft and is turning all the time the engine is running. One or more drain cocks are placed at the low spots of the system so as to drain out the water to prevent freezing or for cleaning. Rubber hose connects the radiator to the pump and water jackets. Rubber is used so as to allow for vibration. There is a strainer in the top of the radiator, where it is filled, and also an overflow pipe to carry off any excess of water and any steam which may be formed. These would make a dangerous pressure in the system, but the overflow pipe takes care of such conditions.

HINTS FOR MOTORISTS

Watch the brushes of the generator occasionally to see if they are sparking. This may be done to: dirty commutator, rough from burning! high mica, or worn out of true. The brushes may not be properly fitted, they may be stuck in the guide, have a weak spring, or be used up. When sparking is noticed have the trouble investigated immediately as the commutator will be badly damaged and the battery will not receive the proper charge.

If you have a vacuum tank on the fuel line or your car do not neglect to drain the water pocket occasionally. This also helps to clear it of sediment. There is usually a water pocket in the bottom of the carbureter, which should also have an occasional cleaning. If these precautions are neglected you will sooner or later have trouble which will stop the engine and may take some time to locate.

Do not neglect to try the brakes every time you take the car out. Choose a moment when the way is clear ahead and then speed up and try the service brake. After this try the emergency brake. Do both tests several times. It is a good plan to have some one stand where he can watch the wheels as the car stops. If one wheel continues to revolve and the other one looks and slides, the brakes are badly out of adjustment. The loose one should be tightened until both hold evenly and neither of them locks when the car is stopped.

Go over your steering gear occasionally to see if any part is coming loose. If this mechanism fails there is usually a serious accident. If all parts are tight, put oil or grease wherever necessary and then see if there is any lost motion at the steering wheel. If there is an inch or so it should be taken out. Details differ with different designs, but they all have some means of adjustment. Have this attended to at the service station.

Are all your cylinders firing properly? If not, you are wasting gasoline and filling the dead cylinder with oil which will carbonize when you get it firing again. Give the engine a little more gas while idling and open the pet cocks to look for flame. If no flame spurts out the cylinder is dead. If you have o cylinder is dead. If you have no screw driver to short-circuit the spark plugs. If the engine slows down it is a live cylinder. If it does not effect the hunning of the engine it is a dead cylinder.

During the hot weather it is advisable to try the fan belt occasionally for if that is loose the engine will heat. If the fan can be moved easily or will spin if it is given a start the belt is too loose and should be tightened immediately. This does not apply to belts that have an automatic take-up device.

If you have not already done so, clean out the cooling system. Dissolve two pounds of washing soda (one pound for a Ford or other small engine) in hot water and pour into the radiator, filling up with fresh water. Run the car as usual all day and drain out that night. Fill with fresh water and change again the following day. This will go a long way toward preventing overheating in summer.

RUBBER MEN REPORT TIRE SALES GOOD

AKRON, Ohio, July 16.—The outstanding feature of the week in the rubber industry was the rehiring of 3,000 men by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and the speeding of production to 26,000 tires a day through the working of three shifts a day in the production department.

A Real Thrill.

The call for the last 1500 men to start immediately was probably the greatest thriller Akron received in the past year, and the fact that difficulties were encountered in finding the men shows the general condition of the industry and the city.

It is believed that the improvement in the tire industry is of a permanent character rather than a mere seasonal spurt because it is roubted whether E. G. Wilmer, president of Goodyear, would have rushed into increased production on anything less than sound indications that the improvement was of a permanent character.

Many Orders.

Firestone, during the week, has changed to two nine-hour shifts and a half day on Saturday as compared with two eight-hour shifts and no work Saturday, which was the previous production schedule. The increase at Firestone has been confined mainly to the production of the smaller and popular sized tires and the orders occasioning the increase came from both the dealers and the manufacturers.

Miller thus far has not come out with any official announcement regarding the amount of production, but the fact that they had to work at least one Saturday and Sunday to catch up with rush orders and the fact that they are hiring men makes it quite certain that schedule has been increased from the 3,000 made two weeks ago to at least 4,000.

A Long Drag.

Goodrich is running along on the previous schedule as far as can be learned. The office, readjustments at Goodrich have been practically completed and the feeling among the employees in that the company has now settled into the new method of conducting business and that the time has come for a long drag of profitable business.

Goodyear leads the field in increases in sales, largely because of the general tightening of the reins on the salesmen throughout the country, which has made it necessary for them to either produce or find themselves out of employment. As a result they have thoroughly combed every possible dealer and because of personal effort have overcome, to a large extent, the resistance which is generally encountered among the dealers.

RUMORED THAT FORD MAY TURN OUT TIRES

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—From a source close to H. S. Firestone, comes a report that an industrial site has been purchased in Dearborn with a view of erecting a large tire plant within a short distance of the Fordson tractor works. It is understood that the deal for the property was consummated following several visits to Dearborn by Mr. Firestone, close friend of Mr. Ford and president of the Firestone Tire Company.

It is said Henry Ford will be associated with Firestone in the enterprise, which it is expected will manufacture all the tires used on the Fords.

The site and later erection and equipment of the plant will involve a large money outlay.

Efforts to obtain confirmation of the report from Ford Motor Car company officials were unavailing, although the information emanates from persons close to Mr. Firestone said, to be in position to speak authoritatively.

Twelve years ago Hartwell Lyons, living near Augusta, Me., lost his ancestral watch. While plowing recently he turned it up and found it was as good as ever, barring rusted hands and stem, which a jeweler speedily repaired.

BLOW-OUTS FROM AUTO ROW
BY FLAT TIRE

The sale of new cars for the week just closing have come to the front very perceptibly over the previous week with almost every dealer reporting fair business. Used cars are moving nicely, but the biggest increase of all is in the tire end. The tire dealers say that hot weather brings out the defects quicker than anything else and that an automobile is no good without tires so this is where they cut in.

