Lester Goes On Trial Tomorrow For Wife Murder

Insanity Will Be Defendant's Plea In Lubbock Trial

Alleged Slayer Being Held Excommunicado In County Jail On Eve Of Hearing For October 24 Shooting

Prosecutor Silent

District Attorney Durwood Bradley Declines To Say If Death Penalty Will Be Asked In Case

CLAY LESTER, 35, alleged slayer of his wife, Mrs. Virgie Lester, 96, is being held excommunicado in the Lubbock county jail on the eve of his trial.

Sheriff Wade Hardy refused to admit newspapermen to the jail Saturday, saying that he would be responsible for any gesture which might tend to influence prospective jurors when the case is brought to trial tomorrow morning in 99th district court before Judge Clark M. Mullican.

To Plead Insanity.

Charles Triplett, of the defense counsel of Schenck & Triplett, announces that a defense plea of insanity will be made for Lester.

Questioned by newspapermen, District Attorney Durwood Bradley demurred when asked if he plans to demand the death penalty. "I will tell you after the jury is selected," he said.

Lester is apparently calm as the trial nears, according to Will Ernest, deputy sheriff and jailer. "He looks better than when we first put him in his cell," said Ernest. "He eats heartily, reads often and sleeps well. It appears that he has gained about 10 pounds of weight since

Tension Lightens In Russia, China

Settlement Negotiations Of Dispute Over Chinese Eastern Railway Still Obsecure Saturday

(By Associated Press)

Absence of reports of fresh conflict in wintry northwest Manchuria yesterday further lightened the tension between Russia and China, which had occupied world attention since the opening of the week when the Soviet army was in full drive.

However, the course of peaceful negotiation for settlement of the long standing dispute over the Chinese Eastern railway was still obscure. Moscow had reported the acceptance by the Mukden provincial government of its demands preliminary to a conference and also made known its rejection of pre-conference stipulations by Nanking.

No Break Reported

Foreign Secretary C. T. Wang was emphatic in saying there had been no break between Mukden and Nanking. Whatever negotiations had been conducted with the Russians, he said, had been with the authorization of the Nanking government as preliminaries to formal negotiations.

BRIDGE DAMAGED

'Guilty' Woman Takes Poison

BEAUMONT, Nov. 30. (AP)—Miss Jennie Morris, 35, swallowed a slow-acting poison a moment after she had been sentenced to three months in jail on a narcotic charge in Federal district court here today. She was waiting with a group of prisoners to be taken to the jail when she took the poison and fell to the floor of the court room in pain.

Officers rushed her to the hospital where physicians said it was impossible to tell how serious her condition was due to the slow action of the substance she swallowed.

Missing Priest

The Very Reverend Father F. Forsier, above, superior general of the Order of St. Basil in America, disappeared mysteriously while en route from a railroad station in Montreal to the docks, where he was to meet an invalid Basilian returning from England. He was formerly president of St. Basil college, Waco, Tex., and Assumption college, Sandwich, Ont.

Community Chest Drive Will Start Here On Tuesday

"Put A Feather In Your Hat For Lubbock" Adopted As Campaign Slogan; Stage All Set For Soliciting

"Put a feather in your hat for Lubbock."

With this slogan ringing in their ears and their hearts full of joy of service to their neighbors, 35 teams of six each will start out bright and early Tuesday morning from the "hunters' breakfast" at the Lubbock hotel to finance the first Lubbock Community Chest for the coming year.

Never in the history of Lubbock has such a large group enrolled for service which has for its objective the relief of the destitute, the care of the unfortunate and the training of young men and women.

Churches Cooperate.

Today will be observed in the churches of Lubbock as "Welfare Sunday." Clergymen of the city by agreement designated today as the opportune time to present to their congregations the deeds and the needs of the six affiliated organizations of the Community Chest.

Either by announcement or by sermon the clergy will call to the attention of their respective congregations the influence of the agencies on the welfare life of the city. Those cooperating in the movement are Reverends L. G. H. Williams, G. E. Leffle, O. N. Baucom, C. J. McCarty, H. L. Munger, W. P. Jennings, J. M. Lewis and S. H. Erwin.

To Command "Go."

General Nell Wright will give the command "go" Tuesday morning when all the workers will meet at the "hunters breakfast" at 7:30. All teams have been assigned definite territory and will go to all parts of the city to solicit funds.

Although the employee division and the big gifts groups have been engaged for the last few days the

Thirty Boys Will Attend Hi-Y Meet

Lubbock will be represented by approximately 30 boys at the Older Boys conference which convenes in Amarillo next Friday afternoon under the direction of the Hi-Y organization of northwest Texas.

The three sponsors of the Lubbock High group will accompany the local representatives. These are Sam Leifeste, D. W. Powers and M. E. Witt.

Lasts Three Days

Although sponsored by the Hi-Y organization, the Amarillo confab is not restricted to members only. Opening at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, the convention will last through Saturday and Sunday.

Seven hundred boys from this district are expected to attend the conference this year. Delegates to the Amarillo convention will meet at the First Presbyterian church and at Amarillo High school.

Husband And Wife Discovered Slain Near Pilot Point

Farmer Slashes Own Throat After Beating Mate To Death; Tragedy Found By 3 Young Daughters

Children Declare Father Highly Nervous And Ill; Murder And Suicide Is Verdict Of Coroner

(By Associated Press)

DENTON, Tex., Nov. 23.—Three young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bowman, returning to their home near Pilot Point after a Thanksgiving holiday in Dallas, found their father dead and his throat cut and their mother beaten to death.

Both bodies were in the kitchen of their farm home, that of the father lying across the mother. A razor was found beside Bowman's body.

Accompanied by Preacher

The daughters were accompanied by the Rev. T. C. Harris of Pilot Point when the bodies were found.

Three blood spattered rooms and back porch indicated a long struggle and a desperate attempt by the woman to save her life. The instrument with which she was beaten to death was not found by Sheriff Ted Lewis, who made the investigation. He believed that the woman had died Friday night and Bowman the next morning.

Moved From Oklahoma

The three children who found the bodies were Doris, 16, Lorene, 12, and Freda, 9. The family came here about a year ago from Dewey, Okla.

Justice of the Peace E. C. Barton, who conducted the inquest, returned a verdict that Bowman killed his wife and slashed his own throat. The daughters said their father had been ill and highly nervous for a long time.

Will Investigate Death Of Student

Aid Of Chemist Secured In Effort To Reveal Cause Of Sudden Death Of 19 Year Old Youth

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 30.—The aid of a chemist was secured tonight in an effort to reveal the circumstances surrounding the death of Paul Ott, 19, of Baltimore, Carnegie Tech student who was found dying at a dormitory entrance early today as the temperature neared zero. He died in an hour without regaining consciousness while fellow students and a doctor tried to revive him.

A coroner's post mortem examination was said to have revealed the cause of death as "acute gastro enteritis," which might have resulted from ptomaine or other poisoning. The poison will not be known until completion of the stomach analysis in three or four days.

Detectives conducted a fatile search of the youth's room and examined pots and pans in the dormitory kitchen in the hope of finding something that might aid in solving the case. A metal pot in which Ott was believed to have prepared coffee a few hours before he was found dying was among the utensils scrutinized.

Anton Celebrates First Bank Opening Saturday

Five-Year-Old Town Deposits $18,368 In Institution

ORGANIZED but five years ago, Anton, 23 miles northwest of Lubbock in Hockley county celebrated Saturday the opening of its first bank when 2,000 persons who attended the ocasion placed initial deposits totalling $18,368 into the Anton State bank.

Capital stock of the bank is $20,000, while the surplus is $5,000.

Clark President

L. W. Clark, who was for 16 years vice-president of the People's State bank at Paradise, Wise county, is president of the new bank. Other officers are Lowell Short, manager of the Higginbothem-Bartlett lumber company at Anton, vice-president; Mrs. Jewel Rhine, cashier, and Harold Munn, assistant cashier.

Located in a brick building in the heart of the business district of Anton, the new bank is equipped with marble base fixtures and is neatly designed in interior arrangements.

On Spade Ranch

Anton, thriving with a population of 500, is located in the center of the North Spade ranch. Within a 12 mile radius of the little city there are 80,000 acres in cultivation.

Included among the list of stockholders in the bank are W. L. Ellwood, Richard L. Douglas and T. B. Duggan, of Dallas.

Other than the official staff, directors are Ed M. Hart, Anton merchant; Y. Onstott, farmer, J. T. Ragsdale, farmer; Lee Crownover, ginner and farmer of Whitharrell, and D. E. Baker, stock farmer.

An additional improvement in the Hockley county town is construction of a $12,000 brick building, which will be occupied soon by the International Harvester company. The structure measures 50 by 100 feet.

Auditorium Will Be Opened Today By Baptists Here

Two Thousand Are Expected To Attend First Service In Recently-Completed Auditorium Building

Two thousand persons are expected to attend the opening service this morning in the new auditorium of the First Baptist church, located one door east of the old building, according to estimtes by J. D. Carroll, educational director. Fifteen hundred is the goal set for Sunday school attendance, and 400 for B. Y. P. U. attendance. Regular attendance is about 1350 in Sunday school and 400 in B. Y. P. U.

Dr. W. R. White, who recently resigned as pastor of the church to accept a position as state secretary of the Baptist board of Texas, will deliver both morning and evening addresses using as his subject for the morning service, "Resources of the Righteous." Mrs. White will give a special vocal number, "Is Your All on the Altar?"

Sunday evening, Dr. White will speak on "The Figure Behind the Facts." An additional feature for the evening service will be a musical program, "The Grand Cathedral," by Bishop, sung by the girls' Glee Club of Texas Technological college. The program is under the direction of Mrs. Carl Scoggin. The church orchestra will render special music at the evening service.

Sunday also will mark the begin-

WILL REBUILD GIN

Razed Plant At Morton To Be Erected Again

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

MORTON, Nov. 30.—The Morton gin, which was destroyed by fire Friday morning, at a total loss of $25,000, will be rebuilt, it was learned here today from B. C. Stone, of Abernathy, owner.

It will be impossible, however, for the gin to be rebuilt in time to take care of the remainder of this season's cotton crop.

Total Of 36,214 Bales Ginned Up To Present Time

Unofficial Figures Given To Avalanche-Journal By Thirty Gins Of County Show 570 Bales Gain

Government Report Of 1927 Exceeded By Aggregate Reported Saturday; Total Now Is 36,644 Bales

LUBBOCK county's cotton production for this season has already exceeded last year's total, if unofficial figures secured by the Avalanche-Journal from the 30 gins of the county are accurate.

Total bales ginned up to Saturday were 36,214. This is 570 more bales than last year's government report of 35,644 bales.

During the past week there were 3,474 bales turned out by these 30 gins. Of these Lubbock's seven gins baled 832, Slaton's six gins baled 435, Idalou's four baled 624, Shallowater's two gins handled 514.

As reported to this publication, by telephonic communication with ginners, total bales ginned at each town to date are given as follows:

Lubbock 10,416, Slaton 5,963, Idalou 4,806, Shallowater 4,180, Hurlwood 835, Monroe 1,000, Wolfforth 1,740, Acuff 2,181, McClung 2,500, Becton 620, Posey 1,390, County Line 333 and Union 250.

LOCAL GIRL HURT

Nellie Oldham Is Slightly Injured In Fall

Nellie Oldham, 14-year-old Lubbock girl, was slightly injured early Saturday night when she fell from an automobile in which she was riding.

The child, who lives at 219 Posey street, was carried to the Lubbock sanitarium where an examination showed a broken right wrist and minor bruises.

FARMERS BUY GIN

New Cooperative Society Makes Purchase Here

The board of directors of the recently organized Farmers Cooperative society, in meeting Saturday afternoon, consummated a deal whereby the Lowrimore gin on North Avenue H was purchased for a consideration of $25,000.

The gin was owned by W. M. Lowrimore, of this city.

Those attending the directors meeting were P. G. Boyd, president; J. B. Sherrod, vice-president; C. L. Goodnight, secretary-treasurer; W. W. Stanley and G. W. Hale, directors.

CONDITION BETTER

Injured Football Player Reported Improved

The condition of Carroll Laird, Plainview high school football star, who is convalescing in the Lubbock sanitarium following a serious injury here last Thursday, last night was reported as being decidedly improved. The report said that Laird had regained full consciousness and that he was resting well Saturday.

The youth was injured in the Lubbock-Plainview Thanksgiving game and suffered an injury to his cervical vertebrae and concussion of the brain. Immediately following the accident physicians expressed doubt as to his chances for recovery but last night stated that he had every chance to "pull through."

Farmers' Session Boosts Terracing

Fifty Lubbock County Men Attend Meeting Held In City Saturday; Program For Year Is Outlined

Approximately 50 farmers of Lubbock county assembled in the county court room here Saturday afternoon for a terracing meeting conducted by County Agent D. F. Eaton. Purpose of the meeting was to plan a schedule of work for the coming months in the terracing program to be instituted Monday.

A schedule was completed up to and including December 11 and the first active work will start in the Canyon community Monday morning. Plans at this time call for one or two days to be spent in each community. When the entire county has been covered by Mr. Eaton and his helper, John Patterson, of Idalou, they probably will double back to some areas.

Three Problems Faced

Three main problems are facing the two agricultural men at the present time and ones which they will strive to overcome. The first of these is to take care of the emergency calls at this time, farm-

DIAMOND PIN STOLEN

Jewelry Valued At $150 Is Stolen From Local Man

Leaving his apartment for about 10 minutes, R. E. Lee, 1620 15th street, returned to find himself $150 loser.

Saturday afternoon Lee stepped out of his apartment to be gone for only a few minutes and left a woman's platinum diamond pin lying on the dresser. When he returned the pin was gone.

A search of the apartment failed to bring it to light and officers last night were investigating but had not located any clue as to the possible robber.

The pin was of platinum with a diamond in the center and an emerald on each side. It was valued at $150.

Held At Borger

Jim Hodges, above, boiler works manager, faces trial for the murder of District Attorney John A. Holmes at Borger, Tex., on Sept. 13. Borger was placed under martial law in a drastic cleanup by Governor Dan Moody after Holmes' assassination. A second murder suspect also is under indictment.

Former Officers At Borger Jailed On Dry Warrants

Ex-Mayor Glen A. Pace Is One Of Ten Arrested By Federal Agents; Jones Is Taken After Release

(By Associated Press)

BORGER, Nov. 30.—Former Mayor Glen A. Pace and four former peace officers of Borger were among 10 persons in jail here tonight following arrests on federal dry warrants, which were understood to have been sworn out in U. S. district court at Amarillo by federal agents of Kansas City.

With Pace were Former Chief Deputy Sheriff Jim Crane, Former Deputy Sheriff Cal Baird and Former Constable C. A. Mitchell, all ousted during martial law; Jack Payne, one time deputy constable; Louis Weitsman, hotel manager, Curley Lanlron, town bus line operator, and Lewis Crim and H. O. Taylor, who were held without bond during martial law under general order six.

Cases Not Duplicated

Cases are not duplicated by ones filed in district court, it was said. Federal agents Fred W. Harpole and G. H. Allen, who swore out the warrants, were said to have been making investigations here for several months.

Baird, after getting some clothing, himself opened the jail door he had opened for many prisoners. "Come close it somebody," he said. His wife obliged.

Former Deputy Constable Sam Jones, who succeeded today, after a week of effort in making bonds on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of District Attorney John A. Holmes and a charge of bribery was one of the 10 men named in the federal warrants. Jones finally succeeded in making bond

Traffic Hinders Work on Subway

With construction work steadily going forward on the Avenue H underpass, workers are finding it difficult to make maximum progress due to the great amount of traffic daily through a narrow passage left open at 4th street and Avenue H and at 6th street and Avenue H.

These passages were left open that business establishments near the tracks would not be hampered in their operations but the general public is taking advantage of the roadway.

"We want to ask the cooperation of the public in this enterprise," stated G. W. McCleary, city manager. "With so much traffic through this narrow way work on the underpass is seriously hampered and several near accidents have been closely averted. If the public will use the Broadway underpass it will greatly facilitate matters for all concerned."

Money From Federal Reserve Bank Is Included In Loot; Perpetrators Are Suspected In Others

(By Associated Press)

MATADOR, Nov. 30.—Officers of northwest Texas have been asked to be on the lookout for burglars who early today entered the postoffice here and escaped with $3,000 in currency from the safe.

All but $500 was from the Federal Reserve bank in Dallas and had been received yesterday for delivery to a Matador bank. The other money was postoffice receipts. No stamps or silver were taken.

Officers were working on the theory that perpetrators of the crime were responsible for several store burglaries in this section within the past few weeks. Marks left on the postoffice door by a small jimmy resembled those left in the store robberies.

Third Of Burglar Trio Is Sought

DENTON, Nov. 30. —(AP)—Denton and Dallas county officers today were on the lookout for the third of a trio of burglars who last night were discovered by two Denton city policemen as they were about to drive away with a safe taken from the Smith garage here.

Two of the men were arrested.

Passenger Train Collides With "Light" Engine On Tracks After Signal Is Obscured By Smoke

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 30. — One trainman was killed and five persons were injured late today when the Sycamore, a Cincinnati to Chicago Big Four passenger train, plowed into a "light" engine which had stopped on the track between Beech Grove and Acton, southeast of here. George Kern, of Indianapolis, the engineer of the passenger train, was the dead man.

Brakeman Arnold was one of those slightly injured. The others were passengers.

Smoke Hides Signal.

The locomotive standing on the tracks had been taken from the Big Four shops at Beech Grove on a test run. Its smoke was believed to have obscured the red stop-light of the block signal, causing Kern not to see it.

Five Methodist Church Officers Must Pay $20,000 To Former Pastor For Alleged Name Besmirching

(By Associated Press)

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 30. — Five officers of the Methodist church at Duran, Ill., were ordered by a jury to pay $20,000 damages to their former pastor, John G. Warren for the alleged besmirching of his name with charges of immorality.

The jury verdict manifestly surprised the courtroom audience which had heard the parents of a former domestic in the preacher's home support her sworn story of familiarity with Warren. The jury, asked by the unfrocked minister for $50,000 redress for libel, returned its verdict before Judge Arthur E. Fisher after two hours deliberation. The jurors made no comment on their finding.

Pastor Ousted.

The five church officers who ousted their pastor from his pulpit and later from the Rock River Methodist conference were Albert E. Swinson, president of the State Bank of Durand; Henry Graham, grain company official; Postmaster George Fritz; Judd Van Sickle and Edgar Best. Warren accused them of trumping up the defaming story as a means of driving him from their parish.

Another count charging slander was stricken by the court on a defense motion today, and two other defendants were excused earlier in the trial on a motion of their attorneys.

Girl Not Present.

The girl involved did not appear during the trial. Now Mrs. Hazel Lathery of Kansas City, as Hazel Lamb in 1927, she had signed an affidavit accusing the Rev. Warren of immoral relations with her and declaring Mrs. Warren, then an invalid, had threatened him with divorce proceedings and attacked him with a poker. He was ousted from his pulpit and later dropped from the roll of Methodist clergy at a secret trial. He fought the charges, protesting he was the victim of a conspiracy among his parishioners.

Gilbert Swan

In New York

With Swan

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—A few notes in the public eye:

That a certain Mr. William Shearer, who became an international figure in connection with big navy propaganda, would far rather gain recognition as a painter. He may be found at an easel in his Connecticut country place and is well known to scores of anonymous American art students who have encountered him abroad.

And if you don't think that times change, let me inform you that it will be in the conservative Ladies' Home Journal that the story of Emma Goldman is printed. Not so many years ago Emma—who is really a brilliant, gentle and motherly soul—was being chased all over the front pages as a "red," anarchist and whatnot. And was finally shipped out of the country on the famous "red ship."

And as though I didn't feel old enough already, a note on my desk tells me that "Dwight Taylor, son of Laurette Taylor, has sold three plays to the Broadway producers." It seems only day before yesterday when I was starting my newspaper life at a matinee in which Laurette appeared as a Hawaiian maid in "The Bird of Paradise." Laurette's daughter, Marguerite, sniffs at the stage and writes articles for the magazines, whereas there is some difference of potnion as to whether Laurette will retire.

One of the finest Broadway plays of the past half dozen seasons is "Berkeley Square." Yet, according to John Balderston, its author, it's been kicking around Broadway offices for five years. It even was spurned by the Theater Guild, which thought it too metaphysical. Finally Balderston, a London newspaper correspondent, sold it to a British producer and when it became an important production there, it finally found its way back to the bright lights belt. Which seems to be the case with most of the better plays—including "Street Scene," which took the Pulitzer prize, but which was tossed out by most of the wise men of the big street.

Among those who have been moaning low since the "big crash" on Wall Street are John Gilbert, the cinema headliner, who is said to have lost everything but his make-up, and John McCormick, the husband of Colleen Moore, who, thank heaven, has a wife capable of making a good living.

Carmen Barnes, the little gal whose book, "Schoolgirl," got her into the newspapers and out of an exclusive New York school, has been propositioned by several movie outfits, but gave them all the air because they wanted her to do Clara Bow stuff.

Paul Muni came back to Manhattan the other day wearing half of Hollywood's laurels and sufficiently important to take a suite in a swanky hotel and rate interviews with the leading press writers. But when he limped out of New York, westward bound, not a single critic had "tabbed" him and producers had let him play a small part in a play called "We Americans." Only at the Yiddish Art Theater was he known, and there he wore some such moniker as Munowitz.

If you're hard up for parlor games this winter, you might start a few arguments over William Bolitho's selection of great adventurers of history. I'll bet not one of a thousand could guess the full list of those selected by Bolitho for his book, "Twelve Against the Gods." The headliners, by the way, are Alexander the Great, Columbus, Cagliostro, Casanova, Isadora Duncan, Lola Montez, Napoleon and Woodrow Wilson. Certainly no one would ever have guessed the latter.

By way of comment on American productivity, most of the important things to be seen and heard on Broadway are British, with British players—"Bitter Sweet," "Bird in Hand," "Journey's End," "Berkeley Square" and "Rope End."

INJUNCTION GRANTED

Local Man Takes Steps To Restrain Divorced Wife

Charging that his divorced wife has threatened to do him bodily harm, a Lubbock man filed an injunction suit Saturday seeking to restrain her from communicating with him in any manner.

A temporary injunction was granted by Judge Clark M. Mullican, of 99th District court.

The petitioner alleges that they have been divorced several months and that she returned to this city several weeks ago and asserted that she would not leave until she "had it out with him."

He further charges that she has threatened to take his life, as well as her own, and states that she has visited his office almost daily for the last week.

Mrs. J. J. Kirkpatrick, and daughter, Kathleen, of Olney, spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. T. R. Campbell, 1621 Avenue Y.

Intention to marry has been filed in the county clerk's office by the following couples: H. E. Anderson and Miss Era Mae Waldrop, both fo Wolffarth; Robert Stone, of Gonzales, and Miss Channie Jones, of Cuero; Jimmie Jones, of Cuero, and Mrs. Texanna Jones, of Lubbock.

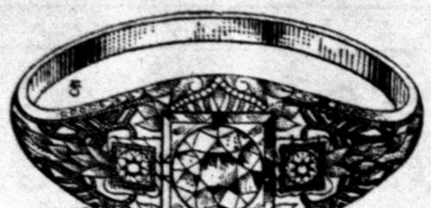

Miss Mary Dixie Watkins, is spending today in Meadow visiting her grandmother, Mrs. B. H. Watkins and Mrs. Bearden.

Mrs. John Prude and baby, of Colorado City, are visiting Mrs. Prude's mother, Mrs. Clarence C. Reed, 1810 Avenue M.

Don Welleman, Tech student, had as his guest during Thanksgiving his mother, Mrs. Alfred Welleman.

Kenneth Lawson has been chosen as the name for a baby boy born to Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Boyd, jr, at the family residence, 1912 Dixie Drive, Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. John R. Covey spent the week visiting relatives in Snyder.

Reactions Follow Early Cotton Boost

Fluctuations Are In Range Of Eight To Ten Saturday

General Market Closes In Quiet Tone At Net Drop Of Five To Eight Points After Advance At First

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—Cotton was quite today and fluctuated within a range of 8 or 10 points with a slight early advance followed by reactions under week-end realizing or liquidation. January contracts sold off from 17.37@17.30, and closed at that figure, with the general market closing quiet at net declines of 5 to 8 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 1 point. December sold up to 17.25 and March to 17.68 during the earlier trading, making net advances of about 1 to 3 points. The demand was in small volume. December reacted to 17.17 and March to 17.59, and closing quotations were the lowest of the day.

The government report showing cotton ginned prior to December 1, and the estimated crop is not scheduled for publication until December 9. Further private reports on the size of the crops are expected next week.

Liverpool cable advices said that continental and trade calling in that market had been supplied by hedge selling and realizing.

Cotton Quieter Than Usual On Saturday

NEW ORLEANS, Nov 30. (AP) — Cotton was quieter than usual today. The slight trading proved mainly evening up. Except for hedge selling near the close, which caused prices to make the lows of the day right then and resulted in the market's closing nearly a half dollar a bale below the previous close.

January after opening unchanged at 17.31 gradually declined to 17.24 and closed at that figure, 7 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

Liverpool Low.

Liverpool came in 1 to 5 points low and first trades were unchanged to 4 points down. The market after rallying about a point, gradually eased.

At the end of the first hour January traded at 17.29 and March at 17.55 or 2 to 6 points down from the early highs.

Wheat Price Gets Sudden Increase

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. —(AP)—Wheat rose suddenly today to the highest closing prices that have been reached in many weeks, nearly 8c above figures which were obtainable here Tuesday. A late outburst of buying orders, largely on European account, caught the wheat pit at a time when future delivery offerings had grown scarce. Accelerating the advance were predictions that deliveries of wheat Monday on December contracts here would be small, perhaps only 500,000 bushels, and that the 1929 Argentine exportable surplus of wheat would prove scant, not more than 100,000,000 bushels.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2 1-8c to 2 7-8c per bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 5-8c to 1 1-8c up, oats 3-8 a 1-2c to 7-8c advanced, and provisions varying from a 5c setback to a rise of 2c.

Moderate to Sharp Upturns in Price Of Cattle Features Livestock Mart

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit this week was featured by moderate to sharp price upturns on cattle at most centers. Stimulating factors to the trade were curtailed receipts and a better tone at eastern dressed beef markets. Several river markets reported advances of 25 a 50c on fed steers and yearlings. Replacement stock in light to moderate supply, firm to 25c higher. Aggregate receipts 185,500 a decrease of 61,000 from last week but 19,000 heavier than the corresponding period a year ago.

Hogs sharply lower, the forepart of the week but a rally on late sessions left current values steady to 10c lower. Chicago had a closing top of $9.40. Offerings 531,000 against 588,184 last week and 421,622 a year ago.

Fat Lambs Steady

Fat lambs unevenly steady to 40c higher as compared with a week ago, the maximum gain at Chicago. No change on aged stock. Chicago scored $13.50 on choice native lambs and $13.35 for best fed westerns. The supply was 225,000, a shortage of 54,000 from last week but 33,500 more than a year ago.

T. C. U. Ties Mustangs, 7-7, To Win Southwest Title

Lubbock-Cleburne Grid Mixup A Certainty

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Edit

The curtain has rung down on another football season, and despite the moans and groans earlier in the fall that the rules people had knocked the kick out of the great college sport, the 1929 season has been the most thrilling in recent years. At the beginning of the current campaign the complaint resounded throughout fandom that the old line-ramming days were gone. The new fumble rule had taken away the sensational run to touchdown that happened when one of the defensive players scooped up the floundering oval and skipped across the final stripe, it was claimed.

In the face of these changes, the nation has been treated to one of the most exciting seasons in history. Wide open style of play, with its breath-taking forward passes, and so much quick and expert handling of the lateral pass behind the line of scrimmage, has brought on a new era in the inter-collegiate pastime. The result has been record-breaking turnouts at the leading games of the country, the climax of which came on Nov. 16 when Notre Dame and Southern California played before 123,000 spectators. In the Southwest Conference, the championship was not decided until the final game yesterday between the Mustangs of S. M. U. and the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs. The greatest crowd in the history of the historic Texas-Texas A. & M. classis saw the Farmers and Longhorns battle last Thursday at Kyle Field. Clark Field at T. C. U. was packed to capacity Saturday in the title scrap between the Ponies and Frogs.

While the majority of football teams throughout the country have enjoyed successful patronage, the Texas Tech Matadors have experienced a disasterous grid season from the financial standpoint as well as in the matter of games won. It has long since been an accepted truth, in fact an old Spanish custom, that a losing football team cannot continue to lose and expect the support of the grid fans of their immediate section. Tech's record for the regular season which closed on Turkey Day shows the Matadors to have won one out of nine games; two were tie games and the remainder chalked up on the wrong side of the ledger. True the Crimson aggregation played a stiff schedule and had its share of tough breaks, including numerous casualties, but the average fan seldom stops to consider these points. Football customers, plank down their hard-earned cash for grid entertainment and the most enjoyable entertainment comes when the home team is winning.

Financial difficulties and the desire to bring together again the Matadors and Canyon Buffaloes has resulted in arranging a post-season encounter here next Friday with Tech's rival on the north. Through the first four years of the school's history, the Matadors and Bisons have met on Thanksgiving day, but this year Canyon was left off the schedule to make room for games with major conference teams. The resumption of hostilities between the two schools this week means that the Buffs will be included when the 1930 schedule is arranged.

If ever a football player was a marked man in any gridiron battle, Cy Leland was "spotted" in the championship scrap yesterday at Fort Worth. Coach Ray Morrison's made-to-order defense held the Frog flash at bay throughout the hard-fought combat. But Coach Schmidt had planned his attack in anticipation of this very thing. Leland was "back" on practically every play and with the Mustangs set to stop him, Griffith, Green and Grubbs ran wild. In the final analysis the Frogs did away with all talk about their luck in coming through the season undefeated. Time after time, the Toads took the ball deep in their own territory and drove down the field. The 16 first downs for the Christians compared to 6 for the Methodists leads one to believe that it was S. M. U. and not T. C. U. that gained the tie.

The brilliant play of Howard Grubbs, T. C. U. field general, removed all doubt as to the Frog quarterback's bid for all-conference honors. In addition to calling a near-perfect ball game, Grubbs was the backbone of the Purple onslaught, pegging rifle-like passes into the arms of his receivers and darting through the S. M. U. forward wall for repeated gains.

SMITH WINS TOURNEY

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 30. (AP)—Horton Smith, golfing sensation from Joplin, Mo., won the first Berkeley $5,000 Open golf tournament here today. He required only 280 strokes for the 72 holes of medal play.

Joe Westbrook, 170-pound Georgia Tech guard, is the only linesman who has been able to last a full game against Freddie Sington, 215-pound Alabama guard and tackle. Sington wore down five guards in the Kentucky game.

Bull Brown, Vanderbilt guard and captain, is leading his third football team. He captained the Morgain school eleven of Petersburg, Tenn., in 1924 and before that led the McFerrin prep outfit of Martin, Tenn.

Max Schmeling was one of three German athletes to receive a gold medal from the German association of sports writers for having excelled in sports during the year.

Contract Returns For Post-Season Game Here Dec. 13

Runners-Up In Strong Football Districts To Battle For Honor Of Sections; Coaches To Benefit

Lubbock high school's post-season engagement with the Cleburne Yellow Jackets here on December 13 became a certainty yesterday upon the receipt of the game's contract from Cleburne officials.

Waco's victory over Temple last week which gave the Tyson Tigers the championship of District Four had previously cleared the way for the Jackets to come here for the intersectional clash, but the returned document Saturday removed all doubt.

Both Lubbock and Cleburne were strong contenders for their respective district titles, but lost out in their race by a close margin. The Jackets were nosed out by the Champion Tigers, 7 to 6, while the Westerners bowed to the Amarillo Sandies, 13 to 7, after a bitter struggle.

Sections Clash.

Representing two extremes of the states, the two teams will be watched closely by grid fans throughout the state with the supremacy of East Texas football over West Texas football at stake.

Following their decisive victory over the Plainview Bulldogs here on Thanksgiving day, the Westerners have enjoyed a well-earned period of rest. Tomorrow the squad will be called together for a preliminary blackboard drill on Cleburne plays. Actual training for the skirmish is not likely to begin before Wednesday afternoon.

The post-season attraction has been sponsored by Lubbock business as a benefit game for the high school coaches, Henry Frnka and Del Morgan. The Westerners mentors have directed the Lubbock eleven to second place in the district for two successive years, losing only to Amarillo in 1928 and again in 1929. During the regular season which closed last Thursday, the Westerners won all of their 10 games, piling up a total of 240 points as compared to 34 for their opponents.

St. Edwards Ties El Paso Miners

EL PASO, Nov. 30. (AP)—The Texas Miners and St. Edward's university of Austin battled to a scoreless tie here this afternoon, closing the football season in the far southwest.

Only by sheer good luck did the Saints hold the Miners to a tie. Four times the El Paso team was inside the Saints' fifteen yard line. Once a field goal was missed by inches, and two other times, the Saints held the Miners by inches. The Miners' goal line was never threatened.

The game ended a successful season for the Miners, they having lost only to the University of Arizona.

Slaton To Meet Canyon On Friday

Tigers And Eagles Clash In Post-Season Contest On Slaton Gridiron; Bengals Boast Great Record

(Special to The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, Nov. 30—A post-season game between the Slaton High School Tigers and the Canyon High Eagles has been scheduled for next Friday in Slaton, Coach Paul W. Wright, of the Slaton eleven announced here.

The clash with the Eagles is expected to be one of the hardest battles the Tigers have ever fought. Canyon has played nine games this season, losing only one, and that by a mere two points. And those two points meant for the Eagles the loss of the right to go into the finals in District One this season.