W. B. Omohundro of the Motor Supply company spent Friday in Iowa Park attending the celebration at that place and incidentally looking after the display of Ford cars and Ferdson tractors which were put on by his firm. Bland states that his demonstration was very well received which all goes to show that Ford products are not a thing of the past yet.

F. D. Keim reports a shipment of Studebakers and busines on the incline. Keim has been very busy the past week, not only in the auto business, but Wednesday night he staged a motion picture show at the Palace theater which was a trip through the Studebaker factory at South Bend, Ind. The picture took exceptionally well with the large attendance that was present and Keim says that if that won't sell 'em he has several other new ways left.

Charles Nolen of the Nolen-Stringer company reports the sale of two new Haynes-50 the past week and some good prospects left. Now we don't give Charlie all the credit for Stringer is still on the job and when he is around he generally gets his share of the business.

E. V. Lesley of the Auto Tire company says business sure is fine and that collections—well figure this out for yourself. Lesley has been putting out Federals this week besides fitting out several parties for cross-country touring.

Carl Waelder has been too busy doing this committee work for the dealers' association to give his business much time lately. That's what we call a real man when they get out and beat the pavements this kind of weather with nothing coming in for the effect.

Frank Queisser of the Motor Supply company, manages to keep busy these days. If it is not selling Fords its spinning the top, but just so he keeps busy anyway.

L. L. Dixon says he has eight on his waiting list for Buicks. Sure is a pity that the factory don't increase its production to take care of this fellow. We noticed something in the paper a week ago that said they had contemplated increasing their production and we suppose they had Dixon in mind when they made their plans.

DAVID BUICK BACK IN AUTOMOBILE GAME

GRAND RAPIDS, July 16.—Much interest is shown over the announcement that the Lorraine Motors Corporation, which formerly was the Hackett Motor Car company, has passed into the hands of a new company headed by David Buick, founder of the Buick Motor company. Mr. Buick will be president of the concern, while A. H. Wyatt, Toledo, is vice-president and general manager.

John L. Larkin, formerly with the Haynes Automobile company, Kokomo, as sales-promotion manager, will be sales-promotion manager, F. Van Voorst is assistant general manager.

A new car designed by Mr. Buick will be made, and the first testing models are expected to be out within the next three months. The capacity of the plant is twenty-five cars a day. It is expected that about 100 men will be employed at the start.

Mr. Buick's re-entrance into the automobile field is bound to attract attention. He was one of the pioneers of the industry and has seen the car that bears his name assume a position surpassed by few automobiles of standard make.

Clarence Dodge of McFall Brothers left last week for a two week's trip through Colorado via a Dodge touring car. Venture to say he will have a wonderful trip and according to Julian McFall his safe return is assured when his car is considered.

Karl Thompson, our Packard friend, has spent the greater part of the week down in Dallas and Fort Worth. Wonder if he is making arrangements for more Packards? We understand they are moving pretty brisk since the drop.

Hugh Weaver of King & Weaver says business is good. The only thing that is wrong over there is that Hugh has too much to do and just can't get around to call on all the prospects often enough.

Al Booth reports the largest single sale of the week which was a White fire truck to the city of Graham. Al says that these don't come very often but, oh, when they do "Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling."

Herman Dodson of the Southern Tire & Vulcanizing Company, says that he is through working all day and half the night and has decided to close his establishment at about 8:30 p. m. Dodson says that the Firestone users here would keep him up all night if he would allow it but he don't want to do all the business so he has decided to close early and give someone else a chance.

Dan Rubsam of the Marshall Huff Motor Company, has no news this week which as Dan says 'would be of interest. He manages to keep pretty busy most of the time just the same, don't know whether it is the ball games or the golf club that take his time.

D. L. Fritz reports business good. His shop is always crowded and the sale of new cars has been good. With a line like the Marmon one can't expect sales every day so it is not numbers of cars sold he boasts of.

Walter Daugherty spent a few days out in the territory last week with mighty good results. Walter reports the sale of three Overlands and is not counting the one he lost in the Sanders-Haid fire last Saturday either. Walter says that is one way to sell 'em but it is not always satisfactory.

J. M. Mosely, who has been connected with Eckman & Von Allmen for the past few months leaves that organization Monday to go with the Lloyd Weaver Company. Although Mr. Mosely has only been in Wichita Falls a few months, he has made a host of friends who will be pleased at his good fortune.

G. J. Moulder of Wilhelm-Moulder Company reports the sale of a new Cleveland this week besides three second hand jobs. Moulder says they will get over on Lamar Avenue when they are looking for good cars and he hasn't the heart to refuse anyone with the money.

PRESS DELEGATES TO SEE HISTORIC ISLAND VOLCANO

By Associated Press.

HILO, Island of Hawaii, T. H., July 13.—Delegates to the Press congress of the world, which will meet in Honolulu next October, and will visit this island at the conclusion of their business sessions, will be shown the spot where forty years ago, a flow of lava from Maunaloa volcano, which threatened to destroy this city, was stopped in its path as a princess of the royal line faced the oncoming river of fire and prayer that Hilo might be spared.

Not only will the visitors see the spot where the 10-months flow of lava fidally stopped as Princess Ruth faced the molten river alone, but they will hear from the lips of men who saw the incident the story of Hilo's escape.

For more than 300 days, according to eye witnesses, the lava had been pouring steadily from the side of the mountain, when suddenly the stream of fire changed its course and bore down on the city of Hilo. The efforts of the white men failed to stop the approach of disaster, so Hawaiians took the matter into their own hands.

Royal Hawaiian blood was said to bear weight with Pele, goddess of the volcano, so Princess Ruth at Honolulu was appealed to. She answered the call and, as she gazed towards the mountain with her coterie of followers behind her, she could see the track of destruction extending upward, mile after mile, while at its forefront, almost on the edge of the city, trees were burning and great columns of smoke were ascending.