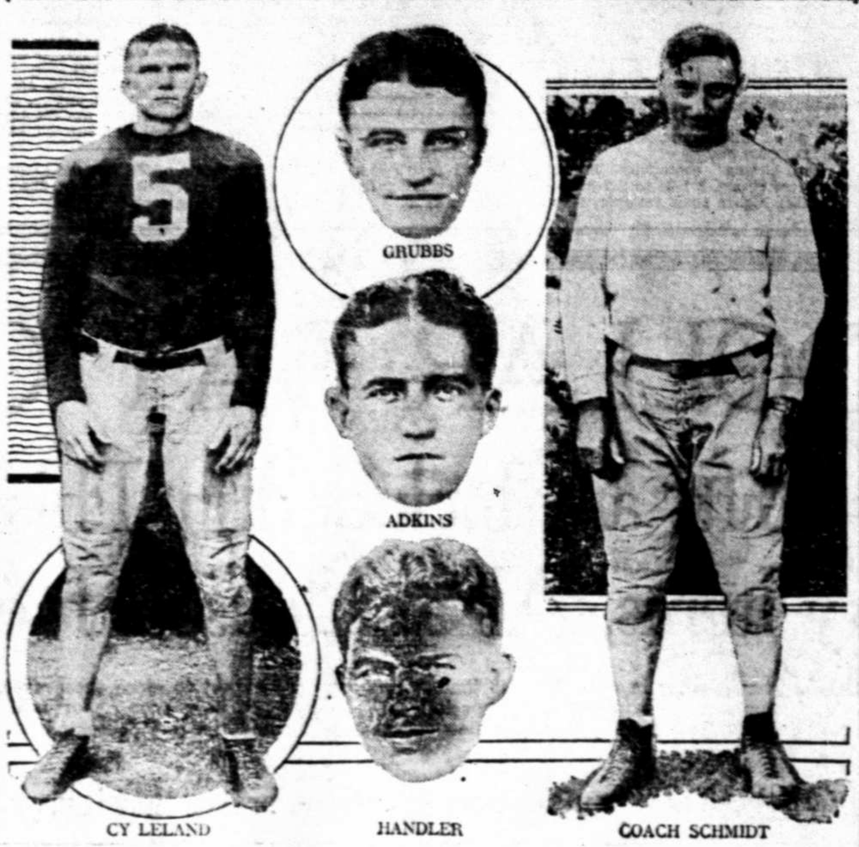

The Slaton gridmen have played ten games this season, winning eight of them. Of four inter-conference games played with Class A. teams, Slaton took three victories, beating Big Spring, 12 to 0; Clovis, N. M., 21 to 0; Plainview, 40 to 0; and held the strong Lubbock Westerners to a 7 to 0 count. The Tigers won five of six conference games, as follows: Brownfield, 33 to 0; Spur, 30 to 12; Paducah, 32 to 0; Post, 12 to 0; and Floydada, 18 to 6. Slaton lost to Lamesa, 32 to 13, due to a bad slump. The Tigers were picked by many fans over the district as worthy winners of the district title in District Two.

When Coach Spann's Eagles come to Slaton next Friday, they will be intent upon avenging a defeat they suffered here in 1928 when the Tigers trampled them for a 31 to 5 victory, to win the bi-district championship.

Trojans Wallop Cougars, 27 to 7

COLISEUM, LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30. (AP)—Ripping Washington State's line to shreds with tremendous power plays, Southern California's Trojans scored an easy 27 to 7 victory today to complete their coast conference season and eliminate the Cougars from a change to share the conference title with four other teams.

Horned Frogs Are Crowned Southwest Champs

Coach Francis Schmidt's Texas Christian University Horned Frogs reached their long sought goal Saturday when they gained a 7-7 tie with the S. M. U. Mustangs, thereby finishing the 1929 season in the van of Southwest Conference teams. The Ponies closed their campaign with two tie games marked against them and finished in second place. Tie games in the Southwest Conference count half a game won and half lost.

Elder's 100-Yard Sprint Is Margin For Notre Dame

Army's Fighting Eleven Is Victim Of Brilliant Run By Fleet Elder; Cagle Shines For Cadets

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—Army's fighting football team stopped Notre Dame's stalwarts in all but 11 seconds of their annual football game today but in that 11 seconds the undefeated and untied team from South Bend won the game. The score was 7 to 0 and 83,000, a record eastern crowd, saw the battle that was desperately fought in bitterly cold weather.

Jack Elder, one of the fastest men in a football uniform, won the game for the Ramblers early in the second period. He intercepted an army pass at his own goal line and ran the length of the field for the only touchdown of the game. His time for the century with a football under his arm could not have been much more than that in which he is clocked when unencumbered with football paraphernalia and wears scantier clothing.

Elder Grabs Pass.

The Notre Dame sprinter, doubling in football leaped into the air to catch a pass from Cagle, intended for Hutchinson in a corner of the field, with one foot touching the goal line marker. From the standpoint of the Army no more unfortunate choice of a pass intercepter could have been made. Elder tucked the ball under his arm and started straight down the sidelines along the familiar distance-one hundred yards. No one had a chance to stop him.

Big Buster Perry, Army's star tackle, made one desperate headlong dive at the flying Elder at the 45-yard line. He missed by a wide margin. Then Frank Carideo joined the procession to run interference the rest of the way, but the assistance of the brainy quarterback really was not needed. Elder was running "for Rock" and was not to be overhauled with a touchdown in sight. K. K. Rockne, Notre Dame coach, was far from his team, suffering from phlebitis at his South Bend home, and the players were determined to beat Army today "for Rock."

Army Had Threatened.

The situation had changed with dramatic suddenness. Just before Elder made a Notre Dame touchdown a fact an Army counter seemed about to materialize. The Cadets had been given a chance early in the game but could do nothing with it and then opportunity knocked again in the second period. Cagle and Murrel tore off two first downs to drive into Notre Dame territory at the start of the period. Notre Dame's great line with Cannon apparently here, there and everywhere, stopped the drive and the rambles took the ball on the 20-yard line when a pass failed.

Two smashes into the line availed nothing and Carideo punted. The ubiquitous Perry rushed in to block the kick and when the smoke cleared away, Army was found in possession of the ball on Notre Dame's 13-yard line. Cagle and Murrel plunged into the Notre Dame forward wall but gained only three yards between them and then the pass. Cagle shot a looping toss into a corner of the field, just to the goal line and Elder did the rest.

Elder was the hero of the game. For all around football playing the honors went to Captain Cagle, playing his last football game in the east. The elusive Cagle, for four years one of the game's greatest runners, not only contributed a goodly share of Notre Dame's anxious moments when the Army had the ball but he played one of the greatest defensive games of his brilliant career. Time after time, the star Notre Dame backs were met at the line of scrimmage by the Army red head and stopped there. He made the longest run of the game from scrimmage with a 25-yard dash and with the exception of Elder's epochal sprint, his 34-yard run after receiving a punt late in the game, was the longest run of any character. This was the Army's last real scoring threat.

It was the third time for Cagle to see a Notre Dame eleven beat the Army by one flashing play. In other days a great halfback named Flanagan ran away with a sensational touchdown, the only score of the game. Last year the Cadets were beaten by a touchdown. The winning marker being contributed by O'Brien, a substitute end who caught a great pass from Nemec. O'Brien played a part of today's game but caught no passes.

However, O'Brien was not alone in this feat. No one caught a pass today except those thrown by an opponent. Two of the best forward passing teams in the United States could not complete a pass, one reason, may have been they have manufactured so many passes themselves that they know just how to keep the other fellow impotent in air attacks.

Notre Dame compiled a total of six first downs to five for Army, but the Cadets outgained the Ramblers by rushing 144 to 126. Army also demonstrated a punting superiority, Murrel averaging better than 39 yards for his boots, while Carideo and Schwartz were under 29 yards.

Army played all the way with its starting lineup. When golden jerseyed players started the game, they enlisted for the duration of the football war and Coach Biff Jones, saying goodbye to football in the east, did not send in a substitute.

Reserve Backs Start.

Notre Dame followed its usual strategy of starting its first string line and reserve backfield. The leading ball carriers were rushed in a body early in the first period.

The record crowd shivered and cheered, the exciting play causing the fans at intervals to forget the bitter cold. This game marked the close of one of Notre Dame's greatest sessions.

Army has one more to play, against Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., December 28. Notre Dame demonstrated today that it deserves its success while Army showed that it has had a great team all year, dogged by a cruel misfortune.

The lineup:

After the Mustangs had scored first on a pass to Mason in the third period, the Frogs came back to put across the tying counter in the last quarter, and to scrap the Mustangs off their feet until the final gun. Grubbs, Frog quarterback, dived across for the tying score from the one yard line and Green added the extra point that gave the Christians the championship.

Ponies Line Holds

Only a stubborn stand by the Methodists line deprived the Frogs of what would have been a winning touchdown late in the game. Four times the Frog backs plunged into the Pony forwards from the one yard line without gaining an inch. Again a Christian pass, thrown by Grubbs in a desperate endeavor to score was missed across the goal line.

Cy Leland, the outstanding Frog backfield star, was stopped almost dead for the day, but Grubbs' great performance made up the Leland's failure to get away on his usual long gallops.

Mason Scores First

Gilbert, dropping far back, pegged a long aerial to Mason, who took it on his finger tips 23 yards past the line of scrimmage and almost on the side line. He whirled and fought himself loose down 3 tacklers in the first ten yards, then broke into the open and slipped on across the goal line. The play carried 57 yards in all. Neely, big guard kicked a perfect placement for the extra point.

On the basis of first downs, the conference champions had a decided advantage over the Methodists, compiling 16 to their opponents' 6. Several times the Frogs started deep in their own territory and carried the oval far down the field on successive downs only to be checked when within scoring distance.

Not until the Mustangs had scored and the title appeared to be slipping from their grasp did the white jersied Christians open up the vivid offensive game that had carried them to nine straight victories this season. Then the brilliant Grubbs began sending his rifle shots through to his receivers and himself darting thru the Mustang line for repeated gains. The Mustangs were kept constantly on the defensive once the Frogs threw it into high.

Score With Wind

Both touchdowns were scored when the teams had a stiff south wind at their backs. Punts into the teeth of the biting breeze seldom went more than twenty-five yards. The Mustangs had all the better of the first quarter, as Mason and Kattman made repeated gains through the center of the Frog line and off the tackles. They threatened first when Mason took a purple punt and made a brilliant 15 yard return to the 30 yard mark. From there Kattman spun thru center for 11 yards and a first down on the 19 yard stripe. They failed to score only because Kattman muffed a perfect pass from Gilbert almost on the goal line on a fourth down. An intercepted pass by Cy Leland and a 15 yard penalty against the Mustangs enabled the Frogs to carry the ball to within 21 yards of the goal just as the first period ended.

Just before the half ended the Frogs started a march from their own 20 yard line that took them within 33 yards of a touchdown, but they lost out when Powell intercepted one of Grubbs' tosses near the goal line. Green plunged three consecutive first downs in this drive. The third quarter was half away when the Mustangs broke thru to score after a lengthy exchange of punts. Mason returned Walker's punt 10 yards to his own 43 yard mark and on the next play took the pass from Gilbert that netted a touchdown.

Grubbs brought the Frogs to life at the start of the last period when he tore through center for a first down on the Ponies' 49 yard line. He shot a bullet pass to Roberson that carried to the 34 yard stripe, and then joined Green in plunging to the 25 yard parallel. From there he pegged another one to Roberson, who was tackled on the two yard mark.

There the great Mustang line rose in its might and repulsed four savage thrusts by Green and Grubbs, but the Frogs were not to be denied for long. Mason kicked out to the 24 yard line against the wind, and from there the Christians began their scoring drive. A pretty pass from Grubbs to Leland planted the sphere 11 yards from the goal line. In four plunges at center by Green and Grubbs, the Frogs carried to a first down a foot from goal. Green hurled himself at the big Red and Blue line without denting it, but on third down. Grubbs knifed over tackle and plied across the line.

One of the game's most dramatic moments came a moment later when Harlos Green, the Frogs' sophonore fullback, lined his sights for the placement kick that either would give his team a tie and the coveted title or blast its hopes. He sent the pigskin spinning squarely between the bars for the deciding point in one of the most sensational campaigns the Southwest conference ever has seen.

W. Carl Williams Back To Wichita As Spud Manager

Former Spudder Pilot To Return To Oiler City For 1930 Season; Gave Wichita First Pennant

WICHITA FALLS, Nov. 29. (AP)—Appointment of W. Carl Williams as manager of the Wichita Falls Texas League club for 1930 was announced tonight by William E. Huff, president of the club. Williams, who resigned as manager during the 1923 season because of ill health, piloted the Spudders to their first championship and a clean sweep in the Dixie series in 1927.

He succeeds Jim Calloway, who resigned at the end of the last campaign. Williams will be a bench manager.

Williams has been connected with the club in various capacities since 1925, serving last year as manager of the Spud farm club at Abilene. He has made a number of scouting trips during the past two years, and once was brought in during an emergency to play first base.

Navy Wins First Major Game, 13-6

Middies Uncork Brand New Offensive To Whip Powerful Dartmouth Eleven; Lew Kirn Stars

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30. — Waiting until the fag end of a hectic season, Navy uncorked a smashing offensive today, a brand new scoring back, and enough punch to whip a powerful Dartmouth eleven, 13 to 6, for the first and last major victory of the sailors in the 1929 gridiron campaign.

A second year youngster named Lew Kirn, 160 pounds of smash and go from Hightstown, N. J., was the leather lugging moses who led the hand-picked nephews of Uncle Sam out of a wilderness of defeat and ties that have engulfed the Navy record since the start of the season. Thriving on the coldest November 30 Philadelphia has experienced since 1880, this 19 year old boy, one of the "B" squad sparring partners for the first team until two weeks ago, smashed the husky Dartmouth line for two touchdowns in the second half and all but one of the points needed to win the first game Navy has ever played with the Indians from the Hanover Hills of New Hampshire.

The Lineups:

Dartmouth	Position	Navy
Andres	center	Hughes
Nims	right guard	Koepke
Armstrong	right tackle	Bryan
Yudicky	right end	Hagberg
Morton	quarterback	Gannon
Wolff	right half	H. Bauer
Wilkens	full back	Clifton

Referee: W. McCrowell, Swarthmore; Umpire: T. J. Thorp, Columbia; head linesman: H. A. Fisher, Columbia; field judge: E. J. O'Brien, Tufts.

Score by periods:

Navy	0	0	6	7	—13
Dartmouth	0	0	0	6	— 6

Navy scoring: touchdowns, Kirn 2. Point after touchdown: pass, Gannon to Clifton.

Dartmouth scoring: touchdown, McCall.

When Michigan State defeated the Mississippi Aggies at Jackson, Miss., it marked the first time the mid-western eleven had won a road game in six years.

Port Arthur Is District 7 Champ

HOUSTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Julius Hecker and ten other Sam Houston high school players put on a garrison finish to the race in District Seven here Saturday by handing the John Reagan High Bulldogs a 13 to 0 trouncing in a thrilling hard fought football game. This defeat for the Bulldogs gives the title to the Port Arthur Yellowjackets, who have only a tie game to blemish their record, and gives them the right to meet Brownsville in a bi-district game next week.

Hecker was the dominating factor in the defeat of the Bulldogs. This tall 172-pound halfback did everything a little better than anyone expected and scored the first touchdown in the third period by sweeping right end for six yards after a steady advance down the field, and tossed a 30-yard pass to Carlson in the last quarter for the other score.

The win for the Tigers throws Sam Houston and Reagan into a tie for the city high school championship.

NORTH DAKOTA WINS

Loyola Of Chicago Downed By 7 To 0 Count

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (AP)—The University of North Dakota's football team, champions of the North Central conference, chalked up another victory in their last regularly scheduled game of the season today by battering Loyola of Chicago for a 7 to 0 verdict as the thermometer hovered around zero.

Jerry Breen, Michigan State halfback, played three years in high school and three years in college, before he committed his first fumble.

Seven married men played on the Oregon Aggies eleven.

Southwestern Conference Books Close Without Loop Victory For Owls; Losers Fight Grimly

RICE FIELD, HOUSTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Bare headed, trim little Jake Wilson gathered his Baylor University sattellites around him today and destroyed this season's last football hopes of Rice Institute. The Institute fell under the heavy fire, 19 to 0 and tonight, when the Southwest Conference record books were closed there was not a single 1929 loop victory to its credit.

The brilliant 140 pound halfback scored two of the three touchdowns. He passed, he kicked and he tackled as ably as any man.

But for Wilson it would have been a drab anti-climatic affair. Only about 4,000 people came out to the field and many of them came only to see him in action. The weather was dreary.

Punt Frequently

For a time it looked that the prayers of the Rice partisans for just one successful stand might be answered in a measure as Jake did not begin to shine in the first period and the teams battled doggedly and more or less aimlessly, punting frequently.

Early in the second quarter the Wilson menace began casting its shadow over the Rice rooting stands but the Owls made a valorous defense on their own five yard line to turn it back. They turned it back only momentarily, however, as not five minutes later the ball had been shoved far into Rice territory. Wilson tossed a pass to McElreath, who ran 10 yards for a touchdown. There were few cheers as only a handful of Baylor students were present. The team itself was minus some of its regulars.

Rice Threatens

One real scare for the Bears came just before the half ended. Calvin, humble reserve back, became for the moment a superman. He picked up a batted pass that McCarble had fumbled and dashed 50 yards before being downed. Rice worked up to the Baylor five yard line but there the Green and Gold held.

In the third period Rice almost got somewhere, Ken Lee, a hard working back who played a grim fighting game, got away around end and was out in front of the defense men. Wilson, the irrepressible, dived from far away for him, barely touched his legs and tangled those flying pinions so thoroughly that Lee came crashing down to end a 28 yard run. But for that touch on the leg, the Owls at least would have scored.

The third period smashed the Rice prospects for good. Ralph Jones, the hot headed Rice half, fumbled in his own territory and McElreath recovered for Baylor on the Owls' 15 yard line. He crouched and drove his huge figure for 12 yards through a yielding Owl forward wall. Wilson with little apparent effort went over.

Jake, who played with the cool detachment of an expert, came back soon to lash the home guard again. He broke away for 45 yards, let his partner, McElreath, take the ball on up from the 20 yard marker to within three yards of the embattled goal line, and plunged over again. This time Lewter kicked goal. McElreath had missed the other two tries.

Matadors Face Canyon Buffaloes In Clash Here Friday

Revamped Lineup Likely In Battle With Old Rivals

Anti-Climax To Poor Season Finds Crimson Crew Determined To Make Showing; Funds Low

A Texas Tech football eleven that has been routed repeatedly during the 1929 season will make its final gesture of the year in the form of an anti-climax here Friday afternoon when the Buffaloes from the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon invade the Bull Fighters' arena for a post-season skirmish with the men of Higginbotham and Payne.

Tech coaches and others who are closely connected with the Matador squad declare that a revised lineup will face the invading Buffalo horde when the visitors stampede on the college gridiron. Members of the Tech squad who have seen little action in early games this season will be given an opportunity to display their wares in the clash between the Plains rivals.

May Buy Awards

With the Tech athletic department facing a financial crisis, the primary purpose of Friday's game is to raise necessary funds to buy athletic awards for football letter men, it was pointed out last night by Marvin T. Warlick, Tech manager of athletics.

The 1929 Canyon eleven that comes here this week is one of the strongest in the history of the college. Coach Claude Reeds, of Oklahoma University, has built a speedy scoring machine that made a strong bid for T.I.A.A. honors, and narrowly missed a triumph over the Simmons Cowboys, who last Thursday trounced the Matadors 21 to 0. On an Amarillo field, the Abilene eleven nosed out the iBsons, 14 to 12.

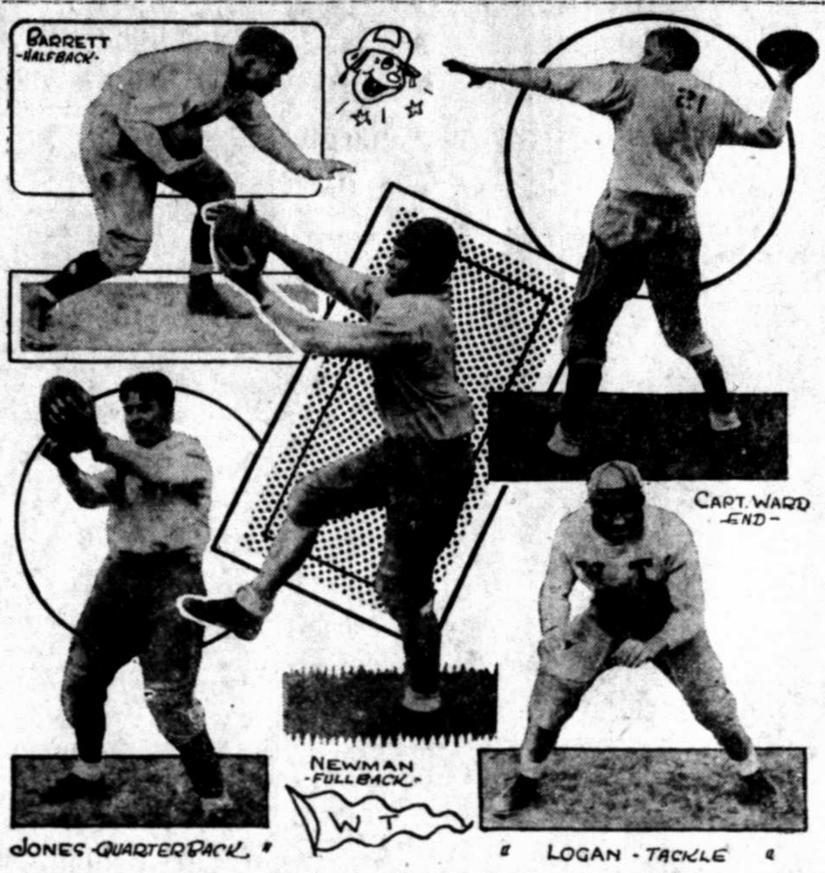

Four days of training remain for the Matadors to assemble their battered forces for their last stand of the year. Within this time, Coaches Higginbotham and Payne hope to reorganize the club to the extent that a comeback will be staged at the expense of the Canyonites.

To Send Special

Reports from Canyon indicate the college and city will turn out en masse for the battle here. A special train will bring the majority of the Buffalo fans to Lubbock and a large number is expected to drive through. Plans are under way to meet the Canyon special with a large delegation of Tech supporters. A parade through the downtown section will follow.

This is the first season since Texas Tech opened in 1925 that the Matadors and Buffaloes have failed to meet on Thanksgiving day. The desire to make room for major teams of the state caused the Bisons to be left off Tech's schedule.

Canyon Buffaloes Point to Game Here Friday

Coach Claude Reeds and his stampeding Buffaloes from the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon will invade the Matadors' arena here Friday afternoon in a post-season scrap with the men of Higginbotham and Payne. Here are shown a few of the Canyon stars who will be seen in action.

SUSPEND DRILLING

Slaughter-Westbrook Well Awaiting Cables

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

MORTON, Nov. 30.—At a depth of 2,775 feet, drilling at the Slaughter-Westbrook well three miles south of Morton has been suspended awaiting arrival of cables from Wink, the drilling scheduled to be changed from rotary to cable tools.

The well is in 55 feet of hard lime, which was struck about 900 feet nearer the surface than hard lime at the Slaughter-Marland well five miles southwest of Lehman. Similar formations to the Lehman well are being found in the Slaughter-Westbrook well near here.

Reports state that another well is to go down on the C. C. Slaughter tract at a location about four miles from the present drilling operations.

Mrs. J. L. Webb and daughters, Misses Joyce and Jack Webb of Wichita Falls, and Mrs. B. A. Connally, of McGregor, spent Thanksgiving in Lubbock visiting relatives, and Mrs. Connally has remained for an extended visit.

Tony Holm, Alabama fullback, gained 1,293 yards in eight games.

And Now The Wife Buys Hubby's Ties!

Though 'A Man's A Man For A' Of That' Cravats Purchased Here Are Nearly All Chosen By Wife

"The best laid plans of mice and men", are often knocked into the well-known cocked hat, if you believe the modern translation of Bobby Burns. While it is not exactly clear what the poet had in mind for the plans of the mice it must be admitted that the average man's plans are sometimes changed for him. And all this is true despite the fact that the same poet insists "A man's a man for a of that."

Take the matter of wearing ties. A few years ago a man would not be seen wearing a tie that had been selected by a woman, and at Christmas loud and long were the groans that went up as package after package was opened from doting relatives containing ties and more ties. Beginning with the first of each year janitors and office boys blossomed for in ties of the most startling shades which might have been recognized by the relatives. In those days if ridicule was made of a tie the best way to pass it off was to remark, "Yes, I know it is terrible, but you see it's one the wife gave me and I wouldn't hurt her feelings by refusing to wear it."

Statistics have failed to reveal how many of these streamers were bought by the males who were wearing them.

But now popular fallacy has been exploded and women buy as many ties as men. Furthermore the men wear them and are glad enough to do so. The reason for this remarkable change has been suggested by several clerks in local stores, among them Jack Diamond, of Hemphill-Wells department store.

According to Mr. Diamond, fully ninety per cent of the ties sold by him and his co-workers are four-in-hands. The second choice being butter-fly bows which are worn for evening occasions.

"Women seem more intent on selecting men's ties and socks to match than do the males themselves," declared Mr. Diamond, "while as a rule collegians try to harmonize them with the thread of their suits. The average fellow sees a tie which suits his fancy and purchases it immediately, regardless of possible discord." Statement was made that many wives purchase all of their husbands ties and display taste which is appreciated.

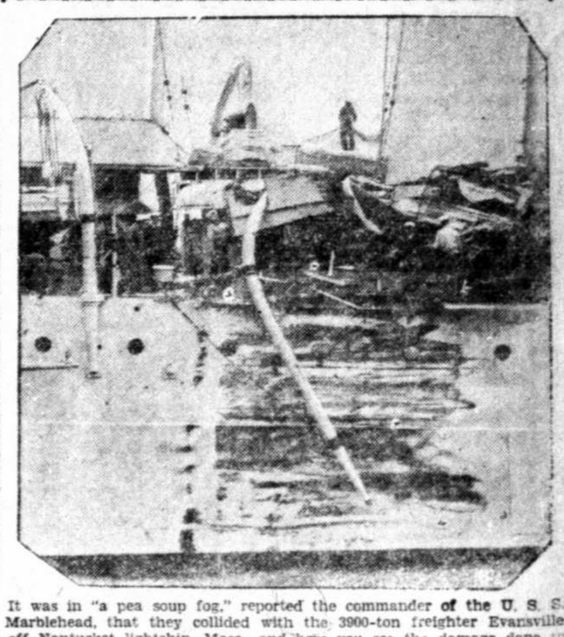

"The reason to which I would attribute this change of affairs," said W. J. Culp, of Minter-Game's store, "is that the pattern of ties shown today is so much more conservative than a few years ago. Today you notice the ties do not resemble a sunset at sea or the neighbor's flower garden, but on the contrary may be found to harmonize with suits of various shades and of a variety to please the most fastidious person."

"What sort of ties do you generally wear?" Olen (Polly) Puckett, Tech student in the architectural department of the school of engineering, was asked. "It all depends upon the one that my roommate isn't wearing," Puckett replied.

And then there is a local physician, who always wears loud ties, but affects socks of the somberest color. In fact most doctors wear ties that are enough to startle a patient but on the other hand are in some cases the gifts of grateful ones whose health they have restored.

It has been noticed that many ministers wear ties of a quiet shade while they are in the pulpit and colorful ones during the week.

Cruiser Rammed by Freighter

It was in "a pea soup fog," reported the commander of the U. S. S. Marblehead, that they collided with the 3900-ton freighter Evansville off Nantucket lightship, Mass., and here you see the damage done to the navy vessel, pictured after it had docked at Boston. None was injured aboard either craft, but the Marblehead, struck nearly amidships, sustained several buckled plates and a motor launch on deck was shattered. Both ships went on under their own power.

In the last ten years the cost to reduced from 20 man hours to produce an acre of corn has been 4 1-2 man hours.

Commander Byrd Completes Air Trip To South Pole

Feat Gives Byrd Distinction Of Seeing Both Poles

Successful Trip Is Made By Plane Over Polar Region By Trio; Congratulations Given In U. S.

(By Associated Press)

Commander Byrd's flight across the South Pole has made him the first man in history to fly across both of the earth's poles.

In May, 1926, in the tri-motored Fokker airplane, the Josephine Ford, Commander Byrd flew from King's Bay Spitzbergen, across the North Pole and return.

That springtime flight required a total of 15 hours and 30 minutes and the round trip covered 1,600 miles. In addition to being the first to fly across the North Pole, Byrd was also the first man to fly over it in a heavier than air machine. On that historic flight his pilot was Floyd Bennett, who died April 25, 1928, while attempting to rescue the crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen from Greenly Island. Bennett was second in command of the Byrd ant-Arctic expedition and had intended to accompany the commander on the trip.

Begun On Thursday.

The flight across the South Pole begun Thursday, was the first attempt he had made to fly to the pole, although previously he had used airplanes in flights from his base at Little America in laying sub-bases on the route to the pole and in exploration trips.

He was the third man to reach the South pole. The first was Ronald Amundsen, a Norwegian, who reached it Dec. 14, 1911, and a few days later he was followed by Capt. Robert F. Scott, British explorer. Both of them used overland methods of travel.

Balchen Is Pilot.

Bernt Balchen, pilot for Commander Byrd on the South Polar flight, also was a pilot on the commander's trans-Atlantic flight of June 29, 1927. With Bert Acosta and Floyd Bennett, they flew the monoplane America from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., to Ver-Sur-Mer, France. Balchen, chief pilot of the expedition, is a native of Norway and has had extensive experience piloting planes under Polar flying conditions. He assisted in all the tests to which the planes destined for the Byrd Atlantic expedition were subjected.

Harlod I. June, radio operator of the flight, is a petty officer and pilot in the navy and was granted a leave of absence to accompany the expedition. He was chief engineer in the famous "Billion Dollar Crew" of the Vanderbilt Yacht during the war.

In addition to Balchen and June, Commander Byrd was accompanied on his South Polar flight by Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, an aerial photographer of St. Louis, Mo. Captain McKinley served from 1917 to 1926 in the United States army air corps.

Commander Byrd's expedition reached the ant-Arctice in December of last year. After various reconnaissance flights from his base, he and his party established winter quarters on the ice barrier about the Antarctic continent. Only recently, with the coming of spring in that frozen territory, activity was resumed.

Hoover Sends Note To Explorer

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP) — The New York Times announced last night it had been directed by President Hoover to forward through its wireless station the following message to Commander Byrd:

"Commander Richard E. Byrd.

"Little America.

"I know that I speak for the American people when I express their universal pleasure at your successful flight over the South Pole. We are proud of your courage and your leadership. We are glad of proof that the spirit of great adventure still lives. Our thoughts of appreciation include also your companions in the flight and your colleague whose careful and devoted preparation have contributed to your great success.

"Herbert Hoover."

Byrd's Mother Happy Over Son's Feat

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 30. (AP) — Mrs. Richard E. Byrd Sr., mother of Commander Richard E. Byrd, in commenting last night from her home in Winchester, Va., said she was happy to hear of her son's safe landing after his flight over the South Pole.

Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, brother of the flier, said he had no comment to make.

Mrs. Byrd said, "I was never so happy in my life as when we heard he had landed safely back at Little America. We were really quite uneasy because this flight seemed so hazardous."

Aged Explorer Gives Praise To Commander

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP) — One of the first in Washington to speak in highest praise of Commander Byrd's achievement was General A. W. Greeley, 86, gray-bearded dean of Actic explorers who wrested the three-century "farthest north" record from the British in 1882.

"Every American can be glad that an American duplicated the act of Amundsen, only man who heretofore reached both poles," said Greeley, "and Byrd has the additional distinction of being the only man to fly over both poles. Amundsen having made his South Polar trip by dog team."

National Geographic Society Praises Feat

STUDENT'S FATHER DIES

Word was received yesterday on the campus that the father of Archer Lanier Powell died suddenly at his home in Lamesa. Powell is a sophomore in the School of Engineering. He was spending the week-end in Eastland and had not returned to the college when he learned of his father's death.

ART WORK DONE

Edna Houghton, a graduate of last year who is enrolled in the School of Engineering for special work has completed the page "Ex-Libris" for this year's edition of La Ventana, college annual. She is also doing work on some of the other main division pages, one of which is to be sent to the engravers for an art process test immediately.

Main divisions and sub-divisions of the book are to be treated with a special water color process. The art theme has been so worked out that it will include drawings of campus buildings.

COLLEGE REVUE

If you want to hear the voice of the plains as expressed by the wind whipping sand and skirts in every direction then listen to it echoing down the corridors after the disturbances between classes have quieted down. It is just as insistent as the echo from cheering which resounds in the halls during the football games. It caused Nell Goodloe to have to holler extra loud at Margaret Williams when she asked to take her home.

It was insistently whipping long streamers of green crepe paper, part of the Pre-Law dance decorations around in front of the Administration building. Eugene Adair stopped to sympathize with a Toreador reporter who was diligently taking notes in spite of the fact that they were almost blown from her hand.

Under the arcades the force was stronger and it was more than some co-eds could do to keep papers in their note-books. Slime Jones' pep wasn't in the least abated by it, though. He declared that there would be the best pep rally of the season before the W. T. S. T. C. game with Tech next Friday.

PERMISSION GRANTED

Permission has been granted to the Tech Chamber of Commerce to have charge of intramural athletics by the intramural council. The organization will offer a trophy to the school which wins each year. After it has been won three years by the same school it will become the permanent property of that one.

The Chamber of Commerce was also authorized to make a small charge for admission to intramural games to pay the expenses of purchasing the trophy and advertising the games.

RECEPTION TUESDAY NIGHT

A reception for the cast of "Once There Was a Princess" and members of the Woman's Forum will be held after the presentation of the play Tuesday night at the home of Sylva Wilson, 1911, 16th street.

Tickets to the play may be secured from members of the Forum or from members of the Sock and Buskin club. The play is to be presented in the auditorium of the Lubbock high school at 8 o'clock. It is sponsored by members of Sock and Buskin and the Woman's Forum.

INSPECTION MADE

A class in newspaper reporting was shown through the Avalanche-Journal Publishing company yesterday morning. Cecil Horne, director of the publicity of the college is instructor of the class which has an enrollment of 28 students.

RETURNS TO CAMPUS

Cecil Horne, director of publicity of the college, returned to the college yesterday from Abilene where he and his family spent the holidays.

COLLEGE INN GUESTS

During the past week several guests have been entertained at College Inn, freshman dormitory for girls. Among them were: Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Templeton, Wellington, who visited their daughters Idabel and Lois; Mrs .W. H. Youngblood of Clarendon who visited her daughter Thelma and son Wade; Mrs. O. W. Latson and daughters and son were the guest of Verna Latson of Clarendon; Mary Hazel Hurn of Post was the guest of Verna Latson and Thelma Youngblood; Mrs. I. N. Collins of Claude visited her daughter, Allie Rae.

Elizabeth O'Connell, Brilla Mae Willis and Kay Stallings have gone to their homes in Crowell, Sweetwater and Post, respectively, to spend the week-end with their parents.

Earl Puson and Ed Dressen are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Ed Puson and Dr. and Mrs. John Dressen, of Abilene this week-end.