A platform had been built in the path of the flow, and as Princess Ruth mounted its steps, sacrifices of pigs and chickens were offered to the angry goddess of the volcano. The princess, on her knees, appealed to Pele to spare Hilo. And the flow stopped.

Plainly visible against the foot of this hill today is to be seen the face of the lava flood, as it piled up and hardened in 1881 when the Princess Ruth came to the rescue of her people.

Gothic originally was a term of reproach given to a style of architecture by the renaissance architects of the sixteenth century. It was popular with some from the time it began about the ninth century and was frequently spoken of as the pointed style.

URGES SELECTION OF FRESH RUBBER IN BUYING TIRES

The automobile tire market has been flooded in recent months with great quantities of tires, many of them hoary with age. Manufacturers who guessed that the great sales of the war period were going to keep up indefinitely found themselves when the big slump came with millions of tires on their hands.

"There is a big satisfaction" says L. L. Dixon of the Dixon Motor company, dealer in United States tires, "in knowing the tires you offer the public are fresh live goods. Everyone knows how rubber deteriorates with age—a rubber band that has been laid away for several months loses its elasticity and breaks easily. The United States Tire Company was never able to fill its orders during the period of prosperity and as a consequence today has only new fresh tires to offer its customers."

GEORGE PATULLO SEEING COLORADO BY AUTOMOBILE

"Mile High," an intensely gripping bit of melodramatic fiction, with its scene laid in Denver, proved of deep interest to readers of a well known weekly magazine recently. The story was by Henry C. Rowland, well known author and it was well told. Rowland apparently knows his Denver and the high high altitude surrounding it.

But that writer may have to look to his laurels. A Texas author is now absorbing the scenario effects of Colorado and its environs. George Pattullo the man who gave to the world the first real picture of the fighting spirit of the A. E. F. "over there" is making a Colorado tour in his Cadillac car. While the trip is a vacation outing, the author's instinct will undoubtedly not be denied, and material may be gathered for forthcoming tales in Pattullo's inimitable fashion that will prove of marked interest to those who look for the Texas man's "by-lines."

W. H. Francis of the Magnolia Petroleum company, heads another Texas party now motoring in Colorado. The Francis party is traveling in a Cadillac Suburban or seven-passenger closed car, secure from any visitation of the elements. Both the cars were shipped by rail from Texas to Denver, road conditions, following the Pueblo flood, preventing overland driving.

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."
—EMERSON

—Never in the history of the automobile business has the truth of this saying been proved so conclusively as in the SALES of Studebaker Cars all over the entire country in the six months ending June 30, 1921. In Greater New York in June alone there were 451 NEW STUDEBAKER CARS!

—Because of 68 years' experience in coach building, Studebaker knows, probably better than any other manufacturer of motor cars, that true grace, beauty and comfort come from the perfect suspension of body chassis and the harmonious blending of all curves and lines into a symmetrical whole.

—Such quality as you find in the Studebaker—such stability of design and refinement of appearance—is possible only because of Studebaker's great resources and manufacturing experience and the fact that this car is designed and built complete by Studebaker in the newest and most modern automobile factory in the world.

The "I Can't" Obstacles

By ROGER W. BABSON

Each and every one of us has been put n this world for some purpose. There s some attainable goal toward which all re traveling. Whether we arrive at that goal or not depends wholly upon ourselves. Men are born with a certain intellect or talent, the development of which is unlimited and almost wholly within their own power. The psychologists tell us that we are born with a certain amount of intellect. We perhaps cannot dd one iota to this intellect, but that which we are born is capable of being developed.

Developing Our Talents

The Good Book gives us a parable of a man who before traveling into a far country called his servants together. Unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, each according to his several ability. The one who received five talents developed his talents one hundredfold, but the man who received one talent felt that he had accomplished quite a little to preserve that one talent and present it to his lord intact. At the same time he took that opportunity to proclaim that he knew his lord was a hard taskmaster.

The development of the talents given us or the intellect with which we are born is one of the first steps toward our goal of making good.

The road to this goal is beset with many obstacles. These obstacles are mostly imaginary. They are mostly fears. They are almost all subjective ideas. Strange as it may seem, an imaginary obstacle has just as much of a deterrent effect upon the individual as if it were a real obstacle. Were it not for this, obstacles would not be mentioned here at all.

Eight Main Obstacles

The most frequent obstacles, imaginary or real, met with are (1) the erroneous belief that every man who has accomplished great things is a genius; (2) lack of self-confidence; (3) fear of failure; (4) trust to luck; (5) inherited wealth; (6) waiting for an opportunity; (7) the doctrine that is being taught to the great mass of wage workers that they no longer have any hope of advancement; (8) blaming the economic order for our inability to make good. There may be numerous other hindrances in your way of making good, depending upon the activity of your imagination, but for the purpose of discussion these may well suffice.

1. Misconcept of Genius

One of the greatest drawbacks, hindrances, or impediments to the advancement of a young man today is the erroneous conception or belief that every successful man is a genius or something akin to a superhuman being possessed with qualities, attributes and intellect that an average person can never hope to attain.

Anyone should hesitate very much to minimize the accomplishments of our great men. Men like Edison, Bell, Stephenson, Watt, Ericson, Crompton, Hargreaves, Fulton and numerous other inventors have produced more wealth with their particular contributions to the welfare of society than thousands of manual workers accomplish in thousands of years—but that is beside the point.

Were these men geniuses? Yes, if by that term we mean a man who can do three men's work. Elbert Hubbard touched the point when he said, "Genius is a matter of energy properly focused, concentrated and utilized." If you should look into the lives of any of our great inventors or captains of industry you would find the outstanding feature of their career to be hard work. If there is a superhuman power with this class of individuals it is the ability or capacity for unceasing, untiring, concentrated effort.