Miss Eva Carpenter, returned missionary from India who lectured at the Nazarene church Thursday and Friday, left yesterday for Tahoka where she will speak today.

Quail Season To Be Opened Today

Nimrods Of Section Out In Search Of Bob Whites, Blues and Mexican Quail; Reported Plentiful

Nimrods come into their own today as open season is declared on the feathered ones of the air, better known as Quail.

Bob White and his cousins, Mr. Blue and Mr. Mexican, will be the chief object of search for thousands of hunters, who have oiled up their trusty weapons and donned the heavy outdoor clothing for the official opening of one of the hunting seasons on quail.

Prior to the opening of the season, M. W. Dickinson, district deputy game warden, has issued a warning on hunting outside the home county without hunting license.

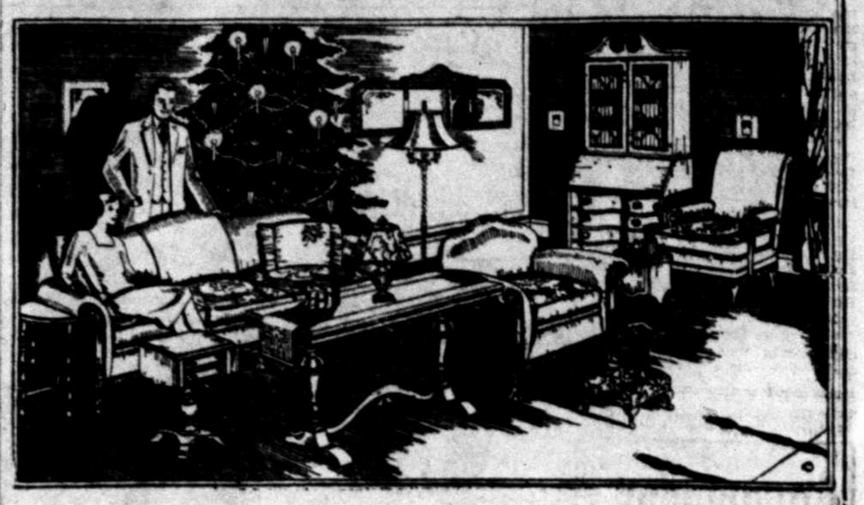

"Not only must the license law be observed, but those who are caught going over their limit will be punished to the full extent of the law. Remember that 12 is the individual limit for one day and 36 for the week. It will be remembered that one fine will pay for your hunting license over a period of 12 years."

The district game executive reports that quail are unusually plentiful this season and that the supply should last for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Munger and two children, of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. Munger's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Henry L. Munger, 1419 Broadway.

Little Betty May Haynes, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Haynes, 1912 Broadway, is convalescing following a tonsilectomy performed yesterday morning at a local sanitarium.

Miss Ruth Slaton and Oscar Slaton will arrive today from Dallas where they have been confined in a hospital since Monday, October 21, when both were seriously injured in an automobile crash on the Dallas pike. Improvement has continued steadily in the condition of both young people according to a report yesterday.

French Evacuate Rhineland Zones

COBLENZ, Germany, Nov. 30. (AP)—The French tricolor that replaced the stars and stripes over the famous old fortress of Ehrenbreitstein after the evacuation of American troops from the Rhineland was hauled down for the last time today, as the French soldiers began to evacuate the second Rhineland zone.

Most of the French soldiers marched to the Moselle railway station and entrained for Metz. An automobile column of 60 cars left for Mayence.

The lowering of the tri-color and the hoisting of the German republican standard on the castle above the historic Rhine was the signal for celebrations throughout the Rhineland tonight.

The hoboes are asking for a four-day woking week of two hours daily. They ought to run for office.

Annual B. Y. P. U. Conclave Brought To Close

LONGVIEW, Nov. 30. (AP) — Declaring the gathering the most successful ever held, the annual convention of the Texas Baptist Young People's Union was brought to a close here today with the selection of the next meeting place and the election of officers.

Temple was decided upon as the 1930 convention city, after a vigorous campaign had been waged by several other cities. Dates for next year's convention were announced as November 27-29.

Dads Of Tech Students Send Children To College On 108 Kinds Of Positions

Two Foreign Nations And 18 States Are Represented Here

THE 2,050 students of Texas Technological college representing two foreign countries, 18 states and 181 Texas counties, are being supported by 108 professions, according to occupations of the students' fathers and mothers.

From the job as janitor of a courthouse to the position of banker, fathers of widely separated financial conditions have sent their sons and daughters to Tech.

Many from Farms

An interesting revelation in the list of occupations announced by Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the college, is that 822 students hail from rural backgrounds.

Thirty-one students are sons and daughters of ministers; the father of one student is an apiary owner; another's father is a Christian Science practitioner, while the father of another is a prison warden. Few are supported by widowed mothers.

Others in the list of occupations follow: Ten abstractors; 2 accountants; 1 advertising solicitor; 4 architects; 2 auditors; 8 auto dealers; 2 bakers; 42 bankers; 18 barbers; 1 beauty shop owner; 4 blacksmiths; 7 bookkeepers; 1 bottler; 4 brokers; 10 business men; 8 butchers; 4 cafe owners; 2 candy makers; 32 carpenters; 11 cattlemen; 1 city manager; 11 clerks.

One cobbler; 1 collector; 3 commissioners; 63 contractors; 1 county agent; 16 cotton buyers; 1 compressman; 4 county judges; 1 cotton weigher; 3 credit men; 12 dairymen; 2 deans of colleges; 6 dentists; 50 doctors; 17 druggists; 3 editors; 8 electricians; 20 engineers; 3 expressmen; 646 farmers; 1 financier; hardware dealers; 4 hotel managers; 25 insurance salesmen; 3 janitors; 6 jewelers; 13 laborers; 1 laundryman; 22 lawyers; 2 loan dealers; 2 locksmiths; 16 lumbermen and 1 machinist.

Three manufacturers; 1 city marshal; 1 brick mason; 2 mayors; 18 mechanics; 138 merchants; 3 millers; 1 milliner; 8 newspapermen; night watchman; 4 nurserymen; 10 oil contractors; 26 oil dealers; 9 oil field workers; 1 oil mill manager; 3 optometrists; 4 painters; 1 paper hanger; 2 pharmacists; 1 photographer; 2 printers; 129 ranchers; 38 railroad men; 78 realtors; 1 reporter; 52 salesmen; 1 saw mill operator; 4 sercetaries; 3 sheriffs; 1 ship builder; 1 showman; 23 stockmen; 1 superintendent of buildings; 9 tax assessors; 2 tax collectors; 47 teachers; 8 telephone men; 5 truckers; 3 utility men; 2 undertakers; 2 veterinary inspectors and professions of 149 were not given.

Congress to Open Session Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Preparing for the opening of the first regular session of congress in the Hoover administration, republican leaders on capitol hill today assigned tax reduction as the first job for the house but found the tariff bill and Vare case confusing the senate program.

A move was started to defer consideration of the right of Senator Elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, to a senate seat but Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, asserted he would demand a vote next week on his resolution denying Vare admittance to the senate.

OIL MAN DIES

ARDMORE, Okla., Nov. 30. (AP)—J. B. Schermerhorn, pioneer Oklahoma and Texas oil man, president of the Schermerhorn-Ardmore Oil company, tied today at Rochester, Minn. Friends here were notified. C. W. Tomlinson and F. W. Merrick left Ardmore by airplane for Minneapolis, Minn., Schermerhorn's home, to attend the funeral. Surviving are his widow and two children.

EIGHT INJURED

BEAUMONT, Nov. 30. (AP)—J. W. McCowen, foreman of a crew of negro laborers at the Miller-Vidor Lumber company saw mill here, was injured and seven members of his crew were hurt when the part of the runway on which they were working crahed and allowed an avalanche of heavy timber to pin them down.

Grand Old Custom Of Giving Gold For Christmas Rapidly Disappearing Here

Lubbock Bankers Say People Forgetting Yellow Coins

"C'EST LA GUERRE!"

Folks who are old enough to vote will know what that means. Others won't be interested because this is a tale which deals with money and people under 21, we're told, have no legal right to have and to hold, without guardianship, any of the coin of the realm.

They Were "Good Old Days"

Back in the good old days, whenever they were, it was an old American custom for employers, doting aunts and uncles, grandparents and sometimes fathers and mothers to 'say it with gold-pieces' at the glorious Yuletide. The practice, at the period was quite popular with all concerned but, as Lubbock bankers put it "since the war there has been a decided departure from the gold-piece gift plan' and no more than $600 is expected to be passed out via that route in Lubbock this year.

So, we have something else to blame on the war—whether the conflict is guilty, in the final analysis, or not.

Then, too, banks do not like to handle gold. Like the man biting the dog, that's undoubtedly news because it is the first time on record that anyone has seriously objected to having anything at all to do with the yellow stuff we all fight over and for. Still, we live and learn—and all that sort of thing.

So, Here's The Point

But, frankly, and without beating around the bush any longer, we'll break down and explain just what this is all about. Why the custom has almost ceased being a custom, why the banks find handling gold disagreeable—and everything else connected with the intriguing subject of gold-pieces for Christmas Here goes:

"Gold is not used as much since the war," according to O. L. Slaton, president of the First National bank of this city, "because it is heavy and the people do not like to carry it."

Gold Deteriorates

And now comes the reason for the astounding fact that banks do not like to handle gold. The banks pay par for the gold when it is shipped and when it is ready to be shipped back the gold is again weighed and nearly always has lost weight by friction.

Although gold isn't used much in this part of the country it is used a great deal on the Pacific coast because that is where the mints are. It is also used in and around Denver, site of another mint.

C. F. Drexel, vice president and cashier of the Citizens National bank, says that "The practice of the employers giving gold-pieces to their employes used to be very common, and although the custom is dying out there are still some firms who continue the practice."

Containers Ordered

Neat little containers are furnished by the banks for those who want to give bills for Christmas gifts and slots have been ordered for silver.

When the various firms want to give gold-pieces the banks are usually notified before and the gold ordered from Dallas. The depositors are not to become perturbed over the fact that the banks do not have the gold in readiness because they can get it within a very short time, according to Mr. Drexel.

As John D. Mitchell, cashier of the Lubbock National bank, states, "People under forty years of age know very little about gold. The principal use for gold-pieces is for watch charms and keepsakes. Christmas is the only time in the year when there is any great demand for gold."

According to Mr. Mitchell, banks do not encourage use of gold by their customers because usually when a person carries much gold others become suspicious, get the idea he has much more where the first came from and try to steal from him. It is dangerous to carry very much gold, Mr. Mitchell believes.

Found! An Almost Perfect Operator

Virginia Tiner, Chief 'Hello Girl' At Tech, Rarely Give Wrong Number; Her Job Has Its Good Points

"Awfus."

"Sa mistake, 'scue zit, pleez."

"The line is bizzee."

And Virginia Tiner, Lubbock junior in the School of Liberal Arts, pursues her way to knowledge as chief operator of the private branch telephone exchange at Texas Technological college.

Not Such a Bad Job

According to Miss Tiner, being chief operator of Tech's exchange may be a little bit dull but its perplexities tax even an operator experienced in local exchange work, as she is. And, believe it or not, the job of 'punching plugs' for the big state institution has its happy moments.

When a man called and asked her if the college would like to buy a nice size terrapin which he had found wandering over the plains, she had to laugh before she plugged in on Cecil Horne's office. When she is asked if she is at the dairy barn or if she is President P. W. Horn it also relieves the monotony of working before a small board from 8 o'clock to 6 o'clock. Her only day hours off are when she attends classes or eats.

More calls come in from the hours of 11 to 12 and from 3 to 4 than at any other time of day. "Sometimes we find it necessary to call students out of classes to answer long distance calls but this is done only as a last resort. Most of the students who are wanted can be found at home or else standing in the corridors," she declared.

Strange as it may seem, in Miss Tiner the great American public has uncovered a "hello girl" who is not afflicted with "wrong-number-itis." During her tenure of office, consisting the school year of 1928-1929 and the 1929-30 term thus far, Miss Tiner has become so familiar with her board that she rarely mistakes in calling any of the 49 positions. Sometimes, however, her college customers become aggravated and blame her when she cannot give them "outside" on one of the three trunk lines running from the central exchange into the college branch.

"On the whole, however, everyone is very pleasant to me and I really enjoy my work. I'm kept busy ringing Cecil Horne's office, for he gets all of the calls I don't know what else to do with. Some people don't know who they want or what they want to know when they call. I just turn them over to Mr. Horne and he always takes care of them."

Miss Tiner meets fifteen classes a week. During the time that she is out of the office she is relieved by Jewell Huff also a junior in the School of Liberal Arts. Miss Huff lives at O'Donnell.

Succeeds Mabel

G. Aaron Youngquist, above, attorney general of Minnesota and a close personal friend of ex-Representative Andrew Volstead, has been appointed to succeed Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, resigned, as assistant attorney general of the United States in charge of prohibition enforcement. President Hoover, in appointing him, said Youngquist may be given power greater than any one has had since the dry law went into effect.

Storms Rage Over Areas In Europe

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Storms which yesterday struck the English channel today developed into a 24-hour rainfall for all of South England.

Many roads and fields in South Wales, the Midlands, and Western and Southern counties were flooded and made impassable. Some old-timers said it has been the wettest November ever known in this wet country.

Fogs and gales forced the steamer Goleta ashore near Wexford, but its position was not dangerous and it was expected to float it with high tide.

Several barges were in difficulties near Deal on the southeast coast, and 10 men were rescued from a trawler in the heavy weather at Newton Hall, Kincardinshire, Scotland. No loss of life was recorded.

Portugal Is Hit By Storms And Floods

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 30. (AP)—Storms and floods were raging with intense violence throughout Portugal today. A fishing boat at the entrance of the Tagus foundered, and the crew of four perished.

Floods which swept Lisbon itself caused great hardships in the poorer sections. More than 100 families were trapped in their homes and were rescued with difficulty by firemen. Many streets were converted into rushing streams of water.

Torrential rains rushed into basements and cellars and in some cases undermined walls and chimneys.

Vona Margaret Grant and Thelma Bynum of this city returned yesterday after spending the Thanksgiving holidays with friends in Fort Worth.

J. D. Chandler, recently of Lubbock, has moved to Big Spring to make his home where he is employed in the men's department of a large department store in that city.

Mrs. Alfred Van Dyke, of Spur, is spending the week-end in Lubbock visiting relatives.

Texas Declaration of Independence To Be Placed So That Visitors May View It In State Capitol Building

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 30. — Texas' most precious document, the declaration of independence of the Republic of Texas, soon will be removed from an obscure vault in the secretary of state's office and placed in the rotunda of the state capitol where all who visit Austin may see it.

The six pages of paper, nearly 100 years old, will find a niche left unoccupied as a result of the abandonment of a water fountain on the first floor near the governor's office.

Prepares Niche.

For some time workmen have been getting the niche ready for the document. Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, who will voluntarily relinquish possession, made a trip to Washington to find out how the national government preserved its declaration of independence and constitution. She has used the ideas she gleaned there in preparing for the preservation of the Texas declaration.

The bits of paper were crepe-lined to prevent their falling apart. The same gelatin film which protects the national declaration will keep the writing from being dimmed. A sheet of the heaviest plate glass partly screened by an iron grill will protect the half-dozen sheets of paper.

To Be Read Easily.

Notwithstanding these precautionary measures the lighting is so arranged that both sides of the pages may be easily read when turned by a knob from the outside.

The legislative resolution authorizing removal of the document was introduced at Mrs. McCallum's request. The resolution set out that the declaration was rapidly deteriorating in its present resting place and that it should be placed where it "may prove an inspiration to the thousands who yearly visit our state capitol."

Mrs. McCallum said when she came into office in January, 1927, the paper was in such a state that particles fell from the edges each time it was moved.

The document was penned in 1836. All the original copies were thought to have been lost until 1896 when one was discovered in the department of state at Washington. It bore the following notation: "Left at Department of State, May 28, 1836, by Mr. Wharton. The original."

Thomas S. Henderson of Cameron asserted that Judge Seth Shepard discovered the document and had it brought to Austin. Judge Shepard stated a signed article appearing in 1905 that the "original declaration was discovered in the United States archives, and that it was returned to Texas, through Senator Culberson, by co-operative kindness of the secretary of state of the United States."

The writing on both sides of the paper is in ink in a large, bold hand. It is plainly legible. Even the names of the 59 signers can be read easily.

The Daughters of the Republic of Texas will be in charge of the unveiling ceremonies, the date of which will be announced later.

The little Tinymites were sad 'cause everything had turned out bad. They worked away at scrubbing and the ship looked very clean. "I'd like to stop this work right now," wee Clowny said, "but gee, somehow I am afraid to do it. It would likely start a scene.

"The captain of the ship is rough and I am sure he'd make it tough for all of us if we should disobey his sharp commands. I've scrubbed until my back is sore and I can't keep it up much more. Just look at me. Why, I have worn big blisters on my hands."

"That's 'cause you're tender," Scouty cried. "From real hard work you always hide. The rest of us seem quite all right, although we're all tired out. Let's work real hard and sing a tune and we'll be finished pretty soon. When Mister Captain says, "That's all." I'll want to jump and shout."

Just then the captain came in sight. Said he, "Well, so far you're all right. I guess I'll let you rest a while. It's time to sleep a bit. All folks begin to yawn and sigh whene'er the moon's high in the sky. Turn in and get your sleep now so tomorrow you'll feel fit."

He then gave them some old dried bread. "That's all you get tonight," he said. "Now scamper to the coal hold. I will wake you up at dawn." The Tinies did as they were told by Mister Captain brave and bold. The next thing that the captain knew the tired out band was gone.

Down in the deep coal hold they sat. And soon a voice said, "Where's you at?" It was the happy looking cook. He shortly found the bunch. "Hello there! I'm a friendly sort," said he. "To prove that I'm a sport, I've brought you all a bit of food. "Twill make a dandy lunch."

(Clowny runs into trouble in the next story.)

What the Sky Mappers Found in Alaska

For Three Years a Detachment of 45 Men With Four Planes Has Been in the North, Charting Thousands of Square Miles Of Unexplored Territory and Discovering Among Other Things a Giant Waterfall, A New Lake, and an Immense Forest That Can Supply American Newspapers With Pulpwood for Years to Come

Without hangars or elaborate machine shops . . . mechanics must keep in perfect shape the motors of the special amphibians used in flights over unknown wilderness.

Survey Commander Arthur W. Radford. . . . At altitudes of 10,000 feet four square miles of territory can be photographed with the cameras he is holding.

To save their faces . . . when flying in the extreme cold, the aerial surveyors must wear these special masks.

By JAMES NEVIN MILLER

DEEP in the mountainous wilds of southeastern Alaska a corps of U. S. navy flyers are engaged in one of the most thrilling peace-time jobs of the navy's air service. Assigned to the task of mapping Alaska from the air, the flyers are meeting with adventure almost daily. And still—even in this day of widespread publicity for aviation achievements—their story is virtually unknown.

Their major equipment consists of four specially-built amphibian planes fitted with aerial cameras of the latest type. Flights over territory in which landing fields are rare and waterways are treacherous are of almost every-day occurrence. And the majority of these flights are made in perfect formation over forest-covered mountains and jagged glaciers. Formation flying is necessary when the ground below is being photographed so that the pictures obtained will overlap accurately and provide a positive check for the map makers.

The work of the "flying surveyors" is being sponsored by four government bureaus: the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, the Geological Survey, the Forest Service, and the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture.

In 1926, the very first year in which the expedition worked, 10,000 square miles were surveyed. Since then the all-seeing eyes of the aerial cameras have blocked out in scientific fashion an almost equal mileage, hitherto unknown and containing lakes, streams and other topographic features whose value to American industry is as yet inestimable.

Rugged territory like this . . . can be mapped many times faster by aerial photography than by any other method. . . . But the ice floes in the streams are a constant menace to landing amphibians.

IT is no exaggeration to point out that the corps of "flying surveyors" has been largely responsible for the discovery of a new Alaska industry—paper making. The Tongass National Forest, lately mapped with a high degree of thoroughness, is said to contain enough newsprint pulp to supply 25 per cent of the needs of the United States indefinitely.

Moreover, there recently has been located a power site of more than 20,000 horsepower. It is also in the Tongass Forest, on the east side of Taku Inlet near Greely Point.

In thus furthering their original objective and bettering it in a variety of ways, members of the Aerial Survey have had to do a lot of pioneering in respect to finding efficient methods of procedure.

They have been fortunate, however, in their original choice of the amphibian type of plane. It has been maintained in regular use because of its ability to land on the water, and by careful manipulation of the landing gear, to taxi onto the beach, thereby enabling the ship to be secured and sheltered in some selected spot.

The advantages of this type of plane has been borne out on numerous occasions when terrific storms swept down the narrow channels with a velocity that would have wrecked any seaplane that happened to be moored in the water.

There are, of course, a good many places where planes cannot land or take off with any assurance of not "cracking up," and for this reason the U. S. S. Gannett, a mine sweeper which originally served as aircraft tender for the Navy Aircraft Squadrons, has been employed as tender for the Aerial Survey.

Very few alterations were found necessary to prepare this vessel for her new duty. Prior to the assumption of her first task she had been fitted out with an extension boom enabling her to hoist a plane from the water and stow it on her stern.

YOU would hardly suppose that up the great "north countree" the most modern comforts of home would be available for the flying surveyors. But a mammoth wooden barge, some 110 feet long and 40 feet wide, equipped with a towing bridle and anchoring gear, so that the craft can be pulled to convenient points by the tender, has been made over into modern living quarters for the 40 enlisted men and five officers of the Survey detachment.

Electric lights are provided by a small lighting system, hot and cold water are available, and there's even a completely equipped photographic laboratory aboard, besides a space set apart for the overhauling of disabled planes.

Another unique part of the regular equipment is the supply of aerial cameras. Besides a motion picture outfit, utilized this past summer for a complete history of the season's activities, there have been available three multiple lens cameras, one of which is a tri-lens affair and the other two equipped with four lenses. Just how these cameras are used is explained by Navy Photographer W. L. Richardson.

"Three of the planes have been fitted with a special camera hatch located in the hull immediately below the rear cockpit. Here are installed the cameras used to take the oblique type of pictures so important in mapping observations.

"The T-2, or four-lens camera, has met our most rigid tests. In ordinary mapping practice with a single lens camera of 12-inch focal length, the flying photographers usually find 10,000 feet the best altitude. However, it was soon found that with this camera the usable area of each picture for mapping purposes was ordinarily less than a single square mile, at a scale of about 830 feet per inch. By employing the T-2 camera under like conditions, however, the navy experts achieved a usable area of four square miles for each simultaneous exposure at a scale of about 1550 feet per inch.

"Then, too, in the case of the single-lens camera used at the customary elevation, an area of only slightly over a mile wide is covered on each photographic strip, while with the T-2 camera an area of more than six miles wide is taken in.

"THIS of course greatly reduces the amount of flying time required in mapping any extended area. Moreover, the increase in width of ground area covered is gained, in the T-2 camera, by the use of two side chambers with their optical lenses pointing obliquely to left and right of the optical axis of the lens of the central vertical chamber.

"By this means two oblique photographs are secured which cover a ground area adjacent to left and right of the area photographed by the central chamber. The fourth lens is mounted in such a way that it covers an area that lies adjacent to, and to the rear of, the area covered by the central chamber. The purpose of this fourth chamber, then, is to greatly increase the accuracy with which the vertical and side views may be oriented by the map experts into a mosaic map, made by piecing the four sections together in painstaking fashion, after careful check-ups with ground data."

The fourth plane of the detachment has been converted into a sort of radio and meteorological laboratory, receiving weather reports on the wing from navy radio stations in the region and preparing a weather may for charting the mapping planes.

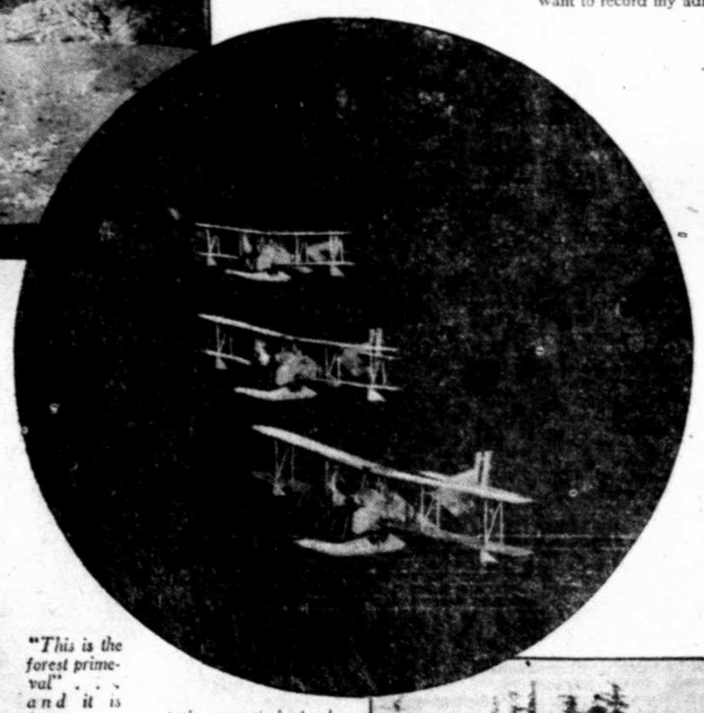

The work of this plane has proved indispensable to the success of the mapping maneuvers. Fog and low visibility may develop at any moment in the Alaska wilds.

Ever since the beginning of the Survey, Juneau has been regarded as a central base for the plane operations. Various lesser bases have been used, too, depending on what the next mapping objective happened to be.

Some of the more important incidents and accomplishments of this past summer are thus described by Lieutenant-Commander Arthur W. Radford, officer in charge:

"On June 14, two of our planes, one equipped with radio, made a flight from Petersburg along the mainland south of Wrangell for the purpose of taking mapping photographs. B. F. Heintzelman of the Forest Service accompanied us on this expedition as well as on another the same day along the eastern coast of Baranof Island. At the end of the latter flight he said that he had learned more about the topography of Baranof Island from his observations on that day than he had been able to discover from ground observations there over a period of 10 years."

ASIDE from their great importance for mapping purposes, the amphibian planes have been of considerable value as emergency modes of travel for high-ranking officials of the various government bureaus, and occasionally for certain commercial interests of Alaska.

"This is the forest primeval" . . . and it is just one corner of the vast timberlands the navy flyers have found and estimate to be capable of supplying 25 per cent of America's wood pulp paper needs.

For instance, on a recent occasion a plane made a flight from Juneau to Petersburg and return, at the request of Major Elliott, president of the Alaska Road Commission, with Major Gillette, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., as passenger. Major Gillette is chief engineer for the Road Commission and his visit to Petersburg was for the purpose of inspecting strategic dredging operations in Wrangell Narrows.

A few days later a letter of thanks was received by the detachment from Major Elliott expressing the conviction that the aerial survey had enabled the commission to settle immediately a question of great importance connected with the dredging maneuvers.

Some days afterwards, at the request of the Forest Service, a flight was made over Admiralty Island and the Speel River District with Robert A. Kinzie as passenger.

Kinzie is the chief consulting engineer for certain pulp and paper interests planning to build large paper mills in southeastern Alaska with an investment running into millions of dollars. For the first time Mr Kinzie was able to get a bird's-eye view of the timber concessions belonging to his employers, which are estimated as sufficient to supply their mills with pulp timber for at least 50 years.

A flight begun early this fall is believed to be one of the most important during the entire three years of operations. Two ships made mapping tours over Kruzof and Chichagof Islands, while another plane made a six-hour and 45-minute flight along the mainland to the northwest of Mount Fairweather. This was the largest single flight made by any plane in the detachment.

The same afternoon a formation flight, carrying Dr. P. S. Smith and B. D. Stewart, executive officers of the Geological Survey, as passengers, was made over Taku Glacier and back again.

UPON the return from this expedition a record was established by the tender Gannett, it is believed, in hoisting the four planes aboard the dock, although no special attempt was made to speed up operations. Thirteen minutes from the time the first plane of the formation touched water, the plane landed on the dock. The Gannet's hoisting gear was designed for reliability rather than for speed, so that the fact that it worked so speedily indicates the efficiency of her officers and crew.

At the close of the trip to Taku Glacier, Dr. Smith, in a letter to Commander Radford, officer in charge, said: "I want to record my admiration of the work the Alaskan Aerial Survey has accomplished and the valuable contribution you have made to the development of the north country.

"We of the Geological Survey recognize the immense value of the photographs you are makng in all phases of our natural resources investigations, and I now realize the effectiveness of the airplane as a means of transportation and observation for the geologist and engineer."

While mapping a section of the Taku River district recently, the flyers obtained pictures which revealed three hitherto unknown lakes. This discovery is expected to have a tremendous effect upon the new paper and pulp industry in southeastern Alaska because of the hydro-electric power which the lakes are believed capable of supplying.

The work of the flying photographers is greatly affected by the different seasons of the year. After the middle of September, for instance, it is possible to map only between the hours of 11 in the morning and 1:30 in the afternoon. This is due to the length of the shadows cast by the sun at other hours of the day. In June it is possible to start photographic work as early as 5 a. m. and [illegible] until 9 p. m.

A typical base of the navy flyers at Ketchikan, Alaska. . . . The amphibian planes are so constructed that they can be taxied to solid ground after alighting on the river nearby.

More Artistic Type Of Program Seen In New Features

Unique 'Spotlight Megaphone' Picks Up Presentation

New Feature Is Operated Like Spotlight Or Movie Camera; Given In NBC's "Westinghouse Salute"

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov 30—Promise of a more artistic type of radio program comes from the example of one that has from its inception gained a highly favorable response from its listeners.

The program which may prove the pioneer of an entirely new type of radio presentation, not only artistically but mechanically, is the "Westinghouse Salute," which is being broadcast each Wednesday evening at 7:30 eastern time through 36 stations on the NBC network headed by station WJZ. Its innovations are three-fold:

1. Commercialism is sublimated to the point where the full name of the sponsor is never mentioned. Its products aren't hinted at and even its identifying name is recalled only a scant four or five times.

2. For the first time in any orchestral presentation, let alone radio, voices are used as instruments to enhance the quality of the production.

3. A new method of recording the presentation in the studio for transmission over the air is introduced by means of a "megaphone mike"—a microphone of new and more sensitive type than has previously been in use. It is directed from a high platform toward the spot from which the music or conversation comes, much as the movie camera is directed from place to place, picking up closeups and other shots from the big scene.

Voices Act as Instruments

By far the outstanding advancement in radio broadcasting is the quality of the program presented in this half hour. Under the direction of Cesare Sodero, maestro of the National Broadcasting company, whose radio operas have entertained fans last year and this, a 90-piece orchestra of voices and instruments blends action and music into an artistic whole. Forty voices and 50 instruments compose it. The voices are so arranged as to sound like so many instruments and enhance the quality of the entire musical setting.

No word issues from the singers.

This is Sodero's dream come true. After the first presentation he made the prediction that this will be the forerunner of large symphonic orchestras of the future, using human voices as instruments.

"There is no instrument like the human voice," he said. "There is no reason why it should not be used to enrich the quality of the orchestral ensemble. I have always wanted to do this, and now that it is done I believe it will be taken up universally bye th great orchestral conductors and composers."

Musical Theme as Background

Conforming with the high quality of this unique orchestra is the rest of the program. An original and characteristic melody, composed by Sodero, runs through the presentation and is repeated during the intervals when a voice, that of Pedro de Cordoba, carries forward the action or theme of the program. Only while the playets which dramatize incidents picturing the industry to which tribute is rendered does the music stop.

The announcer in this program appears only at the beginning and the end of the production, while Pedro de Cordoba, an accomplished actor, furnishes the voice of the interludes. The announcer is the only one who mentions Westinghouse, while the entire program is given over to a colorful salute for one of the major industries.

Edward Hale Bierstadt, playwright and continuity writer for the NBC, is responsible for the words and action of each of these half-hour presentations. Joseph Bell, with 13 years of experience in the theater, is general director of the productions.

Mike Like Spotlight

Completing the artistic presentation of this program, is the mechanical arrangement providing a new type of pickup. It is called a contentrator microphone and is so arranged as to be pointed toward the source of the sound wherever it may be located in the studio. In fact, it acts like a spotlight and is actually referred to as the "spotlight mike" in the studio.

On a high platform, with a megaphone arrangement directed from it toward the studio, the mike receives the sounds toward which it is pointed. An operator sits by manipulating it much as the movie operator does his camera. When the orchestra is playing, the mike is pointed forward, but when de Cordoba or the announcer or the group of players comes on the air the operator throws the spotlight mike toward them as they face it and speak their parts.

This arrangement does away with the necessity of placing several microphones in various parts of the studio, all operating at the same time in order to make certain of catching all necessary sounds, thus producing a "fuzzy" quality in music and speech.

The spotlight mike may be the forerunner of the kind that may be in use when television comes into effect. In that event some such instrument will have to be arranged so that shots from big scenes could be taken and transmitted at the same time that the sounds come from them. Thus, with the microphone perfected to be focused on any part of a major scene, the television pickup need only be set up on the same standard with the mike, so that both can operate together.

News from Chile indicates that that country will abolish capital punishment, thereby becoming the ... nation in the world to do so.

Artistic Presentation, Introducing Orchestra's Voices, Is Picked Up By Unique Feature, "Spotlight Megaphone"

Operated like a spotlight or movie camera, a newtype of microphone picks up distinct "close-ups" of the large group of actors, singers and musicians beforeit in the "Westinghouse Salute."

Amos 'N Andy, Here They Are "In Person"; Their Names, Freeman F. Gosden and Charles Correll, If You Please

BY ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—Well, well, well! Look who's here—at last, Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll! Come on, gang—a great big hand.

What! You've never heard of 'em? Well, I'se regusted! Wait a minnit! Ain't dat sumin'? Don't mess wid me!

You guessed it. Amos n' Andy. Sorry we can't let you go right in the studio and see for yourself how Charles suddenly turns from a small, pleasant, wise-cracking brown-haired white man to a towering, brow-beating, brain-fagged, jet black president of the Fresh Air Taxicab company.

Real Emotions

But, its strictly against the rules. For poor, little, meek Amos gets so interested in his troubles sometimes that he really weeps. Both of them frequently become overcome with laughter or grief, and just let go sitting there close to the mike, and let the tears fall where they may.

It makes them feel like a couple of sob sisters" to even have anyone stand in the control room and look through the glass and watch them while they emote. But for the first time the rule was reluctantly broken and the writer was allowed to witness the sad plight of poor little Amos, when Andy, the wretch, sailed into him one cold night in Chicago.