One of the best sources of inspiration available for the young man today is the lives of our captains of industry and our inventors. Study along this line shows that these great men have risen from the lowly walks of life. They come from the so-called common people, and no matter in what walk of life, whether music, art, literature, invention or industry, any man who has made a marked success in any of these fields has done so through hard work. Their accomplishments should not deter us, but should stimulate us to achieve! Read the lives of some of these great men and verify this for yourself and if you find that they achieve through hard work, go thou and do likewise.

William James makes the point in this statement: "The plain fact remains that men the world over possess amounts of resource which only very exceptional individuals push to their extremes of use." You have the resource, you have been given talent, you have a certain amount of intellect. Will you increase the talent, develop the intellect or push your resource to its extreme use?

2. Lack of Confidence

Closely allied with this erroneous conception of the term genius is our lack of confidence in ourselves. This lack of confidence is ofttimes evidenced through our unwillingness to use our own minds. I have known of a number of experiments along this line, some of them among the students receiving executive training in the Babson Institute. For instance, in raising a question for debate, students invariably ask where they can find something written on that question. Let us assume that the question is, "Resolved: that the federal government should own and operate the railways." The usual method of procedure in preparing for such a debate is to read extensively. Few prefer a thinking process, although able to think clearly and well.

Give a student a blank piece of paper and pencil, then put him in a room alone with his thinking power. Tests show that the average advanced student, 21 years of age or over, can think out originally from 50 to 75 per cent of the pros and cons on the question without reading a single line.

What benefit does the student derive from the standpoint of governmental ownership to know that there are so many thousands of miles of railroad in the United States; to know that there are so many millions of employes; or that there are so many millions of dollars invested? The exact number of miles, employes or amounts of dollars matters very little. Anyone knows that there are a great number of miles of railways in the United States. Almost anyone knows that the number of employes must be considerable and almost anyone knows that the amount invested must be large indeed. Then the question resolves itself into the control of this vast number of miles; into the management of the great number of employes, and into the financial arrangements for a large investment of money.

With those rather indefinite terms the student can think out the problems involved under individual ownership or federal ownership. Then, after having thought out the pros and cons, it is ample time to read. Then, also, how much more proud the student is of himself when he finds that Dr. Johnson makes the same point that he has made—or that Dr. Ripley agrees with him on a certain question of finance. It is then that the student begins to realize that he has a mind of his own capable of utilization.

That man who fears to use his own mind is stumbling over an imaginary obstacle on the road to making good.

The man that succeeds is the man that thinks he can. "Success comes in cans, failures in can'ts," and someone has well said:

"If you think you're beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you'd like to win, but you think you can't,

It's almost a cinch you won't.
"If you think you'll lose, you're lost;
For out in the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will;
It's all the state of mind.

"If you think your'e outclassed, you are;
You've got to think big to rise;
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.

"Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the one who thinks he can."

3. Fear of Failure

Fear of failure is another obstacle on the road to making good upon which many a toe has been stubbed. Did you ever stop to realize that the only thing which cannot fall is a worm—or that a man who never makes any mistakes never makes anything else—except trouble? Life would surely be of the most humdrum sort if there were absent from all of our adventures the least thrill of a possible failure. Failure is a purifying process. It is a trial balance of our efforts. Failure properly utilized is a much more wholesome stimulant than anything existent prior to the eighteenth amendment.

The general manager of one of the leading railway systems of the United States was once discharged from a position as yard master paying him $90 per month because of his lack of ability to perform the work. Henry Ward Beecher stood 64th in an examination in grammar. The boy who ranked first in the same class grew up to be a barber in Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Beecher failed in many of his efforts, but he eventually achieved his marvelous success as a preacher of the gospel. Out in Florence, Ariz., is a life termer in the state penitentiary who writes articles on Business Letter Writing that are read by hundreds of our leading business men. This man has been raised inside the walls of the penal institutions of the country. He was in a reform school early in life, served five years in Ohio state penitentiary and later received a life sentence in the west. He has been redeemed through work and even behind the walls he seals himself up in the envelope, as he expresses it, and reaches the heart of the business world. You may fail a half dozen times and eventually succeed if you are willing to work and think. Hard work, consecutive thinking, and the exercise of judgment are the things that help a man make good.

4. Trusting to Luck

Even in this day of developed intellect and enlightened civilization there are those who are trusting 'luck" to make good. This, that or the other man who has made good is "lucky." In every game of chance the odds are against the player. With odds against the player, if he plays the game long enough he will fail. Likewise, if one trusts to luck he is doomed to fail. A little scrap of a poem reads:

"If we could see the toil and turmoil
That awaits us down the road,
If our lips could taste the wormwood,
If our backs could feel the load,
Would we spend the day in wishing
For a time that ne'er could be
Would we watch with such impatience
For our ships to come from sea?"

Yes, the surest way to insure toil and turmoil is to watch with impatience for our ships to come from sea. Luck is not one of the foundations of making good. It is true that there are those who at times seem lucky. It is true that luck sometimes places men in good positions but it is also true that something other than luck is required to hold the position. In other words, luck may place a man in a good posiion, but it cannot keep him there.

5. Inherited Wealth

Inherited wealth should also be tabulated more as a hindrance than as an aid. A man once said: "My father left me a great inheritance." The truthfulness of his statement was apparent when he continued by stating that his father left him good health and poverty. Making good comes from religion and work. Those factors are developed in humble homes. All hindrances, both imaginary and real, properly considered by each individual may be utilized as aids rather than obstacles. Success comes not from the advantages that we have but from the obstacles which we overcome. It is the process of overcoming obstacles that makes for the character necessary for success.

If you are really in earnest about making good, answer these questions: Have you confidence in your ability to succeed? Upon what do you base that confidence? Are you conscious of any faults that may interfere with your progress? Can they be overcome? What are you doing to overcome them?

Someone has said that in order to achieve success you must keep your eyes on the stars, your ear to the ground and your nose to the grindstone. I have never been quite able to figure out the physical contortion necessary to perform this feat. Nevertheless, if taken in separate doses the statement has a meaning. Certainly statistics show that the grindstone feature is very essential and that obstacles are the stepping stones to making good.

(The three remaining obstacles named by Mr. Babson have to do particularly with the hardships that are faced by working men today. They are dealt with in a special article to appear next week. Every working man and every employer should read it.)

THE PARABLE OF THE TALENTS

A man traveling into a far country, called together his servants, and delivered unto them his goods.

Unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey.

Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

But he that had received one went and digged in the earth and hid his lord's money.

After a long time the lord of those servants' cometh, and reckoneth with them.

And so he that had received five talents, came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents; behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of the Lord.

He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents; behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.

His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed:

And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, there thou hast that is thine.

His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knowest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchanges, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.

(From Matthew 25:14-29.)

ARCHER POOL STILL LEADS PRODUCTION

Maintaining an average production during the month of June of 1,025 barrels daily, the new Archer county-Texhoma pool with only seven producers, and a proven area which is very limited, contained to lead in new development.

Outside tests have been drilled down past sand depth, and have practically been abandoned, proving much of a disappointment, but within the little pool which has had but slight extension since the first three completions, the production has held up splendidly, despite water trouble.

Six completions are due in this new pool this week, and there may be two more.

One of these is the Nelson Drilling company's No. 1 Gose, several hundred feet south of the Texhoma's No. 5 Gose. The Nelson has casing set and cemented on the sand at 1616 feet said to be very rich appearing.

The Bartlett test, on the Netherton, a mile and a half from production, which has been of rather uncertain status for a couple of weks, is reported to have the water shut off, and to be showing some oil in the bailing. This test should be completed this week.

Inside wells due for completion include the Texhoma's No. 5, No. 6 Gose, the No. 1 Coffman, the No. 2 Taylor and the No. 2 Gose, Canadian Petroleum.

Lee Bass Near Sand.

The Lee Bass No. 2 Henderson is due to get the sand at any time, and the Griswold Oil Company's No. 1 N. Henderson has had casing set and cemented and may be completed this week.

Several other new tests, inside locations, were reported started this week, including the J. J. Perkins No. 1 Coffman, the Texhoma's No. 7 Gose, drilling around 800 feet, and the No. 8 Gose drilling around 300 feet. The No. 3 Taylor is also drilling, being down a few hundred feet.

The cable tool test of the Rattlesnake Oil company, on the eNtherton, south of the proven area a couple of miles is reported carrying eight-inch casing below 1050 feet.

The Dee and Bellport dep test on the Cowan Ranch is reported drilling around 2586 feet, drilling through 100 feet of sand this past week. The sand contained salt water.

Townsite Test on Sand.

The Burk Archer test on the Andrews, in the outskirts of Archer City, is reported on a sand at 1600 feet, and making a test. A sand around 1300 feet was drilled a short time ago, and tested, showing some oil, some gas, and some water. Drilling was resumed, but location has been made for the No. 2 to drill down to the 1300-foot sand, and give it a thorough test, it is reported.

Nex Test to Southwest.

Location has been made for a new test about ten miles southwest of Archer City, according to reports from the field, the Illinois Guarantee and Leasing company preparing to drill a cable tool test, to 3,000 feet if necessary.

Sun Company Drilling.

The Sun Company is reported drilling around 500 feet in its No. 1 McCarty, about a quarter of a mile from the No. 1 Farmer, the fildcat which was completed for a small producer.

COMPLETION OF 700-BARREL WELL IN GRAHAM-M'CLUSKEY POOL, FEATURES SOUTH BEND

Completion of a seven hundred barrel well in the 1900-foot sand, to the southeast of other producers in the Graham-McCluskey pool, featured South Bend operations this past week. The New well, the No. 1 Keller of M. R. Hemphill and the Gulf Production company, is on the east side of the Gulf's hundred acre lease where early in the development of the pool a test was drilled down to 3,000 feet, and then plugged back to the 1900-foot sand. It finally made a 30-barrel pumper in this sand.

The new well was given a small shot, according to reports in being completed, and started flowing. It is between the Gulf's 1900-foot producer and the Roxanna-North American Refining company's No. 1 Ford, also a producer in the 1900-foot sand. Two other good wells have been completed during the week, according to reports from the field, the No. 3 Graham of Emerich and Danciger, making 400 barrels, drilled down to the 2500-foot sand, and the No. 6 Graham. Lease A, of the Shamrock Oil Corporation is reported a 350-barrel producer, also in the 2500-foot sand.

The Armstrong and Haskell No. 1 M. K. Graham is reported a seventy-five barrel producer in the 1900-foot sand, and the No. 6 River Bed of these same operators is reported a hundred barrel well, at 2100 feet.

The South Bend pool's daily runs is showing a several hundred barrel increase, for the past several weeks, before the completion of the Prairie's added unit, and the Sinclair's new line, and it is believed that with ample pipeline facilities the runs can be increased several thousand barrels.

The laying of pipe has been completed on the Sinclair's line from Stephens county, the four-inch line terminating on the Stovall plantation where on the Snowden and McSweeney lease a pump station will be located. Construction is due to begin immediately on this pump station, it is understood.

Outside Operations.

Operations outside the producing area have again featured in interest the New Domain test, north of Eliasville, and the Bunger district test, though neither of the tests have arrived at a definite status, according to latest reports.

The New Domain well, in the oil lime at 3360 feet, has made several small flows, according to reports and is said to have the most promising showing ever encountered in the deeper levels. At last reports setting of casing, and other preparations were under way for drilling deeper in the lime, and testing.