It seemed impossible that Amos was a blond, curly-haired young white man. It seemed more impossible still, standing outside and listening—as it came through the radio—to him change his voice to enact the role of Madame Queen, Ruby Taylor, the Kingfish—one role right after the other to perfection and in rapid succession. No one ever assists them, or even goes into the studio.

Andy was born in Peoria, Ill., in 1890. When he was just a lad, he got into the construction business. At night he played for a local movie. It is he who plays the piano and makes the musical arrangements for their broadcasts. They write every line of their material which totals over 1,600,000 to date—in three years and ten months.

Amos was born in Richmond in 1899. When he was a little lad, his mother took a small negro boy into the family and he was raised along with Freeman. His name was "Snowball," and the colored playmate is largely responsible for the Amos n' Andy episodes seeming so real. Amos was in the navy during the war.

These two artists got together by a series of circumstances 10 years ago. They started on the air in 1925. Later they became Sam 'n Henry over one Chicago station. Two years later, because of a newspaper contract they started under new names—Amos n' Andy—and leaped to fame.

Now—In Person

No doubt a great many of you wonder why they are now announced by Bill Hay as "Amos and Andy—in person." Until last summer, August 19, to be exact, you were listening to them by records. They made the records seven weeks ahead—one each day—and they were released to a chain of stations by episode number and played for you.

Now, however, be assured by an eye witness that they are right there in the studio weeping and laughing for you. As themselves they are even funnier. If you ever have the good fortune to meet them ask them to tell you the story about the pitiful plight of the ostrich. Sniff! Sniff!

Will G. Smith accompanied by his daughter Merle Grace, and Rudolph Anderson left Friday night for San Angelo where Mr. Smith will be at the bedside of a sister, Mrs. Lige Long, who is seriously ill at the Baptist sanitarium in San Angelo.

Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Watkins, 2405 Main street, have as their house guests for the week-end Oliver Jones and his son, and J. M. Bryant, all of Sipe Springs.

Mrs. Marlis R. Smith, jr., is spending the week-end in Fort Worth as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Leland, sr. Mrs. Smith attended the T. C. U.-S. M. U. football game in Ft. Worth Saturday afternoon.

ATTENDS PARTY AT IDALOU

Wednesday evening seven couples from Lorenzo attended a large forty-two party given at Idalou by Mesdames Virgil Derrick, and J. Marvin Caddell at the Derrick home. Those enjoying this hospitality from our neighboring city were Messrs. and Mesdames W. W. Anderson, R. Jones Goode, E. Smith, Dewey Sulivan, E. S. Smith, J. O. Easter, R. L. Bowman.

THANKSGIVING LUNCHEON

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Suites entertained on Thanksgiving day with a lovely one o'clock luncheon, having as their guests Messrs. and Mesdames H. F. Pearson, T. G. Hendrick, J. T. Howell, R. L. Bowman, May Tom Howell, Wilbur Pearson, Thomas G. Hendrick, Terrell Bowman.

A delicious turkey menu was served and after the luncheon games of bridge were enjoyed throughout the afternoon.

THREE HOSTESSES AT BANQUET

Prominent among social affairs of the Thanksgiving season in Lorenzo was a lovely four course banquet given by three hostesses, Mesdames R. G. O'Dear, Roy Terrell and Irl Robertson in the Robertson home on Thanksgiving evening at seven o'clock.

The Thanksgiving motif was favored in decorations; center pieces for the long table seating twenty-one, were bowls of gorgeous bronze and white chrysanthemums banked around by autumn leaves; places were marked by place card mint baskets.

Following the dinner hour games of forty-two furnished a lively diversion. Attending this attractive function were Messrs. and Mesdames P. L. Terrell, John Gentry, J. T. Howell, Roy Abell, H. F. Pearson, R. L. Bowman, O'Rear, Terrell, Robertson, Mesdames W. M. Blakemore and W. M. Robertson; Buster Blakemore.

PERSONALS

Tom B. Morrison, teacher of science in the High school is in Dallas attending the State Teachers convention in session there during the school holidays.

Mrs. J. S. Garmon, Misses May Tom Howell, Earl Jean Suits, R. L. Bowman, Tom Suits, Terrell Bowman, Kelton and Dossie Anderson went to Lamesa Friday on the special train from Ralls to attend the Ralls-Lamesa football game for the Class B district championship. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Sullivan went in their car.

EASTERN STAR CHAPTER VISITS SLATON

Tuesday evening the Lorenzo Eastern Star chapter were honor guests of the Slaton chapter at a highly successful meeting at the Slaton hall. The Lorenzo chapter put on the degree work before a large audience. The chapter will attend a meeting at Lubbock next Tuesday evening.

Those attending from here were Messrs. and Mesdames J. E. Hair, H. F. Pearson, H. L. Stancil; Mesdames Ernest Williams, Oscar Thornton, J. R. Duncan, Roy Terrell.

BEFORE The MIKE

The big radio question in Chicago is whether broadcasting prize fights hurts or helps gate receipts. Jack Dempsey, as promoter, recently broadcast a card from the Coliseum. Fan returns indicate that many of them will forsake their loudspeakers for ringside seats in the future.

Camp Fire Girls To Hear Sermon

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, Nov. 30.—In honor of the work that has been done and to remind them of the service that is expected of them the 50 members of the Floydada Camp Fire Girls will hear a sermon Sunday evening by P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, on citizenship. Although it is young the organization has attracted considerable attention by its activities recently and has grown from only one small group to four groups with a combined membership of 50.

Sponsored by the 1922 Floydada Study club the Camp fire Girls have been organized more than a year and have been actively engaged in carrying out their program of work. One of the most recent accomplishments of the organization was on Thanksgiving when five baskets of food were delivered to several families in Floydada who were unable to provide special Thanksgiving dinners.

Sweet Sixteen---and Heiress To a Hundred Million

Doris Duke Is One of the Wealthiest Of American Girls, But Mother Duke Has Taken Every Precaution to See That the Four Million-Dollar Homes, The Fortune, the Army of Servants, The Private Railroad Car and Many Motors Shall Not Spoil the Young Lady Or Make Her Anything Else Than A Charming, Unsophisticated Sub-Deb.

"Rough Point" . . . built by Frederick Vanderbilt and once owned by Princess Anastasia of Greece . . . is the Duke summer mansion at Newport.

Multi-Million-heiress Doris Duke. . . . She is the Duke who is to become Queen . . . of America's aluminum industry.

The Duke estate at Summerville, N. J. . . . Doris loves its $2,500,000 worth of grassy acres, for here she learned to ride a Shetland pony.

Too young to attend formal functions . . . Doris is a prominent figure at Newport and Southampton sports events.

NO ONE could blame Doris Duke very much if she were the most spoiled 16-year-old girl in the world. At least she could have thrown a few hairbrushes at angelic nurses and governesses sometime during her life, for this sort of thing is really expected of girls who grow up surrounded by fortunes much smaller than the $100,000,000 that Doris is heir to.

The fact of the matter is, however, that it would be difficult to find a girl less spoiled than Doris Duke. Her great blocks of aluminum stock, piled in the bank, have spoiled her not a bit more than aluminum pots and pans piled in the kitchen sink spoil other girls of her age.

And her four mansions—any one of which could serve nicely as a royal palace—her army of servants, private railroad car, custom-built autos and all the other trappings of great wealth have not succeeded in making Doris anything but a charming and unsophisticated sub-deb.

Just recently Doris celebrated her sixteenth birthday. And the type of birthday party that Doris' mother planned for her is typical of the way the young heiress has been reared. You might expect that a great fete worthy of an old-world princess would have been staged; but instead, a few friends of the feminine Croesus were invited to gather around the Duke board and take "pot luck" with mother and daughter.

A birthday cake was there, of course, and the formality of blowing out the candles was carried out with as much enthusiasm as any girl Doris' age might affect, but there was nothing ostentatious about the festivities.

Nor has Doris Duke known any pleasures other than those of the simplest sort in her 16 years and this, despite the fact that she is already in control of much of her inheritance from her father, the late James B. Duke, tobacco king, and the prospect that she will eventually have at her complete disposal the largest fortune controlled by any woman in America.

THE Duke fortune, of course, was founded in the tobacco industry of the south. Doris' father started in life practically penniless, and after a brief but active career, amassed the great estate which is consigned mostly to his daughter.

In recent years the greater part of the Duke fortune has been invested in the aluminum industry. So much so, in fact, that whereas America has had "Kings" of the various metals in the past, Doris Duke is likely to be known in the future as the "Aluminum Queen."

Doris is not concerned now, however, with acquiring this title. Just now she is enjoying many of the same pastimes that other girls her age are enjoying. And many of them she finds more pleasurable than other less opulently placed misses, for they hold more that is novel for her.

Movies, for instance. In these days when children are practically brought up with a certain film fare along with their elemental book educations, it is surprising to find a young woman of 16 years who still opens her eyes wide in amazement at the revelations of the silver screen.

But it is only a short time since Doris Duke saw her first motion picture. And that first time was without the knowledge or approval of her watchful mother.

It was while crossing the Atlantic that a nursemaid, new to the Duke household, introduced movies into the life of the young heiress. Doris had crossed with her mother to spend the summer in Europe and when the time came for the younger woman to return to her studies in America, Mrs. Duke decided to send her under proper chaperonage and remain herself on the European side of the Atlantic for a longer period.

The Aquitania was the craft that brought the daughter westward, and it was during that voyage that Doris saw her first movie. Along with seeing her first movie she also saw in real life a motion picture star, for Dorothy Gish, who appeared in the film offering, was also on board and was called upon for a short speech after the movie had been shown.

This is but one of many examples which illustrate the simplicity which has marked the earlier years of the Duke heiress.

LUXURIES which may be obtained by wealthy nomads on their trips across the Atlantic do not affect Doris. Mrs. Duke has always made a practice of providing comfortable, but by no means pretentious quarters for herself and daughter on their pilgrimages to and in foreign lands.

There have always been servants along to look after their wants, but no de luxe suites have been included in their bill of expenses when the journey came to an end.

Nor has the daughter been taught extravagant ideas of dress. In Newport, it might be noted, Doris Duke's clothes have long been food for gossip. The Mother Grundies of Bellevue avenue have insisted that she has been consistently attired in made-over outfits.

Not until this summer has the trend of their talk changed. For Doris, now arriving at the age when she is addressed as "Miss" Duke, has effected a complete change in the manner of wardrobe in the past year.

Whereas in the past the most modest types of frocks have been seen consistently on her person, recent months have brought a sense of what is smart and her mother has aided and encouraged her in carrying out her own ideas.

Thus gowns savoring of chic Paris establishments have found a place in her wardrobe along with models from Fifty-seventh street. Gone are the dresses, the chief merit of which was found in the excellence of their materials, of former years, those that were so closely modeled after the habiliments of her mother that if they actually were not "hand-me-downs" they might better have been as far as the Duke thrift is concerned.

Doris' socially prominent mother, Mrs. James B. Duke. . . . She has "raised" Doris amid none of the glitter her vast fortune could purchase.

One of her first favored outfits, in which she has been seen at Newport and on Long Island, where she is frequently a guest at the country homes of friends, is a blue ensemble. It is of a pastel shade which strikingly becomes her, and is trimmed with cloth of gold in lavish fashion.

In spite of the cloth of gold there is nothing frivolous about the appearance of the wearer. For Doris Duke is a very serious person. Being an heiress, at least to Miss Duke, is a very earnest business and her manner is always that of one who is deeply engrossed in solemn problems.

ALREADY Doris has taken an active part in the management of her estate and in deciding important questions arising from it.

Since the age of 14 she has had the deciding say regarding her 3000-acre estate in Somerville, N. J. This great acreage, in what has become known as "Hall-Mills Land," requires a great staff to operate, both in the agricultural department and in that which cares for the large house in which the owner spends a part of each year.

The Somerville place holds an important place in the affection of the Duke heiress, apart from its monetary valuation, which is considerably in access of $2,500,000. It was there that she spent most of her early childhood.

A certain amount of freedom was hers while in residence at the Jersey estate. She was free to romp and play in the open air there, like the children she could see from the windows of her New York home, conducting their games on the city sidewalks, but whom she could never join.

At Somerville, it was, that Doris developed her love for sports. Horses interested her particularly from her earliest childhood. When very young she was presented with a Shetland pony and in this creature she took an intensive interest. Not only did she take pleasure in riding him, at first with the proud personal attention of the groom of the Duke stables, but she was equally interested in his well-being and spent every moment she could beg from her go[illegible]s in following him about his favored [illegible] places or in administering such atten[illegible]s the groom would permit.

Now Doris has become an accomplished horsewoman and rides as well as any of the young women with whom she associates in Newport and New York social life.

Other sports, of course, have also had their share of Doris' attention. She is particularly enthusiastic about swimming and tennis.

More recently dancing has become one of her favorite pastimes. Although she is yet a sub-deb and is therefore not allowed by her mother to go to large dancing parties, she is known as an excellent dancer among the young men of her generation whom she has met at various smaller parties at the homes of her friends and at dancing classes.

It must not be thought that in anything Doris undertakes she is contented with half-way accomplishment. Thus when she took up dancing she not only took to the ballroom variety, but went in for stage steps as well.

NO less a dancing authority than May Leslie was engaged to teach Doris the intricacies of the tap dance. Miss Leslie, you probably know, began her life on the New York stage as "the Ziegfeld girl" of her time, making nightly appearances in the "Follies" at the New Amsterdam Theater and later going to the roof to be glorified in the "Midnight Frolic."

Of course one of Ziegfeld's more pampered beauties is not required to dance—her activities are limited to walking across the stage and becoming a central pulchritudinous embellishment in a lavish stage picture. Miss Leslie, however, was not satisfied with the limited opportunities afforded by this routine and practiced the steps assigned to others in the shows in which she appeared, and in recent years has become the favorite dancing teacher of New York's social elect.

So it was to Miss Leslie that Doris Duke turned for her stage routines. She was assigned to a class in which a number of other young women of her own age were studying, but it was not long until she had proved herself more adept than most of the others in mastering the steps.

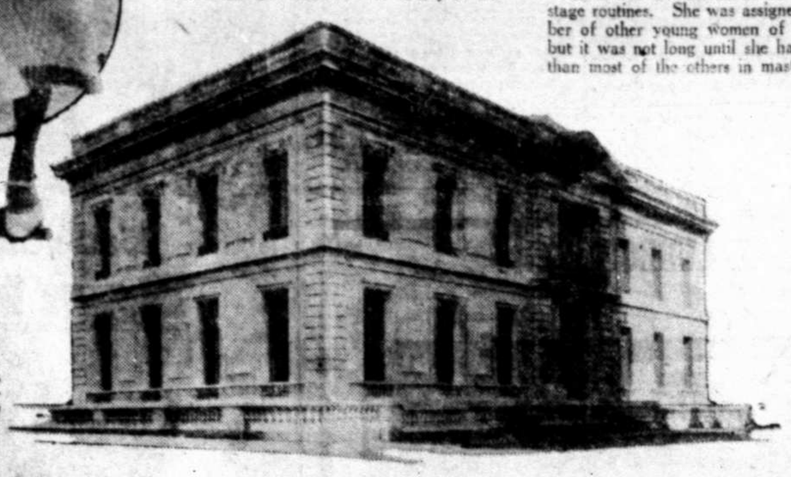

Persons witnessing the dancing instructions were enthusiastic regarding the talents of young Miss Duke. A mother of one of the other young women in the class predicted a successful stage career for the heiress should she decide on such a ventur

BUT Doris will not do that, you may be sure. She went at her dancing in a serious way, mastered it to her satisfaction, and is now ready for other fields to conquer.

And it must be remembered that she has responsibilities on her shoulders which would task a man three times her age.

In addition to the Somerville, N. J., estate there is Rough Point, the Duke place on a far peak of the Newport cliffs, looking out over the open ocean. This house was built and the surroundings landscaped in 1886 by Frederick W. Vanderbilt.

Several years ago the late father of Miss Duke bought the place from Princess Anastasia of Greece—known here in private life as Mrs. William B. Leeds—who had tired of the place with its great grounds and house requiring platoons of servants.

No. 1 E. 78th street, New York City . . . is the $2,000,000 Duke town house. . . . Its priceless tapestries are kept stored in bank vaults much of the time.

THE late Mr. Duke left for his daughter's town residence his home at 1 East Seventy-eighth street, overlooking Central Park, a short distance from the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The place is valued at $1,600,000. Before his death Mr. Duke fitted his Manhattan home with all of the usual furnishings of such great mansions, including objects of art valued at more than $600,000, as well as priceless tapestries which because of their great value were kept stored in vaults much of the time.

Also she received from her father an estate covering many acres at Myers Park, near Charlotte, North Carolina. This property has also already passed into her possession.

4-H Club To Observe Annual Achievement Day Here

200 Boys And Girls Are Expected To Be Present For Event; Program Includes Awarding Of Many Prizes

Officers For Club Council Will Be Elected To Serve Next Year; Sessions Morning And Afternoon

Arrangements for 200 plates are being made to entertain members of Lubbock county boys and girls 4-H clubs at a luncheon here on next Saturday, December 7, when they will gather for their annual Achievement Day program.

The luncheon is to be given in the basement of the First Presbyterian church, where the afternoon program for the day will be held. The morning session will be held in the district court room at the court house.

Many Prizes Offered.

Cash prizes aggregating $125 for boys and $125 for girls, offered by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, will be awarded at this meeting to those who have accomplished outstanding work during the year just closing. None of the prizes will be awarded boys or girls who have won trips to fairs and expositions, such as those who are being sent to the International Livestock Expedition at Chicago.

At last year's Achievement Day program there were 150 boys and girls present and this number will more than likely be exceeded this year.

Must Send In Records.

Only those club members who have sent in their record books for this year's work will be eligible to attend the luncheon next Saturday. Miss Louise Baird, Lubbock county home demonstration agent, and Mr. Eaton are both working diligently to have every girl and boy possible represented. Eaton announces that any boy whose book is not in by Tuesday will not be eligible.

Officers for the 4-H club council, to serve next year, will be elected at Saturday's meeting.

Vocational Work Popular In High School at Lockney

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LOCKNEY, Nov. 30.—Vocational agriculture, a new department in Lockney High school since the recent completion of a new $85,000 school building, has met with the unanimous approval of the Lockney school patrons, according to W. D. Biggers, superintendent of Lockney public schools.

Even though the department is the youngest in the high school, many beneficial results have been accomplished. Members of the vocational agriculture class under the direction of D. C. Turner instructor, have organized a Future Farmers of Texas club with the sole purpose of the club to promote vocational agriculture in the Lockney community. The officers of the recently organized club are: Carlton Cook, president; Sterling Goliday, vice-president; L. A. Stowe, secretary; Jack Spence, sergeant at arms; and Ruel Cook, reporter. The club's objective for the 1929-1930 session consists of the sponsoring of terracing demonstrations in Floyd county, the showing of an agricultural booth in a prominent show window of this city, and 100 per cent completion of projects among slub members. The club has already held several poultry culling demonstrations in the county besides holding regular monthly meetings featuring some phase of agricultural work.

Mississippi Co-Op Makes Fine Record

Handles More Than Million Bales In 8 Years And Gets Average Price Of 23.26c Per Pound

In view of its steadily increasing volume of business, the Staple Cotton Cooperative association, Greenwood, Miss., has opened an office in Memphis, Tenn., and place an experienced manager in charge.

A summary of the achievements of the eight years of operation, shows that beginning in 1921, without resources, facilities, capital, credit, or experience, the association has handled 1,422,304 bales of cotton which it has sold for a total of $167,319,498. It has secured for its members an average price of 23.26 cents per pound, or $117.64 per bale, and its total net operating cost for services has averaged 1.28 per cent of gross sales. During the eight years the shipments have been so accurate that rejections were less than two per cent. In 1928 the association shipped 92.82 per cent of its cotton direct to mills.

Business Standing Recognized.

The association now has a recognized business and financial standing and established outlets wherever staple cotton is used. Through its subsidiary, the Staple Cotton Discount corporation, cotton growers received production credit the current year to the amount of $3,037,260.

At the close of business Aug. 31, 1929, the reserves of the association amounted to $771,761, including $315,112 operating reserves for contingencies, and $456,649 advance fund, evidenced by certificates bearing 6 per cent interest.

During the 1928-29 season the officers and directors delivered 26,654 bales of cotton to their association. On October 9 there were 2,586 active contracts in force representing 345,705 bales.

Terracing Work Campaign Begins

An Effort Will Be Made To Double Acreage, During Coming Months, For Conserving Soil

With an earlier start probable, in the matter of terracing Lubbock county farms, County Agent D. F. Eaton anticipates the coming season to more than double the number of acres terraced to date.

John Petterson, of Idalou, who has been employed by the county commissioners to assist Eaton in this work, met with Eaton Saturday afternoon for a conference to plan his activities.

Many Requests Secured.

More than 50 calls have already been received requesting aid in terracing, from as many farmers of this county. Of the total acres terraced to date, 25,000, there were 10,050 of them terraced since January 1, of this year. Approximately 200 different farms contain the total acres worked up to now.

"Lubbock county's terracing problem is far from being solved," Eaton says. "With the average of acres to the farm being terraced placed at 100, counting 2,500 farms in this county, we have a long way to go before getting 250,000 acres worked in such a manner as to conserve the soil from erosion by wind and rain."

It is estimated that the coal resources of the world are sufficient for at least another 4000 years.

Business Not Hurt Bad By Reduced Crops, Federal Reserve Report Says Saturday; Retail Trade Shows Gain

Failure Record Improves In Area And Deposits Are Much Higher; Loans Show Steady Decline

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 30.—The reduced agricultural income was reflected in many branches of business in the eleventh federal reserve bank district last month, although others showed favorable trends, the reserve bank said in its monthly business review released yesterday.

Heavy general rainfall which relieved drouthy conditions in many sections and provided needed moisture greatly benefited small grain crops already sown and will enable farmers to complete seeding operations and to proceed with preparation of the soil for next year's crop, the review said.

Crops Below 1928

"It should be borne in mind, however, that according to the Nov. 1 report of the department of agriculture, the indicated yield of three of the district's important crops—cotton, corn and grain sorghums—is considerably below the 1928 production and is having the effect of greatly reducing the farmers' income for the current year," the report said.

While retail trade was 17 per cent. larger than the previous month and 2 per cent. larger than the same month last year, "reports from some sections indicate consumer demand is being reduced by reason of the smaller return from crops," the review continued. "Debits to individual accounts at larger centers reached a new high record in October, being 19 per cent, above those for October last year.

Business Improves

"The commercial failure record, while more unfavorable in October than in the previous month, continued to reflect an improvement over the corresponding month last year. The daily average deposits of member banks in this district rose from $892,636,000 in September to $900,260,000 in October but continued to run below those of a year ago, reflecting the reduced agriculutral income. While Federal reserve loans to member banks declined from $34,112,963 on September 30 to $25,825,752 on November 15, most of the reduction occurred during the last four days of the period. Loans to country banks have shown a steady decline since the middle of August, but those to banks in reserve cities have fluctuated widely and have remained at a level considerably higher than a year ago.

Ranges Are Lower

"The Nov. 1 condition of cattle ranges in Texas was one point lower than a month earlier and 6 points below that of a year ago. The condition of sheep and goat ranges showed an improvement of 4 points during the month but was 11 points under the condition a year ago. Prices on practically all classes of cattle evinced a further downward trend during the past six weeks, at times demand showa tendency to strengthen but the supply usually was sufficient to fill orders. Hog prices, while somewhat uneven, workked to lover levels despite the reduced supply. Toward the later part of October, the demand for sheep and lambs developed a considerable improvement and prices showed a good recovery but later reacted somewhat.

"A further seasonal increase was reflected in cotton receipts at Houston and Galveston in October. Receipts at Galveston, however were smaller a year ago. Exports from Galveston were 312,190 for October as compared with 507,687 for the same month last year; for Houston the same figures were October, 1929. 306,487 and October, 1928. 407,217.

"Total production of crude oil increased in October but due to the longer month the daily average flow was smaller. There were 27,784,550 barrels produced during the month as compared with 27,299,250 in September and 23,153,100 in October of last year. There were 919 completions during the month, of which 482 produced an initial output of 142,344 barrels as compared wiht 368 in September yielding 173,864 barrels."

Texas coastal, grade "A," sold for $1.30 as compared with $1.20 last year, the review showed.

With The Co-Operatives

Heavy deliveries of cotton are reported by the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton association, Montgomery. More than 45,000 bales had been received on November 1 and cotton was coming in at the rate of 1,500 bales per day. Because of the action of the Federal Farm Board in providing further loans the Alabama association is prepared to advance 15.64 cents for middling 7-8 inch cotton.

In its six years of operation the Louisiana Farm Bureau Cotton association, Baton Rouge, La., has handled over 215,000 bales of cotton with a value of approximately $40,000,000. Overhead charges have varied from $1.65 when handling 55,000 bales, to $3 when handling only 26,000 bales, according to a report by the management. Last year under the new contract, the members shipped 26,962 bales of which over 85 per cent went to the optional pools.

The Trazewell County Farm Bureau, North Tazewell, Va., reports a gross business of $328,029 in 1928, compared with $31,709 in 1918. Net earnings for the past year amounted to $8,356 which is to be returned to members in the form of Class B stock at the rate of $2.57 per $100 patronage. The new stock will share with other common stock in dividends up to 6 per cent and will give each patron a voice in the control of th business. A branch store has been opened at Richlands.

Negro Is Charged In Rape Complaint

Charlie Moore, Lubbock negro, who eluded five bullets from the gun of J. S. Netter, another negro, last Thursday, is being held in Lubbock county jail, after Justice of Peace G. R. Scott, had set his bond at $7,500 Saturday, following the filing of charges of assault with intent to rape in connection with an alleged attack upon Elsorra Netter, 14.

The complaint was filed by the girl's father, who was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to kill, after the shooting.

Rates, Rules and Requirements of Classified Advertising Of The Lubbock Daily Journal (Afternoon)
Lubbock Morning Avalanche (Morning)
Sunday Avalanche-Journal (Sunday Morning)

All classified advertising will appear in both the Morning and Afternoon papers—both papers counting one insertion. All classified advertising is printed in the Lubbock Morning Avalanche first and the Daily Journal of the same date, no classified originating in the afternoon paper.

Classified for Sunday's issue will appear in the Avalanche-Journal counting one insertion, as this paper is sent to all subscribers of both the afternoon and morning papers.

AVALANCHE-JOURNAL Combined Rates:

Minimum per insertion, 10 words.
One insertion, per word 6c
Two insertions, per word 8c
Three insertions, per word 9c
Six insertions, per word 12c
Thirty insertions, per word 40c

These rates are for consecutive insertions only. Additional consecutive insertions over 30 times, at 1½c per word each day.

PHONE 13 or 14

Our experienced ad taker will receive your ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the following day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for our patrons and for one day only.

No advertisements accepted on an "until forbid" order. A specified number of insertions must be given.

Notice to discontinue an advertisement must be given in writing otherwise we will not be responsible.

We reserve the right to place all advertisements under the proper classification and reject undesirable or objectionable copy.

Obituaries and cards of thanks at regular classified advertising rate.

The publishers are not responsible for copy omissions, typographical errors, or any unintentional error that may occur further than to correct in next issue after it is brought to their attention. All advertising orders are accepted on this basis only.

Classified advertising accepted until 9 a. m. each day and 9 p. m. Saturday. For classified display advertising information

NOTICE BOND BUYERS—Board of trustees Lubbock Independent School District will on December 6th, 1929 at 7:30 p. m. at City Hall, Lubbock, Texas, receive bids or proposal on $650,000.00 of Bonds of the above District. Bonds in the denomination of $1,000 each, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, maturing serially over period of 40 years. All bids must be accompanied by a certified check or bank draft made payable to Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, President of the Board, in the amount of $10,000.00. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. A. C. Jackson, Business Manager.

ELECTION NOTICE
To the Resident Property Taxpaying Voters of Lubbock County, Texas:
Take notice that an election will be held on December 17th, 1929, within Lubbock County, Texas, to determine if said County shall issue bonds and if a tax shall be levied in payment thereof in obedience to an election order entered by the Commissioners' Court on the 15th day of November, A. D., 1929, which is as follows:

ELECTION ORDER

On this the 15th day of November, A. D., 1929, the Commissioners' Court of Lubbock County, Texas, convened in a regular session at the regular meeting place thereof in the Courthouse, at Lubbock, Texas, all members of the Court being present, towit:
Robt. H. Bean, County Judge.
N. A. Payne, Commissioner, Precinct No. 1;
J. T. Pinkston, Commissioner, Precinct No. 2;
W. L. Brashear, Commissioner, Precinct No. 3;
L. C. Denton, Commissioner, Precinct No. 4;
and at such meeting came on to be heard and considered the petition of J. T. Overby and about seven hundred other persons, praying that an election be ordered in said county for the purpose of determining the following propositions:
Whether or not the bonds of said County shall be issued in the sum of $991,000.00 for the following purpose, "The issuance of county bonds for the purchase of district roads and the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, throughout such County; and whether or not an ad valorem tax shall be annually levied upon the property of said County, subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity; and,
It appearing to the Court that said petition is signed by more than two hundred fifty of the resident property taxpaying voters of Lubbock County, Texas, and is in due form of law, and it further appearing that the amount of bonds to be issued will not exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of said Lubbock County; and,
It further appearing that Road District No. 1 of Lubbock County, Texas, has heretofore issued road bonds under the provisions of the Constitution and Laws of Texas, as follows:
Date of bonds September 11th, 1922, numbered consecutively from One (1) to fifty (50), inclusive, for the sum of $500.00 each, aggregating $25,000.00, payable at the Hanover National Bank, New York City, New York, and payable serially one bond, $500.00, September 11th of each of the years 1923 to 1931, both inclusive, two bonds amounting to $1,000.00 September 11th of each of the years 1932 to 1951, both inclusive, and one bond, $500.00 September 11th, 1952, bearing interest at the rate of five and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on March 11th and September 11th of each year.
And that bonds numbered from one (1) to seven (7), both inclusive, have been finally paid off, thereby leaving outstanding against said Road District a bonded debt aggregating $21,500.00.
It is therefore ordered by the Court that an election be held in said Lubbock County on the 17th day of December, A. D., 1929, which is not less than thirty days from the date of this order, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:
Whether or not the bonds of said County, to be known as Lubbock County Road Bonds, in the sum of $991,000.00, shall be issued, for the following purpose, "The issuance of county bonds for the purchase of district roads and the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, throughout such County," as follows:
(1) Bonds to be issued in the aggregate sum of $21,500.00 for the purpose of the purchase of district roads in said County, and which bonds shall be issued in similar denominations, bearing the same rate of interest, having the same date or dates of maturity and with similar options of payment as the bonds heretofore issued and now outstanding against Road District No. 1 of said County.
(2) Bonds to be issued in the aggregate sum of $969,500.00 for the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, throughout such County, and which bonds may mature serially or otherwise at the discretion of the Commissioners' Court and may run for a term not to exceed forty (40) years from their date and shall bear not more than five per cent (5%) interest per annum; and,
Whether or not an ad valorem tax shall be annually levied upon the property of said County, subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity.
The proceeds derived from the sale of said bonds to the extent of $969,500.00, if necessary, shall be expended for the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, in Lubbock County, in accordance with the amount set opposite each of the following sections or units of road construction, or so much of said amount as may be necessary, towit:
Texas State Highway No. 7 from Hockley County line by Shallowater, Lubbock and Slaton to the south line of Lubbock County $325,000.00.
Texas State Highway No. 9 from Lynn County line by Woodrow and Lubbock to Abernathy, $274,000.00.
Texas State Highway No. 53 from Crosby County line by Idalou and Lubbock and Wolfforth to Hockley County line, $370,500.00. Total $969,500.00.
The said election shall be held under the provision of Chap. 16, Acts First Called Session, Thirty-ninth Legislature, page 23 et seq. as amended by Chap. 75 and Chap 92, of the Acts of the First Called Session of the Fortieth Legislature, of the State of Texas.
All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and County, and who are resident property taxpayers of this County, shall be entitled to vote at said election, and all voters desiring to support the proposition to issue the bonds shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:
"For the Issuance of Bonds and the Levying of the Tax in Payment Thereof."
And those opposed shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:
"Against the Issuance of Bonds and the Levying of the Tax in Payment Thereof."
Notice of said election shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in said County for three successive weeks before the date of election; and in addition thereto, for three weeks prior to said election, notice shall be posted by the County Clerk at four public places in said County, one of which be at the Court House door of said County.
Said election shall be held under the authority of Section 52, Art. 3, of the Constitution of Texas, and the laws enacted pursuant thereto; and the manner of holding said election and making returns thereof shall be governed by the general laws relating to general elections in this State.
The polling places and presiding officers of said election shall be respectively as follows:
Precinct No. One, Commissioners—Lubbock, Prec. 1, W. E. Ballew; Carlisle, Prec. 12, E. E. Jones; Wolfforth, Prec. 13, Otton Simms; Foster, No. 14, D. E. BUILDING TOTAL LOW

Week's Total Drops To Only $2,000 In Lubbock

Lubbock's building permits for the past week again were dropped to a low level with valuations only totalling $2,000. The past month, however, with a total of $250,242, for 17 permits, has recorded one of the most lively of the year.
One permit was issued Saturday for $1,000 to T. F. Cone, for construction of a frame residence at 1917 26th street. J. M. Cone is contractor.
Valuations for the year have reached $3,320,736, for 599 permits.

Morton Promised New Modern Hotel

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
MORTON, Nov. 30.—It was said here today that J. C. Whaley, of Gainesville, operator of a chain of lumber yards in West Texas, has leased the McKelvey Bros. ranch, 20 miles north of this city, and that he is contemplating erecting a modern hotel at Morton.
Indications are that by next March 1 Cochran county will have between 275 and 300 new farmers, who are to move onto land recently purchased and place it to cultivation. Guion Gregg, who is selling tracts from the C. C. Slaughter ranch lands, reports the sale of about 13,000 acres in tracts of 160 and 320 acres, all to actual settlers.

ELAM CONVICTED

Prominent Dallos Man Gets Twenty Year Term

DALLAS, Nov. 30. (AP)—After 17 hours of deliberation a jury here today convicted Lawrence Elam, member of a pioneer Dallas county family, of the slaying of Albert Griner, and assessed his punishment at 20 years in the penitentiary. A motion for a new trial was filed immediately. Elam claimed the shooting, which occurred last December 18, was in self-defense.

territory forces, under Colonel G. P. Kuykendall and Colonel Mrs. W. B. Price, will not be called into action until Tuesday morning.