The Union Oil company's No. 1 Askew, the Bunger district key test at present, is reported still working to get a test of the 1900-foot sand. The Roddie Oil company's No. 1 Manning, in the Bunger survey, is reported rigging up to drill and the C. W. Tyrell test is reported spudding in.

Del-Tex Shows Gas.

A gas showing is reported at a depth of 3100 feet in the Del-Tex Oil company's No. 1 Emma West, a short distance east of the town of South Bend. The gas sand was drilled into around 2190 feet, and there was several feet of sand. The test is now drilling slightly below 3200 feet at last reports.

The No. 1 J. R. McCluskey of Dews and Tuck, northeast of the Del-Tex, is reported under reaming for 8-inch pipe, 2270 feet.

The J. S. Hoff, No. 1 O. A. McBrayer, also northeast of the Del Tex is reported drilling around 1600 feet. The No. 1 McBrayer of the Canadian Pacific company is reported drilling around 1760 feet. The No. 1 O. A. McBrayer of Hempflinger et al is reported still shut down around 700 feet. The No. 1 McBrayer is reported still shut down around 700 feet. The No. 1 McBrayer of Mandrel and Mandrel is reported also shut down around 460 feet.

After shooting a sand at 2060 feet without results, the C. S. Thomas No. 1 Bynum is reported as drilling around 2130 feet.

In Proven Pool.

The Panhandle Refining company is reported to have lost their No. 9 McCluskey, right around sand depth, and to be skidding the derrick. The No. 8 is reported drilling around 2200 feet. The No. 11 is reported on the 2500-foot sand, the No. 14 drilling around 1550 feet and the No. 15 drilling around 800 feet. No. 12 is reported rigging up.

The Danciger and Emerich No. 1 M. K. Grannu, is reported drilling below 1500 feet and the No. 2 same lease drilling at 1200 feet.

The Hemphill No. 2 Keller, offsetting the big new well just completed in the 1900-foot sand, is reported ready to start drilling.

The Kent Oil company's No. 8 Keller is reported drilling around 1900 feet. The Kent's No. 2 Keller, Lease A, is reported a rig.

The Seaboard Oil and Gas company's No. 3 Graham, which has had a fishing job for weeks, is reported abandoned and junked and the derrick skidded a few feet away for the second hole. The No. 5, same lease, is reported temporarily shut down around 2450 feet.

The W. S. Conner No. 2 Graham, is reported drilling below 1900 feet. The No. 4 McCluskey is reported drilling around 1300 feet and the No. 5 McCluskey drilling around 1200 feet.

The Armstrong and Haskell No. 5 State Lands, in the bed of the Clear Fork, drilled into salt water at 2300 feet, according to reports from the field, and is now plugging back to the 2100-foot sand, where a fair showing was encountered.

The Mid Tex Petroleum company's No. 3 Graham is reported drilling below 2200 feet.

The Oklahoma Petroleum and Gasoline company's No. 3 McCluskey is reported drilling around 850 feet and this company is reported preparing to drill the No. 4 Graham, and the No. 3 Keller.

The Shamrock Oil corporation's No. 8 Graham, Lease A, is reported drilling around 2320 feet. The No. 9 drilling around 2300 feet and the No. 10 drilling around 1600 feet. The Danciger and Shamrock No. 2 McCluskey is reported still having casing trouble, around 2200 feet.

ATTENTION ATTRACTED TO OLD POOL

Attention has again been attracted to the old Sunshine Hill district, now famous for its flowing wells of extreme shallow depth, through the recent completion of some very good wells in the old Electra sand depth, between 1600 and 1700 feet.

Two of these wells were completed by the Shannon Oil company on the old 1918 Oil Company's lease, M. A. Eads farm. The original company was the first to drill for a deeper sand on the Sunshine Hill district, getting the first deeper production around 1200 feet, and later going down to 1600 feet.

The No. 8 of the Shannon Oil Company is reported with 125 barrels flush production, sand at 1680 feet, and the No. 7 is reported a 50 barrel well, at same depth.

The Charlie Oil and Gas Company, another veteran operating company in this district, has recently completed its No. 3 M. A. Eads, same sand, for 85 barrels, according to reports, and the Kimberlain No. 3 Eads is reported an 80 barrel well.

An exceptionally good 500 foot well is reported in Block 1, H. T. and B. Survey, the Henry Hobbs et al No. 6 Burnett, making 25 barrels and 510 feet. The No. 6 Burnett, Section 16, is reported a 10 barrel producer in the 670 foot sand.

The Powell-Long well on the J. L. Powell, after weeks of fruitless effort to complete in the 1850 foot sand is now drilling deeper, looking for the sands below 2,000 feet, which were encountered in the first test, a few several years ago on the Powell farm.

The Scott and Sheegog No. 1 Eads, offsetting the Gloria Oil Company's No. 1, producing in a new 1800 foot sand, is reported drilling at the 1500 feet.

Drilling operations in the Electra district continue to be rather scattered, with practically no change the past several weeks, except where completions have occirred, as reported above.

Baldwin Brothers have started a new test on the D. P. Langford in the G. and S. F. Survey, and are reported down several hundred feet.

The Buffalo Southwestern Oil Company's No. 1 Douglas is reported still working with the casing, which was tested after a shot in the 1850 foot oil sand.

The Big Inch Oil Company's No. 4 Burnett is reported drilling around 700 feet.

The Iowa Park Producing and Refining Company's No. 2 Burnett is reported still waiting on drill pipe to test the oil sand found at 1650 feet.

The Panhandle Petroleum's No. 18 W. F. Waggoner is reported drilling around 200 feet.

The Texas Electra Oil Company's No. 1 B. B. Cochran is reported drilling at and 1550 feet.

The Royal Oil Company's No. 1 B. B. Cochran is reported drilling around 1400 feet.

Among the members of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures is William Agnew Barrett, known to the reading public as a poet. He has seen more motion pictures than any one else in the United States, if not in the whole world.

PRODUCTION COST IS STILL ABOVE NORMAL

Despite general readjustments in wages in all departments of oil field operations, the cost of production is not yet back to a level justified by the present prices, according to heads of big companies, and independent contractors and operators alike. That other adjustments will come within the next week or so, unless the miracle of a change upward in the price of crude takes place, seems practically certain, in the opinion of many of these operators.

Wage reductions have amounted to from 30 to 50 per cent in the majority of the lines of labor, while the price of oil is now only about 30 per cent of the posted price at the time of the high scale.

Operating Costs Heavy.

Drilling costs now figure but slightly, since but little new drilling is being done, but costs of cleaning out, pumping and the other incidentals of a settled production lease are items to be considered, and are still so high that a price of $1.00 a barrel makes it hard to do more than to break even, on the average, and even involves a loss, varying in proportion to the age of the lease, to numerous operators.

Pumpers' wages by the month now range from $120 to $155, according to figures from the larger companies, compared with $170 to $200 in boom times. Pre-war wages for this class of work $90 to $100.

Cleaning out drillers, who commanded salaries of $400 or more a month last year, are now being paid $200, and rotary drillers get around $9 or $10 a day, instead of $15 as was the case before crude tumbled in price.

The oil field's semi-unskilled labor, roustabouts and roughnecks now draw from $4 to $5 a day, compared with $7 and $8, old prices.

Cost of Well.

Seven dollars was the average price per foot for contracts during the days when more oil was being produced than the pipe lines could care for. "Outlaw" prices were as much higher as the company or individual needing drilling done, could be induced to pay.

This reduces the labor cost of drilling a well of the average depth of the Wichita Falls district, around 1700 feet, to a little more than $5000.

In addition to this the company or individual making the contract furnishes oil and water and pipe, and also drill in, this bringing the cost of a well up to what is still a very respectable total, despite the reductions that have been made.

Oil can not be produced on a new lease, that is a lease bought and developed in the last several months, at a profit at present prices, a number of operators state.

Where the lease is an old one, with settled production, and not needing frequent cleanings operations can be so arranged, these same operators state, where there is a small profit, even at $1.

This, however, can apply only to companies with a number of producers, operated from a single power. One or two well companies, or even companies with four or half a dozen producers are finding it hard sledding, they state, even under the most rigid economy.

LARGE CLASS WAS KNIGHTED AT SEYMOUR

With L. G. Hawkins, grand commander of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, of Texas, presiding, Vernon Commandery No. 33 conferred degrees of Knighthood on a class of twelve candidates at the Seymour commandery, U. D. on last Wednesday.

Other officers who assisted Grand Commander Hawkins in the work, were:

C. E. Rupe, general; W. P. McLarty, captain general; W. B. Alexander, S. W.; R. R. Kellum, J. W.; E. L. Witty, prelate; D. J. Bailes, recorder; L. E. Kester, treasurer; W. Y. Hammack, Sw. bearer; C. O. Fritz, Std. bearer; A. P. McCelvey, warder; W. H. Miller, sentinel.

The commandery adjourned at 12 o'clock and all visitors were entertained at luncheon as guests of the Chamber of Commerce. After luncheon President R. R. Kellum called on Grand Commander Hawkins, T. J. Youngblood and W. D. Berry, who responded with splendid after dinner speeches.

At one, thirty the Templars returned to the asylum and conferred the Order of Knighthood on the following candidates:

A. E. Boyd, J. A. Britain, L. Briggs G. A. Bowie, H. E. Conklin, F. H. Davis, D. B. Daugherty, Jr., J. H. Marcell, A. L. McFarlin, C. M. Randal, Ernest Tibbets and J. T. White.

A banquet was served to all Templars and candidates at the Washington Hotel at 7:00 p. m.

L. G. Hawkins, L. E. Kester, J. W. Leak, R. H. Bratton, J. C. Lewellen, B. H. Lewis, Neely B. Hodges, S. E. Porterfield, E. L. Witty, H. W. Norwood, J. M. Napier, A. P. McCelvey and T. J. Youngblood of Vernon and W. Y. Hammack and C. O. Fritz of Wichita Falls were the visiting Templars.

SOMETHING NEW IN CHOCOLATES

Prohibition Director Exnicios, terror of bootleggers, took one of the chocolates to the government chemist, who analyzed it and reported it contained "5 per cent alcohol by volume."

Exnicios hastened to the candy factory, where the proprietor explained that the "filling" of the chocolates was largely made from Jamaica rum extract, which is not barred by the enforcement rulings—unless sold for beverage purposes.

Besides, claims the proprietor, there is nothing in the Volstead act to bar "alcoholic foods."

Exnicios still is investigating. No arrests have been made. But—oh, boy! How those chocolates are selling!

MONKEY GLAND DISCOVERER IS WITHOUT FUNDS

BERLIN, July 16.—Austria's inventor of "perpetual youth" monkey-gland operations, Eugene Steinach is suffering because he has not discovered the secret of the famous touch of Midas which converted all objects to gold. Professor Steinach has been forced to decrease his amount of experimental work for lack of money, he informed Egon Dietrichstein in an interview for the Neue Berliner.

Professor Steinach lives in a village in the outskirts of Vienna, near the building which serves as his hospital and laboratory. He receives hundreds of letters daily from all parts of the world asking for reports on his experiments. Patients from Turkey, Spain and South America join curious Austrians and Germans in his anteroom to ask his advice.

"I have become the joke of the vaudeville and musical comedy artists. Most of the persons who visit me are simply curiosity seekers. Unfortunately the interest in my work seems to stop there. Unless the curious cease taking up so much of my time I will be forced to leave Vienna and seek out some quiet spot where I am unknown to continue my work. Millions of kronen have been promised as a subsidy, but nothing paid. At the present time I have had to give up my experiments entirely because of lack of funds."