Forces To Assemble.

Then at noon on Tuesday the forces will assemble for reports to check on the response given by men and women called upon. The Lions club will meet with the workers on Tuesday, the Rotary on Wednesday, and the Kiwanis on Thursday. The final meeting is expected to be held Friday noon.

Chairman Neil Wright in a statement made public last night asked that the people make every possible effort to cooperate and in conserving the time of the workers.

"The men and women working on the Community Chest campaign," Mr. Wright's statement said "are giving their time as well as their money to finance the Community Chest. They are conserving the time of the business interests and residents by bringing to their offices and homes the opportunity to subscribe in one gift enough to finance the six social welfare agencies, thus eliminating numerous campaigns."

Mrs. W. B. Price, colonel of the Women's Teams, will meet with all her majors, captains and lieutenants at the Lubbock hotel Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock. This division will work in the residential section of the city. "We will call upon the women of the city and ask them to make an individual subscription no matter if it can only be a small one. Nearly every woman in the city has some personal interest in one or more of the agencies."

The personnel of the women's teams follows:

Section 50—Mrs. J. H. Hankins, major; Team 51, Mrs. A. T. Bigers, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. Ross Whorter, Miss Mary Alice Stanton, Mrs. H. G. Love, Mrs. Owen Whorter, Mrs. Kenneth Kimbro. Team 52—Mrs. S. J. McFarland, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. W. P. Jennings, Mrs. C. C. Crenshaw, Mrs. Mary F. Hilton, Mrs. F. H. Childress and Mrs. Townsen Waddill.

Team 53—Mrs. R. A. Mills, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. B. C. Dickinson, Mrs. Gaylord Hankins, Mrs. Edgar Shelton, Mrs. T. A. White and Mrs. Calvin Henson.

Team 54—Mrs. W. E. Spencer captain; (lieutenants to be announced later). Team 55—Mrs. Maple Wilson, captain; (lieutenants to be announced later.)

Section No. 60—Mrs. Hub Jones, major; Team 61—Mrs. George A. Fields, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. Velton Spikes, Mrs. Harold Griffith, Mrs. Frank Jones, Mrs. J. B. Crisler and Mrs. R. C. Smith.

Team 62—Mrs. Glen Hess, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. Fred Standefer, Mrs. C. D. Swift, Mrs. John Jarrot, Mrs. George Benson and Mrs. D. K. Bondurant.

Team 63—Mrs. Guy McAfee, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. L. E. Hunt, Miss Johnny Gilkerson, Mrs. Lewis Stevens and Mrs. Temple Ellis.

Team 64—Mrs. Carl Patton, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. Alvin Hendricks, Mrs. S. B. Haynes, Mrs. James Jarrett, Mrs. L. E. Miller and Mrs. Sam Dunn.

Team 65—Mrs. W. O. Stevens, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. Herbert Maxwell, Mrs. R. G. Porter, Mrs. A. C. Brown and Mrs. W. C. Rylander and Mrs. Walter F. Schenck.

Section No. 70—Mrs. R. Q. Pierce, major; Team 71—Mrs. F. R. Friend, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. W. B. Atkins, Miss Louise Baird, Mrs. G. O. Turner, Mrs. W. E. Cannon and Mrs. Victor Payne.

Team 72—Mrs. J. C. Granberry, captain; lieutenants, Mrs. J. T. Krueger, Mrs. A. H. Leidigh, Mrs. T. F. West, Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe and Mrs. F. A. Kleinschmidt.

The schools of the city will have an important part in the campaign under the leadership of Supt. M. H. Duncan, captains assigned to the various schools are: R. W. Matthews, Carroll Thompson, H. C. Bowlin, Mrs. M. Larmer, Miss Stella Thurman, Mrs. Guy L. Trow and Miss Lula Jones.

Jack Diamond of the Hemphill-Wells company reported yesterday that every employee of the company had subscribed making the concern 100 per cent. W. O. Daniels of the West Texas Gas Co., reported his office as having subscribed 100 per cent. A great amount of interest is being manifested in the employee division in that practically every one of the 50 companies represented in the division are striving for 100 per cent subscriptions.

ning of a budget drive. Men of the church will hold a brief meeting in the early afternoon after which they will solicit subscriptions from members who are not contributing according to the budget system.

Building Complete

The auditorium is practically completed, and the comfort all who attend the meetings is insured, Mr. Carroll said. Finishing touches will be added during the coming week. The seating capacity of the main auditorium is 2000, and the choir will seat 100. A space has been provided for an orchestra of 50 pieces.

The building which, officers of the church say, is only a temporary structure until a large church can be built, is constructed of stucco and has steel superstructures, making it substantial throughout. The inside is tightly sealed making for excellent acoustics. One story in height, it is located in the middle of the block between Avenues M and N on Main street. A large rostrum has been placed in the front with ample room for choirs. Two small choir rooms have been included on each side of the rostrum.

Orchestra Tryouts

The orchestra, directed by Mancil Hall, will hold a tryout for new members this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the new auditorium, and a number have already announced their intention of joining. Reed and string instruments are especially in demand, Mr. Hall said Saturday.

Formal dedication of the new building probably will be Sunday morning, December 15, with Dr. White delivering the principal address. On the evening of the 15th, the choir will present a Christmas cantata, "The Glory of Bethlehem," by H. W. Petrie.

The second is to train men to work the terracing program in the various communities and the last is to give demonstrations showing the operations to be undergone in the construction of the program. They will explain thoroughly the type of construction and the proper machinery to be used.

The first of these demonstrations will be held on the J. R. Eubanks farm, one mile south of Slaton on December 11 at which time the various pieces of farm machiney for building terraces will be in evidence.

According to Mr. Eaton some 60 farmers have already signed for terracing work while about 25 are ready for active work to begin.

Garner Blamed In Resignation Of J. Arnold, Houston

Resignation Of Secretary-Manager Of Southern Tariff Association Expected To Be Accepted

HOUSTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Indicating that the resignation of J. A. Arnold as secretary-manager of the Southern Tariff association may be accepted, John H. Kirby, Houston millionaire and president of the association, late today accused congressman John N. Garner, house minority leader, of having "instigated" the recent senate lobby investigation "to get rid of Arnold."

The association's executive committee meets Thursday at New Orleans and is expected to act at that time in the Arnold matter.

Progress First

"The association won't let any man stand in the way of progress," Kirby said. "If those who contribute to the support of the association think Mr. Arnold's usefulness has been impaired, he'll have to go. A man who makes a blunder has to take the consequences."

During six years Arnold has held the post. He twice before had handed in his resignation, but it was not accepted, Kirby revealed.

He commented at length on the investigation of lobbying activities of the southern tariff association.

Captain Kleinschmidt And Party Are Recovered, Safe And Sound; To Push Ahead On Search For Home Of Santa

Wireless Message Received From Explorer Avers All Is Well And That Kiddies Will Not Be Disappointed

CAPTAIN Kleinschmidt and his party of explorers bound for the North Pole in search of Santa Claus reported missing Friday after the failure of the Avalanche-Journal to receive regular wireless messages from them, have been found.

The first news of their recovery came from the steamer "Sea Lion" which reported to a radia station having seen the plane floating on Hudson Bay near Fort Severn. This was at noon yesterday.

Several more wireless messages told of receiving short flashes of SOS calls, supposedly from the missing plane.

All Members Well

A searching party was dispatched ied by the steamer "Sea Lion" and the plane was found with all occupants well and in good health.

"We shall proceed with our expedition just as planned" said Captain Kleinschmidt, after his rescue. "The kiddies of Lubbock and the South Plains shall not be disappointed. I intend to push on and on into the frozen North until Santa Claus is discovered."

Other members of the party expressed great joy at their good fortune.

BY CAPT. F. E. KLEINSCHMIDT
Special Correspondent to the Avalanche-Journal and Head of Expedition to Home of Santa Claus
(By Wireless)

CAPECHURCHHILL, Nov. 30. — Here we are in a little Eskimo settlement on the western shore of Hudson Bay. After our 12 hours of enforced delay a slight northerly wind brought a colder temperature, the fog lifted and the air became crisp and clear.

We cleaned off all the sleet and ice from the plane. It is surprising how just a little film of ice can cut the lifting power of the plane to almost nothing. The actual weight of the ice meant nothing for we had used more weight fuel since leaving Rupert's Hudson Bay post than the weight of the ice amounted to, but it was the ice caused by the freezing moisture that changed the surface of the wing, especially the upper side, from leading to trailing edge.

We are here at Cape Churchhill, or rather at Button Bay at the mouth of the Churchhill River at a Hudson Bay post. The entire nearby village of an Eskimo settlement has come over to gape and wonder at our monster bird of the air.

They Were Lucky

The Hudson Bay Factor, an austere white-bearded Scotchman, Mr. Douglass, said we could be thankful we did not get a hail of rifle bullets instead of a welcome. The people, men, women and children were in an insane state of excitement. The men by instinct grabbed rifles and other weapons to dispel the demons swooping down on them. Now they are looking over the plane in awe with ejaculations of wonder —"Anni-ka! agi-ga!" Their pronunciati n is quite different from the Alaska Eskimos and it is difficult for me to understand them. What puzzles them most is that our birds are able to fly without having any feathers.

We are going over the plane with minute care for we have 1,000 miles cross-country flying without human habitation, that we know of, and where a mishap may mean death from starvation, exhaustion and cold. As there are no landmarks whatsoever, known on our route, we will fly by the instruments and stars, so we will take off at midnight to allow us daylight for the next landing.

Mrs. Kleinschmidt is enjoying every minute of the journey. She has proved herself a genuine explorer.

There will be another story Tuesday. I hope at that time to send you something about our arrival at the Eskimo outpost where our sleds and other equipment are waiting.

Tell the boys and girls that I am taking good care of their letters to Santa.

Income Tax Reduction, Tariff And Vare Case To Demand Attention Of Congress Session Until Christmas

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP) — Income tax reduction and the Vare case confronted congressional leaders today as the first points of the program for the regular session beginning Monday.

These two propositions and the tariff bill promised to demand all attention until the Christmas recess.

House Outlines Course.

An unsettled future for the senate was contrasted today by a well defined course for the early days of the house which will begin work with the tax reduction resolution and then turn to the annual bills for governmental funds.

Returning to his post at the senate, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, found party and program troubles. After a day of conferences it was determined only that the question of seating Senator-elect Vare, of Pennsylvania would come up, by previous agreement, on Tuesday.

Vare Asks Recount.

An immediate solution of the three--year old dispute over Vare's right to a seat seemed in doubt tonight, however, because of the new demand of the Pennsylvanian for a recount of ballots in 31 counties. His request probably will not be acted upon until next week.

The senate also has the unfinished tariff bill confronting it. By the end of the first week it also may have the income tax reduction resolution demanding attention, after house adoption.

Reorganization Coming.

Reorganization of the senate committees among the faction-split republican majority also is commanding consideration with several important assignments to be made. Senator Smoot, of Utah, solved an important problem in this connection today by announcing he preferred to continue as chairman of the finance committee, rather than become chairman of the appropriations committee, left vacant by the death of Senator Warren of Wyoming.

Senator Jones, of Washington, will become a chairman of the appropriation committee. If he decides to give up his duties as assistant party leader, Senator McNary of Oregon most likely will succeed to that office.

The western independents who have been opposing the tariff bill reported by the republicans on the finance committee are demanding representation on this committee in the reorganization, with Senator Lafollette, of Wisconsin, as their candidate. A lively contest is expected if Lafollette is not chosen.

WOMAN IS RETURNED

Mrs. Hellestad Is Back At Mission After Capture

HANKOW, Nov. 30. (AP)—Mrs. Oscar Hellestad, American missionary who was kidnapped by bandits yesterday at her home in Sinyeh, southwest Honan province, was released last night and returned to the Lutheran mission at Sinyeh.

Mrs. Hellestad, who is from Lebanon, S. D., said banditry was prevalent throughout the countryside.

The Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen of the Franciscan mission at Wuchang, who was captured by bandits several weeks ago, again has written to his mission saying his captors were demanding 6,000 Mexican dollars for ransom for his release.

AGREEMENT CONTINUED

PAMPA, Nov. 30. (AP)—A decision to continue for 60 days an agreement to hold down oil production in this area was made today by major producers. Only wells necessary to save leases or to prevent drainage by other wells will be drilled during the next two months. Storage and pipe lines continued to capacity. The shut-down agreement has been effect three months.

Two Hundred Fifty Attend Pre-Law Dance Here On Saturday Evening

Elaborate Event Held At College Gymnasium; Guests Enter Through Attractive Arch Of Red And Green

Club And Christmas Colors Are Used In Decorations; Electric Sign Bears Name Of Club; Music Is Furnished By Frank Stone and Collegians

THE most elaborate decorations ever used for an event in the gymnasium at Texas Technological college were those for the first annual dance given by the Pre-Law club Saturday night from 9 to 12 o'clock. Two hundred fifty attented the function.

Guests entered the room through an arch formed with the Christmas colors, red and green. On the opposite side of the room in front of the door was an electric sign, "Pre-Law Club", in red and black, the club colors, and overhead was a woven canopy in which also could be seen the Christmas colors.

Four flood lights, shedding soft rays of red, green, yellow and blue, completed a lovely effect.

Music was by Frank Stone and his Collegians. Punch was served throughout the evening.

Those in charge of the affair were Alvin R. Allison, general chairman, assisted by Robert Webb, George Berry, Mary Greathouse on the decorations committee.

Christmas Motif Favored In Event Given San Souci Club On Saturday; Four Homes Visited In Afternoon

Four Course Progressive Bridge Dinner Is Favor Of Group Of Associate Members; Decorations Are Varied; Prizes Are Given

AMONG the first social functions of the season to emphasize the Christmas motif throughout was a lovely four-course progressive bridge dinner given Saturday at 12:30 p. m. to compliment members of the San Souci club, social organization at Texas Technological college.

Associate members of the club, including Miss D'Aun Sammons and Mesdames V. Lorenz Ellis, Lewis Price, Lovie Thompson and J. H. Stiles, were hostesses for the occasion.

Guests assembled in the home of Mrs. Ellis, 1901 24th street, where five tables were centered with beautifully decorated Christmas trees. Here the first course, a cocktail, was served, and miniature trees were given as favors. Four hands of bridge were played, with a prize going for high score.

From there, the guests were directed to the home of Mrs. D. K. Bondurants, 1917 16th street, a patroness of the club, where entertaining rooms were made lovely with decorations in the Christmas colors, and a poinsetta plant centered each table. Here another game of bridge was played and a prize given for high score.

Progression then was to the home of Mrs. J. F. Hemphill, 2009 Broadway, where a turkey course was served. Santa Claus decorations were used here, one Santa Claus being on each table.

After a game of bridge in the Hemphill home, guests were taken to their destination, the home of Mrs. J. H. Stiles, 3002 22nd street. Here mistletoe was the principal decoration for the rooms. A sprig of mistletoe adorned each place at with big red candles surrounded with mistletoe. Guests were served a plum pudding course, after which they played their last hand of bridge.

An ash tray or a bath powder combination set was given as a prize for high score in each home.

"El Faro" Given As Name Of Sale By Students Here

Home Economics Club Will Sell Articles Made By The Various Departments Of College

"El Faro," meaning "The Lighthouse," has been designated as the name of the annual Christmas sale sponsored by the Home Economics club of Texas Technological college, which will be held next week from Wednesday through Saturday in the tea room of the home economics building.

The sale will open each morning at 9 o'clock and will remain open until 5. During the last two days of the sale it will also be open from 7 to 9 in the evenings.

Items which may be purchased at this time include fruit cakes which may be purchased for $1 per pound and may be had in plain or decorated styles in all shapes and sizes. Mince meat and fudge will also be on sale.

The art department of the school will have handblocked Christmas cards which are said to be quite distinctive. Other articles are handwoven bags with carved handles of ebony, huistache and mesquite; Indian bracelets, pins and rings, handwoven with turquoise sets; Italian linens, tray cloths in Assisi work, hemstitching, cross stitch, cutwork, and lace, Russian brass from Allen copper, pewter in tea sets, candle sticks, boxes and other articles. Prices in this list range from 25 cents to $8.

Russian peasant handcrafts, wooden toys, painted boxes, enameled bowls and trays are to be found in the exhibit, while East India prints in bed spreads, wall hangings, table runners, Bengaline coats in the famous designs of Paisley, Ganges, and the Tree of Life in colors of orange, henna, blue, green, mauve, and red and devenstedt papers in exclusive designs in paper napkins and Christmas wrapping papers and tying tape will also be for sale.

Las Peteneras To Present Program

Entertainment To Be Made Up Entirely Of Group Singing By Glee Club Club Members, Chorus

Las Peteneras, glee club of Texas Technological college, will give an entertainment Tuesday evening, December 10, at the college gymnasium. A mixed program, which will be composed of group singing only, is now being rehearsed for the occasion.

Forty-five members of the glee club will have part on the program and will be assisted by a mixed chorus of 12 voices. Mrs. Carl Scoggin, director of the club, is in charge of the event.

Mrs. T. L. Gordon and Miss Olive Butler, of Amarillo, were Thanksgiving guests in the home of Mrs. C. O. Akard, 2023 16th street.

Loyalty Group Holds Meet Friday Afternoon With Mrs. Magee; Business Session Held

Members of the Loyalty club held a business session, followed by a brief social hour, Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. T. Magee.

Mrs. Ed Greer, president, was in the chair for the business meeting, when Miss Jesish Martin and Mrs. L. Hughes were enrolled as new members. Plans were made for meeting to be held December 13 in the home of Mrs. Greer, 1809 Avenue Q for the purpose of finishing a quilt. The quilt top was given by Mrs. E. W. Lowery.

Refreshment plates were passed later in the afternoon to Miss Jewish Martin and Mesdames L. Hughes, A. J. Hood, Roche Newton, John Hayworth, W. E. Lowery, H. W. Diebel and Ed Greer.

Frocks are Dainty, 'Though Not Fussy; Lengths Vary

Very feminine and dainty are the Palm Beach clothes in the new mode. Necktie silk, in brown, beige, orange and red, fashions a sweet little suit with tuck-in blouse of cream crepe de chine. The beret is orange and brown Shetland wool. Fine black risella straw fashions a youthful off-the-face chapeau with drop-curtain back brim and a black velvet binding that ties in the back. Printed pink chiffon, in a brown-eyed Susan design, makes a way new looking little sleeveless afternoon frock with natural waistline and two-tiered skirt. The rever collar and back tie are new. Topping this, a natural Baku hat sponsors the wide brim for southern wear. Pink, green and brown velvet narrow ribbons band it.

BY HENRI BENDEL
Written for NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—The first clothes for wear at Palm Beach and other southern resorts rationalize the new silhouette.

By that I mean that they accept the new, normal waistline as a fact, but they by no means embrace the full length skirts. They make much of daintiness, by way of reiterating the femininity of winter's things, but they are restrained in their use of extra touches which put conservativeness at a premium.

Skirts show increased fullness but are neatly fitted over svelt hiplines and the induction of fullness comes by means of gores and godets quite as much as blouses are invariably tuck-ins. Coats may be fitted, or cardigans, and a few cute suits employ the Eton jacket as a gesture to youth and pauntiness.

A Blow at Exaggerated Modes

Palm Beach clothes indicate to me that styles are crystalizing into new lines but no set one, into new lengths but no set one, into new feminine daintiness but not fussiness. The first exaggerated silhouettes are no longer correct. Becomingness is more important than bizarreness, good lines more essential than novelty in cut. But there is no question that styles have changed beautifully.

Pinks, blue and reds vie with the popularity of last season's ubiquitious yellow. There will be many greens, too, not only because green is a good spring color, but because it combines so well with other things.

Cottons and Linens Are Important

Cottons and lines have quite a place in the new mode, with many fine voile blouses with silk suits and sometimes chiffon blouses with linen suits. Shantung, necktie silks, ad other novelty suits, mingle with the usual crepes. And there will be many printed frocks again, though prints tend to be dainty rather than spectacular, flowered chiffons for afternoon, especially.

Hats come in all shapes and sizes Many women need and look excellent in wide brims, so there are some of them. They are essentially leisure-class hats and very appropriate with afternoon things.

One afternoon frock, for instance of rose chiffon figured in a veritable field of brown-eyed Susans in their pale yellow beauty, takes a wide-brimmed, natural Baku hat, with laced banding of pink, yellow and green narrow velvet ribbon.

How One Frock "Rationalizes" Style

This frock illustrates the rationalized silhouette of which I spoke before. It fits the figure, but not too snugly, to hipline, where the pleated upper tier starts. There is a neat little belt with decorative buckle in front, and the collar is very youthful, with revers in back and a tie too. It is much longer than last season's afternoon informal things, yet it is shorter than the smart woman would wear a few hours later in the day.

A necktie silk suit in a fine pattern of brown, red and orange, has a yoke skirt, a cardigan with loose, wide cuffs to its sleeves and a little tuck-in of cream crepe de chine with a regular shirtwaist collar.

Wool Beret Is of Two Tones

A two-toned orange and brown shetland wool beret tops it, with the fullness gathered towards the back. Her beige gloves are eight-button length, wrinkled down at the wrist.

For straws, this season, the Palm Beach resorter can have her pick of anything from Milan to the finest hand-woven straw fabrics. They fashion all kinds of shapes, but many of the new ones repeat the off-the-face line, with long skirted back. Such a one is made of black risella straw, tailored to fit the head, with a banding of black velvet ribbon piercing its flared back front crown and tying in a bow in the back where the hat's brim pleats into a flaring neckline.

Two Events To Be Held By Woman's Forum This Week

Play Slated For Tuesday Evening; Reception Of Thursday To Be Attended By Hundreds

Two outstanding student events of this week will be sponsored by members of the Woman's Forum of Texas Technological college. One of the principal dramatic presentations of the season will be given by the Sock and Buskin dramatic club and sponsored by the Forum Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium, and on Thursday evening the Forum is holding its third annual reception in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Paul W. Horn on the campus. Invitations for the reception have been sent to 800 women students and women members of the college faculty.

Guests will be greeted at the door by Miss Margaret Williams, president of the Forum, who will present them to Dr. and Mrs. Horn. Others in the line will be Misses Jean Shelley Jennings, Margaret Garland, Margaret Trigg, the three new members received into the organization this fall. Misses Sarah Michie, Kate Pressley, Marjorie Ann Ainsworth, Orene McClellan, Faye Foote, Nell Goodloe, Helen Coon, Pauline Patterson, and Sylva Wilson will be other members in the line.

To Have Program

A program which will be given during the receiving hours, includes a vocal solo by Don Murphy, piano solos by Ellis Heineman, accordian music furnished by Miss Willette Waters, piano numbers by Misses Barbara Horton, and Margaret Dell Prim, vocal solos by Mrs. Richard L. Douglas, and a violin solo by Miss Josephine Winslow.

Tea Table

Refreshments will be served from a tea table presided over alternately by Mesdames Mary W. Doak, R. M. Chitwood, W. T. Gaston, James M. Gordon, John C. Granbery, Roscoe Wilson, and Misses Elizabeth West and Margaret Weeks.

Committees in charge of arrangements for the reception are directed by Miss Orene McClellan, who is chairman of refreshments and decorations; Miss Jean Shelley Jennings, invitation chairman, and Miss Nell Goodloe, chairman of details for the house party.

To Give Comedy

"Once There as A Princess," a delightful comedy in three acts by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, will be the dramatic presentation of Tuesday evening. It is being directed by Miss Kate Pressley, a senior at Tech, who is majoring in dramatics. Miss Pressley is a member of the dramatic club and has taken a prominent part in this phase of college life for the past four years.

The leading feminine role, Princess Dellatorre, will be played by Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth, a sophomore in the college and an active member of the Forum.

R. V. Willis will play the leading masculine role, that of Phil Lennox. Mr. Willis is a member of the dramatic club and has taken part in several plays given this year by that organization.

Other characters are Signor Moroni, played by John Cook; the old princess, Miss Kate Pressley; Hazel Boyd, Miss Earnestine Lockhart; Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Alma Merchant; Mrs. Purrington, Miss Lillian Hopping; Mrs. Seever, Mrs. Lloyd White; Ruby Boyd, Miss Melbria Pirtle; Aunt Meta Trimble, Miss Hilma Bartlett; Joe Boyd, Lankford Shaw; Milton D'Arcy, Orval Burknowledge rests solely in the fact

The story of the play is of an American girl who has married an Italian prince. She is about to make a visit to her old home town, and the people there are quite excited as they prepare for her return. When she finally arrives she is mistaken for a dressmaker.

P. T. A. COUNCIL

Mrs. Royalty Will Report On State Meeting

Regular business meeting of the local P.-T. A. council will be held Tuesday afternoon in the girls' study hall of the high school. Mrs. W. W. Royalty, delegate to the state P.-T. A. convention, will make a report at that time.

Meeting Will Be Held With Mrs. L. B. Rice

The Idle Hour club will be entertained Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the home of Mrs. L. B. Rice, 2303 5th street.

Bible Group Will Start New Study

Genesis Will Be Discussed By Scofield Bible Class Here Monday; Others Are Invited

Seventy-one members hare purchased texts and an average of two hundred members and visitors are attending the Scofield Bible class lectures which are given at 7:30 o'clock each Monday evening at the First Baptist church. The class is inter-denominational. Most of those who have purchased texts are preparing the lessons with a view to taking the examinations and working for the diploma at the end of the course.

Beginning Monday of this week, the group will take up the study of Genesis. This will be a good time for others to join, either as regular members or as visitors, it was announced.

Fashion Plaque

ONE OF THE newest and most attractive evening bags is made entirely of pearls in the roll type with a slide fastening. It is practical because it will hold more than the average evening bag without bulging.

Second Of Series Of Parties Given By Mrs. Jackson

Christmas Theme Used For Decorations; Bridge Is Diversion For Afternoon Event

Mrs. Joseph B. Jackson entertained with the second of a series of parties Friday afternoon in her home, 2811 21st street. She was assisted by Mrs. W. O. Daniels.

The holiday season was suggested in red chrysanthemums and green fern used to decorate the entertaining rooms, where six tables were arranged for games of bridge. The Christmas motif also was used in the game appointments.

Pretty gifts tied in red and green paper were given Mrs. O. W. English for high score, Mrs. Vernon Brown for second high and Mrs. B. A. Connally of McGreggor for cut.

A dainty salad course was passed at the close of the game hour to Mesdames H. L. Allen, B. B. Baron, Vernon Brown, Tom Carter, H. B. Hawkins, Tom Foster, Raymond George, R. D. Holmes, A. F. Holt, Vic Payne, N. L. Peters, Homer Pharr, Alan T. Stewart, R. S. Williams, Fred Caylor, O. W. English, G. Higginbotham, S. E. Cone, Oscar Nislar, A. D. Brown, J. Phipps, J. G. Porter, B. A. Local Camp Fire And Girl Scout Organizations Plan Christmas Charity

While many organizations in the city are busily engaged in planning charity work for the next few weeks, and grown-ups are taking over responsibilities of providing for the poor of the city, the school girls are not idle. There are at present 14 active Camp Fire groups and one troup of Girl Scouts and all are contemplating many tasks for the month of December.

Lubbock Camp Fire girls will join the 210,000 Camp Fire girls of the country this Christmas season in making the season a bright one for a number of poor children who otherwise would have a drab time. Legless and armless dolls are repaired and made to look as much like new as possible. In addition the girls are repa. every kind of toy imaginable to gladden the underprivileged children of their neighborhood.

To Fill Stockings.

Christmas tree decoration and carol singing are on the programs of many of the groups, and the filling of stockings will be a big item which is not to be overlooked.

The girls are selling Christmas cards and candies in order to make expenses and are quite eager to do every bit possible to bring cheer at the holiday season.

Secretary In City.

The past week has been an unusually busy one for the Camp Fire groups and their guardians with the arrival of Miss Ruby Lattimore, national Camp Fire secretary from New York City. Miss Lattimore spoke to guardians Tuesday evening and plans were made for a grand council fire to be held at the church Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

At this time Miss Lattimore presided at the official ceremony and honors were awarded to many girls while others were received into the organization.

On Thanksgiving morning many of the Camp Fire girls prepared baskets of fruit and delivered them to the poor.

The organizations hold weekly meetings and hold business sessions at which time they plan their numerous activities.

Renew Troop Work.

Troop 2 of the Girl Scout organization is in full swing again under the leadership of Mrs. N. H. Sims as captain and Miss Given Beebe as lieutenant.

They have one general meeting each Thursday afternoon and the patrols meet on Wednesday afternoons in the home of the patrol members. Three strong patrols have been organized, the Chickadee, Flying Eagle and the Bob White patrols. They are working on charity gifts for Christmas and are busily engaged in other activities to help them secure scout equipment.

Several new members who have been added to the Girl Scout membership are Misses Louda Bristow, Ruth Marie Fears, Miri Bickerstaff, Rachael Alexander, Leda Mae Baughman, Maida Lee Cook, Naomi Holder, Lois Ford and Odell Ford.

Mrs. Ribble To Entertain Group On Friday

Mrs. O. W. Ribble will be hostess to the Pastime club Friday afternoon in her home, 2220 18th street.

Week Of Prayer Will Be Observed By Women Of First Baptist Church

Afternoon Programs Will Begin On Monday At Three O'Clock And Will Close Friday; To Have Devotionals

Mrs. Tom Campbell To Give President's Message On Opening Day; Others Are To Speak

IN KEEPING with the week of prayer which will be observed in churches throughout the south, the Woman's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church has announced programs for each day beginning with Monday, December 2, when the first meeting will be held at the church beginning at 3 o'clock. The subject for discussion during the week will be "Speeding the Message," and the division for Monday will be "Speeding the message through the Missionary," with Mrs. C. O. White, leader.

The first program is as follows: Hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name"; Scripture, the Hundredth Psalm, read by J. D. Carroll; president's message, Mrs. Tom Campbell; prayer that the society may enter prayerfully into the plans, Mrs. W. A. Stahl; talk, "Speeding the message through the missionary," Mrs. Lawrimore; Scripture reading, John 4:35-38, Mrs. C. O. White; season of prayer that Southern Baptists may appreciate the rich missionary heritage and may enter into the labors of their forefathers making it possible by prayer and gifts for more laborers to be sent forth into the harvest fields; hymn, "The Morning Light is Breaking;" talk, "The kingdom is coming—but how," Mrs. J. D. Carnett; season of prayer that Christians in particular W. M. U. members will joyfully hasten the coming of the Kingdom; Scripture verses on praise; offering; prayer for causes to be helped by the offering; announcements; watchword "Holding forth the word of light;" hymn as benediction, "We Praise Thee, O God."

Tuesday's Program

Tuesday's program is in charge of Mrs. J. W. Reid and will be on subject, "Speeding the message through natives." The program opens with a devotional followed by the singing of the hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves"; the Lord's prayer will be repeated in unison; watchword, "Holding for the Word of Light"; Scripture verse; solo, "O, Divine Redeemer," Mrs. Frank Barclay; talk, "Speeding the message through the Nations," Mrs. B. T. Jordan; hymn, "The Kingdom is Coming"; talk, "Are Native Christians Capable of Leadership?" Mrs. Grant; Season of prayer that native Christians will steadily increase in usefullness; offering; prayer for causes to be helped by the offering; announcements; Scripture as benediction, Jude 2:24.

Mrs. Rozzell Leader

Mrs. J. J. Rozzell has been named leader for Wednesday's program which is on "Speeding the message through agencies." A devotional will be given and after a prayer the hymn, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone," will be sung. Scripture verses read will illustrate the determination I can and I will and are taken from Philippians 4:13, Psalms 40:8, John 7:17, and Revelations, 22:17. A season of prayer that the program will lead many W. M. U. members to say "I can and I will do my best to speed the message" will be given by Mrs. W. M. Lawrence; Mrs. George Duval will make a talk on speeding the message through agencies; Mrs. Mary McComb will make a talk on "How do schools and hospitals help in evangelizing the world?"; a season of prayer will be held that the foreign mission board may be enabled to properly equip its schools and hospitals, and a hymn "My Jesus, I Love Thee," will be sung by members; the watch word, "Holding Forth the Word of God" will be given; and an offering taken followed by a prayer for the causes that will be helped by the offering; announcements; hymn, "Silent Night, Holy Night," and the benediction, the Lord's prayer said in unison.

To Study Prayer

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Wise will be in charge of a program on "Speeding the Message through prayer and stewardship." The program opens with a devotional hymn, "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross"; followed by a prayer of Thanksgiving that God hears and answers prayer; Scripture; hymn, "Joy to the world"; Scripture in unison; John 3:16, 1st Corinthians, 3:9, Philippians, 2:16; talk on speeding the message, Mrs. A. W. Jackson; hymn, "Make me a channel of blessing"; talk, "How powerful is prayer—who owns the wool?" Mrs. H. G. Love; Season of prayer that W. M. Mrs. G. R. Scott and daughter, Mrs. Roy Watson, are spending the week-end in Sweetwater. Bronte and Snyder visiting friends.

The WOMAN'S DAY

The modern department store is an excellent guage of our social progress. From a shop girl I learned what was done in one of the largest ones in New York, and it may interest you, as it did me.

It seems that the store had graded up its merchandise, modernized its furniture, redecorated its walls, and done about everything that could be done to make the place physically alluring for the shopper, and then the next step was to grade up the clerks.

So they started in on that. Stylists were brought in to give the girls talks on styles, and to advise them individually on the types of dresses to buy, and the lines that would suit them best.

Particularly they were taught the knack of selecting, with the smallest margin of failure—the new long skirted and high-waisted dresses. It was good psychology that if the clerks looked smart in them, customers would be prompted to buy them in spite of a lingering regret for the less advanced models.

Then beauty experts were requisitioned in to teach them the fine points of grooming. Much stress was laid on the aesthetic appeal of the clean hand, with the accent of the well manicured nail. A hairdresser came forward with inside information about hair dressing, and dwelt upon the advisability of the frequent shampoo. Later a monitor was appointed to look over the heads ever so often, and to issue a gentle reminder in case the matter of the washing was neglected.

THEY GOT RESULTS

Well, naturally, the store's personnel picked up in looks like flowers after the summer rains.

And one insignificant clerk, who had always worn baggy dresses loosely tied in at the hips, and a Zulu type bob, was found to have a figure second to none when she appeared in a black crepe, molded to her natural waistline, and a beautifully modelled head was unearthed when she stopped frizzling her hair, and brushed it smoothly over her forehead.

Transformed, she was so effective that she was transplanted to another department, and in no time the buyer of that section realized here was something nice to have about the home, and in a very short time he made her his wife.

Fortunately for the store, not every woman responded so well to the treatment, but this one outstanding success did cause others to realize that sometimes a better appearance had other value than just selling more merchandise.

LADY OF THE TAXI

Here's a new way to work your way through school, that has a modern flavor:

A woman summoned a taxi recently, also in New York City, and though she gave an address familiar to most taxi drivers, the driver seemed utterly confused. After attempted explanations on the part of the woman who wanted to be transported, which seemed also incomprehensible to the driver, the woman suddenly noticed blonde hair under the driver's cap, and saw she was dealing with a very pretty girl, instead of a hard-boiled driver.

Then the girl explained: "I don't know the city at all, though I can drive as well as any man. I came here to work my way through aviation school, and since I am mechanical-minded, this was the only way I knew to get money."

La Novia Club Is Entertained Here

Bridge Is Chief Diversion Of Evening; Thanksgiving Motif Favored In Details Of Event

Mr. and Mrs. Claxton Draper were hosts to La Novia bridge club Friday evening in their home at 2104 16th street. The Thanksgiving motif was used in all appointments, miniature Puritan maids serving as tallies and turkeys in art for score pads. Turkeys were favors on the refreshment plate whic hwas passed at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Lorenz Ellis scored high for women members and Mr. Ellis scored low, while Dwight Hale made high score for the men.

Guests present were Messrs. and Mesdames H. H. Griffith, Lorenz Ellis, Dwight Hale, W. D. Benson, jr., Dr. and Mrs. O. W. English, and Marlin R. Smith, jr.

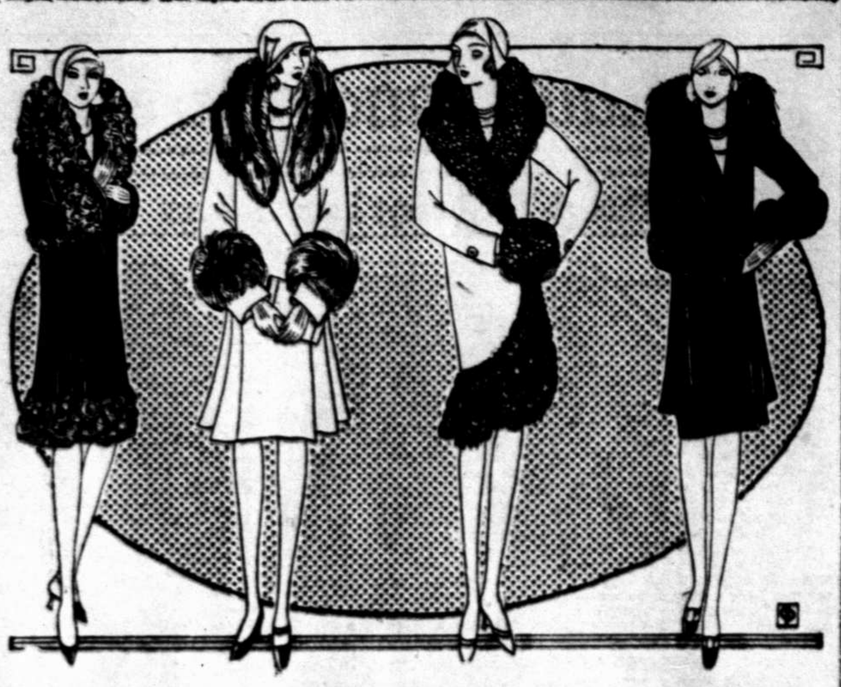

The club will meet on December 20 for a Christmas party and will have a Christmas tree as a feature of the evening's entertainment.

TO ADDRESS WOMEN

Dr. J. C. Granbery Will Be Speaker On Monday

Dr. J. C. Granbery, head of the history department of Texas Technological college will address women of the First Methodist church and others interested Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, using as his subject, "An International Missionary Conference Held in 1928 at Jerusalem." The Methodist Woman's Missionary society has just completed a study of the subject.

Lavishly Fur-Trimmed Coats Popular This Season

BY JAY JAMPOLLER
Fashion Writer for Central Press

This, indeed, is to be a fur season. There are lavishly fur-trimmed coats, dresses with fur borders or bows, and, lo and behold (after all these years) fur-trimmed hats. It certainly seems as though woman is to become once more the "Dame de Mode", so beloved of the cavaliers of a hitherto more romantic era.

Theory at present is: "Let us have clothes that are feminine." This tendency is shown in the skirts that reveal only the ankle, the long gloves with tiny pearl buttons, and even to the details in accessories, such as elaborate pins and buckles.

Many of the smartest imported coats shown in the Fifth avenue shops are enhanced with the following furs: fox, galyak, breitschwantz and the soft, curlier caracul. In many instances, the cloth coats have flat furs, such as galyak, caracul and baby sealskin.

Last, but not least, a brand new idea is exploited in the cuff. It is tight around the wrist, and stays that way for about three inches, suddenly flares out and is caught together just below the elbow.

As to dresses, again we see fur, this time it is used as a hipband, or is placed around the hem of the gown to outline the circular sweep of the skirt. This fur is generally flat, which prevents a bulky effect under a coat. When it is used in suits, the hipline is banded by soft fox, applied below the hipline in back, and gradually ascends upwards towards the front. This particular treatment was seen in warm red broadcloth and brown fox, also in black broadcloth with black galyak and in green of the same material with curly caracul.

The biggest thrill of the moment however, is a hat trimmed with fur. In most cases it is just a matter of a bow to match the fur either on one's coat or dress. Won't it be flattering, after all these years of stiff, unadorned felts?

Wedding Foremost In South Plains Society Of Week

Events Given In Plainview During Holidays; Couple Of Floydada Will Marry Soon

Perhaps the outstanding event of the past week in South Plains society was the marriage of Miss Cecile Strayhorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Strayhorn, of Snyder, to Walter W. Cork, of San Angelo, which took place last Sunday morning in the home of the bride's parents.

An altar was erected in the home around which chrysanthemums in all shades predominated. Previous to the ceremony, Miss Dorothy Strayhorn, with Mrs. J. P. Nelson accompanying, sang "I Love You Truly" and the wedding march was played by Miss Mary Lynn Nation. Rev. G. S. Hardy, former pastor of the First Methodist church officiated.

The young couple left on a short honeymoon trip and will later be at home in San Angelo.

Mrs. Cork was honoree at a number of social affairs after her engagement was announced.

On Thanksgiving

In celebration of Thanksgiving Plainview society was most active. Beginning last week, numerous parties, dinners, and social affairs carried out the spirit of the Thanksgiving season and at 12:30 o'clock Friday the ballroom of the Hilton was the scene of gayety when members of the Plainview sanitarium and clinic honored Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer, at a dinner.

Over 60 doctors, nurses, and druggists from Plainview and neighborin gtowns were present at the dinner and program which followed.

In-Honor Party

Miss Virginia Lewis, of Floydada, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Paul Conner, was announced by her mother, Mrs. L. H. Lewis at a party on November 15, has been named honor guest at a number of pre-nuptial affairs. On last Monday afternoon Mrs. W. H. Hilton and Mrs. George Sherrill were hostesses honoring Miss Lewis and among out-of-town guests in attendance was Mrs. Ray Dickey, of Lubbock.

Last Thursday evening Miss Lizzie Mae Coleman, of Slaton, who will become the bride of Charles Tasker, of Wellington, Kansas, on December 2, was honoree at a surprise party given by Mrs. M. A. Grant.

A program was given during the afternoon and refreshments were served to about sixty guests.

LOYAL SISTERS

Club Will Meet In Home Of Mrs. Lee Coleman

Members of the Loyal Sisters' club will be entertained Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lee Coleman, 1924 Avenue Q.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Schenck and baby, of Lovington, New Mexico, and Roland Schenck, of Amarillo, are the week-end guests of the Messrs. Schenck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Schenck at the Bosque apartments.

"Medieval Drama" Discussed Friday

Delphian Chapter Has Meet For Program; Federation Meeting Is Discussed By Delegate

"Examples of Medieval Drama" was the subject for discussion at a meeting of the Lu-Beta Delphian chapter Friday afternoon in Room 214 of the administration building of Texas Technological college. The meeting was postponed from Thursday because of Thanksgiving.

Mrs. R. D. Moxley was program leader for the afternoon and talks were given on "The Liturgy Dramatized" and "The Guild Pageant" by Mrs. Joe Coursey, and the morality, "Everyman," and "A Commedia dell'Arte Play" by Mrs. W. R. Blake. Mrs. L. B. Wright entertained with a dramatic reading, and reports were made from the Delphian magazine by Mrs. N. S. McBride and Mrs. R. F. Cook.

Mrs. J. B. Edwards, club delegate, discussed the state meeting of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs held recently at Mineral Wells, followed by other brief talks on the convention by Mesdames O. K. Peters and N. S. McBride.

Those present were Mesdames W. R. Blake, R. F. Cook, J. D. Hassell, O. K. Peters, J. W. Woodward, George Smallwood, F. A. Kleinschmidt, R. D. Moxley, L. B. Wright, A. T. Biggers, R. S. Rodgers, N. S. McBride, H. G. Love, R. A. Mills, Joe Coursey, Frazier McCrummen, J. B. Edwards, Robert Bean, A. B. Davis, Richard White, D. K. Bondurant, L. H. Hungate, C. E. Windsor Daggett, New York Teacher Of Speech And Diction, To Lecture At Tech Twice On December Fourth

Widely Known Expert To Be Here As Guest Of Alpha Psi Omega; Teachers Of Section Are Invited

Windsor P. Daggett, teacher of dramatic diction at the American Laboratory Theater in New York City, will lecture at the Chemistry auditorium Wednesday afternoon and night, December 4th.

His subject for the afternoon lecture is "Beauty Secrets of Good Speech." He will deal with the discussion of speech habits as related to life and good diction as a good habit. Throughout his lectures he will illustrate with phonographic records taken of the voices of persons who have been presented the Arts and Science Medal for having the best diction of any one on the American stage.

To Stress Interpretation

His evening topic for discussion is "The Vocal Fire of Poetry." It will take the form of a lecture and recital at which time the speaker will point out the value of poetry read aloud as a reviver of our best and latent sensibilities. He will illustrate with numerous readings in terms of remembered experience that produces the voice of interpretation.

"The fact that we have been able to secure the engagement with Mr. Daggett was made possible through the sponsorship of Alpha Psi Omega and Sock and Buskin dramatic organizations of the campus. Located as Lubbock is, so far away from the professional theater, it is up to us to foster an intrest in all phrases of speech. Each year we bring to the campus an outstanding speaker" said Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the department of speech at the college.

Invitations Out

Invitations to all of the teachers of speech in surrounding towns have been sent asking them to come and bring their classes to hear Mr. Daggett.

Mr. Daggett was born in New England and received his early education in the state of Maine. He was graduated from college at Brown univeraity, Providence, Rhode Island, and thereafter was appointed Professor of Public Speaking at the University of Maine. He is the author of a three-act play, "Lelio and Isabella", which was acted by the Masque in Boston and favorably received by the press.

Studies in New York

He left college work to study the theater in New York. He became interested in phonetics and studied several years under William Tilly of Columbia university. He wrote a number of articles on the speech of actors which came to the attention of the Billboard Publishing company. As a result of these articles Mr. Daggett joined the staff of the Billboard a theatrical weekly, and for five years conducted the Department of the Spoken Word. His articles aroused interest all over the country both among actors and among teachers.

Mr. Daggett studied the theater not only from the front but held back-stage conferences with the people whom he criticised. His Spoken Word Records, which are now used in teaching speech, are the voices of artists whose voices have been judged by critics to be the best on American stages.

"In bringing Mr. Daggett to the college we are doing it not only for our own good but also for the opportunity that his lecture will afford other people on the Plains," Miss Pirtle said.

Tech Student's In Need Of Positions

Due to conditions arising during the past few days, there are twenty men students of Texas Technological college who are sorely in need of employment, Prof. Cecil Horne, in charge of the college employment bureau announced yesterday. The boys will be forced to withdraw from school unless they can find employment in the near future, Mr. Horne said.

"Most of the boys are upperclassmen," Mr. Horne said, "and are willing to do most any kind of work as they want to stay in school."

Anyone having employment are requested to notify Mr. Horne's office at the college.

Hess Urges Early Reservations For Culver's Address

Those who plan to attend the luncheon next Friday in honor of Harry H. Culver, president of the national association of real estate boards, are being urged to make reservations early this week, Glen Hess, secretary of the local board, announced late Saturday.

Reservations may be made by calling Mr. Hess by telephone.

Seeking 200 Attendance

"We are seeking an attendance of 200," said Mr. Hess. "Any one interested in development of the city would find it profitable to attend. Mr. Culver, founder of Culver City, Calif., will discuss a wide range of subjects, including zoning, real estate values and airport development."

Arriving in this city at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning, Mr. Culver will be escorted by a committee from the municipal airport to the Hotel Lubbock, where the luncheon program will start shortly after 12 o'clock.

An aviation enthusiast, Mr. Culver is making his national itinerary by airplane.

Horticulture Work Is Student s Plan

Formed for the purpose of rendering nursery aid in the Lubbock area, the Texas Technological college students' horticulture service has been organized in the agricultural department of the college, it was announced Saturday.

Members of the group, who are earning expenses through the college, who will give the service are Jack Hannah, Bill Clutter, Jim Dunham, Elmer Hartman and A. L. Priddle.

Spraying, pruning, transplanting and any kind of nursery service will be rendered by the student horticulturists.

COTTON IS DESTROYED

Sixty-Five Bales Burned In Gin At Klondyke, Friday

LAMESA, Nov. 30 (Special)—Fire destroyed sixty-five bales of cotton at the Klondyke gin, fifteen miles southwest of here Friday morning. The cotton was insured and no damage was suffered by the gin. Burning burrs near cotton is believed to have caused the blaze.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is it worth while to gain an education? Not much question about that for most of us, is there? But many ambitious young people wonder about it when discouragement surround them.

Young people whose parents can't see what good an education will do, for they never had it and "see how well they got along." Young people who break down in health while they are working their way through school, and those who come out of college heavily in debt because they couldn't get through without borrowing money.

Those who don't know, think that it is easy for young people to get some of the helps that are given young folks nowadays, but usually a scholarship lasts for only part of the college course. And not all ambitious young people are able to win scholarships. There is plenty of competition.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Please help a discouraged friend. I am a senior in high school and have to work hard for my education, for my mother does not wish me to go to school.

"Now my problem is, how can I sho my education is worth while? My sister graduated from high school and is now working in a factory. Mother says now what good did going to high school do her?

"But, Virginia Lee, I do not want to work in a factory after I graduate. I love school and am very ambitious to succeed in life. Do you think I have a chance for success, living in a small town and without much money? What work would you suggest I take up after I graduate?

"A TRUE FRIEND."

You can show your mother that your education is worth while by the course you pursue after you graduate, as well as your spirit now. As a matter of fact, your sister may do better work, even in the factory, because she has been educated. That is part of the benefits of an education.

Are you taking up any special course in high school that will help you in business—typewriting stenography, bookkeeping, etc.? It is hard to advise you what to follow as I do not know your inclinations and talents. There are so many courses open to girls now. As you like change and travel, there are women traveling salesmen as well as men. There are jobs on boats and trains that women can do. There are teaching and nursing jobs that include traveling. You would have to start in some small way at first, to learn, but if you are conscientious and trustworthy you will be able to earn more later and, if you can find a way, go to college, too. You will enjoy that, and you may find you can win a scholarship which will help. Talk with your high school teachers. They will help you to decide what line to follow and may be able to get you some more substantial help.

As to the lady with whom you have been corresponding write to her again, and it would be perfectly proper, and very nice, for you to give her child a present, if you can afford it.

C. L. B.: I think the little girl wants the fun of going with more than one boy, Lad, and that is perfectly natural. Why don't you keep her as your very best girl, and occasionally go with some one else? It would be good for both of you, if you can bring yourself to do that.

Your love may be "puppy love" as the girl's sister suggests, and it may not. Going with other girls once in awhile will prove that and also may wake the little girl friend up.

FEELING BLUE: Impossible to say why the boy doesn't ask you to dance with him as he used to. Maybe the very next time you see him at a dance he will ask you.

It may be, of course, that your brother has told him that you are older and that is the reason.

Boys often tease one another when one of them goes with an older girl. Cheer up. You'll probably meet a boy nearer your own age and forget about this one.

NORMA: No, I don't advise you to marry the younger man. It would be fair to neither of you for you to do so. I wish you could marry the older one, whom you have loved all this while, or at least go with him openly, as you would either find out that he really is the one man for you or else that you have been loving an ideal, not the real man.

Of course it may all be true that it is not his fault that he has been unhappy in both his marriages, but there may be a different slant on the matter than you can see, caring for him as you do.

As you cannot marry the one you love, do not marry at all for the present. It is kinder to tell your fiance now that you cannot marry him because you do not love him enough, than to marry him and let him find it out from your indifference. If you married him you would be constantly comparing him with the man you do love, to his disadvantage, and it would be most unfair to him.

Let things rest for the present. Changes come very quickly sometimes, and something may occur to make you change your mind and consequently your attitude.

MUDDY WATERS: Have you asked her to write oftener and told her that you want to hear from her? You may sound indifferent in your letters, and she would be more interested if you wrote as if you really cared about her and wanted to be more to her than a friend—provided you do, of course.

It is hard for some people to write letters, and she may be one of those, too. Such people will do anything to get out of letter writing, although they enjoy getting letters.

Sixty-five million square feet of plate glass were used in automobiles in the United States last year. This area is equivalent to that of 1500 acres.

If all the domestic coal used in England were treated by an up-to-date low temperature distillation process, 500,000,000 gallons of petrol could be produced annually.

Toll Rates To Be Reduced Jan. 1st

The fourth reduction in long distance telephone rates in a little more than three years will be made January 1, according to word received here today by Tom A. White, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company. The cut will mean a saving of approximately five million dollars to telephone users in the United States.

It will apply principally to day "station-to-station" rates to points 60 to 300 miles distant. "Station-to-station" rates are those which apply to calls placed to a distant number rather than to a particular person. In most instances these will be reduced ten cents, although in a few cases the decrease will amount to five cents.

Rates on "person-to-person" calls (calls for a specific person) and evening and night "station-to-station" calls will remain largely as they are at present, although some minor reductions will be made.

Report charges, made on "person-to-person" calls when the called telephone is reached but the person wanted is not reached, will also be reduced in amounts ranging from five to forty cents on calls to points from 140 to 2,200 miles distant.

Warde To Appear On Tech Program On December 9th

"Grand Old Man Of Footlights" Is Scheduled For Lecture Here Again; To Give Shakespeare

Frederick Warde, called the "Grand Old Man of the Footlights," will return to Lubbock for his second engagement when he appears as an artist course attraction at Texas Technological college, December 9.

His lecture, in which he interspersed many portrayals of Shakespearean characters, will be on the subject of "Sixty Years of Make-Believe."

For that number of years he has been an actor on the stage in England and the United States. His work has been standard and classic drama. His contemporaries and associates were the foremost actors on the English-speaking stage, and include such historic names as Charlotte Cushman, Adelaide Neilson, Edwin Booth, Henry Irving, John McCullough, Lawrence Barrett, Louis James, and many others.

To Give New Lecture

For this season Mr. Warde announces a feature lecture, "The Actors of Shakespeare." As when he appeared here two years ago he will give his exceedingly popular talk on the stage and its characters, a fascinating picture of stage life as Mr. Warde has found it in the classical drama, a revelation of the real American stage of the post half century by one who was in the midst of the best of it. His Shakespearean group of lectures, classics in themselves, are available under the general title: "The Actors of Shakespeare—From Burbage to Booth."

The years have not dimmed his wonderfully radiant personality. He is the last of the old school, and he typifies the highest ideals of the stage and the drama.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BY MADAME RUBINSTEIN

While telling stories which illustrate the human side of beauty culture, I must not omit the one of a woman who, through illness, lost her cheerful outlook on life.

She was a teacher much loved by the great number of pupils who came daily under her tutelage. She received much adulation, as she was not only charming in manner, but beautiful in face and figure. Her existence went along in an even, happy manner until she was taken with arthritis, which confined her to her home for a great length of time. During the period of her illness, she aged terribly, lines appearing on her forehead, around her eyes and mouth. . . . her contour sagged and it became a source of distress for her to look at her reflection in the mirror.

Formerly her beauty had been a source of pride, but now she was embarrassed about seeing her friends during her convalescence. A sister watched with perturbation her cancellations of social calls and her withdrawal from all social intercourse. Being a clever woman she did not waste much time in contemplation, but went to a beauty specialist whom she had formerly consulted for herself. The beauty specialist explained that the long period in which her sister had been forced to remain indoors was responsible for the dry condition of her skin and that it could be overcome with nourishment and care; also that the contour could be brought back to normal with a good muscle tightener.

It took a little persuasion to get the consent of the teacher to allow the nurse to take her to the beauty specialist, but after the first treatment, she went happily. After the thirds visit she began to show decided improvement. It was not long before her face was beginning to show its former loveliness. It happened, however, that after the first six treatments she began to arrive late. After this tardiness had been repeated for several appointments, the specialist asked her if it were not possible for her to be more prompt, as the time was carefully alloted and there were many demands on it.

When the beauty expert heard the reason for her tardiness, she was more than pleased. The teacher's friends were constantly stopping her on her way to the salon to compliment her on the tremendous improvement in her appearance, and these conversations took so much time that they had made her late.

She promised, however, to start a half hour earlier to permit of the delay.

TATE TO RAISE WAGES

Dallas Mayor Recommends Increase Of 80 Cents

DALLAS, Nov. 30. (AP)—Mayor J. Waddy Tate of Dallas has recommended an increase from $3.20 to $4.00 a day for all city-employed day labor, during December, January and February. He said today he would ask the city commission Monday to approve the wage boost, as a contribution toward maintaining local prosperity.

APPEAL IS PLANNED

Waggoner Estate To Ask For New Hearing

VERNON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Attorneys for the W. T. Waggoner estate planned today to appeal from an instructed decision in district court here awarding the Sigler Oil company title to a lease on the estate land valued at more than $2,000,000.

The decision, ordered by Judge Robert Cole, gave title to a lease on 2,000 acres of a 3,000 acre tract involved, but deprived the company of a lease on the remaining 1,000 acres. The company also planned an appeal in an effort to recover titles to the lease on the other 1,000 acres.

The Sigler company, now known as the Lido company, leased the tract in 1919. Waggoner asked cancellaiton of the lease and $800,000 damages for alleged failure to develop.

Pioneer Citizen Of Spur Is Dead

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SPUR, Nov. 30—Walter L. Powell, 53, pioneer citizen of Spur, and formerly superintendent of Spur public schools died instantly at his home Saturday morning at 7 o'clock.

Death resulted supposedly from heart attack, as no sign of illness had been shown when he retired Friday night.

Mr. Powell was also judge of Dickens county for four years.

Funeral services will be held at the Church of Christ this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Survivors are the widow, a brother and a sister.

It Seems To Be Easy To Find Fault

Lubbock Couples, Seeking Divorce, Hit Upon Numerous Reasons For Desiring Return To Single Blessedness

Understanding is generally regarded as conducive to greater love; but many divorce petitions in Lubbock courts indicate that discord and strife follow knowledge of each other in marital relationship.

The moon lost its former glory and those endearing words are never in the vocabulary of the one accused of applying "approbrious epethets."

Records of divorce cases cast an interesting light on the question of marital unhappiness but according to psychologists the causes recited in the petitions are often merely sidelights or a natural effect and pneumonia accompanying the underlying cause for divorce.

Infidelity Often Charged

By far the greater number recite infidelity or cruelty as grounds. If the petition is filed by a woman it usually starts out with an assertion that she "has been an affectionate and dutiful wife managing her husband's household with expediency and economy, but that despite this he has consorted with others and has begun a course of tyranical and cruel treatment, all of which make their further living together unbearable."

The man, in most cases, alleges that despite the fact that he has been a dutiful husband, caring and providing for her to the best of his ability, that she has begun a course of cruel treatment.

Hey, Hey—Hatchets!

One man accused the wife of forcing him to do the customary feminine labor around the house and that she has also been extremely jealous of him, threatening his life. He alleged that she at one time, during a fit of anger, threw a hatchet at him.

A farmer said that his wife followed him to the field, claiming that she was too lonesome at home, and he charged that she made him help with household duties when they returned from the farm labor. "At one time," he asserted, "she made me sleep in the barn."

Most unique of the applications was one filed last May, when the wife sought a divorce after living with her husband but 5 days after the marriage ceremony. Cruelty was the charge.

Practices Marksmanship

Another "mistreated" wife charged that her husband shot at her with a revolver and placed her under grave fear and claimed that her nervous condition would not permit her to live with him.

One woman had failed to pay her bills before marriage, according to a husband's petition. He said that he had been paying her bills "until he had lost his patience."

Records reveal that the number of divorce petitions filed here represent about one-fourth of the number of marriage licenses issued. About 8 of every 10 applications are filed by women.

More deadly drugs per head of population are being taken today than ever before in the world's history.

Scofield Bible Class

—meets every Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the First Baptist Church. It is an opportunity to do some real Bible study and to gain a more complete understanding of the meaning of the Bible message.

The Class has more than two hundred and fifty members and new members are coming in at each meeting. You may join either as a regular member or as a visitor. Regular members purchase the texts, carefully prepare the lessons, and take the examinations with a view to the diploma from the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago to be awarded on the completion of the Course. Visitors use their Bibles as their texts, study the lessons, but do not take the examinations.

The work is conducted under the auspices of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago and is non-denominational. The Class is just beginning the study of Genesis and it is a good time for you to join either as a regular member or as a visitor.

NOTICE—It is not the intention of The Avalanche-Journal to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly and if through error we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to same, and will gladly correct any erroneous statement made.

The Avalanche-Journal is an independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those questions which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics; publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he mediate day and night.—Psalm 1, 1, 2.

A SERMON IN VERSE

IN another column on this page, under the heading of "Today's Poem," there is a reproduction of Tennyson's famous masterpiece, "Crossing The Bar." Read it. There will be no better sermon delivered from Lubbock pulpits today. There has never been a greater one preached anywhere.

Most poetry—even though it may be listed in the 'Blue Book' of verse—does not appeal to the average man. But "Crossing The Bar" has an appeal for every human, though he be king or pauper. It deals beautifully with a problem which confronts us all.

Consider a moment:

"When that which came from out the boundless deep, Turns again home."

Could anything—could any words—be more expressive of the great question of from whence we came and toward where we head?

And, again: "And though, from out this bourne of time and place, the flood may bear me far, I hope to see my Pilot, face to face, When I have crossed the bar!"

Isn't that your hope? Isn't it the hope of everybody? And doesn't it make you think about improving your life so the hope may be realized?

Perhaps we are too aesthetic. Perhaps fancy has caught a thought and whirled it into sentiment. But The Avalanche-Journal believes there is no man living who cannot be benefitted by reading Tennyson's great poem. It is a master sermon—one which should be taught everywhere.

A GREAT FRENCHMAN

Georges Clemenceau, brilliant, erratic and influential, who has died at the age of 88 years, was a politician who always had a sense of social responsibility. He was premier many times, and he was influential in driving many premiers from power. The socialists regarded him as one of them, but when they organized a strike among the miners in the south of France and riots followed, he called out the military to restore order. Jaures, the socialist leader, charged him with using the government to crush the working class, whereupon he replied that he had used his power only against individuals who were rioting. For a time he supported General Boulanger, but when it appeared that the general was plotting against the republic he deserted him. He espoused the cause of Dryfus, and it was in his newspaper that Zola printed his famous letter, "J'accuse."

He was 73 years old when the war began, and in 1917, when he was 76 years old, he was called to the premiership to organize victory. He served as premier and war minister until 1920, when he retired. He conducted the government with a vigor and relentlessness remarkable in a man of any age, but almost miraculous in a man approaching foursoore. His career was typically French, for he was a journalist who devoted himself to telling the government what should be done and a politician who did in executive office what he had advised when out of office. The Frenchmen frequently enter journalism as a door to political office as Americans enter the law. Clemenceau was a brilliant and fearless writer and a statesman of no mean parts. To his dying day he was feared, and now that he is dead he has left behind him a book the contents of which many Frenchmen are dreading to have disclosed, for they do not know what he has said about them.

A MACHINE AGE MADNESS

With mixed emotions and reactions not notably, we contemplate the experiment attributed to Columbia University whereby, in the educational systems of some 18 American cities, typewriters are allowed in the primary schools as children learn the technique of writing. Children love any sort of machine and hate the labors of learning to write by hand. No doubt to form a small g in longhand, loop and all, involves more movements than to punch a g in script on a typewriter. But all that is in a field remote from child life.

What have children to do when the economics of muscular or mental operations? They have ample time to acquire the control of mind over body that enables them slowly and painfully by hand to string letters into words and words into sentences. Hands wrought the machines in the first place and we are turning everything topsy turvy if, in a machine age, we subordinate hand.

Longhand was the basis of all writing and remains largely that in the lives of most men and women. Aside from breeding a sense of symmetry, the hand is made the creature of the mind and minds may be developed which, in proper times and places, make effective use of machines. It will be a sorry day when children are "taught only enough handwriting in the first three grades to enable them to write their names." Too many learn no more than that now.

YOUR TOWN AND YOU

Your town boosts you. Why not do as well by the town as it does by you? No citizen is so powerful none so humble, but what the town is an aid to him in some way or other.

The food that he eats, the clothes he wears, the recreation and amusement that he enjoys, all originate in the town, because the money with which they are procured is made there.

When a fellow boosts his own town he does not stop there. He is performing an act that improves his own condition, for every good word and every good deed has its elevating influence.

A few people are always home town boosters. They accomplish much in the way of community betterment, and this improves the condition of not only themselves, but also of those who do no boosting at all.

If every citizen would constitute himself a home town booster the result collectively would be many times as great, and opportunities for self improvement would be more numerous.

A local skeptic was quite surprised recently to learn that the 13-month calendar was not being promoted by the Book-of-the-Month club.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

STEWART FINDS THAT GOTHAM HASN'T MONOPOLY ON BIZARRE

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—New Yorkers think their burg has a monopoly on the bizarre and impossible.

That simply is because Manhattan chroniclers cackle so over every trifling event in their midst, assuming that it must vitally important because it occurs on their picayune little island.

In reality, more extraordinary things probably happen in and around Washington than anywhere else in the country. Or, if they do not actually happen here, our distinguished visitors bring the first news of them in to the capital. Only, here we have a lot of genuinely consequential matters to occupy our minds with.

But if we cared to be frivolous—

For instance:

Last year the District of Columbia's next door neighbor, Virginia, jumped out of the Democratic and into the Republican column on account of religion—whatever that may have to do with national politics.

But this year the Old Dominion state jumped back again and one of the determining issues was the inviting of Mrs. Oscar De Priest to tea at the White House.

A few nights ago Secretary of State Stimson entertained Dr. Juan B. Sacasa at dinner, which was quite proper, considering that Dr. Sacasa is Nicaragua's minister in Washington.

However, enemies of our form of government, like Bolsheviki, are not even allowed in this country.

And it isn't so long since U. S. marines and Nicaraguans were killing each other in the latters' native jungles because Dr. Sacasa, as a Bolshevik, was in arms against us.

Another batch of evidence has arrived here in support of the denial that Tom Mooney and Warren Billings had a thing to do with the San Francisco bomb throwing for which they are serving life terms in San Quentin.

It may seem superfluous, considering that the judge and all the surviving jurors who tried them also deny it, but it arrived anyway.

And, as usual, it arrived addressed to Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota, who, although he lives 2,000-and-odd miles from the scene of what about half the members of congress have called one of the rankest injustices in American history, is trying harder to rectify it than Senators Johnson and Shortridge and Representatives Lea, Engelbright, Curry, Kahn, Welch, Carter, Barbour, Free, Evans, Crail and Swing of California all put together.

After a dozen strikers from a big textile plant had been fired out of their church at Marion (N. C.) for joining a labor union, the entire 12 of them turned up there, some of their number crying real tears, begging the pastor (paid by their employers) to take them back again into communion.

This may be challenged as not a Washington event, but it came from A. F. of L. headquarters in the capital.

"And people wonder," said the A. F. of L.-ite who told me, "why we have so much trouble getting those textile workers effectively organized!"

Socialists who come to Washington with government business to transact occasionally complain that there is not now a single member of congress whose views are radical enough to sympathize with them, to whom they can apply for assistance, as they used to do to the late Representative Berger.

Yet Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia is just back, after suffering an exceptionally severe trouncing as Republican candidate for mayor of New York, due to the fact that so many conservative Republicans voted for Norman Thomas, the Socialist nominee, on the ground that LaGuardia was too red for them.

Your Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The first recognizable description of a case of general paralysis appears to have been published about 1798.

In that description, the delusions of grandeur, followed by the symptoms of paralysis and complete insanity, are fully emphasized.

Perhaps the two most important observations concerning this disease were those of the Englishman Mott and the Japanese investigator Noguchi, the first of whom indicated and the second of whom proved that general paralysis was invariably the result of infection of the human body by the same organism that causes one of the two great venereal diseases.

General paralysis has always been considered a most serious disease leading progressively and inevitably to death. Within recent years Wagner-Jauregg made an announcement of investigations which earned for him the Nobel prize in medicine. He had discovered that patients with general paralysis improved when they became infected with other disorders and in 1917 he inoculated some patients with malaria. The improvement in these patients was for the most part remarkable. Four of them developed complete remissions and were able to go back to work. The remaining four did not do so well.

The experiments were continued not only by him, but by many other investigators in institutions for the insane throughout the world. As a result, figures have been accumulated on thousands of cases which indicate finally that malarial treatment of general paralysis definitely increases the length of the patient's life and in most instances produces improvement in the mental condition as well as in the physical condition.

In addition to inoculating such patients with malaria, attempts have been made to control the disease by producing fever in the patient and by the injection of other organisms similar to the malarial organism. While these experiments have also been encouraging, at present most of the evidence indicates that the malaral treatment is superior to the others that have been offered.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

"It is not yet too late to shop early," was the way a Lubbock merchants put it today; by which he meant that the early part of the day is best for the Christmas buyer. Then the stocks are assorted and in order, the sales-people fresh and attentive and the crowds are not so dense.

Due consideration for clerks and store employers in general, and a selfish interest in the saving of one's own time and temper bespeak for all who have gifts to buy the early hours of the day.

In his Antarctic fastness Commander Byrd gets radio quotations of the stock market, many of which at present are farther south than the Commander.