HAWKINS IS FLOORED BY "SURPRISE"

Swept off his feet by the completeness of the surprise when he was presented with a large painting of himself at a special meeting of the Vernon Commandery on Friday night, L. G. Hawkins, forgot a carefully prepared speech and was forced to be content with a few stammered thanks, declares C. O. Fritz, who attended the meeting.

The presentation of the portrait has been planned for several months and was kept so thoroughly secret that the grand commander never had the slightest inkling of what was in progress until the presentation speech was well under way.

The portrait was the joint gift of the Wichita Falls and Vernon commanderies.

W. N. Stokes acted as chairman of the meeting and after a few remarks introduced Emil Hermann, the artist of Wichita Falls, who made the portrait. Mr. Hermann made a very nice speech and paid high tribute to Mr. Hawkins. C. O. Fritz of Wichita Falls made a few remark stating that Wichita Falls was glad to join in honoring this distinguished Templar and Mason.

Wallace H. Huggins, then made formal presentation of the portrait to Mr. Hawkins. He told of the high esteem in which Mr. Hawkins was held in the town of Vernon and the surrounding country and how glad all were to assist in presenting the token of appreciation and esteem. Mr. Hawkins then responded but was unable to say just how the surprise pleased him.

After the meeting light refreshments were served to those present.

HARVARD SINGERS ARE HONORED BY PARIS OFFICIALS

The sixty Harvard university students who recently arrived in Paris comprise part of the Glee Club which recruits its members from the undergraduates of the university, and which is one of the most celebrated American choral organizations.

Our guests expect to give a concert during their stay in Paris. They will be heard also at the new academy of Franco-American music at Fontainebleau, and, on July 14, at Strasbourg, which they helped to liberate—for all are veterans of the war.

Upon their arrival in Paris the students were escorted to the offices of the president of the municipal council, where the traditional ceremony of signing the Book of Gold took place. They then went to Festival Hall, where various dignitaries were waiting to welcome them—among these, Ambassador Wallace M. Gage, representing M. Briand, and numerous members of the American colony and Paris society.

After the national anthems of both countries had been sung, M. Le Corbeiller, president of the municipal council, and M. Aubanel, on behalf of the prefect of the Seine, welcomed our American guests, expressing, in their speeches, tributes to the fame of Harvard university which, since its foundation in 1636, has been a center of French propaganda in America, and recalling in eloquent words the glorious participation of America in the victory of right.

Upon the request of M. Le Corbeiller, the students sang two numbers, one French and the other American, which were received with great applause. A luncheon and concert followed.—Kansas City Star.

FATHER OF ANTI-SMOKE BILL IS CONGRATULATED

WASHINGTON, July 16.—"I am glad you do not smoke or chew—it would be heaven to kiss a man with a clean mouth" writes Bernice Kern, of Des Moines, Iowa, of Mississippi who is carrying on a hard fight in the house to prohibit women from smoking in public places in Washington.

This is a sample of the flood of letters which have reached Johnson since he offered his anti-smoke measure, but do not imagine that Miss Kern, of Des Moines is one of the backers of the bill.

"This has been a man's world long enough," she continued, "and we women are ready and willing to regulate our own affairs as soon as you leave it to us and spend your time raising the standard of the man element."

The women of Washington apparently have taken little interest in the Johnson bill, only two of the many letters he has received on the subject having come from the capital.

"You don't know what you are missing if you dismiss without experience the charm of Lady Nicotine," H. French, of No. 14 Wall street, New York writes to the congressman. "If women lived today in accordance with the standards set by their grandmotheres they would be crushed in the process."

Mrs. William Greenville, of New York city, says:

"Bully for you, Mr. Representative, of Mississippi, I am not a prude. I am not a prohibitionist. I like a man to have his glass of beer, wine, or even whiskey, as the case may be; but I draw the line at women smoking either publicly or otherwise. I have two grandnieces who smoke, I am ashamed to say. They will never see a penny of my money just for that!"

Unmoved by the hundreds of condemnation and congratulations which have come to him as the result of his attempts to "regulate" the women of Washington, Johnson is busy lining up members of congress in support of his Anti-Smoke bill and hopes that it will become a law.

Salvage.

"France is very hard up for food," said President Barrett of the National Farmers' Union. "The French farmer has got France by the throat. High prices, low quality—that's the farmer's idea over there.

"One day in a Paris restaurant a doughboy ordered a boiled egg—five francs, or $1 in our money. The doughboy tasted the egg, then he called the waiter.

"'Waiter,' he said, 'I can't eat this egg. It's bad.

"'Have you tried the other end, sir?' said the waiter."—Los Angeles Times.

TEXHOMA POOL EXTENDED BY BISSONET TEST

An extension of better than a half mile in the new North Texhoma shallow oil sand is indicated by reports that the Bissonet et al No. 1 Fowler, in lot 9 is on the sand below 1400 feet. Casing has been set, it is reported, and preparations are being made to complete. This test is 3000 feet to the northwest of the Jones Light wells, on the Rexford.

Something over a half a mile to the north of the Bissonet test Abner Davis drilled two tests during the early days of the Burkburnett boom, one of them abandoned above 1200 feet, and the other a little below 1500 feet.

The Stump Oil and Gas Company has drilled its No. 1 Cropper 15 feet deeper, in the new sand, according to reports from the field, and the well is now pumping around 125 barrels daily.

An eight million foot gasser is reported for the Laning and Honinger No. 3 Dodson in the old part of the field. The No. 1 Cropper of these operators, on the east side of the railroad, in the new north pool, is reported drilling around 1200 feet.

The Jones Light Oil and Gas company's No. 5 Rexford is reported drilling around 1300 feet.