Senator Borah has an annoying habit of remembering too much. His memory tells him the tariff bill violates the platform pledges of his party.

Today's Poem

CROSSING THE BAR

Sunset, and evening star,
And one clear call for me.
And may there be no mouning at the bar
When I put out to sea.
But such a tide as moving, seems asleep,
Too full for sound or foam.
When that which moves from out the boundless deep,
Turns again home.

Twilight, and evening bell,
And after that—the dark.
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark.
And though, from out this bourne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot, face to face,
When I have crossed the bar!

Laredo Business Man Gets Citation After 30 Years

LAREDO, Nov. 30. (AP) — Thirty years after the Spanish-American war John S. Twiss, a Laredo business man who served as hospital steward of the 33rd U. S. Infantry in the Philippine Islands campaign, has been awarded a citation and a silver star for bravery and gallantry in Northern Luzon December 4-18, 1899.

The letter from the war department enclosing the citation and announcing the conferring of the silver star said Twiss will later be furnished an engraved certificate, a Philippine campaign medal and the Spanish war service medal.

Twiss was discharged from the army just as the United States entered the war with Spain. The day after his discharge at Key West he enlisted in the 33d Infantry and was sent to San Antonio, from where he proceeded with Colonel Luther Hare and his command to the Philippine Islands and engaged in many of the major engagements in the islands.

The Avenging Parrot

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Lynx," etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MRS. EMMA HOGARTH, said to keep money in her room on the second floor of MRS. RHODES' boarding house, is strangled to death. BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assisting LT. STRAWN, attaches significance to the utterance "Bad Penny" made by CAP'N, the victim's parrot, when he finds in her diary reference to a mysterious "D." of whom she lived in dread.

Suspicion at once falls on EMIL SEVIER, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her and who has left town hurriedly. CORA BARKER, theater pianist, also a boarder, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is arrested as a material witness against him when she confesses she was in the murder room shortly after 12.

Other boarders under suspicion are HENRY DOWD, MR. and MRS. SHARP, NORMA PAIGE, WALTER STYLES, who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; BERT MAGNUS, newcomer and amateur scenario writer, and DAISY SHEPHERD.

The boarders all agree to stay on except Daisy, who packs and leaves. Dundee pays Styles a visit and finds him washing socks and a pair of gloves! Magnus, obviously in love with Cora, worries about her arrest. Dundee learns from Mrs. Rhodes Mrs. Hogarth's secretive method of sending and receiving mail, making only the postman her confidant. The postman says that the victim's monthly letter came from a SALLY GRAVES in New York. Dundee recalls details of the mysterious murder of Sally Graves in New York a month previous, and concludes Sally was Mrs. Hegarth's daughter and that "D." committed both murders. But who and where is "D."?

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

"Aha! This looks promising!" Dundee exclaimed triumphantly as he bent over the trunk which held all of Mrs. Hogarth's possessions. "See, Strawn? The lining of this trunk lid is loose," and he tugged at the stiff, cretonne-covered pasteboard. "A good hiding place for documents—and here they are!"

"If that's the great hidden hoard—" Strawn began, grinning cynically as Dundee straightened, two thin envelopes in his hand.

"It is—all the hoard that the poor old lady had to hide. I'm afraid," Dundee agreed solemnly. "The life insurance policy referred to in the diary. In spite of Mrs. Hogarth's prophecy, she did outlive her dauhter, though she never suspected it."

"Let me see!" Strawn took the crackling green-and-white document. "You were right, boy. This policy for $2,000 was taken out by Sarah Harkness Griffin, also known as Sally Graves," aged 27 years, and is made payable to "Mrs. Emma Harkness, also known as Mrs. Emma Hogarth, Mother." So both our murdered women were living under assumed names, and Mrs. Hogarth was really Mrs. Harkness. I wonder why—"

"So that 'D.' could not find them, of course," Dundee answered impatiently. "But he was cleverer than they were—"

"Remember, Bonnie, there's still not a shred of evidence to connect the two murders, let alone any basis for the assumption that both were committed by the same person," Strawn reminded his subordinate stubbornly. "Stranger coincidences than his are common in every police department."

"Yeah?" Dundee grinned. "Well, let's have a look at this other envelope. By the way," he interrupted himself, his eyes shining with sudden joy, "that will the old lady left isn't just a scrap of paper any longer! Since Mrs. Hogarth—and I'm going to call her that till the end of the chapter, if you don't mind—died without having collected the $2,000 for which her daughter's life was insured, it will automatically fall to her heiress—Norma Paige!"

"And that will be nice for Walter Styles," Strawn grinned. "I believe he figured it would require just $2,000 to save his little shop from bankruptcy."

"That's right," Dundee agreed moodily, as he slit the plain, unaddressed envelope he had found along with the insurance policy. "Hooray, chief! Look what's here" And he excitedly waved the official-looking document under Strawn's nose.

"What is it? Looks like a marriage certificate—"

"Exactly what it is!" Dundee exulted. "Obliging us with the name of the murderer! This priceless paper certifies that on June 2, 1922, in the town of Belton, Mo., one Sarah Jane Harkness and one Daniel Thomas Griffin were united in marriage. So D. was Daniel Thomas Griffin—a very bad penny!"

"I wish you wouldn't keep harping on that," Strawn complained, as he scanned the precious marriage certificate. "By George! Sally Graves, or Griffin, was murdered on he rseventh wedding anniversary!"

"Another nice little coincidence?" Dundee taunted his chief good-humoredly. "Listen, Strawn! I'm not leaping to conclusions nearly so wildly as you think I am. Sally Graves was murdered on June 2, and all her papers were burned by her murderer! Can't you agree with me that, in all likelihood, there were letters among them those papers from her mother, Emma Hogarth—letters which carried the return address of the Rhodes House?"

"Perhaps," Strawn agreed grudgingly. "But not if Sally was as careful about destroying letters as her mother was. Mrs. Rhodes told you that Mrs. Hogarth burned each letter from Sally as soon as she had read it."

"Why should Sally have been so careful? Dundee countered. "She had her own apartment, did not live in a boarding-house, had no reason to fear a robbery, as had Mrs. Hogarth. If Sally Graves was the devoted daughter her monthly letters, containing $50 bills, indicate, it's pretty likely that she kept her mother's letters to read over and over. It is possible that Mrs. Hogarth mentioned, in one of those letters, her pranks with well-making and hidden hoards, without making it clear to anyone but Sally that the hoard was mythical. She may even have deplored her own folly, remarking on her fears that she would be murdered for her money."

"Not likely she'd confess to her daughter that she was making such a fool of herself," Strawn objected.

"Well, what if his mother-in-law's address was the only thing that interested Daniel Griffin?" Dundee conceded. "I'll wager anything you like that he found the address, and memorized it before destroying any and veery paper that could connect Sally Graves with Mrs. Emma Hogarth of Hamilton. But there was some reason why he killed Sally Graves, or Griffin, still his legal wife. What that reason was I don't know. It could hardly have been robbery, since she was living cheaply and had only a moderate salary as a head milliner. The natural supposition would be that he killed her when she refused to take him back as her husband, if it were not for the fact that he came on to Hamilton and killed her mother, too. That would be carrying revenge a little too far—"

"Well?" Strawn sighed. "I'm glad you admit that."

"Yes, I'm admitting that he thought Sally had what he very much wanted, that he killed her to get it, and that when he failed to find it in her possession, he believed her mother had it, and came to get it. The bad penny turned up."

"He wasn't in any hurry, was he?" Strawn gibed. "But probably he felt that a month's vacation between murders was no more than he was entitled to."

"You can't make me sore," Dundee assured him cheerfully. "I think Griffin would naturally have lain low for a while after killing his wife. And murdering Mrs. Hogarth presented slightly greater difficulties, you must remember. Not so easy to gain access, unnoticed, to a boarding-house room as to a walk-up apartment house in New York, where everyone minds his own business. This murder required careful planning; the other was immensely successful, although impromptu. Or it may have been carefully planned for weeks, to occur of Emil Sevier. I can imagine Daniel versary".

"I'm afraid Emil Sevier would resent the calm way you ignore him," Strawn grinned.

"But I'm not ignoring him," Dundee protested. "I think he was the keystone of Griffin's plans. Let's imagine that Griffin arrived in Hamilton on or before the date of Sevier's eviction from the boarding-house, as an undesirable tenant, and as a possible menace to Mrs. Hogarth's life and money. The dining room is a hotbed of gossip. Probably every dealer who ever dropped into the Rhodes House for dinner has been treated to a more or less complete account of Mrs. Hogarth's eccentricities, and her hidden hoard. And lately, of course, has heard all about her suspicion

"That is fairly obvious," Dundee Griffin dropping in for a meal, his head already teeming with plans for murdering his mother-in-law, and being regaled with a full account of Sevier's eviction in disgrace. To him, Sevier must have seemed made to order as the perfect suspect—"

"And a most obliging one," Strawn interrupted sarcastically. "How could he have guessed that Sevier would so conveniently disappear after the murder?"

"That I don't know," Dundee conceded frankly. "But Griffin may have scraped an acquaintance with Sevier, learned from him something that we don't know, something that made Griffin sure that Sevier was going to be a very hard man to find after 1 o'clock on Saturday night. But there are at least two other reasons why it was necessary for Griffin to do the job not later than Saturday or Sunday night. As you already know, the screens to all windows, including a heavy, reinforced one for Mrs. Hogarth's window, were to be installed on Monday."

"And the other reason?" Strawn prompted, interested in spite of himself.

"What is fairly obvious," Dundee replied, but so pleasantly that his words did not carry a sting. "Granting, of course, that I am right, and that Griffin committed both murders. If he had very much of a conversation with Sally before he killed her, he probably learned that she was supporting her mother, sending a $50 bill in a registered letter, to arrive on the first of each month. Today is the first of July. Griffin knew that if he delayed his job longer than the first Mrs. Hogarth would not receive that regular first-of-the-month letter, and that very soon she might wire or write her daughter to learn the cause of the extremely unusual delay. If she had done so, she would inevitably have learned from the police, who are undoubtedly watching for mail addressed to Sally Graves, that her daughter had been murdered. And she would have put the police on the trail of Daniel Thomas Griffin!"

"I don't see how he could figure on the police not learning the connection between the two women," Strawn objected.

"I believe he thought he was fairly safe on that score, after rummaging thruogh Mrs. Hogarth's things and finding not a scrap of paper bearing Sally Graves' or Sally Griffin's name," Dundee answered. "Remember, he had already destroyed all evidence of that connection at the other end—documentary evidence, I mean. And probably Sally assured him that no living person besides her mother knew her real name. If she did not, the newspapers reporting the murder performed that service for him, by failing to unearth a single clue as to her past or to find a single intimate friend of the dead milliner. But—as usually happens—Griffin made one big mistake. He failed to notice that the lining of the trunk lid was loose at one corner."

"Well!" Strawn drew a deep breath, a mingling of incredulity and hope, as he reached for the telephone on his desk. "We'll see what your uncle, the police commissioner, has to say. This thing's too complicated for me. I'd rather take orders for a while." And he called a number.

Ten minutes later Police Commissioner O'Brien strode into the chief of detectives office, clapped his nephew on the back affectionately, then settled down in the only comfortable chair to hear Strawn's story of the latest developments in the Hogarth case.

Dundee listened respectfully, but as Strawn conscientiously repeated all of the amazing and unsupported deductions which his newest assistant had made, the boy felt a genuine affection for the older detective growing rapidly in his susceptible young heart. None of Strawn's own incredulity crept into the tale, nor did he minimize the fact that it was Dundee who had unearthed most of the new facts and made all of the deductions from them.

When he had finished, O'Brien's blue eyes were twinkling. "Didn't I tell you to park your imagination before taking your new job, Bonnie?" he reproved his nephew fondly. "Well, Strawn, I suppose we'll have to humor this lad. Get New York on the wire. And ask for Inspector Holloway. He's a friend of mine and he'll know all about the Sally Graves case. I'll talk."

While they were waiting for the long-distance call to be put through Commissioner O'Brien took time off from his affectionate "riding" of his nephew to impress upon Lieutenant Strawn the fact that the search for Emil Sevier must be pursued relentlessly.

"I'm not letting up on Sevier," Strawn growled. "As far as I'm concerned, he's still the man we're looking for."

The call came through then, Commissioner O'Brien being fortunate enough to have caught Inspector Holloway at headquarters.

After an exchangge of cordial greetings, O'Brien rumbled into the mouthpiece: "Listen, Holloway, have you anything new on that Sally Graves murder? . . . Well, I've got some news for you, but I'll have to ask you to keep it quiet. Not a word in the newspapers until we give the word, or you may gum up a little party we've got on here. . . . Thanks, Holloway. I knew I could count on you. Now, listen!"

With an astonishing economy of words O'Brien informed the New York detective of all that had been learned from the documents hidden under the trunk lid lining—that Sally Graves was really Mrs. Daniel Thomas Griffin, formerly of Belton, Mo., and that her mother, Mrs. Emma Harkness, known as Mrs. Emma Hogarth, had been murdered. He answered questions with the precision and rapidity of a machine gun spitting out bullets.

When at last he hung up the receiver he mopped his florid brow and beamed on his subordinates. "Guess I gave Holloway a jolt, all right. He says they haven't made the slightest headway on the Graves case, but can go ahead now on the tip I've given him. They're sending a man to Belton tonight, and I guess you'd better hop down and make it a pleasant little twosome, Strawn. First, though, I want you to get the Belton chief of police on the wire for me. It may not even be necessary for you to make the trip."

"The telephone company must be trying to make a record for service," the commissioner chuckled, when, after an astonishingly short interval, the Hamilton operator announced, "Ready with Belton."

"Hello, chief!" he shouted into the mouthpiece. "Police Commissioner O'Brien of Hamilton, ——, speaking. I'd like any information you can give me on Daniel Thomas Griffin, a former resident of your town. . . . That's right. Griffin! G-r-i-f-f-i-n. . . . What's that? . . . Good Lord! . . . May, 1924, you say? . . . Yes, yes, go on! I can hear you! . . . No trace of him since then? . . . Can you give me a description of him now? . . . No, don't bother to call back. I'm sending one of my men down to Belton today. He'll explain when he gets there. . . . Thanks, old scout! Hope I can return the favor sometime. . . . Good-by!"

"Don't keep us in suspense," Strawn growled, as the police commissioner rocked back and forth in his chair, smiling significantly at his nephew.

"Well, Bonnie! Score one for imagination!" his uncle chuckled. "There's little doubt, lad, that Dan Griffin was a bad penny, but so far we have no proof that he turned up in Hamilton. . . . All right, Strawn! Keep your shirt on! Here's the dope: Dan Griffin, his wife, Sally, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harkness, lived in Belton, Mo., until May, 1924. On May 10, 1924, Dan Griffin, who was a teller in the First National Bank of Belton, relieved the bank of $10,000 in unidentifiable bills of varying denominations—"

"What!" Strawn's tilted chair lags crashed to the floor. "Mrs. Hogarths hidden hoard!"

Dundee grinned at his chief's excitement, but said nothing, though his blue eyes were glittering with triumph and excitement.

"Maybe," the police commissioner agreed. "Anyway, Mrs. Harkness and Mrs. Griffin left town hurriedly a few hours before the embezzlement was discovered by the bank examiner, but Dan Griffin was not with them. He was trailed to his deserted home, which he visited shortly after his wife and mother-in-law had taken a train. But there his trail ended. He has so far never been arrested for his crime, and the police also failed to trace the movements of Mrs. Harkness and Mrs. Griffin."

"Did you get a description of Griffin?" Dundee asked.

"No. The Belton chief was talking from memory. Said their files had been destroyed in a fire two years ago, before he became chief of police, but that he could secure a description for me from bank officials. I told him not to bother, that I was sending you down today, Strawn. But I want that description as soon as you can wire it back—in code, of course. . . . And Bonnie, you're in charge of the case from this end until Strawn gets back. I'll rescind that order about parking your imagination, but—keep your head, lad."

"The Rainbow Man" Features Lubbock's Theatre Program

Eddie Dowling Is Star On Non-Jazz Lindsey Offering

All - Talking Film Heralded As One Of Best

Critics have been warm in their praise of the simplicity and beauty-without-benefit-of-jazz in the first Eddie Dowling all-talking and singing picture, "The Rainbow Man" which comes to the Palace Theater for four days beginning today.

"The Rainbow Man" is believed to be one of the first musical sound-films to break into fame without the aid of "hey-hey" or "vo-deo-do."

The sponsors of the picture dared to make the venture despite the tremendous traditional urge for musical whoop-de-doo and saxaphonic fanfare. And they won.

Dowling's picture has a moving human plot. The hero is a small-time acton and he continues to be one throughout the film. He does not suddenly strike shale oil and millions in the musical comedy manner, nor does he fight a duel with thirty villains to win the girl.

The songs are lovely melodies, easily remembered, but not of the "hot" or "blues" variety.

Thus "The Rainbow Man" is different. It marks a new step in the progress of talking films. It is a romantic, lyrical confection, filled with true heart-interest, comedy and episodic action and bringing three personages to undisputed prominence in the realm of sound films—Eddie Dowling, Marian Nixon and little Frankie Darro.

(At Lindsey)

First Harold Lloyd Talkie Starting Today At Lindsey

After an absence of nearly a year and a half, Harold Lloyd is returning to the screen, making the occasion an auspicious one by presenting his first all-talking picture, "Welcome Danger" at the Lindsey theatre, starting today.

The comedian spent many months perfecting the new screen technique and in "Welcome Danger" is said to have developed what will prove the fastest production shown since the advent of talking pictures. He has not deviated from the old method of producing his comedies, maintaining all the speed and action of his past successes, but adding sound and dialogue as good measure entertainment.

Scenes In Chinatown

Many of the scenes of "Welcome Danger" are laid in San Francisco's underground Chinatown, and combine action, romance, and mystery whit a whirlwind series of laugh episodes.

Lloyd is one of the last of the premiere actors of the silent screen to yield to talking pictures, holding out against the new art until he was thoroughly convinced of its merit. Once sold on dialogue and sound, however, he plunged into the work of using it to the fullest degree, in the building up of his comedy, and the result is that "Welcome Danger" is hailed as one of the greatest triumphs of his long picture career.

A new leading lady is presented by Lloyd, Barbara Kent, who is a sure fire screen partner for the bespectacled comedian. She has an excellent voice and her performance in "Welcome Danger" is said to stamp her for picture progress.

Mystery Comedy "Stark Mad" To Show At Lindsey

H. B. Warner And Louise Fazenda Star In Film

"Stark Mad," Warner Bros.' latest special production, comes to the Lindsey Theater Thursday next, for a run of three days. "Stark Mad.'" is without doubt the most uncanny of all the shiver-and-shake laugh-makers of the screen. Clever direction adds to the reality of the unreality—one senses every shriek, stutter, growl and intelligible word and spellbound seems to feel the whir of speeding arrows—rusty grating of closing doors in the ruined temple in the deeps of the jungle—roar of winds—beat of rain—wash of waves—bungling tread of the huge gorilla—and all the trappings of fear.

"Stark Mad" has a sterling cast including H. B. Warner, Louise Fazenda, Jacqueline Logan, Henry B. Walthall, Lionel Belmore, Claude Gillingwater, Andre Beranger, John Miljan, Warner Richmond and Floyd Shackelford. The story is by Jerome Kingston. Harvey Gates did the scenario. The clever direction is the work of Lloyd Bacon.

"Stark Mad" records the adventures of the members of an expedition formed by a millionaire with the avowed purpose of locating his lost son in the Central American jungles.

"Girl Overboard" At Lyric Today

Ships And Sea In Plot Of Film Being Shown

The waterfront of San Pedro Harbor, California, was used as the realistic setting of Universal's "Girl Overboard," starring Mary Philbin, which is now at the Lyric for two days.

A maze of ships; swirling water; docks; sailors off for a leave for the first time in months; huge liners being towed out by tugs on their way to Honolulu, China, the South Seas, Australia; freight boats leaving for Alaska, trade in the Archipelagos; oil tankers on coastwise trade, All were captured by the camera for a constantly changing panorama of colorful atmosphere.

Set in this realistic locale, "Girl Overboard" offers a strong love story between two waifs befriended by the captain of a tug. Otis Harlan plays the mariner and Fred Mackaye shares the love interest with Miss Philbin—a new, glorious and sparkling Miss Philbin.

The management of the Lyric Theatre has secured the Ches Davis vaudeville company for a five-day booking this week.

Mr. Davis has secured some of the best talent that can be obtained in the vaudeville field. Ches himself is considered the south's famous blackface comedian and is back this year with new songs and entertainment. Dolly Taylor has been on big time vaudeville for years and Buddy Ryan the dancer de luxe will also feature some big time hits as well as Audrey Nelson, the dimples girl.

Mr. Davis also has this year Joe Sarcini, the radio artist on his show. This company is to be here for five days starting Sunday afternoon.

"The Letter" Star Coming Soon In "Jealousy"

Solomon in all his glory might have looked like hard times in comparison with Halliwell Hobbes and the wardrobe he wears in "Jealousy," the Paramount all-talking picture at the Palace theater starting Thursday and starring Jeanne Eagles, who will be remembered for her last talking picture, "The Letter."

Hobbes represents a financier, sportsman and clubman about Paris. He is middle aged, of cultivated taste, comfortable moral standards, exotic temperament. His is the type of character who would keep up to the most elaborate indulgences of the wealthy and then step beyond a trifle.

Dress The Part

So, on the screen, he dresses to look the part. Never, according to H. M. K. Smith, studio costume expert, has one man at the eastern Paramount studio worn such a rich and varied outfit.

Hobbes first appears in the picture all ready for the races at Longchamps of Auteuil. He wears formal morning clothes with a light gray top hat, a sprig of lily-of-the-valley in his buttonhole as every Frenchman would on the first of May, carrying his binoculars and a walking stick especially designed for racing men, with a scale designed for measuring the height of a horse. He also wears evening clothes and a black silk hat.

But the splendor of Hobbes' raiment is best revealed in his informal clothes, he has pajamas, a lounging jacket, a lounging robe and a smoking coat.

The pajamas are of silk, of a putty color and blue, with blue morocco slippers to match. The robe is decorated with figures of orange and midnight blue in modernistic designs, on a background of pale gold. The jacket is of Bianchini silk brocade of dark bottle green, ornamented with green and gold. The smoking coat is of violet velvet. All the garments were imported direct from Paris.

J. Frank Dobie Has New Book Of Old Southwest; "A Vaquero Of The Brush Country" Is Story Of Texas Cowboy

THERE has just been published a book which will be of great interest to every old-time Texan and to every young Texan who wants to know anything about the romantic life in Texas during the days when the cattle business was king. "A Vaquero of the Brush Country" is the title of J. Frank Dobie's new book, which has just issued from the Southwest Press of Dallas. As nearly everybody knows, Mr. Dobie is the best informed man in the state—and that means in the whole country—on matters pertaining to the literature and folk customs of the Southwest. He is editorial secretary of the Texas Folklore Society, and in this position he has published for the society a number of valuable books, the most important of which is "Legends of Texas," which is now being prepared for a second edition.

Combines Elements

This new book is in reality a combination of the personal narrative of a real vaquero, or cowboy of the brush country, named John Young, and of Mr. Dobie's own personal knowledge of and scholary researches into the history and social and economic life of Texas during its early days. By presenting the material in a narrative form the author gains all the attractive qualities that we usually associate with a personal document—the wit and humor, the fascinating tang of actual cowboy speech, the vividness and clarity of the personal recital, and the resulting conviction of absolute authenticity. It is always a real cowboy speaking to us, whether it be John Young, the historical figure, or Frank Dobie, the scholarly student and commentator on matters dealing with the facts of Southwest life and history.

But this book is much more than a mere personal reminiscence. It is an interpretation of the historical, economic, social, and general humanitarian aspects of a romantic phase of American life, namely, that of the old-time cattle business in Southwest Texas particularly and in the whole Southwest in general. The brush country of the Southwest is known to be the original home and beginning of the cattle business in Texas. The Spanish conquerors of Mexico brought their domestic animals with them when they entered the country, and from these early importations came the vast herds of wild cattle and wild horses or mustangs and wild hogs or razorbacks which roamed the vast unsettled area between the Nueces and the Rio Grande. The panorama of this whole section with its life of adventure and romance passes before the reader of this new book. There is no doubt of the fact that Mr. Dobie has given the world the best interpretation of the actual life of the brush country cowman that has so far been made.

Is Original Texas

The brush country cowboy or vaquero is the original Texas cowboy. His technique was quite different from that of the later cowboy of the great Plains. To handle cattle in the thick and thorny flora of this Southwest country presents quite a different problem from the handling of cattle in the open plains. All of the technique of the vaquero is carefully explained by Mr. Dobie, both through the reminiscences of Mr. Young and through his own experience as a ranchman in Southwest Texas.

No better book on early Texas life can be found than "A Vaquero of the Brush Country." If one wishes to inform himself or his friends about this early Texas life in the original cattle country he cannot do better than to read or present to his friends this volume. It is bound in imitation rattlesnake covers and is cleverly and profusely illustrated both by half tints and drawings. By all odds it is the best Christmas book offering on Texas that has so far appeared this season.

Marriage Topic Treated By Writer

"Marriage and Morals" by Bertrand Russell—Horace Liveright.

WHAT is the primary purpose of marriage? How has the attempt of the law and the police to keep men and women in ignorance of sexual matters affected our civilization? What attitude should we take about divorce? What is going to become of the family?

Bertrand Russell, one of the finest minds of all times, seeks the answers to these questions in this great book, on which he has been working for a number of years, and which he offers as his major contribution on this subject. —

Takes Up Question

Russell takes up the question of matrimonial morals first historically, and then from the standpoint of present-day problems, showing how the institution of the family has passed through three main stages—the first, as it existed among certain savages who did not know that human beings have fathers; the second, the early patriarchal systems, when the father was all important; and the third, when Christianity in the West, and Buddhism in the East, introduced the idea of something inherently impure in sex.

Equality Discussed

Coming down to modern times, Russell takes up the problems of readjustment brought about by woman's new demand for equality with men. Marriage he sees primarily as an institution to insure that children should have two parents; but he sees, not without alarm, the increasing tendency of the state to take over the function previously performed by the father.

Clearly and with unassailable logic, Russell shows how the attempt to keep men and women in ignorance of sex, and the needless prohibitions taught in childhood, have warped our living and thinking. His entire aim is to find the secret of greater happiness and well-being for us all in the whole realm of sex and marriage. The rich and valid opinions he advances in this book will inevitably react upon the mind of our time to bring us closer to that goal.

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

A Nonsense

The Dutton prize book for October is "Dudley and Gilderoy," a nonsense by Algernon Blackwood, author of "Tongues of Fire," etc. This is a noble fantasy—a delicate and profound study of bird and cat consciousness. It is the story of the glorious and humorous adventures of Dudley, an aristocratic King Grey Parrot, and of Gilderoy, a plebeian ginger-colored cat, who ran away from their country-home in Kent and went up to London in search of adventure. The haps and mishaps of these two amusing and mischievous rascals are related with all Mr. Blackwoods consummate artistry and, with a delicious mingling of sublime and comic, of laughing and singing, make a unique book, memorable for its picturesque theme and its underlying world of bird and animal intelligence. It is a book for adults, but little children—if the story is read to them—will laugh with joy at the antics of these two lovable runaways, for what could be funnier than a picture of the cat dashing down the street with the parrot on his back holding on for dear life.

A Girl D'Artagnan

"Ginevra" by Virginia Watson. Ginevra, the beautiful daughter of an impoverished Florentine nobleman of the 17th century, determining to take the place of her brother in rebuilding the family fortunes sets out on one of the strangest most adventurous careers a girl ever had. Disguised as a man, she rides forth into a man-made and man-ruled world, only to be taken captive and placed in a Turkish harem. Escaping from there, she flees to the New World, finally finding her way back to Italy, where all her dreams come true.

Beautifully and harmoniously illustrated in color, this makes a book of unsurpassed interest for older girls.—E. P. Dutton & Co.

Clemenceau Ends Autobiography In Evening Of Life

Houghton - Mifflin Publishes Book Of Great Men

GEORGES Clemenceau, veteran French statesman who died in Paris, held toward death the same fearless attitude he did toward life and advised others to learn to accept it "as we find it." The last chapter of his autobiography, "in the evening of my thought," completed just prior to his death and published here by Houghton Mifflin company, revealed the aged Tiger's opinion of death as "Dramatic Sleep." He watched its approach complacently and with complete imperturbation.

The chapter, entitled "and hereafter," disagreed with orthodox views regarding life after death and criticized as lacking in "balanced judgment" those who found such views necessary to their happiness on earth.

"A Dreamless Sleep"

"A dreamless sleep, that is, a purely negative state of unconsciousness, is all that we can anticipate in death," he wrote. "That is not very terrifying. An absence of pleasure, an absence of pain. To dread such a state surely indicates a lack of balanced judgment, since we enter it, by no means without satisfaction, at the end of every day. When we have completed our daily tasks, do we not seek to recuperate in sleep? Death is no more and no less than sleep. In the evenings, everyone looks forward to the approaching hour of unconsciousness. Insomnia is considered an unsurpassed evil. How senseless it is, then, to inveight against a state the rythmic, return of which we value so highly!"

Clemenceau would not be misunderstood, however, in creating the impression that he prized unduly the state of unconsciousness called death. He said:

"It would be paradoxial for me to maintain that life is a temporary woe, and death the supreme state of happiness. I do not in the least believe it. I fully appreciate the great achievements of consciousness with either attendant and inevitable sequence of joy and sorrow—"

But these great achievements he described, in another portion, as "wisps of smoke which they call glory" and said that the reason men lay such a store by them is because "they find in them something that smacks of survival after death."

Donn Byrne's most famous book "Messer Marco Polo" was introduced to a new and tremendous audience last week when a dramatic version of the story was presented over the entire red network of the National Broadcasting company on the Everyready Hour. Booksellers throughout the country reported a new "run" on this popular title almost immediately.

25 YEARS AGO

Twenty-five years ago
Lubbock was little more than a name and an ideal. Today this city, after blazing the pioneer's trail, passed through successive and successful stages of interesting and intense development until it has become a real factor in making this community known far outside of its own environs. The early settlers of Lubbock are many of them fond memories of history, but the spirit of these old settlers is reflected in the progressiveness of its present day inhabitants. Lubbock, true to its ideals, will continue to reward its business men with its patronage. As Lubbock progresses, so progress its leading firms.
And it is a combination of reverence for a glorious tradition, plus a vigorous spirit of modernity that keeps the Pioneers of Yesterday still in the vanguard today.

For Heaven's Sake! Men Are Following Lead Of Wives In Exclusive Dressing

Merchants Here Aver That Male Becomes More Exacting

Man!—an eternal question mark. He is a puzzle to every woman—and he is a puzzle to those of his own sex.

Is a man particular about his style of dress? Does he want to be exclusive—to have the only suit in town of some particular style? Maybe he does and maybe he doesn't. Opinions differ, even among managers of local ready-to-wear stores.

"Men do like to be exclusive in their dress," said Carl Patton, of Hogan and Patton's. "Young men, especially, are getting to be as particular as women. They do not want 'all men's clothes' any more, and they must have their spring suits in January—a thing that was unheard of five years ago.

Distinction Demanded

"It is true that men want neat, plain modes, but they demand distinctive line and color.

"This rule also holds good for hats. One well-dressed young man of Lubbock hesitated to buy one of the new wine brown hats because he had seen friends wearing the same kind. As for the suits, we do not buy more than two of a kind if the pattern is outstanding."

When asked if men were willing to pay more for clothes than formerly, Mr. Patton said. "No, because they had rather buy medium priced clothes and buy more often. Formerly, they bought clothes with the intention of wearing them for several years, but now they must have a new suit each season.

"Men also are very discriminating in their fitting. Sleeves, in particular, must be exactly the correct length. Men often have as little as one-fourth inch cut off the sleeve."

"Men want to wear suits that fit," said Harry Meyers, manager of Jarrett's Fashion Shop, "but they pay little attention to style or material, and it makes little difference to them what their neighbor is wearing.

Women Like Exclusiveness

"Woman, on the other hand, is more particular and more exclusive. She wants to be different because it adds to her reputation as a good style picker, as well as to her individuality. It also gives her added means of attracting the attention of both sexes.

"A woman is more particular about getting clothes which suit her particular type than a man is. Perhaps this is because she has a wider range of styles to choose from than a mas has.

"But true individuality in style is a thing that is rapidly passing away due to the large number of copiests in the style centers of the world."

"All women want to be different in their dress," he said, "but only a few of the men care to be exclusive. Usually these men are to be found in the larger cities.

"Perhaps the reason for this difference in the attitude of men and women toward dress is the difference in their interests in life. Women want to be prominent in the social world, to do this they must be well-dressed. A man is more interested in business matters, and business success does not depend so much on good dress as does social success. Women also have more time for shopping than men have, hence they can take note of details which men are forced to overlook.

"From 25 to 30 per cent of the men do want to be exclusive in their dress," said Ross McWhorter at McWhorter-Roberds, "and the per cent is increasing all the time.

"Comfort and durability are still held by the men to be the most essential qualities of a suit, but they are paying a great deal more attention to fit than ever before.

"Men are paying more attention to their types and are buying their clothes accordingly. This is particularly true with the college trade. These very men who try to wear that bravado or 'don't care' appearance, and who tease their wives or sweethearts about being so particular, in many cases, prove to be of just as exclusive a nature as women, when they go to buy their own clothes."

"I am not prepared to pass judgment on men's tastes when it comes to dress," said Mrs. Claude Grollman of Grollman's store, "but I do know that women like to have clothes that are 'different.' They will pay sums for frocks on Fifth Avenue that they would never think of paying at home, and in doing this they are attempting to have something exclusive. Then, when they return home they are disappointed when they find that other women are wearing the same style dresses, and paid a much smaller price for them. They forget that the stores at home buy their garments from New York.

"It is impossible for every one to be exclusive in the matter of dress. That would require too great a number of designs.

Night School Is Held for Farmers

SNYDER, Nov. 30—County agent W. C. Logan and Vocational Agriculture Teacher J. P. Jamison are conducting an evening school for adult farmers in the Ira community that is having remarkable success. Supt. Elmer Taylor of the Ira schools is sponsoring the project which will be conducted over a three month period, one meeting a week. Terracing was the first subject discussed with round tables being taken up following each lesson.

Every phase of agricultural activity as it concerns this section will be taken up. Other communities in the county are asking for like schools and a decided impetus toward selecting a better staple and grade of cotton seed must be secured here. The majority of men at the Ira school are against planting Half and Half cotton.

Scurry's Annual Poultry Show To Open Thursday

New Features Added To Exhibits In Snyder; Many Birds Expected To Be On Display In Event

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SNYDER, Nov. 30.—The Scurry County Poultry show that opens next Thursday is already receiving entries not only from this county but from Nolan, Garza, Mitchell and Fisher counties. One of the unusual features of this year's show will be what has been termed a flock show wherein twelve females and a male are placed in a spacious pen where visitors will have a better chance to choose a standard breed and see them to best advantage.

Another feature that will be played up this year is a Trades Day and auction sale where a chance will be given of securing the best roosters from breeders that know their stock. Turkeys, rabbits or poultry and pets of all descriptions can be brought in and traded or sold and exchanged. There will be no cost for this service.

Poultry feeding, housing plans, insects and diseases and other things pertaining to poultry raising will be shown, at a pubic mass meeting Friday afternoon, Dec. 6th. The annual banquet will be held that night at the Manhattan hotel.

Let's Put A Feather In Lubbock's Hat

Tuesday morning of this week two hundred public spirited men and women of Lubbock will take the field to secure subscriptions from public spirited citizens to finance the six organizations of the Community Chest for one year.

These men and women are offering you an opportunity to do your share in constructive community service.

These workers, in addition to giving their money, are giving their time and effort in order that this humanitarian appeal may be carried throughout the city in one brief time designated for that purpose.

Therefore, receive them as you would yourself be received if you were serving as they are. In such a spirit of mutual understanding, both those who ask and those who give will rejoice together in the consciousness of real service to Lubbock, their home.

The goal of the campaign is $30,000. By each doing his or her just share the amount can be raised—subscribe generously—put a feather in your hat—and by so doing it will mean "a real feather in Lubbock's hat."

and do it with a SMILE

Gas Meters Will Tell Full Story Of Cost Of Fuel

Delicate Bellows Are Even More Accurate Than Good Watch; Strict Track Is Kept On Flow

One's gas meter tells an interesting and important story, yet the average citizen of Lubbock little realizes the working of the delicate piece of mechanism which, each month, records the fuel consumed.

In connection with the use of gas in the home, the average person's qnowledge rests solely in the fact that once a month a meter reader calls at his address, jots down several figures in a book which is quickly followed by a gas bill.

Bellows Tell Story

What happens inside that inoffensive looking gas-tight metal box in a month's time? The interior would reveal an arrangement having similar action to a bellows. As gas is used, these bellows are slowly moved backwards and forwards, moving a series of little cog wheels to which are fastened the pointers of hands. The bellows being of a certain size naturally will hold only a certain amount of gas and as they empty the cog wheels can turn only a given distance and the accurate measurement of the amount of gas consumed is shrown.

In learning to read a meter, one can see what a reliable old box that sentinel is and will soon learn some interesting facts. Doubtless it will call to mind when the baby was sick hot liquids and hot water bottles, when the family went away and only a few meals were had at home, when the cook left and took her wasteful ways with her—then it certainly showed a saving; when mother spent almost a month filling the house with the scent of pickles, spices and jams all that showed up too. One will soon learn the story the gas meter has to tell.

Accurate As A Watch

When better acquainted with the meter, one will find it an ever-present help. Knowing how to read its story, an accurate account of gas expense can be kept. A gas meter is more accurate than a watch. It is one of the most accurate measuring instruments in use today. Like the registering turnstile, the meter will not operate unless something passes through it. The mechanism is not set in motion and the indicator does not move except as gas passes through. Before a meter is set it is thoroughly tested and proven for correct registration by precise and perfect measuring instruments.

PHEBE K. WARNER CLUB SOCIAL

Mrs. W. B. Nevels and Mrs. W. D. Henderson were joint hostesses to the Phebe K. Warner club, their husbands and a few other guests at the Nevels' home Wednesday.

A very enjoyable program was rendered by the Phebes with the assistance of Misses Bessie May Binnion and Lucille Slaton. The opening number, America the Beautiful, led by Miss Binnion, was sung by all present. Miss Binnion also favored us with the sweet old song Annie Laurie. Miss Slaton gave a very pleasing violin solo, "Humoresque," by Dvorak.

Description, location and geological survey of Zion National Park was given by Mesdames Elliott and Stokes.

The surprising feature of the program came when Mrs. G. M. Stewart was called to tell a story. Of course, all expected a Thanksgiving description of the early Puritan days. After giving a short historical sketch of old Plymouth and her people, she said, "I must have some help. Well the help came in the way of a real play, 'The Courtship of Miles Standish,' as was written by Longfellow.

The hostesses served a turkey dinner in buffet style to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. English, Miss Binnion, Truett Smith, Miss Slaton, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Sawder, jr., Mr. Haus Tunnell and members and husbands. Messrs. and Mesdames J. K. Applewhite, Chas. F. Shook, W. R. Fenton, G. M. Stewart, C. B. Townes, D. C. Haney, M. B. Hood, W. B. Slaton, John Stokes, H. P. Caveness, J. W. Elliott, G. H. Nelson, Jerry Nash, D. E. Turrentine, C. C. Williams, W. D. Henderson and W. B. Nevels.

DRAW CITIZEN DEAD

E. A. McKay, 67, was found dead in his bed Monday morning at the hom eof his son, Louis McKay, who resides on the farm of Dr. E. E. Calaway near Draw.

Mr. McKay had apparently been in good health and ate a hearty supper Sunday night. He had been subject to slight smoothering spells at infrequent intervals, however, but these were not regarded seriously. Dr. Calloway who examined the body was of the oupinion that death was due to acute dilatation of the heart.

Mr. McKay was a widower, making his home with his son, Louis McKay. Another son, J. L. McKay, also resides in the Draw community. Other children are Mrs. Mamie Livingston of Martin county, Mo.; Mrs. Nora Applegate at Klondike, Texas, and T. H. and S. S. McKay, whose residence at this time is unknown.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon from the Methodist church at Draw, the pastor officiating, with the Nazarene pastor assisting.

CHURCH OF CHRIST SERVICES

Elder Mike M. Young of Abernathy will preach at the hurch of Christ next Sunday, December 1st, and the public is cordially invited to hear him.

A crowd that filled the big auditorium of the T-Bar school building to its capacity attended the county singing convention held there Sunday, according to M. E. McCord, the secretary. The crowd was not so large in the morning but the folks flocked in great numbers in the afternoon.

Prof. H. M. McEachern of Dixie, was elected president of the convention for the ensuing year, succeeding M. C. Richey, who has been president for several years past. M. E. McCord was re-elected secretary.

The next convention will be held at New Home on the fourth Sunday in May and the Saturday preceding.

METHODIST POUND PASTOR

On going home from a reception at the Methodist church Monday evening, Rev. R. T. Breedlove, the Methodist pastor, and his family were most agreeably surprised to find a very generous pounding that had been placed in the parsonage in their absence. There was many, many useful things, even the Thanksgiving turkey.

EDITH CLUB MEETS

The Edith H. D. club met with Mrs. J. D. Patterson Friday afternoon. On account of bad weather only a few members were present. One visitor and Miss Greenwade was present. A very interesting meeting was enjoyed, Miss Greenwade, the home demonstration agent gave a demonstration in making tamale pie and potato salad. A very dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. D. A. Stevens.

Mrs. J. V. Dyer has been seriously ill for the past week but was slightly improved Wednesday. Mrs. Billie Sanders, a daughter, of San Angelo, was called to her mother's bedside the first of the week. Mrs. W. B. Edwards and Miss Lottie Shepherd of San Angelo, grand-daughters of Mrs. Dyer, also came. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Guinn, a daughter of Eldorado, arrived Monday night.

Many friends here are hoping for Mrs. Dyer's speedy recovery.

Five Is Lucky

Girl Has Unusual Birth Date

FT. WORTH, Nov. 30. (Special)—Five must be a lucky number for Miss Mota Maye Shaw, junior student in Texas Christian University from Amarillo, if the fives connected with her birth mean anything.

Miss Shaw was born on the fifth minute of the fifth hour of the afternoon of the fifth day of the week and the fifth day of the fifth month of the year. In other words, she was born five minutes after five on Thursday afternoon, May 5.

EDITED MAGAZINE

FORT WORTH, Nov. 30. (Special)—Miss Siddie Jo Johnson, sophomore student in Texas Christian University from Corpus christi, was an assistant editor of the recently published Texas number of The Troubador, poetry magazine of San Diego, Calif. "Girl in the Door," by Miss Johnson, and "Dos Visitors," by her sister, Miss Lena Agnes Johnson, were two of the Texas poems included in the issues.

Twitty's Warning Covers Lights On Holiday Festoons

Lubbock Fire Chief Issues Directions To Keep Fire Hazards Down; Trees Are Constant Threat

"Let him get his fingers burned and he won't want to play with fire" is commonly said of children who are meddlesome.

Every year thousands of people literally 'get their fingers burned' in ways that might easily have been prevented, according to W. E. Twitty, chief of the Lubbock fire department. Many people still use gasoline or some other high explosive too close to a fire or intense heart, with usually the result of loss of property and in many cases, life, he declares.

Warns On Holidays

"It is just the same old line," declares Chief Twitty about added carefulness in the holiday season. Folks should be careful with their Christmas decorations and candles. They should not use candles on their trees, but electric lights are fairly safe if the wiring is good."

Besides the added caution about Christmas decorations, there are the usual rules for fire prevention everyone has heard so many times. Watch your gas connections and ventilation. Be sure your match is burning before the gas is turned on, watch your flues and wiring, and be careful with hot coals and ashes, and many others which common sense will dictate.

Hazards In Country

"There are many fire hazards in the country not to be found in the city, provided people in town would be more careful," continued Chief Twitty, "Many people in the country do not yet have electricity and are forced to use kerosene lamps and coal stoves."

According to Chief Twitty the city of Lubbock is fairly free from fire hazards. Fire marshalls are working continuously and through their efforts many fire hazards have been eliminated. There are fire hazards which still exist under the present building laws of the city but, according to the chief, they are so many and so varied that it is a hard matter to eliminate them all.

So far this year the fire loss in Lubbock has been between $24,000 and $27,000. A fire loss of from $54,000 to $60,000 might be sustained and the city still retain the 15 per cent rating.

DUPLEX BEING BUILT

George Tannehill is erecting a modern duplex on his property in the south part of town. This is another brick for Abernathy and when completed will be up-to-date in every way. Mr. Tannehill has just completed a si-room brick on this same property and has moved to same and rented his old home to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Carlisle. The duplex will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tannehill and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nettles.

HERE TO SPEND WINTER

Harry Edison, of Madison, Wis., is here to spend the winter. Mr. Edison has been coming here for the past several years to spend the winter, returning north in the summer.

LEAVE FOR VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Albers and little daughter left Tuesday for the Rio Grande Valley where they will spend about three months. Mr. Albers is one of the progressive farmers of this community, having come here several years back and improved and built a lovely country home in the Science Hill community.

PAVEMENT REACHES TOWN

After a long spell of bad weather the highway department again is pushing the construction of the pavement on highway No. 9, having reached town Tuesday morning. If weather continues pleasant they will complete the pavement through town within the next week. This community is looking forward to the completion of this pavement with a great deal of pleasure. The property holders on the two main streets anticipate paving these two streets by next spring.

AUSTIN MAN HERE

T. E. Thrasher, of Austin, is here this week looking after his farm. He owns a section of land two miles northeast of Abernathy, which is being operated by O. A. Tooker. Mr. Thrasher has owned this property for a number of years.

MRS. LINDSEY HOSTESS

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. E. B. Lindsey was a charming hostess, when she entertained the members of the Just-A-Mere Bridge club.

High score went to Mrs. C. H. Bucks. At a late hour tuna fish salad, toasted crackers and hot chocolate were served to Mesdames E. E. Crow, F. Clausen, Leonard Harral, Ebb Coffman, C. H. Bucks, George Ragland, W. D. Harp, Wesley Hardesty, Clarence Schulz, Lamar McKinzie, Hugh Ragland, Miss Estelle McAllister and the hostess.

QUILTING PARTY

An old-time quilting party was enjoyed by a few ladies Wednesday afternoon, when they met in the balcony of the Struve Mercantile Store with Mrs. F. W. Struve as hostess. After several hours of quilting, Mrs. Struve served cookies and coffee to Mesdames Ben Struve, H. E. Richter, Fritz Fuchs, sr., W. A. Richter and Miss Bettie Fuchs. This is the first party of this kind but will be followed by several more in the near future.

RETURN FROM DEER HUNT

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Fuchs, jr., returned Tuesday from Burnett county where they had been on a hunting trip and also visited relatives.

Mr. Fuchs was lucky, bringing home two deer, which he killed during the first two days there. Mr. Fuchs, with several others, have a big ranch leased in the lower country and go there every year on their hunts.

While away Mrs. Fuchs visited her mother and sister at San Antonio, who have just returned from an extended trip through Europe.

SCHOOL PROGRAM

On Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium the Abernathy P. T. A. presented its first free community program of the year. This was for the public and was an interesting program. The teachers are to be congratulated on the splendid work they are doing with the little folks in the school this year.

First on program were two numbers by the midget orchestra of the primary grade, directed by Mr. Elton Beene. Next was a splendid drill by the sixth grade, all dressed as Pilgrims. First and second grade orchestra under the direction of Miss Vivian Crow. Song of Thanksgiving by the third grade. And last, was an attractive play by the fifth grade, representing the Indians and Pilgrims on the landing of the Pilgrims in America. Song by the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

This is the first of several night programs which will be sponsored by the P. T. A. this year. It is also being discussed that the club may sponsor a free picture show with each program which will be given. These programs are for the benefit of the community and each individual should do his part toward making them a success.

MR. AND MRS. MORELAND ENTERTAIN

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. U. L. Moreland assisted by Mrs. Moreland's mother, Mrs. W. H. Ragland, entertained several friends and relatives with a Thanksgiving dinner. Buick Dominates Price Class Cars

Company Selling Forty-Two Per Cent, According To Statement Of Sales Head Following Study

That the buick Motor company is now selling 42 percent of all cars in Buick's price class is the statement made by C. W. Churchill, general sales manager, following a study of reports for the three months ending October 31st.

The price class in which Buick cars are listed embraces 14 other makes of automobiles, any one of which the Buick Motor company is now outselling by a margin of at least two to one.

Acceptance Maintained

"It is extremely gratifying to learn from the most recent reports that public acceptance of the 1930 Buick line of automobiles has not only maintained Buick's position of leadership in the fine car field, but has increased its sales percentage to 42 percent of the entire price class" says Mr. Churchill.

Mr. Churchill attributes the increase in Buick's sales percentage to the unusual popularity of the 1930 models, which has brought into the Buick column many purchasers who have heretofore owned and driven other makes, and to the loyalty of those who have been Buick owners. In this connection another startling statement of fact was included in Mr. Churchill's public announcement—the fact that Buick sells, each year, more than half of its output to old Buick owners, which constitutes a record of owner loyalty unparalleled in the entire automobile industry.

Hupmobile Boosts Oil Life In Auto

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—Practically every housewife has had the experience of heating sewing machine oil or a similar lubricant so that it is fit for use. Although her experiences have probably not included the heating of the sewing machine oil to such a high point that it loses its lubricating qualities, automotive engineers say that this regularly happens in the modern high powered automobile.

The results of a series of investigations show that there are two periods at which automobile engine oil is unfit for proper motor lubrication.

Recognized By Engineers

First is when the oil is so cold that it congeals. This has long been recognized among automobile engineers.

Second is that temperature at which oil becomes so thin that it no longer provides a smooth lubricating film for bearing surfaces. These exhaustive tests have accurately determined the point at which this latter condition occurs.

Engines of great horse power—and modern automotive design is leaning in the direction of greater power—generate much greater heat than did their predecessors. This is particularly true of the high speed, large bore engines.

Plymouth Recalls Thanksgiving Day

When the Pilgrim fathers landed on the shores of this continent and, in December 1620, settled the village which they called Plymouth, they began to make history. The struggle of these Puritans against all natural odds, their physical and moral stamina, their success in establishing colonies in the rocky wilderness of the northeasten part of North America, has earned for them everlasting fame.

When the engineering experts of Chrysler Motors, a year and a half ago, conceived and completed plans for a new low-priced Chrysler-built automobile, a suitable name was sought, according to A. vanDerZee, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation.

Sturdily Designed

"So sturdily had the new car been designed in every point, so rugged was it in construction, so free was it from those limitations generally associated with low-price cars, that it was decided to name the car Plymouth because of the association of the name with that dauntless band of stalwart Pilgrims who were among the first American colonists," Mr. vanDerZee says.

WOODMEN INSTRUCTED

SNYDER, Nov. 30. (Special)—Class adoption of 15 Modern Woodmen was made last night by State Deputy Robert J. Vidler of Dallas, when a district meeting was held here. New membership for Snyder in the past two months totals 40, according to Clerk Gay McGlaun. District Deputy W. A. Stephenson was present and spoke during the banquet which was an open house meeting.

Franklin Chalks Up New Run Mark

Air-Cooled Sedan Travels From New York To Los Angeles At Record Speed; Cannon Ball Baker Drives

In the most sensational transcontinental record breaking run ever made by an automobile, a Franklin sedan clipped four hours and 29 minutes off the former record, which was also held by Franklin, covering the 3,260 miles between New York City and Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast in 69 hours and 31 minutes. This new mark beats a former record held by another car by eight hours and nine minutes. Cannon Ball Baker, chief test pilot for Franklin, was behind the wheel of the air-cooled car, which has added a new outstanding record to its already long list of major records and again proved the efficiency of air-cooling.

In this new record run the Franklin beat the time of the fastest trains by eight hours and 29 minutes and made a highly favorable showing with the combination train and airplane time of 48 hours.

Baker was checked out of New York City by Western Unions timers on Monday night at 8:30 and arrived in Los Angeles at 3.01 p. m. Wednesday, averaging 46.89 miles an hour for the trip. Not for an instant during the terrific grind which carried the Franklin over the greatest mountain ranges in America as well as across plains, deserts of the far west and through crowded city traffic, was the engine stopped. In all kinds of weather, including rain, wind, snow and below zero temperatures, the air-cooled engine developed the great power necessary to sweep the Franklin to another imposing world for fast transcontinental travel.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SOCIAL

Monday evening in the W. P. Fullingim home in east Lorenzo the members of the Forward Movers class of the Baptist Sunday school entertained the members of the United Workers of the Methodist Sunday school with a social. Mrs. W. P. Fullingim is teacher of the hostess class and J. L. Suits is teacher of the class that was being entertained. Mrs. R. Jones Goode had charge of the program which began with a welcome address by Mrs. Fullingim and a response by Mr. Suits. A quartet composed of Mrs. J. R. Duncan, M. C. Henry, John Leverett and S. A. Lawrence gave two numbers, readings were given by Mesdames E. Smith and Goode and Leverett, president of the Forward Movers, talked on "The Spirit of Thanksgiving." Two lively contests were staged in which prizes were awarded Mrs. Floyd Pearson and H. L. Stancil.

The home had been made attractive with baskets and vases of red carnations and chrysanthemums while floor baskets held large bunches of autumn leaves.

The Thanksgiving theme was used in the serving of refreshments to Messrs. and Mesdames Lawrence, Tyer, Sullivan, Upton, Merchant, Henry, Grears, G. L. Goodwin, Goode, Garmon, A. B. and Roy Terrell, Stancil, Floyd Pearson, Bowman, Suits, Simon, John Leverett, Martin, E. Smith, Mesdames Durham, Blakemore, Duncan, P. D. and W. P. Fullingim.

WOMAN'S STUDY CLUB

Mesdames E. S. Smith and Joe Schuler were hostesses to the Woman's Study club with the meeting taking place in the Smith home, Mrs. O. W. Fagala led the lesson on the last hlaf of the book, DeMorgan's "Joseph Vance." Papers were read by Mesdames Dewey Sullivan and F. L. Terrell, and the discussion was by Mesdames T. G. Hendrick, R. L. Durham, Jones Goode. The president, Mrs. W. P. Fullingim, reported addressing the high school student body on Friday, Nov. 22, offering the club loving cup to the class in English who made the best yearly average in that subject.

BENEFIT FORTY-TWO PARTY

The Lorenzo Community Theater sponsored a benefit forty-two party Friday night in the Roy Abell building down town and a nice sum was realized to be used for a payment on the new high school piano. Several players tied for high score in the games, and the socialities closed with the serving of apple pie and coffee to Messrs. and Mesdames Schuler, Floyd Pearson, Sullivan, Foy Terrell, Abell, P. D. Fullingim, E. Smith, Morrison, Durham, Agee, Bowman, W. W. Anderson, Blakemore, Goode, Garmon, Norval Dillard, Bounds, Johnson, Hendrick; Misses Ilene Wampler, Polly Taylor, Pearl Laird, Inez Cherry, Lily May Fitzhugh, Earl Jean Suits, Edna Mae Lillard; Messrs. METHODIST W. M. S.

Election of officers featured the meeting of the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society at the home of Mrs. R. P. Nicholson on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting had been postponed from Monday on account of the funeral at Lubbock, of Rev. R. P. Dunn.

Mrs. F. L. Terrell was elected president of the society, Mrs. J. B. Thompson was elected vice-president, Mrs. Roy Abell, corresponding secretary and treasurer.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Roy Terrell, local secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Roy Terrell, superintendent of children; Miss Jewel Aubrey, superintendent of baby division; Mrs. M. C. Pearson, superintendent of Mission and Bible study; Mrs. H. P. Pearson, superintendent of social service; Mrs. J. B. Thompson, superintendent of literature and publicity.

The society will meet Monday at the parsonage and discuss further plans for the "Home Beautiful Tea" to be held December 12.

I-DEAL CLUB BANQUET FOR HUSBANDS

The R. L. Bowman home on Van Buren Avenue was the scene Tuesday evening of a six o'clock turkey banquet given by the ladies of the I-Deal Bridge club for their husbands. The Thanksgiving motif was used in decorations and turkeys in art were used for tallies, place cards and favors.

Bridge was in progress at four tables following the lovely meal, ann in the games Mrs. J. T. Howell and Roy Abell were high score winners. Players were Messrs. and Mesdames L. J. Sanders, T. G. Hendrick, J. L. Suits, Roy Abell, J. O. Foster, R. L. Bowman, J. T. Howell; Messrs. Tom Ellis Suits and Terrell Bowman.

SENIOR CLASS BANQUET

Mrs. J. A. Dillard and daughter, Miss Edna Mae, entertained the members of the senior class of the high school at the Dillard home on North Harrison Avenue Tuesday evening with a lovely turkey dinner. Following the banquet the guests went en basse to the play, "The Bashful Mr. Bobbs," at the high schol auditorium.

COMMUNITY THEATER PLAY

The Lorenzo Community Theater presented their second play of the season on Tuesday evening at the school auditorium, the play was a three act comedy entitled "The Bashful Mr. Bobbs." Joe Schuler played the part of Mr. Bobbs and the leading feminine roles were played by Mrs. Schuler and Miss Pearl Laird. The comedy was enthusiastically received by the audience, and from the proceeds the theater was able to make another nice payment on the new high school piano.

POUNDS PREACHER

Members of the Methodist church gave their new pastor, Rev. J. B. Thompson and family a surprise grocery pounding Wednesday evening at the parsonage. Many who did not go sent something in the grocery line and a large addition to the pastor's larder was the result. Messrs. and Mesdames A. B. Terrell, Floyd Pearson, J. E. Nair, Wm. Grears, S. B. Upton F. L. Terrell, Mesdames R. L. Durham, W. M. Blakemore and Aubrey Ashley were the ones who presented the gifts.

Slaton To Hold Fete For Medics

Physicians From 35 Towns Are Invited To Attend Luncheon Given Friday By C. Of C.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, Nov. 30.—More than 100 physicians and surgeons, living in 35 different towns and cities of the South Plains section, have been invited to a luncheon in Slaton next Friday, as guests of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and the Slaton Rotary club. While here the doctors will inspect Slaton's new $200,000 sanitarium, Mercy hospital, which was formally opened Wednesday afternoon.

"If any doctor fails to receive one of our letters of invitation to the luncheon, it will not be because we do not want him to attend, and if he will write us that he is coming, we will make preparations for entertaining him," said Horace Hawkins, president of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and W. H. Smith, president of the Rotary club, endorsed this statement. The two officials declared that every physician or surgeon in the South Plains area is an invited guest for the noon program next Friday. Advance information about their attendance was desired, however, they pointed out.

The shortest railway system in the world is said to be at Cassville, Arkansas, and is only 4.9 miles long.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—From a ual survey of the colorful models imported and domestic high- ed cars displayed at the Nation- Automobile Salon here, we may pect the average motorist next r t disporting himself amid om ve curves and colors such e has never enjoyed before.

r as the de luxe automobile so will the every-day car of future, perhaps in a year, per- s even sooner. And the de luxe tomobile has gone swankier and rtier than ever.

Radio equipment is another addition to the modern automobile, and several of the models on display at the salon here showed this. Radio receivers for automobiles, too, are being made for installation in any type of car.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

There are many varieties of anti-freeze on the market, but the most dependable are denatured alcohol and those trade-marked products that have pure glycerine or ethylene glycol as their constituent.

Of the other patented anti-freezes, most are alkaline solutions, such as calcium chloride. The acid in them attacks the metal in the radiator and other parts of the cooling system.

If such solution is to be used, however, the acid reaction in it may be neutralized by addition of ammonia or soda ash until blue litmus paper no longer turns red when dipped in it.

Between alcohol and glycerine the question might arise as to which to use for better results. That depends on the prevailing weather conditions. In the north, where winter remains cold for a long time and there are no sudden warm spells, there is less chance of losing alcohol by evaporation than in the southern and more varying climates. Therefore alcohol would be much cheaper and at least as effective as glycerine.

But farther south, where winter is interspersed with warm snatches, the best anti-freeze to use is glycerine. For glycerine does not evaporate, no matter how warm the weather, while alcohol does as soon as there is possibility of the solution going higher than its boiling point, which is comparatively low. Glycerine's boiling point is even much higher than that of water while its freezing point is much lower than water's freezing point.

In a consistently cold climate, as in Canada, and some of the northerly states, glycerine may have the tendency of getting thick and sluggish and so retarding the flow of the cooling solution through radiator, pump and water jacket. Before the liquid could thin down enough to flow freely and quickly and so have its intended effect, the motor might become overheated.

Alcohol, however, maintains a regular consistency from freezing to boiling, has even a lower freezing point than glycerine and therefore is more effective in real cold weather.

It should be remembered that what is wanted is an engine heated up to the proper operating temperature and kept there. That's pretty close to the boiling point of water.

An anti-freeze, or too much anti-freeze that would tend to keep this temperature down is bad for the engine.

In real cold weather which remains so evenly throughout the season, alcohol permits the engine to warm up quickly to proper operating temperature. It does this much faster than glycerine, and it keeps the engine at this operating temperature. Little if any of the alcohol evaporates at this working temperature, for the solution is still below the boiling point of alcohol.

Of course, more alcohol would have to be used in proportion to water the more northerly the climate. The same is true of glycerine. But right proportions have been worked out by engineers for various degrees of temperature, so that there may be no danger of freezing from the use of too little anti-freeze or no worry of evaporation from an overdose of the liquid.

WEDDINGS DECREASE

New Law Playing Havoc In Scurry, Records Show

SNYDER, Nov. 30.—Records in the office of County Clerk Mable Garman show that the new marriage law is playing havoc with marriages in Scurry county. During July, August, September and October of the past year only 22 couples walked up to the altar of Hymen while the corresponding months of 1928 showed a total of forty-four. The proximity of New Mexico and Oklahoma make the marrying proposition a faster conclusion.

Pontiac Detours Through America

Big Six Completes 32,000 Miles Of Back Roads As Leader Of Tire Testing Fleet; Trip Enjoyed

"Detouring through America" might serve as an apt title for the log book of the Pontiac Big Six which recently completed 32,000 miles of fast travel over a hand-picked "worst way" route as leader of the Goodrich Silver Fleet of 15 tire-testing cars.

Although the trip hardly would meet the average motorist's idea of pleasure driving, E. W. Clark, pilot of the lead car, declares that he thoroughly enjoyed the rigorous ten months of back road touring. Clark was one of the fifteen university graduates who drove the fleet of cars under the direction of Lieutenant H. R. Shaeffer of the United States naval reserves.

Loaded With Thrills

"The trip brought me many thrills and the satisfaction of conquering difficult obstacles and conditions," said Clark. "The Pontiac and I became pals during that long hard drive. We seemed to develop the same mutual understanding that often exists between a horseman and his intelligent mount. I certainly shall miss that car. I became mighty proud of it and the manner in which it carried on through roads that would make the ordinary detour seem like a boulevard.

"We were looking for hard going and we certainly were not disappointed. Extreme of altitude, extremes of weather and extremes of road conditions imposed hardships on the cars that probably could not be matched anywhere within the borders of the United States. But the Pontiac always bucked through in fashion that made the trip a pleasure instead of a grind.

An office building to cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 will be built in Winnipeg, Canada.

Motor Bus Lines Seek Regulation To Boost Service

Ruler Governing Operation Of Interstate Transportation Seen In Hoover's Interest In Efficiency

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.—President Hoover's interest in promoting the efficiency of the nation's transportation units has given operators of motor bus lines considerable hope that Congress will be prevailed upon to enact legislation for the regulation of interstate operations in order that they may proceed in an orderly manner to better serve the public through contemplated extensions and improvements.

This statement was issued today by the National Association of Motor Bus Operators, affiliated with the American Automobile association, on the heels of a meeting of representatives of all transportation agencies and public utilities commissioners held at National Headquarters of the A. A. A. Organizations represented at the meeting included the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners, composed of state officials; the Association of Railway Executives and the American Railway Association.

The session was held almost simultaneously with the White House conferences of rail executives.

No Contro'. Claim

"Although the federal government exercises supervision over railroads, radio and other agencies engaged in interstate operations," says the statement, "irresponsible motor bus operators have been allowed to enter interstate traffic without any sign of control.

"The seriousness of the situation can be seen from the fact that there are more than 90,000 motor buses in operation, of which around 40,000 are engaged in common carridied service. They are used in conjunction with rail lines, for long-distance operations and have recently entered the field of night travel with sleeper accommodations."

Nash Sales Head At European Show

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 30.—American engineering genius may again be credited with creating the pattern for motor car improvement this year in continental Europe.

Better motor performance through the refinement of various mechanical units and increased passenger comfort through lowering of body suspensions and increasing interior roominess are outstanding features of the latest and best foreign cars.

Report Highlights

These significant facts are highlights of the interesting report on the trend of overseas automobile manufacturing made today to C. H. Bliss, sales manager of The Nash Motors company, by Nash engineers assigned to study foreign developments at the recent Paris International Salon and London Motor Show. They indicate to both sales and production officials that there can be no possibility of any foreign invasion of the automobile field in the United States and that American industry generally still retains its comfortable lead in values offered to the public both at home and abroad.

"Mail Early Campaign" Is On; Uncle Sam Asks For Co-Operation In Work

First Plea Of Local Postoffice Is Made By J. L. Vaughan

"ONLY twenty-one more shopping days until Christmas," "Shop early and avoid the rush," and other similar signs are being displayed in store windows. This is an effort to give more personal attention to customers, and to avoid the last minute rush in some degree.

The postoffice department has its early mailing slogans too, which urge the patrons to "Mail early for delivery before Christmas day, on which there will be no mail delivery," "Avoid congestion and delay," "Shop now and mail early for early delivery."

Volume Is Heavy

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of their Christmas Day the public is urged to shop and mail early.

Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts and greetings at least a week or ten days before Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas Day, but it will be a great aid to the postal service.

During the rush season each postmaster is forced to put on extra help. According to John L. Vaughan, postmaster here, there about 15 or 20 carriers added and about 10 clerks. The regular employes are worked about two hours overtime each day during this season and the extras are worked about the same time.

Mr. Vaughan urges that all patrons mail their parcels and greeting cards as early as possible in order that the postal employes may spend Christmas Day with their own families.

Letters and sealed matter are in the first class and the postage rate is two cents for each ounce or fraction; third class mail is limited to eight ounces and includes books, merchandise and other similar matter and the rate is 1 1-2 cents for each two ounces; fourth class includes all matter not included in the other classes and the rate is usually computed by zones, or according to weight and distance.

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and width combined and is limited to 70 pounds for the first 300 miles, and for a greater distance the limit is 50 pounds.

Addresses should be complete with house number and name of street, postoffice box or rural route number, and written plainly. A return address should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used the address should also be placed on the wrapper for use if the tag is lost.

All parcels must be securely packed and wrapped and should be tied with heavy twine. All crushable matter should be packed in corrugated or fiber boxes and marked "Fragile." All photographs paintings and unmounted maps should be packed in corrugated carboard or rolled around a strong cardboard tube. Sharp pointed or sharp edged matter must be guarded to precent injury to clerks and other mail.

Articles easily broken should be carefully packed and wrapped to prevent the escape of particles of glass or other matter, if broken. All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "Fragile."

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transit and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack other matter carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "Perishable." Special delivery stamps greatly expedite delivery.

Written matter in the nature of correspondence cannot be inclosed in parcels. A letter may be tied or otherwise fastened to a parcel if first class postage is attached to it in addition to the postage required for the parcel. However, to encourage early mailing parcels may be marked "Do not open until Christmas." Written greetings such as "Merry Christmas," With best wishes," and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of identification may be inclosed with parcels. Books may bear similar dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to first class or letter postage. Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of the mail.

Valuable parcels should be insured. The fees are small, costing only five cents to insure a package up to $5; to $25, eight cents, to $50, 10 cents, to $100, 25 cents, all in addition to the regular postage.

The department urges that very small or queer shaped cards be used as little as possible. They are very hard to handle and cause the clerks to loose much valuable time in handling and dispatching. Patrons sending a quantity of cards should prepare and mail them several weeks in advance, as millions are mailed and they cannot possibly be handled and delivered if mailed only a day or two before Christmas. To avoid this they may deliver their cards, tied in a bundle, labeled to show that they are Christmas cards, to a postal clerk. They will then be stamped with the date on which to be delivered and delivery effected one or two days before Christmas.

Christmas cards and gifts addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed in no event later than December 20; within two days travel, not later than December 18; within three days travel not later than December 16; and for more distant points not later than December 14.

Parcels weighing over eight ounces cannot be mailed in a letter box but must be taken to the main postoffice or classified station.

Information as to mailing to foreign countries can be obtained at the proper window at the postoffce.
